SIERRA MADRES' COLORFUL IMAGINATION

The residents of Sierra Made and members of theRose Float Association proudly participated in the 2012 Tournament of Roses Parade with the entry, "Colorful Imagination." (Photo by Chris Bertrand) It was the 80th Sierra Madre float entry.

As conceived and drawn by Julio Leon, "Colorful Animation" celebrates children's play and their unique ability to use their imaginations to create magical new worlds from ordinary, every day objects. As these children play they envision colorful butterflies soaring from the swirling paint. Although the float did not win an award this year, its' entry alone (80th for Sierra Madre) marked a major milestone as a self built entry.

The parade this year also had a very special Grand Marshal, J.R. Martinez, (Photo by Lina Johnson), a veteran and most recently winner of the popular show, 'Dancing With The Stars'.

COMMUNITY INVITED TO PUSD CHARTER AMENDMENT AND DISTRICTING TASK FORCE PRESENTATION

The Sierra Madre Kiwanis Club is hosting a presentation on the proposed PUSD Charter Amendment and Districting Task Force which is the methods for selecting Members of the PUSD Board of Education in the future. Currently, Board Members are elected district wide, however there is discussion as to whether or not that should change.

The event will take place at The Lodge (formerly Masonic Temple), 33 E. Sierra Madre Blvd., on Tuesday, January 11, 2012. Lunch begins at noon at costs $10. (Reservations required 626-355-0728) The program, which is free to the public, begins at 12:30. The Sierra Madre Schools are a part of the Pasadena Unified School District. There has been much discussion as to whether or not the two schools, which operated as one until recently, would have separate representation. One proposal suggests that if approved, districts would be established by population size. Each new district would represent 28,000 people. However, under such a plan, Sierra Madre would be added to one, and possibly two districts.

The Taskforce is composed of nine members, selected as follows: three members appointed by the PUSD Board of Education, three members appointed by Pasadena City Council, two members appointed by Supervisor Antonovich, and one member appointed by the Sierra Madre City Council. Bart Doyle is the Sierra Madre representative. The objective of this effort is to implement geographic region elections for the Pasadena Unified School District Governing Board for a March 2013 election. The decision is im-portant to all citizens of Sierra Madre, regardless of whether or not they have children attending PUSD Schools.

ASSEMBLYMAN TIM DONNELLY ATTEMPTS TO BOARD AIRLINE WITH LOADED GUN

By Susan Henderson

Just short of the 1 year anniversary of the brutal murder of six innocent people including a child, and the near fatal shooting of Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords, the debate over gun control has ignited again. This time, fortunately, it is in a proactive manner, not the result of any act of violence.

Earlier this week, the Assemblyman who represents Sierra Madre and parts of Arcadia, Monrovia and Duarte, Tim Donnelly, was prevented from boarding a flight to Sacramento because of a concealed handgun and ammunition in his briefcase. According to the federal Transportation Security Administration said that "Donelly's briefcase contained a .45-caliber handgun with four rounds in its magazine, and a spare magazine containing five rounds."

Donnelly was arrested, and cited for possession of a loaded firearm. He could recieve a sentence of up to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine. The Transportation Security Administration also could levy a fine of up to $10,000.

-Pasadena-ONLINE RADIO STATION CENTERS ON CITY HAPPENINGS

Sierra Former Madre Commissioner James Faulkner has done it all, from working as an Emmy Award-winning graphic designer and art director, to a puppeteer. It was a love of music, however, that led him to agree to help start Sierra Madre's new online radio station. Faulkner who is known as D.J. Boddington on Radiofishbowl, is the man who loves "spinning records" on the station.

"This radio station is dedicated to Sierra Madre," Faulkner said, "with the hope of promoting local business here, and supporting local events in the arts, sports, and an array of all sorts of activities in town."

Faulkner said long time resident and businessman Jim Moran came up with the idea of starting a local station. Moran facilitated the financing, which funds the music licensing through ASCAP. This allows him to stream his collection of 10,000 songs on iTunes.

The station has been up since early October using the Live365 radio network.

VIEWER'S CHOICE AWARD NIXED

By Dean Lee

After a short three years as the Tournament's newest award and bringing the parade into the internet age officials confirmed Tuesday morning that the Viewer's Choice Award was removed this year by the Tournament of Roses judging committee. "We just decided not to do it," said Manager of Public Information, Vanessa Flores. "Technically, it was a hard award to pull off and Cal Poly had won it three years in a row. We're giving it a break for a bit."

Flores said there were issues with their webservers and website. Of the three years, she said KTLA partnered with the Tournament for the first two. "We took it on entirely last year." No reason was given as to why the station gave up on the award, although not sanctioned by the Tournament, KTLA 'set up a judging site where viewers vote on a favorite float.

This year Cal Poly Universities took 60.9 percent of the unofficial poll, a number similar to past the Viewer's Choice Awards. Last year, their "jungle Cuts," received 20,788 votes out of a total of 50,535 submitted. Last year, the tournament also allowed voted to be text messaged.

In past years, Cal Poly students were very proud and outspoken in their aggressiveness courting votes. In 2009 students involved in the official float building class told this newspaper that after realizing there was no limit to the number of times a single person could vote, they flooded the online ballot box. Last year, students also told this newspaper that the school's then president Warren Baker personally emailed the entire student body of both Cal Poly San Luis Obispo and Pomona urging then to vote.

Inquiries at press time seeking comment from both Cal Poly and KTLA went unanswered.

ROSE PARADE GETS A TASTE OF DOO DAH FUN

participant and Doo Dah queen judge, plus the 2009 grand marshal both riding in this year's Rose Parade— with at least a half dozen other Doo Dah regulars/Occupy protesters tagged on the back for good measure— the pristine and proper parade got a taste of its, not so serious, alter ego.

Ann Erdman, the longtime Public Information Officer for Pasadena and set to retire in March, rode on the Kiwanis International "Winter Wonderland" float. Erdman now holds the title as "first person to ride in both the Doo Dah and Rose Parades." For about 12 years Erdman rode the pace car at the front of the Doo Dah Parade —then held the last Sunday of November. Erdman has also been a queen judge every year.

Erdman said the idea of riding in the Rose Parade came from a longtime friend Deborah Swartz who runs the Old town Cooking School.

"She came up with the idea, as a combination, welcome back to life and preretirement gift," Erdman explained.
"Her husband Jerram called (Pasadena) Mayor Bill Bogaard and the Mayor spearheaded it from there. He though it was a great idea and started making ride on their float." phone calls."

Erdman underwent emergency surgery in July after suffering a ruptured colon. She returned to work in October.

AROUND SAN GABRIEL VALLEY

"What's Going On?" News and Views from Joan Schmidt

"Always expect unexpected". Last night when we were listening to the news, I heard that a much loved Auxiliary Bishop from the Archdiocese of LA, had resigned after Pope Benedict XVI accepted his resignation. This occurred because Bishop Gabino Zavala had two teenage children who lived in another state with their mother. To say I was "floored", would be an understatement.

I met Bishop Zavala not long after his appointment as Auxiliary Bishop for the San Gabriel Pastoral Region. Fellow Town Council Member, Reyna Diaz planned a special Mass commemorating the Feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe. After all, our Parish has a large Hispanic following. What a coup it was that Reyna brought Bishop Zavala to celebrate the special Mass. I was immediately warmed by his friendly personality and sincere caring for his people. Throughout the years that followed, I would see Bishop Zavala again at our Parish confirmations and special recognition Masses for our priests. Besides my parish, there are 65 others in our region and I know this news must be shocking and upsetting to many!

Bishop Zavala was born in Mexico. However he attended grammar school in Los Angeles with my dear friend Hilda and her older brother, Alex. (Bishop Alexander Salazar.) They were close friends during childhood and remained so over the years, as Hilda's brother also was ordained a priest and ultimately a bishop too.

Bishop Zavala was ordained a priest, May 28, 1977 by Cardinal Timothy Manning, and was assigned to Our Lady of Guadalupe Church, East Los Angeles. After graduating from Catholic University of America with a degree in Canon Law, he worked in the Tribunal and was named rector of St. John's Seminary in 1992. Two years later, Cardinal Mahoney ordained him as Auxiliary Bishop for the San Gabriel Region.

Throughout his career, Bishop Zavala has been in the news as a champion of many causes. I admired him for wanting immigration reform. In 2004, he was honored by Death Penalty Focus -he wanted to reform the criminal justice system and abolish the death penalty. He was a champion of youth. Sometimes people perceived him as being orthodox in his beliefs-he supported controversial positions on homosexuality.

After the news last night, I tried calling Reyna. I spoke to her this morning. She felt it was very sad, but she did not condemn him. When I talked to Hilda last night, she was angry and sad. She could not believe that he had lived a double life over so many years. But she was very sad also as he is a very dear friend and had done so much in his tenure as Bishop. Yesterday, it was announced > on a Spanish station, but Zavala's name was not revealed. The bishops are currently on a retreat, but after the Archdiocese released the statement, Hilda's brother called her to alert her. He didn't want his mom hearing the news on the TV.

> On the Internet, a "Doctor-Zaius" gave info that my son revealed to me several years ago. I am a Catholic and attended Catholic Schools for sixteen years. In High school, our priest said, Jesus gave up His life. We don't give up our lives, but the next best thing-we don't reproduce."-that was why they don't marry. However, that answer is not totally true. In the early days, priests DID marry and had families. But that stopped -I believe around the time of St. Augustine because of property laws. If a priest died, the Church wanted his holdings going back to the Church and not passed on to his children. So the Church decided priests shouldn't marry.

When I was young, priests celebrated Mass EVERY day. There were no Lay Eucharist Ministers or Deacons to help, so I believe they felt a family would take up too much time. Therefore priest STILL could not marry. However, today there are deacons, Lay Eucharist Ministers and several Parish ministries to assist priests. Eastern rite Churches permit priests to marry, so many ask, "Why does this archaic law still exist?"

Everyone I have spoken with feels very sad and sorry for Zavala's children. The archdiocese announced they would assist with their college education. (Priests receive small stipends.) Comments from friends have included, "Why didn't he ask to leave the priesthood sooner?' But as my neighbor says, "It is God who must

SGV - FOOTHILL EXTENSION

The new year is starting out with significant activity on all aspects of the project, beginning with Kiewit Parsons initiating alignment design and pre-construction activities which are now underway. This includes surveying, geotechnical work and utility locating activities all along the 11.5-mile corridor. Additionally, the I-210 Bridge two main column structures in the center median are complete and the "form" was moved early yesterday morning to the southern shoulder and is now installed around the third. The abutments are also well underway, and crews are getting ready to turn their attention to the super-structure.

In the coming weeks, installation of the falsework will begin. This activity will take a number of weeks to complete, and will require up to 20 late-night closures of all eastbound lanes of the I-210 Freeway. Some closures will occur on consecutive nights, and all will take place starting at Midnight with lanes reopening

The Los Angeles Business Journal this week published a photo essay of a number of "jumbo projects" underway in the region. They featured the I-210 Bridge on the cover, and included several photos in the essay highlighting our project. Additionally, the Foothill Extension project was ranked the fourth largest construction project in the county by the Journal in their Book of Lists, which also came out this week. Expo and the 405 projects also ranked on the top of the list, highlighting the importance that Measure R is playing in the economic recovery of the area.

Finally, this week the Authority filed an objection with the Los Angeles Superior Court. The objection is a response to last week's preliminary ruling "vacating" a previous ruling relating to the project's environmental clearance. We objected to the ruling, because it was based on the factual error that the alternative site (in Irwindale) reviewed in the Supplemental EIR for the maintenance facility was outside the Pasadena to Azusa corridor and therefore was not a reasonable alternative. In fact, the Irwindale site evaluated sits directly along the corridor, just west of the future Irwindale station. We feel confident that once the court realizes its misunderstanding, it will maintain its initial ruling in favor of the Authority's certified document. I will of course keep you posted.

She was found as a stray in La Puente and brought to the Baldwin Park shelter on December 24th. This girl is as sweet as pie, and even has a little marking that looks like a heart on her head. Weighing seventy pounds, this volunteer favorite walks well on the leash and sits on command. She also has a little trick that she likes to show off, in which she hops in place like a little frog. It is definitely a crowd pleaser. Sadie likes other dogs, but her size is overwhelming to small dogs so she should have a playmate her own size. This is a superb dog that gives long hugs and kisses. NATURE AND THE ENVIRONMENT

vague peripheral knowledge. The issue that will be GMOs? It is surprising just how many people have no idea. GMO is the popular acronym for Genetically Modified Organisms or GE (genetically engineered) crops or ingredients. They are used as ingredients in about 75-80% of all of the processed foods in our grocery stores. Most of us eat them every day. Their cultivation is either heavily restricted or illegal in over 30 nations throughout the world: Peru, Japan, New Zealand, Ireland, Germany, France, Hungary, Switzerland, parts of Australia and Thailand, Greece, and Bulgaria to name a few. Most countries who do not outright ban them in their agriculture do at least insist that products containing them are labeled as such. In these countries, products containing GMOs are nearly unmarketable as consumers know to avoid them. Most U.S. companies that sell their products abroad, remove GMO ingredients for their more discerning and informed foreign consumers.

The consumers in these countries spoke loud and clear...given the choice they chose not to eat products that are genetically engineered. Here in this country, we do not have the knowledge or the information needed to make that choice. The corporations that produce the GE seeds (and the products that are used in their cultivation) have prevented labeling legislation to be enacted here in the U.S. They have pumped millions of dollars into spreading propaganda to defeat publicly initiated measures, and to lobby politicians to protect their interests. Here in California, Mendocino, Trinity, and Marin counties have succeeded in banning the cultivation of GMO crops but a similar effort in Boulder, CO was recently squelched by industry money. Several years ago in Oregon, a proposition that would have required labeling of genetically modified foods in the state, failed because of the money that the industry poured into the state. The initiative had tremendous public support to begin with, but the $5.2 million dollar industry campaign quickly reversed that support and overwhelmingly defeated the measure. The proponents of the bill had only $200,000 with which to fight back.

Now our great state of California has stepped up to the plate to take on the mighty food and agricultural industries. Early this year a Chico, CA grandmother, Pamm Larry, decided

In the next "enough is enough" and single-handedly started months a statewide ballot initiative that would require there will begin the labeling of all foods that contain genetically to be a lot of modified ingredients. Today, the movement has buzz about a over 150 local groups working on spreading topic of which awareness, knowledge, and support of the issue. people Starting February 10 and continuing through April 21, they will be on the streets gathering the 840,000 signatures that they need to assure have just that they have 540,000 valid signatures needed to get the measure on the ballot for November 2012. The group will have 10 weeks to collect the rising to the forefront is that of GMOs. What are required signatures. Backed by an ever-growing coalition of consumer advocate groups, health and environmental organizations, organic and natural food supporters, and a rapidly growing citizens network, the outlook is good for success, but qualifying it for the ballot is just the beginning

> When a powerful corporation's profits rely on the public and the government buying into their world view, a great deal of industry propaganda will be circulated in the media to protect their interests. Most of the corporate controlled media do little to research a topic when reporting on it, but rather just take the PR piece they are handed by the industry spokespeople, and report it as fact. It is easier that way, and it is less likely to make waves with their sponsors, particularly when a piece of legislation could directly affect many of the companies that advertise on television and radio. To uncover the truth in most such issues, all one usually needs to do is trace the source of the information, and ask the question...what does this source have to gain by promoting this information as fact?...in other words follow the

> As compelling as all of the data is (see side bar) on the negative aspects GMOs and how it shows that we need to reexamine our commitment to this highly unsustainable form of agriculture, that is ultimately NOT the issue here. The arguments that the industry will make to support their products and protect their market are just a smoke screen. The real issue is NOT whether or not we support the use of GMOs...that does not matter. The issue here is simply that we have the RIGHT to know what we are eating. Our food industry did NOT have the right to keep is in the dark for the last 15 years or more about what it is they have been feeding us. We DO have the right to be informed consumers so that we can choose what we put into our bodies. We should NOT be the laboratory for the rest of the world. I seriously doubt that anyone can find an argument in that. A truly free market requires an informed

I urge you all to make sure that you find a petition and sign it between Feb. 10 and April 21 and if you have a little time and feel passionate about your right to know, contact your local group at labelgmospasadena@gmail.com to volunteer to collect signatures.

THE "HE SAYS, SHE SAYS" OF THE GMO ISSUE

What are the issues with GMOs?....that depends on the source of the information. Most likely you will hear the usual industry mantra, that GMOs are necessary to address the hunger issues of a rapidly growing world population. This is highly debatable. A very recent U.N. (http://www.srfood. org/images/stories/pdf/ press_releases/20110308_ agroecology-report-pr_en.pdf), determined that by switching to small scale, locally traditional methods of agriculture, food production in areas where to their own people. hunger is of great concern could double within 10 years (compared to the large scale conventional methods). A 30 year long Rodale Institute study comparing conventional methods with organic methods in cost and output show that not only do organic methods have higher yields than conventional methods (using GMO seeds, chemical fertilizers and toxins to control weeds and insects) but they are also more cost effective. (http://www.rodaleinstitute.org/fst30years) Needless to say, organic methods also produce healthier and tastier food as well.

You will also likely hear that labeling requirements will drive the cost of food through the roof. This is also not true. The cost to the European consumer when similar legislation was enacted was about 0.17%...less than one fifth of a cent for every dollar you spend on food. (http:// www.naturalnews.com/031399_GMOs_food_ labeling.html) The legislation that is being proposed in California has been intentionally crafted to eliminate most of consumer and governmental costs. The text of the bill is available on line at: http://d3n8a8pro7vhmx.cloudfront. net/labelgmos/pages/31/attachments/original/ CA-Right-to-Know-Initiative12.pdf?1324916176

Another industry claim...one that enabled it to have its genetically engineered crops approved by the FDA and EPA...says that there is no substantial between GE crops and non-GE crops. Even though to obtain a patent on their seeds, they had to prove their uniqueness, when it came time to get approval, they claimed that genetically modified varieties were no different than the heirloom varieties of the same species. The difference is actually quite monumental. Genes from bacteria (such as e-coli) and viruses have been introduced into the genetic structure of the plant. One common variety of GMO creates a plant that produces its own insecticide. Every single cell of the plant churns out a pesticide that is harmful to humans and animals. Other types of GMOs are resistant to highly toxic chemicals that kill any plant that it contacts to be resistant. This has dramatically increased the use of these chemicals which permeate the crops it is used on and is consumed by the humans and animals who eat these foods. The effects of the additions of these toxins to our daily diet were not studied before approval. The people of our country are the guinea pigs for the rest of the world. The rest of the world's nations are waiting to see the long term affects of this big experiment before they allow it to be fed

The alterations to the genetic structure of the plants is also likely to be responsible for the underdevelopment of organs, the modification of gut bacteria, the infertility and the unexplained deaths of animals who animals who are fed a steady diet of GMO foods. In fact given a choice, most animals will refuse to eat a genetically engineered feed.

Environmentally, GMOs are a nightmare. They are irreversibly contaminating our natural gene pool with plants whose impact cannot be known. The pollen of the insecticide producing corn plants is responsible for killing large portions of the monarch butterfly population. This will in turn kill off plant species that rely on them for pollination and animals that rely on them for food. Already there are insects that have developed resistance to the insecticide producing plants and super weeds that have become immune to the herbicides being used, causing farmers to resort to even stronger toxins. The additional use of chemicals is destroying agricultural soils, run-off from the fields is polluting our surface water and toxins are seeping into our groundwater.

The human toll can best be illustrated by the estimated 250,000 farmers who have committed suicide in India because of the humiliation they suffered when the expenses of the "fullproof" agricultural system peddled to them by giant multinational agricultural corporations bankrupted them....or by the huge increase in childhood food allergies that happened to begin upon the introduction of GMOs in the mid 1990's...or by the farmers displaced from their farms as their government sells off their land to large ag corporations so that they can grow GMO commodity crops, taking away the food source for rural communities and returning nothing to them...a very big cause of some local and regional hunger issues that GMOs are supposed

What side of the story should you believe? Follow except those that have been genetically modified the money and question the motives.

ARCADIA PRAISED FOR SWIFT CLEANUP AND SAFETY TIPS OFFERED

By Joan Schmidt

The January 3rd Arcadia City Council Meeting was both informative and interesting. Prior to the City Council Meeting, there was the regular Redevelopment Agency Meeting. Was the meeting of the Redevelopment Agency its last

After the Invocation and Pledge at the City Council Meeting, it was announced that the state top court upheld Assembly Bill 1X26 that would eliminate 400 local redevelopment agencies and divert the money to schools and other services as proposed by Governor Jerry Brown in a move to balance the state budget. The Court ruled that the State Legislature was within its rights to abolish the agencies! Wow! What will be the ramifications on the various cities? Just look around and see how neighboring cities such as Monrovia have improved over the years!

Then the Court opposed in its entirety, AB1x27, which was an attempt to reinstate the agencies. This all seems mind-boggling to me. Why not at least leave options for Redevelopment Agencies to be established in the future?

After this news, there were pleasant reports by City Officials and the public. A spectator commented on the excellent job the City of Arcadia did in picking up debris. It was accomplished so much quicker than its neighboring cities. Both Council Member Bob Harbicht and Mayor Gary Kovacic related bike excursions with their wives SEVERAL days AFTER the windstorm and there was much debris in the Rose Bowl area and most of Pasadena itself!

There was also mention of the cleanup cost-2.8 million. However residents should not Emergency Operation Center. Also, the City has special emergency funds set aside-5 million was mentioned in reserve- for such emergency situations. That info should put all Arcadians' minds at ease.

All the Council Members and the Mayor said this was a good experience as a "wake-up call" and reminder that we should be prepared.

The Arcadia Marching Band was also commended and I for one totally agree. They were awesome; they and their Band Leader should be commended.

Council Member Peter Amundson noted that

Chief of Police Guthrie and Captain Foley were in attendance. The Chief went to the podium and said ANYTIME something is suspicious, call the department. (Arcadia PD Dispatch: (626)

Protecting residents and their safety is the main role of local police agencies. Chief Guthrie reiterated this. Don't worry about trying to contact a utility company to verify a worker. If he seems suspicious-out of uniform-call the police. The Chief said, "Our job is to respond to these calls. Just recently two or three burglaries had been interrupted because neighbors across the street or down the street called that something didn't look right." Don't be embarrassed to call if something seems out of place.

A resident also mentioned several houses have been razed on her street and very large homes are going up. Her issue was not the new homes, but the habits of the construction crews. There is an immense amount of litter-soda cans, water bottles, and fast foods wrappers and bags. She was advised to call the housing inspector. I spoke to her when she left the meeting. She said she did speak to the inspector, but the problem still exists. It's NOT the inspector's fault. He will come out and speak to the crew. The area is picked up, but then the next day or so it starts again. I will drive over there and investigate. If I see litter, I will take pictures and publish the names of the construction crews doing this. They should be boycotted. I am having work done and NONE be concerned about how this would be paid. of my crews (demolition, building, electric, Over 20 years ago, the City established an drywall, stucco, etc.) have done this. MONROVIA - DUARTE

Sierra Madre-Arcadia--Pasadena-

WHAT THE SUPREME COURT'S DECISION MEANS TO MONROVIA'S REDEVELOPMENT

past week has been the State Supreme Court ruling that upheld Assembly Bill ABx1 26 (dissolution of redevelopment agencies), but overturned and invalidated Assembly Bill AB x1 27 (allowing redevelopment agencies to continue with voluntary payments to the State). This really is a sad day for all communities that have utilized redevelopment to eliminate blight, create jobs and provide affordable housing to improve the lives of countless citizens of the State. All cities will need to make some important decisions within the next 30 days.

Since we believe that the legislators DID NOT intend to abolish redevelopment when adopting AB1X 26 and AB1X 27, and instead, were only seeking to find a way to shift money to help the state budget deficit, there is discussion (within the legislature) about how to bring back redevelopment in some fashion. Additionally, the CRA (California Redevelopment Association), along with the League of California Cities and an advocacy team that includes lobbyists and legal counsel, are currently working with state legislators to introduce legislation to save redevelopment.

We all hope that there is a quick and equitable legislative solution, but as optimistic as we can hope to be, we must prepare for the worst case, and unfortunately, the worst case is as clear as mud. Even if redevelopment does survive, we are just not sure how much of the Agency we will have to operate going forward. As you can see, there are many more questions then answers, and uncertainty seems to be escalating into the next coming months.

A sliver of good news is that there has been

To the NOT so good news, the recent headlines discussion that the legislature wants to keep the that have been dominating local government for this affordable housing component alive. If this happens, we will be able to keep 25% of the property tax revenue that can be used for paying debt service, minimal operating expenses, and funding programs such as MAP (Monrovia Area Partnership) and the creation of affordable housing. And on the non-housing side of redevelopment, most of the property tax received by the Agency will still be available to pay for our bonded

> The damaging blow to Monrovia, and all other local agencies, will be the loss of our ability to stimulate development projects. Over the years we have been very successful in eliminating blight by creating partnerships between property owners, developers, and the Agency. This has allowed us to revitalize Old Town, transform Huntington Drive into a retail hub and a hi-tech corridor, and to start the transformation of the Station Square area.

> Despite the final outcome of this redevelopment debacle, we are and will continue to be committed to the Gold Line project. We will continue to work towards ensuring the project stays on track (no pun

LEADERSHIP CEREMONY HONORS LA SALLE'S CLASS OF 2013

Pasadena, CA – One hundred and twenty one members of the class of 2013, the current junior class at La Salle High School, were recently honored at the Junior Leadership Ceremony. This annual event is a time for the faculty and administration of La Salle to recognize the growing role in leadership the juniors are entering into. "While some embrace it willingly, and some come into it unknowingly, all of the students at La Salle are challenged and encouraged to embrace roles of leadership and embrace the School motto, Learn, Serve, Lead," said class moderator Tom O'Connor.

As the juniors enter into the next few years of their lives, leadership roles will take a more prominent place at La Salle, in their church, in their clubs, and at their jobs. After the rings and stones were blessed by Father Edward Dover, pastor of Holy Redeemer Church in Montrose and St. James Church in La Cresenta, members of the class received La Salle Class Rings and Leadership Stones with words of inspiration the students have chosen, such as, Wisdom, Vision, Faith, Courage, to symbolize their hopes for the future. For me, although I wish that I could still sleep until nine every morning and do nothing but read good books, a blessing with the ending continue to push myself, it of applications for college. Now, all there is to do is wait. Wait three months until the letters that will make or break many of my fellow peers and the final stretch of high school begins. And, it is strange to say that I want to go to school, at least for a little while before senioritis kicks the last ones ever (if the 2012 in, and enjoy the education I am being offered because now I can breathe at school. The ever present pressure of succeeding tremendously has slackened, and although is only going to be my own educational desire instead of one urged by college admissions.

In the meantime I will do my best to get back into the swing of things at school and water polo, and use my free time more freely. Take a stroll through town or go to a friend's instead of panicking about personal statements. The end of a chapter has begun, and I will wait patiently for the beginning of the next.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: My Five Favorite Films of 2011

decision the five "best" movies the year. The reason it's not the typical top ten is because I haven't seen all the films I initially had planned to watch this past year. Additionally, the 2011 box office proved to be fairly disappointing from my perspective. As a disclaimer I haven't seen "Midnight In Paris", "Beginners", "The Artist", "Take Shelter", "We Need To Talk About Kevin", "Martha Marcy May Marlene", "Hugo", "Shame" and "Tinker Tailor Soldier Spy".

5. Source Code - "Source Code" will undoubtedly keep you completely mesmerized from beginning to end. A true keep-you-on-theedge-of-your-seat thriller that does more than just provides you a quick thrill or two. "Source Code" is equipped with a quartet of strong performances from Jake Gyllenhaal, Michelle Monaghan, Vera Farmiga and Jeffrey Wright, a dynamic screenplay and faultless direction. The ending may spark some controversy with the most devoted sci-fi fans. I honestly thought the film was going to end at a particular point, but it carried on for another five to seven minutes. Personally, I was still fully satisfied by it. I felt that the extended ending brought a whole new element and meaning to the movie. "Source Code" has a bit of an Inception feel to it, but definitely more restrained and less convoluted. This is an innovative, outrageously compelling, and thought-provoking film with plenty of heart and soul to boot. It's the reason why we go to the theater and if more movies like "Source Code" can be developed, then mainstream Hollywood may not be a complete wash after all.

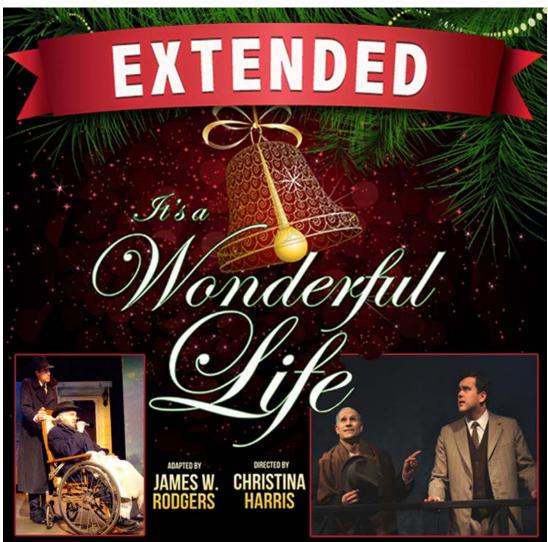

4. Drive – Director Nicolas Winding Refn is an aberrant visual artist. "Drive", his latest work of art, combines striking imagery and an essence of cool that's been missing in American cinema for quite sometime. Essentially, Drive is about a chivalrous Hollywood stunt driver and loner (Ryan Gosling), who moonlights as a getaway driver. He quickly finds himself caught up with the wrong people in a heist that goes terribly wrong. Yes, we've all seen movies of this conformation before, but I can promise you that you haven't seen it like this. At face value, "Drive" is minimalistic and straightforward, but at its core, this uniquely developed drama/suspense film is ultra sleek, eloquently violent, beautifully composed and superbly acted. Refn's penchant for violence and gore is overwhelmingly present here, but the bursts of brutality is enthralling, if not disturbing. While not for the faint at heart, the violent behavior in "Drive" is artful and vividly produced. These particular scenes rank among the finest of the year. On a technical level, "Drive" is flawless. Every scene, every shadow within a scene, and the precise way light is used matters. Nothing feels wasted or oversaturated. Always taut and suspenseful, you're eyes will never veer off screen. The film easily takes over all your senses with every single scene telling a story within itself. It's simply the coolest film of seeing.

3. The Devil's Double – "The Devil's Double," based on the novel by Latif Yahia, is the disturbing true story of a man who is forced to become the double to Saddam Hussein's sadistic son. The film isn't all that deep or intricate, but the electrifying, career-making performance by Dominic Cooper is worth the price of admission and then some. Cooper takes on the dual roles of Latif Yahia, an will touch your heart unlike any film this year. Iraqi soldier from a middle class family and the unpredictably insane Uday Hussein. In the end, "The Devil's Double" is one of the coolest, sexiest, and most violent films of the year. While not for everyone, those who enjoy a departure from mundane boring life will be undoubtedly glued to the screen while watching it. Everything from the beautiful set design, to the killer 80s soundtrack, to the polished and stunning cinematography, to the ultra slick direction was top notch. Director Lee Tamahori ("Die Another Day", "The Edge") shaped a very sleek and tense thriller with "The Devil's Double" that provided unsettling chills on more than one occasion. At any rate, I found "The Devil's Double" to be absolutely engrossing, outrageously entertaining and bat-shit crazy. Not to mention, be on the lookout for Dominic Cooper because the guy is the next big thing for all the right reasons.

2. Warrior – In vein of last year's powerful film, 'The Fighter", "Warrior" is about two brothers both fighting for something greater than themselves. Tom Hardy brilliantly portrays Tommy Riordan, an ex-Marine haunted by his past who returns home to his former alcoholic father, played by a battered and wounded Nick Nolte. Joel Edgerton takes on the persona of Brendan Conlon, a high school physics teacher and ex-MMA fighter unable to make ends meet. In a turn of events, the brothers', who haven't seen each other in 16 years will soon cross paths as they face off in Sparta, a Grand Prix tournament of MMA fights. While the set-up may be dauntingly cliché, director Gavin O'Connor somehow is able to throw punch after punch at your vulnerable heart in what is the most unrelentingly impassioned packed film this past year. "Warrior" is part gritty family drama, part sports action flick, and part feel-good crowd pleaser. Translation? Raw, gut-wrenching, and compelling. Well over two hours, "Warrior" never eases up in toying with one's emotions. It does an outstanding job continually pulling at the strings of one's own heart. If you surrender to its tricks, you may find yourself tearing up in multiple scenes. By the end of the movie, you'll not only find yourself on the edge of your seat, but also wiping those tears away and rooting for these guys as if they were your own brothers. Never does "Warrior" seem false or manipulative in the earnest ways it touches your heart, mind, and soul. This movie just feels right in this day and age. The constant struggle of overcoming the odds and believing in one's self despite any obstructions in your line of sight. It's a stunning achievement that a mainstream movie like this packs so much pure entertainment, affecting moments and uncompromised compassion. "Warrior" excels on nearly all levels making it a definite must-see for all ages.

1. Win Win - Paul Giamatti stars as Mike Flaherty, attorney by day, high school wresting coach by night. He's having a tough time both finically and keeping his wife and two daughters happy. The wresting team is on a continuous losing streak and isn't living up to the school's motto of "The Home Of Champions". Through some questionable business dealings with an older client, Flaherty is surprised when he's faced with the elderly man's grandson, who has his own personal baggage. However, the troubled teenager is a star athlete that may just be what Flaherty the year. With powerhouse performances and Refn's skillful directing, "Drive" is a tightly and impressively constructed motion picture worth as she attempts to disrupt things. The young boy (Alex Shaffer) and Flaherty's wife (Amy Ryan) give strong supporting performances. "Win Win" is a near faultless sports-comedy-drama that has a great share of laughs, angst, and heartfelt moments. It's truly the best American film of the year that any family could relate to on some level. With rich and wonderful characters, a strong screenplay and humanistic approach, "Win Win"

It's a Wonderful Life fulfilled our expectations – and then some! The last two weeks were completely sold out.

HOWARD Hays As I See It

- Rep. Barney Frank

It was only a week ago I wrote of the Iowa caucuses being of ultimately little relevance.

So here I was last night, staying up 'til the wee hours waiting for final returns to be tallied. Regardless of the race or the relevance, I just can't turn away in a situation where frontrunners have less than that we haven't indoctrinated the Officer a dozen votes separating them out of more

Tuesday night ended with signs Rick Perry was dropping out and Michele Bachmann was staying in. By late Wednesday morning, Bachmann was out and Perry was declaring, "Here we come South Carolina!"

The winner (by eight votes) was Mitt Romney, who suggested a couple weeks ago the proper approach in the foreclosure crisis is to help speed those foreclosures along, hastening that proper order of things where the masses are tenants of the landlords among the elite. The former Utah governor's own record supports continued wealth concentration, but even he draws the line at tax breaks for Big Oil and that reward corporations for shipping jobs overseas; publicly-funded subsidies Romney's just fine with.

Newt Gingrich, who on national TV agreed that Romney was "a liar", pointed out the frontrunner was "repudiated" by three-out-of-four caucus voters. He then went on to advocate a "voucherized" system for veterans' healthcare, and to explain how George Washington would've been strongly opposed to marijuana.

The Political Center: After Barack Óbama's past decades was under attack. Since the New Deal coalition days the center shifted right due to Democratic liberals' poutiness and political ineptness which helped the GOP gain some solid, agenda changing victories. Both parties' bases - the Republicans' conservative base and the Democratic left often diss centrists and on various occasions have tried to run them out of their party. Few moderates exist anymore in Congress. in Name Only) and Dems about DINOS (Democratic in name only). Which way will the center shift by June? And why?

The center moderates and conservatives are important in elections. An August Gallup poll found that things have not changed much since 2009 and 2010: 41 percent self-identify as conservative, 36 percent say they're moderate, and 21 percent describe themselves as liberal. Clearly, neither conservatives nor liberals can't win conservative websites and blogs and without moderates - you, know, those people conservative radio and TV show hosts have they say are mushy, ignorant, don't stand for been in a race to show who is more purely anything. He who woos the moderates has a conservative. If Republicans keep this up better chance to win.

Liberals: America's liberals over the years election it became clear that America's decided they'd teach their party a lesson political center that had shifted right over the when they didn't like policies or candidates and stay home. And they sure did: they taught their party a lesson by losing the hold on the federal bureaucracy had during the New Deal, New Frontier and Great society; they taught their party a lesson by giving Republicans a chance to appointment GOPers to courts and dominate the Supreme Court; they taught their party a lesson so badly that they won't use the word "liberal" and now insist they are "progressives." Now many can still only talk about being mad at Obama because there was no "public option" on health care or applaud the retirement of centrist Democrats. Will they gift the GOP with a majority to eliminate "Obama care" and close the deal on the Supreme Court? Will Democrats pout away more power again?

HISTORY LESSONS FOR 2012

History is a great teacher if one has the lifetimes. The election desire to learn its lesson, and 2012 is shaping up to be a test of whether we have been paying attention. The 2012 election will be a referendum on whether we in the United States are willing to open our eyes to the enterprise should be recent experiences in Europe and draw from the primary employer them the lessons of how to avoid the slow, in the nation; self-inflicted death Europe is experiencing.

It's not that Europe is a strange or inappropriate point of comparison for us. Not only do we share a common culture, but our own media and political elites have heralded European political and economic systems as the end goal for the transformation of American culture which they have been so long advocating. Consider the words of just a few whose jobs and raison d'être seems to be to emulate all things European.

U.S. Economics Nobel Laureate, Paul Krugman, wrote in Jan 2010 that, "Europe is an economic success and that success shows that social democracy works".

Jeremy Rifkin, a left-leaning political advisor and activist, wrote in 2004 that, "the European dream... represents humanity's best aspiration for a better tomorrow".

Were it not for space limitations, I could cite several-fold more who have sought to push us further left toward the European model. The point, however, is not simply to show how wrong-headed such policies are. better than a 50/50 proposition.

the U.S. who, even as they witness the early stanzas of Europe's post-mortem, are still advocating the European model. President Obama is the first among equals in this dedicated to policy prescriptions taken right out of the European play book. In steadfast opposition are those on the right - namely contenders. The election of 2012 will likely be the final referendum on this issue in our

Whether the "rich" (say, the top 25%) should pay more than the 86% of total taxes they already pay;

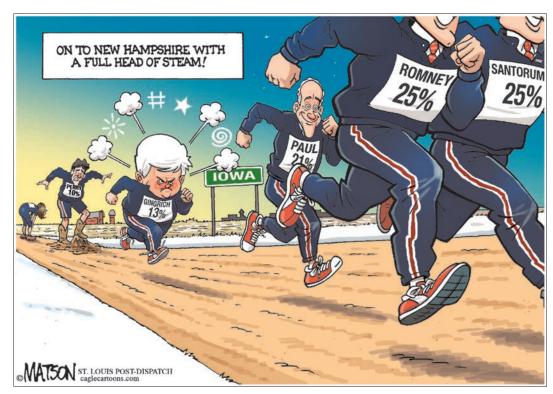

Whether we should increase our national debt to levels exceeding 100% of the nation's GDP; and

Whether the United Nations or the United States should take the lead in world affairs.

This is just a short list of the differences between right and left, between the current administration and the Republican alternative. Rarely, have the contrasts been as stark and obvious.

If history were to be our guide, this wouldn't even be a close race. Europe's policies over the last 50 years have so devastated the continent that it is becoming That fact has become self evident. Europe irrelevant economically, politically, militarily, is imploding economically, politically, culturally and demographically. Reasonable demographically and culturally. Whether projections suggest that some of its countries the European Union survives 2012 is now no will actually cease to exist if current trends continue. So America faces a choice in the election of 2012: learn from history and The point here is that there are still those in survive or ignore history and perish. I hope we're all paying attention.

DEMOGRAPHICS INFORM BUSINESS DECISIONS

Businesses that rely on customers from their High School is included in the inaugural list will benefit by becoming familiar with the demographics of residents throughout the region. Major companies pay attention to demographics like a hawk watches prey. Shifts in the local population by age, ethnicity and other socioeconomic indicators provide valuable information that is used to make decisions about whether to invest in opening, expanding, closing or renovating a location or making changes to existing services or inventory. Chuck E Cheese doesn't have any locations in, or in close proximity to Beverly Hills - why? The demographics don't support this type of investment, since the density of families with young children is not high enough to make it financially worthwhile. In contrast, there are numerous stores that sell golf clubs, related equipment and accessories in the Palm Springs area - why? Palm Springs, Palm Desert and

This type of information, coupled with more detailed demographic data, is what determines the roster of businesses and services in cities, communities and regions across the country.

Becoming familiar with the local landscape of residents is a crucial starting point. In addition to demographics like age, income and family size (household), information that points to emerging trends can be very valuable. In case you wanted to know: The Time Square New Year's Eve Ball was created because New York declared a ban on fireworks. The first ball descended in 1907. It was a 700-pound ball of iron and wood adorned with one hundred 25watt bulbs. Today the round ball is Waterford Crystal, weights 11,875 pounds. It's 12 feet in diameter and has 2,668 Waterford crystals to make it sparkle.

You probably can't see this on television, but much of the confetti that showers down from the skyscrapers has New Year's wishes written on official Times Square New Year's Eve confetti.

I'm not sure of the statistics, but I have heard that 40-45 percent of American adults make one or more New Year's resolutions. If you keep your New Year's resolution you are one of 6 people.

Some New Year's resolutions to consider These are late due to my procrastination

I will do less laundry and use more deodorant. I will read the manuals...as soon as I can find

I will replace my password "password" with something more original like "12345". I will think up new excuses for my boss when staying home from work.

I will stop reliving the past and concentrate on worrying about the future.

Let me share some of my 2011 resolutions. My record of commitment is high on these resolutions.

Spend more time watching TV.

Read less. Gain weight.

Stop exercising.

Procrastinate more.

Spend more time on the internet. Stop bringing lunch from home and eat out

Take up a new habit.

To get a jump start on fulfilling these resolutions, visit Bean Town in Sierra Madre. They have it all - ice cream, cookies, cakes, doughnuts, coffee and the crème de la crème... free WiFi.

They also have wonderful breakfasts, lunches including sandwiches and salads, and soup that is terrific. Mix that into the bad habit menu.

I hope this helps you formulate a plan. I would like to thank the folks at happywink.org for some of these marvelous suggestions.

HERE WE GO AGAIN; The Art of Redundancy

By Rev. James L. Snyder

Forgive me if I have said this before, but, "Happy New Year." It may be the epitome of redundancy but I have given this greeting for 60 years and I mean it as sincerely this year as I have all the years preceding.

The first few years of my life, I had no teeth and so all I could say was "Goo-goo, daa-daa." It meant the same thing. This year I have all of my teeth but I am not certain how many more years.

The way we start life is the way we usually end life, with no teeth and drooling all the time with a silly grin on our face.

Why is it so cute to have a toothless drool at three months but rather disgusting when you are 93 years

We all start life wearing diapers and if we live long enough we will end our life wearing the same apparatus. I guess it all depends upon what we do between the two events. I suppose I could be guilty of not learning as much as I could at my age, but one thing I have learned and that is the good things in life are always repeated. Sure, there are some things that we do once in a lifetime and cherish their memories, but the good things in life are those things we continually repeat.

I would wager that in this New Year there would be relatively few, if any, new things. The past year was supposed to carry with it a lot of brand-new things. Most things were those repeated ad nausea for many

This year is an election year. Of course, the purpose of this year is to elect a new president. Every four years we elect a "new" president and I have participated in voting booth and voted. In all those years of electing a president it has usually worked out that the new president was remarkably quite like the old president.

Some political pundits make a great deal between a Republican and a Democrat. It may be my age, but it seems to me that most Democrats are Republicans in disguise and most Republicans are Democrats in disguise. If I was backed up against a wall with a firing squad in front of me and asked to tell the difference between a Democrat and a Republican, the only thing I could come up with would be the spelling.

A Republican when elected will always act like a Democrat and a Democrat when elected will usually act like a Republican. Then they wonder why the voting public is confused.

As far as I am concerned, a rattlesnake wearing a rabbit outfit does not change its nature. It still has

What has not changed is the fact that a politician running for office will say anything to get elected and then once elected will develop an acute sense of amnesia, which is not that cute.

Whenever I hear politicians say that when they are elected they are going to change things I know I am either listening to a fool or someone who is trying to fool me. Hundreds of politicians have run on the platform of changing Washington DC. Well, how has that been working?

The coming presidential election will be the same as every other one in the history of the United States. In spite of that, there are a few things I am glad will not change.

The things that are really important in life are those things that do not change.

For instance, I am glad the sun comes up every morning. Even though every day is a new day, the same sun starts the day with its rising. The beautiful thing about this is that we can only live one day at a time. I cannot remember how much time I have spent worrying about something in the future and when that day came, I worried in vain.

I am so glad that the rising of the sun is not in the hands of some political committee somewhere. Wherever two or three politicians are gathered together, there is gridlock. If a political committee were responsible for the rising of the sun, it would never rise. The only thing a political committee can do when it comes to the phenomenon of rising is in the area of taxes and their salaries. As sure as the sun will rise tomorrow so will our taxes and so will the salaries of the politicians. Would be great the politician's salary was tied to the economy? If the economy was up, the politicians would get a many presidential elections. At least, I went to the raise. If the economy went down, the politicians would take a cut in salary.

I am not sure how to do that, but if it ever became law in our country, the economy of our country would be on the rise for generations to come.

Another redundancy that I am delighted to participate in and that is the mercies of God. "It is of the LORD'S mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not. They are new every morning: great is thy faithfulness" (Lamentations 3: 22-23 KJV).

Although repeated daily, God's mercies are never redundant.

poisonous fangs looking for some human flesh.

STUART Tolchin.....On LIFE

GOING AGAINST THE CURRENT

beginning New Year and I'm trying to be positive but it's tough. This 30-Day Diabetes Cure popped up on my internet and I paid my money and sent for the book and it arrived in a few days. I was thrilled and immediately started reading. What is the book about? May I quote from page 62, "It's about understanding the ways in which our consumer culture, our advertising-driven media, and the profit-inspired media system all work against you in your quest for health and well-being."

Just as I thought; everyone is against me. The book explains that all the medication and finger pricking and blood-monitoring is absolutely useless - worse than useless - it is harmful. In order to protect the thriving and everexpanding industry of diabetes treatment a perfect storm has been created whereby every body benefits except the diabetic patient who ends up legless, blind, and soon dead from a heart attack. After providing this cheery advice the book tells you to be sure not to ignore the advice of your doctor because, after all, the publisher does not want to be sued. The book then details a plan which begins with ten days of avoiding any sodas, sugary beverages, fruit juice, candy, or refined carbohydrates (including breakfast cereals, chips, cookies, ice cream and energy bars); you'll also abstain from the wine, or alcohol of any kind. You won't even eat any fruit. And you'll eat no restaurant meals of any kind.

I love writing all this stuff down because it sounds so ridiculous and because I'm going to try and follow it to the last impossible letter. Already, it has had an effect. I seem to hate everybody after only two days of the diet, of let's just call it a change in lifestyle. Is it some kind of withdrawal? I don't know but all my friends suddenly seem revealed to me as self-satisfied hypocrites and secret chocolate eaters. I admit that this attitude may have been influenced by another article I read on the internet entitled Capitalism and Loneliness: Why pornography is a multi-billion dollar industry by a couple of related psychologists Harriet Fraad and Tess Fradd Wolff. This cheery little article makes one big point - AMERICANS ARE INCREASINGLY ALONE.

I don't know if you agree with this astounding statement made right here in the age of information and constant electronic contact. Why would anyone take seriously such a ridiculously senseless statement? The article gives all sorts of reasons for this phenomenon talking about capitalism's need to squeeze every dollar from its consumers and therefore stopping the payment of a family wage to one provider so that it is now necessary for both parents to work to try and support a family. With everybody working, soon there was no family - instead there was just a houseful of inevitable resentment. Women still do most of the housework even when they bread, rice, potatoes, pasta, whole are working and the men are grains, and baked good. No beer, unemployed. Everyone is unhappy and feels misunderstood and wants instant gratification. The article explains that many, many men would rather watch pornography alone rather than deal with the actual needs of another person.

Who knows if this analysis is accurate? I don't know much about pornography - I get uncomfortable watching TV commercials - but I fully understand the description of the individual man as isolated and alone. Really, it is much the same feeling as the realization that I have been betrayed by my doctors and the whole culture. No one wants to cure my diabetes, they just want to get rich from the continual treatment as the disease worsens. As to this business of feeling isolated and alone despite the technological advances, that tell us more about each other than we really want to know - more and more alone in the wilderness is what I feel. Of course these articles are part of my attempt to really reach out to all the strange others in the world and say this is Who I Am - Who are You? It's just like the new diet - nobody tries harder than I do. Alright then so why do I still feel alone?

I think both the Tea Party and the Occupy America movements are about this experience of isolation. There is a realization that our culture has somehow destroyed a basic sort of common human worth and we are all left alone trying to find ourselves. Are we waiting for the Apocalypse of 2012 or is it time for the second coming? Well it's only the first week of the year and I'm starting a new diet and hoping that the passage of time will make things easier and allow me to start flowing with the current rather than continuing to fight it. Right now, this is Who I am and it's the best I can do and I forgive you all for not being much better than me. Maybe we'd all be better off not reading so much.

City of Sierra Madre Planning Commission meeting

Thursday, January 19, 2012

(Hearing begins at 7:00 p.m.)

Project Location:

225-245 West Sierra Madre Boulevard in the City of Sierra Madre, County of Los Angeles, State of California

The City of Sierra Madre gives notice, pursuant to State of California law, that the Planning Commission will conduct a public hearing to consider a proposal from Fountain Square Development West to construct and operate a two-story, 58,000 square foot assisted living facility on a 1.84 acre property located at 225-245 W. Sierra Madre Boulevard. Pursuant to Sierra Madre Municipal Code (SMMC), convalescent homes and similar institutions are permitted subject to the approval of a Conditional Use Permit (CUP). A Specific Plan is required pursuant to General Plan Land Use Policy L3.1 which requires the adoption of a comprehensive plan or similar planning document for all developments on properties exceeding one acre in size. A General Plan Amendment is required to expressly provide consistency between SMMC and the General Plan which does not expressly authorize such uses in the Commercial land use district. In order for such plan to have regulatory authority over the underlying zone(s), a Municipal Code Text Amendment will also be considered.

All interested persons may attend this meeting and the Planning Commission will hear them with respect thereto.

ENVIRONMENTAL DETERMINATION: An environmental initial study of the proposed project was performed pursuant to the California Environmental Quality Act ("CEQA") and a draft Mitigated Negative Declaration has been prepared indicating that the project will not have a significant adverse effect on the environment with the implementation of mitigation measures. The initial study and draft Mitigated Negative Declaration will be considered by the Planning Commission at the January 19, 2012 public hearing.

Ready to Serve Seniors and Sierra Madre Again

John Jacob Hart, 1843-1932, report music teacher of that era, established a winery on the site of Sierra Madre's Memorial Park today. After Hart sold his property to the city in 1918, the adobe winery building remained, and eventually became the Hart House Senior Center. In December, major renovations were completed and the building came back to life again. The great room, with its original stone fireplace from winery days is once more the focal point of the winery days is once more the focal point of the building. A commercial quality catering kitchen is now located in the southwest corner of the building, and serves lunch to about 30 seniors on weekdays through the YWCA.

Creature comforts like additional air conditioning, ceiling fans, big screen tv and a zoned music/PA system, safety items like fire sprinklers, metal doors and lighting are all in place. Blinds and window tinting are still in place. Blinds and window tinting are still in process and furniture additions are up for review in the next weeks.

According to Susan Clifton, Recreation According to Susan Clifton, Recreation Coordinator, senior classes and activities like Monday's 1 p.m. Strength Training, Tuesday Bingo at 25 cents a card, Wednesday's Chair Yoga at 11 and Thursday card games have settled in this week. The computers in the game room were being serviced and brought online for free senior use, and plans are under way for Skype installation and onsite classes in its use.

Clifton, whose office is now where the old kitchen used to be, said local civic groups like Sierra Madre Rotary, Civic Club and Friends of the Library have returned to their regular meetings in the great room and are thrilled with the renovations.

Sierra Madre Council and Senior Commission member, Nancy Delgado Walsh, provided a synopsis of "the journey" of Hart House to its newly refurbished state today:

In 2004, the Senior Commission undertook the journey to renovate the Hart Memorial Park House by appealing for donations. The vision was far greater than the pocket book, and it was apparent that outside funding would be required. The Community Services staff identified $127,000 in funding allocated by LA County for Proposition A projects, contingent on completion of a Senior Master Plan. The Plan was completed and submitted to the City Council in 2007.

The Renovation Project design was developed in three phases in case funding was not available for the entire redesign. The Senior Commission identified a partnership project with LA County to recycle office machines. To everyone's surprise, the project resulted in over $80,000 to date.

$30k was designated for the renovation project,
$10k for furniture and other accessories and the remaining money will be available for programs and services for seniors. The local Kiwanis Club donated the purchase and installation of a wonderful sound system. Additionally, the Sierra Madre City Council approved over $200,000 (in Redevelopment Agency funds) for the completion

The project was completed in early December 2011, and the rededication followed. The day was cold and rainy with thunder and lightning. A fire in the original stone fireplace blazed and wine in honor of the building's origins was served. Seniors gathered in the great room for presentations and then in the kitchen, confirming that a homelike environment had been delivered.

The journey was long and sometimes difficult. Two members of the original group did not make it to the end. But for those who were able to be present as the journey ended, it was well worth the Birdsall recalled the "dreadful" condition of Hart House when she joined the Senior Commission in 2003. She spearheaded what she called the "Cinderella Project" to improve the building, garnering financial and in-kind support from many in the community over several years. The newly completed remodel was built on the shoulders of those, like Birdsall and Walsh, who, among others, championed the need for better facilities for Sierra Madre's fast growing senior population.

THE GOOD LIFE

YOUR HEALTH MATTERS

Today's Subject: PURPOSE

Dr. John Talevich, D.C. has practiced in Sierra Madre for thirty years. His clinic, LifeWorks! Chiropractic, offers patient-specific approaches to the alleviation of pain and individually tailored wellness programs.

As we embark on this new year, resolutions set firmly in place, we might consider the simple query, "Am I happy?" Is there an essentially fulfilled person at the center of these resolutions, or is it hoped that the new commitments will bring happiness? Perhaps achieving some of our goals will build on an already strong sense of self or bring new-found confidence and self discovery. Residing in and around our desire to be better is the grandfather of all self inquiry: one's purpose in life.

The Science of Purpose

From the corporate boardrooms to the research labs at National Institute of Health, a new model of appreciation for the uniqueness of the individual has evolved. In business, the power of personal passion and vision is regarded as essential to success. In science, the molecules of emotion and consciousness create a dance that, when in harmony, gives us a true basis for wellness. With all this in mind, we can ask ourselves these questions regarding relationships or career choices (from author David Richo):

- Does this work or relationship reflect my deepest values? 1.
- If I choose to embark on this particular path, will I grow in wisdom and love? 2.
- 3. Will I be able to share my personal gifts through this venue of activity?
- Will my relationships and work be beneficial to others? 4.
- Does my work contribute to the creation of a peaceful world? Does my choice of work include or exclude a larger participation? 5.
- Is This what I wanted to be when I grew up?

Hopefully, we can see that our new year's resolutions are simply a support structure to bring out what in already there. To quote Jesus in The Gospel of Thomas: "If you bring forth what is in you, what you bring forth will save you. If you do not bring forth what is within you, what you do not bring forth will destroy you.

Here's to bringing forth our best in this new year ~ Dr. John

THE WORLD AROUND US

, with Bob Eklund NASA's Twin GRAIL Spacecraft Unite in Lunar Orbit School Classrooms to Participate in Mission

The second of NASA's two Gravity Recovery And Interior Laboratory (GRAIL) spacecraft has successfully completed its planned main engine burn and is now in lunar orbit. Working together, GRAIL-A and GRAIL-B will study the Moon as never before, in a mission that carries for the first time ever—instruments dedicated to education and public outreach.

"NASA greets the new year with a new mission of exploration," said NASA Administrator Charles Bolden. "The twin GRAIL spacecraft will vastly expand our knowledge of our Moon and the evolution of our own planet. We begin this year reminding people around the world that NASA does big, bold things in order to reach for new heights and reveal the unknown."

At the start of the science phase in March 2012, the two GRAILs will be in a near-polar, nearcircular orbit with an altitude of about 34 miles (55 kilometers) above the lunar surface.

During GRAIL's science mission, the two spacecraft will transmit radio signals precisely defining the distance between them. As they fly over areas of greater and lesser gravity caused by visible features such as mountains and craters as well as masses hidden beneath the lunar surface, the distance between the two spacecraft will

Scientists will translate this information into a high-resolution map of the Moon's gravitational exactly where each spacecraft will be at any given field. The data will allow scientists to understand what goes on below the lunar surface. This information will increase knowledge of how Earth and its rocky neighbors in the inner solar system developed into the diverse worlds we see today.

SPACE SCIENCE FOR MIDDLE-SCHOOL STUDENTS

GRAIL is NASA's first planetary mission to carry instruments that are fully dedicated to education and public outreach. Each spacecraft carries a small camera called GRAIL MoonKAM (Moon Knowledge Acquired by Middle school students) with the sole purpose of education and public outreach. The MoonKAM program is led by Sally Ride, America's first woman in space, and her team at Sally Ride Science in collaboration with undergraduate students at the University of California, San Diego.

GRAIL MoonKAM will engage middle schools across the country in the GRAIL mission and lunar exploration. Thousands of fifth- to eighthgrade students will select target areas on the lunar surface and send requests to the GRAIL MoonKAM Mission Operations Center in San Diego. Photos of the target areas will be sent back by the GRAIL satellites for students to study.

The MoonKAM website will show the spacecraft orbits projected onto a map of the Moon, showing date and time during the mission. Students will be able to click on any point on those orbits and zoom in for a closer look at the features at that location. When they decide what they want to take a picture of, they will submit the date and

The Information: A Theory, A History, A Flood, by recognize as a modern computer in its most primitive James Gleick (Pantheon March 1,2011- 544 pages), attempts to take on the daunting task of surveying the history and development of two of the most significant tool used by humans during our short time on this planet: information technology and communication. While there have been many other developments that have assisted humankind to flourish here on Earth, these two tools in particular have allowed many of us to organize and coordinate action at a distance far better than any other species that has lived on this planet. The book covers most mediums of communication used by humans, beginning with one of the earliest forms, the talking drums of Africa. I thought the author did an especially thorough job on the analysis of drum communication, specifically in highlighting the builtin error correction techniques used by the drummers to ensure that the message sent rose above the noise of the communication channel to ensure that the message received was an exact copy of what was sent. The simple concept of message integrity still forms the basis of modern cryptography.

Next, the author takes on spoken language and our difficult transition to becoming a literate species. This trek takes us from the earliest known human efforts at translating internal thought into physical form to be observed and interpreted by other humans, to the by the science that is necessary to explain the concepts latter stages of codifying spoken language into physical form. This forms the beginnings for the programming of computing machines and information technology as concepts, quotes and characters that traverse the pages

The introduction of Charles Babbage and the you, or in your life. difference engine is the very first look at what we might form. The author spends a great deal of energy in demonstrating the inner workings of Babbages' mind as he worked to produce coding for a machine that could manipulate logical symbols. Some of his most ardent struggles consisted of convincing a mathematical community that hadn't the vision to see the potential the new machine promised. This is also another in-depth look in computer programming.

Subsequent chapters cover such wide-ranging topics as Genetics, Physics (Entropy), Cybernetics and even Memes. While these subjects may not appear to have many traits in common to the layperson, the author endeavors to show how all of these subjects, including the very essence of our persons, are composed of, and exist for the purpose of, the manipulation of information.

Criticisms of this book fall mainly into 2 categories; too technical and not technical enough. To Information Theory junkies the book does not go far enough into the meat of the science but in the author's defense, the book was not meant to be yet another textbook presented for peer review. The audience is the modern person living in a technologically-advanced society and attempts to explain how we got here. For the non-Information Theorist reader there is plenty to grab on to in this book as long as one remembers not to get too intimidated presented by the author. Alright" ~ Bob Marley "Can We All Get Álong?" ~ Rodney King

Whenever I start to think I have learned all of the valuable lessons in life that nature has to offer, I am reminded of yet another fantastic phenomenon that astounds me and inspires me to explore further, to find the answers to the 'whats' and 'whys' that apply. The fact is, I should know better than to think I have ever figured life out at all, because as a young child I was clearly taught that one never truly "arrives" when it comes to knowing and understanding the miracles and mysteries of life. I even remember the adults saying on occasion, that 'when one stops learning, one stops living. I am sure that as a child when I heard my parents and teachers say such things, it probably meant very little to me at the time. It wasn't until I grew older and had my own personal experiences with living, that I realized the amazing lessons that God's nature and earth can teach us. As much as grown ups wish they could protect their children from harm, heartache and disappointment, a child can only benefit so much from hearing the stories told by an elder. Let's face it, attending the school of life is the best way to learn most valuable lessons, and nature and earth are among God's best teachers.

This past week, while sorting through a long list of e-mail messages and watching the accompanying attached videos, (or at least those that I had the patience to watch) I was reminded of an amazing phenomenon of nature that most definitely astounded me, and drove me to wonder just how it can be. I am talking about animals of distant, unrelated species who are apparently able to put away their inherent instinctive differences, in order to not only survive, but also to show random kindness to other beings that are in most ways very different from themselves. I know what you are probably thinking by now- "Chris has really gone off the deep end with this article", but I don't think so. Please hear me out.

There have been way too many documented accounts of cross-species friendships and practical nurturing relationships for me to take credit for being so creative to have made this stuff up! The e-mailed video that brought this subject to mind, was that of a dog and a wild crow who shared an enormous back yard at the pup's home in the south part of Germany in 2006. The dog was apparently quite a social sort, but there were no other pets in his home to interact with, so he became rather lonely over a period of time. Then, when a huge crow came flying out of a tall tree nearby and plopped itself down in the dog's backyard, he commenced squawking at the dog and taunting him. Instead of rushing forward to attack the seemingly crazy crow, the dog approached slowly, whimpered humbly and proceeded to rub his furry neck against the big black bird's beak! Soon they were inseparable pals, just like sibling sweethearts, and they ended up spending all their time together playing under the tree canopies in the back yard. After watching the video about the unlikely kinship between the dog and crow, I was inspired to look up more information

WE'VE GOT TO LOVE ONE ANOTHER

"One Love, One Heart...Let's Get Together and I'll Feel about unusual cross-species interaction, and I found a few other similar true stories. One was about a maternal relationship that developed between "Pixie", a darling standard poodle, and three abandoned wild squirrels who by forces beyond their control, showed up on her property in March 2010. The tree where the squirrel family had nested from year to year was felled by chainsaws, so the adult squirrels were left with no choice but to abandon the nest and their three babies. The three infant squirrels were too tiny to run along with their parents when the tree came down, so they were left lying in the grassy yard where Pixie romped and played daily. In an epic stroke of "fate" Pixie opted to befriend the tiny 'squirlets' rather than attack and kill them, which is what one would typically expect of a domestic dog. Not only was Pixie friendly with the baby squirrels, she even allowed them to exploit the remaining lactated milk that she had left over from a recently birthed litter of puppies. If it hadn't been for Pixie's willingness to show random kindness to those baby squirrels rather than attack and kill them, they would most likely have perished one way or another. As it turned out, all three of those squirrels survived and grew strong enough to be released back into the wild. Another remarkable account of an unlikely loving and nurturing relationship between members of two very different species happened at the Elephant Sanctuary in Hohenwald, Tennessee, just southwest of Nashville. In this case, a young female elephant affectionately named "Bella" bonded like "BFF's" (that's an acronym for "best friends forever", for those of you who are like me and don't keep up with the latest lingo of today's youth!) with a yellow lab named "Tara". All of the other elephants at the sanctuary chose a friend of their own species to connect with and spend their time with, but apparently Bella ended up being a "5th wheel" in the deal, so finding herself without another elephant to partner with, she focused her need for friendship on a cute, cuddly canine companion! There are several rescued elephants and dogs at the Sanctuary in Hohenwald who share the same open space, but the two species typically avoid contact with each other. However, the two unlikely lovebirds named Bella and Tara are absolutely inseparable. They eat together, wander together and even sleep together!

To be honest, I am not sure why I felt the need to write an article about unusual cross-species relationships, other than the fact that I observe and learn so much from unusual and unexpected animal behavior. We humans have a lot in common, but we all have our own approach to life and to learning, so I do not mean to sound like I own the corner on the market of understanding nature or life, but I do hope to inspire others in the way that I have been inspired. If animals, both domestic and wild can be willing to forego typical instinctual expectations in order to love and be loved by a being of a very different species, why can't we humans get along regardless of our petty differences? I don't know about you, but I am certainly willing to cross over the bridge of unfamiliarity to share sincere friendship and nurturing with other beings on this earth

KATIE Tse.....This and That

MAKE IT LAST!

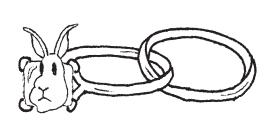

With the start of the new year many of us make resolutions, some reasonable ("I will join a book club") and others irrational ("I will cut out all artificial additives"). But here's an idea: how about staying married for another year? Hollywood seems to have a problem with this, as evidenced by the recent divorces of Mr. and Mrs. Kardashian, Katy Perry and that long haired

British guy, and countless others I'm not hip enough to keep up with. (No doubt you've deduced my lack of hipness by now if you've read previous articles. I don't have a T.V. and am generally ignorant regarding current events.)

In no way do I mean to judge the divorced folks! With 50% of marriages ending in divorce, they're practically the majority! Nonetheless, as a child of two wonderful people who are still married to each other, I consider myself blessed. This might sound heretical, but I believe I am the better for my parents staying married to each other. Besides giving me a stable home, my parents' marriage illustrates the importance of perseverance. (If choosing between the two, I'd say it's better to let your kids know it's okay to give up on basketball, but not on your promise to stick with your spouse). Being married a whopping two and a half years, I am by no means an authority on relationships or marriage! So it's helpful to reference my parents life together and other examples from the tiny segment of Hollywood stars marriages made it for the long

What makes a marriage last? This isn't a hypothetical question! Don't say "love." Three things will last forever

--faith, hope, and love, and the greatest of these is love." (I Cor. 13:8). Although love is key, we all know a few folks who love each other but cannot stay together without one of them killing the other (e.g., Elizabeth Taylor & Richard Burton). Don't say "religion" either. In this godless nation, few are deterred by the belief that God might disapprove of their divorce. So, being a 29 year witness of my parents' marriage and a two and a half-year participant in my own, I am still learning the deeper meanings of love and commitment. And at least we have some Hollywood marriage models to live up to:

---Eli Wallach (the "ugly" in "The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly") is going strong at 63 years with wife, Anne Jackson.

---Jonathan Winters and Eileen Schauder were married 61 years until her death.

You must remember Jonathan Winters! He was the truck driver in "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World." If you haven't seen this already, it's your homework for the week!

---Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara have been hitched since 1954. I don't know much about Jerry Stiller apart from Seinfeld, but I know Ben Stiller's hilarious! So any union producing a child like that has got to be great!

---Julia Childe and Paul Childe were married for 48 years, both dying in their 90's. Since all that butter, goose fat, and butter didn't kill them, it must have been their love and commitment that kept them alive!

A ROSE-COLORED HALL OF FAME CEREMONY

of emceeing the Tournament Hall Roses of induction Fame ceremony at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium on Dec. 31 and witnessed some very deserving men accepting their awards. The induction ceremony brought tears to the eyes of inductees as well as presenters, who were so sincere in their praise and respect for these Hall of Famers.

As a Pasadena native, I am naturally proud of the tradition of the Rose Parade and Rose Bowl game. But it is gratifying to note that those who return for recognition have a genuine appreciation of that tradition as well.

The sold-out event honored three inductees who all expressed just how honored they were to be in the class of 2011, the 22nd such class. They were former University of Wisconsin running back Ron Dayne, legendary broadcaster Dick Enberg and former University of Washington kicker and all-purpose player, George Fleming.

Each inductee was introduced by a close friend or associate. Wisconsin Athletic Director and former coach Barry Alvarez, himself a 2009 Rose Bowl Hall of Fame inductee, presented Dayne, the 1999 Heisman Trophy who still holds the NCAA career rushing record. He is also the only a two-time Rose Bowl MVP.

Brent Musberger presented Enberg, and Fleming had a longtime friend and associate, Nathanial Miles, introduce him.

The inductees and presenters all spoke eloquently. The honorees remarked that their experiences on the field or in the booth had given them valuable preparation for their continued success.

"I've never been inducted into a hall of fame before," Dayne said. "I'd have to say it ranks up there with the Heisman." He credited his coaches and teammates for helping to build character and dedication.

Alvarez, who was Dayne's coach, said an opposing coach once told him, "Trying to tackle Ron Dayne was like trying to stop a Mack truck with a pea shooter." Dayne was known as the "The Great Dayne" and "The Dayne Train."

BOWL AD

I had the pleasure Enberg, a former KTLA sportscaster who covered several Rose Parades and called the Rose Bowl game from 1980-88 for NBC, said he found himself thinking at his first Rose Bowl game, "You're a farm kid from Michigan and you're in the Rose Bowl announcers' booth." He added: "It was the greatest thrill I've had in my 57 years as a broadcaster."

> Engberg has received many honors, and will pick up the Stu Nahan President's Award at the annual Southern California Sportscasters Luncheon at Lakeside Golf Club later this month, which I hope to attend along with past TOR president Ron Okum.

> Fleming, a game MVP who played on the 1960 and 1961 teams that defeated both Wisconsin and Minnesota in Rose Bowl games, said: "I can't believe what is happening today. I'm so proud to be standing here." Fleming booted a 44-yard field goal, then a Rose Bowl record, to help the Huskies knock off topranked Minnesota, 17-7. Fleming went on to become a Washington assemblyman and later a Washington state senator who served his state for 20 years.

The inductees each got a plaque that is now displayed in the Rose Bowl's Court of Champions, plus a trophy, a blazer and a football autographed by the 2011 class. Souvenirs for guests at the tables included a miniature football imprinted with inductees' names as well.

As part of the Rose Bowl events, the inductees were included in the program at the Director's Dinner on Dec. 31, the Kickoff Luncheon the next day, rode in unit #27 in the Rose Parade on Monday and were introduced during the game.

I should tell you that the annual Hall of Fame induction ceremony and Kickoff Luncheon are open to the public. Tickets are available, but you need to reserve them early. Those events always sell out.

Attending the Rose Parade, the thrilling Rose Bowl game won by Oregon, 45-38 over Wisconsin, and the next day getting a close look at the parade floats at Victory Park has given me a good start to 2012. I hope this year is off to a good start for you as well, and please, have a Happy New Year!

ADD 15 MORE YARDS TO YOUR TEE SHOT IN 90 DAYS

If you want to add 15 more yards to your tee shot-in three months, do what I did. I have a confession to make. Less than 24 months ago, my great friend Harvey Mackay asked me if I wanted to play 18 holes the following week. I had cut way back on my golf both playing and practicing for the past couple of years and I was not looking forward to this round of golf.

Harvey was playing to a 9 at the time and he is a great driver of the golf ball. I should say straight driver of the golf ball with an average of 225 yards. If I hit it well I was maybe 15 yards past him. However if I missed the tee shot a tiny bit, I was hitting first onto the green.

By the time I reached the 12 hole he (74 year old) Harvey had outdriven me four times.

When I walked up to the 13th tee, I remember it as thou it was yesterday, I decided that I was going to do something about my golf game. The first thing I needed to do was start practicing and the second thing was to CATCH UP with the game. It was passing me by. The game was changing (getting longer) and I was stuck in neutral.

The next moring I ordered a Momentus Heavy Hittable Driver off of the internet with overnight delievery. I could hardly pick it up. I took it to the range, swung it five times and almost feel over. That is when I decided that I needed to come up with a routine so I could take advantage of my new club.

I decided that I was going to swing the club 25 times, three days a week whether I was at the golf course or not. In the backyard I went every Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Once I started using it at the practice facility I then came up with another way to use it. During practice sessions I swung it three times for every six balls I hit. I like to hit three draws, three fades, three straight shots and then three swings with the heavy driver.

On days that I play, I have another routine that I have used for years. I hit three shots with every club in my bag. Now my routine includes swinging the heavy driver one time every time I change clubs.

OK, I know you are dying to hear the results. The only reason I am not going to tell you how much further I am hitting the ball is that everybody is different. The one thing I will tell you is that I am back. I have caught up with the sport and...well ok, I am at least 20 yards further off of the tee and 1.5 clubs longer with my irons. BUT, I have been VERY committed to this process. I have not missed a day in two years.

VERY IMPORTANT REMINDERS:

- #1. Warm up before you pick up a heavy driver and start swinging it
- #2. Even thou it says it is a HITTABLE club, make 200 practice swings with it before you start hitting balls. You have to get use to it first.
- #3. This is NOT an overnight fix for short tee shots. Stay committed to see results.
- #4. I added 15 yards in the first three months, I kept going so I can keep what I have!!!
- #5. Harvey Mackay (USE YOUR HEAD TO GET YOUR FOOT IN THE DOOR) is a genius at dishing out great business advice. I took advantage of his lesson to me.

Start using a HITTABLE HEAVY DRIVER today and you will add 15 more yards to your tee shot-in three months, like me.
