First "Ground Up" Construction in Years

Story and Photos by Chris Bertrand

On Thursday afternoon, February 9, Sierra Madre Medical broke ground for their long awaited new, 7000 square foot medical facilities. About 50 well wishers from the community, city council, commissions and staff, Chamber of Commerce members, patients, family and friends joined Dr. Sami, general contractors Carol and David Jones of ACME Construction in Pasadena, and architect, Norberto Nardi, of Nardi Associates in Monrovia for the festivities.

Nearly eight years in the making, Dr. Sami reflected on the long journey to get to this moment, and thanked all who made possible "this new state of the art space for medicine" for the foothill communities. They plan that the sustainable, expanded facilities will offer additional space for primary care and medical specialties, including women's health and pediatrics.

Carol Jones introduced her project managers to those assembled, putting a face to the project's contractors, who will do their utmost to deliver the construction project on budget and on time. She indicated ACME's commitment to minimize the impact to the practice, the business district and neighbors during construction.

Norberto Nardi explained that the design of the building is here in need of compassion, care, and medical support... intended "as a backdrop" and as a sustainable screen, leaving Dr. Sami's beloved original building in place.

Sierra Madre Mayor Pro Tem, Joshua Moran, spoke as representative for the city, praising the tenacity of Dr. Sami and his team in pursuing the project. "This is one of those rare projects where we as a city, and the city council, listened to open during their regular Monday to Friday business hours. the groundswell of support from the public for this project." Fr. Patrick Brennan, Director of Sierra Madre's Mater Madre Boulevard, and can be reached at 626-355-3443. Dolorosa Retreat House, gave the invocation and blessing for the project.

Dr. Hani Sami (R) cuts the cake at Groundbreaking with New Nurse Practitioner, Yi-Ping (Claire) Wen

His invocation verbalized the sentiments of those gathered, "We are here today to bless this ground that serves as an intersection between technology and human service. By God's grace, in this very place there will be dedicated men and women who have given their lives to science so that they can serve the needs of countless men and women, young and old, who will come to the Sierra Madre Medical Group in need of assistance and loving care... Bless those whose vision has brought us to this moment, especially Dr. Hani Sami and his closest associates, those who will be involved in the construction of this building...all of those who will come (and) this good earth,... as it will be so clearly made manifest in the Sierra Madre Community Medical Center."

Jones indicated that after a few procedural steps, the official groundbreaking should take place within 24-48 hours. The Sierra Madre Community Medical offices will continue to be Sierra Madre Community Medical is located at 147 W. Sierra

SIERRA MADRE'S "ONE BOOK ONE CITY 2012" EVENTS

The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes, containing the first twelve short stories about the famous detective by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, will be honored during February at the Sierra Madre Public Library as the City of Sierra Madre's One Book One City selection for 2012. All events are free and open to the public.

One Book One City annually engages the community in reading the same notable book at the same time and encourages everyone to come together to explore the literature and join in public discourse. Doyle's tales, along with stage, screen, radio and television adaptations, have made Sherlock Holmes a permanent part of our culture, appealing to readers and audiences of all ages. Copies of The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes are available in a variety of formats-print, CD audiobook, e-book, electronic book—from the Sierra Madre Public Library.

What's next?

On Thursday, February 16, from 11:00 a.m. to 12 noon, the Sierra Madre Public Library will host a book discussion of The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes at the Library during the Library's monthly "Third Thursday" book group. In the evening of Thursday, February 16, at 7:30, Catherine Addé will present "Sherlock Holmes' London: Illustrated Talk," an armchair tour of London in the footsteps of the world's greatest detective. Ms. Addé is a travel industry veteran and was thrilled to live in London while working on her Master's in Tourism Management. She is a longtime Sierra Madre resident, an active community volunteer, and an avid reader. She serves on the Board of Trustees for the Sierra Madre Public Library.

On Saturday, February 25, at 5:00 p.m., a special screening of a classic Sherlock Holmes movie will take place at the Library. This will be the final event in Sierra Madre's One Book One City 2012 program.

One Book One City 2012 is sponsored by the Sierra Madre Ĉivic Club, the Sierra Madre Historical Preservations Society, and the Friends of the Sierra Madre Public Library.

For more information, please contact Catriona Shafer or Sophia Duran at (626) 355-7186 or visit the Library's website at www. cityofsierramadre.lib.ca.us . The Sierra Madre Public Library is located at 440 W. Sierra Madre An Blvd., in Sierra Madre, California.

REMEMBRANCE VIRGINIA ARLENE TREDER

Virginia Arlene Treder peacefully passed away, with family by her side, in her home in Ventura, CA in the early morning of February 2, 2012. Virginia, born April 4, 1921, was 90 years old and succumbed as a result of pancreatic cancer. She jubilantly rejoins her husband, Bill Treder, who passed away six years ago. As a young woman, Virginia attracted the attention of many virginia attracted the attention of many suitors but found true love with William Treder. Virginia and Bill were married on July 12, 1941 and enjoyed 64 years of marriage. They established their home in Sierra Madre, California personally building their home together from the ground up. They had 3 sons, 1 daughter, 8 grandchildren, and 6 great-grandchildren with a 7th on the way. She is survived by her four children and their spouses (William and Betty Treder, Robert Treder and Rose Calderon, Jon and Lori Treder, and Kerry Lynn Treder Ellison and Matt Ellison), her grandchildren (Jenna) and Matt Ellison), her grandchildren (Jenna Phillips, Michael Treder, Kelly Treder, Wes Treder, Jacob Treder, Ryan Avila, Jamie Lynn Avila, and Linsey Avila) and her great grandchildren (Kennedy, Piper, Aiden, and Caleb Phillips and Serafina and Ahna Treder). In the last 6 years of her life, Bill and Virginia's In the last 6 years of her life, Bill and Virginia's black Labrador, Magie, was her constant and loyal companion. Virginia was very proud of her early years growing up on a farm in Mason City, Nebraska with her brother, Max, and parents, Carrie and William Jones. Virginia attended elementary and high school in Mason City. Being a gifted student, she graduated a year early and earned a college scholarship. Knowing she was moving to California to be with her family

Knowing she was moving to California to be with her family who had already relocated there, she discreetly and selflessly gave up her scholarship so that her best friend, Alice, could attend college to become a school teacher. Virginia shared many, many stories of her farm life that provided countless hours of entertainment to her children and grandchildren. She wrote two detailed books to hand down the family history to her children and grandchildren; one focusing on her early farm life and the other chronicling her life and that of her family after leaving the farm as a result of the Great Depression and Dust Bowl. Once settled in Sierra Madre, she and Bill became active members of Bethany Church where Virginia volunteered as the Sunday school secretary for 36 years and was employed as the church secretary for 16 years. How she managed to be a caring and doting wife and mother, a dedicated and inspiring Sunday school secretary, and church secretary extraordinaire is a testament to her deep and abiding work ethic and love of family, friends, and God. Virginia was known to many as an exceptionally good

DEVELOPER REQUESTS COUNCIL TO PUT KENSINGTON PROJECT ON NOVEMBER BALLOT

By Bill Coburn

Fountain Square West, LLC (FSW), developer of the proposed Kensington Assisted Living project at the site of the former Skilled Nursing Facility, has sent a letter to the City Council requesting that the Council pass a resolution that:

"Following completion of the review by the Planning Commission, and approval by the City Council, the KENSINGTON ASSISTED LIVING Project be placed on the November 2012 ballot to be voted upon by the citizens of Sierra Madre."

The letter states that FSW is "pleased that our proposal to build a premier assisted living project in Sierra Madre on the site of the former skilled nursing facility is moving forward to the formal public review process," and that "We welcome the Planning Commission's open review process."

good for Sierra Madre because it "will allow a growing number of frail and memory impaired seniors to remain in a neighborhood where they can be close to their family and loved ones," and that they have "the experience and have demonstrated quality results in providing for residents' care, comfort, security, and convenience in a first class physical setting."

The Kensington project is on the agenda for the Feb. 16th Planning Commission meeting, to be held in City Hall at 7pm. The letter from FSW discusses their belief that their project does not exceed the Measure V limit of 13 units per acre, because the units in their project do not have kitchens.

FRIENDS OF THE SIERRA MADRE LIBRARY 42ND ANNUAL WINE TASTING

A splendid way to show your sweetheart your love is with a visit to the annual Friends of the Sierra Madre Library Wine Tasting. The event is being held on Sunday, February 12, from 2:00-5:00PM at Alverno Villa, 675 W. Highland Ave., Sierra Madre, just in time for Valentine's Day. Picture yourselves strolling leisurely through the Alverno Villa gardens while enjoying fine wine and delectable hors d'oeuvres and desserts. Adding to the romantic atmosphere will be live music performed by Steve Vargas, The Mellow Ds, and Sudbury and Ramos. For your entertainment, magicians from the Magic Castle will perform sleights of hand.

You can even find the perfect souvenir of a lovely afternoon at our Silent Auction where you'll programs of the Sierra Madre Library.

Some cities require a kitchen in order to have a unit be counted as a dwelling unit. City staff had presented a proposed clarification to the Commission on the Sierra Madre definition of a dwelling unit, which is "one or more rooms in a building designed and intended to be used as living quarters by one person or a family". However, the Commission did not recommend that the proposed clarification be approved by the City Council, declining to further define or clarify the definition.

In its letter, Kensington states that "Assisted Living Projects such as ours do not fit the traditional definition of "dwelling units" and are more frequently evaluated in California (and other states) as an "institutional use". This is primarily because the building is licensed by California (and other states) as a health care facility ("Residential Care for the Elderly" in California). In addition, resident suites are comfortably configured with a bedoom and a bathroom There FSW goes on to say they believe their project is cook tops, or ovens in the individual suites as are traditionally found in a "dwelling unit". In addition to creating a safer environment, this Project will have a state-of-the-art commercial kitchen from which all resident meals will be prepared and catered. Other areas typically found in a "dwelling unit" such as a dining room, living room, TV or activity room, den, or other living spaces will be common areas and shared by all the residents."

> A Council member would have to agendize the item for a future meeting, which could be done as early as the next Council meeting, to be held on Tuesday, Feb. 14. A resolution such as FSW proposes could then be discussed as early as

Ex TofR Director Arrested for Murder

By Dean Lee

Sheriff's Wednesday arrested, Richard Allan Munnecke, a former Tournament of Roses committee member once director for the alleged 2004 murder of a 59-year-old woman later found suffocated and stuffed in the trunk of her own car.

Police said the arrest ended an eight year investigation into the murder of Donna Lee Kelly, whose body was found by her daughter, in the trunk of her car three weeks after her disappearance.

According to reports a number of fellow Tournament of Roses officials and friends were shocked to hear of Munnecke's arrest saying it was out of line with his graceful personality. Some went so far as to say they might have arrested the wrong

Munnecke, 71, was arrested at his Alhambra home, pursuant to an arrest warrant, and booked at Temple Sheriff's Station for Murder. He is being held in lieu of $1 million bail according to police records.

Detectives said based on their findings, and a DNA match, a search warrant for Munnecke's residence, located in the 800 block of North Almansor Street, Alhambra, was obtained and served Wednesday morning.

During the investigation, detectives learned Donna Kelly was romantically involved with Richard Allan Munnecke, who was married.

Donna Kelly's daughter, Diane, discovered her mother's body on April 15, 2004. She was driving her mother's car through Eaton Canyon County Park and smelled a foul odor emanating from the trunk. She looked inside to find a decomposed body inside.

Detectives said it was later learned the murder had occurred at Donna Kelly's

Eight years later, the same Sheriff's Homicide Detectives, Elizabeth Smith and Richard Lopez revisited the case and gathered new information. They obtained the DNA sample from Munnecke and, in part through a Federal grant to fund DNA testing for cold cases, were able to get test results.

Investigators are asking that anyone with information about this case to contact the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department's Homicide Bureau at (323) 890-5500 or anonymously at (800) 222-TIPS (8477).

VERY SPECIAL AWARD FOR A VERY SPECIAL LADY By Joan Schmidt

About eight years ago, I met Gloria Huss. At that time, I was stepping down from the Monrovia-Arcadia-Duarte Town Council with a heavy heart. I loved the Town Council and serving the community. However, I no longer had the available time to serve as I had in the past. There were family obligations, health issues and much more was expected at work. Town Council Member Reyna Diaz had also stepped down. That awesome lady is still a Duarte School Board member and hardworking, integral part of Kiwanis. Kim Sanders also left the Town Council at that time. How could the Monrovia-Duarte Town Council function with so few members?

Enter Gloria Huss pictured on the right in front of her store.. With some prodding she came aboard and immediately went to work. Anything that lady decides to do, she does - and even more. Over the last several years, she has been a very important part of the Town Council. Chair Dave Hall told me how great she is with getting news out and keeping the Town Council aware of community events and projects. She serves as secretary, having agendas available and recording minutes.

A few weeks ago, I read that Gloria was receiving the prestigious Dick Lord Award from the Monrovia Chamber of Commerce. I was very pleased, but not surprised. She is a yeomen worker and is involved in SO MANY great causes!

started working at Garret's Floral Shop in Monrovia. At first Gloria rung up customer orders and answered the phone. Then Gloria assisted in making flower arrangements and attended trade school to learn floral design.

In 1989, an opportunity occurred. The Garrets were selling the business, and Gloria purchased it right before Valentine's Day, the BUSIEST time of the year! Mother's Day is very popular, but Valentine's Day is Number One. "It was kind of like a whirlwind," she said.

Over the years, the business has flourished and I have utilized Monrovia Floral on several occasions. Its great outstanding location, service and beautiful floral arrangements have made it the place to place your order!

On January 27th, at Monrovia Chamber of Commerce Annual Awards Dinner, Gloria was presented with the Dick Lord Award for outstanding contributions to the Chamber. Gloria has donated many volunteer hours to the Chamber over the years, has been a member of the Chamber's Board of Directors and is currently on the Membership Development

Gloria has been an active volunteer in many different fields. Take the movie/television industry for example. Fifteen years ago, Gloria began volunteering as a liaison between merchants and the film production companies. If a certain kind of store Gloria's story begins in Whittier where she grew up. out, but have a pet which also needs fed. When Gloria spent time at a local animal shelter, she noted several dogs were classified as "Owner Surrender" because their owners could no longer afford to feed them. At the Center, Gloria helps "package all of the food that is donated and assist in trying to get food donations."

On a personal level, Gloria and her husband have recently acquired an Austrian Shepherd and also have four cats. Her pets are like "members of the family".

Gloria loves the Monrovia community and the friendliness is needed, Gloria will help the film production company with of all its residents. "If you walk down the street, people always stop and say Hello".

Brady: Animal ID #A4389407

Meet a really mellow sweetheart, the affable Brady (A4389407). Brady is a calm and serene two-year-old cream male shorthaired Chihuahua who was found in La Puente on January 24th and brought to the Baldwin Park Animal Care Center. Weighing twelve pounds, Brady does not mind the leash but is unsure of what he is supposed to do on it. He could use a little training in that area, but other than that, he is an awesome little guy. He is very sociable with other dogs, and wags his tail profusely at every introduction. He absolutely loves people and will appropriate the nearest lap. Brady is a lowenergy boy who will be the perfect indoor pet for anybody anywhere! To watch a video of Brady please visit: www.

youtube.com/watch?v=xLN1HOGrz80

To meet Brady in person, please see him at the Baldwin Park Shelter, located at 4275 N. Elton, Baldwin Park, CA 91706 (Phone: 626-430-2378). He is currently available now. For any inquiries about Brady, please reference his animal ID number: A4389407. The shelter is open seven days a week, 12 pm-7 pm Monday-Thursday and 10am-5pm Friday-Sunday. This is a high-intake shelter with a great need for adoptions. For more information about Brady or the adoption process, contact United Hope for Animals Volunteer Adoption Coordinator Samantha at samanthasayon@gmail.com or 661-309-2674. Sierra Madre-Arcadia-Pasadena-Altadena-

PRESENTATION BY ARCADIA CHINESE ASSOCIATION AND TRIBUTE TO TWO FINE MEN AT ARCADIA CITY COUNCIL MEETING

By Joan Schmidt

Over the years, I have heard mention of a Chinese Association working on various fundraisers, offering financial support with educational programs, and doing just kindnesses! When I was involved with the Sheriff's Department, one branch offered financial assistance with special educational prevention programs. Then on another occasion, I learned that on 9/11, they brought a special meal to Temple Station personnel. (This was prior to the 9/11 tragedy. This was to thank Temple station for its response on 9-1-1 calls, hence the annual 9/11 treat.)

At a recent Arcadia City Council meeting, the Arcadia Chinese Association did just that. President Josephine Louie (right)made a special presentation of car wash tickets to City Employees. Mayor Gary Kovacic thanked Josephine and told everyone how much this great nonprofit organization has done for the Arcadia community. Founded in 1982, the Arcadia Chinese Association has dedicated its services and support to an array of different programs, service departments and organizations within the community. Its mission is to help the community better understand and give respect for its cultural diversity in hopes of promoting community development and program, which directs City efforts and actions on environmental programs. This program was adopted by a vote of 5-0.

During the meeting, there was also a report on the "Sustainable Arcadia"

We all know that City Redevelopment Agencies are being phased out. To me, it's mindboggling. Every city close to us has done so much because of their redevelopment agency. Now there is the issue of how to phase them out. Also at the Arcadia City meeting, there was mention of an "Oversight Board" which is to have seven members. The Mayor is to appoint two members; Supervisor Antonovich, two members, and the last three by the State Chancellor, County Office of Education, and County Sanitation Department. This is all confusing- what this board will exactly do, but it's supposed to be ready by May 1.

The meeting was adjourned in memory of two men, Fire Captain Andy Troncale and Ed Schreiner. First, Mayor Kovacic read a beautiful tribute of Fire Captain Troncale's life and career. (Last week Fire Captain Troncale's tribute was in this paper.) Then Mayor Kovacic then read one about Ed Shriner. Ironically, Ed also succumbed to cancer at the age of 68.

Ed Schreiner was born at St. Luke's Hospital in Altadena. He spent his entire life in Arcadia raising a family, working, owning businesses and volunteering his time, talents and skills to the community. Ed owned Arko's at the corner of Foothill and Santa Anita from 1971-1984. He was a member of the Army National Guard, and later an Arcadia Reserve Police Officer from 1983-1991. He lent his talents to the Youth Safety run sponsored by the Police Advisory Council, spent a decade as a Pasadena Tournament of Roses float mechanic and worked for the Arcadia Unified School District in the warehouse and print shop.

Ed spent the last several years of his life working with the Arcadia High School Band Percussion teams. He assisted in transporting equipment and greatly supported the marching band and percussion by serving on the Pit Crew and traveling to events all over the country.

This awesome man also is given credit for the great relationship between Arcadia H.S. and the White Mountain Apache Tribe. During the holidays, over a ten-year period, Ed collected and donated AUSD jackets and toys, thus establishing good will and personal bonds with the Apache tribe. Ed even was invited to special celebrations and cultural traditions in Arizona.

Ed is survived by his wife Terry, daughters Anne, Sandra, Carol and Sarah, three granddaughters and many friends and family members who will greatly miss him. A celebration of Ed's life will be held Sunday, February 12th at 1pm at the Arcadia High School North Gym. In lieu of flowers, donations made be made to the Arcadia High School, designated for the Ed Schreiner Percussion Scholarship.

For the period of Sunday, January 29th, through Saturday, February 4th, the Police Department responded to 903 calls for service of which 104 required formal investigations. The following is a summary report of the major incidents handled by the Department during this period.

Sunday, January 29:

At about 12:40 a.m., an officer, working a DUI checkpoint on Santa Anita Avenue at Santa Clara Street, contacted the driver of a grey Saturn. The driver provided the officer with false identification. An investigation revealed the subject was driving under the influence of alcohol and had three outstanding warrants. The 42-year-old White male was arrested and transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking.

At approximately 6:17 p.m., an officer responded to H&M at the Santa Anita Mall, 400 South Baldwin Avenue, in regards to a theft report. Two female juveniles concealed several items inside their purses and exited the store without making payment. The 13-year-old and 14-year-old Hispanic females were arrested and transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking. Both were later released to their parental guardian.

Monday, January 30:

Shortly after 12:13 p.m., an officer observed a male subject standing with his bicycle in the middle of Santa Rosa Road, near Colorado Boulevard. The officer made contact with the subject who explained he skipped school to hang out with friends. The officer located marijuana and drug paraphernalia inside his backpack. The 17-year-old White male was cited for the listed charges and Around 9:12 p.m., an officer was dispatched to Sephora at the Santa Anita Mall, 400 South Baldwin Avenue, in regards to a female adult in custody for theft. The suspect concealed a perfume inside her purse, and another perfume inside her bra. A search of her purse revealed two inactivated credit cards issued to different names. The officer searched her vehicle and discovered additional inactivated credit cards still glued to their approval letters, two possible stolen laptops, and mail containing the personal identifying information of other people. The 23-year-old Black female was arrested and transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking.

Tuesday, January 31

At approximately 9:33 a.m., an officer responded to the Arcadia Police Department front counter in regards to an identity theft report. The victim received a Target credit card statement in the mail for an account he did not open. The victim has no idea how his personal information was compromised and is desirous of prosecution.

6. At about 2:25 p.m., an officer was dispatched to the intersection of Huntington Drive and Baldwin Avenue regarding a two-party traffic collision. Party-two was driving on northbound Baldwin Avenue when he was struck by Party-one, traveling westbound on Huntington Drive. An investigation revealed Party-one failed to stop for a red signal. No major injuries were reported.

Wednesday, February 1:

Around 1:01 p.m., an officer responded to the 000 block of West Leroy Avenue, in regards to a residential burglary report. The victim received a phone call from his alarm company indicating his front door alarm had activated. He returned home and discovered his front door had been forced open. He observed the door was damaged; however, no property was missing. It appeared the unknown suspect(s) became startled at the sound of the alarm and fled the scene undetected.

8. At approximately 5:28 p.m., an officer responded to H&M at the Santa Anita Mall, 400 South Baldwin Avenue, in regards to a female adult and female juvenile detained for theft. A loss prevention officer observed the female adult select numerous items of clothing, and watched her carry the merchandise to a secluded area of the store with her 11-year-old daughter. The suspect placed the merchandise on a wall display and proceeded to walk away, after which the juvenile placed all of the merchandise in an empty Hollister shopping bag. Both suspects exited the store without making payment. An investigation revealed the suspects also stole items from Claire's. The 32-year-old Hispanic female was arrested for Commercial Burglary and Contributing to the Delinquency of a Minor. A report was made to the Department of Child and Family Services, and the juvenile was later released to a parental guardian.

Thursday, February 2:

Shortly after 1:31 a.m., officers conducted a bicycle traffic stop on southbound Santa Anita Avenue at Le Roy Avenue for not having a safety reflector. A records check revealed the bicyclist was on parole. The officer searched his person and recovered methamphetamines inside his pants pocket. The 23-year-old Hispanic male was arrested for Possession of a Controlled Substance.

9. Around 6:25 p.m., an officer responded to the 1000 block of South First Avenue in regards to a structure fire. When the officer arrived, the residence was fully engulfed in flames and personnel from the Arcadia Fire Department and Monrovia Fire Department were already on scene. The fire was successfully extinguished; however, at the time of the report the cause of the fire was unknown.

Friday, February 3:

At approximately 9:12 a.m., an officer responded to the Arcadia Police Department front counter regarding a theft report. The victim explained he received a call from a male subject who identified himself as his son. The subject requested a wire transfer via Western Union to bail himself out of jail in Panama City, Panama. The victim believed the subject and completed the wire transfer. A short

At about 8:00 p.m., an officer responded to the area of Oakwood Avenue and Virginia Road, in regards to an auto burglary. The victim discovered unknown suspect(s) stole her Luis Vuitton purse from inside her vehicle, which also contained a large amount of cash and checks. The officer time later, the victim received a phone call from her actual son who explained he was at home, and never went to Panama. The victim is desirous of prosecution for Theft by False Pretense.

VOTE BY MONROVIA CITY COUNCIL OPENS ACCESS TO WILDERNESS PRESERVE DESPITE RESIDENTS' OBJECTIONS

By Joan Schmidt

One might wonder if the final vote at the February 7th Monrovia City Council was one of the latest at a meeting. (Or perhaps earliest-because the actual vote occurred around 1:30 am February 8th!)

What could the issue be? It concerns access to the Hillside Wilderness Preserve, which was established in 2000 after voters approved Measure A and B, that provided $10 million to purchase hillside land for public recreational use. The City of Monrovia owns 1336 acres of land which is zoned Hillside Wilderness Preserve (HWP) and Hillside Recreation (HR), one 40-acre parcel and the entire Clamshell Motorway.

In 2004, the Hillside Preservation Campaign and Petition was established by residents Thomas and Pamela Suess to provide a community voice and direction for preserving the Monrovia Foothills. The petition offers a simple and respectable 5-point request of the City to preserve the foothills in a fashion which honors and respects the desire of citizens by not disturbing endangering families, streets, neighborhoods, homes or wildlife of the Monrovia

Foothills.

Judge David Yaffe ruled in favor of Suess and awarded him $60,000 start bringing people up there, in attorney fees. Judge Yaffe animals disappear." said, "The lawsuit was necessary to convince the politicians that control the city of Monrovia to comply with the California Environmental Quality Act, obtain an environmental impact report, listen and pay attention to the criticisms of the citizens of Monrovia to that report and then vote on whether to adopt

Now the City of Monrovia has a plan. At its February 7th meeting, 35 residents filled out cards to address the City Council. Some favored the plan, others did not. the plan.

One Hillside resident, Nancy Matthews, supports access to the preserve. She feels, "The fact that everyone paid for this land means everyone should have access to it...I border one of the access of the unknown.... It's critical enjoy it. to move forward now.'

Among those voicing In 2009, the City of objections was Pamela Suess. Monrovia had a plan to open She and her husband Tom

> Mayor Mary Ann Lutz and Council Members Tom Adams and Joe Garcia all live within 500 feet of the preserve, so they recused themselves. That left only Council Members Becky Shevlin and Larry Spicer to vote! A "Law of participation" is required, so the Mayor and two Council Members drew straws to see who would remain behind. Joe Garcia won, so Mayor Lutz and Council Member Adams left the chambers. The vote was 3-0 in favor of moving ahead with

It will be interesting to see what follows. I am sure the City has done an extensive study after the previous lawsuit. I believe Ms. Matthews made a good point. If the residents of Monrovia paid for this Hillside points... I understand the fear Preserve, they should be able to

New Monrovia Police Department Website Goes Live. First it was Crime Mapping - Then it was Twitter - Now, the Monrovia Police Department is continuing to work toward its goal of providing the public with easier access to police information by launching a new website, www.monroviapd.org. Today, February 9, 2012, Monrovia Police Department goes live with its new, user friendly, Police website. The new website is easy to navigate and provides the community with quick access to Police information. Citizens can stay informed on Police activity with the Neighborhood Watch Report; receive real time, up-to-date crime statistics through crime mapping; access information on animal control issues and licensing; and find answers to many other general questions they might be seeking. Whether it be finding out how to obtain a dog license, paying a parking citation online, or simply learning how to become a volunteer, this website is full of informative information. The Department will continue to refine and improve the website. Please visit the new website and Stay informed with what is going on in your community.

During the last seven-day period, the Police Department handled 419 service events, resulting in 77 investigations. To see a complete listing of crimes reported, go to the crime mapping link below http:// www.crimemapping.com/map/ca/monrovia

Vehicle Burglaries. On January 30, officers responded to several vehicle burglary reports at a condominium complex in the 100 block of West Colorado in the secured tenant parking area. Items taken varied from car parts to in-dash radios. Additionally, a garage door opener was taken in one of the burglaries. The investigation is continuing.

Theft From a Vehicle. On February 1 at 3:10 a.m. an officer responded to the 200 block of East Los Angeles regarding a theft from a vehicle. The victim's front bumper was missing from his 2000 Honda Civic. Investigation continuing.

Brandishing a Replica Firearm - Suspect Arrested. On February 1 at 11:35 p.m., police received a call reporting a man with a gun inside a bar in the 100 block of East Olive. The reporting party said the male suspect had displayed a handgun, causing the customers to become fearful. Officers arrived and the man was detained without incident. The weapon was a BB gun that looked like a pistol. The suspect claimed to be a gang member and said he needed the gun for protection. He was arrested and taken into custody.

Grand Theft Auto – Utility Trailer. On February 3 at 7:06 a.m., a utility trailer was reported stolen from an unsecured parking lot in the 200 block of West Foothill. The trailer did not have license plates on it. It was taken sometime between 4 p.m. on February 2 and 5 a.m. on February 3. The investiga-

Residential Burglary. On February 3 at 6:24 p.m., a female resident in the 400 block of East Olive reported her home had been burglarized sometime between 8:30 a.m. and 5:25 p.m. that day. A laptop computer was taken as well as the resident's black and white Boston Terrier. The dog has a microchip.

Theft - Suspects Arrested. On January 31 at 11:27 p.m., a witness called police and reported a male and female suspect stealing his neighbor's bicycle from the 100 Block of West Colorado. An officer stopped a couple matching the description near the location. The witness positively identified both suspects and they were still in possession of the bicycle. The victim desires prosecution. They were both arrested for the theft.

Petty Theft / Drunk in Public - Suspect Arrested. On February 3 at 12:01 a.m., a sergeant on patrol witnessed a male subject come out of a bar in the 300 block of West Foothill, walk across Magnolia, and pickup up the corner resident's potted plant. The male subject began walking away with the plant. The sergeant stopped him. The owner of the property was located, an elderly female, and she desired prosecution. The plant was returned to the owner and the suspect was arrested, not only for the theft, but for being drunk in public.

Mail Tampering / Weapons Offense - Suspects Arrested. On February 4 at 4:56 p.m., officers responded to the 400 block of North Alta Vista regarding a male and female subject in a black car that were taking mail out of mailboxes. Officers located the vehicle and stopped it. The investigation revealed a large quantity of stolen mail, burglary tools, and a loaded revolver in the vehicle. The revolver was found by the battery in the engine compartment of the car. Both the male and female subject were arrested and charged with conspiracy, receiving stolen property, mail tampering, and weapons charges.

Battery. On February 5 at 10:06 p.m., police responded to the report of a battery that occurred in the 200 block of Madeline. The adult male victim was standing in front of his residence when he was approached by the suspect, his girlfriend's former boyfriend. The suspect approached the victim in a friendly manner and asked if he would be willing to speak with him. The victim agreed. Without warning, the suspect punched the victim in the face several times. The suspect then left the location. The victim sustained a swollen left eye as a result of the battery. The investigation is continuing.

Special Enforcement Team Activity Assault With a Deadly Weapon Warrant - Suspect Arrested. On February 3, the Special Enforcement

Team was on patrol and conducted a traffic stop on a vehicle. A computer check revealed the driver was wanted by Monrovia Police Department for assault with a deadly weapon. The suspect was arrested and taken into custody.

Detective Bureau Case Follow-Up Vehicle Versus Pedestrian Hit & Run Traffic Collision – Suspect pleads to Felony Charge. On January

27, a hit and run traffic collision occurred at Huntington and Canyon, where a 12-year-old girl was struck by a vehicle as she tried to cross the street. The driver fled the scene, but through investigation, was located and arrested. The child was severely injured and was taken by helicopter to a hospital in critical condition. Detectives submitted the felony hit and run case to the District Attorney for filing. The suspect pled to the felony charge and accepted a sentence of 180 days in jail and 3 years probation.

Search Warrant - Additional Victim Identified. A proactive investigation by patrol officers gave Monrovia Police Department's Detective Bureau enough information to secure a search warrant for a residence in the 200 block of West Olive, which was served on January 25. The residents are suspected to be selling stolen property and narcotics from the residence. An additional victim was identified this week from this case. That brings the total to six victims of theft.

Hall Pass Kooking Into The Life Of A Teenager By Meaghan Allen

LIFE... IS A KUMQUAT

It's always nice to lose oneself in a fantasy world. Where things go your way every day and life just seems so good. Sometimes, we catch glimpses of this perfect world; getting great grades on tests you didn't study for or catching every green light when you're already are those moments, days, and weeks where everything is just off and nothing is working out the way you want and sometimes need it to, like the Patriots winning the SuperBowl.

I didn't bet or have anything riding on that game other than pure interest for the game and the hope that the Patriots would emerge victorious for my father, a fan of thirty-seven years who could have used something great during a time of quiet struggle. But, alas, my dreams were not meant to be from the moment Tom Brady touched the football and gave the Giants a safety, leading to a nail-biter and ultimate disappointment. After the game I turned to my current book of interest, Bridget Jones' Diary, and lost myself in the narrator's personal struggles and woes. But even that book, one that had helped me relieve my frustration, because it was so simply true, turned out to running late. But, then there be more cinematic and overthe-top than I believed, and, of course, ending happily. Even something that is supposed to relate so well to normal people ends in fairytale. There are endless quotes and sayings that argue life is only what we make it, no more no less.

> But what about the things we can't control that still alter our lives so drastically? I don't have the answer, but I think that it lies somewhere in between having a fantasy that is achievable, going for it, and understanding that sometimes life is going to throw you a bump that you can't escape.

Are you ready for this Tuesday? If your answer was, why? What's happening you are in deep trouble? First of all, let's agree to agree, Valentine's Day should be a full week. A single day is not long enough to fully express one's love. What do you say about having an evening at home with a bottle of champagne and a candlelight table for dinner? You may wonder why a restaurant critic would dare such treason. In all truth, it's Noir an impossible night for restaurants. The history of Valentine's Day — and its patron saint — is shrouded in mystery. But we do know that February has long been a month of romance. Valentine's Day, as we know it today, contains vestiges of both Christian and ancient Roman tradition. So, who was Saint Valentine and how did he become associated with this ancient rite? Today, the Catholic Church recognizes at least three different saints named Valentine or Valentines, all of whom were

One legend contends that Valentine was a priest who served during the third century in Rome. Avanti Café, The restaurant like the owner is small and very charming. Nice pizzas and pastas and you won't go broke eating at Avanti. (626)

How about Café Beaujolais in Eagle Rock, I dined there recently and was very pleased with the dishes, plus their prices are reasonable. The crème brulee will make the most stubborn woman swoon. (323) 255-5111

One of the best-kept secrets is A/K/A Bistro in Old Pasadena. Owner Robert and Debbie Simon are truly at the top of their class when is comes to special days. The Portobello Shrooms are a must and the Pan Roasted Mary's Chicken is exceptional. (626) 564-8111.

Our Favorite Recipe of the week A VALENTINE SPECIAL: SPICE-COATED RACK OF LAMB FOR TWO WITH ARUGULA, AVOCADO, AND BLOOD ORANGE SALAD

INGREDIENTS:

For lamb:

- 1 heaping tablespoon whole cumin seeds
- 1 tablespoon unsweetened cocoa powder
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1 (8-bone; 24-to 26-ounce) rack of lamb 3 tablespoons canola oil
- 1 1/2 teaspoons kosher salt
- 2 tablespoons unsalted butter
- 2 garlic cloves, peeled and smashed with back of knife
- 3 sprigs fresh thyme

For salad:

- Juice of 1 blood orange (about 1/4 cup) 1 tablespoon shallot, minced (from 1 small
- 1 tablespoon mild-roast coffee, finely ground 3/4 teaspoon flaky sea salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
 - 2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil 1 firm but ripe Haas avocado, peeled and cut
 - into 1/4-inch-thick slices 2 cups (1 ounce) loosely packed baby arugula
 - leaves 1 blood orange, peeled, segmented, and seeded

PreparationMake lamb:

Pre-heat oven to 400°F.

Using spice or coffee grinder, grind cumin to semi-fine powder, then transfer to small bowl. Whisk in cocoa powder, coffee, and pepper.

Rub exposed lamb bones with 1 tablespoon canola oil, then wrap each bone in foil, covering bones completely and leaving meat uncovered. Sprinkle both sides of uncovered lamb with kosher salt, then rub with spice mixture.

In heavy, 12-inch oven-safe sauté pan over high heat, heat remaining 2 tablespoons canola oil until hot but not smoking. Sear rack, meat side down, moving occasionally to prevent sticking, until deep golden brown and crust forms, about 2 minutes. Flip to sear underside in same manner, about 2 minutes, then sear bottom of rack in same manner, 2 minutes more.

Flip rack back to meat side up, then transfer pan to oven and roast 7 minutes. Add butter, garlic, and thyme to pan and continue roasting until thermometer inserted 2 inches into thickest part of lamb (do not touch bone) registers 130°F (for medium rare), 7 to 8 minutes more. Tilt pan to collect juices and spoon those over meat. Transfer lamb to rack with pan or plate underneath to catch juices and let rest 10 to 15 minutes.

Make salad:

In small bowl, whisk together blood orange juice, shallot, 1/2 teaspoon salt, and 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Gradually add olive oil and whisk vigorously to combine. (Vinaigrette can be prepared ahead and refrigerated, covered, up to 2 days. Whisk thoroughly before using.)

Divide avocado between two plates, fanning out slices over half of plate. Top with arugula and drizzle with vinaigrette. Top with blood orange segments and sprinkle with remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Remove foil from lamb bones. Slice rack into 4 double chops and transfer to plates alongside salad. Serve immediately.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

THE TWILIGHT SAD

Scottish indie rockers The Twilight Sad demonstrate a complete overhaul to their wall of sound on their third opus, "No One Can Ever Know." With added synthesizers, the under-the-radar outfit adds extra layers, darker tones, and an ominous vibe to their dense sonic borders. As a result, "No One Can Ever Know" is a taut, menacing, foreboding record that will surprise most supporters of the band. The Twilight Sad's latest outing is something of an impenetrable mystery. The shift in artistic direction may have some raising questions, but at any rate, the secrecies behind the record only add to the supremacy of it. While the band has always received much praise for their work, the group's recent effort may finally put them on the map as a true force to be reckoned with.

Frontman James Graham's heavy accent sometimes makes his lyrics indiscernible, but often the unawareness only contributes to the ambiguity of the songs. The record launches off to a promising start to say the least. "Alphabet," the opening track and best of the bunch, sets the mood right from the beginning. A simple, but haunting synth beat masked behind the gaunt lyrics gives you an indication how the rest of the record may play out. "Dead City," a close runner-up for the best track, is an unequivocal distressing piece of music. The closing lyrics, taken straight from the album title, "No one can ever know," establishes the theme of the record to be a secret that most may never be able to unravel. In essence, this is not your typical TTS album and proves the band is no one trick pony. Whatever Graham is feeling, he puts it on full blast with each and every track. The perceived tormented soul of a man is on display with an honest, moody, and cathartic reverberation that will continue to haunt you well after you stop playing the record.

"No One Can Ever Know" begins irrefutably strong. However, I think with the last two tracks it loses some of its glow. "Another Bed", the weakest from the playlist, feels oddly off. Maybe it's because the aforementioned song isn't nearly as gloomy as the other tracks. Whatever the case may be, something about the arrangements didn't do it for me. The closing song, "Kill It In The Morning" provides heavy synths, an aggressive blend of rock and electronics that have the record coming to a jarring finish. Despite the relatively disappointing conclusion, The Twilight Sad have crafted an intense, memorable, and evocative piece of work that's a definite surprise in the way it sounds, but not a surprise in quality since this is a group that continues to produce powerful and original music with each sequential release. Key Tracks: "Alphabet", "Dead City", "Sick", "Don't Move" Grade: 8 out of 10

HOWARD Hays As I See It

"By denying contraception as part of employee health plans, what the bishops seek is more like religious fascism than religious freedom.' - Daniel C. Maguire, Professor of Moral Theology, Marquette University

It's no coincidence that Republicans routinely create controversies over emotional issues, even to presume government jurisdiction over a woman's health, around election time - especially when it's hard to argue the relevant issues.

When George H.W. Bush ran in 1988, the issue was black inmates paroled under Gov. Michael Dukakis. As Bill Clinton moved to strengthen our economy and confront al Qaeda, Republicans obsessed over marital infidelity. With Al Gore, the threat was he'd confiscate guns from fellow Tennesseans. John Kerry seemed "French" and doubts were manufactured over the legitimacy of medals earned in Vietnam. Now, the issues are religion, contraception and reproduction.

Our troops are coming home and the economy is rebounding. As Vice President Biden put it, "Osama bin Laden is dead and General Motors is alive". In this context, no candidate appears capable of sufficiently firing-up even those disappointed with President Obama.

Mitt Romney is a candidate worth a quarterbillion, with a $100 million trust fund set up for his kids, who asks us to believe he shares the anxieties of the unemployed; a candidate who urged we bail out the banks but let car manufacturers go under; who'd rather speed up foreclosures than help families keep their homes.

Newt Gingrich offers moon bases and another Middle-East war. Rick Santorum dismisses basic science (global warming is a "hoax") while advocating a Fundamentalist Sharia. Ron Paul faces an electorate not ready to turn our national parks over to private developers (and would permit morning-after contraception only in cases Republican options are limited. One is to block efforts they know would spur the recovery, such as investing in infrastructure or breaks for middleincome taxpayers. Another is to hearken back to the days when Spiro Agnew was a familiar name, disco had yet to break out of gay nightclubs, and contraception and women's reproductive rights were still unsettled controversies.

Last month when the Susan G. Komen Foundation cut ties with Planned Parenthood, they claimed it was non-political. Karen Handel, the individual who carried out the move, came to the organization with little foundation experience but a long record in Republican politics, having ran unsuccessfully for Georgia governor under a rigid anti-choice, anti-Planned Parenthood platform. She was recruited for the Komen job by former Bush press secretary Ari Fleischer.

Within days of the announcement, Planned Parenthood, which provided 170,000 breast exams and 6,400 mammogram referrals through Komen support over the past five years, received a flood of donations which surpassed the amount they would've gotten from Komen. Handel resigned and the Komen Foundation reversed its

The Affordable Care Act is based on the premise that prevention is cheaper than emergency treatment. Preventive measures are to be offered without co-pays. Twenty-eight states (including California) already mandate the inclusion of family planning in health coverage, as does Medicaid. The new HHS regulations exempt religious institutions from these contraception requirements; those nonprofits whose "primary purpose" is the "inculcation of religious values" and that "primarily" serve and employ those who "share the religious tenets". Churches and seminaries are exempt. Women working for a large university or hospital, though, are not to be denied contraception coverage because of the institution's religious affiliation.

Were it not for the election, this wouldn't be controversial. According to a recent Public Policy Polling survey, 57% support coverage for contraception, including at Catholicaffiliated universities and hospitals. Support among Catholics is 53%, with 60% support among Catholics identifying themselves as Rick Santorum denounces contraception as "a license to do things in a sexual realm that is counter to how things are supposed to be." The Institute of Medicine within the National Academy of Sciences sees it as a means of reducing the risk of endometrial cancer and pelvic inflammation disease in women, and in preventing infant and maternal mortality. President Obama decided to go with the Institute of Medicine.

Twenty-three Christian, Jewish and Muslim leaders wrote, "We believe that women and men have the right to decide whether or not to apply the principles of their faith to family planning decisions, and to do so they must have access to services . . . Hospitals and universities across the religious spectrum have an obligation to assure that individuals' conscience and decisions are respected and that their students and employees have access to this basic health care service."

Sen. Barbara Mikulski (D-MD), said on the Senate floor, "For the first time in a long time, our nation is talking about women's health . . . but unfortunately, too much of it isn't really about women's health. It is politics disguised as women's Newt Gingrich characterizes it as an "outrageous assault" on religious freedom.

Prof. Daniel C. Maguire of Marquette University (a Catholic / Jesuit institution) writes, "Catholic theologians overwhelmingly support contraception. Dozens of Catholic hospitals and universities cover prescribed contraceptives. Ninety-eight percent of Catholic women have used contraceptives. Only 2 percent of Catholic women use the 'rhythm method' of birth control favored by conservative Catholics. Therefore the decision of the Obama administration, rather than threatening Catholic teaching on contraception, is actually more attuned to actual Catholic teaching than are the American Catholic bishops with their idiosyncratic taboo

Those who'd exploit such an intensely personal matter in an attempt to score cheap political points are undeserving of participation in the discussion, let alone being considered for high

UTTER STUPIDITY OR SOMETHING ELSE?

Any politician who takes on the Catholic Church over one of their most fundamental doctrines is presumed at face value, with no other evidence needed, to be utterly stupid. Such is the common explanation for why President Obama signed off on the Health and Human Services ruling that Obamacare would force Catholic institutions to provide and pay for health insurance which covered contraceptives, abortions and sterilizations. I don't buy into that explanation. Unfortunately, I think it's something else much

Most of the time when a politician flubs a speech or public event, it's along the lines of some of Mitt Romney's most recent ones. Usually, the politician says something like, "I like being able to fire people" or "I'm not concerned about the very poor". In hindsight, they always look stupid, the context always tells you that the quote is out of context, nobody really believes that's what was meant, and the politician apologizes and survives. These are the normal growing pains of the politically naïve on their way to becoming the experienced national leader. These are not at all similar to what President Obama has just

First of all, I don't believe President Obama believes it was a mistake. The evidence shows that an awful lot of thought and calculation went into this decision. Secretary Sebelius did not make this decision on her own. This was approved by the President himself, and it's obvious Obama believes now is the time to try to make a game changing point.

The impact of this ruling is stunning. It announces to the nation that the federal government has the right to tell the Catholic Church that it cannot be Catholic anymore. The Catholic Church has as long a tradition as you can possibly have telling its adherents that contraceptives, abortions and sterilizations are sin. They are forbidden as a bedrock provision of the faith. To contradict this is to give the government the power to coerce all faiths.

Our country has long relied on what's knows as the "conscience clause". It's a provision of law, stemming from the protections of the first amendment, exempts institutions religious from rules that clearly violate the tenets of their faith. The first amendment prohibits the establishment of a state religion, but it also prohibits the government from restricting the free exercise of religion.

Our laws and court cases have reaffirmed this principle since our country's founding.

To further prove that Obama couldn't possibly have simply made a mistake, I'd point to last month's Supreme Court decision in the Hosanna-Tabor Evangelical Lutheran Church and School case. The church fired an employee because they found her beliefs and practices contrary to their religious mission. The employee sued based on anti-discrimination employment laws, but the Supreme Court decided in favor of the church in a unanimous decision. Sadly, President Obama had his solicitor general file a brief with the Supreme Court insisting that employment law should trump church doctrine. Whatever you think of the wisdom of this argument, the fact that Obama lost the argument in a unanimous decision and then still proceeded with the contraceptive ruling afterwards tells us that this was not naivety or political miscalculation. This was a fight purposely picked and a battle to be

But to what end, you might ask. We need look no further than the President's own words as a candidate. He intends to fundamentally transform the U.S. He believes in a secular state where the government is supreme and faith is stripped from the public square. The election of 2012 is about so much more than the economy, taxes and deficits. This election is about the soul of this country.

'THE MARKET' HAS CHOSEN THE WINNER IN THE CULTURE WARS

popularized as an advertising

Marketers used the label to describe young people of the late 80s, and the focus was on how to sell goods to the MTV generation.

Advertisements at that time, just as one example, started to feature unmarried couples to appeal to this group of consumers. This Komen's brand has been forever tarnished by was a first and in the early 90s it was pushing the envelope. It apparently resonated. The It's already resulted in one resignation of the advertisers gauged correctly: They successfully sold their products to Americans with the now documented lowest marriage rate in history.

The argument could be made (mainly by those who want to take us back to a mythical innocent time of the supposedly recent past) that it's advertisers who've corrupted our culture and changed what's socially acceptable through their manipulations. Or, if you have sold your proverbial soul to the gods of unfettered commerce - like the rightwing self-described Culture Warriors, or the (formerly) Moral (former) Majority advertisements are the market speaking for the greater culture at large. And the greater culture, funny enough, largely disagrees with the rightwing.

Here's how it works: Advertisers put out an image or an idea – the greater public concurs by buying those products. Successful ads equal agreed upon ideas. Marketing is, after all, the definitive pandering.

And here is what the culture is saying through advertisements: We like racial diversity. Why can I say that? Because commercials not only have racially diverse groups of friends and co-workers - they now regularly feature bi-racial couples in ads. In a Budweiser Super Bowl spot this year, there were black men flirting with white women sans scandal. If those spots are moving widgets it means consumers agree with the message. It's a type of voting. Even if some viewers don't notice or don't have a visceral reaction one way or another – it's an indicator of a new cultural norm.

Also Americans are okay with homosexuals. The American Family Association, an association for only pre-approved families, threatened JC Penney with a boycott after they hired Ellen DeGeneres as a spokesperson. Now, DeGeneres, besides being a comedic genius, is also a successful talk show host and a popular pitchperson for brands like Covergirl and American Express. The market has spoken time after time, and Ellen is adored and sought after. She also happens to be a lesbian, which has made her the target of the AFA whose influence is clearly eroding.

What else does the market proclaim? Well, Americans widely approve of birth control. And yes, even legal abortion. In the dust-up last week between Susan G. Komen for the Cure and Planned Parenthood the market picked the winner. It was Planned Parenthood. The nonprofit health care provider saw a spike in private contributions after Komen announced they would no longer give Planned Parenthood a grant to screen for breast cancer. And Vice President of Public Policy, Karen Handel.

You can think of the market as a leading indicator of our social mores and the Republican primary as a lagging one.

Disgraced former Speaker of the House, Newt Gingrich, has been trying to play the well-worn Goldwater Southern Strategy to rile up the base. He calls Obama the food stamp president and said he wants to go talk to the NAACP about 'why the African-American community should demand paychecks and not be satisfied with food stamps." He also said immigrants should learn English and not use the "language of the ghetto." That phrase hurt him in the Spanishnamed (former Spanish colony) state of Florida. Why? Because the market has spoken, we have our first biracial president and we no longer care for these antiquated wedges Gingrich peddles.

GOP-worshipped market has chosen the winner of the culture wars, and it hasn't looked favorably on its most devout.

Of course, the market for Republicans is just like the Bible or the Constitution. They worship it piously as long as they believe it agrees with them.

If their deified market is all-knowing and all-powerful - it clearly favors a progressive agenda...and not the

KANSAS CITY, Kansas Republican presidential nomination. Here in More than ever, Romney's every word and breath the center of America

Independent's Eye by CAN MITT ROMNEY MOVE TO THE CENTER IF

the Republican political nomination battle.

Romney is dominating the national political news cycle here in America's geographical center. But his biggest battle lies ahead: can Romney win the country's political center in what increasingly is shaping up to be a toss-up presidential election? And can he do it without risking the wrath of the GOP's distrustful conservative base?

By most measures, these should be happy days for the man who would have been the perfect late 20th century Republican candidate. Despite gaffes suggesting his mouth is a powerful magnet and his feet are made out of metal, Romney is the race's current front-runner (but unloved). The way Romney unleashed his PACs and used his own rhetoric to politically dismember chief rival, former House Speaker Newt Gingrich in Iowa and Florida proved he has the ruthlessness to go all the way.

But this has taken a huge toll on Romney. Press scrutiny and increased coverage haven't been kind to him. The media has chronicled his often clumsy and unconvincing move to the right and dutifully covers an outraged Gingrich, now pursuing what Gingrich's former colleague Dick Armey calls a "first-class vendetta" against Romney. Stories about the From the look of it, it'll be easier for the corn to low taxes Romney pays plus his gaffe about not caring about the poor got widespread coverage and provided material for TV comedians.

The result? An ABC News/Washington Post poll finds that 52 percent to 24 percent the more Obama. Romney faces the prospect of more erosion Barring some big It's a truism of American politics that to political development win a nominee has to move to the center to that again upends the attract independents after wooing the more conventional wisdom, ideological party base in primaries. But can former Massachusetts Romney? If he does he'll have to do it slowly Gov. Mitt Romney or risk angering conservative GOPers. Candidates used to be able slowly tip toe towards the center. No more. Plus, team Obama has a wealth of footage of Romney in his moderate incarnation waiting to be aired that'll be new to many Americans. If Romney tries to shift too much to the center, conservatives could stay home. Analysts point to lower turnout in the Republican primary in Florida and the Nevada caucuses compared to 2008 as partially due to a lack of conservative enthusiasm.

> Romney must keep his party's conservative base, run an aggressive campaign taking it to Obama, positively redefine himself, offer solid policy alternatives, and perceptively edge to the center to win independents. Polls show that as he battles Gingrich his negatives go up - and his appeal to independents goes down.

> What can Romney do to soften his image while playing hardball? More often than not when attempting humor he stumbles or brings to mind part of the lyric from "Oh What a Beautiful Morning" from the musical Oklahoma: "The corn is as high as an elephant's eye, An' it looks like its climbin' clear up to the sky.'

HAIL Hamilton My Turn

BYE BYE BILL OF RIGHTS

Year out of touch on my hellish Caribbean cruise (see my 1/21 column), President Obama was signing into law HR 1540, the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) for fiscal year 2012.

Many of you may be thinking "Who cares?" or "Why does it matter to me?" However, the NDAA should matter to all Americans, both as citizens and human beings. Imbedded in this act is the most insidious threat to our civil liberties since the Patriot Act was first passed.

Sections 1021 and 1022 gives the government the right to detain American citizens indefinitely without trial and remand anyone detained into military custody if they "pose a threat" to the government. This law is supposed to be an act against terrorism, to protect the public from the dangers we are supposedly fighting in Afghanistan.

The NDAA states that anyone "who was part of or substantially supported al-Qaida, the Taliban, or associated forces that are engaged in hostilities against the United States or its coalition partners" or commits a "belligerent act" against the United States government can be held "without trial, until the end of the hostilities authorized by the Authorization for Use of Military Forces."

In case you've forgotten what you learned in high school civics class, the Bill of Rights guarantees that in all criminal cases, Americans have a right to be informed of the charge against them, have the assistance of counsel, and a trial decided by a jury of our peers. In other words, it guarantees that there will be "No punishment without due process of law." The government seems to have forgotten this part of the Constitution.

Some of you may be thinking that since you don't bad-mouth the government you don't have to worry. Well, this law permits the government to arrest and incarcerate you indefinitely without having to get an arrest warrant. They don't have to prove you did anything wrong, and they can arrest you for more reasons than just being a part of al-Qaida.

Under the guise of Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) our rights have slowly been eroded to make us conform to their globalist ideals. The NDAA is just another step in the direction toward the "New World Order".

FEMA is building hundreds of camps all over the United States, a number of them run by Halliburton. These have been in existence since 2009. They call them "residential centers."

Former Minnesota Gov. Jesse Ventura, in his television show "Conspiracy Theory," explored one of these FEMA camps. What he saw, and what I saw on TV, was utterly shocking. Behind the double fences of the camp was a playground with children already using it. These camps are already in use. Not just for fugitives, illegal aliens, or al-Qaida members. But for American women, children, and entire families.

This particular camp has two layers of fencing around the perimeter, warehouses, playgrounds, unusually large furnaces, and atop the fences is razor wire. Not so much to keep people out, but to keep them in. Along the length of the fencing is a railroad track. Army and government trains are commonly seen on it.

Outside the FEMA camp Jesse visited is a menacing notice board. It warns all visitors "not bring on the grounds any instrument that may be used as an aid in attempting escape." The word "escape" implies that people do not want to be there. Perhaps this is why they are often compared to the Nazi concentration camps.

The NDAA was not a supported bill in the United States. Only 1 in 4 Americans supported the act, yet Obama still signed it. Many senators were actually paid hundreds of thousands of dollars to pass the NDAA. Ohio senator, Robert Portman not only voted in favor of it, but was paid $272,853 to do so.

This is supposed to be America, land of the free, not America, land of the oppressed. Don't take this lying down.

Call'or email President Obama, Senators Feinstein and Boxer, and Rep. Dreier demanding the repeal of NDAA Sections 1021 and 1022.

Do it now before it's too late!

WHERE IN MY SCHEDULE DID JANUARY GO? well deserved, if I say so myself, pride in keeping to a well organized schedule; my to-do-list. If it is on that list, I am going to do it, regardless of the difficulty attached. The trick is to get on that list which I guard with my very life. Not that I worship my to-do-list, but I do reverence it with a great deal of deep personal appreciation. I think long and hard before anything appears on my to-do-list. Once something is on my to-do-list, there it is for all and sundry to gape upon it. It is a deep honor for anything to be put on my to-do-list.

Another reason I take my time in putting something on that list is that the only way it can come off is if I actually do it. After all, that list is not supposed to be stared at but rather to inspire activity on my part.

The other night I was busy with my to do list going over each and every item with the utmost care hoping that St. Nick would soon be there. Each item on that list needs to be carefully scrutinized and sometimes even underlined for emphasis. Often I have to recalculate and sort out the items and give them new priorities. I must have been busily engaged for I did not hear the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage address me.

Finally, it dawned on me that somebody, other than my inner conscience, was addressing me. I looked in her direction and said, "Huh?"

"I just said," she quipped, "what are you so intently engaged in?"

"I'm working on my December to-do-list," I said with a touch of irritation in my voice for being interrupted during such delicate meditation. 'You're working on what?"

"My December to-do-list," I said trying to get back into my sphere of supersensitive concentration. There was silence for a bit and then my residential companion broke said silence by saying, "You do know what month it is, don't you?"

With an air of sarcasm in my voice I answered, "Of coarse I know what month it is. It's December and I'm trying to sort out my to-do-list for the month. I think I've got just about everything

Again, there was that silence that you could cut with a butter knife if you had one on your person. "So," she said rather thoughtfully. "You are completing your December's to-do-list. Is that right?"

I grunted my approval and continued with my ultra-concentration work at hand. I really have no time for nonsensical chitchat. My time is valuable; I have work that needs to be done. I cannot be side tracked by every little noise that comes up. I take great pride in working through my to-do-

I take a certain amount of list each month. It gives me a great sense of satisfaction knowing that I am actually accomplishing something and I have the records to prove it. If somebody would ever come up to me and ask me to prove that I have been busily engaged in profitable activity, all I would have to do is show them my well documented to-do-list. "I hate to bust your bubble, but..."

I hate when people say they hate to do something and then they go right ahead and do it. I wanted to tell her to save herself a bucket of hate and refrain from busting my bubble, or whatever she was trying to bust at the time.

Then, being the gentleman that I am, I allowed her to say what was on her mind.

'I hate to bust your bubble, but it is February not December.'

Now there was silence from my end of the room. Being the good-natured person that I am, I just burst out laughing.

"Boy," I said heartily, "you almost got me with that one. I'll give that one to you." Then I went back to my work.

"But it is February," she said more sternly than I have heard her say anything for a long time. "It is now February, not December."

I had to pause. Normally she does not play tricks on me like this. Most of the time she is an upstanding person and always tells me the truth, even when there are times I do not want to hear the truth.

You're sure it's February?"

She smiled one of those smiles that really irritates me and simply shook her head in the affirmative. I know I am an easy turkey to pluck, but this was actually serious. With the rather stunned tone to my voice I ask, "Whatever happened to January?"

It was then the laughter started. I must say it has not subsided appreciably since. She has a way of rubbing things in when I am wrong. If the tables were turned, and they never are, I would not take advantage of such a situation.

I swallowed my pride, which I have had a lot of practice doing, and began to realize I had been working on a false premise. It was actually February, time had gone by so quick and I was so busy I did not realize how fast it was going.

In Ecclesiastes 3:1, the man of God says, "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven." If you are too busy to know what time it is, you are too busy.

STUART Tolchin.....On LIFE

I NEVER TALK TO THOSE PEOPLE

moment interminable Republican Presidential

Debates was the CNN sponsored event during which a question was addressed to Candidate Ron Paul. Paul is known to oppose all Federal-Assistance programs and was asked to respond to a hypothetical question in which a previously healthy person decides to save money and not purchase health-insurance. Now the person has some medical condition and has not the money to pay for medical treatment. Before Congressman Paul can even respond to the question, the audience which is composed entirely of Republican activists, yells out "Let him Die." The audience reaction is frightening and to me seems completely bewildering.

Over the phone this morning

I described the incident to a friend as part of telling her about a remarkable interview program that had been presented on Super-Bowl Sunday. The friend interrupted to say, "I know. I never talk to those people. I just can't stand them." I tried to tell her that this was the very point that the interview was trying to make, and that it was very important that we be able to talk to one another. My friend said she didn't care—she just hated people like that and wasn't going to waste her time talking to heartless idiots.

This conversation went absolutely nowhere, so now I am going to try and reach you. The interview program, Moyers and Company, was broadcast on the PBS station, channel 50, and is undoubtedly going to be The interviewer rebroadcast. was Bill Moyers, that incredibly sincere, White Protestant from the age of Lyndon Johnson. interviewee was some named Jonathan Haidt the subject-matter was Dysfunction, Rage. Throughout the interview Mr. Haidt maintained the position that both Liberals and Conservatives were subject to the same kind of blindness. Both sides had demonized the other to the extent that there could be no conversation. It has become impossible for compromises to be formed, as each side now views their position as so sacred that to work with the other side is to join hands with the Devil.

At first I did not find the for those in need. their foresight in being born own perspective.

For me as Americans or Caucasians most or males or heterosexuals or unforgettable whatever privileged position fortune has given them. Still as I listened to the program I began to expand my perspective. Mr. Haidt referred to the fable of the ant and the grasshopper. For you non-Aesop-fable fans, this ancient story describes the lives of two insects. During the plentiful summer months the ant conserves his food and saves for the winter, while the grasshopper happily eats everything available and has a great old time. Eventually winter comes and the starving grasshopper goes to the ant begging for food. Does the ant have the moral responsibility to share his food with the formerly carefree grasshopper? Of course Mr. Moyers, good and responsible liberal that he is, maintained that the ant had the responsibility to share his store of food with the starving grasshopper. Certainly I agreed with this position. Isn't that what society is all about—doing what is best for the common good? Mr. Haidt took a different position and carefully explained that for many, self-reliance is the basis of society. People must be encouraged to take care of themselves and there must be consequences if they do not. He spoke of the meaning of the term karma, and talked about the belief that people earn the life that they have created for themselves. Many religions teach that the concept of karma even extends from one life to another. He talked about how concepts of loyalty and the acceptance of authority are fundamental to the efficient maintenance of a culture. Next he moved to a discussion of hypocrisy. He explained that we are all hypocrites expressing positions that we secretly do not follow ourselves. In this age of seemingly universally revealed lying politicians, things began to make sense to me. I still find disgusting the conservative's fear of income redistribution or gun control or personal freedom, but I am beginning to understand something new. Human beings need help. We all want to be respected by others and strive to be worthy of that respect, even to the extent that we hide from ourselves. Yes, I know it doesn't make much sense but, as Mr. Haidt explains it, that is the human condition. What others think of us is often more important that what we think of ourselves. The most important thing, he says, is acceptance by our own tribal group.

I disagree with this viewpoint program very interesting. I but I'm thinking about it. Why have never understood the position of Conservatives who value self-reliance above caring self-acceptance? I'm still learning Similarly about myself and I have never understood the moral position of those who congratulate themselves for helpful in the expansion of your

Rattlesnake Aversion TRAINING for Dogs Call Today (626) 357-2335

THE BEST TIME to think about rattlesnakes is before you see them!

Rattlesnake season begins in March so it's the perfect time to get your dog trained. The training is a humane way of teaching dogs to recognize the sight and smell of the deadly snake and recognize them as dangerous. They are taught to fear them and stay well out of their strike zone.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF KIMBERLY NOELLE BIRD Case No. GP016465

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of KIM-BERLY NOELLE BIRD

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Darrell D. Drake in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Darrell D. Drake be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on March 2, 2012 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. A located at 300 E. Walnut St., Pasadena, CA 91101.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

PROFESSIONAL ASSISTANCE FOR UNEMPLOYED PROFESSIONALS

The days when looking for a job entailed a Sunday newspaper, index cards to take notes and a telephone are long gone. That has become crystal clear to thousands of well-educated and accomplished baby boomers who have lost their jobs as a result of company downsizings and closures in recent years. Most of them are confronted with two challenges: 1) Realizing their "old school" job search skills have become virtually obsolete as a result of internet social media tools like LinkedIn and 2) Finding employment that offers the level of compensation to which they've grown accustomed.

Apparently, no category of professionals has been exempted from this reality, including human resources professionals who establish the standards and manage the processes and systems for personnel recruitment, hiring, training, and employer/employee relations. Two human resources (HR) experts, Dana Mayhew and Paola Alvarez are leading the charge to help job seekers update their job search skills and to make the connections needed to get back to work.

Mayhew and Alvarez are Co-chairs of the Human Resources Transition Committee (HRTC) for District 3 of the Professionals in Human Resources Association (PIHRA). Southern California has the largest number of PIHRA members. This organization is comprised of HR directors, corporate recruiters and other HR personnel from major companies, government offices and various businesses. The local chapter is referred to as "PIHRA D3" (Pasadena/San Gabriel Valley), which basically includes everything in the 626 area code.

They encourage professional development and HR certification. A monthly PIHRA District 3 Breakfast typically attracts about corporate executives and business leaders.

In January 2011 Mayhew and Alvarez led the charge to launch the HRTC. This group is focused on getting members up to speed with strategic networking and updated skills for job search via the internet. It is paying off for members who find themselves without jobs after seven to fifteen years in what had been a solid account. It is had been a solid career. More are getting interviews and most importantly, more fulltime, part-time and contract jobs.

Both Mayhew and Alvarez are among the success stories of those fortunate to return to full-time employment.

"We also educate people about the span of opportunities in HR," said Mayhew, "Ît's not just about hiring and firing; there's expertise needed in benefits, payroll, HR information systems and more." When questioned about why they felt it necessary to start the HRTC, they spoke about the extra support, resources and encouragement that was needed to help people get through the shock, and in many instances, the shame and embarrassment of not being able to find another job in their profession.

Alvarez stated, "I understood exactly what people were going through since I had also been laid off and was finding it challenging to land a job after working as an HR professional for almost 20 years." In an impressive show of corporate support, several companies have stepped up to demonstrate their commitment to helping community. Bolton & Company is the primary sponsor for PIHRA

District 3, providing meeting space for meetings and networking events at their Foothill Blvd. location in Pasadena. Aerotek, a staffing agency, provides funding to support HRTC's quarterly networking mixers. Their support has made it possible to extend an invitation to non-PIHRA members who have had the opportunity to meet and hear business mavericks like Bob Kurilko, CEO of PriceDoc.

FROM EMPTY HOUSE TO SHOWCASE HOUSE 2012 Showcase House of Design -The Robbins House in La Cañada Flintridge

Canada Flintridge for three months of frenzied transformation into one of the area's most beloved The Robbins House has over twenty design home tour opportunities. In fact, last year's home or contractor firms coordinating different tour drew 35,000 visitors in 25 days.

Designed by John Winford Byers for Mr. and Mrs. Hunter S. Robbins nearly nine decades ago, the estate includes 6429 square foot main house with eight bedrooms and baths, an 1100 square foot guest cottage, a writer's retreat and greenhouse. The Spanish Colonial Revival villa incorporates elements from not only Spain, but Mexico, Italy and North Africa.

Byers, an engineer by education, was a self taught architect. He attracted much attention with his designs during his era, and designed projects or homes for celebrities and business leaders including Buster Crabbe, Shirley Temple and J. Paul Getty.

Mario Saverino's firm MK and Company Interior Design and Decoration, a design participant for over a decade, has been chosen to oversee the interior progress of the transformation, as an advisor this year. The Pasadena Showcase House organization's interior and exterior chairs and their teams select advisors to help them ensure that things go smoothly, according to Saverino.

The project goes through several steps well before construction starts, according to Saverino. When a homeowner or charity agrees to offer their property for the year's showcase house, they commit to be out of the property for six months. In exchange, usually at little or no cost to them, the property gets new finishes inside and out, extensive interior remodels in areas like the kitchen and baths, landscape and hardscape followed by a more formal review refining a cohesive overall design thread. Sometimes, the homeowner will elect to use an upgraded material, like hardwood floors over carpet, and those incremental costs will get negotiated.

Unusual things always happen, according to Saverino, and this home is no different. Every remodel is a guess and an estimate until you saw into a wall, or pull up the entire carpet. For instance, this year, the current family room used to be a garage. In working in the rooms above the old garage, they expected to see hardwood under the carpet, as a sample closet area with hardwood floors led them to believe.

The gracious owners of costs, those stickers required on the trucks." the 1927 built, Spanish Construction permits are another matter, Colonial Revival estate however, and are always a significant cost of scheduled to be the the process. "It's going to cost you $12 for a 2012 Showcase House of Design (PSHA) cost is absorbed by the designer or general have turned over the Robbins House in La contractor."

> interior areas this year. Designer Paul Devine of Interior Devine, a repeat "performer" year after year in this showcase "stage play", is taking on a portion of the project again. This year, his firm will redesign the sleeping porch, a staircase and an upper hallway.

> "We took the theme from the design painted on the three Murphy Beds built into the wall. They were painted with three ships, which we assume are the Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria,' said Devine.

> "There are areas in the molding, where I want to have my decorative artist, Ken Moffat, do scroll painting around the ships, to add more detail. In the heavy wooded ceiling, I want him to add painted scrollwork; to add 'lipstick' but not overdo it."

"Our business, which is geared to both the decorator and art connoisseur as well as beginner aficionados, includes one of the largest collection of antique prints on the west coast" he continued, "as well as an impressive collection of vintage paintings. The gallery carries frame moldings from around the world, but we also make our own frame moldings," he pointed out, allowing them to fully customize the look for the area, as well as add appropriate artwork throughout the

"The theme for my space is all nautical, from mermaids and sea monsters to navigational charts", he chuckled. We are loading these walls down with artwork, clustered and layered like a woman's charm bracelet. The homeowner, There is an informal presentation by designers, of course, gets first right of refusal, but there will be plenty for sale."

> Devine has completed the minimal demolition in their area, removing old carpet, repairing and sanding the wood floors and preparing for the staining process. "Because the time is so compressed, as soon as one workman is finished, it's next, next! They literally step on top of each other to get it all done on time" he reflected.

> Meanwhile, that same compressed timeline is repeated twenty times over with the other designers, all working in the same home, on the same deadline.

Saverino reflected about the twofold objective of "Some communities, like La Cañada Flintridge the event. "Our goals are to allow the designers may help us out by forgiving the work permit showcase their best work," he said, "and for PSHA to generate money for their organization." So both sides work together.

In some years, two charities work together for the bringing arts and music enrichment programs month long event, such as with the Bodie House at Descanso Gardens and last year's Red Cross Headquarters in Pasadena, the Craven Estate.

According to Saverino, designers and contractors often get hired based on personality. "When potential clients get to meet the Showcase house participants in person," he said, "then see their work right in front of them, and get to hear them explain their process, it's a win-win.'

"It's a great process, concluded Saverino. "They (PSHA) know what they're doing, and it's always a very successful show. The public responds very favorably. It really helps with their music programs and it really helps the designers to have their work seen.

THE GOOD LIFE

YOUR HEALTH MATTERS

Today's Subject: Another Teachable Moment

Dr. John Talevich, D.C. has practiced in Sierra Madre for thirty years. His clinic, LifeWorks! Chiropractic, offers patient-specific approaches to the alleviation of pain and individually tailored wellness programs.

On January 26th, the California house bill SB 352 passed by a margin of 34 to 1. This bill seeks to prohibit chiropractors from treating allergies. In California, testing allergies is defined as practicing medicine. Seems fair ~ any clear-minded individual can appreciate the special training that goes with the use of pharmaceuticals. The oversight of complex drug interactions and dangers of possible severe reactions requires an extraordinary degree of adeptness and vigilance. Chiropractors are simply not trained in these matters.

The whole idea of this bill conjures up the image of the wild-eyed, unresponsible, crazy, renegade practitioner, out there practicing on those near and dear to us. Let's move on, clear this up once and for all.

The essence of chiropractic, the founding principle, is that we seek to remove interference within the nervous system. This is usually done by hand or with an instrument along the spine. Additionally, California state law provides us with the privilege of using "all necessary mechanical, hygienic, and sanitary measures incident to the care of the body, but not limited to, air, cold, diet, exercise, heat, light, massage, ultra-sound, physical therapy techniques in the course of chiropractic care."

Bottom line? The treatment of allergies using pharmaceuticals is most certainly the domain of medicine. Within it, doctors are prepared to subscribe medications and respond to the complex reactions that can occur with this approach. However, there is no reason why chiropractors cannot approach the same issues using their modalities. This attempt to deny the public clear access to nonmedical, non-drug systems of healing is monopolistic and contrary to the very spirit of freedom of

HOW TO HELP ELDERLY DRIVERS LIMIT OR STOP DRIVING

Dear Savvy Senior:

I'm worried about my father's driving. At age 84, his driving skills have diminished significantly, but I know he's bound and determined to keep going as long as he's alive. What tips can you recommend that can help me help my dad stop driving? Nervous Daughter

Dear Nervous,:For many families, telling an elderly parent it's time to give up the car keys is a very sensitive and difficult topic. While there's no one simple way to handle this issue, here are a number of tips and resources you can try to help ease your dad away from driving.

To get a clear picture of your dad's driving abilities, the first thing you need to do is take a ride fore they will listen to their own family. with him watching for problem areas. For example. Does he drive too slow or too fast? Does difficulty seeing, backing up or changing lanes? Does he react slowly? Does he get distracted fender benders or tickets lately, or have you noticed any dents or scrapes on his vehicle? These, too, are red flags.

Start Talking

After your assessment, you need to have a talk with your dad about your concerns, but don't sound alarmed. If you begin with a dramatic outburst like "Dad, you're going to kill someone!" you're likely to trigger resistance. Start by gently expressing that you're worried about his safety.

For tips on how to talk to your dad about this touchy topic, the Hartford Financial Services Group and MIT AgeLab offers some guides titled "Family Conversations with Older Drivers" and "Family Conversations about Alzheimer's Disease, Dementia & Driving" that can help, along with a online seminar called "We Need to Talk" that was produced by AARP. To access these free resources, visit safedrivingforalifetime.com.

is the case, consider signing him up for an older driver refresher course through AARP (aarp.org/ drive, 888-227-7669), your local AAA or a driving school.

By becoming aware of his driving limitations, your dad may be able to make some simple adustments – like driving only in daylight or on familiar routes - that can help keep him safe and driving longer. Or, he may decide to hang up the keys on his own.

Refuses To Quit

If, however, you believe your dad has reached the point that he can no longer drive safely, but he refuses to quit, you have several options. One possible solution is to suggest a visit to his doctor who can give him a medical evaluation, and if warranted, "prescribe" that he stops driving. Older people will often listen to their doctor be-

If that doesn't do it, ask him to get a comprehenhe tailgate or drift between lanes? Does he have sive driving evaluation done by a driver rehabilitation specialist - this can cost several hundred dollars. A driving evaluation will test your dad's or confused easily? Also, has your dad had any cognition, vision and motor skills, as well as his on-road driving abilities. To locate a specialist in your area, contact the Association of Driver Rehabilitation Specialists (driver-ed.org, 866-672-9466) or the American Occupational Therapy Association (aota.org/older-driver).

> If he still refuses to move to the passenger seat, call your local Department of Motor Vehicles to see if they can help. Or, call in an attorney to discuss with your dad the potential financial and legal consequences of a crash or injury. If all else fails, you may just have to take away his keys.

Arrange Transportation

Once your dad stops driving he's going to need other ways to get around, so help him create a list of names and phone numbers of family, friends and local transportation services that he can call on. To locate community transportation services call the Area Agency on Aging. Call 800-677-1116 for contact information.

Like many elderly seniors, your dad may not even realize his driving skills have slipped. If this Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior.org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior"

A VALENTINE TIP FROM SOCIAL SECURITY

Valentine's Day is just around the corner, making this a popular time of year for proclamations of love. Such displays of affection can be as simple and sweet as a heart with a "be mine" message, or as life altering as a vow before the altar.

If you happen to be a newlywed who is head over heels in love, you may not be focused on things such as taxes or Social Security, but you should be. If you plan to exchange your maiden name for a married name — including hyphenated names such as Smith-Jones — be sure you let us know.

Telling us about your name change shortly after your marriage will help us accurately keep track of your earnings and will ensure that you and your family get the Social Security retirement, disability, and survivors coverage you're entitled to. Also, if the Internal Revenue Service and Social Security records do not show the same name and Social Security number, your Federal income tax refund

If you continue to use your maiden name consistently throughout your working years, you do not need to contact us. However, if you decide to change your name at a later time, you should let us know so that we can update your Social Security record and send you a Social Security card with your new name.

There's no need to pay someone else to mail in the information for you. Changing your name with Social Security is a quick, easy, and free service. Just go online to www.socialsecurity.gov/ssnumber, learn what documents you need, and click on "Fill Out and Print an application (Form SS-5)." You also can call us at 1-800-772-1213 to obtain the form. We will need the completed application along with a marriage certificate or divorce decree verifying your old and new names. If you were born outside the United States, you also need proof of your U.S. citizenship or proof that you are lawfully living in the U.S. You can bring or mail these documents to us.

You may be focused on the one you love, and we don't blame you. But if you like us (we hope you do) please click on the Facebook icon at our homepage and "like" us on Facebook. Also, you can follow us on Twitter too. Look for our Facebook and Twitter icons at www.socialsecurity.gov. We share information daily that can help you and all your Valentines. SPACECRAFT RETURNS FIRST VIDEO FROM ) with Bob Eklund MOON'S FAR SIDE

A camera aboard one of NASA's twin Gravity Recovery And Interior Laboratory (GRAIL) lunar spacecraft has returned its first unique view of the far side of the Moon. MoonKAM, or Moon Knowledge Acquired by Middle school students, will be used by students nationwide to select lunar images for study.

GRAIL consists of two identical spacecraft, Emily Dickinson Elementary recently named Ebb and Flow, each of which is equipped with a MoonKAM. The images were taken as part of a test of Ebb's MoonKAM on Jan. 19. The GRAIL project plans to test the MoonKAM aboard Flow at a later date.

View the 30-second video clip: http://go.nasa. gov/zZXAPs

In the video, the north pole of the Moon is visible at the top of the screen as the spacecraft flies toward the lunar south pole. One of the first prominent geological features seen on the lower third of the Moon is the Mare Orientale, a 560-mile-wide impact basin that straddles both the Moon's near and far sides.

the lunar south pole. To the left of center, near team at Sally Ride Science, the bottom of the screen, is the 93-mile-wide Drygalski crater with a distinctive star-shaped formation in the middle. The formation is a central peak, created billions of years ago by a comet or asteroid impact.

"The quality of the video is excellent and should energize our MoonKAM students as they prepare to explore the Moon," said Maria Zuber, GRAIL principal investigator from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in lunar orbit last New Year's Eve and New Year's Day. Previously named GRAIL-A and GRAIL-B, the washingmachine-sized spacecraft received their new names from fourth graders at the School in Bozeman, Montana, following a nationwide naming contest by students.

Thousands of fourth- to eighth-grade students will select target areas on the lunar surface and send requests to the GRAIL MoonKAM Mission Operations Center in San Diego. Photos of the target areas will be sent back by the satellites for students to study. The MoonKAM program is led by Sally Ride, America's The clip ends with rugged terrain just short of first woman in space. Her as well as undergraduate students at the University of California, San Diego, will engage middle schools across the country in the GRAIL mission and lunar exploration. GRAIL is NASA's first planetary mission carrying instruments fully dedicated to education and public outreach.

We have had great response from schools around the country—more than 2,500 signed up to participate so far," Ride said. "In mid-The twin spacecraft successfully achieved March, the first pictures of the Moon will be taken by students using MoonKAM. I expect this will excite many students about possible careers in science and engineering."

Launched in September 2011, Ebb and Flow are periodically performing trajectory correction maneuvers that, over time, will lower their orbits to near-circular ones with an altitude of about 34 miles above the lunar surface. During their science mission, the twin spacecraft will answer long-standing questions about the Moon, and will give scientists a better understanding of how the Earth and other rocky planets in the solar system formed.

Earlier this month news outlets and computing security sources reported a major security breach at Symantec Corporation and the theft of valuable source code that has left millions of its users possibly vulnerable to the internet and network security threats that the software claims to provide protection against. Source Code is the basis for modern computer programs and as such is protected under Intellectual Property legislation in this country and around the world.

A computer programs' source code is what makes it unique among other similar programs in the marketplace and contains proprietary secrets as to how a program works. Often the source code is replicated through multiple versions of a software program and among different products from the same software manufacturer.

If you get your hands on the source code and know what you're doing, you have an effective tool neutralizing security softwares' effectiveness. In the world of computer security the name Symantec consumer and business customer base numbering in the millions.

As the nature of personal and business computing has changed over the years, Symantec has adapted their products to match industry needs and earned a degree of trust that many modern business would do well to match. Earlier this month that trust was put to the test as the company was forced to admit that they themselves had been the victims of a security breach which resulted in the theft of the source code for several of their best-selling computer security and remote access products

News of this breach hit particularly close to home for your humble columnist as I have installed several of the affected products for various home and business users, including the company that I currently work for now.

Symantec's public response didn't do much to allay my fears about the depth and breadth of the possible damage done by the security breach. Symantec began its PR response to the rumors by for use in developing software and techniques for denying that anything of real concern had taken place at all and ended up by participating in a police sting to catch the perpetrators and shelving is as big as they come. They've been around since one of its flagship products - all over the course of the early 80's and they have long enjoyed a large two weeks. WHO'S AFRAID OF BIG BAD WOLF?

In August, 2011 a tragic turn of events took place on Washington D.C.'s capital hill, resulting in the maniacal massacre of countless Northern Gray Wolves residing in the wilderness across three states. Through an underhanded, un-scientific, politically manipulated bit of legislature that is sure to render the Gray Wolf population sparse at best, and cause an unpredictable ripple of wild animal population imbalance, our nation's loving leaders ordered the aerial killing of thousands of gray wolves at the tax payer's expense. Three questions came to my mind when I heard the news of this gruesomely grim development. The first was "Why?", followed immediately by "How?.. on earth could such an irrational injustice be imposed on an indigenous animal that has survived so many human attacks in the past, and has been tenacious enough to repopulate and continue to do their part in keeping some semblance of balance in the natural food chain on our continent?" The third and most blatantly obvious question came to me with a sense of vengeance; "Who are the idiots behind this hair-brained idea?" Or, to put it more politically-friendly terms, "Who is afraid of the big bad wolf?"

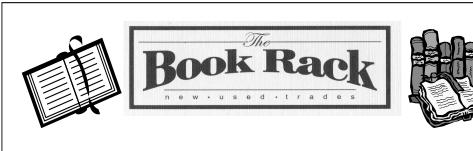

Apparently there are 2 interest groups who harbor a virtual vendetta against the American Gray Wolf, a top-pier predator with an environmentally important mission. Mainly to blame are the livestock & agriculture lobbyists who have managed to convince our nation's most powerful legislators that wolves have posed a threat to their livestock, causing irretrievable profit losses. The other groping, grappling group of would-be wolf haters are gun-packing hunting enthusiasts who approached the issue from another asinine angle, purporting a significant lack of "game" during open hunting season due to the wolf's natural need to prey in order to survive. I say to both of these special interest groups, the arguments you've made are nothing but pure poppy-cock!

First of all, the wolf is only accredited for 1% of lost livestock over the past several years, which can hardly equate to a major profit loss or a significant reduction in our nation's marketable meat supply. Let's face it, considering the mass over production of food in our country, where one could just as easily dine by diving in a garbage bin behind a grocery store at closing time, versus shopping inside, 1% is a drop in the bucket, and certainly no excuse for the mass murder of a beautiful beast we nearly caused to be extinct just a couple of decades ago. Secondly, to the hunters I wish to say, anyone who considers the act of killing a "game" might not even deserve the right to vote, much less lobby on the hill! I know, that's a narrow-minded opinion, but I'm just saying, think about! You're telling me that because there aren't enough elk to kill, to satisfy your blood thirsty need for "game", we have decided to start killing the wolf as well? Something about that logic just does not add up in my mind. But, that's just me.

I view this new legislation as yet another example of the human's narrow-minded negligence to think globally and responsibly on behalf of the whole. Somewhere along the line, we Americans lost our way. The fact that our country's leaders have declared what I call "open season" on the American Gray Wolf just to satisfy the needs and greed of folks who have learned to pull the right strings on 'the hill', sets a precarious precedent for annihilating any ole species that might get in the way, which brings to mind yet another final question; When will the killing end? How far along the food chain must we go before we realize the damage we have done?

If you have similar sentiments to mine, regarding this legislation, please take the time to log on to The Animal Rescue Site at: www. theanimalrescuesite.com and sign the petition asking President Obama to stop the aerial killing of American Grey Wolves in Idaho. Although this initiative impacts only one of the states effected, at least it is a start. If you get on board and do what you can to help save the American Grey Wolf from being shot down in cold blood by gun-runners in the sky, you will also be playing a part in helping maintain a healthy balance among wildlife populations on our continent. Sometimes a little loss (1% in this case) is worth it, to allow some time for nature to heal from previous wounds caused by the human's need to intercede and satisfy their you'd wonder why children and pets have to be lumped together into the shortest parents' ongoing concern for their children's hygiene, and not the lowering of children to pet status or the elevation of pets to human status.

Perhaps another reason pet dental care is highlighted above that of children's is because, if you can achieve brushing your cat or dog's teeth without losing a digit, your toddler's little tooth buds will be a piece of cake! One video I watched explained the methodical steps necessary for getting Fido from tolerating the smell of canine toothpaste, to loving enthusiasm of having your hand stuffed

All said, if you master the art of brushing your pet's teeth, you're bound to at least feel confident attempting to brush your children's. Of course, one must consider some of the main differences between the two groups. Unlike your dog or cat, your kid doesn't have fangs or claws. (If they do, they might be one of the X-Men, switched at birth with your biological child.) It's safe for your pet to ingest toothpaste about the Lakers this week, even though I had mentioned in last week's column that I would. Here's why. Since leaving coaching, I have enjoyed watching many of my former staff and players as they continued on in football or moved into business and service professions. One of those young men is my former quarterback at UNLV, Randall Cunningham, who went on to a highly successful 16-year NFL

In Indianapolis the day before the Super Bowl, Randall was presented with the NFL Alumni Association's Lifetime Achievement Award for community service. Randall told the Las Vegas Review Journal he was surprised by the award because he never talks about his charity work. "Everything I do is behind the scenes," he said.

Randall, who turns 49 on March 27, is a strong Christian, and quiet about his accomplishments. When he was with the Philadelphia Eagles, he financially backed the construction of a 15,000-square-foot youth facility for a church in Camden, N.J., that included a basketball gym and classrooms.

He is currently the pastor at the very wellattended Las Vegas-based Remnant Ministries. In fact, he plans to move his church from its current 17,500 square-foot building to an 80,000 square-foot facility within six months. That building will include a basketball gym, athletic and workout facilities, three sanctuaries, a wedding chapel and a full kitchen.

He is also a youth coach of football and track owns school career passing records. and field for his son and for Bishop Gorman High School. His son Randall II is also a quarterback. And, while only a freshman, won the state high jump title with a leap of 6-foot-8. Athletically, he seems to be following in his finished and he wasn't drafted. He said,

I'm not writing father's footsteps. Randall thinks he's even better, but we'll see.

> Randall was a delight to coach and usually a lot of fun. However, I vividly recall his junior year when he came into my office, sat down and said, "I'm coming out early."

> Of course I turned pale but calmly said, "Randall, you have to do what you have to do." He had just lost both of his parents, and this was an important decision for him.

> The truth is I was devastated. I didn't sleep a wink that night. The next day he returned to my office looking sad and said, "Coach, I need to talk to you again." He walks over to me and says, "Hey, I'm not leaving. I was just kidding," and gave me a big hug. He's lucky he survived that incident. I could have killed him.

I was the coach of the West all-stars in the 1984 Japan Bowl and Randall was our starting quarterback. Doug Flutie of Boston College who had just won the Heisman Trophy was the East allstars' starting quarterback. During the game, Randall threw an interception and then ran across the entire field to make the tackle. As he came to the bench, I grabbed him and said, "You realize how many pro scouts are here? That's the worst thing you could have done." He said, "Sorry coach, I thought the receiver was open." I said, "I'm not talking about the interception. I'm talking about you running that guy down. Now they're going to want to make you a safety."

Randall's football achievements at UNLV are unmatched. He still He threw for 8,020 yards and 59 touchdowns from 1982 to 1984. On draft day on April of 1985, Randall waited in my office. The first round

"Coach, they don't want me." I said, "They sure should." He took off and went shopping or something.

After he left, Lynn Stiles, an assistant coach for the Eagles, called and said, "Coach, now tell me. We'll draft him based on your comments." I said, "If you don't take him, he'll beat you." His answer was, "I'll get fired if he doesn't make it." I said, "You're going to get a pay raise."

They made a wise decision. While with the Eagles, Randall was the NFL's MVP in 1990 after passing for 3,466 yards and 30 touchdowns. In 1998, he led the Minnesota Vikings to a 15-1 regular-season record and helped them advance to the NFC championship game.

The honor bestowed on Randall Cunningham by the NFL Alumni Association was well deserved, and shows that good things can happen to good people.
