PINNEY HOUSE APPROVED

May Join the Jailhouse Inn as a Sierra Madre Bed and Breakfast Inn

Soon, Sierra Madre may have two Bed and Breakfast Inns and they will both have something in common. Both are unique new uses of historical facilities. The Jailhouse Inn, located at 55 W. Sierra Madre Blvd., was once the City Jail! (www.

jailhouseinn.net/). The Pinney House (www.pinneyhouse.com) was formerly Hotel Sierra Madre. Greg and Judy Asbury, owners of the Pinney House, appeared before the Sierra Madre Planning Commission this week and were granted the right to use the house as a Bed and Breakfast Inn. The property was originally built as a 30 room hotel over 125 years ago by Dr. Elbert Pinney. Designed by the well known Victorian architects, Samuel and Joseph Cather Newsom in elegant Queen Anne style, the Pinney House is one of the last remaining examples of the carriage trade hotels, serving those coming from the East to buy land during the land boom of Los Angeles in 1885-1888.

The Asbury's, who acquired the property in 2003, spent the next eight years restoring the house with the hopes that the city would allow it to be used as a Bed and Breakfast Inn. During the restoration, they dedicated their resources to keeping as close to the spirit of a Victorian hotel as possible. Today, the 10,000 sq ft "house" has six large Victorian bedroom and bath suites, a garden suite, a conservatory, a library, a parlor, a sitting room, a, sitting room/office, a formal dining room, farmhouse kitchen and a loft-like attic penthouse. Once the project was completed, they applied to the commission for permission.

The Planning Commission's decision to grant a Conditional Use Permit was done after extension review of the potential impact of a Bed and Breakfast on the community. Parking, noise and capacity were among the issues addressed. Several changes were requested which included the addition of two parking spaces in the rear, a limit to only six luxury suites and no more than six outside events on the premises per year. Given that the overall ambience of a Bed and Breakfast Inn is tranquil, it is anticipated that the new use of the Pinney House will blend homogenously with the surrounding community, and the commission granted the use permit. The commission did require, however, that the owners appear before the commission in a year for another review.

Currently, the house is being offered for sale at $2,795,000. The house has a total of 10 bedrooms, 11 baths, 10,000 square feet of living space and sits on .47 acres at 225 N. Lima. It is hoped that if sold, the new owners will operate the house as

GUILTY VERDICT DELIVERED IN DEATH OF FORMER AREA RESIDENT by S. Henderson

The man accused of causing the death of former Arcadia resident Joan Milazzo in August last year, was found guilty in a San Diego Court earlier this week. Lawrence Joseph Farry, 25, was convicted of Gross Vehicular Manslaughter and will be sentenced in early Farry, who remained at the scene of the accident, pleaded not guilty and admitted that he was speeding at approximately 56 mph. According to the evidence intro-duced at trial, Farry was actually traveling at 87 mph.

Milazzo was struck and killed in the Del Sur area of North County San Diego. Milazzo, her husband and sister were hiking in an area near their development.

According to a Press Release from the San Diego County Medical Examiner's office, "They were crossing Camino Del Sur Road when a vehicle traveling on the southbound lane at a high rate of speed lost control and skidded into the decedent as she stepped onto the curb. The decedent was struck and fell to the ground. Bystanders called 911 and assisted with CPR. Medics transported the decedent to Scripps La Jolla Hospital with blunt force trauma and she was pronounced dead when resuscitative efforts were to no avail.

Milazzo and her husband had just moved there to join family only a few months prior from Arcadia.

Milazzo grew up in the San Gabriel Valley, and graduated from Alverno High School in Sierra Madre. She was previously a member of St. Rita Catholic Parish

Saturday, May 26 marks the 104th anniversary of the running of the historic Mt. Wilson Trail Race, a grueling 8.6-mile test up to Orchard Camp and back to Kersting Court. Emerson Gray, a student of Sierra Madre Middle School, will sing the national anthem Emerson Gray, a student of Sierra Madre Middle School, will sing the national anthem before the race. Race time is 7:30A.

That the race sold out in under eight hours this year is evidence of the event's popularity over recent years. Runners and hikers come far and wide to run the Mt. Wilson Trail Race, which is one of Trail Runner Magazine's Trophy Series events. But the roster includes a high percentage of Sierra Madre residents as well.

The Mt. Wilson Trail Race Committee wants the race and its related activities to be a celebration of the trail, encouraging friends and family to gather in Kersting Court to see the runners off and welcome them back to town after their 2,100 foot ascent to the halfway point on Mt. Wilson.

The public is invited to the pasta dinner held from 5:30P to 7:30P in Kersting Court the night before the race. On race day, there will be a kids' art show, music, all kinds of booths, a 1-mile kids' race that goes up Baldwin Avenue and back and a beer and wine garden. Proceeds from the pasta dinner and the beer garden go to Sierra Madre Search & Rescue, which will be looking after the runners' safety while they are on the mountain. All kids running the Kids' Race will receive a T-shirt featuring the artwork by Sierra Madre Elementary school student Isaiah Raya.

REMEMBRANCE

FREDERICK ALFARO 1947-2012

Frederick ("Fred") Alfaro was a Sierra Madre resident since the early 1970's, with a hair-cutting business in town where he served numerous clients and had a major positive influence on all whom he came in contact with.

He is survived not only by his human relatives, cousins Grace and Gus Paredes, Lucy Townsend and several other family members who still live in his original homeland of Peru, but he is also survived by his precious dog "Molly" whom he loved dearly and cared for beyond expectation.

A memorial service will held in his honor at Saint Rita's Church next week, at a date and time to be determined. May he rest in peace, in the arms of the angels.

"SAVE OUR STORIES" LOCAL HISTORY PROJECT LAUNCHED WITH CIVIC CLUB GRANT

The Sierra Madre Historical Archives is pleased to announce that it has received a $400 grant from the Sierra Madre Civic Club to launch the Save Our Stories Project. Library Archivist Debbie Henderson, who applied for the grant, explained that the purpose of the project is to preserve and provide public access to selected analog recordings captured as part of the Sierra Madre Oral History Project, which was started by Jayne Kistner in 1988. Jayne and 15 other interviewers recorded the stories of 110 Sierra Madre residents on audio cassette tapes in interviews conducted from 1989-1991 and in 1994 and 1996. One such interview is with Althea Butler, the first President of the Civic Club. Each interview is approximately one hour long.

Duplicate tapes will be sent to the Center for Oral and Public History at Cal State Fullerton for transfer to a digital format. Once the project in complete, Library staff will enhance the sound quality of the interviews using Audacity, an audio rendering software. A link to an MP3 file (digital audio file) will be created in the Library catalog so that interviews may be accessed immediately via the Library website or downloaded to a portable digital device.

The grant will make it possible to preserve many historically valuable archival interviews and to provide the public with easy access to the Library's original oral history collection.

(Author's Note: There was so much that happened during this nearly 4 hour meeting that it has taken me longer than it should have to write anything about this meeting. I still haven't written all I'm going to about the meeting, but I've written enough to give something of an update about what happened For instance, chairperson Kevin Paschall suggested that the City's definition of a dwelling unit could be interpreted that 2 bedroom units can be classified as two dwelling units, a move that would make most of the structures in R-1 zones illegal. And another Commissioner suggested twice that the voters should decide if the project conforms to Measure V, despite the fact that the Commission has been told numerous times that the people can't vote on that issue. Expect to see more from me regarding this meeting).

The Planning Commission continued its public hearing on the proposed Kensington Assisted Living project at its Thursday, May 10th, meeting. McDade Shooting Autopsy Released

An autopsy report released last week showed that 19-yearold Kendrec McDade was shot by police seven times March 24, three of which were fatal. McDade also had marijuana and alcohol in his system at the time of death according to the 18 page report.

The cause of death was listed was multiple gunshot wounds. The medical examiner also listed the death as a homicide. Although Pasadena police were quick to issue a press statement prior to the autopsy report saying there were no gunshot wounds to the back, the autopsy report did say he was shot multiple times in the back of his

Police also said "In addition to the Coroner's Report, the remaining on-going investigations include the U.S. Department of Justice's Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI); the Los Angeles District Attorney's Office and the County's Office of Independent Review Group. The Pasadena Police Department's Internal Affairs and Criminal Divisions are also conducting investigations."

Reports said police officers Mathew Griffin and Jeffrey Newlen shot eight times at McDade, four times each, seven of which hit McDade.

According to Pasadena Detective Van Hecke, Griffin shot McDade at close range fearing he had a weapon in his waistband. He fired through the driver side window of his patrol car at McDade as he ran towards the car. Griffin had "boxed in" McDade with his car in an effort to stop a foot chase Van Hecke said.

As Newlen caught up to the situation he saw muzzle flashes and heard gunshot at the driver's side of the car, fearing his partner's life was danger he also shot at McDade Van Hecke

The shooting was the result of a 9-1-1 call from Pasadena resident Oscar Carrillo, who at the time, claimed he was robbed at gunpoint by two men, one of which was McDade. Carrillo later admitted he lied about seeing a gun police said.

Attorney Caree Harper filed a civil rights lawsuit in March, just days after the shooting, against the police and city on behalf of the McDade family.

The City Looks To New Fees

By Dean Lee

The city council is set Monday night to review and update the city's General Fee Schedule which includes 23 brand new fees including an application change for overnight parking permits, impound fees for illegally parked vehicles and charges for graffiti removal among others.

Monday night's upcoming public hearing was set by the council last week during their regular meeting.

Michelle Logan the City's Management Analyst said graffiti removal of areas up to 100 square feet would now cost $152.92 something the city did not charge for in the past. Areas over 100 square feet, property owners would be charged the total cost of cleanup including labor and supplies.

She there will be a new $42 annual overnight parking application fee which, if approved, would be credited towards the annual parking permit. A new $6 residential daytime parking exemption would allow vehicles to park in time restricted areas, excluding metered areas.

Residents will now also have to pay for guests that park on streets overnight. A new $10 fee will include three residential parking permits and three guest permits plus 10 one day hang tags. Each additional 10 pack of hang tags would be $5 she said. There would also be a new $100

CLAUDIA AND ALAN HELLER: Life on Route 66 Personal Accounts Along the Mother Road to California

Do you love to read? Do you enjoy history especially on a personal level that relates the stories of people who traveled across the Mother Road to California? Along the way, you will find a diversity of towns. Who stopped at these sites, and why did they stay?

Duarte's Dynamic Duo is the Heller's. Claudia does the writing while Alan is the photographer. They share a love of history not just facts but the people who have made history happen. Why was a certain town settled? After much prodding, they have published Life on Route 66: Personal Accounts Along the Mother Road to California.

How did this come about? Claudia wrote a series of articles on Route 66 for the Highlander newspaper. She and Alan had "poked around the Mother Road towns in the Mojave Desert, communities that had blossomed and withered over the years...I had no idea at the time that this project would provide an outlet for readers eager to share personal memories of their experiences on the road."

Their series began with Needles, the route's California - Arizona border town, and a tour of the El Garces Hotel. After the article was published, Claudia was contacted by many readers sharing memories of their experiences along the road. Some Seniors told of their childhood backseat adventures; others relayed family memories passed down. One reader even had a detailed journal from her great uncle recounting his trip in 1927.

In 2010, the Hellers made the decision to travel to Chicago along "America's Highway" in celebration of their sixty-first birthdays and upcoming retirements. They purchased an eighteen-foot trailer and began to prepare for their journey. Going away for two months involved lots of planning! You can pay bills on-line. But what about watering the yard, picking up mail and errant papers, maintaining a pool and Chewy, their seventeen year old blind and deaf dog? But all was arranged and their journey began. They traveled east and, upon their return to California, they continued through Rancho Cucamonga and on to Santa Monica.

There are several guide books about traveling along Route 66. Why is this book unique? The Mother Road has inspired books and shows by the dozens, but this is something new. The authors traveled the road and collected its stories and what the road means to the people who live along it. When the Hellers traveled, they brought books and maps with them. But they took their time. To them the journey was more important than the destination.

Please go on line to www.insidesocal. com/66. This site explains the Hellers' saga and is loaded with photos! It also gives info about purchasing the book. I did today and look forward to reading it!

Sheriff Department Crime Trends

The Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department's Temple Station is responsible for providing law enforcement services to the cities of Bradbury, Duarte, Rosemead, South El Monte and Temple City, as well as the unincorporated county communities of South San Gabriel, El Monte, Monrovia Arcadia Duarte (M.A.D.), East Pasadena, and North San Gabriel. Below you will find a summary of the reported crimes in the month of April for each of the above listed communities.

During this past month, we have experienced an increase in the number of residential burglaries in the majority of our communities. Although many of these burglaries have occurred while residents are not home, several of the burglaries involved male Hispanic adults posing as utility workers, who asked the victims for access into their residences to inspect either water pressures or electrical lines. If contacted by any individual who asks to enter your residence to conduct an inspection, request to see official identification. If you have any doubt as to whether or not the individual is working for a legitimate utility company or agency, please call Temple Station immediately. We also ask that you monitor your neighborhood for suspicious vehicles or persons walking door to door. If you notice something or someone suspicious, again please telephone Temple Station and ask for a patrol unit to respond.

We have also experienced an increase in vehicle thefts, primarily in the city of Rosemead and the unincorporated county areas. Thieves are targeting primarily Hondas, model years 1998 through 2006. Please remember to lock and secure your vehicle, taking all valuables with you. This includes laptop computers and navigational equipment.

Temple Sheriff's Station's partnership with community members is our strongest asset in the fight against crime. Please remain vigilant, and if you see something or someone suspicious, call Temple Station at (626) 285-7171 or in cases of emergency 911. TEMPLE STATION APRIL 2012

by La Quetta M. Shamblee

Chiyomi looked stunning in her beautiful wedding dress as she and Kaz Ogawa said their nuptials in the shadow of the majestic Sierra Nevada mountains on March 26, 1944. Like so many other young Americans who would take part in launching the start of the "baby boom" that followed World War II, the Ogawa's had found love and were ready to settle down. What should have been one of the happiest days of their lives must have been dampened by the barbed wire that surrounded their wedding location. They were married while interned at Manzanar, other images one of 19 "War Relocation captured by Camps" established in the U.S. legendary and Canada to house American citizens of Japanese descent and Japanese immigrants who lived along the Pacific Coast of the

Another internee who was a professional seamstress designed and made the weeding dress for the bride's special day. After the war ended and Japanese Americans worked to reclaim and rebuild their lives, Chiyomi's wedding dress was eventually worn by five other women on their special days. This garment weaved a common thread through the lives of Chickie Hino, Hara Fujihara, Hasie Ogawa, Kay Fujikawa and Nattie Koyama. Just like Chiyomi, all of them made their homes and raised their families in Pasadena.

Chiyomi never imagined that her wedding dress would inspire interest 68 years after she said "I do," nor did she ever would become so intriguing as a largest assembly center for the

WHAT: The Cherry Blossom Festival celebrated its 10-year anniversary in 2011. Produced by a 100% volunteer team and free to the public with 60,000 attendees, the organization celebrates the history and culture of Americans of Japanese descent and the culture of Japan through the beauty of the Cherry Blossoms.

VENUE: Santa Anita has a long prestigious history in the field of horse racing. However, 70 years ago a darker chapter unfolded at the site. Horses were moved out, the track was shut down and the park's extensive grounds provided the massive space needed by the War Department to temporarily house thousands of people of Japanese decent. This venue was the nation's largest assembly center, housing almost 19,000 Japanese Americans before they were relocated to camps. A plaque near the entrance is the sole reminder of the track's place in World War II history as the nation's largest assembly center for Japanese Americans on their way to internment camps

MONROVIA - DUARI

Sierra Madre-Arcadia--Pasadena-

A MEGA MEETING IN MONROVIA

By Joan Schmidt

The Monrovia-Arcadia-Duarte Town Council's May Meeting was nothing short of a MEGA MEETING! What speakers it had and much info given!

The different location at Plymouth School was the brainchild of the Council Member, Terrence Williams. The Town Council has a close alliance with the City of Duarte as a result of Pamela Park meetings and events. Council Members John Niccoloro and Linda Sells of Arcadia attend the monthly Arcadia Chamber of Commerce Government Forum meeting keeping the Council abreast of Arcadia happenings and reports from local officials. But Mr. Williams wanted to involve Monrovia because it is also our neighbor.

Mr. Williams has bemoaned the low attendance at Town Council Meetings. Members Dave Hall and Yvonne Bullock pointed out when there are issues, there is a very high attendance. As a reporter covering three cities, I can reiterate this. However in the unincorporated areas, there is no city hall to call. Residents NEED to come to Town Council Meetings and hear the reports from The Sheriff's, CHP, Parks /Recreation Department, Probation Department, Supervisor Antonovich's Office, L.A. County Libraries and more.

The Mega Meeting began with Deputy Ramirez report on current crimes. Most prevalent are property thefts and vehicular burglaries.

Captain Nee from Temple Sheriff's Station spoke next. He said the only way to fight crime is with the community's help. "Be nosy neighbors. Call up the station (285-7171) to report ANYTHING suspicious. Don't leave valuables in your car in full view such as GPS, lap tops, cell phones, purses, etc."

Monrovia Police Chief Jim Hunt spoke of their terrific working relationship with the Sheriff's Department. For twenty years, the DAMAGE Program (Against gangs) has been going on. It's a mutual aid agreement with LASD. In each car, are one Monrovia gang officer and a gang deputy. "We share intelligence, we are aware of crime trends."

Chief Hunt also reiterated what Captain Nee said about NEIGHBORS BEING ALERT AND CALLING ANYTHING SUSPICIOUS. Please DO NOT OPEN YOUR DOORS to people pretending to be from utility companies. This also happened in the City of Arcadia after the wind storms.

Representing Monrovia Fire Department were Fire Chief Chris Donovan, Battalion Chief Ryan Phillips and Fire Fighter Michael Bailey. Chief Donovan said that their department has thirteen personnel on duty. Their response time for fire is seven minutes and medical is five minutes. He At the recent apartment fire on Encino Avenue in Monrovia, there were four engines and two ladder trucks that responded. Fighting the blaze were twenty seven members of Monrovia, Arcadia, and L.A. County Fire Departments!

Firefighter Michael Bailey spoke about their Emergency Preparedness Program. They do mandated training for City Staff. There is a new program for disabled people. Who looks after them if there's a loss of power? Besides the CERT Program, there are also BERT (Business) and SERT (School District) Programs. (626)256-8181 also spoke of the Mutual Aid Agreement between the various Kevin Perris, Probation Officer in Duarte spoke of his role, City Departments and Los Angeles County Fire Department. working with the Sheriff's and trying to reach youths. There are several After School Programs. One is teaching them how to make their own movies. He also teaches Parenting and a Cooking class at Pamela Park. (626) 357-1619 There was mention of the successful Parks after Dark Program begun last year and the great drop in crimes.

> Also attending were Brian Mejia from Supervisor Antonovich's Office. Don't miss the 15th Annual Veterans Fair, Saturday, May 26th 10AM-3PM at Arcadia County Park, 405 South Santa Anita Avenue, Arcadia.

The final speakers were Vincent Holmes CEO for LA Officer Brian Axt, (626) 338-1164, represented the California County Safety and Live Oak Librarian. The next Council

HIZZAH!

This time next week, I will have graduated high school, La Salle Class of 2012, leaving the lance behind and becoming a member of Syracuse University's Class of 2016.

No more uniforms, Deans patrolling skirt lengths and tucked in shirts, or endless lessons of how to be smart in college.

Freedom...it's so close. Let the good times roll and summer commence!

PASADENA JAZZ FEST, WHERE TO DINE? MIJARES. OF COURSE!!

What do The Chronicle, JJ's Steak House and Wood and Eddy's all have in common? At one time they were all very popular restaurants here in the Pasadena area. For one reason or another, they are all out of business. So how does one freestanding restaurant pass the test of time? And approach the century mark, which is more then the combined years that the aforementioned restaurants were in business. I think I have the answer. On a recent visit I carefully watched Tommy Recendez, part owner and full time employee; tirelessly work the front of the restaurant with an attitude of roll up your sleeves and get dirty. The one major difference is that Tom is wearing a Tommy Bahama Shirt. He is closest thing we have to a game show host as he manages to kiss each lady on the cheek, or shake the hand of each guest as they walk in. It is a Norman Rockwell picture of a family from the fifties, and that is the reason that others have fallen as Mijares has remained a monument and destination for many from Pasadena. When Tom is not around kissing and shaking the hands of the guests, you will find the same type of warm invitation from his sisters R-Lene and Tina. But let's not forget Alice, their Mother, who guarantees that the youngsters are carrying on the tradition of catering to the customers. You may see her roaming the dining hall and making sure the customers are satisfied with their enchiladas or Corky's famous Garbage Burrito.

If you have been to Mijare's you'll sense the classic "Cheers" approach to the feel of the restaurant. You have to walk straight through the bar to get to the dining room. Many times I have given in to temptation and stopped in my tracks and enjoyed one of George's famous and award winning Margarita's... Their motto is "mi casa es su casa!" If I took them up on that offer more often, I would never get any work done, but the risk almost seems worth it.

Recently, I filmed Mijares Sunday Brunch for my TV show, "Dining with Dills," again the friendly service abounded. For ($18.95) you can immerse yourself in pretty much all the menu items. Sparkling wine is also included in the price. The Musicians wander through the restaurant with their powerful ballads that sweep the afternoon away. I see many people having a great time, so, be responsible and please bring a designated driver!!! Items included are different fruits, a salad bar, many desserts; house made tortillas, soups,

THE ART OF INTELLIGENCE: LESSONS FROM A LIFE IN THE CIA'S CLANDESTINE SERVICE by Henry A. Crumpton

A legendary CIA spy and counterterrorism expert tells the spellbinding story of his high risk, action packed career while illustrating the growing importance of America's intelligence officers and their secret missions. For a crucial period, Henry Crumpton led the CIA's global covert operations against America's terrorist enemies, including al Qaeda. In the days after 9/11, the CIA tasked Crumpton to organize and lead the Afghanistan campaign. With Crumpton's strategic initiative and bold leadership, from the battlefield to the Oval Office, U.S. and Afghan allies routed al Qaeda and the Taliban in less than ninety days after the Twin Towers fell. At the height of combat against the Taliban in late 2001, there were fewer than five hundred Americans on the ground in Afghanistan, a dynamic blend of CIA and Special Forces. The campaign changed the way America wages war. This book will change the way America views the CIA. The Art of Intelligence draws from the full arc of Crumpton's espionage and covert action exploits to explain what America's spies do and why their service is more valuable than ever. From his early years in Africa, where he recruited and ran sources, from loathsome criminals to heroic warriors; to his liaison assignment at the FBI, the CIA's Counterterrorism Center, the development of the UAV Predator program, and the Afghanistan war; to his later work running all CIA clandestine operations inside the United States, he employs enthralling storytelling to teach important lessons about national security, but also about duty, honor, and love of country.

BOY'S LIFE by Robert McCammon

In me are the memories of a boy's life, spent in that realm of enchantments. These are the things I want to tell you. Robert McCammon delivers in this award winning masterpiece, a novel of Southern boyhood, growing up in the 1960s, that reaches far beyond that evocative landscape to touch readers universally. Boy's Life is a richly imagined, spellbinding portrait of the magical worldview of the young and of innocence lost. Zephyr, Alabama, is an idyllic hometown for eleven-year-old Cory Mackenson, a place where monsters swim the river deep and friends are forever. Then, one cold spring morning, Cory and his father witness a car plunge into a lake -- and a desperate rescue attempt brings his father face-to-face with a terrible, haunting vision of death. As Cory struggles to understand his father's pain, his eyes are slowly opened to the forces of good and evil that surround him. From an ancient mystic who can hear the dead and bewitch the living, to a violent clan of moonshiners, Cory must confront the secrets that hide in the shadows of his hometown, for his father's sanity and his own life hang in the balance. One of my all time favorites!

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS:

Review By Sean Kayden

BEACH HOUSE

Steady artistic growth and progress is essential in today's music. Without it, you'll remain hanging onto previous laurels and never move forward with your own true artistry. For the likes of dream-pop aficionados, Beach House, they've somehow managed to stay within the margins of their genre of expertise, but further expand their dreamy and hauntingly immaculate resonance. The latest album, "Bloom", comes off the heels of their acclaimed 2010 opus, "Teen Dream", which wowed critics and fans alike. "Bloom" dazzles and hypnotizes with its atmospheric haze that embodies the ten glorious tracks. The innately organic tone Beach House offers is a marvel to become fully immersed with. There is something truly remarkable to the weightlessness each track plays off. That's not to say they don't provide any substance because they do, but attempting to discover this kind of utter beauty anywhere else may as well be a futile personal, "Bloom" takes you on an ethereal journey. Composed of stunning melodies and a deep complexity of arrangements, the album is a passage to an unearthly reality. Occasionally a track proceeded by another track might only offer imperceptible change in style. However, if you listen to each song in consecutive order, the awareness to this will mean nothing because the bits and pieces of "Bloom" translate to something much greater. The concept of assorted feelings is scattered throughout the borders of the record. The lyrics transcend one emotion, but the sound lifts you to an even higher cloud of sentiment. Astonishingly, it's vastly difficult to find a fault with any of the ten songs here. Seemingly flawless from start to finish, "Bloom" is exactly what it's named after—a period of time which sparks the utmost exquisiteness and

To pinpoint exactly which track stands out the most would be pointless because each song here takes you to another world. My favorites though have to be the heaven-like sound of "Lazuli" and the lean guitar riffs spotted in "Wild". In addition, the lyrics of "New Year" may not sparkle on page, but are ignited with such passion and are full of life when sung from the celestial sound of Victoria LeGrand—"You were getting wiser/It's better this way/ Faces in the mirror/Memories again/Now look to a feeling/It's lighter than breath/All you ever wanted/Is it getting away?" The real treat with "Bloom" is the voyage from beginning to end—one I may add, will stay with you far after your return back.

PARTIAL—AND ANNULAR—ECLIPSE OF THE SUN TO SWEEP NORTH AMERICA THIS SUNDAY, MAY 20TH

People with clear skies across most of North America will experience a partial eclipse of the Sun late this Sunday afternoon (May 20, 2012). Only those near the Eastern Seaboard will miss out on this awesome cosmic event.

If you happen to be in a swath of land running from Northern California to Texas, you'll get a very special kind of partial eclipse: an annular eclipse, in which the rim of the Sun becomes a brilliant ring completely encircling the black silhouette of the Moon.

For Los Angeles area viewers, the Sun will be moving down the afternoon sky when a dark dent begins to intrude into one edge at 5:24 p.m. The dent is the silhouette of the new Moon traveling along its monthly orbit around the Earth. The dent will deepen, eventually turning the Sun into a thin crescent. Maximum eclipse will occur at 6:38 p.m., with the Moon covering 79% of the Sun's area. The eclipse will end at 7:42 p.m., 10 minutes before sunset.

The eclipse will become annular (a "ring eclipse") for parts of southern Oregon, northern California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico, and a bit of Texas. The annular aspect makes this the first "central" solar eclipse (meaning total or annular) to cross the United States since 1994. Untold numbers of people are planning to travel to the path of annularity for the grand event.

Americans are seeing the tail end of this eclipse. Its annular part begins at sunrise along the southern coast of China (where the local date is May 21st), then crosses parts of Japan, including Tokyo on the centerline. It then speeds across the North Pacific through much of the day before making landfall on the California-Oregon coast in the late afternoon of the 20th (local date).

"Annular" means "ring-like." This is the kind of eclipse we see when the Moon is at its farthest from Earth, at which time it appears slightly smaller in the sky than the Sun does. The Moon will be practically at the apogee of its orbit—just two weeks, or half an orbit, after it was a "supermoon" (at perigee, or closest approach) when full on May 5th.

Only 88% of the Sun's surface area will be blocked during annularity. "This will cause less change in the daylight than you might think," says Alan MacRobert, a senior editor of Sky & Telescope magazine. "Moderately thin clouds would dim the sunlight more. And if you're where the eclipse is only partial, the COMING SOON: TRANSIT OF VENUS dimming will be less."

PROTECT YOUR EYES!

The exposed part of the Sun will remain blindingly bright literally so—and anyone viewing any part of this eclipse, partial or annular, must use a safe solar filter, such as a #13 or #14 rectangular arc-welder's glass or an astronomer's filter made specifically for Sun viewing. Ordinary dark glasses won't do. Watching the Sun through an inadequate filter (or none) can permanently damage your eyesight.

Sky & Telescope's website describes several recommended Sunviewing methods: http://www.skyandtelescope.com/observing/home/Safely-View-

the-Upcoming-Eclipse-and-Transit-150863835.html

Other things to look for during this eclipse include a silvery or metallic quality to the light around the time of annularity or when the Sun is a thin crescent. Look for images of the crescent or ring Sun being cast under leafy trees; small openings between leaves make natural "pinhole cameras" that project images of the Sun on the ground.

Another sky spectacle is coming up soon. Just 16 days after the eclipse, on the afternoon of June 5th, it's the planet Venus's turn to cross the face of the Sun. The silhouette of Venus will be a small black dot with just 3% the diameter of the Sun, compared to the Moon's 94% on May 20th. Read all about the transit of Venus on Sky & Telescope's website:

"DOGGIE DOOMSDAY" Are Your Pets Prepared for a Potential Disaster?

Being prepared to successfully endure, survive and thrive through a major earthquake, tornado, hurricane or any other type of "doomsday disaster" is by no means a new concept to us these days. However, if you are anything like me, you will agree that it can't hurt to re-visit the issue now and then, and allow yourself to subscribe to any fresh ideas or suggestions on doomsday preparedness, when and if one should occur.

I recently read an article in the June 2012 issue of "Dog Fancy" magazine entitled "Ready for Anything", by Kitson Jazynka, about a true experience had by the Anastasias, a Maryland family who found themselves dealing with three very frightened dogs, two of which went missing during Hurricane Irene last year. For a while, during the ordeal, the Anastasias began to think that they might never see their precious pups again. It happened while they were running across the yard, trying desperately to escape their home after a huge oak tree had been pushed over by the high winds and landed on their roof. They ran to find refuge at a neighbor's house, and were making their way across the field when two of their three dogs broke away and ran randomly without direction in the dark night.

I could so relate to how the Anastasias must have felt when their dogs got away and ran in fear, and I could so imagine that happening at my house if I should find myself in a similar situation. That article forced me to face the fact that, although I love my pets, and I like to think I am a responsible pet owner, I am no where near as 'pet-ready' for a major disaster as I should and could be. It also brought to mind the fact that I would never forgive myself if my pets went missing or perished during a major disaster, knowing that I had not done everything possible to avoid loss of life or limb on their behalf.

Fortunately, the Anastasias did mange to find their two frightened dogs and gathered them in to safety before they were lost or hurt, but the end result could have been grim, considering their lack of preparedness. The key element of advantage that came from that experience was the fact that the family realized how important pet preparedness is for potential doomsday disasters and shared what they learned. First and foremost, they realized that it is very important not to wait until the night of the 'storm' or disaster, to prepare! To really be ready for a potential disaster, one must take the time to plan ahead.

Preparing your cats and dogs for a "doomsday" event includes several factors and should begin with writing out a plan. Ideally, the plan will include a list of various scenarios with corresponding actions to be taken. For example, how can you be best prepared to care for your pets in the case of a mandatory evacuation due to a fire or flood? Or like in the case of the Anastasias, what if you are forced to flee from your home during a raging storm? Conversely, what steps of preparation should you take to protect your pets if you are forced to stay inside your house without power after a blizzard? We may not have blizzards in Sierra Madre, but this could happen while you are on vacation in the mountains, or visiting a friend or family member in another part of the country. Preparation plans will vary depending on the specific needs of your pet, but here are a few basic tips that will pertain to nearly any home with domestic pets:

- Microchip your dog. Collars and tags can easily fall off and get lost, and the appearance of your pet may vary depending on the elements and whether your dog is injured. A registered chip implanted under your dog's skin will ensure its unmistakable identity, should s/he get lost. Ask your veterinarian about microchip implants and registering.
- Crate train your dog, or at least train it to be accustomed to walking in and out of a storm cellar or underground crawl space. If a dog if fearful of small spaces, he may not be willing to
- Keep extra copies of your pet's vaccination records and photos on hand to help identify and prove ownership of your pet.
- Establish a buddy system with one of your neighbors to keep your dog out of harm's way in case you are unable to get home during a disaster.
- Keep a box of extra pet foods and any other pet necessities you may need in case the stores are closed for an extended period of time after a disaster. The pet supply box should be stored along with your own "human" survival kit for easy retrieval in case of an evacuation.
- Regardless of the circumstances, it is very important that you secure your pet on a leash or in a crate, at the onset of a major storm or earthquake. If your pet is not secured, he is much more likely to escape and run out into the street where he could be hit by a car, or roam randomly out into the neighborhood or up into the forest where you may not be able to find him.
- Animals often become very nervous during a storm, and they also pick up on our own vibrations if we ourselves are nervous or afraid. If you plan ahead, and practice the basic steps of preparedness before a disaster hits, you will be much more apt to remain calm throughout the ordeal, and in that

What has snakes, dancing girls, and a human sacrifice-hungry island volcano? You guessed it
--"Cobra Woman!" This 1944
cult classic has all the corniness

of camp films, short of starring Vincent Price. It was also recently featured as an "At the Movies Flick Pick" in the L.A. Times. So I'm not the only weirdo who saw it!

Here's the story in a nutshell: Ramu, our love interest (with an American accent), is engaged to Tollea, a beautiful redhead (with a South American accent) on a quaint island in the South Pacific. They never tell you it's the South Pacific, but you get that drift. Much of this movie was shot at the Arcadia Arboretum. Anyone who's been there in the last 10 years will recognize the pool, palm trees, and steps leading into the water. Back to the story... Just before the couple hits the alter, Tollea is kidnapped! Her step-father (who has a Scottish accent. Go figure!) seems totally cool with this, and suggests to Ramu to the bite of the Cobra King at birth, but Tollea, that he forget all about her. With relatives like the elder, was sickened. So Naja, deemed the that who needs enemies? Ramu, however, isn't willing to give up his bride so easily. Her stepfather explains that she was rescued from "Cobra Island" as an infant, and now her people have come to take her back.

Ramu sets off for Cobra Island in a small dingy. Little does he know that Kado, his trusty native guide, has followed him despite Ramu's strict instruction to not get involved. (Like all English-learners in old movies, Kado has problems with noun/verb agreement. "I are your friend!") Having arrived at Cobra Island, Ramu witnesses Naja, Tollea's evil twin sister, strutting with a throng of pretty girls in tow to the "royal lagoon." Ramu naturally assumes that this is his beloved Tollea, and dives into the water after her. They frolic around in an impressive under water scene --reminiscent of Esther Williams.

To make a long story a bit shorter, Ramu gets imprisoned. The dungeon looks exactly like the one from "The Wizard of Oz." In fact, Cobra Island is patrolled by guards who look as if they lifted their outfits from the Wicked Witch's bodyguard. And as if they didn't borrow enough from Oz, when the royal priest comes to interrogate him, Ramu overtakes him and steals his robe as camouflage. You almost expect to see the Cowardly Lion's tail wagging behind him.

Meanwhile, Tollea's grandmother explains the situation to her. (Granny's also an American. One wonders where Tollea got her Spanish flare.) Both Tollea and her sister were subjected stronger one, and was granted the priesthood. Fire Mountain has been rumbling all this time, so Naja calls an assembly of the people and does a hilarious sensuous dance, circling round a live cobra. At first she's wearing something like Queen Amidala's getup in Star Wars: Episode 1. Then she sheds it down to a shimmery hiphugging sequined dress. This is the highlight of the whole film --HIL-LAR-I-OUS!! As her gyrations grow in intensity, she starts pointing at members of the audience, who are immediately carried away to become sacrifices to Fire Tollea and Naja eventually duke it out, Tollea demanding, "Geeve me the cobra jewl" (which sound like "yule" in her Cobra Island accent). Everything on Cobra Island is righted at the end, but Ramu must return to the Scottish colony and let Tollea rule her people as the rightful heiress. (Naja's fiancé speared her grandma.) Ramu and Kado sigh heavily, sailing back to the Scottish Isle on their dingy. Suddenly Tollea appears from under the rigging! She and Ramu embrace, and she assures him that she set up her lady-inwaiting as the head of church and state. Nothing to worry about! They happily sail away into the open sea.

You gotta love campy old movies! And "Cobra Woman" does not disappoint. The only suggestion I have is that you start the movie on an empty bladder. Otherwise your violent laughter might cause embarrassment. Happy viewing!

THE JOY OF YOGA

THE POSTURE'S JUST THE BEGINNING

By Rene Quenell, Founder/Owner Yoga Madre - Sierra Madre

I really had no idea. When I look back at the process and how it all happened - I was completely unaware. Well, okay, maybe not completely. Somewhere deep down inside, I was called.

I had no idea where the journey would go. I just thought it would be cool to teach. I liked the practice of yoga. I loved what it did for me physically. I did not know that it would transform my life. I soon learned that yoga is not about learning the postures, but it is about learning to know your Self.

There are so many different styles of yoga - how can you choose? Well, ultimately it is not which style we choose or what teacher - but our own dedication and our own sincerity in practicing that is important. It is all about what we do on and off the mat that matters. I had set out to expand my knowledge and develop a personal practice and what came of that, became a way of life.

Humility was my first big lesson. I went off to teacher training and thought my practice was pretty good. But I could not fold like the other teacher trainees. I could not do handstand. I felt kind of foolish. How was I going to be a yoga teacher if it's all about the most insane pose? Luckily, it is not. I began to discover the old adage "the more you know - the less you know." And then, I became

The change in me was huge. I can't say I realized it was all good at the time. Things that were not working in my life needed to go. There were challenges that I needed to breathe through. There was a lot of stuff that came up. But the most amazing thing happened. I got to know myself better and what works for me, what inspires me, what my dharma is and how I can be happy. That's the thing, we have to be inspired. We have to have desire, because without desire - we do not breathe, we do not grow.

The first lesson of humility was realizing I didn't know how to move my body. But I then realized I didn't know so much more about myself. The journey has been unbelievable. It is so great. I have to share it with others! To become a yoga teacher, you have to learn it yourself. Then you have to continue to learn. I am forever the student. My yoga is practice. It is asana, breath, relationships, raising kids, cooking, self-healing, self-awareness, clarity, balance. Namasté, René

P.S. If you would like to deepen your practice Yoga Madre offers a teacher training, next session begins June 1st.

ADULT TRICYCLES FOR BOOMERS AND BEYOND

Dear Savvy Senior:

What can you tell me about three-wheeled bicycles? I'm 67 years old and would like to take up recreational bike riding but don't trust myself on a two-Unbalanced Bonnie wheeler.

Three-wheeled bikes - also known as adult tricycles - are a great cycling option for older boomers and seniors, especially those who have concerns with their balance or stamina. Here's what you should know, along with some tips to help you shop for one.

Safer Cycling

If you'd like to take up bike riding, but worry about falling, an adult tricycle is a smart option to consider because of the stability it provides. With a tricycle, you can ride as slow as you want without ever losing your balance and you can put both feet on the ground while seated, which is very reassuring for many older riders.

In addition, adult tricycles are also made with a low "step through" design making mounting and dismounting much easier than a traditional bike; they come with big tires that ensure a smooth ride; have raised, ergonomic handlebars that are easier to reach and grip; and offer oversize seats (some even have backrests) for comfort and support. And, other than the frame, tricycles use the same standard components as traditional bikes do, so replacement parts are readily available, and repairs are not an issue.

Types of Tricycles

There are literally dozens of different types of adult tricycles to choose from with prices ranging anywhere from a few hundred to several thousand dollars. To help you figure out the right kind of tricycle that meets your needs and budget, here's a breakdown of the different styles and costs, along with some popular models to checkout.

Upright: If you're primarily interested in a leisurely ride around the neighborhood for pleasure, fitness or running errands, upright trikes are a good choice. These are traditional upright-positioned tricycles that come with rear cargo baskets and limited gear options usually ranging from one to three-speeds. Some popular models in this category include the Schwinn Meridian Adult Tricycle sold at Walmart and Target for around $270, the Sun Traditional 24 trike (see sunbicycles.com) that retails for around $375, and the Torker TriStar three-speed (torkerusa.com) which costs around $500.

Recumbent: These are the lower-to-the-ground, stretched-out frame tricycles that allow you to recline with your legs positioned in front of you. Available in various styles, recumbent trikes are very comfy, easy on the back and aerodynamic which make them ideal for long rides. See terratrike.com, sunbicycles.com, industrialbicycles.com, trailmate.com and bikemania.biz for a nice variety, but be aware that recumbent trikes are more expensive than upright models, typically ranging between $800 and $2,500.

Tandem: If you plan to ride primarily with your spouse or another partner, you may want to get a tandem tricycle that comes with two seats (front and back), or you can get a double seat tricycle with the seats side-by-side. You can find these types of bikes for around $1,000 to $2,000, at the same websites that offer recumbent trikes.

Folding: If you like to travel or if you have limited storage space, tricycles that are designed to fold up to fit in tight spaces are another popular option. The Adventurer Three-Speed Folding Trike which sells for $390 at adventurebikes.com, Kent Westport Folding Tricycle sold at Target and amazon.com for $300, and Walmart's Port-O-Trike 3-Speed Folding Tricycle for $400 are three good folding trikes to consider.

Electric: If you need a boost from time to time, electric tricycles are hybrids that have pedals and an electric motor, so you can exercise when you want or you can sit back and let the trike do the work. Some good options include the EW-88 electric trike at electricwheelstore.com for $1,200, and the Cabbike 3 Electric Tricycle offered through cabbikes.com for $979.

HOMES & PROPERTY

One Of A Kind: Featuring unique homes and gardens and the people who create them Story by Chris Bertrand. Photos by Susanne Hayek and Chris Bertrand

Just Listed: Vintage 1917 Sierra Madre Craftsman

Built Originally as Retirement Residence for Col. Holabird, "Empire Builder"

Designed in 1917 by noted California architects, Theodore Eisen & Son, this is the "quintessential Craftsman" according to listing agent Pauli Morin, of Coldwell Banker in Arcadia.

The prominent Eisen firm is known for their design work for "El Alisal" the Charles Lummis home along the Arroyo Seco in Mount Washington neighborhood of northeast Los Angeles, along the 110 freeway. The Eisens also designed the Edward Doheny home, a family known for their oil fortune, and the Crank mansion in Altadena. The elder Eisen was known as "a pioneer architect" and a "dean of the architectural profession in the state."

Built as the retirement residence for Col. And Mrs. William H. Holabird, the home was noted in publications of the times as "a picturesque foothill home" and advertised for sale in the LA Times later in 1926 for its " latest conveniences, wonderful mountain view,... frost never, and 15 minutes to Pasadena and 45 minutes to Los Angeles..."

Col. Holabird was known as the founder of nearby Claremont, as an international railroad engineer called upon to evaluate an (aborted) attempt to build a rail line over the Tejon Pass, for his rail expertise in several Asian countries, as the financial guru who "Rescued the Imperial Valley at a Time of Bankruptcy" due to Colorado River flooding and fiscal Located near Baldwin and Mountain Trail in north central Sierra Madre, the home is just outside "The Canyon", an area of vintage vacation cabins that extends up into the mountains. With a two car garage, extra onsite and on street parking, the home allow for the generous entertaining style perfect for this wonderful home.

The true hub and heart of this home is the nearly 600 square foot great room, that opens through a series of French doors to the expansive covered porch/outdoor living room. The great room, featuring vintage narrow oak flooring, spans a music area with grand piano, a comfortable seating area with a massive arroyo stone fireplace, plus a casual dining area, that opens to the saltwater pool, spa waterfall and back yard.

With five bedrooms and six baths, the home offers a private place for everyone in the household, with room for dual home offices if the owners work at home, as more do these days.

In addition to the living areas on the main level, the home offers two bedrooms, a den and three baths. Upstairs, three additional bedrooms include the master suite. With a cozy balcony with verdant leafy views, the master suite offers a large bedroom, a private bath with large tub and separate shower, and a walk-in closet that spans the entire length of the bedroom.

> The generous kitchen is open to the casual dining area, bridged with breakfast bar seating, perfect to include the cook in the activities in the living area! The french doors opening to the pool area allow the cook to keep an eye on children at play, as well.

> A large formal dining room includes French doors to the covered porch, bringing ample natural lighting and ambience to the room.

> Out back, two different yards offer play, recreation and entertaining space, with a salt water pool, a spa and waterfall, with beautiful stone detailing, plus another yard with a children's play structure.

> The home offers 3746 square feet of under-roof living space, including a full private guest unitwith kitchenette, bath and a separate entrance on the lower level, and two separate undeveloped storage areas. One of these might be perfect for use as a partially below grade wine cellar and tasting room and/or a

HOW TO CORRECT AGGRESSIVE TREE ROOTS

Trees are hardy plants, and their roots fight back against man-made limits around them. In the urban and suburban landscape, tree roots often are forced to grow between buildings or under driveways and walkways. As roots grow, they will break walls, pipes and patios, causing damage to properties.

Plan before you plant

"Before you plant a new tree in your yard, you need to understand how a tree could damage your property and take appropriate measures to prevent that damage," advises Tchukki Andersen, Board Certified Master Arborist and staff arborist with the Tree Care Industry Association.

Woody tree roots thicken as they grow, gradually pushing shallow roots toward the surface. Since soil near the surface is best suited for root growth, most tree roots are just below the surface - putting them in conflict with man-made obstacles. Where the soil is covered by a solid driveway or patio, upward growing roots don't experience the normal signals (increased light and air) that they are reaching the surface. As a result, they often grow against the underside of pavement and become intrusive.

"Most damage is found six feet or less from the tree," notes Andersen, "since roots become smaller and less damaging the further they are from the importantly - not planting large trunk. Keep this in mind before you plant. That small sapling could become a large shade tree with roots spreading 30 or 40 feet outward from the trunk.'

Cutting roots with discretion

Some homeowners, masons and landscapers deal with intrusive roots by grinding down or removing them. This can be expensive and is very harmful to the tree. Wounding a tree's roots creates points of entry for pathogens, leaving a tree vulnerable to disease. In areas within five to seven feet Cutting major roots also reduces a tree's ability to take up nutrients and water, leaving it more susceptible to drought. Finally, cutting roots can reduce a tree's structural support, which increases the danger the tree will topple onto your house in high winds.

Keep these cautions in mind when cutting problem tree roots:

the farther you cut from the trunk, the less threat to the tree's health, and the less danger of creating a hazard

try not to cut roots greater than 2 inches in diameter prune roots back to a side or sinker root (growing downward) when possible roots recover better from being severed when you: cut them cleanly with a saw instead of breaking them with a backhoe mulch and water well after root pruning consult a qualified arborist when cutting within a distance equal to five times the trunk diameter to the trunk

Some better root management options include:

Installing physical root guides and barriers that redirect tree roots down and away from hardscapes with minimal impact on the tree; Curve new hardscape features - such as a driveway or patio - around the tree roots and suspend hardscape features on small pilings to bridge over roots.

Right tree for your site

Andersen advises selecting trees for your landscape that will cause less damage, matching species with site conditions and - most shade trees within 12 feet of hardscapes (sidewalks, driveways). Since the health of trees in your yard is put at risk whenever root systems are cut back or damaged, anything that can be done to reduce the damage caused by tree roots will also benefit your trees.

of a paved area or structure, plant trees that grow to a mature height of less than 30 feet. In areas within seven to 10 feet of a paved area or structure, plant trees that grow to a mature height of less than 50 feet. Reserve trees that when mature reach higher than 50 feet for areas with at least 12 feet of clearance around the trunk; this allows adequate space for the roots. Also, before you plant check for overhead utility lines and leave adequate space for that tree to mature. For some small tree ideas, click here.

Coach Harvey Hyde

Special Guest Columnist: Mrs. Harvey Hyde

"ALL IN THE FAMILY"

One of the 'gifts' from my husband this Mother's Day, was a request to be the guest contributor for this column. He asked, so a few words from the wife.

In my day, there was no reality TV, just reality. Our family's coaching days are in the past, but we're still a football family and appreciate all we learned from our coaching life.

I knew at the outset my husband wanted to be a football coach. I decided early on to learn what I could about the game. I did. And taught our daughters. Two generals and their officers and armies trying to conquer territory with their division: offense, defense and special teams. Scoring points, holding the other team back, making that last minute field goal or running back the last kick-off -- or not. A win or a loss.

But much of the learning for wives is not about the game, but about the time outside of the game. It's about learning to compete, not with another person, but with 100 players, 12 coaches, a lifestyle, an addiction to all that is involved with the game. With the excitement (and anxiety) of getting ready, of winning, of getting over a loss, landing that great player, and the resulting comments on TV, radio, magazines and newspapers analyzing why this did or did not happen.

When my husband was head coach, part of my role was reminding the other wives that: 1. If you need lots of attention, don't expect to get it during the season. 2. Don't listen to what people say in the stands. 3. One person does not win or lose the game. 4. Don't worry about what the other "division" did or did not do. (Remember Mrs. Brady after the Super Bowl? If only those other guys had caught those beautiful passes from Tom they would have won.)

Football is about a three month playing season, nowhere near as many games as in baseball or basketball. In college, the work is almost all year round. There's recruiting, home visits, scouting, planning schemes, spring practices, two-a-days; making travel arrangements; keeping players happy, studying, eligible and healthy; There are weekend and late night meetings studying films and planning and analyzing our team and opponents. With a winning season, there's even more of the same. There's hiring (or firing) and replacing coaching, office or support staff. Except for a couple months, hours are never 9 to 5.

In our family we shared in all the "team" spirit during the season. Our girls were 'gum girls' cheerleading mascots and, later, school hosts with booster receptions and banquets and hospitality rooms. We prepared for and watched games and cheered and moaned like the rest of you and, the next day, suggested corrections on plays called during the game.

In addition to giving football advice, wives often have a job "outside the home." But we still drive kids to school, help with homework, take out the trash, get the kids to sports practice and doctors' appointments and make teacher conferences. We call and meet with the repair man, coach soccer and softball teams, attend horse shows and music concerts. We keep dinners warm and the weekends calm and mellow.

After the season, recruiting and spring ball, the short summer arrives at about Mother's Day, Pop is back home and ready to take charge of the house as he has the team.

More adjustments. The house has not been run with dad for a while. I'm sure families of people who travel frequently and certainly, those with deployed military, face this same dilemma. The at-home person learns to be decisive and independent, and then the partner returns, with new routines and rules, and opinions.

It was always a nice surprise when dad arrived at one of our games or shows or conferences. Oh oh, Dad is here, hope he doesn't yell at some referee or shout out some direction that the team just discussed not doing. Swing, don't swing, take, don't steal. At times, his cheers and suggestions had a way of annoying coaches and officials who thought, "Who is this guy?"

I won't go into detail, but just as coaches have their 'war stories' about games and plays and players, our girls have their own stories about Dad's presence at their events and activities.

It's been a few years, but it was an amazing experience. We all learned as a coaching family. We learned a great deal about competition, and football (of course.) The girls learned that boys are often surprised when girls know more than they do about a game. We all learned that making a move to another team in another town and other schools and other jobs, while stressful, can be survived. And we learned that survival and this kind of teamwork can (and did) teach us something about ourselves that prepares us for life beyond.

And it's nice to be looking back.

ADD 15 MORE YARDS TO YOUR TEE SHOT IN 90 DAYS

If you want to add 15 more yards to your tee shot-in three months, do what I did. I have a confession to make. Less than 24 months ago, my great friend Harvey Mackay asked me if I wanted to play 18 holes the following week. I had cut way back on my golf both playing and practicing for the past couple of years and I was not looking forward to this round of golf.

By the time I reached the 12 hole he (74 year old) Harvey had outdriven me four times. Harvey was playing to a 9 at the time and he is a great driver of the golf ball. I should say straight driver of the golf ball with an average of 225 yards. If I hit it well I was maybe 15 yards past him. However if I missed the tee shot a tiny bit, I was hitting first onto the green. When I walked up to the 13th tee, I remember it as thou it was yesterday, I decided that I was going to do something about my golf game. The first thing I needed to do was start practicing and the second thing was to CATCH UP with the game. It was passing me by. The game was changing (getting longer) and I was stuck in neutral.

The next moring I ordered a Momentus Heavy Hittable Driver off of the internet with overnight delievery. I could hardly pick it up. I took it to the range, swung it five times and

I decided that I was going to swing the club 25 times, three days a week whether I was at the golf course or not. In the backyard I went every Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Once I started using it at the practice facility I then came up with another way to use it.

During practice sessions I swung it three times for every six balls I hit. I like to hit three draws, three fades, three straight shots and then three swings with the heavy driver.

almost feel over. That is when I decided that I needed to come up with a routine so I could

On days that I play, I have another routine that I have used for years. I hit three shots with every club in my bag. Now my routine includes swinging the heavy driver one time every time I change clubs.

OK, I know you are dying to hear the results. The only reason I am not going to tell you how much further I am hitting the ball is that everybody is different. The one thing I will tell you is that I am back. I have caught up with the sport and...well ok, I am at least 20 yards further off of the tee and 1.5 clubs longer with my irons. BUT, I have been VERY committed to this process. I have not missed a day in two years.

VERY IMPORTANT REMINDERS:

- #1. Warm up before you pick up a heavy driver and start swinging it
- #2. Even thou it says it is a HITTABLE club, make 200 practice swings with it before you start hitting balls. You have to get use to it first.
- #3. This is NOT an overnight fix for short tee shots. Stay committed to see results.
- #4. I added 15 yards in the first three months, I kept going so I can keep what I have!!!
- #5. Harvey Mackay (USE YOUR HEAD TO GET YOUR FOOT IN THE DOOR) is a genius at dishing out great business advice. I took advantage of his lesson to me.

Start using a HITTABLE HEAVY DRIVER today and you will add 15 more yards to your tee shot-in three months, like me.

When Grandma Gets On The Stand, Be Careful What You Ask~

courtroom humor the other day while surfing the net. There's an old saying that a lawyer should never ask a witness a question if they aren't prepared for the answer. This is doubly true when questioning a grandma who is honest to a fault.

"In a trial in a small town the prosecuting attorney called his first witness, a grandmotherly, elderly woman to the stand. With her hand on a Bible, she was sworn in. She was asked if she would tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help her God. "I do," she replied.

"The prosecuting attorney approached her and asked, 'Mrs. Jones, do you know me?' She responded, 'Why, yes, I do know you Mr. Williams. I've know you audience was on the verge of chaos. since you were a boy, and frankly, you've been a big disappointment to me. You lie, you cheat on your wife, and you manipulate people and talk badly about them behind their backs. You think you're a big shot when you haven't the brains to realize you'll never amount to asks her if she knows me, I'll send anything more than a two-bit paper pushing shyster... Yes, I know you quite well.

"The lawyer was stunned and slowly backed away, fearing the disgusting looks on the judge's and juror's faces, not to mention the court reporter who was recording every word.

Not knowing what else to do, he pointed across the courtroom and this asked, 'Mrs. Jones, do you know the little bit of defense attorney?'

> 'She smiled and replied, "Why yes, I do. That's Mr. Bradley, who I've also known since he was a youngster. He's lazy, bigoted, and he has a bad drinking problem. He can't build a normal -- much less stable -- relationship with anyone, and his law practice is one of the worst in the entire county. Not to mention he too cheats on his wife. And, Mr. Williams, I'm sorry to be the one to tell you this, his most recent lover was your wife... Yes, I know him very well, too.

> "The defense attorney almost fainted and was seen slipping downward in his chair, staring blankly at the floor. Laughter, mixed with gasps, could be heard all over the courtroom and the

"At this point, the judge brought the courtroom back to order. He asked both attorneys to approach the bench and, in a very quiet voice, both of you to the electric chair."

If there's a moral to this funny story besides the obvious, it's that honesty is a double-edged sword that cuts both ways, and that almost everyone has secrets about themselves they'd rather not be revealed in public -- especially in a courtroom by a grandmotherly, elderly woman with a penchant for telling the truth, the whole truth -warts and all!

Summer is just around the corner and pretty soon we will be spending weekends in the parks and backyards of Sierra Madre, Monrovia, Arcadia and little Pasadena. At times with just family but at other times with other guests.

STUART Tolchin.....On LIFE FINDING A ROLE

Off-Stage Voice: Tonight future, the role of you will be played by you.

Last week in a dream I recognized an old friend from Law School, about whom

I had not seen or thought in 44 years. I awoke with the strong belief that this old friend had something very important to tell me. Through FaceBook, I managed to make contact and after a couple of short exchanges, I asked him if he was doing anything to save the world. Surprisingly, he informed me that in fact he had made several trips to Africa and was involved in constructing programs that assisted AIDS sufferers in an African country.
Soon I was e-mailed his fifteen page journal detailing observations during a first trip to Africa. The journal has had a powerful effect upon me. Horrible conditions are described. Staggering numbers of now parentless children are AIDS infected and facilities are not adequate to care for them. Education programs have failed. The husbands become infected when they travel away from the community to earn income needed to support their wives and family. While away from home, the husbands inevitably have unprotected sex with diseased sex-workers. The men return home and have unprotected sex and transmit the disease to their wives. The horror, of course, is that the men simply do not want to use condoms and the women are afraid to complain. The reasons are complicated, but I understand that the women are dependent upon the men for economic survival and that it is not culturally acceptable for women to utter these kinds of complaints to their husbands.

Education programs involving the distribution of condoms and utilization directions have not been helpful. Women were unwilling to even mention the problem to their husbands and the men were not interested in the programs. What has helped is a kind of consciousness raising workshop for women which has given much-needed support empowering women to stand up to their husbands. The surprising result is that as the women speak up the behavior of the men has changed. The women are being given more respect as the men begin to help care for children and share in domestic chores. A certain kind of understanding has evolved that has allowed the family to act as a unit rather than in opposition to one another.

This description of a kind of healing and for the foreseeable reached through communication and a willingness to see something from another point of view seems to be so rare in these polarized times. Another description in the journal that moved me was a simple description of a play that performed by the patients at a hospice. The conditions at the hospice are terrible and often there is very little that can be done to simply pass the time. What has evolved is that the patients have begun to perform their own plays with the sickest patients being cast in roles as jesters. I now it sounds horrible, but my friend emphasizes that just being involved in the performances seems to brighten people's spirits. Allowing even the sickest patients to perform in roles in which they can make no mistakes, in which anything they do is acceptable and perfect, seems to be a stroke of genius.

To be truthful, my first reaction to the Journal was a kind of distaste. I had contacted this long lost friend in the belief that he had something important to share with me. Of course, I am nearing retirement and I imagine I want to find something else to do that would be useful. As I read the journal I realized how trivial my own concerns were. There is so much to do in this world and I envied my friend's energy, dedication, and commitment. At the same time I felt deep within myself that comfort and routine and predictability and every other mundane concern is very important to me. I do not want to go to Africa. I wish I did, but I don't.

Am I letting myself off the hook and allowing myself to be comfortable while there is so much suffering in the world? All I can say for myself is that the contact with my old friend and the subsequent reading of his journal has resulted in a kind of personal self-acceptance. I have talked to my wife about my reaction and she assures me that I have already found my role. I am a Communicator. I believe my function and my passion is to describe my subjective impressions of the ambiguous reality that Î encounter in my daily life. WITH LAUGHTERCISE Finally, someone has come up with a weight loss program I can sink my teeth into without guilt. And I say, it's about time. I can't speak for anybody else, but I'm fed up with diet programs that simply beat me to death. I'm tired of starving myself under the pretense of dieting, and exercising my body to the brink of absolute exhaustion. It's about time someone looked on the lighter side of dieting. According to a study in Athens, Greece, scientists have found a good laugh is a calorie burner not to be ignored. You can be sure this gained my attention. Some American researchers found that 10 to 15 minutes of genuine giggling can burn off the number of calories found in a medium square of chocolate. These scientists discovered a way to measure how many calories people burn when they

When I read this, I laughed for 39 minutes, allowing me to eat two medium squares of chocolate. At this rate, I'll be able to eat several pounds of chocolate a

Now that's what I call a diet.

According to their findings, the average person burns 20 percent more calories when laughing, compared to not laughing. If somebody laughs for 10 or 15 minutes a day they would burn up to 50 calories, depending on body size and the intensity of the laughter.

This means if I laughed for 10 to 15 minutes a day, I would burn enough calories to lose 4-1/2 pounds in a year. That's nothing to laugh at.

This means in 50 years I would completely disappear from the face of the earth. Which poses a question; when a person loses weight, where does that weight go?

I'm not one to jump on the latest bandwagon but there is nothing funny about carrying around extra weight. For some it's like having a monkey on their back, for me it's more like a gorilla. Up to this point, my weight loss program has been a laughing matter. Little did I know my laughing was burning calories!

My exercise program has been a real joke, which may have done me good and I didn't know it. To be honest, my regimen has not produced the results I desired.

Just a few years ago, I exercised my right as an American citizen to vote for the president of my choice, which has been quite taxing on me, you can be sure. This kind of exercise takes more out of a person than realized at the time and must be good because I lost a great chunk of money in paying my taxes this year.

Every day I exercise my right to remain silent when the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage is giving me a piece of her mind. Although I have not lost any weight with this exercise, I haven't lost any arguments, either. Personally, I think it's a good

Now, with this new information I shall change my whole approach to dieting. Instead of working hard, exercising every day and watching what I eat, I shall throw caution to the wind and laugh all day long.

I shall laugh off all criticism with good humor. I shall roll in the aisles with uncontrollable mirth. My only concern is that I don't die laughing.

For the observant person, like Yours Truly, each day provides plenty of things to laugh about. My only problem is to know exactly where to start. I could start laughing at my Beloved but I'm sure I would lose something other than weight, so I don't want to go there, if you know what I mean.

A good guffaw, I've discovered, carries more than just personal benefits. An old proverb says, "Laugh, and the whole world laughs with you." So, I can see where my laughing is going to help other people lose weight.

Why didn't somebody think of this before? I may have lost some time; but be assured I am determined to giggle my way to supreme health in the days and

To begin my regimen of laughter, I only need to wake up in the morning. Believe me when I say, not waking up in the morning is no laughing matter.

When I wake up, I yawn, stretch and then go to the bathroom. One look in the mirror is good for a good belly laugh, which helps start the day in the right

For the next laugh, I turn to the early morning news programs, which is good for a laugh-a-minute. We truly live in a funny world, at least for the person who takes the time to see the funny side of the street.

All those people on early morning television seriously think what they say is important. When in reality, very little of what they say makes any difference in anyone's day. If they only knew how insignificant their opinions are, they probably wouldn't get up in the morning and go to work. They give, on any given morning, sidesplitting, rib-tickling, laugh-a-minute exercises.

If you happen to see me walking down the street with a smile all over my face, don't be alarmed. I am engaged in my Laughtercise for the day.

Just a couple weeks ago, Republicans were back in the 1960s, revisiting the issue of women's access to contraception (insisting the matter be left up to the woman's employer).

Now they're up to the 1980s, when a major issue was the "Religious Right" and its efforts to legislate biblically-justified bigotry.

In his address, Romney assured his audience he believes "Marriage is a relationship between one man and one woman". Not surprisingly, the line received applause at a campus which bans admission to the openly-gay, where many had reservations about inviting an openly-Mormon.

Also not surprisingly, there was some eye-rolling among young Republican and gay Republican groups; dismay that their candidate hasn't caught on that a viable issue from 1984 could make them losers in 2012. Before most in that college crowd had entered pre-school, the Moral Majority had already become embarrassingly passé.

Reince Priebus, Chairman of the National Republican Party, suggested that Romney's position on gay marriage was "in line with most Americans". The facts, though, and nervous Republican operatives, suggest otherwise:

A Gallup poll from 1996 showed 27% in favor of gay marriage, and 68% opposed. Last month the results were 50% in favor, and 48% opposed. Pew Research in 2001 found 35% in favor of gay marriage and 57% opposed; now it's 47% in favor and 43% opposed. The Wall Street Journal / NBC poll showed 41% in favor of gay marriage and 49% opposed in 2009, with 49% in favor and 40% opposed last March.

Republicans charge that President Obama's voicing support for marriage equality is "political"; meaning they're concerned he's endorsing a position supported by a growing majority of Americans. (Recently on the Bill Maher show, a panelist characterized Obama's marking the anniversary of the killing of Osama bin Laden as "political"; Ed Schultz shot back; "How terrible - a president campaigning for re-election on his accomplishments!")

Some, including colleague Greg Welborn, continue to warn of the "slippery slope"; if gay marriage is allowed, then "why shouldn't three people", or "a brother and sister marry?"

Gay marriage has been legal in Massachusetts for eight years, in Connecticut for four, Iowa and Vermont for three, New Hampshire for two and in New York since last summer. In none of those Evoking the bigotry of Jerry Falwell isn't it. states has there been a push for polygamy or mar-

> Greg argues that "traditional marriage is better for children". My own research shows that individuals who are loving, caring, and involved make good parents. Those who aren't, don't.

As for "tampering" with "marriage as it has been defined by all major religions and cultures for more than 2,000 years", I heartily support the 'tampering".

Polygamy was the norm in the Old Testament. King David had eight wives; his son Solomon boasted 700 wives and 300 concubines. The Law of Moses describes how to prepare a captured virgin for life as a concubine (shave her head, trim her nails, give her a month before going at it). The Book of Deuteronomy describes how a raped girl can be sold to her rapist for 50 shekels, who must then keep her as his wife.

In ancient Greece, the daughter of a father who died leaving no male heirs was obliged to marry the nearest male relative - and had to divorce her current husband to do it. In the Roman era, a girl of twelve was considered fit to marry.

In the Middle Ages, marriages were arranged as early as birth in treaties between royal families and fiefdoms. Chattel marriages were common in the 18th century - where wives who couldn't afford large dowries became the property of their husbands. The saying was it was similar to slavery, but with fewer legal restrictions against violence inflicted by the master.

There was "tampering" with "traditional" marriage in late-1800s America, when wives were allowed to be individuals distinct from their husbands and hold assets on their own through the Married Women's Property Act of 1884. It was around this time they were first permitted to seek protection from local authorities against spousal abuse and, through the Guardianship of Infants Act of 1886, were allowed for the first time to seek sole custody of their children if their hus-

Anti-miscegenation laws were with us until a 1967 Supreme Court ruling nullified them in the 16 states where they were still in force. What was "traditional" depended upon the state. In Alabama and Arkansas, the marriage was okay as long as it wasn't between whites and blacks. In Mississippi and Missouri, marriages between whites and Asians were illegal, as well. In the Carolinas, whites couldn't marry Native Americans. In Georgia and Virginia, the partnering of a white person with any other race constituted illegal "tampering" with "traditional marriage".

There's something wonderfully historic about our nation's first black president wanting to further expand equality, in this case as it pertains to marriage. At the same time, Mitt Romney supports a Constitutional Amendment to restrict marriage to what he himself deems appropriate.

The economy has recovered all private sector jobs lost since Obama became president. As a percentage of GDP, federal spending, taxes and the deficit are all lower than when he took office.

Republicans are going to have a tough time coming up with a winning message for November

A TALE OF TWO STATES

It's not often the real world gives us a crystal move out (and that's what clear comparison of competing public policy options, but that's exactly what we have in the comparison of California and New Jersey, and the very different policy options their respective of even staying even, all governors have pursued.

presented Governor Chris Christie with a $10.7 billion deficit for 2010. That deficit represented about 33% of projected revenues. Ĉalifornia handed Governor Jerry Brown a $9.2 billion deficit on $89 billion in revenues, representing a substantially smaller 11%. Faced with an ocean of red ink, the two governors gave similar inauguration speeches but pursued diametrically opposed policy proscriptions. As will be clear in

Mr. Christie, a Republican, convinced his Democratic legislature to reduce expenditures, require public union workers to contribute about the same percentage that private workers do to pay for some of their medical and pension benefits, reduced strangling regulation, and vetoed the legislature's millionaire's tax.

The net result is that Christie closed the budget gap without raising taxes and is now proposing to reduce taxes 10% across the board.

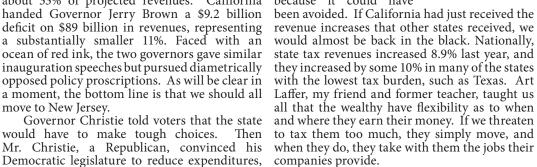

Governor Brown also told his voters that tough choices would have to be made. From there, Mr. Brown, a Democrat with a Democratic legislature, failed to significantly reduce spending, failed to reduce health and pension costs for public employee unions, allowed regulations to cripple even more businesses, agreed to spend billions more on the high-speed bullet train, and he's now promoting a ballot initiative to raise income taxes 30% on those making more than $250,000 (somehow those are the millionaires).

The net result of our Governor's approach is that the projected budget deficit has almost doubled from $9.2 billion to $16 billion, and there's no relief in sight.

Why?, is the question that comes to mind. Why did the state with a 33% budget deficit succeed while the state with an 11% budget deficit sink further into the ocean of red? Technically the answer is that revenues decreased substantially. More enlightening is the fact that businesses and high income earners have choices of where they conduct business and where they live. As they they're doing in droves), all their tax payments go with them. So instead rnors have pursued. the regulatory increases

To set the background a bit, New Jersey and rich-bashing have decreased revenues.

GREG Welborn

Let me close, though, with another sobering fact – one that Jerry Brown hasn't told you. Even if the proposed millionaire's tax didn't drive the wealthy out of California, the increase in revenues that Mr. Brown promises won't cut the state's deficit. Unless the public employee pension formulas are changed - and that has not been proposed by Mr. Brown – the promised revenues would simply go towards paying some of the $68 billion in unfunded pension liabilities. The deficit would remain.

The state of California is broke and getting worse because the governor and the legislature have refused to make the hard choices they promised. What's ironic is that the choices are hard only politically, but not economically. Economically, adjusting the retirement age, increasing employee insurance contributions, and reducing taxes/ regulations would fix the deficit in a couple of years. Politically, the Democrats don't dare cross the public employee unions. Who'd a thought New Jersey would start to look more like the golden state than California?

A Message by George Carlin:

The paradox of our time in history is that we have taller buildings but shorter tempers, wider Freeways, but narrower viewpoints. We spend more, but have less, we buy more, but enjoy less. We have bigger houses and smaller families, more conveniences, but less time. We have more degrees but less sense, more knowledge, but less judgment, more experts, yet more problems, more medicine, but less wellness.

We drink too much, smoke too much, spend too recklessly, laugh too little, drive too fast, get too angry, stay up too late, get up too tired, read too little, watch TV too much, and pray too seldom.

We have multiplied our possessions, but reduced our values. We talk too much, love too seldom, and hate too often.

We've learned how to make a living, but not a life. We've added years to life not life to years. We've been all the way to the moon and back, but have trouble crossing the street to meet a new neighbor. We conquered outer space but not inner space. We've done larger things, but not better things.

We've cleaned up the air, but polluted the soul. We've conquered the atom, but not our prejudice. We write more, but learn less. We plan more, but accomplish less. We've learned to rush, but not to wait. We build more computers to hold more information, to produce more copies than ever, but we communicate less and less.

These are the times of fast foods and slow digestion, big men and small character, steep profits and shallow relationships. These are the days of two incomes but more divorce, fancier houses, but broken homes. These are days of quick trips, disposable diapers, throwaway morality, one night stands, overweight bodies, and pills that do everything from cheer, to quiet, to kill. It is a time when there is much in the showroom window and nothing in the stockroom. A time when technology can bring this letter to you, and a time when you can choose either to share this insight, or to just hit delete...

Remember; spend some time with your loved ones, because they are not going to be around forever. Remember, say a kind word to someone who looks up to you in awe, because that little person soon will grow up and leave your side.

Remember, to give a warm hug to the one next to you, because that is the only treasure you can give with your heart and it doesn't cost a cent. Remember, to say, 'I love you' to your partner and your loved ones, but most of all mean it. An embrace will mend hurt when it comes from deep inside of you. Remember to hold hands and cherish the moment for someday that person will not be there again.

Give time to love, give time to speak! And give time to share the precious thoughts in your mind. AND ALWAYS REMEMBER:

Life is not measured by the number of breaths we take, but by the moments that take our breath away.
