COUNCIL MEETING TAKES A STRANGE TURN

Councilmember Suggests Converting Green Advisory Committee to a City Commission will lead to "the United Nations calling the shots". By Susan Henderson

When the Sierra Madre City Council ically and environmentally sustainable had almost completed a rather lengthy agenda, what should have been a simple adoption of the council's strategic planning objectives, turned into a sometimes emotional rant by Councilman Chris Koerber that included his offering the Mayor a copy of the U.S. Constitution and his suggesting that Sierra Madre would become part of a "big diabolical scheme to let the U.N. take over the United States."

At issue was Councilman Chris Koerber's objection to the inclusion of a future discussion on whether or not the city should convert the Green Advisory Committee to a city commission.

However, even though the Mayor, Councilmen Capoccia and Harabedian attempted to explain that the strategic plan objectives were simply the items that the council felt it needed to work on and the priority in which they should work on them, Koerber adamantly objected to the inclusion of the Green Committee/Commission in the report. The issue was to be put on a future council agenda which would give staff time to prepare the report and council would then review the item. The public would be given the opportunity to participate in the discussion at that time as well.

Councilmen John Capoccia indicated that his initial inclination was not to convert the committee to a commission for staffing and budgetary reasons, but agreed with Councilman John Harabedian that this discussion was 4. Preserve the city's small town char-community" was nothing more than attempt to have "the United Nations calling the shots". He even went so far as to read an excerpt from Forbes Magazine but did not establish a relationship between the article and the adoption of the plan's objectives, including the fate of the green committee and the agenda item before the council.

The Mayor reiterated, "We are not adopting the U.N. Accords which is why I find this a little bit over the top." For the last six years, the Sierra Madre elected leaders and management staff have participated in a strategic planning process that identifies and prioritizes what issues need to be addressed in managing the city. There are regular reviews to determine if the time lines that are established are being met and to confirm that the objectives and their priority are still relevant. At the last review/planning session held in April, both the outgoing council members and the newly elected council members participated. Koerber, who was in attendance accused the Mayor of 'over talking him' at the retreat when he objected to the discussion of the fate of the Green Committee at that time.

The plan calls for five key objectives for the council and staff:

1. Maintain and improve the city's infrastructure:

2. Maintain the city's financial stability; Attract, develop and retain quality

Councilman Koerber is fearful of the city losing control to the United

of trying to address that objective, that the Green Advisory Committee and its future falls.

Koerber brought forth a motion that failed to get a second.

In the end, the council approved the report in its entirety with a 3 to 2 vote, Koerber and Capoccia voting against it.

The Green Advisory Committee and its fate will be agendized for the August council meeting.

LOCAL ARTIST BEGINS MATER DOLOROSA PROJECT - George Rhodes To Paint Six Passionist Saints

By Susan Henderson and Chris

Quiet, understated and assured, artist/muralist George Rhode has Madre. He has been commissioned artisan wall projects. to paint the six patron saints of the original Passionist Father. Other Saints that will be painted by Rhodes

While completing a recent mural at the Bottle Shop, he was approached by Father Pat and asked if he would use his considerable talents to paint portraits of the saints on two of the arches at the Retreat at the top of Sunnyside. After several meetings going over the scope of the project, Rhodes agreed.

According to the artist, there are currently in the Chapel three arches, one of which has a contemporary tapestry of Christ's Cruxifiction without the Cross.

The new paintings will be on the remaining two arches.

Rhodes has a reputation for letting his experience with the paintbrush do most of the talking about his work. Rhode has etched his mark on hundreds of venues, both large and Armed with a trowel, Rhode applies thin layers of a special plaster embedded with ground up marble. Then the walls are burnished to a rich sheen. Finally, some areas are sanded to mottle the color, texture and sheen.

All this takes the careful artist's eye.
Rhode noted that new Venetian plaster-like products are coming out with "faux" ingredients instead of marble, but says he is sticking to the natural, original formulation, for its superior end results.

Other times, he journeys to the Westside outlets that sell the large scale canvas for movie sets. These he uses to prepare applications that will be painted here in Los Angeles, dried, rolled and then shipped to a location elsewhere in the country, like the Harrah's Casino project, the Aces

In order to create the mood for the 60's diner motif, Rhode created a graphic photo mural printed on canvas for a whole wall of memorabilia of the era. He recreated Marilyn Monroe from the famous photograph of Monroe with Joe di Maggio... minus Joe. "I liked her pose in that photo," he reflected. Adjacent to Marilyn is a slicked up Elvis and of course, a those old plastic discs called records. Puts one in the mood for a milk shake, fries and perhaps a poodle skirt.

In the home setting, Rhode often uses the trompe l'oeil technique, which creates a three dimensional impression using line and shadow. In another residential project, he incorporated a stylized portraiture in an Anaheim Hills home, where he painted life-size rendition of the owner's three sons, dressed in traditional Armenian folk attire and playing indigenous instruments.

Rhode was honored to be chosen to create two of the six lighthearted renditions of Botticelli's iconic "Birth of Venus" paintings, commissioned by Caesar's Palace. His versions offer a bit of humor with raining miniature Venuses in one, reminiscent of the tiny umbrellas in Rene Magritte's famous work. In Rhode's second work of this series, he pokes a bit of fun at Roy Lichtenstein's pop art, with a cartoon-

SIERRA MADRE LIBRARY 2012 SUMMER READING PROGRAMS

"Dream Big - Read!" is the theme for Sierra Madre's eight-week 2012 Summer Reading Program, which runs from Monday, June 18 through Saturday, August 11. There are programs for all age groups, including adults. Come in and register any time during this period and win prizes along the way.

In the children's program, each child will receive a reading log, bookmark, and a theme-related book bag at registration. Age-appropriate books, read at home, are recorded on the log, and a prize is awarded after the weekly reading requirement is met. Children may enter one of these divisions: Night Owl, for our very youngest patrons who do not yet read on their own; Dreamer, for school-age readers in Grades 1 – 6; Challenger, the most demanding division, for children in Grades 2 – 6, in which 35 hours of reading must be completed in eight weeks. "Own the Night" is the special theme for the teen division of the program. Participants read eight books by the end of the program and earn prizes for every two books read.

Library patrons 18 years of age and up are invited to join the Summer Reading Program for Adults. Participants will automatically be entered into the Grand Prize Drawing once they have submitted their first title read (book, eBook or audiobook) to Library staff. There will be weekly drawings for all participants with increased chances to win per number of books read. A book bag gift set will be given to the first 40 registrants. Drop by the Library for information on the program rules and guidelines. Teen volunteers in Grades 7 and up are needed to help with the Summer Reading Program. Volunteers work at least two hours per week for eight weeks, helping with the program and performing other light tasks during their shifts. Sign up at the Library between now and June 18. This is a great way to fulfill community service hours and meet

The Summer Reading Program is supported by the Friends of the Library and the Sierra Madre Firefighters Association; the Sierra Madre Kiwanis Club sponsors the Children's Challenger Division.

LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS RECEIVE CIVIC CLUB GRANTS

The Sierra Madre Civic Club announced this year's recipients of their Community Grant awards. In one way or another, these organizations touch the lives of nearly everyone who lives in town. For instance, several departments in the City were granted funds for services that directly serve the community. Grants were also awarded to groups that serve our youth, seniors, the arts and that enrich our community

Programs for our city's kids received funds for various needs. Sierra Madre Little League received a grant toward its scholarship fund and the Girls' Softball Association was granted funds for field maintenance. The Sierra Madre PTA received a grant for the Wolly Pocket Garden project at the elementary school, a project to bring back the traditional learning garden for the students. The Reading is Fundamental program was awarded a grant for children's books, and the City of Sierra Madre received funding toward the Kid's Fun

In support of the arts, the Foothill Creative Arts Group was awarded a grant for a second grade art project and the Sierra Madre Playhouse was granted funds toward heating and airconditioning upgrades.

Various City programs that provide services to the community were presented with grants. The Volunteer Fire Department was given a grant for its CERT (Certified Emergency Response Training) program which trains citizen volunteers to help in their neighborhoods in the event of a major emergency since first responders can't be everywhere at once. CERT volunteers identify critical needs, properly search damaged buildings and provide emergency first aid until help can arrive.

The Sierra Madre City Library received a grant for its One City One Book Project, and the City was also provided a grant for audio-visual equipment for the Sierra Madre room at the Recreational Center at Sierra Vista Park. The Senior Lunch program at Hart House has a birthday celebration once a month for our senior folk and received a grant for supplies for the parties.

Organizations that provide support and relief for those who need a helping hand also received grants. Convalescent Society which Aid provides free walkers. wheelchairs and other temporary medical devices free of charge was awarded a grant for durable medical equipment. Friends Indeed received a grant toward the Program Manager's salary for their Women's Room.

The Rose Float Association, a point of civic pride for us all, was awarded a grant for a new air compressor and the Sierra Madre Historical Archives received a grant for their Oral History Recording Digitalization project, a source of information and learning for generations to come.

In addition to the grants, the Sierra Madre Civic Club's philanthropy committee provided donations to several organizations. The City's rotunda at City Hall is maintained by the Civic Club and the Club donated funds for new plant material as well as holiday decorations. The Committee also made a "Partners" level donation to the Friends of the Library group, and supports the Halloween Window painting by providing the funding for window washing and clean up Foothill Unity Center is also supported by funds donated by Civic Club members. In addition, the Club made donations to the food bank and for school clothing, as well as gifts for kids and families for the Angel Project at Christmas.

Philanthropy Co-chairmen Marcia Bent and Judy Webb-Martin would like to thank the citizens of Sierra Madre for their support and generosity that made these awards possible. They would also like to thank committee members Jacki Persing, Kathleen Coyne, Pat Krok, Jane Zamanzadeh, Judie Cimino, Suzanne Decker, Bonnie Gardner and Mary Beth Finnerty for all their work on the philanthropy committee. Civic Club meets the second Thursday of the month at 7:30 at Hart House in Memorial Park. Visitors are welcome!

Police Partly Open Radio Frequencies

In a turn of events that started in January with the police department saying they had begun encrypting their emergency radio frequency as part of a system upgrade now has the department recanting by announcing Thursday the digital scanner codes for the public to listen to radio calls for service.

According to a public statement by the department, "The technical information for the Pasadena Police Department's talk group is 39760 or 2485, depending on the make and model of the digital scanner. The public will now hear the initial call for service broadcast; however, follow up transmissions will be encrypted."

Pasadena Chief of Police Phillip Sanchez also stated, "I am pleased to provide access to the department's information sharing networks, which includes the police radio talk group code. Listeners will hear the initial broadcast to include call type, location and time of occurrence. The technology solution strikes a balance between open communication, victims' rights and enhancing emergency response."

The rest of the statement reads as follows, "The Pasadena Police Department is also reminding citizens that crime data is available on the department's website. The community can check for specific crimes within a day of the reported incident www.CrimeMapping. com. Information can also be obtained by viewing posted crime statistics on line at www.cityofpasadena.net/ Police/ Crime_Statistics/ or by subscribing to NIXLE. Closed calls will be updated twice daily and will contain information from the most recent five-day period. For safety and privacy reasons, incidents involving minors, sexual assaults and other sensitive call types will be excluded from the daily postings. "

Almost 100 Pasadena postal employees and residents rallied Wednesday morning, including 97 year old Joanna Foster who said she was personal friends with Mack Robinson, the very person The U.S. Post Office's processing plant in Pasadena, scheduled to close, as early as July 7, was named.

"My husband worked for the Post Office 32 years," Foster said. "He was a World War I veteran."

Although Foster said her husband Walter Carter did not know Robinson he was a good friend of hers, "I knew him well." Duarte's Four Shining Stars By Joan Schmidt

Last week, I wrote about Arcadia's Bright Star, table tennis whiz, Erica Wu who's headed to the Summer ity of

Olympics. Now it's time to shift gears in another direction and meet four amazing young women from Duarte and Monrovia, who were recently recognized at the Duarte

City Council Meeting. Their names are Lorilei Near, Dominque Stumbaugh, Faith Torres, and Amina Walker. These girls are members of Girl Scout Troop # 4541 from the Monrovia/Duarte Service Unit. As I have said before, you may have awesome youths, but you need an outstanding teacher/coach/leader to have them reach their potential. It is only fitting that these girls have remarkable Troop Leaders, Deanna Stumbaugh and Claudia Stumbaugh. If Deanna sounds familiar, she should. She teaches Special Education at Royal Oaks Elementary School in Duarte, and was the District's Teacher of the Year!

Troop #4541 is a long standing troop deeply rooted within the community. The four girls who achieved the Silver Award - Lorilei Near, Dominique Stumbaugh, Faith Torres, and Amina Walker, are all strong leaders within girl scouting, their schools, and in their community. In addition, all of the girls maintain high grades within the two school districts to include Northview Jr. High Valedictorian of last year.

To achieve their Silver Award, the girls' service project was a personal one. They voted to give back to the community. One of the girls had been a victim of domestic violence, so they chose an organization that helped her and her family as they navigated through the issues surrounding domestic violence to bring about a safe environment and violence free lifestyle.

The Santa Anita Family Service's Domestic Violence Program, located in Monrovia, is still dedicated to helping women and children who have been battered, recover and move on with their lives. Therefore the troop decided to hold a collection drive in which they collection donations to restock and update the children's therapy room and play center. Those donations included educational games, arts and crafts materials, therapy dress-up play station items, stuffed animals, and also butterfly-themed decorations for the newly painted room. The girls finished their project by delivering, cleaning, organizing and setting up the room to provide a fun, interactive, and inviting atmosphere.

Congratulations to Lorilei Near, Dominique Stumbaugh, Faith Torres and Amina Walker for their much-deserved Silver Award. So many victims of domestic violence will surely benefit from your hard work and dedication. And of course special thanks to your leaders who helped make this possible.

PET OF THE WEEK

CHA-CHA: Animal ID #A4433503

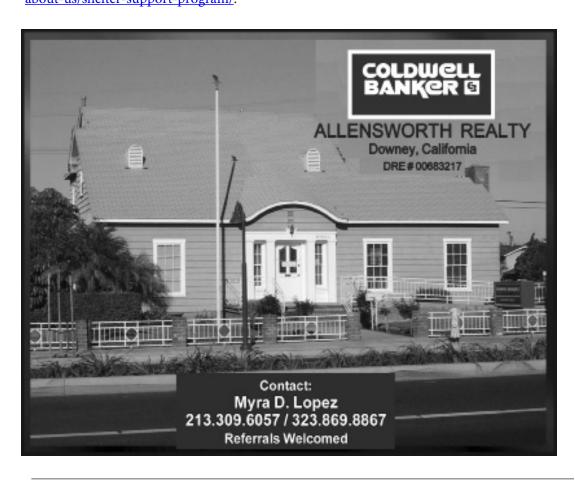

Meet a friendly puppy that will dance her way right into your heart, Cha-Cha (A4433603). Cha-Cha is a mellow one and one half year old black and fawn female German Shepherd mix who was jettisoned at the Baldwin Park Animal Care Center on May 23rd because her former owner moved and made no provision for their dog. Weighing forty-six pounds, this well behaved girl walks okay on the leash and is very well socialized.

Good with other dogs, we think she will be very good with children. Cha-Cha is a gem of a dog that will make an outstanding indoor pet and companion for a family living in a private home. To watch a video of the beautiful Cha-Cha, please visit: www.youtube. com/watch?v=yPjkH6GHeVc

IONROVIA - DUA

Sierra Madre-Pasadena-Altadena-

PLANNING COMMISSIONER AND FORMER MAYOR

Eric Faith began his service with the City of Monrovia in 1974, serving on the City Council for the first 10 years and going on to serve on the Planning Commission for the following 28 years!

From 1974-1984, Eric served on the Monrovia City Council. Taking his first elected position as Mayor, he became (at that time) the youngest Mayor in the State of California. In 1984, Eric was appointed to the Planning Commission and served tirelessly until his final Planning Commission meeting on June 13, 2012.

Eric's service to the community cannot be overstated. When he came to office as an elected official in 1974, Monrovia was suffering from a downtown that was nearly vacant. Businesses could not get out of town fast enough. Change was needed and that change came in the form of a "team of three" who ran for City Council seats and won. Together they helped initiate the change that led to Monrovia becoming a City envied by many of the surrounding communities. In addition to Eric the "team of three" consisted of former Mayors Bob Bartlett and Pat Ostrye.

Both Bob and Pat were in attendance at Eric's last meeting, each taking the podium to share a few fun and meaningful memories of their time as the "team of three." Steve Baker, City Treasurer and Monrovia City Historian, read a letter that elaborated on the impact Eric has had on the community. We ALL wish Eric the best. He leaves a very big void to fill.

Congratulations to Eric and a big thank you from the current and past City Employees who had the privilege to work with him.

On Wednesday, the official ground-breaking ceremony for the new stadium at Duarte High school was held. Dr. Terry Nichols, Superintendent welcomed all present and acknowledged all the above-mentioned dignitaries, Brian Mejia from Supervisor Antonovich's office, and Kristi Lopez from Assemblyman Portantino's office. He said that today was a "dream come true," and the "beginning of a new era."

The keynote speaker was School Board President Reyna Diaz. Ms. Diaz told everyone this project happened because of the vision of School Board member, Frank Figueroa. She spoke of the hard work of many people. The principals stayed after school and worked for hours. These were tough economic times; families didn't have a lot of money. But the entire community was able to see the wonderful vision entire community was able to see the wonderful vision and the property tax, Measure E was approved by the woters. There also was mention of past school board member, Ed Fergusson. (He and his wife Helen are the parents of Council Member Margaret Finlay.) While Ed was on the school board, back in 1997, the First

Bond Issue was passed.
School Board Vice President Ken Bell said this is a "Day of Celebration" and Duarte will have the "Best stadium in the San Gabriel Valley."

School Board Member Frank Figueroa felt that "On this great day of celebration, we need to reflect on the Frank went on to acknowledge "Ed Fergusson who had a vision how great Duarte could be. He has been a mentor, doesn't take credit, not in the limelight."

Brian Mejia from Supervisor Mike Antonovich's office came up to the platform and presented a Certificate, followed by Kristi Lopez from Assemblyman Portantino's office, Kristi called up a cheerleader, football player and band member to accept the Certificate. They were thrilled.

Dr. Nichols then introduced the Construction Team and gave an overview of the entire project. The crew includes Mr. Brad Patterson, Senior Director, DUSD; WLC Architects, Inc., represented by Don Rice; Vanir Construction Management, Inc., represented by Moshir Kellada; and Contractor, Bryon Davey Construction, represented by John Peris.

Dr. Nichols relayed that the stadium is only the first phase of projects from Measure E and should be complete in 2013. Other projects include a new cafeteria and locker room facilities for Northview Middle School, a new building for Maxwell, new environmental science lab, a new weight room, remodeled woodshop and new culinary arts room.

ALVERNO HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS CELEBRATE BACCALAUREATE MASS

Forty-five seniors celebrate their last mass as Alverno students

Sierra Madre, CA (June 14, 2012) - After their last week of finals and the celebration of their "Senior Farewell" the previous week, the Alverno seniors celebrated the annual Baccalaureate Mass at St. Rita's Church in Sierra Madre on Thursday, June 7.

The mass was officiated by Father Ken Deasy of the Holy Child As-sociation and featured Azure Antoinette as the keynote speaker. Azure, a performance poet previously commissioned by Maria Shriver and Oprah Winfrey for "O Magazine," addressed the graduates and shared her own personal journey and experiences with the audience. She spoke of trials, tribulations, and the ultimate successes that each of the graduates would face. Azure concluded her address with a poem that she had composed especially for the Alverno Class of 2012.

In addition to the address made by Azure, this year's Baccalaureate Mass featured two special songs from the Class of 2012. The first song, "Count on Me" by Bruno Mars was sung by the entire senior class in recognition of their theme for the year and the second song was an original composition of senior Annela Flores. Annela's song also touched upon the theme of "count on me" and recounted many of the memories the seniors had made over their past four years at

The Baccalaureate Mass concluded with the presentation of awards and honor cords by Ann Gillick, Head of School; Julia Fanara, Assistant Head of School; and Cameron Gonzales, Dean of Students. Awards presented at Baccalaureate included the Archdiocese of Los Angeles Christian Service Award, Father Joaquin Masmitja Award for Lifetime Service, lifetime member-ship in the California Scholarship Federation, and lifetime membership in the National Honor Society.

In total, thirteen Alvernoseniors were presented with the Father Joaquin Masmitja Award for Lifetime Service. Over their past four years at Alverno, these thirteen young women completed more than 6,102 hours of service in their local communities. Aliza Mariano, also one of the Sa-lutatorians, was recognized with the Archdiocese of Los Angeles Christian Service Award for her shining example of generosity and service. Thirteen were recognized aslifetime members of both the California Scholarship Federation and National Honor Society; six girls were recognized as lifetime members of the California Scholarship Federation; and one was recognized as a lifetime member of the National Honor Society.

The evening ended with the first Baccalaureate Ball, hosted by Azure Antoinette, in the Villa del Sol d'Oro on Alverno's campus. Graduates and their families were treated to dinner, dessert, and dancing at the event as well as a showing of a special memory video made for the senior class. Seniors were gifted with a collection of inspirational quotes compiled by Maria Shriver and a copy of a book edited by Azure entitled, "If the World Were My

"Tonight, our seniors celebrated their last liturgy as Alverno students, tomorrow, they will be graduating and beginning new journeys in the world. I am confident in the young women they have become and have demonstrated this in their academic and service commitments. Tonight, more than half of them were recognized for these accomplishments and their true epitome of Alverno's mission of empowering each young woman to be exactly the person she wants to be," said Ann Gillick, Head of School.

THANK YOU!

In second grade you picked me up every Tuesday after school and took me to Six Flags, playing 'Two Tickets to Paradise' loud on the radio, because we had season passes – best birthday present ever. You have driven me thousands and thousands of miles across this country, visiting everywhere from Seattle to Little Suamico, WI to Spavinaw, OK, taking me on endless adventures whether we planned on them or not. And I can proudly say I have been to thirty-four states as of now, excluding Hawaii to which I haven't yet been to with you. In first grade you helped me write my sentences (Barn in the USA) even when I protested.

You took me to ice skating lessons and bought me Ruffles Sour cream and cheddar chips at the end of every lesson, sometimes with a warm cup of hot cocoa. You have supported me in whatever I have chosen to pursue, whether it be cross country, softball (7 years), volleyball, water polo, drama, Mock Trial, or dance. You annoy the crap out of me half the time, but despite that you are pretty cool. You have endlessly fought for me and given everything for me. You are the most awesome, awardwinning, potato-pounding father ever.

I LOVE YOU! LET'S GO PATRIOTS!

ST. RITA LAUNCHES JUNIOR KINDERGARTEN PROGRAM

Registration is now open for admission into the new Junior Kindergarten program at St. Rita School for the 2012-2013 academic year. The full-day program, available to 4 and 5-year olds, will prepare students for classroom routines with plenty of time for free-exploration.

The developmentally-based curriculum is designed for the "early 5-year old" who is ready to move beyond preschool. Teacher-directed and child-initiated activities will prepare students for kindergarten and foster development in the areas of language, math, literacy, imaginative play, social awareness, construction, technology, art and music.
"We're delighted to fill this long-standing need in our community," said Principal Joanne Harabedian. "We are looking forward to launching a program that will bridge the transition from nursery school to formal schooling, while focusing on the children's social, physical and cognitive

The Junior program's day is from 8am to 3pm with afterschool care available. Enrollment packets are available in the school office for students who will be 4 1/2 by September of this year. Contact the school office at (626) 355-6114 for more information.

St. Rita School, located at 322 N. Baldwin Ave. in Sierra Madre, is a Catholic parish school, ranked fourth in the Los Angeles Diocese, with a focus on faith, stewardship and academic excellence.

"I've been in education for 12 years and here in Sierra Madre since 2007. It's such a pleasure to work with the people here in my own community and see my students accomplish their goals throughout the school year. Now that school's out, I have the opportunity to teach skills that will benefit my students in whatever they are doing," explains Sally Morrison, learning specialist and owner of Mindspring Educa-

Mindspring's three-course, three-week program will run Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. until noon. Three sessions will be offered this year with the first one starting June 18.

Students can choose to take one, two, or three classes per session. Signing up for more than one session will benefit kids even more as the small class sizes allow them to progress at their own pace throughout the summer. Handwriting, Typing, and Journalism classes engage students in some of the most important tools for communicating their ideas.

BEING: THE BOTTOM LINE by Nathan Gill

Spiritual' dialogues usually aim to guide the seeker towards enlightenment, towards escape from identification as a suffering individual. In Being: The Bottom Line, however, Nathan Gill points out that 'enlightenment' only appears significant from the viewpoint of 'me' - it's only the story of 'me' that requires enlightenment. Your true nature is Being, and Being is already all that is (even when there is seeming ignorance of that), with no requirements whatsoever.

CAG Philosophy How Children Learn to Draw

The teaching philosophy of Nurturing the Natural Development of Young Children's Drawing has been the basis of Creative Arts Group's drawing and painting classes for 6-9 year old children since its inception in 1960. Children's drawing goes through a natural progression of stages. Just as a child crawls before he walks, or is given time to do simple arithmetic before going on to more complex problems, it is very important to let a child's drawing develop slowly in his or her own

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS:

Review By Sean Kayden

THE TALLEST MAN ON EARTH

Swedish folk singer Kristian Matsson who performs under the moniker, "The Tallest Man on Earth," has often been compared to Bob Dylan for his nasal, twangy, scraping vocals. While similarities are continually bestowed by critics, The Tallest Man On Earth has released "There's No Leaving Now", a narrower but equally as potent record to his two previous ones. Admittedly so, I'm not too keen on his previous work, but I am aware of the realm he works in. Despite prior acclaim and recognition, I've decided to leap into this latest album as a relative newcomer. With that being duly noted, I must say the first half of the record considerably impressed me in spite of my lack of interest in his previous material. It's toward the second half things get a bit shaky and stale where my interest quickly grows fainter. While many diehard fans may not take a liking to the purer sound and more straightforward approach, I found it to be reasonably suitable. "There's No Leaving Now" is an often exquisite, striking, and poignant album, but runs out of stream in Label:

This is the sort of easy listening type of album. Like many artists in his ilk, the lyrics can either mean so much to the listener or have no significant meaning whatsoever. I enjoy the sounds and laid back tempo of most of the songs as opposed to becoming spellbound with anything Matsson is proclaiming. Opening track, "To Just Grow Away," is an immensely beautiful vintage folk tune. It's followed by the wonderment that's "Revelation Blues". Matsson sounds different, speaking a bit faster and the higher tempo sound is a real treat. It's one of the strongest tracks the record has to offer and it's extremely peaceful and soothing even though the lyrics seem to be about a horse. The title track is beautifully sung over a delicate piano. I don't always follow what Matsson is trying to say, but just hearing him speak is enough enlightenment for me. Regardless of what the stories unfold, most of his music is lovely and comforting.

Like I previously mentioned, "There's No Leaving Now" stumbles to the finish line. It's far from egregious, but rather inadequate. The record kicks off valiantly and magnificently. Unfortunately, it drifts away from its greatness when we get in the concluding stages. "Criminals" is too bland even if it sounds comparable to some of the other tracks found here. The closing track, "On Every Page" doesn't quite do the trick. It's tedious, one-dimensional, and rather dull. Maybe others will find enjoyment, but these few final lackluster songs put a damper on what could have been an outstanding record. If this album were a two-act play, we'd be amazed with the opening first act and disappointed with what's to come in the end. My words of advice are to attend the wedding (first half) and sit out the funeral (second half). You wont be missing all that much.

Key Tracks: "To Just Grow Away", "Revelation Blues", "Leading Me Now", "There's No Grade: 7.4 out of 10 Leaving Now"

GENTLE LEASH ON LIFE

As a dog-walker and pet sitter, I have had many clients ask me which is the best type of collar or lead to use for walking their dog. Well, to be completely honest, I am hesitant to respond to that question with full confidence until I get to know their dog on a personal level. There are so many dog walking and training collar & lead products on the market these days, each with their own specified (even patented) technique confusing and rather overwhelming to select leash is removed. levels of human bonding and obedience. If you take a little time and effort to choose the right tools, you are bound to find a match in the mix eventually. I do not claim to be an expert on the subject, however I do know that each dog has it's own specific needs and it is important to use humane handling methods to meet those needs, in order to foster positive results and establish a trusting relationship with your pet. It is also important to research the philosophy behind a dog handling product before putting it to use. Having read several articles and doing a little research of my own, I came up with a list of collar types that would most likely be found at the local pet supply store today, in hopes of informing and helping you select the proper lead product for your beloved canine companion. Be aware that this list is just a good start. It does not include every single product available in today's market, and the descriptions are brief, so you will want to research each product more specifically in consideration of your own dog's needs before making a final selection.

Buckle Collars: These are collars that are simply fastened with a buckle. They are typically made of nylon or leather, and are either flat or rolled. Most buckle collars are adjustable, but do not tighten on the dog's neck once fastened. Rolled leather collars, although more expensive, tend to fit more comfortably. Adjustable nylon collars are recommended for growing pups. For the owner whose dog does not pull to the point of choking and gagging and who also responds well when learning commands, the buckle collar works fine.

Body Harness: Harnesses were originally responds to you, of that I am sure!

designed for sled dogs. Pulling is the reaction of about 99% of dogs placed on harnesses, so unless the goal is to teach a dog to pull, it is worthless as a training tool. I recommend the harness as a dog seatbelt. A leash with a solid brass or steel clip strapped around the back of the seat and fastened to the harness makes a great restraint for a dog that might otherwise crash into the windshield upon impact.

Break-away Collars: A special quick-release collar that will unfasten if a strong pull is placed on the collar. However, the collar will not unfasten when attached to a leash. This collar was designed after the inventor's dog choked to death because its collar got caught on something.

Choke Chains / Slip Collars: Metal choke chains are still being used as a training tool in traditional methods, where the dog is corrected by a quick snap of the leash if he doesn't obey a command. Slip collars are similar, except they are made of soft materials such as nylon or cotton. These types of collars should never be left on an and philosophy, that it can be somewhat unattended dog, and always removed when the

the proper product for your pet. With so many types of collars available today, there are equally e-collars by advocates, and shock collars by numerous types of dogs, at various developmental detractors, these devices deliver an electrical stimulus causing pain to the dog when given a correction. It is my experience, when evaluating most dogs who have been trained using shock devices, that these collars can destroy a dog's selfconfidence. I would never use nor do I advocate the use of shock collars as an obedience training

> Head Halters: Head Halters are the latest in politically correct, morally proper tools that feed into owners' desire to treat their canine companions humanely. The halter is very effective in achieving compliance and obedience without excessive restraint, however some feel that the dog's personality is somewhat marginalized by its use. I personally feel this tool works better than most in controlling a dog's tendency to pull,

> without choking.
> Prong or Pinch Collars: These collars may seem like a kind of medieval torture device, but they are actually humane when used properly. They should definitely be used for training "neck insensitive" dogs only.

> I want to make it clear that this article is not meant to advocate the use of any particular collar type over another. A sincere, caring pet owner takes the time to try and understand how his or her dog(s) thinks, learns and bonds with human beings and the best candidate to determine which product works best for their pet is his owner. No training equipment can ever take the place of a strong, mutually respectful relationship between a dog and his master. Finally, do be gentle and loving in the way that you treat your dog and your dog will be gentle and loving in how he

A NEW WAY INTO ORBIT

There's a new way to get a spacecraft into orbit, and it's a lot cheaper than the old. You just attach it to the bottom of an airplane, fly up to 39,000 feet, drop it, turn on its rocket engine, and it's off!

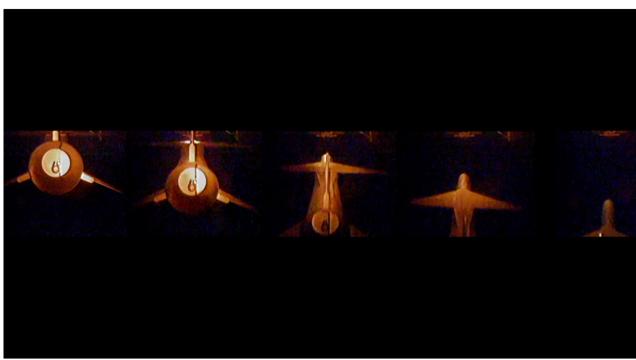

That's exactly what NASA did on June 13. when an orbiting X-ray observatory named NuSTAR was boosted into orbit from the skies above Kwajalein Atoll in the central Pacific Ocean, launched from a rocket carried by an Orbital Science Corporation L-1011 "Stargazer" plane.

When the L-1011 released its payload—a Pegasus XL rocket, also from Orbital Science—it was allowed to free-fall for about 5 seconds, then ignited, and propelled NuSTAR into space. A video showing a previous Pegasus launch is online at: http://www.nasa. gov/multimedia/videogallery/index. html?collection id=80521

About 13 minutes after the initial release from the Stargazer, NuSTAR separated from the Pegasus rocket's third stage. At this point, NuSTAR was in its final orbit—a low-Earth equatorial orbit at an altitude of approximately 340 miles and an inclination of six degrees. When NuSTAR separated from the Pegasus, the satellite's system that controls its orientation in space, or "attitude," began to stabilize it, and the spacecraft solar arrays were deployed.

Roughly one week after launch, engineers will command NuSTAR to deploy its lengthy 33-foot (10-meter) boom, allowing the telescope to focus X-ray light into crisp images. Unlike visible-light telescopes, X-ray telescopes require a long distance between the mirrors and detectors to focus the light. Science operations are expected to begin about 30 days after launch.

Why launch from the air? Airplane-assisted launches are significantly less expensive than those that take place from the ground. Less fuel is needed to boost cargo away from the pull of Earth's gravity. NuSTAR is part of NASA's Small Explorer program, which builds focused science missions at relatively low costs.

A DAY TO REMEMBER (see related photos/caption below)

I hope many of you were able to personally watch the passage of Planet Venus across the face of the Sun on Tuesday, June 5. It was a memorable afternoon, and although I didn't have a telescope available, I was able to glimpse the transit through a piece of welder's glass. Even without magnification, it was a thrill to see the tiny black silhouette of Venus against the bright Sun.

High above the Los Angeles Basin, some 25 amateur telescopes were set up in the parking lot of Mount Wilson Observatory that day, for the pleasure of the visiting public, and the entire Venus transit from 3:06 p.m. until sunset was webcast around the world from Mount Wilson, thanks to the international organization Astronomers Without Borders and the sponsorship of 20th Century

And if you missed this Venus transit, the planet's orbit will eventually carry it across the face of the Sun again—but you will have to wait 105 years! Perhaps your grandchildren will see that event...and Mount Wilson Observatory will no doubt still be there to welcome them!

You can contact Bob Eklund at: b.eklund@MtnViewsNews.com.

smoking if the tumors sprouted privacy disclosures don't put emotional distress either. But single day and it could possibly number of disclosures, harm is inevitable. We've all heard the The terms of this agreement stories about people who've been fired because they set the any time, with or without the wrong privacy flag on that post where they blew off on-thejob steam. The risks increase as we disclose more, something that the design of our social media conditions us to do.

When you start out your life in a new social network, you are rewarded with social reinforcement as your old friends pop up and congratulate you on arriving at the party. Subsequent disclosures generate further rewards, but not that's like the old system, except always. Some disclosures seem like bombshells to you ("I'm getting a divorce") but produce only virtual cricket chirps to their already inscrutable from your social network. And yet seemingly insignificant communications ("Does my butt look big in these jeans?") can produce a torrent of responses.

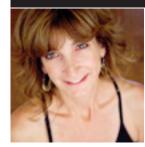

> Behavioral scientists have a name for this dynamic: "intermittent reinforcement." It's one of the most powerful behavioral training techniques we know about. Give a lab rat a lever that produces a food pellet on demand and he'll only press it when he's hungry. Give him a lever that produces food pellets at random intervals, and he'll keep pressing it forever.

THE JOY OF YOGA

THE FOUR PILLARS OF WELLBEING

By Rene Quenell, Founder/Owner Yoga Madre - Sierra Madre

The tradition of yoga says that there are 4 pillars to our wellbeing. The first is a good diet consisting of foods that are sattvic, (steady, calm and peaceful) or in other words, nutritious, easy to digest, home-cooked and made with love. If your food is made with love - that love can be absorbed in your system. If your food is easy to digest, then it doesn't use as much of your vital energy trying to process it and the nutrients are more easily assimilated.

The second pillar is who you are hanging around with. It is important that we surround ourselves with others that are on the path of growth. We need to choose our friends and choose wisely. If we are hanging around with drama we will have to work twice as hard to keep from buying into it. Better to just stay away and focus on what is good. Keep company with those who have realized some measure of truth.

The third pillar is pranayama, or properly regulating the otherwise irregular and hurried breath. The aim of pranayama (breath exercises) is to gain control over the nervous system. By learning to regulate the breath we can learn to regulate the mind - our fourth pillar.

Asana practices (yoga poses) are designed to help us learn to breathe. We learn to breathe in challenging situations. Learning to breathe then enables us to control our minds and the thoughts we think. Our mind tells us how to feel. So we need to train the mind to create the life we want. When we can do this – we can choose happiness.

Sounds easy, right? It takes discipline. But there is only one place to start – the beginning. "Don't worry. Be Happy."

HOW TO CREATE AN ETHICAL WILL

Dear Savvy Senior:

What can you tell me about ethical wills? My wife and I had to make some minor adjustments to our legal will last month, and our attorney suggested we create an ethical will as a way to explain our intentions and express our thoughts and feelings. We are interested in doing this but could use some help. What can you tell me? Planning Ahead

Dear Planning:

An ethical will can be a valuable complement to your legal will, as well as a wonderful gift to your family or other loved ones. Here's what you should know along with some tips to help you make one.

Ethical Wills

Unlike a last will and testament, which tells your loved ones (and the legal world) what you want them to have, an ethical will (which is not a legal document) tells them what you want them to know.

With an ethical will, you can share with your loved ones your feelings, wishes, regrets, gratitude and advice, as well as explain the elements in your legal will, give information about the money and possessions you're passing on, and anything else you want to communicate.

Usually no more than a few pages, the process of writing an ethical will can actually be quite satisfying. But be careful that you don't contradict any aspects of your legal will or estate

And, if you're having trouble with the writing, there are professional ethical will writers you can hire to help you, or you can speak your wishes into a voice recorder or have someone video record you.

Where to Start

To craft an ethical will, start by jotting down some notes about what's really important to you and what you want your loved ones to know. Take your time, and remember that you're not trying to write for the Pulitzer Prize. The letter is a gift of yourself, written for those you love.

After you've gathered your thoughts you can start drafting your letter. You can also revise or rewrite it anytime you want. And for safekeeping, keep your ethical will with your other legal documents in a secure location but be sure your executor has access to it. A safe-deposit box or fireproof filing cabinet or safe in your home is a good choice.

Get Help

If you need some help, there are lots of resources available like ethicalwill.com which offers practical information, examples of ethical wills, and lots of materials you can purchase to help you put one together, including the second edition of "Ethical Wills: Putting Your Values on Paper" by Barry Baines, M.D for $16.

Another good resource is Personal Legacy Advisors (personallegacyadvisors.com), a company that offers coaching, editing, writing and/or audio or video recording ethical wills. Prices will vary depending on the services you choose. They also sell a do-it-yourself guidebook "The Wealth of Your Life: A Step-by-Step Guide for Creating Your Ethical Will" by Susan Turnbull for $20.

You can also find help through the Association of Personal Historians. This is a trade association that offers a nationwide directory of professionals who can help you create an ethical will, memoir or a personal history. Visit personalhistorians.org to find help in your area.

You also need to know that many people choose to share their ethical will with their family and friends while they're still living so they can enjoy their reactions, while others think it should be read after their death. It's up to you.

HOMES & PROPERTY

One Of A Kind: Featuring unique homes and gardens and the people who create them Story and Photos by Chris Bertrand.

PASADENA PATIO

The Laing family is well known as a longtime building materials supplier to the San Gabriel Valley. Their L and L Building Materials company (www.LLBMI.com) has provided masonry, plastering, and landscaping products for contractors and homeowners from their Irwindale headquarters since 1993.

As an outgrowth of their flagstone, pavers, manufactured stone offerings, they began to serve the increased local demand for upscale outdoor kitchens and living spaces. When the interest and market for outdoor fireplaces, built-in barbecue stations and patio living continued to increase into demand for a coordinated, well designed space that seamlessly extended the style and quality of the interior appointments, Pasadena Patio (www.Pasadena-Patio.com) was conceived.

Located at 78 S. Rosemead, almost across from the DMV, Pasadena Patio opened its doors just six months ago as an extended family, joint venture between in-laws, the Laings and the Manager, Ken Burrows, proudly noted that in this short time, they've already had repeat customers, who, after a first successful venture into upscale patio living, came back for a bigger second helping. "We want to be your full service, one stop outdoor living source, down to referring excellent contractors to perform the work if needed, through the Laing's years of interactions with the area's best contractors at L and L."

Burrows brings a wealth of industry expertise and entrepreneurial experience over nearly five decades to the new company. His outdoor living "pedigree" was truly a "coup" for Pasadena Patio, as was his extensive network in the Pasadena-San Gabriel Valley area, since he's born and bred here, and was even President of The Tournament of Roses.

One of the owners, David Laing, reflected that Burrows' extensive work at Brown Jordan, a luxury outdoor furniture manufacturer, and his codevelopment of Terra (www.TerraFurniture.com), a casual and outdoor furniture and accessories manufacturing company, in City of Industry, provided the perfect blend of knowledge and creativity.

"Every major manufacturer in this industry has immense respect for Ken Burrows," said Laing. "It has opened many doors for us," he continued, "to become much more than just another patio or casual furniture store. We've become the WOW factor patio store," he chuckled.

Laing and Burrows find that many consumers who want to customize their outdoor living with beautiful choices from the nine upscale lines they carry, like Viking, Lynx and Tropitone, etc., are simply overwhelmed by the color, fabric and frame choices.

That's where our design service comes in," said Burrows. "Our customers love being able to get design advice right in their home from our in house designer, Ginger Evans at no additional charge. She brings extensive experience from a number of top Orange County casual living stores, including as manager of the amazing Rogers Gardens. She is an integral part of our design team."

"If you already have a designer, we provide courtesy to the design trade, as well, so please consider us the headquarters for fleshing out the outdoor living chapter of your remodel!" encouraged Burrows.

One of the major local country clubs has also given the thumbs up to Pasadena Patio, as well, contracting them to replace all their outdoor Ken Burrows, top, at Pasadena Patio - 78 S. Rosemead, Pasadena. furniture this year.

One of the favorite "gotta have" products Pasadena Patio offers is the Big Green Egg (www.BigGreenEgg.com), a smoker, cooker and even an oven for cakes, available in several sizes. Burrows laughed about an experience he had selling the product recently. An oral surgeon came in saying she didn't need the Big Green Egg, as she already had two barbecues at her Orange Grove condo in Pasadena. But... she'd just had dinner at the home of a prominent country club general manager, and couldn't get over the taste and juiciness of a wide array of smoked/ baked foods prepared in the Egg. I just have to have one!"

Another unique item is the "Balance" patio umbrella with fingertip control to raise, lower and adjust the angle to any level. Balance was designed by a German engineer, and manufactured by the company Burrows co-founded, Terra.

"The pricing is amazingly close to the high quality traditional umbrellas we offer," reflected Burrows. "The ease of control is very attractive, especially for locations requiring changes in the umbrella angle for optimal shade, throughout the day. Anyone who has struggled with opening or closing a nine or eleven foot umbrella will easily attest that this uniquely engineered product is a real find!" Visit Pasadena Patio at 78 S. Rosemead in Pasadena or on the web at www.Pasadena-Patio.com.

Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed

by Luther Tsinoglou Realtor®

DON'T TRY THIS AT HOME

When you hear that someone managed to sell a home without representation, it's likely that the sale was to a family member, close friend, or a tenant who was already renting and living there. These exceptional cases are not the norm, and there are powerful reasons why it is so difficult to make a sale

The biggest roadblock is that For Sale By Owners (FSBOs) aren't included in the Multiple Listing Service (MLS) that licensed agents and organizations use. A sign in the yard and an ad in the newspaper are no match for the widespread exposure gained from a listing visible on the MLS.

Since the FSBO has no listing agreement providing for a sales commission, many agents won't show these homes with no promise of compensation. Again, this greatly reduces the number of potential buyers exposed to the offering, not to mention the fact that buyers who do express interest will not have been screened by a professional to determine their qualifications.

Perhaps the most hazardous aspect of selling "by owner" is the potential for legal oversights and complications. Real estate transactions are loaded with potential liability for unrepresented and unwitting sellers. One overlooked form or improper disclosure could generate an expensive lawsuit.

Just as you wouldn't enter the courtroom without an attorney, you shouldn't sell your home without professional representation.

Luther has been licensed and practicing real estate since 1992. He specializes in residential and income property in the Greater San Gabriel Valley. CREATIVITY AND QUALITY - A WINNING COMBINATION

Are you an entrepreneur who wants to stay at the front of the pack and steps ahead of the competition in your industry? If so, you can benefit by simply offering customers a unique experience with quality that is

Identifying and honing in on at least one thing that distinguishes you from your competitors can add to your bottom line. More than twenty years ago, news articles and celebrity interviews touted a most unique duck sausage pizza that was being served at Wolfgang Puck's Restaurant in Beverly Hills. Pizza was not new to the Southern California palette, but this celebrity chef was at the forefront of ushering in the age of designer pizza pies. Barbeque and chicken have been part of the human experience for thousands of years, but the merging of the two atop pizza dough was a anomaly until the mid-1980's.

Being different can help create a fascination, a curiosity that may prompt a new wave of customers to make their way to your door with money in hand. Zelo's Pizza in Arcadia puts a slightly different twist on an old concept with a creative individual ingredients not unique, but along with some familiar ingredients like pepperoni and sausage, their tasty, eclectic topping combos places them solidly in the gourmet pizza category.

The majority of new products are rarely new, most are created by taking existing items or concepts and combining them in a different way. For example, fruit baskets have morphed into revenues of almost $200 million first Edible Arrangements Store in Hamden, Connecticut. They used fresh fruit in the place of several existing concepts, gift baskets, fruit, carving techniques and delivery services. Not only are the baskets eye-catching, but also they are tasty. They began franchising the concept the business had grown to more and thinking outside of the box than 1,100 locations in the U.S. and five other countries.

Despite the many angst about adaptation of the dough. Their signature cornmeal pizza crust players provide examples of solid serves as the foundation for combinations of toppings that are unique, like sweet corn

Mac® prepared by a McDonalds kernels and mozzarella. The in Duarte, California will taste are the same as sold from one of their franchises at an airport in New York. A business might gain an advantage by offering something new and different, but customers must be able to trust that they will get the same experience each time they spend money with you. It is important to establish standards for what you want your customers to experience. Then, identify each of the major processes that lead to a customer purchase; quality a year from a concept launched of what you sell (inventory), by brothers Tariq and Kamran shopping experience (website Farid. In 1990 they opened the and online store or physical location and customer service) and pricing (discount, average or high-end). Survey your flowers to create arrangements repeat customers to determine in baskets. Caterers and chefs have been carving fruit into if they have any suggestions interesting shapes for decades, about how to improve their but the Farid brothers took it experience with you. Review to another level by combining the feedback to determine where the suggestions might be applied to your QA process.

It's often the simple things that can result in the greatest benefits. Deciding what to offering customer that is unique in 2001 and by the end of 2011, is a matter of brainstorming about opportunities that are right in front of you.

OMG! OH MY GOSH DID YOU KNOW.....

by Patricia Richardson, M.B.A., Intuit Certified ProAdvisor

I do not usually upgrade my QuickBooks to the newest version every year. That is not to say that I don't have every version because I do, dating back to 1999. As a QuickBooks Certified ProAdvisor I am required to have every version so that I can help my clients with their QuickBooks problems. So as you can see I probably have each version on at least one of my computers. What I am saying is that I don't upgrade my data file to the new version each year.

However, I just have to let everyone know that I have just upgraded to QuickBooks 2012 and I love it. Besides the new Lead Center that I discussed in last week's article, there is also a new calendar - think "Outlook" - users can choose to view a calendar layout of a company's important transactions (invoice, billing, to-dos), as well as overdue transactions, tasks to be completed and appointments. QuickBooks 2012 also allows you to drill down into transactions from this screen or create To Do's (such as appointments, and the application now allows you to specify the exact time). Past due transactions are automatically flagged.

You can access the calendar from either the Home Page (Company section) or the Company drop down menu. Until now there has never been one central place to see important dates and schedules (including the time of day!) in a company. Filing dates and due dates can now be kept inside QuickBooks for authorized persons to view, as opposed to recording them on an external calendar. The Alerts feature that indicates the overdue status of transactions can help keep a company's cash flow positive.

On another note the IRS says beware of Phish Scams.

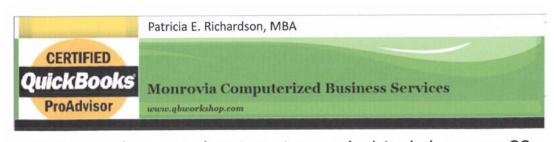

Nov. 10, 2011 — A suspected phishing email on the Employer Identification Number (EIN), claiming to come from the IRS Office of Professional Responsibility, is currently circulating. This email was not sent by the IRS. For more information, see "Latest News from Office of Professional Responsibility (OPR)" at www.IRS.gov.

The IRS does not send unsolicited emails to taxpayers about their tax accounts, tax situations or personal tax issues. If you receive such an email, most likely it's a scam. IRS impersonation schemes flourish during filing season. These schemes may take place via phone, fax, Internet sites, social networking sites and particularly email.

Many impersonations are identity theft scams that try to trick victims into revealing personal and financial information that can be used to access their financial accounts. Some email scams contain attachments or links that, when clicked, download malicious code (a virus) that infects your computer or direct you to a bogus form or site that is presented as a genuine IRS form or web site.

Some impersonations may be commercial Internet sites that consumers unknowingly visit, thinking they're accessing the genuine IRS website, www.IRS.gov. However, such sites have no connection to the IRS.

WHAT IS MARKETING?

You have a business. You have a web site. You have a Facebook page. You tweet and send emails. You YouTube and you are LinkedIn. Are you marketing?

As business owners, we all know we need to do "marketing." But, do we really know and understand what that is. A while back I asked some business owners their definition of marketing. One of the best answers came from our good friend and printer, Jerry (printingcontrol.net). He said, "in order to understand what marketing is, you need to understand the difference between sales and marketing. 'Sales' is when you are calling on your prospects. 'Marketing' is when your prospects are calling on you because they heard

Social media and email marketing is often called relationship and/or top-of-mind marketing. Staying connected with people who are important to your business keeps you present in their mind. If you make it easy for people to remember you, they will think of you the next time they need your product or service or when they are asked for a referral. This doesn't mean constantly posting "buy my stuff" messages on Facebook. We've found that just liking, commenting, listening and participating in social media helps remind people we're still here.

I read a study once that said we are all hit with over 3,000 marketing messages a day. Think of all the billboards, radio announcements, signs, bumper stickers, web pages, images and emails that go into our brains every day. Don't you want your message to be in there

Staying in touch and messaging is only half of the marketing equation. If you don't have anyone to share your message with, you just have words. Marketing is also about building quality lists of people who want to stay in touch with you because they like you and your product and services. Build your lists on their terms. Some will prefer some of the social media tools and some may prefer emails. Don't let your own preference get in the way of where your followers prefer to be. When you adjust to their needs and preferences, you are connecting with them on their terms. Isn't this what good customer service is all about.

There are many tools that build lists; they just take different forms. In Facebook you build "likes" and "friends." In Twitter, you build "followers." In LinkedIn, you build "connections." If you use email marketing, you build a list of email addresses.

If business is a little slow for you right now, you might work on "getting list rich." Attend live networking events, join the chamber, attend meetings and exchange business cards. As you do, ask people if they would like to join your email list, let them know how often you send and what you send. Ask them if they would like to stay connected on social media, ask which one they prefer. Build your lists at every touch point of your business day. List building is an on-going process. Go for quality, not quantity.

If you are using Facebook and Constant Contact, cross promote. When you send out an email, encourage people to join your conversation on Facebook. On Facebook, add a "join my email list" tab to your page. In 2011, Constant Contact found that 1 million people joined their customer's emails through Facebook. (To add the custom Constant Contact tab, go to facebook.com/ctctjmml._

My definition of marketing is....Building a quality list of people and staying top of mind with interesting messages so they think of you when they need your product or service.

What's your definition? If you want to share it, please post your ideas at www.facebook. com/hutdogs.

SOUTHERN COPS DO HAVE A WAY WITH WORDS!

A friend sent me this. It's hilarious. I thought I'd share it with you. This not a work of fiction. These are actual comments made by South Carolina Troopers that were taken off their car videos. Have a good laugh. I did. However, if you're from the South I offer the following standard journalistic disclaimer:

The names, characters, places and the incidents described herein are not products of the anyone's imagination and are not used fictitiously. Any resemblance to actual events or locales or persons, living or dead, is entirely intentional. In other words, don't waste your money trying to sue me for libel because what follows is the absolute truth.

- 1. "You know, stop lights don't come any redder than the one you just went through."
- 2. "Relax, the handcuffs are tight because they're new. They'll stretch after you wear them a while."
- 3. "If you take your hands off the car, I'll make your birth certificate a worthless document." (My Favorite)
- 4. "If you run, you'll only go to jail tired."
- 5. "Can you run faster than 1200 feet per second? Because that's the speed of the bullet that'll be chasing you." (LOVE IT)
- 6. "You don't know how fast you were going? I guess that means I can write anything I want to on the ticket, huh?
- 7. "Yes, sir, you can talk to the shift supervisor, but I don't think it will help. Oh, did I mention that I'm the shift supervisor?'
- 8. "Warning! You want a warning? O.K, I'm warning you not to do that again or I'll give you another ticket."
- 9. "The answer to this last question will determine whether you are drunk or not. Was Mickey Mouse a cat or a dog?"
- 10. "Fair? You want me to be fair? Listen, fair is a place where you go to ride on rides, eat cotton candy and corn dogs and step in monkey poop."
- 11. "Yeah, we have a quota. Two more tickets and my wife gets a toaster oven."
- 12. "In God we trust; all others we run through NCIC." (National Crime Information Center)
- 13. "Just how big were those 'two beers' you say you had?"
- 14. "No sir, we don't have quotas anymore. We used to, but now we're allowed to write as many tickets as we can.
- 15. "I'm glad to hear that the Chief (of Police) is a personal friend of yours. So you know someone who can post your bail."
- "You didn't think we give pretty women tickets? You're right, we don't. Sign here."

BOB JACKSON

What about Bob? I like Bob Jackson. If you know Bob, then you know why I like him. If you don't know him, you need to meet him and shortly thereafter you will also know why I like him. You will like him too.

You can typically meet Bob somewhere in the vicinity of Kersting Court. He is the bespectacled guy wearing the uniquely labeled baseball caps. Bob is a retired Cal Poly Pomona faculty member. He specialized in teaching something or other. I do know I met him across the hearts table at Beantown. What's a hearts table? A table, any table where a group of manly men and womanly women play the card game,

Bob likes to spend a good portion of his evenings holding court right outside the Starbucks in, appropriately, Kersting Court. T'was there he witnessed the Friday Movie Night for kids. This is where the city blocks off the parking on Kersting Court, erects a giant movie screen and invites children and their parents to bring lawn chairs (in this case asphalt chairs) and experience a family oriented movie. There are 3 or 4 ice cream and yogurt places to provide instant refreshments for the kids. And Lucky Baldwin's and Starbucks to provide instant refreshments for the not-kids.

Back to Bob. Bob was dismayed to learn, because of budget cuts, there would be only three Friday Night Movie opportunities. So, Bob embarked on a campaign to raise money to sponsor at least one more movie night. I know personally of his campaign to raise money...if you know what I mean. But it was worth contributing just to see the look on Bob's face when he raised the requisite amount of cash for an added movie night. If you see him out there with a request for donations, he is trying to sponsor yet another night for families. Bravo Bob.

I asked only one favor of Bob. Since he is a retired smart guy (and by all accounts still smart) I have submitted a list of long time perplexing questions I would like him to ponder and get back to me on.

Bob: Why does a round pizza come in a square box?

Bob: Why are you IN a movie, but you're ON TV?

Bob: Why does Goofy stand erect while Pluto is on all fours?

Bob: If Jimmy cracks corn & no one cares, why is there a song about it?

Bob: Why doesn't Tarzan have a beard?

Bob: Is there ever a day that mattresses are NOT on sale?

Bob: Can you cry underwater?

Bob: How come you never hear father-in-law jokes?

Bob: Why is it that plastic bags won't open from either end on your first try? Bob: If people evolved from apes, why are there still apes?

Bob: What disease did cured ham actually have?

And finally, Bob: How do those dead bugs get into enclosed light fixtures? father I cannot help thinking how much has changed since he died. If he were to return today, he would find things quite

In all reality, this is not my father's world

I might just as well say it. This is not my father's country anymore, either.

The country my father loves seems to have all but disappeared. During his time, a deep-seated patriotic pride permeated throughout our country. We were proud of what our forefathers had accomplished and we were willing to die to preserve that

Today, it seems the past is simply the past and has no bearing whatsoever on the present. This may be why history books are being rewritten today. This, however, is a fallacy encouraged by those who do not know the right hand from their left hand. In our country today, you are either far right or far left and nothing in between. Whatever happened to people with common senses

Perhaps that ancient anonymous philosopher was right when he said the problem with common sense was that it really was not that common anymore. Perhaps the demise of the common man explains this phenomenon. Or it could be that most people today have been educated be on their common sensibilities.

There was a time in my father's country when people were proud of what they did. A few tried to get money without working for it. In my father's country, there was a great deal of pride in working for what you had and not depending upon somebody with a handout. In my father's country, there was a deep sense of accomplishment in earning what you had by the sweat of your brow.

The only people sweating these days are politicians up for reelection. In my father's country, there was no such thing as arbitrary handouts but plenty of hands out. It was considered our patriotic duty to help our neighbor when they were in trouble. Nobody looked to Uncle Sam to solve his or her problems. It was a community affair not a government mandate. In fact, if the truth were known, and an evidently it is not, they stayed as far away from Uncle Sam as possible, only communicating with him once a year on April 15. In those days, they saluted the flag, recited the Pledge of Allegiance and were right proud to do so. Not one of them could imagine anybody ashamed of doing that in Today a lot is being said about the separation of church and state. My father would not understand the way some people

Celebrating are interpreting it. According to what is going on today they are trying to keep the church out of the state but make good and sure, the state runs the church. Isn't that why we had a revolution in the first place?

In my father's country, there was a separation between government control and people pursuing life, liberty and happiness. Oh, for those good old days.

Also, in my father's country baseball was a national sport, not a business. I am not quite sure when it became a business, but my father never thought it was. He often took me to the ball field on a Saturday afternoon to have fun, enjoy the game and eat the world's most delicious hotdog. At least he said they were the world's most delicious hotdogs.

Our purpose in going was just to have fun. He did his share of making fun and harassing the other team's fans but it never crossed his mind to physically beat one of them nearly to death. If I remember correctly, wedgies were the order of the

When our team won, we celebrated and high-fived everybody around us. When our team lost, we determined with everything within us to slaughter them the next week on the field. When we said "slaughter," we were talking figuratively. Credit was something my father's generation frowned on. As a young person, I had in my mind to buy a bicycle. I took my father to the store to look at that prized

"Well," my father stammered, as he looked the bike over. "How much money you've got saved for this bike?" I knew the lecture that was to follow. If you could not afford to buy something, you could not afford to have it. How many times have I heard that?

Perhaps if my father could come back for a day we could send him to Washington, .D.C and explain to them this whole idea that if you cannot afford something you cannot afford something. It seemed to make sense to me and I was only a young person at the time. I guess when you get older you lose a lot of that good common sense. Then if elected and go to Washington DC, you leave all of that good common sense back home with your constituency, which then wonders what they elected you for.

The verse of Scripture that was very important to my father was, "And let the beauty of the LORD our God be upon us: and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it" (Psalms 90:17 KJV).

It may not be the same country my father loved, but I can still operate on the same principles that made him a patriotic father, and pray, "Establish thou the work of our

the public sector when he said, "The private sector is doing fine." Within minutes of the president's press conference, though, the twitter-sphere was buzzing (tweeting?) with a new "gotcha!" for Republican operatives.

That very afternoon, Mitt Romney was asking, "Is he really that out of touch?" (The same Mitt benefits of two-parent households.)

Chances are there will be a new "gotcha!" dominating coverage by the time this column appears, but Romney promises the president's remark will "go down in history".

The president later clarified he was referring to the history of creating "3 million jobs over the last 27 months, over 800,000 just this year alone." during his governorship.

Aside from employment, there are other signs "the private sector is doing fine." According to the U.S. Commerce Department, after-tax corporate profits are at an all-time high of nearly $1.7 trillion, surpassing the pre-recession record Romney who a few weeks earlier told teachers of not-quite $1.4 trillion. Corporate profits have at an inner-city Philadelphia school of a study showing class size doesn't matter, and of the country's GDP. The Federal Reserve reports U.S. corporations are currently sitting on $1.74 trillion in liquid assets.

Under tax laws and (absence of) regulations championed by purchased Members of Congress, these profits and liquid assets are not going for hiring and business development, but for executive salaries that now average $12 million a year for the CEO of a Fortune 500 company. Romney's own history shows Massachusetts According to a recent AFL-CIO study, the ranking 47th out of 50 states in job creation average CEO of an S&P 500 Index company pulls in a salary 380 times that of the average worker; Bloomberg news went beyond the history of in 1980, the salary of the CEO of a large company the two candidates and looked at private sector was about 42 times what the average worker

BI-PARTISANSHIP AIN'T WHAT IT'S CRACKED UP TO BE

Listening to President Obama's speech today, it seems his new campaign strategy is G e o r g e to mimic Truman and run against the "do- W. nothing congress". This of course assumes decided that the Congress isn't doing anything (hence he they're doing nothing), but more importantly be that when they do something it's actually a cooperative good thing. History pretty clearly tells us with that this isn't necessarily true.

The opposite of a "do-nothing" Congress in the last is bi-partisan cooperation in which lots gets two years done. But the record pretty clearly shows of his second term. That proved to be a big that what Congress does matters more than mistake. Rather than move Congress to his anything else. This should seem like a pretty obvious statement. If Congress and the President pass a bad law, then bad things come from bi-partisanship. On the other hand, if Congress and the President pass abuse at Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, a good law, then good things happen. It's resulting in the mortgage meltdown of the what's done that matters.

economy the principal above couldn't be more true. President Reagan operated the greatest tax reductions in our country's history, and the resulting boom repaired the years of misery under Carter. Many readers may not remember the "misery index", but it point of creating the largest deficits we've was the combination of the inflation index ever seen and the largest federal debt we've and the unemployment index. Yes, both were occurring at the same time - contrary to what Keynesian economists said was possible - and many media and political elites had written America off; our best days humans tend to feel good about that. But were supposedly behind us. Reagan offered cooperation is only a means to an end. The a great solution, got cooperation from result still has to be good, or the cooperation across the aisle, and America recovered and is not beneficial at all. In fact, it can cause achieved new heights.

Bill Clinton ran into a bit of trouble with Americans when he had a Congress of his choosing - heavily Democratic. They didn't 2013, they do the right thing, and we don't do such a good job, and the Americans took all just hold hands in bi-partisan fashion and the opportunity of the mid-term elections jump off the fiscal cliff together. to give Republicans control of the Congress surpluses. Seems almost impossible to conceive of that now. They are possible, but only when economic policy moves in the right direction.

side of the political debate, he simply joined the Democrats on their side. This is bipartisanship, but it wasn't a pretty thing. We got a trillion dollar prescription drug benefit, economy, and a $700 billion TARP bailout, When it comes to the state of our among other spending orgies. The economy tanked. President Obama came into office with with a Democratic Congress to pass one a heavily sympathetic Congress and doubled down on the TARP program, government spending, and pressed Obamacare on the nation. Congress cooperated right up to the ever carried. The economy almost imploded.

In concept, cooperation seems like a good thing. If we can all just get along, there's a lot less confrontation in the air, and some pretty significant problems. Let's all hope that when Congress and the President (Obama or Romney) finally do something in
