PARENTS PREVAIL - SIERRA MADRE MIDDLE SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION TO PROCEED AS PLANNED

When the Pasadena Unified School District stopped construction on the SM Middle School, the reasons that were given just did not sit well with informed parents. After all, the project was to be funded with voter approved bond funds that were not subject to the 'axe' being welded in Sacramento. So they organized, quick-ly and let their voices be heard! As a result, earlier this week, at the PUSD Facilities Sub-Committee meeting, Bond Manager Robin Brown presented the revised Facilities Master Plan (FMP). This presentation included a big 'win' for Sierra Madre Middle School (SMMS) - the revised proposal includes ALL of the buildings as originally designed for the new Middle School campus.

This plan takes into account that the Chinese dual immersion program (currently beginning year 4 at Field Elementary) will need a middle school campus in 2 years. The new plan is for the middle school level. This has given was that SMMS would have to take the Facilities team the added incentive some cuts (like the other schools), so of making sure the school will be ready in 2 years for these students, which is that we can now work with the District,

National Parks Expert to Speak at Sierra Madre Library

If you are one of the many area residents who will travel to one or more of the 397 national parks, monuments, battlefields, and historic sites in the National Park system, then you need to start your trip at the Sierra Madre Public Library.

Christopher K. Jarvi, former Associate Director for Partnerships and Visitor Experience for the National Park Service (NPS), will share little known facts and unique personal stories at 10 A.M. on Saturday, July 14 at the Sierra Madre Public Library.

Blending his experiences with beautiful visuals of the National Parks, Jarvi will take his audience on a behind the scenes tour of our most important natural sites, relating stories of their colorful history and their future challenges. July is National Parks and Recreation Month.

Jarvi has personal ties to Sierra Madre. His mother grew up in a house on the corner of Sierra

Place and San Gabriel Court, his grandmother Ethel Davis owned the building in which the Safeway store was located, at about where Windsor Lane intersects Sierra Madre Blvd, and his uncle Loren Krabill ran the Green Frog Market, now known as Howie's Market. During his tenure with the NPS he had nationwide responsibility for Partnerships and Phi-

ASCENSION PARISHIONERS CELEBRATE COMMUNITY WHILE REMEMBERING THE PAST "MASS ON THE GRASS" SUNDAY, JULY 1ST

Episcopal Church of the Ascension, 25 East Laurel Avenue in Sierra Madre will be celebrating its annual start of summer with "Mass on the Grass" on July 1, 2012 at 10:15 a.m.

For over 20 years the community and parishioners have gathered together to celebrate a community who pulled together and restored the Church which was significantly damaged in the Sierra Madre Earthquake with an outdoor celebration as they did in 1991. It was through faith, strength and fellowship with the community that Churchgoers were able to restore the Church's nationally recognized historic structure (designed by English architect Ernest Coxhead in 1889.) The outdoor mass on the Church's beautiful grounds recognizes this accomplishment and celebrates the blessings of nature with family and friends.

"Mass on the Grass" is followed by a picnic on the Church grounds. Everyone is welcome to join us in this celebration. No reservations required.

This event makes for a wonderful family outing to meet new neighbors and check out a wonderful community church. For more information, please call (626) 355-1133 or visit: www.ascensionsierramadre.com.

City Won't Reform Police Oversight Board

By Dean Lee

Members of the Public Safety Committee told community leaders Monday they had no intention of reforming the police oversight board disbanded in 2010 for not complying with open meeting laws.

Councilmember Steve Madison and chair of the Public Safety Committee said the committee has taken over the role of the oversight board something that did not sit well with community leader Martin Gordon.

"The issue was there is no longer any community oversight, there are not people that are elected to that or appointed to that oversight board from the community who are actually reviewing police actions, whether it be complaints, use of force, etc." Gordon said. "It was stated back in 2010 that City Attorney Michele Beal Bagneris would be looking at that and would be coming forward with a new

"You're looking at the oversight board right here," Mayor Margaret McAustin said echoing earlier comments made by Madison.

The issue came up as part of a presentation given by Police Chief Phillip Sanchez on procedure involving police instances such as Kendrec McDade, the unarmed 19-year-old fatally shot by officers March 24.

McAustin said oversight in the McDade Shooting was being dealt with by the many investigations being done by outside agencies. Madison likened the situation to the Rodney King beating investigations involving the Los Angeles Police Department in 1991

Madison said it was hard to escape the comparison in the wake of King's death June 17.

VISITING THE DUARTE HISTORICAL MUSEUM

It's been several years since I took Mom to the Duarte Museum, so this past Saturday, I revisited it. If anyone loves history, wants to know how their city began, or what it was like in the "Old Days", this is the place to go!

The building itself on Encanto Drive is lovely and obviously was someone's home years ago. In the rooms, you will find pieces of antique furniture, dresses from long ago and display cabinets with all kinds of memorabilia such as tools and interesting gadgets! Among the notables, an antique thermometer with an explanation of its use, an antique magnifying glass to check for insects, cases for insect collections, an oil can used by Duarte ranchers, and tools used to stamp oranges! (Either Sunkist or lower grades!) I believe everyone knows "Duarte" was named after "Don" Andres Duarte of the Rancho Azusa de Duarte. His life began in November, 1805, when he was born at Mission San Juan Capistrano, in Alta California. When Andres was only sixteen, he joined the Mexican army and was assigned to Mission San Gabriel. (That's what brought him to our area.) As he got older, he assumed more responsibility and ultimately was responsible to protect property from San Gabriel to San Bernardino.

He loved the lush lands surrounding Rio Azusa-now the San Gabriel River. Upon his retirement from the army in 1841, he petitioned Governor Juan Alvarado for a land grant and within two weeks had acquired 6595 acres! Andres Duarte built an adobe for himself and settled with his family, wife Gertrudes and son, Santiago. For many years, he was a successful rancher and was a great host. After the Mexican War and the signing of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, his claim to the land grants in 1841 was validated. In 1850, California was admitted to the United and by the mid-1850's, Duarte was unable to pay back taxes levied on his land. So he began to sell off his holdings. But as was the case with many who were rich in real estate, he could not and eventually all of his buildings went on the auction block. In the 1870's, the land was subdivided into 40-acre parcels, and sold to many different owners. Several cities have been established on lands originally granted to Andres Duarte. Besides Duarte, they include

Monrovia, Azusa, Irwindale, Baldwin Park, Arcadia and Bradbury.

In the museum, there are also pictures of other people who played an integral role in our area's history and development. John Scott was the Horticultural Commissioner. His duty was to stamp out all insect parasites which attack fruit trees and prevent their infestation. He had thirty inspectors working under him!

A photo of Louis Bradbury caught my eye. Obviously we all know what city was named after him! But why? Louis Leonard Bradbury acquired 2750 acres of the Rancho Andres de Duarte. He had made his fortune in gold and silver mining primarily in Mexico. His Bradbury Building is a Historical Landmark in the City of Los Angeles. In 1892, he built an elegant home on his land and surrounded it by a suitable garden that is now the site of Royal oaks Manor.

Bradbury also owned a smaller ranch in the southeastern corner of present-day San Marino. However after his death, his heirs lost control of both ranches during the 1930's. Prolonged legal battles between family members resulted in foreclosure proceedings by the Security National Bank against most of the Bradbury Estate.

After World War II, many GI tracts went up. The City of Duarte began its incorporation in 1957. Residents of the Bradbury Estate Property Owners Association were concerned about the rapid pace of development and feared large parcels would be sold and developers would come in and put up a lot of tract homes. So they quickly solicited the 500 minimum number of registered voters required to incorporate a new city and applied to the Board of Supervisors. I had always wondered why Bradbury had such a small population. Now I know why. And it explains other cities in the county with a small population.

Do yourself a favor and check out this museum. It isn't real large in size, but what it has to offer in knowledge is immeasurable! (For more info, go to their website: www.duartehistory.org.

18-HOUR CONCRETE POUR OF I-210 GOLD LINE BRIDGE SUPERSTRUCTURE SUCCESSFUL -

With Pour Complete, Construction Authority Continues Foothill Extension on Time and on Budget

MONROVIA — Achieving another major milestone in the Metro Gold Line Foothill Extension construction project, crews worked 18 hours over the last several days to place more than 200 truckloads of concrete to form the bridge's superstructure and main crossbeam, Metro Gold Line Foothill Extension Construction Authority CEO Habib F. Balian announced today.

An important component of the Foothill Extension from Pasadena to Azusa is the I-210 Gold Line Bridge, the "Gateway to the San Gabriel Valley." The bridge - a 584-linear-foot light rail bridge traversing the eastbound lanes of the I-210 Freeway between Baldwin and Santa Anita Avenues - will allow connection between the existing Sierra Madre Villa Station in East Pasadena and the future Arcadia Station.

"The concrete pour of the bridge marks an important milestone for the extension of the Gold Line. The bridge is a significant element of the entire project and as the concrete cures and the forms are removed in the coming months, the traveling public will get to see the bridge truly taking shape," said Balian. "The next step is to pour the bridge deck, which will one day carry light rail trains into portions of the San Gabriel Valley that have not had passenger rail options for decades."

The bridge is being built by Skanska USA, the design-build team awarded the contract by the Construction Authority in June 2010. Skanska has been planning for the pour for about four months and with the successful completion of the superstructure concrete pour the bridge is nearing completion.

In pouring the superstructure, Skanska used 2,100 cubic yards of concrete - enough concrete to fill approximately 50 average swimming pools. The concrete used in the pour was divided among more than 200 truckloads, requiring 30 trucks to make continuous trips to and from the site throughout the 18-hour pour.

"Skanska has done a tremendous job collaborating with the Construction Authority, Caltrans, CHP, and the city of Arcadia to meticulously plan and execute this critical activity," commented Balian. "The Construction Authority commends Skanska, and their entire construction team, for with minor disruptions to the traveling public and surrounding community, as well as no safety incidents."

The $18.6 million bridge, which has been under construction since April 2011, will feature columns designed to resemble indigenous baskets in recognition of the region's original inhabitants and the important role they played in the San Gabriel Valley's development. The underside of the superstructure is also specially designed to be curved and resemble the underbelly of a snake, to represent the wildlife living in the Foothills above the Valley.

The design for the bridge was developed and finalized by Skanska's design team, led by AECOM, which includes naect's design concept advisor. Leicester was selected by a com-schedule to be completed in late 2015.

ARCADIA HIGH'S ELLISON CHEN RECEIVEDS ALBERT MATTHIES MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP

by Joan Schmidt

At this year's Arcadia School Graduation, a special graduate received a special scholarship delivered in a special manner! Graduate Ellison Chen received the First Officer Albert Matthies Memorial Scholarship awarded by the Arcadia Police Officers Association. After a rigorous application process, Ellison was chosen for her dedication to community, academic achievement and outstanding citizenship. Ellison received a $2000 scholarship which was delivered to the Arcadia High School graduation in a regional technical vehicle...a Bearcat.

Who is Officer Albert Matthies? Officer Albert Mathies was the only Arcadia Police Officer killed in the line of duty. He died on July 19, 1927. His 85th Anniversary is coming up. Last year, Arcadia Police Department honored fallen comrade Officer Albert Mathies with a special opening ceremony at 12pm, July 18th during which Arcadia Police Officers Association President spoke of Officer Matthies, his commitment to his profession and his ultimate sacrifice. Bagpipes were played while the colors were posted. The Honor Guard detail stood for twelve honors with the changing of the guard every half hour. At 12:07 AM, July 19th, a bell sounded in his honor. The event ended with a closing prayer by Arcadia Police Chaplain, Thomas

How did Officer Matthies lose his life? On the evening of July 18, 1927, Officer Mathies was doing patrol. In the patrol car was his friend, Leo Bertolina, who was going on a ride-along. When Officer Matthies approached the intersection of Foothill Blvd. and Northview, shortly before midnight, he noticed three men parked in a vehicle. So he walked toward the car to question them unaware that they were planning a robbery. As he walked towards them, he was shot by Frank Miller, sitting in the rear seat. Matthies was shot in the neck, and died at 12:07AM<

Matthies' friend, Berolina, was shot at. But he managed to get away and call for additional assistance. He had been hit with flying glass from windows, but survived. The three men got away, but were caught a few days late. They were found guilty, and sentenced to prison. One died in prison. The other two were released, but died shortly after.

Officer Matthies left a wife and two small daughters. It was a real tragedy. However besides remembering Officer Matthies on EOW (End of Watch, when an officer died), the Arcadia Police Association has found a way to keep his memory alive. What could be more appropriate than awarding a special scholarship to a most deserving graduate?

CAL PHIL SET FOR JUNE 30 OPENING OF SUMMER CONCERT SERIES AT SANTA ANITA, STATE OF THE ART NIGHT-TIME VENUE UNDER CONSTRUCTION IN TRACK'S INFIELD AREA

The California Philharmonic Orchestra, along with Santa Anita Park, is readying for its highly anticipated "Summer Festival on the Green" concert series which will begin Saturday, June 30 at The Great Race Place.

The "Festival on the Green" will consist of a series of five night-time concerts which will be performed for the first time ever at Santa Anita.

"We're very excited and so are the folks at Cal Phil," said Santa Anita President George Haines. "This is a world-class orchestra headed by Maestro Victor Vener and our infield area is a perfect venue for what is going to be an unforgettable series of concerts under the stars. We've constructed a retractable concert clam shell for the orchestra that will provide tremendous acoustics for all attendees. This will be Cal Phil's 16th summer season and we all expect it to be their best ever."

The summer concert series will start with a bang, as the Cal Phil Orchestra will be joined on stage by A Thousand Miles pop sensation and three-time Grammy-nominated singer/ songwriter Vanessa Carlton beginning at 8 p.m. on June 30.

Vener and his orchestra will also enthrall their audience with such classical masterpieces as Respighi's Pines of Rome.

Additionally, Cal Phil will be accompanied on opening night by the platinum- selling USC Trojan Marching Band, "The Spirit of Troy."

'Victor Vener has lined up an incredible array of talent to accompany his orchestra throughout the summer," said Santa Anita Director of Community Services and Special Projects Pete Siberell. "Our second concert, on Saturday, July 14, is going to include The Association, which is absolutely huge. This is world-class entertainment and we expect this entire Festival on the Green series, which runs through Aug. 25, to be a huge success.

"In addition to great entertainment, we know fans of Cal Phil are going to be happy to discover we're offering jumbo video screens, gourmet food options, full-service bars and permanent restrooms.

The Association, world-renowned for pop classics such as "Cherish," "Windy," and "Never My Love," first performed these mega-hits in the '60s.

The remaining summer concerts will all start at 8 p.m. on July 28, Aug. 11 and Aug. 25.

Santa Anita's spacious infield, which affords attendees the area's best unobstructed view of the beautiful San Gabriel Mountains, will be supplied with tables, benches with backs, and an expansive area for people to relax and enjoy the concerts on a finely manicured lawn.

Mezzanine seating and a corporate barbeque pit area are also available.

MONROVIA - DUAR

Sierra Madre-Pasadena-

From Monrovia's City Manager

THE MONROVIA FISCAL YEAR 2012-2013 BUDGET

On Tuesday, June 19, the Monrovia City Council passed a structurally balanced budget for the 2012-2013 fiscal year.

After two budget study sessions that align revenue and expenditure projections with Council priorities and departmental goals and objectives, the City Council voted unanimously to approve a $59.12 million budget.

Balancing the budget after the loss of Redevelopment means that this new budget places a greater focus on cost containment and prioritizing services- the City Council's top priorities being fiscal responsibility and public safety.

There was some good news for the 2012-2013 year: sales tax revenue is up 5%, property tax revenue is up 4%, and there is a 2% increase in the hotel occupancy tax. Moving forward, containing current costs will be the City's greatest challenge, but this new budget still gives Monrovia's General Fund a projected surplus of $245,000 at the end of this next fiscal year.

Some more budget numbers:

Of the $31.97 million in projected General Fund revenues, the majority (58%) comes in through property tax and sales tax revenues.

The greatest expenditure from the City General Fund comes from Public Safety: 40% from Police and 29% from Fire.

General Fund personnel costs are budgeted for $22.46 million, however, in accordance with the Council priorities, total cost should not exceed 75% of net operating costs. In order to meet long range financial targets, the City will continue to negotiate with employee groups to pick up their full the share of PERS employee pension costs by the 2013-2014 budget.

The Community Development Block Grant (CDBG), funded through the Department of Housing and Urban Development, is being reduced by 21%, or $66,000, scaling back programs for safe and healthy neighborhoods.

Annual street resurfacing will continue through 2013 using Prop C funding.

After the loss of Redevelopment, the City had a net loss of $1 million. As a result, 4 vacant positions within the City were eliminated, overhead charges to all City operations were increased by 1%, phone and computer replacement allocations were reduced, and vehicle and equipment replacement was deferred.

This balanced budget was achieved through pension cost-sharing with employees, a new two-tier retirement system and no increase in staffing. As always, the City will come back to the Council for a mid-year budget review.

MONROVIA MAYOR LUTZ JOINS OTHER MAYORS IN SUPPORT OF RESOLUTION FOR MARIJUANA TO BE SOLD AT PHARMACIES

By Joan Schmidt

Recently Mayor Mary Ann Lutz attended the annual US Conference of Mayors. An important resolution concerning marijuana came up and she joined others mayor in support of it.

The State of California allows marijuana to be sold for medical purposes (not recreational) out of dispensaries. The City of Monrovia does not allow these dispensaries within city limits. There are other states that do the same thing. The Mayors at the US Conference of Mayors feel that if marijuana is to be sold like any other drug, it should be sold like any other controlled substance through pharmacies. Mayor Lutz supported this resolution along with the other mayors because "We felt that if this controlled substance is for medical purposes, it should be prescribed by physicians and pharmacies be the distributor of the drug." pharmacies be the distributor of the drug."

Mayor Lutz also noted that the resolution does not change any laws (federal of state), it just tell our officials in Washington DC what the preference is of Mayors in the US.

Below is the resolution that Mayor Lutz so kindly shared so our readers would be up-to-date on this issue.

RECLASSIFICATION OF MEDICAL CANNABIS TO SCHEDULE II OF THE CSA

WHEREAS, 24 states, comprising almost one-third of the U.S. population, have passed or have under consideration laws that either regulate or decriminalize the use of cannabis for medical or

WĤEREAS, under the Controlled Substance ACT (CSA), the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) has classified cannabis as Schedule I substance, deeming it of no currently accepted medical use in treatment with a lack of accepted safety for use of the drug under medical supervision, instead of a Schedule II substance, a drug with a currently accepted medical use in treatment or a currently accepted medical us with severe restrictions; and

WHEREAS, the American Medical Association and the American College of Physicians support investigation and clinical research of cannabis for medicinal use and urged the federal government to reassess the Schedule I classification; and

WHEREAS, scientific evidence of the effectiveness of cannabis as a treatment for certain terminal or debilitating conditions is widely available, including four reviews of modern human clinical studies with cannabis and cannabinoids in the United States and elsewhere recently published in peer-reviewed publication; and

WHEREAS, in the past year, there have been numerous federal raids of locally sanctioned medical cannabis dispensaries, operating in accordance with state statutes, creating confusion about the legal status of these businesses; and

WHEREAS, the conflict between state statutes and federal regulation frustrates our citizens, costs cities significant time and resources to address, and prevents the establishment of a regulated and safe system to supply patients who may need medical cannabis; and

WHEREAS, in December of 2011, Washington State Governor Christine Gregoire and Rhode Island Governor Lincoln Chafee petitioned DEA to initiate a rulemaking for reclassification of medical cannabis from Schedule I to Schedule II of the CSA,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that The United States Conference of Mayors supports the Gregoire-Chafee petition and urges the DEA to initiate rulemaking proceedings from the reclassification of medical cannabis from Schedule I to Schedule II of the Controlled Substances Act (CSA) so qualifying patients who follow state law may obtain the medication they need through the traditional and safe method of physician prescribing and pharmacy dispensing.

DUARTE HIGH SWIM TEAM RECOGNIZED

By Joan Schmidt

A few weeks ago, Claudia Heller told me about the outstanding Duarte High Swim Team which had a phenomenal season! She continued by sharing that Patric Brillart, a senior on the Duarte High Swimming Team, had asked her, "Why doesn't anyone care about us?"

Of course Patric was referring to all the publicity the media gives to the football and baseball teams, while the swim team, although it had a fabulous season, receives little notice. Claudia, being the person she is, rectified the situation by writing a beautiful piece about the Duarte High Swim Team, in the Weekly Star. In her article, Claudia talks about the team, its coach and the outstanding season

What made this year's swim team so special? They were undefeated in all events including league relays, the league season and the finals. The Boys' Varsity 200 relay team broke the league time record while the girls upheld their end as Elizabeth Pender broke a league record! Way to Go, Elizabeth! (I'm proud, as Elizabeth was in my 6th Grade class at Annunciation School!)

The Duarte High Swim Team Coach is Dana Brewer, and this is her first year's coaching the Duarte High Team. (What a way to embark on a new career!) Coach Brewer has much experience - she coached the Duarte recreation summer team for eight years. (She herself was a member of this team from ages 5-17!) While attending St. Lucy's Priory High School, Coach Brewer swam and played water polo. All of these experiences helped her become such a great coach. Coach Brewer's Assistant was Mitchell Michaelis and, "Together we reached all our goals this year, a year that started with a bang. The boys took home a trophy at league relays."

Coach Brewer is also proud her team had such high expectations, which were met when the boys and girls won league. Quite impressive is that their combined team scores were more than 200 points higher than their competition at finals! Patric Brillhart, Morgan Michaelis, Sergio Sandoval and Elgin King also broke a record at League Finals for the Boys 200 Free Relay with a league record time of 2:41:64 and qualified for CIF. Elizabeth Pender broke her previous League record from 2011 for the 200 IM and qualified for CIF in the 200 IM and 100 FLY!

How does a team become so great? It is not by chance, but by a lot of hard work and practice. The sixty-member Duarte High Swim Team practiced 2-3 hours, Mondays-Fridays, and sometimes Saturdays for three months.

And so it is only fitting that this outstanding team was recognized, not only by Ms. Heller but also at a well-attended Duarte City Council meeting. Prior to the meeting, there was a small celebration with a beautiful cake and punch. It gave everyone a chance to congratulate team members and their coaches. And the "icing on the cake" was that the City Council also recognized Claudia Heller as Senior Volunteer of the Year! How fitting was that- the team honored and the lady who made sure everyone knew about the team was also recognized! Thank you, Duarte for another great City Council Meeting!

DUARTE SUSPENDS ENFORCEMENT OF SIGNS TO HELP BOOST SUCCESS OF LOCAL BUSINESSES

In an move to help support the success of local businesses in tough economic times, the Duarte City Council has voted to suspend enforcement of certain temporary signs for a 12-month period beginning July 1, 2012.

It was just a year and a half ago that the City adopted an updated Development Code that included new regulations barring hand-held signs, inflatable signs, and limited the display of balloons and temporary banners. But last February, City staff met with the Chamber of Commerce's sign ordinance committee as well as attended a community-wide sign ordinance forum to gather input from businesses. It was determined that a short-term suspension of the enforcement of certain types of violations for temporary signs could help the business community at this time.

We appreciate the Chamber of Commerce's efforts to facilitate the needs of local business here in Duarte," said Duarte City Manager, Darrell George. "The sign ordinance committee was instrumental in making this amnesty period happen."

During the amnesty period, hand held signs will be permitted during daylight hours when not interfering with the safe flow of traffic. Small balloons up to 12 inches in diameter will be allowed with an approved temporary banner permit up to 105 days per year and a maximum of 30 consecutive days at a time. The display of inflatable signs and identification devices that utilize airflow to operate will be permitted during daylight hours when not interfering with traffic flow.

Two other concerns businesses raised with the City are also being addressed. City code enforcement staff has refocused duties in the commercial zones of the city on property maintenance and aesthetic issues, and on serious sign violations that create clutter. Since the February meeting, the City has also developed sign information brochures that are available at City Hall, the Chamber of Commerce and on the City's website www.accessduarte.com.

Commercial Burglary

June 18 at 8:06 a.m., police responded to the report of a commercial burglary in the 600 block of West Huntington. The burglary occurred sometime between 5:00 p.m. on June 17 and 8:00 a.m. on June 18. Suspect(s) smashed a window and took Oakley, Maui Jim and Rey Ban sunglasses from the business. No alarm sounded. Similar cases have been reported in Anaheim, Whittier and Montclair. Investigation continuing.

Armed Robbery

June 16 at 8:00 p.m., an armed robbery was reported at a business in the 900 block of West Huntington. Two suspects entered the store, produced handguns, and ordered the two employees to the floor. While one suspect held the victims at gunpoint, the other stole cash and cell phones from the business. The suspects were last seen northbound from the location on foot. The suspects are described as male African-Americans, in their 20's, one with a goatee and the other had beard stubble on his face. One suspect wore a black hooded sweatshirt, the other wore a gray one, and they both had on black pants.

Theft From a Vehicle

June 16 at 8:16 p.m., dispatch received a call reporting a theft from an unlocked vehicle in the 100 block of Stedman. The victim parked her vehicle in her assigned space directly in front of her apartment in the evening, but left the vehicle unlocked. When she returned to her vehicle the next morning, she noticed the vehicle had been ransacked. The only thing missing was approximately three dollars in coins from a duffel bag that was in the vehicle. Investigation continuing.

Grand Theft / Conspiracy to Commit Grand Theft - Suspects Arrested

June 19 at 11:01 a.m., an officer was on patrol in the area of Foothill and California when he observed a silver Lincoln. The vehicle matched the description of a suspect vehicle from a battery theft incident the previous day. The suspects stole batteries from a cable box in the City of Monrovia. The occupants of the vehicle, a male and female, matched a witness description of the suspects in the case. The officer noticed that the vehicle registration was also expired. He stopped the vehicle and contacted the suspects. When he spoke to the driver, he observed batteries and a yellow safety vest in the vehicle. A short time later, a call was received in dispatch regarding a theft of batteries from a cable box on California that had just occurred. It appears the officer contacted the suspects just after they completed another crime. The stolen batteries were recovered and confirmed stolen by cable company employees. Both suspects were arrested and taken into custody. The vehicle was stored as evidence.

June 19 at 5:05 p.m., a vehicle was reported stolen from the 300 block of East Olive. The vehicle, a 2005, black Nissan Altima, was taken sometime between midnight the night before and 5:00 p.m. on June 19. Investigation continuing.

SAFETY TIP OF THE WEEK

Pool Safety for Children

Establishing and following "Pool Rules" can help ensure your family and friends have a safe and fun time swimming this summer. Teach your children to swim as early as possible and always watch your children when they are in or near a pool or spa. Each year, nationwide, we experience too many incidents of children drowning in swimming pools, usually a pool owned by their family, friends or a relative. At the time of most incidents, the children were being supervised by one or both parents. Toddlers, in particular, often do the unexpected. In addition to drowning incidents, thousands of children are treated in hospital emergency rooms for submersion injuries. Do not consider young children to be "drown proof" because they have had swimming lessons; children must always be watched closely while swimming. Here are a few "Pool Rules" you can adopt to keep your family and friends safe:

Always have adult supervision.

Never lose sight of toddlers near a pool or spa. Keep a portable telephone near the pool with emergency num-

Learn CPR; at least one adult family member should know CPR.

Do not allow running on the edge of the pool.

Keep large floating toys out of the pool - they block the view.

Keep deck areas free of clutter. Never allow young children to dive into a pool.

Install pool lights for night vision.

Have a clear view of the pool from inside your home. Remove automatic vacuums from the pool before swimming.

Remove toys from in and around the pool; toys can attract young children.

Keep pool chemicals locked away. Never allow extension cords near a pool.

Keep rescue equipment by the pool.

Install a pool safety fence around your pool and ensure pool gates are kept closed.

Enforce your "Pool Rules" with family and friends for a safe and fun summer in the pool!

EDUCATION & YOUTH

PUSD OFFERS SUMMER LEARNING TIPS

The Pasadena Unified School District (PUSD) offers useful tips and resources for families to keep children engaged in learning during summer vacation.

"As a teacher and administrator, I worried about my students as each summer vacation approached," said PUSD Superintendent Jon R. Gundry who spent 16 years as a classroom teacher. "Without activities to keep them learning, students would forget the material they learned the previous school year, stop practicing important study skills and lose ground. Students who struggle in particular subjects can fall even further behind during the summer, leading to a widening of the achievement gap. That's why it is important for families to keep children engaged in fun activities that encourage learning during the long summer vacation.

Although PUSD only offers a limited summer school program for credit recovery because of ongoing budget cuts, other organizations in the community offer learning resources for district families. Pasadena LEARNs offers five weeks of summer activities. Visit www. gopusd.com/learns for information. The Pasadena Educational Foundation (www.pasedfoundation.org) offers academics and enrichment for all grade levels. The City of Pasadena Human Services and Recreation Department (www. cityofpasadena.net), the City of Sierra Madre (www.cityofsierramadre.com) and the parks and libraries of Los Angeles County (www. lacounty.gov) offers activities and resources for youth this summer.

Free breakfast and lunch will be available for children and youth 18 years old or younger this summer through the 2012 Summer Food Program. Sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and PUSD's food services division and operated by PUSD, the City of Pasadena and other organizations, the free meals will be served at schools, parks and other sites throughout Pasadena, Altadena and Šierra Madre. Participants must eat all meals at the site; additional rules will be posted. For more information, call PUSD Food Services at (626) 396-5850.

To help keep children engaged in learning this summer, here are some tips from PUSD and the California Department of Education: Top 10 Tips for Summer Learning

1. Encourage Reading. Help establish a love of reading at an early age. Reading helps improve writing and communication skills as well as improve learning throughout the summer. Recommended reading lists are available on the California Department of Education's (CDE) literature database. Take your children to the public library where they can obtain their own library cards, learn how to find books, and check them out free of charge. The Pasadena public libraries offer free summer reading programs.

2. Participate in Community Summer Programs. Many local organizations offer interesting summer events, such as art classes, music, cooking, sports, free concerts, and summer camps. Pasadena LEARNs, the Pasadena Educational Foundation's Summer Program and the City of Pasadena's Summer Recreational program offer a variety of classes for K-12 students, from robotics to art and high school credit courses. Scholarships available.

3. Encourage the Use of Math. Give your child practical experience using mathematics at home. Put your preschool child's counting ability to work. In preparation for meals, let the child count out the number of forks or dinner napkins needed for the table, the number of servings from a meal, or any other quantity. Mention the size of containers, such as pints of cream and half gallons of milk. Allow your child to measure ingredients when you cook or add up costs when shopping. 4. Encourage Creativity With Art. Keep your child supplied with or add up costs when shopping. 4. Encourage Creativity With Art. Keep your child supplied with sheets of paper, crayons, finger paints, modeling clay, burlap, paste, marking pens, scraps of cloth, yarn, scraps of wood, and water colors. Provide a workspace for your child and encourage the creation of works of art. Proudly display your child's best creations on the wall, door, or bulletin board. Give frequent opportunities for the expression of artistic ability, like making birthday and greeting cards. Encourage help with holiday decorations. Encourage musical activity in the home or on family trips. Let the child be a music maker as well as a listener. A toy piano, drum, tuned bells, or harmonica can help teach the rudiments of rhythm and tone. 5. Have Fun With Science. Work with your child on projects such as making bird feeders, caring for pets, setting up a home weather station, observing the night sky and preparing a family vegetable or flower garden. Talk with your child's science teacher and get useful tips to help you reinforce your child's formal science training. Summer is an ideal time to visit museums and zoos in your community. Many of these are free or low cost for young children.

6. Get Active. Many low-cost summer programs are available for your children through the City of Pasadena, summer LEARNs and other organizations. Check for recreation and education opportunities like youth sports leagues, swimming, baseball, basketball, soccer, cheerleading, tennis, dance, drama, the arts, sports for children using wheelchairs, enrichment classes, concerts, and other youth programs.

7. Volunteer For a Good Cause. Homeless shelters, animal shelters, and senior community centers often need volunteer help. For example, teenagers can explore animal-related careers while gaining work experience, and help teach children and families about animals, the environment, and conservation.

8. Start Writing. To encourage creative writing, jot down stories your child tells or songs they make up. Show them to the child later. Suggest they be illustrated and "published" for grandparents or other relatives as gifts.

9. Encourage Social Studies. Discuss current events. Read newspapers and periodicals. Watch the local and national newscasts. Provide your child with social studies research materials, including a dictionary, atlas, globe, and almanac. A map of the city and road maps are excellent for plotting trips and helping the child understand geographic relationships. Keep the research items conveniently close to the TV for use during news and documentary programs.

10. Helping Out at Home. Teaching children early and often about doing chores around the house helps them learn important skills like cooperation, teamwork, fairness, patience, responsibility, and values. It also helps free up some time so you can just enjoy being with your children.

FAREWELL PART 1: THERE AND BACK AGAIN

This is my second to last column that I will write for this newspaper before I head off to Wyoming and then Syracuse University for college in the fall. In this past year, a lot has happened and changed: Harry Potter has ended, Hunger Games has begun, Whitney Houston died, the 2012 Election have started, the Kings won the Stanley Cup, and the Royal Wedding occurred, along with a lot more. I have graduated high school which is bizarre and look forward to my future now with excitement, anticipation, and fear. Where in the past I see friendship, stress, writing, and maturation – a change in whom I am as I have grown up.

The time has been short but significant because time is limited. J.R.R. Tolkien wrote, ""All we have to decide is what to do with the time that is given us", and although he was talking to Frodo about taking the One Ring to Mordor, it applies to everyone, everyday. And I see this quote and I feel both good and disappointed because I have done so much but not nearly as much as I would like, and I begin to fear that I won't have the chance to that which I want. But this column has been something that in the time given I have greatly enjoyed and appreciated because I took the risk in asking for an opportunity to write and it was given. So I thank all who have helped me pursue this dream and get to where I am going in the future. I may not take the all powerful ring to Mt. Doom, but I do hope to change the world for the better one day like Frodo.

MINDSPRING EDUCATION CENTER LAUNCHES NEW SUMMER PROGRAM

Handwriting, Typing, and Journalism - Oh My!

Summertime in Sierra Madre brings Friday family movies in Kersting Court, the annual Independence Day Parade and now, three-week educational sessions designed to give young students tools that will enrich their lives and their academic pursuits.

"I've been in education for 12 years and here in Sierra Madre since 2007. It's such a pleasure to work with the people here in my own community and see my students accomplish their goals throughout the school year. Now that school's out, I have the opportunity to teach skills that will benefit my students in whatever they are doing," explains Sally Morrison, learning specialist and owner of Mindspring Education Center.

Mindspring's three-course, three-week program will run Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. until noon. Three sessions will be offered this year with the first one starting June 18.

Students can choose to take one, two, or three classes per session. Signing up for more than one session will benefit kids even more as the small class sizes allow them to progress at their own pace throughout the summer. Handwriting, Typing, and Journalism classes engage students in some of the most important tools for communicating their ideas.

Mindspring offers one-to-one intensive instruction and tutoring year-round.

GOOD FOOD & DRINK

DO ONE DON'T DO THE OTHER

Must admit with all the past weeks food notes and trivial trivia, I almost missed National Margarita & Chili Days, and what type of foodie would I be, but fear not friends, I did partake in a Margarita and a hot bowl of beanless chili. I have to take my Andy Rooney Card out again and give you my fellow diners the rules of Etiquette 101. I love my daughter, and some of my friends kids. But here goes.

I am I am asked frequently asked about etiquette and table manners, so I compiled this simple list based on the most common questions.

-Your napkin goes in your lap, folded in half, as soon as you sit down. Many people wait until the food arrives, but the proper form is to be prepared.

-If you leave the table, place the napkin to the left of your plate, loosely draped.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

- A napkin is never for blowing your noise or wiping your mouth. Use it to dab at the corners of your mouth or your fingertips. If you need to cleanse further, leave the table and use the appropriate products in the restroom.
- In formal dining, a charger will be under the place setting. It remains there during the starter course and is removed at the main course.
- -Your eating utensils go in the order of use, starting from the outside (furthest from the plate) and working their way in. Forks go on the left; knives and spoons on the right, as you face the plate. Dessert utensils are placed at the top of the plate, sideways.
- The bread and butter plate goes to the left, above the forks.
- -The water glass goes above the knives (behind the wine goblet, if there is one).
- -Food should be passed counter-clockwise.
- It is considered impolite to start eating before everyone is seated and served, including your host.
- -Only the meal settings and food belong on the table. Do not place your elbows, eyeglasses, notebook, pen or other objects on the table.
- Cut no more than two bites of any item at a time. When it comes to bread, tear off one bite at a time and butter it, rather than buttering a whole roll.
- Do not season your food until you have tasted it.
- It is permissible to use a piece of bread to wipe up excess gravy, as long as you use your fork and not your fingers.
- If you need to leave the table, place your utensils on the edge of your plate so that the tips point to the plate's center, in a V-shape. To signal when you are finished, lay your utensils side by side diagonally on the plate.

SIMPLE GUIDELINES FOR SAFER GRILLING

(NAPSI)—Cooking outdoors is in at any time of year. When you grill, it's important to follow the guidelines from the USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service to prevent harmful bacteria from multiplying and causing food poisoning:

- When shopping, buy cold food such as meat and poultry last, right before checkout. Separate raw meat and poultry from other food in your shopping cart and put packages of raw meat and poultry into plastic bags.
- \bullet Plan to go home right from the store. Consider taking a cooler with ice for perishables. Always refrigerate perishable food within two hours—within one hour when the temperature is above 90° F.
- At home, place meat and poultry in the refrigerator immediately. Freeze poultry and ground meat that won't be used in a day or two.
- Completely thaw meat and poultry before grilling so it cooks evenly. Use the refrigerator for slow, safe thawing. For quicker thawing, you can defrost in the microwave or in cold water if the food will be placed immediately on the grill.
- A marinade is a savory, acidic sauce in which a food is soaked to enrich its flavor or to tenderize it. Marinate food in the refrigerator, not on the counter. Poultry and cubed meat or stew meat can be marinated up to two days. Beef, veal, pork and lamb roasts, chops and steaks may be marinated up to five days. If some of the marinade is to be used as a sauce on the cooked food, reserve a portion before putting raw meat and poultry in it. However, if the marinade used on raw meat or poultry is to be reused, make sure to let it come to a boil first to destroy any harmful bacteria.
- When transporting food, keep it cold. Use an insulated cooler with sufficient ice or ice packs to keep the food at 40° F or below. Pack it immediately before leaving home. Keep it cold until ready to use.

Jeff's Pics The Book Report By Jeff Brown

CONFRONT AND CONCEAL: OBAMA'S SECRET WARS AND SURPRISING USE OF AMERICAN POWER

by David E. Sanger

A revealing account of Obama's use of innovated new tools of American power to manage a rapidly shifting world of global threats and challenges. Inside the White House Situation Room, the newly elected Barack Obama immerses himself in the details of a remarkable new American capability to launch cyber war against Iran, and escalates covert operations to delay the day when the mullahs could obtain a nuclear weapon. Over the next three years, Obama accelerates drone attacks as an alternative to putting troops on the ground in Pakistan, and becomes increasingly reliant on the Special Forces, whose hunting of Al-Qaeda illuminates the path out of an unwinnable war in Afghanistan.

Confront and Conceal provides readers with a picture of an administration that came to office with the world on fire. It takes them into the Situation Room debate over how to undermine Iran's program while simultaneously trying to prevent Israel from taking military action that could plunge the region into another war. It dissects how the bin Laden raid worsened the dysfunctional relationship with Pakistan. And it traces how Obama's early idealism about fighting "a war of necessity" in Afghanistan quickly turned to fatigue and frustration.

One of the most trusted and acclaimed national security correspondents in the country, David Sanger of the New York Times takes readers deep inside the Obama administration's most perilous decisions: The president dispatches an emergency search team to the Gulf when the White House briefly fears the Taliban may have obtained the Bomb, but he rejects a plan in late 2011 to send in Special Forces to recover a stealth drone that went down in Iran. Obama overrules his advisers and takes the riskiest path in killing Bin Laden, and ignores their advice when he helps oust Hosni Mubarak from the presidency of Egypt. "The surprise is his aggressiveness," a key ambassador who works closely with Obama reports.

Yet the president has also pivoted American foreign policy away from the attritional wars of the past decade, attempting to preserve America's influence with a lighter, defter touch, all while focusing on a new era of diplomacy in Asia and reconfiguring America's role during a time of economic turmoil and austerity. As the world seeks to understand whether there is an Obama Doctrine, Confront and Conceal is a fascinating, unflinching account of these complex years, in which the president and his administration have found themselves struggling to stay ahead in a world where power is diffuse and America's ability to exert control grows ever more elusive.

CAG Philosophy How Children Learn to Draw

The teaching philosophy of Nurturing the Natural Development of Young Children's Drawing has been the basis of Creative Arts Group's drawing and painting classes for 6-9 year old children since its inception in 1960. Children's drawing goes through a natural progression of stages. Just as a child crawls before he walks, or is given time to do simple arithmetic before going on to more complex problems, it is very important to let a child's drawing develop slowly in his or her own way.

Creative Arts Group is one of the few art centers implementing this way of teaching that nurtures and draws out the creativity inherent in each child.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS:

Review By Sean Kayden

WINTERSLEEP

Canadian indie rock aficionados, Wintersleep, have released their fifth studio LP, "Hello Hum". In the grand scheme of things, to call the former Juno Awards recipients of the "Best New Group Of The Year" merely an indie rock band would be a misconception. They've dabbled with hardcore guitars, synth pop, and experimental art rock in the past and present. Given the music they create, it comes with the territory for Wintersleep to have been compared to numerous bigger acts such as Fleet Foxes, The National and small traces in the vocal department resembling Paul Banks of Interpol. However, at the end of the day and all comparisons aside, Wintersleep possess a distinguishing and authentic sound. It may not always resonate with the listener, but will have them overwhelmed with their emotive form of

Paul Murphy is a vivid storyteller with vocals of solace, but some of Wintersleep's songs take awhile to get rolling. You can't simply base judgment on a track without giving it a listen entirely through. Most songs here will take you on a joyous ride or have one become utterly lost in reverie. "Hello Hum" is irrefutably the group's most experimental record. The record kicks off with "Hum," a heavy synth track with this sort of rattling and crashing background noise in the beginning that gently eases into this stunning, romantic opening track. On track two, "In Came The Flood," is where the real magic comes alive. If any song is going to put Wintersleep on the map, this is it. It's an alternative radio friendly song, but not derivative by any means. It's a rapturous, full of energy song with a multitude of layered guitars riffs. It's the clear-cut winner for the best song off "Hello Hum". "Resuscitate" is a close second. The aforementioned song is a lively, bouncy tune that's a rush of blood straight to your head. I find that with the music from Wintersleep, you don't reflect but believe—believe in the endless possibilities of your own conquests.

However, things aren't always copacetic. There are a few tunes that aren't bad per se, but rather middling for the band's fifth album. One that comes in mind immediately is "Permanent Sigh". It's a sporadic tune that sounds peaceful at times, but is mediocre during most of its duration. The surprise treat off the album comes in the form of "Someone, Somewhere"—a beautifully written and performed song that puts the active listener in a world of utter bliss. The hidden gem though is "Saving Song". The song is a soft, tender, and unexpected slowdown halfway through the album. It definitely gives the album more scope and validates Wintersleep's boundless talents. When the dust settles, a few songs here don't accomplish much, but for rest of the journey, it's a pretty worthwhile expedition.

DATA FROM NASA'S VOYAGER 1 POINT TO INTERSTELLAR FUTURE

Data from NASA's Voyager 1 spacecraft indicate that the venerable deep-space explorer has encountered a region in space where the intensity of charged particles from beyond our solar system has markedly increased. Voyager scientists looking at this rapid rise draw closer to an inevitable but historic conclusion—that humanity's first emissary to interstellar space is now at the edge of our solar system.

"The laws of physics say that someday Voyager will become the first human-made object to enter interstellar space, but we still do not know exactly when that someday will be," said Ed Stone, Voyager project scientist at Caltech in Pasadena. "The latest data indicate that we are clearly in a new region where things are changing more quickly. It is very exciting. We are approaching the solar system's frontier."

The data making the 16-hour-38 minute, 11.1-billion-mile journey from Voyager 1 to antennas of NASA's Deep Space Network on Earth detail the number of charged particles measured by the two high-energy telescopes aboard the 34-year-old spacecraft. These energetic particles were generated when stars in our cosmic neighborhood went supernova. "From January 2009 to January 2012, there had been a gradual increase of about 25 percent in the amount of galactic cosmic rays Voyager was encountering," said Stone. "More recently, we have seen very rapid escalation in that part of the energy spectrum."

This marked increase is one of a triad of data sets which need to make significant swings of the needle to indicate a new era in space exploration. The second important measure from the spacecraft's two telescopes is the intensity of energetic particles generated inside the heliosphere, the bubble of charged particles the Sun blows around itself. While there has been a slow decline in the measurements of these energetic particles, they have not dropped off precipitously, which could be expected when Voyager breaks through the NASA's Voyager 1 probe has been hurtling toward the edge of the solar system for 35 years and is solar boundary.

The final data set that Voyager scientists believe will reveal a major change is the measurement in the direction of the magnetic field lines surrounding the spacecraft. While Voyager is still within the heliosphere, these field lines run east-west. When it passes into interstellar space, the team expects Voyager will find that the magnetic field lines orient in a more north-south direction. Such analysis will take weeks, and the Voyager team is currently crunching the numbers of its latest data set. "When the Voyagers launched in 1977, the space age was all of 20 years old," said Stone. "Many of us on the team dreamed of reaching interstellar space, but we really had no way of knowing how long a journey it would be—or if these two vehicles that we invested so much time and energy in would operate long enough to reach it."

Voyagers 1 and 2 are still in good health. Voyager 2, launched after Voyager 1, is some 9 billion miles away from the Sun. Both are operating as part of the Voyager Interstellar Mission, an extended mission to explore the solar system beyond the neighborhood of the outer planets. NASA's Voyagers are the two most distant active representatives of humanity.

'The System's Bible" is the third edition of ANTICS" which is sometimes the only logical a work entitled "Systemantics: How Systems explanation that can be given by the experts as Really Work and How They Fail", by John Gall. to why a particular system is or isn't working. This tongue-in-cheek text has enjoyed semicult status since its release in 1978 and part of its tech-y charm lies in trying to guess the degree of seriousness and insight that lay just behind the concepts presented for the readers' perusal. Although large, commercially-available energy expended toward the establishment of computer systems and the pre-deployment planning efforts that are necessary for their implementation seem to be the main focus of the examples provided to illustrate and illuminate the authors' findings, just about any person who has had prolonged exposure to a large-scale system of any kind would come to the quick consensus of the universal applications of these

The primary grist for this work seems to be the applied science known as General Systems while the "Functionary's Falsity" claims that Theory. GST essentially posits that everything is a system and everything is part of a larger system. It uses these theses to examine how these interconnected components cooperate as a cohesive unit to achieve some result, either for pre-programmed ends or the ends of a larger over-system. The study of Systemantics takes these points even further and states that once a system is created, it invariably takes on a life of its own and in a fair number of cases establishes its own ends, often with surprising results. If this premise sounds a little batty to you, keep in mind that the title of this tome, "Systemantics", is itself a play on the phrase "SYSTEMs display

Systemantics first law (The Primal Scenario) states that Systems in general work poorly or not at all. Given the incredible amount of human various types of systems to cover various types of scenarios, it does often seem that humans as a species prefer the predictable illusion of control provided by systems implementation to the unpredictable nature of free-range chaos. The devil we know...

The text itself is filled with many such laws that have scholarly-sounding names. "The Operational Fallacy" states that the system itself does not actually do what it says its doing people in systems do not actually do what the system says they are doing. Driving the point of manufactured reality home, "The Fundamental Law of Administrative Workings" (F.L.A.W.) states that things are what they are reported to be and that the system takes as a given that things are as reported, regardless of their true state of COPING WITH CANINE AGGRESSION - IS YOUR DOG A PAIN, DUE TO PAIN?

Have you ever wondered why your dog "acts out" unexpectedly? You know the typical scenario; you're in the house or your yard minding your own business, when you reach out to pet your dog playfully and s/he yelps and gives you a bit of a growl as if to warn you to stay away. I have personally had that experience with my bloodhound on several occasions, and I've always blamed it on her blueblood genetic make-up. In fact, one of my lesser endearing nick-names for Tater is "The In-bred Re-tread", because I have always assumed that her unpredictable behavior is due to inbreeding throughout the history of her ancestry. However, after having read articles on the subject, and having consulted with my vet and a few dog trainers, I've learned that there are many other more potential reasons why a dog becomes aggressive. In one article posted on the "science daily.com" website, I read that a much more common yet less recognized reason for canine aggression is undiagnosed and therefore untreated physical pain.

In a 2010-2011 study, research scientists from the department of Animal and Food Science at the Autonomous University of Barcelona (UAB) in Spain, analyzed 12 dogs with aggressive behavior issues (Giant Schnauzer, Irish Setter, Pit-bull, Dalmatian,

2 German shepherds, Neapolitan Mastiff, Shih-tzu, Bobtail, Catalan Sheepdog, Chow-chow and Doberman) and remarkably enough, all 12 were diagnosed with aggression due to physical pain. Equally remarkable was the fact that 8 out of the 12 were found to have hip dysplasia, as was outlined by Tomas Camps, author of the study published attack or attacked suddenly and impulsively.

Several deductions were drawn during the UAB study, but one general observation made was that dogs known to be aggressive for whatever reason before the onset of pain, typically gave warning such as a raised lip or a growl before attacking and were most apt to attack when food was taken away, when they were moved from their rest area, or when pain she feels when her ears get infected. discomfort is hip dysplasia, as shown in the 2011-2012 UAB study as well as in numerous other research studies conducted over the years in various countries. Hip dysplasia is an hereditary degenerative bone disorder that occurs in the hip/femoral head joint and affects more than 40% of Golden Retrievers, Labradors and Rottweillers as well as some other large breed dogs. It is a very painful and debilitating disease, and dogs who suffer from it can, understandably become aggressive when handled or even touched. Knowing this can be very helpful to an owner in the Journal of Veterinary Behavior. The study focused who wants to be sensitive to their dog's condition and avoid on 4 main points; the most frequent circumstances, the causing them more pain. The key to helping prevent the most characteristic positions, the most frequent target of onset of unnecessary pain and potential aggression due to aggression, and whether the dogs showed signs prior to an hip dysplasia is early diagnosis. If you suspect that your dog might be at risk for this painful disease, keep an eye on his gate while you are walking him on leash, and watch the way he moves about in the house and yard. The signs of hip dysplasia in a canine are pretty obvious; you'll see less freedom of

FRESH (re)start

By Rene Quenell, Founder/Owner Yoga Madre - Sierra Madre

June 21st marks the start of the summer season. It is also the day of the Summer Solstice, a time of renewal and optimism. perfectly auspicious time for fresh starts, or re-starts. Because it happens to all of us: not too long ago you were doing great: you had your yoga routine, or your gym routine, or your hiking, or something else along those lines. You were in great shape, body and mind. You were so proud of yourself. And then you dropped out of it. Maybe it happened all of a sudden, and you just stopped from one day to the next. Maybe you started skipping a few classes, a few sessions here and there, thinking I'll catch up next week, but you never did, and it just kept getting worse, until the guilt was so overwhelming that you actually avoided thinking about it. Then you started making excuses for your lack of discipline, your lack of motivation, your lack of resolve...

We've all been there. Your own scenario might be completely different but at the end of the day, it's the same story: you quit, you feel guilty and you want to get back into it but don't know how, or where to start. You're waiting for a reason, a sign, something, anything to give you a little push... Here's your sign: it's summertime! It's time for fun, warmth and enjoyment! This is no time for looking back and agonize over how hard it would be to pick up where you left off, knowing full well your body is going to give you grief for it. Stop overthinking and feeling sorry or guilty about all the promises you made to yourself that you didn't keep. It's pointless and useless. Instead, grab your mat and come celebrate the season with us. We'll start by a few sun salutations, and I bet you that after the second or the third one, you'll be thinking "this feels so good and it is so easy" and you'll just keep going. That's how you get back into it. Your fresh re-start.

HOW TO FIND HELP PAYING FOR YOUR HEARING AID

Dear Savvy Senior:

Are there any resources or programs that help seniors with the high cost of hearing aids? Can't Afford To Hear

Dear Can't:

It's unfortunate, but millions of Americans with hearing loss don't get hearing aids because they simply can't afford them. Hearing aids are expensive, typically costing between $1,000 and $3,500 per ear, and most insurance companies including traditional Medicare don't cover them. While there's no one simple solution to finding affordable hearing aids, there are a variety of options you can look

Check Insurance

Your first step is to check with your health insurance provider to see if it provides any hearing aid

If you're a Medicare beneficiary, you need to know that while original Medicare (Part A and B) and Medicare supplemental policies do not cover hearing aids, some Medicare Advantage (Part C) plans do. If you have an Advantage plan, you'll need to check with your plan administrator.

Medicaid also covers hearing aids in some states to people with very limited means. Your county social service office can give you more information.

Or, if you're a federal employee or retiree, hearing aid coverage may be available through some insurance plans in the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program. Or if you're a veteran, the VA provides free hearing aids if you meet certain conditions such as being compensated for any serviced-connected disability or if your hearing loss is connected to military service. See va.gov or call 877-222-8387 to check your eligibility.

Financial Assistance

Depending on your income level, there are various programs and foundations that provide financial assistance for hearing aids to people in need. Start by calling your state rehabilitation department (see www.parac.org/svrp.html for contact information), or the nearest chapter of the Hearing Loss Association of America (hearingloss.org) to find out if there are any city, county or state programs, or local civic organizations that could help.

There are also a number of nonprofits that offer hearing aids at deeply discounted prices, or for free. Some good ones to check out include:

HEAR Now: Sponsored by the Starkey Hearing Foundation (starkeyhearingfoundation.org, 800-328-8602), this program provides hearing aids for people with net incomes below $19,058 for a single or $25,743 for couples. Your only costs are a hearing test and an application fee of $125 per hearing aid request.

Lions Affordable Hearing Aid Project: Offered through some Lions clubs throughout the U.S., this program provides the opportunity to purchase new, digital hearing aids manufactured by Rexton for $200 per aid, plus shipping. To be eligible, most clubs will require your income to be somewhere below 200 percent of the federal poverty level which is $22,340 for singles, or $30,260 for couples. Contact your local Lions club (see lionsclubs.org for contact information) to see if they participate in this project.

Sertoma: A civic service organization that runs a hearing aid recycling program through its 500 clubs nationwide, refurbishes them, and distributes them to local people in need. Call 800-593-5646 or visit sertoma.org to locate a club in your area.

Audient: This program (audientalliance.org, 866-956-5400) helps people purchase new, digital hearing aids at reduced prices ranging from $495 to $975 for one hearing aid, or $990 to $1,575 for a pair. To be eligible, your income must be below $27,075 for a single or $36,425 for couples.

For a list of more programs, visit the Better Hearing Institute website at betterhearing.org, and click on "Hearing Loss Resources," then on "Financial Assistance." Or, call the National Institute on Deafness and Other Communication Disorders at 800-241-1044 and ask them to mail you their list of financial resources for hearing aids.

JUST LISTED: FORMER WHITTINGHAM ESTATE IN SIERRA MADRE

In a community embedded with "horse people" and horse lovers, the name Charlie Whittingham rings all kinds of bells. Deemed a legend in thoroughbred racing, Whittingham's intuitive training ability with equines resulted in thousands of winner's circle celebrations and rock star like status with legions of fans. From humble beginnings walking horses and cleaning stalls in Tijuana, he persevered over the next six decade, according to his 1999 NY Times obituary, becoming "the most successful trainer at Santa Anita, the most celebrated on the West Coast and one of the most acclaimed in the business."

Whittingham trained eight national champions, according to the NY Times report, and won more than 2400 other races and 650 other stakes. Elected to the Racing Hall of Fame in 1974, Whittingham received three Eclipse Awards as best North American trainer, and at age 76, won the Kentucky Derby, as the oldest trainer ever to do so, with a colt named Ferdinand

The Whittinghams purchased the home in 1956 and turned it into an entertainment hub for the horse racing community, expanding it as Charlie's family and reputation grew. Though the property changed hands after Whittingham's passing, the wrought iron gates and kitchen still bear his initials.

The Whittinghams collaborated with well known local architect, Don Crenshaw, and in 1990 performed an extensive remodel and expansion into today's 4909 square foot footprint and floorplan. One of the largest estate homes in Sierra Madre, the secluded property, fronted by mature trees and shrubbery providing nearly complete privacy.

The ³/₄ acre property offers expansive shady lawns, a koi pond, Wistaria arbor, front and purchased it. Any accomplished chef or aspiring cook will likely be entranced. The room, deemed by many a masterpiece, includes a 19 foot cathedral ceiling, detailed by 19' thick truss beams. Beveled and leaded glass cabinet doors and dividers catch the sunlight with beautiful reflection. Custom tile from Portugal provide a stunning backdrop for the European AGA stove with four ovens.

Extensive additional facilities include a Thermador cooktop, Convection-Microwave oven, a Miele dishwasher, icemaker and more to make this magnificent kitchen both pleasant and functional for simultaneous, multiple cooks.

The five bedrooms, mostly suites, have been situated to accommodate consummate privacy for all. Two separated second floor wings offers spacious bedroom and living space. A main floor master suite opens through French doors to the garden vistas. The master also includes an amazing, huge closet plus a dressing room or private office.

Though tradition runs through the veins and arteries of this charming, five bedroom, six bath home, noteworthy additions have been made. In 2011, a solar system was installed, which significantly decreases the electricity costs to run the home. Three HVAC systems allow zoned control of heating and air conditioning. The three car garage includes an oversized, pull through bay that accommodates an RV... or a horse trailer!

One of Sierra Madre's treasured estate properties, 88 Lowell Avenue in Sierra Madre comes on the market June 25, offered at $1.9 million. For a showing, contact the agents, Jan Thornton of Prudential California Realty at 626-893-3303, or Sue and Maurice Orme of Coldwell Banker at 626-826-8511.

Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed

by Luther Tsinoglou Realtor $^{\otimes}$

THE STRONGEST LINK

The question on everyone's lips is, "When are things going to return to normal in real estate?" Well, if the "normal" being referred to is the conditions and shady financial dealings that created the artificially inflated markets of five years ago, then we need to be thinking about redefining "normal."

The bad lending practices of the past are indeed making it more difficult now to secure financing, but try to understand that's not necessarily a bad thing. Those days of lower standards and easy money led us into this predicament in the first place. It's good for housing and for the economy when banks become interested in whether loans will be repaid.

In the "new" normal, home prices will stabilize, the number of sales will start gaining, and more people will again realize the benefits that homeownership offers, for both personal and financial security. With historically low interest rates, affordable prices, government incentives, and motivated sellers, the housing market is already experiencing the initial signs of recovery.

All of these factors combine to get first-time buyers excited about a purchase. As these consumers enter the market, they will trigger other purchases, and the chain of transactions grows. Expect your real estate representative to reveal a wide range of affordable choices and guide you toward securing the financing you need to make your dream come true.

Luther has been licensed and practicing real estate since 1992. He specializes in residential and income property in the Greater San Gabriel Valley. SEVEN TIPS TO HELP YOUR LANDSCAPE BEAT THE HEAT THIS SUMMER by Melinda Myers

Summer has arrived and for many gardeners that means heat, drought and watering bans. This can be hard on gardeners as well as their landscapes. The good news is that there are ways to help plants thrive despite these seasonal challenges. Adjusting landscape care accordingly during the summer months can not only provide relief for lawns and gardens, but also for the gardener. Here are some low maintenance eco-friendly ways gardeners can keep their landscapes looking their best throughout the summer months, while beating the heat:

Water plants thoroughly to promote deep drought- and pest-resistant roots. Wait until the top few inches of soil are crumbly and moist or footprints remain in the lawn before watering again.

Avoid light, frequent watering that encourages shallow roots. Shallow roots are less able to tolerate drought and more susceptible to disease and insect problems.

Spread a 2- to 3-inch layer of shredded leaves, evergreen needles or shredded bark mulch over the soil in garden beds and around trees and shrubs. Mulching conserves moisture, keeps roots cool and moist, and suppresses weeds.

Mow lawns high. Taller grass produces deeper roots that are more drought-tolerant. A deeply rooted lawn is also more resistant to insects, disease and other environmental stresses.

Always mow lawns often enough, so you remove less than one third the total leaf surface. Leave the grass clippings on the lawn. They add nitrogen, organic matter and moisture to the soil.

Use a low nitrogen slow release fertilizer, like Milorganite, to give gardens and lawns a nutrient boost. This organic nitrogen fertilizer remains in the soil until the growing conditions are right for the plant.

Remove weeds from garden beds and borders as soon as they appear. These "plants out of place" steal water and nutrients from your desirable garden plants. Plus, they can harbor insects and diseases that are harmful to your garden plants.

And don't forget to take care of yourself while caring for your landscape during the heat of summer. Drink lots of liquid, use sunscreen, and work during the cooler morning and evening hours.

Then when the gardening tasks are done for the day, grab a glass of lemonade, take a seat in the shade and enjoy the beauty of your handiwork.

CUSTOMER SURVEYS? ASK THEM AND THEY WILL TELL YOU.

Taking steps to establish and maintain a positive image for your business contributes to money in the bank. Customer perception is the reality of how your business is viewed. If your business relies on local customers for the bulk of your business, it is imperative to know what they think. There is no better way to find out what they really think than by asking them directly.

What are your current customers saying? What do they know about your business, and more importantly, what do they think about how you run your business? Anyone who has stayed in a hotel or eaten in restaurants has at some point been presented with a request to complete a brief customer survey.

Many businesses print cards that can be distributed at the point-of-sale or placed in an area of the store that makes it easy for customers to see and provide a response. A survey with five to ten questions is sufficient to capture feedback on a customer's perception about the key areas of your business: Products and/Services, Customer Service, Marketing and Promotions – Example: On a scale of 1 to 10, How do they rate the quality of what you sell? Do they think your pricing is too high, too low or just about right?; What do they think about your business environment? – Is it appealing, clean enough, comfortable seating, easy to park?

One of the ways to implement this process is as a time-limited campaign. This way, you can focus on gathering feedback from as many customers as possible instead of the small trickle of surveys that get filled out throughout the year. Although it is not necessary, you may choose to offer a small incentive to encourage customers to participate. The incentive might be applied during their current visit or at a future time (i.e. free dessert, 10% off the bill, buy one and get another for 50% off). If the incentive provides a benefit on a future visit, it presents the likelihood of the customers returning to spend more money with you.

You can gather feedback from potential customers by participating in local business and civic associations (Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis, Rotary Club) and by staffing a table or booth at community events like festivals, farmers' markets and other venues that attract large groups of residents who live in the area where your business is located. You can recruit a trusted family friend or other individual with a knack for "meeting and greeting" people. Equip them with a stack of discount coupons or other promotional materials to encourage visits to your business, and use this setting to gather feedback on whether they've ever patronized or heard of your business and what they know or think about your business.

Want to know what your customers and the locals think about your business? If you will simply ask them, in a manner that makes it convenient and comfortable for them to answer, they are more than willing to tell you what they think.

OMG! OH MY GOSH DID YOU KNOW.....

By Patricia Richardson, M.B.A QuickBooks Certified ProAdvisor

QuickBooks 2012 has a new and improved global To Do feature. You can now use it as a prompt, a digital reminder, to follow-up on important time-sensitive tasks. For example, To Do can be used to ensure the timely collection of customer payments when used in conjunction with the Notes feature to create a customized tickler system. The combined use of To Do and Notes creates a digital reminder, an automatic tracking system to help you deal with those customers who invariably tell you, "The check in the mail." The item recorded in Notes can be turned into an item on a To Do list for future action on a specific date. When the date arrives, the Note will be displayed on the To Do list.

To Do's have also been made more accessible. The user can list all To Do's in a file, which can also be accessed from the new Lead Center and the QuickBooks Calendar. Your list of To Do's can be categorized, prioritized, and ordered by time of day. This is ideal for setting up and tracking appointments. This is a great new feature because until now there has never been one central place to see important dates and schedules. Finally you can alleviate forgetfulness – "Hey, it's been five days and that check is still not here."

The enhanced scheduling features can help you stay on top of deadlines like filing dates and due dates that can now be kept inside QuickBooks, as opposed to on an external calendar that may compromise your privacy or confidentiality. These features provide auto-alerts that facilitate more timeliness in addressing overdue transactions, all toward keeping your company's cash flow positive. You can view To Do's by area (lead, customers, vendors) and by function (call, fax, email, meeting, appointment, and task). The tasks can be marked, viewed and prioritized as Active, Done, or Inactive.

QuickBooks is the number one selling accounting software for small and medium sized business. The development of this software was done with business owners like us in mind and it just gets better every year

The California Department of Industrial Relations has created a Small Business Portal to assist small-business owners with compliance to ever-changing employee regulations and laws. The portal gives information on a variety of subjects including hiring and maintaining employees, wage and overtime laws, employee safety precaution requirements, and workplace posting obligations.

There are also links to resources for starting a new business, hiring and administering employees, and creating and maintaining a safe working environment. Think of the Department of Industrial Relations (DIR) as a friend to business. According to their website "Small businesses are critical to California's economic recovery and strength, to building America's future, and to helping the United States compete in today's global marketplace. Small businesses also represent 99.7 percent of all employer firms and they employ just over half of U.S. workers and pay 44 percent of total U.S. private payroll.

If you own or manage a small business, you're in good company with resources like Quickbooks and DIR. Stay tuned to OMG on a weekly basis and you'll find more of you need to create the business success that you deserve.

In your Facebook personal profile, you are allowed to connect with 5,000 "friends." If you find yourself needing more friends, you might consider the subscribe feature. It allows people to "subscribe" to your public posts without the more intimate "friend" connection. Don't confuse this with a Facebook business page where you build a list of "Likers." You can build as many of those "likers" as you want.

For public figures (reporters, writers, actors, Mark Zuckerberg, artists), the "subscribe" feature for Facebook profiles is a great way to build connections. Public figures are often measured by the number of Twitter followers or Facebook subscribers they have. Large numbers can equal social relevance, status and marketability. An actress once told me that casting directors look at social media numbers to determine how they fill the parts!

The "subscribe" feature also works great for anyone who has a large following in a certain niche. For example, I recently helped a famous harp teacher who has a large international following set up her subscribe feature.

When people subscribe to someone, they are basically saying they want to get their news, just like subscribing to any publication. The bonus is that once you get 100 subscribers, Facebook starts to recommend you to others and your list grows and grows. I read a blog post from a reporter who gets 1,000 subscribers a day. The more subscribers you have, the more you get!

If you set up the subscribe feature, you need to be willing to hear from lots of people. Remember there are 900 million Facebook users worldwide. So you might get a few comments or interactions that you don't want. But, you can always block anyone that's not a good fit.

A good example of someone using the subscribe feature is Mark Zuckerberg. Check out his profile page (www.facebook.com/zuck). I doubt he wants to be friends with his 900 million Facebook users, so he gives people the option to "subscribe" to any of his "public" posts. He has 15 million subscribers.

You might want to subscribe to a few people to see how it works before you set it up for yourself.

To set up a "subscribe" feature, go to www.facebook.com/about/subscribe or go to your account settings and select "subscribers" and it will walk you through the set up.

GOLFING FOR A CAUSE Peace Officers Raise $120,000

By Joan Schmidt

Recently, the Los Angeles County branch of the PPOA, the Professional Peace Officers Association, held its sixth Annual Peace Officer Memorial Golf Tournament. One hundred thirty one golfers raised about $120,000. The Tournament was sponsored By Lewis, Marenstein, Wicke, Sherwin & Lee, LLP and was held in the Santa Clarita Valley at the Tournament Players Club, Valencia. The site was unbelievable! Eighteen holes of golf on a par-72 course, stretching 7,220 yards and offering sweeping views of the Santa Clarita Valley! The Clubhouse itself was 32,400 square feet. The Tournament officially began with a Welcome and Thank you to all participants, followed by the posting of colors and a beautiful rendition our National Anthem. Among those in attendance were Los Angeles County District Attorney Steve Cooley, Assistant Sheriff Cecil Rhambo, Chief Roberta Abner, Captain Sam Dacus , Lt. Brian Moriguchi and many more!

Do you know that statistics reveal somewhere in the United States, a peace officer is killed in the line of duty every 53 hours. California has laid to rest more officers than any other state. It is a distinction that no officer wants, but it is something they face every day.

The Professional Peace Officers Charitable Foundation (PPOCF) was established in 1999 to promote assistance to members of the law enforcement community in need, most notably the families of peace officers killed in the line of duty. The proceeds from the Peace Officer Memorial Golf Tournament support law enforcement personnel and their families in times of crisis. Financial assistance from PPOCF also helps surviving family members attend annual ceremonies in Los Angeles County, Sacramento, and Washington, D.C.

RICH Johnson cats mostly and dogs too

I've noticed that people typically fall into predominantly three categories. Cat lovers (like my friends Holly, Chuck, and Helen), dog lovers (like my ex-wife, kids, Chuck and Lisa, Cindy, and Dick) and those who prefer no four legged beasties. Of course there are those who have some of each, but let's just classify them as animal lovers in general. (BTW, I know I am going to hear from the llama and armadillo lovers about how I've ignored them).

Cat lovers recoil at the thought of owning dogs as much as dog lovers think it inconceivable to own cats. I have had both at the same time so I'm split on the subject. I like the total devotion of dogs. But I also like it that cats go in the box. Clever people have defined the difference between canines and felines and I thought it might be worth sharing. Let's look at catty comments first: I've been told that the training procedure with cats was difficult. It's not. Mine had me trained in two days. Bill Dana Cats are mean for the fun of it. P. J. O'Rourke this. Anonymous I got rid of my husband. The cat was allergic to him. Unknown

Things you can learn from your cat:

Cleverest names for a dog. I can think of two incredibly clever names, one that is from my foster son, and one that is mean but funny. The best name ever for a dog was named by an Italian family. The called their canine companion, D-O-G (Dee-O-Gee). Alf, the TV show from the 80s, had a neighbor dog named Bob Barker. My foster child's son is a little Maltese named Sparky. He's the best. And the mean but funny name is to call your dog STAY. Come here, STAY. It will mess with his or her name. Don't do that.

STUART Tolchin.....On LIFE

AN UNPLEASANT PREDICTION

I just returned from a week in Chicago that seems to have had a very profound effect upon me. Chicago is quite different from California in that it kind of makes it impossible to ignore reality. The weather here in LA County is generally moderate and here in sheltered, removed Sierra Madre itself is generally pretty moderate. Usually people here leave each other alone. In Chicago people talk to each other. They even talk to strangers just like I do. I guess I'm a pretty typical Chicagoan even though I never knew it.

During our trip my wife, son, and I did not rent a car so we were out in the world using public transportation. We took busses, subways, elevated trains, and river taxis. On many of these trips other passengers talked to us and made recommendations about places to visit and areas to avoid. They filed us in about the recent history of the city and we heard first hand about problems connected with the economy. Some of the bus-riders were now jobless after working many years in service professions. One woman explained that restaurants were now only employing young people with advanced degrees who were wiling to take the jobs because nothing else was available. Given this information I began to ask servers about their education and learned that it was true. Many had Master's degrees. They could find no other jobs and felt fortunate to have obtained the waiter or waitress position. I questioned a cab-driver and learned that he had two Masters and was working toward his PhD. He also told us, that there are great problems in Chicago associated with gang violence. I wanted to visit the area where I attended elementary School but we were warned by everyone, including the taxi-driver and a librarian, who lived near that neighborhood, to not take a chance. Upon returning to safe, secluded Sierra Madre I went to work the next Monday.

As I walked to Court I was asked for money by the homeless people that I passed on the street. I guess this happens all the time and I'm used to it; but on this particular day I looked at the People's faces and they looked miserable. Why didn't I want to give them some change or a few dollars? I used to freely give out money, but now I don't. Why? Probably because I think they will buy lotto tickets instead of food. I once asked someone what they would do with the money and was told that hope was more important than food. Maybe it is?

I walked on to the Criminal Courts Building and went up to the Master Calendar Court for misdemeanors. Usually this courtroom is overcrowded with people and lawyers impatiently waiting for their cases to be heard. On this day it was almost empty. Nothing was scheduled because this was the day Court personnel were told about layoffs. 150 lost their jobs and on that very morning, one Court worker was found dead behind his desk when other people arrived for work. Who knows how long he had been there or why he died? People speculated that the death had something to do with the lay-offs.

So far I have been very fortunate. Now this Chicago trip has opened my eyes a bit and I am really experiencing the fact that the world is in trouble. One of my previous major life traumas was the need to avoid the draft. I applied to become a conscientious objector. I failed to convince my draft board but I did convince myself and consider myself to be a pacifist very much in favor of gun-control and disarmament. Nevertheless, I have spent a great deal of time reading about history and I have come to the unfortunate conclusion that one way the world can solve its present problems is for there to be some sort of global mobilization toward a conflict

Young testosterone-filled men with little to do are presently running around with little to do but cause trouble. Our economy has stopped manufacturing anything. There is little unity and huge polarized political divisions that will not compromise to get anything done. In 1984 Orwell describes a constant war against an imaginary enemy. Maybe that's what we need, or perhaps a war against imaginary space invaders that would allow governments to fund needed space exploration. It would be nice to have a war in which nobody got hurt. Unfortunately, in terms of prediction such a war is very unlikely. Still as I read about world tensions and see Iran, Syria, Russia, and China finding a common interest one has to wonder if war can be far away. Could this war actually secretly be intended to save world economies? It is an unpleasant, cynical thought but, as I recall it was mainly preparations for war that saved the American economy in 1938. It would be nicer if the world could be saved by buying lotto tickets.

HOW TO RUIN A PERFECTLY GOOD DAY

Speaking of good days, and who isn't these days, I am looking forward to two in a row. I know it may be wishful thinking on my part, but a person has to do something with his time.

Last week I almost broke my record with two consecutive good days. But, wouldn't you know it, it just did not happen.

With all my experience in this matter, I plan to write a book someday: "How to Ruin a Perfectly Good Day." I know 197 different ways to ruin a good day. Who knows, by next week it might pass the 200 mark. When that happens, I will celebrate.

For those who do not know how to ruin a perfectly good day, let me outline some tried and true suggestions from my vast wealth of experience.

The first thing is to define what a perfectly good day is. After all, how can you ruin a perfectly good day (PG day) if you don't recognize it? Of course, I agree that nothing is really perfect.

Perfect is in the eye of the beholder and nobody can hold her for very long. What is perfect to me may not be perfect to someone else - like my wife.

A perfectly good day is one of those rare days when everything goes according to plan - my plan that is. I like to get up in the morning and over my morning coffee, review my "to-do-list" for the day and put things in order of importance. A successful "to-do-list," in my opinion, is a list that does not take all day to do. I need some time for myself. If my "to-do-list" has too much to do, the chances of the day being a PG day is be-

A PG day has more hours in it than things to do. I hate it when I run out of day before I finish my "to-do-list."

Last Monday, I had just finished my morning cup of Joe and finished reviewing my

"to-do-list" and seemed to have the day well in hand. The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage noticed my face sporting a playful smile. If there is something my wife can't stand, it is a playful smile across my map. For some reason she thinks I'm up to no good. Usually she's right.

"Why don't you call and straighten out the telephone bill?" she said, as coolly as a preacher at a summer picnic.

I was rather nonchalant and not ready for this task. I had not seen my chalant for weeks but it did not concern me. Looking back, I should have been concerned, or at least looked for my chalant. Actually, I was upbeat and gingerly picked up the phone and dialed the number. Soon a cheery voice was giving me instructions; "Our options have changed to serve you better. Please listen carefully. If you wish to continue in English please press 1." In the confusion, I pressed 4 and got Japanese. I began the process all over again. This time I pressed the right button and got the rest of the instructions in English. From then on, I pressed number after number and got nowhere.

For the next 12 minutes, I was pressing numbers and listening to instructions. Finally, I heard the telephone ringing and a cheerful voice answered. At this point, I thought I was home free, but alas, fate was only putting a hefty mortgage on my home.

"Ello, can I to help please you?" "Huh," I said as diplomatically as I knew how. "Can I to help please you?" the voice in the phone repeated.

I may not be the sharpest pencil in the box but I knew I was talking to someone as familiar with the English language as a politician is to the truth.

"Is there anyone there," I pled, "who speaks English?"

It was on my list but not anywhere near the top.

"Ah, yes, I to speak berry goot English. Can I to help please you?" So, I threw caution to the wind and explained the mix-up on my bill.

"Aaah, I understand. This is billing problem. I transfer you to billing department." For the next 20 minutes, I was treated, and I say this with tongue firmly planted in my cheek, to a musical interlude. It was elevator music; it raised my blood pressure. For the next three hours, I went from pillar to post in the telephone department and got no nearer to solving my telephone-billing mix-up.

One of the problems with being a minister is you are not allowed to swear. By 2:30 in the afternoon, I had an overwhelming urge to swear. My difficulty was simply, I could not think of any swear words to use and "ah, fiddlesticks" does not seem to carry much significance in such circumstance.

all my options, not to mention my patience, and nothing to show for it. All I wanted to do was pay my bill. Through my experience with the telephone company, I was reminded of one of my favorite verses from the Bible. "Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not." (Jeremiah 33:3 KJV.)

By 4 that afternoon, I still had no solution to my billing problem. I had exhausted

HOWARD Hays As I See It

"Children are a wonderful gift. They have an extraordinary capacity to see into the heart of things and to expose sham and humbug for what they are."

Before anything else, I'd like you to check out what I would happily consider the "last word" on gay marriage. I've offered my opinion on the subject a couple of times herein, as has my colleague on the right-side of this page. Never, though, have I heard the topic addressed with such insight, clarity and eloquence.

Kameron Slade was to deliver an address before his school in Queens, but the principal banned the speech once she became aware of the subject. Instead, the speech was given outside for the reporter's microphone and camera. Thanks to that principal's action and the internet, the speech has now reached more people in more places than it ever would have otherwise. Kameron is in the fifth grade.

You can Google "Kameron Slade", or check it out at: "http://jezebel.com/kameron-slade". (Keep your laptops handy; there's another website, on a more personal matter, I'd like you to check out at the end of this column.)

I watched the speech again and marveled at the observations of one so young. I then turned to the online edition of last week's MVN to marvel in a different way at the observations of one a good deal older; as our Councilman Chris Koerber fretted that the existence of a local entity with the word "green" in its title raises the prospect of subjugation by the United Nations.

At the June 12 council meeting, Mr. Koerber suggested the "folks at home" should "Google-up Forbes-dot-com Agenda 21". I was a folk at home, so I Googled it up.

I assume Mr. Koerber was referring to "Agenda 21: The U.N.'s Earth Summit Has Its Head In The Clouds", an opinion piece published in Forbes by "contributor" Larry Bell, a University of Houston professor whose specialty is "space architecture", and recent author of a book on the "Global Warming Hoax". (Mr. Koerber cited the publication date as May 21, 2012, though the article I found was from June 14, 2011. The May 21 issue featured a cover story on Justin Bieber.)

Prof. Bell's basic argument is that the "global warming" issue is merely a front for the U.N. to pursue "wealth redistribution agendas", "world governance goals" and Mikhail Gorbachev's "global socialistic Marxist objectives" (not to mention a CVS Pharmacy at the site of the old Howie's Market).

As for "Agenda 21", its origins are traced back to the 1992 U.N. Conference on Environment and Development at Rio de Janeiro. The premise is that while climate change and sustainable development are global concerns, they must be addressed at the local level. The work is continued through ICLEI Local Governments for Sustainability, comprised of over 1,220 local governments from 70 different countries. One of the founding members was former Irvine mayor Larry Agran, who got together with other local leaders in 1989 to discuss depletion of the ozone layer.

According to Prof. Bell, though, terms such as "comprehensive planning" and "growth management" are code words for "global socialism" and "centralized control of virtually every aspect of urban life."

On a related topic, a recent Gallup poll shows while 46% of Americans believe God created humans in their present form within the past 10,000 years, 58% of Republicans do. Following President Obama's release of his "long form" birth certificate last year, a majority of Republicans still had their doubts as to his birthplace, with a third saying he "definitely" or "probably" was born outside the

A poll conducted last month by Farleigh Dickinson University of New Jersey found that those who rely on Fox News for their information are less informed on domestic and international issues than those who watch no news at all. (Those who listen to NPR did best.)

It's become an annual tradition; with the first big snowfall of winter, Fox viewers are treated to shots of blizzards and snowdrifts accompanied by an explanation that this effectively disproves suggestions of "global warming". It's also predictable that with a catastrophe like the near-meltdown of the Fukushima nuclear reactor following the earthquake and tsunami in Japan last year, hired-gun columnists like Forbes' Prof. Larry Bell will admonish us not to allow New World Order "green" activists to exploit events to cast doubt on the wonderfulness of nuclear energy.

They will warn us not to harbor naïve optimism about inherently impractical energy sources such as wind and solar - or anything, for that matter, that might be regarded as clean and renewable.

With young people being brought closer to the world around them, however, they are becoming more aware of deforestation in the Amazon basin, destruction of the Nigerian Delta through uncontrolled oil production, the shrinking of the Greenland ice sheet and threats posed by a Keystone pipeline to an aquifer providing 30% of our nation's farmland irrigation. Any suggestion that translating such concerns into local action was somehow connected to a United Nations powergrab would be regarded, in the words of Desmond Tutu, as "sham and humbug" (though the young people themselves might have different words).

Also, as shown by Kameron Slade, they know that if your message is the right one, it can reach the world – no matter what your school's principal thinks about it.

Now, here's that other website:

I told my son Anthony I'd send it to all my friends, and ask them to send it on to theirs. I consider readers of my column to be my friends – especially those who make it all the way to the end.

TWO DIFFERENT VISIONS FOR AMERICA

I'm traveling in Virginia, visiting my daughter and what clearly Reagan's at the University of Virginia, and I came across a bumper sticker I hadn't seen before: "No Tea For accomplish. Me; I Prefer Progress". It's cute – I'll give you that - but it also puts into perspective two different visions for America. The Tea Party vision was perhaps best represented by Ronald Reagan, while the "progressive" vision (really a leftist vision with a long pedigree) is represented by our current president. Interestingly enough, when Barak Obama became president, it is reported that he sought out a lengthy biography of Ronald Reagan, seeing in Reagan the same sort of transformative accomplishment that he hoped he would have during his term in office. At the 3-year-andcounting mark of each president's tenure, the comparison between these two presidents is not that flattering to President Obama and those on the left who flatter themselves with their unsupported claim to represent true "progress".

Both new presidents came into office with a troubled, if not collapsing, economy. Both of them, in the same vein of aggressiveness and commitment to change what they inherited and what ailed the country, pursued radical solutions. President Reagan passed the largest tax reduction in this country's history, deregulated a host of industries and applied a firm-footed brake to the easy money policy of the day, which risked driving the economy further into recession. President Obama pushed forward with the largest spending increase in this country's history, instructed his various department heads to increase the regulatory burden in their respective spheres and has goaded the Fed into two "quantitative easings", with a third on the drawing board, in his attempt to float us out of the recession on a sea of newly printed greenbacks.

It's hard to argue that three-years-plus in office is not a sufficient waypoint at which to measure the progress and success of these diametrically opposed solutions. At Reagan's third year, GDP growth had returned to a whopping 5% on its way upward (it finally peaked at about 7%). As we stand now in the middle of Obama's third year, we have an anemic, if even measurable, 1.5% growth rate with some concerns that it could slip into negative numbers, signaling a double dip recession.

I bring this up not to argue that's where we're heading, but to make the secondary point about confidence. Every measure of American confidence was hitting high marks at the end of Reagan's third year, while today every measure of American confidence in Obama, the economy, the country, fill-in-the-blank, is dour and getting worse. With Reagan, America was back; with Obama, there is concern America may be slipping away.

An honest observer – liberal or conservative has to admit that one radical program worked and the other has not. I'd go even further to say that Obama's is hurting the economy, but we don't have to agree on that point per se to at least acknowledge that Obama's massive spending, regulatory meddling and monetary profligacy has failed to accomplish what he promised his program would

The difference of course lies is in the difference between the basic philosophies which undergird both men's programs. Obama, as the quintessential Leftist Progressive, clearly believes that the federal government is the solution. The larger the government as a share of the overall economy and the more regulations that are promulgated, the more control Washington exercises over the conduct of our lives and our economy. This isn't an insult or an accusation. It is a truth born of both observation and the current President's own words.

Reagan's philosophy, a precursor to the Tea Party platform today, was rooted in his trust in both the goodness and the industriousness of the individual. Free up the individual to pursue his dream, to build the castles he saw in those visions, and, Reagan was confident, the rest of the country would bloom and prosper. Reagan's Tea Party philosophy and policies unleashed a miracle of productivity and growth by giving back to the average American the economic incentives that would reward such effort. Reagan reduced marginal taxes to allow Americans to keep more of what they produced by the sweat of their brows. He removed the hurdles which prevented America's great companies (large and small) from employing the innovative genius that seems to be in our DNA. He removed the destructive risk that inflation posed on anyone who wished to invest in the future. The results were nothing short of phenomenal.

Interestingly enough, both presidents faced mountains of criticism and dire warnings that their policies were doomed to fail. These weren't easy agendas to implement. Obama's healthcare and budget battles are still fresh in our minds, but the opposition Reagan faced may be a lost historical point. Today it seems so obvious what he did, but at the time economists staked their reputations on the "fact" that A) the economy could not grow without inflation increasing, and B) it would take almost a decade for the economy to recover. They were wrong. Unfortunately, the same cannot be said for Obama's policies. The dire predictions leveled against Obama's program have sadly proved to be true. We are more in debt, less confident and more exposed to a coming tidal wave of inflation than we have ever been before, and things are not getting better.

There is still hope, but it lies in a different direction than where President Obama and others on the left point. Being a progressive sounds great. Who can argue with making progress? The critical issue is defining what constitutes progress. Any serious definition has to include an improving economic situation. Clearly, Obama and his fellow travelers haven't provided that and can't seriously argue that it's within our grasp now. Perhaps when all is said and done, another good cup of tea is just what this country needs

THE REPORTER INTERRUPTING OBAMA: LOWERING THE BAR AGAIN

Independent's Eye by Joe Gandelman

If a reporter from an ideologically-anchored publication interrupts a President by shouting out questions right in the middle of his statement and it's unprecedented, will some partisans immediately rush to his side to defend the reporter and claim this is the way real, respectable, professional journalists operate? Yep.

Will all his fellow partisans defend him? Happily: Nope. But once again the bar has been lowered on how political business is conducted in the United States – lowered so far that the sharks are now ordering Bloody Marys.

The bar was lowered on June 15 when The Daily Caller reporter Neil Munro interrupted President Barack Obama as Obama was delivering a statement on his administration's historical immigration policy shift. Munro later claimed he didn't intend to interrupt, but at least one journalist there insists it was clear he did and video confirms that view.

> Munro yelled a question akin to one that would be screeched by an ideological cable talk show host: "Mr. President, why do you favor foreign workers over Americans?" The defenders (the green-card carrying) Munro, including his enabling, cheering-section boss Tucker Carlson, later defended his question, equating Munro with retired ABC newsman Sam Donaldson's shout outs to President Reagan. Donaldson told The Huffington Post: "Never once did I interrupt a president in any way while he was making a formal statement, a speech, honoring awardees or in any other way holding the

In reality, Munro wasn't emulating Donaldson. He seemed to be channeling the late, obnoxious Morton Downy, Jr. Some conservatives later got footage showing Reagan interrupted as he was turning a podium over to someone else. But the bottom line is authentic journalists at all media levels and political persuasions have never screamed out questions at public officials who are speaking, even if they don't think they're getting answers.

If journalists interrupted every politician they felt was not being candid answering questions, politicians would have to learn to sign and mime. And Mitt Romney - who evaded Bob Schieffer's question several times about what whether he'd rescind Obama's immigration order -- would be the first in line.

The larger issue is that we're again seeing the bar lowered on expected and "given" behaviors in American discourse in the never ending partisan struggle for power and political dominance. It's not just about civility. It's about being willing to listen to another point of view without trying to drown someone out, keep him from making an argument, or demonizing him.

If this behavior is allowed to stand and not totally repudiated, then it will occur again. And if it does, say goodbye to any vestige of politicians or leaders being allowed to finish statements or speeches without being interrupted by some loudmouth who wants to advance his career, or who has a political axe to grind, or who has an editor who realizes that notoriety brings hits, readership and audience share from many like-minded, angry partisans.

Reporters everywhere let officials deliver speeches and public statements and ask questions after. When I was a reporter in Spain, India, Baja California, California and Kansas, not one American or foreign reporter would ever interrupt an official speech or statement because they were there to gather information -- not to halt information that was being given.

Top conservative media types (Michael Medved, Bill O'Reilly, Bill Kristol, and Chris Wallace) were critical of Munro and Carlson. Meanwhile, CNN"s Don Lemon did a withering piece taking Munro and Carlson to task – even asking Carlson how he would have liked it if someone had interrupted him when he was performing on "Dancing with the Stars."

And Carlson? His descent from a once promising young, serious conservative pundit into partisan hackery was complete when he told Fox News' Andy Levy that he was "proud" of Munro and not worried about "thinking through the consequences for society."

Due to his being an editor who enables and encourages his reporters to discard worldwide standards of journalistic behavior, I suspect the even the sharks wouldn't let Carlson sit at their bar far

They'd tell him to go jump in the lake -- and sit with the crappies.

REMEMBERING MY FATHER by Christopher Nyerges

When my father's 80th birth- to feel it all. some years ago, I wrote a pictorial booklet for my father which his on-going journey. together. It was my way of thanking my father. My wife Dolores and I went to his home after the wild cacophonous family gathering had ended. We didn't want this way during our life together. of laugher, sarcasm, and possibly ridicule. I only wanted to share the thank you story with my father in a somewhat serious atmosphere.

Dolores and I brought some special foods, put on some music, and the "wrong" list was shockingly long. The "right" list only contained I began my short presentation beginning with my earliest significant memories. I shared with him my memories of how he told me I would be an artist when I grew up. He always told me to put my bike and toys away, so "the boogeyman" wouldn't steal them. As I grew older, I learned that the world was indeed full of very real "boogeymen" and my father attempted to provide me with ways to protect myself against these unsavory elements of life.

I recalled to my father, while my mother and Dolores listened on, the birthday party adventures, getting hair cuts in the garage, and how my father tolerated my interest in mycology and wild edibles. Everyone found the recounting amusing, even funny, but there were also tears mixed with the laughter. As with most memories, some things my father recalled quite differently from me, and some he didn't recall at all. Some things that I saw as life-and-death serious, he saw as humorous, and vice versa.

But above it all, I felt I'd finally "connected" with him at age 80 in a way that I'd never managed to do before. My "fathers day card" wasn't pre-made by a card company, but consisted of my own private and secret memories that I shared with him. I managed to thank him for doing all the things that I took for granted - a roof over my head, meals, an education, a relatively stable home.

Of course, all our family members - "insiders" - knew that my father was no saint. But I was at least acknowledging the good, and sincerely thanking him for it.

My mother died two years later, and we all knew my father would be lost without her. They'd been married over 50 years. His health and activities declined and he finally passed away on the Ides of March a few years later.

Though his death did not come as a surprise – I was nevertheless left feeling his absence. That early Saturday morning when I learned of his death, I even felt parent-less. My view of the world changed and I was forced to acknowledge the limits of life and the futility of pursuing solely a material existence.

After I learned of his death via a phone call, I walked out into the morning rain, in shock, crying, thinking, remembering. I was not feeling cold or wet, and somehow I was protected by that unique state of mind that enshrouded me. During the next three days, I did as I had done with my mother when she died. I spent the next three days reviewing my life with At first I allowed the random memories and pain to wash over me. I talked to Frank constantly during those three days, inviting and allowing him to be with me as we did the life review together. I felt his pain, his frustration, his emptiness and loneliness in his last few years of life. I did nothing to stop the pain of this - I allowed myself day coincided with Father's Day I spoke to Frank as I'd speak to anyone living. I felt his presence and even his responses. I did this for myself as much as for Frank and outlined key aspects of our life I began to see him as a young man, who met, fell in love, and married my mother. Somehow, this was a major revelation to me. I had never seen my own father in that light before. He had simply been "my father." Suddenly, he was a unique individual, with his own dreams, aspirations, and goals. Amazingly, I'd never viewed him in an audience in an atmosphere And then, after perhaps 12 hours of this, and miles of walking, I began a more chronological review of my life with my father, point by point by significant point. I saw his weaknesses and strengths, as well as my own. As I did this review, I looked for all the things that I'd done right with my father, all the things I'd done wrong, and all the things that I could have done better. I wrote these down, and a few items!

I asked my father to forgive me, and I resolved to do certain things differently in order to change and improve my character. I know I would not have imposed such a rigor upon myself had it not been for the death of my father.

A week later, when there was the funeral at the church, I felt that I'd come to know my father more than I ever was able to do in life. I briefly shared to the congregation my three days of "being with" my father, and learning what it was like to be Frank, in his shoes, and how we forgave one another.

More importantly, I shared to family and friends gathered that day the importance of constantly finding the time to tell your living loved ones that you indeed love them, not waiting until they die to say the things that you should be saying all along.

I remember Frank now on Father's Day, and continue to express my heart-felt thanks for all that he – and my mother – gave to me.
