HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE - While Remembering The Fallen on 9/11, City's First Responders Are Honored

By Bill Coburn

At approximately 6:55 am on Tuesday, members of the SMFD and SMFD marched out in front of the bay door of the fire station. One of the men lowered the flag to half mast, and then the group was called to attention. They stood at attention until 6:59, when an announcement was made systemwide by the Verdugo Fire Communications Center in memory of the victims of 9/11. The bells rang out, the officers were called to salute, and then dismissed.

Following the memorial, the Sierra Madre Kiwanis Club hosted breakfast for Sierra Madre's first responders. In attendance were members of the SMFD, SMPD, CERT, and the Sierra Madre Emergency Communications Team (SMECT). Breakfast was held at The Lodge, where Kiwanis holds its weekly luncheon

Bean Town provided breakfast burritos, fresh fruit, muffins and croissants, and coffee and orange juice. Following a group sing of "My Country Tis of Thee" and the recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance, Kiwanis and Elder Clem Bartolai gave an invocation. Kiwanis president Susan Henderson played an audio recording of a tribute to Old Glory by Jimmy Weldon, and then introduced Council member Chris Koerber.

Koerber briefly discussed a conversation he was having with SMPD Officer Gonzalez, and noted that first responders, similar to members of the military, are a part of something that's "bigger than just yourself." He noted that for many of his generation, the younger generation, and even some of his parents' generation, it's more about what's in it for me, the "WIIFM" radio station. "I really appreciate that when something's going down, and people are running out of the building," said Koerber, "the firemen are the people running in to take care of business and help people, and I just want to say on this anniversary of 9/11, thank you very much."

Ms. Henderson then spoke, discussing a personal experience of hers in the Oakland firestorm of 1991, when more than 3,300 single family homes and more than 400 apartments and condos were destroyed. Twenty-five people died in the fire, and 150 others were injured. Fifteen hundred firefighters from 250 agencies worked that fire, and Ms. Henderson spoke of driving down the street, unable to see in front of her, being guided by emergency personnel surrounded by flames, some of whom were there without even the heavy fire retardant uniforms to protect them.

"Although I have always had a great respect for our men in uniform, after that experience, nothing I had seen or could imagine really portrayed how much police and firefighters lay their lives down on the line for us."

Ms. Henderson then presented on behalf of Kiwanis, plaques to Chief Steve Heydorff of the Sierra Madre Fire Department and Chief Larry Giannone of the Sierra Madre Police Dept.

PCC Adopts Budget For 2012 2013 Fiscal Year

The Pasadena Area Community College District Board of Trustees voted to adopt the 2012-13 budget proposed by the Pasadena City College administration at its Sept. 5 meeting.

The proposed budget reflects the deep cuts coming from Sacramento, yet it deflects the shock of these cuts from the classroom - PCC will offer more than 4,700 class sections during the year.

"We have constructed a fiscally conservative and balanced budget that deals with the fiscal reality of California," said Robert Miller, PCC senior vice president and assistant superintendent for Business and College. "We have done our very best to keep cuts away from the classroom, yet the cuts from Sacramento has made that very difficult to do."

The PACCD adopted budget is a balanced budget without borrowing, while preserving cash needed to make up for the state's deferrals of payments to all community colleges. The budget adheres to the District's longstanding policy of exceeding state funding for enrollment by no more than 2%. The budget includes a $10.5 million funding reduction from the state, which includes $1.8 million from reserves to mitigate the impact on classes to students. The adopted budget assumes that no additional funding from the state is forthcoming. If Proposition 30 does not pass in November, no further cuts will be required, since the cuts are already budgeted. If Proposition 30 passes, the state will defer payment of the funds until next June.

There are also efficiencies built into the adopted budget. The budget assumes about $600,000 in savings from the new student calendar that moves up the start of spring classes to Jan. 7. The budget also assumes about $800,000 in additional revenue from international and out-of-state students.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS PASADENA FORUM TO ANALYZE NOVEMBER BALLOT MEASURES OCTOBER 6

Voters who want to be in the know about the 11 propositions on the November ballot can expect lively discussion and even debate at a free public forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters Pasadena Area. Titled "Are You in the Know?" it will be held Oct. 6, 9:30 to noon, at the Women's City Club, 160 N. Oakland Ave.,

A team of League members who have studied the measures in depth can help people separate fact from fiction regarding the hotly debated, competing tax measures of Gov. Jerry Brown and education advocate Molly Munger. Speakers also will analyze and present background information and prospective effects on each of the other 10 measures, including a business tax.

Three other propositions address criminal justice issues: ending the death penalty, tougher penalties for human sex trafficking and modifying the three-strikes law. Three affect the legislature: a two-year cycle for the state budget, limits in campaign donations, and a challenge to the recently redrawn political boundaries for state senate district. Two address consumer issues: genetically altered food and auto insurance.

As a nonpartisan political organization encouraging informed and active participation in government, the League invites people at the forum to share information and express divergent views. At this forum the League will only analyze the measures.

Lunch will follow the program and costs $20, including tax, tip and parking. Information and reservations are available by calling 626-798-0965, 10am-1pm M-F. Walk-ins are invited with no cost for admission.

DEALING WITH THE DECLINE OF CIVILIZATION By Christoper Nyerges

[Nyerges has led survival skills and wild food classes since 1974, was the editor of Wilderness Way magazine, and has written 10 books. He can be heard weekly on Preparedness Radio Network. For more information, go to www.ChristopherNyerges.com] since I have heard advertisements for "survival foods" for those folks who are worried about a world in which we descend into chaos and anarchy.

As I listened to an ad on the radio recently, it reminded me of my state of mind in the late 1960s and 1970s when I first began to study ethnobotany and survival skills in general.

Back then, I was primarily motivated out of fear, and was concerned about my own personal physical survival. It has been a long road to today, and though I still encourage folks to store "survival foods," I am no longer motivated by fear. Today, I have a completely different mindset about the very meaning of "survival."

I know that to some people the word "survival" connotes images of some burly guy in a camo outfit and a gun who is just out for himself. That's survival, by the lowest definition. But what about your children, your family, your pets? What about the survival of your community, your environment, your city, your bank, your educational system? Real survival is vastly more than keeping your own body alive.

Through the 1980s, I gave a series of lectures about the many cultures and civilizations that have entirely vanished. Gone. My focus was to look at what causes a culture to slip into decline, and even to vanish. Then, more importantly, I attempted to see if we today in the U.S. are experiencing any of these same causes that lead to decline and extinction. Of course, most members of my audiences listened politely, but felt that "this would never happen to us." In other words, the predictable response was denial.

According to Morris Berman in the classic "The Twilight of American Culture," there are four factors that define a declining civilization.

The first is an accelerating social and economic inequality. Then there are "declining marginal returns with regard to investment in organizational solutions to socioeconomic problems." Another factor is the rapidly dropping levels of literacy, critical understanding, and general intellectual awareness. As an example, the author shares with his readers some of the responses to questions that Jay Leno received during his "Jay Walking" routine. Then, there is something called "Spiritual death" - probably a major factor in the decline of all civilization.

Interestingly, Berman adds that he doesn't know if these four factors are causes, or effects. WHY CIVILIZATIONS FAIL

According to Jane Jacobs in her "Dark Ages Ahead," there are definable reasons why civilizations fall. Among her nine major factors, she lists resource depletion, catastrophes, insufficient response to circumstances, intruders, mismanagement, economic issues, and "cult thinking."

I believe the last two are particularly relevant to us today, but they're by no means our only concern. As Jacobs states, "Civilizations are expensive to keep going and require increasing amounts of labor and wealth to maintain themselves. As civilizations grow, the up-

It has been a long time per classes grow - and so does their need for surplus wealth. The overall costs of supporting the system with specialists, servants, soldiers, police, and so on grow at an increasing rate. The increasing effort to maintain them produce diminishing returns and leads to their collapse."

As for cult thinking, that permeates each and every one of us in every facet of our life. It is not just about religious things. Cult thinking occurs whenever we blindly believe anyone. This is why I have always strongly suggested you read Eric Hoffer's "True Believer.

THE ROMAN EMPIRE

Jane Jacobs suggests that we are following the same cultural decline that occurred with the Roman Empire. She identifies many of the weak spots in our contemporary lifestyle, such as: taxes, family, community, education, science, technology, the lack of self-policing, and moral/ethical insanity. These weak areas are the foundation of all the other often-cited problems, such as the environment, crime, and the discrepancy between rich and poor.

Modern families are "rigged to fail" due to rising housing prices, the suburban sprawl (with a reduced sense of community), and the automobile. Automobile is the chief destroyer of communities, and the idea of community.

WHAT CAN WE DO?

The hopeful part of all of this is that dark ages are not inevitable. For one thing, we all need to get involved, and be a part of the solution. The millions of details of a complex, living culture are not transmitted via writing or pictorially, but by 1) living examples and 2) by word of mouth. We need to think! We need to model solutions (that is, given two options, we should choose what is "higher and better" in our daily life). And we need to teach, to lecture, and to write.

There is always hope and there are always actions we can take. If you're watching TV, choose an educational show, not Family Guy. Constantly learn new skills and crafts, things that have intrinsic value, and that you can do with others

According to Boy Scout leader Francisco Loaiza. "Don't make entertainment such an important thing in your life. Spend time with others and do things with people. Get away from the TV and get off the internet. Get to know other people directly. We may have more knowledge today but we've become a colder society." He adds that our emotional intelligence has been lowered a few notches as well, and he cites as an example that when people sneeze today, they rarely say "excuse

These are just a few of the many ways in which we can become a part of the solution and not be part of the decline of civilization. This is why I wrote "Extreme Simplicity: Homesteading in the City," and "How to Survive Anywhere." I include reading lists in those books which I feel are good for your physical, mental, and spiritual health.

Let me know if you have questions, or more suggestions.

SHINE ON HARVEST MOON!

Songs are written about it, lovers sing of it, but when's the last time observatories, NASA agencies, you actually looked at a Harvest Moon?

First, what is a "Harvest Moon"? It's defined as "the Full Moon and share information about it. nearest to the September equinox" (the first day of autumn, which this year is Saturday, Sept. 22). For everyone the Harvest Moon is conspicuous; for farmers in years past it was vital. At the climax of harvest they could work late into the night by this autumn Moon's light. It rises due east about the time the Sun is setting due west (6:00 p.m.), the Sun and Moon both being roughly on the equator at this season. And for a few days, instead of rising its average of 50 minutes later each day, it rises at nearly the same time for several days. This is because the Moon's orbital path is tilted somewhat sideways (horizontally) this time of the year, so that it makes a shallow angle relative to the horizon.

This year, the Harvest Moon will rise at its fullest on Saturday, Sept. 29, one week after the autumn equinox. And while moon-watching is always interesting, it will be especially so a week before the Full Moon, on the night of the equinox, Saturday, Sept. 22—which has been designated "International Observe the Moon Night."

You'd be surprised how many lunar features you can see, with even a small telescope or binoculars, when the moon is at this phase—with only its right half lit, looking like a "D" in the southern sky.

If you feel like a Saturday-night outing to a local observing event on the 22nd, here are some local possibilities:

International Observe the Moon Night is an educational outreach event sponsored by multiple NASA and astronomical organizations. Some 300 events in over 40 countries are being hosted by universities, high schools, and amateur astronomers to observe the Moon Events are offered both in person and via internet streaming video. The date was selected during the Moon's waxing gibbous phase, to enhance visibility of lunar craters.

FINALLY, A BIT OF LUNAR (OR IS IT LOONY?) TRIVIA. How many Moon-related songs can you

Let's start with the classics: Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" and Debussy's "Clair de Lune." Then fast-forward to jazz-age and swing-era standards like "Shine on Harvest Moon," "Carolina Moon," and "Moon Over Miami." Remember "Moonlight Becomes You" from one of those 1940s "Road to..." movies with Dorothy Lamour, Bob Hope and Bing Crosby? From the Big Bands there's "Moonlight Cocktails" and Moonlight Serenade." And finally, who could forget Audrey Hepburn singing "Moon River" in "Breakfast at Tiffany's"?

And here's a final idea: Why not invite friends in for a backyard moonlight barbecue, with or without telescope, on either Sept. of the above songs, to accompany your "moonlight cocktails," would be nice—and that Old Devil Moon overhead is sure to be good company.

ARCADIA POLICE BLOTTER

For the period of Sunday, September 2nd, through Saturday, September 8th, the Police Department responded to 1,079 calls for service of which 124 required formal investigations. The following is a summary report of the major incidents handled by the Department during this period.

Sunday, September 2:

1. At about 2:37 p.m., an officer responded to Gap at the Santa Anita Mall, 400 South Baldwin Avenue, in regards to a theft report. Unknown suspect(s) stole twenty-four pairs of jeans and fled undetected. No witnesses were located.

At approximately 6:00 p.m., an officer was dispatched to the 500 block of Sharon Road regarding a theft report. After having an open house event, a jewelry box was discovered missing. The mortgage sales associate recalled five suspicious adult subjects walking through the home and believed they were involved in the theft. The subjects, described as two Hispanic males and three Hispanic females, left the location in a late 90's dark green Toyota Camry. No fingerprints were located.

Monday, September 3:

Around 9:35 a.m., an officer responded to the 900 block of Coronado Drive regarding an auto burglary. Unknown suspect(s) stole one of the resident's vehicles from his driveway, which was unsecured and unattended. The victim discovered his spare key, which he stored in the center console of another vehicle, was missing. No one reported seeing or hearing anything suspicious.

4. Shortly after 6:15 p.m., officers were dispatched to the Cheesecake Factory at the Santa Anita Mall, 400 South Baldwin Avenue, in reference to a robbery that just occurred. The victim explained an unknown suspect(s) assaulted him with a sharp object and took his wallet. Inconsistent statements revealed the subject was not telling the truth and shortly after, mall security revealed the wallet was located in the parking lot. An investigation revealed the subject fabricated the story because he was afraid to tell his father he lost his wallet. The case is being considered for filing for False Report of a Felony to a Police Officer.

Tuesday, September 4:

At about 12:36 a.m., an officer observed a male subject impeding traffic as he crossed the street on a red traffic signal at the intersection of Huntington Drive and Baldwin Avenue. The officer observed a bottle of Vodka protruding out of the victim's pants. The 20-year-old Hispanic male was cited, released in the field, and the bottle of liquor was destroyed.

6. At approximately 3:30 p.m., an officer responded to Gate 1 in the area of Santa Anita Mall, 400 South Baldwin Avenue, in regards to a suspicious male subject. A resident reported the subject hopped the fence into her yard carrying a bundle of clothing and then ran toward the mall after she confronted him. An investigation revealed the 20-year-old Hispanic male stole from Macy's. He was arrested in the mall parking lot and transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking.

Wednesday, September 5:
7. At almost 11:00 a.m., an officer responded to Arcadia Methodist Hospital, 300 West Huntington Drive, regarding suspicious circumstances. A security guard witnessed a suspicious Black male subject walking through the hospital wearing blue hospital scrubs. As soon as the subject realized he was being watched, he hurried out of the location and fled in a black 2008 Audi.

An investigation revealed the subject was escorted off the property in January 2012 after he was seen wearing a lab coat and acting like a doctor. Officers advised the subject not to return, or he would be arrested for trespassing.

Around 10:45 p.m., officers were dispatched to the 2000 block of Cielo Place in regards to a bear in the front yard. As officers approached the location, they observed a cinnamon colored bear rummaging through the resident's trash cans. Soon thereafter, the bear looked at the officers, left the trash cans, and walked directly towards them. In reaction to the approaching bear, one of the officers used less-lethal resources to encourage the bear back into the wild. The officer's effort was successful as the bear immediately turned away and fled back into the hillside out of sight. Neither the bear nor the officers were injured during the encounter.

Thursday, September 6:

Shortly after 2:10 a.m., an officer conducted a traffic stop on a vehicle for a broken headlight, in the area of Huntington Drive and Gateway Drive. An investigation revealed the 32-year-old Hispanic female driver had a suspended license and one outstanding misdemeanor warrant, and the 28-year-old Hispanic male passenger had two outstanding misdemeanor warrants. Both suspects were arrested, transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking, and their vehicle was impounded.

10. At about 1:20 p.m., an officer responded to H&M at the Santa Anita Mall, 400 South Baldwin Avenue, in reference to a private person arrest. A female subject concealed merchandise inside her purse and exited the store without making payment. The 34-year-old Hispanic female was arrested and transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking.

Friday, September 7:

Around 6:25 p.m., an officer responded to the Arcadia Police Department front counter in regards to a fraud report. The victim discovered several unauthorized transactions as she checked her bank account online. A Wells Fargo Bank representative revealed the account was accessed several times by an unknown subject(s). The total loss was over $24,000. The victim had no idea how her personal information was compromised.

At approximately 7:42 p.m., officers were dispatched to the area of Second Avenue and Pamela Road regarding a two-party traffic collision. An investigation revealed an intoxicated driver attempted to pass another vehicle without sufficient clearance and collided with the front half of the vehicle, causing its driver-side airbag to explode. No injuries were reported. The 35-year-old White male was arrested and transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking.

A special first-ever preview of a mock-up of the Marker will be unveiled to attendees of the Arcadia Chamber of Commerce's annual Taste of Arcadia at the Arboretum on Sept. 24.

This is the ninth marker dedicated by the Arcadia Historical Society in five years and the first to be entirely funded and presented by the independent Friends of the Society group which supports the Society in many ways. The tenth Marker will be dedicated this fall, coinciding with the unveiling of a new life-size statue of Lucky Baldwin.

Among the little-seen photographs presented on the Arboretum Marker will be an 1889 painting by H. H. Cross of Baldwin and daughter Anita sitting with dogs near the famous lake in front of the guest cottage (now called the Queen Anne Cottage); Lucky Baldwin's nearby adobe home place of more than three decades (often called the Hugo Reid adobe, though Reid never lived there); and postcard views of the Baldwin Ranch, circa 1905, referred to by the Los Angeles Times in 1893 as one of the most beautiful botanical gardens in the world.

The 127-acre Arboretum was the heart of the Libby. sprawling Rancho Santa Anita, originally an outpost of Mission San Gabriel. Baldwin purchased 8,500 acres of Rancho Santa Anita in 1875 and eventually owned nearly 50,000 acres of today's San Gabriel Valley before he died in 1909. His cell: 626-485-8783 daughter Anita maintained her father's beloved Web site: http://www.arcadiahistoricalsociety.org

Santa Anita home site for decades but was forced to sell it in 1936 due to financial burdens created by the Great Depression. In 1947, the new owners, a real estate syndicate headed by the Chandler family (longtime owners of the Los Angeles Times) sold the prime property surrounding the adobe and cottage at less than market value to an ambitious group of horticulturists backed by the County and the State for the purpose of create an Arboretum. The series of Historical Markers are part of the non-profit Society's mission to create broader public awareness of noteworthy historical events, people, and landmarks in Arcadia. The Society's first Historical Marker was presented during the Centennial Celebration of First Avenue Middle School in October 2007. Others since then: Los Angeles County's Arcadia Park near the peacock fountain; the original City Hall on the northwest corner of Huntington Drive and First Avenue; the Woman's Club of Arcadia on First Avenue; three presented during 75th Anniversary dedications for the Arcadia Chamber of Commerce, Santa Anita Park, and Adams' Pack Station; and most recently The Derby restaurant last year.

Gene Glasco is president of the Arcadia Historical Society.

Sandy Snider researched, wrote and coordinated the photographs for the Derby, Arboretum, and upcoming Lucky Baldwin markers as a member of the Society's Historical Marker Committee chaired by Scott Hettrick and assisted by Carol

DUARTE RESPONDS TO NBC NEWS REPORTS

Film Permit for Anti-Islam Production Lists Blue Cloud Movie Ranch in Santa Clarita, not Duarte, as Filming Site

On September 12, 2012, the City of Duarte via its' public information officer Karen Herrera, issued the following statement, "The Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, investigating a report by NBC News, on behalf of the City of Duarte, that the anti-Islam film "Innocence of Muslims" that sparked violence in Egypt and Libya, was not filmed at a studio in Duarte, as previously reported. This information has been substantiated by a film permit that names Blue Cloud Movie Ranch located at 20000 Blue Cloud Road in Santa Clarita, CA as the site of the film production. The company named in the NBC report, Media for Christ, is listed as the company that requested the film permit, according to FilmL.A., a private, nonprofit organization that coordinates and processes permits for on-location motion picture, television and commercial productions.

According to the City of Duarte, Media for Christ has had an active business license in the City since 2006. Sheriff's Department will be conducting periodic patrol checks of the Media for Christ offices and surrounding areas over the coming days."

However in a LA Times story the next day, the following appeared: "But Duarte's deputy city manager said she had been told by sheriff's officials that the permits to shoot the movie had been issued to Media for Christ. An actor who appeared in the movie, Tim Dax, said he was paid $75 a day in checks drawn on the bank account of Abanob Basseley Nakoula — a name linked to the Cerritos property where Nakoula Basseley Nakoula resides. The home's distinctive front door with triangle windows in a half-circle pattern is visible in the 14-minute trailer for the movie posted on YouTube.

Joseph Nassralla Abdelmasih is the President of Media For Christ of Duarte. He has been linked to Nakoula Basseley Nakoula of Cerritos. Both men have been linked to the production of the film. Both men are Egyptian immigrants.

In the Times article, Media for Christ obtained permits to shoot the movie in August 2011, and Nakoula provided his home as a set and paid the actors. That has also been confirmed by government officials and those involved in the production.

Described as a "sleepy suburb of Los Angeles", Duarte may now have to deal with the dubious distinction of being the home of one of the persons associated with creating a disturbing, anti-Muslim film that is causing unrest around the world.

Gang Injunction - Suspects Arrested

On September 7 at 8:56 p.m., an officer conducted a traffic stop in the 400 block of East Duarte for a littering violation. Upon contacting the occupants, the officer found the three occupants to be in violation of Monrovia's gang injunction. The occupants were arrested for the violation and later released on a citation.

On September 7 at 10:44 p.m., police responded to a business in the 100 block of West Foothill regarding a burglary. A security guard in the parking lot observed two females exit a vehicle and place black tape across the rear license plate to obstruct it. The two females entered the business and the guard remained in the parking lot to monitor the vehicle.

Several minutes later, the two females exited the market with a shopping cart full of store merchandise. As the females approached their vehicle, they saw the security guard and fled on foot, leaving the merchandise and their vehicle behind. The officer who responded recovered enough evidence to establish a burglary and to possibly identify one of the suspects. The vehicle was stored and the investigation is continuing.

Vehicle Burglaries

On September 8, four vehicle burglaries were reported throughout the day. The burglaries occurred in the 400 block of East Cypress, the 800 block of West Hillcrest and in the 600 and 700 blocks of West Foothill. The entry into the vehicles appears similar and was possibly made by the same suspect(s). The door locks on all four vehicles were broken to gain entry. The investigation is continuing.

Felon in Possession of Body Armor - Suspect Arrested

On September 10 at 4:20 p.m., a speeding vehicle in the 2100 block of South Myrtle was stopped by an officer on patrol. The driver was identified and found to be on felony probation. A consent search of the vehicle was conducted and a bullet resistant vest was found in the vehicle. The suspect was arrested for the charge of felon in possession of body armor.

Fire Assist

On September 10 at 10:09 p.m., officers responded to a local private college in the 100 block of East Huntington due to smoke coming from the roof of the building. The Foothill Air Support Team helicopter was on scene as officers arrived to check for flames. Air Support advised that the smoke was coming from the northwest corner of the roof. Officers exacuated the entire building and stopped northbound traffic on Myrtle and westbound traffic on Huntington. The Monrovia Fire Department arrived and located an air conditioning unit on the roof that was on fire and put the fire out. There were no injuries involved.

Possession of a Controlled Substance - Suspect Arrested

On September 11 at 4:01 a.m., an officer on patrol stopped a male adult riding a bicycle at Peck and Longden for a traffic violation. Prior to any search, the subject stated he was on parole and had methamphetamine in his pocket. The officer retrieved a small plastic container that contained methamphetamine. The suspect was arrested and taken into custody.

Under the Influence of a Controlled Substance - Suspect Arrested

On September 11 at 10:08 a.m., a couple was arguing in the lobby of a hotel located in the 900 block of West Huntington and police were requested. The subjects left the location prior to officers arriving, but were found nearby in a parking lot. The officers contacted the subjects and determined the male subject to be under the influence of drugs. He was arrested and taken into custody.

Burglary

On September 11 at 9:58 p.m., a male subject at a gym in the 700 block of East Huntington put his property in a locker and secured it. When he returned to the locker, he found his lock missing and his wallet stolen. Investigation continuing.

Possession of a Methamphetamine Pipe / Driving on a Suspended Driver's License - Suspect Arrested On September 12 at 3:57 p.m., Special Enforcement Team officers on patrol observed a driver acting suspiciously in the north end of the city. While the officers were following the suspect, they saw the driver throw a glass pipe out of the vehicle. When the officers tried to stop the vehicle, the driver slowed down, but did not stop for several hundred yards, eventually stopping at Foothill and Heliotrope. The suspect was also found to be driving on a suspended license. He was arrested for the above listed charges without further incident.

ALVERNO HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS TAKE THE OATH OF OFFICE

took the Oath of Office during Alverno's annual Inauguration on Modeled after the government of the United States, Alverno High School boasts a unique system of government that allows for more than 50 percent of students to be involved. Rather than the traditional "Associated Student Body" model, Alverno High School's government is overseen by the Alverno Constitution and students are considered citizens of the Alverno Student Union. The Alverno Student Union includes the federal, legislative, and judicial branches as well as individual state governments.

At the federal level are the President and Vice-President, Alexandra Overstreet and Lindsay Fisher, who were elected as a ticket at Alverno's annual Convention in April. The federal level is completed with a presidential cabinet, which includes positions like Secretary of Activities, Secretary of Campus Ministry, Secretary of Performing Arts, and many more. Including President Overstreet and Vice-President Fisher, twenty-one sophomores, juniors, and seniors make up the federal level of the Alverno Student Union.

The legislative branch is composed of the Alverno Congress, which includes three representatives from each class, or state as they are known at Alverno. Congress drafts, passes, and approves bills and resolutions that affect the entire student body on a wide spectrum of policies. A judicial branch includes two Supreme Court justices from each state and a Chief Justice. The Supreme Court must agree a bill is constitutional before it may go into effect.

Finally, each state has its own Constitution as well as the following positions: Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary, Treasurer, Sergeant At Arms, and nine assemblywomen. These young women are responsible for making decisions specific to their own state.

On September 14, 2012, ninety-two Alverno High School students "I believe that Alverno gives each and every one of its students the resources that we need to live to our highest potential during our four years here and the ones that come after," said ASU President Alexandra Overstreet. "ASU is working hard to make this a great year for Alverno and together with Vice-President Fisher and our cabinet I know we are not only making changes for the present but for future years as well. ASU and I are completely dedicated to Alverno and I hope that we can empower other students to become involved in our community."

> "Our unique student government program is a perfect example of the monumental role our young women play in our school community. Each of the young women elected has made not only a commitment to Alverno, but a commitment to her peers to be an effective, compassionate, and servant leader. These values are basic tenets of the Alverno philosophy and our leadership program is just one of the ways Alverno empowers each young woman to be exactly the person she wants to be."

About Alverno High School

Alverno High School is a Catholic, private, college preparatory school for young women dedicated to preparing them to function in a society as informed, knowledgeable persons, who have the requisite skills to make and implement mature decisions about complex problems. Enlivened by the spirit of its Immaculate Heart Community sponsors, and mindful of the Franciscan roots of its founders, Alverno's program—academic, spiritual, aesthetic, social, and physical—is shaped by the staff, trustees, and students in light of the world for which the students are being educated. Alverno's mission is to empower each young woman to be exactly the person she wants to be and since 1960, Alverno has empowered more than 4,100 women to meet that goal. For more information about Alverno High School, please call 626-355-3463 or visit www.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show Movie Reviews Especially for Teens & 'Tweens

THE POSSESSION

While it is certainly not one of the scariest horror movies I have ever seen, The Possession is a good movie. The concept and story are solid, while the acting is so bad, you find yourself laughing at what was meant to be a serious, if not scary, moment. Yet I found it oddly enjoyable.

The 'ordeal' begins with an old woman staring at a box, which is speaking to her. She reached for something to destroy it and attempts to crush the box, but a strange force throws her around the room. Next, we see a divorced father (Jeffrey Dean Morgan) picking up his two daughters (Madison Davenport, Natasha Calis) from his ex-wife's house (Kyra Sedgwick). On the way, they pass a house having a yard sale (the same one that the old woman lives in). The father, wanting to make his daughters happy, buys the younger one a box (the same one from the beginning). He takes them to his new house, which is beautiful, but the older daughter is not ready to move on. Over the next 29 days, the younger daughter's condition deteriorates as the spirit takes more of her soul. The daughter wants to help, the mother is suspicious, and the demon grows stronger.

Other than the concept and story, everything else is decent: the acting, directing, screenplay, and their attempts to scare you. It will not go down as one of the best horror movies, it will not be the worst.

BURGER ELECTIONS/FIRST IMPRESSION AND SIP-TEMBER

There is a new candidate in the race for the best burger in the Pasadena area. It's called the Hook Burger, but I am not hooked. I'm not sure if they are running as an Independent, republican or what -- I just can't endorse this candidate. It's not that they are flip-flopping on issues, or have promised no new taxes, or even Vadoo economics. It's just that the burger is palin (oops, plain) and not memorable. I like my burger candidates to be fresh and exciting, leaving me wanting more. This is just fast food, all dressed up. I give it only three out of five stars. If you are in the area, and want an alternative to Carls Jr. stop by, otherwise vote for another burger.

COMMUNITY KINDNESS FOR LOST CANINES

porch with our two dogs, watching the sun go down and enjoying the cool breeze blowing through the trees after a long hot day, when a neighbor stopped by with a beautiful beagle on a leash, asking if we knew who he belonged to. The dog was so friendly, it came right up to us and we both agreed that we did not recognize him. He was obviously very well taken care of, and didn't appear to be exhausted or hungry, so I assumed he probably lived nearby. I offered to make a few calls, pound the pavement and do what I could to find his owner, in order to get him back home. My neighbor, whom I was so pleased to see had been kind enough to take the time to help the poor lost pup, thanked us for our efforts and said she would be willing to keep him at her house if we were unable to locate his owner by the end of the evening. I was relieved

My neighbor had already called the police to report a lost dog, after which she contacted the Humane Society, but I decided to start by making a follow up call to the Sierra Madre Police myself. The fact is, proper protocol for reporting a lost or found pet is to contact the local SPCA, which in our case happens to be the Pasadena Humane Society, but the police in our little town are willing to help if they can, when they are not too busy. The police dispatcher was kind enough to take my name and number in hopes that the owner might call them back, and for that I was very grateful. Next, I called the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA, and spoke to the officer on duty who also took my information and told me he would pass it on to the owner if she called. I then prepared to start canvassing the neighborhood, however I never had the chance to start my door-to-door venture, because on my way out, I received a call from the dog's owner, who had indeed phoned back in to the police and was given my name and number!

She was so happy to hear that her beautiful babe was safe with a neighbor who would hold him until she could come and pick him up. Laurel, the dog's owner arrived just moments later, nearly in tears with joy to be reunited with her little boy whose name I then found out is "Bo". Bo was equally elated to be reunited with his owner and his also-adopted "doggie sibling" who was waiting in the car to greet him. Before driving away, Laurel told me that

Before I knew it, Laurel, Bo and Bo's 'doggie bro' were on there way down the road headed back home. It warmed my heart to have taken part in reuniting that happy little family, and I thought how little it took to make such a big difference in a situation where the outcome could have been otherwise tragic. I made a point of reporting back to my kind neighbor who had initiated the effort to get a lost little dog back home, and she was very pleased to hear that the incident had wrapped up nicely with a happy ending.

While reflecting on my experience that evening, I thought how important it is to keep our pets safely detained to the best of our ability, and to make sure they have implanted ID chips, just in case they do go missing without their collars. I also thought of how important it is that we neighbors look out for one another's pets when they do go missing and do our best to get them safely home. It is a community effort to be kind to the lost canine. I felt prompted to share this story with my readers, along with a bit of information about the proper protocol to follow should you find a lost dog, or if your own dog should go missing. We as local residents and pet owners should all assume responsibility, and do our best to be aware and prepared to report the incident in a timely & proper manner. Here are a few "good-to-know" helpful hints that might come in handy, if/when you find a wandering dog or if/when your own dog goes missing in Sierra Madre or one of the other towns near Pasadena:

First, look for an identification tag on the dog's collar. Most dogs wear a city license tag, providing a serial number that can be traced to the owner by the city or the SPCA. Some pets also wear a personal ID tag bearing the owner's name, address and/or phone number, allowing for direct & immediate contact. If there is no owner information available, call the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA 24-Hour Hot Line at 626-792-7151 and report the found animal.

Having called the SPCA, you can also call the Sierra Madre Police Department at 355-1414. As I mentioned earlier, the police are not ultimately responsible, but many pet owners are not aware of the proper protocol, so they call the police 1st rather than the SPCA, so it can't hurt to call them both.

If you the owner cannot be contacted through the SPCA or the police in a timely manner, you can also take the dog to Petco or the Humane Society to be scanned for an implanted ID chip. Some facilities offer this as a free service to help reunite lost dogs with their owners. There are even a few veterinarians that will scan a lost dog for chipping, at no charge.

On a final note I'd like to say thanks to all of the "Good Samaritans" in our community who do care enough to take the time to show kindness to a lost canine. A true animal lover knows it is worth the effort to do what it takes to help a wandering or lost dog find it's way back home! I was personally so very pleased to see Bo and his owner reunited last Saturday, it really made my day!

The 2012 Alverno cross country team debuted at the 12th Annual Don Bosco Tech Cross Country Invitational held at Santa Fe Dam, Irwindale on Saturday September 8, 2012. The Varsity Team, the 2011 Horizon League Champions, did not field their entire team. Senior varsity runners Eryn Blakely, ons, did not field their entire team. Senior varsity runSenior varsity run-Adrianna Martinez, and newcomers Madi Mennie and Vanessa Serrano along with juniors Victoria Pintado, Brett Richey and Francesca Rueda competed in the Small Schools Juniors-Seniors race. This season's Jaguar team has four returning seniors and two rookie seniors; four juniors; two returning and two coming back from knee issues that forced them to miss all of part of last season; a returning sophomore and three freshmen with some running experience. Alverno competed in the Small Schools Division fielding seven runners in the Junior-Senior race and four runners, sophomore Rose Boubion and freshmen Kimberly Ganivet and Natalie Valencia in the Soph-Frosh race.

The Don Bosco Invitational marks the start of the fall high school cross country season and gives teams the opportunity to test themselves and compare themselves against their Horizon League opponents. Alverno runners improved their times over their 2011 performances on the 3-mile course that has a variety of terrain which includes sand, bike trails, asphalt, dirt, rocks and grass. This year's race was made a bit harder by slightly altering the terrain, removing about a mile of dirt trail and replacing it with small rocks.

This season's team consists of returning Seniors Eryn Blakely, Ashley Haylett, Katherine Haysbert, Adrianna Martinez and new to the team, Madi Mennie and Vanessa Serrano; Juniors Jessica Lopez, Victoria Pintado, Brett Richey, Francesca Rueda (returning after a year's absence due to knee injury); returning Sophomore Rose Boubion and Frosh runners Kimberly Ganivet, Adriana Nava and Natalie Valencia. Head Coach Ken Berry and Assistant Coach Alex Fanara train the cross country team.

Alverno's top finisher at this year's Don Bosco Tech XC Invitational was senior Eryn Blakely. Blakely earned a medal by placing 6th from 166 runners in the Small Schools Junior-Senior race with a time of 19:18. This marks the 4th consecutive medal (2009 – 2012) earned by Blakely at this Invitational meet. After a slow first 2 miles and behind her 2011 pace, Blakely quickly picked up her pace (6:00 3rd mile) and finished in 6th place. "My friend said that at the mile mark, there were at least 50 runners ahead of me. I spent the rest of the race going faster and passing runners", Blakely said after the race.

The next test for the Alverno runners will be at the Bellarmine/Griffith Park (Bell-Jeff) Cross Country Invitational on Saturday, September 22nd. At this Invitational, Alverno expects to see runners from their Horizon League teams compete and others that they will see at the October 19th Mt. Sac Invitationals.

Horizon League competition gets under way on Wednesday, September 26th at 4:00 PM at Griffith Park, hosted by Bishop Conaty. Member schools of the Horizon League are Alverno High School, Bishop Conaty-Our Lady of Loretto, Holy Family, Sacred Heart of Jesus and San Gabriel Mission.

JASMINE'S CORNER

Book Reviews by Jasmine Kelsey Williams

THE HOST By Stephanie Meyer
When it comes to a good read, sometimes it will be the author that captures your attention rather than the title. Stephenie Meyer is one such author as she is recognized both by name and her books. She is the author of the bestselling 'Twilight' series, and her next novel 'The Host' is proof of her work. Although copyrighted in 2008, 'The Host' really branches from the 'Twilight' series and is introduced as a much more adult piece of work; from the personality of the characters to the pacing of the story itself. The novel focuses on the protagonist Wanderer, an alien (which are referred to as "Souls") who inhabits her human host named Melanie and tries to push away the consciousness that is Melanie herself. The trouble comes her way however, when Melanie refuses to fade, resulting in two beings that are both aware of each other's presence within the same body. Story and pacing are equal parts, with the characters showing depth and strong emotions; one may think of this as reimagining of 'Invasion of the Body Snatchers', but with increased emotion, background, and how Melanie and Wanderer learn to coexist while both working together in search of the man they have both fallen in love with. Even though 'The Host' is an alien-invasion story, it is worth your time since it is told from a different perspective; one that focuses on love, resolution, and taking in any new experiences that define who you are and what you want to pursue in life. And if you are also a fan of movies, then keep an eye out for the film adaptation of the 'The Host', which will arrive in theaters in 2013.

Editor's Note: Ms. Williams is the latest addition to the Mountain Views News family. A young writer alumni of Pasadena City College, she brings a new voice to our Arts and Entertainment section.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: Review By Sean Kayden

MINUS THE BEAR

"Infinity Overhead" is the fifth studio album from progressive rock adherents, Minus The Bear. With this latest endeavor, the five-piece band travels back to their signature sound that propelled their career at the start of the millennium. Their preceding-2010 tenuously-named LP, "Omni" was driven by a much deeper electronic sound than the band had ever dabbled with in the stretch of their decade- long career. It was a noble effort, seeing how the band took a chance by elaborating on their previously established multifaceted style. With a felicitously titled record and attempting to transcend the boundaries of their unflagging talents, Minus The Bear find themselves ambitiously compelled to create what they've intended to be their best material to date. I'm not quite sure if they set their sights too high, since "Infinity Overhead" isn't the band's finest hour, but it's certainly not one to starkly dismiss, either.

"Steel and Blood" kicks the album off in grand fashion. It's smooth with its fuzzy snyths and familiar Minus The Bear guitar riffs, yet also vehemently in your face. The lyrics are dark too, describing a ghastly car crash with an overflow of blood at the forefront. At least singer Jake Snider expresses the line, "I'll be by your bedside" to turn the song into more of a human connection piece. "Lies and Eyes" follows and it doesn't disappoint. It's a sexually and ill-faded romance motivated pop treat that is beautifully executed with guitars interwoven with the keyboards to create this ever-lasting infectious sound. With an opening line such as "He regrets having no regrets," you know you're in for something special. The song just works on all accounts. "Diamond Lighting" is in the vein of classical Minus The Bear. It's a soaring composition that flows like a steady stream, with an occasional heavy tide, too. Definitely the dreamier tune of the record, "Diamond Lighting" will please strong enthusiasts of the band. "Listing" is unequivocally the strongest song from "Infinity Overhead".

The song pulls you in and doesn't let go. It's a reflective tune that has that signature Minus The Bear touch to just explode into something unworldly. Sometimes you have to take a moment to realize just how great these guys are as a core group of musicians. "Heaven is a Ghost Town" is very melodic while weaving in and out of slow, cautious cadence then ultimately unraveling into a sharper, pulsating

It seems like Minus The Bear went back in such a way to enable them to change the game, or at least the game they play. However, unfortunately with such a dominant and significant opening half, and their audacious musical decisions, the band somehow loses all the momentum with a vacant, directionless second half. It's not dreadful, but the flow of the record is interrupted so abruptly that the feeling you once had quickly diminishes. These final songs play off so nonchalantly and aloof that listeners can easily find themselves bored by the lack of surprises or thrills the band initially supplied with the first handful of songs. Minus The Bear has never been a band of catharsis, yet with "Zeroes," "Lonely Gun," and "Cold Company" the deficiency of anything emotionally affecting or thought-provoking is clearly missing. In the end, "Infinity Overhead" isn't as substantially grand or glorious as it could have very well been, but where it does shine, you'll be hard pressed to find any darkness in sight.

WAYS TO COMBAT KNEE PAIN WITHOUT SURGERY

With advancements in medicine, we are living longer and our knees take on the accumulation of stresses of our daily activities over time. So, as we get older, many more of us are impacted by knee pain. The good news is there are many options to help treat knee pain besides surgery.

Treatments can be as simple as placing an ice pack on your knee for 20-30 minutes every 3 to 4 hours for the first 2-3 days or until the pain subsides. Your leg can also be elevated by placing a pillow underneath it to help reduce swelling.

A multitude of conditions may result in knee pain such as ligament injury, cartilage (aka meniscal) injuries, arthritis, muscle and tendon injuries, strains and kneecap injuries or misalignments. A physician specialist can help you develop a personalized exercise program targeted to treat your specific injury. One of the many exercises to treating knee osteoarthritis includes quadriceps strengthening to help take the stress off the knee joint.

There are a slew of different medications available for treating knee pain like topical and oral medications, prescription patches, and prescribed medical foods. There is also over the counter glucosamine/chondroitin which is widely lauded but also controversial in its benefits for knee osteoarthritis pain.

Transcutaneous electrical nerve stimulator (TENS) units are yet another option for pain relief and can be prescribed for your home use by a physician. TENS units are pocket size, portable, battery-operated devices that send electrical impulses to the desired painful area of the body to block pain signals.

Prescription braces and orthotics like "unloader" braces can be used to offload the damaged cartilage area together with specific shoe inserts, and "infrapatellar" braces can be used to help realign your knee cap.

With the advent of cutting-edge technology, we have more options to treat our knee pain and stave off surgery such as knee replacements. One of which has helped Kobe Bryant stay in the game, Hines Ward heal quickly and Tiger Woods with his career comeback. This groundbreaking treatment is called Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP) therapy, and it has been around for decades for medical uses such as wound healing, dental implants, and eye repair surgeries. PRP therapy is advantageous over surgery in that it has the possibility of healing our knees in a manner that can essentially last for a lifetime whereas knee replacement surgery typically lasts only up to 10-15 years before the hardware wears

Best of all, PRP is a simple non-surgical treatment that uses platelets from your own blood (obtained just like a regular lab draw) to heal the injured tissues. Platelets are nature's "reservoirs" that facilitate healing by promoting tissue regeneration and forming blood vessels that nourish new tissues. PRP directs and amplifies this natural healing process.

Finding the right treatment for your knee pain starts with the right diagnosis from a physician specialist. You might not need surgery to get on the road to pain relief and a better overall quality of life.

Wei-Ching Lee, M.D. is a UCLA-board certified physician specializing in Physical Medicine & Rehabilitation at Arc Motion Rehab Medical Clinic in Arcadia, CA where she provides non-surgical care for muscle, bone, and nerve injuries. One Of A Kind: Featuring unique homes and gardens and the people who create them Story by Chris Bertrand.

JUST LISTED: PASADENA ESTATE COMPLETELY REMODELED BY ARCHITECT MARY CHOU

Architect Mary Chou grew up in the Pasadena area, and has always loved the community. She recently undertook the complete remodel of a secluded Pasadena estate in the tony Pasadena neighborhood of Madison Heights.

Remodel isn't quite the right word, though. Facelift isn't right either. More like a complete personality change for the formerly "traditional" single level home, originally constructed in 1938.

Chou fell in love with the home when first she saw it. In a recent interview, Chou reflected, "It was at twilight on a rainy day. I found it a beautiful magical setting that was super private. Yet, when you go in the house, it feels very open with views of the mature trees and landscape and the pool."

"It was cottage-like before," Chou continued, "and we changed to a Spanish Hacienda style now, with a red tile roof, which helps to tie the style and floorplan together, with the new courtyard schemes." Chou redesigned the perspectives and indoor to outdoor flow, adding a large, new front courtyard with a large fountain, to take full advantage of views of the enormous oak in the front yard.

Previously, "The house didn't really have a usable front space, so we added a large front courtyard to the house that is really framed by this heritage oak. Now, when you're sitting in front courtyard, you feel you are in a private wooded escape. From the street side, though, no one would know you were there.'

The site is also unusual, as it is set above the street, and on a shared driveway, offering even more seclusion from the street. For those commuting downtown, the 110 freeway access and Gold Line train are nearby, for a quick trip downtown.

Chou chose the home for its secluded, yet what she calls its "dual personality" location. "It is close to the Langham and surrounded by gorgeous historical houses that often run up to $10 million." In fact, a home about a block away at 1266 S. Oakland was listed for $52 million. On the preservation and restoration front, two key features were important to reincorporate into the "new" home. First, peg and groove hardwood flooring, believed to be original, was restored, anchoring the home in its vintage history. Chou also discovered that unusual door hardware, a latch system was used on the home's doors, instead of the mainstream door handles. "They were all in great condition, so we were able to re-use them," providing a distinctive character and a unique mechanical bent to the home's doors.

Chou was captivated by the unusual floorplan, and capitalized on its strong points. "Almost every room in the house has some type of access to an outside space," she commented. "There are no real hallways in the house, and the rooms have two sources of light, which is very unique, and gives the home its airy feeling. Perfect for our Southern California entertaining and relaxation, this extensive use of outside access provides a seamless indoor to outdoor lifestyle, opening to the courtyards, the fountains and the new

"French Gray" plastered pool.
Inside, the architect merged and repurposed several areas, to create a more cohesive and appealing floorplan. The guest and the main house were merged. Then the original garage became the spacious family room, and a new garage was then constructed. The result provides ultimate privacy for the master suite, as it is situated separately from the three other bedrooms. According to Tink Cheney, listing agent, "The single level floorplan, the complete remodel with nearly every component new from the roof, the energy efficient windows, the mechanical systems, down to the faucets, and the low maintenance landscape make the property an interesting alternative to condo living. We had several accolades from previewing agents, suggesting this home is a great option when downsizing from a larger home with a large lawn and aging systems."

1405 S. Oakland is offered at $1,980,000 and offers four bedrooms plus four and one half baths on a .52 acre homesite. For more information, visit the home's website at http://www.1405southoakland.com/ or contact Catherine "Tink" Cheney, listing agent at Coldwell Banker of Pasadena at 626-356-8129 or at www.TinkCheney.

Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed

by Luther Tsinoglou Realtor®

PHOTOGRAPHY 101

They say a picture is worth a thousand words, but in real estate, a picture could be worth a thousand dollars (or more). Most agents aren't photography professionals, but there is an understanding that better photos get listings more attention, and ultimately, a higher selling price. The absolutely best photos are taken not with "point and click" cameras, but with SLR (singlelens-reflex) cameras. Without getting too technical, just know that SLR cameras give the photographer more control and produce higher quality images.

While an SLR camera costs more than your average point-and-click shooter, consider that a recent study found that listings with high quality photos sold for anywhere between $934 and $116,076 more than their average listing photo counterparts. If your agent doesn't have an SLR camera, then you could easily recoup your investment by purchasing one yourself.

Even though better photos attract more online attention, only about 15% of listings make use of the superior technology. Obviously, high-end listings stand to reap the greatest benefits, so if you've got a million dollar home, why would you skimp on such an important facet of marketing

However, there is a caveat: the study found that homes listed under $300,000 didn't see any real difference in sales price with the finer photos, so realistic and competitive pricing is the most effective marketing tool in those cases.

Dear Savvy Senior;

What tips or resources can you recommend to help seniors with the high cost of prescription eyeglasses? I used to have vision insurance through my work, but lost it when I retired. Need New Specs

Dear Specs;

There's no doubt that new eyeglasses can be expensive. You can easily spend $200 for a basic pair, and if you spring for add-ons like anti-glare lenses or designer frames the price can double. If you're like most retirees, and are paying full out-of-pocket prices every time you get a new pair of glasses, here are a few strategies that can help you save.

HOW TO SAVE ON PRESCRIPTION EYEGLASSES

Depending on the amount of vision care you use in a year, one way to cut your overall costs could be to buy a standalone vision insurance policy, or a discount plan which could save you 20 to 60 percent at participating retailers. Most insurance policies run around $120 to $190 a year for individuals, while discount plans cost between $95 and $155 per year and usually provide discounts on both vision and dental, and sometimes prescription drugs. You can find both plan types at ehealthinsurance.

Or, if you're a current or soon-to-be Medicare beneficiary, you may want to consider a Medicare Advantage plan. These are government approved, private health plans (usually HMOs and PPOs) sold by insurance companies that you can choose in place of original Medicare - which does not cover eyeglasses (unless you've just had cataract surgery) or routine eye exams. Many Advantage plans offer vision care, in addition to their health care coverage. See www.medicare.gov/find-a-plan to research this option.

Shop and Compare

Shopping and comparing prices from discount retailers and eye doctors' offices in your area that sell prescription glasses is another key way to save.

Costco is considered by Consumer Reports as the best discount store for good eyewear and low prices, and you don't have to be a member to use them. Walmart and America's Best Contacts & Eyeglasses offer bargain prices too.

Also ask about discounts. Many retailers provide discounts to membership groups like AARP and AAA. AARP members, for example, can get 30 percent off a pair of prescription eyeglasses as well as discounts on eye exams at any LensCrafters, most participating Pearle Vision, Sears Optical, Target Optical, JCPenney Optical and thousands of private optometrist offices.

Buying glasses online is another way to save big over traditional retail stores. Some online stores like zennioptical.com, goggles4u.com and eyebuydirect.com sell prescription eyeglasses for as little as $7. Other good sites that offer huge savings and selections include 39dollarglasses.com, coastal.com, framesdirect.com, justevewear.com and warbyparker.com.

Most of these sites will also let you do virtual try-ons. This lets you upload a picture of yourself, and the site simulates what you'd look like in different frames.

To purchase glasses online you'll need your prescription and pupillary distance from an exam, and your frame size (check the inside of an old pair).

Look for Assistance

If your income is low, depending on where you live, there may also be some local clinics or charitable organizations that provide free or discounted eye exams and eyeglasses. Put in a call to your local Lions Club to see what's available in your area. To reach your local club, visit directory.lionsclubs.org or call your local chamber of commerce.

You may also be able to get free eyeglasses through New Eyes for the Needy or the OneSight program.

 $\textit{New Eyes for the Needy} \ (\text{neweyes for the needy.org, } 973-376-4903) \ is a nonprofit volunteer organization$ that provides free eyeglasses through a voucher program to people in financial need.

And OneSight (888-935-4589, onesight.org), a creation of the Luxottica Foundation, provides free glasses at LensCrafters, Pearle Vision, Sears and Target to people who have a letter of sponsorship from a local nonprofit or charitable organization stating your need.

TRADER JOE'S -- AMBASSADOR OF FOOD

You've gotta love Trader Joe's! I go there at least once a week. Our relationship has had its bumpy moments (like when they discontinued bagged grapefruit). But for the most part, I usually leave the store satisfied. Besides reasonable prices and convenience, Trader Joe's bridges the gap between unadventurous shoppers and "ethnic" food.

point: my family has Trader Joe's to thank for my dad's new love of dim sum, wasabi, and roasted seaweed. This is a big deal because my dad and I both love, LOVE, routines. We can eat the same four or five meals for years on end without complaining. So, you can imagine my dad's resistance when I recommended "exotic" dishes such as sushi, hummus, and Japanese snacks.

My dad claims he first came to appreciate hummus when one of his coworkers suggested they grab a meal at Zankou's. Had it been my mom or I choosing our lunch destination, my dad would've undoubtedly refused. But he's ever-accommodating to non-family members. Though he may have first tried hummus at Zankou's, I believe it was my aunt's regular inclusion of Trader Joe's hummus at holiday gatherings that won my dad over. Trader Joe's offers a safe haven for people to try suspicious, unknown non-American food. Some folks are intimidated by the thought of going to Super King to pick up pita bread and humus, or to go out for dim sum on Valley blvd. But if these foods are available at Trader Joe's, in a nice, friendly container with English writing, it's okay. Similarly, when I was dating a Japanese guy, my dad declined all the classic Japanese snacks like roasted seaweed. Now that Trader Joe's carries it, my dad's hooked! He even says the original flavor's too bland, and prefers the wasabi. Recently, he also bought wasabi peas from Trader Joe's, all on his own, without any prompting. I reminded him that, years ago, I offered him the same product (in Japanese packaging), which he strongly declined.

I'm convinced that if Trader Joe's came out with chicken feet, such as is served for dim sum, there would be a great demand for it from people who would've never before considered eating the stuff. At the end of the day, the majority of us like things that are fatty, salty, sweet, or all of the above. If something seems too weird to try now, don't worry. Trader Joe's will come out with a friendlier version of it for you to try soon. Until then, enjoy the humus, seaweed, and wasabi peas!

Thinking of a Cyber 9/11

On the 11th anniversary of the 9/11 attacks, both lawmakers and Intelligence officials are musing the possibility that the next attack of that magnitude or nature could be triggered by the click of a mouse.

We now live in a highly interconnected world where every facet of our modern existence is controlled by a greater or lesser extent by computers. The North American power grid consists of more than 5,000 companies that own and operate more than 160,000 miles of high-voltage transmission lines and more than 1 million miles of local distribution lines. This complex system is controlled and regulated by massive amounts of interconnected computing power.

In 2011, our national Air Traffic Control systems insured the safe travel of the 4.2 million passengers who flew on one of the 30,000 flights that traversed the country on any day of that year. This complex system is controlled and regulated by massive amounts of interconnected computing power.

Hospitals in the US registered with the American Hospital Association admitted more than 39 million patients in calendar year 2011. These patients depended upon and received services that were tracked and coordinated with massive amounts of interconnected computing power.

These few examples show just how much our most basic needs as a modern society are dependent upon computer systems. In our national efforts to secure critical infrastructure, both lawmakers and Intelligence analysts are working (or should be working) feverishly.

And in this day and age we should not only be looking to defend against our traditional definition of "terrorists", we must be on guard against homegrown threats, just-plain-thingsgoing-awry, and state-sponsored groups. This last group has already demonstrated that it has the know-how and resources to bring down parts of critical infrastructure systems (see Brazil power grid hacked in 2005, 2007 and more recent news on the hacking of the Iranian nuclear program).

We live in the age of Stuxnet, Duqu and Flame. These fellows are potent examples of statesponsored cyber-warfare that have done serious damage to their intended targets and even more surprising, went undetected by the entire anti-virus \ anti-malware industry for more than 2 years despite having atomic patterns that should have set off alarms a long time ago.

We've been incredibly lucky so far in that we haven't been hit with anything like these attacks on a scale to bring down any part of our critical infrastructure but we would be silly to believe that luck or circumstance will sustain us much further into the future.

Tip #1: Entry of daily summary sales report from cash register or other daily sales log into QuickBooks answers that question. Besides it is a fundamental QuickBooks operation.

I have had several people tell me that because their business is a cash business they cannot use QuickBooks. It takes a little arm twisting on my part to get some business owners to understand that summarizing their cash sales (think cash register tape) each day and using a sales receipt to record the sales will work perfect for their

So if you are still wondering about the difference between a sales receipt and a sales, think about the difference between a cash sale and a sale on account. Remember from your old accounting class that each transaction does at least two things or affects at least two accounts. Well, QuickBooks has set up the sales receipt to record the sale and sales tax (if applicable) and also posts the cash received to either increase a bank account or undeposited funds (you set the preference). Also, QuickBooks has setup the invoice to record the sale, sales tax if collected and increase accounts receivable.

KNOW YOUR NUMBERS

It is hard to imagine that a business could have a steady flow of incoming cash from sales, yet finding itself in a position of not making a profit. This scenario is more common that one might think. When it happens, it's the result of not having a financial recordkeeping system in place to track a few key business indicators. If you don't count it, you can't track it.

In addition to having a basic accounting system in place, it is important for small business owners to apply business indicators that provide timely information about the company's financial operations. Understanding fixed costs, breakeven analysis, per unit costs and average sale per customer is information that all business owners should know.

Fixed costs are recurring expenses that need to be paid on an ongoing basis regardless of the level of goods or services produced or sold by the business. Expenses like rent, insurance and salaries for staff scheduled to work the same schedule on a regular basis are a few examples of fixed costs. In contrast, variable costs include items that will fluctuate based on the level of need, production or sales.

Break-even analysis is the point at which expenses and revenue are equal, it is referred to as the break-even point. Fixed and variable expenses are included. Every sale beyond that point represents profit. A restaurant owner should be able to approximate the number of customers needed on a daily or weekly basis to cover all expenses. The owner of a baseball batting cage should know the number of customers that will be needed to reach the threshold for profitability.

Per unit costs indicate the out-of-pocket expenses it takes to provide each category of goods and services to your customers. This is the only way to know if you're generating a profit from specific items, and the profit margin. The information can be used to make a clear case about which goods or services are generating profits to strengthen your business, or those that may need to be eliminated because there is a net loss per each sale. (Total cost to purchase, develop and/or produce a good or service that will be offered to a customer)

Average sale per customer provides information about the typical amount per sale from each customer. This indicator is useful as a starting point to determine ways to increase the average amount that each customer spends with your business. It also tells you the current dollar amount that the majority of your customers are willing to spend with you. (Total sales within a certain time period, divided by the total number of customers within the same period)

These four indicators are among the most basic tools used to measure and track the status of activities that have a direct impact on the financial health of a business. An additional, formal set of financial ratios in four major areas, are calculated from a company's financial statements. Liquidity ratios, asset turnover ratios, financial leverage ratios and profitability ratios are standard tools used across the corporate sector. Ratios are used to diagnose a company's financial health in a similar way that the medical professions uses a standard set of tests for blood pressure, heart rate and blood tests to gauge the overall health of a patient. The four business indicators reviewed above are a great starting point.

OFFERING A LOCAL DEAL SHOULD BE BENEFICIAL TO THE BUSINESS AND THE CUSTOMER

I've had some interesting conversations with business owners who have been burned by running coupon campaigns with some of the big local deal companies (I won't name those companies, you can read between the lines). I recently talked to a local Arcadia business that had a horrible experience with one of these companies that set up a local deal for them. First, they didn't get the list of the people who signed up for the deal. Second, the deal attracted the wrong kind of customer; one person had a melt down at the cash register when she was told she had to pay for the tax, she sat on the floor and pouted! Third, the deal company took more than half of the profits. This business actually lost money on this campaign.

Business owners who have used the large coupon companies are saying that these deal campaigns only attract a one-time-charlie deal seeker. Smart business people know that not all business is good business and they want to woo and retain good customers. Shouldn't loyal fans get the benefits of deals anyway? So what's the answer?

I recently had to come up with a solution for a client who wanted to run a deal for her personal training business. She wanted to offer a $50 discount for the first 10 people who signed up for her

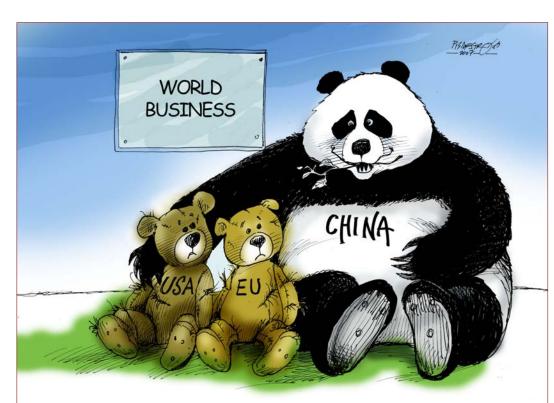

We decided to explored Constant Contact's new "SaveLocal" tool. I was really impressed and it turned out to be the best solution for her offer. It gives full control to the business owner. The tool instantly builds a quick landing page and email campaign. Constant Contact only gets $1, $2 or $3 per each deal sold, not the typical 50% cut!

It also has an optional feature that rewards current customers for sharing the deal with their friends and networks. The tool is built on the philosophy that word of mouth is the best source for new customers. The tool allows you to incentivize word of mouth and actually track it! You don't have to set up any fancy merchant account for it, you just put in your email associated with your PayPal account. You get paid instantly through PayPal with each coupon you sell, so there's no waiting. I like the Save Local solution because Constant Contact has the business owner in mind. You are in complete control of the offer, you set the price, how many you want to sell and when you want to promote your campaign.

If I had 10 thumbs, I'd give the "SaveLocal" tool 10 thumbs up! I think it's a great solution for small and large businesses.

ARE YOU READY FOR IMMORTALITY?

According to ABC News, "Business Insider" and other sources, phrases such as "Nobody lives forever" and "death and taxes" could become quaint relics in just a few decades.

Russian billionaire Dmitry Itskov and 30 top Russian scientists have formed a collective called The 2045 Initiative, with the goal of designing a future in which humans will be routinely upgraded to androids/hologram avatars. Shortly before death, a person's personality/thought patterns/consciousness would be uploaded into a super-powered artificial body. In other words, over the next 33 years, the human race would achieve IMMORTALITY!

Itskov has sent an open letter to the 1,266 individuals on the Forbes World Billionaires list, challenging them to fund the project (for profit AND for the betterment of the species).

Anybody else foresee problems here, starting with "til death us do part" controversies, earth's finite resources and the question of what sort of jobs will remain? And either we will have a new caste system with avatars living alongside mere mortals who can't afford an avatar OR flesh-and-blood folks will stop reproducing and leave a single generation "frozen in amber" as it were.

The 2045 people have the pie-in-the-sky notion that cranking out the avatars will somehow eradicate war. No, more likely, major confrontations will erupt over who gets the good hologram models and who gets the Naked Randy Travis model.

The new paradigm will supposedly free mankind for projects of self-improvement and Higher Spiritual Evolution. Oh, yes, the achieving of a major goal like immortality will work just like the major goal of winning the hand of your Special Someone in marriage. Look for avatars lounging about with raggedy underwear, unshaven armpits, anniversary amnesia and a predilection for flatulence.

The scientists seem to assume that if a human soul even EXISTS, it will magically be transferred into the avatar without stepping on any Divine Entity toes. Yes, the researchers are playing God, and you have to wonder, if you stripped away their billions, would they even be qualified to play Chutes and Ladders?

The fact that this project began in Russia sets off clanging alarm bells for me. Do we really want Vladimir Putin going strong a thousand years from now, regaling anyone who'll listen with stories that begin "Back in MY millennium, we jailed female punk rock groups five times a day in heavy snow...uphill both ways"?

I've accumulated more books and DVDs than I'll ever be able to enjoy, so it is indeed tempting to think of having forever to catch up; but then I think of Burgess Meredith's hapless bookworm character in the "All The Time In The World" episode of "The Twilight Zone." At BEST, all our literary genres will become less and less relevant as time goes by. Who needs murder mysteries if they all end with "The BUTLER tried to do it —but nanotechnology repaired all the damage"?

I fear that Itskov's hubris will lull participants into a false sense of security. Too bad the consciousness-transferring didn't start with earlier notables. Nineteenth-century poet Emily Dickinson could really teach us a thing or two with poems such as Because I could not stop for Death, he kindly SENT A BIG HONKIN' ASTEROID CRASHING INTO THE EARTH AND WIPING OUT THE 2045 INITIATIVE MASTER RACE!!!'

OLD FAITHFULS, PART ONE

Many of us are getting all worked up (me especially) and that's because it is an incredibly important and vital part of our freedom and democracy. So, as we near another national election cycle, I find it refreshing and cathartic to spend quality time with three of my good friends and confidants. Of course, I'm referring to Mark Twain, Will Rogers and Groucho Marx. They offer insightful and unique perspectives regarding the intersection of life and politics.

Before I talk with our fellows, I wanted to make an observation. If your candidates do NOT win in November this may possibly be of some comfort to you. We benefit from a level of technology our three friends didn't have that helps safeguard us in our quest for continued freedom and democracy. The information and communications technology now includes the 24 hour cable channels, the internet, iPhone cameras, and instant texting in addition to newspapers, telegraphs, carrier pigeon, radio, and television (what have I forgot?) Mark didn't have access to medium other than newspapers. Will had to live with newspapers and radio. Groucho got to add only television. How does this technology protect us? Well, by my way of thinking, politicians cannot get away with as much as they could when news of their every exploit wasn't so quickly and readily available. No matter who gets into office, they will face 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and 365-366 days a year of continual scrutiny of microphones, cameras (including iPhone cameras), pens and paper. If we don't like what they are doing we can move them out.

So, where was I? Oh yes, there is catharsis available for all things political from these fine fellows. And what is amazing is how appropriate they are in this day and age. I guess some things never change. Let's turn on the feel better machine. Mark Twain: The first two gentlemen I quote from had the sense to use a nom de plume (a pseudonym) in their writings. Mark's real name was Samuel Clement. Let's draw first from the well of this wonderful communicator. We should particularly embrace his first quote and employ its principle in everyday

"The human race has one really effective weapon, and that is laughter." His attitude toward the distinction between country and government:

"Patriotism is supporting your country all the time, and your government

"We have the best government that money can buy."

"Get your facts first, then you can distort them as you please." Groucho Marx: Groucho, as you might surmise is not this gentlemen's real first name. We now know it was Julius. Still, he had a wonderful perspective on life, particularly in his definition of politics:

"Politics is the art of looking for trouble, finding it everywhere, diagnosing it incorrectly and applying the wrong remedies. ' As to apt descriptions of most politicians, this is what he offered up:

"The secret of life is honesty and fair dealing. If you can fake that, you've got it made."

"The more you observe politics, the more you've got to admit that each party is worse than the other."

"The only difference between death and taxes is that death doesn't get worse every time Congress meets."

WHO ARE OTHER PEOPLE?

A guy I used to know e-mailed via PDF a copy of his unpublished 550 page novel. The novel sat unread somewhere in the bowels of my computer for about a month and I felt angry at myself for not reading the thing. I communicated my discomfort to my friend and he e-mailed me to stop "guilting" already. Maybe it was my friend's use of the word "guilting" that did the trick, but unexpectedly I found myself searching through the bowels of hidden computer folders to find the place where the novel was stored. I felt that I owed it to my friend and myself to read the thing. If a friend of mine said they wanted to read something I wrote and I took the trouble to send it to that person, I sure would expect them to read it and let me know what they thought of it.

So, bent over my computer screen and struggling with the monitor, which for some reason kept losing its place and backtracking thirty or forty pages, I stayed up almost all night and read the whole thing. After finishing the novel I sent my friend a very long critique which my angry computer managed to erase and completely lose. I thought my comments were brilliant and helpful and hated the fact that their truth was now lost forever. I was angry and sent a shortened and perhaps less insightful response to my friend.

All right; let's be honest here. The novel-writer has kind of made it clear that I am not really his friend. Specifically he says, "The reviews have really been terrific from a lot of friends, but then, they're friends aren't they." Note there is no question mark at the end probably because there is no question that real friends send terrific reviews. I did not send a terrific review; does that mean I'm not a real friend?

Of course, the fact is that I am not a friend. The novel writer is somebody I have not seen for forty-four years since the last day of Law School. Even in Law School we really spent little time together. The reason for our present association is that a few months ago I had this dream where I saw this guy drive past me on a corner. I tried to follow him in my car but could not catch him, but somehow had a very strong notion that it was vital that I get in touch.. Through the wonders of Facebook I made contact and he remembered me. I asked if he Maybe it's us! was doing something to Save the World and, surprise-surprise, he was involved in Missions to Africa. He sent me his journal recounting his observations in Africa setting up care-centers for parentless children who had frequently witnessed the death of their parents from the AIDs Virus. The writing in his journal really was moving, even apart from the subject matter. I let him know that I appreciated his writing and, in response, he told me that he had written two unpublished novels, the main character of which was a lawyer who drove a car much like the car I had driven in Law School. According to him the car carried the same nick- name that I had given my car 45 years ago. Who knows? It was 45 years ago.

Anyhow this seemed like a pretty magical connection and I told him I would like to read the novels. Why? Well, the reasons are pretty obvious. It just seems like fun to read a novel written by someone I know or once knew. I write these articles every week and beg and plead with relatives and close friends to read them. They're too busy, they say. Other people, strangers, neighbors, and colleagues read them, but not my closest relatives and friends. I think it's strange, but that's the way it is. I felt I owed it to myself to spend the time to read the novel and besides, there might be some characterization of me or my car that would help me fill in my picture of myself.

I read the novel and although I loved the writing, admired the skill and erudition of the writer and learned about many areas of scientific interest (the writer is a very smart guy), I was angry when I finished it. I felt that the central character had no real interest in anyone but himself, and saw other people as only pawns in the world's novel in which he was the central character. More importantly I didn't find the limited perspective of the character all that interesting.

The novelist e-mailed back a long response containing the following: "I think caring about anyone as an individual is a myth, an illusion we'd like to buy into which doesn't exist. We make people into what we need, want, fear, and project all that."

Is this where my dream lead me. Is my perceived reality, my waking life, just another dream? All my opinions and judgments and values, are they just outer reflections mirroring my own internal conflicts? If they are, should I be guilting about this instead of caring about what happens to other people—especially those other people who can't find the time to read my articles?

Who is writing my novel anyway?

my income tax and paying out gobs and gobs of dollars to the United States government. I know it is important to pay taxes, and, I pay my fair share, even though it may be grudgingly.

Throughout the years, I have complained that dear old Uncle Sam never writes me a letter. I will have to amend that complaint because I recently received a personalized letter from the

Well, you can imagine my surprise at getting this letter. With trembling hands, I opened the letter, anxious to know what was going on in the world of Uncle Sam. I expected a detailed letter of what he was doing and how he was getting along and how the kids were and all that sort of thing. Imagine my surprise when none of that information was contained in the

From the contents of the letter, and I must say a lot of it was goobly glop, I had fallen far short of my share of income tax this past year. According to the letter, I he was disappointed in this behavior on my part. Do not ask me how many zeros a gazillion dollars have because I do not know. I do not have that many fingers or

Although I read the letter several times it was not quite clear how much I actually owed and what plans there were in place for me to pay it back. From what I could understand from the letter, I owed good old Uncle Sam an arm and a leg, and he was highly expecting that I would come through for him.

Well, that kind of letter did not set well with me. I was tempted to leave the country, then sneak back as an illegal alien, and not have to worry about all this nasty stuff. But, I did not have that much energy available.

There was a phone number I was to call if I had any personal questions. Boy, did I have some personal questions. I was fully expecting not to get a real human voice when I called.

But, again, I was pleasantly surprised. Within 30 minutes and after dozens of pushing this button and pushing that button I had on the other end of the phone a very pleasant and cheerful voice, a representative of the IRS.

After we exchanged some personal niceties and followed up on the weather report from each of our locations, we

Then we got down to the nitty-gritty
Every year I complain about filing of what the IRS is all about: collecting taxes from potentially delinquent taxpayers, like myself. The thought that I deliberately was delinquent was rather humiliating for me. Simply put, I just did not pay enough in, but this telephone call was going to rectify all of that. After she crunched all the figures and as I waited patiently on my end of the phone, she was able to determine I owed the government an arm and a leg. It was then that the negotiations began in

I must confess she could not have been any nicer had she been my grandmother.

She then began to query as to which arm and which leg I was going to give to the government. This presented a real difficult decision on my part. Throughout the years, I have grown quite fond of both arms and both legs. Then I asked her if I could counter a proposal. She replied in the affirmative.

Would you consider," I began rather slowly, "an arm or a leg?"

There was a pause on the other and was a gazillion dollars short of what he had expected from me and quite frankly, was thinking. Whenever you get a government employee to think, watch out. I could hear the old wheels grinding and grinding. Finally, she said, "I think that would be acceptable. And, I'll even allow you to select either arm or leg. We like to work with people."

Now the burden was on me. I now owed the government an arm or a leg and I just had to select which one. I first considered my arms. In thinking about them, I use both of my arms although the left one less than the right one every day. What with writing and eating my arms are rather busy throughout the day.

Then I considered my legs. I like my right leg and so the choice became rather easy for me. Now, the United States government has at least one leg to stand on, thanks to Yours Truly. I have something greater to stand on.

'Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage" (Galatians 5:1 KJV).

Jesus Christ trumps Uncle Sam when it comes to liberty.

HOWARD Hays As I See It

"WHO DO YOU THINK DESERVES MORE CREDIT FOR THE KILLING OF OSAMA BIN LADEN: BARACK OBAMA OR MITT ROMNEY?

- Survey question from Public Policy Institute

I've written the past couple weeks about Republican reliance on demonstrable falsehoods in their campaign, so this week I thought I'd cover something else.

But then I read Greg Welborn's last column.

I'd noted before an observation that few voters bother with fact-checking, and this seems especially true with Republicans. Last week, a Republican voter in the swing-state of Ohio, for instance, in answering the above survey question would be more likely to select either "Not sure" or "Mitt Romney" than to give President Obama credit for bin Laden's killing. (Among Ohio Republicans, 38% answered Obama, 15% Romney and 47% "Not sure".) You can't make this stuff up.

Greg complains that "conservatives have been called, bigoted, racist, homophobic, xenophobic, sexist and intolerant". I don't think that's the case; rather, it's that most Americans don't want to see bigotry, racism, homophobia, xenophobia, sexism and intolerance codified in our laws and national

As Greg focuses on the "craven and deceitful" speech Bill Clinton delivered at the Democratic Convention, he invites, "Recall if you will that this is the man who told his staff, 'you have to understand, Bob Dole is evil, what he wants is evil." I didn't recall that, so I looked it up.

The only source I could find for that allegation is the memoir of former Clinton aide Dick Morris. At the time (late-1996), a congressional committee called a prostitute to testify on her claim that during a professional session, Morris told her that First Lady Hillary Clinton was responsible for 900 FBI files showing up at the White House.

Nothing came of that investigation. Morris resigned amidst revelations of a propensity for regaling prostitutes with stories of the inner-workings of the presidency – and a fondness for women's toes.

The Morris story Greg cites as fact has no corroboration; certainly not from any of the "staff" referred to, many of whom were present when President Clinton awarded Dole the Medal of Freedom honoring "his clear embodiment of the common values and beliefs that join us as a people."

"Or recall that Democratic Congressman, John Lewis, called Republicans 'Nazis'", adds Greg. I didn't recall that one, either, so I looked it up. What I found was a 1995 floor speech during the welfare reform debate, where Rep. Lewis (D-GA) says, "Read the Republican contract... They're coming for our children. They're coming for the poor. They're coming for the sick, the elderly and the disabled." Republicans saw an uncomfortable similarity to the famous anti-Nazi passage of Martin Niemoller ("First they came for the Communists, but I was not a Communist so I did not

The speech received renewed notice fifteen years later. At the height of the healthcare debate, Reps. Lewis, Andre Carson (D-IN) and Emmanuel Cleaver (D-MO) walked through a crowd of teabaggers on their way to the Capitol and heard shouts of "nigger". Rep. Barney Frank (D-MA) heard "faggot". Rep. Cleaver said he was spat upon. Republicans suggested it never happened and advised - hey, look what Rep. Lewis said on the House floor in 1995.

John Lewis as a Freedom Rider was beaten by a North Carolina mob in 1961. He had his skull fractured by Alabama State Troopers at the Edmund Pettis Bridge in 1965. I have no evidence he ever "called Republicans 'Nazis". I don't think Greg has, either.

Getting to the bottom of the "Bob Dole is Evil" and "Rep. Lewis calls Republicans Nazis" allegations was fairly easy. Much harder was researching Greg's statement referencing "studies which clearly show that tax decreases motivate business owners to hire more people, and tax increases reduce employment." I was unable to find a single "study" that suggests anything of the kind.

It's something I do recall, though; it's a claim I've heard for over thirty years, and which has been repeatedly debunked. If it were true, then the Bush years would've seen the largest employment boom in history. Last July, FactCheck.org used new CBO figures to confirm the total federal tax burden dropped to a thirty-year low under Bush, and then fell again the first year under Obama. If only unemployment figures did the same.

I couldn't stop there. Greg referred to "the fact that Clinton didn't see employment grow during his two terms until he reduced taxes in the second term". As soon as I saw the word "fact", I knew I had to look it up.

Under Clinton, taxes were raised in 1993, and the capital gains rate dropped in 1997. For private sector employment, the years ending March 1994 through March 1997 saw a net increase of 10.8 million jobs. For years ending March 1998 through March 2001 there was a 9.1 million increase.

For comparison, under George W. Bush, taxes were cut in 2001 and again in 2003. The years ending March 2005 through March 2008 (the last figures available before the crash) saw a net increase of 6.2 million private sector jobs.

My figures came from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, U.S. Dept. of Labor. I wonder where Greg got

As I write this on 9/11, Dick Cheney is all upset about President Obama seeking "sole credit" for the killing of Osama bin Laden. The assertion is a lie - with no evidence to support it, and everything to contradict it. But as George W. Bush explained, "... you got to keep repeating things ... to kind of catapult the propaganda."

Perhaps Cheney is frustrated that credit for killing bin Laden is not going to the fact we tortured people. Or that in Ohio, more than one-in-seven Republicans will give credit to Mitt Romney. You can look it up!

INDEPENDENT'S EYE

IS AMERICAN POLITICS LIKE TALKING TO AN EMPTY CHAIR?

Dwight D. Eisenhower presented Raymond G. "Jerry" Murphy with a Medal of Honor in 1953, he noted that Pueblo nicknamed "the Steel City," has had several cipients and wondered: "What is it... something in the water out there in Pueblo? All you guys turn out to be heroes!"

And so the city and the Congressional Record dubbed Pueblo "Home of Heroes" due to its having more recipients per capita than any other city in the United States. In our political world, oh, boy, do we need the City of Pueblo to produce some

When you look at today's mega partisanship, both parties dabbling in the politics of division, differing partisan worldviews of reality and a debate over whether stating actual facts matter, you have to wonder if there's something in America's water these days. Whatever it is, it's a form of Kool-Aid more people are now swallowing than rejecting.

You have to wonder as American hurtles further into the 21st century if the next President or any future President will be given leeway by the other side to put their policies in place and govern. Are the once-respected concepts of consensus and compromise totally dead? Is there an American political hero waiting to emerge who can lift America from its D-R and MSNBC- Fox News divides, and reverse the current trend where American political debate has now devolved into snarky talk show-like personal riffs, in-your-face confrontations by people seemingly acting out personal issues, and silly juvenile publicity stunts?

Two recent events were symbolic of where America's political culture now stands.

The first was actor Clint Eastwood's absurd riff with an empty chair at the Republican convention as he was about to introduce GOP Presidential nominee Mitt Romney. NBC's First Read called it "the Eastwood debacle." Democrats and many Republican analysts and operatives quoted in news

Colo. stories agreed. Eastwood's monologue shoved the When President excellent Romney biography out of the sole 10 p.m. hour the networks devoted to the convention that night and the next day sucked up discussion time that should have been devoted to Romney's

Even so, some GOPers began insisting it was a political masterstroke. Eastwood's appearance was wonderful, they said, it'd help Romney win the election. On Monday, conservative websites, egged on by a BIG HEADLINE on the Drudge Report, even declared Labor Day "Empty Chair Day."

In political terms, it might more accurately have been called Empty Head Day. Polls in North Carolina and Florida found voters did NOT like Eastwood's riff, but still respected Eastwood, which is why some believe Eastwood may campaign for Romney. Empty Chair Day was thinly disguised name-calling. Precisely how many independent voters, unhappy Democrats and non-Tea Party Republicans was calling Obama an empty chair likely o win over? (Zilch.)

Another insight into our political culture came when MSNBC's Chris Matthews got into what was reportedly a loud confrontation with delegates to the Republican National Convention in a Tampa restaurant. They taunted Matthews, who chose to go over and confront them and it got verbally ugly. It was an insight into our new political soul: delegates were quick to move into personal, in-yourface-verbal mode and Matthews -- rather than just moving on -- decided to jump into the political trenches to confront them.

On so many media and political levels American politics is now all about name-calling and in-yourface confrontation. Problem solving and serious discussion is secondary as the key driving force is a 24/7 need to restate and reaffirm existing beliefs, even if they're not accurate. It's all about getting to attain that nirvana moment when your own political sports team can give high fives in victory and gleefully, slowly, and deliberately rub the other losing side's face in it.

Will America find a political hero who can help reverse the tide on the ugliness and stalemate being cooked into our political system? Or will he or she find it's like talking to an empty chair?

FOREIGN POLICY GREG Welborn NIGHTMARES

Foreign policy has taken center stage in the presidential election, but not, as the press would have us believe, because Mitt Romney has acted un-presidential. It is because our current president is acting un-presidential. The President who currently directs our foreign policy lives in a fantasy world, unaware of the dangers from appeasement, and is leading the world toward the brink of a major regional war.

The reason Mitt Romney is positioned at center stage with regard to the last several days' events in the Middle East is because the mainstream press is desperately trying to position him there in a negative light. The press is uptight that Mitt Romney had the cajones to criticize the State Department for an dangerous and ill-conceived statement it made in response to the hooliganism that passes for serious conduct in many parts of the Mideast.

In response to the anger over a low-budget, and let's admit totally unflattering, movie about Islam, the U.S. Embassy in Cairo issued a statement saying that "the Embassy of the United States in Cairo condemns the continuing efforts by misguided individuals to hurt the religious feelings of Muslims". After Egyptians besieged the U.S. Embassy and breached its walls, the Embassy doubled down and informed the world that the statement "still stands".

The events of later that day in Libya were even more extreme, but they are somewhat tangential to this story because the Libyan government really isn't fully formed yet and exercises very little control in its cities. This is not to excuse in any way the murder of our ambassador to Libya. That was an inexcusable act, demanding the severest punishment we can bring to bear, that both Obama and Romney have rightly condemned. But to expect the Libyan government to have prevented the violence and murder is unrealistic.

Egypt is another story. Egypt is a more mature government, with an active police and intelligence force. Egyptian authorities had advance notice that an assault on our embassy would be attempted, and, in a country where little happens that is not sanctioned by the now-controlling Muslim Brotherhood and the military, the Egyptians allowed the attack to occur. Theirs is the more outrageous act because they could have and should have stopped the violence from ever happening. International law has for decades - if not at least a century - acknowledged that attacking another country's embassy is an act of war. No country takes that fact likely unless they perceive that the aggrieved country is a paper tiger unworthy of fear or respect. It is crucial to understand the setting here in order to understand the righteousness of Mitt Romney's comments and the cravenness of the Obama administration's comments.

The appropriate administration response to an attack on any of our embassies - or on any country's embassy - is to condemn those attacking. There is no excuse for this. There are no circumstances which warrant or excuse these actions. To issue a statement, as the Cairo Embassy did, which sympathizes with the supposed reasons and justifications for such an attack is cowardly He can be reached at gregwelborn2@gmail.com appeasement, and Mitt Romney properly called them on it. Romney stated, "It's disgraceful that the Obama Administration's first response was not to condemn attacks on our diplomatic missions, but to sympathize with those who waged the attacks." When questioned about whether he should have waited for more details to be released, Romney responded with the observation that, "it's never too early for the United States government to condemn attacks on Americans and to defend our values" - one of those values, of course, being free speech, even when that speech is stupid.

Hopefully all objective readers can see that Romney's comments were accurate, absolutely appropriate and desperately needed. In the time that has passed since the Embassy first offered its comments, even the Obama Administration is backtracking on them. The statements have been removed from the website, and a senior Administration official commented that the "statement by the Embassy in Cairo was not cleared by Washington and does not reflect the views of the United States government." It's difficult to see how Mitt Romney was wrong for criticizing a statement that the administration is now disavowing. What's not difficult to see is the bigger issue exemplified by the violent outbreak in Egypt, Libya, Yemen, and now in other countries as well. The Obama Administration's decision to appease Muslim extremist views does nothing but embolden them. From the apology speeches in Cairo and elsewhere to the abandoning of our allies in the region to the acquiescence in the face of Syrian butchery to the dithering over Iran's nuclear ambitions and efforts, this administration has systematically diminished the U.S.'s influence and credibility in foreign affairs. There are bad actors in the world, and the only thing that will stop them is the threat or actual use of force. But that demands credibility. As the U.S. retreats in order to "lead from the rear", these bad actors, dictators and murderers step into the vacuum with no fear that the U.S. will demand a reckoning.

The reality which is more and more framing the upcoming election is that President Obama is an arrogant amateur playing a game with deadly consequences. 8.2% unemployment is bad enough; looming tax hikes which will further destroy growth are bad enough; but standing idle, issuing appeasing statements of sympathy for the hurt feelings of murderers, pirates and thugs, may yet result in a major regional war and nuclear exchange with Iran. This is the real world, not the pretend world so many lefties believe exists, and we need a president who can right the economy, build confidence in our allies and instill fear in our enemies. Mitt Romney would be such a president, and his comments the other night went a long way to proving it.
