THE SIERRA MADRE POLICE DEPARTMENT PARTICIPATES WITH THE ZERO TOLERANCE DISTRACTED DRIVING ENFORCEMENT OPERATION

Sierra Madre, CA. – As part of April's Distracted Driving Awareness Month campaign, the Sierra Madre Police Department will be actively ticketing those texting or operating hand-held cell phones for the month of April. Drivers who break the law and place themselves and others in danger will be cited with no warnings. The current minimum ticket cost is $159, with subsequent tickets costing at least $279. In April 2012, over 57,000 tickets were written statewide for texting and hand-held cell use. There were nearly 450,000 convictions in 2012. Whether it's a ticket or a crash, as the campaign theme states, "It's Not

Distracted driving is a serious traffic safety concern that puts everyone on the road at risk. In recent years, hundreds have been killed and thousands seriously injured in California as a result of collisions that involved at least one driver who was distracted. Nationally, an estimated 3,331 died in 2011. As a result, law enforcement across the state, including the Sierra Madre Police Department are increasingly cracking down on cell phone use and texting. This April will see over 225 local agencies plus the CHP conducting zero tolerance

"We all know that talking on our cell phones while driving is distracting, but that doesn't stop some people from continuing to do it," said Sierra Madre Police Chief Larry Giannone. "This effort is intended to educate our community about the dangers of cell phone use while driving. We hope that once people see the statistics and realize the danger involved, they will change their driving habits to help protect themselves, their families, and others on the road."

Drivers who use hand-held devices are four times as likely to get into crashes serious enough to injure themselves. Younger, inexperienced drivers under 20 years old have the highest proportion of distraction-related fatal crashes. In addition, studies show that texting while driving can delay a driver's reaction time just as severely as having a blood alcohol content of a legally drunk driver.

Studies also show that there is no difference in the risks between hands-free and hand-held cell phone conversations, both of which can result in "inattention blindness" which occurs when the brain isn't seeing what is clearly visible because the drivers' focus is on the phone conversation and not on the road. When over one third of your brain's functioning that should be on your driving moves over to cell phone talking, you can become a cell phone "zombie."

To avoid a distracted driving ticket or crash, the Sierra Madre Police Department offers drivers the following tips:

- Turn off your cell phone and/or put it out of reach while driving; Include in your outgoing message that you can't answer while you are
- Don't call or text anyone at a time when you think they may be driving.

FOUNDATION PRESENTS FIRST GRANT OF YEAR TO LEGENDARY TRAIL RACE

Mt. Wilson Trail Race Chair Pete Siberell receives check from Foundation Chair Erica Blodgett. Photo courtesy of Sierra Madre Community Foundation

Sierra Madre Community Foundation presented its first grant of the year to the Mt. Wilson Trail Race Committee in the amount of $1,250 to help support the 2013 Kids Run at the annual Mt. Wilson Trail Race on May 25.

Foundation Board Chair Erica Blodgett presented the grant to Trail Race Committee Chairman Pete Siberell (above) in front of a crowd of about 60 guests. Those in attendance included former Foundation Board members, leaders of various community and civic groups, and friends and family of current Board members all invited to celebrate the accomplishments of the Foundation over the last year.

In 2012, the Sierra Madre Community Foundation distributed grants to Fletcher Fund through the Foundation Creative Arts Group, the Sierra Madre to help the volunteers who maintain Playhouse, the Sierra Madre Public Li- the trail with the supplies they need.

At a private reception on March 2, the brary, and the 4th of July Committee in addition to establishing the Eph Konigsberg Memorial Fund. The fund was created through a bequest to the Foundation from the estate of the late Konigsberg, a well-known Sierra Madre volunteer, to support staff development at the public library.

According to Siberell, the grant to the Mt. Wilson Trail Race Kids Run meant that the race committee would be able to keep the kids event free for the children who participate. This was the first grant the Foundation has made to the Race itself, though the Foundation is the trustee organization for the Fletcher Fund whose resources go to maintaining the world renowned Mt. Wilson Trail. Donations can be made to the

During her brief remarks, Blodgett took time to share some of the history of the Foundation - from its involvement in the auditorium restoration at Sierra Madre Elementary School to the support of creation of Goldberg Park - and to honor the work and vision of past Board members. "We who serve on the Board now take very seriously the responsibility of stewarding their vision for this organization," she said. Blodgett noted that all the work of the Foundation, past and present, is done by volunteers.

The reception was held at the home of Gina and Steve Long. Event coordinator was Michelle Keith. Catering was donated in part by Claude Beltran and beverages by The Bottle Shop. For more information about the Sierra Madre Community Foundation visit www.sierramadrefoundation.org.

PREPARE FOR A MEDICAL EMERGENCY - FILE OF LIFE PACKETS AVAILABLE

Sierra Madre, CA. Medical emergencies are almost always stressful for the patient and everyone in the patient's household. The time to assemble important medical information is before the medical emergency occurs rather than during the actual medical crisis. Medical information assembled in a period of calm is likely to be more accurate and more thorough than information assembled in a moment of crisis.

The File of Life program enables Sierra Madre residents to compile important medical information into one complete packet and make it available to the local paramedics in case of a medical emergency. The information is stored in a plastic envelope in the resident's refrigerator, and a decal on the resident's front window alerts EMS personnel that the information is available on the Christopher was born September 7, 1951 at St. Luke Hospital in Pasadena, Ca. to Earl and Margaret LaLone. He was preceded in death by his father Earl LaLone, who passed away in February, 2012. Christopher is survived by his mother Margaret, sister Marsha, son Philip and daughter Melissa.

Chris worked for various medical device and infusion therapy companies in the Los Angeles, Orange County areas as a corporate executive. His 25 years of senior management experience helped him develop new business ventures from startups to nationally recognized organizations.

He attended Sierra Madre Elementary, Pasadena High School and Pasadena City College. He was a recent member of the Arcadia Elks Lodge.

Chris enjoyed his "Orchid Camp", photography, and making stained glass windows and objects of art. He loved playing his Ovation guitar and recently a harmonica. His harmonica skills were excellent while Chris kept wanting to improve. He loved the local Sierra Madre bands and worked diligently to sit in on some sets.

Chris would make annual trips to Blue Lake and he and cousin Ron LaLone would routinely provide their special music to patrons of the Likely Saloon, Modoc County, California.

Chris was an avid trout fisherman and spent most summers and fall at June Lake Loop, camping and fishing with family and friends.

Christopher Robin will be missed and never forgotten. We all loved his joke telling, music and wit, "Happy trails to you - until we meet again."

The family will only have a private graveside service at Sierra Madre Cemetary.

Police Hunt for Suspects in Shooting

Undercover officers exchanged gunfire with two suspects Thursday afternoon prompting a massive manhunt lasting most of the day —the hunt also barred residents in the area from their homes.

At press time, police said they made one arrest although gave little details, including if the arrest was related to the shooting. Witness said they saw officers handcuffing a man on Hill Ave, near the area.

According to police, around 12:20 p.m., while detectives were working with LASD plain clothes deputies in a joint investigation they observed a suspect vehicle. Deputies returned fire and it is unknown if either of the suspects were wounded. No law enforcement officers

Police dedicated a contingency of officers in a large containment area (Lake Ave. to Hill Ave. — Villa St. to Orange Grove Blvd.) in an effort to locate the suspects. The area was opened and residents were allowed to return to their homes around 9 p.m.

ANTONOVICH VOTES "NO" ON STORMWATER TAX

LOS ANGELES COUNTY - Supervisor Michael D. Antonovich cast the lone "no" vote on a motion by Supervisors Molina and Knabe to close the protest hearing and look into putting the tax measure on the ballot in 2014.

'Stormwater cleanup is the state's responsibility and the legislature and Governor need to develop a statewide approach to solving this problem," said Antonovich. "County residents, school districts, businesses and churches should not be burdened with higher taxes to support another state unfunded mandate."

ANTONOVICH CALLS FOR EXPANSION OF LAURA'S LAW THROUGHOUT CALIFORNIA

LOS ANGELES COUNTY - The Board of Supervisors approved a motion by Supervisor Michael D. Antonovich supporting the expansion of "Laura's Law" which allows counties to provide court-ordered mental health treatment for those who refuse to obtain help.

"It is vital that life-saving programs are expanded throughout the state to help the mentally ill recover and live productive lives," said Antonovich.
"Laura's Law" reformed the "Lanterman-Petris-Short Law," which had prohibited judges, families, and physicians from compelling the severely mentally ill to accept treatment. A pilot program initiated by Antonovich in Los Angeles County has successfully stabilized and reintegrated participants back into the community with a 78% reduction in incarcerations and a 77% reduction in hospitalizations. These reductions significantly improved the lives of program participants and cut the costs to the community and taxpayers by almost 40%. Laura's Law is patterned after New York State's Kendra's Law, which has shown tremendous success after just five years. Data conclusively demonstrates that assisted outpatient treatment significantly reduces severe consequences for participants.

ROTATING PUBLIC ART EXHIBITION PROGRAM, PHASE II - REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS

Exhibition sites are unsupervised and include traffic islands, medians and smaller, more intimate parcels.

Artist honoraria are $3,000 for the loaned artworks and $5,000 for site-specific projects. Artworks must be available for installation by June 30, 2013.

In fact, one could argue that the trinity (a term not found in the Bible) was a concept given to Christianity all over Europe, a candle still by the Druids, rather than burned in Ireland. That candle the other way around. was lit by Patrick. Nevertheless, King Laoghaire

When Patrick returned to Ireland, he treated the "pagans" with the respect implicit in his dream. Part of this respect was attempting to communicate with the Druids on their terms, which is why he used the shamrock as a teaching tool. He also blended the Christian cross with the circle to create he believed that an angel came what is now known as the Celtic cross. He used bonfires to celebrate Easter, a Holy Day that Christianity supplanted with the already-existing spring nothing to do with leprechauns, equinox commemoration. # THE CLOSEST STAR SYSTEM FOUND SINCE 1916

A pair of newly discovered stars is the third-closest star system to the Sun, according to a paper that will be published in Astrophysical Journal Letters. The duo is the closest star system discovered since 1916. The discovery was made by Kevin Luhman, an associate professor of astronomy and astrophysics at Penn State University and a researcher in Penn State's Center for Exoplanets and Habitable Worlds.

Both stars in the new binary system are "brown dwarfs"—stars too low in mass to ever become hot enough to ignite hydrogen fusion. As a result, they are very cool and dim, resembling giant planets like Jupiter more than bright stars like the Sun.

The distance to this brown dwarf pair is 6.5 light years—so close that Earth's television transmissions from 2006 are now arriving there," Luhman said. "It will be an excellent hunting ground for planets because it is very close to Earth, which makes it a lot easier to see any planets orbiting either of the brown dwarfs." Since this is the third-closest star system, in the distant future it might be one of the first destinations for manned expeditions outside our solar system, Luhman noted.

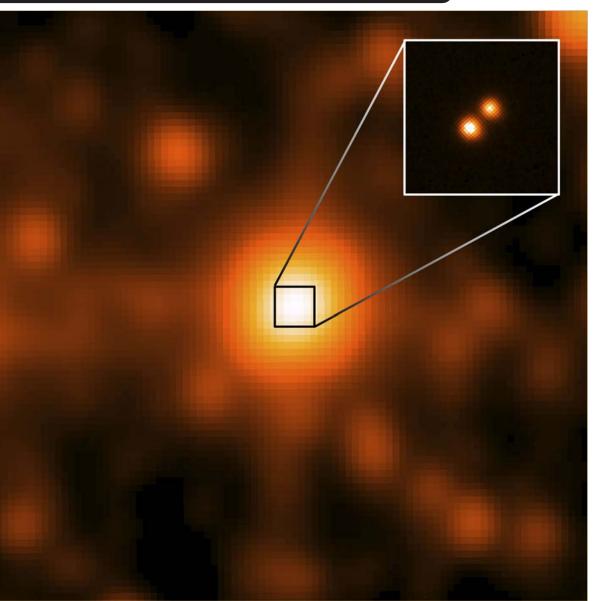

The star system is named "WISE J104915.57-531906" because it was discovered in a map of the entire sky obtained by the NASA-funded Wide-field Infrared Survey Explorer (WISE) satellite. It is only slightly farther away than the second-closest star, Barnard's star, which was discovered 6.0 light years from the Sun in 1916 by E.E. Barnard. The closest star system consists of Alpha Centauri, found to be a neighbor of the Sun in 1839 at 4.4 light years, and the fainter Proxima Centauri, discovered in 1917 at 4.2 light years.

Edward (Ned) Wright, the principal investigator for the WISE satellite, said "One major goal when proposing WISE was to find the closest stars to the Sun. WISE 1049-5319 is by far the closest star found to date using the WISE data, and the close-up views of this binary system we can get with big telescopes like Gemini and the future James Webb Space Telescope will tell us a lot about the low mass stars known as brown dwarfs." Wright is the David Saxon Presidential Chair in Physics and a professor of physics and astronomy at UCLA.

Astronomers have long speculated about the possible presence of a distant, dim object orbiting the Sun, which is sometimes called Nemesis. However, Luhman has concluded, "We can rule out that the new brown dwarf system is such an object because it is moving across the sky much too fast to be in orbit around the Sun."

After noticing its rapid motion in the WISE images, Luhman went hunting for detections of the suspected nearby star in older sky surveys. He found that it indeed was detected in images spanning from 1978 to 1999 from the Digitized Sky Survey, the Two Micron All-Sky Survey, and the Deep Near Infrared Survey of the Southern Sky. "Based on how this star system was moving in the images from the WISE survey, I was able to extrapolate back in time to predict where it should have been located in the older surveys—and sure enough, it was there," Luhman said.

"It was a lot of detective work," Luhman added. "There are billions of infrared points of light across the sky, and the mystery is which one—if if any of them—could be a star that is very close to our solar system."

WISE J104915.57-531906 is at the center of the larger image, which was taken by the WISE satellite. It appeared to be a single object, but a sharper image from Gemini Observatory revealed that it was binary star system. Credit: NASA/JPL/Gemini Observatory/AURA/NSF

ARCADIA CITY ENGINEER PHILIP WRAY ADDRESSES CHAMBER'S MONTHLY MEETING AND MORE

I may sound like a broken record, but every time I leave the Arcadia Chamber of Commerce's monthly Government Forum Meeting, I carry with me an enormous wealth of information! This month's guest speaker was Philip Wray, Deputy Director of Development Services and City Engineer for Arcadia. Mr. Wray's presentation of timeline and traffic routing for the bridge construction over Santa Anita was so thorough. He began by explaining how there had to be grade separation on Santa Anita. The City MTÁ approached for funds, but twice was turned down. It was fortunate that Arcadia looks to the future and had accrued 5 million. However funds were needed and it was put on the ballot in 2006. A two-thirds majority vote was needed, but 72% of the resident voters approved the measure-voting for the 8 million assessments! Mr. Wray explained that during construction on Santa Anita

Avenue, two lanes would be opened on the median for traffic. All businesses would still remain open. One challenge is building the bridge over the roadway; especially with the big hump-four feet of this raised area must be removed!

CITY OF ARCADIA - MOT

During the project, another challenge is the road must be kept open-even if only two lanes. Businesses cannot be closed, and how will a lower road work with the businesses' driveways? Mr. Wray spoke highly of Metro Gold Line and its agreements with the City. Extensive work on Santa Anita will be done, close to the summer months, (May-August) when children are off from school. There will be NO construction during the Breeder's Cup in November, and Metro Gold Line will be sensitive to Community Events.

After the Breeder's Cup in November, Metro Gold Line Construction will move to Huntington Drive. Brian Mejia from Supervisor Antonovich reminded us that next Tuesday, the Water Fee will be discussed at the Board of Supervisors Meeting. He also mentioned that the Supervisor will hold his 16th Annual Veterans Fair for Vets and their families at Santa Anita Park in late May.

Olivia Lee from Assemblyman Ed Chau's office came and gave everyone a paper listing all Legislation Introduced in 2013! For example, Assembly Bill (AB) 242, Internet Privacy Policies would provide a simple and easy way for the average consumer to understand online privacy policies by limiting their length and requiring them to be written in a clear and concise manner. Other noteworthy bills include AB 330 Student Debt, AB 477 Mandated Reporting of Elder Abuse, AB 888 State Bar Investigatory Powers, AB1043 Proposition 84 Water Cost Recovery, and AB 1127 Language Access to the Courts. If you go on line, you may find out more about these bills.

On March 14, from 5pm-7:30pm, there will be a MEGA MIXER at the 500 Speedway Drive, Irvindale. This great event will have 8 participating Chambers of Commerce including Arcadia, Azusa, Duarte, El Monte, Irvindale, Monrovia, Rosemead and Temple City. Cost is $10 for Chamber members; $15 for Non-members. Food will be provided and drag racing can be viewed from 5-10pm. # POLICE DEPARTMENT TIP OF THE WEEK: AVOID IDENTITY THEFT

Identity thieves take your personal information and use it without your knowledge; they purchase merchandise, run up dept, and even commit crimes. The following tips can help you lower your risk of becoming a victim of identity theft and safeguard your Identity:

Protect Your Social Security Number - Do not carry your Social Security card in your wallet or purse. Do not give your social security number to anyone unless you are the one that contacted them, and they are en-

Don't be the Victim of a Scam - Scam artists pretend to be banks, stores, or government agencies. They do this over the phone, in emails, and by mail. Don't respond to a request to verify your account number or password. Legitimate companies will not request information in this manner.

Don't Trash Your Personal Information - Shred papers with personal information on them before you throw them in the trash. Shred credit card offers and "convenience checks" that you don't use.

Protect Your Mail - Lock your mailbox or rent a locked post office box. Deposit outgoing mail in blue post office boxes and retrieve your mail from your mailbox as soon as possible.

Be Careful Where You Click - Check out websites before shopping online and entering your credit card number or other personal information. Read the privacy policy and look for opportunities to opt out of information sharing. If there is no privacy policy, beware! Shop elsewhere. Enter personal information only on secure web pages with "https" in the address bar and a padlock symbol in the lower right corner (Internet Explorer and Mozilla Firefox programs). This shows that your information will be encrypted or scrambled, protecting it from hackers.

Protect Your Computer from Viruses and Spies - Protect your personal information on your home computer. Use strong passwords with at least eight characters, including letters, numbers, and symbols. Avoid writing down the password. Use a firewall and virus protection software that you update regularly. Steer clear of spyware; download free software only from sites you know and trust. Do not install software without knowing what it is. Set your Internet Explorer browser security to at least "medium." Don't click on links in pop-up windows or in spam email.

Control Your Personal Financial Information - Federal law requires your bank and other financial institutions to get your permission before sharing your personal financial information with outside companies. You also have the right to limit the sharing of your personal financial information with affiliates of your financial institutions. Write to the companies that you want to "opt-out" of sharing your personal financial information with their affiliates. (Contact the Direct Marketing Association at www. dmaconsumers.org).

Always Check Your Bills and Bank Statements - Open your credit card bills and bank statement right away. Check carefully for any unauthorized charges or withdrawals and report them immediately to the fraud department of the bank or credit card company. Call the company if bills don't arrive on time or if there is unauthorized account activity.

Ask Questions - Whenever you are asked for personal information that seems inappropriate for the transaction. Ask how the information will be used and if it will be shared. Ask how it will be protected. Explain that you're concerned about identity theft. If you're not satisfied with the answers, consider going somewhere else.

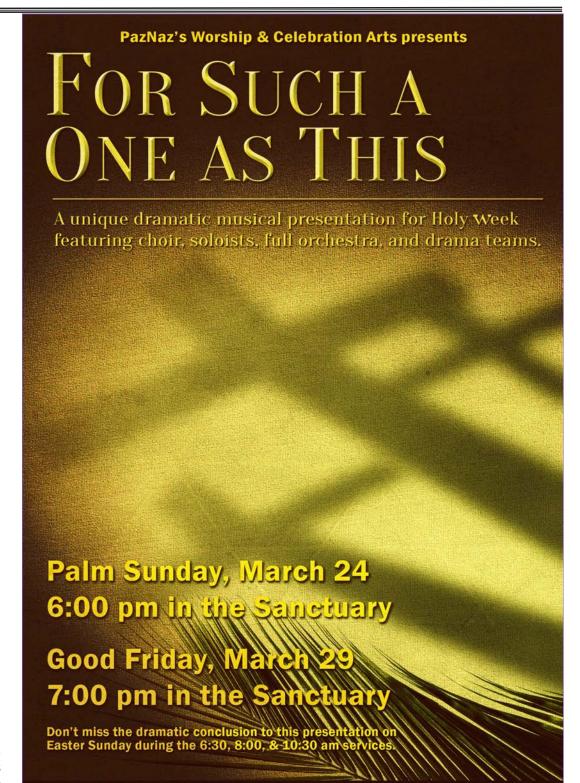

Check Your Credit Reports - for Free - One of the best ways to protect yourself from identity theft is to monitor your credit history. You can get one free credit report every year from each of the three national credit bureaus: Equifax, Experian and TransUnion. You can request all three reports at once (so you can compare them). Or, be your own credit-monitoring service and spread out your request, ordering from a different bureau every four months (so you can keep track of any changes or see new information on your credit history).

Order your free annual credit reports toll-free at (877/322-8228) or online at www.annualcreditre-

The Wistaria Vine

Celebrating Sierra Madre's Most Well Known Landmark

The Vine

Sierra Madre's 118-Year Old Wistaria* Vine By Phyllis Chapman

In 1894, William and Alice Brugman purchased main hotels: The Green, a home on what was then called Piedmont, which The Huntington, and The is now called W. Carter Ave. The house had been built one year before by builder Amos Trussell for his daughter Winona and son-in-law Edward B. Jones when they married. It was the first wedding page B1 celebrated in early Sierra Madre.

The Trussells and the Jones had a change of plans, sold to the Brugmans and moved away. To enhance her new home, Alice Brugman and her a very successful fundraiser neighbor Mrs. W. B. Crisp, drove by horse and buggy to the R. H. Wilson Pioneer Nursery in Monrovia and for $.75 purchased a gallon can of wistaria. It was the Chinese Wistaria variety (Wisteria sinensis). She planted it in a corner of her front porch remarking to her neighbor: "They say Wistaria grows fast." And grow it did.

Mr. Brugman, a mining engineer, was in Mexico when the vine was planted. He died in 1899 and Mrs. Brugman sold the home in 1906. The property changed hands until it was purchased in 1913 by Henry T. and Estelle Fennel. Mr. Fennel, who was a bit of a horticulturist, loved the vine, and gave it devoted care, even building support

Although the Wistaria is a vigorous grower, the added support of the trellises may have contributed to this vine's phenomenal growth.
The arbors prevented the end tendrils from hanging down and causing the tender terminal buds to die from the added weight. Wistaria requires good drainage, certainly provided by this hilly, terraced location. There may also be an underground spring providing water to the tap

The vine eventually destroyed the original home, growing into the walls and fireplace and causing the roof to collapse. Mr. Fennel built a new home 200 feet to the north (the present upper home) and trained the vine to grow up to, but not covering the new residence. A portion of the foundation of that original home was saved to continue to provide support for the vine as its branches extended such a distance. cars were added to handle the crowds. Among the famous were opened the vine to the Sierra to help the war effort. 12,000 people attended the event. This was the beginning of many Wistaria festivals that took place year after year. Sierra Madre became known as the Wistaria City. Many local organizations, including the Board of Trade (now the Chamber of Commerce), the Woman's Club, the Masons and Eastern Star, the Sierra Madre Volunteer Fire Dept., etc. were involved.

Many homemade items, fancy work, ceramics, artwork, gift books, and Wistaria fragranced perfume, hand lotion and bath salts were sold at booths under the vine. Luncheons and teas were served, often with young Japanese women wearing their kimonos.

The hard work and money earned at the vine by the Woman's Club paid off the mortgage of their first clubhouse. One year the Fire Dept. parked 30,000 cars on the parking lot that existed in Floral Canyon. (This is now Sierra Meadow Dr.). Easter sunrise services were among vine activities. People came from all over the world and extra street crowds. Among the famous were purchases the vine property from Mrs. Fennel, who was now a widow, for $17,000.00. December 5th was Mrs. Lawless' birthday, and according to one account, she was making a present to herself of the world's largest bouquet. Also a widow, her husband William J (Bill) Lawless was mayor of Sierra Madre during 1928-29. She, herself, was a successful businesswoman having founded the Weaver Jackson Beauty Co. in Los Angeles and was active in the community, serving as president of the Woman's Club and the Garden Club.

Mrs. Lawless spent a small fortune (around $100,000) enhancing the grounds of her new property and caring for the vine. When the festivals were held they often lasted for the weeks the vine was in bloom, not just for one day. Mrs. Lawless, a patron of the arts, also sponsored vine activities all year long.

She hosted art exhibits, musicales, and poetry readings. Nearby residents objected to the constant activity and took their complaints to the City Council. Nothing was done as Mrs. Lawless (continued on page B2) vinw VINE HISTORY (cont. from B1) presented the argument that the vine existed before these neighbors purchased their properties.

In recognition for her contributions to the community, the Garden Club planted another Wistaria in the terraced garden on the west side of what is today the Solt's garden. It blooms a bit later than the original vine and the plaque commemorating the occasion is gone.

When Mrs. Lawless died in 1942, she provided for the vine by leaving a legacy to her nephew and heir, Bruce McGill, to continue care of the property with a committee headed by the Garden Club President. In 1944, the property was purchased by Richard and Marian Thayer. Marian is the daughter of M. Penn Phillips, a well-known developer of desert property. In 1944 the vine was overgrown and in poor condition. Richard Thayer planned to chop it up and get rid of it. A protest was raised and an association was formed to protect the vine, with money provided to pay property taxes and provide year-round care for the vine.

In 1961, after Richard Thayer died, the lot was split. Marian married builder Ronald Cook who developed the west side of the property with homes and built the present Solt home for he and Marian in1962. The upper home was sold to Joseph and Marie Feeney who raised eight children there. In 1972, Ron and Marian sold the lower home to Bob and Nell Solt. In the late 1990s, Joe Feeney died and Maria sold the property. It was purchased in 2003 by the present owners, Dan and Dana Dorrance.

of Commerce. The Sierra Madre Beautification Fritz Kreisler, Janet Leigh, Mary Pickford, and On December 5, 1936, Carrie Ida Lawless Committee was the yearly sponsor in the 1980's. Approximately 500-600 people attended the festival each year. In the spring of 1989, Huell Howser came to film the vine for his program Videolog, which aired on KCET. The next year, approximately 6,000 people came to view the vine. The festival organizers were unprepared for such a turnout; lines stretched for two blocks. Howser returned in 1992 to film again for his California Gold program. Sierra Madre and the Chamber of Commerce quickly organized and combined the annual Vine viewing with a downtown street fair. A shuttle bus is provided, and people procure tickets to see the vine at a pre-scheduled time.

> The Guinness Book of World Records has named the Vine the World's largest flowering plant. It is estimated that at the height of bloom it has 1.5 million blossoms with 40 blossoms per sq. ft., weighs 250 tons and has branches that extend 500 feet. Wistaria is a member of the pea family though its seeds resemble a flat bean. Seed pods burst open in the summer. The plant is deciduous, losing its leaves in the winter. Wistaria seeds were brought from China by Marco Polo in the 13th

> Today, the vine covers approximately one acre. Over the years, it has shown distress and seemed to be dying. Experts have been brought in from Cal Tech, Occidental, and Cal Poly Pomona. Correct pruning, treatments with hormones, and vitamin B have helped the vine to recover and to flourish. To help maintain the Vine's health, records of vine growth and care are now kept on a computer log. The Vine seems to produce its greatest flowering after a cold winter followed by sudden hot spell.

> What is the correct spelling for wisteria—wisteria or wistaria? In the Sunset Western Garden Book it is spelled wisteria. Sierra Madre has always spelled it wistaria. According to L. A. County Arboretum and Botanic Garden senior biologist Jim Bauml and Librarian Joan De Fato, the plant was named to honor Caspar Wistar (1761-1818), an American physician and teacher, who taught at the University of Pennsylvania. Among his accomplishments, he wrote the first text-book on anatomy. When the name of the genus Wisteria was put into the books, it was incorrectly spelled, says De Fato. So, one could say that all along, Sierra Madre has correctly spelled Wistaria!

PASADENA UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT NEWS

At its meeting March 12, the Pasadena Unified School District (PUSD) Board of Education approved the issuing of an additional 12 reduction in force notices to certificated employees, many at the district's central office. The board also approved a resolution recognizing Cesar Chavez Day, the charter petition for Pasadena Rosebud Academy Middle School and the process for adjusting school attendance boundaries starting in the 2014-2015 school year.

There will be a runoff election for PUSD Board of Education District 3 between Ruben Hueso and Tyron Hampton. Hueso, a classroom teacher and a PUSD parent, will face project manager and PUSD alumnus Tyron Hampton in a runoff election on April 16 in a district that includes northwest Pasadena.

On March 13, PUSD celebrated the cost avoidance of over $1.1 million from its energy savings initiative. Because of this program, money has been freed up to spend in the classroom instead of paying utility bills. At an event at Eliot Middle School, the district was also presented the Award for Environmental Stewardship by Cenergistic for reducing the district's carbon footprint by 36,022 MMBTU which is the equivalent of 2,461 metric tons of carbon emissions, comparable to removing 442 cars from the road or growing 62,938 pine trees for 10 years.

Marshall Fundamental School is the recipient of two grants in support of its music education programs. The Mr. Holland's Opus Foundation has graciously donated more than $22,000 worth of musical instruments to the school. The concert snare drums, trumpets, saxophones, violins and keyboard will be used in the school's music education programs. In addition, the Los Angeles Chapter of the American Composers Forum has donated $5,000 to provide technology and training to help Marshall students compose music and is also interested in establishing a permanent joint venture with the school.

PUSD congratulates the overall winning teams of the March 9 Math Field Day. The four-person teams from grades 4-8 will represent PUSD at the L.A. County competition April 27, 2013. Students are tested in computational and procedural skill, conceptual understanding and problem-solving. Overall winning

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show Movie Reviews Especially for Teens & 'Tweens OZ: The Great and Powerful

After seeing the several different trailers for this movie, I decided to go into the theater with no expectations. It could be amazing or it could flop. What I found was the first Disney-feeling movie in years.

Oscar (James Franco) or as his friends call him, Oz, has a job as a magician in a traveling circus. With great dreams he finds himself being swept off in a tornado to the magical land of Oz. After meeting Theodora the Good (Mila Kunis) and a flying monkey, Finley (Zach Braff), they make their way to the Emerald City, where Oz discovers his destiny in the future of the great land.

This story is so fill of magic it's astounding. Disney took every ounce of effort, imagination, and pixie dust, and poured it into 'Oz'. While the world did feel like 'Alice in Wonderland', there were aspects of Oz that distinguished itself from Wonderland. For example, the Witches, which are used in an extremely clever plot twist. In conclusion, I would recommend this movie to anyone; it is excellent.

STARGIRL By Jerry Spinelli

For this next selection, you readers will want to keep an open mind because this one will not only want to make you smile, but is also perfect for sharing with other potential readers of many ages. Jerry Spinelli is a recognizable author here, and "Stargirl" is proof of his excellently and sweetly written work which involves themes of adolescence and early adulthood. The story focuses on protagonist Leo Borlock, a 16 year old teenager with a shy demeanor whose life is greatly affected when he meets the eccentric and unusual Susan Ćaraway but whom everyone calls "Stargirl". Readers will notice that the themes of nonconformity, individuality, and acceptance come into play here as Leo, and other classmates at his school are at first surprised by her unique personality and follow by imitation, but are quick to shun her when they believe she has done something wrong in their eyes. Readers who can sympathize with Leo may be mildly surprised at how certain events play out for Leo once Stargirl comes into the picture, and how they may react when Leo becomes Stargirl's romantic interest but unfortunately is shunned himself for being attracted to her.

Stargirl (aka Susan) takes the story and its plot by storm, always expressing a quirky surprise or a trick up her sleeve, even when others are not so kind (one example is how she carries a ukulele to school and sings to students on their birthdays). Leo also affects the pacing of the story, starting from an observational perspective before opening up to Stargirl and trying to comprehend her perspective, and then wanting to revert to his former nature when he tries to break away from her. Jerry Spinelli creates wonderfully fantastical characters and a smoothly paced story, which can echo real-life events and provide readers with an opportunity to think back on similar experiences which may have happened to them, including myself, and to allow themselves to become completely immersed in the world of "Stargirl". Although "Stargirl" might be considered an older selection as it was copyrighted in 2000, "Stargirl" has received praise from booklovers and critics alike, such as Chicago Tribune, Book Report, and Publishers Weekly, and is also a New York Times Bestseller. And to also add to its charm, Spinelli has also produced a sequel, "Love, Stargirl", which will not only add a sense of completion to any reader's bookshelf, but one that will bring a sense of memories, nostalgia, youth, and the joys of setting your own path and following your heart.

BEACH FOSSILS

A few things have changed since Beach Fossil's last record. This time around bandleader

Dustin Payseur acquired three new members, including drummer Tommy Davidson, to replace the use of a drum kit in previous material. What once started as a solo bedroom project of lo-fi songs has been reincarnated into a full fledged

This time around, Beach Fossils find themselves heading into a studio with a producer to craft a more polished, higher production sounding record. In the process of doing so, the band's unique qualities could have been completely lost with the transition but, instead, a sense of drive and determination has now been found. Beach Fossils now have a true equilibrium as distinct from the lo-fi edges on their first album and the dream-pop movements on their follow-up EP, "What A Pleasure". They're now combining the two sounds into what is now known as "Clash The Truth." Despite the lost of two original members, who have pursued their own projects (DIIV and Heavenly Beat) and taking a leap in a somewhat different, off the beaten path direction, Beach Fossils are far away from hitting that "sophomore slump" and honing their craft with an album that genuinely doesn't disappointment.

The songs here are quick and bursting with energy. No track is longer than three minutes and twenty five seconds and the shortest is thirtythree seconds. Those jangly guitar riffs are still intact, and are now preceded by Payseur's clearer vocals. A sense of maturity has left its influence on both vocals and lyrics. Instead of being deemed just another surf-pop meets garage-rock fly-bynight summer band, Beach Fossils are clearly the real deal. They've become stronger and quite simply better over time. The opening, and title, track is a solid example of this with angst lyrics and Payseur chanting along the second half of the song. Another gem is "Careless," that's viciously catchy and demonstrates a powerful sense of urgency. It's easily the best song of this "best of Beach Fossils" in their reasonably short career. "In Vertigo" provides the vocals of Kazu Makino of Blonde Redhead and it's a sure winner. This one is a sprawling, darkly sweet sound with Makino's restrained vocals to boot. The combination of that, along with heavy-reverb, fit hand in hand . You will easily be clamoring for more songs of this duo. The only real problem I have with this album is the three useless instrumental tracks. "Clash The Truth" is already short in duration and the added three minutes and twenty five seconds are out of place, needless material definitely disrupts the flow of the record.

In the end, "Clash The Truth" is the work of an artist who has developed a sound richer and more intricate than previous work had indicated. The evolution between the first two records reminds me a lot of Beach Fossils' label mates, Wild Nothing. Both musicians started their careers as solo bedroom pop artists and now find themselves in communal projects, respectively. Plus, in relation to this, Beach Fossils' resonance has improved with the higher production values found in professional recording studios. Nonetheless, Payseur and co. take some risks, most of which pay off greatly. With 2013 still ahead of them, Beach Fossils just may become bigger than they ever imagined. I know for starters their new material has definitely become so.

HOWARD Hays As I See It

As I See It

"I don't know why any individual should have a right to have a revolver in the house . . . with it and so forth ... Can't we go after handguns, period? ... I know the rifle association will be against it, the gun makers will be against it ... people should not have handguns."

If my column's opening quote has no attribution attached, by now you probably know why – It's a cheap way to get you to keep reading, if for no other reason than to find out who said it.

For now, I'll fill you in on the results of my checking out another of Greg Welborn's startling statements. He asserted last week that Venezuela has "the highest murder rate in the world." The world's a pretty big place with lots of countries, so I thought I'd look into it.

The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime did a study on this just last year. According to 2012 figures, Venezuela is in one of the most dangerous regions in the world, and would have the highest murder rate - if it weren't for Jamaica, Ivory Coast, El Salvador and Honduras (which has a murder rate twice as high as Venezuela's).

I always want to see how the USA stacks up. Out of 207 countries ranked from lowest murder rate to highest, we come in at 99. This puts us in the top half - but not by much. Folks in countries like India, Albania, Egypt, Cambodia, Turkey, Iran, Lebanon, Algeria and Serbia have better odds than we do of walking the streets at night and making it back home alive.

Greg also brings up poverty, stating that as of today, "Venezuela has sunk close to the bottom while China and India have climbed to heights almost unimaginable . . ." The World Bank uses makin'-it-on-$2-a-day as their international metric to define "poverty". By that standard, according to the most recent available statistics, 12.9% of Venezuelans live in "poverty". In China it's 29.8% - and 68.7% in India. There's "wealth", but often it's distributed as in India where, in a land of 1.2 billion, ten individuals control over 10% of the economy.

Greg revived the name of Reagan-era U.N. Ambassador Jeanne Kirkpatrick – appropriately in a column related to Latin America. A big supporter of Iran-Contra, Kirkpatrick heartily endorsed siphoning money off arms sales to Iran to fund the Nicaraguan Contras, despite Secretary of State George Schultz' warning it was an "impeachable offense". As for the torture, rape and murder of those three American nuns and the Catholic lay worker in 1980, she suggested we cut the government of El Salvador some slack, because, after all, "The nuns were not just nuns; the nuns were political activists". (When it was rumored Kirkpatrick was eyeing the job good will". of National Security Advisor, Secretary Schultz threatened to resign if she got it.)

Jeanne Kirkpatrick derided the U.N. as an "institution whose majorities claim the right to decide - for the world - what is legitimate and what is illegitimate." She made clear her view that this was a "right" reserved solely for the United States. In this context, it's understandable how The kids usually kill themselves Greg can claim "all this praise and worship" directed towards Hugo Chavez "is a lie". It's so, if for no other reason than the U.S. right-wing consensus says it's so. The massive mourning by Venezuelans themselves, who repeatedly voted Chavez back into office, doesn't count.

Now, here's what you've been waiting for: The one who wanted to deny any "right" to own a handgun, quoted at the top of this column, was President Richard Nixon. It was a caught-on-tape moment shortly after the assassination attempt on former Alabama Gov. George Wallace

If you'd like to play more guess-who-saidit, picture this scene from a few years earlier: A young activist warns against a government "either unable or unwilling... to protect lives and property", and reminded that "Article number two of the constitutional amendments provides you and me the right to own a rifle or a shotgun."

Those who listened sought not only to exercise this right, but to do it responsibly – often instructed on how to properly clean and handle their weapons by recently-returned Vietnam vets. And, they took their "rights" a step further – insisting on a right to "open carry", and proudly showed off their guns out on the street.

This proved too much for Sacramento politicians, who suddenly got very interested in gun control legislation - specifically to ban the carrying of weapons in public. The group, though, wouldn't back down; "they're trying to pass a law against our guns, and we're going to

The Governor had his own view, seeing "no reason why on the street today a citizen should be carrying loaded weapons, and referred to guns as a ridiculous way to solve problems that have to be solved among people of good will." The group, though, maintained that especially in an era of civil unrest and a government they didn't trust, it was important not to relinquish a "right" to protect themselves as they saw fit.

The "young activist" quoted above was Malcolm X ("by any means necessary"); the one who announced "we're going to the Capitol" was Huey Newton, speaking to Bobby Seale. The group was the Black Panthers. The Governor who nailed it on "open carry" was Ronald Jeanne Kirkpatrick was into rationalizing support for thuggish dictators when they were on "our" side, and finding them morally objectionable only when they weren't. The decades have seen shifting views on gun control depending on which "side" wanted the guns. As I see it, I'll throw my support to the "people of

So - Free Bobby! Free Huey! Power to the People! And for Governor Reagan, Right On!

POPE FRANCIS THE HEALER

GREG Welborn

The Catholic Church has suffered much in recent the mess that those years. There have been financial improprieties, publicly-fought political battles among its core the promised cures they lieutenants and, of course, dispiriting and deeply evil sexual abuse scandals. One could almost be tempted to dismiss the church as out of date and irrelevant to the modern world, but one would be wrong to do so. The Christian church has much to offer a hurting, broken world, and the Catholic branch of that faith has as long a history of doing right by its parishioners as it does in doing wrong by them. So, it is with a certain gladness of heart that I, an evangelical protestant, rejoice in the selection of Cardinal Jorge Mario Bergoglio to become Pope Francis.

To fully understand the significance of Cardinal Bergoglio's selection, we have to step back a month to acknowledge the selfless act of Pope Benedict in relinquishing his claim to the seat of St. Peter in order to allow a more robust man to fill the role. Too often in the secular world – and sadly in the church as well – leaders cling to leadership positions which offer prestige, power and influence, even though they are no longer capable of meeting the requirements of the job. Pope Benedict's resignation was the first in 600 years and reflects the selfless heart of a true servant, who held the interests and needs of believers world-wide above his own selfish desires. So before addressing the merits of Cardinal Bergoglio, let me take a moment to express appreciation and admiration to the humble Father, Bishop and Cardinal Ratzinger, who became Pope Benedict, served faithfully and then retreated quietly to a life devoted to prayer.

With Pope Benedict's resignation, there were many who cynically wondered and postulated about who, among the politically well-skilled cardinals, would maneuver his way to the papacy. But the conclave of cardinals surprised us. They didn't choose the most skilled politician, they didn't choose an insider, and, most significantly, they didn't choose someone who has even a whiff of self-indulgence about him. Instead, they chose the humble, God-fearing and God-loving, and unpretentious Cardinal of Argentina.

Jorge Mario Bergoglio has spent almost the entirety of his career in Argentina, tending in a very pastoral way to the needs of his people as a priest, then Bishop, and finally Cardinal. Along the way, he has consistently eschewed the trappings of luxury and privilege that are too willingly provided and too willingly accepted by the princes of the Catholic Church. Cardinal Bergoglio refused to live in the mansion provided previous Argentine cardinals but, instead, lived in a modest residence next to his office. He traveled by mass transit, not by limousine. By all accounts, he loved his flock more than he loved himself, or his office or the advantages that office so often provides. He was an honest, sincere man

It is insightful and instructive that Cardinal Bergoglio hails from Argentina and experienced first hand the financial and political difficulties that beautiful land has suffered at the hands of its less-than-capable political leaders. To politicians created, and to offered the long-suffering Argentines, Bergoglio admonished, "to those who are now promising to fix all the problems, I say, 'go and fix yourself'. Get to confession before you need it even more. The crisis will not be improved by magicians from outside, nor will it come from the golden mouth of politicians, so accustomed to making incredible promises."

You have to love a man who can speak truth to power – and corruption – in such an honest and humble way. This is a man, like his predecessor Benedict, who has known the oppression and false promises of tyrants and dictators. As Benedict stood up against the communist masters of his native Poland, so too has Pope Francis stood up against the Marxists of his homeland when he served from priest to Cardinal.

Both of these men know the frailty and the resilience of the human spirit; both these men love people as God loved people. The Christian message is, after all, the story of how God so loved the world, and its people, that He gave His only son to pay the price for sin that we, the fallen and sinful, could not pay. God offered Christ to reconcile the world to His demand for justice and righteousness. God calls us in turn to love the world as He did and to work to make right what has long been broken. Among Christ's followers are the many who are laity and the few who are full-time pastoral roles. On each group is the placed the responsibility to act as if we were doing our task for God and to act as if God were watching our every move and action.

How refreshing it is then to see that one man has stepped aside when he felt he could no longer lead that grand mission and to see take his place another who clearly has the appreciation for and energy to lead that commission into a turbulent

The cardinals could not have chosen a more fitting man for the time and place in which the Catholic Church finds itself. Jorge Mario Bergoglio is a man who will resist the evils of those who seek secular tyranny and the evils of those who clothe themselves in the vestments of the church while preying on its trusting believers. Jorge Mario Bergoglio, now Pope Francis, steps into a church at a time of great need. God will be well served, the people blessed and the world made better by the humility, selflessness and dedication that is the character of the man who now leads the Church of St. Peter.

PART II: "AMNESTY BY ANY OTHER NAME IS STILL AMNESTY..."

This is the second in a series of articles about President Obama's proposed Comprehensive Immigration Reform and why Americans should oppose it. It is based on information from a variety of sources including the Cato Institute, Center for Immigration Studies, Federation for American Immigration Reform (FAIR), NumbersUSA, and Pew Hispanic Center.

As mentioned in Part I, in his May 24, 2006 New York Times Op-Ed, "Amnesty by Any Other Name is still Amnesty...", by former Attorney General Ed Meese III, argued strongly against the Comprehensive Immigration Reform proposed by President Bush, calling it what it was amnesty:

"Like the amnesty bill of 1986, the current Senate proposal would place those who have resided illegally in the United States on a path to citizenship, provided they meet a similar set of conditions and pay a fine and back taxes. The illegal immigrant does not go to the back of the line but gets immediate legalized status, while law-abiding applicants wait in their home countries for years to even get here. And that's the line that counts. In the end, slight differences in process do not change the overriding fact that the 1986 law and today's bill are both amnesties."

Again, as I said last week, If President Obama really wants to reform our immigration system he should take following steps before any kind of immigration reform, comprehensive or otherwise,

Encourage Federal / State / Local Partnership
State and local police are badly needed to help overwhelmed federal immigration authorities apprehend and detain illegal aliens in the interior of our country. Illegal aliens currently outnumber federal immigration agents by 5,000 to one, and only 2,000 federal agents are active in enforcing the immigration laws in the interior of our country. Clearly, those numbers indicate that a limited number of federal agents are incapable of apprehending a majority of an estimated 11-22 million illegal aliens currently inside our nation's borders and would benefit from the assistance of the more than 600,000 state and local law enforcement officers nationwide who come into contact with illegal aliens every day.

End Catch and Release Policy

Many police officers routinely observe and even stop illegal aliens for violations of the law, however, those who arrest illegal aliens and proceed to contact federal immigration officials are all too often told to release the offenders unless a non-immigration offense is involved. This practice has commonly become known as "catch and release." Even more troublesome is the fact that some police officers are prohibited by state or local laws or policies from cooperating with federal officials, a tactic adopted by some state and local governments that favor ensuring the well-being of illegal aliens rather than protecting law abiding American citizens from unnecessary harm and the adverse effects of illegal immigration on their communities.

Eliminate Sanctuary Cities

Several cities, including Washington, D.C., New York City, Los Angeles, Chicago, San Francisco, San Diego, Austin, Baltimore, Salt Lake City, Dallas, Houston, Honolulu, Portland, and Seattle have made themselves "sanctuary cities" by adopting ordinances restricting local law enforcement from inquiring about immigration status and reporting violations to federal authorities. Most of these cities claim that the benefit illegal immigrants bring to their city outweigh the costs. Opponents say the measures violate federal law as the cities are in effect creating their own immigration policy, an area of law which only Congress has authority to alter.

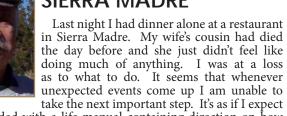

Many legal scholars have tagged these so-called "don't tell" measures as "obvious targets for express preemption" given the apparent conflict between "don't tell" policies and the restrictions in Sections 434 of the "Welfare Reform Act" and Section 642 of the "Immigration Reform Act" that expressly forbid restraints on communications with federal officials, including the sharing of information relating to people's illegal immigration status. This is not good news for cities dependent on federal to be provided with a life-manual containing direction on how to behave in unexpected situations. What I decided to do was to go to a restaurant alone on a Saturday night for probably the first time in my life. As I left my wife's expression told me I was failing to do something very important. The next day she told me she would have felt better if I had just taken the trouble to hug her instead of worrying about my own discomfort.

Do not be fooled. Amnesty by any other name is still amnesty. Comprehensive Immigration Reform is amnesty -- pure and simple.

So anyway I was feeling pretty strange when I arrived at the busy restaurant. There was a pretty long waiting list but I told the hostess I was alone and she said there was a small table that usually remained empty. I said I'd take the table and soon learned why it usually remained empty. The table was right in the way of everything else and people kept bumping into my chair. One man stopped and began a conversation about how much he liked this restaurant and liked Sierra Madre but could never live here. He said that Sierra Madre was an anachronism and that that it would be a very dull place to live because he was sure nothing ever happened in Sierra Madre.

I said I understood how he might think that but really some surprising things happened in Sierra Madre all the time. "Like what?" he said. "Well", I told him, "Night before last two mountain lions jumped over my neighbor's wall and ate a little dog." The man thought I was kidding but I showed him a copy of the Mountain Views News that told the story right on the front page.

The man quickly seemed to lose interest and said something like well I'm glad that gave you something to think about for awhile." It must generally be pretty dull up there up there". I said, no. We often see deer, raccoons, coyotes and bears. "Why there was even a bear in my house last year that the police had to come and shoot with a bean-bag weapon." The man thought I was making fun of him and walked away to join his companions at another table. I could see them looking at me strangely and kind of laughing to

Now, I felt even more uncomfortable. I paid my bill and drove home Feeling strange I remembered that my neighbor, the dog's former owner, or maybe the right language is the former dog's owner, has told me he received a special Fish and Game Dispensation that allows him to shoot the mountain lions. Great, now I'm more worried about him shooting someone by mistake than I am worried about being eaten by the lions.

Tonight rather than take our dog for his nightly walk around the circle my wife and I just drove down to City Hall and walked the dog near the canyon in the park. When we got home we noticed a poster wrapped around our telephone pole. I noticed no other posters on the block but it was too dark to read the poster. My wife didn't want me to linger about on the street where I might get eaten or shot and said I could read the poster tomorrow.

That's it! I am not going to be afraid in my own house. I am going downstairs to read the poster. Okay, I'm back.

All the sign says is BEWARE OF EXTREMELY AGGRESSIVE MOUNTAIN LIONS

Additionally the poster contains the helpful information that the lions can jump fifteen feet in the air and are capable of taking down a 600 pound elk. The poster also gave instructions on what to do if confronted by mountain lions.

DO NOT APPROACH LIOINS. DO NOT RUN. YELL AND

Sounds like pretty good advice. I think if you combine that advice with my wife's suggestion that when in doubt it's best to hug someone you love you will be well-prepared for most situations. Well so far nothing new has happened in Sierra Madre this morning. I'm going to try and attach a picture of the poster to this article and perhaps the poster will be seen in the paper. If you want to read my article about the bear getting into my house please check out the Mountain Views News archives (mtnviewsnews,com,) for May 5, 2012. If you look at my other articles in the archives you can read about the fires, earthquakes, windstorms, forced evacuations, arrests and the uncovering of a hidden meth lab all occurring in Sierra Madre, a place where nothing ever happens.

SLATER'S 50/50

Have you noticed there is a burger movement right here in the San Gabriel Valley? I can't count all the places making burgers, and some of them are pretty darn good. New to the area are Rounds, Habit, Big Daddy's, and Lucky Boy(Walnut), and don't forget the old ones like Pie N' Burger, Burger Continental, and Robin's. All make decent burgers. If you are like me you might consider yourself a burger connoisseur. Many times when dining out I think that no one makes a better bigger then yours truly. It seems such a simple process to make a burger -- fresh ground beef, the right bun and the right temperature. Remember I said it: simple.

your choice of pilsners, lagers, ales, many names you know, and others that you should get to know. Too many gastropubs offer beer I have never heard of -- I get the idea, but I just might be in the mood for a Pabst!!!

The service at the bar, where I usually do my best eating, was top notch. Bartender George greeted us with a handshake and a hello and asked if it was our first time at Slater's. He explained the process and even asked what type of beer we liked. Nice touch George! You get high marks for service! Prices for beer are in the $6 range, burgers from $9 and up. I will return for a 50/50 soon and another Pilsner, please. The Bar has ample room to dine or just have a beer, and features more than 10 big screens for your sporting pleasure. Slater's 50/50 61 N. My favorite experience is Slater's 50/50, not only do they make arguably the best burger in town, the whole experience is one I look forward to. I have been there three times and Slater's has delivered each and every time. What is a 50/50? It's a burger made of half ground beef and half bacon. On my most recent visit I opted to go all beef. I ordered from the Design It Yourself menu where you pick the size of the burger (from 1/3 lb to 1 a full pound), bread, cheese, toppings, and sauce. I got the 1/3lb burger on the thick sliced rye bread with pickle chips and roasted red peppers, accompanied by a Munich Pilsner beer -- this kid was in heaven. This burger is truly one that I would go out for and save the time of firing up the BBQ. On this visit I also enjoyed the fried dill pickle chips. The only item that isn't five stars is the french fries. Before you think I'm going soft here, the fries do come with a tangy Slater Ketchup that is good, but with all the work they have done on the burger, a freshly cut order of fries probably would have made me think I was at Spagos.

The beer selection is vast, with coming to Santa Anita on Sunday, March 24th, this all day event features area restaurants and top notch wines. I'll be there !!! $60 includes admission to track and the event. (626) 574-race.

PET OF THE WEEK

SCOOBY DOO: #A4549197

COGNITIVE CAPACITY OF THE CANINE

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

and responding to a wide variety of verbal commands. But, how many words can a dog understand and respond to? We humans typically use a short list of simple, singleconsonant terms in training our dogs such as 'sit', 'lay", 'stay', 'good dog, and 'no', right? As a dog walker and pet sitter I am pleased to say that I have yet to meet an owner who hasn't taken the time to teach their pet at least one or two of these commands, and I think that is great. Most of us would agree that basic behavioral training for domestic pets definitely helps keep them happy and helps us maintain some semblance of order in the household.

Historically, a canine's capability of learning and obeying the human's verbal commands has been associated more with the dog's parsimonious survival instinct than intellectual or cognitive capacity. However, results of relatively recent scientific studies indicate that there is a lot more to the dog's response to the human than we realized in the past. Recent studies show that dogs can apply previous personal experience to new situations, and have the capacity for selective imitation, which means they are independently capable of interpreting and imitating human behavior. The idea of selective imitation is more notoriously known to be applied to observational studies related to the growth of human infants, but recent findings say it also applies to the canine's intellectual capabilities. Another recent finding is that dogs have no problem understanding the meaning of human gestures. This came as no new concept to me, because I often see my dogs notice and respond to my physical posture (good, bad or ugly) even when my human friends or family don't notice. Another rather newfound fact is that dogs are able to understand and respond to words they've never even heard before, when directly associated with a human's particular vocal tone, gesture or body language.

The general consensus among contemporary canine behavioral research scientists is that the domestic dog's ability to understand and respond to human interactivity is more related to cognitive capacity than survival instinct. While many mammalian species are apparently quite capable of learning and responding to our attempt to train them, the culturally cooperative nature of the canine is what sets it apart from other mammals. The main difference lies in the fact that the domestic dog harbors a certain loyalty towards the human that other mammals do not possess, presumably due to the fact that the dog has been taught to depend on the human for day-to-day nourishment and safety over the years, whereas other mammalian species have not. Another factor is that the dog genuinely enjoys the human's company more than other mammals do. Whether this is related to the evolution and domestication of the canine is still in question. Who knows? Maybe the original wild dog (aka: wolf) was a natural-born people-pleaser from the very beginning. My guess is, no.

Take "Chaser" for example. He is a six-year-old Border Collie trained to understand and comprehend more than 1,000 English

It is no secret spoken words. He even comprehends the words when they are used that the average in a combination of simple sentences. Chaser responds correctly when told to either retrieve and deliver, nose, toe or hide a given capable of learning object. We are talking about a collection of 1,000 different items, for each of which Chaser remembers the given name. Indeed, Border Collies are more attentive and trainable than many dog breeds, and they are considered to be more intelligent than most, but it is still amazing that any dog can perform a task involving such complex memory and problem-solving combinations.

> Another excellent example of the remarkable cognitive capability of the canine was shown in the results of a 2007 study at the University of Vienna in Austria where numerous dogs were prompted to select particular photos on a touch computer screen. The point of the study was to show that the subject canines could recognize and categorize the graphic matter in the photos per command, based on visual familiarity and memory. When shown different sets of dog and landscape photos, the tested canines consistently selected the appropriate photo per command, demonstrating that they could apply their own understanding and previous learning to a new situation totally un-related to previous experiences. The researchers further tested their four-legged subjects by showing pictures of a empty landscapes along with others of similar landscapes including dog. Most subjects selected the pictures with the dog in the landscape versus those without a dog.

> To tell you the truth, I have personally never questioned whether my dog was at least as intelligent as I am, if not more, and it doesn't matter to me whether she could select the correct picture in an experiment or remember a command I hoped to instill in her. Just knowing that the dog is capable of understanding, comprehending and responding to the human in the way it can is remarkable to me. I hope someday to have a better knowledge of what my dog is thinking, and perhaps learn from those thoughts. Meanwhile, will continue to show love and respect and assume her level of intelligence based on research. Speak kind words and show positive physical gestures to your animals. They have so much to offer and it's time we started learning from them just as they do from us. When you stop learning, you stop living. Hug your pet daily and don't forget to love and let live.

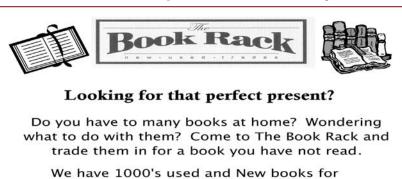

Meet an amazing dog, the incredible Scooby-Doo (A4549197)! Scooby-Doo is a happy-go-lucky four year old tricolor and black neutered male Beagle mix who was forsaken at the Baldwin Park Animal Care Center with his companion Spiky (A4549198) on March 2nd after his former owners lost their home. Weighing seventeen pounds, Scooby-Doo is familiar with the concept of a leash but needs additional training. He does seem to be housetrained. He gets along well with most small dogs, but would rather avoid big ones, and we think he will do fine with kids. This is a medium-energy, clever, affectionate boy who loves belly rubs. Scooby-Doo is the perfect indoor pet for anyone anywhere.

He is currently available now. For any inquiries about Scooby-Doo, please reference his animal ID number: A4549197. The shelter is open seven days a week, 12 pm-7 pm Monday-Thursday and 10am-5pm Friday-Sunday. This is a high-intake shelter with a great need for adoptions.

GET THE TEIRPHY YOU DESERVE

Mortgage applications are being reviewed far more thoroughly now than in the past, and your credit score should be 680 or higher to qualify for the best interest rates. So how do you determine your score, and know you're getting the credit you deserve?

Everyone is allowed one free credit report per year from the three reporting agencies (Experian, Equifax and TransUnion). Review the reports for accuracy and act quickly to correct any errors or Approximately 35% of your credit score is based on the timeliness of your payments. Make sure that no late payments older than seven years are still on your report.

If you have paid off loans or credit cards, a zero balance should appear on those accounts. Sometimes, agencies don't properly update those balances after settlement.

15% of your credit score is based on the length of your credit history, so make sure that the opening dates of all your accounts are accurate. Also make sure that the limits on your credit cards are correct, and keep the balances under 50% of those limits. Total debt accounts for 30% of your credit

Finally, think twice about closing credit card accounts with zero balances, because this negatively reduces your ratio of "available credit" to your debt. First, get the facts. Then, make corrections. Finally, apply for home financing with confidence!
