"DIRECTED AWAY FROM HARM" - Sierra Madrean Tim Osti Finished the Boston Marathon Before The Deadly Explosions And Returned Home Saddened, Determined and Grateful

By Susan Henderson 26 MILES

Tim Osti (above)was the only entrant from Sierra Madre in the Boston Marathón. Below, Tim in 1985 in front of Arnold's Hardware

When Tim Osti challenged the students on Maranatha's Cross Country Team last year, he had no idea that keeping his commitment would put him in the midst of one of the most heinous acts of violence in this country's history.

Osti, an avid runner for most of his life, promised the Maranatha team that if they beat out their No. 1 rivals, he would qualify for, and run in the Boston Marathon this year. Well, they won, and he did. Last year he ran the St. George Marathon in Utah and narrowly, (by 36 seconds), qualified for the Boston Marathon and he was excited.

Osti had only been to Boston one other time, when as a young man in 1985, he and a group of seven friends ran from Boston to Los Angeles for charity. This trip was to have been somewhat of a reunion and very special. At one point, his entire family was planning to travel east to watch Tim cross the finish line. At the last minute, however, those plans were changed and Tim traveled to Boston alone with the encouragement of his family and good friend and fellow runner Sharon Pesner. Sharon's mom lives in the Boston area, so Tim had a home away from home.

Osti, 45, ran the race with very good speed. He finished the run in 3 hours, 26 minutes and 25 seconds. He finished just about 20 minutes before the explosion.

At the time of the blasts, Osti was on the bus on his way back to his car at the starting line. He never heard the explosion. He was at least 10-15 minutes away. In fact, he didn't know about the tragedy until he got back to his car and received a call from his sister.

"She asked me if I was ok, and not realizing what had happened, I said. 'Yes, just a little tired'. Then she asked me again, and I said, 'well my calves hurt a little'. She realized at that point that I didn't know what had happened. When she told me I noticed that my phone was full of messages and the magnitude of what happened started to sink in."

'I wanted to make certain everyone at home knew I was okay. I especially wanted to make certain my granddaughters, who attend Bethany Christian School in Sierra Madre knew I was ok. I called the school to let them know Grandpa was ok. I also called my church, (Calvary Christian) because I had so many people that had called me or sent me messages from there."

> "I don't know why, but God directed me away from that finish line". Osti said he had every introm that finish line. Osti said he had every intent of hanging around with other runners who had completed the run, but all of a sudden he just "decided to get on the bus, and I really don't know why. I was directed away from the danger, and I am so grateful." And, while he is happy that he escaped harm, he was still very shaken at the thought of the fate of those who were innocently standing there either as runners or waitcently standing there either as runners or waiting for their friends and loved ones to cross the

Tim was very happy to get back home to his wife Ana and family and friends in Sierra Madre on Tuesday. On Wednesday, he was back at work in the family business, Danny Osti Tree Service. In town, Tim is probably best known for the fan-tastic Christmas Display he assembles every year

Is he going back to Boston next year? Definitely. When things like this happen, it takes away Osti had run many marathons in the past. He took a hiatus from our American freedoms. We have to reclaim our freedoms otherwise we give them more territory to take."

from running when he married but picked up the hobby again about 10 years ago.

On that fateful morning, Osti was ready to go, inspired by his nine year old nephew Max who has just taken up running as his hobby, he welcomed the brisk temperature and 26 mile road

He had specific plans for the day, he was going to run the race, hang around the finish line for a while and celebrate his accomplishment. He even took enough cash with him on the run to buy lunch so he could dine near the finish line and watch the remaining runners as they came in without going back to his car.

SIERRA MADRE HIRES OUTSIDE AGENCY FOR PARKING ENFORCEMENT

Motorists who park in Sierra Madre are going to have to start abiding by the rules or pay the price. Inter-Con Security Systems has been hired by the city to patrol the streets of Sierra Madre, looking

With recent budget cuts and the reassignment of code enforcement from the Police Department to Development Services, the city manager and council deemed it in the best interest of Sierra Madre to contract out services for ticketing those who violate the city's parking ordinances.

Inter-Con, a company that has created a niche market when it comes to parking enforcement, is also responsible for the same tasks in seven other nearby cities including Pasadena.

By giving the task to an outside contractor rather than patrol officers, the expectation is that the number of citations will increase. According to the information presented to the council, Sierra Madre currently issues around seven parking tickets a day. That number is expected to double with the new

The revenue generated by the increased issuance of tickets is expected to cover the $64,000 cost of the contract with Inter-Con.

SIERRA MADRE

Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Log

Search and rescue activity in our local area continues at a very modest level with the Sierra Madre Search and Rescue (SMSR) Team responding to three calls for assistance in March.

Submitted by Chuck Stoughton

Siezure, Big Santa Anita Canyon, Chantry Flat: The Team received a page at 11: 54 a.m. on March 17th to respond on reports of a hiker experiencing a medical emergency in the Fern Lodge area below Chantry Falt. Search and rescue team members responded along with fire department units from Los Angeles County and Sierra Madre. Crews were able to quickly reach the subject and assess the situation. The subject was stabilized on scene and wheeled out via litter to a point where vehicle access was possible. The hiker was transported back to Chantry Flat and transferred to ambulance for the trip to a local hospital. The operation was secured at 2:00 p.m. and all units released from the incident.

Lost and Stranded Hiker, Mt. Wilson: At 3:22 p.m. on the 2nd, SMSR responded to a mutual aid request from Altadena Mountain Rescue to assist in the rescue of a hiker over 4.5 miles above the Mt. Wilson Toll Road. Limited communications prevented rescuers from determining the hiker's exact location. Along with SMSR and Altadena Mountain Rescue, air and ground units from LA County Fire responded on the call and a command post was established at the Toll Road gate off of Pinecrest Drive in Altadena. SMSR personnel began working search assignments along the Mt. Wilson Trail and Manzanita Ridge where they respectively intersection with the Toll Road. The hiker was spotted by helicopter shortly after crews began their field assignments. The hiker assessed for injuries and was airlifted off of the mountain. The rescue was secured at 4:22 p.m.

Mountain Rescue Association (MRA) California Region Snow/Ice Reaccreditation, June Lake: Over the weekend of March 2-3, eighteen Search and Rescue teams from across California including the Sierra Madre Search and Rescue team, participated in various hands-on rescue scenarios in areas such as: snow/ice rescue techniques; avalanche beacon rescue; winter litter evacuations and medical treatment. These scenarios are designed to assess the skills and preparedness of the respective rescue teams to support operations in winter conditions.

The Mountain Rescue Association (MRA) was established in 1959 on Mt. Hood, Oregon, and is the oldest search and rescue association in the United States. It is an organization of teams dedicated to saving lives through rescue and mountain safety education. SMSR is a fully-accredited member team of the MRA and successfully completed the reaccreditation process.

For over 60 years the all-volunteer Sierra Madre Search and Rescue team has been responding to calls for help in the local mountains and beyond. Funded entirely by private donations, SMSR provides a range of public programs on wilderness safety in addition to its search and rescue activities. The Team never charges for any of its services.

For more information, including how to arrange a wilderness safety demonstration for your school or group, visit www.smsr.org.

PUMPKIN SECRETS REVEALED AT MAY GARDEN CLUB MEETING

Just in time to plant those Halloween globes, Sierra Madre Pumpkin Guru Doug Parker will share his experience, tips and tricks for a successful crop. Doug has been raising pumpkins since 1998 when the leftovers from his Halloween carving sprouted into pumpkins where they had landed in the back yard. He decided to try his hand at growing large pumpkins and has experimented with different varieties, watering systems, soil ph, and locations in his yard. The process starts in May and culminates on Halloween evening with a fantastic display of creatively carved masterpieces decorating the Parker home on Alegria. In 2012, Doug harvested 45 giant pumpkins; the largest weighing about 800 pounds. For 2013 he is raising Atlantic Giant, Big Max, and Prizewinner varieties.

In October the pumpkins will be harvested and moved, with the help of friends, neighbors and special tools, to the Parker's front yard for carving and display. Doug and his brother-in-law Chris Roberts work for four to five days, carving the giants; creating everything from fancy Tiffany lamps to unusual faces and characters. Heather and Doug's home is one of the famous stops along the Alegria trick-or-treat trail with visitors coming from throughout the greater San Gabriel Valley to enjoy the extensive displays.

Anyone interested in raising numpkins or gardening in

Anyone interested in raising pumpkins or gardening in general is invited to attend the May 13 meeting of the Sierra Madre Garden Club. THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SIERRA MADRE DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. Code Amendment. Chapter 17.20, entitled "R-1 One-Family Residential Zone", is hereby replaced with Chapter 17.20 as provided herein as Exhibit "A."

Section 2. Code Amendment. Subsection A.1 of section 17.68.020 of the Municipal Code, entitled "Parking spaces required", is revised to provide:

For R-1 Zones: Two spaces per dwelling unit in a garage or carport; Three spaces per dwelling unit in a garage or carport for dwelling units with five or more bedrooms; Each space in a garage or carport shall have a minimum interior dimension of 10' x 20', with a minimum floor-to-ceiling height of 7 feet.

Section 3. Code Amendment. New subsections S, T and U to section 17.68.080 of the Municipal Code, are hereby added to provide:

S. Properties subject to the R-1 zoning standards: All driveways and parking spaces shall be paved with either asphaltic or concrete pavement, or a pervious paving material subject to the approval of the Development Services Director. Asphaltic pavement shall be placed to a minimum depth, after compaction, of two and one-half inches and a seal coating of coal tar pitch emulsion shall be applied to all asphaltic surfaces. This requirement shall not exclude the utilization of brick or special stones for decorative purposes.

T. Properties subject to the R-1 zoning standards: The planned circulation of vehicles in parking areas shall be arranged to permit vehicles to move into and out of the parking area. U. Unless otherwise noted in this Chapter, a tandem parking arrangement shall not satisfy the required off-street parking requirements for properties subject to the R-1 zoning standards.

Section 4. California Environmental Quality Act. The City Council has considered all of the evidence in the record, including the staff reports, the initial study, the testimony received during the public hearings on the matter held by the Planning Commission and the City Council, and hereby determines that pursuant to CEQA Guidelines section 15070, there is no possibility of a significant impact on the environment, and hereby adopts the Negative Declaration.

Section 5. Severability; Continuation of Provisions. If any section, subsection, subdivision, paragraph, sentence, clause or phrase of this Ordinance is for any reason held to be invalid or unenforceable, such invalidity or unenforceability shall not affect the validity or enforceability of the remaining sections, subsections, subdivisions, paragraphs, sentences, clauses or phrases of this Ordinance or the rules adopted hereby. The City Council of the City of Sierra Madre hereby declares that it would have adopted each section, subsection, subdivision, paragraph, sentence, clause or phrase hereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more other sections, subsections, subdivisions, paragraphs, sentences, clauses or phrases hereof be declared invalid or unenforceable. To the extent the provisions of the Sierra Madre Municipal Code as amended by this Ordinance are substantially the same as the provisions of that Code as they read immediately prior to the adoption of this Ordinance, then those provisions shall be construed as continuations of the earlier provisions and not as new enactments.

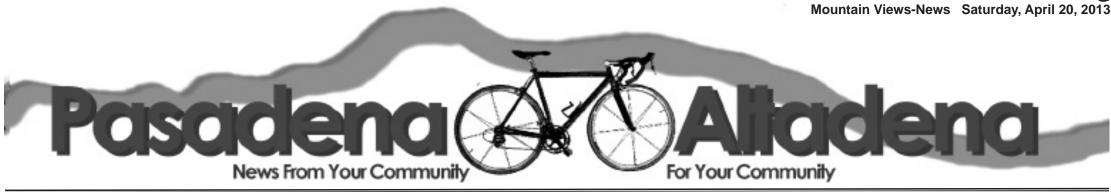

Section 6. Effective Date. This Ordinance shall take effect thirty days after its passage and adoption pursuant to California Government Code section 36937.

Section 7. Certification. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage and adoption of this Ordinance and shall cause the same to be published according to law.

DOO DAH MADNESS SET TO INVADE EAST PASADENA

Star-News Editor Chosen Doo Dah Thorny Rose

Once again the very local Doo Dah parade will bring out all the weird wackiness the event is known for down Colorado Boulevard in East Pasadena —the parade is sometimes referred to as the alter-ego of the prim and proper Rose Parade.

The 36th Occasional Pasadena Doo Dah Parade takes place on Saturday, April 27th, stepping off at 11am. Bring a camera and a lawn chair. The event is always free.

Led by this year's Queen Susann Edmonds and Grand Marshal Alan Zorthian, spectators will be startled and amused by Flying Baby Hammer, A Moveable Feast (based on a Hemingway novel), Ketchum-Professional Vampire Fisherman, The Great Firewall of China, The LOH Down on Science (featuring NPR personality Sandra Tsing Loh), Suffer Jet-Set Planet for David Bowie, Camp Bimbo, World's Tallest Girl Scout, Jiffy Pop! Happy Howard's Harlequin, The Bearded Ladies, Long Beach Ukelele Club, Johnny Skunkmobile, Fashion on the Fly, Drunk in the Garage Band, Zombie Training Camp, Arrow Sign Spinners, and The Army of Toy Soldiers. This year's recipient of the Thorny Rose is Pasadena Star News editor Frank Girardot. The honor is bestowed annually by a secret panel of judges to a local personality who has generated significant controversy in the greater Pasadena community.

"If the day comes that those traits [political correctness] define him, it will be time for a huge reality check," said parade organizers. "Frank is definitely a throwback to the days when reporters dug in to get their story. In so doing, he has ruffled plenty of feathers along the way."

Police, Zero Tolerance Distracted Driving

As part of April's Distracted Driving Awareness Month campaign, the Pasadena Police Department will be actively ticketing those texting or operating hand-held cell phones on Monday, April. Police say drivers who break the law will be cited with no warnings.

"We all know that talking on our cell phones while driving is distracting, but that doesn't stop some people from continuing to do it," said Pasadena Police Department's Chief, Phillip Sanchez "This effort is intended to educate our community about the dangers of cell phone use while driving. We hope that once people see the statistics and realize the danger involved, they will change their driving habits to help protect themselves, their families, and others on the road."

He further explained, drivers who use hand-held devices are four times as likely to get into crashes serious enough to injure themselves. Younger, inexperienced drivers under 20 years old have the highest proportion of distractionrelated fatal crashes. In addition, studies show that texting while driving can delay a driver's reaction time just as severely as having a blood alcohol content of a legally drunk driver.

To avoid a distracted driving ticket or crash, the Pasadena Police Department offers drivers the following tips:

• Turn off your phone and/ or put it out of reach while driving

• Include in your outgoing message that you can't answer while you are driving

• Don't call or text anyone at a time when you think they may be driving

According to police the current minimum ticket cost is $159, with subsequent tickets costing at least $279. Last April, over 57,000 tickets were written statewide for texting and hand-held cell use. There were nearly 450,000 convictions in 2012. Whether it's a ticket or a crash, as the campaign theme states, "It's Not Worth It!"

Funding for this program was provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety, through the National Traffic Highway Administration.

THE BOOK OF ELI By Christopher Nyerges

[Nyerges is the author of "How to Survive Anywhere," and "Enter the Forest." Information about his books and classes is available from Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041, or from www.ChristopherNyerges.com.] "The Book of Eli" was one of my favorite "end of the world as we know it" movies. It didn't hurt to have Denzel Washington as the star, a role which he played excellently. The movie is set in the future, and we see a treeless, pock-marked landscape without the millions of people who are present today. The world is sparsely populated, most people apparently killed off by some event, probably nuclear.

Denzel possesses a Bible, and his self-appointed task is to get his book to a safe place somewhere on the west coast.

In this version of the future, people have learned to survive by trading - money as we know it today has no value. There is no longer any formal "law enforcement," just various random thugs, and thugs who work for a big thug. There is no infrastructure, no fire department, no grocery stores, no electricity. We see no farms where either plants or animals are raised. In fact, we hardly see any plants or trees at all – maybe the soil is spoiled from the results of some future warfare.

And we get hints that some have reverted to cannibalism. Violence and depravity are the norm. A strong thug is the leader of what may one day become a town. This thug wants to find a Bible so that he may use it to exert power over other people. When he learns that Denzel might have a Bible, the basic plot and drama of the movie become clear.

In some ways, this movie shows a harsh view of the future, presented in such a way that you believe it could be possible.

The setting is not so far-fetched and the story of Denzel and what he does makes this somewhat of a secular Savior story, including the notion that he may return again, in some form.

The harshness of the world made me realize that I'd never want to live in such a bleak world. Thus, watching this movie made me want to fight even harder to protect all that I believe is good and right

And besides the entertainment value, and besides the "big picture" message, there were some excellent teaching moments where each of us could learn a few things.

For example, everyone traded. In this harsh world, piece of paper had no meaning, and certainly no value. If you wanted or needed something, you had to barter with material goods or services that the other person needed or wanted. Very basic, to the point. And how many of us realize that general commerce in today's society cannot continue without the electricity that powers our machines? And what about the electronic transfers of "money" from place to place, and our reliance on the credit card? Most of our modern societies are constantly in a state of near-emergency, but we barely realize it. Learning to barter is a step in the right direction.

There was another scene in the movie where a young woman was asking Denzel what it was like before "the event." Denzel thoughtfully responded that the people back then - us, today - had far more than they needed. Indeed! So many of us lust after more and more physical stuff to fill our lives, and it never seems to bring happiness. We then toss the objects into the landfills as we seek other material objects to give us happiness and give our lives meaning. How many Americans are aware of he fact that even the very poorest amongst us live lives that are far better than millions of people in third world conditions?

Yes, "Book of Eli" is an excellent movie on many levels. You can rent or buy the DVD and enjoy it with your family, followed by a lively discussion of what it all means.

The League of Women Voters Pasadena Area is presenting a free public forum May 2 on the controversial topic of charter schools. It will be from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., at the Women's City Club, 160 N. Oakland Ave., Pasadena.

Titled "What We Can Learn from Charter Schools," the forum will address issues surrounding the charter school movement, which began 20 years ago and is a growing sector of public education. California alone has about 1,000 charter schools serving 360,000 children. Pasadena has six with approximately 1,400 K-12 students.

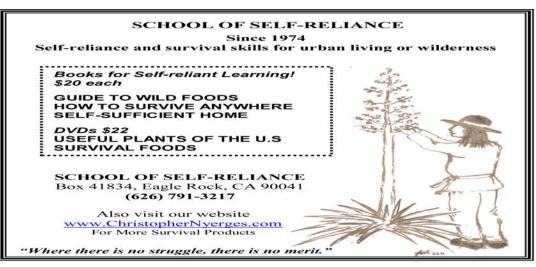

Critics claim charters siphon funds from regular public schools because they are publicly funded but operate independently of local school districts. On the other hand, advocates contend that, freed from local restrictions, charter schools can experiment and innovate to develop successful education models for all public schools.

The forum will address these issues from different perspectives and answer commonly asked questions. One is whether charter schools have met the goal of improving student performance and led to better educational practices for all children in public school. Another is whether gains for charters are losses for traditional public schools. Do charters provide better educational opportunities with comparable amounts of money? What about the question of equity?

Erick Premack, founder and director of the Charter Schools Development Center in Sacramento, will lead off the program with a short history of the charter school movement. A panel discussion

Panelists include Lauren O'Neill, the head of Odyssey Charter School in Pasadena; David Tokofsky, a former school board member of the Los Angeles Unified School District, which houses more charter schools than any other in California; and Judy Higelin, a Los Angeles County Office of Education supervisor of charter schools. Premack will also be a part of the panel. A lively question and answer period will follow.

Lunch is available for $20, including tax, tip and free parking. The program is free. For information and lunch reservations, call 626-798-0965.

A GHOSTLY GREEN BUBBLE IN SPACE

This intriguing new picture from ESO's Very Large Telescope shows the glowing green planetary nebula IC 1295 surrounding a dim and dying star located about 3,300 light-years away in the constellation of Scutum (the Shield). This is the most detailed picture of this object

Stars the size of the Sun end their lives as tiny, faint, and extremely dense white dwarf stars. But as these stars make the final transition into retirement their atmospheres are blown away into space. For a few tens of thousands of years they are surrounded by the spectacular and colorful glowing clouds of ionized gas known as planetary nebulae.

This new image from the VLT shows the planetary nebula IC 1295, which lies in the constellation of Scutum (The Shield). It has the unusual feature of being surrounded by multiple shells that make it resemble a micro-organism seen under a microscope, with many layers corresponding to the membranes of a cell.

These bubbles are made of gas that used to be the star's atmosphere. This gas has been expelled by unstable fusion reactions in the star's core that generated sudden releases of energy, like huge thermonuclear belches. The gas is bathed in strong ultraviolet radiation from the aging star, which makes the gas glow. Different chemical elements glow with different colors and the ghostly green shade that is prominent in IC 1295 comes from ionized oxygen.

At the center of the image, you can see the burnt-out remnant of the star's core as a bright blue-white spot at the heart of the nebula. The central star will become a very faint "white dwarf" and slowly cool down over many billions of years.

Stars with masses like the Sun, and up to eight times that of the Sun, will form planetary nebulae as they enter the final phase of their existence. The Sun is 4.6 billion years old and it will likely live taken through three different filters that passed blue light (colored another four billion years.

Despite the name, planetary nebulae have nothing to do with planets. This descriptive term was applied to some early discoveries because of the visual similarity of these unusual objects to the outer planets Uranus and Neptune, when viewed through early telescopes, and it has been catchy enough to survive. But even early observers such as William Herschel, who discovered not only Uranus but also many planetary nebulae, knew that these nebulae weren't actually planets orbiting the Sun, as they did not move relative to the surrounding stars.

Sierra Madre Arcadia-Altadena-

A GOOD DAY IN ARCADIA By Joan Schmidt

This past Tuesday was an exciting day in Arcadia as two special events occurred. The first was the dedication of the larger than life bronze statue of Elias "Lucky Baldwin" at the Monsignor Gerald M. O'Keefe Rose Garden at the corner of Huntington Drive/Campus Rd/Holly Avenue, Arcadia. The nine-foot-high statue is titled "A Dawn in the West" and its location is ideal, as Baldwin overlooks the developed City and behind him are the mountains.

The artist is Alfred Paredes who graduated from the Laguna College of Art and Design in 1998. His dedication to revealing the nature of his subjects has won him several sculpture awards including the 2010 Roger T. Williams prize by the National Sculpture Society. During the program, I had the pleasure of standing next to Alfred's mother and she just beamed with pride throughout the festivities.

Mayor Harbicht began by calling Baldwin, "truly a visionary who recognized potential in this area...a true California pioneer."

Mayor Harbicht also spoke of the great generosity of Baldwin's two great, great granddaughters, Heather Gibson and Margaux Gibson-Viera, who made the gift of the statue to the city. The City obtained funding for the pedestal and dedication plaque. The next speaker was City Clerk Gene Glasco, also a member of the Historical Society, who gave more background about Baldwin's life. The last speaker was the artist, Alfred Paredes who thanked Margaux Gibson-Viera and Heather Gibson for the statue, and the City of Arcadia for the opportunity to be part of the tribute to its founder. The time for unveiling came and as it was done, all spectators were in awe of the majestic statue. A reception followed in the area outside the Chamber of Commerce.

 $Barely two \,hours \,later, it \,was \,time \,for \,a\,reception \,and \,Reorganization$ of the Arcadia City Council. At the City Council meeting, the first item of business was presentations to outgoing Mayor Bob Harbicht. They included Tommy Tseng for Congresswoman Judy Chu, Iso Nakasato for Senator Ed Hernandez, Olivia Lee for Assembly

Member Ed Chau, Brian Mejia for Supervisor Mike Antonovich, Joann Steinmeier and Dr. Joel Shawn for the Arcadia Unified School District, Arlynn Robinson for the Arcadia Chamber of Commerce, Eric Barter for the Arcadia Rotary Club, Joanna Liang for the Arcadia Chinese Association, and Mayor Pro tem Mickey Segal on behalf of the City of Arcadia. The accolades were many and all included mention of Harbicht's nineteen years of service to the City of Arcadia, his involvement and support of Scouts and the Rotary Club.

After the accolades, outgoing Mayor Harbicht spoke of his goal to keep the city as great as it was when he first took office, and he has accomplished that feat. As Mayor, he has worked with the New City Manager Dominic Lazzaretto and said what a great job he has done. Harbicht also thanked the fellow Council Members, the great City Staff, Mary, Lisa, Connie and Kristen, and of course his wife Patsy.

Next it was time for the City Clerk, Gene Glasco to call for election of the Mayor and the unanimous choice was Mickey Segal. Mayor Segal then called for the election of Mayor Pro Tem and John Wuo was chosen.

The newly-chosen Mayor and Council then spoke; each had praise for Harbicht, spoke of their great City and their pleasure working on the Council. They also thanked their wives and family for their understanding when commitments take them from home.

After the comments from the City Council, it was time for "public comments". All three speakers spoke of the proposed work on the Chandelier Room at Santa Anita Park. There was great concern about renovation of the room and removal of the chandeliers and gold palms... 'they should be left according to historical standards."

The Consent Calendar was approved; Council adjourned, and thus ended a great day for Arcadia.

The victim ran away and contacted police. Officers conducted an area check for the suspect, but were unable to locate him. The suspect is described as an Asian male in his seventies, approximately 5'4" tall, 140 lbs., wearing a white t-shirt, dark colored jacket and pants, grey and white shoes, and a blue "Harrah's Rincon" hat.

At about 1:43 p.m., an officer responded to CVS, 188 Las Tunas Drive, to conduct follow-up on a previous case. Upon arrival, a sales associate informed the officer that a juvenile was shoplifting inside the store. The officer made contact with the suspect who had concealed a pack of beer behind his skateboard. Video surveillance revealed the suspect had also stolen beer from the store earlier in the day. The 16-year-old Hispanic male was arrested and transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking.

Monday, April 8:

At approximately 10:25 a.m., an officer was dispatched to the 2000 block of Canyon Road in regards to a bear in the area. The bear walked through several yards and rummaged through residents' trash cans. In attempt to only scare the bear away and back into the wilderness, the officer shot the bear with a bean bag after it did not respond to the sound of an air horn. The maneuver sent the bear running back into the mountains and no one was harmed.

4. Shortly after 6:00 p.m., an officer responded to the parking lot of 99 Ranch Market, 1300 South Golden West Avenue, in reference to a robbery report. As the victim walked back to her vehicle, an unknown female suspect approached her from behind and grabbed her wallet out of her hand. The victim attempted to chase the suspect; however, she fell to the ground and the suspect fled in an awaiting vehicle. The suspect is described as Hispanic, approximately 30-years-old, 5'4" tall, 160 lbs., wearing dark colored clothing. The driver of the unidentified suspect vehicle is described as a Hispanic male, approximately 30-years-old, with no facial hair.

Around 6:08 p.m., an officer conducted a traffic stop on a vehicle for making an illegal left turn out of the Santa Anita Inn parking lot, 130 West Huntington Drive. An investigation revealed the 35-year-old White male driver had three outstanding warrants and a suspended license; and the 23-year-old Hispanic female passenger was under the influence of a controlled substance. The suspects were also in possession of multiple fraudulent credit cards and a counterfeit driver's license. They were arrested and transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking.

At roughly 6:14 p.m., officers responded to Camino Grove Elementary, 700 Camino Grove Avenue, in regards to three juveniles trespassing on the roof of the location. An investigation revealed one of the juveniles was in possession of an aerosol paint can and had spray-painted graffiti throughout the campus. The 13-year-old Hispanic male was arrested, transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking, and later released to his parent.

Wednesday, April 10:

At about 2:36 a.m., an officer conducted a traffic stop on a vehicle for an unreadable license plate in the area of Santa Anita Avenue and Live Oak Avenue. A vehicle search revealed the 31-yearold Hispanic male driver was in possession of a small bat that had been altered into a billy club type weapon. He was arrested and transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking.

Shortly before 8:20 p.m., an officer was dispatched to an injury rear-end traffic collision on northbound Sunset Boulevard, at Portola Drive. The 29-year-old Hispanic male suspect explained the vehicle in front of him stopped suddenly and he was unable to stop in time. The driver he hit was transported to Arcadia Methodist Hospital for head and neck pain. An investigation revealed the suspect was under the influence with a blood alcohol content greater than 0.08%. He was arrested and transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking.

Thursday, April 11:

At approximately 3:21 a.m., an officer was dispatched to the 1500 block of South Third Avenue in regards to a residential burglary report. Unknown suspect(s) forced entry through a window, ransacked the location, and fled out the front door with a laptop and cash. The total loss was unknown at the time of the report and no evidence was located.

Around 7:55 p.m., an officer was dispatched to an apartment building in the 900 block of Arcadia Avenue in reference to a missing juvenile. Patrol units and airship support searched for the 4-year-old girl who had left her residence through an unlocked screen door. Shortly after, a good samaritan located the juvenile sitting alone on the northwest corner of Golden West Avenue and Duarte Road. An investigation revealed the juvenile became angry with her mother and wandered away in an attempt to visit a nearby park. Both subjects were counseled and no signs of foul play were observed.

Saturday, April 13:

At approximately 6:35 p.m., officers responded to Nordstrom at the Santa Anita Mall, 400 South Baldwin Avenue, in reference to a burglary investigation. Video surveillance revealed three incidents wherein a Hispanic female suspect removed security sensors from several Michael Kors watches, concealed them inside her purse, and exited the store without making payment. SANTA ANITA BRIDGE GROUNDBREAKING

From Arcadia's Best

" B r a c e yourselves!" That was the warning Habib Balian, CEO of the Metro Gold Line Foothill Extension Construction Authority at a groundbreakceremony Friday mornwith the ing City of Arcadia for the third of four bridges being built in Arcadia, this one over Santa Anita Avenue.

The rise in the street to meet the railroad tracks near Fasching's Car Wash and Goldstein's Bagel Bakery will be removed to allow for the bridge, meaning the road will need to be lowered six feet, which is a significant

Construction of the $12.5 million structure will begin around May 1, or as soon as work is complete on the new replacement bridge a few yards away over Colorado Blvd near Newcastle Park.

Work on the Santa Anita bridge will result in the closing of one lane in each direction for four months and some full closures overnight, as well as three additional months of construction during which both lanes in each direction will be open but still with some traffic impacts, Balian cautioned.

La Porte Street off Santa Anita Ave to the east and near the tracks will be closed, according to Arcadia police.

The first Gold Line extension bridge over the 210 freeway was completed in December. The fourth two-track bridge to begin construction this fall will replace the one-track structure over Huntington Drive at Second Avenue. Meanwhile, preliminary work has already begun on the Arcadia train station and two-level parking garage on the northwest corner of the intersection at First Avenue and Santa Clara Street.

Mayor Bob Harbicht noted with pride that Arcadia is the only city building a bridge to avoid a street crossing along the new 11.5 mile extension of the track to Azusa, which is to be ready by late 2015 and probably opened in early 2016. Streetlevel crossings in Pasadena and other cities result in traffic being stopped for several minutes at a time every five minutes or so during rush hour and peak periods.

Harbicht and City Councilman Gary Kovacic said the residents of Arcadia stepped up in 2006 to overwhelmingly approve an $8 million bond issue to supplement a commitment of $5 mil. in city funds to build the $13 mil. bridge. Nearly 72% of voters approved the Measure A ballot measure in the pre-recession days.

Seven years later, rather than an increase in the cost of the project, which is typical when so many years pass, the bridge is now expected to cost about $12.5 mil.

Police say that detours and closures will be posted on Santa Anita Ave during construction. Local businesses will remain open and accessible. The bridge project is projected in phases with this first phase of construction being May-August 2013. The Gold Line intends to open all lanes and stop most construction during the Breeders' Cup races Nov. 1-2, and hopefully for the entire Autumn race meet at nearby Santa Anita Park beginning in late September through early November.

Police recommend that if you commute via Santa Anita Ave that you please consider using an alternate north-south roadway during construction to avoid delays and detours.

DUARTE STUDENTS ATTEND ANNUAL YOUTH LEADERSHIP ACADEMY IN RICHMOND VIRGINIA

By Joan Schmidt

While my husband and I were back East on a eleven day trip through Philly, New Jersey, New Connecticut Massachusetts, four young men from Duarte were in Virginia on their own special trip. Deputy Art Valenzuela, briefed me on their exciting learning experience. Temple Station Youth Athletic League took four local Duarte youth to the National Police Activities League annual Youth Leadership Academy held this year in Richmond, Virginia.

The group flew to Richmond arriving Thursday morning and immediately drove to Washington D.C. where they visited the White House, U.S. Capitol, Lincoln and Washington Memorials. On Friday morning, they drove to Mt. Vernon to see the home of the Father of our country, Commander-in-Chief during the American Revolution and first President, George Washington. On Friday evening and Saturday the young men attended the Youth Leadership Academy where they had the unique opportunity to network with youth across the nation gaining hands-on experience in leadership and character development. Sunday was the closing ceremony and then the group returned home.

The goal of this program is to motivate youth by teaching them leadership skills that they can bring back to their communities to effect positive change.

This experience was free to all the youth because of the generosity of the National Police Activities League and the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department Youth Activities League. (sheriffsyouthfoundation.org)

DUARTE TO HOLD PUBLIC MEETING APRIL 22 ON PROPOSED PLANS FOR TRANSIT VILLAGE AROUND FUTURE GOLD LINE STATION

DUARTE, CA - A public meeting has been set for Monday, April 22 to discuss and begin the public review process on proposed plans for the City of Duarte's Gold Line Station Specific Plan. The meeting will be held from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. at the Duarte Community Center, 1600 Huntington Dr.

For Duarte, as in other cities along the light rail line, the coming METRO Gold Line train station presents a potential opportunity to transform the area immediately adjacent to the station into a new economic stimulus for the City. It also provides owners of properties in the Specific Plan area the potential to increase the value of their property through conversion to the new "Transit Village" land uses proposed. The City's environmental consultants will evaluate one potential implementation under the Specific Plan's draft Master Land Use Plan for up to 475 residences, 250 hotel rooms, 400,000 square feet of office space and 12,000 square feet of retail space.

The review process for the Duarte Station Specific Plan will guide future development. This first step in the process, formally referred to as a Scoping Meeting, is to give all interested parties an opportunity to raise questions and express concerns about the Specific Plan at the beginning of the environmental review process so that the Environmental Impact Report (EIR) can address those issues.

The area included in the Specific Plan is 19.08 acres in size and is currently the location of three industrial manufacturing buildings. A residential neighborhood is to the west, a business park to the east, the 210 Freeway and Duarte High School to the north, and the METRO rail line, City of Hope and an Army Corps of Engineers basin to the south.

The City invites comments at the meeting or in correspondence on any of the areas where possible environmental impacts may occur. The Initial Study identified the following environmental areas where significant impacts may occur: aesthetics, air quality, greenhouse gas emissions, hazards and hazardous materials, hydrology and water quality, land use and planning, noise, population and housing, public service and utilities, transportation and traffic. The initial study also determined that there would be no impact or a less than significant impact on agriculture and forestry resources, geology and soils, biological resources, mineral resources and cultural resources.

Next steps in the review process will be the preparation and release of a draft EIR followed by a 45-day comment period when residents and other interested parties can study the document and submit their comments. A public notice will be provided to area property owners when the draft EIR comment period opens. At the end of the comment period, the Duarte Planning Commission will hold a public hearing where members of the public can speak about the proposal.

More information is available on the City's website: www.accessduarte.com. Interested parties can sign up for email updates on the process. For questions, contact Duarte Senior Planner, Jason Golding at (626) 357-7931 or email: goldingj@accessduarte.com.

The costs associated with the preparation of the Duarte Station Specific Plan and EIR are being funded primarily through a grant from METRO, the Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show SCARY MOVIE 5

After seeing the other movies in the 'Scary Movie' franchise, I was excited there was another one coming out. Whether you see the horror movies they spoof or not, you're guaranteed to be laughing like crazy.

Taking most of its story elements from 'Paranormal Activity', 'Evil Dead', 'Black Swan', 'Mama', and 'Rise of the Planet of the Apes, the movie focuses around the couple Dan (Simon Rex) and Jody (Ashley Tisdale). After taking in three children from Dan's dead brother, mysterious, and hilarious, events begin to occur, seeming to circle around the family.

Being a horror movie fan myself, I appreciated how intact some of the plots were. There are plenty of funny scenes that will keep you entertained for the whole hour and a half. However, it is not one of the best movies ever and would only recommend it to someone who had some time to kill on the weekend or needed a movie to see with a friend.

TIPPING ANOTHER VIEW

My dearly departed pappy Elmer Dills would tell me, don't argue sex, politics and or religion, I must add tipping to the list. I have used this topic many times on my radio show, Dining with Dills on KABC Radio to get the phones buzzing. Just got back from Santa Barbara and had a very interesting situation on the subject.

The owner of the restaurant we were at was kind enough to act as our server as his bar was very busy. The bottle of wine we ordered was $50. Now, my question is do you tip the owner of the restaurant? In this case we did because it was my feeling he was going to pass it along to the help.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

(A couple of notes from my dad's tipping guide. Let's call them my father's rule of thumb was 10% for a buffet and couple of extra dollars to the busboy and never tip the full amount on an expensive bottle of wine, he thought was it takes up the same amount of energy to open a $25 bottle of wine that of a $200 bottle of wine. Makes sense to me.)

"Dining with Dills" airs SUNDAY at 5PM

this week, on KABC 790AM Talk Radio

What made me scratch my head is a recent posting by what seems to be a very capable blogger - that is someone that posts on the Internet. This was a list of nine recommendations to us uninformed diners on how to tip in the year 2013. Note: It might be a little biased coming from a person that works

Going through the list I agreed with the concept, $1 per drink at the bar as the tip, if you are using a coupon or getting part or whole of your meal comped, you should tip on what the amount should be, agree and agreed, but here is where the scratching took place.

"Times have changed, (ok I am with you), and a 15 % tip is now should be considered a bad tip,
I am reading this as if you received bad service please tip 15 % or that your server gave great service and 15% is an insult.

The reasoning continues to say that with the cost of living going up, that to be a server that 15% doesn't cut it anymore. Here is my argument against that thought process. As a professional person such as a waiter, indeed you will not get a raise from the owner of the restaurant, it is set in stone and is a timeless practice, the job pays minimum wage plus tips. Not the end of story though, many restaurants will pay $2 more an hour to the "training" waiter or the headwaiter. As your experience grows and you become better, it would make sense that your tips as a percentage would grow accordingly.

Tips... To insure proper service. Here is my rundown and no it hasn't changed in twenty years of reviewing restaurants. Anyone in any country that provides a service should be rewarded.

10% buffet plus $2 directly to busboy that brought you water and had to clean up after the kids through Jell-O on the ground.

$1 for each drink at the bar

$2 for a to go order, as long as they got it right

12% fair service, means they brought you the food and came back with your check

15% Good service brought you your food and drinks and refilled drinks and asked how was it

18% Very Good service all of the above plus asked you if your meal was prepared to your liking

20-25% All of the above, brought items in proper order, waited for you to ask for check, asked if there is a validation needed and please ask for me next time.

One more note... I subtract 5% when the server blames the kitchen for a mistake, got it !!

This a fun conversation please listen in KABC Talk Radio 790 AM on Sundays at 5 PM

INGREDIENTS

Marie Calendar Deep Dish Pie Shell

6 jalapenos, roasted and seeded (do not remove blistered skin) 1 1/2 cups tightly packed cilantro leaves

1 clove garlic, chopped 3 tablespoons pine nuts

Extra-virgin olive oil 1/4 cup grated Parmigiano-Reggiano Salt and freshly ground black pepper

1 tablespoon canola oil

1/2 pound Mexican chorizo, casings removed 1 1/2 cups grated fontina cheese

1/4 cup finely grated Cotija cheese 2 to 3 green onions, (dark and pale green part) thinly sliced

2 teaspoons chopped fresh thyme leaves

10 large eggs

1 3/4 cups milk

1 3/4 cups heavy cream 4 ounces soft goat cheese, frozen for 10 minutes the top.

and cut into 1/2-inch pieces

DIRECTIONS

Blend the jalapenos, cilantro, garlic, pine nuts and oil to a pesto like consistency. Add the cheese and salt and pepper, to taste, and pulse a few times to distribute the cheese.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F.

Heat the oil in a large saute pan over high heat until it begins to shimmer. Add the chorizo and cook until golden brown. Remove with a slotted spoon to a plate lined with paper towels. Let cool

Scatter the fontina, Cotija, green onions, chorizo and thyme over the pie shell. Whisk the eggs in a large bowl. Add the milk and cream and whisk until smooth. Pour into the shell and evenly distribute the goat cheese over the top. Bake until the crust is deep golden brown and the center is almost set (still slightly jiggles) but the sides are set, about 40 to 50 minutes. Let sit at room temperature for at least 20 minutes before serving. Cut into wedges and drizzle jalapeno pesto over

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

EUROPE IS LOOKING GOOD, CRUELTY FREE! IF THEY CAN DO IT, WHY CAN'T WE?

March 11, 2013 marked the end of a long drawnout and grueling effort on the part of celebrities, corporate and political leaders and supporting citizens in the European Union who refused to give up on doing away with marketing, sales or import of cosmetic products tested on animals. After 2 decades of disappointing delays and having their hands tied up in red tape, avid animal advocates in the EU who understand that lab testing on animals is cruel and unusual, finally celebrated the victory of a full ban. Good to know that there are enough humane humans in those 27 countries who feel strongly enough about the issue to have done what they had to do in order to nip it in the bud, and my thought is, "If Europe can be cruelty free, then why can't we?"

Why manufacturers of cosmetics or any other product for that matter, continue to use animals for lab testing is beyond me. There are equally reliable and less expensive alternative methods available for lab testing these days, and the more forward-thinking companies are getting on board. Pharmagene Laboratories, based in Royston England pioneered the idea of using only human tissue and sophisticated technology in the process of testing and developing their drugs. The scientists at Pharmagene found that the discovery process is way more efficient using tissue from humans versus animals. Even Pharmagene's co-founder, Gordon Baxter says, "If you have information on human genes, what's the point of going back to animals?" (Source: Pioneers Cut Out Animal Experiments, Andy Coghlan - New Scientist August 1996). In my opinion, the brutal use of live animals for lab testing any product is crude and archaic, and should be banned fully in every country throughout the globe.

Humane Society International, along with several other animal rights organizations, campaigned feverishly with various concerned individuals to see the EU ban come into force in spite of strong opposition imposed by 'higher-uppers' in the cosmetic industry. The question (at least for me) is, why would those cosmetic corporatists oppose a plan that could save them money and serve them more efficiently, while at the same time promote a cultural philosophy of humane animal treatment? The only answer I could come up with, after reading as many news articles and publications as I could find on the subject, is that the top dogs in the cosmetic industry were grossly misguided by a toxic blend of ignorance and greed.

A little knowledge and understanding can go a long way for those who are humble enough to be taught, but one must take the time to listen and learn. Corporate leaders come in all shapes and sizes, I know, but a truly successful leader is willing to learn from his own mistakes and allow himself to be led by others who might know better! Maybe it all boils down to the proverbial concept that "Pride goeth before the fall", and if so then maybe it's time for more industry leaders to let go of their pride and start looking inside. All I know is that, if I were in the position of leadership where animals were being treated inhumanely, I would not be able to sleep at night or look myself in the mirror in the morning.

Perhaps now that the European Union has set an ethical precedence by converting to cruelty-free testing of cosmetics in 27 countries, the corporate leaders in the USA who are in a similar situation will be prompted to educate themselves on the subject and realize there are far better alternatives to lab testing than the cruel 'dark-ages' practice of using animals. One can only hope!

I am thankful to the celebrities who dedicated so much of their time to take part in the "Be Cruelty-Free" campaign that led to the banning of animal lab testing in the European cosmetic industry. Chrissie Hynde, Paul McCartney, Danielle Alonso, Colbie Caillat, Ke$ha, Judy Dench, Ricky Gervais, Francia Raisa, Torrey DeVitto, Fiona Gubelman and Joanna Krupa are among the celebrities who were willing to get involved with advocating a more humane global society on behalf of the animals. My heart goes out to all of them. We Americans should be humbled by the European Union's tenacity in standing up for what is right, and we should be inspired to work equally hard at becoming a cruelty-free nation, not only in the cosmetic industry but every industry in the US. We have a lot of work to do, but the EU has proven that when people come together they can accomplish great things!

For more information about the worldwide "Be Cruelty-Free" campaign and how you can get involved, visit this Humane Society International website page: http://www.hsi.org/issues/becrueltyfree/be_cruelty_free.html

RETIREMENT PLANNING RESOURCES FOR WOMEN

Dear Savvy Senior:

What retirement planning resources can you recommend to women? I'm 58 years old, divorced and living on a tight budget and need all the help I can get. Financially Challenged

Dear Challenged:

When it comes to planning for retirement, most Americans could stand to brush up on their financial knowledge a bit, but it's especially important for unmarried women. Here's what you should know.

Retirement Struggles

It's an unfortunate reality that most unmarried women - whether they're divorced, widowed or never married – face much greater financial challenges than men in retirement.

Why? Because women tend to make less money (about 78 cents for every dollar a man makes) and have shorter working careers (due to raising children and/or caring for aging parents) than men. And less money earned usually translates into less money saved and a lower Social Security benefit when

In addition, women also live an average of five years longer than men which requires their retirement income to stretch farther. And, according to studies, women tend to be less knowledgeable and more intimidated about financial issues than men, which means they don't always handle their money as well as they should.

Because of these issues, it's very important that women educate themselves on financial matters. Listed below are some good resources that can help.

Financial Education

A good place to start is with the Women's Institute for a Secure Retirement, a nonprofit organization dedicated to financial education for women. At wiserwomen.org you can read and download for free a wide variety of easy-to-understand publications on retirement planning, money management, saving and investing, as well as Social Security, health care, annuities and more. If you don't have a computer or Internet access you can call 202-393-5452 and order hard copies of their publications and have them mailed to you for a few dollars.

Another resource you should tap into is mymoney.gov, a U.S. government website dedicated to financial literacy and education that provides free information, resources, publications, financial calculators, checklists, budgeting worksheets and more, to help you make informed decisions. You can also call 888-696-6639 and order a free "My Money" tool kit that includes a variety of publications on saving, investing and getting the most for your money.

The Employee Benefits Security Administration, part of the U.S. Department of Labor is another agency that offers a variety of publications including the 62-page booklet "Taking the Mystery Out of Retirement Planning," and "Women and Retirement Savings" brochure. You can see them online at www.dol.gov/ebsa/publications, or call 866-444-3272 and have them mailed to you for free.

Also visit choosetosave.org, a website developed by the Employee Benefit Research Institute that offers the Ballpark Estimate retirement planning worksheet, more than 100 online calculators, brochures, savings tips and links to resources to help you manage your finances.

Social Security Help

You also need to get up to speed on Social Security. To help with this, the Social Security Administration has an online resource specifically designed for women that covers how marriage, divorce, widowhood, work, caregiving and other life or career events can affect your benefits. It also offers information on SSI, Medicare benefits and provides calculators to help you figure out your future earnings at different retirement ages. You can access this information at ssa.gov/women, or call 800-772-1213 and order their free pamphlet entitled "What Every Woman Should Know."

Financial Advice If you need some hands-on help, consider getting a financial assessment or tune-up with a fee-only financial advisor. Costs for these services will vary from around $150 to $300 per hour, but it can be very beneficial to help you set-up a retirement plan you can follow. See napfa.org or garrettplanningnetwork.com to locate an advisor in your area.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior. org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

KATIE TseThis and That YOU'RE THE ONLY ONE!...

Sometimes it's nice to be "the only one." The only one who earned a perfect A on a test. The only one who swam faster than the other 30 guys. The only one who stole someone's heart. Yes, singling someone out can be flattering or romantic. But, cousin, Sandy.

In junior high, Sandy "won" a live turkey at a school dance. Later, it was learned that the whole turkey contest was rigged as a prank on Sandy's sister, who was a new teacher at her school. Apart from that, Sandy has never been "lucky." But she's been "the only one" so many times.

When my Aunt Linda went to be with the Lord, Sandy buried her at a local cemetery. Of course, the passing of a beloved one is hardly the time you want to be bothered with the clerical errors of others. It started out as a simple mistake. "We never received your check," one of the cemetery's staff members told Sandy. Well, she told her that she'd sent it in already and gave her the check number. Sandy then had the bank cancel that check because the cemetery staff had apparently lost it. So, she sent another check. This one must've been sucked into the black hole of missing checks as well, because the same staff member felt compelled to PERSONALLY visit Sandy to collect the money --implying that she was trying to skirt the payment!

Insulted, but not deterred, Sandy wrote out yet another check, which miraculously cleared and was quickly processed. The situation would have been annoying enough if it had ended there --but oh no... Then the cemetery staff found the previous two checks. "Oops!" they apologized. "You're the only one this has ever happened to!"

Sandy's dealings with them seemed to have reached an irritating climax, but there's more. A few days after the burial, Sandy visited her Aunt Linda's grave. Surprise is a mild word for her reaction when she saw that in place of her mother's headstone was that of an Armenian man who had passed a week earlier than my aunt! The cemetery gave their signature response, "So sorry! You're the only one who's had this happen!" No, somewhere there's an Armenian family wondering where their patriarch's headstone is.

Sandy's next big case of being the only one picked by the fickle finger of fate occurred when she was undergoing surgery to remove a small cancerous tumor in her breast. Every day I thank God that He delivered her from this nightmare. The whole story is too long for this article. Suffice it to say that Sandy received treatment worthy of a malpractice lawsuit at the incompetent hands of the surgeon recommended to her. A "routine" operation turned into a critical condition in which Sandy could have bled to death due to a vein severed by the hospital's "top" breast surgeon. In defense, the oncologist tried to placate Sandy by telling her "Your veins are abnormal. That's why (doctor who shall remain nameless) severed that vein. We've never seen a vascular system like yours!" Please! What's Judge Judy's line? "Don't pee on my shoe and tell me it's raining." Even if Sandy had an aberrant vein or too, any experienced surgeon should have been skilled enough to deal with it!

Her latest brush with being "the only one" occurred during her brief (three day) membership at Weight Watchers. I don't know what compelled her to join again. She's been a WW member before. But in recent years she's just followed a basic plan of eating healthier and exercising consistently. (Such ideals are more attainable when you're retired, which Sandy is.)

Nevertheless, she paid her monthly fee online, which entitles her to weekly meetings. She went to one of these meetings, in which the leader talked about the virtues of all their new, techie gadgets such as codes you can scan with your phone, and an electronic points calculator. Sandy is one of many people in her generation who haven't embraced this new, touch screen era of high tech equipment. When she tried out the points calculator, it didn't work, even for her husband (who is tech savvy).

So Sandy went back to her local WW site and asked for a refund for the useless points calculator. The woman attending her told her how odd that was, since she was "the only one who's had problems with it!" In true poetic justice, the woman took another points calculator off the shelf and tried to make it work. Nothing happened. She took a second one and fiddled with it for a while. Still, it remained lifeless. "This is so funny!" she exclaimed. "You're the only person who's had this happen three times!"

There are many steps to take to make arthritis tolerable and to help the sufferer and their families.1) The first step of course, is to confer with your doctor and set up a specific treatment plan. That plan should include low-impact exercise into your routine every day as they can give you more freedom of movement. HEALTHY LIFESTYLES

HOW CAN YOGA HELD

YOU ARE WHERE YOU ARE

A very cool thing about yoga is that you get to start where you are. You don't have to be flexible, you don't have to be skinny, you don't have to have the perfect yoga clothes, you don't even have to have your own mat. You do however, have to go to the class to get the benefits.

All those super crazy looking yoga poses are really just party tricks. It's the process of learning how to do them that is the real yoga. We start at the beginning, wherever that is for each of us and see where we are tight, we see where we are weak. We see what our balance is like. We get to know how we breathe, how we think and how we feel. All that is what we call 'awareness'. We get to take a real look at our strengths and our weaknesses. Then we focus on how to use our strengths to our advantage and how to overcome our obstacles. We do this a little bit at a time. Each time we get on the mat we become a little bit more aware.

As we learn to develop our strengths, we begin to apply them outside of class and really focus on creating the lives we want. We learn to leave our weaknesses in the dust. We feel empowered. It feels good. We get stronger. Our egos can help us out sometimes by pushing us to the edge of our ability. Our egos can hinder us sometimes - we push too hard and get hurt. So we learn to listen to when we need to push and when we need to back off. This is the journey. It seems impossible and it ends up being lovely. So don't let all those experienced yogis intimidate you. They were beginners once too. They fell down too. They are on their own journeys. And they will tell you how sweet the journey really is.

See you in class. Namasté, René

FRIENDFLUENCE: THE SURPRISING WAYS FRIENDS MAKE US WHO WE ARE

With the topic of friends and relationships being the current hot choice for the start of the spring season, why not continue this sunny streak with "Friendfluence". "Friendfluence: The Surprising Ways Friends Make Us Who We Are" is not just an eye-catcher with its colorful leaves and lengthy title, but a wonderfully informative piece that does not require the use of story-telling; rather, "Friendfluence" focuses on many different aspects of why we as individuals not just crave friendship, but how it is considered essential to our well-being as well as the reasons of why we sometimes seem to prefer friendships as the relationships we most enjoy. This is not to say that friendships are the best or most important, but as to why they are beneficial for all individuals.

"Friendfluence" caters to the reasoning of why friendships, ranging from a large group of friends to a fair few, are the ones that can put us at ease, can make us feel welcome a lot more easily, and why sometimes efforts are made to make these friendships last. Carlin Flora clearly points out and explains how friendships are created, shaped, and maintained, and highlights the positives that come with it. Examples include the outside influences, the desire for another individual's philosophy to adapt with our own, and relishing the fact that there are like-minded individuals who do not just have something in common with ourselves, but who actually inspire you to be more open with yourself and with those around you (your families, partners, pets, etc.).

Copyrighted in 2013, and receiving praise from Huffington Post, Book Page, Kirkus Reviews, and Publishers Weekly, "Friendfluence: The Surprising Ways Friends Make Us Who We Are" is both a wonderful selection for your "must-reads" and one that is meant to be shared with others.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: THE PLACE BEYOND THE PINES

Pines." It had all the ingredients to become a classic. This includes starring two of the most talked about actors in the game right now, Ryan Gosling and Bradley Cooper. It's from up and coming director, Derek Cianfrance, who in 2010 wowed critics and audiences alike with his sophomore feature film, "Blue Valentine." However, I wasn't the biggest fan of that movie, but admired the way it was shot and acted. With "The Place Beyond The Pines," Cianfrance takes the ambitious route of focusing on three separate stories that are all linked together over the span of fifteen years. The problem with this is how jarring it becomes when the story would shift directions.

One act dedicated to Gosling's character, Luke Glanton, a motorcycle stunt driver who decides to rob banks as a means to provide for his son, who he just discovers exists. The second act has a focal point on Bradley Cooper's character, Avery Cross, a rookie cop moving up in the ranks in a corrupt department. Lastly, in the least compelling tale the final act is between both main characters' sons fifteen years later. Cianfrance is a wizard behind the camera, as this is a gorgeously shot movie. However, within the two hours and twenty minutes running time, "The Place Beyond The Pines" suffers from episodic storylines (the ones we've all seen before) and barely touches the surface on the multifaceted themes it's hastily trying to

While Gosling's character Luke is hypnotizing in the first story (with many similarities from his character in "Drive"), his storyline isn't as deep as I was hoping for. His estranged ex-lover played by Eva Mendes comes back into his life and Luke finds out he has a son. Before this, all we know about Luke is that he's the leader of a traveling act of acrobatic motorcyclists named "Handsome Luke and The Heartthrobs." When the news of a son is revealed, Luke decides to quit his job and find a way to provide for his son. He teams up with a local mechanic and soon finds himself enthralled with the life of a bank robber. For a brief time, he's able to provide for his son, but things quickly escalate out of control. I can empathize with Gosling's character to support his son, but the whole robbing banks storyline seems outdated and stodgy. I understand there's a deeper meaning behind the surface—a father doing whatever it takes for his family for one. However this compulsion to commit crimes (with no inclination to hurt anyone) gets the best of Luke and ends in a collision course with police officer Avery Cross. By the time we get a better sense of Luke, his story comes to a swift conclusion. It feels more like a high production short film than one-third of an epic feature film.

Bradley Cooper's character Avery Cross is a rookie cop that crosses path with Luke. Without giving any way spoilers, Cross is thrown into the limelight in the media. Cross gets mixed up with some corrupt cops and has decisions to make. He too wants to provide for his family, but ultimately chooses right over wrong despite Grade: 3 out of 5

I really wanted to love what rewards are tied with wrong doings. "The Place Beyond The This sequence is actually quite compelling even if it's something we've all seen before. Cooper's character feels incomplete because what happens later on in the film makes him only concern with himself and not his family. I don't understand why this occurs especially when you think he's a good man and father. It's another dynamic to the family theme that's explored, but with most of the themes they only touch the outer surface and rarely get as deep as you'd hope.

The finale act is geared toward Avery's 17 year-old son, AJ, moving in with him and Jason (Luke's son, who is initially lied to about who his father was). The two boys, unbeknownst about each other's past, form a friendship due to a ridiculous coincidence. While the film has significant circumstances that occur, they rely heavily on coincidences. If you can get past this, The Place Beyond The Pines" has some worth to it. I much rather have seen the first two acts extended and the elimination of the third story. In spite of this, the filmmakers' intentions were to tie the story with the sons because an additional theme to the story is fathers and sons. There's nothing quite as powerful as the relationship a son has with one's own father. However, the kids aren't as compelling as both Gosling and Cooper. Cooper's son AJ feels out of place. You come to realize how could his son turn out the way he is, but I suppose anything can happen during teenage adolescence. Jason, Luke's son, is lost and lonely. It seems utterly coincidental that now in his life he's curious to whom his real dad is. The final twenty minutes tries desperately to connect the layered stories together.

While "The Place Beyond The Pines" is ambitious to a fault, I think there are just too many half-baked ideas strung together to appear as something deeply profound and substantial. It's extremely dense film, but Derek Cianfrance is a filmmaker to watch out for because he knows how to get his actors to deliver strong performances. He's also a terrific director that may benefit more from an outsider's screenplay rather than his own. I don't want to see Cianfrance continuously get high on his own supply because perhaps he may shine the most when bringing another story to life that isn't as close to him but will be once he puts his signature touch on it. In the end, "The Place Beyond The Pines" is a sweeping, cinematic movie going experience with solid acting, beautifully shot sequences and great direction. At the same token it unfortunately falls apart in the end leaving you with a feeling of emptiness rather than fulfillment of any kind.

MULTI LEVEL MARKETING IS NOT A PYRAMID SCHEME

What do Avon, Amway, Herbalife, Mary Kay and Tupperware have in common? Each of these companies is among the most recognizable companies in the multilevel marketing (MLM) industry, and each of them offers a line of products marketed to and purchased by a broad base of consumers. Unfortunately, many alleged business opportunities disguised as MLM's have turned out to be nothing more than elaborate pyramids.

According to the Federal Trade Commission, there are legitimate MLM's. Many of them provide opportunities ideal for individuals seeking to start a business or build an additional source of income. As more individuals are confronted with a barrage of slick sales pitches and fancy websites that tout how easy it is to "sign up and make money," it is important to know the key differences between legitimate MLM's (which are legal) and pyramid schemes (which are illegal) camouflaged as MLM's. In a pyramid, recruitment is king! The primary focus and incentive to earn compensation is directly related to one's success in the repeated recruitment of other people who pay to enroll as a member, distributor, etc. This recruitment may be repeated directly or by encouraging the new recruits to enroll other paying members. The company's products and services are primarily and heavily marketed to the members, with minimal focus, support and/or financial incentive to sell products/ services to a broader audience. At some point in the process when there are no new recruits on the conveyor belt, thus, no more enrollment fees, the pyramid collapses. The newest recruits are left with nothing for their investment. If the act of enrolling new paying recruits is the primary basis for member-recruiters and management to earn compensation, it serves as a red flag for a potential pyramid scheme. Apply this fundamental test to help make the distinction.

In contrast, financial success in a legitimate MLM is directly tied to products and/or services being marketed and sold to a broad market base "outside" of the company's own member-distributor base. Avon and Tupperware are two of the oldest and most well known. In recent decades, companies structured as MLM's have adopted terms like "affiliate marketing" and "home-based business franchising," but the distinction surrounding compensation tied to recruitment versus the sales of

Make no mistake, the MLM industry remains a viable arena to establish and build a money-making business. Once you identify a legitimate company that is a good fit for you, learn their system and work it with consistency and persistence, you will have the opportunity to claim your slice of a multibillion dollar industry. According to a year-end report by the Direct Selling Association in 2011, MLM's were responsible for the vast majority of $154 billion dollar in sales by more than 90 million distributors worldwide, with approximately 20% generated by 16 million distributors in the United

FIVE BEST PRACTICES FOR PINTEREST

Pinterest is a social media site that is easy and fun to use. It allows you to organize all your favorite things you find on the web and in Pinterest. It is made up of images and videos.

Marketing gurus are keeping a close eye on Pinterest because it is driving more web traffic than any of the other major social bookmarking sites.

The main reason a business would want to be on Pinterest is to drive traffic back to their website.

Here are five best practices for using Pinterest: Make sure all your product images on Pinterest have a link back to your site and make sure you use attractive images that people will want to re-pin. You might review your web site and ask if the images on it are "Pin-worthy.' Create unique boards on your Pinterest profile. Figure out how your business fits a certain lifestyle or theme. For example, let's say you sell cupcakes. You might create an "all things pink" board and fill it with pink flowers, pink dots and anything that is interesting looking yet pink, then squeeze in a few pictures of your pink cupcakes.

3. Figure out the best hashtags for your product. Just like Twitter, hashtags help you search for similar content on Pinterest. For example, if you search for the hashtag #parenting all the recent pins that have #parenting in their description will pull up.

Participate and re-pin from other Pinterest users. To create unique boards on Pinterest, you don't have to come up with unique images, they already exist. You can simply hit "re-pin" on anything you see on Pinterest and you can add it to one of your boards.

If it makes sense for your business, include the price of your product with the dollar sign in the description and Pinterest will automatically categorize it into its gift category. The cost will

Just like the other Social Media sites, Pinterest can help people find out about your business and the products and services you provide. It's important to stay active and pin new content at least once a week. Happy pinning!

Did you realize that 6 out of 10 U.S. households have pets? That means that those without critter companions are in the minority, but if you're a pet owner selling your home, you shouldn't ignore the perceptions of those families that don't include cats or dogs.

Odors are the biggest issue. This isn't to say that your housekeeping is remiss, but remember that some buyers who visit your home may experience allergies or be particularly sensitive to pet dander or odors. Just vacuum the floors and furniture frequently and use an air sanitizer.

During the early stages of your listing, you'll likely experience more frequent showings and visits by buyers. This is a particularly good time to make arrangements to board your pet, or seek out a good "doggie day care" center for quick visits during showings. This may be safer and less stressful for your pet than a constant parade of strangers in your home, and may put buyers more at ease as well.

In any case, be sure to pick up toys, bowls, and bedding in advance of a showing, just as you would tidy up the children's things and other rooms throughout the house before buyers visit. A particularly attractive gesture would be to offer a cleaning allowance, no matter how scrupulously you maintain your home. This should quiet any potential objections.

DOLLARS AND CENTS

By Carl Davis, CIMA

CAN YOU TURN HOME EQUITY INTO RETIREMENT INCOME?

The long-struggling housing market is finally showing signs of recovery, giving many homeowners more equity in their properties. This encouraging trend is likely prompting more pre-retirees to consider if, and how home equity can be turned into a source of cash to help fund their retirement.

There was a time when owning a home with little or no outstanding mortgage balance was considered a potential financial bonanza for those in retirement. For years, home values moved higher, sometimes dramatically so. But starting in 2006, the bottom fell out of the housing market. Home equity was decimated and homeowners changed their expectations about the role equity can play in retirement.

Even with a lower value, home equity continues to represent one of the biggest assets for many Americans. It may play an even more important role when retirement savings come up short of expectations. Some already retired or approaching retirement feel like they have little choice but to tap the equity they've built in their home to support their cash flow needs throughout the rest of their

The question then becomes how to do it. There are a variety of options available, but the right answer for you may depend on what plans you have for living arrangements in the future and many other

Finding the most realistic solution

There are risks in assuming that the equity you've built up in your home will be a guaranteed source of income in retirement. For starters, you will always need a place to live, so you can't assume the full value of a home is at your disposal. Here are three primary options those in retirement generally

Home Equity Lines of Credit (HELOC)

Americans became accustomed to tapping their equity through HELOCS in the last 30 years, and though it is a reasonable option for an employed individual, it may be less practical for someone in retirement. HELOCs need to be repaid, and using the proceeds from a home equity loan to help fund retirement income needs often means taking on interest costs in order to generate that income. It's important to note that an individual puts a lien on their home by taking a HELOC (second mortgage),

Reverse Mortgage

An alternative that has become popular with many retirees is to use a reverse mortgage. This allows a homeowner to tap into the equity of the home while still occupying it. A reverse mortgage provides payment to homeowners for the bulk of the value of their homes via a lump sum, a line of credit or periodic payments. In essence this is a loan to the homeowner paid back when the house is sold at some future date. However, interest accrues throughout the duration of the loan and upfront fees apply, so it can be expensive.

A standard reverse mortgage, also called a Home Equity Conversion Mortgage, charges a two percent mortgage insurance premium on the full value of the home. The government now offers a lower cost "Saver" loan with a mortgage insurance premium of just 0.01 percent of the home's value, but applying a higher interest rate. Over time, the combination of fees and interest charges can significantly deplete the value of the home's equity as it applies to income needs. Individuals who qualify for a reverse mortgage must also be at least 62 years old. The older a retiree is, the more he or she can receive from the home's equity. Understanding the complicated terms of a reverse mortgage before signing on the dotted line is crucial.

Selling Your Home and Downsizing

The other way to tap a home's equity is to sell it. Many retirees find they are ready to "downsize" their living quarters to a smaller home, townhome or condo. If the market is right, they can sell their existing home, buy a new place and have equity leftover to add to their retirement nest egg. Alternatively, they can pocket the full proceeds from the home sale and rent their living quarters or explore other living options. This will greatly bolster their retirement savings, but it also adds a new monthly expense they will need to fund throughout the rest of their retirement.

Home equity offers great potential value in retirement but, like any investment, is subject to the fluctuations of the market and may have tax consequences. If you plan to tap your home's value to support your retirement, proceed with caution. Remember that the primary function of your home is to provide a roof over your head, and using equity to fund retirement requires careful planning.

this step would be a victory. And my question is, a victory for who? A victory for what? It begs the question, who are we here to represent?"

- President Barack Obama April 17, 2012

Sunday nights are back to normal at our place. With the new season now underway, we've resumed our routine of weekly get-togethers for the latest episode of "Mad Men".

Aside from story and characters, I enjoy reminders of a bygone era; aspects once ubiquitous and taken for granted, but now jarringly of another place and time. Early in the first season, for instance, there was Betty driving home in the station wagon while her two kids jumped back and forth between the front and back seats. Seat belts were an option found mainly in sports cars, and "car seats," as we understand the term today,

There's the dining routine: Once seated, you have a cigarette with your cocktail; after the soup or salad, another cigarette; then the main course, followed by a cigarette with the coffee.

(Stop now if you don't wish to learn details of last week's show.)

In the second episode of this new season, Peter has an affair with the neighbor's wife, and towards the end of the episode she shows up at his doorstep having been beaten up by her husband. Peter's reaction is not concern for her condition, but annoyance that she blabbed to her husband about the affair and, because she did, his own wife now knows about the affair, too.

In "domestic violence", the emphasis was on "domestic"; as in a domestic situation between husband and wife, rather than as a violent crime which, after seeing to the care and safety of the victim, calls for immediate reporting to the police.

Perspectives change, but such crimes continue in the real world.

Zina Daniel suffered three years of abuse from her husband, but finally managed to get a restraining order against him. In her request for the order she described how he'd threatened to kill her if she ever left him, throw acid in her face and burn her and her family with gasoline. threats terrorize my every waking moment".

This order would prevent him from purchasing a gun from a licensed dealer, so he got one over the internet. Last year he went to the Brookfield, Wisconsin beauty spa where his wife worked, killed her and two co-workers, wounded four others, and killed himself. Zina was 42 and left two small kids.

Jitka Vesel was a 36-year-old Czech translator and teacher in the Chicago area harassed by an exboyfriend. As a Canadian citizen, he couldn't get a gun through a licensed dealer, but managed to get a .40 caliber handgun through armslist.com. In 2011 he used it to pump 12 bullets into Jitka in the parking lot of the Czechoslovak Heritage Museum five of them to the back of her head as she lay on Jitka's longtime friend Theresa O'Rourke commented, "Her murder was preventable, and she was failed. The American system and the American dream failed her by allowing her stalker, her murderer, to obtain a gun without a background check, without a single question asked. She didn't deserve to die alone in a parking lot with no one there, with no one to hold her hand, with no one to comfort her. Her life wasn't finished."

Melissa Barton of Redmond, WA, Harvardeducated lawyer and software developer for Microsoft, got a protective order against her estranged husband after repeated harassment

"I've heard some say that blocking which included threatening her with a loaded gun and breaking into her workplace. That order might prevent him from being able to purchase a firearm from a licensed dealer, so, a few days after the order was served, he went to a gun show and brought home a .357 Smith & Wesson revolver and a 9mm Taurus semi-automatic.

> Melissa Barton was shot eight times in the parking lot outside her home by her husband, who then killed himself. She was 36.

> Earlier this year during debate on the Violence Against Women Act (in a Republican-controlled Congress, passage of something called the 'Violence Against Women Act" can be a nailbiter), Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-VT) pointed out that states that require background checks for handgun sales have 38% fewer women shot by their partners. According to 2010 FBI statistics, 64% of women killed yearly are at the hands of a spouse or family member and, in incidents of domestic violence, a woman is eight times as likely to be killed if there's a gun in the house.

> A 2002 Harvard study found that while the U.S. has 32% of the female population of 25 highincome nations, it has 84% of all female firearm homicides. The reason, simply, is the availability

> There were 1,280 gun deaths in the United States in the eight weeks following the massacre at Sandy Hook Elementary last December. Of those, 90 were women shot to death by their spouses or domestic partners.

> I remember the "Mad Men" era, with congressmen warning of intolerable increases in new car prices should seat belts become mandatory. I remember scientists" hired by the tobacco lobby questioning evidence of the harmful effects of smoking, as those hired by fossil fuel lobbies now question evidence of global warming.

> President Obama asks of a government that votes to defeat compromise measures for universal background checks, "who are we here to represent?" It's not Zina Daniel, Jitka Vesel or Melissa Barton; it's the lobbies insisting we not inconvenience abusers seeking guns.

> From my own research and experience, including jury service on trials involving domestic abuse, I find abusers to be basically cowards, with their own underlying issues of impotency. I can think of no better characterization of those siding with the gun lobby and against the conviction of the overwhelming majority of Americans. In this current debate, they represent the madmen.

YOU'RE A PATHETIC,

COWARDLY, FAILURE!

Who are you? You planted two bombs along the path of the Boston Marathon, you've killed at least that. Terrorism at best 3 people and maimed scores of others, so we're on can seek to influence a mission to find out who you are. Notice that I haven't asked what you are. We already know that. Regardless of your name - this we will ascertain in due time - we already know what you are. You are a spineless coward and pathetic it has been successful in representative of whatever demented cause you claim to represent and hope to advance. We also know that you are a failure, and I hope that sticks never been successful in in your craw til the day you die.

That you are a coward is obvious at face value. You haven't provided a declaration of war; you haven't taken on a uniform to distinguish yourself as an armed combatant, distinct from innocent non-combatants; you certainly don't wage a conventional war, nor even a guerilla war. Both of these would require that you focus your actions toward other soldiers, leaving the innocent alone, and would at least evidence a certain courage of conviction and confidence that your cause might triumph in a fair fight against others similarly armed and prepared.

Instead, you target innocent and defenseless people who had no chance of contesting your actions. You killed Martin Richard, an 8 yearold boy who might have kicked a soccer ball at you; you killed Krystle Campbell, a 28 year-old restaurant manager who might have thrown a article. He failed. fork at you; you killed Lu Lingzi, a petite 23 yearold graduate student who might have hit you with her math book. All of them might have done something, put up some sort of fight, had you acted like a man and given them a chance. But you didn't do that. You reside in the shadows of a backwater alleyway of human refuse. Perhaps it is appropriate after all that you have not given your actions to some incoherent perceived grievance. We would prefer you remain irrelevant were it not for the fact that we need to find you in order to confine you to an even more dismal existence and eventually release you in death to the deepest circle of hell. How you can consider yourself brave or noble in any way is beyond human comprehension.

That you have failed may take a little more effort on your part to fully comprehend, so allow me to enlighten you. The purpose of terrorism has never been to win a battle or the war. Its means are never large enough, nor its scale broad policy compliant citizenry through fear intimidation. Perhaps other countries and in other times, but it has

Sheik Omar Abdel Rahman orchestrated the first bombing of the World Trade Center. He now rots in jail and is barely remembered. Osama Bin Laden and the rest of the Al Qaida leadership orchestrated attacks against Marine barracks, several U.S. embassies, the U.S.S. Cole, and again against the World Trade Center, the Pentagon and the White House, all in an effort to force us out of the Mideast. I've lost count how many of them we've killed, and we haven't cut and run from the Middle East. They all failed.

Timothy McVeigh bombed the Oklahoma City federal building, killing 168 people, in order to draw attention to and avenge the Branch Davidian cult. Timmy was executed, and I had forgotten all about Davidians until I took to writing this

And so, too, will you fail. In fact, as I wrote earlier, you already have. Whatever fear and intimidation you sought to create has instead been manifested in bravery and determination. Those who weren't injured in the blasts, ran toward the terror, not away from it, to aid the wounded. Citizens poured out into the public gathering name, claimed responsibility or attributed your spots, markets and eateries in tremendous numbers last night and tonight to enjoy a spring evening. They didn't cower in their homes. As one public official stated at an impromptu news conference the other day, Bostonians are giving you the middle finger.

> But perhaps the most poignant and visible evidence of your failure can be seen in the YouTube video of the start of April 16th's Boston Bruins' game. You should watch that video if you have any doubts. Rene Rancourt came out on the ice to sing the national anthem. Mr. Rancourt was unable to be heard - and he had the microphone – over the crowd's singing of that anthem. Dozens of American flags were unfurled by those in the stands, and several impromptu, hand-lettered signs appeared encouraging us all to "be Boston strong!"

> Ironically, whoever you are, I doubt you will ever understand why you failed. To think you could accomplish something by your cowardice bespeaks a profound ignorance of what makes America, America. Unlike any other country, America is at its core an ideal. It's not just a piece of land; it's not a grouping of people of the same ethnicity, features, or customs; it's not a large tribe. America is about people who love liberty, seek freedom and honor bravery. These things are not easily abandoned. We may get complacent from time to time, but when we're pushed, we've never hesitated to come together, stand tall and fight back. We sing our national anthem with greater reverence and more determination when the likes of you come out of the shadows because it emblemizes those principals and reminds us that we are the land of the free and the home of the brave.

ness -- a jolting shock that alters and cruelly mocks our assumption of "normalcy."

On a weekend when the news cycle focused on North Korea's rising threat, the struggle to enact gun control and a dumb written comment about the -murdered-by-the-Nazis Anne Frank by self-absorbed teen singer Justin Bieber, the venerable Boston Marathon run ended in horrific bomb blasts. The result: at least three dead (including 8-year-old Martin Richard who was greeting his dad at the finish line), at least 176 injured -- and at least 25 missing one or more legs. With two flashes, the first successful terrorist attack on a U.S. City since Sept. 11, 2001 shoved the issues of national security and life's uncertainty

Immediately after the bombing, President Barack Obama made a brief statement that included this: "I've updated leaders of Congress in both parties, and we reaffirmed that on days like this there are no Republicans or Democrats -- we are Americans, united in concern for our fellow citizens."

Oh, really?

It soon became clear that some on the left immediately began speculating that it was rightwing terrorism. Some on the right suggested it was Muslim terrorists. And -- proving that not all nuts are on the shelves at Whole Foods -- rightwinger Alex Jones and left-winger Cynthia McKinney both hinted that somehow the government was involved. Many Americans talk about a war on obesity. How about a war on stupidity?

The fact is this: just as America has hurtled into the 21st century with all of the technological, cultural and economic changes that this kind of progress entails, the American lifestyle starting in the 1950s began to take a hit with mass killings and terrorist attacks and attempts. As a result, places where Americans can feel totally safe have dwindled. Rule out skyscrapers, walking on a uni-

It was inevitable that sooner or later there would be an attack on some big sporting event and for years writers have speculated on attacks at other venues, such as malls. Our sense of vulnerability increases as the venues of safe havens decreases even though the odds are low of being a victim of a terrorist attack.

In 2012, Robert Bailey of Reason estimated the odds of an American dying in a terrorist attack were 1 in 1.7 million. Other estimates from websites over the years varied -- one had it one in 9.3 million worldwide. Others higher.

But odds matter little to the dead, injured and grieving families of terrorism's and murder's victims. Terror is just that: a murder-political technique designed to ostentatiously end in a body count that will terrorize, influence, bully or demoralize a populace and/or government. After a while there is a sameness where the murderers all seem the same and seemingly spawn each other. Right terrorism seeks the same dead body message as left terrorism and even incidents start to look the same.

The Daily Beast says former FBI counterterrorism investigator Mark Rossini saw some "disquieting" similarities between the Boston bombing and the March 2004 Madrid train bombings that killed 191, injured 1,800 and turned out to be the handiwork of a terrorist cell inspired by Al

In these kinds of horrific events, the names and political positions of the murderous groups may change. Because evil doesn't only come in different forms. It copies and clones itself.

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

GROUCHY IS AS GROUCHY GROWLS

well that you could not believe you were awake? I have dreams of times when everything goes perfect. Then, I awake to the reality of the world around me. I guess everybody dreams of at least one perfect day.

Last week my dream came true... or almost. For no apparent reason I awoke from sleep feeling quite happy. I had no explanation for this giggly feeling of mine. I do not normally rouse myself from sleep with a chipper attitude. Just ask my wife. On second thought, don't. I just was in such a good mood that I broke out into song, which my wife threatened to end my life if I did not stop it immediately.

I did not try to psychoanalyze myself and think that perhaps this was the beginning of senility or something. I just accepted it as a great day to be Very nonchalantly, the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage addressed me in a rather semiinformal manner. "Would you run to the store and get me something?"

Being in such a high spirit, I sang my affirmative answer to her in spite of her glaring in my direction. I did not care. I would have jumped over the moon if she had asked at the time. Lucky for me, she did not ask.

shopping trip would be okay. Let it be known that when it comes to shopping, shopping and I go together like peanut butter and lobster tail. It was such a wonderful day and I felt so terrific I agreed to go shopping for my wife. Not that I needed a new wife, the one I have is fine, thank you.

When I entered the store, I had a nagging feeling that something was wrong. Being in such a great mood that I was in, I shook it off and

In record time, I found the item my wife I will fear no evil: for thou art with me..." needed. Dancing and singing up the aisle, I went immediately to the checkout counter. When I got there, I found nobody there. On the counter was a bell and next to the bell, a sign that read, "Ring

If I would have stopped there, it might not have gotten out of hand. Being in the goosy-kind of mood I was in, I had to take it one step further. I stared at the bell until I could stare no more and then I broke out into song accompanied by the cashier's bell. I wish you could have been there, it

"I heard you the first time," the voice exploded from the back of the store. "I'll get there when I get there and not a second sooner."

I smiled to myself and reminded myself that nobody was going to spoil my mood of happiness today. Then I saw her stomping up the aisle towards the cashier counter where I was waiting. If looks could kill, and I am not so sure they can't, I would have died on the spot.

I do not think steam was coming out her ears, but I am not absolutely sure about that. I know there was fire in her eyes, which were focused in This particular day nothing could bring me back to earth. I was all but literally dancing on the the counter she growled, "Are you the one ringing

STUART Tolchin.....On LIFE TODAY'S LESSONS

Monday, Tax day, Patriot day, Jackie Robinson day and of course, Boston Marathon Day was definitely a day filled with special omens and lessons. My task and your task is to try and figure them out. The day for me started with awakening anger about the fact that the basketball game which could determine the fate of the Lakers was not available on Direct TV.

For those of you who couldn't care less this game to true Lakers fans was highly significant. At the conclusion of the preceding game the amazing, tremendous, invulnerable, invincible Kobe suffered a catastrophic injury. There was 1 minute and 43 seconds when Kobe went down and the score was tied. If the Lakers lost this game they were almost surely out of the playoffs. Amazingly the Kobeless team struggled to a surprising victory and managed to win the next game against fearsome San Antonio.

On Monday night the Utah Jazz was scheduled to play Minnesota. A loss by the Jazz would allow the Lakers to reach the playoffs no matter what the result of the Lakers final game on Wednesday. I desperately wanted to watch that game which was not available without a special NBA package. While driving to Downtown LA for my first Court Appearance I unsuccessfully tried to contact Direct TV in order to make arrangements to watch the game. All I could get were taped messages telling me to call other extensions which were equally unhelpful. Arriving downtown, I climbed behind a fence, a shortcut I have been using for about forty years. After a couple of hours I returned via the same route and there on a patch of mud were my car keys. Strange I had lost them without even knowing it. Of course I had no other set of keys and it would have been disastrous if I was without keys. Finding the keys that I did not know I had lost was another omen—a strange occurrence that indicated to me that someone or something was watching over me whether I knew it or not. Maybe it's a message.

At lunch I continued my unsuccessful search for a Direct TV office. From Information I obtained addresses that turned out to be non-existent. I ended up in South Pasadena and went to Burger Continental for lunch, something I had never done before. Surprisingly at lunch I said a few words to the server. She related the story of her brother who had been kidnapped in Mexico. She left her family here and went to Mexico and paid over a great deal of money. Eventually he was returned missing a kidney and suffering. He soon committed suicide and the server returned to Pasadena only to learn that her husband had left her and run off with a younger woman. We hugged and she cried. Another female customer observed this scene and came over and hugged me. Believe me having strange women come over and hug me is not a common occurrence in my life. This felt to be another message indicating that being available to other people is a reward in itself.

After lunch, back to Court, where as I left the building at the end of the day I first heard of the Boston Marathon Bombing from the Security Guards. I was concerned but not deterred from my quest to see the Utah Jazz game. I found a restaurant and called my wife and as far as I can tell we were the only people in town who watched the Jazz unfortunately win the game. The next day there was a knock on the door downstairs. I live way up in the canyon and no one ever comes to the door. A man needed to park in the driveway as he was doing some work across the street. He recognized my name from my newspaper articles and I invited him into the house and we talked for a few moments. I learned that his family was from Belorussia which is where the City of Tolchin was located and where my grandfather and father were born. I had never before met a person from Belorussia and we talked and I soon realized that his father and my grandfather had swum across the same river to escapes the Russian draft. As we talked about this discovery he noticed a painting upon our wall which depicted seemingly entranced Hispanic villagers dancing around a cactus. This man was born in Paraguay to which his father had migrated and he said something about the Circle of

If there is any point to my articles, which I sometimes doubt, it is that I believe that all these seemingly unrelated details that make up our days are all part of some huge abstract mosaic which gives us hints on how to live. Sometimes we have to do difficult things; years ago we had to swim across frozen rivers; today, sometimes we must persevere in order to view a basketball game and tomorrow we must demonstrate our adherence to Democratic principles and the civil rights of our inhabitants even when it is frightening and inconvenient to do so. Perhaps that was yesterday's message as understood today.

SAID ANY DUMB THINGS LATELY?

We've all said dumb things from time to time. Except for that guy in the back of the room.

Frankly I've never heard that guy speak.

He probably follows what may be of the best pieces of advice available: "Better to remain silent and be thought a fool than to speak out and remove all doubt". I think we can attribute that quote to Abraham Lincoln.

Good politicians are masters of not really saying anything. A White House spokesperson was once quoted as saying: "It's not easy getting up here and saying nothing. It takes a lot of preparation" Ain't that a fact. I feel for White House press secretaries. They must prepare up the wazoo to not say anything and act like they are giving out answers. Tough job. You remember the Al Gore invented the internet faux paus? Well here is exactly what he said: "During my service in the United States Congress, I took the initiative in creating the internet." Thanks Al.

I think Ronald Reagan was doing a microphone check when he said: "My fellow Americans, I've just signed legislation that will outlaw Russia forever. We begin bombing in five minutes." Good job Mr. President.

Frank Rizzo, the mayor our editors hometown once said about the city of brotherly love: "The streets are safe in Philadelphia. It's only the people who make them unsafe." Profoundly put Frank.

George Stephanopoulos (real name) said this when he was a Clinton White House aide: "The President has kept all of the promises he intended to keep."

The Rhode Island Governor, Frank Licht, had this to say during the 1972 presidential campaign: "Nixon has been sitting in the White House while George McGovern has been exposing himself to the people of the United States." Nixon won a landslide.

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley during the 1968 Democratic Convention upheavals: "The police are not here to create disorder, they're here to preserve disorder."

Richard Daley, Mayor of Chicago for 21 years. And finally, President Kennedy in his trip to Germany all those years ago should have said "Ich bin Berliner" which means "I am a Berliner." What he did say was "Ich bin ein Berliner" which translated means "I am a jelly doughnut." Sweet Jack!

Have a good week everybody.
