VOLUME 7 NO. 17

COUNCIL REORGANIZES - NANCY WALSH BECOMES MAYOR

Following the long standing tradition of rotating council members through the positions of Mayor Pro Tem and Mayor, Nancy Walsh was unanimously elected Mayor of the City of Sierra Madre. In the town's history, she is only the fourth female to hold such a position, three of which held the position within the last decade. (Enid Joffe, Mary Ann MacGillivray - who actually was elected Mayor twice, and now Mayor Walsh).

Walsh was first elected to the council in 2010 and has been a very active member holding such positions as Board Member of San Gabriel Valley Council of Governments aka. SGVCOG, Member of the Energy, Environment and Natural Resources Committee (of SGVCOG), Council Liaison to Sierra Madre Chamber of Commerce, Council Liaison to the Senior Community Services Commission, Council Liaison to Sierra Madre Library Board, Council Liaison to the Green Advisory Committee, and Alternate Director to the Board of Directors of the County Sanitation Districts of Los Angeles County. In an interview held with Walsh in 2012, she noted that "serving the citizens of Sierra Madre requires ones undivided attention. It is no easy task, and also requires great sacrifice". Prior to serving on the council, Walsh served as Chair of the city's Senior Community Commission.

An outspoken critic of the "protracted" General Plan process, she is not known for biting her tongue when it comes to facing the challenges of sitting on the council. The former CEO of LA County Coastal Outpatient Clinics, she has two daughters Jennifer & Melissa, two-son's in law and three granddaughters.

Many Sierra Madreans will remember her also for surviving the hostage situation in Mumbai in 2008 while vacationing. An avid world traveler, she has set her suitcases aside to take on the challenges of serving Sierra Madre as a member of the City Council, and now as Mayor.

Sierra Madre's reorganized council: (I to r) John Capoccia, Mayor Pro Tem John Harabedian, Mayor Nancy Walsh, Chris Koerber and Josh Moran

When the matter was finally called for a vote, a motion was made by Moran and seconded by Walsh that John Harabedian be elected Mayor Pro Tem. At that point Capoccia offered a second motion and nominated Chris Koerber for the position. Koerber seconded his own nomination.

Harabedian expressed his disappointment that "what should have been the council's finest hour" had become so contentious.

When the original motion was called (Harabedian for Mayor Pro Tem) it passed 4 to 1, with the only no vote coming from Koerber.

A LOOK BACK FIVE YEARS AFTER THE SIERRA MADRE FIRE OF 2008 - ARE WE READY IF IT HAPPENS AGAIN?

Photos and Story By Bill Coburn, Sierra Madre News.Net

Saturday, April 26th, 2008, started out like many other spring days in Sierra ue skies, a high of 80 degrees expected, and activities scheduled. The City was going to hold dedication ceremonies for its first new park in thirty years, Goldberg Park in honor of long-time residents Milton and Harriet Goldberg that morning. Later in the day, at Memorial Park, the now defunct Community Arts Commission was going to hold a Jazz Festival featuring live music. Little did folks who planned to attend both events realize as they left the first one, that the second one would never take place.

The Jazz Festival was cancelled because a fire, dubbed the Santa Anita Fire by state and federal fire officials, broke out at about 3pm in the mountains above Sierra Madre. The fire burned for several days, ultimately burning 584 acres at the time of its containment on May 1st. Two hundred thirty eight acres were in the Angeles National Forest, and three hundred forty six acres were within the corporate boundaries of Sierra Madre. Five minor injuries were reported, and at one point more than 1,000 firefighters were assigned to the fire. Just after midnight on Sunday morning the 28th, the City Council, under the leadership of Mayor Kurt Zimmerman, had an emergency meeting to declare the City to be in a state of emergency, freeing up resources from outside agencies to assist in

Two Red Cross shelters were set up. Approximately 1000 people were evacuated from Oak Crest Drive across Carter Avenue to East Mira Monte Avenue, continuing down Mountain Trail Avenue, across Grandview Avenue to Santa Anita Avenue. A wedding party of 45 people and four pets were helicoptered out from Sturtevant Camp, it took five helicopter trips to move them all.

The people of Sierra Madre banded together as a community to help each other and the emergency personnel fighting the fire, controlling traffic, and keeping out looters (there was a false report that houses in the evacuation area were robbed). In the end, only one small non-residential structure was destroyed, and the people of Sierra Madre had a new sense of community and appreciation for one another and emergency personnel.

Sierra Madre Fire Department

In recognition of their efforts, the entire Sierra Madre Fire Department was named Grand Marshal of the 2008 4th of July Parade. I asked Fire Chief Steve Heydorff to assist with this article, and he was kind enough to do so.

SMNN: How has the Fire Department improved its preparedness for the next fire? Chief Heydorff: Our Fire Department has changed a lot in the last five years; the most significant change being that we now have 24-hour staffing of both the RA and fire engine. Our 24-hour manning at the station has also improved our response time to the scene of any fire.

The addition of full-time paid Captains is just one aspect in the Fire Department's increase in preparedness. The other aspects are more training hours for both firefighters and officers; and we have received a new fire engine since the Santa Anita Fire. Communication is always the number one complaint on any after action review of a fire; community donations, like the radios from Rotary, help at a time when we were very low on new digital radios.

Thanks to increased training and the change in staffing models we have improved from an ISO rating of class IV to a class III. However, the City still has the same levels of reciprocity as it did five years ago - mutual aid.

One of the most important aspects of any fire is finance. The fires out, the engines go home, the firefighters pat each other on the back and have great stories for the rest of their careers. Now the work of the Fire Chief and the City's Finance Director begins; and after 16 long months of filling out forms, finding and talking to the "right" person, the incident finally closes. SIERRA MADRE TV SURVEY

Got a minute? The folks who run Sierra Madre's two local TV stations - that's right, Sierra Madre has two local TV stations - need your opinion on what you like to watch and how you watch it so they can make this local resource more fun and relevant to your lifestyle.

We are doing this survey now because we are excited to launch a new channel, Channel 98. As you might know, Channel 3 on Time Warner Cable has been airing City Council and Planning Commission meetings, and other City government events, live for years and this important service will continue. But we are now adding Channel 98 as a commercial free, educational channel that will feature children's programming, classic movies and TV shows, how-to shows, community special events and other interesting and eclectic programming relevant to our lives in Sierra Madre all presented without commercials and without fundraising. It is our channel, it is starting from scratch, and we need you to tell us what you want to see on it.

Please take a few minutes to fill out this questionnaire either online at www.surveymonkey.com/s/X6VBWYB or drop it off at City Hall, Sierra Madre Library, or the Recreation Center by May 31, 2013 and be part of creating something that will entertain and inform us, be unique to our special town, and make us proud.

Like every job, the job's not done until the paperwork done.

SMNN: What is your most vivid memory of the fire, during the fire? Chief Heydorff: The way the fire would lay down during the day and then race up the hill during the night. The fire would give you hope at the end of the day and then disappointment every morning.

SMNN: What is your most vivid memory of the fire, relating to community reaction to the fire? Chief Heydorff: The kindness and openness our residents showed to the engine companies that were here from out of town. I had comments from engine captains commenting on how friendly our city is.

SMNN: What was your proudest moment during and/or after the fire? Chief Heydorff: Working with Team 3, a type 2 federal overhead team, I was amazed at the amount of resources that were available to Sierra Madre. We can be. United States Forest Service.

One of the big parts of the fire was need to evacuate people, and control traffic in the fire area, as lookie-loos came from all over. SMNN: What unanticipated issues Chief Giannone: My most vivid did you encounter during the fire and what has been done to overcome them in the event of the next fire? Chief Giannone: Unanticipated issues were just the lack of dealing with this type of event, especially since we had not had a fire of its magnitude for many years. People that had worked in the city during the last fire had moved on or retired. So for many of the staff this was something new. For the PD Staff and outside agencies that had arrived to assist us the biggest unanticipated issue was the "sternness" of many who refused to leave their homes when evacuations were taking place. It would seem that one's life would outweigh the loss of property. There are many us just took it for granted that people would leave. We had to quickly adjust our game plan to respect the wishes of others.

Outside resources would be called in immediately and personnel would be spread out and scheduled so people were not here for days and working past their capacity. communication with the residents during the fire. Our greatest changes or enhancements over the past five years include the launch of AM-1630, the City's Emergency Radio Station, the expansion of the City's eBlasts notifications, and the explosion of social media - Facebook and Twitter have become excellent sources for extending information quickly.

SMNN: Will press releases be posted on the City website, as well? Generally, all our press releases are posted on the City website. If we cannot post press releases on the website, there is generally a note on

HISTORICAL SOCIETY SPENDS AN APRIL AFTERNOON AT THE CALDWELL/ FAIRBANK HOUSE

On Sunday April 14, 2013, the Sierra Madre Historical Preservation Society held its Spring program at the historic home of Donald and Guiliana Songster. Built in 1907, the landmark residence designed by Louis B. Easton is known as the Caldwell/ Fairbank House.

The program began with a welcome from SMHPS President Amy Putnam who introduced Board Members. Amy also introduced honored guests and local residents John Brinkmann and John Luke, publisher and editor-in-chief of American Bungalow magazine respectively. Both were presented with signed copies of the Society's award-winning book, Southern California Story: Seeking the Better Life in Sierra Madre.

SMHPS Vice President Leslie Ziff presented the Songsters with a gift basket as a thank you for hosting the program. Board Member Norma Bachwansky shared information about the upcoming planting of California native plants in the new garden in front of the museums set for Sunday May 19th.

Richard Trader spoke about the family history of Louisa Caldwell and how she came to settle in Sierra Madre. Joe Catalano described the meticulous restoration efforts undertaken by the Songsters since they purchased the house in 1995. Homeowner Donald Songster related his and Guiliana's first sighting of the house and his subsequent inquiry with John Brinkmann regarding the historical significance of the residence. Following the presentation, docents Joe Catalano, Donald Songster, and Richard Trader led small groups on tours of the house. The architecture and restoration work of the interior and exterior were discussed in detail.

Orange juice, freshly squeezed from oranges on the property, and other light refreshments were served on the back lawn. Reproductions of the March 1908 issue of The Craftsman in which an article about the "one room deep California house" appeared were distributed to the thirty-two people in attendance. Story and Photo courtesy SMPHS

SONIA KOSKER

Sonia Kosker, a beloved six-year employee at Taylor's Meat Market in Sierra Madre passed away peacefully at home on Friday April 19, 2013. By her side were her sister, mother and a close friend. Sonia passed away at the age of 52 after a lengthy battle with lung cancer.

While at Taylor's Meat Market Sonia made many loyal friends who never forgot her during her illness. Their generosity helped provide Sonia with quality medical care and financial support for her daughters. The donations of her friends have also enabled the family to hold a funeral and burial service at Forest Lawn to honor Sonia's life.

The family would like to express their heartfelt gratitude to all who sent cards and gave so generously to Sonia during this difficult time. This support enabled Sonia to leave County Hospital and be cared for by a well-respected oncologist in Glendale and allowed her to have full time caregivers for the last days of her life. No words can ever express just how thankful the family is for the love and charity you showered on Sonia.

Funeral and burial services were held on Thursday, April 25, 2013 at 12:30pm at Forest Lawn Hollywood Hills, 6300 Forest Lawn Drive, Los Angeles, 90068. Funeral services will be in the Church of the Hills.

Mud Prevention Follow-up Bruce Inman, Director of Public Works, also contributed to the article:

SMNN: Which was the bigger challenge for Public Works, the fire or the preparation for mudslides? Bruce: The fire didn't present a huge challenge for Public Works; Public Works role in a fire is largely one of assisting with logistics.

SMNN: How much mud was hauled away the following season? Bruce: Tons and tons, cubic yards and cubic yards, trucks and truck... in other words, a lot. Although we do not have exact numbers, we conservatively have estimated 840 cubic yards or about 100 truckloads.

SMNN: How many homes ended up being evacuated for mud? Bruce: The City does not have a record of the number of homes evacuated.

SMNN: What was the cost to the City to prepare for mud? Bruce: The cost to prepare for the mud was over $500,000. Much of that came to the City in the form of a federal grant from USDA/Natural Resources Conservation Service.

SMNN: What issues for Public Works did yousee, and how have they been addressed? Bruce: Public Work's biggest issue was the limitation on physical access to the mudflow-prone areas of the City, which hampered us in the amount of personnel and equipment we could bring to bear on cleaning up.

SMNN: What is your memory of the events? Bruce: My most vivid memory was Sierra Madre, and we will help each

> I'd like to thank City Manager Elaine Aguilar, Elisa Cox, Director of Public Works Bruce Inman, Finance Director Karin Schnaider, Mt. Wilson Trail Race Chair Pete Siberell and SMFD Chief Steve Heydorff for their contributions to this article.

I'd like to thank all 1055 firefighters from the 30- 35 agencies that responded with assistance during the fire. And I want to say thanks to the residents of Sierra Madre, who responded with love, compassion and spirit to a stressful incident in this City's history that could have been more stressful had they reacted differently.

To answer the question in the headline, are we ready if it happens again? I think my response is that we won't know if we are ready as a firefighting entity until we see the magnitude of the fire, but I believe that our fire department and our city staff have done what they can to be ready, and that we as a community have done what we can to be ready, and that's important. Sure, not everyone in the community has, but I believe we have a higher percentage of involved and prepared people than most cities can boast. And that's one of the reasons I believe that as a community, we are ready to face it, even if the next fire proves more destructive, we will be there for each other and face it together. Because that's the kind of town we are, most as we showed in 2008, as we showed after the windstorms of 2011, we are correctly, steady rain was predicted for SMNN: What is your most vivid Public Works Response to Fire and Christmas day 2008, but Sierra Madre memory of the fire, during the fire? Pete: I have three or four vivid memories of the fire. I was running son George to a birthday party in Pasadena on a Saturday, I think, when he pointed out the fire in the hills. I never thought it would be the sole focus of our lives for the next few days. Later in the day, I was at Heasley Field, serving my duty as president of Sierra Madre Little League. My son had a game, I think, and the kids were playing while helicopters were scooping up water out of the settling basins and going back to unload it on the blazes. It was really surreal to see the helicopter veering into the basins while the kids were blithely playing and their parents hoping against hope everything would be OK at home, and the fire looking like it was never going to be put out.

> Later that evening, we watched the fire out the back of our kitchen window, seeing it get closer and waiting for the time we may have to evacuate. Finally, we did end up leaving the house, packing up two cars, two kids and two dogs, and found ourselves in Kersting Court, looking back up Baldwin Avenue and seeing the raging orange fire, realizing....we had not planned on this happening...thinking, what are we going to do now?

Serial Arson Suspect Arrested

Police arrested and charged a South Pasadena man Monday with allegedly setting 25 fires including four in Pasadena. Twenty one of the fires were set in South Pasadena and all were brush and car fires with the exception of one, set at the exterior door to a business.

Police said they took Javier Adolfo Viera, 35, into custody April 20 after he was seen near the area of one of the fire. He was arrested after fingerprints, left on an incendiary device that did not burn completely, linked him to the fires. was also linked, through surveillance to a fire Sunday in the 6100 block of North Oak Hill Avenue in Los Angeles.

Police said Viera selfconfessed to most of the fires and a search of his home resulted in the recovery of more evidence.

Investigators also said Viera eluded capture, while under surveillance, by driving down a one-way street the wrong way, after filling a bag with dried vegetation. Police said incident happened just blocks from where the last fire was set. A witness also, at the time, saw Viera set a fire under a vehicle.

Pasadena Fire and South Pasadena Fire investigators joined forces to investigate the fires, which were occurring since mid-November.

Reports say Viera is the father of three young children and admitted to setting the fires due to job related anger and financial

FREE PUBLIC FORUM ON CHARTER SCHOOLS May 2, 2013

The League of Women Voters Pasadena Area is presenting a free public forum May 2 on the controversial topic of charter schools. It will be from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., at the Women's City Club, 160 N. Oakland Ave., Pasadena.

Titled "What We Can Learn from Charter Schools," the forum will address issues surrounding the charter school movement, which began 20 years ago and is a growing sector of public education. California alone has about 1,000 charter schools serving 360,000 children. Pasadena has six with approximately 1,400 K-12 students.

Critics claim charters siphon funds from regular public schools because they are publicly funded but operate independently of local school districts. On the other hand, advocates contend that, freed from local restrictions, charter schools can experiment and innovate to develop successful education models for all public schools.

The forum will address these issues from different perspectives and answer commonly asked questions. One is whether charter schools have met the goal of improving student performance and led to better educational practices for all children in public school. Another is whether gains for charters are losses for traditional public schools. Do charters provide better educational opportunities with comparable amounts of money? What about the question of equity?

Erick Premack, founder and director of the Charter Schools Development Center in Sacramento, will lead off the program with a short history of the charter school movement. A panel discussion

Panelists include Lauren O'Neill, the head of Odyssey Charter School in Pasadena; David Tokofsky, a former school board member of the Los Angeles Unified School District, which houses more charter schools than any other in California; and Judy Higelin, a Los Angeles County Office of Education supervisor of charter schools. Premack will also be a part of the panel. A lively question and answer period will follow.

Lunch is available for $20, including tax, tip and free parking. The program is free. For information and lunch reservations, call 626-798-0965.

news?

many folks are getting lost or hurt in the local hills. We go into nature to enjoy the natural world, perhaps to seek solitude and quiet, and to get refreshed. Most of us expect to get back home handy for countless tasks.

But getting back home safely doesn't always happen. Lots of things can get in the way of us getting home safely: unexpected weather, various accidents, unexpected terrain.

You should never go hiking and exploring into the local mountains and deserts without some very basic preparedness.

First, whether you're going on a car trip, or hiking trip, do some pre-trip research. Your excitement to get out and go, and your desire for spontaneity, are your enemies. Slow down. Research where you intend to go, and research the weather conditions, and whether or not there will be water. Are there any trails at all? Do other people go there? Are there great temperature extremes between day and night?

Make a plan and an itinerary. Be sure to tell someone where you are going and when you intend to return.

If you're traveling by car, be sure to carry extra water, as well as a blanket, some snacks, and a way to make a fire should the need arise. Have a map with you of the area in which you intend to travel. Be sure to carry road flares and jumper cables, as well as a simple tool kit (things you should always carry at all times).

If you're hiking – even out for a short day hike - there are certain items you should always have with you - in your pack, or in your pockets. And keep in mind that your knowledge, and your experience, are as valuable as all the "stuff" you Carry at least a quart of water. But that's bare minimum, because on a hot day, you'll use that up quickly. Will there be water at your intended destination?

journey, and ways to purify that water should the need arise. Water purifiers could be pills, or any of the pump devices sold at every backpacking

Did you know that you can fill an old beer can with river water, and boil it over a fire to purify it? Beer cans are everywhere, and could be used in a pinch.

I believe that everyone should carry a way to make a fire at all times. If lost while hiking, that controlled fire could be a life-saver. Not only would it keep you warm, but it could be a signal to someone trying to find you.

I like the Doan's magnesium fire starter which can always be carried on the keychain. But there's nothing wrong with a Bic, or even matches as you had to carry. long as they are kept in a waterproof container.

In fact, I teach my students dozens of ways to make a fire should the need arise. Even the little fresnel magnifying lens sold at stationery stores is a good way to make a fire when the sun

Then Almost there's the fire by friction method that the Native daily we read that in Altadena, Sierra Madre, Orange Madre County, etc., too lost. Carry that magnesium fire starter.

A knife should always be carried, at least a multi-blade Swiss Army Knife. Get one that has a knife, scissors, and a saw, at least. These come in

I always carry a bundle of cord, such as the inexpensive nylon cord used for surveying. Cord has innumerable uses, and in an emergency, could be pressed into service for emergency first aid, for making a pack, for various repairs, and many other possibilities.

A small first aid kit with at least a lot of bandaids and perhaps a few anti-infection creams should be included. In fact, you should enroll in a Red Cross emergency first aid course because "first aid" is more about knowing what to do, rather than knowing what to carry.

A signaling mirror is also a good idea for a small day pack. They are small, and could also be used for certain first-aid applications. They are not expensive, and come in glass or metal. As mentioned in a past Outdoors column, the used hard drive platters from computers are nearly unbreakable, and make excellent signaling

You probably already carry a cell phone, which is great for emergencies. However, there is often no cell coverage in some of the canyons of our local wilderness.

Compass? Yes, carry one along with the map of the area you intend to visit. But remember that the compass is of no value if you haven't taken the time to learn how to use it with your map.

Though tents and sleeping bags are too bulky to carry in a day pack, you should at least consider the possibility of spending the night in the wild. What would you do? Knowledge of making a wilderness lean-to, or other expedient shelter, is a good idea. But for the pack, you should consider carrying a little emergency space blanket which is not fantastic, but certainly better than nothing. If you have a slightly bigger pack, consider Stay alert to sources of water along your adding a tube tent. Tube tents are lightweight, inexpensive, and fold fairly flat.

> You should also add some simple snacks to your pack. These wouldn't be your lunch, but just something to eat "just in case."

> Back when I first got interested in survival preparedness, I'd have long discussions with the folks at WTI about the necessity of always having a pack ready in case you ever had to make a quick evacuation or in case you got lost in the woods.

> Knives, tools, water, clothes, fire, shelter, light these are the areas of greatest concern. We agreed that the ideal survival pack should be lightweight and not a burden.

> We learned that the more you knew, the less

And yes, there are many, many more items that hikers could carry, and many do. But the above represents the bare-bones minimum that anyone traveling into the local hills should carry

NEWLY DISCOVERED COMET IMAGED OR WAY TO INNER SOLAR SYSTEM ARRIVAL

Scientists eagerly await the arrival of a recently discovered, highly active comet that will skim 730,000 miles above the Sun's surface on Nov. 28 and has the potential to be readily visible from Earth.

The comet, C/2012 S1 (ISON), is highly unusual in that it comes to the inner solar system for the first time and will skirt around the Sun within less than two solar radii from its Comet C/ISON was discovered in September 2012 when it was farther away from the Sun than Jupiter, and was already active at such a great distance. This is distinct from most other sungrazers—comets that pass extremely close to the Sun—which are usually only discovered when they are already very near the Sun. At such a close perihelion distance from the Sun, sungrazers are expected to be intensely heated by the Sun, and sublimate not only ice but also silicates and even metals, releasing a tremendous amount of dust. The expectation is high that Comet C/ISON will be much brighter and more spectacular than most other sungrazers when it puts on a show late this year.

"As a first-time visitor to the inner solar system, Comet C/ISON provides astronomers a rare opportunity to study a fresh comet preserved since the formation of the solar system," said Planetary Science Institute Research Scientist Jian-Yang Li, who led a team that imaged the comet. "The expected high brightness of the comet as it nears the Sun allows for many important measurements that are impossible for most other fresh comets."

Comet C/ISON was imaged with the Hubble Space Telescope on April 10 using the Wide Field Camera 3, when the comet was slightly closer than Jupiter: 386 million miles from the Sun and 394 million miles from the Earth.

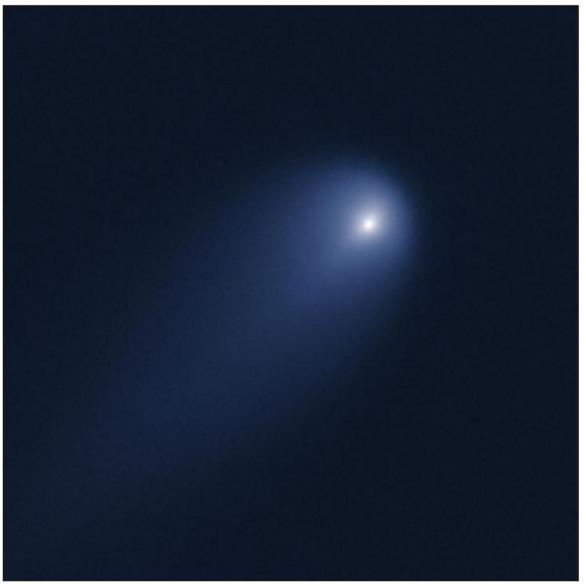

The team is using these images to measure the activity level of this comet and determine the size of the nucleus, in order to predict the comet's activity when it passes perihelion, or closest to the Sun, later this year. Preliminary measurements from the Hubble images suggest that the nucleus, the solid, icy body at the center of the comet, is no larger than three or four miles across. This is remarkably small considering the high level of activity observed in the comet so far. This small size also means that the outcome from its close perihelion passage near the Sun is extremely hard to foresee.

The comet is active as sunlight warms the surface and causes frozen volatiles to sublimate. The comet's dusty coma, or head of the comet, is currently approximately 3,100 miles across, or 1.2 times the width of Australia. A dust tail extends more than 57,000 miles, far beyond Hubble's field of view.

A detailed analysis of the dust coma surrounding the nucleus reveals a strong jet blasting dust particles off the Sunward-facing side of the comet's nucleus. This jet, as projected on the sky, extends at least 2,300 miles. More careful analysis is currently under way to improve these measurements and to predict the possible outcome of the sungrazing perihelion passage of this comet. Whether Comet C/ISON will become a "Comet of the Century" and outshine all other bright comets in the past still remains to be seen. But the new Hubble images of Comet C/ ISON have revealed much valuable information about this highly unusual comet.

AN EARTHQUAKE IN MONROVIA?

By Joan Schmidt

What would happen if a major earthquake caused a three story structure to collapse leaving many injured, or if a broken reservoir caused flooding in Monrovia? Monrovians, your city is prepared!

Recently, the City of Monrovia staged two drills to prepare the city for a real disaster. I attended the annual drill at Monrovia's Fire Station 2 on South Myrtle Avenue. This drill utilized the Urban Search and Rescue Team of Monrovia and Arcadia Fire Departments. There was representation from Los Angeles County Fire Department, Schaeffer's Ambulance Service, and many volunteer members of the CERT (Community Emergency Response Team). Behind the station is a three-story structure that is used for rescue and firefighting training and drills. The scenario was that an earthquake occurred and within the structure, were collapsed floors. When I arrived, there were response vehicles, and firefighters were making a wooden frame. Monrovia Fire Chief Donovan explained to me the first order of business was to secure the building - that is why the small door frame was placed inside the existing door frame. A collage was set up-red, yellow, green and black tarps were set on the ground. The red is for victims in danger needing immediate emergency care, yellow is next and green is for those with less serious injury. The black tarp was to the side of a response vehicle-also out of sight-as it was for fatalities.

Soon after my arrival and the door on the three story building being secured, two victims ran outside in pain, waving their hands-they had trouble seeing. (The make-up on these "victims" was realistic and gruesome!) Volunteers from Monrovia's C.E.K.T. (Community Response Team) were on hand to assist. They learned victims' identities and made sure there were "ID cards" on each one in case they lost consciousness. They also were assisting in treating victims. (These CERT members are invaluable in emergencies. They have special training. They can utilize utilities and put out small fires; do emergency first aid- opening airways, controlling bleeding, and treating for shock; provide basic medical aid; search for and rescue victims safely; and organize themselves and spontaneous volunteers to be effective.)

As I watched the firefighters go in the building and bring out more victims, I learned that none of the participants had any idea of what to find in the building. (Chief Donovan said that in a real emergency, no one is warned of what to expect and that this drill was as it would be in a real life situation.) Firefighters also entered the building with stretchers for those badly injured. It was reassuring to see how well the firefighters CERT and volunteers worked together. I learned that nearly 70 people/ volunteers 'participated' in the day's events.

At the same time of the "Earthquake Structure Collapse" on South Myrtle Avenue, there was a drill at the city's Emergency Operations Center on Lime

Avenue. The EOC serves as the central communication hub during a major disaster, and the "drill" was responding to a damaged reservoir to the point where it was gushing water and impacting

I would like to thank the City of Monrovia for allowing me to see firsthand how well prepared they are for a natural disaster or any major catastrophe. It was very reassuring to see the joint Urban Search and Rescue Team to work so well with Schaefer and members of CERT. (After the terrible wind storms last year, CERT volunteers also assisted. For info about CERT, please call

Residents of Monrovia, you have a fine Fire Department and City leaders who have prepared for unforeseen emergencies.

EDUCATION & YOUTH

PUSD SCHOOLS RECEIVE STATE, NATIONAL RECOGNITION

District (PUSD) schools have been honored by The Washington Post, U.S. News & World Report and California Business for Education Excellence (CBEE) for their academic achievement, efforts to close the achievement gap and offering a challenging educational experience.

The Washington Post named Marshall Fundamental Secondary School, John Muir High School and Pasadena High School to its 2013 list of America's Most Challenging High Schools. Marshall Fundamental was also ranked as the most challenging public school in the San Gabriel Valley and the 315th most challenging school in the nation. The methodology The Washington Post uses to determine school rankings is "to take the total number of Advanced Placement, International Baccalaureate and Advanced International Certificate of Education tests given at a school each year and divide by the number of seniors who graduated in May or June." Visit www.washingtonpost.com/local/highschoolchallenge/ to see the complete list.

Pasadena, CA – Pasadena Unified School Don Benito Fundamental School, Hamilton Elementary School, Sierra Madre Elementary School and Marshall Fundamental School were named to the 2012 CBEE Honor Roll. CBEE claims that "the CBEE Honor Roll is the only school recognition program in the state using only student achievement outcomes as the criteria and is a growing resource for all schools to learn about best practices that increase student achievement." Don Benito, Hamilton and Marshall were recognized for their work in closing the achievement gap and Hamilton was also recognized for higher performance in math and science. See the entire CBEE Honor Role at new.cbee.org/programs.

> U.S. News & World Report awarded silver medals to Marshall Fundamental School and Pasadena High School as part of their 2013 Best High School rankings. According to the publication, "a three-step process determined the Best High Schools. The first two steps ensured that the schools serve all of their students well, using performance on state proficiency tests as the benchmarks. For those schools that made it past the admission.

first two steps, a third step assessed the degree to which schools prepare students for college-level work." The complete national rankings are available at www.usnews.com/

"I am proud of the hard work that the students and staff accomplished at these schools to be recognized by such prestigious organizations," said PUSD Superintendent Jon R. Gundry. "What is notable is that many of these schools were awarded before. Rather than rest on their laurels, they have continued to improve and make the district proud. As high rigor classes and programs spread across the district, I expect to see more PUSD schools named to these nationally recognized lists."

In the 2013-2014 school year, all PUSD middle school students will be able to access challenging Honors level courses in English language arts and math. Additionally, every PUSD comprehensive high school offers Advanced Placement classes and a multitude of courses that are recognized by the University of California as requirements for

DUARTE UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT RECOG-NIZED BY CALIFORNIA BUSINESS COMMUNITY FOR HIGH STUDENT ACADEMIC ACHIEVEMENT AND CLOSING ACHIEVEMENT GAPS

Schools Selected by California Business for Education Excellence for Prestigious Honor Roll

(Duarte, CA) -Duarte Unified that Beardslee and Royal Oaks School District announced today that Beardslee Elementary and Royal Oaks Elementary have been selected by California Business for Education Excellence (CBEE) as two of 2,108 public schools in California to receive the title of 2012 Honor Roll school.

Schools receiving this distinction from the California business community have demonstrated consistent high levels of student academic achievement, improvement in achievement levels over time and reduction in achievement gaps among student populations. For high schools, the Honor Roll recognition also includes measures of college readiness.

The CBEE Honor Roll is comprised of "Star Schools" Award (871 schools) and "Scholar Schools" Award (1,237) schools. CBEE Star Schools are those with significant populations of socio-economically disadvantaged students that have shown a significant increase in grade-level proficiency over time. CBEE Scholar Schools are schools that are showing significant levels of not have a significant socioeconomically disadvantaged student population.

have been selected as Honor Roll schools," said Dr. Terry Nichols, district superintendent. "Through the collaborative efforts of our faculty, staff, administration and parents, all Duarte Unified Schools work to deliver a first class education that is engaging and adapted to the passions of our students. By incorporating high expectations and quality instruction, we are making record gains in student academic achievement

"We have schools throughout the state that are getting it right for all students and this should not be a secret," said Greg Jones, CBEE Chairman and past member of the California State Board of Education. "To ensure more of our schools succeed, we must change the conversation from being about fixing failing schools to one that focuses on replicating the success of schools like those on the Honor Roll."

Over time, CBEE has identified a common set of success factors in higher performing Honor Roll schools and districts. These include high expectations for academic achievement, but do all students; ongoing collaboration among teachers to improve practice; targeted use of data to pinpoint challenges and moni-"It is an honor to be recognized by California's business vention for struggling students; and mastery of content knowledge and pedagogical practices. "Honor Roll schools are over-coming challenges and obstacles every day for all students and are especially succeeding with kids who have been historically underserved. Our goal is to highlight their results, and provide a voice to these outstanding educators so that their success can be emulated in other places, "said Jim Lanich, CBEE president.

The Honor Roll list grew from 261 schools in 2005 to the current 2,108 for 2012. A full list of the Honor Roll schools can be found at: www.cbee.org

The annual Honor Roll award is made possible with support from numerous businesses and organizations including State Farm, Macy's, Edison International, Wells Fargo, Southern California Auto Club, Enterprise Rent-A-Car, the California Business Roundtable, and several private foundations. Chevron Corporation provided specific support in the creation of the STEM Honor Roll.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show OBLIVION

This is an amazingly strange movie. It blends the best of Wall-E, Prometheus, and Halo, blending it seamlessly into the gorgeous world and an ingenious plot line that is Oblivion.

After the war on Earth with the Scavengers (referred to as Scavs), which destroyed Earth, Jack Harper (Tom Cruise) and Victoria (Andrea Riseborough) are left behind to help with the filtering of seawater. After the war, they all went under a mandatory memory wipe, leaving humanity with a clean slate. However, when a strange object crashes and the human crew are killed off by a rogue probe, Jack begins to question everything, even Sally, their boss who lives in a giant space station.

Oblivion shocked me. Before going, I had heard mixed reviews, that it started slowly, which it did, and that it wasn't that great. I disagree with all of these review. For all true fans of sci-fi, this is a must see, but for general moviegoers, I would recommend it if you have a tolerance for slow beginnings (like Cloud Atlas). The payoff at the end of the movie, however, is well worth the

GREECE IN A NUTSHELL!!

Thomas Wolfe wrote a book titled 'You Can't Go Home Again' but throughout the years there have been different variations of that familiar title. Ah but this man lived in an era that didn't include airbuses now did he? It has been some 40 years that I departed Greek Soil. I recently returned to Greece and am excited to share my experience with you. If it is history that you seek, there is plenty of that to enjoy, if you are looking for relaxation then this your spot, how about superior cuisine? I will attest that the worst meal of the trip wasn't really all that bad. Yes, Greece has something for everyone. Getting There: It's a long flight, with choices of airlines and layovers in Toronto, Washington and New York. We traveled on Air Canada and had a layover in Toronto. As a beer drinker, a few Molson's at the airport restaurant helped make the time go by fast. One warning though, if you are using dollars they will give you back Canadian currency, so my suggestion is to use your credit card. Unless you want to have a couple of dollars as a keepsake.

Once you make it to Athens, you'll have the choice of a taxi, renting a car, or if you are on a tour like we were then someone will greet you at the terminal. My suggestion is that if this is your first trip a taxi or hotel shuttle would be prudent. However, if you are on the islands, renting a car is safe and easy.

Where to stay: In Athens there is a list of five star, four star and three star hotels. We stayed at the Metropolitan just outside of Athens, and while the hotel was clean and a great view of the port, I wouldn't say it was five star. But I liked that it had a view and was away from downtown Athens that is congested and a bit dirty with graffiti and scooters everywhere. Once in Santorini and Mykonos, the accommodations are very nice, in fact while our hotel in Santorini El Greco, wasn't on the beach it reminded me of staying in a storybook village: very upscale and with four different pools. In Mykonos there are many small/ boutique hotels very close to the beach, while our accommodations were close to being cramped, I will call it cozy.

To tour or not: If you have traveled to Athens or any other surrounding Islands before, I don't see any need to sign up for a tour. We did and I am glad we did, but it was the consensus of our group that if any of us were to return, that you could easily do it on your own. We agreed that once if you have seen the ruins and the stadium, that none of us would spend much time in Athens.

Getting Around: Big difference in getting around in Athens and getting around in Greece. First of all it's much hotter in Athens then it is in the islands, and as I mention in when to go July and August have is severe heat. My mother to this day reminds me of the 100+ day in July when I was born on a US Army base. The buses in Athens are usually filled with locals and would opt for taking a taxi or even the tram. On the Islands I do recommend the buses, many of them are new, air-conditioned and dependable, a bus ride is about $1.40 euro. On the islands you can rent a scooter by the day, it looks fun, but I was warned that many a kid has seen the hospital by crashing into the wall on a narrow road. Getting from island to island is done by Ferry, a boat that costs about $45 euro. There are airplanes that do fly from the Athens Airport to Santorini/Mykonos, and when I return I will take advantage of them, but for your first visit it adds to the fun of the trip. Bring a book or a crossword puzzle. If you aren't on a guided tour tickets can easily be purchased at the port.

When to go: Athens is hot, I mean temperature hot, in fact many workers and vendors take off August to visit friends and families elsewhere. If you are there to relax and get a tan, then by all means July would be OK, however just visiting the Acropolis in June we were overheated and water was our best friend, I couldn't imagine a July tour of Athens. My suggestion is early June or late September.

Dollar v. Euro: Those looking for bargains, we found that even though Greece is in a financial crisis, they haven't put out the distress flag yet, when shopping you can always ask for the best price. I was warned that dinners can easily run $60 euro, while I did see that price tag, it was very few and in between. I did notice that the restaurants closest to the water were pricier. A tip is to go to supermarkets, not the markets and buy beer, water and fruit and have it in your hotel refrigerator. The fruit there is some of the best I've had. The beer and sodas at the hotel can be twice or three times as much as getting them at the market or a Kiosk.

Dining in Greece: Originally I was going to give a few reviews of the restaurants that I visited, and after collecting business cards of places that I dined, I came up with this conclusion, where ever you go, you really can't go wrong. You want affordable dining? They have it. Want to dine on or near the beach? Yes, fish and chicken are the most popular items that we came across both in Athens and in Santorini and Mykonos. The items on the menus at each restaurant are very similar. You won't find too many steaks or burgers, yes, they are available but there are no beef cattle being raised in Greece. We enjoyed the Greek Salad and the Rocket Salad pretty much with every meal. You'll find that the Greek Salad has no lettuce, and is made up of cucumbers, olives, tomatoes and Feta Cheese. Something I found odd, the extra charges on the bill, first when they ask if you want bread, we always say yes, there is an additional charge of 2 to 3 euro. Plus sit down restaurants have a cover charge, no not the night club admission, this is a sitting charge, this charge gives you the privilege of sitting at your table for as long as you want, I think this was initiated more for the locals that like to sit for hours and conversing over cigarettes and espresso. Note., everyone smokes, even while they are working. One spot that did stand out in Athens, near our hotel was Restaurant Kalypso. The food was above average and the waiter even assisted us with our Greek language lessons. We returned there while waiting for our flight home.

Tipping: This isn't as big of a deal that it is in the states. Workers are working for what is called a "living wage", don't ask me to explain a living wage, I am restaurant reviewer not workers rights lawyer, however you won't get the typical service that you'd expect from the waiters, it's not bad, it's "are you ready to order" your food is brought and you might not see your server again, at least until you flag them down/ and I did a lot of flagging down. My suggestion is 10 to 12 % tip. Taxi Cab drivers same thing, a couple of euro are sufficient. As with any trip leaving the chambermaid and if you are on a tour, a tip is suggested.

Sightseeing: The first day is full of sight seeing, visit the Acropolis, Zeus Statue, Temple of Poseidon, and the Stadium, an afternoon at the beach in Athens is also a pleasant way to end your day in Athens, a day in Athens? Yes,! I found Athens to be hot, congested and plain dirty. If you want to see the ruins, I took a boat trip to the Island of Delos. There is a small admission charge once you get there, but you will get a sense of the history of Greece. One of the highlights of the trip was our seven-mile hike on The Santorini; we started at Fira and ended our walk in OIA, beautiful walk looking the cliffs and sights of the Volcano's and the Aegean Sea. Two other musts while we are on Mykonos we took a small boat along the shore and you have your choice of five beaches, a beach for everyone, a party beach, a topless beach, we opted for Elia, plenty of sand and chairs to enjoy a relaxing day sun bathing. Santoroni has been voted top ten sunsets in the entire world. We took the Sunset Cruise that was quite relaxing and is a must; another bonus is the boat stop briefly at one of the volcanic hot springs, hot? No, but quite warm.

Is Greece Safe?: Yes!! On our first day on our vacation we stayed just a few miles from downtown, it wasn't till we went to downtown did we see any police presence, you are more likely to be hit by a scooter then witness any crime that goes for the Islands of Santorini and Mykonos as well.. In fact on the Islands we noticed no police at all, I mean none. I was surprised by the text messages and facebook postings asking me if I was OK? Just like Los Angeles, some areas are better then others, if you are looking for a demonstration I am sure if you wait long enough you Opah!!! Pack your bags save your money and head to the Islands of Greece. The locals are waiting for you with open arms and a glass of Ouzo.

Headed to Oslo in a few weeks, stay tuned.

There is more!! Please listen to my radio show at it's new time Sunday afternoons at 5 PM Talk Radio KABC 790 AM, or email me at thechefknows@yahoo.com

The event, which is an activity in the @CHINA series, is intended to introduce students to Chinese food culture and local customs. The festival also featured a contest for local college students to create a promotional plan for the popular Chinese Television documentary series produced by CCTV, "A Bite of China", to an American audience.

By showing its popular TV documentaries, @CHINA will provide an excellent platform for our American friends to better understand Chinese food, culture and more importantly, our way of life" said Qiu.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

THE HEAVENLY, HARMONIOUS HUMMER

A few days ago, while I was out walking around town with "Brown", one of my favorite canine clients and the sweetest chocolate lab you could ever hope to meet, I suddenly heard what I thought was a bumble bee buzzing near the back of my head. Mind you, I am not afraid of bees, but it was quite loud and close, startling me enough to turn around and look at what was making that buzzing sound. When I turned, I found myself eye-to-eye with a tiny hummingbird floating in the air right where a ray of sun was shining between the shade of the trees. Its brilliant iridescent wings were winding and working hard to keep it hanging there in the air at eye-level for what seemed to me like more than a minute, then it dove and flew away as quickly as it had come.

I enjoy seeing hummingbirds in our area all the time, but for some reason that close encounter with such an amazing little creature levitating in the air just a couple of feet from my face, left me feeling blessed by nature, as if it was a meeting meant to be. I couldn't help thinking to myself, "Imagine being able to fly and flit about high in the air and up into the treetops, like that tiny bird?" God's creations never cease to amaze me and hummingbirds have got to be one of the most remarkable creatures on

The hummingbird's brain is larger in comparison to body size than any other bird species. Indeed, they are extremely smart and have a terrific memory, allowing them to keep tabs on the whereabouts of their favorite feeders and flowers, both far and near. They even remember when each type of their preferred flowers will have refilled and be ready for them to revisit. Amazing, yes, and goo'd for them, but hummers are not strictly self-serving birds. They play a very important and harmonious role in nature's big picture, making them excellent team players along with all the other creatures with whom they cohabitate, including us humans. Hummingbirds are prolific pollinators, working fervently for hours moving pollen from one location to another, as long as they have access to a sufficient amount of nectar to replenish their little systems.

The three most common hummingbirds found in California are Anna's (Calypte anna), Black-chinned (Archilochus alexandri), and Allen's (Selasphorus sasin), with the largest population being that of Anna's. As if playing a major role in nature wasn't enough to make the heavenly, harmonious hummer a valuable asset to earth, it also adds bountiful beauty and uniquely subtle music to the backdrop of our daily lives. The adult male Anna's hummingbird boasts the most gorgeous plume of feathers, with a combination of colors that is sure to make other aviary animals in our area envious. Their iridescent glow of metallic green, rose-red and silvery-grey come to life in the sunlight, bringing a sense of awe to the on-looker. During mating season, the male Anna's hummer begins his rowdy routine of fluffing his feathers and flitting his wings in a dance designed to catch the attention of their female counterparts. I have seen this puffed-up plumage dance performed in my yard numerous times, and I always find myself completely captivated by the entire ordeal. Not to mention that it seems to be working well for them, because there are plenty of hummers in my yard all year round!

Interestingly enough, hummingbirds are not at all social, the way most bird are. They do not migrate together nor do they maintain familial relationships. In fact, the only times you might see hummers get together are during mating season and on occasions when they are forced to share a common feeder for a quick snack before buzzing off to yet another isolated destination. Hummers are very independent little beings, and yet they each seem to be very focused on what they plan to do next. Something about that particular characteristic of this amazing species really appeals to me. Maybe it's because I am a bit of a loner myself. Except for the time I love spending with my four-legged friends, I stay pretty busy taking care of what I know needs to be done and I tend to accomplish more when I work on my own. Perhaps the hummer and I have a little something in common with this regard, but I still wish I could fly and flit about quickly in the sky like they can. Meanwhile, I'll appreciate their intelligence and beauty, the subtle song they sing, and the comfort they bring by their presence, reminding me every day, that nature is still taking its course in a healthy way

HOW HEALTH INSURANCE MARKETPLACES WILL HELP EARLY RETIREES

THE GOOD LIFE

Dear Savvy Senior:

What can you tell me about the new Obamacare health insurance exchanges that begin next year? I am interested in retiring early at age 61, but need to find some affordable health until my Medicare benefits begin at 65. Ready to Retire

The new health insurance exchanges – also known as Health Insurance Marketplaces – that begin in 2014 will be a welcome benefit to millions of Americans who need health insurance, especially uninsured baby boomers and pre-Medicare retirees who often have a difficult time finding affordable

How It Will Work

As part of the Affordable Care Act, starting Oct. 1 you will be able to shop and compare health insurance policies in your area, and enroll in one directly through your state's Health Insurance Marketplace website. The policies will go into effect on Jan. 1, 2014.

You'll also be happy to know that federal law dictates that Marketplace insurers cannot deny you coverage or charge you higher rates based on pre-existing health conditions, and they can't charge women more than men. But, they can charge older customers more than younger ones - up to three

Every state will have a Marketplace, but each state can choose how it will operate. Seventeen states and the District of Columbia will run their own state-based Marketplace, seven states will partner with the federal government, and 26 states will offer federal Marketplaces. The differences between federal and state programs will be subtle. You will be able to access your state's Health Insurance Marketplace at healthcare.gov.

The policies available through these Marketplaces will be sold by insurance companies and will provide a package of 10 essential benefits, including emergency services, hospital care, lab services, prescription drugs, doctor visits, preventive care and rehab services.

To make shopping and comparing a little easier, the health plans will be divided into four different levels – bronze, silver, gold and platinum – each offering similar benefits but with a different cost structure. The bronze plan will have the lowest monthly premiums but have highest out-of-pocket costs, while the platinum plans will have the highest premiums but the lowest deductibles and co-

The Marketplaces will also offer a toll-free hotline to help you choose a plan that meets your needs and budget. These helpers aren't associated with any particular plan, and they aren't on any type of commission, so the help they give you will be completely unbiased.

Costs and Tax-Credits

Prices will vary depending on where you live, your age and the health plan you choose. Exact cost structures for most Marketplaces will be released within the next few months.

To help make coverage affordable, sliding scale tax-credits will be available if you earn less than 400 percent of the poverty level - that's $45,960 for a single person and $62,040 for couples. These taxcredit subsidies will provide immediate savings off your monthly premiums.

To find out if you qualify, or see how much a tax-credit will reduce your monthly costs, you'll need to submit a Marketplace application in October, or when you decide enroll. In the meantime, you can calculate your potential tax-credit premium savings by using the Kaiser Family Foundation calculator at healthreform.kff.org – click on "Interactive Features" and then scroll down to "Subsidy Calculator."

For more information on the Health Insurance Marketplaces including a checklist of things you can do now to help you choose a plan, visit healthcare.gov/marketplace.

TAKE ACTION FOR CLEAN AIR!

Your health depends on clean air!

California has made tremendous advances in improving the state's air quality over the past 20 years, but more still needs to be done. LA COUNTY FAILS THE TEST SO WE REALLY NEED TO DO MORE!

The health of Californians continues to be at risk from dangerous pollutants we breathe everyday. You can help us in the Fight For Air by making personal changes in the way you live - even the smallest things make a big difference.

Here are 10 basic steps you can take to help California reduce pollution and contribute to cleaner, healthier air:

1. Drive one less day per week, and bike or walk as often as possible.

Cut down on driving. Try out the bus or light rail if you have one in your area. Using public transportation, walking and biking are all great ways to clean the air and get healthier through exercise. Harmful motor vehicle and other transportation emissions account for more than half of all pollution on a statewide basis.

2. Conserve energy.

Turn off lights when you leave a room and only run your dishwasher when full. Replace your light bulbs with compact fluorescent bulbs. Only use the air conditioning or heater when necessary or automatically set the thermostat to go off when you don't need it. Visit the Flex Your Power website to learn more at: http://www.fypower.org/ 3. Ride a bike!

Biking – even just a few times a week – is not only great exercise, it's a great way to decrease air pollution! Research your city's bike routes and commit to replacing your car with your bike 1-2 times a week. Here are a few tips to help you stay safe on your bike: http://www.dot.ca.gov/hq/tpp/offices/ bike/safety.html

4. Reduce the amount of time you idle your car. Idling for only 30 seconds uses up more fuel than restarting the engine. If you expect to idle for more than 30 seconds, turn off the engine and then restart (except in traffic, of course). Instead of idling in bank or restaurant drive-through lines, park your car and go inside. You will save fuel and prevent pollution! http://www.consumerenergycenter.org/myths/idling.html

5. Use a natural or propane gas grill for outdoor

This summer, cut down on outdoor grill use or use a propane or natural gas grill. The smoke a traditional barbecue grill creates adds to air pollution. If you do use a barbecue, use a metal chimney or electric probe instead of lighter fluid.

6. When washing clothes, wash in cold water. A whopping 90 percent of the energy used by a washing machine goes to just heating the water. Washing clothes in warm or cold water will save you money and reduce your carbon dioxide emissions by 72 pounds in just one month! 7. Avoid burning wood.

STATE OF THE AIR 2013 Annual Particle Pollution County Grade PASS FAIL Data Not Collected

Avoid use of wood burning in indoor and outdoor fireplaces. Just like tobacco smoke, wood smoke pollution is harmful to your health. Wood burning comprises 33 percent of particle pollution during the winter in some areas. Cleaner burning alternatives such as natural gas and electric fireplaces are available for the glow without the smoke!

8. If buying a car, consider a cleaner and more efficient electric or hybrid-electric car or a very low emission vehicle.

Every day, Californians drive 825 million miles emitting 5.4 million tons of pollutants daily. Choosing a cleaner car has never been easier. Every new car in California now has an Environmental Performance Label showing how clean the car is for both smog and greenhouse gases. State and federal tax credits and rebates exist to encourage cleaner car purchases. From electric cars and hybrids to very low emission gas vehicles, cleaner technologies are available now. See www.driveclean.ca.gov for more details. 9. Purchase energy efficient appliances.

Did you know you could earn money while helping clean California's air? When you replace your old, energy draining appliances (refrigerators, washers and air conditioners) for new Energy Star products you will receive a government rebate! Visit www.cash4appliances.org for more information.

10. Donate to the American Lung Association in California. The American Lung Association in California fights for your right to breathe clean air by pushing for policies to ensure a legacy of healthy air for California. We can't do it without your support!

SENIOR HAPPENINGS

By Pat Birdsall

FYI - Selfishly, I'd like to use this space to thank the many wonderful people who helped me after my hip-replacement surgery, broken femur, vocal cord closure and a raging allergy! Eric Wilhelm, thank you for building the platform I needed to get in and out of my very high bed. Louise Neiby, thank you for lending me the much needed medical equipment. (Unfortunately, Louise had it on hand because after years of Fosamax use, her femur shattered in three places and she fell needing surgery). Louise also went to the market for me, picked me up from the hospital and was and was a kind and knowledgeable voice at the other end of the phone. I am blessed also to have wonderful neighbors: Terry Barbour, Mike and Shirley Williams, Ray & Cindy Baran and Anthe & Carlos Gomez. Between Terry and Mike, my trash cans make it out for pick-up and back again. Cindy Baran took me to the Huntington Hospital where she and her wee dog, Happy volunteer. She got me to my pre-op class and then back again the next day for surgery. She & Ray also went grocery shopping for me. Anthe & Carlos fed my cats twice a day generally looked after many things for me including a stop at In & Out. I honestly couldn't have managed at all without them. My friend, Ken Anhalt brought me delicious homemade soups, as did Linda Boehm. Linda also shopped for me and took me to several doctor's appointments. Hilda Pittman thanks too, for shopping for me and for taking me to the doctor. Susan Henderson, thanks for shopping for me and going with me to see my surgeon prior to surgery and for the flowers after surgery. Ann Luke, thank you for calling me every week to see how I'm progressing and offering to bring me meals that John Luke prepared. To Jan and Roger Deibold for making that necessary tapioca run for me. To all the people who sent cards and called, thank you! Last but certainly not least, a special thanks to my son, Chris, who turned out to be just what the doctor ordered! He came here from Philadelphia to spend over a week with me and was able to change his departure date after I broke my femur... Thank goodness! As many of you know, he suffers from a bone disease and was my knowledgeable and much needed "coach."

Thanks to everyone!

LIVING TRU by Lori Koop

Our life's work often involves the solutions we have found for ourselves.

I didn't know I was creative. I just knew what I loved to do. I used my mind in the ways I was comfortable with: ever inventing, imagining, dreaming. But I did not know why, or for what. I did not have that person who was able to speak clearly into my natural behaviors and help me understand what creativity was. I entered college with this lack of awareness. And I let others decide my career for me.

Well, as you might imagine, my Business Degree in Accounting did not provide the kind of stimulation my brain craved. Even with my love of numbers. What I did love was business, the Creative Part (now I know). I would create business names, logos and marketing ideas. I dreamed of starting new businesses and selling them. Businesses I did not know about, so I could live in the land of learning.

If I had only seen the clues. But even though one cannot go back, there are no mistakes. It was the way I was meant to travel. And it led me to this work, which is truly my life's

I help some clients find their uniqueness and their ideal business. There is no need to search alone. I help other clients start dream businesses. There is no need to act alone. I help still others become more profitable. There is no need to suffer alone.

A Right Brain Business Coach is a unique brand of coach. As a matter of fact, I don't know of any other. I combine a Business degree, a Fine Art degree from Art Center, and a Life Coach Certification from Oprah's Dr. Martha Beck to uncover creative solutions to individual needs. There is no one-size-fits-all: why would two businesses be the same when no two owners are the same? That's what separates them from the crowd. It's their advantage. Personal Uniqueness + Personal Expression = Brand. And it is the thing you need to thrive! I provide support, guidance and know-how. This work is about finding your True Self and the life you were created to do. If you are ready to find clear direction and step out with confidence, let me encourage you. If you would like some help, feel free to call and set up a complimentary coaching session. If I'm not the right coach, I'll help you find the right one. My deepest wish is that you would find and do that thing that makes your heart sing. Last August, I joined independent business owner Tanya Edmonds at The Center for Wellbeing. In Tanya's words: "My vision for The Center for Wellbeing was to create a community sanctuary for wholeness, health, spiritual growth and celebrate beauty in all its forms. When Lori approached me about doing Life/Business Coaching here at the Center, it was a perfect case of serendipity. I was delighted at the prospect of adding this other dimension to services at the Center, and had it in my radar to find someone just like her. In our incredibly over-extended lives, I believe it is becoming more and more essential to seek out people who can coach and support us through our moments of indecision, transition and redirection. An integral component of what it means to be whole, healthy and fulfilled in the 21st century."

At The Center, I offer private, one-on-one coaching in a serene environment. Sessions are weekly, by the hour, and my rate is $65/hr. There is also the option to work by telephone, or even on Skype. We will find a way that works best for you and your busy lifestyle! Call The Center for Wellbeing to schedule a complimentary session at 626-355-2443.

For those who prefer group work, I offer classes. Currently they include The Right Brain Business Plan, for business owners who want to develop a map. Free to Create is a class I offer through the Art Center at Night program. It combines teachings from The Artist's Way by Julia Cameron and Life Coaching tools to open creative possibilities and freedom. To be informed of new classes and dates, please join my mailing list at: www.LORiKOOP.com.

Our journeys may differ, but our creative spirits unite us. We carry deep longings to do what we love and share it with the world. To make a difference! Join me weekly right here as we explore The Real yoU and how to live TRU.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: PHOENIX

Phoenix is band that should have been popular many years ago. All their albums are great, but it wasn't until 2009 when they released, "Wolfgang Amadeus Phoenix" that they became the premier band at the time. After much success, winning a Grammy, and intensive touring, the band took a well-deserved break. Fans long awaited their follow-up to what is considered their finest record to date. Four years later, the French alternative synth-pop group is back with their fifth studio record entitled, "Bankrupt!" With the inclusion of keyboards and drum machines, their latest endeavor is pure pop Bankrupt! With the inclusion of keyboards and drum machines, their latest endeavor is pure pop bliss as they've completely strayed away from their earlier days of more alternative-rock friendly tracks. Phoenix sounds bigger than ever with "Bankrupt!" but bigger doesn't always mean better. While the songs here may never have the big hooks found on, "Wolfgang Amadeus Phoenix," there's still plenty to appreciate here. From start to finish, the ten snyth-heavy tracks are cashmere soft, glossy as a Artist:

new car, and smooth as frozen yogurt. However, that's what you come to expect from Phoenix. However, if one has expected everything by the time you reach the end, it kind of leaves you wondering if you were really taken by the album at all.

Artist: Phoenix Album: Bankrupt!
Label: Glassnote
Release Date: April 23, 2013

The record kicks off in a huge away with the first single, "Entertainment." The catchiest song off the album is loud and in your face. The chorus just hits you like a freight train as it explodes with a frenzy of multi-guitar sounds and synthesizers. Following the grand opener is "The Real Thing," a somewhat slow track that never is great during some moments and boring in others. Oddly enough, the listener will be going from the fastest track off the record to the slowest. "S.O.S In Bel Air" is another all over the place track. Flashes of greatness appear but when it slows down, it completely throws the song off keel. It feels more like a prototype track that unfortunately didn't get all the kinks worked out because underneath, you realize how great this sound could have been. My favorite song is "Drakkar Noir," which kicks off the second half of the album in a very cool way. Phoenix slightly changes course a bit, while the synths are just as frenetic as ever, the paring with the vocals just work so incredibly well together. Another truly dynamite track is "Chloroform." It's a very warm track, the most sensitive song in Phoenix's collection of brand new material. Strangely so, it would have been a great closer because while it may not be the song you're dancing to this summer, it definite fits the bill while the because while it may not be the song you're dancing to this summer, it definite fits the bill while the sun sets leading to a perfect nightcap.

Keeping with this trend of all the songs in the second half out doing the first half, "Don't" is yet another true gem from Phoenix. I tend to like the songs that run a bit slower while displaying a nice and steady flow. I feel as if Phoenix really hits their stride in the second half, but is it too late for redemption for a rocky start? "Bourgeois" has indie movie soundtrack written all over it. The song fades in and fades out throughout its near five minutes and has a completely reflective vibe latching on to it. The abovementioned track is easily another winner from Phoenix. The final track belongs in the first half of the album. Sure, it's filled with kinetic energy and one that rivals "Entertainment" as the catchiest song here. As a closer, it doesn't fit the bill, one that belongs to "Don't" or "Chloroform." By the end, I felt like there's one half of a great album here. The other half, while not egregious by any means, just didn't have this wow factor I was hoping for. With the exception of "Entertainment," the first half of the album is surprisingly ordinary. This becomes a bit of a problem since I always felt. Phoenix specialized in anything, but the ordinary. Luckily, the second half is quite special, but for some it may not justify the rather uninspiring first few songs.

Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed

by Luther Tsinoglou

FROM "LESS" TO "YES"

The painful truth: Sellers who do not price their property competitively are the most likely targets of lowball offers. In soft markets, buyers are more prone to make low offers on listings seen to be priced too high. Listings that don't sell usually require price reductions, which in turn often mean ultimately accepting an offer lower than you could have received by pricing aggressively from Day One.

Since selling your home can be such an emotional and subjective experience, it's easy to understand why you'd be reluctant to counter an offer below your asking price. But rather than feel insulted, try to see it as the beginning of a dialogue that could ultimately produce a sale.

If you feel any of the terms or conditions of the offer are unacceptable, ask your agent to present a counter-offer. Sometimes buyers and sellers don't really know beforehand what price they'll accept until they've begun the negotiations. For example, a buyer might agree to a higher price than planned if interest rates suddenly drop.

If you've received a lower than expected offer, but the buyers have proven their qualifications and commitment by securing loan pre-approval, you have grounds for serious consideration. The process of counter-offering can be swiftly settled or carry on ad nauseam. Be prepared to explore all options and act quickly before letting your negotiations fail.

THE IMPORTANCE OF A COMMUNICATIONS PLAN

Looking for over-the-top results with increased demographics, it is important to identify or group visibility to attract more customers to make more them into categories that can be identified. Some sales? 'A solid communications plan for your business will set the stage for greater long-term sales success. The process entailed in developing a well-rounded communications plan helps the business owner to clarify the message and answer questions for customers in the marketplace. What do you sell? How does it benefit them, and why should they do business with you?

During the current era, it is imperative to understand the primary customer profile(s) of those who patronize your business. The days of simply placing ads in traditional media and awaiting the arrival of customers with money in hand at your door or at your online store are long gone. Putting a system of multi-tiered communications activities in place is critical to reaching and connecting with customers. With the choice of readily available social media, even the smallest of businesses can become a marketing powerhouse with the proper combination and use of these tools.

Your communications plan should be informed by the demographics of your customers. If your primary target is comprised of "baby boomers," it is important to determine if your marketing needs to be developed for those of retirement age, or the youngest set of baby boomers likely to continue working over the next three decades. The old "one size fits all" approach to reaching customer by paying for display ads and radio spots is no longer an option for entrepreneurs intent on building profitable enterprises.

If your customer base fits within a range of examples include retired seniors 65 and older, families with younger school-aged children who attend public school, or an influx of new potential customers resulting from a newly-completed tract of townhouses. To be useful, this information must be coupled with a basic set of demographic detail about your target audience, including age range, ethnicities, gender, marital status, educational level, income level, homeowner or renter and other descriptives.

Much of this information can be gathered through observation and day-to-day interaction with your (potential) customers. A significant database of demographic information is available via the internet, starting with websites and reports posted by local cities, school districts, county governments, chambers of commerce and others that compile statistics about residents within a geographic region.

Once you have enough detail to formulate a true demographic profile of your target market, you will have the information needed to determine the modes and methods of communications most appropriate. If you're like most businesses, you will have a tiered audience that fits into several profiles. This will require a communications plan with a combination of tools and techniques, including traditional technology to create and maintain success with older seniors accustomed to traditional print advertising, snail mail and phone calls, as well as social media to establish and maintain interaction with audiences adept at using contemporary technology.

NO KNOWN CURE FOR THE YAKETY-YAK SYNDROME

A few during those days. months back I was so sick I had to go see the doctor. That alone indicates the condition was rather serious. I do not like going to the doctor because you have to sit in the waiting room with sick people. I never know what contagious diseases are lurking in the shadows of that doctor's waiting room.

My condition progressed to the point where the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage told me to go to the doctor or else. I never want to deal with her "or else." I have lived as long as I have lived and have enjoyed the health that I do have because I have not found out her

Since I do not have health insurance, every time I go to the doctor it comes out of my own pocket. Recently my pockets have not been very deep. Regardless of how shallow my pockets may be, doctors know how to penetrate to the very depths of my pockets with their special scalpel.

The result of my visit to the doctors was that I had double pneumonia and bronchitis. Simply put, I was sick. He gave me a prescription to fill and then said I should spend at least the next two weeks in bed resting.

I was in such a state of mind that it sounded like a good idea to me. Of course, I made him write it out as a prescription so I could show it to my wife so she would believe me that I'm in bed because I'm sick not because I'm trying to avoid my chores.

The first couple of days I spent in bed hardly conscious of anything around me. I am not sure if I ate during those days are not. I have no

recollection of anything conscious

By the beginning of the second week, I was strong enough to get out of bed, put on my bathrobe and get back in bed and rest. It was not long before I could actually put on the bathrobe, go out into the living room, sit down in my easy chair and watch TV.

I have never watched as much TV as I did during those several weeks of recuperation. I am not saying there is anything wrong with TV, just that there is not that much right with TV anymore. I did not know how bad TV was until I watched it for about two weeks. During this time I was too sick to read and so settled down to watching TV, that is between naps.

I would set a program and leaned back and within two winks of my left eye I was sound asleep. When I say sound asleep, I mean my sleeping was very sound, I did not know what was going on around me. Occasionally I would pierce the world of consciousness and see what was on TV. Then I would fall back into the delightful world of unconsciousness.

After a few days of this, I was able to stay in the conscious world a little bit longer and consequently I was watching TV a little bit longer. The thing I found about TV is that TV dominated by chatterboxes.

My ears were beginning to have its fill of chatter. I do not believe my ears were created to handle such a steady stream of incoherent verbiage. All day long, my ears were bombarded by noise coming from the mouths of people who had no idea what they were saying. I say that because, if they knew what they were saying and were hearing what I was hearing, I do not think they would be saying it so people could hear.

The TV world has been taken over by a hostile terrorist group known as talk shows. Does everybody in the world have a talk show? I have never seen or heard so much talking all of my life. After all, there are only 26 letters in the alphabet, how can people come up with so many words?

The airwaves are filled with news talk shows, celebrity talk shows, cooking talk shows, sports talk shows, religious talk shows, talk shows of every variety you could think of and some you would not even think of. When I say variety, I am referring to the title of the talk show. Once you get beyond the title, everything is the same.

The only skill one needs to have for a talk show is, open your mouth and let verbiage flow uncontrollably and the more incoherent the better.

Between sneezing and blowing my nose and coughing uncontrollably, I watched some of these shows. Who in the world is watching these shows? Somebody must be. The only reason I was watching them was that I was so sick I could not do anything else. Maybe that is their audience. When I got to the place that I could read without my eyes watering too much, I read what the Bible has to say on the subject. "And that ye study to be quiet, and to do your own business, and to work with your own hands, as we commanded you" (1 Thessalonians 4:11 KJV). I have come to a somber conclusion; more people talk than listen, which is why the world is in the state it is in. I call it the Yakety-Yak syndrome of which there is no known cure.

realize I something very important. Before I sat down to make an attempt at writing this article I put on a T-Shirt designed by the husband of my wife's niece. The shirts he designs utilize designs similar to the creations of Maurice Sendak. These designs, which are at least reminiscent of Sendak designs, demonstrate children's continuing fascination with monsters. Children and many adults love scary things. You probably do too; I don't.

Similarly, I don't have much interest in fantasy. Movies like Avatar leave me kind of cold. I lose the plot line and fall asleep. Recently I went to Universal Studios with my son and his girl friend. They love the scary rides with monsters, mayhem and screams. It all sort of bores me. I am not a fan of video games. At least I don't think I am. I've never played them and have no interest in doing so. Also movies with explosions and car crashes generally put me to sleep.

So, big deal. I generally think I have a fine, interesting life without appreciating any I am a collector of historical information and trivia. I can name all the Presidents in chronological order and also most of the Vice-Presidents. Recently, my wife, son and I visited Chicago and toured Wrigley Field, the home of the Chicago Cubs. To the appreciation of almost no one, I recited the starting line-ups of the Chicago Cubs of 1952. I can still name all, or almost all, of the managers of major league baseball in 1952. I love reciting the names of old candies or cereals or old movies. Although this kind of thing provides me with great pleasure, even I think it's odd. How can it be possible that I am fascinated by such junk when I am disinterested in space ships, technology, and the Thinking about it now I realize that I am not even very interested in nature. So many people find joy in gardening and Even playing with nets is not just about everybody else, loves dog and friend Milo but we have care.

Sometimes a different kind of relationship. It is not solely verbal, but almost.

> As I walk around each day I imagine that I am gathering information for some very important purpose. I think my dog is doing the same thing; gathering information as he sniffs and smells to utilize at some future important time. But he does a better job than I do. I compare myself to my neighbors, who on these same morning walks notice the signs of erosion, the weather conditions, and spots particularly vulnerable to floods. I know that both my neighbors and my dog are better prepared for future catastrophes than I am.

Another thing I just thought of is how uninterested I am in other areas of life. Every morning since I could read I have read the morning newspaper; but what do I read? The Sports Page. Every day I can tell you what teams won what games yesterday. In my head hear the deceased columnist George Will saying, "Even if the front page had a headline that read The Secret Sex Life of George Will Revealed, I would still read the Sports Pages first". The difference between George of this stuff but, lately, I've Will and me is that after he read been wondering. I notice that the Sports Page he read the rest of the paper. I do not. I am not very interested in economics or celebrities or murder trials. I do like reading obituaries and stories about authors. I don't like poets though; too hard.

All right already, what is the point of this continuing dreary accounting of my own limitations? What bothers me is that people like me are generally good at going to school. We sail along basically unchallenged by things that are difficult for other people and become professionals and live pretty nice lives without giving very much back to the world. We, the memorizers of trivia, are successful students but, I believe, are permanently inhibited by our fears. There is no developed imagination to help us face the challenges of life. Instead we fill our lives with small accomplishments while taking few risks and wondering why we do not feel fulfilled. Maybe it's too late for nurturing their tomatoes. Rep. Duncan: "I want them to do their job and that's why I say, wouldn't you agree with me that it's negligent for us as an American administration to deport someone who was reportedly at the scene of the bombing and we're going to deport him, not to be able to question him

There's been so much reported on this that's been wrong that İ can't even begin to tell you, Congressman. We will provide you with accurate information as it becomes

The above exchange took place at a congressional hearing last week on the Boston attack. Sen. Chuck Grassley (R-IA) picked up on Rep. Duncan's line of questioning with Sec. Napolitano at a Senate hearing on immigration, when he asked how the Saudi student "who reportedly was on a terrorist watch list" was able to obtain a student visa. Sec. Napolitano had to correct the Senator; "He was not on a watch list . . . he was never even really a person of interest."

That 20-year-old Saudi student, himself a victim of the bombing, was never "arrested", "detained", put on a terrorist watch list or considered for What's astonishing Tsarnaev deportation.

in government, those we rely upon to knowledgably lead us, are falling for fictions circulating in the conservative blogosphere; accepting as credible what they hear from the likes of Glenn Beck and "experts" appearing with Sean Hannity.

It wasn't just the wing-nuts, though, jumping ahead with speculation labeled "news". The very night of the tragedy, the York Post announced on website, "Investigators have a suspect – a Saudi Arabian national - in the horrific Boston Marathon bombings". The posting stated a "law enforcement source confirmed" that twelve people had died – four times the actual figure.

Also that evening, the Wall Street reported, "Authorities believe they have found five additional undetonated explosive devices" - a statement later amended by a clarifying "update": "officials doubt the devices found were indeed bombs".

Two days after the bombing, CNN and others were reporting about the arrest of a "dark-skinned" individual. Wolf Blitzer was pushing reporter John King on whether the "suspect" had a foreign

As ghastly as events were, there was no secret plot to allow an implicated Saudi individual to leave the country and escape ustice, no indications of there being undetonated devices yet undiscovered in the streets of Boston, and so far no evidence of ties to al Qaeda or other international Jihadist organizations.

Some have described the need to fill 24/7 news cycles, and to be the first – not necessarily the most accurate. There's another factor involved, though, which explains Republicans' embrace of the most outlandish conspiratorial talking points. In his column for The Daily Beast, Michael Tomasky describes it as conservatives' "constant need to stoke fear".

As Tomasky explains, the talk of having 19-year-old Dzhokhar declared an "enemy

There was fear of the government coming to take away our guns, or at least creating a "registry" of owners, that led to the defeat a couple weeks ago of measures that would make it harder for potential terrorists like the Tsamaev brothers to acquire weapons without a background check. That same Sen. Grassley, who stoked fear that someone on a terrorist watch list might be granted a student visa, is the one who four years ago stoked fear that the president's Affordable Care Act could lead to "death panels" that would "pull the plug on Grandma".

Tomasky reminds that "This is how we lived under Bush and Cheney for years. This fear is basically what enabled the Iraq War to take place." There was fear of mushroom clouds and WMD; fear of another 9/11 led to our adopting a Patriot Act though which we willingly sacrificed constitutional protections of privacy and due

F.D.R. quoted H.G. Wells when he declared, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself." This came at a time when serious commentators suggested we had reason to fear a permanent Depression unless we acknowledged that our 150-yearold experiment in constitutional democracy and free-market capitalism had run its course, and that our only hope for survival as a nation would be to adopt more draconian measures as were then being practiced in Germany and

IS ASSIMILATION POSSIBLE? By Susan Stamper Brown

It is reasonably simple to find American is America; that "Shining City on Apparently so a Hill" -- a nation of immigrants, magnificently colored by a diversity of persons and cultures amalgamated into "one nation under God." That's who we are and how we roll. The beauty of it is... those who are uncomfortable with that... are free to leave. No harm, no foul. Something the Tsarnaev brothers should have done long ago. Lives would be saved, limbs would be intact, a little 8 year-old boy would still be smiling, and I'd have no need to write this column. While we search for answers, it is human nature to cast blame. But it is unacceptable to blame not connected to a large terror the American way of life as some liberals are doing. Killing or maiming innocent people is not how we resolve personal conflict. With that said, I also believe leftwing knuckleheads in the media, schools, and universities need to accept their share of responsibility. Relentless anti-American diatribes will eventually work their way into the hearts and minds of those already struggling to assimilate. A perfect example is former NBC anchor and author of "The Greatest Generation," Tom Brokaw, who recently suggested America is partly to blame for the Boston bombings because the Tsarnaevs may have felt "alienated" and upset over U.S. drone strikes on "innocent civilians." What an odd statement coming from a man who profited by praising a generation who fought wars to win, politicalcorrectness-be-damned.

difference then was America was willing to do whatever it took to halt evil in its footsteps. And now he seems to find it politically correct to damn America. What's up with that?

It also doesn't help that terrorism sometimes pays off. If you wait long enough, you could end up like former homegrown terrorist, err, activist, Bill Ayers. Without repenting for his deeds, Ayers found a way to weasel into the

I am a conservative, so I have heart, and because I am a Christian, I have a bleeding heart. And my bleeding heart breaks for those who don't realize the gift they have and deliberately refuse to be woven into the fabric of this nation of immigrants.

Everyone seems relieved that the Tsarnaev brothers were most likely network somewhere else in the world. If this is true, this suggests this evil came from within themselves, despite all they had going for them. This battle they seemed to have going on between two very different worlds was powerful enough to convince them that even an innocent 8 year-old boy is fair game. How many more are there?

This seeming inability to assimilate came into clearer focus for me this week during a White House press conference when Muslim reporter Amina Ismail's question seemed to liken an act of war in Afghanistan to an act of terror. "...President Obama said that what happened in Boston was an act of terrorism," said Ismail, "I would like to ask, do you consider the U.S. bombing on civilians in Afghanistan...a form of terrorism?" Of course, the correct answer is "no," but the obvious disconnect begs a more troubling question: Is assimilation
