FIRE SAFE SIERRA MADRE - PROTECT YOUR HOME FROM WILDFIRE

By SM Fire Captain Rich Snyder

In California, hazardous vegetation is one of the major contributors to urban wildfires. Dry vegetation is the easiest fuel to ignite, but fortunately one of the simplest to abate. Wildfire danger is greatest to hillside homes, but dry grass, weeds, chaparral, and flammable landscaping surrounding your home can bring the fire to you, whether you live on a hillside or not. When fire starts, those shrubs ignite and explode, spreading fire to your house. The greatest wildfire danger is in the fall; however, as we saw last week in Monrovia, fires can happen any time of year.

No homes were lost during the resent Monrovia "Madison" fire. Even with the over 200 fire fighters, 65 engines, dozers, fixed wing tankers and five helicopters fighting hard to protect the community, the outcome would have been much different if the fire had occurred during the fall when fuel moistures are low and the dry windy weather patterns that exist at that time of year are present.

The success battling wildfires is no accident. Fire departments put up a good fight; however, they can not do it alone. We rely on the help of homeowners who gave us a "fighting chance" by maintaining proper brush clearance around their

Each year, The Sierra Madre Fire Department works with the residents in the foothills to help provide that "fighting chance" that is desperately needed to prevent a disastrous fire. This is done through an aggressive brush management program and by educating the residents on what to do before, during and after a brush fire.

Here is a list of the brush clearance requirements that you can use to protect your

SIERRA MADRE FIREFIGHTERS SEND STRIKE TEAMS TO SPRINGS AND CANYON FIRES

When fire strikes, everyone pitches in. At press time, the Sierra Madre Fire Department had strike teams dispatched to both the Springs Fire and the Canyon Fire, north of the city. According to SMFD Chief Steve Heydorff, fire-fighters were working 24 hour shifts to assist in the containment of both fires. At the Spring Fire, engine OES (Office of Emergency Services) 281, pictured above, and Striketeam 1801A was "working 24 hour shifts doing mop up and catching spot fires."

SMFD "Water Tender 41is working at the Glendale Fire working with Glendale Engine 25", said Heydorff. He also noted that "Engine 41 and RA 41 are ready to respond to any emergency in town."

We want you to be a part of our City Team!

The Sierra Madre City Council encourages citizen participation in its decisionmaking process through the use of citizen commissions. Currently, there are five citizen commissions established by the Council to advise and assist them in dealing with specific problems.

Applications may be obtained at City Hall or the City website at http:// cityofsierramadre.com/commissions-boards-committees. Applications will be accepted until all positions are filled; however, it is recommended that applications for appointment for the beginning of the 2013-2014 fiscal year be submitted by Friday, June 7, 2013 to the City Manager's Office.

The advisory bodies study a variety of topics in detail. After gathering all pertinent information, hearing arguments, and weighing values, they recommend to the Council what they consider the best action to take. In certain situations, commissions are empowered to make specific decisions, subject to appeal to the Council. Public notices on all commissions are prepared in compliance of the Maddy Act.

COMMUNITY SERVICES COMMISSION

The Community Services Commission is responsible for overseeing the City's recreation and community services programs. The Commission oversees the general use of park facilities and matters relating to the community's arts and recreational service needs. PLANNING COMMISSION

The responsibilities of the Planning Commission fall into two broad categories: consideration of current land-use (i.e. applications for General Plan amendments, zone changes, specific plans, conditional use permits, tract maps, variances, and appeals of staff land-use decisions); and advising the City Council on City initiated amendments to the City's General Plan. Meets the 1st and 3rd Thursday at 7:00 pm, in the City Hall Council Chamber

We are doing this survey now because we are excited to launch a new channel, Channel 98. As you might know, Channel 3 on Time Warner Cable has been airing City Council and Planning Commission meetings, and other City government events, live for years and this important service will continue. But we are now adding Channel 98 as a commercial free, educational channel that will feature children's programming, classic movies and TV shows, how-to shows, community special events and other interesting and eclectic programming relevant to our lives in Sierra Madre all presented without commercials and without fundraising. It is our channel, it is starting from scratch, and we need you to tell us what you want to see on it.

Please take a few minutes to fill out this questionnaire either online at www.surveymonkey.com/s/X6VBWYB or drop it off at City Hall, Sierra Madre Library, or the Recreation Center by May 31, 2013 and be part of creating something that will entertain and inform us, be unique to our special town, and make us proud. SIERRA MADRE AUTHOR MERRILL JOAN GERBER DISCUSSES AND SIGNS THE HYSTERECTOMY WALTZ

Monday, 05/13/2013 7:00 pm Vroman's Bookstore 695 E. Colorado Blvd Pasadena

Imagine being told before the age of forty that because you have an ovarian cyst, the surgeon wants to take out the "whole kit and caboodle." Imagine being told that "because you already have your children, who needs "all that," you can "keep the playground but get rid of the plumbing." Imagine watching a film strip at the hospital which assures you that though you will no longer have your female organs, you will still have romance in your life and will be "able to waltz the night away with your husband."

The Hysterectomy Waltz is a sharp and cynical, funny and tragic comedy, a story of marriage and motherhood under the threat of the knife, a tale of friendship and betrayal.

"It's truly powerful, and acrid, and barbed, and filled with wonderful, and unexpected, turns of phrase and above all it's shocking in its directness and understated anger and sadness and fear... it's an amazing piece of writing."—Cynthia Ozick

At 12:30pm, a resident parked and locked her vehicle near Sierra Madre Nursery School (701 E. Sierra Madre Boulevard) and went inside to pick up her daughter. When she returned five minutes later, she discovered that the vehicle right side window had been smashed and her purse was missing. The investigation could not determine what type of object was used to smash the window and no witnesses to the crime were found. The victim's purse contained identification, credit cards and currency. Friday April 26, 2013

A resident in the 200 block of San Gabriel Court parked his work truck overnight in the street near his house. The next morning a neighbor alerted the owner that the doors and cabinets on the vehicle were open. The owner then discovered that a number of power tools had been removed from the truck. The investigation determined that the vehicle doors and cabinets were left unlocked overnight and an unknown suspect was able to easily access all areas of the truck. A readable print lift was obtained and the investigation is on-going.

Sunday April 28, 2013 At 9pm, officers went to a residence in the 00 block of West Sierra Madre Boulevard to conduct a felony probation compliance check. As they interviewed the individual on probation, the officers observed a white crystalline substance and narcotics paraphernalia in plain sight on an entry room table. Further investigation determined that the substance was methamphetamine. This constituted a violation of the terms of probation. The individual (male 28 years of age) was arrested for possession of a controlled substance.

AIR QUALITY FORUM MAY 11, 2013

One of California's greatest policy challenges – air quality – will be the topic of a free public forum Saturday, May 11, 2013, from 8:30-11 a.m. The Sierra Club, Sustainable World of All Saints Pasadena and the League of Women Voters Pasadena Area are joining hands to sponsor the forum at

> All Saints' Sweetland Hall, 132 N. Euclid Ave., Pasadena.

Representatives from the port of Los Angeles, Pasadena Water and Power and California Air Resources Board will discuss the critical role and economic cost to transportation and energy industries in meeting those standards. They also will address how air-quality policies affect business, the economy and consumers.

What policies govern the electric sector and what effect do they have on electric bills. How air-quality policies affect the movement of goods and in turn the economy.

LaRonda Bowen, ombudsman for the California Air Resources Board (CARB), will describe the Shari Thomas, assistant general manager of Pasadena Water and Power, will discuss policies governing electricity, how the local utility is complying and what it means to rate payers.

Teresa Pisano, environmental mitigation coordinator for the Port of Los Angeles, will talk about the port's specific policies and effects on the movement and pricing of goods.

Felicia Williams, former chair of the Environmental Advisory Commission for the city of Pasadena, will moderate.

A continental breakfast will be served. Free parking is available in the church lot at the corner of Euclid Avenue and Walnut Street. Further information is available by calling. 626-798-0965

According to police, shortly before 9:00 a.m. Tuesday dispatchers received a 911 call transfer from the California Highway Patrol. The woman on the phone was distraught and uttered she was in Pasadena and had been burned and tied up by a male. The call was then disconnected.

Pasadena Police Officer connected the caller's phone number to a residence in the 700 block of N. Pasadena Avenue. No one was located at the residence.

When she attempted to remove the helmet, the suspect held the helmet in place until she lost consciousness. She later awoke to find the suspect sexually assaulting her.

The victim remains hospitalized in serious, but stable condition with second and third degree burns.

Dudkiewicz remains in custody on $1.4 million dollars

Passes Key Committee

The Assembly Health Committee has Assemblymember Holden's bill to give patients a choice in pharmacy health

AB 299 targets mail-order prescription mandates by prohibiting any mail-order pharmacy from entering into contracts with health insurance companies when the insured are required to purchase their medications from a mail-order pharmacy.

"Let's use some common sense here. The average consumer wants to have a choice in where he or she purchases prescription drugs," said Holden. "These plans shouldn't discriminate on where you buy your medications. Let the patient choose what works best for him or her - a local pharmacy or a mail-order pharmacy. I am especially concerned that seniors or those with complicated conditions such as cancer, hepatitis or HIV/AIDS have access to the pharmacist of their choice."

AB 299 follows reports earlier this year that health insurer Anthem Blue Cross was going to require thousands of its California patients with chronic diseases such as cancer, rheumatoid arthritis and HIV/AIDS to buy prescription drugs from a mail order pharmacy. Anthem has since backed off while they reevaluate the requirement. But Assemblymember Holden felt it was important to go ahead with the legislation to ensure consumers have a choice.

AB 299 is supported by several senior groups including AARP California and the California Senior Legislature, California Pharmacists Association, AIDS Healthcare Foundation, Target and Walgreens among others. Earlier, AB 299 passed the Assembly Business, Professions Consumer Protection Committee. It now goes to Assembly Appropriations for fiscal consideration.

Pasadena Marathon Course Map Revealed Event downgraded

to half marathon
Although this year's

Pasadena Marathon is set for June 30, the popular event, now in its fifth year, will be downgraded from a full marathon to a half marathon officials announced this week. Also cut this year is the bike tour.

The marathon will feature a half marathon, 10K, 5K, and kids run.

"Unfortunately, though it was our wish to once again put on a great Full Marathon, Full Marathon Relay, and Bike Tour event, the events were not permitted by City of Pasadena Staff," a notice says greeting runners as they visit the events website pasadenamarathon.org.

City staff said the event draws less than 1,000 participants something they say cannot justify shutting down the high number of city streets dunning a full marathon. The full marathon shuts down 26.5 miles of city streets, something city officials said is more of an undertaking than needed for the Rose Parade. Pasadena Marathon Race

no stranger to controversy with the city. Estrada has said the biggest issue with the marathon, in the past, has been that the event has never had a permanent race date. He also said that each year, city staff final approval does not give runners enough time to train. He also said that canceling the full marathon will stop attracting running from as far away as Australia.

Last year the event was held in May and prior to that in March

This year's race will again start at Pasadena City College, then snake through the city passing historic landmarks such as city hall, downtown old Pasadena and the Rose Bowl stadium.

Organizers also announced this year's art contest winner, Marion Eisenmann, who designed a new look for the marathon including the logo, t-shirts and medals.

There will also be a question and answer session, May 7, for team captains or anyone else forming a group for the run. The meeting will be held at 6:30 p.m. at the Soupplantation 201 South Lake Avenue.

MAY 4-5: SHOOTING STARS FROM HALLEY'S COMET

The Eta Aquarids meteor shower will peak in the early hours before dawn on Sunday, May 5. Away from city lights, up to 30 shooting stars an hour can be seen. Each one is a small bit of Halley's Comet streaking across Earth's atmosphere. A thin crescent moon makes for dark skies, and best viewing is in the hour or two before dawn. Some meteors may be visible for a few days before and after May 5 due to the broad peak of this shower. http://www.jpl.nasa.gov/

MAY 9-10: FREE LECTURE – RADAR IMAGING OF NEAR-EARTH ASTEROIDS

Radar is a very powerful astronomical technique for studying the physical properties and refining the orbits of near-Earth asteroids. The world's only two radar telescopes for imaging asteroids are at Arecibo, Puerto Rico, and Goldstone, These telescopes can image near-Earth asteroids with resolutions as fine as several meters, which greatly exceeds the finest resolution available from any ground- or spacebased optical telescope (even the Hubble Space Telescope). Radar images reveal an object's size, shape, rotation state and features on its surface such as craters, ridges and even large boulders. Scientists have discovered that one-sixth of near-Earth asteroids larger than 200 meters (656 feet) in diameter are double systems that revolve around each other, like miniature versions of Earth and Moon, and that 10 percent of near-Earth asteroids look like gigantic peanuts, while others resemble muffins and potatoes. Free lectures on May 9 at JPL; May 10 at Pasadena City College; both at 7 p.m. http://www.jpl.nasa.gov/ events/lectures_archive. cfm?year=2013&month=5

News and Views from Joan Schmidt

ELEVEN YEARS LATER, DAVE MARCH IS GONE, BUT NEVER FORGOTTEN

It's hard to believe eleven years have passed since Deputy Dave March was gunned down by a coward, whom he had pulled over for a traffic stop. That day I'll never forget-I was at my school, Annunciation, Arcadia, teaching sixth grade. The sirens seemed endless and we were put on lockdown. One frantic call to Sgt. Mike Rodriguez confirmed my worst nightmare. Our area 57 Deputy Dave March-the big guy with the big grin was gone. The suspect was Jorge Arroyo Garcia, aka Armando Garcia fled to Mexico and was arrested there in 2006. Finally he was extradited to the US in 2007 and is now serving a life term. (The Death Penalty could not be sought; otherwise Mexico would never have sent him back here.)

In the days following Dave's death, many beautiful posters, cards, flowers and remembrances appeared by the site. The following Saturday I attended the funeral and rode on one of the buses from Temple Station provided for their personnel and City/Town Council Members. As I rode to the funeral site, I was overwhelmed how the residents of Saugus came out for Dave. Along the sidewalks, were people of all ages, holding signs and flags. It was beautiful. Behind us were six miles of law enforcement vehicles in support of Dave.

The services were beautiful. Governor Davis came down from Sacramento, Supervisor Antonovich and public officials, Sheriff Lee Baca, CHP Commander Mike Brown, Temple Station Commander Captain Roberta Abner and all Temple Station deputies. (It should be noted that when these tragedies occur, deputies from other station and local police will cover for the station of the fallen deputy so all can attend services.) There was the gun salute, release of doves and a horse without a rider. Captain Abner was eloquent and Teri March was presented with the flag.

Eventually Irwindale Police Department and a few local businesses put up the permanent Memorial to Dave as he was killed on Live Oak in Irwindale. A beautiful Memorial to Dave at Temple Station was the gift of his fellow personnel there. A year later, a rally was held at the Irwindale Speedway. Teri, Dave's widow, his parents, and sister Erin all spoke. They were angry that the coward who killed Dave was still at large.

Armando Garcia will spend the rest of his life in jail. Teri March has remarried to a wonderful man and they have two beautiful sons. But Dave will always have a special place in her heart, and in the hearts of his family, many friends, coworkers and all residents of the MAD county area. And of course Temple Station deputies once again stood in a 24 hour vigil at the site Dave was gunned down. Ten-seven in heaven, Deputy Dave March. You will never be forgotten.

AROUND SAN GABRIEL VALLEY

I finally saw "High Noon" with Gary Cooper, a movie that I'd heard of forever, but for whatever reason, never had a chance to view. Finally,

41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041, or from www.ChristopherNyerges.com.]

last Fourth of July, I had the opportunity to watch this classic. The lessons of this movie are worth reflection, since the movie captured some of the most basic, universal, timeless human traits. Set in the western genre, Gary Cooper (Cain) is getting married to a Quaker woman, and therefore resigning as marshal of this small town. His resignation is occurring just one day before the new marshal is set to arrive. This means there will be no marshal for one day.

Coincidentally, three "bad guys" show up in town, awaiting a train that's due to arrive at high noon.

On board the train is Frank Miller. Apparently, it was because of Cain that Miller was sent to prison, and Miller is coming to seek revenge.

But Cain just got married, and was heading out of town. He could just walk away from it all. He no longer has any legal responsibilities to the small town. But his personal ethics compel him to go

Some time earlier, Cain and company had managed to drive all the bad elements from the town, and turned the town into the sort of place where people would want to come to in order to work and to live a good life.

There's also another woman (isn't there always?) and a cast of characters all caught up in the pettiness of their own lives.

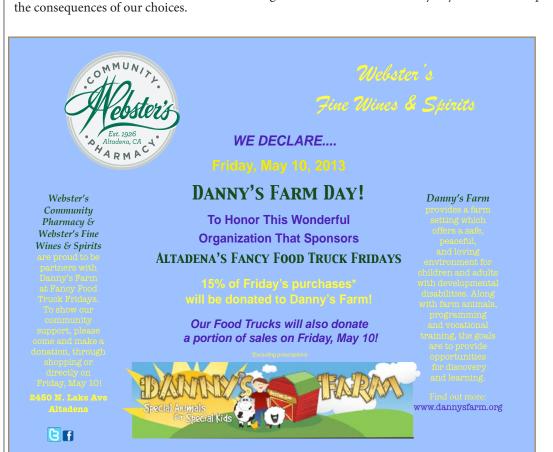

As we watch the clock tick down to noon, Cain attempts to round up some men and deputize them in order to fight back Miller and his gang of three. But it turned out that Miller and gang had many passive supporters in the town, those who liked the wild days before Cain got Miller sent to prison. You'd think that the whole town would rally behind Cain, but each one had their own fears, their own doubts, and their own excuses. The movie is a fantastic study in human character. The basic "good vs. evil" drama is depicted here, which reminded me of the "Lord of the Flies," where the two sides set themselves against one another. Pleasure vs. discipline. Freedom vs. control. Do what you want vs. do what is right. In the end, Cain does his duty and gets some unanticipated assistance. Duty done, he finally tosses his brass badge in the dust and departs that little town that offered no help.

This is a movie worth taking the time to watch, and having a discussion afterwards. It makes you realize that with all our modern trappings today, we are no better and no different than the parochial folks in that little isolated town, who - like us - get to look in the mirror every day, and must accept

CASSINI IMAGES LARGE HURRICANE ON SATURN

NASA's Cassini spacecraft has provided scientists the first close-up, visible-light views of a behemoth hurricane swirling around Saturn's north pole.

In high-resolution pictures and video, scientists could see that the hurricane's eye is about 1,250 miles wide—20 times larger than the average hurricane eye on Earth. Thin, bright clouds at the outer edge of the hurricane are traveling 330 miles per hour (150 meters per second). The hurricane swirls inside a large, mysterious, six-sided weather pattern known as the hexagon.

We did a double take when we saw this vortex because it looks so much like a hurricane on Earth," said Andrew Ingersoll, a Cassini imaging team member at Caltech. "But there it is at Saturn, on a much larger scale, and it is somehow getting by on the small amounts of water vapor in Saturn's hydrogen atmosphere."

Scientists will be studying the hurricane to gain insight into hurricanes on Earth, which feed off warm ocean water. Although there is no body of water close to these clouds high in Saturn's atmosphere, learning how these Saturnian storms use water vapor could tell scientists more about how terrestrial hurricanes are generated and

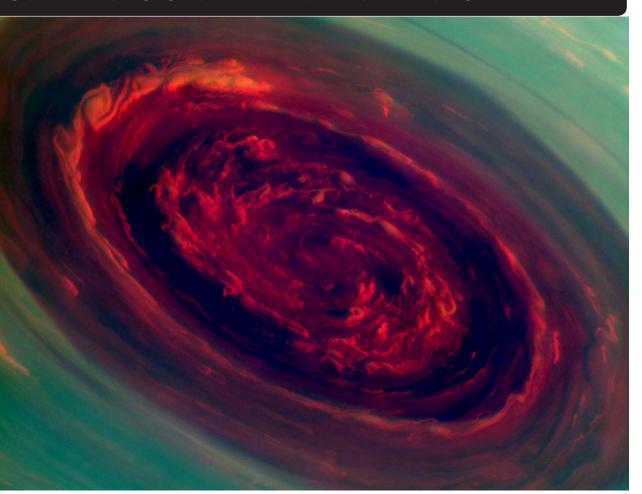

Both a terrestrial hurricane and Saturn's north polar vortex have a central eye with no clouds or very low clouds. Other similar features include high clouds forming an eye wall, other high clouds spiraling around the eye, and a counter-clockwise spin in the northern hemisphere.

A major difference between the hurricanes is that the one on Saturn is much bigger than its counterparts on Earth and spins surprisingly fast. At Saturn, the wind in the eye wall blows more than four times faster than hurricane force winds on Earth. Unlike terrestrial hurricanes, which tend to move, the Saturnian hurricane is locked onto the planet's north pole. On Earth, hurricanes tend to drift northward because of the forces acting on the fast swirls of wind as the planet rotates. The one on Saturn does not drift and is already as far north as it can be.

The polar hurricane has nowhere else to go, and that's likely why it's stuck at the pole," said Kunio Sayanagi, a Cassini imaging team associate at Hampton University in Hampton, Va.

Scientists believe the massive storm has been churning for years. When the Cassini spacecraft arrived in the Saturn system in 2004, Saturn's north pole was dark because the planet was in the middle of its north polar winter. During that time, Cassini's composite infrared spectrometer and visual and infrared mapping spectrometer detected a great vortex at the north pole, but a visible-light view had to wait for the passing of the planet's equinox in August 2009. Only then did sunlight begin flooding Saturn's northern hemisphere. The view required a change in the angle of the spacecraft's orbits around Saturn—a difficult and fuel-consuming maneuver—so it could see the poles.

'Such a stunning and mesmerizing view of the hurricane-like storm at the north pole is only possible because Cassini is on a sportier course, with orbits tilted to loop the spacecraft above and

This image is among the first sunlit views of Saturn's north pole captured by Cassini's imaging cameras. When the spacecraft arrived in the Saturnian system in 2004, it was northern winter and the north pole was in darkness. Saturn's north pole was last imaged under sunlight by NASA's Voyager 2 in 1981; however, the observation geometry did not allow for detailed views of the poles. Consequently, it is not known how long this newly discovered north-polar hurricane has been active.

below Saturn's equatorial plane," said Scott Edgington, Cassini deputy project scientist at JPL. "You cannot see the polar regions very well from an equatorial orbit. Observing the planet from different vantage points reveals more about the cloud layers that cover the entirety of the planet."

BRIDGE WORK DELAYED THREE WEEKS

Completion of the bridge over Colorado Boulevard, and thus the opening of that street and the beginning of construction on the bridge over Santa Anita Avenue has all been pushed back by three weeks until the end of May.

So far, there is no obvious bridge over Colorado Boulevard except on each side of the street. That bridge is the second of four bridges to be built through Arcadia to carry a light rail line an additional 11.5 miles from Pasadena to Azusa.

Until now, work has all been completed on schedule, so the project was overdue for at least the first slight snag.

Media event January 31, 2013, at Colorado bridge construction site.

A spokeswoman for Metro Gold Line Foothill Extension Construction Authority responded today (Tuesday, April 30) to a request over the weekend from ArcadiasBest.com by saying that additional utility work under Colorado Boulevard has required the three-week extension.

Work on the third bridge, the one over Santa Anita, cannot begin until work is completed on the Colorado Bridge. The construction window for the Santa Anita bridge was already tight since the Construction Authority has promised to have work completed or at least halted during the Breeders' Cup the first weekend of November, and hopefully for the entire Autumn Meet horse racing season at Santa Anita Park that begins the end of September.

During the next three weeks, Foothill Transit Construction will be completing the work on the Colorado Boulevard light rail bridge, all underground utility work, rebuilding the street, and re-opening the street to traffic. All that work is anticipated to be completed the third week of May. Following the re-opening of Colorado Boulevard, work will commence on Santa Anita Avenue about the end of May.

Colorado Blvd Bridge Construction:

•The closure of Colorado Blvd has been extended and will continue until the third week of May 2013 due to additional underground utility work. Please click here to view the updated construction notice for this work and additional details on the extension of the closure including detour maps and other additional information.

Santa Anita Ave Bridge Construction:

Construction of the Santa Anita Ave bridge in Arcadia is scheduled to begin at the end of May 2013 and continue for seven months. North and southbound lane closures along Santa Anita Ave (between Newman Ave and Santa Clara St) will be in place during this period. The work will occur in phases. The initial phase is detailed in the following: Please click here to view the construction notice for the first phase of work, which includes a four-month closure of La Porte Street at Santa Anita Avenue.

LEADING THE WAY-NBA STAR JASON COLLINS

Richard Blake with Jason and Jarod Collins

Two years ago after retiring from fulltime teaching, I resumed my writing career. Shortly after, I met Rodney Jefferson, the Head Basketball Coach at Duarte High School. Rodney is an awesome man, who has abundant energy and is always looking for ways to serve others and help

At that time, Rodney was doing his annual A Game Fundamental Basketball Clinic. growth spurt, were 6'6 and could dunk. This special non-profit basketball clinic not only helps develop skills, but its participants learn the value of education, hard work, setting goals and working as a team. The clinic lasts a week, and Friday's ending festivities included games and competition between team and individuals followed by certificates, awards, trophies and a guest speaker.

There were two guest speakers, twin brothers and NBA players, Jason and Jarron Collins from Northridge, California. They blew me away. They spoke of the importance of family and the sacrifices their parents made, so that they could be where they are today. The Collins brothers told the youths to turn around, look at their families and to appreciate them, their support and sacrifices. Setting goals and working hard are an important prerequisite to success. Early on they realized their parents couldn't afford to send both to college, so they had to be successful in the classroom. As far as athletics were concerned, the brothers said there was no substitute for practice and hard work. Jason said he wanted to do his best and challenged himself to do better. One of the brothers was not an "A" student in all classes, so he met with the teacher, asked about extra credit and set aside time each day for homework.

Parolee at Large - Suspect Arrested

April 29 at 9:15 a.m., an officer stopped a vehicle at Shamrock and Lime for speeding and running a red light. A computer check revealed the 43-year-old, male driver was a parolee at large on parole for grand theft auto. After being issued a citation for the traffic violations, he was arrested and taken into custody.

Child Abuse - Suspect Arrested
April 29 at 12:58 p.m., an officer was dispatched to an elementary school in the 200 block of Jasmine regarding a child abuse report. School staff notified the police after a child reported the abuse to her teacher and said she was afraid to go home. The 10-year-old girl was whipped and punched several times by her mother, resulting in the child receiving multiple bruises. Officers investigated and eventually arrested the mother for causing corporal injury to a child. The Department of Children and Family Services took custody of the child.

Violation of Restraining Order - Suspect Arrested

April 30 at 2:54 a.m., a female subject called police reporting her boyfriend was outside her home at the front door. She claimed to have a valid restraining order against the subject. Officers located and detained the subject at a gas station at Foothill and Madison. A computer check revealed the subject had several outstanding warrants. He was arrested on the warrants, and a report regarding the restraining order will be sent to the District Attorney for filing consideration.

Residential Burglary

April 30 at 6:57 p.m., a residential burglary was reported in the 200 block of Madeline. A real estate agent arrived at the home, which is currently for sale, and noticed the front door ajar; she called police. Officers responded and checked the house for possible suspect(s), but no one was located inside the home. The property inside the home had all been moved to the center of the living room, including the refrigerator. The lockbox was missing and there were no signs of forced entry found. The investigation is continuing.

Resisting and Delaying a Peace Officer / No-Bail Warrant - Suspect Arrested

May 1 at 1:55 p.m., an officer on patrol observed a wanted suspect in the area of Palm and Shamrock. When the suspect saw the officer, he ran west and into the school yard of Clifton Middle School in the 200 block of South Ivy Avenue; he ran through the school gym. Responding officers set up containment of the area and advised school staff at Clifton and Tzu Chi Preschool to lock their facilities down. Clifton students had already gone home for the day. A search was begun.

A resident in the 200 block of East Foothill called and reported a subject matching the suspect description had run into their garage. Officers responded and checked the residence, but the suspect had fled the garage out a side door and over a wall. He fled north onto Foothill and out of sight. The schools were advised to release their lock down once officers were convinced he was out of the area.

The suspect eluded officers for several hours, but at 5:36 p.m., he was located in the area of Jasmine and Palm. A perimeter was set up and the Foothill Air Support helicopter responded to assist in the search. After several attempts to evade officers, the suspect finally surrendered and was arrested for the no-bail warrant and for resisting and delaying officers.

Residential Burglary

May 1 at 7:45 p.m., police responded to the 100 block of Los Angeles Avenue regarding a residential burglary. The victim left for work at about 10 a.m. and her home was secured. 14TH ANNUAL CRYSTAL BALL CIRQUE DE LA SALLE DELIGHTS AND ASTONISHES GUESTS Story and Photo by John Blackstock

The 14th Annual Crystal Ball, "CirQue De La Salle" was held on April 12 at the Langham Huntington Hotel in Pasadena. Crystal Ball Chairs, Pamela Jacques P'13 and Hillary Sanchez P'14, chose the theme that is self-described as a dramatic mix of circus arts and street entertainment. Pamela says, "We wanted something different than anything else we had seen in the past and something that would create great energy and fun. Guests enjoyed an evening of wonder and charm in celebration of those in the Lasallian community who help create the La Salle experience through their generosity. CirQue De La Salle was engulfed in bright colors of pinks, oranges, purples, blues and greens as guests dined at tables beautifully adorned with white feather bouquets and draped in multiple vibrant hues, as well as watching performances by contortionists, acrobats, and aerial silk artists.

The night was filled with the thrill of pursuit with bidding on several dozen items during the live, super silent, and silent auctions. The Rêvez Grand (Dream Big) Auction items included tickets and dinner at the LA Phil, hockey tickets for the Anaheim Ducks, Los Angeles Dodgers tickets, Adventures to Sea World, a trip to Augusta, Georgia to attend the 2014 Masters Golf Tournament, and "I Dreamed of Africa" photo safari, just to name of few. Aside from the auctions, there was also an Opportunity Drawing where people had the chance to win a trip for two for a 7-night stay in Hawai'i, an iPad or four Disney Park Hopper passes.

Over 300 guests came to congratulate this year's Crystal Ball honorees Cristi and Steve Seidner P'09, '12. Cristi and Steve were selected as the recipients for the 2013 Lasallian Volunteer Award. The spirit of volunteerism runs deep in the Seidner family. They have volunteered for many places and organizations that included Foothill Unity Center, Maryvale's "Shop for the Girls at Christmas" program, synagogues, Anita Oaks School, Barnhart School, La Salle's Parent Association, Technology Fundraising Committee, and especially the Crystal Ball. "They have been untiring in their commitment to support their children's high school – even after they have graduated," says Dr. Richard Gray, President.

"The Crystal Ball is truly a team effort. All the amazing parent volunteers, La Salle staff, and local businesses play such an integral role in the success of the Crystal Ball. I'm truly thankful to our amazing committee, especially Co-Chair Hillary Sanchez. I couldn't have done it without her," says Pamela.

The Crystal Ball is La Salle's largest fundraiser of the year that allows everyone an opportunity to come together and support La Salle's programs and activities that the School provides to the students.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show THE HOST

While I am not a big Stephanie Meyer fan, I do enjoy sci-fi, and decided to see this movie. For me, Twilight was horrible, but in the end, I enjoyed The Host much more than I thought I would.

Earth has been invaded by an alien race and the planet has never been better: no war, no hunger, and no violence at all. We are at peace. But some of the humans have survived the purge, including Melanie (Saoirse Ronan) and Jared (Max Irons), who find each other and fall in love. However, Melanie gets captured and has an alien, Wanderer aka Wanda, implanted in her. Now, she must not only get Wanda out but also save the remainder of the human race.

There was actually quite a bit of sci-fi themes in this book, enough to make the complex love square bearable. While I expected this movie to fall flat, I actually became connected to the world and

BASEBALL METAPHORS IN A CULINARY WORLD

If you have been following my articles here in the hometown newspaper The Mountain View News you know that I love crab cakes, and recently I have fallen in love with Slater's 50/50 (sorry Big Daddy's - I have been cheating on you, but I do miss you). Last week I persuaded food blogger Howard Meyers to meet me at Slater's. I have been there four times and as far as my success, they were batting a big 1000.00 percent with me as I have enjoyed sitting at the bar and watching the game, sampling what brew I wanted and talking to the Cicerones (fancy name for a bartender who knows his beer). On this day we sat in the main room, and while our server was full of energy things just didn't seem in the groove. A few apologies are okay, but once he engaged us in the 7th inning of our meal he wouldn't stop. I was a little disappointed with my burger, and maybe

I had built up my blogger friend's expectations too high, but he kind of shrugged his shoulders after the meal and said it was just okay, that they didn't hit it out of the park, but he felt the beer list was a homerun. So I am now officially 4-for-5 at Slaters 50/50, a sweet batting average of .800, my Angel/Dodgers Fans, and with both the Angels and Dodgers playing sub-.500 baseball I'll take .800 anytime, I'll be back !!

SIERRA BRIGANTI...REVISITED by Deanne Davis

The weather's getting nicer and the patios at Sierra Briganti are drawing more and more folks in to enjoy a leisurely lunch; a glass of wine or two and a plate of Bruschetta al Pomodoro; or a delightful dinner featuring an exciting "speciale del giorno". Your reporter has been in several times to enjoy the sunshine and the Insalate de Salmone, bringing along friends who are now inviting their friends!

Our Favorite Recipe of the week

STRAWBERRY

CUSTARD PIE

Being a compleat Sierra Briganti fan, I thought I'd drop in for a chat with the Top Chef, David Moreno. The word that comes up the most in David's conversation about the menu is "fresh!" David, Zach Abeyta and Nanni Mastromatteo, partners in Sierra Briganti decided together that a smaller menu of extremely fresh and brilliantly executed dishes is preferable to dozens of selections. And, of course, that "fresh" thing is at the top of the list for each dish.

David has been in the restaurant business for the last twenty plus years, starting at the bottom; yep, dishwasher, at a high-end restaurant in Beverly Hills and learning every aspect of the kitchen. David is originally from Sonora, Mexico arriving in California in 1990. He has lent his talents to six or so southland spots, including Bella Cucina in Hollywood. A Pasadena resident, David and his wife have three children, 23, 18 and 14.

When I asked David if he had a dream for the future, he said it was Sierra Briganti. Needless to say, he loves to cook, loves to bring new dishes to taste. Currently, blueberry pasta with chicken tortellini is one of the specials patrons are requesting again and again. Incidentally, all the pasta, ravioli, and tortellini are handmade right there in the Sierra Briganti kitchen and again, "fresh" makes a huge difference.

The most popular items currently are the Insalate de Salmone and the Panini Caprese at lunch and the daily special dishes. David, Zach and Nanni plan to offer more specials on a daily basis, depending, of course, on what is "freshest!"

All the desserts are also homemade and, having experienced the Bread Pudding, I can only say if the rest of them are as heavenly as that is, the desserts are flying out of the kitchen! Next time in, I'm trying the Cannoli and then the Pana cotta, with two forks and a good friend, of course.

The wine list is excellent and Zach has been sampling some exquisite new white wines to add, now that warmer weather is on the way.

The décor and ambience at Sierra Briganti are charming, restful to the eye, and welcoming as can be. The wait staff is professional and the view is beyond description of our own personal mountains. And here's a little good news in the making: Pizza is coming! That's right, pizza baked in a stone pizza oven will soon be a delightful new menu item!

Next time you plan to dine out, select Sierra Briganti! You'll be so glad you did. Sierra Briganti is at 120 W. Sierra Madre Blvd., Sierra Madre 91024. 626-355-3700. Lunch daily 11:30-2:30p.m. and dinner daily 5-9 p.m. Weekends open till at least 9:30, or longer if everyone is having a fantastic time!

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

ANIMAZONIA WILDLIFE FOUNDATION RESPECT, CARE & HOPE FOR ANIMALS IN NEED

Last week I had the privilege of catching up with a friend and fellow animal advocate, Serena Burnett, co-founder and director of Animazonia very much inspired by her heart-felt dedication to helping exotic animals in need. It had been a while since I'd last seen Serena at the Animazonia fund-raiser last September, so I was anxious to hear about what's been happening with their awesome organization recently. I was pleased to find out that they are still going strong and have continued in their mission to provide a foreverrefuge to big cats and other exotic animals. I first met Serena a few years ago at a yard sale here in Sierra Madre while I was going about my usual Saturday morning routine of seeking out potential pickings around town. Much to my delight I found several great pieces of jewelry at that sale, but more importantly I met a great group of very kind and cool people that share my intense compassion for animals, and I made it a point to keep in touch.

Animazonia Wildlife Foundation got its start in 1987, inspired by co-founder and artist Charles Thompson (who has since passed away). They adopted their first big cat and embarked on a long-term crusade to create a home with proper habitats where more animals could live out their lives peacefully and humanely. From the beginning, they operated solely by the support of their intimate group of founding members until the year 2000, when an attorney volunteered her time to assist them through the lengthy and complicated process of becoming a non-profit organization. They then began operating as a 501(3)c non-profit and have been doing so ever since. Today, Animazonia is a vibrant organization supported by a die-hard dedicated Board of Directors including professional paralegals, musicians, writers, business owners, therapists and artists, all of whom work together and volunteer their skills, time and creative energies to keep Animazonia Wildlife Foundation in operation. Each member plays an integral part in day-to-day operations, and no money is paid in salaries or honorarium, which means a majority of all contributions go directly to the benefit of

A major part of this dedicated group's mission is to educate the public about the importance of providing a sanctuary for wild animals, and keeping the public informed on current proposed legislation designed to prevent the inappropriate breeding, neglect and/or abuse of exotic animals in our country. Exotic big cats and other animals end up in sanctuaries for a variety of reasons, not the least of which is breeding by people who think they will be able to raise them as pets. Ultimately, when they realize how big and strong the animals become as adults, they find themselves unable to control them, so they call the authorities or try to find someone else who will take them off their hands. Other common scenarios include the animal becoming ill, and/or escaping from the organization, I promise you will be glad you did. owner, and then, if they're lucky, to be captured I know I am!

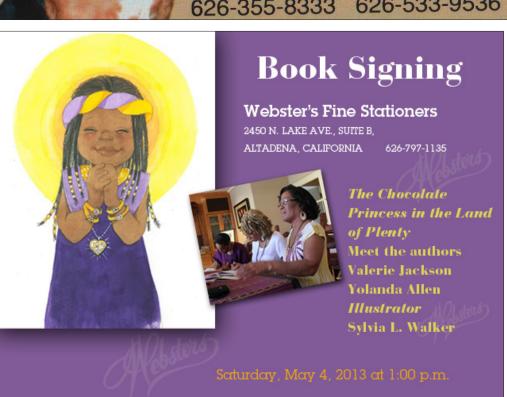

by authorities and eventually placed in a refuge. Tragically, some are gunned down by fearful humans before the authorities have a chance to Wildlife Foundation, and as always I came away capture them and some are brought to sanctuaries after spending years in a zoo or being used for entertainment and just need a place where they can retire with respect and proper care.

I had the opportunity to visit the Animazonia sanctuary in rural Riverside a couple of years ago, and found it to be a virtual Garden of Eden! Hidden neatly and surrounded by lots of open natural wilderness, their property includes a small lake, a quaint cottage and a collection of fenced-in big cat habitat areas, all nestled between a grove of gigantic eucalyptus trees and meandering California oaks. Among their more recent projects, Animazonia added a new type of species to their serene sanctuary. A month ago, they took in several hives of bees that would have otherwise most likely been exterminated, and they are very excited at the prospect of having fresh honey to sell, as another means of helping pay their expenses. They are also planning a bee-keeping class on May 26th for those who are interested in learning about the craft. The folks at Animazonia truly amaze me with all the energy & creativity they put into keeping their sanctuary

How can you help Animazonia continue with the great work they do? Well, first of all next Friday & Saturday, May 10-11 from 8:00am-4:00pm they are having their annual yard sale at 33 Sierra Place in Sierra Madre, and they are asking for donations. For more details and to arrange for pickup, contact Serena at 818-802-9484. Also, be sure and come to the sale and check out all the great treasures. I guarantee you will not go away empty handed, and you will be pleased to meet all the ladies who work so hard for the sake of animals.

Also, Animazonia will be holding their annual wine & chocolate tasting fund-raiser on September 21st (details to be announced). The one I attended with them last year was a blast. I can't wait to see what great ideas they will come up with for this year's event. Another way you can play an important part in helping Animazonia is to visit their website at www.animazonia.org and make a donation, or offer your assistance with any skills you might have to help meet their specific needs. The main goal at the moment is bringing new cats that need a lifetime sanctuary into the facility. Their fundraising efforts are currently geared towards being monetarily prepared to support those new cats for a period of 1 to 3 years, and to also further upgrade the enclosures with new feeding doors and other accoutrements in case those new cats are rescued from the wild and are not used to human contact. I encourage everyone who can, to get involved and start making a difference for the better on behalf of the animals. There are many ways you can help, but whichever way you choose to support this worthy

ASSISTIVE TECHNOLOGIES THAT HELP ELDERLY SENIORS STAY AT HOME

Dear Savvy Senior:

What types of new home technologies can you recommend to help me keep tabs on my elderly mother? She lives alone, about an hour's drive from me, and I worry about her safety. Concerned Daughter

Helping an aging parent remain independent and living in their own home has become a little easier in recent years, thanks to a host of new and improved assistive technology products. Here are some top rated options you should know about.

If you're worrying about your mom falling and needing help, one of the most frequently used products over the years for seniors living alone is a medical alert device - also known as a personal emergency response system, or PERS.

These devices provide a wearable "SOS" button – typically in the form of a necklace pendent or bracelet – and a base station that connects to the home phone line.

At the press of a button, your mom could call and talk to a trained operator through the system's base station receiver which works like a powerful speaker phone. The operator will find out what's wrong, and will notify family members, a neighbor, friend or emergency services as needed.

If you're interested in this, there are dozens of services to choose from including the Philips Lifeline (lifelinesys.com, 800-380-3111) which is the most widely used medical alert service in the U.S. and costs around $35 per month. Phillips also offers a new Auto Alert option (for $48 per month) that has fall detection sensors in the SOS button that can automatically summon help without your mom ever having to press a button. This is helpful because many seniors after a fall become confused or disoriented and forget to press the button.

If you're interested in a more budget-friendly option, consider an unmonitored medical alert like the new VTech CareLine Home Safety Telephone System for $120 (vtechphones.com), which doesn't require professional monitoring services, therefore has no monthly monitoring fees.

Or, to deal with falls or health emergencies that happen outside the home, there are mobile-alert GPS products now available that work anywhere. To find these, see GreatCall.com, MobileHelpNow.com and PhilipsLifelineGoSafe.com.

Monitoring Systems

Another more sophisticated technology for keeping tabs on your mom is with a home monitoring system. These systems will let you know whether she is waking up and going to bed on time, eating properly, showering and taking her medicine.

They work through small wireless sensors (not cameras) placed in key locations throughout the home. The sensors will track her movements, learning her daily activity patterns and routines, and will notify you or other family members via text message, email or phone if something out of the ordinary is happening. For instance, if she went to the bathroom and didn't leave it could indicate a fall or other emergency.

You can also check up on her patterns anytime you want through the system's password-protected website. And for additional protection, most services offer SOS call buttons as well that can be placed

Some good companies that offer these services are BeClose (beclose.com, 866-574-1784), which runs $399 or $499 for the sensors, plus a $69 monthly service fee if paid a year in advance. And Grand-Care Systems (grandcare.com, 262-338-6147), which adds a fantastic social component - through a senior-friendly computer - to go along with the activity monitoring. GrandCare leases for $150 to $300 per month.

Medication Management

If you want to make sure your mom is keeping up with her medications, there are medication management devices you can now rent, that will dispense her medicine on schedule, provide constant reminders, and even notify you if her medicine is not taken. Two products that offer this are Med-Minder (medminder.com, 888-633-6463), which rents for $40 per month, and the Philips Medication Dispensing Service (managemypills.com, 888-632-3261) that costs $75/month.

KATIE TseThis and That GOTCHA! (LATE APRIL FOOLS)

April is over, but it's never too late to share an April Fools story! My friend, Shannon, teaches third grade at a public elementary school (which will remain nameless). As the years have passed, the school's lost several colorful teachers to retirement. One of the most flamboyant teachers, Dr. Jane Marston (not her real name), retired after 30-plus years of teaching junior high. However, Dr. Marston refused to go gently into that good night of retirement, and periodically returns to sub and generally raise Cain.

It just so happened that Jane came in to sub for a teacher who called in sick on April 1. In retrospect, Jane most likely asked the teacher to take the day off so Jane could come and torture the principal. That might sound mean, but the principal is a worthy adversary. She and Jane can't be together long before they're cracking each other up (and whoever is near them) with their playful "trashing" of each other.

Jane started out the morning by sending well-behaved, scholarly students to the principal with bogus referrals of talking disruptively, cussing, cheating on quizzes, and beating up their classmates. Sure, a few of these A-list fourth graders might've experienced a little trauma at being wrongly accused and suffering a moment of unwarranted scorn. But kids are resilient --or so they say.

Jane probably thought that she pulled a good one over on the principal, but she couldn't have anticipated the principal's resourcefulness when it comes to getting even. In the late afternoon, a team of upper grade students hand delivered memos to every classroom (except Jane's). "There will be a practice emergency drill this afternoon. DO NOT EVACUATE!! This is only a drill. Again, DO NOT EVACUATE!!!"

Disruptions and changed plans are as unavoidable to public school teachers as acne is to teenagers. Any rigid, inflexible teacher is sure to be broken before her first year in the classroom is over. Shannon and her fellow teachers received the memo and ignored the emergency bell as instructed.

But the principal was careful to make sure her messengers did not deliver the memo to Jane. Therefore, when the emergency bells rang, Jane marched her fourth graders out onto the field to wait for the rest of the evacuating classes. Except these classes never arrived. Instead, the principal let Jane and her students stand dumbfounded on the field for a few minutes before laughing into her megaphone, "What are you doing all alone out there, Dr. Marston? April Fools!"

FYI - REVERSE MORTGAGE SCAMS

From the FBI and the U.S Department of Housing and Urban Development Office of Inspector General (HUD-OIG) urge consumers, especially senior citizens, to be vigilant when seeking reverse mortgage products. Reverse mortgages, also known as home equity conversion mortgages (HECM), have increased more than 1,300 percent between 1999 and 2008, creating significant opportunities for fraud perpetrators. Reverse mortgage scams are engineered by unscrupulous professionals in a multitude of real estate, financial services and related companies, to steal the equity from the property of unsuspecting senior citizens or to use these seniors to unwittingly aid the fraudsters in stealing equity from a flipped property. They are often offered investment opportunities or refinancing assistance. Seniors are frequently targeted through local churches and investment seminars, as well as television, radio, billboard and mailer advertisements. A legitimate HECM loan product is insured by the Federal Housing Authority. It enables eligible homeowners to access the equity in their homes by providing funds without incurring a monthly payment. Eligible buyers must be 62 years old or over, who occupy their property as their primary residence and who own their property or have a small mortgage balance.

See the FBI/HUD Intelligence Bulletin for specific details on HECMs as well as other foreclosure rescue and investment schemes. If you feel you are a victim of this type of fraud and want to file a complaint, call HUD's hotline at 1-800-347-3735 or your local office of the FBI.

HELPFUL HINT: For a fast fix for drive-you-crazy faucet drips. Tie a piece of string to the faucet nozzle, resting the other end in the drain. The water will slowly flow down the absorbent string, silencing the maddening drip and saving your sanity until you can get it fixed.

FOR YOUR FUNNY BONE

A couple drove down a country road for several miles, not saying a word to each other. An earlier discussion had led to an argument and neither of them wanted to concede their position. As they passed a barnyard full of mules, goats and pigs, the husband asked sarcastically, "Relatives of yours?" 'Yep," the wife replied, "in-laws."

HOW CAN YOGA HELD MORE COMPLAINTS?

Angry, depressed, stressed out? Constipated, overweight, not in optimal health? Trouble sleeping, focusing, getting motivated?

Who do you listen to? Doctor? Life coach? Friend? Therapist? Yoga Instructor? The answers are the same as in last week's column. These days we are in charge of our own care. We are in charge of finding the right help. It can be very confusing. How do we change it? Do we have to live with it? I cannot speak for all yoga teachers. But here is the general philosophy: In yoga we are here to learn about our own bodies and our own minds. We are here to learn what makes us feel better and what makes us feel worse. We are here to pay attention. The practice of yoga is to help you learn to be your own teacher. Your instructor is there to help you learn more about yourself and how to care for yourself in order to do that.

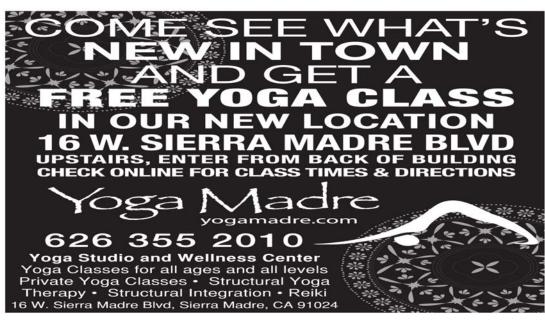

Let's get over the anxiety, let's get things moving, let's find our best weight, and create the lives we want. Let's learn how to manage stress so we can be happy everyday.

Yes, we want to know what to do everyday so we can be free.

Some day I will just start putting out testimonials so you really believe me.

Yoga Therapy is designed to get you in the right place to heal, on your own. It is so very empowering. What are you waiting for?

"SPRING" into Health by Dennis Buckley, DC

If this past weekend you decided that it was time to work on the house, clean up the yard, open the windows and start your spring cleaning, more than likely on Monday morning you woke up feeling achy and stiff. This is a common consequence and is expected with a change in activities.

Your body is sending you a strong message. BEWARE! You are overloading me. Even if you have been exercising regularly, a change in activities can activate muscles and joints not accustomed to activity and this can irritate them.

What can be done? First of all be realistic in what you want to accomplish. Trying to do too much can lead to a situation where you will not be able to do anything. If you are going to work on the house, break down your jobs into smaller jobs that are prioritized in importance. Work safely and correctly. This means the proper equipment, planning, and common sense. More people are injured trying to do projects that are beyond their means or skills.

Drink plenty of fluids, meaning water while working. Wear proper shoes and use sunscreen on exposed areas to avoid sunburn. Lift correctly using the legs and take frequent breaks so as not to overwork your body. Work when it is cooler, early morning or late afternoon/early evening. Wear protective gloves or eye protection when working. Sunglasses can provide protection and lessen stress on your eyes. More injuries occur because of carelessness than anything else does. Stepping on tools, dropping heavy objects on feet, having objects fall on you, tripping, and dehydration all can be avoided with proper preparation.

If you do experience pain and soreness during or after activity, application of ice to the affected area can provide immediate temporary relief. Contrast therapy of ice and heat, 5 minutes of heat followed by 7 minutes of ice for 4 cycles is very effective for decreasing inflammation and increasing motion.

If these symptoms persist, it is advisable to schedule an appointment with your doctor and/or chiropractor. The lack of previous activity and the increase in new activity has probably caused an imbalance in your musculoskeletal system affecting nerve function resulting in symptoms. The chiropractor can identify the problem and by eliminating this imbalance through appropriate treatment will decrease the pain, correct the underlying problem, and allow your body to heal naturally and safely. This will allow you to take advantage of outside activities in spring and through

LIVING TRU by Lori Koop, Right Brain Business Coach

WHAT'S TRU?

"Living TRU"... what does that mean? Let's start with "TRU."

I pondered what acronym I could create from those three letters. I knew it was the spelling I wanted to use, I just didn't know why. I tried to figure out something that would make sense. Something ingenious. Something mind blowing! But nothing came to me.

Not until I opened the door to my doctor's office and in dropped "The Real You." It was not audible, but I heard it. What? Yes, it was true: TRU = The Real You. "T"... The, "R"... Real, "U"... You. Wow! Talk about mind blowing!! It was perfect. Exactly what I was looking for. Because when you are The Real You, you are TRU.

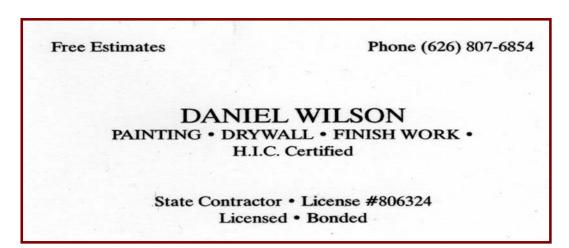

The Real You is who you are at your core. Your Essence. Your spirit. It is the part of you that is ageless and could have been placed into any body. It is not the body, but is located in it.

Specifically, it lives in the right brain. The right brain provides the space from which the spirit can guide and lead. That's what the spirit was designed to do: it holds the map to our right life, to our entire life, including the work we are here to do. It can navigate without guesswork.

We gain access to the map (and the specifics of our life) when we listen deeply. When we spend time in a calm, quiet place -- a place where we can be open to the truth -- we hear the soft voice of the spirit. If our environment is too loud, we cannot hear. Even our own mind can distract us. The worries and concerns, the fears and the doubts of the left brain disconnect us, and we lose access. Our attention is brought to the surface, away from the spirit and into a place far from calm. As these fearful thoughts take over, we lose our clarity. Our sure direction becomes fuzzy. Our confidence dwindles. And we feel lost.

Living TRU is about coming back into alignment: reconnecting with the truth that is in you and your path. Next week, we'll talk about how to connect to the spirit. Stay tuned.

JASMINE'S CORNER

Book Reviews by Jasmine Kelsey Williams

LOSS By Jackie Morse Kessler

With the month of April coming to a close, we now head into the month of May with the Riders of the Apocalypse series by Jackie Morse Kessler, and the starter for this series is "Loss". No need to fret on the confusion, dear readers: "Loss" is the third in this series (coming after "Rage" and "Hunger") but does not overlap into its predecessors, making "Loss" its own unique story. "Loss" focuses on our protagonist fifteen year old Billy Ballard, who tries to live a quiet life: help take care of his grandfather, get through school, and trying to survive the everyday brunt of the school bullies that plague him.

The opening chapters that chronicle Billy's life help readers, especially in their teenage years, to connect with him on his plight and struggles and to understand why he takes a passive approach to his own life, but also delve into his memories when he realizes that he was tricked as a child to take on the role of Pestilence, the White Rider of the Apocalypse.

The pacing does start to pick up as the chapters go deeper, first from Billy's encounter with Death, to his encounter with the White Rider himself, and then also becomes deeper in tone, as Billy learns of what the White Rider does, along with his newfound responsibilities of having to bring sickness and disease. Readers will feel the strong emotions start to come through as Billy gains strength and then confidence when he carries out his task of bringing back Pestilence to be the original White Rider, and then sense optimism when he carries his newfound confidence back into his own original life. Kessler paints a vivid picture of Brian and his world, along with the characters of Death and Pestilence, as well vivid imagery of the mythology that surrounds the universe of the Riders of the Apocalypse. Copyrighted and published in 2012, along with praise from Kirkus Reviews and New York Journal of Books, 'Loss" is a wonderful read for teens and even young adults, as well as an excellent pick to start off your spring or summer reading.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS:

MINI-REVIEWS: PRE-SUMMER MOVIES WORTH CONSIDERING

"PAIN & GAIN"

In this dark comedy from Michael Bay, Mark Wahlberg - alongside Dwayne The Rock" Johnson and Anthony Mackie - all star in this true story of three body builders in Miami who get caught up in an extortion ring and a kidnapping scheme that goes horribly wrong. "Pain & Gain" is loud, fast-paced and wildly humorous and for that, I absolutely loved it. It may be over stylized and outrageously over-the-top, but it's incredibly entertaining from beginning to end. Wahlberg's character, Daniel Lugo, just wants to live the American dream and will go to great lengths to achieve it. With the help of fellow bodybuilders, his vision quickly becomes a reality when they rip off a shady businessman (and one of his clients), Victor Kershaw, portrayed by Tony Shalhoub. Wahlberg, Johnson, and Mackie are all terrific playing naïve, dumb-founded buffoons. Each actor brings a different element and personality to his characters and despite any overlapping similarities they're all distinctively unlike the other. However, one thing is certain, wanting more than just the bare minimum drives them all into acting the way they do. Watching these three guys weave in and out of trouble was the most fun I've had at the theaters so far this year. "Pain & Gain" is worth every bit of its two hours and nine minute running time. It's a great pre-summer flick to seek out before all the heavy-hitters make their way to the plate. Grade: 4 out of 5

"MUD"

Writer/director Jeff Nichols third feature film, "Mud," is the tale of two teenage boys who cross paths with a fugitive on the run. Together they form a pact to help him escape the bounty hunters on his trail in order to reunite him with his true love. Ellis, portrayed beautifully by Tye Sheridan, is one of the boys who happen to stumble upon the title character, Mud (played in yet another strong performance by Matthew McConaughey) on an island out in the Mississippi River. The film has a deep depiction of life in the south. As it unfolds, "Mud" ultimately tells a story of love and heartbreak. Ellis believes in love at all costs even if it's breaking down around all those it consumes. Realistically, he's too young to know what heartbreak truly is. Nevertheless, he continues to help Mud come together with his girlfriend, Juniper (Reese Witherspoon) and witnesses the demise of his own parent's relationship. Ellis' own personal view of love has wandered aloof. Unfortunately, not everything truly works to perfection in this movie, particularly the hollow character Reece Witherspoon must portray, particularly when the pacing of the movie slows down in the second act. However, "Mud" is still a breathtaking movie to view with strong performances by most of its cast and benefits from a wholly original screenplay that would have appeared to be adapted from a great American novel. At any rate, this was a breakthrough performance by young actor Tye Sheridan who displays both sweet and toughness with anger and vulnerability to absolute impeccability. While I didn't love "Mud" perhaps the way I intended, I did like it enough to give it a strong recommendation.

SOCIALLY RESPONSIBLE INVESTING

As the global climate that demonstrate not only financial soundness, but also a concern for quality of life. This investment also a concern for quality of life. This investment philosophy, known as socially responsible investing (SRI), has a special appeal to many individuals concerned with the future of our planet.

What constitutes socially responsible investing?

Investors who adopt an SRI strategy believe their decisions should be governed not only by economics, but also by social issues. This often means refraining from investing in companies or industries that produce products or offer services the investor disapproves of, regardless of the company's or industry's potential for profit or value. Investors who maintain an SRI strategy may choose to avoid investing in companies related to alcohol, tobacco, gambling and weapons. It can also mean investing in gambling and weapons. It can also mean investing in companies that promote workplace diversity, actively participate in community volunteer programs or work to improve the environment.

Benefits, drawbacks and strategies of SRI

As with all types of investing, there are tradeoffs that come with socially responsible investing. Those who practice SRI can feel good that their investment choices reflect their values. However, socially responsible investors must balance this benefit with more limited choices with regard to portfolio diversification.

Some strategies that those interested in SRI may employ include divesting from companies that don't align with their personal morals or beliefs, and participating in shareholder activism or engagement. They may also include:

Investing in SRI mutual funds. These funds include companies that many socially responsible investors support. They use SRI strategies as part of their fund objectives and portfolio choices.

Micro-financing. Money invested in microfinancing service companies is used to support small businesses that otherwise would not be eligible for traditional financing.

Community-investing. Community-As the global climate change discussions heat up in Washington, many investors are paying attention to the impact of their investments on the environment and the well being of people around the world. As this trend has increased, so has the demand for investment choices that demonstrate not only financial sequendages but that demonstrate not only financial sequendages but that demonstrate not only financial sequendages but the demand for investment choices that demonstrate not only financial sequendages but the demonstrate not only financial sequendages after the control of the contro

Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed

TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE

Many homeowners are still facing mortgage default, and while the best bet is to contact your lender directly, there are tempting advertisements out there for companies that claim they can solve your financial crisis. Fraud is rampant, so look out for the following warning signs. First, don't believe the hype when you hear, "We'll stop the auction!" or, "Debt eliminated, guaran-

You should be suspicious of any company that tries to gain your trust by imitating a government agency. They may (illegally) publish government logos and names, or even copy the look of an official website, so pay attention to the details.

Back out of any deal that requires you to pay any fees upfront. There is no need to pay anyone to modify your mortgage terms, because your lender, and only your lender, can do that. Most importantly, do not make mortgage payments to anyone but your lender. If a person or company presents you with an official looking statement that indicates payments should now be made to them, don't walk – run for the door, and call the Better Business Bureau.

By working directly with your lender, you may be able to modify your loan terms, or agree to a payoff through a "short sale" listing. Please heed this advice from an experienced professional.

We often hear success stories from B2C (business to consumer) businesses using social media and email marketing to promote their products and services but can a B2B (business to business) leverage the potential of social media?

A good social media strategy promotes credibility, elevates customer retention, builds relationships and makes it easy for potential customers to find your business when they are searching on-line. There is a hunger to connect with the people behind a brand, the business owner or the person in charge.

According to Real Business Rescue, one-third of global B2B buyers use social media to engage with their vendors and 77% say they are more likely to buy from a company whose CEO uses social media. If you are in the B2B world, you know how important relationships are with your customers. Good relationships generate valuable word of mouth and retain loyal customers.

Here are five ideas to help B2B businesses leverage social media and build stronger relationships with their prospects and customers:

Listen to your customers and prospects. As business owners, it's our job to listen to our customers and understand who they are, what they like, what they don't like and what interests they have. Listening shows you care about their business and their needs. Social media makes it easy to get to know your customers and prospects. Most businesses have some type of social media presence now. "Like" their Facebook pages; follow them on Twitter; connect with them on LinkedIn. Listen to what they are saying and comment on posts that make sense. Do the same with prospects. All the social media tools have a "search" feature that allows you to search by industry or business name.

Provide great content. Figure out what type of information would be helpful for your target audience and be generous with it. Don't worry about giving away the farm, when you share something valuable you position your business as a leading authority in your industry. This helps promote your credibility and professionalism. Keep in mind, it doesn't always have to be original content. Sharing an interesting article or statistic about business trends in your industry is helpful too.

Give your audience ideas that will help them be successful in their business. For example, if you sell wholesale to other businesses, give them ideas or images that will help them promote the product (a tool kit). If you are more of a service provider to another business, share ideas that will inspire their growth.

Use email marketing. Send an email 1-2 times a month to your current customers and prospects. Share industry trends, tips and advice. Talk about the problems you are solving for your customers and share case studies to provide some real world examples (of course, maintaining the confidentiality of actual businesses or individuals by being creative with changing names, geographic locations, etc.). People love to see before and after images. Keep it simple and quick to read. Share your email campaigns on your social sites

Humanize your brand. Show the human side of your business. Share pictures of your team, the boss and others involved with your business. Give them a flavor of your business. We like to do business with people we like, especially when it comes to B2B transactions. Create the likeability factor for your business.

If you are just starting out, do some research and find out where your customers and target audience hangs out on-line. Most B2Bs find that Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn and YouTube get the most action.

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

a sport for everyone to enjoy. I must say I have enjoyed my share of sports.

When younger, I was a baseball fan. I went to as many games as possible. The Stadium in Baltimore Maryland was just a few minutes from my house so I could visit it often, and I often did. I did not really care who won the game as long as it was a good game played, not to mention the

The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage accused me of going to ball games just to eat hotdogs. Whenever I would return from a ballgame the first question would be, not who won the game but, "Ĥow many hotdogs did you eat?'

If the truth was known, and you will not get it from me, many a hotdog sacrificed itself at a ballgame. After all, when you are watching a ballgame, who has time to keep track of how many hotdogs you are eating?

I did have a moment of anxiety once when my wife threatened to weigh me before the game and then weigh me after the game to see if I had eaten too many hotdogs. When she first mentioned it I laughed, but I noticed she was not laughing, which caused me some deep concern.

Fortunately, for me it never got to that, but came perilously close.

Nothing is more relaxing on a Saturday afternoon than sitting in a ballpark watching a ballgame in progress. Somehow, all the cares of the world seem to flutter away while watching

It all ended for me one summer.

I had come into the house from some chore and my wife greeted me by saying, "Do you know your ball team is on strike?"

I looked at her, laughed and said, "I know. They get three strikes and then they're out. That's the way they play the game." I winked at her and laughed good-naturedly. "Finally," I said to her, 'you're coming to understand what the game is all about."

"No, you don't understand. Your team is on strike."

"I get you, and this Saturday I'm going to go and watch them strike again."

It took me a while but finally my wife got through the thickness of my skull and got me to understand the strike she was talking about was not the strike I was talking about. It is always nice when people are on the same page.

In a marriage situation, the biggest challenge

The great pastime of a couple has is staying on the same page. Even though the husband and wife might be reading the same book, for some reason wives have the ability to read three or four chapters ahead. When a husband tries to correct her she impatiently says, "We were on that page last week. Try to > Try as we might, it is a rare husband who can keep up. But we try.

> When I got up to the same page as my wife about the baseball team on strike, I was feeling rather low. "What do you think about your baseball game now," she taunted.

> As it turned out, the baseball team was actually out on strike and if I remember correctly, we missed the whole season that year. They were on strike for, you will never guess, more money.

> Up to that point, I thought the players played because they loved the game. Boy, was I on the wrong page with that. I went to games because I love the game and it did not matter to me who won or lost as long as it was a good game. Now, to find out that my heroes, if you can call them such, were primarily interested in money > was disheartening. I have never been able to watch a game since with the same excitement I did before. Why can't we just have fun? Why does life have > to be such a battle? Why can't we have a baseball game just for the fun of it?

> Recently, I attended a baseball game at the local high school. I thought I would just go and enjoy the game. I did not know any of the players; I just wanted to enjoy the game.

> Then I met an unfamiliar phenomenon of high school baseball. Parents of baseball players!

The game started as normal but soon the air exploded with shouting and yelling in the stands. I did not quite understand what all the noise was about at the time. Two women, imagine that, got in a fistfight over the ballgame! They were mothers of two of the players on opposite teams.

That was just the beginning of the shouting and the yelling that afternoon. As I walked away, I sadly shook my head and said to myself, "Why can't we just have fun?"

I believe the Preacher in the book of Ecclesiastes explains it well. "I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and, behold, all was vanity and vexation of spirit" (Ecclesiastes 1:14 KJV).

Some are so caught up in the vanity and vexations of life that they never know what it is like to just enjoy life. Why can't we just have a little bit of fun?

RED LINES IN THE SAND GREG Welborn

"Bluffing is a great strategy, except when it's not." I no practical, significant can't remember who said this, but it's one of those consequence to defying great – almost Yogi Bera-esq quotes – that capture this president, and that a life lesson in a few simple words. I do know is a very dangerous thing that it was first postulated many decades ago, but indeed. it almost perfectly applies to the situation into Now, I am not without which President Obama has placed himself with sympathy for President his rash pronouncements concerning Syria.

Not long ago, Barack Obama took to the opportunity of a very public address to announce will result in worse that Syria's Bashar al-Assad using chemical weapons would cross a "red line" and be a "game changer". In case there was any potential for misunderstanding, Obama clarified by stating, The opposition forces in Syria include elements "I've made it clear to Bashar al-Assad and all who follow his orders we will not tolerate the use of chemical weapons against the Syrian people, or ominous threat, "the world is watching; we will Assad regime falls. hold you accountable".

It would take an ignoramus not to realize that as a line in the sand. It's the equivalent of betting all the money you've got on the hand of cards you hold in an effort to demonstrate just how confident you are that you will win. Of course, depends on your opponent folding. If they don't fold, you lose two ways.

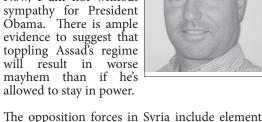

First, you lose that hand; but secondarily, and more importantly, by losing that hand you've also communicated that you bluff when your position isn't that strong. You lose the ability to bluff in the future, and you geometrically increase the necessity of backing up what you say in the future. Any future threat or promise must be kept or you lose all credibility.

lead himself and the rest of the nation. Syria's Assad has now used chemical weapons in his fight against the rebels seeking to dislodge him from power. The Israelis have evidence, as do several other western nations, and now our own intelligence community has evidence of it. The red line has been crossed, and the world is watching to see what the American President will do.

Nothing is what the American President is going to do. Lest there be any doubt about that, Obama held a press conference to walk back his earlier comments. Now, the intolerable and game changer means that we'll ask the U.N. to investigate. As surreal and naïve as that sounds, it is exactly what the American President has told the world he meant by telling Assad he'd better not use chemical weapons.

Oh boy, there's going to be hell to pay. Assad, like a little boy testing him mom, touched what he wasn't supposed to touch, and mommy is going to... call for an investigation? Sends quivers down my spine; that's for sure. Obama announced that he will now ask the U.N. to conduct a comprehensive investigation to confirm that Assad has crossed the line. The likelihood that the U.N. will be given timely and unfettered access to the killing fields is less than the likelihood of snow in hell. The bottom line is that there seems to be of Al-Qaeda and the Muslim Brotherhood. Both are jihadist factions that would like nothing better than to have another foothold in the Middle East the transfer of those weapons to terrorists". This and access to chemical weapons. That is a very was just last month, and he concluded with the real possibility, perhaps even probability, if the What's obvious is that President Obama didn't think through the consequences of his strategy and actions. If he had no intention of brining about the end of the Assad regime - and I don't necessarily disagree with that conclusion - then he shouldn't have threatened to do it if the red if your hand is as strong as you're implying, then there is very little risk to this strategy. But if you hand is weak, you're bluffing, and everything more active part in preparing the successors to that regime. There should have been a lot more nation building. But this is something anathema to Obama and other liberals.

To assume that we, the United States, have the right to determine the composition or general philosophy of another nation's government is in their minds unthinkable and morally repugnant. Liberalism dictates that we must accept the legitimacy and goals of any government, no matter how repugnant, repressive or cruel. Liberalism rests on the assumption and principal That is unfortunately where President Obama has that all nations are morally equivalent and equally credible. So enshrined is the principal in Liberalism that the U.N., whose members include more dictators than democrats will decide whether Assad can kill his own people and defy the norms of civilized behavior.

> But that is not all that is at stake. Obama's credibility is on the line elsewhere. Iran was told just last month "as President of the United States, I don't bluff", supposedly as a stern warning that developing nuclear weapons would not be allowed. Obama has committed himself to action in Syria and in Iran if certain red lines are crossed. If one country is allowed to cross its red line without meaningful consequences, do we really suppose the other won't cross theirs? Of course they will.

> Obama's naïveté, inexperience and outright fecklessness have destabilized an already unstable region. It has lost Egypt and Libya, pushed Syria further into the hands of Jihadist extremists and strengthened the hands of the Iranian Mullahs. Bluffing is no substitute for commitment and for me. Prior to that time I feeling pretty encouraged. was really disturbed by the entire country's reaction to the bombing which occurred at the conclusion of the Boston Marathon. Every reference to this bombing described the perpetrators as deranged monsters infected by the disease rather than treating "radicalism" as pathology I think it would an attempt to understand the thought processes of radicals. Perhaps understanding may lead to a kind of solution that will allow Americans to feel the criticisms that people from other cultures direct toward us. Before we allow the United States to metamorphize into regularly searched, monitored, and photographed, it certainly makes sense to look at ourselves from different perspectives.

The recent tragedy in Bangladesh wherein hundreds of garment workers were killed while employed creating clothes for the more privileged people of the Western World was a horrible reminder of the disparities that exist in today's world. Reading about this tragedy resulted in me thinking about the bombing from a different viewpoint. I read that the workers of Bangladesh, employed making cheap clothing for us, earn on the average thirty-eight dollars a month. Think about this while on hugging me. THE REAL "POOP" ON DOGS IN SIERRA MADRE

I love dogs. And I like the fact that Sierra Madre is dog friendly. The citizenry certainly takes advantage of it, particularly in the downtown area. Any late afternoon and evening you will see a constant parade of dog owners being tugged around Kersting Court and beyond by their dogs. I find it particularly enjoyable when a small dog sees a large dog and immediately goes postal on the big dog. I wonder what the big canine thinks. Of course, the only defense a small dog has against a big dog is his bark. His bite would only trim the dog's paw

What I don't like about dog friendly are the owners who refuse to take responsibility to pick up after their dog. Anybody else step in the stuff getting to their car? Just last weekend, right outside one of the local eating establishments, was the residue of a dog conducting his business. A trail of stepped in "you-know-what" led right up to the door of the restaurant. Yum! In fact it was at that very spot that a local couple recently told me of their plight with the local dog owners. It seems they had the audacity of putting a "No Poop" sign in their front yard. Maybe you can guess what happened. People started tossing their poop laden bags next to the sign in these people's front yard.

I've been told by people who tabulate these sort of statistics that the average dog will produce a couple hundred pounds of "waste" a year. How many dogs are there in Sierra Madre? Don't know but I bet it piles up (sorry). Some municipalities have gone so far as to require dogs to submit to DNA testing. That way if they find an abandoned supply of "waste" it can be analyzed and the guilty parties can be suitably punished hunted down and punished.

My fix would be easier. People out walking their dogs would have to show proof, when asked by the property authorities, that they were carrying little plastic bags with which to deal with the canine by-product or be given a $100 citation. What

So as not to end on a down note here is proof that men are like dogs:

Dogs can hear a can of food being opened from half a block

Dogs look dumb and lovable at the same time When you want to play, dogs want to play When you want to be left alone, dogs want to play Dogs love you if you rub their tummy And dogs leave their toys everywhere.
