In front of Lizzie's, the garden features local native plants that are found on the Mt. Wilson Trail. Richardson House is landscaped in California natives like Douglas Iris. Along the stream bed are sedges and other creek-side plants. An improved access path was added from the sidewalk to the Richardson House porch. The City donated several large boulders to the project, which Bruce Goss and his crew staged around the grounds. Bruce and crew members Steve D'Auria, Wen Hampson, Mario Razo, and Enrique Mendoza repeated history from 20 years ago when they did the original stone and masonry work on the museum grounds. Their new efforts give the site good bones to showcase the plants.

The Garden Club and the Historical Society volunteers did the lion's share of the digging and planting, aided by many community volunteers, like City Councilman John Carpaccio, and some who came from Long Beach, Victorville,

We are doing this survey now because we are excited to launch a new channel, Channel 98. As you might know, Channel 3 on Time Warner Cable has been airing City Council and Planning Commission meetings, and other City government events, live for years and this important service will continue. But we are now adding Channel 98 as a commercial free, educational channel that will feature children's programming, classic movies and TV shows, how-to shows, community special events and other interesting and eclectic programming relevant to our lives in Sierra Madre all presented without commercials and without fundraising. It is our channel, it is starting from scratch, and we need you to tell us what you want to see on it.

PCC Trustee Geoffrey Baum to Step Down

Longtime Pasadena City College Board of Trustees Geoffrey Baum announced last week, in a letter to constituents on Facebook, his intention not to seek another term ending a 12 year run as representative of La Cañada Flintridge, Pasadena and Altadena on the PCC Board.

"Although it is no longer much of a secret, I wanted to let you know that I have decided not to seek election to a fourth term on the Pasadena City College Board of Trustees," Baum wrote.

"For the past twelve years, it has been an honor to represent the residents of La Cañada Flintridge, Together with dedicated board members, exceptional leaders in the administration, outstanding faculty and staff and a true spirit of partnership with individuals throughout the community, we have been able to preserve and expand access to quality instruction for our students, and overcome many daunting challenges, including the worst fiscal crisis since the Great Depression.

Two candidates have declared they would run for the seat including Ross Selvidge.

Selvidge has sat on a number of commissions in Pasadena Rose Bowl including Operating Co. Pasadena City College student and former La Cañada Unified School District board Alex Keledjian is also running.

"It is very gratifying to see that individuals are already expressing interest in running for the PCC board and I expect more will come forward," Baum said.

Police Union Defend Officers Actions

The Pasadena Police Officers' Association released a statement Wednesday saying two of their officers were wrongly accused of withholding exculpatory evidence dating back to a court case February 7.

Corporal William Broghamer and Officer Kevin Okamoto were accused of withholding exculpatory evidence when they complied with a discovery order in a murder case against Jerrell Sanford and Michael Grigsby. The two stood trial for the killing of Shawn Baptiste in

According to the association statement, media reports at the time said the judge was declaring a mistrial "not because what the prosecution did or didn't do, but because what the police did or didn't do." They claim this is untrue.

LIVE OAK VILLAGE: PROJECTED HOUSING FOR SOUTH ARCADIA

At the last Monrovia-Arcadia-Duarte Town Council Meeting, there was a special presentation and question and answer period regarding "Live Oak Village", the proposed housing for South Arcadia. This was the second time Rose Olson, WHCHC, (West Hollywood Community Housing Corporation) came to a Town Council Meeting, and I am sure many readers may not be aware of the proposed project.

WHCHC is a 501 (c)(3) nonprofit housing development corporation founded in 1986 to buy, build, rehabilitate, manage and advocate affordable housing for lower income people in West Hollywood and the greater Los Angeles metropolitan area. They partner with local governments, funders, social service providers, community residents, architects, contractors and property managers to build their projects.

WHCHC believes that available affordable housing for lower income people stabilizes communities. It reduces the need of government services for homeless and near homeless people, overcrowded households and inappropriately placed people.

WHCHC develops environmentally sensitive, architecturally distinguished buildings that reflect surrounding areas and they feel their projects make efficient use of scare and public and private resources by carefully controlling costs. After buildings are completed, they maintain a high standard of asset management, and enhance the neighborhoods they are built in.

Who lives in WHCHC housing? They serve older adults on low-incomes, people with special needs, mental and physical disabilities and low-income households.

To date, WHCHC has developed 13 apartment communities, and maintains a development pipeline of 2-3 projects in predevelopment and construction. Their goal is to provide 20 additional units of low income housing per year.

"Live Oak Village", the first project in the San Gabriel Valley will provide 43 homes for families and individuals. It will be just south of the City of Arcadia, close to Rio Hondo bike path, Peck Road Park, the Live Oak Library and will be a short bus ride from the new Gold Line Station in Monrovia. (The housing will be on the southwest corner of Live Oak Avenue/ Center Street. The property currently is in escrow and the current Arcadia Bible Church will be razed.)

Five of the units will be set aside for former foster youth. WHCHC is working with the United Friends of the Children and Pacific Clinics as lead service providers. The project is mixeduse with live/work units on the ground floor and will have a community room opening onto a patio, children's play area and community garden. Carde Ten Architects are being utilized for the project.

After the presentation by WHCHC and Carde Ten Architects, there were several questions/ concerns. First, who will be the residents?

Ann explained that there are many applications, and a "lottery" is used to choose the first group of prospective renters. There is a comprehensive screening program that is similar to the process used by Habitat for Humanity when I was on the Selection Committee for the Duarte site. The renters must have employment, which is verified, and have a good "rental" history. (Previous landlords are

There also was concern regarding 49 parking spots for 43 units. Attending residents from Foss and Center Streets were NOT happy about the low number of parking spots. The reply was there would be several one-bedroom units, which means one person/couple may live in the unit. Also if they are low income, they would probably only have one vehicle, and many "seniors" no longer drive. (One of the reasons this site was chosen was proximity to the bus line.)

The Town Council has a site: www.whchc.org for photos and more info regarding this project. When WHCHC is scheduled to speak again at a Town Council Meeting, the public will be alerted so nearby residents can attend. (Prior to this meeting, Carde Ten Architects passed flyers to residents on the two adjacent streets.) Both WHCHC and Carde Ten seemed to be very cognizant to residents' concerns. That is a good beginning for any project.

Why I Wrote My Books: HOW TO SURVIVE ANYWHERE

[Nyerges is the author of 10 books, and teaches regular classes through the School of Self-reliance. He does a weekly podcast at Preparedness Radio Network, and blogs regularly at www.ChristopherNyerges.com.]

"Testing Your Survival Outdoor Skills" and "How to Survive Anywhere."

I began teaching a survival skills class at Pasadena City College in 1980 and have taught it at 3 other colleges as well, not to mention giving endless lectures and workshops. For me, the act of teaching forces me to organize information in the most useful and easily digestible manner (boy, I sound like a chef!). I worked to organize the subject matter and to cover one topic at a time. I know this may sound like a no-brainer, but I remember some classes on survival and relatedtopics that were rambling discussions with the students with no sharp focus, and no show-andtell. I wanted to present to the student a situation that I felt would facilitate quicker learning, and

Over time, my survival skills courses began to cover not just the skills that the lost hiker should know, but also the skills that every urban dweller should consider in the event of a disaster. In my early years of teaching, the subject matter more-or-less organized itself into manual" John Wooden's Pyramid of Success, discrete categories: Water, food and plants, fire, shelter, tools and weapons, first aid, navigation, alternatives to electricity, toilet alternatives, and woven throughout all this has been the necessity of having a good mental outlook.

These categories have become my classes, with their endless permutations and constant updates. I found that one of the best ways to involve the student was to ask questions rather than just make statements. I gradually developed a series of questions for each category, which I used as and I provide some practical solutions that the basis of my classes. Most of the questions had common-sense answers and were not intended to trick the student, but to cause the student to think logically and to see the relationships of things.

have used the book for their own educational programs for years now.

In time, I developed my questions into a ChristopherNyerges.com. survival manual that I hoped would benefit not

Two of my books only wilderness travelers but anyone living in the are closely related, cities and rural areas, as well.

> I filled in all the gaps from my "Testing" book and answered all the questions and added a lot of photos from my classes, and the result was "How to Survive Anywhere," my most popular book to date. The title was the publishers' idea, not mine, since I thought it sounded a bit presumptuous. However, it has worked, and is my most popular book to date.

> It is divided into chapters similar to my class topics: Water (finding it, purifying it, storing it), Fire, Lighting, Energy (all the things you need to know when the power goes out, as well as how to make a fire from the most primitive to the many modern methods), Health and Hygiene (how to stay clean, how to make a toilet, how to use plants for soap, etc.), Clothing and Shelter (obvious topics), Fibre (all the ways to create and use plants for rope, weaving, clothing, etc.), Food (wild foods, foods, storing foods), Tools and Weapons (knives, primitive weapons, make-do, First Aid (though I defer to the Red manual), Cross and Navigation (again, I defer to complete other on topic).

The last chapter called "What Survival?" is and it is this chapter which has drawn criticism, since I include discussion on how all our choices affect our destiny, all the moral, ethical, and spiritual choices that we like to kid ourselves and believe it's all "private." In fact, I list the 10 Commandments and The Golden Rule as some of the best "survival tools" of all time. What you sow, you shall reap.

I was criticized for including in a "survival to my mind the greatest coach of all time, who always said he wasn't training basketball players but was training people for life. To ignore these principles is the greatest ignorance.

I also include economic considerations, though only briefly, since there are detailed books that cover "economic survival."

In "How to Survive Anywhere," I even address the topic of whether or not a dark age is looming, anyone can act upon.

It's a great book, and I hope you get a copy. According to actor Ed Begley, Jr., "How to Survive Anywhere shows us that 'survival' is a mind-As I refined those questions, I compiled them into my spiral-bound book, "Testing Your Outdoor Survival Skills." Scouts and schools aftermath of an urban disaster."

MONROVIA - DUARTE

TIP-A-COP NETS $4900

By Joan Schmidt

A very special "Thank You" is sent to Law Enforcement raising funds for Special Olympics with the Tipa-Cop program! Throughout the country at many different restaurants beginning in April and extending into May, law enforcement officers put on aprons to raise funds for a special cause.

I learned of this special fundraiser probably fifteen years ago when the Temple Sheriff's Station sponsored this great event at Red Lobster in Monrovia. Monrovia Police Department joined the effort, and I met KZLA Radio Celebrity Sean Parr who also participated. Funds were raised and everyone had a great time.

This year, I first went on line. I was curious. Where did this great program begin? Do other agencies participate? I learned that the Tip-a-Cop program began with a small police department in Connecticut. Officers joined forces with a local restaurant to collect "tips" as they worked alongside staff to raise money for the Special Olympics Connecticut. Since the first Tip-a-Cop event, hundreds of events have sprung up all across the country to benefit Special Olympic programs. When I went on line to find out more info about this great event, I was blown away! There were numerous events in EVERY state!

As far as the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department is concerned, it would take pages to tell each station/unit that participated. Just to give an example, Pitchess Detention Center had a Tip-a –Cop Challenge. Three Pitchess Detention Center had a Tip-a –Cop Challenge. Three teams competed at three different restaurants- Chile's Grill and Bar, Stevenson Ranch; Chile's Bar and Grill, Canyon Country; and Lazy Dog Café, Valencia! All the funds raised stay in the Santa Clarita Special Olympics Program and currently there are over 350 athletes training in six sports.

Locally fifteen members of the Sheriff's Department including Station Commander Captain Nee and Deputy Chris Zuniga from Temple Station as well as Lieutenant Tom McNeal from the Training Bureau. (Tom was a hard-working deputy at Temple Station for MANY years and worked the MAD area, so my hubby and I were thrilled for him to be our waiter.) Lt. Jaime Alfaro and three members of Monrovia Police Department also participated. These nineteen fine peace officers raised $4900 for Special Olympics! Not bad for an evening's work! Again, "THANK YOU" to all participants throughout the country who helped raise funds for Special Olympics, a truly great cause.

Commercial Burglary / Possession of a Controlled Substance for Sales - Suspect Arrested

May 20 at 1:48 p.m., officers were dispatched to a business in the 1600 block of South Mountain on the report of a fraud in progress. An unknown suspect fraudulently purchased a large generator online for over 1,400 dollars. The next day, a suspect came to the business to pick up the item; however, while staff was reviewing the purchase, they noticed the suspect was very nervous, and he suddenly left the store. A loss prevention officer investigated the purchase and discovered the credit account information used was unauthorized. The account holder was contacted, and it was confirmed that the account was compromised and the purchase was fraudulent.

Several hours later, the suspect returned and attempted to pick up the item again. The police were immediately notified, and the suspect was quickly detained by the arriving officers. The suspect claimed he did not purchase the item and was only picking it up to drop it off at a construction jobsite. However, the suspect's statements were inconsistent and suspicous. During a consentual search of the suspect, a large plastic baggie with a white crystalline powder was found in the suspect's pocket. He told officers it was sugar, but it was later tested and determined to be methamphetamine. As the quantity was much larger than a drug user would be in possession of, the suspect was also charged with possession of a controlled substance for sales. Investigation continuing.

Outstanding Warrant - Suspect Arrested

May 21 at 9:49 a.m., a suspicious vehicle was reported in the 100 block of Los Angeles. An officer responded and observed the vehicle and contacted the occupant. A computer check revealed the subject had a no-bail warrant for leaving his work release program. The suspect was arrested for the warrant.

Battery / Private Person Arrest - Suspect Arrested May 21 at 12:56 p.m., a battery incident was reported at a business in the 200 block of Kruse Avenue. A recently terminated employee had returned to the business to confront another employee, who he felt had caused his termination. The suspect assaulted the employee, although the employee, while defending himself, got the better of the suspect. The victim made a citizen's arrest on the suspect for battery. The suspect was arrested and taken into custody.

Commercial Burglary - Two Suspects Arrested

May 21 at 2:50 p.m., a manager from a business in the 1600 block of South Mountain observed two male suspects concealing merchandise on their person and called police. The suspects were associated with a red Dodge truck that was involved in an incident at the Glendora business earlier in the day. Staff from that location had alerted the Monrovia store to be on the look out for the suspects. The suspects entered the store and pushed a cart with several items in it into the garden area. They abandoned the cart and walked out of the store with the merchandise without paying.

Officers arrived and observed the suspects. The suspects ran south on Mountain and into a commercial property. The red Dodge was located and officers watched it. The two male suspects were located hiding under vehicles and were arrested without further incident. One suspect was determined to be a juvenile and was released on citation to his mother. The adult suspect was held on bail. There was a third suspect, a female with very short hair, who was the driver of the truck. She was not located. The truck was stored as evidence and an investigation is ongoing regarding the true ownership of the vehicle. Investigation continuing.

Petty Theft / Possession of Drug Paraphernalia - Suspect Arrested

May 22 at 2:23 p.m., a business in the 1600 block of South Mountain reported a male suspect taking merchandise and leaving the store without paying. He was apprehended by loss prevention and returned one item, then suddenly ran, still in possession of additional items. Officers responded and located the suspect nearby. He was arrested for petty theft. The suspect was also found to be in possession of a used hypodermic needle, which was added to his charges.

Detective Bureau Case Follow-up

On January 6, 2013, at 5:01 a.m., an explosion occurred at a residence in the 200 block of East Walnut Avenue. When officers arrived, they located three victims with severe burns, and the home was engulfed in flames.

The initial investigation and suspect statements revealed the explosion occurred due to the suspects manufacturing drugs in the home, using Butane, a highly flammable gas. The home filled with the gas fumes and an unknown ignition source caused an explosion. The suspects suffered burns over 50 percent of their bodies and were taken to local burn centers. The home has extensive damage, totaling more than 94,000 dollars, and is uninhabitable.

On May 22, 2013, this case was presented to the Major Narcotics Division of the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office. Multiple felony charges were filed against all three suspects and the case is pending trial.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show STAR TREK INTO DARKNESS

seeing Abrams' first Star Trek in 2009, I was eager to see what he would do next with the series. I am proud to say that 'Into Darkness' is a triumph. Starfleet is facing a threat unlike any it has seen before: an enemy from within. James T. Kirk (Chris Pine), Spock (Zachary Quinto) and Commander Uhura (Zoe Saldana) now face what could be their greatest fight ever in the form of John Harrison (Benedict Cumberbatch). As they chase him to the Klingon home world, however, they discover that his he is more than meets the eye and that he may spell the end for not only Starfleet, but the galaxy as well. Åbrams brings back everything that worked in 'Star Trek', the fast plot, interesting character development, and quite a bit of humor, and puts all of it on a grander scale. Everything about this movie feels bigger, from the Enterprise itself to the immense threat it and its crew face.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

THE SENSATIONAL, SILK-SPINNING SPIDER - FRIEND OR FOE?

Throughout history, certain species of animals, at various levels on the food chain have fallen prey to a predator that is very different from what one might expect. This private predator is not located in the forests or in the deep depths of the ocean, where most wildlife survival attacks take place. This predator is rarely ever pointed out in public, and rarely claims the blame or admits taking part in the prey and attack process.

The predator I am referring to is the incredible human being, and the attack is not only physical, but mental and spiritual as well. The human's tendency to spread negative rumors and create long-term urban legends that cause irreparable damage to the reputation of other species is typically based on ignorance and fear, and the preferred prey can vary tremendously from one species to another.]

Unusual behavioral patterns or physical appearances of creatures that are extremely different from ourselves are often misunderstood, so rather than taking the time to learn more about other creatures, and understand why they look or act the way they do, we humans often put them into a category that defines them as creepy and extinguishable. I find it rather ironic that so many living things on this earth that play a major role in the survival of we humans are those that we tend to fear the most.

Of the many creatures who have fallen prey to the human's presumptuous paranoia throughout history, the spider is most likely among the top on the list. I think that this is really quite unfortunate, because spiders play such an important role in the balance of our ecosystem. In fact, without spiders this world would be in big trouble, both on a local community level as well as on a mega-scale level, in the overall scheme of survival.

Spiders are among the approximately 100,000 species that fall into the classification of Arachnids, mainly characterized by the fact that they have four pairs of legs and a body that is separated into two segments. There are about 2,000 different species of spiders in the United States and although, with the exception of one family, all spiders do carry venom to subdue their prey, very few are likely to cause concern to the human being. More often than not, any cause of concern related to a spider bite is due to an allergic reaction.

Only two species of spiders found in North America are known to be a serious threat to the human. They are the black widow and the brown recluse. When you line up the true facts, break them down and do the math, it becomes clear that the risks that spiders present are minimal, and arachnophobia becomes nothing more than another form of paranoia on the part of the human.

Now that we know the truth about the minimal risks spiders present, let's focus on the good things they do and the hard work they perform on a daily basis to ensure the health and welfare of our existence.

All spiders produce silk, with which they weave their wonderful webs. This fascinates me beyond words. Some webs can be so large they cross the street from one tree or telephone pole to another. I saw a huge one recently during a walk with my dog, and I wish I had had my camera with me at the time, because it was absolutely gorgeous - a real remarkable work of art! But aesthetic beauty is not necessarily the purpose of the silken spider's web.

As we all know, the main reason why the spectacular spider weaves its sticky, silky web is to catch insects and other small creatures to eat. This is the most important role that the spider plays in nature, and it has a direct positive impact on each and every one of us. If you annihilate every spider in your house and in your yard, you will most definitely find out (the hard way) just how valuable those eight legged creatures are to you. Indeed, you will probably find yourself calling the exterminator numerous times thereafter, because your home would most likely become infested with every type of tiny creature that you can possibly imagine.

The truth is that the spider keeps our local bug population in check in a way that no one else could, including a human in a uniform with a can of killing chemicals!

So what would you rather have? A delicate, illusive, shy eight-legged being who is more afraid of you than you are of him, or an entourage of stinging, biting or just plain annoying insects invading your living space, both inside and out? The answer comes easy for me. I prefer to keep my interesting, artistic spider friends around where I can benefit from their gorgeous works of silken art, and their veracious appetite for certain blood-thirsty creatures who would otherwise over-populate and potentially make my life miserable. Isn't is amazing how just a little information can do so much good for the reputation of an historically misunderstood, feared creature? In tune with my typical "Happy Tails" theme, I encourage all my human friends to educate themselves better about all living things, particularly those that differ from us, and learn to appreciate the

ROUNDS BURGER

There's talk on the street; it sounds so familiar Great expectations, everybody's watching

People you meet, they all seem to know you. Even your old friends treat you like you're something new Johnny come lately, the new kid in town. Everybody loves you, so don't let them down.

I am asked frequently, as I am sure that all of us who are asked to pen our restaurant experiences are asked, "how did you find this restaurant?" In the case of Rounds Restaurant on North Lake, my friend Robin Salzer of his namesake restaurant turned me on to it, and Mr.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

Joe Caiello of Nikki C's seconded the motion that I needed to check out Rounds, the new kid in town, featuring of course hamburgers. Sorry if you are getting burgered out, but this one here is something special.

Upon entering the restaurant one late Tuesday night, I was a little nervous that there wasn't much going on. If this place is so hot where is everyone? It's new, that's for sure, so I guess it's up to me to get the word out. The restaurant interior is very plain (maybe they like it that way or are waiting for the chandeliers to arrive?) there is a large screen TV in the back room, a few signs on the wall, and the menu board, but that is it!! Fortunately, I don't write for Good Housekeeping; I am here for a burger. Self-service is fine by me, and the menu is right above the register and the choices are build your-own or choose from the house suggestions including the Western and The Commando. The motto is "anyway you like it" so I opted to create my own -- lean burger, medium rare, green chile, lettuce, and tomato. I asked if the fries fresh cut, and the answer was "everyday"!!! Now I am excited -- fresh cut fries and hand made patties, throw in a Stella Beer, and you are thinking this would fall into the $20 range? Nope, it was all under $13. I even had enough to throw my change in the bucket. Now, here are the challenges: Rounds just opened up, so you know they are still ironing out the kinks. I never said cheese, and I wanted my bread not toasted (it was remember build your own).

My name was called, "Peter your order is ready!" I could tell just by looking at the fries that they were fresh cut, and I was ready to grind on my burger. Oops, the bread was toasted, and there was cheese. I took it back (remember they weren't busy), and in five minutes the new burger was ready. The fries were getting cold so I munched on them first – they were as good as Islands or In and Out, this tough fry fan says!!! You won't believe it, but some how now there were blue cheese crumbles on my build your own burger. I didn't say a word until one the staff asked how I liked it. We chatted for a few minutes and he scratched his head along side me wondering how they got the cheese part wrong. All and all, it was still one of the best values for a burger and fries combination I have ever had. Check out Rounds Burger it's a winner!!

Ingredients:

I lb ground pork 2-3 cloves garlic

Medium onion

1 can white or northern beans 1 Can of chicken broth

1 jar of salsa verde

Olive Oil Salt (to taste)

Pepper (to taste)

Directions:

Chop onion and garlic Sautee onion and garlic in olive oil Season with salt and pepper Add ground pork and brown Add the mixture to a crock pot Add one can of white or northern beans Add one can of ¾ can of chicken broth Add one jar of salsa verde

Cook on low for 2-3 hours

Serving suggestion ~ Serve on a bed of rice

HATTIE'S CINCINNATI CHILI

Ingredients:

1 lb Chili Cut Ground Beef*

1 package dried red beans Smoked turkey neck

6 cups water 1 can stewed tomatoes

1 can tomato paste 2 cups beef broth

Garlic

2 Onions 1 pkg. Caroll Shelby's Chili Kit

Chili Powder Crushed Red Peppers

Pepper 1 Package of Spaghetti

Condiments:

Chopped Green Onions Shreded Cheddar Cheese Sour Cream Jalapeno Peppers

Directions:

Soak beans in cold water overnight.

Put the turkey neck in a dutch oven and cover with water. Boil for about an hour. Drain beans and add them along with an onion cut into small pieces (not chopped). Let cook until the beans tender, about 2 hours.

Just before the beans are done, in a large frying pan, add a little oil and brown the ground beef and the remaining onion (chopped), along with 2-3 cloves of fresh garlic, salt and pepper to taste. Add chili seasoning and pepper from the Chili kit. DO NOT USE THE SALT IN THE KIT. Add the stewed tomatoes. Stir well. Set

When the beans are done, by now the water should have boiled down until about half, add the meat mixture along with the beef broth and tomato paste. Stir and cook on medium heat for another 1/2 hour making sure you don't let your chili stick to the bottom of the pot.

Add chili powder and crushed red peppers to your taste. If you really like it hot, add chopped habenro peppers.

While the chili is cooking, boil the spaghetti and drain. Rinse in cold water and set aside.

Make certain you don't have too much or too little liquid. The chili should be the consistency of spaghetti sauce. IN THE EVENT YOUR CHILI IS TOO SOUPY, use the masa mix in the Chili Kit. It will save the day.

When ready to serve, put the spaghetti in the bottom of the bowl and generously ladle the chili on top. Garnish with peppers, cheese, onions and sour cream.

*Chili cut ground beef is a chunkier cut of hamburger and can be purchased from your grocer. It is generally not prepackaged. Try Taylor's Meats in Sierra Madre. They will grind it while you

HALLELUJAH HATTIE'S (Not the same person as Sierra Madre's Chili Winner Hattie)

There is something spectacularly nostalgic about a homemade chocolate chip cookie. I don't know if it is the gooey, buttery center, the crispy edges, or the chocolate surprises you bite into every so often, but there is nothing quite like it. Recently, I found myself craving the perfect cookie. To my astonishment, no one seemed capable of creating the cookie I held on the pedestal of my memory— Then I found Hattie's.

Lisa Chaney, the owner and baker at Hattie's Sweet and Sinful Bakery, hand crafts every cookie that comes out of her kitchen. Every flavor has been tested and perfected through years of trial and tasting, producing recipes of precise balance. She has a gift for molding each dough into golden brown discs of cookie heaven. Her flavors range from a traditional chocolate chip cookie (like the ones your mama used to make), to a unique, tangy, ginger lemon cream sandwich cookie that you will find yourself craving regularly with your morning tea.

Hattie's delivers so much more than just pastries, however. Hattie's delivers an entire experience. When you purchase a cookie from Lisa's bakery, you will be greeted by a warm smile and individual attention that can only come from the biggest of hearts. Each cookie you enjoy is packed full of love and handled with the utmost of care. So if you ever are craving the perfect cookie, like I was, stop by Hattie's and treat your taste buds to a fresh baked treat.

SIMPLE TELEVISION REMOTES DESIGNED FOR SENIORS

Dear Savvy Senior:

Can you recommend some easy-to-use television remote controls for seniors? I got my 74-year-old mother a new HDTV for her birthday, but the remote control is very confusing for her to operate. Shopping Son

Dear Shopping:

It seems like most television remote controls today come with dozens of unnecessary buttons that make them very confusing to operate. Add in the fact that many people use two or three remotes to operate their home entertainment equipment (TV, cable box, VCR and DVD player, etc.) it compounds the problem even further.

Fortunately, there are several universal TV remotes available today that are specifically designed for seniors and the technically challenged. These remote controls have bigger buttons and fewer options that make them much easier to see, program and operate.

Simplified Remotes

Two popular senior-friendly products to consider are the Flipper Remote and the Super Remote SR3.

The Flipper works all major TVs including cable, satellite and digital TV receiver boxes with only one remote. Available for $25 at flipperremote.com, it offers a tapered design that makes it easy to hold, and for simplicity it has only six large color-coded buttons that are exposed (On/Off, Channel Up and Down, Volume Up and Down, and Mute.) All others buttons are accessed by sliding the top panel down, so they won't get in the way during day-to-day TV watching.

Flipper also has an optional feature that lets you program up to 30 of your mom's favorite channels for easy access.

The Super Remote SR3 from Universal Remote Control, Inc. (sold through amazon.com for around $13) is a slightly more sophisticated user-friendly remote that can control three devices - TVs, cable or satellite boxes, and DVD players.

It offers a light-weight ergonomic design, large easy-to-see numeric buttons each in the shape of the number it represents, and a centrally located "My Button" that gives your mom the ability turn on the TV and set the tuner to her favorite channel with a single button press.

It also provides four "Favorite" buttons for one-touch access to her favorite channels, and an "All Off" button that lets her shut down the entire home entertainment system with a single button press.

Super-Sized Remotes

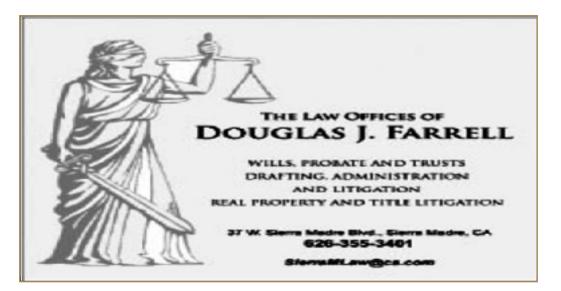

There are also a number of over-sized TV remotes that are ideal for seniors with vision problems. The 'Tek Partner," "Big Button," and "Tek Pal" remotes all made by the Hy-Tek Manufacturing Company (bigbuttonremotes.com, 630-466-7664) in Sugar Grove, Ill. are three solid options to consider.

If you're interested in an extra large remote control, the $40 Tek Partner - which is 5 1/2" wide and 8 ½" long – is their biggest. It offers huge brightly lit buttons with big readable characters, and a narrowed center (3 ½"), which makes it easy to handle for a big remote. It also contains only the essential functions making it easy to use and program, and it operates any combination of TV's, VCR's, DVD players, cable boxes and satellite dishes.

If you're looking for something a little smaller (2 ½" X 9 ½"), there's the $25, rectangular-shaped Big Button remote that offers the same large and illuminating buttons as the Tek Partner and the exact same features.

Or, if you only want a basic remote for the TV, there's the Tek Pal that comes with just six large buttons (On/Off, Mute, Channel Up and Down, and Volume Up and Down buttons) that light up when pushed. Available for $19, the Pal will only work with televisions that have cable wired directly into

HOW DO WE KNOW?

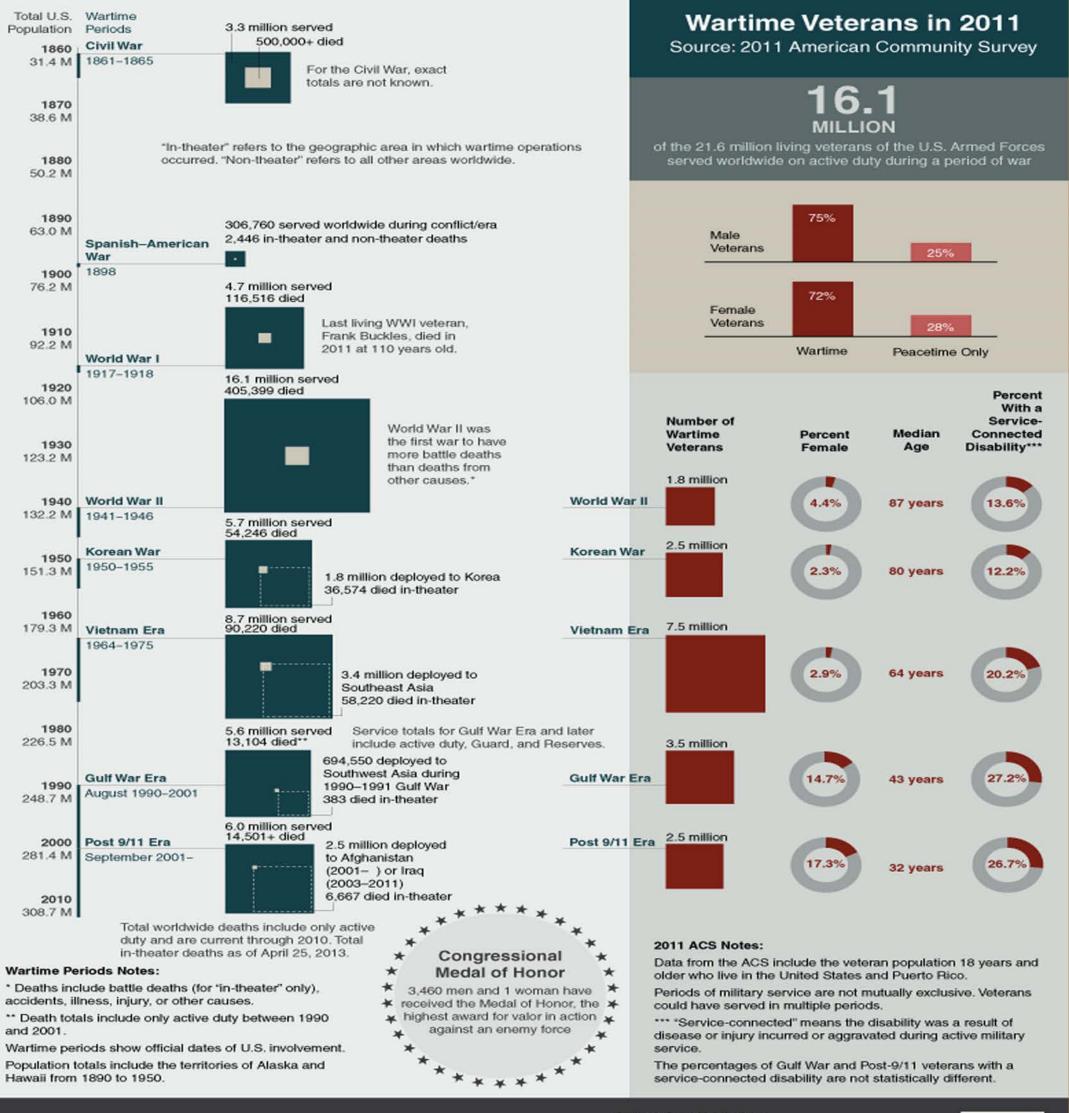

MEMORIAL DAY

Honoring America's Wartime Veterans

Memorial Day, originally called Decoration Day, is a day of remembrance for those who died in service to their country. The holiday was officially proclaimed in 1868 to honor Union and Confederate soldiers and was expanded after World War I to honor those who died in all wars. Today, Memorial Day honors over one million men and women who have died in military service since the Civil War.

This infographic compiles statistics from the U.S. Census Bureau and Department of Defense to honor our men and women who have served in the U.S. Armed Forces. The U.S. Census Bureau gathers detailed information on living veterans from the American Community Survey (ACS). Federal, state, and community leaders, private businesses, nonprofits, and community organizations use ACS statistics to determine the programs, services, and infrastructure that serve the needs of our veterans. The Department of Defense, Defense Manpower Data Center provides statistics on the number of people who served and died in each of our nation's wars.

HEALTHY LIFESTYLES

HOW WE FLOW

One of my teachers was asked "How do you manage it, your schedule is so hectic? My teacher replied "Well, first of all I don't look at it as hectic." Here in lies the key. Are we creating the life we want or is the flow of our life determined by everything else? We are told to do more, be more, be super mom, be perfect, fit in more. How do we manage our energy in this speedy environment? And the root of the problem here is that we are getting used to this faster and faster pace. What we now think is normal has become a life of fight or flight response. Then one day we find that we have adrenal fatigue, or other health issues. We don't have any energy left for our families at the end of the day. How can we get a handle on all this? -We learn to breathe.

Through correct practice, postures and breath, we can slow down to a normal pace and see things for what they really are. The important things are clear and the small stuff insignificant. We are able to be more of our "wise self" and make good choices. We have problems when we get caught up in a flow that is not our choice.

It's really interesting as a teacher, I often see people that are so not used to their natural rhythm, that they are uncomfortable with the slower pace at first. They have been living the life of Speedy Gonzales. The more we live that life -the more we are attracted to the things that support that fast pace and the fast flow gets reinforced, it picks up momentum. It gets harder to stop. The avalanche is happening.

The only way to begin to slow the pace is awareness. Slow down enough to ask yourself, "How am I doing? What do I need to do to support myself and my energy levels?" What is really important here? Get in to class. Your inner teacher is waiting to help you. Your body will be so thankful. Your spirit will love the peacefulness. At the end of class, you will say "Ahhh!"

Oh, but I know what you are saying! -You don't have time to go to class. And the ball picks up more speed. When you decide to make a change, I'll see you in class.

TRU FEELINGS

Our thoughts create our feelings. They just do. Good and bad, like it or not. That's how we work: our body responds to what we think about.

How are you feeling right now? There are feelings according to the mind -- like "mad, sad, glad or afraid". And there are feelings according to the body, the physical sensations we sometimes can't put into words. While the head abbreviates, the body tells the whole story... and never lies.

So, how are you feeling? If it's "good," go right on thinkin' what you're thinkin', because it will keep you feelin' what you're feelin'. Your thoughts are working for

If it's "not so good," it's nice to know where to start to create change. Since your thoughts produce the feelings, take notice of what you are thinking. FInd the thoughts that are creating the discomfort. The great news? When you change them, your feelings will also change. Come up with a thought that makes you feel better. More empowered and productive. Yes, you get to choose.

Try writing the toxic ones down on paper, just as they are. See those bandits in black and white. Call their bluff. Then replace them with the new, better feeling thoughts. For example: "I can't do this!" might become "I'm learning how to do this." Read each thought again now, and notice how each makes you feel. Different, huh?

When looking for a new thought, don't jump to an opposite statement, as an affirmation tends to do. Look for a statement that is a baby step from where you are. The key is it that is has to feel true (in your mind and in your body). If it generates a deep sigh or an exhale, you've hit it. Recite it whenever the dark one shows up; you will feel relief.

It's in your power. How DO you want to feel?

Saturday, June 1st, 2013 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

Fuller Theological Seminary 135 N. Oakland Ave., Pasadena, California

FOCUS ON MENTAL HEALTH

The Pasadena Mental Health Day's focus is to address the mental health needs of the residents of Pasadena. It is intended to raise awareness and educate the public about mental health and illness in seniors, adults, youth, children, and families. Mental health management is fundamental to having a healthy community. Mental Health Day events begin in May during mental health month. Pasadena Mental Health Day culminates this month long activity. This day, June 1, 2013 is set aside to dedicate thought and put into action the many great services of the areas' health providers ... open to the public and all free of charge. This year it is scheduled from 9:00 to 2:00 at the Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena.

"Healthy Minds, Healthy Families" is the theme for the event featuring observance of and participation in planned activities, health checkups, kids' activities, information from local agencies and food. It gives citizens a true opportunity to learn how to support family, friends and community members living with mental health disorders and illnesses.

The event was initiated three years ago by the Pasadena Mental Health Advisory Committee. They have an impressive list of volunteer members, fifty-strong. They represent an array of public and private organizations and are all dedicated to this cause ... the fundamental necessity of working collaboratively to reduce the stigma of Mental Health/Illness and to increase access to mental health services. Mental Health Day is an opportunity to educate the community about how to support family, friends and community members living with mental health disorders and illnesses. Book Reviews by Jasmine Kelsey Williams

DEATH OF A NEIGHBORHOOD WITCH

(A Jaine Austen Mystery) By Laura Levine

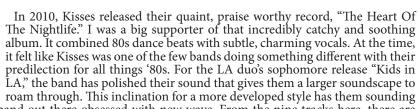

Coming to towards the end of May means bringing in another good read that is sure to satisfy and this witty and fun selection by Laura Levine should do just that. "Death of a Neighborhood Witch" may be early on the Halloween theme, but it is anything but. Our protagonist here is Jaine Austen, who tries to deal with not just the same humdrum life in Beverly Hills, but also trying to pluck up the courage to approach the new cute neighbor who has just moved in, but also incurring the wrath of her other strange neighbor Cryptessa Muldoon. As early as the first chapter, readers will be drawn in to Levine's humorous tone and funny banter between the characters, as well as the unexpected and hilarious twists that come along in later chapters. When Cryptessa is found murdered near her own home, Jaine and the Beverly Hills neighborhood breathe a sigh of relief, but at the same time turn anxious as Jaine and her fellow neighbors are pointed out as possible culprits. When Jaine herself is spotlighted as a suspect, she puts her detective skills to work to clear her name, as well as discovering a few dirty little secrets about her neighbors as well. Levines tone is not just humorous; when the situations become more grave and serious, she carefully and slowly descends into these deeper tones without completely overshadowing the humor in the story or changing the characters to fit the situation. All characters retain their own personalities and remain consistent throughout the story, which is plenty to keep the readers entertained, as well as being able to make them laugh.

Published and copyrighted in August 2012, and receiving praise from various critics as well as Publishers Weekly, "Death of a Neighborhood Witch" is a perfect pick for your summer reading or Halloween reading and is sure to satisfy your desire for a good mystery, but one that will make you laugh while doing so.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: KISSES

just like every other band out there obsessed with new wave. From the nine tracks here, there are moments musically that really shine, but the whole is not greater than the sum of its parts. "Kids in LA" suffers from the lack of creativity found on "The Heart Of The Night Life." It is also burden by a completely dull narrative. When you really get into the thick of things, those flashes of greatness are short lived and sadly forgotten once a number of uninspiring tunes are heard.

KISSES While the debut record focused more on tropical beats and laid back vibes, "Kids in LA" has more of a LA Artist: Kisses nightlife disposition to it. It's flashy, retro, and packs a lot Album: Kids In LA of gleam. Jesse Kival and Zinzi Edmundson, the couple Label: Cascine behind Kisses are engaged. This record reflects more so Release Date: May 14th, 2013 on relationships than anything else. However, the stories aren't either interesting or engaging. With mundane lyrics, stale beats and ostensibly no connection from one song to the next, it not only becomes a frustrating listening experience but one that's difficult to support with its shortcomings. Nonetheless, there's this twinkle of hope within the songs, "Funny Heartbeat" and "Air Conditioning." Both tracks remind me of songs from their impressive debut—catchy, sensitive, no nonsense pop gems. Even when Kisses dabble with melancholy arrangements, you still can find the carefree joy embedded in those distinct tunes.

Kisses' "Kids in LA" exudes a summer night sort of feel, but as with any summer night, the fun ends as quickly as it started. "Kids in LA" is a display of a band burgeoning from adolescence to adulthood. There is this self-awareness of growing up entrenched inside the record, but those listening to it rarely can connect on a deeper level. It's as almost as if this particular record was a love letter from one member of the band to the other since they're in a dedicated relationship. The sweetness is there, the passion is present, but the magic isn't on display the way it should be. Something on "Kids in LA" is awry, which left me wholly unfulfilled by the entire thing. Tragically so the album fails to live up to the potential one may have had for it after listening to their first record three years ago.

Grade: 5.9 out of 10 Key Tracks: "Funny Heartbeat," "Air Conditioning"

IS YOUR BUSINESS "DISASTER-READY"?

The severe windstorms that wreaked havoc in the Los Angeles region in December 2011 bear no comparison to the devastating tornadoes that ripped through America's Mid-West earlier this week. They serve as reminders of how important it is to be prepared to deal with the aftermath of Mother Nature and other unexpected crises. Every business should have a crises management plan in place to ensure that matters aren't any worse than they need to be during the aftermath of a disaster.

Since we live in earthquake country, it may become necessary to evacuate your place of business. In this case, an employer can establish a temporary dwelling for employees someone on, or adjacent to the business. Investing in a basic camping kit that includes a tent or canopy structure will serve this purpose. Employers can create a mini storehouse of supplies to deal with the immediate needs of employees during the hours and days immediately following a disaster, including:

- 1-2 gallons of bottled water per person Canned goods, protein bars or other food that has a long shelf life
- Solar-powered charging stations that are now affordable and readily available these can
- be used to charge phones, tablets/laptops and other equipment needed to communicate until help
- Outdoor cooking equipment
- Cigarette lighters
 - Battery-powered flashlights & lanterns and a battery-powered radio
- Battery-powered radio
- Either providing or encouraging each employee to prepare an individual backpack that contains a basic set of supplies to sustain one individual for at least 24 hours (i.e. bottled water, protein bars, small flashlight w/extra batteries, portable solar-powered charger and a plastic rain poncho that folds and fits into a small pouch.
- Maintaining a minimum of ½ to ¾ of gas in your personal and company autos (after the December 2011 windstorms, many gas stations were unable to pump gas due to the loss of electricity) By no means is this a comprehensive list of everything needed, but certainly will be sufficient until it is safe for your employees to leave to connect with their loved ones, or until disaster relief services arrive. It will also garner additional respect from employers who can be assured that their employer truly has their best interests at heart.

Hosting live events is a great way to build a loyal on your Facebook page or Twitter. Ask people to following for your brand, especially for a new business. Most business owners realize if they want to grow their business and stay in business, they need to let more people know about who they are and what they offer. Live events can bring you amazing opportunities, collaborations and most important, new customers. They can also position you as a leading authority or expert in your field. Here are some ideas:

New businesses:

If you are struggling to grow your business, start with some type of signature event, even if you only have a handful of interested people to invite. If you are a B2B, host an event that offers great information, learning and networking opportunities for business owners. If you are a B2C, invite people to an open house or some type of "feel good" event. If you teach piano lessons, invite a few parents and their children to a tea party to talk about new teaching techniques and give a demonstration. Make it fun and worth their time.

Who can you collaborate with?

Perhaps you join forces with a business or nonprofit that shares the same target audience, but is not a competitor. Dog stores often hold adoption days and collaborate with non-profit organizations that rescue animals.

Promote your event (on and off-line):

Ask your chamber to promote your event for you. Some chambers will send an email on your behalf for a small fee. Promote your event on all the social media channels; you might even try a promotions - bring flyers to your networking meetings or make it really special and send a snail mail invite to a select few.

Use social media and email marketing to stay

After you meet people at a live event, make sure you have a plan for staying in touch. This is where social media and email marketing come in handy, they make it easy to build the momentum. Ask people at your events to continue the conversation spread the word about your business. Get them involved in the evolution of your brand. Make

Develop a signature presentation

Think about the information you know that you take for granted. Can you turn it into a presentation that would be interesting? If your own events are successful and people enjoyed attending, you will find that you will start to receive invitations from others to make presentations at their events.

Follow up:

Send an email to those who came to your event. Thank them for attending and let them know how they can stay in touch with you, what else you offer and what's next.

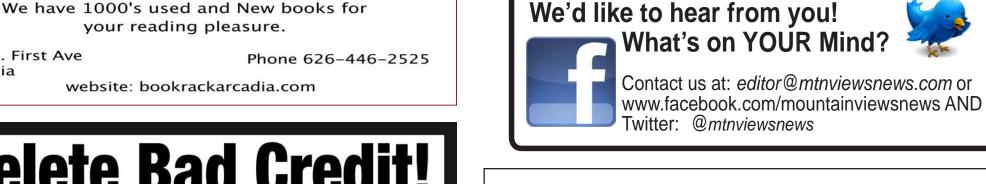

Create a registration page

You might consider using Constant Contact's event marketing tool to collect your RSVPs. It makes it easy to create an event page, registration page, send a reminder email before the event and a thank you email after the event. If someone else is helping promote the event, set up a registration page they can use to drive traffic back to you. Put "join my email" list on the event registration page so people that are not on your list can sign up for your emails.

It takes time to grow a business and get the word out about your business. Live events plus social media and email marketing can build awareness and introduce you to new people who might be important to your business.

HOMES

USING GRAYWATER IN YOUR HOME LANDSCAPE

waste water which has not come into contact with toilet waste. Graywater ncludes: used water from bathtubs, showers, bathroom wash basins, and water from clothes washing machines and laundry

Graywater does not include: waste water from kitchen sinks, dishwashers, or laundry water from soiled diapers.

Graywater is distributed subsurface and will efficiently maintain lawns, fruit trees, flowers, shrubs and groundcovers. It can be used to irrigate all plants at your home except vegetable gardens.

Why Use Graywater?

Are you tired of watching your bathing and laundry water go down the drain when it could be put to good use on your landscape? Now it is safe and legal to reuse that "graywater" to conserve water consumption. In addition to conserving water and probably reducing your water and sewer bills, you will also be "drought-proofing" your land-scape by using graywater.

Since more than half of your indoor water can be reused as graywater, during shortages, when outdoor watering may be restricted, you will have a constant source of water. With landscapes valued at between 5 percent and 10 percent of the value of a home, this back-up supply of water may be an important economic insurance policy for you. Furthermore, the nutrients in graywater may be beneficial to your

According to Sierra Madre's Director of Public Works, Bruce Inman, "The primary residential water use (up to 75%) is for irrigation. To the degree that treated gray water can be substituted for fresh water the consumption component of the customer's water bill would be

The seven steps to follow to put graywater to use in your landscape

1. Investigate the permit process

- 3. Design the graywater system 4. Submit the plan for review
- and approval 5. Install the system
- 6. Arrange for system inspection and approval
- 7. Use, monitor and maintain the system

If you decide not to do some of the steps yourself, you can hire a landscape contractor to install the irrigation system or a plumbing contractor to install the plumbing.

They will follow this same process. Graywater System Types

Laundry-to-Landscape. This is the only type of system that can be installed in California without a permit. Washing machines are typically the easiest source of graywater to reuse because graywater can be diverted without cutting into existing plumbing. The laundry-tolandscape system is low cost, easy to install, and requires very little maintenance.

A Branched Drain system is similar to the laundry-tolandscape system with branching pipes. Branched drain systems are time consuming to install, but once finished, require very little maintenance and work well for the long term.

Simple System. A shower is a great source of graywater. Usually, it produces a lot of relatively clean water. Gravity-based shower systems are simple and effective. If your yard is located uphill from the house, a pumped system will be necessary. These systems require a permit in Complex System. These are pumped systems. If you can't use gravity to transport graywater (your yard is sloped uphill, or it's flat and the plants are far away) you will need a drum with effluent pump" system. The water flows into a large (usually 50 gallon) plastic drum that is either buried or located at ground level. A pump is used to push the water out through irrigation lines (no emitters) to the landscape. Pumps add cost, use electricity, and will break, so use a simpler system if possible.

Protect Health

The Graywater Standards require that graywater not surface and that human contact with graywater be avoided. When graywater is used, always follow these rules:

Don't drink or play in graywater.

Don't mix potable (drinking) water

Don't allow anything that may be eaten to come into contact with graywater.

Don't allow graywater to pond on the surface or run off the property.

Grow Healthy Plants

A very small percentage of plants may be damaged by graywater, most of these are listed below. Too much sodium or chlorine could result in leaf burn, chlorosis (yellow leaves), and twig die back. Boron can be toxic to plants at levels only can be toxic to plants at levels only slightly greater than is required for good plant growth. Symptoms of boron toxicity include leaf tip and margin burn, leaf cupping, chlorosis, branch die back, premature leaf drop, and reduced growth.

Plants that would probably do well with graywater irrigation are (partial listing):

Oleander Italian Stone Pine Bougainvillea Purple Hopseed Bush Fan & Date Palms Oaks Rose Arizona Cypress Rosemary Cottonwood Agapanthus Olive Bermuda Grass Ice Plant Honeysuckle many native plants

DON'T RISK IT

Insurers see different risks in vacant homes, like vandalism, systems failures, or other liabilities. In most cases, you'll simply purchase an endorsement to your existing policy, but different insurers have different options, and if an endorsement is not available, you can get a separate "vacant-home" policy.

It may be an additional cost, but it's called "insurance" for a reason, and could save you a lot of money down the road. If you don't notify your insurance agent about vacating your home, they could reject any claims you file for property damage or liability, or accuse you of insurance fraud.

It may be tempting to just hope that your home will sell within 30 to 60 days after you have to move out, but it's critical to speak with your insurance agent before you move to discuss your options. They may even pro-rate and refund part of your premium if you sell before the end of the policy's term. It's a small price to pay to protect your home and your peace of mind.

THE SHOCKING IRS SCANDAL THAT WASN'T

scandal. So official Washington was absolutely orgasmic this week while dealing with not one, but sadly, was a sex scandal.

First, there were accusations of a "cover-up" in the aftermath of the bombing of our consulate in Benghazi, Libya. Then came reports that the IRS was conducting a partisan witch-hunt against the tea party. Topping it all off was news of the Justice Department's seizing phone records of Associated Press reporters. And hovering over all three was the perennial Washington parlor game: 'What did the president know, and when did he

Obama haters could hardly contain their glee. Mike Huckabee predicted that Benghazi would drive President Obama out of office. Sen. James Inhofe whispered the "I" word. Soon joined by Michele Bachmann. John Boehner demanded that unnamed IRS agents be arrested and sent to jail, presumably without a trial. And House Republicans scheduled multiple hearings on each

How disappointing for them when the week ended and two out of three scandals had all but disappeared. Only one was left: the Justice Department's heavy-handed invasion of AP. As part of a criminal investigation into who leaked information about a successful intelligence operation to thwart the blowing up of an airliner headed from Yemen to the United States, DOJ subpoenaed the records of 20 phone lines at the AP, used by more than 100 reporters and editors, for April and May

The Justice Department's raid of AP phone records is nothing less than a totally unjustified, wholesale trashing of the First Amendment. DOJ violated its own guidelines by failing to notify the AP of its action or narrowing the scope of its subpoena. It has also offered no explanation how, by reporting this story, which the administration itself was poised to released, the AP in any way jeopardized our national security. This is the one real scandal, which demands more attention and answers. Not so with Benghazi or the IRS.

As I wrote last week, the flap over Benghazi is nothing but a poorly disguised effort by panicked

Republicans to prevent Hillary Clinton from run-There's nothing Wash-ington likes better than a obsessed with Benghazi, but this car has run out

The scandal that received the most attention, the IRS and the tea party, is a lot more complicated three scandals at the same than it first appears. True, there is no defending time. Not one of which, the IRS targeting members of either party. But there is also no defending the fact that far too many political groups today enjoy tax-exempt status simply because they disguise themselves as social welfare" organizations.

> Republicans try to paint the latest IRS flap as a new, Obama-inspired, Nixonian conspiracy aimed at conservatives. Nonsense. In fact, this problem dates back to 1959, when Congress passed a law defining 501(c)(4), or tax-exempt, organizations as those which operate "exclusively for purposes beneficial to the community as a whole." That same year, however, the IRS adopted regulations awarding tax-exempt status to organizations only "primarily" engaged in social welfare. Ever since, using that loose definition primary, not exclusive — they have granted tax-exempt status to groups that spend up to 49 percent of their funds on political activities. And refused to rescind tax privileges for those that spend far more.

> For example, the watchdog group Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics in Washington complained to the IRS about the American Action Network, a 501(c)(4), headed by former Republican Senator Norm Coleman, which spent 66.8 percent of its total spending from July 2009 through June 2011 on politics. The IRS did

> So it's important to understand. The issue of appropriate tax-exempt status goes way back. It was made worse by the Supreme Court's Citizens United decision, which spawned a new wave of political organizations: the overwhelming majority, tea party chapters, of which more than 300 filed for tax-exempt status. IRS staffers decided to focus exclusively on them. Even though none of the tea party applications was denied, that concentration on the right was wrong. But it's a case of bureaucratic bungling, not some vast left-wing conspiracy.

> A new head of the IRS is a good start. Congress should next establish tough new standards for the IRS to follow in granting tax-exempt status. Then maybe Congress can get to work on a real scandal: gun violence in America.

HOW MANY WARNINGS GREG Welborn DO WE NEED?

I had planned to write on a Memorial Day theme far as to agree that there to pay homage to those among us who willingly is a connection between stood in the breach and paid the ultimate price so such acts and our "killing" that we may continue to enjoy our freedoms and Muslims on international blessings. So let us all take a moment to salute them and say a prayer for those families that have lost a loved one in our defense. But events Let us be perfectly clear in London, I think, are of such significance that about our recent history they need to be addressed, lest the important in Muslim lands. lessons be swept under the rug. In a sense, I have spilled more of our suppose, this is a fitting topic for a Memorial Day article. Members of our armed forces are fighting in many ways with a hand tied behind their back on the home front.

Everyone by now must know that a British soldier was hacked to death in broad daylight by two terrorists, who were trying to behead him and who then stayed around asking to be filmed so that their message would be broadcast around the world. Barbarous doesn't even begin and mutilated by other Muslims than have to describe the murder, nor does evil adequately capture the nature of the perpetrators.

But what I find equally disturbing, and the subject of today's article, is the attitude we in the west continue to take toward these attacks. When two men commit this type of attack, yelling "Allahu" and they are waging war against us. We cannot adkbar" (God is great) and stick around to give interviews, we have a serious problem that goes beyond the terrorist event itself. We have a global war in which the other side shows absolutely no sign of stopping. We need to get serious.

The first step in getting serious is to seriously consider what's going on and to stop accepting the demonstrably false premise with which our enemies are trying to co-opt our determination and nurture our complacency. The London terrorists babbled on about our presence in their lands, our killing of Muslims, the assaults on their women, among other ramblings. I don't take their words seriously for one moment, but I do take seriously our president's because they are perpetuating a dangerous naïveté and feeding war. We must fight as if it is a war. It is. We must a complacency which may yet be our Waterloo.

As quoted on Martin Bashir's MSNBC show, President Obama lamented, "when does the war on terror end? We can't allow any group of thugs that calls themselves al Qaida to beat us into an endless war." The mainstream press echoes theses sentiments by describing the terrorists' statements innocuously as a "message about religion and politics". One mainstreamer went so He can be reached gregwelborn2@gmail.com

own blood than any other country to protect Muslims in the former Yugoslavia, free Kuwait from Saddam Hussein, liberate Afghanistan because of how we are handling terrorism here from the grip of the Taliban, and allow Iraq a shot at a peaceful democratic existence. If results matter, then Muslims ought to be angry at Muslim leaders, not the United States. More Muslims have been tortured and killed horribly by Muslim rulers than have been harmed by western soldiers. More Muslim women have been denied education, kept in servitude, raped ever been mistreated by westerners. If such ill treatment was the real motivation of terrorism, then the attacks wouldn't be in London, Boston, or other western cities.

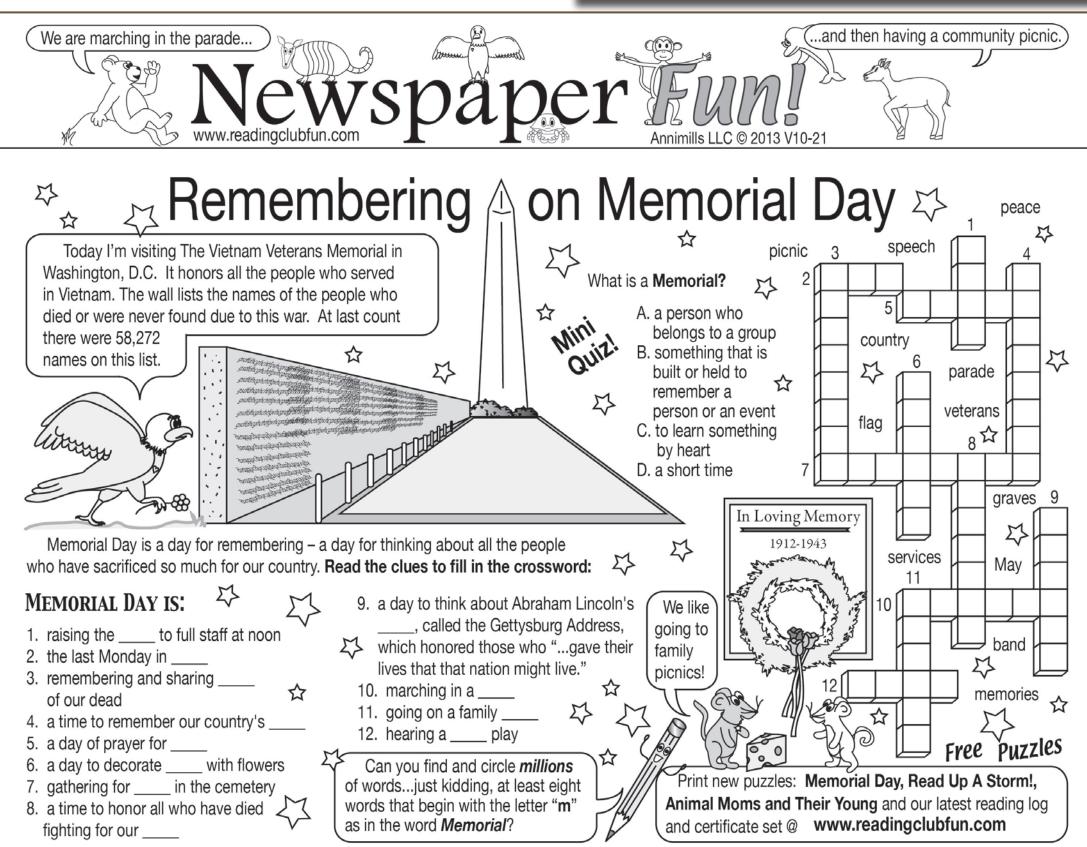

> We are not the bad guys. But there are bad guys, ignore that. There are 120 billion Muslims in the world, and at least 10% of them (110 million) subscribe to the waging of an active Holy War against us. That statistic comes from a Pew survey in Muslim lands. It's what they're saying about themselves. It's not what we're falsely accusing them of saying.

> To ignore this would be the same as having ignored Hitler's threat. After all, why should we have allowed some group of thugs who call themselves Nazis to force us into an endless war? The reason, of course, is that no war is endless. Wars end when someone wins and someone loses. Common sense, not to mention the most basic sense of morality, demands that we win this win it or the results will be unspeakable. So on this Memorial Day, as we honor those who died to protect our freedom around the world, let us hope our leaders wake up and become worthy of the cause into which fate has thrown them.

STUART Tolchin.....On LIFE

GETTING HIGH

The polls closed about an hour ago but the final results regarding the various marijuana initiatives have not yet been revealed. Actually, at this point in my life, I don't really care very much. Marijuana is no longer a part of my life and has not been for a few decades. Right now, my major feelings are that the idea of medical marijuana is nonsense. If there is little conclusive evidence that the drug is harmful, then its use should be legalized for everyone. If the stuff is determined to be harmful, then its use should be prohibited, I guess. Frankly it is doubtful that marijuana ingestion is more harmful than alcohol or nicotine or caffeine and its prohibition results from concerns other than scientific proof of its destructive potential.

If one wishes to analyze marijuana use, legalistically it seems to me that along with the enumerated first amendment freedoms of speech, religion, press, and association there is an important but non-enumerated freedom of internal experience. The idea of protecting people from themselves is foolhardy in the first place. Education makes more sense and is more effective than legal prohibition anyway.

I think it is important to make some attempt to understand the cultural effects that marijuana usage has had over the past fifty years or so. Let me try and illustrate these effects just by talking about the differences between my sister and myself. I am three years older than my sister. At age eighteen I went off to college; first to UCLA and then to U C Berkeley. At age eighteen my sister got married to a man a few years older than herself. Almost fifty years later they are still together, live in a lovely house, and seem pretty happy. Neither of them ever went to college but they earn or have earned more money than I have, notwithstanding my UCLA Law Degree. My brother-in-law has mentioned a couple of times that he believes I feel superior to them because of my College attendance.

It is true that I feel much removed from them but that does not result from anything I learned in College Classes. The social distance comes from a difference in life experience and that difference in life experience involves smoking marijuana. Just about everyone I knew in College smoked marijuana. This little habit put all of us on the other side of the law and forced us all to keep secrets. Inevitably, we mid-1960 College Kids were forced to look at the laws as ridiculous and unfair. As males, my friends and I were subject to a mandatory draft as part of a war effort that we did not understand or support. Combine these factors with the music that was all-around us, "It's one, two, three, four-What the hell are we fighting for?" It all combined to form a certain kind of perspective. Disregarding our obvious privileges (the University of California was free in those days) many, many of us felt like victims in a crazy world that did not understand us and was doing its best to kill us. All right, that was fifty years ago and most people have moved on (not me) and have formed new perspectives, but memories of those feelings will always linger.

Before I leave the subject of marijuana, I want to recount my memory of my first marijuana experience. Out of the blue in 1962 my friend Mike asked if I wanted to try marijuana. I had barely heard of the stuff and said "Sure". We smoked some and suddenly the world was wonderful. You know colors, sights, the music on the radio, everything was kind of great. "You want to get a chili-dog?" he said. Now get this. I had never experienced a chili-dog because... I'm not really sure of this, but I think in our Jewish secular home we only ate all beef hot dogs and not the kind with pork in it. I had never purchased a hot dog out in the world. So what did I say? "Sure let's get one." To this day I remember how wonderful that chili dog was and I remember how I felt as I ate it. How wonderful it was to be out of the house and to have friends and to be able to make decisions for myself. It's hard to believ,e but at this time I had never even tasted pizza or an enchilada. I felt the world opening up to me and I associated that feeling with good old, incredibly cheap marijuana.

Where would I be without marijuana? Probably my sister and her husband have had their share of chili-dogs, but I'm not sure. I know they do not understand the wonder of the illicit nature of the drugs combined with the great fun of being high together with friends, separate and apart from the world of parents. Maybe that's still part of the trip - when kids get high imagining that their experiences are qualitatively different from the experiences of their eternally backward parents. Maybe that's what gives the ever-emerging new generations some glimmer of Hope. After all, it is all too clear that they sure can't depend on us!!

OUT TO PASTOR

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

AND I THOUGHT I WAS CONFUSED

arena, is a very confusing thing. As I watched the news and see scandal after scandal unfold and people trying to dance around the facts so that they come out looking good, I am reminded of how that doesn't work for

I have a new TV show I want to pitch to someone. I am calling it, "Dancing with the Idiots." The genius of the show is there is no shortage of contestants. The problem with this show would be who is the idiot to beat all idiots?

Since I am not a very good dancer this does not work for me.

I think the difference is, I have to answer to the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. Believe me, she was not born yesterday but I will not give the exact year for obvious reasons. I used to do that but that is when I learned I could not dance,

When I was very young and more confused than I am today I thought I could get away with anything. Believe me, I tried. I could write a book, but then there are so many people I would not want to read it that it would not be worth publishing.

One problem is associated with this kind of thinking. If you get away with something, who in the world can you brag to about it? If I do something behind my wife's back and actually get away with it, where is the consolation prize?

I think the only thing that really illustrates this is fishing. When I was younger, I loved to fish. The wonderful world of angling consists of two kinds of fishermen: those who brag a lot and those who catch a lot and the twain shall never cross

I was an avid fisherman and it was a long time before I figured out that in the 23rd Psalm David is not talking about a fishing rod when he says, "thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." Be that as it may, my fishing rod did a great deal of comforting me back in "the day."

When I would go fishing and come home empty-handed, I could brag about the big one that got away. Of course, every time I told the story the fish got just a little bit bigger. But who is going to correct me on that? Who is to say that it was not really that big? Or, even bigger?

When I came home with a bunch of fish, the catch spoke for itself. After all, how in the world can you exaggerate something when it is right before you? Who do you think I am? A politician?

If you do think you are getting away with something, somebody will see you and share that information with somebody have concluded else who will share that information that life, as it stands with somebody else until it has come out in the public full circle. Thus begins the dizzy world

> Just this week, for example, I was caught. I hate getting caught.

> I had come home after a long day at the office and my wife greeted me with, "I saw Mrs. Jones who said she saw Mrs. Smith who told her that Mrs. Grant saw you buying an Apple Fritter at Publix. Is there any truth in it?"

> Any husband knows he will never win any argument when there are four women who testify to the contrary of what he > is about to say. The best procedure at this point is to fall on the mercy of the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. Because, I have discovered the great secret to marital bliss. Simply put, when she is happy, I am happy. The trick is to find out what makes her happy.

> When I am thus caught with the alleged Apple Fritter, she is happiest when I confess and say the magical words, "You're right!" Arguments have disappeared. The only thing I have to hear now is, "Well, don't let it happen again." And the marital bliss is back on track and I have averted a personal train wreck.

> A long time ago, I understood the difference between being happy and being right. Yes, there is that time when you need to stand your ground regardless of the consequence. My philosophy of life is to simply pick your battles very carefully. Not every battle is worth the scars.

> After all, when you are caught with the goods in hand, denying it is the epitome of stupidity. Unless I am a politician, I want to stay away from stupidity as much as possible.

> The thing about denying the scandal you might be in at the time is, it only prolongs the focus on the scandal. Perhaps some politicians could take my advice and confess fully when caught with the goods in hand. Saying, "I'm sorry," is the first step in putting something behind

> Someone said that confession is good for the soul. It is good for many other things as well. The Bible is sure good on this aspect of confession.

> "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:9

> The world can be very confusing if we are not willing to 'fess up and try straightening things out.
