CITY IMPOSES INCREASED MANDATORY WATER CONSERVATION MEASURES

At the May 28, 2013 City Council meeting, the City Council implemented mandatory water conservation measures for all water customers in Sierra Madre, effective immediately. The dry winter Sierra Madre just experienced seriously affected the groundwater levels as did increased water consumption by the City's water customers. Due to the lack of rain and increased consumption, the groundwater levels have not recovered, leading the Raymond Basin Watermaster to reduce the City's groundwater pumping rights by almost 47%.

The City now requires that each water customer conserve a percentage of his or her July 2011 through June 2012 water use. The required percentage of conservation will vary, depending on the customer's water use. Customers consuming 0-12 billing units of water (0-1,200 cubic feet) will be exempt from the conservation requirements. Customers using 13-17 billing units (1,300 – 1,700 cubic feet) are required to reduce their consumption by 10%. Customers using 18 units or more are required to reduce by 20%.

Additional information on these new water conservation regulations is available at the City's website www.cityofsierramadre.com

It is imperative that everyone in the community does everything they can to conserve water. Active, thoughtful water conservation by everyone in Sierra Madre now could help the City avoid even more stringent mandatory measures and/or the import of water from sources outside the City.

LEADING THE WAY - VFW 3208

Sierra Madre's Veterans Of Foreign War Post 3208 Has Been Leading Our Community For Decades. Now They Will Lead Our Fourth Of July Parade As Grand Marshals

The volunteers of the Sierra Madre 4th of July Committee are pleased and excited to announce that the 2013 Fourth of July Parade Grand Marshal will be Sierra Madre's Veteran's of Foreign Wars (VFW) Post 3208.

"The Grand Marshal is a person or persons whose efforts over a long period of time has been beneficial to the community of Sierra Madre. The title of Grand Marshal is intended to honor a person or persons' volume of work, dedication and overall enhancements to our community." No one embodies this more than the members of the VFW.

Sierra Madre's VFW Post No. 3208 was granted its status on February 13, 1935 officially the "Harry L Embree Post No. 3208, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, an organization existing under authority of an Act of Congress, approved May 28, 1936. This year marks 113 years of community service, tradition and veterans' service.

The membership of the Post consists of World War II, Korean, Vietnam, Iraq and Afghanistan veterans. These are true American Heroes living in our community and what better way to acknowledge them, their service and their families than saying thank you during this year's 4th of July Celebration.

The community service endeavors of the Veterans of Foreign Wars go well beyond the realm of "veterans helping veterans." Sierra Madre's VFW has provided a Scholarship to the Veterans of Pasadena City College; supported the Pasadena High School ROTC program, supported local Boy & Girls Scouts; sponsorships for Sierra Madre Little League teams and adult co-ed Softball. The Veterans have donated flags to the City that are used to line the City streets, donated $10,000 to for bleachers at Heasley Field, donated $5,000 to Pony league for field repairs and just recently purchased a pole and flag for Dapper Field.

Want to learn more about the VFW, the Post meets at the Hart Park House on the second Sunday of the month at 2:00 p.m. or look for a Veteran during the 4th of July Parade as they hand out flags to kids along the route. For more information on all of the 4th of July Festivities, please visit www.sierramadre4thofjuly.com.

Holden's Bill Heads to the Governor for Signature

Assemblymember Chris Holden's bill to standardize the start date of newly elected Municipal Water District Directors has been approved by the State Legislature and is now on its way to Governor Brown for signature. It is the first bill from freshman Assemblymember Majority Whip Holden (D-Pasadena) to pass the legislative process.

Assemblymember Holden applauded his colleagues' bipartisan support this common sense, good government bill designed to limit the 'lame duck' term for outgoing Water District Directors." Holden added, Directors." "This bill will ensure water districts are able to move swiftly between terms and critical business is not delayed unnecessarily."

The problem: Newly elected directors of California Water Districts take office on the first Friday in December, while those elected to Municipal Water Districts must wait until the first Monday after January 1st, making it difficult to proceed with municipal water business until new members are seated some 60 days later. Testifying in favor of the bill was sponsor, Three Valleys Municipal Water District President Bob Kuhn, who noted following the hearing, "We are pleased with the Legislature's positive response to AB 72. The bill establishes good governance for all Municipal Water Districts and we urge the Governor to sign this valuable piece of Legislation." Legislation."

AB 72 passed the Senate on May 24th by unanimous consent. It was approved in the Assembly earlier this year. If signed by the Governor, it will into effect January 1, 2014.

WISE Mission Identifies New Asteroid Families

the asteroid-hunting portion of the WISE all-sky survey, called NEOWISE, to identify 28 new asteroid families. The snapshots also helped place thousands of previously hidden and uncategorized asteroids into families for the first time. The findings are a critical step in understanding the origins of asteroid families, and the collisions thought to have created these rocky clans.

"NEOWISE has given us the data for a much more detailed look at the evolution of asteroids throughout the solar system," said Lindley Johnson, the program executive for the Near-Earth Object Observation Program at NASA Headquarters in Washington. "This will help us trace the NEOs back to their sources and understand how some of them have migrated to orbits hazardous to the Earth."

The main asteroid belt is a major source of near-Earth objects (NEOs), which are those asteroids and comets that come within 28 million miles (45 million kilometers) of Earth's path around the sun. Some near-Earth objects start out in stable orbits in the main asteroid belt, until a collision or gravitational disturbance flings them inward approximately 600,000 known. They found that about 38,000 of scientists announced this week.

Astronomers used millions of infrared snapshots from could be assigned to 76 families, 28 of which are new. In addition, some asteroids thought to belong to a particular family were reclassified.

"We're separating zebras from the gazelles," said Joseph Masiero of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., who is lead author of a report on the new study that appears in the Astrophysical Journal. "Before, family members were harder to tell apart because they were traveling in nearby packs. But now we have a better idea of which asteroid belongs to which family."

The next step for the team is to learn more about the original parent bodies that spawned the families.

"It's as if you have shards from a broken vase, and you want to put it back together to find out what happened," said Amy Mainzer, the NEOWISE principal investigator at JPL. "Why did the asteroid belt form in the first place and fail to become a planet? We are piecing together our asteroids' history."

Why I Wrote My Books: GUIDE TO WILD FOODS

[Nyerges is the author of 10 books, and teaches regular classes through the School of Self-reliance. He does a weekly podcast at Preparedness Radio Network, and blogs regularly at www.ChristopherNyerges.com.]

are the plants that gardeners love to pull up and

The first book I wrote was "Guide to Wild Foods." It represented attempt to put my various notes and articles about plant lore and ethnobotany into some usable format. If these notes were organized, others might be able to travel over the path I've struggled over a bit more easily. But I actually compiled and wrote the book for my own personal use and was happy to see that others found the book worthy of purchase.

I began "Guide to Wild Foods" in 1975, and I began by simply alphabetizing, by common name, all the notes on the various plants I'd been learning to identify, and then learning how to use them for food, medicine, or something else.

In my bedroom of my parents' home, I kept my crude of my observations, my studies, and my recipes scattered in a somewhat organized fashion over every flat surface. In 1976, I began by writing weekly columns for the now-defunct Altadena Chronicle as my first attempt to begin publishing my book.

With the help of various mentors, I began to more fully organize the notes into cogent chapters, got illustrations, and got the whole book printed and bound.

The first edition was a dream come true, but contained many typos. By the next printing, I'd cleaned up the errors in the text, improved the drawings, and expanded the text. In fact, since it's first appearance in 1978, I've updated the book nearly every time there was a new printing.

One of my greatest surprises came when I was listening to the old American Indian hour on Pasadena City College Radio early one Saturday morning. Dorothy Poole, aka Chaparral Granny, was talking about the uses of certain local wild plants. As I listened, it sounded vaguely familiar. quickly pulled out my copy of "Guide to Wild Foods" and opened to the plant she was talking about. Imagine my surprise to see that she was reading directly from my book! I felt honored that she felt my compilation and personal commentary was worthy of sharing on the American Indian hour.

The book helps the beginner understand the basic botanical terminology, and quickly shows the reader how to best utilize many of the common wild plants for food, medicine, soap,

Many of the plants listed in this book are not native, and are considered invasive weeds. They toss in the trash, or worse, to spray Roundup on them so they don't come back.

But it turns out that some of the wild foods are more nutritious than much of what we find in the supermarket. And they taste good too, if you simply take the time to learn how to prepare

In "Guide to Wild Foods," you learn that the brown pod from the carob trees planted all over Southern California are edible, and are an excellent source of calcium and B vitamins.

You also learn that dandelion is the richest source of beta carotene (not carrots), and that purslane is the richest plant source of Omega 3 fatty acids, and that the common lambs quarter is like nature's mineral tablet.

I include many of the Native American uses of plants, such as the yucca plant which was a valuble soap and fibre source, as well as three types of food. And you learn about many of the natural cures to poison oak, including the seemingly unusual treatment that I've done for the past 30 years.

ARCADIA

THE LAST FIELD DAY AT ANNUNCIATION: The End of an Era in Arcadia

By Joan Schmidt

Perhaps this article should be titled, "The Los Angeles Archdiocese Makes A Mistake Again". That would be putting it MILDLY according to many parishioners and parents.

I suppose the problem began with Monsignor Hawkes and his control over the Archdiocese finances. (Harriet Ryan's article "A posthumous fall from grace" in the L.A. Times is a must-read about Hawkes and a more serious issue. However this article goes into depth about how the financial dilemma with schools/parishes began) People can argue that the vast number of schools provided a great education. However by 1987, the archdiocese's massive construction resulted into a $27 million debt! Ms. Ryan also explains that "Hawks' solution was to turn the chancery into a sort of bank for all the parishes...allowed the Church to use money from wealthy congregations to the poor parishes" from wealthy congregations to the poor parishes."

For MANY years, I wondered why we were asked to contribute to the "Together in Mission" drive. ("Together in Mission" is an annual fund drive which ALL Parishes MUST give a certain amount to the Archdiocese to help schools in need) After being on an Accreditation Team for San Antonio de Padua School in Boyle Heights, I changed my opinion. It was such a great school and all the parents were so grateful for the education their children were receiving. However, San Antonio de Padua DID close eventually because of financial difficulties. Then about five years ago, I heard our school was in the red, yet Annunciation Parish had to give $55,000 to the "Together in Mission"! Many old parishioners were angry and thought, "Why is the Archdiocese getting $55,000 if we're in the red?" (Currently it is down to $40,000+)

The second nail in the coffin to Annunciation occurred in 2010. Immaculate Conception in Monrovia also had a low enrollment. (They had a little over 100, yet Annunciation had 160+) Their school should have closed, and their parents would have put them into our school. Annunciation has a beautiful large field for sports and is much more assessable. (Have you ever tried Huntington Drive in the mornings?) But in their wisdom, the Archdiocese insisted on merging the two schools. Okay, everyone accepted that, but here comes the stupidity. They insisted on keeping TWO campuses open. Can you imagine how much money that cost? From day one, I knew it was a mistake. So many parents pulled their kids from Annunciation School. They told me, "I am not running a taxi service...I don't have time to drop my kids off at two different campuses before I go to work."

A few weeks ago, Father Eugene, Pastor of Annunciation, wrote a letter to parishioners. In it, he explained that the Annunciation Campus would not be used, and all classes would be at the Immaculate Conception site. I already know of five students who had attended Annunciation EIGHT years, GradeK-7. But they are going elsewhere for eighth grade. Immaculate Conception has no field. How Can they do soccer, track, etc.? It is a very sad situation. Once again, the Archdiocese has blundered.

Commercial Burglary - One Suspect Arrested May 23 at 1:54 p.m., a business in the 1600 block of South Mountain called to report a shoplifter in custody. Two suspects, a male and a female, entered the store, while a third suspect waited in a vehicle outside. The male suspect selected merchandise and handed it to the female, who then concealed the property inside her purse. The female suspect exited the store without paying for the merchandise. A loss prevention officer detained the female, but the male suspect was not located. The male suspect and the suspect waiting in the car fled the scene before police arrived. The female suspect was arrested for burglary and two outstanding warrants. A computer check revealed she is currently on parole for burglary and has two outstanding drug related warrants. The investigation is continuing.

Driving Under the Influence of Drugs / Possession of Marijuana - Suspect Arrested

May 24 at 12:16 a.m., an officer noticed a vehicle traveling north on Peck Road with a broken taillight, following too close to a vehicle, and changing lanes without signaling, so he conducted a traffic stop on the vehicle. The vehicle struck the curb while pulling over for the officer. When he approached the vehicle, he noticed the driver appeared to be under the influence of drugs. The officer conducted a DUI investigation and subsequently arrested the driver for DUI. During a search of the vehicle, he located a useable amount of marijuana in the vehicle.

May 25 at 12:06 a.m., an officer responded to the report of vandalism in the 700 block of California. The victim parked his Chevy Tahoe in an alley. Suspect(s) in a white, two-door vehicle, possibly a Honda, drove by the Tahoe and struck the vehicle with a baseball bat. The Tahoe was hit two times within a 30 minute period. The investigation is continuing.

Warrant - Suspect Arrested

May 25 at 10:24 a.m., officers responded to a report of a suspicious vehicle in the area of Primrose and Pomona. Upon arrival, they located a converted school bus, now being used as a motor home, with several subjects inside. Officers contacted the subjects and determined one of them had an outstanding warrant for petty theft. The subject was taken into custody for the warrant.

Resisting and Delaying a Peace Officer by Means of Threats - Suspect Arrested

May 25 at 1:42 p.m., officers were completing a call and, as the last officer drove away, two subjects from the incident began yelling obscenities at the officer. One of the subjects chased the officer's police vehicle on foot, while yelling and challenging the officer to fight. The officer approached a stop sign, approximately 300 feet away from the original call, and saw the subject was still chasing and challenging him, and was now approaching his patrol vehicle. The officer positioned his vehicle several feet away from the subject, requested backup, and exited his vehicle to deal with the subject. The subject continued running towards the officer, threatening to fight him. The officer drew his Taser and the subject stopped. The suspect was arrested for resisting and delaying a peace officer by means of threats.

Driving Under the Influence / Obstructing and Delaying a Peace Officer - Suspects Arrested

May 26 at 3:10 p.m., an officer on patrol noticed that a vehicle traveling south on Myrtle almost struck a detour sign, so he conducted a traffic stop on the vehicle. The female driver appeared to be under the influence. The male passenger exited the vehicle and became argumentative with the officer and removed his t-shirt. The officer requested backup and removed his Taser. The suspect told the officer to go ahead and Tase him, but when he saw assisting officers approaching, he placed his hands behind his back. He was arrested for obstructing and delaying an officer without further incident.

The officer then completed his investigation on the female driver and determined she was driving under the influence; she was arrested. The passenger later admitted that he thought if he was arrested, it would distract the officer away from the DUI driver, his

Critical Missing Located

May 26 at 6:40 p.m., officers responded to a business in the 400 block of West Huntington regarding a missing person. A 65-yearold male was shopping with his family at the business and he became bored and wanted to go home. His family told him to wait by the door and they would be out soon. When the family was ready to leave they could not find him. They looked all over the store and then called police. Officers responded and searched the area, put out a missing person's flyer, and contacted surrounding agencies. Just after 8:00 p.m., the family called and said he had returned home. The man had walked home from the store in Monrovia to his home in Rosemead.

Stolen Vehicle Recovered

May 27 at 2:13 a.m., an officer on patrol in the 3300 block of South Peck Road observed a white van parked on the street. He ran a computer check on the van and found it was reported stolen out of Pico Rivera. The van was recovered.

5 THINGS EVERY PARENT SHOULD KNOW ABOUT SUMMER JOBS

by Beth Milito, National Federation of Small Businesses to get a summer job. Summer jobs are good for students. They pay real money, which is can come in handy, and a lot of businesses have employee discounts, which are a great way to stretch a dollar.

Working over summer break has other benefits, too. Summer jobs can help build confidence and character, teach responsibility and give students real-world experience that college admissions officers and future employers may appreciate. Summer jobs can give students a better idea of what they do - or don't - want to pursue

But there are some important things you as a parent should know 4. about your student's job opportunities (employers should be aware and earn serious money. There's no limit to the number of of these, too):

- The rules apply to them. Just because they're in school doesn't mean employers can take advantage of them. Minors are entitled to the same minimum wage, overtime, and safety and 5. health protections as adults. When it comes to work, the federal matter that they're still in school. In the eyes of the law, they're Act, or FLSA, applies to everyone, regardless of age. Other federal which they're qualified. and state workplace laws apply to them, too.
- comes to summer jobs. Federal law says they're too young for most non-farming jobs, such as working in a store or restaurant,

School's winding down, and a lot of high-school students will try but there are still jobs they can do. They're allowed to babysit and perform minor chores around a private home, and if you own a business, they're allowed to work for you.

- If they're 14 or 15, their prospects are better. Students in this age bracket are allowed to perform jobs such as bagging groceries, waiting tables and working in an office, but they can't use power-driven machinery, such as lawn mowers, lawn trimmers, and weed cutters. They also aren't allowed to work more than 40 hours a week.
- If they're 16 or 17, they're allowed to work up a sweat hours 16- and 17-year-olds can work, and they're allowed to work basically any job that isn't declared hazardous, provided all other Fair Labor Standards Act requirements are met.
- If they're 18 or older, legally, they're adults. It doesn't wage and hour law, officially known as the Fair Labor Standards grown up, and that means they can do pretty much any job for

Finally, remember that state laws may offer teens additional protections, so it's important to check with your state department Students 13 and younger have limited options when it of labor for guidance on state restrictions.

STRENGTH IN THE MIDST OF THE STORM

At Least Two Prayers Answered After Moore, Oklahoma Tornado

When I heard the news about the tragic events that unfolded during last week's Oklahoma tornado, I was heart-broken for the victims, yet amazed at how strong they appeared to be in the wake of a natural phenomenon that would have put me into a state of shock. After having lost the lives of 9 young children and 15 adults as well as hundreds of homes in their small rural community, one would expect the surviving victims to be overwhelmed with grief and frustration. The citizens of Moore, Oklahoma seem to be uniquely strong and hopeful individuals based on how they reacted to their recent tragedy. If anything good came from such an horrific event, it is the inspiration the victims spread throughout our nation to keep the faith and refuse to give in to despair.

I grew up in Huntsville, Alabama, so I have a pretty good idea of how it feels to be huddled in the center of the house, surrounded by tornadoes outside, threatening to blow it all to smithereens. It is probably the scariest feeling I have ever experienced in all my life. They used to call our town "tornado alley", and it lived up to it's name. However, even among the several tornado storms I lived through as a kid, none could possibly compare to the EF-5 monster twister that ripped through the town of Moore, Oklahoma on the morning of May 20th, flattening hundreds of homes and sending trucks and cars flying through the air like fallen leaves. God bless those who lost their loved ones and their livelihoods during that horrific storm. They have a lot of rebuilding to do, both emotionally and physically, but I predict they will emerge stronger and more resilient for it.

My intention is not to belittle the loss of lives and homes on that dreadful day, but I believe it is also important to celebrate the happy stories that came out of the tragedy as well, because the human spirit thrives and grows where there is strength during the storm. One particular story of a happy ending that touched me, actually developed during a live news interview with Barbara Garcia, one of the victims who lost her home and nearly everything she owned to that horrific storm. She stood among the twisted rubble that was once her house and with a renewed grateful attitude for being alive, and she told the news correspondent exactly what had happened.

As the tornado headed her way at top speed, Barbara immediately kicked into survival mode and carried out what she described as her "game plan". That is, she gathered her little dog, a sweet miniature schnauzer named Bowser and ran with him into the bathroom, hoping that the plumbing would be more stationary and less likely to give way than other parts of the house. There she sat on the toilet stool with Bowser by her side, waiting for the tornado to pass and praying to God that He would allow them both to survive.

When the tornado hit her house, the electricity went out and the stool she sat on flew up and out from under her, blowing away along with the floor, walls, ceiling and every other component of the structure. For what must have felt like a lifetime, she held tight and continued to pray while wood studs, drywall, roof shingles, sheet metal and all sorts of enormous random objects spun around her like ingredients being minced in a food processor. Finally, when everything got quiet and she could see the light of day, she dug herself out from under the debris that had buried her and began calling out to her beloved best friend, Bowser.

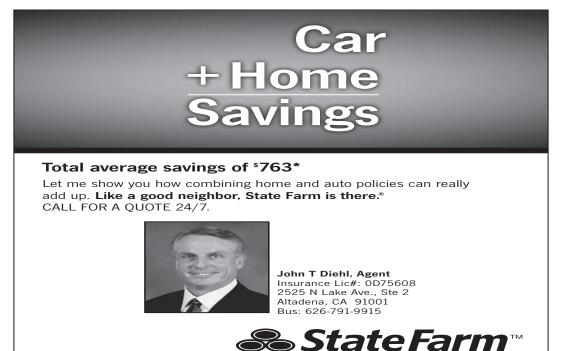

As she stood among the wreckage, recounting her epic experience to the news correspondent, Barbara never once lost her composure. Clearly, she must have been saddened by her immense loss, and very upset not to have received a response from her precious pup, Bowser. However just as she mentioned his name, a member of the news crew cried out, "The dog, the dog!", and pointed to a spot in the rubble just behind Barbara, where Bowser's little head could be seen poking through a small opening in the pile.

That's when Barbara turned to see Bowser peering up at her in desperation. She just about burst into tears when she realized he was alive! The news crew helped Barbara remove the twisted metal and wood debris that had trapped poor Bowser, and helped her pull him out from under the pile and into safety. Well, I have to say that is when I lost it completely. Tears welled up in my eyes and I could not stop crying. Like I said, I do not mean to take away from the tragic reality that 24 people lost their lives that day, particularly the children. I guess I just felt the need to write about this story because to me it represents hope during a time when hope would otherwise be very difficult to cling to.

What really struck me most about this happy-ending story were the words that came out of Barbara's mouth immediately after they got her scared yet injury-free baby boy, Bowser to safety. As if on cue, she said, "Well, I thought God had just answered one prayer to let me be OK, but he answered both prayers...this was my second one." When asked how she was feeling about seeing her home and her entire neighborhood ripped to pieces, Barbara candidly replied, "That's life in the big city!". What an inspiring lady. She apparently has her priorities well in line, and demonstrated strength beyond my comprehension, in the midst of the storm!

MY PASTRAMI DREAMS

When my friend and superstar Personal Trainer Darrian Dalangini challenged me to find the best Pastrami in the area, I thought "easy enough, I'll check out a few places, post a few notes on my facebook site www.facebook/peterdills.com, and the answer will appear". I found out quickly don't argue sex, politics or who has the best pastrami sandwich in town. Before we start this argument, let's take a look at the origins of pastrami.

Like corned beef, pastrami was originally created as a way to preserve meat before modern refrigeration. For pastrami, the raw meat is brined, partly dried, seasoned with various herbs and spices, then smoked and steamed. In the United States, although beef plates are the traditional cut of meat for making pastrami, it is now common to see pastrami made from beef brisket, beef round, and turkey.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

The Romanian specialty was introduced to the United States in a wave of Romanian Jewish immigration from Bessarabia and Romania in the second half of the 19th century, via the Yiddish.

Early references in English used the spelling "pastrama", closer to the Romanian original. The modified "pastrami" spelling likely was introduced to sound related to the Italian salami.

Although New York's Sussman Volk is generally credited with producing the first pastrami sandwich in 1887, that claim is disputed by the founders of Katz's Deli in New York, which was founded in 1888. Volk, a kosher butcher, claimed he got the recipe from a Romanian friend in exchange for storing the friend's luggage while the friend returned to Romania. According to his descendant, Patricia Volk, Volk prepared pastrami according to the recipe and served it on sandwiches out of his butcher shop. The sandwich was so popular that Volk converted the butcher shop into a restaurant to sell pastrami sandwiches.

Romanian Jews immigrated to New York as early as 1872. Among Jewish Romanians, goose breasts were commonly made into pastrami because they were inexpensive. Beef navels were cheaper than goose meat in America, so the Romanian Jews in America adapted their recipe and began to make the cheaper beef pastrami.

Making foods to sell out of push carts in the Lower East Side of New York was one of the most popular occupations for immigrant Jews in the latter half of the 19th century. Because sandwiches were a hugely popular foodstuff in New York, it is possible Romanian Jewish immigrants were making and selling pastrami sandwiches from push carts on the streets of New York at least a decade before Sussman Volk converted his butcher shop into a restaurant.

With a little help from my friends, here are the top three choices for a pastrami sandwich in the Pasadena/Los Angeles areas. In no particular order:

The Hat With a number of locations throughout the San Gabriel Valley, I visited the one on the corner of N. Lake and Villa in Pasadena. I ordered mine dry, and Johnnie Pastrami 4017 Sepulveda Blvd. Culver City. The names says it all. Although Johnnie recently passed on to the sandwich shop in the sky, visitors flock to this spot for pastrami on a buttery French roll, and ask for extra pickles.

Tied: Langers and Canters. These two veterans probably received the most passionate support with such postings as "no need to go

INGREDIENTS:

- •3/4 cup warm water
- •1 package active dry yeast
- •1 tsp salt
- •1-1/2 tbsp sugar •1 tbsp vegetable shortening
- •1/2 cup milk
- •3 cups all-purpose flour, approximately

DIRECTIONS:

1.In large bowl, add the warm water. Slowly stir in dry yeast. Continue to stir until yeast is dissolved. 2.Add salt, sugar, shortening, and milk to bowl. Stir.

3.Mix in the first 2 cups of flour.

4.If needed, begin adding more flour, one tablespoon at a time, until the dough chases the spoon around the bowl.

5. You do not need to use up all the flour called for in this recipe, or you may need more flour than called for. The amounts vary depending on many factors, including weather, which is why most bread recipes only give an approximate amount of flour needed.

6. Turn dough out onto floured board and knead, adding small spoonfuls of flour as needed, until the dough is soft and smooth, not sticky to the touch.

7.Put dough in buttered bowl, turn dough over so that the top of dough is greased. Cover and let rise in warm spot for 1 hour.

8. Punch down dough. Turn out onto floured board and knead.

9. Preheat oven at 375 degrees F.

10. Form dough into loaf and set in buttered bread pan. Cover and let rise for about 30 minutes.

11. Score dough by cutting three slashes across the top with a sharp knife. Put in oven and bake for about 45 minutes or until golden brown.

12. Turn out bread and let cool on a rack or clean dishtowel.

THE WORLD AROUND US

HUBBLE SHOWS RING NEBULA'S TRUE SHAPE

The Ring Nebula's distinctive shape makes it a popular illustration for astronomy books. But new observations by NASA's Hubble Space Telescope of this glowing gas shroud around an old, dying, Sun-like star reveal a new twist.

'The nebula is not like a bagel, but rather, it's like a jelly doughnut, because it's filled with material in the middle," said C. Robert O'Dell of Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn. He leads a research team that used Hubble and several ground-based telescopes to obtain the best view yet of the iconic nebula. The images show a more complex structure than astronomers once thought and have allowed them to construct the most precise 3-D model of the nebula.

"With Hubble's detail, we see a completely different shape than what's been thought about historically for this classic nebula," O'Dell said. "The new Hubble observations show the nebula in much clearer detail, and we see things are not as simple as we previously thought." The Ring Nebula is about 2,000 light-years from Earth and measures roughly 1 light-year across. Located in the constellation Lyra near the bright star Vega, the nebula is a popular target for amateur astronomers. It can be easily seen, even in most urban skies, with telescopes of 6-inch or larger aperture.

Previous observations had detected the gaseous material in the ring's central region. But the new view by Hubble's sharp-eyed Wide Field Camera 3 shows the nebula's structure in more detail. O'Dell's team suggests the ring wraps around a blue, football-shaped structure. Each end of the structure protrudes out of opposite sides of the ring.

The nebula is tilted toward Earth so that astronomers see the ring face-on. In the Hubble image, the blue structure is the glow of helium. Radiation from the white dwarf star, the white dot in the center of the ring, is exciting the helium to glow. The white dwarf is the stellar remnant of a Sun-like star that has exhausted its hydrogen fuel and has shed its outer layers of gas to gravitationally collapse to a compact object.

All the glowing gas we see was expelled by the central star about 4,000 years ago. The original star was several times more massive than our Sun. After billions of years converting hydrogen to helium in its core, the star began to run out of fuel. It then ballooned in size, becoming a red giant. During this phase, the star shed its outer gaseous layers into space and began to collapse as fusion reactions began to die out. A gusher of ultraviolet light from the dying star energized the gas, making it glow.

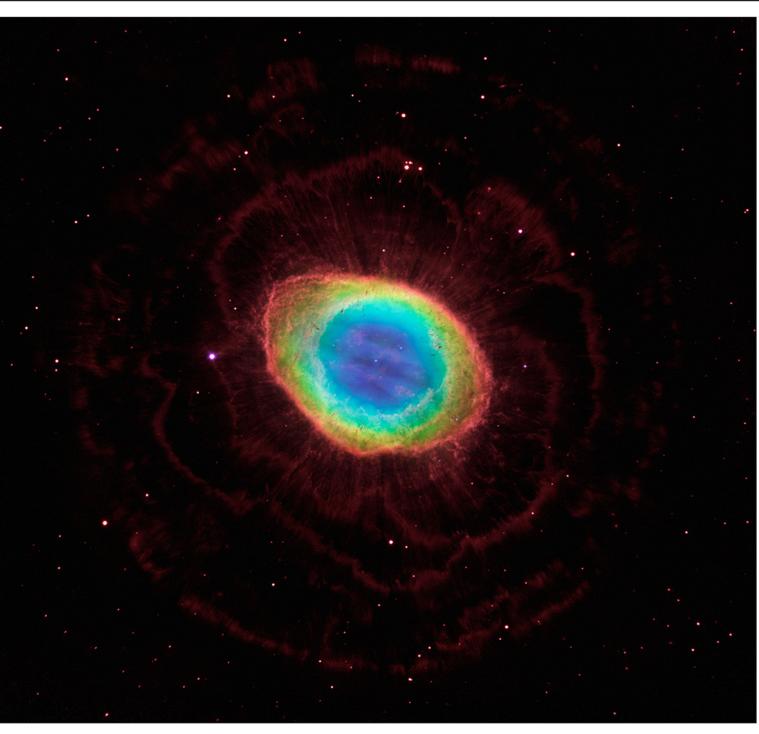

The outer rings were formed when faster-moving gas slammed into slower-moving material. The nebula is expanding at more than 43,000 miles an hour, but the center is moving faster than the expansion of the main ring. O'Dell's team measured the nebula's expansion by comparing the new Hubble observations with Hubble studies made in 1998.

In the analysis, the research team also obtained images from the Large Binocular Telescope at the Mount Graham International Observatory in Arizona and spectroscopic data from the San Pedro Martir Observatory in Baja California, Mexico.

HOW TO FIND LOST LIFE-INSURANCE POLICIES

Dear Savvy Senior:

When my father passed away we thought he had a life insurance policy, but we haven't been able to track it down. Do you know of any resources that might help? Searching Family

Dear Searching:

Lost or forgotten life-insurance policies are actually quite common in the U.S. In fact, it's estimat-

While unfortunately, there isn't a national database for tracking down these policies, there are a number of strategies and a few new resources that can help your search. Here are several to get you started.

Search records: If your dad died recently, searching through his financial records is a good first step. Check his files for a policy, records of premium payments, or bills from an insurer. Also contact his employer or former employer benefits administrator, insurance agents, financial planner, accountant, attorney or other adviser and ask if they know about a life insurance policy. Also check safe-deposit boxes, monitor the mail for premium invoices or whole-life dividend notices, and review old incometax returns, looking for interest income from, and interest expenses paid to life-insurance companies.

Contact the insurer: If you suspect that a particular insurer underwrote the policy, contact that carrier's claim office and ask. The more information you have, like your dad's date of birth and death, Social Security number and address, the easier it will be to track down. Contact information of some big insurers include: Prudential 800-778-2255; MetLife metlife.com/policyfinder; AIG 800-888-2452; Nationwide 800-848-6331; Forethought 800-331-8853; John Hancock johnhancock.com – click on "Contact Us" then on "Account Search Request."

Get state help: Some state insurance departments have a policy locator service program that can help you locate lost life insurance, or offer resources that can help you with your search. To reach your state insurance department, see the National Association of Insurance Commissioners website at naic.org – click on "States & Jurisdictions Map."

Search unclaimed property: If your dad died more than a few years ago, benefits may have already been turned over to the unclaimed property office of the state where the policy was purchased. Go to missingmoney.com, a website of the National Association of Unclaimed Property Administrators, to search records from 38 states, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia. The pull-down menu under Links connects you to a map and addresses for unclaimed-property agencies. Or, to find links to each state's unclaimed-property division use unclaimed.org.

If your dad's name or a potential benefactor's name produces a hit, you'll need to prove your claim. Required documentation, which can vary by state, is detailed in claim forms, and a death certificate might be necessary. If you need a copy of your dad's death certificate, contact the vital records office in the state where he died, or go to vitalchek.com.

Tap MIB database: The MIB Group Inc., an insurance membership corporation whose main purpose is fighting fraud, offers a policy locator service to help consumers in their searches for life insurance policies. This service, however, only tracks applications for individual policies made since 1996. The service costs $75, requires an original death certificate to get the ball rolling, and takes about seven to 10 days to produce a report. To learn more, visit policylocator.com.

KATIE TseThis and That RETIREMENT

Retirement, it's a dream you look forward to in your first year at the job. Thirty-some years later, you either embrace it as freedom to do all the things you couldn't get around to when you were working; or, you wonder how you'll fill those 40 extra hours every week. But before you enter retirement, you must go through at least one retirement party.

My friends and relatives in education all approach retirement very differently. Some like their coworkers to get up and make speeches about all their dedicated years of service and the positive impact they've made in so many lives. These people usually also have slideshows with "Thanks for the Memories" playing. All their younger coworkers can see them as they were in their 20's. You know behind their self-controlled smiles they've got to be thinking "Wow! He was skinny once!"

"That's what she looks like without wrinkles!" Some retirees like that sort of sentiment, but to me those kinds of events almost take on a funereal tone. One of my friends said a coworker actually told her, "You know, retirement is the last step before death." Talk about giving someone a nice send off!

I think my mom's retirement festivities were best. Another teacher was retiring that same year, so she wasn't alone in the spotlight. Before her coworkers could buy some sappy thing like a ceramic figurine of a student holding out an apple for his teacher, she sent out a memo that, if they were going to buy her anything, she'd most appreciate something from Village Spinning & Weaving Shop, a very popular store among fiber nuts. She also requested that her party be held at the local BJ's. That might seem irrelevant, but by choosing a noisy sports bar, no one could speak above the din to give any teary eyed speeches.

The best part of my mom's retirement (other than retiring itself!) was her musical send off performed by the entire student body. Every year, my mom read her kids "The Wizard of Oz." Over time she developed more and more

"Oz" materials and activities, such as the annual End-of-the-year Oz party. Now, no Oz party would be complete without a lot of green food (think green frosted cupcakes and Mountain Dew) and my mom's signature green spectacles she helped the kids put together.

So, on her last day of school she was pleasantly surprised when all the students serenaded her with a peppy rendition of "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," all wearing green spectacles! Two years into her retirement, my mom is the model retired person. She's busier now than she every was working, hiking around town with my dad, spinning twice a week (as in with a spinning wheel, not at the gym), gardening, and doing a host of other fun things that got lost in the shuffle while she was working. God has brought her safely through so many challenges, and has now blessed her with a wonderful retirement with my dad! It's not Biblical, but I think He inspired Harold Arlen to write "And the dreams that you dare to dream really do come true!"

SENIOR HAPPENINGS

By Pat Birdsal

FYI - THE POSTMAN ALWAYS.....oops, wrong story!

With all the negative comments made about the post office in the media recently, I thought it was time to tell a positive story...As you know; numerous health issues have been plaguing me since the beginning of the year. Although it seemed unlikely to me, at the time, the occasional ray of sunshine does appear. In my case, it took the form of my letter carrier, Frank Rubio. Frank rang my doorbell one morning and said that he had noticed I hadn't picked up my mail the previous day and since he knew I was recovering from surgery, wanted to make sure I was alright. At that moment, I didn't feel like the Lone Ranger anymore...someone did notice. It was truly a "feel good" moment for me and quite frankly, a positive gesture for all the seniors in our community.

The post office is missing a golden opportunity to combat the negative press and it is right under their collective noses...it's their employees! There would be no need to spend money on a PR firm to do damage control because the employees are already on the payroll working in every state of the country. I'm talking about hundreds and hundreds of potential goodwill ambassadors. Frank Rubio is the essence of the title...you always know when he's working a route because drivers honk their greetings to him...He always has a wave and a ready smile for all which makes him accessible and a most pleasant addition to everyone's day. Thank you, Frank!

Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed

by Luther Tsinoglou

BUY, SELL, WIN, WIN

Buyers, sellers, the time for hesitation is over for both of you. Home sales are rising, inventories are shrinking, and even though home values fell dramatically in the last few years, the good news is that houses are now more affordable than they have been at any time during the last twenty years. If you are buying, now is the time to make your move, literally. As the market recovers, the scales are still tipped in your favor. There are still many "distressed properties" (foreclosures and short sales) on the market, and other homeowners are entering the selling field as improving conditions increase

You can still expect competition for lower end, entry-level homes, but demand is softer in the middle to upper end property market, so you could be in a stronger bargaining position in those two tiers. If you're a seller, don't be alarmed by the good news for buyers. Buyer confidence and strength makes it more likely that you'll enjoy a sale. Don't try to compete against short sales and foreclosures when you're pricing, though, because that's a tough game to win.

Just complete any needed repairs, get your home into great showing condition, and emphasize your home's strengths and features. We're in an interesting transitional phase where both buyers and sellers can be winners with the right attitude and representation.

THE 2013 MOUNT WILSON TRAIL RACE...... THE SOCIAL SIDE! By Deanne Davis

So! Did you go downtown to see the beginning btw, including neighbor, Bud Switzer, and just of the Mt. Wilson Trail Race last Saturday? If you enjoyed being part of it all. didn't, write yourself a note and put it in your calendar so you don't miss it next year. I know, Lined up 7:25ish to watch the race begin. you're saying, 'Well, I'm not running! And I don't 300 excited, elated runners took their marks, know anybody who's running, so why go!"

Oh, dear friends, so many reasons. First of all, it's great fun to just see who you'll run into. Our athletically amazing daughter, Leah, was running, and we wanted to see her off, take her picture, and give her a hug. Discovered later that dear friend, morning!" Christy Lee, was also running. Former City Councilman and Mayor, John Buchanan, was running, so we shook a lot of hands and wished a and clapping, and the 105th running of this ton of good luck.

So much to see! Lots of friends at Beantown Next up, the kids races. These are our favorites as and Starbucks, I bet you know a bunch of those folks, too. The blond lady walking around with a Macaw. Former race winner, (many times) Sharon Pevsner, just back from Massachusetts; the Arrogant Bastards Crossfit Trail Racing Team of Monrovia had a huge booth and about a hundred Arrogant Bastards (name only, no personalities involved) were there. Leah had a fine story about running through Eaton Canyon on some arduous trail and encountering a very young guy wearing an Arrogant Bastards shirt, moving rather slowly who seemed at that moment, the exact opposite of Arrogant, so she asked him, "Are you Arrogant?" He nodded his head somewhat dolefully and replied, "Oh yes, I'm an Arrogant Bastard."

Friend, Kathy Bray, had a nifty table of earrings (I bought green ones), scarves and other nice things modestly priced. Leah got purple ones. We admired the running shoes; the medal racks for all the serious athletes to hang their medals; Doc White's Trail History booth; and were happy to see the VFW guys out in full uniform, our Grand Marshalls for this year's July 4th parade, including a runner from Africa and another import from Baltimore! The front ranks were shirtless, sweating young males - with apologies to Apocalypse Now: "I love the smell of napalm in the morning," I could only think Baldwin Avenue was filled with "the smell of testosterone in the the kids have on their race shirts, which resemble nightgowns on the smaller ones. This year there were two sets of kids, little tiny ones and what looked to be kids 10 or 12 and under. They run from the starting line at Kersting Court to Mira Monte and back, crowds cheering just as excitedly for them as for the big guys! The little tiny ones are so cute, lots of mommies and daddies holding little hands and running.

Walked over to Peppertree Grill for breakfast, got back in time to see friend, Karen Moran, roaring down the hill, holding out her hands to small twin daughters Olivia and Tessa Rae, who were jumping up and down, cheering on their mom, saying, "Come on with me! Finish with me!" they did and she did and it was an absolutely perfect morning.

Yep, just another one of the joys of being a Sierra Madrean, hangin' out at our Trail Race. Hey! Don't miss it next year!

A WORD OF THANKS

Thanks to all involved with this year's successful Mt. Wilson Trail Race. From the full field of participants to city staff to volunteers to the spectators and supporters, it all added up to a wonderful day of running, walking, competing and celebrating the trail.

The MWTR is a wonderful collaboration between the Mt. Wilson Trail Race Committee and the City of Sierra Madre. It's truly a labor of love for the MWTR Committee members, many of whom run in the race. We enjoy working with the various volunteer groups which also support the event, and appreciate everything they do for the MWTR.

However, most people are not aware of the 40 to 50 volunteers who have been working on the trail over the past four months to get the trail ready for the race....and for the enjoyment of people who just like to run or hike it more leisurely. These trail work volunteers have given up their

Sunday morning doing the real dirty work: widening the trail, cutting back brush and grooming it into the fantastic shape it is in now.

The MWTR Committee will be sponsoring trail work days year-round, and encourages the general public to pitch in. If you use and love the trail as we do, then a few hours of your time to give back to it is not only fair, it is most rewarding! Send me an email to put you on the email list, and I will let you know the next time we schedule a trail work day.

And we would encourage the community to make a contribution to the Fletcher Fund, which pays for tools, equipment and materials that are used on the trail. You can send a check (write "Fletcher Fund" on the notes line) to:

> Sierra Madre Community Foundation Attention: Donations P.O. Box 716 Sierra Madre, CA 91025

The Mt. Wilson Trail is truly a gem, located right in our backyard. The MWTR Committee is so proud to stage an activity that highlights this gift of nature. We encourage you to use the trail often, but with love and respect.

IT TAKES A VILLAGE......SIERRA MADRE STYLE

The Mt. Wilson Trail Race is and has been an important part of the Sierra Madre persona for 105 years! What sustains this event? The hard work and commitment of the entire town. Behind the scenes the support of the community are the life blood of this event!

HOW CAN YOGA HELD Living TRU by Lori Koop, Right Brain Business Coach

WHO CAN YOU COUNT ON?

When you really need someone - who can you count on? When you are feeling low? When you want to share your joy? When you make a huge mistake or a huge accomplishment, do you have that go to person who is always at the ready to listen to you and comfort you/support you? Well, that's a pretty tall order for a best friend, spouse or even parent - to always be there, all the time, at a moments notice. Who can you count on for that sage advice, any time of day or night? The answer is so easy. It's you! We have to be there for ourselves. Love all of ourselves, support all of ourselves, be the wise sage with the answers for our best well-being.

So the question is: how do you cultivate this relationship with yourself? You are too busy being there for others. Too busy working and distracting yourself with the internet. Is that last hour a night on the computer the absolute best way to support your self?

In yoga we learn to be there. We cultivate a relationship with our Inner Teacher. This inner teacher knows what we should do, knows how to avoid the same mistakes and directs us with love and support. We learn to be our own best friend. The practice of yoga is for self-sufficiency. Then when we are not looking to others for love and support, when we feel complete and whole within, we can share that confidence and love with others. We can inspire and be a bright light. We are never alone. You are so very wise, and yet, you may be completely dependent on someone else. The journey of self -discovery is rewarding beyond belief. It is not always easy. That is why we avoid. But once you understand how strong and happy you are, your self is such a wonderful place be.

You can spend time inside and on your side, every time you practice yoga. You may just learn you See vou in class. Namasté, René

TRU Harmony

In an ideal world, our spirit (which lives in our right-brain) would be guiding our moves... informing our direction and leading us upward. And after receiving these instructions, the left-brain would detail the action plan, mobilize the troops and execute with confidence. This is how we were designed and how we move forward with ease.

The spirit is consistent. It is the most reliable part of us. And it contains our roadmap, the best path to our purpose. The left-brain, however, is not always consistent. It has options: it can choose to do what the spirit suggests, or not. When it listens to the spirit, the left and right brain harmoniously align. And things get done beautifully, seemingly without effort.

When it chooses not to listen, it is because the logical left-brain has snapped into protection mode. This part of our brain is scared of new things -- anything that requires risk, or threatens its sense of security. It sends out all kinds of fearful/doubtful thoughts that derail the clear directions of the spirit. If we believe these thoughts, we get stopped. It's too scary to move forward, so we don't.

Where there is disagreement between the left and right brains, there is tension. This is where "stress" comes from: the discord between what our spirit suggests (the direction which is TRU for us), and the actions we take or don't take (hindered by our fear). Imagine the flow of a river. The spirit is our natural, authentic flow. Fear is our attempt to swim upstream and resist the truth. If we dissolve the fear, the calm flow of life returns, even if it isn't perfect.

Next week, I will show you how to dissolve the fear so you can return to harmony. This is what Living TRÚ is all about. In the meantime, notice when you are stressed. Look for the conflict... what is your spirit suggesting and what fear is coming against it? It might surprise you.

INFECTED: A NOVEL

By Scott Sigler

As we start to move away from May and into the start of June, we'll start to pick up with much more exciting reads for the summer and this next pick will do just that. "Infected" by Scott Sigler will be sure to pull in readers with not just its premise and plot, but with action and the thoroughness of each individual character. "Infected" focuses on a few different but unique characters that are challenged in their own unique perspectives when a mysterious disease descends onto their hometowns in Michigan.

More trouble is added however when it turns out this mysterious disease turns sane people into raving murderers, who inflict on harm on not just others, but themselves. Sigler is wonderful with pacing and tone here, making readers eager with each turn of a page and anxious as the chapters start to build up to their climax. The tone of "Infected" will not be lost on readers, as each chapter not just focuses on different characters, but play off of each other; character interactions build up from one chapter to the next, as well as the resulting actions that affect one character or all characters as the later chapters progress.

What readers will really enjoy as that these chapters progress, is that the antagonists that act as the disease slowly make themselves known, and become not just the essence of what "Infected" is about, but provide dialogue from both themselves and how the characters around them react, providing plenty of opportunities for readers to see multiple perspectives on the same situation. Sigler is not afraid of building up tension, excitement, and adding in graphic visuals, making "Infected" a gripping read.

Copyrighted in 2008 and receiving praise from various critics and Publishers Weekly (and steering clear of younger readers), "Infected" is one that will definitely be a must-read for the start of your summer reading.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: GOLD & YOUTH

Debut records are difficult to critique. With the hope and promise of a long lasting career, many buzzed bands fizzle out after an album or two. I hate when expectations are so high after hearing a new band's single and only to find out the rest of the record pales in comparison. This next band is one I was worried about despite hailing from the Arts & Crafts label, which houses such wonderful acts like Broken Social Scene, Feist, Eight and A Half, and Bloc Party. After a name alteration and line-up change, Gold & Youth was rebranded when they dropped their first single "City of Quartz," a song dripping in 80s pop. It was brooding pop tune, at least for the first three-fourths of the way. It quickly turned into a more polished, expansive song toward the

After months of delay, the long awaited debut album from Canadian synth-rockers, Gold & Youth has finally been bestowed upon us. "Beyond Wilderness" is the creation of Matt Lyall (lead vocals, guitar, keys and bass), Louise Burns (vocals, bass and keys), Murray McKenzie (guitar, keys and backing vocals), and Jeff Mitchelmore (drums). The thing that makes Gold & Youth different than their synth-pop peers is how their record is fully engaging, bold, and mature. While veteran snyth-rockers Phoenix and newcomers Youngblood Hawke may get all the attention in 2013, there's an intrinsic exuberance found in Gold & Youth that shouldn't be ignored.

"Beyond Wilderness" is ambitiously modern regardless of roaming through the likes of 80s synth rock. What is even more amazing is that just about every subsequent track feels different than the one before. "Quarters" has this sunny and warm atmosphere going on for it. The last minute is reminiscent of something found on a Broken Social Scene record. "Tan Lines," a true standout, boasts understated guitars, softened snyths, and powerful choruses. This is the song to identify summer with as soon as it arrives. "Daylight Colours" demonstrates tropical guitars, ultra chill vibes, and supreme catchiness. "Little Wild Love" is a menacing, moody tune and while it criminally sounds like a cut off some Depeche Mode record, it's still pretty darn good.

There are a few mishaps along the way with "Beyond Wilderness." The dreadful "Cut Lip," which features barely audible vocals is a dream-like song, but plays more like a nightmare you desperately want to wake up from. "Jewel" is a little too much 80s for its own good. It features the vocals of Louise Burns, which is nice change of pace, but the jarring vocal change makes this song seemingly just a plain old filler. Luckily, there's a song like "Young Blood" to crank up the energy once again. It should be the go to song for any club looking for something different to play on the dancefloor. Many newcomers exercising their musical aptitude in synth-pop seem to create the same ten or eleven songs on their brand new record. I've already vocally expressed this genre to be an overcrowded arena, but with "Beyond Wilderness," Youth & Gold are doing something intoxicatingly refreshing.

It's a pleasant surprise to find exceptional depth and profundity to a record of this nature. While it may not be a perfect album, this rather striking debut record wields both high energy and a mature sound that's rare to find working hand in hand with one another.

THE LATEST FASHIONS & RELATIONSHIP MARKETING

What do the latest fashion crazes have in common of a strategy that facilitates customer loyalty, with popular business jargon? As I watch reruns interaction and long-term engagement. of television shows that were popular during my childhood, I'm amazed at how many of the These definitions are nothing more than a hairstyles and clothing have been repeatedly introduced as one of the new looks in a plethora of magazines and blogs specializing in fashion. Loosely referred to as retro or vintage fashion, it is nothing more than a return to a look from the past that has been revamped and reintroduced as the latest and greatest thing to wear. After all, there are only so many ways to reconstruct trousers, tops, hats, dresses and undergarments.

Sometimes the remake is actually an improvement due to advances in technology, for example when fabrics that retained their colors after being washed were introduced, or when an entirely new branch of fabrics was launched with the introduction of polyester in 1951. The latter was indeed a revolution, providing clothing designers with the ability to create water-resistant raincoats and wrinkle-free fashions never before possible.

In similar fashion (pun intended), the world of business is filled with the introduction of new terms and concepts in research reports, news articles and online. Just like fashion, most of the fanfare surrounding the introduction of the latest trend serves as a distraction to the fact that the "new" item is nothing more than a remake of something that was in use more than fifty years

"Relationship marketing" is a term that has received attention in business periodicals and articles since the late 1990's, and it is has now made a comeback as the new kid on the block to many readers. The term was initially defined as a type of marketing created from direct response campaigns that emphasized retaining and satisfying customers as opposed to a primary focus on generating sales transactions. A new and improved meaning has expanded beyond the original definition to encompass the adoption superfluous reference to excellent customer service, before, during and after a transaction. Good old-fashioned business etiquette is the framework within which relationship marketing operates. It begins with good manners and the development of a personal connection with each customer, including those online. Relationship marketing must move beyond the adoption of key words in a company's mission statement and become the reality of a company's practice.

An article in the January-February 1998 issue of the Harvard Business Review noted, "Relationship marketing is powerful in theory but troubled in practice." Consider the pervasive use of special introductory discounts that credit card companies or cable television companies offer to first-time customers, which completely ignoring customers who have spent thousands of dollars with them over many years. What does that type of business practice say about how those companies value relationships with its existing

An online April 1, 2013 Forbes article by Steve Olenski about business-to-business marketing (B2B) referenced a 2012 quote by a chief marketing officer who was speaking about the upcoming year, "We will see the beginning of what I refer to as 'the relationship' whereby marketers will move away from an acquisition first mentality to a relationship first one. Marketers will focus more on the entire consumer experience to build and foster a long term relationship with a consumer as opposed to just that initial purchase phase."

News alert! We've seen these characteristics on the runway before, and we're elated that the experts are touting them as the latest fashions. We can only hope that relationship marketing will take hold as more than a passing fad.

MEMORIAL DAY WEEKEND

remember being horrified by the death of the racecar driver Bill Vukovich. His death occurred during the Indy 500 and devastated me. I was 11 years old and Vukovich was one of the most popular people in America. I think he had won the race the previous two years. He was comfortably leading the Memorial Day Race on this day when the guy calling the race on the radio; sort of crash involving other cars but suddenly it was impossible to locate Vukovich's car. Soon it was announced that Vukopvich's car had flipped over a fence after being hit by another car that had gone out of control. After some confusion I learned that although Vukovich had been leading the race he was not going to win because he was now dead

At least that's how I remember it. That impossible juxtaposition of going from caring about the race and who was winning and then suddenly the leader, one of my favorite guys was Dead. I was distraught and wandered out of our second floor apartment searching for someone to talk to. There was a man working on his car on the other side of the alley. He was one of my Little League Coaches and I tried to talk to him about the race and the accident. I think he said something about not spending much time listening to the radio and that I would be better off spending the day doing something productive. It was one of those moments when one feels alone and you go about searching for someone to talk to and after talking you (me) feel even more isolated.

Almost forty years later I remember a similar moment when I was listening to the radio as I was doing some my Legal Work in my office on Wilshire Boulevard. It was the end of the day when I heard the announcement that Magic Johnson had AIDS. Magic Johnson having AIDS, that was impossible. AIDS was some mystery disease that affected only little gay people and Magic was anything but little, he was a giant, a hero a Laker. This was about twenty years ago before iphones or texting or much understanding about AIDS. I wasn't a kid anymore, I was almost fifty but I had that same bewildered feeling again. I needed someone to talk tosomeone to explain how Magic could that everything will be okay and then have AIDS and what this meant to the everything will be okay until it isn't. world. I got into the elevator and went Sweet dreams until next Memorial Day.

For reasons I don't up and down in the building trying to Eventually I ran into some other being very difficult lawyer who was working late and I think needed to get some work done by the next day. He was a pretty nice guy and even though I don't remember his name and probably never talked to him again he was there when I needed him. I think we concluded that Magic was probably gay. In fact I think I remember going upstairs and creating a list entitled 10 things that let me know that Magic is gay. Of course I didn't know what I was talking about but at least I was trying to make sense yes, the radio, said there was some of a world that wasn't conforming to my expectations.

> It's worse today. I know now that Leonard Cohen has been right all along, "The Rich get richer and the poor get poorer. The War Is over and the Bad Guys won ." Everything I read seems to agree that everyone is working for the Man and the Man doesn't care very much about anything besides making more money. Meanwhile the whole ecological disaster gets more noticeable every week and yet no one seems to connect one tornado with last month's hurricane. I feel like it's all falling apart and there's no one to even talk to about it.

> Or maybe that's not the problem. Probably there's too much talk and too

Where have those movements gone and why haven't you and I participated in them. Are we all too comfortable even though we secretly feel frightened and isolated?

> Everyone I talk too seems very busy; so busy that they don't have time to notice that the sky is falling. Am I Chicken Little—just an alarmist making people uncomfortable and not accomplishing anything positive. I'm glad I have this column to complain in. It doesn't really accomplish anything but at least I can read my own articles and imagine I have someone to talk with. Sure it's all make believe and it's me talking to myself but at least I can pretend. Sort of like John Lennon's ÎMAGINE---My, and perhaps your favorite song.

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

caution. This, however, has not always been my modus operandi down through the years. In fact, I am not very good when it comes to practicing anything, just ask the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage.

As of late, though, I have been practicing caution like I was going to Carnegie Hall. I am not very good at it yet, but my goal is to come to the point of perfection in the area of caution as it touches my person, particularly my health and well-being. This may be because I have reached that age when most men go through a midlife crisis.

You can always tell when a man is going through his midlife crisis. He usually wants to prove he is as good at 60-something as he was when he was 20-something. Carelessly throwing caution to the wind, he attempts to do something beyond the energy of his existing body. One sure way to tell if a man is having a midlife crisis is to notice his recent injuries.

Personally, when I was 20 I was not good at anything, which has enabled me to skip my midlife crisis. I am glad to be 60 (okay, maybe I am a tad over 60) because now when I get tired I can say I am tired and sit down. At 60-something I have absolutely nothing to prove. I am no better or worse than I was when I was 20. It is, as my wife notes, the ageless wonder of incompetency.

The difficulty with growing older is that the old memory juices do not flow as swiftly as they once did. Of course, some of us never had a real gusher in that department anyway. The more memories I have, the less I am able to recall them in the innocency of their reality. Like the fisherman who tells the size of the one that got away. Memory seems to add or subtract according to the benefit of the person conjuring up the

A big problem a man in mid-life crisis has is that he does not remember how good he actually was when he was 20, unless of course, his wife knew him at that time. If he could, he would not have to try to replicate it when he is 60. This is one of the unique advantages of maturing. Forgetting always leads to exaggerating. Exaggerating at 60-something leads to injuries. The only purpose of this is to impress people who really are not being impressed.

As we grow older things begin to change, and some things change for the better. When I was 20, I could not admit to anybody that I was tired. I would have been the laughing stock in my community if I would admit any such phenomena. You Sometimes it is best know what they say about the unlimited to err on the side of energy that young people have. Now that I am in my 60s, I can blame my advancing years on just about anything.

> "I love to do that, but at my age I don't have the energy." This has covered a multitude of sins, for which I am so grateful. Of course, it does have one drawback, when someone in their 80s invites me to go for a walk, what in the world can you say to

> This next one has to be one of my favorites. "I would love to do that but I have to get home for my afternoon nap." The person will look at me, notice my maturing features and understand that I desperately do need a nap, or something resembling beauty sleep.

> I found one the other week that has proved quite beneficial. I was invited to a function during the evening, which turned out to be a rather boring affair. Once the meal was over people were milling around engaged in small talk. Nothing bores me quicker than small talk. Not knowing what to do, I pondered the situation for sometime. Then, like lightning from the heavens, I was struck with a brilliant idea. I went up to my host and said, "I'm sorry, but it is getting near my bedtime and I have strict orders from my doctor to go to bed early. You'll have to excuse me.'

> It worked like a charm. Everybody understood that a person of my age needs to go to bed early. I do not know who thought this up, probably Benjamin Franklin, but whoever it was, I owe them a steak dinner at the restaurant of their choice. It has now become part of my get-out-of-boring-situations arsenal.

> I was thinking about this the other day another good excuse popped into my head. Somebody invited me to come and play softball. At the time, they caught me off guard and I was trying to wiggle out of such an invitation. Then it dawned on me. "I am sorry, I would like to but my health insurance does not cover that kind

> Whether my health insurance would cover that, I have no idea, but neither does anybody else, only my doctor knows for sure.

> While I was pondering this, I was reminded of a word from the Proverbs. "Whoso boasteth himself of a false gift is like clouds and wind without rain" (Proverbs 25:14 KJV).

> Whoever boasts to others about their physical prowess is only fooling himself.

Why are you guys so antidictator? Imagine if America was a dictatorship. You could let one percent of the people have all the nation's wealth. You could help your rich friends get richer by cutting their taxes and bailing them out when they gamble and lose. You could ignore the needs of the poor for healthcare and education. Your media would appear free but would secretly be controlled by one person and his family. You could wiretap phones. You could torture foreign prisoners. You could have rigged elections. You could lie about why you go to war. You could fill your prisons with one particular racial group - and no one would complain. You could use the media to scare the people into supporting policies that are against their interests. I know this is hard for you Americans to imagine . . Admiral General Hafez Aladeen, ruler of

aka Sacha Baron Cohen in "The Dictator"

Watching the latest from Sacha Baron Cohen "Borat", "Bruno", Master of the House in "Les Miserables") was the movie highlight of my long weekend. A highlight every weekend, of course, is the MVN – especially the opinion columns even when I don't appear in them. On the Left, Bill Press wrote, "The Justice Department's raid of AP phone records is nothing less than a totally unjustified, wholesale trashing of the First Amendment . . . This is the one real scandal..." On the Right, Greg Welborn wrote, 'We have a global war in which the other side shows absolutely no signs of stopping. We need to get serious." Okay, I'll say it – I agree with Greg, and think Bill has it wrong.

Barely out of college, my heroes were reporters Woodward and Bernstein, ferreting out the Watergate scandal. Years later, during the Iran hostage crisis under President Carter, columnist Jack Anderson scooped his colleagues with news of an impending hostage rescue mission (prior to, and apart from, the later tragedy of Desert One.) Having been thus exposed, the erstwhile secret mission had to be scrubbed. We'll never know how history might've changed had that mission proved successful, because Anderson effectively vetoed it by what he probably considered an appropriate exercise of First Amendment rights.

Press did address other "scandals". On Benghazi, President Obama has made his three objectives clear: 1) Find out what happened, 2) Take steps to make sure it doesn't happen again, and 3) Bring those responsible to justice. Republicans' objective is to fret about the talking points.

For the IRS "scandal", if we'd been paying attention last summer, we would've learned, as former IRS Commissioner Doug Shulman testified before Congress in August 2012, that you don't even need to apply to the IRS for 501(c)(4) status – you simply declare it, then report your expenses on a Form 990.

However, we had a situation where not only does an organization apply for the status when it doesn't need to, but hundreds do at the same time - and most have the words "tea party" or "patriot" in their names. They unabashedly devote themselves to political activity while signing forms attesting that they don't, "under penalty of perjury" I've got to take issue with Bill on the AP matter, though.

The "target" is not the AP, nor the press, nor the First Amendment; it's leaker(s) in agencies with access to confidential information. The N.Y. Times quoted a former National Security Council spokesman describing President Obama's view: "He makes the case that we have 18-year-olds out fighting wars and acting like adults, and we have senior administration officials quoted in stories acting like children." The article described the concern of top officials that "some leaks put Americans at risk, disrupted intelligence operations and strained alliances."

In May 2012 the AP reported the CIA had foiled a plot to blow up a US-bound airliner on the anniversary of the killing of Osama bin Laden. The plot had similarities to the 2009 underwear bomber", but the explosive had no metal content - and could pass through airport

The individual who was to bear the explosives was an undercover operative, trained by Britain's M15, placed in the al-Qaeda affiliate in Yemen. Once the CIA's involvement was revealed, the cover was blown. The Washington Post quoted a "former CIA official"; "This would have been a collection mission — what you're trying to do is get him in as deep as you can possibly make him go. . . You don't send him in there with the purpose of 'Get a bomb and come back."

The administration asked AP to hold off on the story but they went ahead anyway, tipping off al-Qaeda to the presence of a number of undercover operatives planted in their Yemeni organization. House Intelligence Committee Chmn. Mike Rogers (R-MI) bemoaned that "opportunities were lost" because of leaks coming from our own intelligence community.

There's also the Justice Dept. subpoening e-mails and phone records of Fox News reporter James Rosen. Back in 2009, Rosen reported on North Korea's anticipated response to further sanctions, on actions "the Central Intelligence Agency has learned, through sources inside North Korea that the regime of Kim Jong-Il intends to take . . . ", thus informing the North Koreans of the penetration of operatives in their government, jeopardizing both their covers and their lives. Bill Press complains the Justice Department

"offered no explanation how (the AP story) in any way jeopardized our national security." Atty. Gen. Eric Holder doesn't owe anybody such an explanation. He does, however, need to assure that those assigned to our most secretive agencies are at least able to keep secrets.

It's possible, as Greg says, to "get serious" about threats to our national security while still protecting our constitutional rights, although, as Admiral General Aladeen might say in addressing Bill Press and others on the "left", "I know this is hard for you Americans to imagine

GET MAD: GET

We need to be outraged at what blocking the IRS has done, not just mad at a Tea couple of rogue agents. This is the applications "rogue agent" excuse, and if it's allowed to stand as the truth, then not much will be done to collar the tremendous power placed in the IRS' hands or the institutionalized abuses that seem to be practiced elsewhere in the government.

The Washington Post recently quoted an IRS staffer explaining "everything comes from the top". The Associated Press also put the head of the IRS agents' union on record stating that "no processes or procedures or anything like that would ever be done just by frontline employees without any management involvement". The final nail in the coffin comes from the New York Times which reported that the IRS agents received a directive from their managers in 2010 to disproportionately scrutinize certain tax applications and returns based on purely political considerations.

If rogue agents didn't do this, I would hope that my colleagues on the left would join us in demanding a fair and thorough investigation, as well as suitable punishment for an abuse of power that threatens our democracy and freedoms. After all, the left is supposed to be the champion of individual rights and freedoms. Nothing quite rises to the level of intimidation as siccing the IRS on someone, although there are some other, as I describe below.

The key question in the IRS abuse case concerns how high the abuse goes. Here Cincinnati's Fox 19 News has lead with the most thorough journalistic investigation. They've learned that the IRS agents involved had different managers, who themselves had different territory managers. directive therefore came from a 19 actually identified that Supervisor as Cindy Thomas, who is the same person who signed off on releasing confidential tax return information to liberal activists who in turn were able to harass donors to conservative organizations.

of conservative tax applications began in early 2010 and that these actions would have generated serious alert notifications within the IRS. If a charitable application isn't processed in 270 days, the agent must explain why the delay is necessary, and an alert prompting someone to review the case and justify the continuing delay. The

GREG Welborn

2010 in didn't and approve single one for two years. The number alerts of triggered requiring supervisory review is in the thousands.

We need to know how high this goes. Someone had to approve the continuing delay. With the number of alerts that were generated over the length of time detailed above, it's inconceivable that the oversight stopped a mere three supervisory levels above a field office. With a top IRS official now pleading the 5th amendment, we may yet find that this abuse came from the top of the political chain.

More seriously, it appears this issue extends well beyond just the IRS. There is another element that must be explored to determine how deep the abuse has gone - and thus how much our freedoms have been eroded.

As many of you may remember, Gibson Guitar was raided by the F.B.I. for allegedly importing illegal wood to make its guitars. The company's inventory and many of its finished products were hauled away, and production was shut down. It faced bankruptcy. The company settled and paid $300,000 to the feds in order to get back into business.

Now, if the company was guilty, there's really no complaint to be made. But what if the raid and penalties were politically motivated? There seems to be a lot of support to that claim. Gibson submitted written proof that the lumber was legal. Gibson's supervisor at least three levels up. Fox competitor, which imports the same wood from the same countries didn't get raided or investigated. Gibson's founder contributed to conservative Tea Party candidates, while his competitor's founder contributed to liberal candidates.

We need to be angry about this. Fox 19 also discovered that the blocking None of us -left or right - can afford to have our business shut down for a couple of weeks, let alone a couple of months or a year. If the government can do this, then none of us are truly free to speak our minds. Should this be allowed in America? I hope everyone say wholeheartedly, No! This needs to is generated each month thereafter be fully exposed and fully expunged, or none of us will be truly free.

City of Sierra Madre

PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE

The City of Sierra Madre

MUNICIPAL CODE TEXT AMENDMENT 12-01 (MCTA 12-01) Subject:

Applicant: City of Sierra Madre

Properties in the City of Sierra Madre, County of Los Angeles, State of California

The City of Sierra Madre gives notice, pursuant to State of California law, that the City Council will conduct a public hearing to consider a text amendment to Municipal Code Chapter 5.56 relating to baths and massage establishments, and Chapter 17.36 relating to permitted uses in the Commercial Zone. The purpose of the amendment is 1) to conform the City's massage regulations to State requirements pursuant to Division 2 of Chapter 10.5 of the Business and Professions Code, and 2) allow massage therapy as a stand-alone permitted use in the City rather than as an accessory to a permitted use. The proposed amendments will establish one regulatory scheme for massage services to create a consistent and clear process for applicants and will enable consumers to identify legitimate massage workers, thus protecting the health, safety, and welfare of the City. The City Council held a public hearing on February 26, 2013 to introduce the amendment and continued the meeting to June

DATE AND TIME OF HEARING PLACE OF HEARING

City of Sierra Madre City of Sierra Madre City Council meeting City Council Chambers Tuesday, June 11, 2013 232 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. (Hearing begins at 6:30 p.m.) Sierra Madre, CA

All interested persons may attend this meeting and the City Council will hear them with respect thereto.

ENVIRONMENTAL DETERMINATION: This ordinance is exempt from CEQA pursuant to CEQA Guidelines § 15061(b) (3), 15301 and 15303 for numerous reasons. First, only a limited number of massage therapist businesses have ever applied to do business in the City, and this is not expected to change. Thus, the impact of this ordinance will affect only a handful of parcels at most. Second, if any massage therapy uses are authorized, they would be for facilities that meet the requirements of 15301 or 15303, as such uses are typically small in size, and would be expected merely to update the interior of existing structures, or to build a very small new structure. Third, massage therapy uses are not significantly different in the impacts that they create from other uses already authorized in the commercial zone, such as nail salons, barber shops, and day/health spas (which already authorized accessory massage therapy uses), and such uses are already authorized via home occupation permits. Fourth, revising the procedures by which certification is issued to massage therapists does not affect traffic, noise, or have any other environmental impact.

APPEAL: If in the future anyone wishes to challenge the decision of the City Council in court, one may be limited to raising the issues that were raised or presented in written correspondence delivered to the City Council at, or before, the scheduled public hearing. For further information on this subject, please contact the Development Services Department at (626) 355-

ORDINANCE NO. 1338U

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF SIERRA MADRE, CALIFORNIA AMENDING CHAPTER 13.24 OF THE SIERRA MADRE MUNICIPAL CODE PERTAINING TO THE CITY'S MANDATORY WATER CONSERVATION PLAN

WHEREAS, on January 24, 2012, the City Council adopted Ordinance No. 1322 pertaining to Mandatory Water Conservation; WHEREAS, the City Council may find and determine that a water shortage emergency condition may exist or may in the immediate future exist; WHEREAS, the City Council may declare the necessity of implementation of a mandatory water conservation plan by adopting a City Council resolution; WHEREAS, the Raymond Basin management Board has conservation plan by adopting a City Council resolution; WHEREAS, the Raymond Basin management Board has implemented the Section VI (3) of the 1984 Raymond Basin Judgment, reducing Sierra Madre's water production right from the East Raymond Groundwater Basin by 47%; WHEREAS, water levels at multiple city wells are in decline;

WHEREAS, the City Council has determined that the base period allocation needs to be revised based upon historical consumption trends; WHEREAS, The City Council declares an Urgency pursuant to Section 36937 of the California Government Code which would permit this Ordinance to take effect immediately after a single reading for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety as described herein. THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SIERRA MADRE DOES HEREBY ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. Chapter 13.24.130 Exception – Conservation is hereby amended to read: 13.24.130 The Implementation of conservation Phases 1 through IV shall not apply to customers of the water department through 13.24.120, a surcharge penalty is imposed in an amount of twice the Tier 1 water rate per one hundred cubic feet of water or billing units.

B.Second Violation. For the second violation by any customer of the water department of any provision of sections 13.24.070 through 13.24.120, a surcharge penalty is imposed in the amount of three times the Tier 1 water rate per one hundred cubic feet of

of water levels in the aquifer. Accordingly, it is necessary this Ordinance be effective immediately upon its adoption. The City Council intends this Ordinance to supplement, not to duplicate or contradict, applicable state and federal law and this Ordinance shall be construed in light of that intent.
