GRAND MARSHALS OF A GRAND PARADE

Sierra Madre's July 4th 'Official' Celebration spanned a period of two days, however the spirit of the holiday, celebrating America's Birthday will continue throughout the weekend. This edition of the Mountain Views is filled with photos of Wednesday and Thursday so that we can hold on to those memories a day or two longer.

American of The Year, Joan Crow and Sierra Madre's Citizen Of the Year, Marlene Enmark.

One of the most memorable scenes along the parade route was the float of the town's Hometown Hero, Marjorie "Mama Pete" Peterson, who was awarded that honor posthumously. She operated Mama Pete's Nursery School from 1944 until her death this year and was always a participant in the Sierra Madre parade. For Sierra Madre residents, she was, "An Inspiration To Us All".many

Sierra Madre's 4th of July celebration is a reminder of the America we want to remember and embrace. We are the kind of town that we recall when we think about "the good ole days", and I hope this edition captures the essence of our town. Susan Henderson, Publisher/Editor

REMEMBRANCE

LYLEE 'DOLLIE' MORANT

Lylee "Dollie" Morant, born November 6, 1919 in Los Angeles, CA died Friday, June 21, 2013 in Glendora, CA. She lived in Sierra Madre, CA for 40 years. She is survived by her 2 sons, David and Donald; daughter-in-law, Rose; grandchildren, Shelly and Sean. Dollie was married to Beverly William Morant for 53 years, a retired school teacher who passed away July 4, 2000. Dollie attended South Pasadena High School and graduated in 1937. She majored in Home Economics at Santa Barbara College and graduated with a Teaching Degree in 1941. She was a member of Phi Kappa Gamma.

Dollie taught at Chino High School, Duarte Junior High, and Baldwin Park High, where she retired in 1979. Dollie was involved in the Woman's Club of Pasadena (president from 1996-1998), Sierra Madre Woman's Club (president from 1993-1996), and Pasadena Power Squadron (1970-1980). She also traveled extensively from 1979-2000, through the USA, Mexico, Canada, China, and many, many European countries. Her favorites were China and England.

A private visitation was held Thusday, June 27, 2013.

For the period June 23-30, 2013

Sunday June 23, 2013

A resident in the 100 block of West Grandview Avenue reported that property had been stolen from her residence over a period of months. The resident had been slowly moving into her house and did not conclude that the property was missing until she had completed unpacking. During the move in period, the owner had construction and paint contractors in her home on several occasions.

A similar crime was reported by a resident in the 400 block of Fairview Terrace. Starting in mid-February, construction was taking place at the location. When the construction concluded, the resident discovered his cameras were missing from his guest room. During construction that room was unsecured and just sealed off from the construction area with plastic liner. The construction contractors working at these locations are not related.

Monday June 24, 2013

At approximately 2am, units on patrol observed a vehicle stopped in the roadway in the 200 block of Mariposa Avenue. The lights were on and the engine was running. When they approached, the officers found the driver unconscious at the wheel. It was determined that the individual (male 43 years of age) had been drinking heavily and he was subsequently booked for DUI.

Friday June 28, 2013

At 9pm, officers responded to the 200 block of Mariposa Avenue to investigate a report of a battery. A male and a female, who have a dating relationship, got into a verbal argument about child visitation matters. The male alleged that at one point, the female struck him in the face with an open hand. The female denied this and was supported by another adult witness at the location. Additionally there was no visible injury evident. The investigation was referred for detective follow up.

WRONG WAY DRIVER HITS A VEHICLE INJURING THREE TEENAGERS THEN OVERTURNS.

On July 4, 2013 at approximately 10:17 PM Sierra Madre Police Department received numerous 9-1-1 calls of a head on collision in the 1900 block of Santa Anita Avenue. When responding officers arrived they found one vehicle overturned and the other with major front end damage. The driver of the overturned vehicle was pinned in the driver's seat.

Sierra Madre Fire Department, with assistance of the Arcadia Fire Department, worked for over 40 minutes to extract the driver. The driver was identified as 48 year old Adam Gallegos of Fullerton who sustained major injuries and was transported to Huntington Memorial Hospital. Three Monrovia teenagers who were in the vehicle struck by Gallegos were transported to Arcadia Methodist Hospital with minor to moderate injuries.

Police Chief Larry Giannone said "this tragic event is still under investigation and it is too early to tell if alcohol or drugs were a factor in this collision. So far the investigation shows that Gallegos was driving up Santa Anita Avenue towards Chantry Flats, then for some unknown reason he turned around and started traveling southbound in the northbound lanes of traffic. Gallegos's vehicle struck the teenagers vehicle then overturned and slid several hundred feet before coming to rest on its side."

This collision remains under investigation and anyone with any information should contact Sierra Madre Police Department at 626.355.1414.

BURGLARY AND CHILD ENDANGERMENT CHARGES FILED ON JULIA SEVIER

On June 20, 2013 at approximately 0349 hours, Sierra Madre Police received a report of suspicious vehicle to the rear of the apartments between 680 and 708 West Sierra Madre Blvd. Officers responded to the location and observed a female suspect, later identified as Julia Sevier, standing in front of an open storage unit belonging to one of the apartments. The Officer's investigation revealed that the suspect did not reside at the location and did not have permission to be inside of the storage unit. Officers found the suspect's vehicle, a white Toyota 4 Runner, parked nearby which matched the description provided by the person reporting with an infant inside. The Officer's investigation revealed that the suspect had committed a burglary, was in possession of narcotics, was in possession of burglary tools, and did this with her small child inside the vehicle. The suspect was charged with Burglary, Cruelty to a Child, Narcotics Possession, and Possession of Burglary Tools.

Sierra Madre Detectives believe Julia Sevier is responsible for several other residential burglaries and thefts in the City of Sierra Madre and neighboring cities. Anyone with any information should contact Sierra Madre Detectives

Heat Sends Marathon Runners to Hospital

Participants upset over not receiving medals at the finish line

Six marathon runners were taken, in serious condition, to a local hospital Sunday for heat-related injuries during the Pasadena half marathon now in its fifth year.

According the fire officials, 15 runners were also treated for heat related symptoms. Of the most serious, runners fell in and out of consciousness, stumbled their words, and complaining of cramps.

Pasadena Fire Public
Information Officer Lisa Derderian told reporters that radiant heat from the black asphalt contributed to the problems something she said was impossible for runners to train for.

Organizers had posted on the Pasadena Marathon website the night before the event, "We will be ready for the warm weather with extra water and iced towels at the support stations, but please prepare yourself for it as well."

More than 3000 people took part in the race.

Paramedics were stationed on bikes along the 13.1 mile Air-conditioned buses were also available at the finish line in front of Pasadena City College By midday Sunday, in Pasadena, temperatures nearly topped 100 degrees.

After the race numerous runners took to the event's Facebook page complaining that organizers ran out of medals and ice water.

"All I got along the course was hot water," wrote one runner. "I also finished the half in under 2.5 hours and they were already out of medals. Ridiculous."

Some runners said there was a mix-up and the half marathon medals were given to the 5K, 10K and Kids' run runners.

Event organizers said participants, which did not medal, should information@ pasadenamarathon.org with vour bib number.

Ricardo Ramirez, 41, of Sun Valley won the race with a time of 41:16:39.

A PATRIOTIC CONCERT IN ARCADIA

Recently I attended the Southern California Mormon Choir's 29th annual Patriotic Concert. The great event was sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Arcadia Stake. Musical director for the exceptional choir was Jan Bills and accompanists were Coleen Thatcher and Janet Smith. Chris Bills, Jan's husband was Narrator. Throughout the Program, he was at the podium, with historical background of the various selections-what inspired/ promptly their composers.

After a warm welcome by President Walter Steimie, Presentation of Colors by the Junior ROTC Color Guard from Gladstone High School, Pledge of Allegiance, our National Anthem and Invocation by Craig Stogner, the program began.

What could be more appropriate than George's Cohan's Patriotic Fantasy which concluded with the Choir waving small flags? Mr. Bills noted that after 237 years, the flag is still a potent symbol. "After destruction from any kind of a disaster, people return to the wreckage, and always display the Set I of the concert included Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor; No Man is An Island; and America the Beautiful. To set the mood, Mr. Bills reminded us of "our colossal iconic Statue of Liberty, rising majestically from New York Harbor" with those words etched on a plaque at her feet. He revealed that the inspiration for No Man is an Island was 17th Century English poet John Donne.

Mr. Bills' introduction to Set II reminded us "how we rightly treasure our precious gift of freedom". Sadly many nations and people do not have this freedom. He recalled parts of late President Reagan's "tear down the wall" speech in Berlin, "Freedom is not the sole prerogative of a lucky few, but the inalienable and universal right of all human beings. Set II selections were Distant Land: A Prayer for Freedom and Bring Him Home- Do You Hear the People Sing from Les Miserables.

After Set II, Guest speaker Supervisor Antonovich spoke of our precarious situation today. He began praising scouts, boys and girls clubs and the YMCA/YWCA. These organizations helped shaped our youths with a lot of good character building. He lamented that the politicians in Sacramento want to eliminate the 501C status. Supervisor Antonovich reminded us that "the government didn't make the people, but the people made the government." He spoke of the Supreme Court knocking down Proposition 8, and questioned Religious Freedom if a Catholic hospital is forced to perform procedures against its teachings. He could not understand that when one group doesn't have the same opinion on an issue, they are harassed. What has happened to tolerance? He advised us that values are in jeopardy and for us to become involved in our church, synagogues, community and government.

Set III began with God of Our Fathers, Whose Mighty Hand and The Morning Trumpet. Mr. Bills then revealed that members of the Choir had recently participated at the National Memorial Day Concert at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts! After introducing Veterans from the Choir, Mr. Bills reminded us of the many great men and women of our country who answered the call of duty to defend our country's freedom by serving in its wars. The grand finale was the great Salute to Armed Forces, featuring the songs of all the branches of service

What a great inspirational evening! A special "Thank You" to Mayor Finlay and the Arcadia Stake for including me in this meaningful tribute to our country. Everyone left the Church with a deep appreciation of our great country and its defenders.

Note: You can have your wild plants identified by Timothy Snider any Thursday at the Glendale Certified Farmers Market, 9:30 am to 1:30 pm, on Brand Blvd. between Wilson and Broadway. The city of Glendale provides convenient free parking for 90 minutes.

Pasadena resident Timothy Snider is a man of the trees. When you're driving around a neighborhood, or driving on the freeway and looking at all the trees in the city, most folks just see green. Snider glances at a tree and will tell you the Latin name, the common name, and many things about the tree. He knows how to identify trees better than just about anyone, and he knows the history and uses of the trees as well.

Snider began his study of botany at Riverside City College and continued at CalPoly (Pomona), where he thought he might have a career in the Forest Service. When he realized they weren't hiring, he shifted his focus to ornamental horticulture at Riverside City Colleg, and learned how to key out plants using the technical botanical books.

"Everyone was into the 'back to nature' thing back then, and I was mostly interested in wild plants that I could use for food," says Snider.

Snider was a quick learner and seems to have an encyclopedic knowledge of trees and plants. He was hired out of college to do street inventory work This involved in Riverside. walking the streets in Riverside and cataloging the trees in the computer with a number. Snider smiles and points to the tree next to where we're standing. "This is a number 83," he tells me, "a Cupaniopsis anacardioides, a carrotwood tree, and I would record this in my computer as an 83." His tree inventory work included noting the exact location, and condition of the Snider relates that this was pretty straightforward work, with an occasional dog that would chase him.

His tree identification work has taken him near remote Indian sites, from mountain tops to the deserts. He say that although there is more diversity of trees today than there was in the days when only the Indians lived here, the trees that are here now are not necessarily more useful. "There was mostly a grass savannah here, with lots of oak trees producing acorns, and lots of open space to hunt game. Today, the greater diversity of trees does not produce more food, plus much of the open space is taken up by buildings and roads."

Snider is keenly aware of the health of trees, and how this relates to the general health and wellbeing of the local populace.

For example, Snider points out that the ideal number of trees in the Big Bear area was figured out to be about 40 per However, before the acre. massive burn 6 years ago where everyone on the mountain had to be evacuated, the ratio was about 300 trees per acre. "This meant that there was less water per tree, and this allowed the bark beetle to cause devastation. The drought made things even worse," explains Snider. People were unwilling to thin their trees, and so when the wildfire came, it burned out of control. Snider was called in after the fact to assist with tagging trees that had to be removed.

Snider is working on a plant identification book using primarily photos. (He also has a known guitar tunings).

Part of the problem of the Big Bear firestorm was convincing residents to thin out the trees. The residents said the trees were too pretty, and wouldn't cut them. So the fire came in and forced the issue."

Snider also has a gripe with tree-pruners who don't know nothing about trees or pruning, and some only know how to use a chain saw. Most do not know how to shape a tree, and they over-prune in hopes that they will not need to come back to the tree soon. But in fact, trees grow twice as fast when they are overpruned, since the tree is trying to compensate for the imbalance between the root system and the leaf system.

You should never remove more than 20 to 30% of the foliage of a tree in any one season," says Snider.

If looking for a good tree pruner, Snider suggests talking to the Ornamental Horticulture Department at CalPoly.

If you ask Snider to name the best tree for your backyard, he'll tell you that's the wrong question. "There is no best tree," he explains, "since we need to take into account the lighting and shade conditions, the soil, the amount of space, the size of the mature tree, and maybe other factors." To see some examples of trees and their conditions, Snider suggests going to Rancho Santa Ana Botanical Gardens in Claremont, the Arboretum in Arcadia, or Huntington Gardens in Pasadena.

Another interest of Snider's book in the works compiling all is the natural history of the area, especially unique Native American calendric sites. One such example is Mockingbird Canyon, where the light of the sun makes a dagger through a circle on the winter solstice. This was a site used by the desert Cahuilla Indians and others.

"These calenders in stone told the people when to find food, when to do the ceremonies, "Most tree pruners know and about the changing of the seasons," explains Snider.

ARCADIA AAUW PRESENTS 2013 WOMAN OF ACHIEVEMENT AWARD TO TAMARA KATO

Arcadia businesswoman Tamara Kato has received the 2013 Woman of Achievement Award from fellow members of the Arcadia Branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW). Arcadia AAUW has given this award annually since 1985 to a woman who is active in AAUW or to a professional woman who has made significant contributions to her community. Kato meets both of these criteria! She is currently Membership Chair of the Arcadia Branch of AAUW, and she is a prominent businesswoman in Many in community know Tamara Kato as president of Comfort Keepers in Arcadia, a business that offers home care services to seniors. In 2008, Kato began Comfort Keepers because, to quote her, "I knew the aging baby boomer wave would create a growing market for this kind of service (home care)." Her goal as president of Comfort Keepers was to establish and grow a home care franchise serving hundreds of seniors in the San Gabriel Valley. To that end, she and her staff have succeeded in building a thriving business that meets many seniors' needs.

Originally from Ohio, Kato opted to come to California to escape the cold weather and to attend school here. She is a graduate of both the Fashion Institute of Los Angeles and CSU-Los Angeles. Returning to Ohio, she attended Xavier University in Cincinnati and received her MBA. But California and its wonderful climate called her back West. Here in California, Kato worked in sales and brand management for Procter and Gamble and was employed by Caremark Home Care as Marketing Director in charge of business development before starting her own business.

Kato's career commitments are full-time, but she still finds time to volunteer her services in the community. She has been a volunteer as well as president of the Hemophilia Foundation of Southern California for over 20 years and is secretary of the Alhambra Case Management Board for seniors in Alhambra. In Arcadia, she is currently membership chair of the Arcadia Community Coordinating Council. Kato belongs to several professional organizations. This busy lady is co-chair of the Alzheimer's Task Force-Dementia Education for Professionals. She is a board member of the Arcadia Chamber of Commerce that supports business development.

A modest person, Tamara Kato acknowledges that she would not have been able to dedicate so much time to start and grow her business without her family's support and their willingness to be so self-sufficient. Members of her family attending the award presentation were her husband David and daughter Marissa. Daughter Mikaela was unable to attend.

Possession of a Controlled Substance - Suspect Arrested June 30 at 3:40 a.m., an officer stopped a vehicle occupied by three subjects for failing to yield in the 2100 block of South Myrtle. All three subjects were found to be on probation for theft. The driver did not have any identification on his person and had a baggie of methamphetamine in his pocket. The driver was arrested for possession of a controlled substance and his vehicle was stored. The passengers were identified and released.

Injury Traffic Accident

June 30 at 1:38 p.m., two vehicles collided in the intersection of Huntington and California. One of the vehicles failed to stop for the red light and ran into a car in the intersection. The jaws of life were used to remove the passenger in the rear seat; she sustained moderate injuries and was taken to a hospital.

Shots Fired at Occupied Vehicle

June 30 at approximately 10:15 p.m., a female adult who is living in a motor home was sleeping in the vehicle. The motor home was parked in the 1100 block of South Ivy. The woman heard a noise and looked out the window. She saw a dark-colored, possibly blue, Nissan Maxima or Sentra, occupied by three to four male Hispanic subjects. The driver of the vehicle yelled out a gang epithet and then fired three or four shots at the motor home. The suspects then fled in the vehicle, north on Ivy and east on Huntington.

Officers arrived and inspected the motor home. They located three bullet holes in the glass windows. The victim does not know who the suspects are and did not recognize the vehicle. She has no gang affiliation. The investigation is continuing. Anyone with any information about this crime is asked to contact the Monrovia Police Department.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show MONSTERS UNIVERSITY

Having seen 'Monsters Inc.' I was very eager to see Mike and Sully back in action. I had my doubts; as it is with most movies, sequels are usually never better than the original, let alone prequels. However, all those doubts were washed away after the first ten minutes of this movie. After having a school career mostly spent hitting the books, Mike (Billy Crystal) is finally off to college. Also on his way to Monsters U is the more carefree and party-man Sully (John Goodman) who comes from a family that is famous in the scare business. While rivals at first, the two must come together in order to win the Scare Games and make sure that they don't get kicked out of Monsters University.

While 'Monsters 'U' is not one of Disney-Pixar's best movies, it sure is a great amount of fun. It keeps you entertained for the whole hour and a half with jokes for both kids and adults and, like all good Disney movies do, it makes you actually care about the characters. 'Monsters U' is the perfect summer movie for all ages.

Very little was known about autism back in the 1950's when Temple Grandin was growing up. Grandin didn't speak until she was four years old, when she was diagnosed with the then rather mysterious condition, but unlike many autistic children at that time, she benefited from the loving structure provided by her mother and an excellent team of school administrators which allowed her to develop and function to her best ability. Autistic children have varying degrees of difficulty communicating and socializing, and they can lock into repetitive behaviors that are often misinterpreted as other forms of mental disability. The fact is, many autistic children are quite gifted. The problem is that they struggle with developing and communicating the remarkable skills they possess in a way that most ordinary people

As a teenager, Grandin visited her aunt's cattle ranch in Arizona, where she discovered that she has a very unique gift; the ability to connect mentally with animals. The reason for Grandin's special gift stems from the fact that because she is autistic, she shares the animals' ability to think through visual associations, unlike non-autistic individuals who think more in terms of verbal language. The more time Grandin spent with the horses and cows at her aunt's ranch, the more

When it came time to select a college to attend, Grandin made it clear that she wanted to go where she could learn more about how beef cattle are raised and slaughtered. Based on what she had already learned about the beef industry while visiting her aunt's ranch, beef industry while visiting her aunt's ranch, Grandin was determined to find more humane ways to go about the slaughtering process. She received her bachelor's degree at Franklin Pierce College then went on to attend Arizona State University where she earned her master's degree and as if that wasn't amazing enough, she continued her academic career at the University of Illinois at Urbana where, in 1989 she earned a PhD in Animal Science. The public became aware of Animal Science. The public became aware of Temple Grandin in 1995, when neurologist, Oliver Sacks wrote about her in his book entitled Anthropologist on Mars.

Dr. Grandin has played a key part in formulating the beef industry's guidelines for more humane animal handling as well as in training a new generation of agricultural professionals in animal behavior theory. In 1999 she was hired by McDonald's as a consultant to audit the meatpacking plants that supplied their fast-food chain, and she is now a renowned figure who is well respected for her understanding of how animals think and feel, and she shares her

Now a professor at Colorado State University, Grandin is also sharing her unique knowledge and gifts with the graduate students she teaches. She has become a renowned master of animal behavior and helps others understand the importance of treating animals with the respect they deserve.

In 2010, Director Mike Jackson got together with Temple Grandin and writers, Margaret Scariano, Christopher Monger and Merritt Johnson to produce the made-for-televsion biopic, Temple Grandin, a true story about the life an autistic woman who became one of the world's top scientists in the humane livestock handling industry. Grandin's character in the film is performed by Claire Danes who did a remarkable job playing the role. As I read about Temple Grandin in preparation for this article, she became a hero in my mind. I imagine she would not consider herself to be a hero at all, as she seems to be a very humble individual who would probably say she simply did what came natural for her. The fact is, Temple Grandin managed to overcome the somewhat insurmountable obstacles of autism in order to bring a new mind set to an industry that may otherwise have remained in a rut of inhumane animal handling practices and to me, that makes her a true hero!

PET OF THE WEEK

BRUTUS: #A4598986

Meet an adorably sweet puppy, Brutus (A4598986). Brutus is a magnificent four-month old Pit Bull /Mastiff mix puppy who was brought to the Baldwin Park Animal Care Center on June 26th. Currently weighing fortyone pounds, Brutus is likely to grow to be eighty-five pounds as an adult dog. Brutus is a blank slate as far as training, but he is an attentive, eager- to-please puppy and we expect him to be easily trained. Because of his size and energy, he would fit best in a home with older children. So far, he has wanted to play with every other dog he has encountered in the shelter. Brutus will make a fabulous indoor pet for an active family living in a private home. To see a video of Brutus, please visit the following link: www.youtube.com/watch?v=Bfnd27DRKtI

To meet Brutus in person, please see him at the Baldwin Park Shelter, located at 4275 N. Elton, Baldwin Park, CA 91706 (Phone: 626-430-2378 or 626-962-3577). He is currently available now. For any inquiries about Brutus, please reference his animal ID number: A4598986. The shelter is open seven days a week, 12 pm-7 pm Monday-Thursday and 10am-5pm Friday-Sunday. This is a high-intake shelter with a great need for adoptions. For more information about Brutus or the adoption process, contact United Hope for Animals Volunteer Adoption Coordinator Samantha at Samantha@hope4animals. org. NAMES FOR NEW PLUTO MOONS CHOSEN AFTER PUBLIC VOTE

Remember our ninth planet, little Pluto, which was kicked out of the Planetary Club not long ago and relegated to "Dwarf Planet" status? It's been found to have no less than five moons, and the two most recently discovered ones—previously known as P4 and P5—have now been given official names.

The International Astronomical Union (IAU), which is responsible for naming new sky discoveries, has officially recognized the names Kerberos and Styx for the fourth and fifth moons of Pluto respectively. These names were suggested by voters in a recently held popular

The new moons were discovered in 2011 and 2012 during observations of the Pluto system made with the NASA/ESA Hubble Space Telescope Wide Field Camera 3, and increasing the number of known Pluto moons to five. Kerberos lies between the orbits of Nix and Hydra, two bigger moons discovered by Hubble in 2005, and Styx lies between Charon, the innermost and biggest moon, and Nix. Both have circular orbits assumed to be in the plane of the other satellites in the system. Kerberos has an estimated diameter of 13 to 34 kilometers, and Styx is thought to be irregular in shape and is 10 to 25 kilometers across.

The IAU acts as the arbiter of the naming process of celestial bodies, and is advised and supported by astronomers active in different fields. On discovery, astronomical objects receive unambiguous and official catalogue designations. When common names are assigned, the IAU rules ensure that the names work across different languages and cultures in order to support collaborative worldwide research and avoid confusion.

After the discovery, the leader of the research team, Mark Showalter (SETI Institute), decided to call for a public vote to suggest names for the two objects. To be consistent with the names of the other Pluto satellites, the names had to be picked from classical mythology, in particular with reference to the underworld—the realm where the souls of the deceased were thought to go in the afterlife. The contest concluded with the proposed names Vulcan, Cerberus and Styx ranking first, second and third respectively. Showalter submitted Vulcan and Cerberus to the IAU where the Working Group for Planetary System Nomenclature discussed the names for approval.

However, the name Vulcan had already been used for a hypothetical planet thought to exist between Mercury and the Sun. Although this planet was found not to exist, the term "vulcanoid" remains attached to any asteroid with an orbit inside that of Mercury, and the name Vulcan could not be accepted for one of Pluto's satellites (also, Vulcan does not fit into the underworld mythology scheme). Instead, the third most popular name was chosen—Styx, the name of the goddess who ruled over the underworld river, also called the Styx.

After a final deliberation, the IAU agreed to change Cerberus to Kerberos-the Greek spelling of the word—to avoid confusion with an asteroid called 1865 Cerberus. According to mythology, Cerberus, or Kerberos in Greek, was a many-headed dog that guarded the entrance to the underworld.

TIPPING ABROAD

Last year I wrote an article abut tipping abroad and the interest poured in about the article. So, with the summer travel season upon us, I thought I would run that article again.

Here in the states it is customary to tip your server, carwash person, hairstylist, and just about anyone that provides a service. Tipping the bartender that owns the bar or the stylist that owns the saloon, or even the delivery person that owns the florist. My research tells me that they want to be tipped as we. After all, we are tipping for those who provide a service, however if they own the establishment I never feel that bad about lowering the tip or rounding it down. I know that won't get TALKRADIO me front row seats, but I have found that tipping a $1 at Starbucks at the end of the week is sufficient.

Now the question is do you tip in Europe? In my first trip to Athens as an adult I lavished 20% tips on waiters and service people and was rewarded on the end of my trip for that indulgence. I will explain later. In ten days of vacation we never really got outstanding service. We never got bad service but the server's job was to get the food to the table and that amounted to it. I found it curious coming from California where we expect plenty of up sell and a full glasses of water that Europe did not shower me in attention as I am accustom to in the states. Another restaurant, but the same medium of the road service greeted me. So I stared tipping 10%. I asked our tour guide as to the policy of tipping. She said that everyone in Greece works at what is called a living wage and that any gratuity is welcome. So, what about other parts of Europe, or was this just in Greece? The rule of thumb is to check your bill, and look for a service charge. Believe it or not many restaurants don't allow the workers to keep their tips.

I have three suggestions:

1/ Round up the amount; say it's 35 Euro, round it up to 40. Leave the tip portion as cash. 2/ Give tip directly to your server 3/ Check the bill and if there is a Tax or Service charge and you feel that you got great service, by all means leave a few more Euros.

Now back to my story on the 20% tip, we went back to the original restaurant in Athens that we started out trip at, the one I gave a full 20% tip to. After such a journey, now I know why he was so happy to see me. The beer, and the desserts were all on the house, so maybe the 20% did pay off! Listen for more tips on KABC Radio AM 790 or call in at 800-222-5222. My website is www.peterdills.com

Mountain Views News Saturday, July 6, 2013

Dear Savvy Senior:

Can you write a column alerting seniors to the dangers of summertime heat? I manage a number of urgent care clinics, and last summer we had more than 200 cases of heat-related illnesses, most of who were seniors. I would like to reduce that this year. Concerned Citizen

THE GOOD LIFE

Dear Concerned:

I certainly can. Most people don't realize that extreme summer heat causes thousands of heat-related illnesses in the U.S. each year, and kills more people than hurricanes, lightning, tornadoes, floods and earthquakes combined, and seniors are among the most vulnerable.

SUMMERTIME HEAT POSES SPECIAL RISKS TO SENIORS

The reasons behind this are because of the body's ability to regulate temperature through blood circulation and sweat glands tends to decline with age. Bodies of older adults also contain far less water than a younger person, and older brains don't recognize thirst as easily, making them more likely to get dehydrated.

In addition, many seniors have certain health problems that can increase their risk of hyperthermia (when the body overheats). These include:

- Underlying diseases like congestive heart failure, diabetes and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease or COPD.
- Trouble walking or moving around.
- Being overweight.
- Having dementia or other problems with thinking skills.

Medications that some seniors take, like diuretics and other high blood pressure drugs, can also cause dehydration or affect the ability of their heart, blood vessels or sweat glands to respond to the heat.

Signs of Danger

Heat stroke is the most serious heat-related illness. The signs to watch for include a body temperature above 103 degrees Fahrenheit, a rapid pulse rate, throbbing headache, dizziness, nauséa, confusion, and hot, dry skin with the absence of sweating. If you, or someone you know is experiencing these symptoms, call 911 immediately because heat stroke is a medical emergency.

Heat exhaustion is milder and can develop after several days of exposure to high temperatures. The warning signs are heavy sweating, paleness, muscle cramps, tiredness, weakness, fainting, dizziness, headache, and nausea or vomiting.

If you think you may be suffering from a heat-related condition, cool yourself down by going indoors into air conditioning, remove or loosen any tight-fitting or heavy clothing, drink plenty of water (but avoid alcohol and caffeine), take a cool bath or shower, or apply cold water, ice packs or cold compresses to your skin.

And when you do go out in the heat, be sure to dress in lightweight, light-colored, loose-fitting clothing, avoid extended periods of sun exposure and drink plenty of water even if you don't feel thirsty.

Seniors who live without air conditioning should go to public places that have it like shopping malls, senior centers or public libraries. Your local health department can also refer you to an air-conditioned shelter in your area.

For those who can't afford to run their air conditioning at home, there's the federal Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), along with many utility companies and charitable organizations that may be able to help you with your utility costs. To find out about the programs available to you, along with their eligibility requirements and how to apply, call the National Energy Assistance Referral project at 866-674-6327 or visit energynear.org.

For more extreme heat-related safety tips, visit the Center for Disease Control and Prevention website at cdc.gov/extremeheat.

KATIE TseThis and That

ANIMAL FARM

At 15 years of age, my parent's zebra finch recently died. We knew he was old, but he had gone on so long, even after murdering two of his cage mates before we recognized this violent streak in him. He seemed invincible. We affectionately called him "Killer." Killer never really sang like other finches or canaries. He had two audio "tracks" that he would vocalize for minutes on end. Track one consisted of two notes, repeated over and over. Track two was a series of four descending notes, repeated over and over. In addition to Killer's longevity, his volume was amazing. How something with lungs the size of raisins could project such a loud sound is beyond my understanding.

I don't know if my parents will get another pet anytime soon. Over the years we've had an interesting variety of pets and have enjoyed swapping odd and funny stories with other pet owners.

Hands down, the most loving, intelligent, devious, and even empathetic pet we've had was an umbrella cockatoo named Bob. Unlike most birds. Bob would never "relieve" himself on you. He would start to appear nervous, which was our cue to put him on his perch or over a trash can to do his business. Unlike a lot of humans, Bob could tell if any of us were upset, demonstrating his empathy by becoming upset as well. But most of all, Bob loved playing mind games. Once my dad screwed a ring holding a bird toy to one of the bars in Bob's cage. After demolishing the toy, Bob thought it would be fun to unscrew the ring and hide it from my dad.

Now, there aren't many places to hide things in a bird cage. Over the next few days, my dad turned that cage upside down trying to find the missing ring. After a week or so, Bob decided he'd teased Dad enough, so he re-screwed it on a bar, square in the middle of the cage, where my dad originally hung it. That was Bob's sense of humor.

Speaking of parrots, one of our neighbors told us about a time he stayed over at the house of one of his friends who owned an African gray parrot. In the middle of the night, he woke up to the sound of the front door being opened! He went downstairs and found the door securely locked. A few minutes later --the same sound again. The next day he told his friend who laughed, and told him the African gray was the source of the sound!

It may have been this same parrot, or someone else's (so many birds, so many stories), that made a habit out of torturing the family dog. The parrot learned to imitate its owner's voice perfectly, and would call the dog's name until the dog came. Then, in the owner's voice, the parrot would chide "Bad dog! Bad dog!"

Although many birds are very intelligent, there are those who've earned a reputation for being a bit dense. Every time I visited the L.A. Zoo as a child and watched the bird show, a trainer would bring out an emu and say "This is George. Every day George makes a new friend, because he can't remember the same trainer who works with him daily. So, it's like meeting someone for the first time --every time." I was later reminded of this whenever İ had to take a math class involving algebra. Yes, I supposedly "learned" it just the year before, but I swear it was new every time!

One of my funniest recent animal encounters occurred at a pet shop in Montrose. My mom and I had finished lunch and were strolling along, looking at the different shops. After commenting on how cute the bunnies and puppies were, we happened upon the "Robo Hamsters!" These guys were smaller than regular hamsters and apparently had high octane caffeine coursing through their veins. There were about 20 of them in a cage and they were all shooting around like pin balls. Some of them were racing to nowhere on the exercise wheel, with a couple others hurling themselves on top of, and under, the whirling wheel. Others jumped over each other, the squashed ones seemed totally oblivious. Another was flinging away wood chips in determination to dig a hole out of the clear plastic corner. To say I was cracking up would be an understatement. I tried to smother my convulsive laughter as a pair of children approached the cage. They seemed interested in the hamsters, but I think this crazy laughing lady frightened them off.

We should all be grateful for the animals who make our lives brighter. And that day, I was grateful for the most laughter I'd had in a while! Although the Robo hamsters were entertaining, I doubt my parents are going to consider them as possible pets. For one thing, they'd have to have a sedative ready for me whenever I came over to visit!

The Ronald McDonald House program provides a "home-away-from-home" for the families of seriously ill or injured children who often have to travel great distances for treatment. Families are stronger when they are together, which helps in the healing process of the child who would otherwise be frightened without the love and support of mom and dad. As you may already know, one way they raise funds for their houses is by collecting pop tabs. Why? The pop tabs are more hygienic and the collection and storage is much easier. They are also worth more than the entire can because they are made from higher quality aluminum.

The Sierra Madre Senior Citizens Club is collecting pop tabs for the Ronald McDonald House in Pasadena...please help them. The tabs can be brought to the Hart Park House, Senior Center in Memorial Park, or dropped off at City Hall in whatever vessel you have them in, from baggies to empty milk cartons. We will be glad to deliver them along with ours to the Pasadena Ronald McDonald House. 1,267 pop tabs equals one pound...but, who's counting?

If you have any questions, please call me: Pat Birdsall, (626) 355-7290. Thank you in advance on behalf of the children and their families!

HELPFUL HINT: Every time you change the bulb in the light fixture on your front porch, you find the rust has "glued" the piece in place. Next time, rub about a tsp. of petroleum jelly over the metal threads of the new bulb. It acts like a sealant to stop water from seeping in and keeps the internal surface slick for easy removal.

FOR YOUR FUNNY BONE

When the patrolman saw the man speed past, he pulled him over and asked for his license and registration. "I lost my license after my fifth DWI," the guy replied calmly. "I'll give you the registration, but don't freak out when I open the glove box because I've got a couple of guns in there. And if you search the car, don't be surprised if you find some drugs in the trunk." Alarmed, the cop called for backup. Moments later a SWAT team swept down on the car. The driver was handcuffed as the team searched the vehicle. "There are no drugs or guns in this car buddy," the SWAT leader said to the driver. "Of course not," the man replied. "And I suppose that cop told you I was speeding too."

BUSINESS NEWS & TRENDS

Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed by Luther Tsinoglou

FROM "LESS" TO "YES"

The painful truth: Sellers who do not price their property competitively are the most likely targets of lowball offers. In soft markets, buyers are more prone to make low offers on listings seen to be priced too high. Listings that don't sell usually require price reductions, which in turn often mean ultimately accepting an offer lower than you could have received by pricing aggressively from Day One. Since selling your home can be such an emotional and subjective experience, it's easy to understand why you'd be reluctant to counter an offer below your asking price. But rather than feel insulted, try to see it as the beginning of a dialogue that could ultimately produce a sale.

If you feel any of the terms or conditions of the offer are unacceptable, ask your agent to present a counter-offer. Sometimes buyers and sellers don't really know beforehand what price they'll accept until they've begun the negotiations. For example, a buyer might agree to a higher price than planned if interest rates suddenly drop.

If you've received a lower than expected offer, but the buyers have proven their qualifications and commitment by securing loan pre-approval, you have grounds for serious consideration. The process of counter-offering can be swiftly settled or carry on ad nauseam. Be prepared to explore all options and act quickly before letting your negotiations fail.

Most businesses use a 90/10 approach to their social media messaging strategy. 90% of content is valuable, informative, interesting, helpful, fun, entertaining and offers a view into your brand's culture. 10% is promotional in nature

The best way to approach the promotional side is to think "campaign." Stick to a single, simple, clear message and know exactly the response you want. Promote the same campaign message on all your social channels and use the same hashtag.

Campaign types could range from offers, product or service promotions, membership drives, invitations, updates, announcements like "we've moved," or surveys and discussions.

Start with email marketing, create an email flyer. Think old school; remember when you printed flyers and posted them on bulletin boards around your community? Create a simple email flyer that you will post on your other social channels. Use a tool like Constant Contact to create a mobile friendly, branded email. Make sure the call to action is "above the scroll." This means you don't have to scroll down the page to see the important stuff. Use one image, 2-3 sentences explaining the promotion and a big link for the response you want. Email your flyer to your greatest fans, current customers and prospects and put a social share bar on the top of the email so it is easy for them to share it for you. Stick to a single message and a clear call to action.

Facebook. Distribute your email flyer to your Facebook fans. Use a big picture and a link back to the flyer you created in Constant Contact. Depending on the type of campaign, you might consider promoting it with a unique hashtag. Each hashtag on Facebook has its own unique url so you could also drive traffic to that url from other sites to get more engagement and spark discussion.

Twitter. Say a few words about the promotion and put a link to the email flyer. If the url is lengthy, use a tool like bit.ly to shorten it, which also allows you to track how many people clicked on the link. Web site or blog. If you feed your Twitter or Facebook posts to your web site, you won't have to worry about updating your web site. As you promote on Facebook or Twitter, it will populate your Instagram and Vine Create a fun video about your campaign. Maybe it's a video that teases the campaign or shows the product you are promoting in different settings or how it benefits different people. Post these on Facebook and Twitter.

After your campaign, measure your results. Did people do what you wanted them to do? How many people clicked on your link, took action? Take time to assess the campaign and learn what worked well and what didn't. Take what you learned and repeat in your next campaign.

ARE YOU FREE?

I have been thinking so much about freedom lately such a fortunate people to be free. But I continue to come back to what freedom really is. Are you free?

We all think that freedom is being able to do what we have really? Excess. Excess weight, extreme behaviors, drinking problems, emotional turmoil and the ability to be a slug and not take care of ourselves. Hmm, then comes illness or the inability to run or even touch our toes.

to our surroundings and the needs of our bodies; the ability to adapt to a situation and thrive. To make the right choices and breathe into adversity - THAT is freedom. will allow you to be free!

Freedomisnottheconstraintofourbeliefs, orslavery Namasté, René to our ever-chattering minds, or the pressures of the lives we have created. That is suffocation.

So once again, I advocate getting on your mat every day. Create a discipline for yourself that

- what with our wonderful holiday and all. We are How do we then explore our freedoms? Get on the mat, of course. Learning about how we can transform ourselves, learning about the possibilities, getting to know our egos, our fears, our edges, getting stronger and feeling we want, say what we want, eat what we want, the empowerment, learning to fly (ardha drink, think, feel, behave. And then what do chandrasana), these are freedoms. It's not about a diet it's about making the food choices that will allow our bodies to do paschimotanasana (forward fold) or hike up the Mount Wilson Trail. It's about staying in balance so that we have a better chance of surviving by not getting sick. The best freedom of all is for our minds to be calm, for us True freedom is the ability to adapt. Adapt to learn to love ourselves and for us to be happy.

BRIGHT FUTURE HYPNOTHERAPY Carole Weeks, PhD. C.Ht

by Lori Koop, Right Brain Business Coach On my office wall are the words "BE YOUrself." My BIG message to the world. The mission of my life. Two little words to guide a lifetime of choices, for you

I knew it could be a challenging path to follow, but a colleague recently commented that it was scary. I had never considered that! He had grown up in a situation where there was intense pressure to conform: there was punishment for standing out, and praise for blending in. Every family teaches this to some degree. School certainly reinforces it. And at work, it is the team players that often get the biggest paychecks.

Yes, there are plenty of places we are asked to follow the pack. Required, even. While it is often safest to follow, it is sometimes necessary -- and often empowering -- to lead. To be courageous and stand right out there, as Ourselves. To use our uniqueness and passion for the reason it was given. To forge a road that is as individual as we are. This is true in business and in our lives. It's one-of-a-kind-ness that make us like no other. Ever. It is what will help us make that difference!

As you have those essential self conversations, you discover your preferences, your passions and your pathway. It does take courage to stand up to peer pressure, to think for yourself, to do "what you want" instead of "what others want you to do." It requires self confidence and determination. A connection to self that makes being YOUrself the most satisfying option. And, after awhile, it becomes the only option. Because it is the only place of peace.

It takes courage to grow up and become who you really are. ~ E. E. Cummings

SIERRA MADRE CELEBRATES

In Sierra Madre, on the nation's actual birthday, Thursday, July 4th, the day started witha 5k Firecracker Fun Run sponsored by the Spero Foundation. This was the third year for the event. According to Bill Coburn's website, "there were a couple new twists. In order to make the run an official 5K, the starting line was moved back. In order to run more smoothly, as well as to give runners that were trying to run against the clock a better shot at an orderly start, there were two start lines, one for runners and one for walkers.." "...And, there was a time clock at the finish line, so while the race kept no official times, the runners and walkers could see their time as they came across the line. About 200 people registered to run the race, up from about 175 last year. year.

FLY ON THE WALL: HOW ONE GIRL SAW EVERYTHING By E. Lockhart

With the Fourth of July coming up, this next choice shall be a little summer treat, especially for those who are younger or teen readers, which means they'll have something to kick back with while they enjoy the festivities. "Fly on The Wall: How One Girl saw Everything" by E. Lockhart is a humorous, witty, and unique tale of how one high school girl's perspective is changed when she observes the lives and interactions of her fellow students by turning into a fly.

Do not jump to conclusions just yet, as our protagonist Gretchen Yee does not turn into a fly deliberately, but is granted an odd wish to observe the other students in this manner. Lockhart is witty and fun with her words, changing tones for the character of Gretchen, first as an observer of the student body, then when she undergoes her transformation, and finally after she changes back to her old self with a newfound perspective on her school. Gretchen can serve as a voice for readers who not just go through similar predicaments (except changing into a fly), but also to make sense of themselves as individuals when they feel adrift or alone when wanting to be unique and attempting to make sense of their fellow students.

The tone that "Fly on The Wall" provides here is not judgmental, but to try to keep an open mind and when one learns to listen to what is going on around them, may understand better the reasons for why and how one perceives the world around them. For Gretchen, it takes changing into a fly for her to come to this realization, but this acts as a metaphor for basically doing a 180 and to have an entirely new outlook and focus on something you may have previously thought different.

Copyrighted in 2006, and receiving praise from various critics who praise Lockhart's writing style, "Fly on The Wall" is a wonderful pick for younger and teen readers that will give them a delightful read, but one that may also teach an excellent lesson in the process.

OUT TO PASTOR

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

OF COURSE ITS RAINING, I JUST WASHED MY CAR

Nobody can say İ did not warn the Gracious

Mistress of the Parsonage, for all the good my warning did. I am not one to say, "I told you so," but "I told you so."

I swear, at times I think my wife thinks I do not want to do something simply because I am too lazy. Nine times out of 10 it may be true, but what about that tenth time?

What women need to understand is when their husband does not do something; there may be a good, logical reason behind it. The problem men have is articulating their perfectly good and logical reason to their better half. Trust me on this one, ladies.

There are excellent reasons your husband does not always do what you request of him. I wish someone would explain us to explain it in terms women can understand.

Last week, for example, my wife made a request of me. She said, "Honey ...'

Whenever my wife begins a sentence with "Honey," I know I am in for a sticky situation.

Honey comes from bees and whenever she so addresses me, I know I be in trouble, and you can be sure there is a stinger in it for me - somewhere.

My wife was looking out the window with her arms folded, which means she is thinking about some job around the house for Yours Truly. Then she said, "Honey, don't you think you should wash the car?'

If I live to be a hundred that thought never crossed my mind. Do you know how much trouble it is to wash my car?

Then, it never fails to rain right after I wash the car and have to wash it all over again.

That was on Tuesday and I said to my wife, "You know, Dear," whenever a husband so addresses his wife, it always means he is trying to find some way out of doing her request, while making it sound like he me outside, vigorously washing wants to do it.

I said, "You know, Dear, it's a wonderful idea but it looks like it might rain." The key to this point is to put on a grimace and look up in the sky, in a thoughtful frame of mind.

"Yes, I think I saw a raindrop. It won't be long now."

Right here is where most men fail. Simply because the first round is over does not mean, by any stretch of the imagination, the issue is put to rest. I can sum up the next move in one word -

In other words, disappear. Remember the old saying, "Out of sight, out of chores"?

Find something to get you out of the line of fire. There is always a chance - slim though it something else and forget.

By Thursday, I forgot the car this to my wife. It is just hard for washing idea and was standing around our living room looking out the window. It seemed who calmly asked, "Oh, my. Is harmless enough.

> Have you heard the old wife's workhorse?"

I heard those familiar words beginning with "Honey ..." And a streak of panic flowed through my body, freezing up every muscle I still had. "Honey, our car really needs a good washing."

Now, that was bad enough and I think I could have worked out something else except before I could clear my throat, she added a phrase no husband wants to hear. "Don't you

If I say, "Yes," I am in trouble.

I am duped if I do not and doped if I do. How is a husband to win with the odds so stacked against him?

With a feigned meekness that would make St. Francis of Assisi envious, I said what all good husbands say under similar conditions, "Yes, Dear."

The next three hours found

Old Nelly. As I washed her, could feel someone (I am not mentioning any names) watching from our living room window.

The smile on my face camouflaged the clenched teeth behind it.

Just as I was putting the finishing touches on the wax job, I felt something cold on the back of my neck. At first, being engrossed in my chore, I did not pay any attention to it.

Then another - and another - and another. Then came the

I glanced at my freshly waxed car and saw drops of water cheerfully dancing on my mirrored hood.

The thunder sounded like is - the Missus will get busy with a heavenly giggle and before I could make it to the door, I was completely drenched.

> Ducking inside out of the it raining?'

"Of course it's raining," I saying, "An idle husband is a shivered, "I've just washed my

> As I was drying off, I chuckled to myself as a favorite Bible verse came to mind.

> "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." (Romans 8:28 KJV.)

> Two things in life are for certain.

> One: things will always fall apart.

Two: God can always take If I say, "No," I am in trouble. those things that fall apart and pull them together for His honor and glory - come rain or shine.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS:

BANDS TO WATCH

By: Sean Kayden

Hibou - "Dunes EP" - Seattle dream pop band, Hibou, have just released their new EP album (currently name your own price via Bandcamp.com), "Dunes." Peter Michel, former drummer of similar act Craft Spells, is now in the driver seat as main composer. This solo endeavor roams the realm of lo-fi, jangly pop guitars and dreamy snyths. If you're a fan of Beach Fossils, DIIV, Craft Spells, and Minks (all on Captured Tracks record label), Hibou is for you, I'm a total sucker for anything dream-pop and while Hibou sounds awfully similar to other bands I love, I'm still hooked on the band's chill and elated vibe.

Pure Bathing Culture - "Moon Tides" - Pure Bathing Culture is gearing up for their debut LP record, "Moon Tides" dropping this August. Indie-pop duo, Daniel Hindman and Sarah Versprille make very pleasant, lucid, surreal music. Their first single off the album, "Pendulum," true to its name, swings gently back and forth as the music figuratively lifts you off the ground. Deeply reflective and supplying impeccably smooth vocals from Versprille, "Pendulum" may just be one of many stunning songs coming later this summer from the Portland natives.

Midnight Faces – "Fornication" - Festival headlining worthy band Midnight Faces, have created soaring, commanding, and tightly structured songs for their debut LP, "Fornication." The record benefits from its 80s inspired electronic dance-pop subtleties. However, I feel this album is one of the most original, modern sounding indie rock albums of the year. Midnight Faces is made up of alternative duo, Matthew Warn and Phil Stancil. The band's sound is a complete departure from Warn's other group, post-rock instrumentalists, Saxon Shore. He's described Midnight Faces as "Tom Petty fronting The Cure." With Warn's experience in Saxon Shore and bandmate Phil Stancil impressive vocals, the pair's eclectic style allows them to bring a refreshing, innovative sound to "Fornication." The duo wields both high-energy tracks as well as soft, multi-layered compositions. "Fornication" is out now via Broken Factory.

Superhumanoids – "Exhibitionists" - Snyth-pop trio Superhumanoids hail from Los Angeles, California. On August 13th the 80s new wave inspired enthusiasts will be releasing their debut LP, "Exhibitionists." One of the first songs previewed off the album is "Bad Weather." Similar in vein to Pure Bathing Culture, the vocals are utterly intoxicating as they are performed over a crisp, shimmering, electronic soundscape. While most bands in the genre can be the soundtrack any hot summer day, Superhumanoids occupies more a nighttime feel. They're a little darker, evocative than other groups in this realm. Plus, they specialize in love and longing type of lyrics as opposed to simply disposable summer time anthems. If you're looking for something different but not completely off the beaten path, Superhumanoids may be the band you need to get by these hot summer nights.

President Obama Tweeted, "Something special is happening in Austin tonight", followed by a link to the live video feed from the Texas Statehouse, and the Twitter "#STANDWITHWENDY". There were 200,000 viewers tuned into that feed a week ago last Tuesday, as State Sen. Wendy Davis (D) stood for eleven hours to filibuster the state's effort to assert jurisdiction over one of the can make. Senate allies held the floor for an additional two hours gallery made sure the midnight deadline passed without a vote.

SB5 was intended to deprive Texas women of autonomous Councilwoman, Wendy Davis control over their reproductive won her Senate seat in 2008 with decisions and access to reproductive healthcare; except for those able to afford one of the top metropolitan hospitals or by the 20-term(!) It would criminalize abortions after 20 weeks of pregnancy. (In California, the cut-off is when the fetus becomes viable - to be determined by doctors, not politicians.)

The bill failed that night, but within hours Gov. Rick Perry (R) called another special session to bring it up again and this time gets it passed. He gave a speech to supporters in which he reminded of a single, teen-age mother, and then became a single, teen-age mother herself – before going on to earn a Harvard law degree and serve as a Texas State Senator. "It is just unfortunate that she hasn't learned from her own example". Sen. Davis argues it's not a matter of choices she has made, or that other women have made, but of protecting the right of every woman in Texas to make those choices for herself. As for the

For a legislative hearing last week, Republican leadership ruled that no more than 140 members of the public would be allowed to speak, though over 1,900 had signed up to testify. They chose a room with only 67 seats; a third already reserved for lawmakers and media. Republican leadership refused Democratic requests to allow more Texans to have their say in front of their elected representatives. Over 5,000 Texans showed up last Monday in front of the State Capitol to have their say, anyway.

Over the past couple of weeks, most personal decisions a woman Sen. However many challenges were brought nation-wide under Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act, the ones upheld by Federal Courts during the 2012 election cycle were in Texas.

An hour before Sen. Wendy Davis began her filibuster, the U.S. Supreme Court nullified Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act. Barely two hours later, the Texas Attorney General moved to have those previously disallowed redistricting maps reinstated. In addition, new voter-ID laws would be imposed, where an expired gun license from another state would allow one to vote, but a photo student-ID from a local university would not.

Texas Republicans will do what they can to see that Wendy Davis does not return to office. They realize changing demographics are likely to turn Texas blue within a couple decades, so to delay the inevitable they'll suppress the vote and dilute the influence of groups threatening their power.

It's questionable, though, how long that will be effective. A bipartisan poll the week of the filibuster showed 80% of Texans opposing their legislature's taking up the abortion bills, with 71% saying the focus should be on the economy and jobs, instead. 74% feel private decisions about an woman, her family and her doctor - not by politicians - and that includes 61% of Republicans,

Regardless of how they try to cling to power, Republicans will see that those 700 supporters in the gallery, the 5,000 on the statehouse steps and 200,000 tuned in to the live video feed are just the beginning – as more and more throughout Texas, and throughout the country, are determined to #STANDWITHWENDY.

DECLARE INDEPENDENCE FROM GOVERNMENT

In the course of human events it is necessary, year or more — peaking now and again, to reaffirm some of the thoughts and principles we have lost sight of.

And so it is that we need to renew our indepen- Vedder's argument makes dence. More than 55 percent of Americans now receive some form of federal government benefit and many of us need to get off the dole.

I cite the findings of Richard Vedder, a professor emeritus of economics at Ohio University and an adjunct scholar at the American Enterprise

In The Wall Street Journal, Vedder argues that more Americans are not only becoming more dependent on government benefits, but that their dependence is adversely affecting the growth of our economy.

Consider: From the mid-17th century to the late 20th century, Vedder says, the American economy's growth averaged a robust 3.5 percent a year. Compare that to economic growth for the last quarter, which was revised down to 1.8 percent. A key reason for the stumbling economy: Fewer able-bodied Americans are working because government programs give them incentive not to. Vedder offers four examples:

- Food stamps, now known officially as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program. Approximately 48 million Americans receive food stamps — 30 million more than in the year 2000.
- tablished for people with genuine needs, but its numbers are soaring. In 1990, 3 million Americans received such payments; today, there are nearly 11 million — 6 million have been added since 2009 — despite widely reported fraud and
- Pell Grants, which pay people to go to college instead of entering the workforce. The concept sounds reasonable enough — educate people so they get better jobs and pay more taxes — but Vedder says nearly half of college graduates now work in jobs that require no college degree.
- Extended unemployment benefits. Vedder says that since the 1930s, unemployment insurance has been about lending a short-term hand to folks losing their jobs. But in the past four years, the traditional 26-week benefit has grown to a

HOW SERIOUS ARE WE ABOUT NATIONAL

Granting amnesty, of any before 9/11. kind to undocumented immigrants, is not only a slap in the face to all the legal immigrants, it is a serious of our national breach security. Have we all forgotten that the 9/11 attack was, among other things, a failure of U.S. immigration policy and FAA security standards. Although the alleged 9/11 hijackers entered the U.S. legally, they had all overstayed their visas for years without ever being asked to leave?

If, as the government claims, these potential threats to our national security were being watched, why weren't they deported? Viewing the security camera recordings of them boarding at Logan Airport does say much about our airport security at the time.

following the debate over the current attempt at immigration reform. I may be suffering from a bad case of Alzheimer's but what I'm hearing sounds an awfully lot like the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act (IRCA) signed into law by President Reagan -- An act, according to polls at the time, most Americans didn't support.

lived up to its promises to:

Require employers to attest to their employees' immigration status.

Make it illegal to knowingly hire or recruit unauthorized immigrants.

Legalize certain seasonal agricultural illegal

Legalize illegal immigrants who could prove they entered the United States before January 1, 1982 and had resided there continuously with the penalty of a fine, back taxes due, and admission the fact that IRCA has proven an utter failure. Today the number of undocumented immigrant living in the U.S., depending on who's counting, is estimated between 11 to 22 million! In California it is estimated that 1 in 10 workers is undocumented! But I digress.

To repeat, amnesty is a breach of our national security. Among other things, 9/11 was a colossal failure of U.S. immigration policy and FAA (now TSA) security protocols. We are all still paying for it; our troops are putting their lives on the line in Iraq and Afghanistan, and wherever else the War on Terrorism takes them. Yet, our borders and airports are no more secure than they were Recently I watched two documentaries that changed my thinking about this amnestynational security conundrum we find ourselves in today. These two films illustrate far better than I can in words the challenges we face as a nation in the near future.

Dennis Lynch's They Come To America (2012) covers it all, and from every perspective: the undocumented job market, unemployed American workers, drug smuggling criminals, ranchers under siege on the border, law enforcement, activists on both sides. It is clear there is a violent war being fought along our southern border between local ranchers and "coyote-narcotraficantes". A war all but ignored by Washington and the mainstream press. While the Border Patrol visibly enforces During the past few months I have been areas near border towns with strong fencing no there are no agents in locations with inadequate fencing. As one rancher says, "It's past being a joke — it's deliberate." Lynch reflects, "We can't have ranchers defending America's border. Yet they live life like that every day — every single

Rob DelGaudio's Please Remove Your Not surprising to its critics, the IRCA never Shoes (2010) is troubling, frightening, film that examines the Transportation Security Administration's (TSA) role as protector of the American skies, raising serious questions about the disturbing gap between the federal agency's avowed purpose and actual airport safety since

It is a story about a broken government process, and about a dozen public servants who try to fix it. And it is a familiar topic to all of us who have flown in the last fifteen years: the security routine at the airport, first the FAA and now the TSA.

Most importantly, this film asks the question Sounds familiar doesn't it? Worse still is that should make us all squirm: "Is it safer to fly to today than it was before 9/11? The short answer, according to this documentary, is NO!"

So how serious are we about our national security? Not very, apparently. Which makes me wonder how serious is the threat of terrorism? Despite the claims of the last two administrations that since 9/11 they have successfully prevented any further terrorist attacks by the fact that none have happened, only makes me wonder:

If terrorism is such a serious threat to our national security then why do we allow such lax border and air transportation security to continue? It just doesn't make any sense... any sense at all!

TESTS OF MERIT

KABOOM!! Happy Birthday, America. Another year has gone by. This is probably as good a time as any to look back and reflect upon some recent changes. Among the most obvious changes that have occurred over the last few years are the accepted American attitudes toward race and homosexuality. The overall reaction to the rapid acceptance of samesex marriage demonstrates the way American attitudes can change in a very short time. It is now necessary in polite society to never make disparaging remarks about gay people and their right to marry and I agree that this change is completely appropriate.

The attitude change has been so rapid that not only is a total acceptance of same sex intimate relationships required but also it is universally recognized that individuals that have any problem with this acceptance are nothing but ignorant bigots who have no right to be heard in the public forum. This, I think, can be problematic.

A very similar phenomenon has occurred regarding discussions of race. The only acceptable attitude in polite society is to understand that no race is better than any other. Any individual who would maintain a different opinion is someone completely unworthy of respect and should be shunned. In fact it seems to be common knowledge that any White person who has ever used the word, or even uttered it secretly to himself or herself, is by definition an unrepentant bigot unworthy of respect.

My own self-respect at this time requires me to assure you that I am not a racist or a homophobe and some of my best friends are gay, lesbian, transsexual people of all colors and ages and educational levels. Still, this whole judgmental business really troubles me. It reminds me of a comment I heard right after college. The comment was, "he's cool—he smokes dope." I knew even then that "coolness" or any other kind of merit could not be measured that easily. Character is a combination of many factors and it cannot be determined by a one question test. Somehow it all reminds me of the worst aspects of McCarthyism when presence at a political meeting decades earlier demonstrated that a person was a threat to society and should never be allowed to travel in the presence of right thinking Americans.

I admit that I am capable of this kind of overreaction myself. I think organized religions are manipulative nonsense meant to prey on and wasn't, ever cool? ignorant people who are taught not to think for themselves. I am told that something like 40% of all Americans are fundamentalists who believe that the stuff written in their Holy Books is the actual word of the creator. Strangely though I keep chancing upon devout people who hold strong religious beliefs and yet are intelligent, creative, and interesting. Did you see the Discovery Channel Special showcasing the tight-rope walker who walked across the Grand

Every third step this guy took involved a Thank You Jesus or some other comment addressed to the Almighty. How silly I thought; but after hearing the post-walk interview I had a different opinion. The walker explained that he used his religion as a way of focusing himself. Without his religious devotion he could not do what he wanted to do with his life. Of course, for me, walking across canyons isn't exactly what I wan to do with my life but I admire the man's achievements.

Similarly, I imagine that a good percentage of the 19 Arizona firefighters recently killed fighting the Arizona wild fires were devout religious men. These were brave men committed to performing a valuable service and their deaths make it clear to me that individuals should be judged not by some simple standard but rather by the consideration of their full lives.

I think the nation has learned a great deal during the five years of the Obama Administration. Although we would never want to admit it, many of us just loved voting for then Senator Obama for the very reason that he was Black. That was enough. Well, I think we have all learned that being Black isn't enough. Being an effective President requires a combination of skills, experience, and luck and maybe all that isn't enough? Was the President an unacceptable bigot eighteen months ago when he admitted that he had a problem with same-sex marriage? Is he a completely acceptable person now that he has evolved and changed his position on this one issue?

Of course, I used the word "evolved" purposely in the above-paragraph. Can one be an intelligent person and not accept the theory of evolution based on current evidence? Similarly can one be a responsible, rational person and ignore all the scientific evidence and the continuous run of calamitous weather that now confronts the world? Well, based on what I have been saying it seems clear that no one question can provide sufficient information to allow for a reasoned judgment but Does all that mean that smoking dope isn't,

HEALTHY HOME ENVIRONMENTS IN SIERRA MADRE

Like many people, after a long day at work, I look forward to coming home and relaxing with a nice dinner or my favorite television show. As a Sierra Madre resident, I enjoy the cool mountain air and I like to open my windows when I get home while I get dinner ready and start to unwind from the day's events. Unfortunately, most days as soon as I settle at the table or couch, food in hand and get ready to turn on my favorite show, a smell wafts into my apartment unit from the outside. As I pause, fork in hand, the smell becomes more prominent and it can be easily identified as tobacco smoke.

As an apartment resident, any smoking inside the units, on the balconies, etc. wafts into the unit and overpowers the fresh air I was previously enjoying. Can you imagine smelling tobacco smoke and being exposed to the harmful effects in your home on a daily basis? If you have never experienced drifting secondhand smoke as an apartment or condominium resident, I can tell you that not only is it an unpleasant experience, but it can negatively affect your health as well. The dangerous effects of secondhand smoke have been researched time and time again and the results are irrefutable: "secondhand smoke is harmful to your

As a member of the Clean Air for Residential Environments (CARE) Sierra Madre coalition, which is composed of Sierra Madre residents and health advocates, I am interested in safeguards to protect residents from secondhand smoke exposure at home. Despite public settings where an individual can often walk away from the smoke, in a home environment, Sierra Madre residents have no option when it comes to protecting them-selves from drifting secondhand smoke except to move, which is not an easy option for many people. As a Sierra Madre resident and member of the CARE coalition, we have worked now for over 3 years for a smoke-free multi-unit housing ordinance in the City of Sierra Madre which will help protect the health of all residents.

This ordinance is not about infringing on people's rights, but rather it's about protecting the health of the community mem-bers including children and older adults. No one is denying people the "right" to smoke, we are just asking for an ordinance that would ask smokers to refrain from smoking in common areas, balconies and inside units, where the smoke can easily drift through the vents being inhaled by all other neigh-bors. If you are affected by secondhand smoke as a tenant and/ or owner in a multi-unit housing and need help with specific details, please feel free to contact our coalition at caresierramadre@gmail. com for more information.
