Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Log

(SMSR) Team responded to eighteen individual calls for assistance in June with operations taking place not only in the local Sierra Madre area, but including the high Sierra and Thousand Palms.

Disaster Preparedness

To further educate the community the Sierra is on the fourth Thursday at 0700PM at the Hart Park House. All are welcome.

Also the Sierra Madre CERT is conducting is open to all.

The class covers:

Fire Safety

a basic CERT class. The class starts August 17 and Injured Hiker, First Water Trail, Chantry Flat: On June 13th at 3:15 p.m., SMSR was paged for a cliff rescue at Chantry Flat. The team was joined the Sierra Madre Fire Department and Los Angeles County Fire to rescue a hiker who had fallen off the trail and was stranded in steep terrain above the canyon bottom. SMSR personnel quickly established a high angle rope rescue system and sent rescuers approximately 120' over the side to access the hiker. After determining that his injuries were minor, rescuers used the rope rescue system to lower the hiker and rescuers the remaining (approx.) 150' feet to the canyon bottom. The rescue was completed at 5:40 p.m.

Search, Thousand Palms, Riverside County: SMSR was requested at 9 p.m. on June 29th by the California Office of Emergency Services (OES) for a mutual aid call in Riverside County to assist in the search for a missing hiker. Daytime temperatures in the area were 120 degrees and officials planned to run search operations through the night. SMSR personnel responded and were deployed on initial search assignments by 11:30 p.m. Field crews worked throughout the night looking for the missing 71 year old hiker. The man was located mid-morning on the 30th, but unfortunately had not survived the conditions. The team expresses our condolences to his family and friends.

Multiple Calls, Chantry Flat, Mount Wilson Trail and Eaton Canyon: June 30th would turn out to be a busy day for SMSR with a series of operations taking place throughout the day. The first call for the day came at 11:30 a.m. with reports of a hiker stranded over the side of the trail below Chantry Flat. A high angle rescue was executed to get the uninjured hiker back to the trail. As the rescue was concluding, SMSR received a request from Altadena Mountain Rescue (AMRT) to assist them in the search for two

The Sierra Madre Search and Rescue hikers who were lost in the Mount Wilson area and reportedly suffering from dehydration and exhaustion. Due to limited information about the specific location of the hikers, search crews were dispatched to multiple locations to hike the trails and locate the subjects. Los Angeles County Sheriff's deputies were able to locate the hiker's car near the trailhead at Cobb Estates and teams began to focus their efforts in that area. While search crews were redeploying, a rescue call in Eaton Canyon was dispatched and 7 personnel from SMSR responded to Eaton Canyon to assist in the rescue of 3 hikers stranded near the 2nd waterfall. SMSR joined LA County Fire and LASD's Air Rescue 5 on the incident. Two of the subjects were hoisted from their location by Air 5 and the third subject was lowered by rope rescue system to the canyon bottom by SMSR. The subjects were uninjured and escorted out of the canyon. During the Eaton Canyon rescue the missing Mt. Wilson hikers were successfully located. One of the hikers was transported to the hospital for treatment. The operations were secured by 4:30 p.m.

> Combined with the search in Riverside County, SMSR was in continuous operation for 17 hours on the 29th and Missing Hiker, Inyo County: SMSR assisted with the continued search for a hiker missing since October 2012 in the Sierra near Independence. The hiker's camp was located along with evidence that he died nearby during the fierce winter storm that trapped him 7 miles from his car.

For over 60 years the all-volunteer Sierra Madre Search and Rescue team has been responding to calls for help in the local mountains and beyond. Funded entirely by private donations, SMSR provides a range of public programs on wilderness safety in addition to its search and rescue activities. The Team never charges for any of its services.

For more information, including how to arrange a wilderness safety demonstration for your school or group, visit www.smsr.org.

THE KING WAS HERE!

The "King", aka Elvis, aka Harry Shahoian impersonating the original, left his throne in Las Vegas and, under the auspices of the Sierra Madre Rotary Club, performed at last week's Concert In The Park. As always, he had the packed house rocking! Sierra Madre's Concerts in the Park is sponsored this year by The Kensington - the assisted living facility being built on Sierra Madre Blvd. and local service organizations who sponsor the music. This week's concert will feature Jane Fuller and company performing Pop Across the Decades, and is sponsored by Friends of the Library and The Sierra Madre Kiwanis Club.

Sierra madre teens and treasures -Teen History Docents

Sierra Madre local history will get a big boost with a new grant just received by the Sierra Madre Public Library. The grant of $7,500 will enable the Library to train teen volunteers as history docents using new Digital Storyboard technology at the Library's Local History Room and at the Richardson House museum. Recruiting and training of teens will begin in

The California State Library awarded funding of the grant titled "Sierra Madre, Teens and Treasures - Teen History Docents." The grant will expand the Library's summer teen volunteer program into a year-round program by training teens as docents.
First step will be to hire a part-time coordinator who will recruit and train the teens. The volunteer docents will give "tours" of local history using the new Digital Storyboards.

Five teens at a time will train and give tours during a five-week period. A total of 25 teens will be part of the program during the grant period, then the library will continue the program after the grant

Library Director Carolyn Thomas said, "We are delighted to share our city's rich local history collection with more people through the Digital Storyboards and are pleased that we can expand our summer volunteer program throughout the year. It's a great combination of resources."

SIERRA MADRE POLICE BLOTTER

For the period July 15-21, 2013

Monday July 15, 2013

Between 4:30 and 9:30pm, an unknown suspect forced entry into a vehicle parked at the curb in the 400 block of Mount Wilson Trail Avenue. Using an unknown object, the suspect smashed the left rear passenger window, reached in and grabbed items that were on the rear seat. A laptop computer, IPad computer and briefcase were among the items stolen.

Tuesday July 16, 2013

Overnight, an unknown suspect entered an unlocked vehicle parked in a driveway in the 00 block of West Grandview Avenue. A designer bag and two backpacks were removed from the interior of the vehicle. The next morning, a resident on West Alegria Avenue found the items near her house. Documents inside the designer bag allowed the finder to contact the owner and facilitate the return of the property. The victim reported that nothing was missing from the bag or backpacks.

Saturday July 20, 2013

At 10:30am, a traffic collision took place in the intersection of Orange Grove Avenue and Mountain Trail Avenue. A vehicle travelling south on Mountain Trail appropriately stopped for the stop sign but then entered the intersection directly into the path of a westbound vehicle. The impact caused the westbound vehicle to flip upside down and the vehicle came to rest on its top. Remarkably, none of the parties sustained an injury.

Longtime Local Reporter Found Dead

Pasadena Star News reporter Janette Williams was found dead, by a neighbor, at her Monrovia home over the weekend. The cause of death was not immediately known although it appeared not to be foul play.

According to the Star News website, Williams worked for the paper 22 years. She was 68.

Williams was best known for her in depth reporting on Pasadena's historical places including, saving the Greene and Greenedesigned Herkimer Arms apartment building. She was also known as an expert on the history of the Tournament of Roses. Her last story, published July 20, dealt with the Ambassador Gardens development on former Worldwide Church Ambassador Goďs College campus.

As a tribute to her, many of her coworkers posted short videos on pasadenastarnews.com saying what a joy it was to work with her. Pasadena Star News Editor Frank Girardot said the news of her sudden death devastated the newsroom.

Williams, a native of Scotland, moved to the United States in the 1980s.

Two weeks ago Williams said she was semi-retired working at the paper just a few days a week.

"Last summer we were looking for a fun way to honor and remember Pasadena native Julia Child for her contributions to culinary and television history. Since Julia Child was known to enjoy a good cocktail, we decided to throw the citywide cocktail party on her birthday, August 15th, at venues throughout the city," said Pasadena Chamber CEO Paul Little. "At the same time, we wanted to highlight all that Pasadena's restaurants and lounges have to offer for visitors, residents and those who work here."

The four finalist drinks will taste-off of the four drinks that face off in a live sip-off at the Taste of Pasadena on September 26th at the Rose Bowl. The first challenge will take place over two weeks and pit 32 pairs of cocktails against each other. Each week following the winners will be paired headto-head with another winning cocktail until, on September 26th, the four finalists will be matched in a live tasting during the annual Taste of Pasadena hosted by the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce at the Rose Bowl from 6pm to 9pm.

Annual Wiggle Waggle Walk Coming September

The fundraiser for the Pasadena Humane Society sets $400,000 goal

For Your Community

Animal lovers are invited to put their best feet forward at the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA's 15th annual Wiggle Waggle Walk – a community fundraiser for animals – at Brookside Park adjacent to the Rose Bowl. Organizers hope to raise $400,000 through the event, which will provide food, shelter and medical care to homeless animals, nearly 12,000 of which are taken in by the humane society every year. The walk will start at 9 a.m. on Sunday, September 29.

Thousands of people and their dogs are expected to take part in the walk, which begins at 9 a.m. Walkers and their dogs can choose either a one-mile or three-mile route around the outside of the Rose Bowl stadium before enjoying a free Pet Expo at the park. Participants do not need a dog to join the fun—just a desire to help animals—and they can walk individually or form

"The Wiggle Waggle Walk a fun event that brings everyone together to help animals in need," says Steve McNall, president and CEO of the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA. "This is our biggest fundraiser of the year. We would not be able to provide the level of care to all the animals without the community's support."

Participants are encouraged to fundraise for the animals by creating personal web pages through the Wiggle Waggle Walk website and asking family, friends and co-workers for donations. Non-walkers, and those unable to attend the event, can also create fundraising web pages through this site. Entrants who raise $50 will receive an official Wiggle Waggle Walk T-shirt. Registration is free.

Check-in starts at 8 a.m. at the entrance to Brookside Park. The walk will begin at 9:00 a.m. and the Pet Expo will take place immediately after the walk until 1 p.m. The Pet Expo will feature K9 demonstrations by the Pasadena Police Department, variety of pet product booths, 'paw-tapping' music and fun dog contests. This year's sponsors include Wells Fargo, VCA Animal Hospitals and Community Bank. For more information, visit www. wigglewagglewalk.org.

"What's Going On?"

News and Views from Joan Schmidt

This past attended an awesome but very heart wrenching eventthe first unsolved Homicide Summit Sheriff's Headquarters. Two groups, Justice for Homicide Victims and Justice for Murdered Children, sponsored this summit to facilitate communication between various law enforcement/county agencies and the victims' families.

Representatives from two groups were there: Those whose family members' murderers have been convicted and are serving time in jail and those who are awaiting justice. When I arrived, I met Jeanette Chavez, mother of Samantha Salas, who was shot at Riviera Apartments on Peck Road in Monrovia. The crime has been solved, but Jeanette's life will never be the same-no parent ever gets over the loss of a child.

Justice for Homicide Victims was founded in 1984 by the late Ellen Griffin Dunne (daughter Dominique murdered at age 27) and the late Robert W. Leach (Husband of Marcella Leach, Marsy's mom.) Today, Marcella, William and Jane Bouffard, Thomas Vardon, LaWanda Hawkins, Jeanette Chavez and Cythia Bejar continue the battle for justice.

Justice for Murdered Children was founded in 1996 by LaWanda Hawkins ((Her only child Reggie was murdered) LaWanda, and other parents who had lost children to homicide discovered their cases were going unsolved and that they had been left out of the criminal justice process.

The Summit began with a welcomed by La Wanda Hawkins and Jane Bouffard. LaWanda spoke of losing her only child Reggie, while Jane told us about her parents', Gladys and Elmer Benson's murder-Samuel Zamudo was tried, found guilty in 1997, and his death sentence upheld in 2008.

We learned of Marsy Nicholas' murder by her ex-boyfriend. One week later, hermom Marcella walked into a store and was confronted by the accused murderer. She had no idea he had been released on bail. But the passage of Marsy's Law in 2008 changed all that in California. (Please go on line to www.marsyslawforall.org . Another speaker was Colleen Campbell, sister of the late Mickey Thompson who with his wife Trudy was murdered in Bradbury. It took NINETEEN years for justice to be served. Michael Goodwin was convicted and sentenced to two consecutive life terms. However, Colleen told us of the harassment and threats by Goodwin during those nineteen years; it was unbelievable.

Sheriff Baca told us that it takes "extraordinary strength" to deal with the murder of a family member. "The nature of the suffering never goes away; it only gets managed." When the Sheriff left, a distraught mother ran after him clutching The Sheriff hugged her, and said, "Let's try to get services to familes. another effort going."

FIRST UNSOLVED HOMICIDE SUMMIT AT SHERIFF'S HEADQUARTERS

During the program, there were two panels of Speakers, both moderated by Retired Judge, Honorable Michael Latin. The first panel included Long Beach Police Commander Donald Wood, Inglewood Police Captain Marie Di Beranando, Pasadena Police Commander John Perez, LACDA Major Crimes Division John Lewin, LASD Homicide Bureau Captain Duane Harris, LASD Director of Bureau Operations, Dr. Steven Sultan, LAPD Captain Thomas McMullen and LACDA Forensic Science Section, Marguerite

On the second panel, were Homicide LAPD Detective Tracy McClanahan; LASD Unsolved Homicide Bureau Sgt. Delores Scott; Pasadena Star News Editor Frank Girardot; Dr. Danielle Dirks, Occidental College, Dept. of Sociology; LAPD Coordinator Regional Crime Stoppers, Officer Do; and FBI Victim Specialist Carmen de

The Panelists introduced themselves, told exactly what their work involved and gave hope to the attendees. For instance, Forensic Specialist Rizzo spoke of the advances in DNA testing which has been instrumental in proving cases.

Prior to the program, attendees filled out cards with questions. Judge Latin read the question and different panel members answered.

One man, Sault Zavala said after his daughter and niece were murdered, the killer fled to Mexico. Although US prosecutors agreed to remove the death penalty, the Mexican government would NOT extradite him to the US. The killer stood trial, was convicted and sentenced to 60 years in a Mexican jail, but Zavala doesn't trust the system in Mexico. After Zavala spoke to FBI Agent Robert Clark, he had new hope.

before having been involved in a deep introspection of my life.

It was one of those introspections where I concluded my life was all chaos and disorder. Still, Phoenix-like, I arose very early the next day.

It was Saturday, and the sun had not begun to rise over the hills to the east. It was very quiet, and I could actually feel the collective heave and sigh of relief as the city took a break from the madness of racing around day after day so you can afford to do whatever it is that you believe you'd rather be doing than racing around every day making

The streets were still dark, and cool, and devoid of people. I began to bicycle through the city streets, first working my way through the downtown apartment areas, and then gradually north where there were more trees and bigger yards. The mountains were glowing with the rising sun, and by now the sky was light and birds were chirping everywhere. A few cars were now on the road, and an occasional jogger whished by on

The city was magical when everyone slept. Oh, I knew that there was some chance of encountering no-good criminals who would try to accost or rob me -- that's part of the tightness of the city. But everyone seemed to be asleep, even the muggers. I didn't even see homeless, for they too were tucked away in whatever spots they'd found for

The sun took its time in rising and the sky was overcast and cloudy on this early Saturday morning. A cool breeze blew down the city streets as a mountain breeze might blow down a canyon. Where you'd expect to see hawks perched high in the tallest mountain trees, I saw pigeons perched on the edges of the tall buildings. No matter what man does, nature usually adapts, and ultimately

I began to bicycle to the north, towards the mountains. What had been a truly casual and leisurely ride was now becoming a bit of work as I went uphill closer to the foothills of the San Gabriel range. I slowly rode to the very base of the mountains and watched a group of Boy Scouts unloading from the family vans and station wagons and loading on their backpacks for a day or weekend of adventure. I could see the excitement in their faces and hear it in their voices. For most of them, this would be a first adventure in campcraft.

I turned my bicycle around and began to coast back down the hill, and after a few miles, I turned down a street where a family I knew lived. I slowly bicycled by and saw that only Jim, the young six-year-old, was out in the yard playing. I said hello, and he recognized me and said hello. He asked me if I wanted to see the dirt people. I got off my bike, and got down on my hands and knees, and he showed me the little tunnels and

I hadn't been able to trails of the dirt people, and he showed me where sleep much the night they lived, and how they drove around on little pebbles. He pushed a pebble with a long stick, and made a sound like an automobile engine.

> "See how they go?" he said, excited. "Make yours go," he commanded, and so I began to push a little pebble around with a stick. I had to make sounds like a car when the dirt people wanted to turn quick or stop suddenly, and I had to keep the pebble on the roads that Jim had built. Jim told me about the monsters that come out sometimes and the dirt people have to run and hide, because the monsters are so powerful.

> He pointed to a little ant that had come out of a hole, and Jim gave voice to the monster-ant: a slow, deep growl as it walked along the dirt people's road. I was informed that the monster always takes the easy path along the dirt people's road, because the monster was lazy. That was its weakness, and the dirt people could use that fact to their advantage when they wage a war against

> Each pebble, each leaf, each stick, each undulation of the ground had a name and a meaning in Jim's world into which I had entered. I was lying there in the dirt with him, pushing a pebble, making sounds, and truly enjoying myself when his mother came out.

'What are you guys doing?" she asked.

"The dirt people are all getting together because the monsters are getting ready to invade. We watched the monsters begin the war, and the dirt people are now all trying to defend themself, right?" he looks at me.

His mother looks at me sideways, noting that I am covered in dirt as is Jim. She smiles, and says only "Oh." She just stands there and looks, and I know that it means nothing to Jim, but I feel the censure of an adult in the adult world, and I realize that I should feel embarrassment. When I think about it, I realize that I did feel a little embarrassed, but mainly because somehow I've been taught that some things are for children and some things are for adults. Adults are not allowed entry into the make-believe world of children, at least not by other adults.

So after a while, I got up, and shook off the dust. I told Jim's mother that I was just passing by, and I said goodbye to Jim. I rode on, and eventually headed back home.

I had truly enjoyed myself lying there in the dirt, without video games or electronic entertainers. We were enjoying a simple pleasure of life that required nothing but an active imagination and the ability to believe. And that's what's wrong with adults. Our bodies got older and we allowed our minds to ossify. We put aside imagination for pragmatism, and we gave up the ability to believe for hard-earned cynicism.

That morning, I realized that childhood ends when you can no longer lie in the dirt and

LOST WORLD WAR I MEDALS REUNITED WITH RECIPIENT'S FAMILY

While working in the Monrovia Police Department Property and Evidence Room, Property Officer Tom Carroll came across a box of unclaimed property from years past, containing amongst other personal possessions, military medals from the United States Army, including a "Purple Heart" from World War I. The Purple Heart had been awarded retroactively in 1935 to Frank Q. Newton, who had been injured in 1919 while serving on the front lines, nearly 100

Property Officer Tom Carroll, a United States Army veteran and recipient of the Purple Heart himself, immediately recognized the box that contained the medal and felt the importance of reuniting this military decoration with the family of the recipient. Initially, he contacted the Purple Heart Foundation, the repository for information on Purple Heart recipients. Unfortunately, this attempt met with no success, as the foundation has only been in existence for just over fifty years. Tom then began searching law enforcement databases, but again, was unsuccessful. He then sought assistance from the Police Department's Technology Bureau Supervisor, Jim Emett, who began searching through public genealogical databases for information. He entered the name and army unit of Frank Q. Newton, searching his military records, and eventually was able to positively identify him, which ultimately led to identifying his living relatives. Subsequent searches in law enforcement databases and contacting two other outside agencies finally revealed the recipient's family currently resides in Northern California.

The family knew the story of their father receiving the Purple Heart, but had no idea his medals still existed, and they were amazed and grateful when they learned the medals would be returned to them. Property Officer Tom Carroll had the medals mounted in a shadow box for the family, and the medals were hand delivered to the family at the Los Angeles International Airport on July 23, 2013.

PUT IT IN THE CAN

A Campaign to Keep Monrovia Beautiful

Where Your

In a seven block radius of Old Town Monrovia you will find 72 trash cans. They are conveniently located on each corner, in mid-blocks, at every entry and exit to the public parking lots, behind businesses and next to homes.

Yet, somehow, every day, some trash never makes it the last fifteen feet to these containers. Here's why it's so important to find the trash can:

All of the trash bins in Old Town are sorted for recycling. By just making it to the trash can, you ensure that your soda can or plastic bag make it back into the economy, not the landfill.

• It costs money to pick it up. The more time City Staff spends picking up trash, the less time they spend on parks and potholes. Trash on the street is ugly. Monrovia is a proud and beautiful community- let's not trash it. "I take great pride in our Old Town area and all of Monrovia. I will gladly pick up trash when I see it, but lately the amount of trash I am seeing is overwhelming," says Mayor Pro Tem Becky Shevlin. "I am asking people to join with me in keeping Monrovia beautiful!" As economic development picks up and Monrovia becomes an even more popular destination, we will have more traffic and consequently, more trash.

How can you help reverse this new trashy trend? Start by making sure all of your trash makes it into the can.

If you see trash in the street, pick it up.

Lastly, tell a friend.

Let us know how you did! Tag us with #CANit @MonroviaCA.

Below is a photo taken by Mayor Pro Tem Shevlin in one parking lot in Old Town. Remember - Put it in the Can.

EDUCATION & YOUTH

LOCAL GIRLS "CAMPED IN" AT WHITTIER COLLEGE

They didn't camp out in tents, but they did "camp in" at Whittier College in comfortable dorms, just like college students. That was the situation for thirteen local middle-school girls who spent the end of June at Tech Trek Math /Science Camp. The thirteen girls had been selected by the Arcadia Branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) to attend Tech Trek Camp, a summer program for eighthgrade girls sponsored by AAUW-California. The goal of Tech Trek Camp is to help young women entering eighth grade in the fall to develop interest, excitement, and self-confidence in the fields of math, science, and technology.

Representing Arcadia were Stephanie Yen from Dana Middle School, as well as Natalie Chen and Stella Cho from

First Avenue Middle School. El Monte City School District was represented by Alicia Bueno and Bethany Hernandez, Durfee School; Toni Gonzalez, Gidley School; Lizet Castillo and Dayanne Jimenez, Portrero School; Haily Torres, Rio Hondo School; Chabelli Garcia, Wright School; and Madeline Peralta, Columbia School. Monrovia's Santa Fe School sent Lily Pierce, and Oak Avenue Intermediate School, Temple City, sent Charlie Dodge.

These young women got a preview of college life while learning that math and science can be fun. They lived in dorms on the Whittier College campus for the entire week. They attended classes taught by credentialed middle-school teachers in which hands-on experiments were emphasized and enjoyed. Women professionals in the fields of math, science, and technology were guest presenters. Highlighting the activities were field trips to Jet Photo Caption for "Local Girls Camped In at Whittier College" Propulsion Lab, forensics labs, water reclamation plants, and other related science and technology centers. AAUW volunteers served as camp directors, nurses, and chaperones.

Each year students are nominated by teachers to attend the science, math, and technology camp. The local branch of AAUW that provides the funding for the students to attend makes the final selection of "campers." The AAUW-Arcadia Branch supported this endeavor, along with contributions from community donors. Major donors were the Arcadia Chinese Association, Hakka Foundation, El Monte City School District Student Support Service, El Monte Education Center, Lexus Pursuit of Potential (Toyota), and Soroptimists of Altadena-Pasadena.

Tech Trek had its beginnings at Stanford University in 1998, with initial funding from the AAUW Educational Foundation. This year there were ten camps: CSU-Fresno, Sonoma State University, Stanford University (two weeks), UC-Davis, UC-Irvine, UC-San Diego, UC-Santa Barbara (two weeks), and Whittier College. Tech Trek is continuing proof that AAUW puts its mission—to support equity and education for all women and girls—into action.

To support programs like Tech Trek or to learn more about the American Association of University Women, please contact Tech Trek Coordinator Phyllis Howard at (626) 359-3525.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show

While not having seen many Guillermo del Toro movies prior to this one, I really didn't know what to expect. People had told me that his films are very artistic and that he has a very recognizable style. Yet the trailers made 'Pacific Rim' just look like any other summer blockbuster. However, it is nothing like the mindless action sequences that are the cliche summer movie. It is much, much more than

In the near future, humanity is threatened by evil aliens that enter our world through a portal deep in the Pacific Ocean. We soon learn that these creatures are coming more frequently... and becoming stronger. The Jaeger program, which uses giant robots to kill the beasts, is in the midst of being shut down as humanity turns to a "safer" option: building a large wall to seal off the beasts. However, when the wall get broken through and a major city is attacked, the world turns to the dying Jaeger program to save them from the never-ending onslaught of giant aliens.

What first appears as a story-less mash of CGI turned out to be an artistic take on the crazy world of Kaiju beasts. 'Pacific Rim' hooks you with its unique look and keeps you interested with its multi-layered story. This movie takes beauty, combines it with amazingly shot action sequences, and gives you the perfect movie. 'Pacific Rim' is definitely a must see and has made me a big del Toro fan.

CELESTINO'S, AND THE NEW ITALIAN KID ON THE BLOCK

Just this past week I visited an old friend, Celestino's, on South Lake. It's right there for the entire world to see, but for some reason I continue to pass by on a daily basis. Thankfully my assignment for the week was to find the best of the best of the Italian family restaurants in the Pasadena area. I found it in Celestino's. Truly a gem in Pasadena. Where do I start, food or service? Let's start with the service. I was just a bit early for my lunch companion, and I thought I was in a day spa. I wasn't sure who the servers or the busboys were, but the attention was superb. Water? Ice tea? Glass of wine? I wasn't like I was the only one in the restaurant. The restaurant has a covered front patio, a main dining room, and two areas that can be used for private parties and overflow, plus a covered patio area in the back. For lunch, this place was busy -- I think my trend of fancy lunches instead of dinner is catching on. Right off the bat I will tell you that Celestino's looks (and you know I was looking around) to be a business type of lunch spot, not to say I didn't notice two local real estate agents having martinis, I imagine either celebrating or drowning their sorrows. The restaurant itself is pure Italian. There is a service bar big enough to have a drink at while you are waiting for your table, and throughout the restaurant the walls are covered in paintings all representing the Italian Coast, and of course, white linen tables cloth and flowers.

Chef and partner Calogero Drago has set up the menu for that Italian countryside feeling. Keep in mind this was lunch, but Chef Drago did sneak in a few dinner specials. After we started with some very warm and crusty sourdough bread with olive oil, we had Insalata Frutti Di Mare -- for you English-only readers that is a mixed seafood salad with plenty of mussels, clams, calamari rings and fish. Next was Calamari Fritti (which, if you have been following my column, you know I have to order every time). Celestino's serves them with both the rings and the tentacles - yummy! Now, on to our great entrees: whenever I see gnocchi on the menu I order it, and if the first twenty minutes of our visit were any indication on how the meal was going to be, I knew the gnocchi was going to be great. Layered with a lobster sauce and peppers this was the beginning of a beautiful relationship... and the start of a lot more. I had asked the Chef for half portions, and I was beginning to think he didn't believe me, as next up was the Pappardelle con Mezzenzane e Scamorza Affumicate. Translation: Fettuccini with eggplant and smoked mozzarella. For those of you who are calling Celestino's right now for a reservation, I don't blame you, but there is more. Our server, Mario, brought us out Mushroom Soufflé with Fontana cheese and black truffles from the dinner menu, and then the Rack of Lamb on fresh mint. Then, my head spun around as my server forced us to try the Cannoli for dessert

-- that was terrific. Don't let the menu translation scare you, Celestino's with the service and the food is arguably the best that I have had in some time.

Lunch and dinner prices reasonable; if you have a little extra dough to spend, there are over 200 wines by the bottle, many of them familiar names. For business or catching up with a friend I recommend lunch, for a night on the town or a romantic dinner I recommend dinner.

The New Kid My first impression of the new Sierra Briganti in Sierra

Madre was favorable. Catherine Adde the internet sensation and host of Travel Talk took me here for a perfect lunch. The food is Italian themed, so we shared a Caprese ($11) which was quite tasty! For my entrée, I had the Spaghetti Bolognese ($12.50) and Catherine enjoyed a lovely Angel Hair pasta dish with a tasty, slightly creamy tomato garlic sauce with sautéed julienned asparagus and medium shrimps. Fresh Parmesan and pepper completed this. Bread was just baked as well - service was very good. They aren't re inventing the wheel here but I give it two thumbs up, and I will return! ### 16U SIERRA MADRE COLT ALL STARS GO UNDEFEATED AND BECOME SO CAL SUPER REGION CHAMPIONS - Now It's Off To San Jose To Represent Southern California in the Western Region Finals

The past two weeks have been very good to the Sierra Madre Colt baseball team. Last week, Sierra Madre Colt won it's first regional championship ever. This week, the 16u Colt All Star team continued on it's hot streak, winning 4 straight games and dominating their opponents winning the Colt Super Regional tournament in Glendora.

In the Super Regional, Jordan Rodgers and Daniel Rosas pitched complete game shut outs, Brenden McKiernan/ Christian Mendez pitched a combined no hitter against Palmdale, and Angel Lerma allowed only 1 earned run in the 13-2 championship game, blow out of host Glendora.

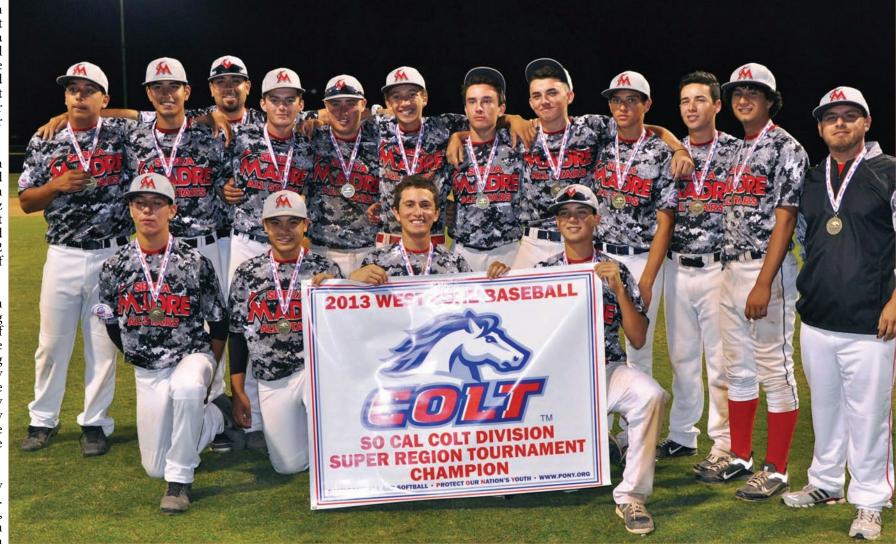

The Sierra Madre defense has been nothing short of stellar, turning several double plays, pulling off spectacular diving plays in the infield and outfield, and making some great throws. Since it's only tournament loss to Diamond Bar, the stingy Sierra Madre defense has only allowed 10 runs in 7 games. Anthony Khraich and Daniel Hernandez have both been excellent behind the plate for the Colt All Stars.

The bats have been equally impressive for Sierra Madre Colt. Daniel Casillas had 2 homers, while Jon Mendoza and Jordan Rodgers had a home run each in the Championship game. Frank Garriola, Daniel Casillas, John Mendoza, Jordan Rodgers, Ryan Garcia, and Brenden McKiernan, led the hit parade in the finale. Sumner Smith, Cole Pilar, Kyle Cuellar all contributed by getting on base. Frank Garriola and Danny Casillas have showed big power, hitting 5 and 3 home runs (respectively) in the two tournaments. The Sierra Madre sluggers have been so dominant, that two different opponents filed unsuccessful protests contending the team uses illegal bats! In fact, Sierra Madre possesses a beautiful compliment of speed and power, which causes havoc for opponents. They outscored their opponents 30-3 during the championship run.

Sierra Madre Colt is now 9-1 in tournament play and on it's way to San Jose. Manager Edgar Garcia, and coaches Alfred Rosas and George Moran have done an excellent job turning the boys into a cohesive team that plays together like seasoned pros.

Dear Sierra Madre Pony Colt Baseball Fan:

The Sierra Madre Colt (16 and under) Baseball team just made History! After coming from behind to win the Regionals, Sierra Madre swept the Super Regionals and will be the #1 seeded So. Cal team in the Western Regionals held in San Jose, CA. No Pony/Colt team from Sierra Madre has ever won the Regionals (this year, we had 2 teams win it!), let alone advanced to the Western Regional! It's an amazing accomplishment for the boys, and a point of pride for our beloved town.

There are a lot of expenses getting 16 boys up to San Jose, and housing them for nearly a week. Pony/Colt contributes a small amount, but nothing close to what we need to cover basic expenses. We are asking local businesses, charities and residents to show their support for the Sierra Madre Colt team with a donation of any amount.

The boys have been working hard and want to bring the COLT National Champion trophy to Sierra Madre.

Our home planet and its Moon appear as a mere dots—the Earth a pale blue and the Moon a stark white—in new color images taken from nearly 900 million miles away by the cameras on NASA's Cassini spacecraft. The images were taken on July 19, 2013, during an event that was observed and celebrated

The July 19 Earth-imaging event marked the first time Earthlings had advance notice that their portrait was being taken from interplanetary distances. It was the also the first time Cassini's highest resolution camera captured the Earth and its Moon as two distinct objects. NASA invited the public to acknowledge the occasion by either finding Saturn in their part of the sky and waving, or simply smiling and celebrating. At least 20,000 people around the world participated.

We may not be able to see individual continents or people in this portrait of Earth, but this pale blue dot is a succinct summary of who we were on July 19," said Linda Spilker, Cassini project scientist, based at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory. 'Cassini's picture reminds us how tiny our home planet is in the vastness of space, but also testifies to the ingenuity of the citizens of this tiny planet to be able to send a robotic spacecraft so far away from home to take a picture of Earth and study a distant world like Saturn.'

Pictures of Earth from the outer solar system are rare because, from that distance, Earth is very close to the bright Sun. Just as a human being can damage his or her retina by looking directly at the Sun, a camera's sensitive detectors can be damaged by looking directly at the Sun. Cassini was able to take these images because the Sun had moved behind the planet Saturn from the spacecraft's point of view, blocking out most of the light.

The Earth and the Moon can be seen in both narrow-angle and wide-angle images. In both cases, the illuminated portions are smaller than the smallest resolvable objects the cameras can see from the distance of Saturn.

At the time of this picture, the Earth and Moon shone through a gap between the thin G ring, just outside Saturn's main rings, and the brightest portion of the diffuse E ring created from the spray of geysers from the moon Enceladus.

'It thrills me to no end that people all over the world took a break from their normal activities to go outside and celebrate the interplanetary salute between robot and maker that these images represent," said Carolyn Porco, the Cassini imaging team lead, based at the Space Science Institute, Boulder, Colo. 'The whole event underscores for me our 'coming of age' as planetary explorers."

The wide-angle image is part of a larger mosaic—or multiimage portrait—that imaging scientists are putting together of the entire Saturn system. The lighting conditions allow for special views of faint, dusty rings that are usually difficult to see from other angles or from ground-based telescopes on Earth. It will likely take another several weeks for the full mosaic to be completed.

Cassini's image carries on a NASA legacy of images of our fragile home from space, including the 1968 "Earthrise" image taken by the Apollo 8 Moon mission from about 240,000 miles away and the 1990 "Pale Blue Dot" image taken by Voyager 1 from about 4 billion miles away.

In this rare image taken on July 19, 2013, the wide-angle camera on NASA's Cassini spacecraft has captured Saturn's rings and our planet Earth and its moon in the same frame. It is only one footprint in a mosaic of 33 footprints covering the entire Saturn ring system (including Saturn itself). At each footprint, images were taken in different spectral filters for a total of 323 images: some were taken for scientific purposes and some to produce a natural color mosaic. This is the only wide-angle footprint that has the Earth-moon system in it. Photo courtesy JPL/NASA

ANIMAL MOON MADNESS - TRUTH OR URBAN MYTH?

We've all heard the word "lunatic" often used to describe one who acts in an eccentric, reckless or insane manner. The term itself was first recorded as part of the vernacular in the reckless or insane manner. The term itself was first recorded as part of the vernacular in the 13th century AD, defined: "affected with periodic insanity, dependant on the changes of the moon." Do the phases of the moon really have an affect on human and animal behavior, or is this nothing more than just a myth made up to explain otherwise unexplainable occasional abnormal behavior?

Many people do believe that animals (and humans) are indeed affected by the position of the moon, but other more skeptical thinkers would beg to differ. Me? Well, I tend to go by apparent changes I have experienced within myself and those I have observed in my pets, and based on my own experiences and observations, I believe we are affected by the various lunar positions that occur throughout the

If you ask Astrologer Dana Haynes about her opinion on the subject, she'll tell you that lunar phases most definitely affect the way we and our pets feel and behave, without a doubt. Haynes has studied animal behavior as it is impacted by the moon's positions for many years, and she came up with a very specific list of the ways each lunar phase affects animals both domestic and wild, as well as how they affect humans. Here is what she has to say about this rather controversial issue: (Source - Article by Dana Haynes, How Does the Moon Affect Your Pet: Lunar Phases & Animals, www.petplace.com). I find it very interesting, and I hope you do to.

• FULL MOON - The Full Moon influences the psyche of animals with noticeable intensity. It has been said to increase chaos and even cause the Earth to shake. Veterinary staff and Animal Control keep very busy during this phase. When an animal is upset during the full moon, they tend to be restless. Dogs and wolves are known to howl during the Full Moon phase, while birds become agitated and disoriented. Cats hide. The Full Moon tends to rattle both humans' and our pets' emotions.

• NEW MOON - For a sensitive animal, the New Moon, not unlike the Full Moon, supports intention and therefore it is a time to change old habits which block awareness. It is a time to tune into nature's vibrations-which many cats, dogs, other domestic animals change old habits which block awareness. It is a time to tune into natures vibrations-which many cats, dogs, other domestic animals and wild animals may do. Animals seem to naturally tune into the New Moon phase, understanding it is a time to chill even though this can be a challenge. The animal's senses are heightened and sensitivity will be seen in each New Moon phase.

• SUPER MOON - Unlike a Full Moon or New Moon, this phase is when an alignment of the Sun, Moon and the Earth called perigee-syzygy occurs when the Moon is at its closest to Earth (perigree). Animals tend to be ultra sensitive during this time of a very big full moon. Like humans, the power of the electromagnetic fields during a Full Moon phase interacts with our own magnetic field increasing the ability to sense of feel the stress around us. Animals tend to notice the interaction quicker, as it is part of their survival instrinct to stay away from danger or engaged with a corregiver.

instincts to stay away from danger or snuggle with a caregiver.

• WANING MOON - Waning Moon is a time when sensitive animals will tune into their sixth sense and know it is time to hunt, gather food, and build their homes in order to protect their family and be prepared for the future. The Waning Moon, unlike Full, New and Super Moons acts like a brake. For an animal, domestic or wild, it is a time to put natural instincts and the nesting mode into action for self preservation.

BLUE MOON - The Blue Moon occurs when there are two Full Moons in one month. In other words, the lunar phase is much like the Full Moon and repeats its patterns. The and repeats its patterns. The difference between the two Full Moons comes from the astrological sign the moon is passing through, therefore the intensity of one Full Moon would affect an animal's psyche in one area of life and the second in one area of life and the second one in another area of life. It is like our companion animals and wild animals get a double dose of the Full Moon and its intense vibrations on Earth. But note, emotions are no more on edge than at any other Full Moon.

HOW TO HELP SENIORS EXTEND THEIR DRIVING YEARS

Dear Savvy Senior:

What tips or resources can you recommend to help seniors with their driving skills? My 84-year-old mother is still a capable driver, but she has declined a little in recent years and could definitely use some help. Concerned Daughter

Dear Concerned:

With more and more Americans driving well into their 70s, 80s and beyond, there are lots of tips, tools and programs available today to help elderly seniors drive safer and longer. Here are several Schedule an eye exam: Because about 90 percent of the information necessary to drive is received through our eyes, this is a good first step in ensuring your mom's driving safety. So get your mom's eyes checked every year to be sure her vision is up to par.

Check her meds: Does your mom take any medicine or combination of medicines that could impair her driving? A new resource that can help with this is Roadwise Rx, an online assessment tool at roadwiserx.com that provides personalized feedback on how the medications your mom is taking can impact her safety behind the wheel.

Evaluate her driving: A do-it-yourself driving assessment is a simple way to help your mom get a handle on her driving abilities and vulnerabilities. The AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety has some great resources on their website to help with this. Just go to seniordriving aaa.com, click on "Evaluate Your Driving Ability" then on "Self-Rating Tool" and have her take the Drivers 65-Plus self-rating exercise. Then, click on "Interactive Driving Evaluation" and download the AAA Roadwise Review. This is a free confidential online screening tool that will test her vision and reaction time, which are very important for safe driving.

Take a refresher course: AARP and AAA both have older driver refresher courses that can help your mom brush up her driving skills, and learn how to manage and accommodate common age-related changes in vision, hearing and reaction time. Taking a class may also earn her a discount on her auto insurance. To locate a class contact your local AAA (aaa.com) or AARP (aarp.org/drive, 888-227-7669). Most courses cost under $20 and can be taken in the classroom or online.

Another good resource to look into is CarFit. This is a free assessment program that will help your mom adjust her vehicle for a better fit, making it easier and safer to drive. CarFit events are held around the country in select locations. See car-fit.org to look for one near you.

Get a professional assessment: If your mom needs some extra help, consider getting a professional assessment done by a driver rehabilitation specialist. They will evaluate her driving ability and test for things like reaction time, decision-making skills, as well as how well she and her car fit together, pinpointing trouble areas and offering solutions. This type of assessment can cost several hundred dollars. To locate a professional, contact the Association of Driver Rehabilitation Specialists (drivered.org, 866-672-9466) or the American Occupational Therapy Association (www.aota.org).

Make some adjustments: Recognizing vulnerabilities and adapting her driving habits to compensate for them can go a long way in helping keep your mom safe and driving longer. Some simple adjustments include not driving after dark or during rush hour traffic, avoiding major highways or other busy roads, and not driving in poor weather conditions.

It's also good to know if there are any older driver's license renewal provisions in your mom's state, which you can get by calling her nearby driver's license office or at iihs.org/laws/olderdrivers.aspx.

When to quit: If it gets to the point that your mom's driving isn't safe anymore and she needs to quit, The Hartford Financial Services Group and MIT AgeLab provides online resources and free publications like "We Need to Talk: Family Conversations with Older Drivers" that you can access at safedrivingforalifetime.com.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior.org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

KATIE Tse .....This and That

Woo Hoo!! I'm so thankful to God that I can RUN again! In February I wrote an article chronicling (what I perceived to be) the decline of my health and overall well being. My 30th birthday was marked by the injuring of my ankle, an eye infection, and a seasonal illness. I was a real sight at work, limping around with a black brace engulfing my ankle and a bloody eye caused by a burst blood

Not being endowed with great coordination or athletic skill, running and walking were my only forms of exercise. Maintaining balance on a bike, throwing, hitting, or kicking balls were beyond me. Forget organized sports! Putting one foot in front of the other in the same direction --that's something I could do.

For months I moped about and felt sorry for myself (I'm ashamed to say). However, despite the injury I had many things to thank God for! I was ambulatory, my ankle never swelled up or turned black. And I had a job, health insurance, a wonderful doctor, and a wonderful pastor who is also a doctor! At their suggestion, I started physical therapy at Catz in Pasadena and have been ecstatic with the results!

I must admit feeling a little self-conscious walking into Catz on the first day. There were a lot of fashionable high school-aged girls and boys running, swinging dumbbells around, and generally exuding perfect health. Thirty years felt like 100 at that moment. My therapist introduced himself and began instructing me in some beginning exercises. Until that time I had no idea how weakened I'd become! Attempting simple balance exercises made my knees wobble like a land lubber on the high seas! Thank God that most of the Catz exercises can be duplicated at home with little to no special

After a few weeks of physical therapy my therapist allowed me to attempt a little running. It was baby steps at first. For now I still take down hill portions of my run in mincing steps. I probably look silly but I don't care, as long as I don't reinjure myself!

While I'm not 100% back to my old self, I am very thankful to be able to complete my old route in one piece. Of course I wish my injury never happened, but I am thankful to God for bringing me through it. I've always thanked God for the ability and opportunity to run, and now I am doubly thankful!

SENIOR HAPPENINGS

By Pat Birdsall

IMPROPER USE OF MEDICATIONS FYI -

Taking a prescription medication as directed by a doctor is generally safe and effective. But lately, there has been a rise in the number of older adults who are using their medicines improperly and suffering the consequences. Recent reports show increased hospitalizations and visits to the emergency rooms by older people due to improper use of prescription and over-the-counter medications, as well as illicit drugs. Painkillers, Depressants, and Stimulants: These types of prescription medications are most commonly abused by people of any age. Hospital admissions for older adults however, were mostly linked to overdoses from pain medications and withdrawal symptoms from other addictive drugs such as sleeping pills.

Unintentional Abuse: Some people accidentally take medications incorrectly, often without knowing it or without intending to. They may forget to take their medication, take it too often or take the wrong amount. As people get older, trouble with vision or memory can make it hard to use medications correctly. Taking lots of medications at different times of the day can be confusing. Another common problem is having more than one doctor who prescribes medicines, but no single doctor who monitors them and checks for any interactions. Intentional Abuse: When a person knowingly uses prescription medicines the wrong way, takes medications not prescribed for them, or combines them with alcohol or illicit drugs it is defined as intended abuse. People may do this to feel good, feel better, or to calm down. Sometimes a big change, such as retirement, the death of a loved one, or failing health, can lead to loneliness, boredom, anxiety or depression. That can prompt a person to begin, continue, or increase the abuse of medicines or other or other drugs. Risk for Older Adults: Older adults suffer serious consequences from even moderate drug abuse because of several risk factors. As the body ages, it cannot absorb and break down medications and drugs as easily as it used to. As a result, even when an older adult takes a medication properly, it may remain in the body longer than it would in a younger person. Aging brains are also different than young ones and may be at greater risk for harmful drug effects (on memory and coordination, for example). Having other medical conditions (such as heart disease) and taking medications to treat them while abusing prescriptions drugs at the same time also presents unique risks for older people. Be aware...take stock of your situation. Nihseniorhealth.gov

HELPFUL HINT: When reheating leftover rice in the microwave, put an ice cube on top of the rice and it will melt as the rice reheats, giving it much-needed moisture.

FOR YOUR FUNNY BONE - A man stepped onto the overnight train and told the conductor, "I need you to wake me up in Philadelphia. I'm a deep sleeper and can be ornery when I get up, but no matter what, I want you to help me make that stop. Here's $100.00 to make sure." The conductor agreed. The man fell asleep, and when he awoke he heard the announcement that the train was approaching New York. Furious, he collared the conductor. "I gave you $100.00 to make sure I got off in Philadelphia, you worthless fool!" "Wow," another passenger said to his traveling companion. "Is that guy ever mad!" "Yeah," his companion replied. "But not half as mad as that guy they forced off the train in Philadelphia."

Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed

by Luther Tsinoglou

A "203" FOR TLC

You find a neat "fixer-upper," then learn that banks won't lend until the repairs are done, but the repairs can't be completed until the house is purchased! This Catch-22 scenario can be solved by HUD's FHA-backed 203(k) "rehab loan," growing in popularity because so many foreclosure purchases are in dire need of repairs.

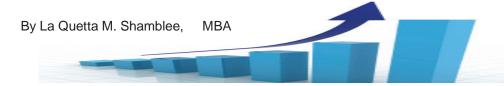

This loan covers the cost of the home, plus money for repairs up to a maximum of $35,000! To get the ball rolling, you'll need funds for the 3.5% required downpayment, and then to find a suitable property. Your real estate representative will prepare your offer, stating that you'll be seeking 203(k)

Next you'll apply to an FHA-approved lender, including a sheet listing each repair and its cost. Finally, an appraisal is performed to determine the value of the home once the proposed repairs are complete. Upon approval, you'll have financed the home purchase plus all your proposed repairs (there's even a 10%-20% "contingency reserve" included to cover any unforeseen improvements). At closing, the seller receives the purchase price, and the remaining funds go into escrow, to be disbursed to the contractor as work is completed (within six months).

Real estate agents support this loan program because it expands homeownership and revitalizes neighborhoods, but all you need to know is that it will get you into a very affordable home right now.

ACCOUNTABILITY BEGINS & ENDS AT THE TOP

The phrase "being thrown under the bus" is associated with blame being assigned to someone leadership. who bears little to no responsibility for that which they are being accused. In other words, someone is being held responsible for another person's shortcomings or wrong doings. This situation is not uncommon in the work environment, and typically rears its head when someone has failed to make adequate progress or achieve a goal that was expected of them.

In an effort to cover one's butt, a co-worker or supervisor may exhibit signs of selective amnesia when faced with the reality that they have fallen short in performing their job responsibilities. It's bad enough when this dynamic is imposed staff-to-staff employed in the same classification, but it's truly deplorable when it is imposed by a manager, onto the staff they supervise.

Managers who engage in this type of disgraceful practice are usually the first ones to take the spotlight for accomplishments that belong to others. They are eager to take credit when things are favorable, but quick to step back while pointing the finger of blame when things don't go so well. Basically, they only want to lead when they can anticipate accolades so that they can take credit for the success. This type of behavior is a disservice to the essence of management and

One of the hallmarks of great leadership is the willingness and ability to accept responsibility for everything and everyone within one's scope of authority, the good and the bad. Individuals with solid management and leadership skills embrace the reality that every comment, action and the demeanor of their delivery will have a direct impact on how well their staff will function as a team. These managers are also willing to take the hit, accept the blame when necessary and to be accountable. This approach builds trust and facilitates loyalty among the team.

Way too many work environments are filled with employees who feel a need to spend more time engaging in activities to cover their butts for fear of being held responsible for someone else's shortcomings. Bosses with big egos and huge doses of insecurity simply can't comprehend that that everyone on the team would do a much better job, which would make them look even better in the process, if they'd learn how to handle the management aspects of their jobs and terminate

TWO THINGS YOU CAN LEARN FROM TWO MOMS AT A SWIMMING POOL

While waiting for my daughter to finish her swim class, two of my mommy buddies were have an amusing exchange. One mom was helping the other use her smart phone to register her kids for a local summer bowling program. Here are three things I learned from these funny ladies: One

If you are asking people to sign up for something on a smart phone, just ask them for the basics and keep it simple

Why are they asking for all these things, they want my birthday, and my kids birthday, that's way too much information," says the mom registering. "This is the way you do it now, stop being so paranoid," jokes the mom walking her through the process. While listening to this, I was wondering if some of the information could be optional or not required at all. Some people are only willing to give an email and a name and sometimes they don't

There are some people who look forward to email offers from their favorite businesses

The mom doing the coaching was excited to sign up and provide the details because she knew it meant she would receive special offers and updates on events. "Don't you want to receive good deals?" she asked the other mom. She was very convincing and her coaching, inspiring. The lesson here is that the people who like your business want to hear from you and expect to hear from you when they give you their email. Having an email marketing program for loyal fans gives them something to look forward to.

THE SILENCE

People tell me all the time that they are not able to meditate. They have too much on their minds. What happens when you sit in silence? What do you hear? Do you hear the roaring of your thoughts? Is your mind jumping around like a monkey? Are you too fidgety? Some styles of meditation are to just sit there and watch as those thoughts jump around. Some styles are guided, so that you follow along and then have brief pauses. Some styles say "just clear your mind". What is the right style for you? We are all very different. There are many, many styles. But here is what works for me, most of the time: I start by practicing yoga. You knew I was going to say that right? Well, yoga was designed as a back strengthener. Yoga was designed to help us learn to breathe better, to increase our capacity so we can sit in meditation and do pranayama (breath work). But honestly, I need to get the ya-yas out. I can't just sit down and expect my mind to be quiet. I can't just sit down and be still. I need to move and get the body calmed down first. The yogis knew this. In fact in Classical and Tantric yoga science it is the nervous system that we need to calm down before we can meditate. Unless we are in a constant state of the sympathetic nervous system then we are in fight or flight mode. That means we are waiting for the next thing to happen. How can we expect to meditate if we have just been driving our cars? Our brains are

So, we know that meditation is the number one thing to reduce anxiety, the number one stress reducer. But we can't just go from stress to meditate in 2 seconds.

Let's do the yoga first. It really helps!!!

Trust me, meditation is the balm/bomb, the best thing you can possibly do for yourself. And it's been around for thousands of years for just that very reason.

See you in class. Namasté, René

THE MYTH OF LIVING ALONE

by Douglas Edwards

America is beginning to wake up and take notice of an important change taking place across this broad land of ours; people are retiring in huge numbers and living much longer than ever before. We are turning 65 at the rate of 8,000 a day; a rate that is expected to continue through 2020. This is known by many names: "Age Wave, Silver Tsunami, or The Aging of America". America, and many other countries, are experiencing the Baby Boomers retirement, and American business is changing to respond to this group's interests and needs.

As Americans retire and live longer in this chapter than in any other chapter of life, where they live becomes increasingly important to quality and quantity of life. "Aging in place", is now part of American vernacular which summarizes the hopes and dreams of most retirees. Living in the privacy of one's home until death is driving the American business community. One of the big changes that has occurred is the privatization of services that traditionally were provided in a community setting. Now one can buy all the services needed to remain in your home. Everything under the sun can be delivered to your home.

The benefits to living in privacy are obvious: independence; the comfort of creating your own space and living with the familiar; living on your own terms; the security of knowing and being known by your neighbors and the ease of maintaining the routines of daily living.

The challenges of independent living become more apparent as one ages, something Americans are particularly averse to admitting. As we age it is more difficult to maintain the lifestyle that we created. When we lose a spouse or our children finally move out, we are alone; and our network of contacts with those around us changes. The neighbors we once knew have moved and the new owners keep to themselves and speak languages other than our own. Our homes which once gave us security and freedom are not always constructed to be friendly to the challenges of aging. The stairs become an exercise element at best, a risk at worse. Our home requires upkeep that becomes less interesting and more expensive as the plumber we knew has retired and the gardening which once gave us joy is now back breaking and a distraction away from activities in which we now have interest. Privacy begins to be a source of isolation, often leading people who live alone to experience two leading causes of death; declining health and Living alone is not all it is cracked up to be. For many it leads to poor health, a lower quality of life and in increasingly more people, early death. What else is there?

A client arrive frazzled and confused. She had embarked an entrepreneurial adventure and received rave reviews. Many new ideas had surfaced in her client meeting, and she was excited. Things were moving forward, and fast!

After a few days, she felt overwhelmed and stuck. She couldn't even focus enough to file. There was a tempest brewing, and it wasn't outside. The fury was within. Wind Still don't howling. Thoughts flying about. Nothing was grounded or certain. Fear. Yup, she was in "the storm." This is when she came to see me.

We discussed what was going on. How the initial excitement had turned into pressure. Pressure to please the retail buyers. Pressure to create all these new things. Pressure to know things she didn't know yet. Distracted by the whirlwind, she had stopped doing photography -- the part of her business she loved most.

We are funny creatures. We lift up pressure and put it on ourselves. Once we see what we are doing, we can remove it. That's just what we did. She was invited to shift her thoughts to align with her TRU self; when she did, she immediately felt better. More peaceful. She planned to schedule regular photography sessions each week. From this place of passion and love, she would hear when her spirit suggested a new product. She would know when to expand, even how to expand, as she stayed connected.

Book Reviews by Jasmine Kelsey Williams

BOSSYPANTS By Tina Fey

As we approach the end of July, our next selection features an author that is both familiar, funny, and provides her own unique spin on life and happiness. 'Bossypants" by Tina Fey is a humorous memoir of how this actress and comedienne recounts the beginnings of her childhood to her quirky and rather charismatic adult life. Fey provides her own zest as she narrates her own tale: the tales of her childhood, her time spent with Saturday Night Live, her halfhearted pursuit of trying to attain physical beauty, her brief college romance, and even her life with motherhood. What appeals to many readers with "Bossypants" is not just Tina Fey herself, but also the tone with her book; Fey's tone is casual, but with added seriousness and detail that does not overwhelm the book itself or readers.

As early as the first chapter, Tina Fey's tone is casual, witty, and of course humorous, since she recalls her own life with each detail and facet with clarity, wisdom, and her internal thoughts on what she was going through. To add to this, Tina Fey has added in photos, personal opinions, dialogue of conversations, and footnotes to further provide readers the opportunity to better understand Tina Fey's perspective. When reading these little snippets, readers can sometimes find a common link not just in one author's work, but in other books published by the same author, or even with other famous authors who have published their own stories (one example that I've reviewed is Ellen DeGeneres), and that readers may find connections on any subjects that those authors address (e.g. happiness, family, careers, etc.). Tina Fey provides wittiness, insight, and lovely charm to "Bossypants" that is sure to give readers a good laugh, and even a reason to see their own lives in a different light; one that is sure to give inspiration and sound advice.

Copyrighted in 2011, and receiving praise from various critics and readers, "Bossypants" is a wonderful read for anytime of the year, and is one that goes to show that you can enjoy the various learning experiences that come from any walk of life.

THE AGE LONG QUERY: WHO AM I?

several cares but I was ignoring them as much as possible. My basic philosophy is this, the more you ignore something the less you have to deal with it. This, however, does not apply to the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. Experience has taught me one lesson concerning women, especially wives. They will not stand to be ignored, particularly by their husbands. I have learned the less attention I pay to my wife the more I pay in other areas of life, if you know what I mean.

So, ignoring the cares I had last week, I was caught off guard when I received a letter from my credit card company. This was no friendly, "how are you," kind of a letter. Nor was it a cheery birthday greeting. I cannot tell you how many times I have reminded them of my birthday but to date they have not picked up on my hint.

The ominous letter I did receive informed me that along with millions of other customers my identity had been stolen. The letter went on to assure me I had nothing to worry about and they had the situation well in hand.

That is easy for them to say. They know who they are but what about me? When I got the letter I ran to my bathroom and looking into my mirror -- nothing! My identity was

While I am in the begging mood, another question comes to mind. If someone has stolen my identity, who in the world am I? And, how do I reclaim my identity?

As a young person whenever my mother was upset with me about something I had done or did not do, she would always look at me and ask, "Who do you think you

If anybody in the world should know who I am it would be my mother. And if she he was wrestling with the same question I was wrestling with, how in the world could I ever come to grips with my personal identity?

It is hard enough discovering who you are without somebody casting dispersions upon that very thing. Perhaps my mother and I could work together in solving this problem. After all, two heads are better than one, unless one does not know who he is.

I have spent years trying to find myself. Once I thought I found myself but it turned out to be an old pair of socks I lost three years prior.

My problem is compounded by this one thing, I did not really know who I was before my identity was stolen. I had my suspicions, of course. However, somewhere in the back of my mind, I really could not come to grips with who I really was in this world.

First, I am a man. What kind

Last identity I don't like myself? Can I of a man, is anyone's guess this point. The truth is that at the root of everything I am, I am a man. Second, I am a husband. This, of course, is the most baffling of my identity. What it means to be a husband differs from wife to wife. Fortunately, for me, I have only one wife, but even her idea of a husband changes from one moment to the next. I am never sure what she expects of me as a husband. Once I thought I had it all figured out but someone, I am not mentioning any names, changed the rules.

Third, I am a father. As a father, my role consists of bankrolling the childhood adventures of my children; financing their higher education career, hoping they get married before my money runs out. To this day, I am not sure if I made

Fourth, I am a grandfather. This is the most well defined role I have. The great thing about being a grandfather is, nobody expects much from us. Our role is covertly to help our grandchildren make the lives of their parents as tempestuous as possible. Revenge is sweet when laced with jellybeans. Sugar highs are a grandfather's best retaliation.

The most important thing about my identity quest is, I am a Christian. This undergirds everything else I may or may not be. My Christianity is the foundation upon which everything else is built.

I take comfort in the Bible; "These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God." (1 John 5:13 KJV).

HEBRONIX

Hebronix is the latest project from Daniel Blumberg. He recently departed from his critically acclaimed band Yuck (who are continuing without him) to pursue his solo endeavor. "Unreal" marks Blumberg's fourth debut record under different names/bands. He was the singer/songwriter for Yuck, had a solo side project in 2011 under the moniker, Oupa and his first band was Cajun Dance Party several years before that. However, with Hebronix, Blumberg has the freedom to do whatever he wants and he surely does just that. With only six songs on the album, it spans over 45 minutes, while most songs averaging over seven minutes in length. For most of the duration something truly reflective and deeply heartfelt is present. With a sudden burst of guitars and keyboards come together for some of the songs, there's simply something utterly intoxicating and refreshing about Blumberg's style. The longer song structure and more complex arrangements is a big difference than Yuck's Artist: debut album. With Hebronix, Blumberg is distancing Album: himself from the 90s alternative sound and delving into something more unique, more his own.

Label:

Hebronix Unreal ATP Recordings Release Date: July 9th, 2013

No doubt about it, Blumberg has grown as both a songwriter and composer. He's experimental with much a deeper soundscape that touches upon sounds that are very moving and melodic. Many of the songs here have a rise-and-fall type of sound. There's a lot dynamic throughout the album that sadly only reaches six tracks. "Viral" one of the singles starts off very slow before it explodes in this swirling yet utterly soothing piece of music. The songs here put you in a dream state, which I'd recommend listening to this lying on your bed. It gets you thinking as it opens up your mind and soul. Often beautiful, if not repetitive, Hebronix almost connects with each and every song. The one I just didn't care for was the title track, "Unreal." It kind of reminded me of Yuck or at least one of their weaker tracks that is. Something about "Unreal" didn't resonate with me. It merely had me zoning out rather than be entirely engaged by it. As for the rest of the songs, they're all incredible. With the combination of guitars, pianos, snyths, flutes and string instruments, makes for some dreamy, warm, and sleepy music.

The closing track, "The Plan," wanders on for a little too long. It feels like a song written to say goodbye to Yuck. The line, ""I can't just sit around and hold your little hand... I've got some things to do." Indeed Blumberg definitely has things to do and his ideas simply don't mesh with the direction Yuck was apparently heading. I must admit, I was disappointed to see him depart, but once I heard this album, I'm more than okay with it now. "Unreal" minus the title track is a tender, dream-induced record that will get inside your head. The multifaceted arrangements along with the sheer beauty encompassing these songs are more than I ever imagined. This may be Blumberg's best debut record from any band he's been involved with, but I hope he's just getting started with Hebronix. I definitely like the direction he's heading and perhaps his fourth debut album, he's finally found his own way. One could only hope, this marks the last debut for Blumberg.

Key Tracks: "Unliving," "Viral," "Garden" Grade: 8.5 out of 10

HOWARD Hays As I See It

"Those who imagine that a politician would make a better figurehead than a hereditary monarch might perhaps make the acquaintance of more politicians." - Margaret Thatcher

It was hard to miss the royal news last week. Yes, after twenty years on the throne, Belgian King Albert II abdicated, citing ill health, with his son Philippe taking over. An Oxford-trained fighter pilot, the new king got his MA in Political Science at Stanford.

Okay, there's that other royal news. Queen Beatrix of the Netherlands turned the throne over to her son Willem-Alexander, a Dutch Navy vet who's into water management issues. He's also into doing "normal" stuff without the attendant publicity, as he recently ran the NYC Marathon under a pseudonym.

Over here, the President and Attorney General of the United States, and tens of thousands of citizens, have publicly cited their own personal experiences as evidence that racism is alive, festering and stoked in our country; while Fox News assures us they're wrong. Republicans in Congress proclaim their determination to bring our government to a halt in order to rescind the Affordable Care Act and voucher-ize Medicare. The headline this past week, though, is the royal baby in London. To that, I can't add much beyond the comment on CNN that the Duchess Catherine had "really ticked the right boxes", and the network's "Royal Contributor" Victoria Arbiter's characterization of the Duchess' having given birth to a box as "brilliant"

We have a bemused fascination with royalty as quaint anachronism – entertaining yet distinctly at odds with our national DNA. At his first inauguration, President Washington was addressed as "His High Mightiness, the President of the United States and Protector of their Liberties". He agreed with James Madison and Congress, though, that it smacked of monarchy – and had it shortened to "Mr. President". Washington declined to run for a third term not because of doubts of being re-elected, but for fear of establishing something akin to royal perpetual rule.

We've prided ourselves as a nation devoid of the class systems characteristic of monarchies; with ambition, ability and hard work counting for more than the station into which one is born. Recent studies, however, show we lag behind other countries in opportunities for upward mobility – including those maintaining traditions of royalty.

A 2006 Swedish study showed that in Great Britain, 30% of men born into the bottom fifth of household incomes will stay there. In Denmark, it's only 25%. In the U.S., it's 42%. As for getting rich, 12% of British men born into the bottom fifth managed to rise to the top fifth in income. In Denmark, it's 14%. In the U.S., it's only 8%. Research from the Pew Trusts shows that for men and women in the U.S. born into either the bottom fifth or top fifth in household income, nearly two-thirds will stay where they started out.

ences in upward mobility not among countries, but among different regions in our own. If you're born into affluence, chances are you'll stay there no matter where you live. The difference is with those coming from poverty or the middle-class – for whom chances of bettering themselves depend on where they come from.

A joint Harvard / UC Berkeley study released earlier this month shows pronounced differ-

Chances of being able to provide your kids a higher standard of living than what you'd had growing up are slimmest in the Southeast and industrial Midwest. They're highest in the Northeast, Great Plains and the West. It's not just a matter of coming from a rich or poor city. Seattle and Atlanta have similar average incomes, yet a poor kid from Seattle has as much chance of growing up to do well financially as does a middle-class kid from Atlanta.

The researchers identified four factors which make a difference: one is the prevalence of mixed-income neighborhoods, where low-income households aren't isolated in separate enclaves of their own. Segregated communities are one reason Atlanta lags behind the national norm. Another factor is two-parent households. There's the importance of quality elementary and high schools. Fourth is the degree of community involvement in civic affairs.

Common characteristics of nations offering the greatest opportunity for upward mobility are mirrored by those in regions of our own country where there's the greatest likelihood of getting ahead. There's the recognition of a quality education being a public investment in the future, rather than something reserved for the affluent. There's universal access to healthcare, including family planning. Unions are strong and workers' rights are protected. The emphasis is on keeping kids out of the justice system, rather than increasing rates of incarceration. As to that most basic "involvement in civic affairs", voting is encouraged, rather than suppressed

The recent study, though, shows that as a nation we still have a long way to go. A third of those born into the wealthiest 1% were pulling in $100,000 incomes by the age of thirty. For those from the bottom half, it's 1 in 25.

Thoughts of monarchies of old conjure up images of privileged elites bestowing favors among themselves, at the expense of their subjects. Five years ago, Congress readily approved $700 billion to bail out the financial behemoths that tanked our economy. Today, $18.5 billion to rescue Detroit is unthinkable. Retirement funds and healthcare for thousands of Detroit workers and their families must be sacrificed to satisfy Wall Street bondholders.

Our own royal elite, those Fortune 500 CEOs, according to Bloomberg are now making 204 times the pay of the average worker; up from 120-to-1 in 2000, 42-to-1 in 1980 and 20-to-1 in 1950. The CIA Factbook shows income inequality in the U.S. to be on a par with that in Uganda and the Ivory Coast; worse than in Pakistan and Ethiopia.

European nations have retained the remnants of royalty while evolving into egalitarian, progressive societies. We've gone in the other direction; founded on the rejection of royalty, but we seem to have forgotten why.

STUART Tolchin.....On LIFE

CAN WE MAKE SOMETHING GO AWAY BY NOT TALKING ABOUT IT?

Well, I'm back from a week vacation staying with my wife's friends in Cape Cod. It was quite a trip and it allowed me to see a whole segment of undiversified White People escaping record heats by immersing themselves in the lakes, ponds and bay of Cape Cod. I tried to do the same but somehow became repeatedly bitten by some green-headed mosquitoes that sucked blood.

Already in this first paragraph I have mentioned things that could easily be omitted. First let's talk about the undiversified White People. Why do I have to make a big deal about this? Probably Sierra Madre has about the same percentage of White People as Cape Cod so why bother talking about it? One reason, I guess, is the beauty and the large expanse of Cape Cod. It was so hot and yet all these White People looked so happy and prosperous that it just didn't seem fair. There they were, three and four generations of them, frolicking in the water and speaking with their weird accents and acting as if they owned the world; maybe they still do?

If my wife reads this (she just walked behind me) she would say—Mr. Provocative -you always have to poke, poke, poke. (In fact she just said it.) Why can't I just leave well enough alone and enjoy what I can enjoy and shut up about what I don't enjoy? I had the experience of talking to someone while in the water, probably out of earshot of my wife, and still hearing what I imagined to be her thoughts in my head. Why can't you keep your opinions to yourself, which leads to the question if whether or not I should keep my opinions to myself?

Let me give you an example. My wife's friend's daughter has an internship at one of the local Courthouses and my wife, her friend, and I wandered over to the historic main Courtroom to watch the proceedings. Contrary to my experience in Los Angeles County, almost every person in the Courtroom seemed to be Caucasian. The male lawyers were exquisitely dressed with well-manicured beards while the female lawyers were generally younger and less carefully dressed. (Later it was explained to me by our friend's daughter that the males were generally quasi-retired, living on Cape Cod and picking up Court Appointments whenever they could, while the females were generally recent graduates starting out with a completely different mentality. (Note: observation plus information can lead to possible understanding.) Anyway, one of the Defendants was a well-dressed, light-skinned, Dominican man. The Judge addressed him by commenting on his appearance and ethnicity and then said, "I'm sure you want to make a good appearance before the Court, Mr.----, but I don't think standing there chewing your cud is the best way to do it." The Defendant didn't understand the term "cud" and the Judge clarified by saying' "chewing your cud LIKE A COW in front of this Court. You're not

Leaving the Courtroom my wife and her friend remarked upon how stupid the Defendant was chewing gum when he went before the Court. "How could anyone be so inappropriate?" For some reason their remarks really got under my skin. I maintained that the Judge, a red-faced old Irishman, simply took that opportunity to humiliate a defenseless Defendant just for the fun of it. I have seen Judges do this kind of thing for years. Maybe it's a way of keeping control, or setting some sort of example, or maybe the Judges are just trying to keep themselves awake. The thing that I hate, I guess, is that most people automatically side with the person in authority - you know the old "might makes right". I think it's important for people to think about who they see as the good guy and who they see as the bad guy. In fact, one of my very favorite things is to discuss and try to analyze interactions like this. I don't do it, at least I don't think I do it, just to argue and cause trouble. I do it because I think it is connected to something big and important - something like right and wrong or good and evil. I believe there is a great decline in the amount of respect that people give to one another. Increasingly we have become disinterested in discussing our positions. Instead we generally find ourselves in one camp or another and generally keep our opinions to ourselves and maintain our private fantasies about what the world is like. I completely applaud President Obama's recent speech wherein he confided to the world that, even in 2013, it ain't easy to be a Black Man and, contrary to what people would like to believe, racism still exists. If America is going maintain its position in the world we have to objectively face our problems regarding racism, income distribution, education, and the overall misuse of resources. Another thing that must change is the habitual holding on of opinions and attitudes that are no longer "appropriate" in today's world. We all need to evolve.

LIGHT AT THE END OF THE DETROIT TUNNEL

Detroit's bankruptcy filing is perhaps the most important fiscal event in the last several years. It isn't just a local or Michigan issue, and it isn't just another city – like San Bernardino, Stockton. Detroit is the largest city to ever declare bankruptcy. How it emerges from that bankruptcy will greatly affect Americans from east to west and north to

Now, at the same time so much national attention is being focused on Detroit, there is still a lot of confusion about exactly what happened in this once Emerald City. Detroit, after all, represented the automotive age, America's industrial might and burgeoning middle class economic growth. Detroit was Motor City and the home of much of the industrial strength that allowed us to win WWII. How could such a city fall so far from its perch?

Very bad political management is the easy answer, but the more detailed and important answer is a case study in the vicious cycle that grips many American cities today. Detroit is only a few months ahead of Chicago, Philadelphia, Oakland and our own Los Angeles. It's important that we understand what happened.

Detroit, like many other cities, maintained a pension plan for public workers. The political leaders engaged in a long pattern of granting increases in pension benefits to public workers in return for substantial political contributions from the unions representing those same public workers. It was, and is, a classic case of conflict of interest, but unlike contributions from corporate sources, the mainstream press didn't raise any eyebrows, let alone any alarms about the arrangement. Compounding the problem is the fact that granting an increase in pension benefits didn't immediately hit the city's budget. You see, a pension benefit is a promise to pay a future benefit. Sometimes that promise doesn't have to be honored for 20 years or more.

Consider the case of a young 30-something public worker. If his pension benefit is increased by 10%, his salary does not go up today by 10%. The city's budget is not impacted today. But when that worker retires in 30 years or so, the amount of money the city has to pay him has been increased by 10% for every year of his retirement. The average American lives 20 years after his or her retirement date, so a 10% increase represents a substantial amount of money. But – and politicians figured this out prefty quickly - taxes don't need to be raised to meet that new, larger obligation when the increase is granted. No, the increase in taxes will occur way down the line – on someone else's watch. The amount of the obligation owed to public workers is calculated each year, and the closer the city gets to retirement age, the more the city has to contribute into the pension plan in order to meet the

To meet these rising contribution requirements, Detroit has for years been gutting basic services and increasing taxes. Almost 70% of the city's parks have been closed since 2008. Almost 50% of the street lights don't work. The police force has been reduced by 40% over the last ten years. At the same time, residents have seen their tax burden increase markedly. They pay the highest income and property taxes in the state. Business taxes were doubled not too long ago.

Not surprisingly – at least not if you understand basic economics – the residents and the businesses that could afford to leave the city have done so. Those that can afford to leave are typically the ones who pay the highest taxes. As rates have gone up, population and business count have gone down, as have tax revenues. The problem of unrealistic public employee pension benefits was magnified.

Today, the problem has come to a head. There aren't enough remaining services to be cut and there aren't enough people and businesses left who could be taxed enough to meet the obligations of the pension promises made. Bankruptcy was the only answer. Bankruptcy allows a city (the borrower) to renegotiate all debt obligations, including pension obligations. Public employee unions are challenging the constitutionality of municipal bankruptcy because they know that Chicago, Philadelphia, Oakland and Los Angeles are collectively next in line. Public employee unions are also arguing for a federal bailout, but all that would do is force others to pay for the profligacy of Detroit's managers. If a bailout were granted, it would represent the 21st Century version of taxation without representation. Neither you nor I were allowed to vote in Detroit elections, and yet, if a federal bailout is granted, then our taxes would go up without us ever having had the opportunity to vote on the issue.

If a bailout is allowed, the day of reckoning will only be postponed a little longer, but it will be spread to affect more Americans. Many of the cities mentioned above have approached their public union leaders to negotiate reasonable reductions in the unsustainable benefits which have been promised. So long as there is a chance the Feds might come to the rescue, there is no incentive for any union leader to negotiate. Only the reality that this charade cannot be perpetuated any longer will force real change in a corrupt system. This has been a long time coming, and many economists have warned of its inevitability. As hard as it will be, bankruptcy and renegotiation will be the best thing for Detroit and the rest of the nation. Clearing out this fiscal mess and ridding the system of conflicts of interest represent a bright light in an otherwise long dark tunnel.
