LIZZIE'S TRAIL INN IS BACK

By Marina Coco La Salle

Located at the start of the famous Mount Wilson Trail lies Lizzie's Trail Inn, a museum representing the history of the Sierra Madre mountains. This past Saturday, September 14th, Sierra Madre welcomed all to stop by and visit Lizzie's Trail Inn for a tour of the museum and a presentation of their historical storyboards. Walking up to this quaint cottage, the sound of 1930 brass instruments welcomed curious guests. Right away a local Sierra Madre character named Bob Bolche took visitors on a tour stating, "We like to keep the history alive here." He explained how the Inn was a place for travelers to eat, relax, and acquire necessities before they went on long trips.

Bolche exhibited the Lizzie's Trail Inn storyboard flipping through, page by page. "These are the original photos that just show you what happened back in the 30's. This was always a fun place with slot machines and illegal booze. People always had a good time." Each page had several photos, each with a specific story to tell. He told stories of the young ladies who ran the inn year round. These ladies would hand roll their famous chicken raviolis daily for the program travelers. The original morne is hungry travelers. The original menu is displayed and shows how much food cost "back in the day." Next to the Inn, what is now known as a park, used to be the stable where travelers could rent mules and horses for their long travels. Bolche voiced guests surprise when noticing the travelers dressed so proper by saying, "The women used to wear long dresses and the men with their ties and suits. I can't even imagine going up there like that! They had to be sweating like crazy! I don't know how they did it, but they did it." Another story Bolche spoke of regarded the small house next door called The Richardson House.

The Richardson House is the oldest house in Sierra Madre. A story of the family producing and successfully concealing illegal alcohol stood out the most. The COPS of the town were in cahoots with the operation and created a way to help warn the family. When word went out of suspicious investigators, the COPS would call the Inn's kitchen phone twice, giving the ladies ample time to give the men a heads up to cover up the moonshine still. Although their foolproof operation worked flawlessly for some time, investigators finally caught on and found the still. A photo of the discovery can be seen

MENTALLY ILL MAN ARRESTED IN THREATS TO ARCADIA AND MONROVIA

Coordinated efforts of 5 agencies lead to successful in capturing suspect

By Susan Henderson

With the united efforts of the Arcadia, Monrovia, and Covina Police Departments; the LA County Sheriffs Department's investigators from Temple Station, its' Major Crimes Bureau, and the LASD Joint Terrorism Task Force, and Federal Bureau of Investigation, Monrovia resident Gerardo Cortez was arrested Tuesday for calling in threats to a hospital, a mall, and schools in Monrovia and Arcadia. The calls resulted in lockdowns and searches of the locations by law enforcement, "out of an abundance of caution for public safety, the schools, hospital, and mall were searched in the cities of Arcadia, Covina, Duarte, Glendora, Monrovia and West Covina", according to a joint press release.

The 26-year old Cortez was booked at Monrovia Police Department for five counts of felony Making Criminal Threats and five counts of False Report of an Emergency. He appeared in court on September 19th and his bail was set at $300,000. His next court date is October 4, 2012.

Cortez allegedly called the police saying that he had an AK-47 and threatened to shoot people at the following locations:

Covina: A call was made referencing "Citrus Medical Center:" (there is no hospital by that exact name) On Monmade to the Covina Police Department. Covina Police Dept. officers searched Intercommunity Hospital in Covina. West Covina Police Dept. officers searched Queen of the Valley of the Valley Hospital and East San Gabriel Valley Hospice in the City of West Covina. Glendora Police Dept. officers searched Foothill Presbyterian Hospital in the Glendora.

Monrovia: A call was made referencing Sante Fe Middle School: On Monday, Sept. 9. the threatening call was made to the Monrovia Police Department. The school was put on lockdown and searched.

Arcadia: Santa Anita Mall: Tues, Sept 10: Arcadia Police Department News Release http://local.nixle.com/ alert/5063996/

Duarte: Duarte High School: Tues, Sept. 10: LASD Temple Sheriff's Station News Release http://nixle.com/ alert/5060862/ The school was put on lockdown and searched.

Arcadia: Arcadia High School: Thurs, Sept 12: Arcadia Police Department

News Release http://local.nixle.com/alert/5063996/ The school was put on lockdown and searched.

Cortez has been previously diagnosed with a developmental disability according to court records. All five of the threatening phone calls were placed from a cellphone registered to a Cortez family member, according to Lt. Nels Ortlund, with the Monrovia Police Department. The caller did not identify himself, but made no effort to disguise his voice, Ortlund said.

Cortez was also at the center of a series of threats that occurred in 2012. (http://mtnviewsnews.com/v06/htm/ n43/p04.htm). That case included bomb threats to Washington Middle School, Pasadena Public Health headquarters, and the post office. In that instance, Cortez was captured by police a short distance from one of the facilities. He was still talking to police on a cellphone at the time.

In June 21 of this year, Cortez was sentenced to 16 months in county jail as part of a plea bargain in which he admitted to the Pasadena case. Because Cortez had been in custody since his arrest, the combination of actual time already served and "good time/work time" credits meant that he was released almost immediately. The courts did consider in handing down its senday, Sept. 9, the threatening call was tencing that "He suffers mild mental retardation and has been a client of the Regional Center for some time," Judge Elaine Lu said. Judge Lu was persuaded to impose a low term sentence, but did admonish Cortez. "Your criminal offenses seem to be escalating in nature. My hope is that they're not going to spiral out of the control, OK? That you're going to work on the issues that you have," Judge Lu told Cortez.

> Lu's words proved to be somewhat prophetic, as almost one year later, Cortez is accused of engaging in the same kind of behavior.

Anyone with information regarding these incidents that may be of assistance to investigators please contact the Monrovia Police Department at 626-256-8041. ANOTHER RESIDENTIAL BURGLARY -Homeowner's Alarm Thwarts Robbers

A residential burglary occurred at 10:00 AM this morning (Friday) in the 200 block of south Baldwin Ave. This was the second burglary in two days. On Thursday, burglars entered a N. Auburn residence and took jewels and other valuables.

The suspect(s) smashed the rear bedroom window and then used a trash can to step on to enter the window. Once inside the house the burglary alarm activated and the suspect(s) fled the scene. There was no property loss.

The homeowner had a burglary alarm system and used it correctely...it paid off as the thieves fled the scene without taking any of the victims property. If you have an alarm system make sure that it functions correctly and use it every time you leave your residence.

At 9:15pm, officers responded to 00 block of Esperanza Avenue to investigate a report of a disturbance. As they arrived, the officers could hear the sounds of a verbal argument coming from the apartment. Officers interviewed the male and female occupants of the apartment and determined that the male had struck his female fiancé during an argument. The victim did not sustain any injury. The suspect (male, 53 years of age) was arrested for Domestic Battery.

Between the hours of noon and 5:45pm, unknown suspects entered an apartment in the 500 block of West Sierra Madre Boulevard through an unlocked kitchen door. While inside, the suspect(s) ransacked two bedrooms and left with two silver candlestick holders and cash.

Saturday September 14, 2013

At approximately 2am, a vehicle travelling east in the 200 block of West Grandview Avenue ran off the roadway and collided with a power pole. The impact of the collision knocked the power pole off its foundation. The driver was observed driving away from the scene with fluids leaking from the vehicle. A resident obtained a license plate number on the vehicle and it was determined that the vehicle was registered to an address in Ontario. An investigative follow up visit to the Ontario location on Saturday morning failed to locate the vehicle or possible driver. Southern California Edison crews responded to the scene to repair the power pole.

DONNA MARIE BONAPARTE CLOW

June 15, 1953-July 26, 2013

From Joan Schmidt: Recently I attended a Memorial Mass for Donna Bonaporte Clow, well known in the San Gabriel Valley. Donna grew up in Alhambra and attended parochial schools. She came from a very close-knit Italian family, having two brothers and four sisters.

Pastor Father Eugene Herbert recalled meeting Donna when he passed the Church and heard "an angel" singing to Jesus as she played the piano. Donna was an integral part of the Music Ministry at Annunciation Church, Arcadia for several years. She also was well-loved by the school children. Every Friday afternoon the classes walked over to Church and Donna would teach them various hymns that would be incorporated into their weekly liturgy. Six years ago Donna married Robert Clow. He began her Eulogy by singing, Forever and Ever, Amen" as he had done at their wedding. He felt she gave him the best six years of his life and that she was "The most caring, compassionate, loving woman".

Donna is survived by her husband Robert, two brothers, four sisters and MANY nieces and nephews who will greatly miss her.

She died from PSP, a little-known disease. Please go on line-CurePSP to learn about this dreaded disease. The family asks for donations in her name.

LONGTIME SIERRA MADRE RESIDENT MARTHA WOOD COUTANT PASSES

Martha Wood Coutant died peacefully on September 12th at one hundred years of age. Second eldest of six girls, whom she outlived, Martha was born in Arlington, Massachusetts. The family moved to Pasadena in 1926, where she attended John Marshall Junior High, Pasadena High School, and Pasadena Junior College.

Martha met her future husband Stanley in Pasadena, and the two were married in 1934 at the Calvary Baptist Church across the street from PJC. They lived in Rancho Santa Fe until 1938, when they bought a house in Sierra Madre and moved back to the area.

Son Stanley was born in 1943, and once he started school Martha became involved in the PTA, and was an active member of the local school board for several years. She wrote and published numerous works of fiction to magazines including Highlights for Children and McCall's. Later she put her writing skills to work as a reporter for the Pasadena Star-News, and later for the Monrovia Daily News-Post as its Arcadia correspondent. Her journalistic career lasted for nineteen years.

Later in life she published twelve historical documentaries, several of them involving family members, one about the Mojave Desert, and yet another that tells of the 1839 founding of the "normal school" in Massachusetts.

Martha is survived by her son Stanley, two grandsons Jonnathan and David, and a great-granddaughter Delilah. It was her wish that there be no services.

ALTADENA'S WATER FUTURE PANEL DISCUSSION Free to the public

September 23,2013 7:00 pm Altadena Community Center

Altadena Heritage will be hosting a public forum, Altadena's Water Future, to try to clarify issues of water supply, water quality, handling of storm water, and mandated compliance with the Federal Clean Water Act as they impact Altadena.

We have lined up a panel of important water people for this round-table event:

Chris Stone, LA County's Water Resource manager;

A representative from the Roads division of County Department of Public Works, to be announced; Tim Brick of the Arroyo Seco Foundation and former chairman of Metropolitan Water District; Rich Atwater of the Foothill Municipal Water District.

Other local water purveyors including Pasadena have been specially invited to attend, and most are sending representatives.

Our goal is to increase Altadenans' knowledge of, and involvement in, today's water issues, including water security and water quality initiatives such as Clean Water, Clean Beaches Act (designed to put LA County in compliance with Federal regulations. It was recently dropped, but is sure to reappear).

We will focus somewhat on Altadena's position at the top of the inhabited watershed, but will also address the general situation in Southern California. We want everyone to understand local opportunities for management: capture, recharge, and treatment.

We also want to clarify who is responsible for what in Altadena, including oversight of public works

The County has many laudable "best management practices" and low-impact development guidelines on the books, which, for a variety of reasons are not followed in all new projects.

We would like to understand the County's process and overall goals, and we hope our panel will clarify interrelationships (or lack of coordination, as the case may be) among local water companies, Foothill Municipal Water District, the County, and the State of California.

With people representing several jurisdictions in the same room at the same time, this is a great opportunity to get your water questions answered.

Please join us at the Altadena Community Center on Monday, September 23rd, at 7 pm. The public is invited and there will be no admission charge.

WILL THERE EVER BE WORLD PEACE?

ting around a table

at Bean Town in Sierra Madre, drinking coffee, and discussing the problems of today's world. We were discussing the challenges that parents have with out-of-control children, various wars, terrorism, and other issues.

We began our discussion by analyzing two somewhat misleading questions often asked by Sunday morning pundits: One, why does God allow all the trouble and evil in the world? And Two, will we ever experience a world in harmony, in peace? The first question is easy to deal with. God has nothing to do with the trouble in the world. Period. Why do we blame God (or Universal Consciousness, or whatever we call God) for the results of our own ignorance and hypocrisy and preferences? We are agents of free will, are we not? We are the architects of our future, though most of us create our future in a willy-nilly, accidental way, not realizing that every inner secret choice and desire, and every word spoken, and every action, is creating destiny and the "future." But we choose to pretend that this is not so, and when we experience the worst nightmares of our own making, we blame God. As Fred Renich wrote, "We must become increasingly aware of our ever present tendency to use the mercy of a loving God, and his readiness to forgive, as an excuse for careless living."

Question Two is a little harder. Will there ever be peace on earth? Not just cessation of hostilities, but actual harmony among nations and people, and mutual respect that creates an environment of growth (inner and outer), real prosperity, and upliftment.

To answer this question, we have to ask ourselves, What is the obstacle to this harmony? Perhaps the best way to get a handle on this question is to look at all the ways in our own personal lives where disharmony exists. In our relationships, among our work peers, among our family members, among neighbors, among the differing members of our community.

All too often, we find that our problems are caused because we choose to think limbically, we make choices subjectively, based on who we like, and preferences to my family, my people, my in the world. religion. We have not been taught or trained to focus upon universal principles or objective reality. If we make decisions in familial or group disputes simply by choosing my side, my group, my religion, rather than upon what is objectively right, then we foster disharmony.

It is nearly always wrong to have a blind adher-

Several of us were sit- ence to defending "my group." I strongly recomting around a table mend you read and study Eric Hoffer's classic book "True Believer."

And this is where the way we train our children to think comes in. If we have been trained to "take sides," and "defend my family" and to filter all our judgements through subjective ideas, we become inept as community and national leaders. If we rise to national leadership with all our preconceptions about other people, we become part of the problem. We become Democrats or Republicans, believing our side is right and the other is wrong. We become Sunni or Shia, knowing we are right and the other is wrong. We think as black or white or brown or red, and we believe that the others are wrong. We think as Catholic or Protestant and consider the other beliefs wrong. Etc.

It is our very belief that keeps us in our limbic brain, thinking primitively, mentally residing in

It is not as if "answers" are not abundant. But we filter the answers through our subjective minds, and the typical human response is to kill off, imprison, marginalize, or ridicule to obscurity all the world's great answer-givers.

Perhaps the greatest "answer" to the many problems of human existence is the command to Love your neighbor as yourself. Or, the command to do unto others as you'd have them

Will there ever be harmony on earth? Must the human condition continue to worsen? Perhaps it is time to think about saving and improving our self, and being less concerned about 'saving the world."

As his sipped the last of his coffee, and looked out the window of Bean Town, one member of our group, Gary, said that each and every one of us is like the boys stranded on the island in Lord of the Flies. In each moment of our daily life, we make choices. We can choose to be uplifted and civilized, or we can choose animalistic anarchistic choices. Each choice, and the consequences of those choices, creates the reality we live in. And in that sense, we are each the architects of our future. Once we find harmony within, there will be hope that there can be harmony

MAN HIRES A HUNDRED HOMELESS TO STAND IN LINE FOR NEW IPHONE By Dean Lee

Tempers flared as fans waited to get the new flagship phone from Apple

Apple halted iPhone 5S sales Friday morning to nearly 100 homeless people, who were promised payment to camp out over night in front of the Old Pasadena Apple store. The incident causing a near-riot after a businessman refused to pay the hired line sitters once the store became wise to the Pasadena police told reporters that the businessman, who identified himself as "Bobby," was not breaking any laws. Police had to escort him out of the area after the group became mad, surrounded and threaten him.

According to reports, Bobby (above with Pasadena Police Officer), hired the homeless people from Skid Row, promising them between $20 and $40 each to wait to buy the iPhone 5S. Some of the recruits said Bobby gave them pizza, drinks and cigarettes the night before.

"I buy phones," he admitted to KTLA News. "And I resell them. It's not illegal if I buy them at full retail price."

Two men, also in line, were taken into custody, in a separate situation, after fighting.

Police said Pasadena resident Lamar Mitchell and George Westbrook, of Compton, were arrested about 7:30 a.m. The two men attacked each other as officers watched then immediately stopping the situation. Mitchell and Westbrook were both given citations and released.

The iPhone 5S Gold, Friday afternoon was already reselling on Craigslist for over $1,000. The phone sold out in many of the Apple stores across the country including Pasadena.

SOCIAL NETWORKS CAN MAKE LEARNING MEANINGFUL

(NAPSI)—Many believe that one of the benefits of using the Internet is the opportunity for what's known as social learning—a chance to discover videos, books, blogs and other media assembled by category experts. A few sites present valuable information, whether you're going back to school or simply want to keep

For example, Learnist is a new social platform focused on peerto-peer learning. It's designed to help anyone, anywhere, discover fresh ideas, collaborate and share valuable insights with likeminded individuals. It achieves this by offering a series of lessons on a particular topic that can enhance the user's learning process.

What You Can Learn

Users have added close to 500,000 posts to Learnist, which has yielded a million page views each month. Education, technology, food and beverage, and health and fitness are leading categories of interest, but users can also learn about science, business, art and design, travel, music, crafts, sports, games, politics, homemaking

Many of those who use the site are teachers who have benefited from applying the material taken from Learnist in their class-rooms, given that 100 percent of the new U.S. Common Core national curriculum for grades 7–12 is available on the platform. It also provides an opportunity for students to expand their knowledge of certain subject matter, or get a little extra tutoring outside of the classroom.

However, while the benefits for educators are evident, you don't have to be in academia to appreciate the site. Learnist is a customized learning experience that can accommodate both the casual user and the serious learner who wants to know more about anything.

How It Works

Anyone, regardless of income, education or geography, can learn a new skill or talent and share what he or she knows by creating "Learnist Learnboards" from the best blogs, videos, audio, Twitter feeds, slide shows and other Web resources.

The platform allows users to simply click on the title of the "learning," which takes users directly to the original Web page and allows them to leave comments, ask questions and share the things that interest them.

The platform is also available on the iPhone, iPad and Android. The platform allows users to easily browse the site and add content.

Learning Is The Point

Learnist is designed to enhance a visitor's learning experience by providing instantaneous access to a rich social network that makes use of a variety of resources and media.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show INSIDIOUS

Being a big fan of horror movie, I was very excited for this movie to come out, even though I had not seen the first 'Insidious'. I had heard good reviews about the first one, so I hoped this one would be just as good.

Taking place after the events of the first movie, 'Insidious: Chapter 2' follows continues to follow the Lambert family. After retrieving their son from the Further, Josh and Renai Lambert (Patrick Wilson and Rose Byrne) move their family to Josh's mom's house. At first the family is able to get past the horrible events but soon, new horrors unearth themselves, as we are told the terrifying past of the Lamberts.

While I am a fan of horror movies, I have yet to see one that truly scares me. This is mostly because of how unbelievable the events in horror movies seem. That is the case with 'Insidious: Chapter 2'. Not only does it borrow so much from past horror movies, that originality is lost. And, to top it off, there are scenes that are so ridiculous that I thought, 'How could the director take this seriously?' While 'Insidious: Chapter 2' is not the scariest movie ever, I would recommend it to those who have seen the first and even those looking for a good laugh.

New York Deli

A deli in Pasadena? Others have tried, many have failed - remember Jerry's Famous Deli? A pretty good sandwich I thought, but if Jerry's can't stick around long enough for the paint to dry, how can a deli off the beaten path of the hustle and bustle of the Old Pasadena Strip make it? I sure hope they do! Their website says if you haven't tried a New York Deli Sandwich you haven't eaten at a real deli. Hmmm... what exactly a "real deli" is I am not sure. I picture an old Jewish lady slicing brisket in the back or a place like Billy's Deli in Glendale where the waitress snidely tells you to hurry up and make up your mind. New York Deli hails from Torrance, and opened with a full bar and a refrigeration section that reminds me of the local supermarket. I like the look of this place - it's sleek, clean and fun.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

The menu itself, thank goodness, is relatively simple. Prices range from $9 to "the sky's the limit", but I like that. You can get a triple-decker if you'd like, but my lunch companion and I kept it simple. I went for the brisket sandwich ($9.95) and he went for the turkey sandwich ($9.95). The brisket was sliced a little too thin for my taste and was a tad bit dry, but he liked the turkey, and both of us, in true deli style, took half our sandwiches home. The sides were a real nice plus - I ordered the cucumber salad (nothing fancy here, but real good). There are other popular sandwiches places in Pasadena like the Pasadena Sandwich Co., and heck Whole Foods does a pretty decent sandwich as well. Is this the best sandwich I have ever tasted? No, but I do want to return for the Matzo Ball soup ($6.50), now that's a deli entrée!! Service was above average, we never had to ask for water, and the server actually asked how we were doing. Tip: order a Dr. Brown's Cherry Soda - now we're talking!! They've got a nice beer selection, plus happy hour from 4 to 7 PM.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

at the hilltop and runs down to meet Timmy, who takes her into his arms and begins crying his own tears of joy over having her back home. Well, there I was, centered between my friend and the rest of her entire family of 5, sobbing sloppily about a fictional dog who'd gone missing and ended up as the harrowing hero of the show. I mean I was a basket case! The next morning at breakfast, I was ribbed by my friend's two older brothers for my open display of emotions, after which I packed my bag and headed home. The hardest part was living it down at school the following week, when my girlfriend's two brothers shared the ordeal with the rest of my class mates. At the time, I guess I considered myself to be a big baby, blubbering over Lassie, but now I give myself a break, and even a pat on the back for caring about the welfare of a dog, any dog, even an actor dog!

This recent nostalgic memory inspired me to look up some of my favorite famous canine characters, hoping to find as much information as I could about who they really were. I started my search with Lassie, since she was my first favorite dog in film and I found out that although the Lassie character was a female in the movie, the dog who played her part was actually a male Rough Collie named "Pal"! Pal was born on June 4, 1940 at Cherry Osborne's Glamis Kennels in Hollywood, and had his first film debut in Lassie Come Home (1943) - the one that brought on my embarrassing blubbering ordeal. He went on to play the same part in 6 more MGM Lassie features, after which he starred in two pilots of the TV series, then retired and finally died in 1958. During his life of 18 years, "Pal" must have touched the hearts of more youngsters than any other canine ever cast in film.

My second favorite famous dog was "Duke" on The Beverly Hillbillies. The part of Duke was played by a wrinkly purebred Bloodhound named "Stretch". At 13 years of age, Stretch was replaced by a younger bloodhound who continued to play the part of Duke until the final episode. Following his 10 year career as Duke on The Beverly Hillbillies, Stretch appeared in the military comedy film entitled No Time for Sargents (1958), starring Andy Griffith as newly recruited army private, Will Stockdale. I couldn't find any information about who owned Stretch, or how he was discovered, but I will say he is one of the reasons I fell in love with bloodhounds, and chose that breed as my own pet. My dog Tater is so much like Duke. The resemblance is undeniable, and like Duke, Tater would much rather lay around than take a walk or perform a service, such as hunting or tracking, as bloodhounds

During my quest to identify the canines that were cast as Hollywood characters, I remembered a show that featured an enormous dog with bigger-than-life facial features, but because I was only about 5 when I watched the reruns with my parents, I couldn't remember the title. After a little internet research, I finally figured out that the TV comedy series was Topper, all about a couple who were buried in an avalanche with their guide dog, "Neil" while skiing in Switzerland. After the accident, they return as ghosts (including the dog) and carry out a plethora of shenanigans that keep the new home owner, "Topper" on his toes.

The part of Neil was played by a gorgeous Saint Bernard named "Buck". Buck was raised by Beatrice Knight of the Sanctuary Kennels in Oregon. I couldn't find much information about Buck, but I did learn that there was a feature film entitled Topper, based on the same novel, and in the movie the canine character is a Wire-haired Terrier named "Mr. Atlas", played by a dog named "Skippy", and that Skippy later played the part of "Asta" in the TV series, The Thin Man.

Another Hollywood-cast canine character, that I really liked while growing up, appeared in the movie trilogy, Benji. To my delight, I found out that the remarkably talented pup who played the part of Benji was a mixed-breed, rescued shelter dog named "Higgins", who was trained by Frank Inn, and that one of his offspring, "Benjean" played the same part in subsequent films.

There are so many other doggie actors that I could include in this article, but unfortunately I don't have the time or space, so I hope you've enjoyed the bits of information that I did share about the famous canines I treasured growing up. I am personally very impressed with a dog's ability to be trained to entertain, and it means a lot to me have had so many canine characters who played an important part of entertaining me as a child.

HEALTHY LIFESTYLES

THE JOY OF YOGA TIME TO JUST BE

I was thinking recently about how Yoga came to be such a big part of my life. It just slowly has crept in, one class at a time, one day at a time. There was an absence in my spirit that needed filling and acknowledgement. I needed time to just be and figure things out. To ask the questions, what do I enjoy? What do I need to be happy? Dare I say..what do I want to do with my life?

From a practical point of view, I also needed to move (and exercise). And move in a way that would support my body. I've had asthma forever and many old injuries making something like running impossible. I would always end up in a near asthma attack & my knees, feet, and ankles would immediately start screaming. This did not happen with Yoga. We moved deliberately and with great care, no pounding. Further, the asana (poses) started to make me stronger and created a fluid relationship

The moments of silence in class offered time for reflection. The asana provided the movement I desperately needed. And the breath work addressed my anxiety. What esle did I get? REST. Ahhh. I had no idea how much I needed rest. Rest from DOING.

What is Yoga in your life? What part does it play?

Getting Clear by Lori Koop, Career Coach

went to an art opening Saturday night and met a wonderful gentleman. Intelligent. Interesting. Open. We were drawn to each other, not romantically but "energetically." He had just signed up for a sculpting class and was exploring his creative side in clay. Of course! And me being a ceramicist, I was able to give him some pointers.

I find that as I've become more authentic in my life and work, the more authentic people I meet. Even in L.A.! I am reading a book called Excuse Me Your Life Is Waiting by Lynn Grabhorn, and she says it is a natural law. There's no way of getting around it: everything is made up of energy. And we, as energetic beings, are like magnets attracting similar energies.

Hmmmm. That means if we desire authentic people in our lives, we will need to be authentic ourselves. If we desire non-judgmental people in our lives, we will need to be non-judgmental ourselves. If we want honest people in our lives, we will need to be honest ourselves. Like attracts like.

What kind of friends would you like around you? Become that yourself, and they will come. I've seen it. And my guess is you have too.

THE GOOD LIFE

MANY FLU SHOT OPTIONS AVAILABLE TO OLDER ADULTS THIS SEASON

Dear Savvy Senior:

I understand that there are a number of different flu vaccines being offered to adults this flu sea-son. What can you tell me about them? Seeking Protection

Dear Seeking:

Depending on your age, health and personal preference, there are six different ways to get im-munized against influenza this year.

Just as they do every year, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommends a seasonal flu shot to almost everyone over the age of 6 months because it's still the best protection against the flu.

If you get a flu shot, you're 60 percent less likely to get the flu. And if you do happen to get it, you're likely to have a milder case if you've been inoculated. The flu puts more than 200,000 people in the hospital each year and kills on average about 24,000. Here's the rundown on the different vaccines that are available this flu season:

Standard flu shot: This tried-and-true shot that's been around for more than 30 years protects against three strains of influenza, and is recommended for everyone 6 months and older. This year's version protects against the two common Type A strains H1N1 and H3N2, and one strain of Type B influenza virus.

Quadrivalent vaccine: New this year, this vaccine that protects against four types of influenza - the same three strains as the regular flu shot, plus an additional B-strain virus that primarily af-fects kids. Available to everyone 6 months and older, the quadrivalent shot will be available in limited supply this year, therefore it's primarily recommended for children.

Fluzone High-Dose: Designed for seniors age 65 and older, this vaccine contains four times the amount of antigen – the part of the vaccine that prompts the body to make antibody – as a regu-lar flu shot does, which creates a stronger immune response for better protection. The manufac-turer, Sanofi Pasteur, says its research shows the shot to be 24 percent more effective in seniors.

Fluzone Intradermal: If you're squeamish about needles, the intradermal shot is a nice option because it uses a tiny micro-needle to inject the vaccine just under the skin, rather than deeper in the muscle like standard flu shots. This year's version will protect against three strains of influen-za, and is recommended to those ages 18 to 64.

FluBlok: Created for people who are allergic to eggs who have had to skip their yearly flu shot. FluBlok is the first egg-free flu vaccine developed through cell technology from three flu strains cultured in caterpillar cells. This shot, however, is only recommended to younger adults between the ages of 18 and 49.

FluMist: This nasal spray vaccine protects against four strains of influenza, just like the quadriva-lent shot, but it's only recommended for those between age 2 and 49.

To locate a vaccination site that offers these options, ask your doctor or pharmacist, or check the online flu-shot locator at flushot.healthmap.org. Most chains like CVS, Walgreens, Safeway, Kmart, Walmart, Rite Aid and Kroger will offer the standard and high-dose shots, along with the flumist nasal spray. But because of limited supply, it may be a bit more difficult to locate the intradermal, quadrivalent or flublock vaccines.

You'll also be happy to know that most health plans and Medicare will cover the cost of a flu shot. But if you're not covered by insurance, you can expect to pay around $25 to $35 for a standard, intradermal or quadrivalent flu shot, or $50 to $60 for a shot of the high-dose or

For more information on the different flu vaccines, visit the Center for Disease Control and Pre-vention at cdc.gov/flu, or call 800-232-4636.

KATIE Tse.....This and That HAVE YOU BLUDGEONED YOUR CARTODAY?

I am very grateful for Before Civic. acquiring was driving a Saturn that was essentially given to me by my mom (very thankful, Mom!). The Saturn was great in that it got me from point A to point B. Servicing it, however, became a hassle since "Saturns are no longer being manufactured." So no one, except possibly some guy in Nebraska or other far away place, had parts. Sigh... My Saturn finally bit the dust after getting hit head on while traveling north on Michillinda. The accident was a bit traumatic, but at least it prompted our purchase of a new-used car.

Although I'm very happy with my little Honda, some car owners are not so pleased with their cars. I speak of a recent video of an Italian marble dealer who bought a BMW that was plagued with problems --which BMW did not readily fix.

After much run-around with the BMW bureaucrats, the owner and a friend took sledge hammers to the vehicle at the Frankfurt Auto Show to demonstrate their displeasure with the car company. The Yahoo video shows the two men taking hesitant swings at the car with brand new sledgehammers and axes. That's all well and good, but they don't have anything on disgruntled car owners from the

My dad remembers a news story in which a Ford employee at the Torrance assembly plant saved for years in order to buy a Lincoln. His dream car, however, had problems which Ford failed to remedy. The owner's frustration finally drove him (Ha, no pun intended!) to park his car on the expansive Ford lawn and plant a lemon tree in the driver's seat. To finish it off, he hung up a sign on the car reading "Ernie Campos has a better idea!" This was a play on Ford's slogan at time --"Ford has a better idea." The fact that my dad remembers this man's name so many years later proves the power of a good consumer protest.

Another of my dad's crazy car stories involved "The Idle Hour," a bar on Colorado Blvd. located approximately where that gym is across from Cost Plus today. My dad and granddad had a shop nearby and witnessed an interesting variety of events regarding The Idle Hour. One story in particular

Some time around lunch (The Idle Hour served food, too) a couple parked their snazzy convertible outside. Some time later, the woman in question emerged and went to pout in the passenger's seat. After a few moments, the man joined her, but was apparently miffed about something that had gone on while they were in the bar. He proceeded to take a baseball bat from the back seat and smash it in every window, mirror, and light fixture. The car rebounded with every blow, and bits of glass flew everywhere, but the lady just sat there with an angry fixed stare. Eventually the man had his fill of destruction and tossed the bat into the back seat. As sort of a truce, they drove off together in the battered vehicle, never to be seen again at The Idle Hour.

There's no real moral to this story except that car companies (and all companies, for that matter) should take complaints seriously. And it's probably never a good idea to take out relationship angst on your vehicle. Instead, be like Taylor Swift and write a whiny song about it. Just kidding! But seriously, don't take it out on your car!

SENIOR HAPPENINGS

By Pat Birdsall

FYI - CAN HIGH-TECH GROCERY CHAINS RETAIN OLD- FASHIONED VALUES?

I read an article in the L. A. Times recently that mentioned that a local grocery chain is going high tech. The last time the industry made a step in the technology direction was in the 1970s with the introduction of bar code scanners, they said. Now, the stores have hidden infra-red cameras with body heat trackers to figure out how many customers are shopping at any given time. That way, management can know how many workers should be deployed to the cash registers to wait on customers. Whew! I'm with them to that point, but they lose me when it comes to the self-checkout lanes. I worked in banking at the time the ATM was introduced. Customers resisted using them for a very long time and now, they are used in lieu of bank tellers. I imagine working at a bank these days, would be akin to working in a mausoleum. It used to be a busy and dare I say a fun place to work. Obviously, machines

The object of all this new technology of course, is to attract the younger, hip and tech-savvy shopper. Seniors need not apply. I might be in the minority, but as a senior with compromised health to boot, I'm made to feel that I have to hurry with everything! Hurry to give the checker my cloth bags, hurry to unload my cart onto the conveyor belt, hurry with my club card and hurry to decide what method of payment I'm going to use. Just as long as I get out of the way in a proscribed time that is acceptable to management. I don't want to hurry! Hurrying, in addition to being stressful, just makes the hardest part of the grocery shopping experience one step closer; that of driving home and unloading the car and putting the groceries away. Of course, the stop watch isn't on then...that I'm aware of anyway.

HELPFUL HINT: Put an old shower curtain in the trunk of your car to line it while carting potentially messy plants, picnic coolers or wet beach gear.

FOR YOUR FUNNY BONE - An accordion player driving home from a late night gig decided to pull over at a local store for coffee because he was very tired. While waiting to pay, he remembers that he locked his car doors but left the accordion in plain view on the back seat of his car! He rushes out only to realize that he is too late. The back window was smashed and somebody had already thrown in two more accordions.

JAPAN LAUNCHES EPSILON-1 WITH SPRINT-A ABOARD

Japan Aerospace Exploration Agency (JAXA) launched their first Epsilon Launch Vehicle (Epsilon-1) with the Spectroscopic Planet Observatory for Recognition of Interaction of Atmosphere (SPRINT-A) onboard at 2:00 p.m. on September 14 from the Uchinoura Space Center.

An hour and 49 minutes after launch, deployment of its solar array paddles was confirmed, and the satellite is currently in good health.

The SPRINT-A's nickname was also decided. It is "HISAKI." The name was chosen for

(1) "Hisaki" is the name of a cape in the Uchinoura area. (The cape at the tip of the Tsushiro Peninsula.) It is the first brightened point by the rising sun in the Uchinoura area, thus the place is a symbol of a new day in Uchinoura. It is also a place for local fishermen to pray for safety, hence it is a symbol of safe navigation for boats leaving Uchinoura. As it is a tip shape, it reminds us of the satellite configuration.

(2) The observation targets are beyond ("saki" in Japanese) the Sun ("Hi" in Japanese). The launch was coordinated and controlled by two laptop computers from a nearby command center, and drew spectators both at the Kagoshima facility and at a public special section in Tales.

Over 900 space enthusiasts gathered to watch the liftoff in the Japanese capital, clapping and snapping cellphone photos as the 79-foot-long, 91 metric ton Epsilon-1 lifted off. The vehicle then successfully deployed SPRINT-A at an altitude of approximately 620 miles.

"The successful launch moved Japan a step closer to its goal of cashing in on the international satellite launch industry," Reuters reporter Leika Kihara explained. "The rocket's smaller size and a computer system that allows it to perform its own systems checks means it can be assembled quickly, enabling operators to cut personnel and

În fact, JAXA officials told reporters that the Epsilon—the nation's first new rocket design since the introduction of the H2A in 2001—costs about one-third as much as its predecessor, at 3.8 billion yen ($40 million). It is also half the size of the H2A (Japan's previous major launch vehicle) and can be assembled and prepared for launch in just one

"Japan hopes the rocket, launched with just two laptop computers in a pared-down command center, will become competitive in the global space business," AFP noted. They also pointed out that a crew of just eight people are required to complete launch procedures, compared to a staff of 150 for the H2A.

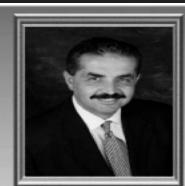

The small-sized rocket is equipped with artificial intelligence 'for the first time in the world' that allows autonomous launch checks by the rocket itself, JAXA has said," the news agency continued, adding that the agency has described the SPINT-A payload it carries as "the world's first space telescope for remote observation of planets including Venus, Mars and Jupiter from its orbit around Earth."

MYTH BUSTING

When a homeowner faces default on their mortgage, there may be two options: foreclosure or short sale. Foreclosure can be devastating, both emotionally and financially. A short sale, or one in which the lender accepts a selling price less than the amount owed, is a better option for both the lender and the homeowner.

Regrettably, nearly seven out of ten homeowners proceed through foreclosure without ever listing their home for sale. This is due largely to perceived myths about the process, and we need to put a few of these misconceptions to rest.

First, homeowners assume the bank would rather foreclose than accept a short sale. Not true - foreclosure is often more costly for the lender, and short sales often sell for more than foreclosed listings. The banks are trying anything possible, within reason, to avoid the foreclosure process.

Next, homeowners believe there is a stigma attached to short sale listings, and that buyers have no interest in such properties. Not true - to the contrary, many smart buyers are specifically seeking out such offerings for the value they present compared to traditional listings.

Finally, homeowners often assume that there's not enough time to close a short sale before foreclosure is final. Not true - foreclosure is a lengthy process and there is time to negotiate a better result, but

AUGUST SINGLE-FAMILY HOME SALES EASE BACK WHILE CONDO AND TOWNHOME MARKET TAKES OFF, SAYS A.A.R.

ARCADIA - Following a strong performance in July, California's housing market pulled back in August as mortgage rates continued to inch up, although sales of condominiums and townhomes remained robust, the Arcadia Association of REALTORSR* reported.

"The condo and townhome market has been performing exceptionally well, as rising single-family home prices and limited inventory prompted many buyers to look for a more affordable alternative," said 2013 A.A.R. President Andy Bencosme. "In fact, sales of condominiums and townhomes surged almost 8 percent from last August and are up nearly 5 percent year to date compared to last year." Closed escrow sales of existing, single-family detached homes in California totaled a seasonally adjusted annualized rate of 434,700 units in August, according to information collected by the California Association of Realtors* from more than 90 local REALTOR* associations and MLSs statewide. Sales in August were down 2 percent from a revised 443,500 in July and down 1.9 percent from a revised 443,030 in August 2012. The statewide sales figure represents what would be the total number of homes sold during 2013 if sales maintained the August pace throughout the year. It is adjusted to account for seasonal factors that typically influence home sales. Home prices continued in an upward trend in August, reaching levels not seen in more than five years. The statewide median price of an existing, single-family detached home was up 1.7 percent from July's median price of $433,910 to reach $441,330 in August, the highest price recorded since December 2007. August's price was 28.4 percent higher than the revised $343,800 recorded in August 2012, marking a year and a half of annual price increases and the 14th straight month of double-digit annual gains. The median sales price is the point at which half of homes sold for more and half sold for less; it is influenced by the types of homes selling as well as a general change in values. "Housing inventory levels are improving, especially in homes priced below $750,000. Indeed, the number of active listings across all price ranges has been rising on a month-to-month basis for the last six months and has reached the highest level since mid-2012," said A.A.R. 's CEO Andrew Cooper. "As housing supply loosens up with the seasonal slowdown, annual home price increases are expected to taper as we've observed in the last two months." Other key facts of the August 2013 resale housing report include:

The available supply of existing, single-family detached homes for sale inched up in August to 3.1 months, up from July's Unsold Inventory Index of 2.9 months. The index was 3.2 months in August 2012. The index indicates the number of months needed to sell the supply of homes on the market at the current sales rate. A six- to seven-month supply is considered typical in a normal

The median number of days it took to sell a single-family home also edged up to 28.8 days in August from 27.8 days in July, but was down from 41.1 days in August 2012. • Mortgage rates moved higher in August, with the 30-year, fixed-mortgage interest rate averaging 4.46 percent, up from 4.37 percent in July 2013 and up from 3.60 percent in August 2012, according to Freddie Mac. Adjustable-mortgage interest rates in August averaged 2.65 percent, slightly down from 2.66 in July but down from 2.67 percent in August 2012.

Starting October 1st, businesses with 1 to 50 employees will be able to offer insurance to staff at group health insurance rates. Covered California (Covered CA) is the name of the state's health exchange that was established to launch the Golden State's version of the federal Affordable Care Act, commonly referred to as Obamacare. This legislation is the most broad-sweeping change to the healthcare system in 40 years.

Starting January 1, 2014, most individuals will be required to have health insurance. Based on income, some individuals will qualify for Medi-Cal, the Golden State's version of the federal Medicare program. Everyone else who isn't covered by an employer's policy will be required to purchase their own insurance on the open market or through the marketplace known as Covered CA.

The website makes it easy for business owners to review their options to provide insurance for employees. Purchasing insurance is an option for businesses with 1-50 employees, not a requirement. The website will serve as the entry point for one-stop shopping for businesses to compare the different levels of insurance and to connect with Certified Insurance Agents who have received training specific to this new insurance marketplace. Book Reviews by Jasmine Kelsey Williams

TOOTHIANA: QUEEN OF THE TOOTH FAIRY ARMIES By William Joyce

The middle of September brings us to our next read, and a delightful one at that, as we continue through Book Three of the Guardians of Childhood series: "Toothiana: Queen of the Tooth Fairy Armies". William Joyce is back again with this third book of the Guardians, this time providing his unique take on the Tooth Fairy and her role in the story of working with the Guardians and the fight against Pitch, the Nightmare King. Readers will still be delighted at the return of the previous characters such as Nicholas St. North, Ombric, Katherine, Nightlight, and even E. Aster Bunnymund, while smoothly transitioning into the introduction of Queen Toothiana, who by William Joyce's hand, is more than just a mere fairy. Queen Toothiana is sure to charm young readers (or older), as she is presented as a swift-winged flyer, a warrior, the protector of children's teeth and the one who returns their memories when the children have grown up.

However, their battles reach new heights as Pitch has returned not just to steal the teeth, but an old enemy of Toothiana's is aiding him as well. The pacing is still smooth, and the tone of this book still holds its excitement and adventure, but readers at this point should notice a slight difference here: the story (and any backstories) take their time to build up, highlighting differences in character interactions, and then eventually introducing Queen Toothiana towards the middle of the story. There is no need to worry, as the backstories and interactions do not overlap or bog the story down, but instead provide insight to the Guardians as a whole working unit, with each individual Guardian combining their own ideas and wisdom, so that one could think of them as the Avengers for those younger in age and in spirit (which is this columnist's little tidbit of POV). Copyrighted in 2012, complete with new illustrations, and perfect for those a little older or for young readers in the range of 7 to 11 years; as well as receiving praise from various critics, Amazon.com, and Booklist, "Toothiana: Queen of the Tooth Fairy Armies" is the next perfect pick to complete the Guardians of Childhood series, as well continuing to enchant and delight any reader who comes across it. And to still add to its delightful charm, scout out the animated film "Rise of the Guardians", which includes Isla Fischer as the voice of the Tooth Fairy.

"The Lion in Winter," a comedic drama, takes place in King Henry II of England's castle at Chinon, France at Christmastime, 1183. King Henry has three surviving sons by his estranged wife, Eleanor of Aquitaine: Richard (The Lionheart), Geoffrey and John. Henry wants the kingdom to stay united after his death, but all three sons want to rule and it is likely to be torn apart by revolution. He favors the youngest, John, while Eleanor favors the eldest, Richard. Middle son Geoffrey hopes to play both ends against each other and come out on top. And, fuel is added to the yule log fire by King Henry wanting to have another heir by his mistress-in-residence, Alais. When King Henry and Eleanor maneuver against each other to position their favorite son in line for succession, they raise domestic turmoil to an art form.

"The Lion in Winter," originally produced on Broadway in 1966 and made into an Academy Award winning film in 1968, is an enduringly popular stage comedy that combines keen historical insight with humor that bristles and burns.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS:

Review by: Sean Kayden

VOLCANO CHOIR

Justin Vernon, better known as the mastermind behind Bon Iver, is a part of another experimental band called Volcano Choir. The group consists of Vernon on vocals and members of Wisconsin post-rock act Collections of Colonies of Bees. The sextet indie folk rockers have collaborated once again for the release of their sophomore record, "Repave." This is not another Bon Iver album or Bon Iver revisited, but a few similarities do cross over. "Repave" is a lot more expansive than the music crafted in Bon Iver or Collections of Colonies of Bees. For only eight tracks, it runs short but despite inscrutable lyrics, the record shines most of the Artist: way. The record wavers between understated beauty and Album: explosive stadium rock arena tracks. "Repave" doesn't Label: abandoned its experimental roots found on their debut Release Date: record, but navigates through a more accessible listen than one may have been anticipating.

There's a feeling of hope and loss that surrounds the album. Where this is dark, light comes shining on. In "Alaskans," the album's half waypoint, this meditative song is pure storytelling. It's a slow burn track and while not the best song off the record, it's the most spiritual. Soft, tender, and sensitive, there are chills to be had. One of my favorite tracks is, "Dancepack," the thundering, powerful, and hypnotic style of it is marvelously crafted. With the combination of Vernon's incomparable vocal range (falsetto singing at its best) and the experience Collection of Colonies of Bees has in post-rock, the two together works majestically. In the track, "Comrade," Vernon's vocals glimmer with the tight and beautifully developed arrangements permitting the song to float on with uncompromising ease.

"Unmap," the debut album, was dense and difficult to really get involved with. It took a lot more patience and several listens to sink into it. That's not the case with "Repave." There's plenty to enjoy this time around that hits both somber and uplifting notes. About half way into the closing track, "Almanac," Vernon just pulls you in tighter and closer than ever before. I'm not entirely sure what he always means with his skewed lyrics, but he can sure sell it with strong conviction. Volcano Choir seemingly started off as Vernon and company producing experimental tracks for the sake of being experimental. What once was merely a footnote in the Bon Iver era has now turned into a full-fledged band with equal passion and commitment. "Repave," isn't perfect but where it shines is something to marvel at least until the next Bon Iver record.

THE CALIFORNIA PHILHARMONIC UNDER NEW OWNERSHIP

From Arcadia's Best

The California Philharmonic has composed a new and more stable financial future, shifting ownership to Pasadena Entertainment.

The orchesta's funding arm, the non-profit CalPhil Foundation, is being phased out through bankruptcy. The for-profit Pasadena Entertainment, owned and managed by Andre Vener, the son of Cal Phil conductor Victor Vener, has served as the production and marketing firm for the Cal Phil and its concert series for the past four years. The transition of Cal Phil to Pasadena Entertainment began earlier this year. "We value the professionalism of Pasadena Entertainment as part of our marketing and production team," said Pete Siberell, Director of Special Projects for Los Angeles Turf Club. "Teaming up with California Philharmonic has been a great opportunity to develop Santa Anita Race Track as a premier concert venue." The shift in ownership comes after several years of struggling to pay its own musicians as well as its former summer concert home of the L.A. County Arboretum in Arcadia. See April 30, 2011 story and video report of news conference to announce Cal Phil move from Arboretum to Santa Anita. See Nov. 26 story about complaints filed over non-payment by Cal Phil.

Under its new organization, all past and present professional obligations with Cal Phil musicians have been met. A new collective bargaining agreement has been set and Cal Phil is moving forward with the Musicians Union and its members in good standing.

"AFM, Local 47 is pleased to announce that all back wages owed to California Philharmonic musicians for services rendered have been paid," comments John Acosta, Vice President of Local 47. "Local 47 and its new partner Pasadena Entertainment look forward to a long and successful relationship." "Maestro Vener and California Philharmonic create the kind of energy that John Mauceri, Arthur Fiedler and Leonard Bernstein brought to the concert stage," says Dennis Karmazyn, California Philharmonic's principal cellist. "California Philharmonic takes the audience on a musical journey."

The popular Cal Phil orchestra based at Westfield Santa Anita in Arcadia just concluded its second season of Festival on the Green outdoor summer concerts on Saturday nights in the infield at Santa Anita Park, followed by a Sunday afternoon show at the Walt Disney Concert Hall. Combined attendance for the five concerts at Santa Anita was more than 20,000, with another 10,000 people in audiences at Disney's downtown L.A. venue. Cal Phil is set to play both venues again in 2014. Subscriptions and tickets are available for the 2014 summer season.

"It's been our pleasure to work with Pasadena Entertainment since 2009," says Sharon Stewart, Director of Scheduling and Events for the Music Center of Los Angeles County. "We look forward to working with them in future summers, and to another successful summer classical music series."

LA SALLE HIGH SCHOOL RECEIVES HIGH HONOR FROM WOUNDED WARRIOR PROJECT By Coco La Salle

This Friday, September 20, 2013 marked a special day for the Lancer community, as La Salle High School was one of the six-hand picked schools across the nation to host the Wounded Warrior Project Games sponsored by Under Armour. Being the only school to be chosen from the West Coast, it is easy to say just how honored the students, faculty, and community were about this game.

DER ARMOUR'

Wounded Warrior Project is a group with a special mission to honor and empower all those who have been wounded in battle. Their purpose is to raise awareness and enlist the public's aid for the needs of injured service members, to help injured service members aid and assist each other, and to provide unique, direct programs and services to meet the needs of injured service members. Fans were asked to each donate a minimum of $1 to help support the Wounded Warrior Project. Aside from this the LSHS cheerlead-WOUNDED WARRIOR ers also supported WWP with their 50/50 raffle. The Support Our Troop Club generated much excitement by giving away Wounded Warrior Gear to the fans. Student and excited fan, Steven Zambrano said, "It was awesome to know that La Salle was chosen to represent the Wounded Warrior Project. I hope that we all helped raise a lot of money. I know we made our troops proud

The game commenced with the flag at half-mast and a special prayer keeping all those who fought to protect our country in the hearts of all the fans. A bus with the faces of many warriors was on display for fans to put a face to the cause. Not only was last night's game the Wounded Warrior Project Game, it also was the LSHS game against their rival school of Maranatha. "It was pretty exciting watching the game against Maranatha, since they're our rivals. Out of the three years I've been going to La Salle this was definitely one of the most packed games I've ever been to." said La Salle student, Brett Harper.

The special evening ended in a shut out game where LSHS proved to be the victors winning 40 to 0. Needless to say the stands were packed with excited fans, as eager to participate in the athletic competition, as they were to support the worthy cause. David La Salle, an LSHS team captain stated, "I felt honored to be sponsored by Under Armour for the Wounded Warrior Project. Our team played the best game of the year yet! I just hope we showed those who fought for our country how much we appreciate them."

TO GET HEALTHY, GET MOVING

(NAPSI)—According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, in order to preserve and improve your health, you need to do two types of physical activity each week—aerobic and muscle-strengthening.

What You Can Do

Most adults need at least:

- 2 hours and 30 minutes of moderate-intensity aerobic activity (such as brisk walking) every week • muscle-strengthening activities on two or more days a week that work all major muscle groups (legs, hips, back, abdomen, chest, shoulders and arms)
- 1 hour and 15 minutes of vigorous-intensity aerobic activity (that is, jogging or running) every week. If 150 minutes a week sounds like a lot of time, you might be glad to learn that you don't have to do it all at once. Not only is it best to spread your activity out during the week, you can break it up into smaller chunks of time during the day. Just be sure you're doing your activity at a moderate or vigorous effort for at least 10 minutes at a time. Try going for a 10-minute brisk walk, three times a day, five days a week. What Others Are Doing

Many people are getting an assist in all this from what may seem to some to be a surprising source. To help meet the need for better health education, Chrysler Group has gotten together with the National Association of Black Journalists (NABJ) and the National Association of Hispanic Journalists (NAHJ) to increase awareness about health and wellness disparities in minority communities and to promote achievable strategies that members of those communities can pursue to improve their health.

We all know about Chrysler Group's prowess as an auto manufacturer. What we may not know is that the company has been a leader in bringing innovative health programs to its employees and their families in order to improve their overall health and to reduce costs. The carmaker has received several awards from the National Business Group on Health for the strength and relevance of its health and wellness efforts. In fact, the company's headquarters complex in Auburn Hills, Mich., offers employees many wellness amenities such as a fully equipped fitness center, an on-site pharmacy and health care offices, all within an environment that offers many recreational opportunities, such as walking trails, baseball fields and volleyball courts. Now, the goal is to take the company's passion for health and wellness beyond the corporate walls, into the communities that could benefit most. The car company says it focused its message to working journalists because as leaders in their communities, they are in a unique position to educate people about health and wellness best practices.

The program is called Get Moving with Chrysler Group and has two parts, a walking challenge and an interactive "health and wellness experience" featured at the national conventions this past summer, touching more than 3,000 journalists.

During the walking challenges, several local chapters of the NABJ and NAHJ engaged in spirited competitions, as a way to earn dollars for their scholarship funds for aspiring journalists.

So can a company that makes cars come up with a way to encourage people to get out and walk? One such company has and the results are good for our health.

STUART Tolchin.....On LIFE

DO YOU HEAR THE TICKING CLOCK

It ticked in 1901, 1934, 1965, and it's beginning to tick now.

Yesterday, I was coming back from Downtown LA and got caught in some traffic. I got off the freeway and went along surface streets and somehow made the mistake of entering San Marino. San Marino, although it has the same initials as friendly Santa Monica and homey Sierra Madre, is a very different place. It is dreaded rich people land and has been that way for a very long time. The streets are structured in some maze-like way such that you can keep driving around in circles and never find your way out. For some reason (really I know the reason) my momentary confusion greatly angered me.

Sentences began entering my head. Those rich people live at a permanent party and the rest of us (all 99% of us) exist just to cater to them and clean up their messes. They are all too big to fail and break laws and ethical rules without punishment. The Banks are the worst of all as their top executives receive huge bonuses for screwing the rest of us. Look around you. We're surrounded by Bank of America, Chase Morgan, Citibank and the rest of them. The evil 1% has even taken over even the names of our Sports Stadiums and our newspapers. Every time there is a new calamity the rich manage to make more and more profit.

I could keep ranting like this but such thoughts are everywhere and yet the problems get worse. TV shows like the Bill Moyers Journal explain in awesome detail how the super -rich dominate election campaigns and control the votes of their owned and operated candidates. Programs like Jon Stewart's Daily Show and the Colbert Report and the folks on MSNBC make us all aware of the problem but really never present anything like a hopeful solution. Is there anything upbeat, any reason for hope?

I generally tape the Daily Show and didn't get around to watching it until this morning. I awoke really angry at the Dodgers for losing their fourth in a row to the second place Snakes even though the belly-crawlers had only two hits. It's strange that I am again such a rabid Dodger fan, because at first I was sickened by their wealth, then angered by their failure, but as they found a solution to their problems I jumped back onto the band wagon. It took a little magic and now I am with the Dodgers all the way. The efforts of a magical Cuban, leaving his homeland in a canoe, leaping into the ocean to save his mother and himself seems to have been the start of the solution. Who knows what starts the ball rolling but now I tape every Dodger game and expect victory.

After I reviewed the tough Dodger loss, I turned on the taped Daily Show and Robert Reich was being interviewed by Jon Stewart. Do you know who Robert Reich is? Yes, he is a Rhodes Scholar, an ex-Secretary of Labor in the Clinton Administration (that's Bill not Hillary) a professor at Berkeley, and he's a dwarf. Automatically, I guess, I believe in what Robert Reich says. Clearly nothing came easy to him and there is no doubt that he knows his stuff. When Stewart asked Reich if there was a solution to our problems, Reich said that there was a clear solution and pretty soon the inactive dysfunctional Congress would make the necessary reforms that would lessen the unacceptable differences between the lives of the super wealthy and everyone else. The solution will come from the people at the grass roots, who will begin to make it clear that they are simply not going to take it anymore.. The Occupy Movement and the demonstrations in Brazil are the tip of a global iceberg that will rise and demand change. Reich says this is exactly what happened in 1901 when the emerging class of robber-barons and billionaire industrialists attempted to dominate the Country.

Eventually, the public woke up and the Progressive Era began and the huge trusts were busted and protections were enacted. A similar thing happened in the thirties, after the Great Depression. Reacting to the demands of the People in the Street and the threat of Revolution, the New Deal Reforms were made law to save the entire system from being overthrown. In the 60's, the same thing happened again. The Country was sickened by the lies concerning Viet Nam and the continuing racial discrimination that existed and was now exposed. Solutions were found because the people woke up and demanded they be found. Reich says that we all must listen closely to hear the People of the world wake up and demand change. It will only take a little time. Maybe it will take a little magic and require some heroics like jumping into the ocean or finding a magic dwarf to spur us on. Maybe the new symbol of the world should be a huge ticking clock with numbers everyone can read. Numbers like 1901, 1934, 1965, and 201???.

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

IT'S MY MESS AND I LOVE IT

peace with one another for over 42 years. That rule is simple, "Don't mess with my space and I won't mess with your space."

I must admit some rather close calls have challenged that relationship during those years. I will not say from which side of the house it came from; just that it was not my side of the house.

It must be quite difficult for someone like the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage whom, I must confess is a neat freak, and Yours Truly who is just a plain old messy freak.

My wife cannot relax if there is something out of place. On occasion, I will catch her glancing in the direction of "my space" and I know exactly what she is thinking. I do not always know what she is thinking, because that would be very taxing on my thinking machine. I know exactly what she is thinking. She wants to clean up my mess. "Do you need any help tidying up your office?"

I know it is a ploy for her to get her organizing paws on my things and arrange them so I cannot find anything I want when I want it. Although it may not look like it to her, I am quite organized. I guess we have a different idea when it comes to

When I go to the cupboard in the kitchen, I know everything will be in its place. In the bathroom, the same thing goes. Everything is neatly put in its place. She knows where everything is and everything is where she wants it. Well, maybe not quite everything. There are those issues with

To make matters worse, she has this idea of cleaning the house on a regular basis. Do you know how annoying it is to hear the vacuum cleaner running when trying to take a nap? Like clockwork, "our" vacuum cleaner takes its weekly, if not more, run throughout the house. Do you know how much electricity it takes to do that on a weekly basis?

If I had to choose between dirt and electricity, I think of my space as actual living quarters. It may look like a mess to some Philistine, but I can assure you everything has a place and everything is in its place. I can find what I want when I want it, which is the only thing that really matters. If I cannot find what I need when I need it then I do not really need it. Life is that simple when you

In our house, we have a rule could help me organize my office space. I just that has enabled us to live at scowled at her and said, "Don't mess with my space and I won't mess with your space."

She smiled one of those sympathetic smiles she gives everyone she thinks does not know what is going on in the world. Quite frankly, I do not need to know what is going on in the world. All I need to know is what is going on in my world and I have several piles in my office I can consult on that topic.

All offers to help me tidy up "my mess" go unheeded. I like my mess because it is my mess. I made it, I am proud of it and I love it.

I have grown quite uneasy as of late. Every time I go away I come back to find some new remodeling project completed in our house. I am beginning to think she watches too much of "This Old House.'

I spent a week in California only to come home and find the kitchen completely remodeled. Now, as I think the plan was, I do not know where anything in the kitchen is. All the old cupboards have been replaced by newer and bigger cupboards.

I am afraid at this point to raise any kind of an objection. After all, we do have that "my space/ your space" policy and I really do not want to jeopardize that in any fashion.

My basic concern is this; I fear when I go for a week and come back "my space" will be so completely remodeled and organized that I will not recognize it and will not be able to find anything I need. What would I do then?

If I compliment her on her remodeling jobs, it might make her confident about doing more remodeling jobs which may spill over into "my space." Can you imagine how awful it would be? It would be a sad day if I came home from some trip and found "my mess" completely gone. What would I do with my life? I would have to start life all over again and you know how expensive that

It is tough married to a fix up guru; then again, I suppose it is just as hard to be wedded to a mess would choose dirt every time.

I have one concession in this area. David said My space is just a little bit different. I like to it so well, "Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean: wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow" (Psalms 51:7 KJV).

God specializes in cleaning up messes and preparing people like me for heaven.

serious trouble? former Rep. Barney Frank (D-MA) on "Meet The

I was struck not so much by the events of last week as I was by the reactions to them. I don't follow beauty pageants, but did take note of the reactions to the crowning of Miss New York, Nina Davuluri, as Miss America 2014. Her mother, a software engineer, and father, a gynecologist, both emigrated from India. Nina was born in Syracuse and hopes to become a cardiologist. She earned a degree in Brain Behavior and Cognitive Science from the University of Michigan, with honors including the Dean's List, National Honor Society and Michigan Merit Award. She's also proud of her heritage, and studies traditional dance in yearly visits to India.

Fox News personality Todd Starnes reacted by complaining "liberal Miss America judges" passed on Miss Kansas because she "actually represented American values". Other tweets followed: "How the fk does a foreigner win Miss America? She is a Arab!"; "Well they just picked a Muslim for Miss America. That must've made Obama happy."; "nice slap in the face to the people of 9-11 how pathetic"

"I always viewed myself as first and foremost American", responded Ms. Davuluri (neither Arab nor Muslim, as if it matters). The best response came from Stephen Colbert. Noting an observation that 705 tweets connected our new Miss America with terrorism, Colbert pointed to a smashing photo of Ms. Davaluri in a tiger-print bikini and said, "That's right. 705 people saw a woman in a bikini and thought: 'Muslim extremist." Then Colbert lost it - which rarely happens.

President Obama's garnering world-wide support for a deal to rid the Mid-East of the threat of Syrian President Assad's chemical weapons brought reactions from Republicans confirming their inability to subordinate political posturing to national security. There were charges of "weakness" and "appeasement" related to the president's deferring to Congress on the question of military force. But, as Michael Tomasky wrote in The Daily Beast, "If he'd bombed without going to Congress, they'd be drawing up articles of impeachment right now in the House."

I wrote last week how President Reagan's reaction to the deaths of 241 servicemen in the bombing of our Marine compound in Lebanon was to invade Grenada. President Bush reacted to the attacks of 9/11, with 15 of the 19 hijackers from Saudi Arabia, by launching a decade-long war in Iraq. Last week, Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-SC), who refused to back President Obama's can be the most telling request for authorization to use military force against Syria, reacted to the confirmed use of Assad's chemical weapons by calling for the authorization to use military force – against Iran.

In the wake of the shootings at the Washington D.C. Navy Yard, former Bush speechwriter David Frum predicted what the reaction of the gun-nuts would be, and in a series of tweets

"... to your question about explained the "rules" they'd be following, such those poor, beleaguered bankers as: "It is 'ghoulish' to suggest in any way that who have been forced to do so the easy availability of guns might in any way much to keep from not being able enable gun slaughter"; "All gun owners are to be to pay their debts that they can't complimented as responsible and law-abiding lend money; if they really are complimented as responsible and law-abiding until they personally have hurt themselves or somebody else"; "Any attempt to stop mass stressed that they can't do their casualty shootings is 'political'. Allowing them to basic work, why are they paying continue is 'non-political'; and "Gun ownership themselves so much money? is essential to freedom, as in Serbia & Guatemala. Where did these enormous Gun restrictions lead to tyranny, as in Australia salaries come from if they were in fact in such & Canada."

> On CNN, Piers Morgan reacted by hosting a panel to discuss Iowa's granting blind people permits to carry guns in public. (Headline in the Des Moines Register: "Sheriffs and advocates divided on whether that's a good idea.") When fellow CNN personality S.E. Cupp defended the idea as protecting "law-abiding people", Morgan reacted, "When somebody like you, with your intelligence, looks at me down the camera and says, 'blind people having guns is not an issue', I think you've gone stark raving mad."

> Reactions were strong overseas. In the U.K., Jonathan Freedland wrote in the Guardian, "America's gun disease diminishes its soft power. It makes the country seem less like a model and more like a basket case, afflicted by a pathology other nations strive to avoid." In Moscow, a Foreign Affairs chairman in the Russian Parliament reacted by gibing at President Obama's recent speech: " - a lone gunman and 7 corpses. Nobody's even surprised anymore. A clear confirmation of American exceptionalism."

> Last May, a disgruntled customer shot and killed four people in a bank in southern Israel before turning the gun on himself. The Israeli press reacted by referring to him as "an Americanstyle lone gunman."

> Last week also marked the fifth anniversary of the collapse of Lehman Brothers, which brought on the Great Recession - $14 trillion sucked from the economy; millions of Americans losing jobs, homes and retirements. Meanwhile, "too-bigto-fail" institutions got bigger, hoarding trillions and "investing" in ever-larger multi-million compensation packages, rather than in the taxpayers who bailed them out.

> The context of the opening quote was a discussion of a recent NBC / WSJ poll showing Wall Street firms getting a 14% positive and 42% negative favorability rating from the American people – of how unfair this is, with bankers having to struggle under government regulations and a sluggish recovery along with everyone else.

The reaction to Barney Frank's question about "enormous salaries" was momentary stunned silence, nervous laughter from former Treasury Secretary Hank Paulson, and host David Gregory quickly changing the subject.

Sometimes no reaction reaction of all.

SYRIA AFTERMATH GREG Welborn

Bashar Assad's exclusive interview on Fox News demonstrated two very important points: 1), as Charles Krauthammer put it, "[Assad] is very smart, extremely sophisticated, and one of the great liars of all time;" and 2) Assad, and his Russian cohorts, are not yet finished humiliating the U.S., and especially its naïve president.

Sometimes lies are difficult to unearth because they are buried amongst extraneous information, are couched in some aspects of truth, or are just such small throw-away-lines that they go unnoticed. Not so with Assad's speech. Despite the sophistication, despite the intelligence and polish, almost everything the man said was a lie.

Assad would have us believe that Syria's civil war was started by Al Qaeda type terrorists. Al Qaeda, he says, is the reason he began the war, decimated cities, killed thousands and created millions of refugees. The ugly, ugly truth is that the war began when school children in Daraa demonstrated against Assad, prompting him to torture those children, which then sparked a popular uprising. All this at least one full year before the cause was joined by anyone evenly remotely identifiable as a "terrorsist". If you doubt that, go back and read the news coverage of the kids, the torture, the uprising, and the bravery of ordinary decent Syrians. Assad further proclaimed to Fox News that for the sake of stability and peace in the region (with a nod toward the larger international community) he must eradicate the terrorists lest their ideology grow, corrupt other impressionable minds and cause further, more widespread, death. Are we really supposed to conveniently forget that Assad is the guy who supported, transported and outfitted Al Qaeda in Iraq? Were it not for Assad, the terrorist forces in Iraq would have been defeated much earlier and at a much smaller cost in American lives and treasure. Assad was, and one suspects still is, completely comfortable with murderous ideology so long as the target is wearing an American flag arm patch. Now that Al Qaeda types may have sensed some advantage in trying to take over his country for a new base of operations, he is concerned about the stability and peace of the region and the world beyond. Were it not such a masterfully audacious lie, it would be laughable.

The deeper trouble, though, is the future damage which will befall President Obama, the U.S. and ultimately the free world. Assad teased us in the interview with some of the elements he is going to raise in the negotiations surrounding the dismantling of his chemical weapons. We have the demand that the U.S. foreswear any future use of military force against Syria or there won't be any negotiations at all. Then we have all those wonderful logistical issues which almost guarantee this task won't be accomplished. Assad spoke with concern about the potential environmental and monetary costs of safely transporting and destroying chemical weapons. It was almost enough for us to believe that the world would be better off if we just left those pesky chemicals were they were. God forbid some poor hired hand tips over a jar.

Assad gently reminded us that his presence and guidance in Syria is now almost fundamental to the removal program. His protective police forces, his transportation infrastructures, his governmental agencies will all have to be coordinated to allow the inspectors to travel safely about the country, locate the stockpiles, and move them to wherever is yet to be determined a safe location. In one grand swoop, Assad went from being a "war criminal" and a "pariah" to an almost indispensable partner in this great task. Those who listened to the interview, and the after-commentaries from administration and mainstream media types, almost got the sense that Assad is our new, and equal, partner in this great cleansing task.

The further humiliation of the Obama administration is, as it has so often been, a selfinflicted wound. The President took a significant hit to his credibility when he backed down from his own red lines, but Assad offered President Obama an opportunity to recover. He only needed to be strong enough to take it. Consider the response Ronald Reagan would have delivered had he been told the agreement might not be negotiated after all, it would be totally unverifiable, and the U.S. better be prepared to compensate the aggressor for its costs. Well, we don't need to imagine; we already know the answer because Reagan went down this path. Libya's Gaddaffi tested U.S. resolve, only to see one of his presidential tents blown up, and quickly agreed to surrender his WMDs without further preconditions or delays.

President Obama once again failed to rise to his responsibilities as leader of the free world. There was no warning shot across the bow to demonstrate that this agreement is non-negotiable, will be verifiable and will be completed on the aggressor's dime. Nor was there even a forceful verbal response. The fact that his face saving agreement would be further watered down was simply accepted.

The U.S. is retreating into isolationism without truly understanding the costs. We've done this before, and the results weren't pretty. We stood down for awhile in Europe, and WWII was the result. We stood down in Vietnam, and a reign of terror and genocide engulfed the region. As we do so again, we shouldn't be surprised at what will come.
