SIERRA MADRE PARTICIPATES IN GREAT CALIFORNIA SHAKEOUT

By Marina Coco La Salle

The city of Sierra Madre's first responders were among those who participated in this week's Great California ShakeOut experience, which took place at Alverno High School Thursday, October 17. Since California is one of the top states with the most earthquakes, the need for preparedness is high.

The Great California ShakeOut is the largest earthquake drill in US History with 9.6 million participants in California and 3,846,509 participants in Los Angeles County alone. The numerous crisscrossing faults located in Southern California makes L.A. County highly susceptible to earthquakes and earthquake related effects. Scientists know that when it comes to earthquakes in California, it's not a matter of if, but when? With people making long trips across the San Andreas Fault daily to get to and from work, you could be anywhere when the next disastrous earthquake strikes. Whether it is on your way to work, at home, at school, or on vacation an earthquake can strike and in order to keep safe many need to be properly informed as to what they do afterwards.

What we do now is what will determine the quality of life we live after a major natural disaster strikes. The Earthquake Country Alliance is the organization that puts together this ShakeOut annually. They believe that this is the perfect opportunity for people to practice how to be safer when disaster hits. Their motto to help people remember what to do is, "Drop, Cover, and Hold On." This program not only prepares participants to know what to do when an event like this occurs, but they help communities, schools, and organizations create emergency plans, collect supplies, and secure safe spaces.

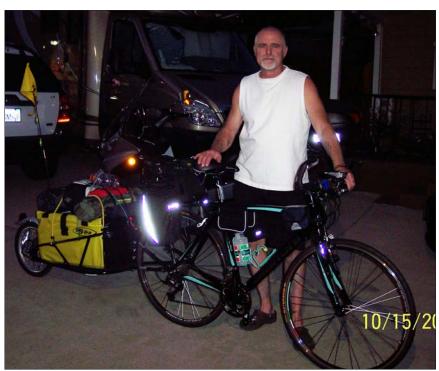

Among the Sierra Madre first responders that participated were the Police Officers, Fire Fighters, Community Emergency Response Teams, Volunteers, and the Emergency Communication Team. The help of all those who participated is what makes this annual event so important. The residents of Sierra Madre should feel safer knowing that so many members of their community are properly trained and prepared to help us all in the event of this type of emergency.

COAST TO COAST FOR COURAGE

Sierra Madre Veteran Jerry Poole and fellow veteran, Pasadena Resident Mike King begin a personal journey to support the Wounded Warriors Project

by Susan Henderson

On Wednesday, October 16, 2013, Jerry Poole and Mike King set started on a courageous journey to support a cause near and dear to their hearts. The men began a 3,000 mile bicycle journey from Sierra Madre, California to Key West, Florida in order to raise money for, and bring attention to the Wounded Warrior project. They intend to bike 50 miles per day and should arrive in a little less than two

Their goal is to raise $10,000 and just in the few days since they left, they have met some very nice people along the way. One of them bought them lunch, another stopped to give them a donation, and another from a local bicycle store brought them tire tubes. When he learned what they were raising money for, they even discounted the price of the dozen tire tubes they purchased.

The duo camped out east of Yucaipa Thursday night, and the moon made a good night light. It was 51 degrees these components were threatened by when they awoke.

Jerry's wife, Vicki, has been in telephone communication several times since the duo rolled out of town. After the first full day of traveling, theywere challenged with numerous flat tires and other adjustments. They said that the ride from home to Banning and Palm Springs is their "trial run," where they will hopefully find out what will work more efficiently.

Just before press time, Vicki spoke with Jerry and got an update on their travels Friday. There were more flat tires and they traveled all uphill with both of them pulling trailers. On Saturday they will have another three miles to climb uphill, but the good part is it's downhill after that.

Jerry Poole served four years active duty in the U.S. Army and then the balance of 25 years in the Army National Guard. He retired with the rank of Major.

Mike was in the U.S. Marines and served two tours of duty in Vietnam. Both men have a deeply rooted concern for the plight of veterans today and decided that this effort would help bring attention to the Wounded War-riors Project and their fellow veterans in need.

The Wounded Warrior Project® is committed to serving wounded veterans of this generation that bear both the visible and invisible wounds of wars from burns and amputations, traumatic brain injuries and paralysis, to combat stress, post-traumatic stress disorder and depression. Continuity and consistency of care are impor-tant components of their recovery and the government's inaction. Every day the shutdown continued, it diverted attention from important areas of veterans care that require our immediate focus and attention including access to mental health care, the now increased backlog of claims and other issues of long-term care.

If you would like to support their efforts, please go to the link below and make a donation to WWP in the name of their Ride: Coast To Coast For Courage.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE..... THE SOCIAL SIDE By Deanne Davis

As Charlie Brown's friend, Linus, would say, "This may be the year the Great Pumpkin rises out of the pumpkin patch to bring us all wonderful presents!"

Pumpkins are more than just a squash, dear Sierra Madreans, they are a state of mind. Here we are, two weeks away from Halloween, and everywhere we look as we wander 'round the town we see pumpkins! We're seeing witches, zombies, ghosts, and giant spiders, too, but the pumpkins are our favorites. Real ones tucked among flowers or stacked on front porches; and really cool fake ones with scary faces, leering faces, and some happy ones who look very much like they've been sampling the cooking sherry! And the lights! Oh my! Orange ones, purple ones, lights inside skulls, lights inside skeletons. We are such a creative bunch here.

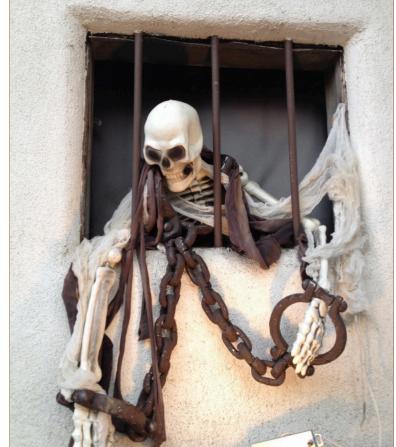

This past Saturday we, the adorable John and I, joined a number of friends, family and neighbors to say our last goodbyes and share just a few more great stories about Doug Sutcliffe. In case you didn't know, Doug was one of the guys who, along with Bud Switzer, was the originating spirit of Halloween on Alegria Avenue. Doug, a brilliant engineer and machinist, had Dracula rising out of his coffin, flying ghosts, his daughter, Lynn, in a marvelous witch outfit, with green face and hands, shrieking with witchy laughter on the roof of their front porch. Doug, in his quiet way was, just generally, having a great time, year after year as ghoulish ghosties crowded his lawn and little kids kinda didn't want to get too close. Doug and David Blakeslee, another Halloween creator, dear friend and neighbor just a couple of doors down, are together again and will be watching the thousands of big and little kids who will be trick or treating this year on their street.

Like Bud Switzer, the pumpkin carving artist beyond compare, I now look at every pumpkin with an eye toward what it could be to reach its true destiny. This one could have a happy grin and maybe a few crooked teeth. That one could be a sad, droopy-eyed guy with big eyebrows. This enormous one could be Cinderella's coach. That one with the funny lump could be Quasimodo. It's all in how you look at it. This year, as we walk the street and admire how creative a picture, too. When you've created a masterpiece, you need to our neighbors are, we will send a smile heavenward and think good thoughts of Doug and David who did so many amazingly creative things to make Halloween one of the major good times in our lives.

Hey! When you're carving your pumpkin this year, see just how out of the box you can make it. After all, pumpkins are much more A Cornish Prayer document it.

"From ghoulies and ghosties and long-leggety beasties and things that go bump in the night, Good Lord, deliver us!

HELP END POLIO NOW

By Marina Coco La Salle

On Saturday, October 26, 2013 the Rotary Club of Sierra Madre and the Interact Club will be walking in hopes of raising funds for the eradication of Polio. In 1979, this group began their work by vaccinating children in the Philippines. Since then, the group has been working hard to eliminate Polio. Their efforts helped reduce polio cases by 99 percent worldwide, but they still need help.

The fundraising goal is $10,000 for the day. Thanks to the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, every $1 raised by various clubs will be matched by a $3 contribution by the foundation. There are multiple ways to contribute to the cause. People can donate cash or checks at the event or mail checks to PO Box 863, Sierra Madre, CA 91025. Be sure to make checks out to District 5300 and write Polio Walk in the notes section. Those interested in walking can join the group at 9 A.M. in Kersting Court.

Rotarians have been able to help immunize children around the world. With the donations and efforts of others, many can help make a difference and fight for their cause. Every dollar counts. Just making a small donation can help a child against this crippling disease for their entire life.

PCC Extends President Rocha's Contract

At its meeting earlier this month, the Pasadena Area Community College District Board of Trustees voted unanimously to extend the contract of Dr. Mark Rocha, Superintendent-President, to June 30, 2017. Dr. Rocha was first appointed as Superintendent-President of Pasadena City College on July

"This will insure that we will have Rocha's effective leadership through our reaccreditations effort, the full implementation of our Educational Master Plan and the development of our facilities Centennial Master Plan," said Board President, John Martin. "The entire Board is grateful to Dr. Rocha for guiding PCC safely through the state budget crisis and maintaining PCC's high student success outcomes."

During Dr. Rocha's tenure, the PCC Foundation has raised over $7 million in private donations for student scholarships and has been awarded over $26 million in external grants. Last year, Pasadena City College won the State Chancellor's Award for Student Success for its innovative First Year Experience Pathways Program that has significantly increased student retention and persistence and has grown to serve over 1,500 students. "I am very grateful to the Board for its support, and the opportunity to serve Pasadena City College," said Rocha. I am more optimistic and hopeful about PCC's future than ever." The Board also granted the superintendent-president the same pay raise of 4.79% over two years recently approved by the Board for all classified staff and administrators. The Board has also offered a pay raise to the faculty. Negotiations on a new contract continue with the PCC Faculty Association, collective bargaining representative of PCC teachers.

Local Institutions Take Part in Shakeout

Caltech students and faculty joined the millions of people who practiced Drop, Cover, and Hold On, Thursday during the Great California ShakeOut earthquake drill.

More than 10 million people worldwide were estimated to have taken part in the 10:17 a.m. exercise designed as a way to help prepared people to survive and recover quickly from big earthquakes.

"We sent out a message to the entire campus community inviting them to drop, cover and hold," Jim Cowell, Incident Commander and Vice President of Facilities for Caltech, said. "Classrooms, offices, wherever they happen to be, you get under a desk, table or some kind of solid object and you stay there until the earthquake is over."

Cowell said the idea is to protect oneself from falling debris and glass.

He said there were a high percentage of people at Caltech that understand the background earthquake, behind an "obviously Caltech was the place where the Richter Magnitude Scale was invented, and obviously we have the seismo

"What's Going On?"
News and Views from Joan Schmidt

AT 83, DOLORES HUERTA, "SI SE PUEDE" "WOWS" CITRUS COLLEGE STUDENTS By Joan Schmidt

Her address probably lasted over an hour, but the entire audience in the standing room only Campus Center at Citrus College was mesmerized and inspired by one great lady-Dolores Huerta. How could this tiny bundle of energy be 83 years old and mother of eleven children still be going strong?

Dolores' life began in New Mexico, and when she was young, her parents divorced. Her mom, Dolores and her two brothers relocated to Stockton, where she grew up. Her mom was a compassionate hard worker, who held two jobs so there could be scouts and violin lessons for her children. Her mother eventually purchased a hotel and provided affordable housing for workers. Sometimes even for free if they had no money. (Working tirelessly and compassion were two great traits Dolores acquired from her mother.)

Dolores Huerta and Joan Schmidt

Dolores went to college, but a brief marriage and birth of two children interrupted her studies. She returned to college, earned a degree and began her career as an elementary school teacher. It upset Dolores that many of her students came to school hungry and in need of shoes, so she quit teaching and sought ways to help others.

In 1955, she was recruited by Fred Ross to work in the Community Service Organization (CSO). This group labored against segregation, discrimination and police brutality and promoted voter registration. During this period, Dolores met her second husband, Ventura Huerta, another farm laborer activist and they had five children. (This marriage also ended in divorce.) While working at CSO, Dolores met Caesar Chavez, who was the SCO's national director. They shared a concern for the plight of farm workers, and in 1962, Caesar suggested that the CSO expand to include farm workers, but this request was denied. Using Delano as a base, Caesar and Dolores Huerta with the aid of Gilbert Padilla formed the Farm Workers Association, which would become the United Farm Workers Union (UFW). In those days, Caesar and Dolores were a great team, he a great leader/ speaker, and she a great organizer/negotiator. In the 1960s and 1970s, Dolores was instrumental in the Unions' many successes including the strikes.

Dolores had never stopped working. After she stepped down from her position at the UFW, she has continued to work to improve the lives of farmers, workers and women. In 1993, she was inducted into the National Women's Hall of Fame for her tireless work. In 2002, she received the Puffin Foundation/Nation Institute Award for Creative Citizenship. With the $100,000 given with the Award, she founded the Dolores Huerta Foundation, whose purpose is to bring organizing/training skills to low-income communities. The Foundation hires organizers to go out into a community. These organizers form groups who march, contact local officials and do all that is necessary to improve living conditions.

When Dolores addressed Citrus students, she spoke of the importance of Immigration Reform and the stalemate over the budget. She asked who knew who their legislators in Congress were and if they had contacted their legislators. She emphasized the importance of using our voices to be heard and of voting. There are 6million Latinos not voting who are eligible. Usually only 50% of all registered voters actually vote which is really sad.

Dolores had eleven children, and all of them learned to work. One is an attorney and one a physician. Two daughters work with the foundation. Dolores spoke of her work with Caesar Chavez and the boycott of grapes in 1988. (She is still not satisfied with spraying regulations and advised us only to buy organic fruit/vegetables.) She spoke of improvements in the Bakersfield are-18 streets now have sidewalks and gutters and there are 2 community pools.

On May 29, 2012, President Obama awarded Dolores the Presidential Medal of Freedom. This seems appropriate as Dolores continues to work for others' freedoms and rights.

HALLOWEEN: Dealing With Our Fears

By Christoper Nyerges

[Nyerges is the author of Extreme Simplicity, How To Survive Anywhere, and Guide to Wild Foods. He has led outdoor field trips since 1974. He can be reached at Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041, or www.ChristopherNyerges.com.]

The month of Hallowe'en is upon us, the time when Sierra Madre residents start to think about the roots of this holiday, and its traditional theme of fear.

Is there, as Roosevelt once said, nothing to fear but fear itself? There are certainly many troubles in the land, from war and rumors of war, terrorists, economic fears, nuclear concerns, genetically-modified, electronic surveillance and a government that's no longer trusted by its people. Lots to fear, right?

Well, perhaps Roosevelt was right. Fear is not the best method for handling a troublesome world. But if not fear, how does one respond to a world whose seams are unraveling? Is there hope in the Halloween season?

When I think of my ignorance of childhood, I realize that my fears drove me. Sometimes that was a good thing, and sometimes not. Fear kept me away from certain people, and away from certain neighborhoods. Fear got me into trouble, but it also kept me out of trouble because of fearing the consequences of what I was contemplating doing.

Hallowe'en is one of our ancient commemorations. Its roots go back to the ancient Celts, who had six significant fire ceremonies during the year, one of which was Samhain, the last day in October. (Originally, Samhain was celebrated from October 31 through November 2). The Feast of Samhain (meaning "summer's end"), marked both their Feast of the Dead and the Celtic New Year. This time of the year, half way between the autumnal equinox and the winter solstice, was a time of decay and death on the earth. This was especially apparent in Western Europe, when the temperatures dropped and the rains fell. Take a walk in the woods or fields and you smell the decay of rotting leaves and fungus. Samhain ushered in the darkest and most barren time of the year. It was a time when the spirits of the recently departed – as well as other disincarnate entities -- were believed to be out and about, with easier access to humans. There was much to fear, no?

Back in the day when there were no modern technological wonders, no Federal Reserve and central banking, no modern drugs and Obamacare, no IRS and no ATMs. This was the day when huge fires and even fire sacrifices were made in the belief that they'd protect the crops and flocks from demonic influence.

Historically, Hallowe'en had to do with the dead, with ghosts, with spirits.

The practice of putting food out to appease the ghosts so that they'd go back to their ghostly realms has morphed into children and adults dressing up unwittingly as the proxies of the ghosts and spirits, and threatening tricks if no treats are given.

It may seem like an ignorant way to deal with fears, but it likely seemed very pragmatic way

It may seem like an ignorant way to deal with fears, but it likely seemed very pragmatic way back when.

I feared the darkness as a child, and the things that lived under my bed and in the closet. I feared the creatures that peeked in my window at night and the boogie man who roamed our streets. As I grew older, I feared police and authority, and the inexplicable "establishment" and the abstract evil people.

Perhaps I was lucky in finding a way to deal with my fears. As a long-standing Halloween tradition, the folks at the Los Angeles-based non-profit WTI [www.wtinc.info] showed me that to conquer your fears, you must identify them, face them, and go into them. This was done in various ways, sometimes by watching and discussing an insightful movie, such as Nosferatu, both the original and the 1978 Klaus Kinsie version. We gathered with large bowls of popcorn, and other refreshments, and explored the nature of fear. We remained focused on finding the science within that movie as to how to deal with our own inner fears.

Additionally "Nosferatu" provides a pictorial view of how each of us succumb to our weaknesses, and

Additionally, "Nosferatu" provides a pictorial view of how each of us succumb to our weaknesses, and how we "become someone else." There's no need to couch any of this in religious terms, or guilt. We looked at the movie as a symbolic depiction of one of the ways in which our world actually operates. We looked at the movie as a symbol for our daily life, and we explored the many ways in which we should protect ourselves from the myriad "bloodsuckers" that seem to surround us in modern life.

It occurred to me, in retrospect, that I faced and overcame fears in my own ways too. As I child, there was the day I forced myself to look under the bed. Wow! Nothing was there, and I went back to sleep. There were the days when I forced myself to confront the older boys who I thought were thugs or criminals. Lo and behold, they had their own fears and insecurities, and weren't that different from me. I learned, as Peter Suzuki has taught us, that once we begin thinking we may discover that what we thought was an enemy is actually a friend.

Fears exist in the abstract, and they stay alive if we keep them there. If we identify the fear, Fears exist in the abstract, and they stay alive if we keep them there. If we identify the fear, we can take some action to deal with it, and by so doing, we discover a greater part of ourself, and we discover a new part of the world, and we might even make a new friend.

TEMPLE STATION'S AWESOME VOLUNTEER SQUAD AND HONORING THE BLESSED MOTHER

By Joan Schmidt

Some years back, Annunciation Parish began a special Procession honoring the Blessed Mother, close to "October 7", the feast of Our Lady of the Rosary. The Procession begins at Annunciation Church, proceeds north on Peck Road, east on Camino Real, South on Myrtle and west on Longden, back to the Church.

Four men carry the statue of "Our Lady of Fatima" who appeared to the three children, Lucia, and her cousins Jacinta and Francisco in 1916 in Portugal and urged people to pray the rosary. Jacinta and Francisco died in 1918, but Lucia lived a long life as a cloistered nun and died on February 13, 2005 at the age of 97.

Behind the statue, walked the Pastor Father Eugene Herbert and many parishioners. As they walked, they prayed the rosary and carried two banners. I observed two white Temple Sheriff's Station"Volunteers on Patrol" vehicles-one leading the procession and one at the end. I arrived at the Church the same time as Deputy April Nelson in a patrol unit, just as the Procession was finishing and ending at the Church. I commented that the volunteers were on scene, where as last year, there had been two patrol units. Because of cutbacks, there is less man power. Also a priority situation arise which the deputies had to respond to. If these two "Volunteer on Patrol" units were not available, there would have been no accompaniment on the procession! Perhaps that's possible on Peck Road. However, Myrtle Avenue's speed is 40mph which mean 45+! Father Eugene, Annunciation parishioners and I are MOST GRATEFUL to these fine volunteers. I don't believe people realize what a tremendous help they are. Deputy Nelson just reiterated what I said, and how invaluable they are to Temple Station! Thank you, Volunteers on Patrol!

Happy 50th Anniversary, MAFA!

By Joan Schmidt

"MAFA", the Monrovia Association of Fine Arts is an all-volunteer nonprofit organization whose key goals are to promote local artists and provide mentoring opportunities to encourage our young people to experience art and hopefully develop the future leadership of MAFA. This past weekend, MAFA had a great festival and marked their 50th Anniversary at Monrovia's Library Park. There were so many great display booths, which featured all kinds of paintings, photography, screen painting, different types of handcrafted jewelry, rock displays, pottery and much more. Throughout the day there was great entertainment. When I arrived, Centre Stage young girls performed various hits, danced and used hula hoops for a number. When I left to continue distributing newspapers, a Folklorio ensemble was entering the Park and they were accompanied by some musicians. There also were arts and crafts for all ages, an authors' section in cooperation with the Friends of the Monrovia Library, and a silent auction to raise funding. It was a great event to celebrate and to support a great organization. Please visit www.monroviafinearts.org for more information.

TIP OF THE WEEK

Red Ribbon Week Reminds Parents to Talk to Your Kids About Drugs

October 23 through 31, the Monrovia Police Department will celebrate Red Ribbon Week 2013. Red Ribbon Week is a national campaign to raise awareness about substance abuse among our youth and our communities. In 1985, DEA Agent Enrique, "Kiki," Camarena was murdered by a drug cartel. To honor his memory and to show support that we will continue the fight against illegal drugs, Monrovia Police Officers will wear red ribbons and red bracelets as part of our uniform to support the fight against illegal drugs, alcohol, and tobacco use.

Parents are the most powerful influence in a child's life in preventing drug use, alcohol use, and other risking behavior. Talk to your children early about drugs before they become involved. Be involved in their lives, keep them occupied with activities, spend time with them, and know who their friends are. Drug abuse can start at a very young age, so you need to know who your children are with at all times. LA SALLE HIGH SCHOOL OPEN HOUSE NOVEMBER 3

Pasadena, CA – Open House at La Salle High School is Sunday, November 3, from 12:00 to 2:30pm. The entire family of all prospective students are invited to tour the campus, meet teachers and students and enjoy presentations by the La Salle band, drama club, Student Life, the Parent Association and numerous other clubs and organizations. La Salle High School is a college preparatory, co-educational, Catholic institution, located in Northeast Pasadena on a ten-acre campus with surroundings conducive to learning and to becoming a member of the Lasallian family.

As La Salle High School began its 57th year of academic excellence, nearly 700 students returned to school to enjoy an exciting year.

"We believe the education we deliver to our students is of the highest quality, offering a very broad and deep academic program with 15 AP courses and 14 Honors classes. We field 22 varsity sports teams along with an extensive visual and performing arts curriculum, honor and service societies, student clubs and organizations, student television broadcasts and student publications as well as a very inclusive Student Life program. We provide a healthy, safe and warm community atmosphere for all our students steeped in the Lasallian traditions of educational excellence," said Brother Christopher Brady, FSC, La Salle's principal.

La Salle is proud to be a Lasallian School - an educational institution that draws its philosophy and inspiration from the Christian Brothers whose reputation for excellence in education extends back to 1680. "Our nurturing environment, developed from a 350-year Christian Brothers' educational tradition continues today. We strive to carry out the Mission established by our founder, Saint John Baptist De La Salle, 'to give a human and Christian education to the young, especially the poor,'" said Brother Christopher.

La Salle's curriculum pursues a rigorous balance between college preparatory courses, religious education and enrichment opportunities. It is also committed to a values-based preparation for college that flows from a commitment to religious principles. Service learning is built into the curriculum during each of the four years. During the last five years, 99.5% of La Salle graduates have gone on to college with nearly 90% going to four-year institutions.

La Salle is accredited by the Western Catholic Education Association (WECA) and Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC).

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show CAPTAIN PHILLIPS

After 'Gravity' came out, the film world was left waiting for the next great movie. When I discovered that 'Captain Phillips' was coming out the weekend after the blockbuster success, I was a little worried. The trailers for the new Tom Hanks movie looked amazing and I thought that the world would be too focused on the Sandra Bullock and George Clooney powerhouse to notice 'Captain Phillips'. Luckily, I was

Captain Richard Phillips (Tom Hanks) was just going to another routine job: captaining a freighter full of supplies around the South African coast. About halfway through the perilous trip, a small group of pirates boards the ship and takes control. Captain Phillips desperately tries to call for help but when no one comes, the situation turns into a power struggle that may end in a deadly confrontation.

While 'Gravity' was amazing at building suspense, 'Captain Phillips' does it even better. The movie not only shows the perspective of the crew and the captain, but it also shows the pirates' point of view and, in the end, you even feel bad for them. I would recommend this movie to everyone, whether you like this type of movie or not, because this is one of the most amazingly made movies of the year.

FOOD & DRINK

I MUST be living right! How else would I get an invitation to check out The Royce, the steak house at the Langham in Pasadena? I'll call it an offer that no one should refuse! Upon walking in you will pass through their wine cellar, once seated, my server invited me to take a quick tour of the "wine cave". Their complete wine list is so extensive that you would need all night to get through this dissertation! Lucky for me, on the other side of the menu, there were suggested wines that best compliment the current menu, well over twenty wines by the glass. While waiting for my dinner companion, I selected a Nicolas Feuillatte Champagne, ($20); my server brought the whole bottle over and opened it at the table, another nice touch, no reason for this critic to ask, "Is it fresh or not". While sipping my pre-meal bubbly I took note of the incredible view of the acres of horseshoe gardens at the Langham, the tables are set up very smartly in half booths with pillows and seats on one side, very Manhattan-chic, I must say.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

Steakhouses, in general, or "upper crest" Steakhouses in general, often follow the same pattern: great steaks, a la carte appetizers and vegetables. The prices at the Royce seemed to fall in line with other houses such as Arnie Morton's,

The Palm and Mastro's. My objective was to ask as many questions that I possibly could, the most important being; "what's the difference between The Royce, and all the other aforementioned special occasion steakhouse? Getting past the fantastic view, and the so far great service, I wanted to get to the "meat of the matter", yes I went there! Chef Perry Pollaci, pointed out the obvious, the Prime Cuts are from the Moyer farm in Pennsylvania and are all grain fed, (grain fed didn't start until after WWII) I was impressed. The chef insisted that I try the Rib Eye hailing from just north of us in Brawley Ca. All natural, and all cooked on a wood fire over white oak. Hmm... now, we're talking!

General manager Matt Nathanson explained that there are many restaurants that use a double broiler to cook steaks, but only a handful who have mastered the art of wood fired grill. The result was fabulous, and cooked to perfection; I kept my knife and my fork moving as if I had discovered gold. In addition, a Porterhouse 32oz steak is big enough to share. For you seafood lovers, GM Matt Nathanson told me that the Grilled Hawaiian Swordfish was a so fresh, it might just kiss you back!

Working backwards to go forward, the appetizers are on the same level as the entrees, I was extremely pleased with Dungeness Crab Cakes ($18), remember I'm from Maryland, and am able to spot an impersonator at 50 paces! This Dungeness Crab Cake passed the Dills test with flying colors! The Maine Lobster Bisque ($12) was full of lobster meat; in fact, I shamelessly asked the waiter did he put in extra just for me? "No, that's how it comes" The star of stars was the Wagyu Beef Carpaccio ($18) simply great, and if I hadn't ordered two other appetizers, I would have asked for seconds. For Vegetables, we shared the truffled spinach, and our potatoes were hand cut French fries ($7) yes, hand cut just like Islands does them! While these showed promise, I would've liked to have seen a traditional French cut, these were just too short. However, all and all a fantastic dinner with wonderful service. My final question to The Royce was... "How's Business"? Matt replied, "while we have always been proud of our previous restaurants and award-winning chefs, we now have a steak house that we are happy to share with our guests and day visitors alike, In other words great!!!'

Fun little tidbits: All bread is delivered each morning fresh from the La Brea Bakery. There is an Ace Spades Champagne for $600, never had it, would love to. No room for dessert, we were stuffed. Closed Mondays. Dills Grade: B+

INGREDIENTS

Kosher salt

6 slices bacon, diced

- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 green bell pepper, chopped
- 1/4 cup all-purpose flour 2 tablespoons paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon dried marjoram
- 1 1/2 pounds skinless, boneless chicken thighs, cut in half
- 2 cups low-sodium chicken broth
- 8 ounces egg noodles
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley

DIRECTIONS

Bring a pot of salted water to a boil. Meanwhile, cook the bacon in a separate pot over medium heat, 2 minutes. Add the onion and bell pepper and cook 3 more minutes. Combine the flour, paprika, marjoram and 1 teaspoon salt in a large bowl; add the chicken and toss to coat.

Push the bacon and vegetables to one side of the pot and increase the heat to medium high. Add the chicken and any remaining flour mixture to the other side and cook, turning, until browned, about 6 minutes. Stir together the chicken, bacon and vegetables and cook 2 more minutes. Add the chicken broth and bring to a boil. Stir, then reduce the heat to medium low. Cover and simmer until the chicken is almost cooked through, about 10 more minutes. Meanwhile, add the noodles to the boiling water and cook as the label directs; drain.

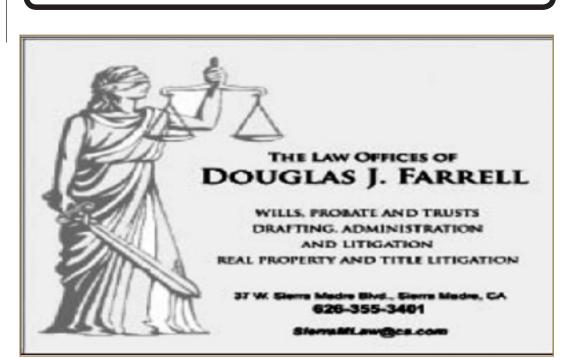

Uncover the pot with the chicken, increase the heat to high and cook 2 minutes. Reduce the heat to low, stir in the sour cream and parsley and cook 2 more minutes. Season with salt. Serve over the noodles.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

Most of the pets I have owned throughout my life have been mixed breeds or what some like to call "mutts", which is actually quite appropriate considering the fact that I myself come from a very eclectic genetic line of ancestry. I do not have a problem with so-called "mutts" beause, more often than not, mixed breeds are less apt to have the physical conditions and inherent diseases that the earth, and because of that she is not the most social creature you will ever meet, yet her body refuses to cooperate with the tiara she thinks she's

Although I would never breed dogs intentionally myself, I do appreciate what is considered to be "art form" of breeding the "ideal specimen" of a given species and I enjoy seeing a dog whose traits, marks and characteristics fit the need for a specific purpose. Furthermore, most pure bred dogs seem to enjoy pleasing their masters by performing the "job" for which they were bred.

In spite of the social and health challenges I quite successful at show, however at the age of 1 ½ any other dog I have ever owned.

Like I said, most pets of mine have been "combospawn"; the result of a neighboring dog jumping the fence and having his way with the dog next door, or an adoption through a local SPCA agency. I have never before owned a dog that required so many trips to the vet, but Tatertotts is a major part of my life, so she is definitely worth it. Fortunately, I have an excellent veterinarian whom I trust with regard to Tater's health needs. Dr. Sylvia Domotor (Animal House in Monrovia) has been a godsend. She is knowledgeable about the unique needs of a bloodhound, and she cuts right to the chase with

What surprised me most, was to find out that the majority of Tater's symptoms are related to allergic reactions! At first I had a hard time understanding that the dark goop growing in her ears, and the odd blotchy spots that sometimes appear on the surface of her under belly and between the massive folds of skin beneath her neck are the result of allergies. It seemed so foreign of a concept to me. However, now that I know what the problem is, I can get proper treatment to control it, and avoid more chronic conditions that may occur otherwise.

What I have also come to know is that allergies are apparently very common among dogs, skin reactions are the most common symptoms, and certain breeds are more susceptible than others. Many allergens that effect dogs are the same ones that effect humans. To help identify and control symptoms, dog allergies are often categorized as inhalant, food, or parasite-related.

Like humans, dogs can be allergic to air-borne particles that cause reactions such as sneezing, coughing, runny nose and watery eyes. Allergic reactions to certain foods are also common for the canine, and as most of us know all too well, parasites such as fleas and mites can cause chronic skin problems for our beloved pets. There are some home remedies for dog allergy symptoms, and fortunately veterinarians are well prepared to treat symptoms that cannot be remedied at home.

Antihistamines found in the pharmacy aisle of our local grocery store can be efficient in treating some dog allergies. Common sense also tells us that when an allergen is removed from the dog's environment, symptoms will decrease, so keeping the dog indoors when airborne pollen is potentially high can make a huge difference. Laundering the dog's bedding and bathing the dog on a regular basis also helps. Be sure to use a mild, non-caustic soap product and take dry the dog off vell afterwards.

As for food allergies, most reactions are due to wheat or gluten ingredients used as fillers in dog food products. Check the label on the package, and try to stick with products that show meat as the main ingredient, versus grains or other fillers. If your dog continues to show symptoms of allergic reaction, consult your veterinarian in a timely manner. The good side of the story is the fact that when a pet is not feeling well, it doesn't mean he is actually sick. It may just be a reaction to an allergen in his environment, and something that is easily remedied. Keep a close eye on your canine companion, and if you do detect symptoms, hopefully you will be as surprised as I was to find out it's just an allergy that can be easily treated!

Whatever breed of pet you may own, please remember that it is not their fault if they foster health problems or social issues. Our domestic pets are the salt of the earth, in my opinion, and we humans must come to grips with the fact that if they have problems, it is most likely because we caused them. For that reason we must also take responsibility by getting them the proper treatment and giving them lots of love and attention to help them overcome the challenges they contend with. And of course, above all, remember we humans are the ones who can make a difference in the lives of all living things. Don't forget to love and let live!

seem to prevail in the health of a pure bred. However, it just so happens that my current closest canine companion, Tatertotts, is indeed a pure bred bloodhound, born of parents who come from a long line of blue-blood sire hounds, with a tight English family tree that traces all the way back to the turn of the 20th century. In jest, I call Tater an "in-bred re-tread", mostly because she was born with some really strong behavioral traits, and she struggles with some intense ear and eye health issues that are all clearly inherent to her line of inbreeding. I call her that as a term of endearment, and by no means do I mean it as an insult, because I love her with all my heart. Let's put it this way, that bitch thinks she is the only dog on the face of face with my dog, when I look at her I can't help thinking how gorgeous she is and how fortunate I am to have her. I adopted Tater from a breeder/ handler who bred her for the show ring. One of 4 siblings, Tater's brothers and sister were apparently years, when Tater proved less-than-promising for winning "best-in-show", the owner was forced to give her up. Lucky me! Tatertotts is different from

RV TRAVEL TIPS FOR BEGINNERS

Dear Savvy Senior:

Can you write a column on RV travel for beginners? My husband and I will be retiring in a few years and have always thought it would be fun to spend some of our time traveling around the country in an RV. What can you tell us? Réady to Retire

Dear Ready:

The affordability, combined with the comfort, convenience and personal freedom it offers has made recreational vehicle (RV) travel immensely popular among retirees over the past decade.

According to the Recreational Vehicle Industry Association, there are approximately 35 million RV enthusiasts in the U.S., including a growing number of baby boomers.

Some of the reasons RVing has become so popular is because of the freedom and flexibility it offers to come and go as you please. If you like where you're at, you can stay put. Or, if your feet get itchy you pack up and move on.

Another popular aspect among retirees is following the seasons. Snowbirds, for example, like to travel south for the winter, while southerners migrate north during the hot summer months.

RVing is also a very affordable way to go. Even considering ownership or rental costs, RV travel is cheaper than traveling by car, plane or train - especially when you factor in lodging and restaurant

Most people, when they think of RVs, think of huge motorhomes, but RVs run the gamut from folding camping trailers and truck campers, to travel trailers and large motorized RVs.

Cost, too, will range from as little as $4,000 for pop-up campers all the way up to $1.5 million for luxurious motorhomes. To learn more about RV options, check out gorving.com, a resource created by the RV travel industry that breaks down all the different types of RVs available today, along with various videos and other RV information.

The best way to ease into RV travel and find out if you like it is to rent. Renting can also help you determine which type of RV best suits your needs. Rental costs will vary greatly depending on what you choose, but you can expect to pay anywhere from $30 up to $300 per day. To locate one of the 500 or so RV rental outlets around the country check your yellow pages under "Recreation Vehicle" or search The National RV Dealers Association website at rvda.org.

With around 14,600 public and privately owned RV parks or campgrounds across the country (see gocampingamerica.com and trailerlifedirectory.com), RVers can roam coast-to-coast with no shortage of places to stop, or options to choose from.

Most RV parks are open to all comers and rent spaces on a nightly or weekly basis, much like a motel or hotel, with rates typically ranging from $15 to $50 per night, however some in city and country parks may be $10 or even free.

RV parks can also range from rustic facilities with limited or no utility hookups, as are more often found in state and national parks, to luxury resorts with amenities that rival fine hotels.

To research RV campgrounds, get a copy of the "Good Sam RV Travel Guide & Campground Directory" for $10 at goodsamclub.com/publications, or call 866-205-7451. This guide breaks down what each campsite offers, along with their policies and costs, and a rating system. Also see rvbookstore. com for dozens of books and DVDs about RVs and the RV lifestyle.

There are also a number of RV clubs you can join, like the Good Sam Club (goodsamclub.com), that provide member discounts on parks and campgrounds, travel guides, fuel and propane, roadside assistance and more. Passport America (passportamerica.com) is another popular club that gives 50 percent discounts on more than 1,800 campsites across the U.S., Canada and Mexico.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior. org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

KATIE Tse.....This and That

CRIME, BEAUTIFUL HOMES & CHEAP SHOES.....

By now you're probably familiar with the theft epidemic spreading throughout our community. Every week the local crime blotter chronicles more cases of break-ins, whether it's from homes or vehicles. At least there haven't been any incidents of mugging, but we don't want to give the criminals

There are many precautions one can take to protect your home or car from break-ins. Don't leave your doors or windows unlocked. Don't store valuables in plain sight in your car. And try to avoid shipping anything you've ordered to your home, unless there will be someone there to receive it (other than crooks, that is).

It was this last one that got me worried. I ordered two pairs of shoes from Payless without really thinking about the whole don't-have-stuff-shipped-to-your-home thing. At the time, my thoughts were centered on my strong distaste for clothes shopping. I merrily clicked the "submit your order" button and forgot all about it. But after a couple of weeks, I started worrying that perhaps someone had lifted the package from my porch. Darn! Criminals must be pretty desperate if they're nabbing cheap Payless shoes. I vowed to be more cautious in the future.

While many people's response to crime is reactionary, (e.g., I lost my shoes, so I'll be more careful next time), some are taking proactive measures. My parents, and everyone else on their street, have our neighbors, Steve and Suzanne, to thank for taking up the role of block captains.

Their first meeting was held at a neighbor's house. Both my parents were invited. However, my Dad considered that, if everyone who was invited actually went, and if the criminals came across a copy of the invitation flier, they'd know there'd be a long row of empty, vulnerable houses on that particular night. In light of this potential danger, my Dad stayed home to hold down the fort.

So, my Mom went as the representative for our family. (This makes me wonder if my neighbors on my street held a meeting as well. If so, I'm sorry my husband and/or I didn't attend. Honestly, we hadn't heard about any meeting. Either that or the crooks stole the invitation from our mailbox!) On the big night, my Mom walked the short distance to the meeting, intending to glean as much information as she could.

And glean information, she did. Apparently, there are more female "gangs" committing robberies. (So much for "the weaker sex!") Thieves have started stealing rental cars to blend in, because their own less-than-pristine vehicles might arouse suspicion. What's worse is that the rental companies usually don't even realize their cars have been stolen!

Besides keeping a look out for suspicious-looking people driving inconspicuous cars, you shouldn't announce your acquisition of a new 5 foot flat screen TV by leaving its box on your front yard for the trash service to pick up. Doing so might cause your TV (and any other valuables you might have lying around) to be picked up, but not by the trash service!

Learning about crime prevention is all well and good. But what really made a lasting impression on my Mom were not the new trends in crime or the preventative measures against them. No --all she could talk about for days after the meeting was the beauty of the house in which the meeting was held. I sighed and wondered if my wilting plants and dust bunnies might look photogenic in the right kind of light.

Despite focusing more on the beauty of our neighbor's home than the actual meeting, my Mom was able to relay the information to our long-time neighbors, Dan and his wife, Esther. (It was Dan who suggested that I write this article, and I promised I'd give him all the credit. Thanks, Dan!)

Returning to my apartment, I made peace with my dust bunnies, and accepted the fact that my decor will probably never be described as glamorous, or even tasteful. However, I received an email congratulating me that my shoes had arrived at the Payless store in the Arcadia Westfield mall! Silly me to forget I had ordered them to be delivered there rather than pay shipping. At least now I know no thieves made off with my $14.99 flats!

SENIOR HAPPENINGS

By Pat Birdsall

FYI: TRICK OR TREAT?

Halloween is a time of total fun for the younger set...Candy, costumes, mischief, staying up late and did I say candy? Halloween can also be fun for seniors, but some find it a stressful period...those living all alone or those suffering from dementia for instance. When elders don't have any kids in their lives there can sometimes be no enthusiasm to enjoy the holiday. Working on Halloween crafts with a group of seniors is a great way to spend your time and keeps them "tuned in" to the holiday. Perhaps the senior or seniors you know would rather not spend the night answering the door and giving ghosts and goblins candy, others might totally enjoy it. Invite seniors to your home or out to dinner, in the event they are on the "do not enjoy" list.

Don't forget that is a night for tricks. After 55+ years since it happened, this is still a vivid memory for me...My friends and I were at that terribly awkward age; too old to go trick-or-treating, but too young to have grown-up fun. Rather late in the evening, we arrived at the door of a "senior citizen" (in reflection, she must have been forty!) She told us, in what we perceived to be a rude tone of voice that she thought we were too old to be going door-to-door and besides, she was out of candy. Well, that's all we needed to hear. Of course we soaped her windows! Not only that, we had the audacity to go by her house before we went to school the next morning to see her scrubbing her windows!

Now, not to excuse what we did, I think soaping windows might be considered very minor... Watch out for your older neighbors; ghosts, goblins and vampires are on the prowl and this is a very different world.

FOR YOUR FUNNY BONE - While transcribing medical audio tages, a colleague of mine came upon the following garbled diagnosis: "This man has pholenfrometry." Knowing nothing about this particular condition, she double-checked with the doctor. After listening to the tape, he shook his head. "This man, he said, translating for her, "has fallen from a tree."

THE BOTTLE SHOP CELEBRATES 50 YEARS OF SERVICE TO SIERRA MADRE

Story and Photos by Bill Coburn

In October of 1963, Bill Sullivan was notified by his brother, Frank, of a business opportunity in the city of Sierra Madre. At the time, Bill lived in Chicago, Illinois where he worked as a steamfitter. After hearing from his brother, he made a phone call to California and made arrangements to buy a liquor Throughout the years, the store has seen many changes and remodels. When the lease for the business next door expired in 1982, The Buccaneer decided to move a few doors west creating an opportunity for The Bottle Shop to add a seventeen door walk-in box that allowed the store to stock more than one hundred imported beers. In 1998, on the day the City of Sierra Madre celebrated Wistaria Day, the store was gutted by a fire and declared a total loss. Forty days later, with the whole family pitching in, along with help from several community members, the store re-opened. The most recent change occurred in 2011 when the store expanded once again into unoccupied space to the west, adding a climate controlled wine room, and a wine tasting bar allowing customers to sample the various wines sold at The Bottle Shop.

Today, The Bottle Shop is run by Bill, along with his wife, Patty, and twin sons Jay and Jeff, recent graduates with degrees in Finance from Southern Methodist University. Their daughter Tracy is currently a senior at Santa Clara University, and also helps out whenever she is home from school.

On Saturday, October 26th, from 2 to 6 pm, The Bottle Shop invites everyone to stop by and celebrate their fifty years of service in Sierra Madre. There will be door prizes, appetizers, and live entertainment by the "Mello D's", featuring Dave Osti and Deanna Cogan. Participants will have the opportunity to choose among dozens of wines and beers to sample. The cost is $10.00 per person.

made a phone call to California and made arrangements to buy a liquor store in Sierra Madre. One month later, his wife, Marie, and their three children, ages seven, six & four, flew to California to join Bill who was busy preparing to open their new business. The day they landed, they were greeted with the news John F. Kennedy had been assassinated. One month after that, on December 23, 1963, Bill and Marie, who had never even operated a cash register before, opened what is now known as The Bottle Shop.

Bill's oldest son, also named Bill, his brother Dan, and sister, Kathy (Copeland) spent much of their childhood working at The Bottle Shop, substituting chores at home for chores at the shop. "We stocked the cigarettes, bagged the ice, and sorted and separated the deposit bottles seven days a week for which we were paid a weekly allowance of sixty cents," remembers Bill. After graduating from high school in 1975, the younger Bill started working full time at The Bottle Shop, eventually being in charge of all its operations before purchasing it from his dad in 1984. The elder Bill pursued other interests, including founding Sierra Madre City College, a philanthropic organization, and building and owning a storage facility in Sierra Madre until his death in 2011. Marie continues to own Self Storage in Sierra Madre.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS:

By Sean Kayden

Book Reviews by Jasmine Kelsey Williams

THE POWER OF POPPY PENDLE By Natasha Lowe

JASMINE'S CORNER

The third week of October brings about another lovely selection to get you in the spirit of Halloween, and is a perfect pick for younger readers. I introduce to you here, "The Power of Poppy Pendle" by Natasha Lowe, and if you ever choose to continue to pursue the contents of its pages, then you shall be in for a real treat. Lowe uses charm, wit, and youthfulness to bring us the protagonist of Poppy Pendle, a young girl who is gifted with the powers of being a witch, but also has the passionate heart of being a baker. Readers will immediately be able to sympathize and connect with Poppy, as she has found a passion that she loves with all her heart, but is surrounded by a family who fails to see her special talent and only wishes to continue with being a witch instead of baking.

Another wonderful factor that can connect readers to Poppy is the theme of finding courage; finding your voice to speak about what you love and believe in is key to achieving your dream, and of course Poppy experiences this uphill trek to do just that. Lowe also does a wonderful job of fleshing out supporting or minor characters to be able to include their various perspectives, especially when it comes to the topic of Poppy and her love of baking instead of magic. As a book lover myself, I personally recommend this for younger readers and perhaps some older ones as well, especially for those who have a bit of a sweet tooth. Poppy's story is not an unfamiliar one: readers will be able to fully understand the desire to be heard and accepted for who they are and what they love to do (or believe they were born to do), and even comprehend some of the consequences when they are silent for too long, or when they go about their own path but unfortunately backfires and takes a turn for the worst. Readers both young and old can learn from "The Power of Poppy Pendle" of not just following your dreams (great or small), but also learning to find those who will support and believe in you.

Copyrighted in 2012, and receiving praise from critics and Booklist, "The Power of Poppy Pendle" will the wonderful Halloween selection to provide a gentle reminder of following your heart and passion. And to make this selection even more alluring, "The Power of Poppy Pendle" contains 10 Poppy-themed recipes which are perfect to make at home.

DALE EARNHARDT JR. JR.

Dale Earnhardt Jr. Jr., the Detroit duo, cook up carefree, pop-induced tunes for their sophomore record, "The Speed Of Things." The band's first record, "It's A Corporate World" demonstrated the guys proclivity toward humorous lyrics and saccharine electronics. With their latest LP, they expand their sound, but keep within the same realm. The debut record was a modest outing from Joshua Epstein and Daniel Zott, who came from other bands to join forces. However,

"The Speed Of Things," shows the band to be more comfortable with the sound they're conveying. They made not be treading new ground entirely, but the Artist: catchiness and ramped up melodies on the sophomore release exemplifies much improvement.

Dale Earnhardt Jr. Jr. Album: The Speed Of Things Warner Bros. Records Label:

Release Date: October 8th, 2013

"It's A Corporate World" offered many simple compositions. I never thought the album fully came together as a whole. The band had a few innovative ideas that sprawled over the course of a few songs, but exhaustively ran out of gas midway. On "The Speed Of Things," Dale Earnhardt Jr. Jr. keeps the energy flowing quite smoothly. They know when to slow it down like on "I Can't Help It." This tune shows a different side of the band, more melodic, more sensitive. I prefer the toned down electronics rather than completely going overboard with them. There's still a carefree vibe attached to most of the songs they perform, but something about this album feels more grown up. They may still be delivering the fun without being taken too seriously. However, the growth they've made from the last record to this is rather striking. There is still a lightness to be found yet this records runs much deeper than previous material. The harmonies are in full force here especially on "Dark Water." Epstein and Zott effortlessly pull off Beach Boys style arrangements.

With a combination of fast and mid-tempo tracks, glowing harmonies, and a penchant for dazzling electronics, Dale Earnhardt Jr. Jr. surprised me with this latest effort. I thought they only had a decent first outing which inevitably led them falling off the grid for me. Now they've come back with such a cool, nearly seamless second LP that impresses me a lot more. When the interlude hits, it tilts the record into a slightly slower speed from then on out. Nonetheless, it's still incredibly joyous. "A Haunting," puts on display a different side to the band. It demonstrates a more heartfelt, serious tune compared to their appetite for lightheartedness. "Run," is probably the best track here. It's high energy, super charged electronics and purely addictive sound makes it one of the most entertaining songs of the year. "War Zone" is absolutely intoxicating. It's another prominent song for the band. In the end, Dale Earnhardt Jr. Jr. might not take over the world with this record, but it's a great addition for anyone looking for a good time with an album that balances buoyancy and sensitivity in a near perfect fashion.

Grade: 8.3 out of 10 Key Tracks: "Run," "I Can't Help It," "Don't Tell Me," "War Zone"

THE JOY OF YOGA

WHY IS YOGA A SPIRITUAL PRACTICE AND NOT JUST EXERCISE

Yoga was developed thousands of years ago. The ancients wanted to know why we are here and while we are here, how can we be happy? What they came up with back in the time of the oldest teachings, the Rig Veda, was that we are inherently happy. That is why we strive for happiness all the time. But through years (or lifetimes?) we have developed patterns, physical and mental attitudes, that block our way. The sciences of Yoga and Ayurveda come from these teachings and explain how if we are balanced, find out our own unique attributes and live in such a way that we are healthy, then we find the fountain of youth: physical health, mental health, emotional health and spiritual health. The path of self-knowledge IS the removal of suffering, and we can reach liberation (moksha).

The problem begins with the body. If we have any malady, that's all we can focus on. "ouch! I stubbed my big toe." Now all I can think about is that physical pain. Any injury or illness can become all-consuming. We focus everything around it and even learn to identify with our illnesses. The more focus something has, the more energy it has. It can grow this way. The practice of yoga is to optimize physical health so that we can find liberation. We need to remove the obstructive patterns. We need to develop a relationship to our bodies for maximum health. Our patterns will then become apparent and we can do something about

Yoga is not a religion. It enhances our religions and our relationship to ourselves.

EATING FOR A HEALTHY HEART

Dr. Tina is a traditional *naturopath and nutri*tionist at Vibrant Living Wellness Center

If you read the news or watch TV, you know that heart disease is the number one cause of death in America. It is also costly. In the US, heart disease cost the nation billions of dollars each year. It is hard to imagine that in a land where we have so much, so many of us die from a disease that is known to be primarily caused by lifestyle and poor quality food choices. Since heart disease kills more American's than anything else, it would seem wise to study cultures where heart disease is almost non-existent. Those studies have been done and the results are in... In cultures that do not eat refined foods or denatured fats, heart disease is almost non-existent. One way to keep your heart healthy is to eat a diet that is low in refined Healthy fats such as those found is cold water fish, flax seed, avocados, and nuts such as almonds and walnuts are known to contribute to lower rates of heart disease. Hydrogenated and Trans fats, both denatured fats build up in our bodies because they are unnatural and we do not have a mechanism to metabolize them. Denatured fats lead to inflammation of our vascular system.

This all brings us to the last culprit of our diet that is responsible for heart disease and that is high levels of sugar intake. We consume an average of 158 pounds of sweeteners each year. These refined sugars contribute to obesity, which is a risk factor for heart disease without providing any nutritional value.

A STRANGE LONELY PLANET WITHOUT A START

An international team of astronomers has discovered an exotic young planet that is not orbiting a star. This free-floating planet, dubbed PSO J318.5-22, is just 80 light-years away from Earth and has a mass only six times that of Jupiter. The planet formed a mere 12 million years ago—a newborn in planet

It was identified from its faint and unique heat signature by the Pan-STARRS 1 (PS1) wide-field survey telescope on Haleakala, Maui. Follow-up observations using other telescopes in Hawaii show that it has properties similar to those of gas-giant planets found orbiting around young stars. And yet PSO J318.5-22 is all by itself, without a host star.

"We have never before seen an object free-floating in space that that looks like this. It has all the characteristics of young planets found around other stars, but it is drifting out there all alone," explained team leader Dr. Michael Liu of the Institute for Astronomy at the University of Hawaii at Manoa. "I had often wondered if such solitary objects exist, and now we know they do."

During the past decade, extrasolar planets have been discovered at an incredible pace, with about a thousand found by indirect methods such as wobbling or dimming of their host stars induced by the planet. However, only a handful of planets have been directly imaged, all of which are around young stars (less than 200 million years old). PSO J318.5-22 is one of the lowest-mass free-floating objects known, perhaps the very lowest. But this object's most unique aspect is its similar mass, color, and energy output to directly imaged planets.

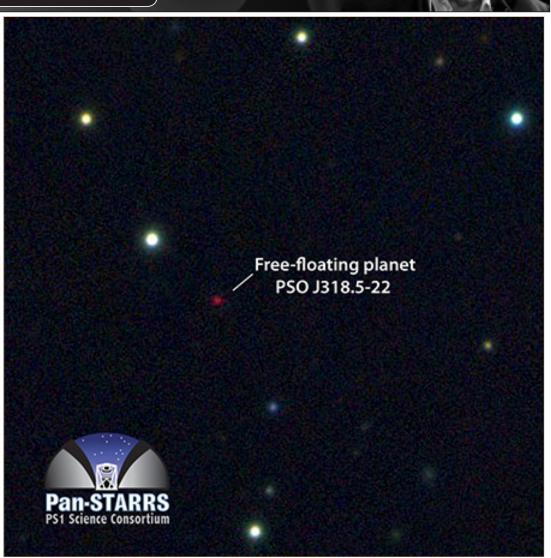

"Planets found by direct imaging are incredibly hard to study, since they are right next to their much brighter host stars. PSO J318.5-22 is not orbiting a star so it will be much easier for us to study. It is going to provide a wonderful view into the inner workings of gas-giant planets like Jupiter shortly after their birth," said Dr. Niall Deacon of the Max Planck Institute for Astronomy in Germany and a co-author of PSO J318.5-22 was discovered during a search for failed stars known as brown dwarfs. Due to their relatively cool temperatures, brown dwarfs are very faint and have very red colors. To circumvent these difficulties, Liu and his colleagues have been mining the data from the PS1 telescope. PS1 is scanning the sky every night with a camera sensitive enough to detect the faint heat signatures of brown dwarfs. PSO J318.5-22 stood out as an oddball, redder than even the reddest known brown dwarfs.

"We often describe looking for rare celestial objects as akin to searching for a needle in a haystack. So we decided to search the biggest haystack that exists in astronomy, the dataset from PS1," said Dr. Eugene Magnier of the Institute for Astronomy at the University of Hawaii at Manoa and a co-author of the study. Dr. Magnier leads the data processing team for PS1, which produces the equivalent of 60,000 iPhone photos every night. The total dataset to date is about 4,000 Terabytes, bigger than the sum of the digital version of all the movies ever made, all books ever published, and all the music albums ever

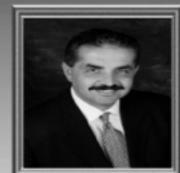

The team followed up the PS1 discovery by observing the same object with multiple telescopes on the summit of Mauna Kea. Infrared spectra taken there, using the NASA Infrared Telescope Facility and the Gemini North Telescope, showed that PSO J318.5-22 was not a brown dwarf.

A WARM INVITATION

In spring and summer, it's easy to envision ways to enhance your home's curb appeal with a trimmed lawn, planted and potted flowers, and patios and decks arranged with outdoor furniture and an inviting grill. But when the leaves fall and the temperatures drop, even homes in temperate climes undergo a winter transformation that can challenge a seller to create exterior appeal.

When it comes to landscaping and colorful plants, there are plenty of ornamental grasses and plants that look great in wintertime. Purple cabbages, fountain grasses, and potted evergreens along pathways and by the door all add seasonal color and appeal. And obviously, your sidewalk, entry path, patio and deck should be clear of leaves and/or snow.

Be sure to keep in mind that shorter days mean that buyers are that much more likely to see your home after sunset, so make sure all your floodlights are clean and in working order, highlighting your home's exterior features. Lamps with soft lighting in all your windows will also offer a warm invitation.

Finally, just to cover your bases, have photos available of your home in all its glory during the spring and summer months. This gives buyers a better sense of your home's appeal during all the seasons of the year. Your agent will have more tips for attracting buyers in any kind of weather.

By La Quetta M. Shamblee,

WHO ARE THE GIVERS & TAKERS IN YOUR LIFE?

For entrepreneurs it is very helpful to identify individuals involved in your life as either a help or a hinderance to your progress and success. It important to distinguish those who in your circle who are truly supportive, in contrast to people who are simple involved with you to benefit from what they may be able to get from you. Entrepreneurs have enough burden to bear without taking on the load of providing benefits to people lurking on the sidelines to extract what they can for themselves, without making some type of reciprocal contribution.

The ability to distinguish givers from takers is a great starting point for entrepreneurs to protect themselves from these parasites. Several years ago I was introduced to a simple exercise that has made it easy for me to identify and categorize the "givers" and "takers" in my life. These are the individuals who I have some level of personal interaction with on an ongoing or routine basis. The nature of the relationships or interactions place me in a potential position of vulnerability if I am not crystal clear about the intentions of those who may have the greatest impact on my progress and success.

I'll refer to the exercise as the "List of Givers & Takers":

Step #1: Take a hard copy or digital pad and draw two vertical lines down the middle to create three columns. Make the first column to the left the widest, and the other two need to be large enough to place a checkmark (\checkmark).

Step #2: In the first column, list the name of everyone in your life with whom you have close contact, ongoing involvement or routine affiliation. These individuals may be spouses, family, other loved ones, friends, business associates or anyone you consider to be important in your life due to how often or how deeply they are connected to you.

Step #3: Place the following headings in columns 2 and 3, respectively: Givers, Takers

Step #4: After completing Step 1 thru 3, starting from the top of the list, go through without hesitation and being honest with yourself, place a checkmark in the "Giver" or "Taker" column next to the name of each person on your list. This checkmark must be based on the actual dynamic that individual has with you, not based on how much you love, respect or enjoy the company of the person.

Do they sometimes pick up the tab on a lunch outing? ... likely a giver. Are they the ones that show up at the family potluck with a car full of people, yet bring three liters of soda from the Dollar Store and empty containers to take leftovers home? .. probably a taker. Perhaps it's a business colleague who has benefited professionally or financially from your business referrals, but has never provided a referral that has resulted in any measurable benefit to you ... probably a taker.

Hopefully this exercise will provide a level of clarity and awakening for you as it did for me the first time I did it. This exercise is now an annual ritual with me, and not surprisingly, it helps me to identify those with whom I choose to truly have in my circle. By identifying the Givers, I am able to collaborate, partner and share ideas and resources with the relief that it will be reciprocated at some point in our dealings with each other.

Also, I continue to interact with, be cordial, and even spend time socially with some of the Takers on my list, but I've also quietly and without fanfare, eliminated them from involvement in anything that has to do with my professional or business endeavors – unless of course, it's clear there is something for me to take, up front.

STUART Tolchin.....On LIFE WHAT IS MAKE BELIEVE

A couple of weeks ago I underwent this medical procedure that frightened my whole family and me. I'm more or less okay but the day after the procedure my son had to be taken to the hospital by ambulance because of a stress reaction to my condition. My son is forty years old and is a disabled person who suffers from mental and emotional deficits. He is also my best friend.

It is hard to say whether his anxiety resulted from concerns connected to my condition or fears as to what would happen to him if I wasn't able to be around to give him support. No matter the reason he had reactions much like seizures and had to be taken to the hospital on two more occasions. At the hospital he was given shots of a drug called atavin which produced amazing results. Within fifteen or twenty minutes after taking the drug his symptoms disappeared and he seemed tranquilized. An hour later he dropped off to sleep and awoke after another hour or so and seemed much like himself. The doctor prescribed the drug in tablet form and we were instructed to have my son take the pill whenever he sensed his anxiety returning; but we were warned that pills should not be taken more frequently than every twelve hours.

Over the past six years that I have been writing these articles I have frequently scoffed at the need for people to utilize these tranquilizing medication or "happy pills" as a part of their daily lives. I have received criticism from friends who have read my articles and who have told me that I didn't know what I was talking about. People have told me that their anxiety was so extreme that they could not function without their medication. I remained unsympathetic and, of course, I now realize that my position was ridiculous. Experiencing my son's anguish it has become clear even to a fool like me that mental pain is as real and as devastating as the pain connected to any physical illness. The temporary relief granted to a suffering person is a miraculous gift similar to the effects of antibiotics administered to combat infection. The difference between the two is that a course of antibiotics will defeat the infection while the psychotropic medication will grant only temporary relief and may be needed the next day.

During the passed two weeks my son has spent almost every moment with my wife and I and we have all become pretty sensitized to the signs of disorientation and irritability which precede the full-blown anxiety attack. I understand that the early signs of an approaching attack involve some bewilderment as to what is really taking place. Perhaps some of these concerns led to our conversation relating to a TV commercial that involved the question of whether a tree falling in the forest with no one around to hear it made a sound. I did my best to explain that this commercial dealt with the question posed by Lord Berkeley that posited that all reality involved interaction and that possibly if there was no one around to hear the sound there was no sound. This question interested my son, much more than the whole question fascinated me 50 years ago in Philosophy 6A.

Somehow the conversation moved to discussions about the soul. I am a life-long atheist and this has always bothered my son who, in the days when he lived with his mother, was exposed to all kinds of religious stuff. He told me he wanted to have a soul and that he wanted that soul to exist whether I believed in souls or not. He also told me that he wanted our deceased dog along with our present dog to have souls even though he had been told by religious people that animals did not have souls. He said that he wanted these souls to exist and to exist forever whether or not anyone else believed in them or experienced their existence. Somehow, for him at least, the existences of these unrecognized souls were connected with the sound in the forest of the fallen tree that made a sound even though no one was around to hear it.

Hmm. What do I know? As a result of my adventures of the last couple of weeks

I am not absolutely sure of anything. Maybe my son's talk of soul, unhampered by his 60 I.Q., is a true reflection of what we both want. Educable or not he believes in his truths and holds on to them notwithstanding the other events in his bewildering world. Yes, to me the old atheist, talking with my disabled son is often the most inspiring and meaningful part of this difficult time of life.

OUT TO PASTOR

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

IS IT A FRAGRANCE OR A STENCH?

go to the mall. I know, I as possible. should know better but I thought I could sneak in, get what I needed and sneak out again. So much for my thoughts.

I wanted to purchase several tie chains for my neckties and searched every jewelry store and nobody had them. Finally, I ordered three online, which would be shipped free, (which I must confess I am not up-to-date with all of always gets my attention) to the nearest store, which happened to be in the mall.

I do not like the mall and choose not to go there if I can help it. When in the mall I am usually very nervous and get confused and do not know which way I am going. Once I get Everything seems to be contrived to confuse a person like myself.

Looking down at the ground while walking I My basic philosophy along this line is simply, became rather confused and I happen to turn into an open door.

My mall savvy is not sophisticated in the lease. The door I turned into happened to be for the store Victoria's Secret. I do not know who Victoria is, I did not know what the store was all about but when I got in the store I discovered Victoria's Secret much to my great embarrassment.

That is exactly the reason I do not like going into the malls. They have places like this that a gentleman, such as Yours Truly, should never

I am not sure how I got out of that store, all I can remember was a great deal of hilarious laughter thrown in my direction from inside. I just hope they did not recognize me. They probably did not, because I had all my clothes

It has been a long time since that incident and now I had to go and pick up my order. I put together a plan to sneak in very quietly, pick up my order and tiptoe out as quietly as I came in.

You know what they say about well-laid plans! Whether mine was well laid or not, it blew up

I did slip into the mall and found the store where my order was. I picked them up and quietly turned around and started for the door. How I got turned around is any man's guess. Actually, I think it turned around too I like what Jesus said, "Woe unto you, scribes many times. For the next 15 minutes, I tried to find the way I came in so I could go out.

The trouble started when I hesitated. I stopped to try to get my bearings and in stopping a young woman approached me.

"How do you do today, sir," she said most

This past week I had to I nodded and tried to get away as graciously

She would have none of it. "And how do you smell today, sir?"

Had I been in my right sense of mind I would have told her I smelled with my nose. Being in a confused state of affairs, I had no quick come back for her. It was then that she introduced me to her product.

the body lotions and perfumes that are available today. I shave in the morning, splash some aftershave on my face, rub some deodorant under my armpits and that is as far as I go.

This young woman took me for a potential customer of her body lotions and ointments in, I am not quite sure how to get out again. and perfumes. I suppose many people are concerned with how they smell. I am not one of

> if I cannot stand my own smell, I take a shower. I know when it is time to take a shower when I can smell myself.

> She wanted to introduce me to some body lotions and ointments and perfumes that would make me smell alluring to anybody I met during the day.

Personally, I do not have a "Bucket List" but if I did this would not be one of the items on it.

Trying to be polite, I informed the young woman I was late for an appointment and needed to get on right away.

"Oh," she said very cheerfully, "this will not take long at all."

With that said, and before I could process what she said, she began rubbing my face with body ointment or lotion of some sort. I froze and for a few moments, I could not even move. Even the little grey cells upstairs were shocked into a rare state of stillness.

"Now, you smell wonderful."

It was at that time I retired with honor my gentlemanly manners and started running as fast as I could run without drawing too much attention to myself.

I smelled that "fragrance" for three days in spite of the fact that I took 17 showers in the

It does not matter how good I smell on the outside if there is stench on the inside. I want to focus on my inside and make it as fresh as possible. That is the fragrance God smells.

HOWARD Hays As I See It

oe: "Go ahead. Go ahead, big shot. You put the full United States of America on your shoulders. Have fun with that. Good luck, do it. Do it - I dare you. I'm daring you right now - go ahead and do it, hot shot. Or you can just sit in the back, and when people who are responsible and actually give a damn about this country, and give a damn about the full faith and credit of the United States, and actually care about the people who are working day in and day out hoping to keep their job - you're going to keep posing, and hurt those people?

"I don't really get it. It's kind of like – it's great for you, I know. I know it's really great for you politically, but it's just like the Veteran's Memorial that you used as a political backdrop. It's a great backdrop, until the next day the vets who actually organized the rally came out and were really upset that you would use their rally for your own political points.

"So go ahead - you guys go ahead and just keep using America as your political backdrop and hurt all the people you want to hurt. Hurt, by the way, small-government conservatives, Republicans, working-class Americans that actually used to support our party but now are wondering what in the world . . . Keep doing it, and I hope it really helps you out because it's sure not helping the conservative movement, it's not helping the Republican Party and it's not helping this country.";

The exchange between Mika Brzezinski and former Rep. Joe Scarborough (R-FL) took place on "Morning Joe" on MSNBC. It was followed by Mika's reporting on the warning of Rep. Tim Huelskamp (R-KS) that any House Republican voting in support of the deal worked out in the Senate "would virtually guarantee a primary challenger." It had nothing to do with giving "a damn about this country" or the "people who are working day in and day out hoping to keep their job", but only with keeping their own - by not displeasing the billionaires who bought it for them.

House Republicans tried a deal of their own, but couldn't get it to the floor because they were told not to by Heritage Action and FreedomWorks, primary money-launderers for the Koch Brothers. Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid (D-NV) called their bill a "waste of time", anyway. Tea-baggers claimed threats of "default" were overblown; the Treasury Secretary could juggle things and prioritize to avoid serious consequences. But their own House proposal prohibited the Treasury Secretary from doing so. Republicans complained all they've wanted is to engage in bipartisan keeping our government open and running negotiations on the budget (though having repeatedly refused to do so over as their job. It's time to turn it back over to the past year). Their proposal eliminated those who "actually give a damn about this the bipartisan negotiating framework contained in the Senate version.

Mika: "Senator Ted Cruz It will take some time for the Republican (R-TX) says he's still Party to regain legitimacy lost by allowing unsure whether or not he'd itself to be hijacked by clueless teablock a vote on the bill ..."; baggers - some eighty Congressmen from gerrymandered districts representing 18% of our nation's population.

The lunacy of the past couple weeks will faith and credit of the take a long time to live down. There was Rep. Randy Neugebauer (R-TX) getting inyour-face with a park ranger at the WWII Memorial in Washington, blaming her for the closure he'd voted for. "The Park Service should be ashamed of themselves", he said. "I'm not ashamed", she replied. According to NBC, "a crowd of onlookers" came to the ranger's defense, and jeered when the congressman tried to blame Harry Reid. Rep. Lee Terry (R-NE) voted to put hundreds of thousands of workers on unpaid "furlough", but refused to relinquish any part of his own $174,000 salary for the duration of the shutdown: "I've got a nice house and a kid in college, and I'll tell you we can't handle it." Rep. Ted Yolo (R-FL) nixed the idea of back pay for furloughed workers, "the people that are home watching Netflix and whatever." Rep. Steve Pearce (R-NM) offered helpful advice: "reach out to your financial institution as soon as you worry you may miss a paycheck. Financial institutions often offer short-term loans and other resources." Meanwhile, the congressional gym was kept open as an "essential service". Last Sunday, Sarah Palin picked up the mic to proclaim she and fellow tea-baggers would "not be timid in calling out any who would use our military, our vets, as pawns in a political game." This came as she was featured during the hijacking of the Million Vets March at the WWII Memorial. Organizers of the March protested this violation of their ";core principle" of "Americans honoring Veterans in a peaceful and apolitical manner". Confederate flags flew, "Impeach Obama" signs waved, Palin and Sen. Cruz preened for the cameras as a speaker called on the president to "put down the Quran".

Viewed from abroad, in Paris a Le Monde article reminds, "In a democracy, people abolish laws by winning the election, not with the threat of a government shutdown or even a default. It is impossible to govern seriously undergoing this type of blackmail." An editorial in the London Telegraph addresses the Affordable Care Act: "The reality is that the American Right has already largely lost the argument . . . it stands accused of irresponsible petulance by threatening to press the button marked 'economic Armageddon' if it doesn't get concessions." The Philippine Daily Inquirer is blunt: "Let's just say it: Insurgent Republicans have a problem with their country's first black president."

It turns out that Sen. Cruz won't try to block the Senate proposal. Maybe now we can turn things back over to those who see and able to its bills not as "concessions", but country".

GREG Welborn

WHERE ARE WE NOW?

Conventional wisdom holds that in the recent confrontation between Republicans and President Obama, the President came out the winner. Certainly with the way the press portrayed the confrontation, it would be easy to draw that conclusion, but I suspect it's more nuanced, and that a strong case can be made for a Republican victory.

The standard talking point is that a last-minute deal was struck and a catastrophe avoided. But that's a fairy tale. Even if we accept the "catastrophe" claim, we have to be honest and acknowledge that the deal simply kicked the can down the road. Nothing was avoided; it was just pushed three months out. We started with spending and debt as our issues, and we just ended with spending and debt as our issues.

There's no substantive resolution for either side here, and there's not much reason to believe that middle ground will be found. True, a small group of politicians will be selected to negotiate a broader-scope deal, but we've already had one of those – The Simpson Bowles Commission – but its very reasonable recommendations were pronounced DOA by the Whitehouse. Why will it be different this time?

The Republicans certainly took heavy heat. Even in what was portrayed as a conciliatory address at the signing of the funding bill last night, the President reminded us how "unnecessary" and "destructive" this was to our economy. Everyone read between the lines and knew he was jabbing at the Republicans, but admittedly it paled in comparison to comments made by the Democrats during the negotiations. Republicans were routinely portrayed as "anarchists" (Harry Reid), "arsonists" (Nancy Pelosi), and "hostage takers" (Jay Carney, et. al.). The reality that we face massive deficits and a $17 trillion debt was ignored by the mainstream press, so the people who tried to stop this inter-generational theft were labeled as the bad guys.

Yeah, Republicans took the blame, and the popular perception is therefore that they lost this battle. But I'm not so sure. Republicans actually did pretty well in this, despite the inability of their nominal leader, Speaker Boehner, to communicate affectively. In fact, our results look even better given the lack of messaging.

Republicans have kept one of the main conservative issues in the public's consciousness, and they forced the President to play defense. Remember, the President had hoped to push through a number of other issues, but he's been forced to focus on Obamacare's defects and the deficit and to accept the continuation of the sequester.

The deal he and Harry Reid hammered out last night keeps sequestration in effect, doesn't advance Obamacare one inch beyond the monumental implosion it is currently suffering, and many of today's headlines reminded readers of what this will add to the debt.

Republicans have also been able to strip away much of the fear that Democrats have traditionally been able to attach to the idea of spending cuts and reductions in the size of government. Remember the claims of imminent disaster attached to sequestration and to the government "shut down". The nation entered sequestration (is still in it, as a matter of fact) and experienced a "shut down" without the world ending, unemployment skyrocketing, the economy collapsing or the market tanking. Not much bad happened, and Americans noticed. Republicans also made considerable headway in explaining that a default really wasn't going to occur, nor will it 3 months from now.

Lastly, I believe a strong case can be made that the Republicans will find themselves emboldened and will take a stronger, but smarter, stance at the next round of negotiations. And that won't be a bad thing for the nation. Everyone agrees the current course is unsustainable. Today, we actually have more hope that real change will come to Washington and the future prospects for this country, and that is a good thing - something Republicans can feel justified pride in achieving.
