Sierra Madre Senior Community Commission's Attempt To Improve Conditions at Memorial Park and The Hart Park House Delayed Again

By Susan Henderson

At the November 26th City Council meeting, the SM Senior Community Commission once again ran into questionable opposition to their or attempt to give $60,000 of funds they have earned over the years to the city for the improvement of the restroom A n o t h e r situation in Memorial Park and the storage problem in the Hart Park House.

The Senior Services Commission (SCC) recognized several years ago that the renovation of the Hart Park House had failed to address the issue of storage. As a result, tables, chairs, podiums, etc., are stored by leaning them against the walls or stacking them in one of the two rooms available for senior activities. In the agenda report, staff provided a picture of the items as they are currently stacked and not only do they take up valuable recreation space, they are a potential hazard. In the illustration shown, a large, round table is leaning against the wall with nothing to anchor it. Because the redesign of the center included plans to expand public rentals, there are more chairs and tables than in the previous configurations of the facility.

In addition, when the decision was made to build the two new restrooms , male and female in the park near the tennis courts in 2012, a decision was made by the council not to renovate the existing restrooms which, according to City Manager Elaine Aguilar," have not had any work done on them since 1992 or '93". The state of the restrooms being discussed now was part of the discussion to build new ones at that time.

Further, the 2012 Parks and Facilities Master Plan noted that the old restrooms were "often disreputable", but how to remedy the situation. In fact, aloud at reason for

including the restroom reconfiguration was to provide a Family Restroom, clearly visible to parents in the park and accessible to families with a need for changing tables, sufficient space to deal with very small children or children of the opposite sex, and persons with special needs.

While that may seem reasonable and generous, it has created a firestorm of controversy. In a 3-1 vote, the council decided to delay action on the matter until February and directed staff to explore other options. They also asked the Senior Commission to take a 'survey' of users of the park to see if they wanted a family restroom in place of the existing Male and Female restrooms that currently exist. (Councilmembers John Capoccia, John Harabedian and Josh Moran voted to postpone the decision; Mayor Nancy Walsh voted against postponing it and Councilman Chris Koerber was absent). This action infuriated members of the SCC as they had worked on this project for more than a year and could see no real reason to further delay it. The cost estimates and design were created by professionals and had been thoroughly researched.

Opposition From The Community Services Commission

Because the proposed renovations were to be in the park, the plan went to the Community Services Commission for approval. It was denied twice. In failed to offer any solutions regarding a letter sent to the council and read (continued on page 19) the

Ready to plan for the week between Christmas and New Years? SMRFA needs lots of volunteers and SMRFA is also looking for people to help with a number of things that don't include flowers or seeds! Volunteers are needed to help with food for volunteers (grilling burgers at lunch, serving and clean-up for lunch and dinner), help with the sales booth selling t-shirts, pins and postcards to community supporters, picking up supplies, cleaning up after the float moves out on the 31st, float-sitting overnight on January 2nd when the float comes home to Kersting Court and selling excess flowers on January 3rd. It takes a village to produce a beautiful Rose

If those volunteer opportunities are not enough, SMRFA is also looking for donations of some key supplies including working blenders and non-steam irons, which help us prepare the floral materials. Or do you have an RV that could sleep 6 on New Year's Eve? The SMRFA float crew needs a place to sleep while parked on the parade route and would be grateful for a one-night loan.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE.....THE SOCIAL SIDE

By Deanne Davis

This week we found ourselves admiring the festive garland and red bows on the lamp posts, the outstanding Christmas display in Kersting Court, the Christmas goodies in everyone's store windows and then slowing to a complete halt in front of the chain link fence surrounding the giant flat place next to Arnold's Hardware which will soon be the Kensington Assisted Living Facility.

Whenever we find ourselves looking at giant earthmoving equipment, we seem to turn back into little kids who get a new Tonka bulldozer for Christmas and can't wait to get outside to play with it. Our son, John, was particularly fond of his Tonka trucks and earthmovers and dug many fine holes down in our lower yard with them. Standing there, hanging on the fence, looking at that perfectly even lot, we were struck with a huge wave of nostalgia about what was there when we moved to Sierra Madre in 1967, newlyweds with no money, lots of hope for the future, three children, no furniture, and a downstairs apartment at the corner of Highland and Mountain Trail.

I don't know if this is true for you, but with three kids from four to twelve, we needed to go to the doctor a lot. Somebody was always running a fever, bleeding profusely, or throwing up fourteen times in an hour. Luckily, the Sierra Madre Medical Center & Hospital was right down there next to Arnold's Hardware and Peggy, the receptionist, could get you in to see someone the same day you called. Many of you will think this is a fantasy but it was really true! Drs. Davis, Johnson, and White were great GP's and knew our children, and us, by name and chronic ailment. You'll never believe this, but office visits were $9.00.

I remember vividly the day our son, the Tonka Truck guy, fell off the roof of our blockhouse, a small concrete block building where we stored firewood, and came quietly in the back door saying, Uh....." I "Mom? knew there was a problem. His Dad, the long-suffering and patient John, Sr., and I leapt to our feet, grabbed the kid and the car keys and headed down Baldwin to the Medical Center. Johnson was still there, and, even though it was after five, he pulled on his gloves and said, "Here, just hold his hair back so I can stitch this up." I held the hair, Dr. Johnson started to sew, and my husband turned a lovely shade of light green and said, "I think I'll wait outside!"

Dr. Pickren, the surgeon there at the hospital, took out my appendix, and rode his horse in the Sierra Madre July 4th Parade for years and years, wearing a very stylish, but extremely hot blanket poncho. Dr. Johnson and his son drove mini electric cars in the parade and we could never figure out where they put their legs! Those things were tiny!

Well, enough nostalgia. It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas! Got your lights up yet??

Altadena Deputies Save Man From Suicide

An Altadena man's plan to hang himself from a light pole in Farnsworth Park was thwarted Tuesday after deputies talked him out of Witnesses said that a man, in the late afternoon, was attempting to hang himself in the tennis courts area of the park. Altadena deputies arrived and were directed to a man clinging to the top of 30-40 foot light pole with a rope around his neck.

According to police, the man told deputies he was tired of being in pain and wanted to end his life. It was clear to the deputies that he was determined to take his life as he started to lean away from the pole and tighten the noose on his neck.

Deputies Eric Salvato, Arin Davidian, and Andres Bilbao began to speak to the man and were able to convince him to remove the rope from around his neck. After a prolonged conversation with the man, he eventually climbed down from the light pole. After descending the light pole, he was met by deputies and fire personnel and rendered first aid.

Firefighters transported the man to a local area

They said It is unknown what prompted the man to want to take his life. The man was later taken to a local hospital for a psychiatric evaluation.

Auto Theft Suspect Arrested & Charged

Altadena sheriff's detectives recovered numerous stolen items while serving a search warrant at a location in Sun after investigating vehicle burglary incidents that occurred in the Altadena area they said Wednesday.

They arrested Raul Penaloza, during the search, a resident of Sun Valley.

Police said the burglary incidents occurred between Nov. 1 and Nov. 2, after several Altadena residents reported that their vehicles had been broken into where their purses and wallets were stolen.

Penaloza allegedly used several of the victim's stolen credit cards at locations in Sun Valley. Detectives were able to match surveillance video of the suspect, and trace the fraudulent credit card transactions to a residence in Sun Valley.

Among the stolen items recovered were wallets, purses, credit cards, checks, laptop computers, iPads, iPods, iPhones, and other electronic items. Also at the location was a stolen Dodge Durango, which had been taken last month from a residence in Altadena.

Penaloza has prior convictions for burglary, receiving stolen property, vehicle theft, and is currently on probation for possession of a controlled substance.

The case was presented to the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office, Monday, who filed seven felony burglary counts against the suspect. He is being held in lieu of $185,000 bail.

Antonovich Calls for Report on Welfare Fraud

Supervisor Michael Antonovich directed the Los Angeles County Chief Executive Office and the Department of Public Social Services, Tuesday, to report on strategies being implemented to address ongoing fraudulent and improper use of county social welfare dollars.

The county continues to learn of millions of dollars in public welfare dollars being spent in places outside Los Angeles County -- such as Las Vegas, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and New York City -- on questionable expenses including casinos, clubs and tattoo parlors.

"It is vital that public tax dollars for welfare programs are used for their intended purpose," Antonovich said. The Chief Executive Office and Department of Public Social Services will report back to the Board in 30 days.

DEPUTY MARCH'S MEMORIAL DESTROYED

But He Will Never Be Forgotten

This past Friday morning I went on Facebook and noticed a post that Deputy Dave March's Memorial had been destroyed early Thursday morning. Apparently a female driver traveling east on Live Oak Avenue fell asleep at the wheel, and her car drifted to the side of the road into Dave's Memorial, destroying it. (Fortunately, she and her passenger are okay.)

It was extremely upsetting to me and tears came. It doesn't seem that eleven years have passed since that fateful day. I was in my classroom teaching, but there seemed to more sirens that usual. We were put on lockdown, so I called Temple Station and learned the awful news. Deputy Dave March, our Area 57 Deputy, was gunned down by coward, Armando Garcia, whom Dave had stopped for a traffic violation. Soon after, Garcia fled to Mexico and it was a terrible situation for Dave's wife Teri, his parents and his sister Erin. Eventually Garcia was extradited from Mexico, tried, convicted and now is in prison. But that doesn't bring Dave back.

Dave's shooting had occurred in the City of Irwindale, just one-half block from our county area. That is why the Irwindale Police, with help from a few local businesses, put up the Memorial. (At Temple Sheriff's Station, there is another beautiful Memorial to Dave from his fellow workers there.) It's been eleven years, but no one has forgotten him. After I heard about the Memorial being destroyed I drove to the site. The Memorial is gone, but there is a floral arrangement shaped like a flag, two potted plants, several candles and a rosary.

After Dave died, within two days, the site had rows of flowers, plants and a few posters in between. Arcadia, Monrovia, Azusa and Glendora Police Departments all left poignant messages on poster boards. It was a beautiful tribute. I hope somehow that the Memorial will be able to be restored. A few days after I originally wrote this, Sgt. Burt Brink from the Sheriff's Department said the monument will be replaced. I also spoke to Sgt. Tom Levesque from Arcadia PD last night at the Arcadia Council Meeting and he said ALL the local agencies would help with funding if necessary. There is a special camaraderie among local law enforcement.

THINKING ABOUT MY PARENTS

By Christoper Nyerges

[Nyerges is the author of many books, including "Self-Sufficient Home," Enter the Forest," and "How to Survive Anywhere." A listing of his classes and books is available at www.ChristopherNyerges.com, and from the School of Self-reliance, Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041] season rolls around, often thinking of the life lessons they attempted to impart to me. Yes, at the time, I resisted most of those efforts because, as a typically ignorant, arrogant, know-it-all teen, it was my "duty" to resist those efforts to "control me." Only decades later did I begin to realize the value of what they wanted me to comprehend.

Of course, my parents had no desire to "control" me; they wanted me to gain the ability to control myself. And controlling myself meant not so much what I should do, but rather what I should not do.

My father would often tell me to always keep my word. "A man is only as good as his word," he'd tell me, and my brothers and I would scoff at him. Little did we realize at the time how profound of a practical lesson that was.

My mother took great pains to attempt to instill in us that there are consequences to our actions. Nothing really complicated, no Eastern words like "karma." Just simple. Be home at this time or get the stick!

We learned the value of money and work. Our family was large with a modest income. If I or any of my brothers asked our parents if we could have something, the response was predictable: "Sure, now go out and earn the money so you can buy it." We learned that this was the natural order of things. So we all learned creative ways to earn money for what we needed or wanted, or we learned to make the things we wanted, or we simply learned that we could do without. Yes, and we learned to fix things that broke rather than immediately throw the item away, as today's throw-away society encourages us to do.

We were a family of mostly boys - my one sister left home at the earliest age to attend a live-in nursing school. We learned to cook, wash dishes, vacuum, sew, polish our shoes, mow the lawn, paint the rooms, fixed the screens. We were naturally expected to do these things, as

I think about my both our parents worked. If we neglected to do a parents when the chore, my mother would say, "Do you think I'm your maid?"

> It continues to amaze me when I learn about friends whose children not only do no work, but actually refuse to do any housework. One such "child" demands everything of his parents and one parent confided in me that she is afraid of her son. The child - an older teen actually does no work, uses drugs, and has the audacity to use the "F" word at his parents. Boy, have things changed!

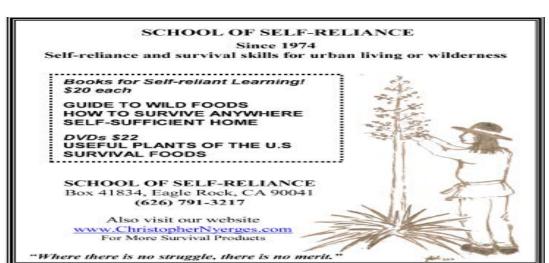

> There is absolutely no way I would have ever gotten away with calling either of my parents a name. It would be incomprehensible, because I knew there would be certain punishment and it would never be forgotten.

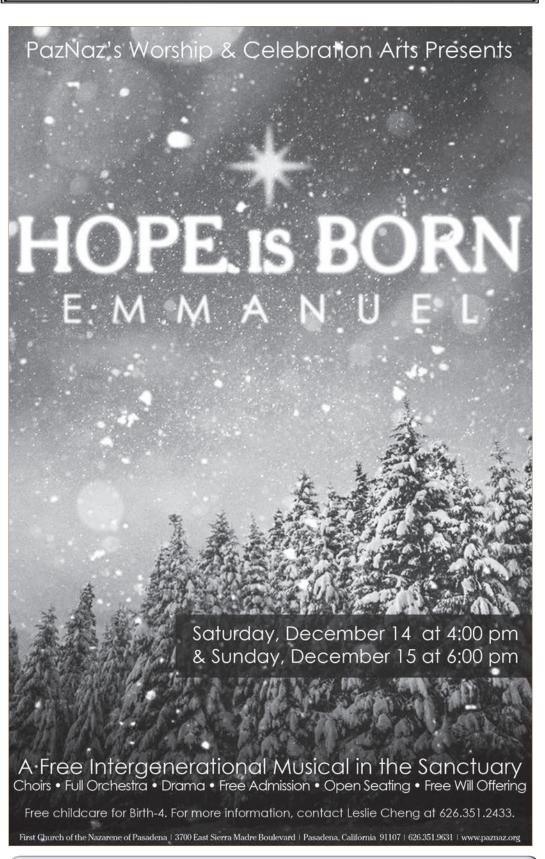

> Once when I stole something from a neighbor, was marched over to the neighbor to apologize, return the money, and forced to do some tasks for the month. Of course, there was never a second incident of stealing.

> My mother's use of a stick – and other tactics helped to modify our behavior so that at an early age we no longer even thought about any criminal activities. I was no saint, and am not a saint today. But I realized that – despite tactics that are today frowned upon - my parents' efforts did eventually have the desired effect. What was that desired effect? The desired effect was that I would not have to suffer all the wasted time and dollars that the criminal life costs, and that I could learn to experience personal fulfillment through self-control.

> My mother was also a nurse, so each of us gained a sense of doing what it took to let the body heal itself with certain foods and water and bedrest, and only taking pills and going to the doctor when absolutely necessary.

> This is only the tip of the iceberg. Now that both my parents have been gone about 10 years, find that holidays are not the same without them. And when I recall the practical life's lessons that they worked frustratingly hard to impart into me, I realized today that my parents are very much still with me.

MISSING TEEN FOUND

The Arcadia Police Department became aware of a critical missing person, Ms. Bora Kim, 19 years old from Arcadia, at about 8:00 p.m. on Thursday, December 5, 2013. Officers learned Ms. Kim had posted concerning messages on Facebook leading friends and family to believe she was contemplating suicide over a relationship. Ms. Kim was last seen in Arcadia earlier in the day and was thought to be headed to Pasadena City College. At about 6:00 p.m., Ms. Kim called a friend via cell phone and said she was lost in the mountains near Pasadena, and she could hear a waterfall. Friends told officers Ms. Kim has spent time in Eaton Canyon, Pasadena, and believed she was possibly there.

The Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, Altadena Station, commenced a collaborative search and rescue effort in Eaton Canyon until about 2:00 a.m. this morning. LASD, along with teams from Altadena, Montrose, and Sierra Madre Search and Rescue teams prepared to resume the search at daybreak. About 7:00 a.m., Ms. Kim was spotted in Eaton Canyon. A Los Angeles County Fire Department Airship was called in and the crew conducted an airlift rescue of Ms. Kim who was transported to a local hospital for treatment.

Ms. Kim appeared to be in good condition, but understandably cold, and is being cared for at the hospital. Family members were contacted and will be reunited with Ms. Kim. Thankfully, she was found in good condition, due in part to a great collaborative effort by caring family, friends, rescuers, and media. Officers are with Ms. Kim and will be speaking with her about the incident.

DADS PLAY FOR BRAGGING RIGHTS IN THE ST. RITA ANNUAL TURKEY BOWL

Sierra Madre, CA – It was a fast-paced, physical Thanksgiving morning at Sierra Madre Elementary as St. Rita dads hit the field to raise money for their school and show off their football prowess! The St. Rita Annual Turkey Bowl is great family fun as crowds come to support the dads divided into Teams White and Dark Meat.

In this 7th annual event, flags were flying as the intrepid dads fought for 2013 bragging rights. While Team Dark Meat put up a valiant struggle, White Meat claimed a narrow victory with a final score of 34-27.

Most notable among the warriors were Gary Bacio's 3 touchdowns, Sean Mispagel's 2 interceptions, Matt Birkett's dive for a first down and Vic Smith's tip catch for a touchdown. The morning was filled with spectacular runs, flag pulling and feats of athletic expertise by everyone that took the field.

Pat McKiernan, gracious organizer of this event, awarded MVP to Dan Bourgault for his White Meat quarterbacking skills and the Most Valiant award to Vic Smith for the several clutch catches for TDs for his Dark Meat compatriots.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show FROZEN

I grew up as a Disney child, raised with the classic musicals like Cinderella, Pocahontas, The Little Mermaid, and the rest of the Princess movies. Recently, after seeing movies like Cars 2 and not hearing anything about Planes (which had been given a sequel), I have felt as if Disney has lost touch with their roots. They have moved away from quality story, characters, and animating and moved towards sequels, franchises, and merchandizing. However, Frozen has given me hope that even Disney can bring the magic back.

In the kingdom of Arendelle, two sisters were separated at a young age. Elsa (Idina Menzel) was raised to be Queen and Anna (Kristen Bell) was never allowed to see her. Anna and Elsa's lives of loneliness end on Coronation Day when Elsa will become ruler. When they open the gates and let people in, they all learn why the mysterious castle of Arendelle had its door closed for so long.

Everything about this movie is perfect. The characters are enjoyable, charming, and funny. The story is new, interesting, and turns the whole idea of Princess movies on its head. And the animation is better than I have seen in a very long time. One of my big problems with old Disney films was their overuse of musical numbers. Frozen cuts back on the singing and makes the few songs that are performed masterpieces. Frozen is definitely the movie to see this holiday season.

HOLIDAY CHEERS! FROM PETER DILLS

I hope that I get it right more often than not; faithful reader Wendy Anderson from our local area says I got The Royce review right, and here are her comments.

"We had the lobster bisque, tomato salad, New York strip, spinach, potatoes au gratin, grilled artichoke and another kind of potatoes plus the dessert platter - we took more food home than we ate!

Bob and Colleen also had the New York steak, but Vince had the lamb chops - he also had the crab cakes, and Bob also had the Cesar salad.

We ate so much and everything was fabulous! And lots of drinks and wine! Oh my!

They also did a fabulous brownie dessert with marshmallows for Bob's birthday! However, we should have also ordered the French fries - going back for that!! Thanks for letting us know it was a good place!"

- •1 tablespoon of olive oil
- •1 cup of chopped Vidalia, sweet or yellow onion
- •1 stalk of celery, chopped
- •2 cloves of garlic, minced
- •1 tablespoon of tomato paste
- •1 can of Rotel diced tomatoes, drained
- •2 cups of chicken stock
- •2-3 tablespoons of brown sugar
- •2 teaspoons of kosher salt
- •10 turns of the pepper grinder
- •2 tablespoons of butter
- Heavy cream, to garnish •Shredded cheese, to garnish
- •Chopped fresh basil, to garnish

Remove the skins of the tomato and chop, reserving any juices. Heat olive oil in a stock pot and add the onion and celery. Saute until tender, about 5 minutes. Add the garlic and cook another minute. Add the tomato paste; cook and stir 5 minutes. Add the chopped tomatoes with their juices, Rotel, chicken stock, brown sugar, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, reduce heat, and simmer for at least 30 minutes, or longer. Use an immersion blender, food processor, or blender to puree, if desired. Add butter, stir until incorporated, taste and adjust seasonings as needed. Garnish as desired.

Cream of Tomato Soup Variation: Add in 1/2 cup of heavy cream to soup pot, heat through, garnish

Grilled Cheese Croutons: For a change, add your grilled cheese sandwich in your soup as croutons. Use a thick sliced bread, at least 1/2 inch thick. Prepare two sandwiches as usual, except use a sandwich press or panini maker to cook and press the sandwiches. Cook until browned, let rest for 5 minutes and cut into 1 inch cubes. HEALTHY LIFESTYLES

THE JOY OF YOGA

HOW TO CALM DOWN

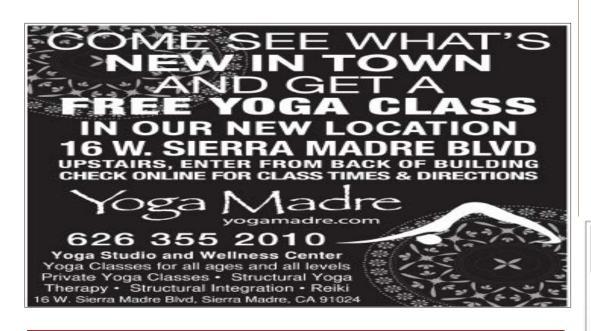

Do you have trouble meditating? It can really be a challenge to stop all the chatter in the head and be quiet. Try this simple breath practice first. It is called Bhramari. It is like the sound of the buzzing bee and they say it is good for insomnia (at a low pitch), the thyroid (medium pitch) and sinus infections (med to high pitch). It activates the parasympathetic nervous system and is great for stress. It also helps stop the mental looping that we do. So it's great for people that have trouble meditating. Bhramari helps us turn the senses inward to the inner sounds. This stills, calms, and sensitizes our 3rd eye. Because we are lengthening the exhale, it is great for calming anxiety and alleviating depression.

You can sit in a chair or on the floor on a cushion. Sit up tall with a straight spine. Take a couple relaxing breaths to get in the mood. Then inhale and as you exhale make a soft buzzing sound, like a honey bee.

Try it for several rounds.

You can enhance the effects by using a hand gesture (mudra). Place the thumbs on the cartilage by the ear to close the ears and lightly place the finger tips on the forehead and nose. The pinky fingers just outside the nostrils, the ring fingers on the upper sides of the nose by the eyes, the middle fingers at the inside edges of the brow and the pointer finger on the forehead. Do six rounds and then do six silent rounds. See if you can still hear the buzzing. Now try your meditation and just watch the regular breath in and out.

Have a great stress free holiday season. If you hear someone buzzing – you'll know why. Namasté, René Heathcare the Way Nature Intended STAYING FLU PROOF THIS HOLIDAY SEASON As a naturopath, I am not looking to fight off the flu but to stay immune to it. For the human body to get sick, conditions in it must be just right. I am looking to keep my body strong and healthy this holiday season. Last year's flu season was one of the worst on record. There are things you can do now to help avoid the flu.

Dr. Tina is a traditional naturopath and nutritionist at Vibrant Living Wellness Center

I find many of my clients become sick between Thanksgiving to about mid-January, is this you? I think this is because there are a lot of demands on our time and/or social events that we don't want to miss during the holiday season. If we are not careful, our immune system becomes weak. The first thing I would ask is if I am getting enough sleep? After all, that is when our body repairs. A strong healthy body must have proper rest. Next, am I staying properly hydrated? The holiday season means a lot of social gatherings where alcohol may be consumed. We must make sure we are drinking at least 8 ounces of EXTRA water for each alcoholic beverage

Vibrant Living Wellness Center

we consume. Alcohol is very dehydrating.

Most importantly, I am looking to eat well so that I stay immune to the flu. That means eating lots and lots of veggies, especially greens. This time of year kale, yams, carrots, and spinach are particularly important. They are rich in vitamin A, which among other things keeps mucus membranes moist. Moisture keeps our membranes healthy and prevents germs from getting past them. If you use your heat this time of year you might want to consider getting a humidifier. A humidifier will help prevent your mucous membranes from getting dried and cracked. These cracks can provide entry points for invading viruses.

Lastly, I try to avoid eating highly processed foods because they put a toll on your body and can compromise your immune function. Give your body what it needs to stay strong during these weeks of holiday food, drink and stress by eating well, staying hydrated and getting plenty of rest.

Happy by Chris Leclerc

April 26, 1986 is a date in history that holds rather grave memories for those who bore witness to the news cast that aired that day, announcing a tragedy of global significance, the likes of which could not have been anticipated by most average on-lookers, including myself. Like many other tragedies that have hit mainstream headlines throughout the world over the past century, what happened on April 26, 1986 is an historic event that will continue to be memorialized and analyzed for decades to come. I wish I could say I remember where I was when I heard the news that the Chernobyl Nuclear Power Plant in the Ukraine city of Prypiat had experienced a total melt-down at Block 4, but I can't. I was 23 years old at the time, and rather wrapped up in my own little world. Knowing there was nothing I could do to change what had happened, I suppose I took the path of least resistance and wrote it off as just another over-inflated, exaggerated news flash that I would rather ignore than stress over. Now, looking back with a better understanding of what occurred that fateful day, it breaks my heart to think about what those local people went through, and the affect it will have on all of us, in the long run. Anyone of the age to remember would have to agree that it was, and still is an environmental tragedy of epic proportion. The radioactive impact of Chernobyl's melt-down is said to have been equal to 400 times that of the 1945 atomic bombing at Hiroshima. More than 400,000 at Hiroshima of Premiet were read-and citizens of Prypiat were rendered homeless, and forced out of what they now call the "Exclusion Zone" where radioactive levels still remain exponentially dangerous to this

NATURE'S TENACITY IN THE ABSENCE OF HUMANITY

Numerous cancer- human intervention or hindrances. After evacuating the 20+ mile span of contaminated land, authorities fenced it off and secured it as un-inhabitable to the human being.

It has been 27 years now, since the Chernobyl disaster, after which the area was declared "off limits" for human habitation. Meanwhile, a growing population of indigenous wild animals have managed to live in the 'zone' with no apparent mutations or health complications. That's right, in spite of the high level of radioactivity proven to prevail there, the animals continue to thrive and survive. Local wildlife in "the zone", particularly wolves, deer and beaver still inhabiting the area have fared very well, and even better than they have in some other indigenous areas throughout the world.

Among the few visitors allowed to venture into the "contaminated, radioactive, abandoned zone", are a handful of scientists sent in on a quest to research the conditions of the area following the nuclear disaster, with a particular focus on animal and plant life activity. The prohibition of human habitation in the 'Chernobyl Zone' has indeed rendered that area a very unique scientific study for how nature may or may not thrive in the absence of human intervention.

Visits are kept short in 'the zone', and radioactive-resistant protective gear, designed to help prevent exposure is strongly enforced. Remarkably, scientists have reported data that indicates that the indigenous animals still dwelling in the 'zone' are proliferating, and living in a healthier manner than they might in other non-chemically-tainted habitats where humans share their space. Why is this? Well, the general consensus is that wild animals are more capable of adapting to environmental changes when left to their own without associated deaths were I like to think of today's "Chernobyl attributed to the event over Zone" as a virtual garden of Eden subsequent years, due to that should remain human-less, radioactivity exposure. mainly because regardless of the level of radioactivity scientists have gauged on their bodies, the wild animals who live there are thriving better than in other areas where they are forced to share their space with human beings. The results of the research studies speak for themselves, and might indicate that nature is trying to tell the human to leave wild animals alone and allow them a little more space.

Another thought is, perhaps nature's tenacious response to this enormous human error is meant to teach us a lesson in humility. We have become so proud of our accomplishments that we sometimes forget to respect the fragile nature of our planet. Maybe if we are willing to view the Chernobyl tragedy as a tough lesson to be learned, we humans will become more cautious in applying our scientific "intelligence" in the future. After all, just because we can, doesn't always mean we should.

Regardless of the explanation for such unexpected 'life-after-death' conditions that have developed in an uninhabitable zone, one would be hard pressed to deny the fact that the human's absence has had a very positive effect on the wildlife's ability to thrive and survive. Take it for face value, and judge for yourself. Either way, you must admit that after 27 years in the wake of such an epic global disaster, it is remarkable that the wild animals residing in the 'zone' have found a way to revive their livelihood without our help. Such a scientific study should not be taken lightly, and while history cannot be re-constructed, the future lies before us. Let us use the lessons we learn along the way, and proceed in a more gracious manner to allow all of earth's life forms to thrive and survive. I think we humans got lucky in this case (so far), but only time can truly tell. Take only what you need, give back what you can and above all...love and let live!

THE GOOD LIFE

NATIONAL CAREGIVER MONTH RECOGNIZES NEARLY HALF OF AMERICANS CARING FOR AGING PARENTS

November's National Family Caregivers Month spotlights and recognizes the family caregivers who sacrifice daily to juggle jobs and family while helping to care for their aging parents.

Adult children worry about Mom or Dad living alone. This is a big added stressor for this "sandwich generation" - those taking care of their parents and children at the same time. The financial reality is that outside senior care is very expensive and most seniors want to continue living in their own home for as long as possible.

Enter SafeinHome® a real time, non-invasive monitoring system which allows family members to check on Mom or Dad anytime via smartphone or tablet. This cost effective solution helps adult children with aging parents living alone get their life back by making it easier to check on a parent from anywhere and maintain peace of mind knowing they are OK.

"Our seniors' wellness is a critical issue facing most Americans today," explained Denise Yarmlak, director of marketing for the SafeinHome® company based in Walnut Creek, California. With nearly 40% of adults in our country facing these immediate concerns daily, the prospect of staying in touch with family members through SafeinHome can be life changing.

SafeinHome® can be used by multiple family members and keep them in the loop with real time alerts for the most common daily routines such as was the door left open? Did mom return home and settle in for the night? Or worse, might she have fallen and need emergency care? SafeinHome® provides information quickly and cost effectively.

Southern Californian Jim LeVeque posed the question, "How many of us worry about the stove being left on, or has mom returned home safe and sound?

Family members and professional caregivers are capitalizing on this non-invasive technology which can be installed in less than 1 hour and lets them check in on a senior using their smart phone or tablet for $99 a month which is a much more affordable proposition compared to the financial burden of paid care running in the thousands of dollars per month. When the SafeinHome® Standard System became available, senior care affiliates and agency owners such as Barbora Soltys' Comfort Assisting, Inc in the San Francisco Bay Area and Colleen McKernan's Foothill Home Care in Southern California took notice immediately recognizing the added value these non-invasive real-time monitoring and alert technologies could provide additional peace of mind to family members who wanted to stay connected to their senior every day.

A relieved caregiver calls their family's SafeinHome® system "life changing and a life saver; a cost-effective alternative that keeps home care costs low. It's an extra measure of security; a proven technology designed to keep seniors safe and families worry free."

Another family caregiver shared his experience using the SafeinHome® solution for an aging parent. "If I ever worry about my father not answering the phone, I can just check through SafeinHome" and see where he is! What a relief!" Another satisfied client writes, We can still enjoy our lives and preserve our family nest-egg for years to come."

"We are rolling out SafeinHome" in Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, and Santa Maria, and other parts of California. During the holiday season, adult children often visit their aging parents and recognize the need for more help.

SafeinHome® is an easy and affordable way for adult children with aging parents to know they are OK when they can't be with them," explained Denise Yarmlak and since most care givers face daily challenges, SafeinHome® provides that viable solution.

This year's Presidential Proclamation notes that "Across our country, more than 60 million Americans take up thee selfless and unheralded work of delivering care to seniors...we thank these tireless heroes for the long, challenging work they perform behind closed doors and without fanfare every day, and we recommit to ensuring the well-being of their loved ones of the caregivers themselves."

FROM EGYPT WITH LOVE

My parents and I have an Egyptian missionary friend, (let's call her Maggie), who immigrated to the U.S.A. in the 1980's with her two young sons. Maggie came to be the wholesome land of boy scouts, Billy Sons." Needless to say, it didn't take long for her to realize our society had become more about druggies, Madonna, and "MTV."

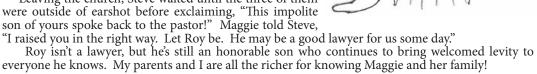

30-some years later, Maggie's done very well learning the language and understanding our culture. Mom and I are often embarrassed discussing America's current state of decline with Maggie. The U.S. may be slightly ahead of Egypt as far as personal freedoms and economic mobility are concerned, but our humanistic, existentialistic views have watered down any moral fiber we might've had as a nation.

The other day, Maggie used a story in order to illustrate the personality differences between her younger son (let's call him Roy) and her older son (we'll call Steve). According to Maggie, she and Steve are more introverted, while her late husband and Roy are more social. This particular story involved a pizza party at Lake Avenue Church.

The American pastor, who Maggie described as being at least 6'1", knelt down to Roy's height and asked him, "So, do you have pizza in Egypt?" Putting myself in Roy's shoes, I'd probably be tired of adults constantly asking about the customs of my home country; sort of like how kids get tired of the same two questions, "What's your name?" and "How

In response to the pastor, Roy asked him, "Have you ever been to Egypt?" "No," he replied. Roy smiled, "Then don't

Leaving the church, Steve waited until the three of them were outside of earshot before exclaiming, "This impolite son of yours spoke back to the pastor!" Maggie told Steve,

FYI: SODIUM AND SALT

Like we don't have enough to think about in these festive times...Americans Consume Too Much Sodium- screams out at me from the pages of the article I'm reading. Simple facts: If each American cut their salt intake by 1 teaspoon (3g) a day, there would be 120,000 fewer strokes, 99,000 fewer heart attacks and 92,000 fewer deaths in the next year. Nearly everyone benefits from reduced salt consumption...Consider that fact at the various holiday you attend. Bon Appetite! www.

FOR YOUR FUNNY BONE - A lady goes to a priest one day and tells him, "Father, I have a problem. I have two female parrots, but they only know how to say one thing." "What do they say?" the priest inquired. They say, "We are hookers! Do you want to have some fun?" "That's obscene!" the priest exclaimed, then he thought or a moment. "You know, he said, "I may have a solution to your problem. I have two male talking parrots, which I have taught to pray and read the Bible. Bring your two parrots over to my house and we'll put them in a cage with Francis and Job. My parrots can teach your parrots to praise and worship, and your parrots will stop saying...that phrase...in no time" "Thank you," the woman responded, "This may very well be the solution." The next day, she brought her female parrots to the priest's house. As he ushered her in, she saw that his two male parrots were inside their cage, holding rosary beads and praying. Impressed, she walked over and placed her parrots in with them. After a few minutes, the female parrots cried out in unison, "Hi, we're hookers! Do you want to have some fun?" There was stunned silence. Shocked, one male parrot looked over at the other male parrot and exclaimed, "Put the beads away, Frank. Our prayers have been answered!"

STUART Tolchin......On LIFE

HOW DO YOU GET A'S IN RETIREMENT?

Well, today beginning of a whole new life for me. For place I had to be this morning. I had set aside this time in December to do three trials, one right after the other. Because of my heart problems the Judge hearing the matter suggested that I allow myself to be relieved and another attorney be appointed in my place. An additional factor influencing the Judge is that the City Attorney is already many months pregnant and the Judge was concerned that if I became ill and asked for a delay that delay combined with the prosecutor's pregnancy would cause the cases to be delayed indefinitely. These combined factors were enough to influence the Judge who said immediately after relieving me, "Now, aren't you relieved"

"No doubt that I am now relieved but I can't say that I am relieved."

I wasn't just trying to be clever. It was difficult for me to accept being relieved. Not only was I losing out on a substantial amount of money but also the whole thing made me too aware of my own mortality. I think I could have done the trials without delay but to tell the truth it is now a week later and whole thing and to be able to focus on something else.

Is this the beginning of retirement? Today is a trial run so to speak; so what will I do? I began the day with the best of intentions and took the time to look at the New York Times on line. I read a few columns in the Opinion section all of which seemed to talk of the dysfunction of government I tried very hard to be a good son but and to predict catastrophes in the near future. Nothing new there. I chanced upon a series designed to give the reader a new appreciation of drawing. I used to love trying to do line drawings without lifting my pen from the paper. I made a stage of life for which I am completely practice of drawing with colored markers on paper towels. When the drawings were completed I spritzed them with water and the colors spread into various rainbow hues. I thumb tacked these pictures (if you call them that) all over the house and everyone who saw them praised them. Actually, that's not quite true. The only living creatures who saw luck. the pictures were my dog and my kids who were still pre-teens. I think they actually liked the idea of me trying to draw and were not very concerned with my results.

I like to think that my attempts may well be the had something to with my daughter's creating mosaics. Some of these mosaics are now up on the walls of my the first time in decades there was no house and I think they're pretty terrific. As to my attempts at decoration, those paper-towel creations were torn down by my new wife soon after she moved in. She's an art major and thought the pictures looked like garbage and she probably was right. By the time she tore the drawings down my kids were out of the house and my dog was too old to complain and even I thought the drawings weren't very "good" Actually she put the drawings into a book and later framed one of the pictures which now hangs on our bedroom wall. What I'm relating to is my feeling that the attempts weren't really very worthy rather than relating to anything she said. I never felt I deserved an A in drawing.

Obviously, at this late age, it's too late for me to begin to learn something new and really get "good" at it. So what's so important about being "good" at it? The important thing is that I enjoy what I'm doing. Right? I enjoy reading and watching sports. Except for the fact that I consider watching sports mainly a waste of time and really how many hours a day can anyone read? I already read more than anyone I know truthfully I am relieved to kiss off the and these days I forget stuff almost as soon as I read it. Besides that I've always viewed my reading as preparation for something; for what I really don't know. Now it's becoming clear to me that whatever it was that I was preparing for is not going to happen.

Maybe I would enjoy being a grandpa but alas I have no grandchildren and my kids don't seem to be cooperating. now both my parents have died and I miss that role of "good son" along with missing them every day unprepared. I can share this bit of wisdom with you. Whatever it is that you are doing pretty soon you (and I) won't be able to do it anymore. You're going to have to do something else and you probably won't be able to get an A in the something else. Really a B would be fine; so plan ahead if you can. Good

A MAN SO GREAT - NELSON ROLIHLAHLA MANDELA

"He used his life not for himself, but for Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. in the US, all the good of his country and the good of proponents of non-violent change. the world, and his spirit will live on. Congresswoman Barbara Lee –(D) Oakland

By Susan Henderson

When Mandela came to the United States in 1990, I was fortunate enough to be in attendance when he stopped in Oakland.. I was a guest of the host committee of Congressman Ron Dellums and it was a day that I will never forget. Mr. Mandela's presence when he arrived at the airport or even in the crowd of tens of thousands of people was absolutely mesmerizing. The expression, "in the presence of greatness" was an understatement. He was such gentle man and yet his very presence meant so much, even before he spoke a word. The man that stood before us, just months The day he was released from prison I after serving 27 years in prison was a deity in many minds. He was the deity of goodness, strength and determination and lacked any remorse or anger. He was truly what one would describe as

The visit, which was at the end of his eight city fundraising tour in the U.S. for the African National Congress was also, especially in the Bay Area, a big thank you for the areas unwavering support over the years. The cities of Berkeley, Oakland and San Francisco led the way in the anti-apartheid movement, primarily through the leadership of Bay Area Congressman Ron Dellums. Dellums pushed for years and finally prevailed in getting the cities to divest themselves of any business dealings in South Africa which started the ball rolling in delivering an irreparable blow to the apartheid regime. The movement also pushed for the release of Mandela from prison and for the passage of the Anti-Apartheid Act. The Act finally passed the US Congress in 1986 only to be vetoed by President Reagan. However, Congress was able to override that veto with a bi-partisan effort. At the time, it was the only foreign policy override of a President in the 20th century. Four years later, Mandela was released from prison and four years after that elected as the first Black President of South Africa and the only man to transition a violent, divisive government to one that respects and honors the vote of each and every person in a non-violent manner. you can imagine my excitement to be in Great, one who used his time on this the presence of this great man. For as long as I have been aware of Nelson Mandela, I have been fearful that time would run out before he accomplished his goals. The life that he chose in order to save his country put him at risk every single day. He was in danger at every turn, through all of the various methodologies he chose to try to effectuate change. His transformation from a young lawyer who believed the law would deliver him, to the militant man who co-founded the ANC's Military wing, to the activist who refused to allow a jail cell to deter him, to the freed man who continued on his journey without animosity or regret, to the leader of a Free, United South Africa, put his life in danger every step of the way.

remember having such mixed emotions. Overwhelming joy and overwhelming fear that hatred of some deranged assassin would stop the clock before he was able to reach his goals. Such tragedies were all too vivid, President Kennedy, Bobby Kennedy, Anwar Sadat, Martin Luther King, all cut off before their work was done. That nagging feeling that Mandela would be taken away too soon never left. However, he was able to change his country and the world through love, compassion and diligence. He was a truly good man, a real asset to our world. He inspired so

But as they say, time continued to move on, many oblivious to the fact that one day he would no longer be with us. In fact, until this year, many never thought of his mortality. We all knew he was 95 years old, and we knew that his time was certain to come to an end on this earth, yet the state of disbelief still clings to our hearts with the knowledge of his passing.

We should all be grateful that Nelson Mandela was given enough time to show us in many so ways, how to live. I remember when he came to Oakland one of the statements he made noted his rejuvenation. He said, "`I feel like an old battery that has been recharged," and we felt like he had been too. He went on to accomplish things no other man had done before on that recharged battery.

time on him." President Bush on Osama bin Laden - March, 2002

A few weeks after Bill Clinton became president, a truck bomb blew up in the North Tower garage at the World Trade Center, killing six

Americans and wounding more than a thousand. Clinton directed the National Security Council and FBI to see that those responsible were held accountable. (The five behind that bombing now live out their lives at the federal "supermax" prison in Florence, Colorado.)

The CIA determined they worked under Osama bin Laden.

In 1995, Clinton sent Congress legislation streamlining the deportation of terrorists and targeting their funding. A Presidential Directive called on the U.S. to "deter, defeat and respond vigorously to all terrorist attacks on our territory and against our citizens." The FBI and CIA got additional tools and funding.

The CIA set up a special unit to focus on bin Laden, and found he'd set up in Afghanistan - protected by the Taliban.

The multi-agency Counter-terrorism Security Group (CSG) under Richard Clarke learned of bin Laden cells in Saudi Arabia targeting American forces. After talks with CIA Director George Tenet, the Saudis agreed to use their influence with the Taliban to get bin Laden turned over for trial. The Saudis later said the Taliban promised to do so, but ultimately reneged on the deal.

On August 7, 1998, our embassies in Kenya and Tanzania were bombed, killing 224 and injuring 5,000. The CIA confirmed bin Laden was behind the bombings, and learned he'd be meeting with other terrorist leaders in Afghanistan to plan more attacks. On August 20, Clinton ordered a cruise missile attack on Al Qaeda camps in Afghanistan. (It was later reported we'd missed bin Laden by "a few hours".) Also targeted was a pharmaceutical plant in Sudan, run by the National Islamic Front and nerve gas experts from Iraq. Intelligence implicated the plant as a source of chemical weapons for Osama bin Laden.

In his column last week, Greg Welborn likened our recent agreement with Iran to "President Clinton's bombing of some aspirin factory when his presidency was faltering". As I often do, I decided to look into it. The above narrative is what I came up with, culminating in that "bombing of some aspirin factory".

At the time, pundits and politicians on the right described the August 20 attacks as "wag the dog" exercise; a manufactured threat of Islamic terrorism drummed-up by the administration to divert attention from the matter that truly threatened our republic: the president's relationship with Monica Lewinsky.

With help from the government of Jordan and the work of Richard Clarke's CSG, we thwarted the "millennial bombers" - terrorists who'd planned to destroy iconic targets in the U.S. (including LAX) as the year 1999 became 2000. The CIA traced these would-be bombers back to Osama bin Laden.

"I don't know where In October 2000 terrorists blew a hole in the USS Cole, docked in Yemen, with 17 Navy sailors killed. President Clinton declined to take action until responsibility was determined. Confirmation of the involvement of Osama bin Laden came in late January 2001 - a week after President George W. Bush was sworn in. The new administration was busy with other things.

> Clinton's National Security Advisor Sandy Berger met with incoming counterparts to warn that Osama bin Laden and the threat of Islamic terrorism needed to be the "24/7" concern for our nation's security. He was

Former Sens. Gary Hart (D-CO) and Warren Rudman (R-NH) came with findings of the commission they co-chaired, that a major terrorist attack on our soil was not a matter of "if" but "when" - but no one would listen. Incoming NSA Condoleezza Rice was preoccupied with reviving the "star wars" missile defense system. There was talk of Vice-President Cheney chairing a committee on terrorism sometime in the future – but it never met. (Cheney did, however, meet with his energy committee - at which industry execs reportedly pored over maps of Iraqi oilfields.)

Richard Clarke and others in intelligence "ran around with hair on fire" in the summer of 2001 warning that an attack was imminent, and it would be big. They were ignored. The CIA personally delivered to President Bush his daily briefing at his ranch in Crawford, Texas in early August- warning that ""Bin Laden Determined to Strike in US". The president dismissed the courier and resumed his

Following the attacks of 9/11, one of the more moving expressions of condolence came as Iranians gathered for a candlelight vigil in Tehran's Mohseni Square. President Khatami released a statement "On behalf of the Iranian people and the Islamic Republic" to "express my deep sorrow and sympathy with the American people."

A few months later, President Bush included Iran in his "Axis of Evil". Iranians turned to the mullahs, and the mullahs turned to Mahmoud Ahmadinejad.

Soon after the election of Hassan Rouhani as president last June, American officials began back-channel explorations of the possibility of a re-set in relations with Iran. The result was the recent interim agreement; Iran agreeing to six months of restrictions on its nuclear program in return for the un-freezing of some $6 billion in frozen assets – to assess the potential for a more meaningful, permanent treaty. (A recent Reuters/Ipsos poll shows the American people support the agreement by a 2-to-1 margin.)

One of the more compelling arguments for the agreement is that its critics were not long ago cheerleaders for those responsible for the most disastrous foreign policy and intelligence failures in our nation's history.

President Obama has recently succeeded in seeing to the destruction of Syria's chemical weapons stockpiles and manufacturing capabilities - without having to go to war over it. (Greg calls this outcome "tragic".) As for the president's determination to hold accountable those who would do us harm, Osama bin Laden would offer compelling testimony - if he could.

from decades of political abuse. His with the private sector, ruling, which was not unexpected, was politicians simply that all creditors, pensions included, have promised them fatter to be adjusted in a bankruptcy. This came pensions than could as a surprise only to those who purposely be afforded in order put on blinders to continue in their belief to avoid the political that somehow even the wildest extravagant confrontation with the

At the time of Detroit's bankruptcy, pension costs had become so large that basic public services were being compromised. The Detroit police force had been cut by 40%; Emergency response times were 5 times longer than the national average; and two out of every five street lights did not work. When the youknow-what finally hit the fan, the city had no choice. There was simply no way to postpone the inevitable. Bankruptcy was the only solution. To the bitter end, union leaders have been fighting this reality. They don't want the gravy train for them to end either. It is infinitely easier to go to their membership and tell them about the great increase in pension benefit they've negotiated than it is to tell the members that economic realities necessitate some downsizing or changes in work rules. Their last conceit was believing that somehow a pension liability would be deemed to be superior to any other type of liability. That was never true, and the judge simply ruled as the law

But at least the judge offered as a silver lining an explanation why none of us should want to have pension promises considered more sacrosanct than other promises. Remember, every time a city promises to pay something (whether it is for an employee's pension or for a supplier's product), someone is on the other end. Employees give their time and hard work, but so too do contractors or service providers. Whoever supplies phones to the city is just as entitled to payment as the janitor who cleans city hall.

Judge Steven Rhodes commented wisely that if pension benefits were immune from bankruptcy then politicians and unions would have even more incentive than they do now to make wild promises using tax payer money. All creditors must be treated fairly, or government will cease to represent the voters at all. As sad as the present situation is, the situation was only going to get worse. California's unfunded pension liability is 68%. Perhaps now, with the Detroit bankruptcy, politicians will own up to the invalid promises they've made, start to negotiate in good faith, and ultimately prevent even larger disasters from occurring in the future.

The best Sherlock Holmes movies use impossible logical reasoning skills, ability to disguise himself as anyone, and use of forensic skills to solve seemingly unsolvable cases.

The best Sherlock Holmes movies are based on the stories about Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's famous, fictional detective, Sherlock Homes. These films are set in London and showcase Sherlock's amazing and seemingly impossible logical reasoning skills, ability to disguise himself as anyone, and use of forensic skills to solve seemingly unsolvable cases.

The very first Sherlock Holmes movies made was produced in 1900. By 1939, all of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's novels were all turned into films which starred Basil Rathbone, who donned Sherlock Holmes' trademark pipe and spyglasses. This series of films was narrated by Sherlock himself and was mainly about the adventures of Sherlock and his trusty friend Dr. John Watson.

Some of the most popular films in the series of Sherlock Holmes films of the 1930s included The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes, The Hound of the Baskervilles, Sherlock Holmes' Fatal Hour, and The Sign of Four: Sherlock Holmes' Greatest Case. By the '40s, Sherlock Holmes films were still being produced and were still popular.

Some of the best Sherlock Holmes movies of this decade were Sherlock Holmes Faces Death, Terror by Night, and Sherlock Holmes in Washington. By the 50s, not as many Sherlock Holmes movies were being produced. However, Terence Fisher's remake of The Hound of the Baskervilles was the most popular Sherlock film of the decade.

The best Sherlock Holmes movies have greatly impacted not only the film making industry, but also culture. The popularization of Sherlock Holmes films opened up a whole new window of opportunity for the film making industry.

Before Sherlock Holmes films, there were no films about mysteries and detectives, but the enjoyment and acceptance of such films set the stage for other films and TV shows involving mysteries, detectives, crimes, etc. Such films and sitcoms include Chinatown, Dick Tracy, Dexter, and Monk.

The best Sherlock Holmes movies have also impacted culture. Since the beginning of these movies, people have been more interested in crime, mysteries, detectives, etc. This means that the media is going to produce more films and TV shows about crime, mystery, detectives, etc.

Some of these TV shows and films are harmless, but some are not so tame, and it could be argued that watching so many shows and films about crimes could cause a person to become more likely to commit a crime.

If you're looking for the best Sherlock Holmes movie to watch, but don't know where to start, here is a list of must-see Sherlock films from free movie websites: the 1989 Without a Clue, the 2009 Sherlock Holmes, the 1939 The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes, the 1939 The Hound of Baskervilles, and the 1985 Young Sherlock Holmes.

SIERRA MADRE POLICE BLOTTER

For The Period November 18-24, 2013

Tuesday November 19, 2013

Overnight, unknown suspects vandalized a vehicle that was parked in a carport in the 200 block of east Sierra Madre Boulevard. The suspects removed the molding from a side window. The owner also reported that the same vehicle was vandalized 3 weeks earlier when an unknown suspect "keyed" the side of the vehicle.

At 9:30pm an officer made a traffic stop of a vehicle travelling south on Michillinda Avenue. During the investigation it was determined that the vehicle would be impounded. While conducting an inventory search, the officer found several unique tools that are commonly used to break into homes and vehicles. This included a set of gloves, bolt cutters and shaved screwdrivers. The driver was uncooperative and was subsequently arrested for Possession of Burglary Tools. Investigators will be looking into the matter to determine if the suspect may be actively committing crimes in the area.

Wednesday November 20, 2013

During the early morning hours, a vehicle was stolen from the 500 block of east Montecito Avenue. Later that afternoon, the vehicle was observed in the City of Azusa and officers from that jurisdiction detained an individual who was standing near the vehicle. Witness statements indicated that this individual had driven to this location in that vehicle only minutes before the police arrived. He was subsequently arrested for GTA. Sierra Madre detectives are looking into the possibility this person may be involved in a recent residential burglary as well.

Thursday November 21, 2013

Overnight, unknown suspects entered an unlocked vehicle parked in a carport in the 100 block of east Highland Avenue. The suspect removed a wallet from the center console and other items on the floorboard. At 8:45am, the victim's credit card was used at a fast food restaurant in Irwindale. The store video cameras captured the transaction at the drive up window and investigators are researching the partial license plate number that was visible on the recording.

For The Period November 25-30, 2013

Monday November 25, 2013

At 7:45am, a traffic collision occurred on Sunnyside Avenue near Sierra Madre Boulevard. A vehicle, exiting a private driveway onto Sunnyside Avenue ran off the roadway and collided with a tree when the driver hurriedly attempted to react to another vehicle travelling northbound. The driver was uninjured and the vehicle sustained minor damage.

At 5:30pm, another traffic collision took place at Sierra Madre Boulevard and Lima Avenue. Two vehicles were stopped for the 4-way stop, and both proceeded into the intersection at the same time and collided with each other. There were no injuries and damage was minimal.

Thursday November 25, 2013

An officer on patrol was hailed by a citizen and alerted to a vehicle driving erratically. The officer followed and observed the vehicle weaving in the roadway. A traffic stop was initiated and as the vehicle pulled over, it collided with the curb. During his investigation, the officer determined the driver was under the influence of alcohol. The driver refused to submit to a chemical test and was subsequently arrested for DUI.

last meeting, Community Services Commissioner David Crochetiere asks the council to reject the request and suggests that the Senior Commissions motives are selfish and not in the best interest of the community. He also labels the new proposed restroom as 'unisex' and lists several reasons why he feels a 'unisex' bathroom is not a good idea.

Family Restrooms Defined

While it is a fact that both sexes may use a Family Restroom, Community Services Manager Adam Matsumoto gave the SCC an accurate definition of what the definition of a Family Restroom is. Matsumoto stated that a family restroom is "basically a private bathroom with adequate room for parents with children or the elderly with wheelchairs and/or caretakers" to use the facility with ease.

In fact, the State of California is very specific in its definition of Family Restrooms and the signage required. "Restrooms intended for families, or for disabled persons accompanied by attendants are often called "Family Restrooms." Perhaps the signage required explains it best:

Other language used in public places include: "This restroom is intended only for those with special needs", bathrooms and the required notice for such a facility is: Other comments, public and private, from those who oppose the project suggest without foundation that there will be abuse of the facility by day

On the other hand, unisex bathrooms are not necessarily private and may have multiple stalls but are clearly marked as such. Many offices have unisex laborers. And, as with all controversies in Sierra Madre, the conspiracy theories are abundant as to what is the motivation for denying this project.

The handling of the entire matter has infuriated the SCC. One commissioner commented that she felt that several members of the council treated the SCC with disrespect and were dismissive of the SCC concerns.

Possible Alternatives

On Thursday, at the regular monthly meeting of the SCC, the city presented five new options that did not include the family restroom and one that did. Matsumoto's Power Point presentation used graphics that illustrated the physical impact of each alternative and how much open space might be consumed. There was also at least one option that would not alter the Hart Park House historical footprint, but others did. It was brought to the committee's attention that the Hart Park House is not a Historical Landmark, but rather an Historical Site given that over the years repairs and renovations have altered the original building, thus lessening the impact of changes to the buildings 'footprint'. When asked why these alternatives had not been offered before, City Manager Aguilar said, "Staff was directed to explore all other options." She noted that previous councils had made it clear that the park's open space and alterations to the Hart Park House footprint were off limits.

The SCC decided that in the event the council does not accept its original plan, they would prefer the option which called for the building of storage area only with an entrance through the space used for an Office. Said one Commissioner, "Let the city worry about those disreputable bathrooms".

The Commissioners also voted not to survey park users about their choices. As one attendee noted, Whatever is done should be the will of the residents of Sierra Madre only, not the choice of visitors." The matter will come back before the council in February and, according to the City Manager, the original proposal has not yet been voted down. Perhaps then the Senior Community Commission will be able to give the city and its residents and visitors the 'present' they originally intended.
