Significantly weakened operating results leading to rate covenant violations

One of the conditions of the 1998 bonds, is that we keep "net revenues to equal at least 120% of our annual debt service". We have not met this requirement because of "weak financial performance" and that has led to "three consecutive years of violating the rate covenant".

Declining revenues are partially at fault, however repairs on the city's aglargest toll on the water company's reserves. When the city's pumps its own water supply the cost is, according to Moody's $95 per acre foot comrently paying. Our own well levels are pandered to the irresponsible demands too low to pump our own water, and of those who don't want to pay for given the drought and likelihood of its continuance, purchasing outside water may continue for some time.

The other contributing factor that Moody's cites is our "historically lackluster political will to implement rate increases sufficient to maintain healthy operations."

In 2010 when the 218 Process was put before the citizenry, an organized effort to protest the rate increase failed to get enough support. However, instead of moving forward with the increase as the law allowed, the council, led by Mayor Joe Mosca, chose to delay and ultimately adjust, under Mayor Josh Moran, the amount of the increase to a level that was not sufficient to keep the water company solvent. According to the letter issued to the city by Moody's in 2010, "The rate increase would have rectified the rate covenant issue within 90 days. However, City Council delayed implementing the rate increase for one year to get residents more aware of the coming rate increase". Those actions lead to the first downgrade from A1 to A3 in 2011.

Downgrade Part II.

On Thursday, when the city was downgraded even further to Ba1, the language from Moody's was even more disconcerting than it was in 2011. "...the current rating at a below invest-ment grade level reflects the increased risk that arises from the demonstrated willingness to violate the bond's legal covenants, the enterprises limited financial resources, and the possibility that a successful rate payer 218 protest would exacerbate the enterprise's financial challenges."

We have witnessed this approach recently in addressing the current water rate study. The projected outcome for the 2014 water rate is addressed in the Moody's letter as well. We must do the right thing for the sake of our City."

Councilman John Capoccia was also not blind-sided by the report. He said, "The downgrade is not surprising. Moody's analysis is consistent with the information that the City has published in various venues, including the ballot package mailed this week to all the water utility customers. Basically we're rapidly depleting our reserves, we have aging infrastructure that's been neglected over many years, our revenue is off because of the recession and conservation, and we've had unanticipated expenses such as rebuilding two of our wells. Thus, our financial position has deteriorated leading to the downgrade.

The problem has been exacerbated in recent years. Since the last rate study, revenue is off $2.5M and the unanticipated expenses are up approximately $2.5M, for a net negative hit of $5M, thus the rapid depletion of reserves. The rate proposal that is before our citizens is frankly unpleasant for all of us, but it is necessary, and will address the issues highlighted in Moody's report. The rate proposal will build up our reserves, allow us to upgrade infrastructure on a pay-as-you-go basis to start to catch up on years of neglect, and it will allow us to meet the bond covenant.

Moody's long-term ratings are opinions of the relative credit risk of financial obligations with an original maturity of one year or more. They address the possibility that a financial obligation will not be honored as promised. Such ratings use Moody's Global Scale and reflect both the likelihood of default and any financial loss suffered in the event of default.

AAA Obligations rated AAA are judged to be of the highest quality, with minimal Aa Obligations rated Aa are judged to be of high quality and are subject to very low credit risk.

A Obligations rated A are considered upper-medium grade and are subject to low credit risk.

Baa Obligations rated Baa are subject to moderate credit risk. They are considered medium grade and as such may possess certain speculative characteristics. Ba Obligations rated Ba are judged to have speculative elements and are subject to substantial credit risk.

B Obligations rated B are considered speculative and are subject to high credit risk.

Caa Obligations rated Caa are judged to be of poor standing and are subject to very high credit risk. Ca Obligations rated Ca are highly specula-class and are typically in default, with little prospect for recovery of principal or interest.

Note: Moody's appends numerical modifiers 1, 2, and 3 to each generic rating classification from Aa through Caa. The modifier 1 indicates that the obligation ranks in the higher end of its generic rating category; the modifier 2 indicates a mid-range ranking; and the modifier 3 indicates a ranking in the lower end of that generic rating category.

VISION WITHOUT SIGHT - Sierra Madre C.L.I.M.B. resident sheds light on being blind

By Helen Simmons

How is it possible that a woman who came into this world weighing less than 3 pounds could have such a powerful impact on 130 Camino Grove 4th graders? It is possible because that woman is Jo Anne Seaman. Still full of the energy and spunk of a teenager, Jo Anne, now 65, managed to completely move and inspire this Arcadia crowd of 9 and 10 year olds, at an assembly held December 3.

December 3.
Jo Anne and I met 14 years ago. I was in the process of writing an article about C.L.I.M.B., a facility for the multi-handicapped blind, located in Sierra Madre. (C.L.I.M.B. stands for the Center for Living Independence for the Multi-Handicapped Blind.) As resident of C.L.I.M.B. since it opened in 1977, Jo Anne volunteered to show me firsthand how people who to show me firsthand how people who are multi-handicapped blind can and do lead very fulfilling and successful lives. We became friends through the experience. Seven years later, when I became a 4th grade teacher at Camino Grove in Arcadia Unified School District, Jo Anne agreed to meet with my school's 4th graders as I wanted them to gain insight and appreciation of those with multiple handicaps through her experience. Since then, Jo Anne has returned almost every year to speak with our 4th graders. Each time she visits she makes a strong impact, with her open heart, multiple interests, love of children, and amazing gusto for life. At this year's assembly, Jo Anne readily addressed questions asked by our 4th graders. She explained how she lost her vision due to receiving too much oxygen as a premature baby, and demonstrated how she gets around with her cane. When asked if she could drive, Jo Anne chuckled heartily, as her silky, white cheeks turned slightly red. In good spirit she replied, "If I was driving without a license that would be illegal and I would have quite a few accidents. I'm afraid that I'd be the terror of the town and don't think the Sierra Madre police would like it if I drove. They would be after me!"

Sharing one of her biggest passions, being a licensed ham radio operator, Jo Anne whipped out her sleek, red ham radio, with its one foot long black antenna. She talked about how she enjoys communicating with people from all over the world using the device. "I spoke with a woman from China, yesterday!" she exclaimed, aware that a high percentage of Arcadia students have Asian connections. Jo Anne highlighted ham radio uses in disaster situations, referencing how the radio came in handy during the windstorm that ravaged our area a couple of years back, downing electric power lines and trees like matchsticks. Jo Anne also commented that she had communicated with children as young as 8 on her ham radio and knew of children as young as 5 who passed the ham radio (continued on page 3) (continued on page 3)

REMEMBERANCE

LORENA MARIE GOUAUX WYNNE

Born in Carencro, Louisiana on April 26, 1927, the second of five children, Lorena was raised in Lafayette, Louisiana. She attended Lafayette High School and the University of Southwestern Louisiana, where she majored in English Literature. She married her husband of 60 years, Leslie Bernard Wynne, Jr., in 1949 and came to Sierra Madre, where they raised five children.

She passed away following a brief illness on December 7, 2013. She was preceded in death by her husband in 2009, her parents Claude Bernard Gouaux and Lorena Guidry Gouaux, sisters Laurette Gauthier and Leontine Trappey and brother Claude Bernard Gouaux, Jr.

She is survived by one sister, Louise Patout, and by her children Dr. Les Wynne of Monterey Park, Mary Forney, Leontine Bajer, Laura Forney and Leonard Wynne of Sierra Madre, her grandchildren Joseph Forney, Lorena Bajer De La Rosa, Paul Forney, Louise Forney Fahlstrom, Robert Wynne, and Anne Forney, and by two great grandchildren.

Lorena loved life, was ever gracious, and brought a sparkle of joy into so many lives. The combination of her southern hospitality and her natural gift of relating to others endeared her to everyone she met. She was a wonderful mother and role model, as well as being the driving force of support and biggest fan for her artist husband's career.

She was a devout Catholic and loved her dear St. Rita's Parish. She loved traveling, shopping with her daughters, cooking with her son, Leonard, and visiting with all her children and grandchildren. She was a voracious reader and especially loved Russian literature. She had an indomitable spirit, and she loved to laugh and share jokes. She was the center of her loving family, and she will be very dearly need for the rate increase, and it also has answers to the most frequently asked questions. I also encourage everyone to contact city staff or any members of the city council if they have any questions at all, and I'm asking that our citizens support the rate increase.

In my opinion, if the rate increase does not pass, we'll have to immediately go into a lock-down mode where we defer maintenance wherever possible to buy time while we look at the possibility of selling the water utility while we have some leverage. If we completely deplete our reserves and default on the bond debt, we will lose negotiating leverage. Speaking as a citizen as well as a Council member, the sale of the water utility under any circumstances would be a bad deal for all of us, one that we would regret long into the future."

A path to recovery?

As the Mayor and Councilman Capoccia stated, the only hope for the future of our Water Company is the passage of the rate increase. In order to do so, it is recommended that residents not protest the increase in the Prop 218 packet.

Moody's is doubtful the Sierra Madrean's are responsible enough to recognize the need to financially support the city's water company and its obligation. They warn, "Failure to adopt or fully implement the proposed rate increases will result in further downward pressure on the rating." They do offer steps to recovery, however:

Sustained and material improvement of debt service coverage leading to compliance with rate covenants; -Significant improvement of

ast Montecito Avenue Design D

-Long-term stable customer growth.

Art, Design, Film, Decor, Interiors, Furniture, Upholstery, Glass, Wood

On one avenue - "East Montecito Avenue" at Baldwin, Sierra Madre CA

They also articulate what will certainly bring the rating down: -Failure to implement the Prop 218 rate increases

-Further decline in debt service coverage -Loss of Customers and revenue sources -Further Violations of Bond Covenants

The downgrade will impact more than just the city's bonds. In the event of a disaster or other unforeseen circumstance, the water company, although it is a separate entity of the city, and its challenged credit rating will impair the city's ability to borrow, refinance or engage in many other fiscal activities at a reasonable interest rate. It may even cripple the city's ability to restructure its finances totally. Given the city's "above average socioeconomic profile" investors, as stated by Moody's will not look favorably on the city's willingness, or lack thereof, to properly manage its obligations.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE.....THE SOCIAL SIDE

By Deanne Davis

Have you walked through Kersting Court and admired our really handsome Christmas tree, with wonderful red bows, ornaments, and even a gift or two beneath? Last Sunday we were delighted to see a family of Mom, Dad and three young adult kids, decked out in red Santa hats, standing in front of our community tree, tripod set up on the sidewalk, Dad taking one last look into the lens then vaulting over the wall to get into position for the family Christmas photo. They were having such a great time. If you haven't done yours yet, there's a new idea. We walked up Baldwin, too, and admired another Santa inspired Christmas decoration, which isn't exactly in the tree category, but is extremely creative. Photo below.

All this Christmas tree talk reminds me that my moment is coming, too, when it's time to trim the tree. Lovingly, we unearth all the boxes of Christmas stuff, try to remember what we did last year with the manger scene that made it look so sweetly reverent, promise ourselves we=re not going to do so much this year, and then put up more than ever before.

There's no way we can't put out all the Christmas goodies the children made in

Sunday School through the years; the little hands pressed into plaster of paris, the pictures mounted in bread dough frames, the miniature red felt stockings with family names in glitter, the red globes that date from the beginning of our marriage, which are cracked and crazed (as is, occasionally, our marriage), but precious in our sight.

Yep, it's two weeks before Christmas, you've bought a beautiful real tree that smells so fresh and forest-y that you want to bury your face in it. It's in the house in the time-honored Christmas tree spot and it's time to decorate. The family scatters like roaches when the light is turned on, and you and Tree find yourselves alone, even though you made cookies to convince everyone how much fun this is going to be. This intimate moment deserves a small celebration. It's definitely time to make Egg

Look through any Christmas Cookbook and you'll find Egg Nog, all right, the Victorian version requiring way too much labor, and you've already got the labor ahead of you:

Here's your traditional Egg Nog: Beat yolks and whites of 8 eggs separately. Add 1/2 lb. sugar to whites, beat until stiff. Add beaten yolks to whites, mix until blended. Beat in 2 jiggers Rum. Add 1 bottle (4/5 qt.) Whiskey. Beat mixture. Add 1 pint heavy cream. 1 quart of milk. Mix. Chill well. Grate nutmeg over top. Serve.

A bottle of whiskey?? Make this and Tree will still be naked tomorrow and you'll have a headache!

Here's a much easier, kinder, gentler version:

1. Buy a carton of prepared low-fat egg nog right out of the dairy case at your favorite market.

2. Put a tray of ice cubes in your blender. 3. Fill the blender two thirds full of egg nog mix.

4. Add a half cup of rum, brandy, or a little of both to the blender (or more, or less, depending on how annoyed you are). 5. Blend until ice is pleasantly crunchified.

6. Pour into a large, beautiful, stemmed glass. Grate fresh nutmeg over top. 7. Sit down and admire Tree, while enjoying egg nog.

8. Realize that peace reigns now that family has scattered to unknown destinations. 9. Put on the Christmas CD that YOU like, the one that has "Grandma Got Run Over By a Reindeer" on it, if that's your cup of egg nog. 10. Allow joy to flood your heart, soul and mind.

11. Plug in that first string of lights and think about that first Christmas night, that first Light.

12. Rejoice! Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men!

13. Know in your heart that Tree will be the most beautiful one ever! 14. Invite friends and family over to share your egg nog and admire Tree.

> "On a night like this, centuries ago, A brilliant star rose in the East, To show the Wise Men where to go. They set out on a journey, To find an unknown King. Their hearts were filled with happiness

She then suggested that, together with their parents, they check out a website, www. hamuniverse.com, to attain information on how to get a ham radio operator license. JoAnne wanted parents to know that unlike risks involved with children using the Internet, the ham radio culture is much more "child safe." She also noted how helpful ham radio operators tend to be, both blind and sighted, in assisting those who need

Next, Jo Anne opened up about challenges she faced learning to read Braille as a 1st grader. Because she struggled with learning Braille, she had to repeat 1st grade. However, a teacher eventually figured out that her difficulties were not due to learning issues, but due to the fact that she had been forced to learn to read Braille using in some students' and teachers' eyes. Springing up quickly from her folding chair, Jo Anne grasped the edge of my elbow and followed me with ease to the auditorium keyboard. She performed a song she wrote for C.L.I.M.B. right after she moved in there. "I thought C.L.I.M.B. was such a wonderful place when I first came that I wanted to write a song about it," Jo Anne explained. "And I still think it is wonderful," she added.

As Jo Anne played, I stood next to her and looked out at the audience of 4th graders. Bodies were still. Faces were intense and serious, totally opposite the look of a typical 10-year-old out on the playground. Jo Anne's song connected the room. Her slender fingers touched the keys of the keyboard precisely, as her beautiful, pristine voice caught our hearts. Tears began to well up resonated deep within us as she crooned, "We're just like anyone else, only we can't see."

When the song ended, the crowd erupted in applause, celebrating Jo Anne. We had come to appreciate how far she had come from less than 3 pounds at birth to a mountain of strength become. Due to my request, she had brought the and warmth, determined to see light, despite darkness, hope despite challenges, and humor in

Chu Votes to Rein in Patent Trolls

Congresswoman Judy Chu voted last week to pass H.R. 3309, the Innovation Act of 2013. This legislation helps curb abusive litigation by patent assertion entities, more commonly referred to as "patent trolls." These actors abuse the patent system by purchasing the rights to everly purchasing the rights to overly broad patents in order to threaten legitimate businesses and consumers with costly litigation. According to a Boston University study, lawsuits brought on by patent trolls cost the U.S. economy more than $29 billion annually.

Schiff Urges Extending Unemployment Insurance

Adam Schiff, a member of the Appropriations Committee, released the following statement Wednesday after a budget agreement was reached between Sen. Patty Murray and Rep. Paul Ryan last night, and urged Congress to extend unemployment insurance before leaving town for the holidays:

"I appreciate the work that the budget negotiators have done to replace the sequester with a more rational budget process, and I will be evaluating the specifics to determine whether it is something I can support. The deal may help Congress return to a regular appropriations process and stop the economicallydestructive practice of going from crisis to crisis. It would also restore some of the funding cut by the indiscriminate sequester.

"However, I'm deeply disturbed that this deal does not include an extension of unemployment insurance for 1.3 million Americans who are actively seeking employment. A recent CBO study showed that failure to extend unemployment insurance will not only hurt struggling families, but also will cost our economy another 200,000 lost jobs that we just can't afford to lose during this tepid recovery. Congress should not leave town for the holidays until we have extended these vital benefits.

"I hope that we will be able to reach agreement on unemployment insurance and avoid putting a lump of coal into families' stockings during this holiday season."

REDEDICATION TO DEPUTY DAVE MARCH:

Thank you, Awesome Irwindale POA, LASD and David Laing

The day after Thanksgiving, I learned Deputy Dave March's Memorial on Live Oak Avenue was destroyed. I was very upset, but Crescenta Valley Sheriff's Sgt. Burt Brink assured me it would be replaced. "When and how?", I thought.

Yesterday the unbelievable happened. There was the poignant rededication of a new Memorial and the planting of a "Crape Myrtle" tree that will be in full bloom every year during the anniversary of Deputy March's passing!

I cannot find the words to express the gratitude to Irwindale Police Officers Association, David Laing of L & L Building Materials and Laing Construction, Mr. and Mrs. Figueroa of Fig Memorials in El Monte, and William Luna of Gasser/Olds Company Incorporated in Vernon for refinishing and repairing the beautiful monument. I also want to thank Temple Station Captain Chris Nee and Sergeant Sherif Morsi, for their role in the beautiful rededication program and both Deputy Bill Harrington, Temple Station volunteers and Irwindale PD and their volunteers/cadets who helped

After my early arrival, I spoke with Irwindale Officer Robert Avila on duty the AM of the accident, who quickly contacted Temple Station. I met Officer Rudy Campos, President of the 37 Member Irwindale Police Officers Association, who put up the original Memorial and were responsible for Officer Campos was the MC for the Program which began with the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Honor Guard, of Lt. Tom McNeal, Deputy Mary De Bella, Deputy Warren Ondatje, and Deputy Tim Shultz. Sergeant Bryan Ward performed the National Anthem followed by the Pledge of Allegiance.

Officer Campos thanked all present: LA County Sheriff Baca, Irwindale Interim Police Chief Roy Campos, California Highway Patrol Captain Mark Shaw, Baldwin Park Office Commander, Mayor Mark Breceda and City Manager John Davidson, Bradbury Council Member Richard Barakat, members of the business community and citizens of Los Angeles County and especially the March family. (Dave's parents, his sister Erin and her husband, Dave's widow Teri, Dave's godmother, her husband and other relatives). Officer Campos spoke of Dave's great sacrifice-which is why Irwindale acted so quickly with the first Memorial and the rebuilding after it was destroyed. He also mentioned how Temple Station has held a 24 hour Honor Guard at the site since Dave's passing at the site - was another reason it needed to be rebuilt.

Captain Nee, Temple Station Commander said "It speaks great volumes" as he looked at the great turnout: Sheriff Baca, Chief Roberta Abner, who was Temple Station Commander at the time of Dave's passing, Chief Jim Lopez, East Region, and members of nearby law enforcement agencies. He told of the "Brotherhood among Police Agencies" and commended Officer Campos who contacted him and reassured him the Memorial would be quickly replaced.

Sheriff Baca remembered the fateful day Dave died. He spoke of Dave's bravery, great sacrifice and how "Our Department's Creed takes his exact words". Dave's widow Teri thanked Irwindale POA for their great generosity. She has a "...sense of peace.

You said you wouldn't forget him and you haven't." Dave's dad John thanked everyone and said Dave's memorial "represents all law enforcement officers. They go out every day and take a risk; this reminds us of their great sacrifice."

Dave's mom Barbara felt "As Dave's mom, you made me feel proud. I have learned to love all you guys. Dave would be very grateful to you." The program ended with the planting of the tree. I would like to thank Irwindale POA and all involved in rebuilding the Memorial. I also am grateful for the huge turnout- retired Community Programs Director, Natalie Salazar, Temple Station Personnel including Sgt. Jim Dexter and neighboring agencies who attended: Arcadia PD Captain Paul Foley, Sgt. Tom Levesque, Lt. C. Flores and detectives; Azusa PD Officers Plascencia and Jarrett; San Gabriel Sgt. Rene Hernandez and Det. Sunny Kim and Alhambra PD. Dave was surely smiling, looking down from Heaven. He will never be forgotten.

HOW TV DISTORTS REALITY

By Christoper Nyerges

[Nyerges is the author of "Self-Sufficient Home," "How to Survive Anywhere," and other books. He can be reached at Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041, or www.Chris-

This week, I got a call from a popular TV "news magazine" show. I was told that they were planning to air a program the following day about the December 21, 2012 end date of the Mayan calendar cycle. They were aware that I teach survival skills and they saw my name associated with the Mayan date.

We'd like to talk to you about the Mayan prophecies," I was informed.

"Which Mayan prophecies are you referring ' I asked.

"You know, the end of the world prophecies," she casually responded.

"I'd be happy to talk to your viewers about the Mayan calendar," I said, "and I'd let them know that there are no Mayan prophecies of doom-andgloom that anyone knowledgeable is aware of." I explained that I studied in Mexico and Guatemala with Mayans. "Are you aware of specific prophe-

'No, just in general that the world is going

I explained that all the Mayan end-of-the-world hype was media fabrication. What would be happening on December 21, according to most scholars, is that a large cycle of the Mayan calendar – 13 Baktuns lasting 5,125 years – will end, and another cycle will begin the next day. I told her that I'd be happy to ease her viewers' fears, and explain that zealous media pundits somehow confused "end of a calendar cycle" with "end of the world."

The TV show representative explained that she'd seen me on the National Geographic's "Doomsday Preppers" show, and said she'd really like to see me with my survival gear. (I was offered no compensation for the time I expected to give.) I explained that I was driving to work (yes, I do work!) and that I only had the minimal gear that I always carry, but not my full wilderness pack.

"I'd still be happy to share with your viewers how knowing survival skills is a good thing all the time," I continued, "considering all the very real problems that we all have to contend with, such as earthquakes, floods, hurricanes, economic disasters, terrorists, diseases, and so on." "Actually, we're really looking for someone who is seriously preparing for the December 21st date.

We really want something more dramatic and sensational," I was told. It was becoming clear that I would not be on their show.

"Well, if you're looking for a nut who's frightened about the Mayan calendar and who is taking radical action based on panic and fear, then I'm not your man," I told her. "Still, I'd be happy to talk to you to give your show some balance." I continued, telling her that there is no special planetary alignment associated with December 21, no comet that we know of that's about to hit the earth, no mysterious planet about to show up, and no heightened sun spot activity. I again explained that we never really know what might happen, but we shouldn't listen to the fear stories about things that have no relation to the Mayan calendar. She politely listened.

"I tell people that whenever you act out of fear or panic that you nearly always make bad choices," I

"Yes, well, we really want something more dramatic. We want to show people who are very concerned about this December 21 date and who are doing something about it." She told me she would talk to her producers and might call me back for a taping later in the day for a show that was already planned for the following day.

To no surprise, I never got a return call.

This taught me a lesson I'd experienced many times. The modern media are all too often so focused on ratings and sensationalism that they will twist and distort (or ignore) the facts if this helps maintain viewers. Though many of us might view the "quest for truth" to be a high ideal, not everyone does. In this case, it was clear that the producers of this TV program were not concerned about whether or not there were in fact any Mayan "prophecies" at all.

It is not just distortion and lies that we should protect ourselves against. We also need to be equally concerned about that the reporters and journalists do not tell us.

Sadly, TV, despite its vast potential, has increasingly become a wasteland. (Reprinted from December 15, 2012 - MVNews

TIP OF THE WEEK: HOME BURGLARY PREVENTION

Criminals look for easy targets. Burglars, watch for homes that are dark and seem to be temporarily unoccupied. Residential burglary prevention continues to be a focus of the Monrovia Police Department. Police officer presence in neighborhoods, investigators working surveillance, following up on leads and tips, and recovering stolen property are all part of preventing residential burglaries and property crime.

-Here is what you can do to help:

-Lock all of your doors and windows when you are not home. Leave any exterior lights on if they are

-Make sure that all side gates are locked and secured. -If you have an alarm system, activate it, even if you will be away for just a few minutes.

-If you have surveillance cameras affixed to the exterior of your property, make sure you periodically check them to ensure they are working properly. Ensure that all of your hedges and or bushes are trimmed from the front of your residence so that your house is not concealed from the street.

-Never leave old newspapers, mail or door leaflets piled up on the front steps of your -Never leave valuables in plain view from the outside.

-If you have valuables, please secure them in either a safe or safe deposit box at your

-Always take an active role in getting to know your neighborhood. -Keep your eyes open to suspicious activity in your neighborhood and always do your part as a good witness.

Never attempt to stop a crime; always call 911.

The most important deterrent in preventing property crime is you, the resident. It is very easy for you to take an active role in keeping your property safe. It is extremely important for residents to discourage a would-be thief and make their job as difficult and time consuming as possible. And if you see something suspicious happening in your neighborhood, do not hesitate to call police and report it.

EDUCATION & YOUTH

THIS YOUNG MAN KNOWS HOW TO CELEBRATE THE SEASON Grayson Wade encourages others to give to needy children

Local resident, Grayson Wade, is embracing the act of giving to those less fortunate. You may have seen his collection boxes in local businesses around town. As we approach this season of giving, Grayson has embarked upon a grassroots movement collecting money and donations and spreading awareness for Samaritan's Purse: Operation Christmas Child (OCC). OCC sends shoeboxes filled with school supplies, hygiene items, toys, games and clothing to children in desperate need throughout the world. In an effort to receive support and raise awareness, Grayson has walked through neighborhoods and spoken at Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, schools, boy scout troops and has been a featured speaker at meetings of the Operation Christmas Child San Gabriel Valley Team. This year Grayson is focusing on promoting youth awareness about giving to

This is Grayson's fourth year packing shoeboxes. His goal is to raise $5000 in order to pack 250 shoeboxes. In addition to raising funds, he hopes many kids will join this campaign in the future.

At press time, Grayson has raised well over his goal and delivered 364 shoebox gifts to Samaritan's Purse: Operation Christmas Child. PASADENA) Sarah*, 16, never had a real childhood. The eldest of four, she was thrust into the "mom" role at age 10 when her father abandoned the family and her mom went to work full-time. Sarah took care of her siblings -- making dinner, giving baths, and changing diapers. Money was tight, and there was no cash for extras, such as holiday gifts.

When Sarah came to live at Hillsides Residential Treatment Services program when she was 15, her ther-apists were determined to give her a happy Christmas. They asked her to write a holiday wish list, which included a coat, nail polish, art supplies, and a scarf. But now the challenge was, who would fulfill these holiday

Every holiday season, generous donors provide gifts for the children of Hillsides. However, "it is a chal-lenge for us to find gifts for the teens because many people prefer to give presents to the younger chil-dren. This leaves us scrambling to fulfill the holiday gift wishes of the older children," said Joseph M. Costa, Hillsides chief executive officer. "We are therefore asking the community this holiday season to consider giving to the many teens in need who live at Hillsides or who we serve through our Family Resource Centers located across Los Angeles County."

With this in mind, Hillsides has created a Hillsides Holiday Giving Teen Wish List. Items on the list in-clude pastels and watercolor sets, purses, skateboards, soccer balls, tennis rackets, books, Forever 21 gift cards, journals, sunglasses, wallets, journals, and

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show THE BOOK THIEF

Although I had not read the book, I had hear great things about it before seeing the movie. I find myself doing that more and more with movies that are based on books. Since movies are never as good as the books, I would rather have a fresh perspective of the story instead of having read the book and be able to see what was wrong with the movie. For The Book Thief, I was especially glad that I did that.

Young Liesel (Sophie Nélisse) and her brother are in the process of being sent to a new family when he unexpectedly dies on the journey. After burying him on the side of the train tracks, Liesel picks up a book that one of the gravediggers dropped. When she gets to her new family, she discovers that her new father, Hans (Geoffrey Rush) likes to read and the two of them set off on a journey to not only learn to read but also change the lives of those around them along the

While the movie starts off relatively slow, you soon become captivated in the characters and the world they live in. The Book Thief gives an uncomfortably realistic perspective of what it was like to live in Germany during the 1930s and 40s. All in all, I would say that The Book Thief is a glorious emotional roller coaster that straps you in, tosses you around, but let's you leave with a nice warm feeling in your heart.

DOD & DRINK

Now that we are in full holiday swing, just a reminder of the severe penalties for drinking and driving, my rule is always one glass of water for every drink, no more than one drink a hour and once I reach 3 that's it, time for uber or a cab. Here are some fun laws from around our great country.

There are 83 dry towns and villages in Alaska. 2 In addition, Fairbanks is a dry town for moose, where it's illegal to feed a moose any alcoholic beverage. 3 Apparently they can't hold their alcohol.

The Arizona Department of Liquor Licenses and Control recently raided a weekly senior citizens' garden party within a gated community in Mesa. Agents seized the alcoholic beverages and wrote a citation for selling alcohol without a license.

Perhaps the Arizona Department of Liquor Licenses and Control has too many officers and too much time on its hands. Or perhaps this over zealous enforcement is simply a reflection of the growing antialcohol movement in the United States. 4

ARKANSAS

Temperance members of the Russellville City council in Arkansas approved a motion censoring any discussion of legalizing alcohol sales during budget sessions. The motion was passed after the city's Revenue Task Force suggested legalizing alcohol sales.

It appears that the U.S. Constitution's First Amendment protection of free speech won't apply Russellville's council as long as temperance-minded officials have their way. 5

It is a violation of the California Alcoholic Beverage Control Act for producers of alcohol beverages to list the names of retailers or restaurants that sell their products in advertising or even in newsletters. 6

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

If it's bad for producers, it's even worse for servers in California, where they can be convicted of selling to a minor if the purchaser uses a false or altered ID to buy the alcohol. 7

More lunacy in California: An award-winning adaptation of Little Red Riding Hood was withdrawn from a recommended reading list by the school board in Culver City, California, simply because the heroine had included a bottle of wine in the basket she brought to her grandmother. 8

Editor's Note: I recently discovered a 'Cookie Party' in town where friends bring their favorite homemade holiday cookies and share them and the recipes. I missed it this year, but you can bet I won't miss it in 2014. Sounds like a lot of fun! Here are two of the favorites:

THE JOY OF YOGA

HOW DOES YOGA HELP STRESS?

We've all heard it, maybe your doctor told you. You don't need all this stress. But shy of crawling into a cave, the stress will still be there. The yogis have a unique perspective on this. Just sitting down to try to meditate when your head is full of all kinds of thoughts and worries, is impossible, so we give you something to do. First yoga asana (postures) that work with specific breathing. Calming the breath calms the mind. So increasing the challenging poses and still calming the breath teaches you to breathe in challenging situations. We also focus on back strength. To meditate - you must have a strong spine that can sit straight for a while, but also a strong healthy spine helps handle stress.

In addition to getting some of the nervous energy under control, strengthening and loosening the joints and muscles, yoga balances your prana. Prana is that wonderful life force energy inherent in everything. We can't see it, but we certainly know when our energy is low. Yoga teaches us to work with it and balance it. It then teaches us to cultivate it and direct it. This is done through breath and concentration exercises. The gathering of energy and the focused direction of it are what make yoga so unique and wonderful. You can give less energy to the things you don't want in your life and direct more energy to the things you do want. Sure that can sound simple, but practice makes.....it easier. If nothing else, you can come to a yoga class and just move and chill. The best and most important part of class is the relaxation.

It's hard to do at home this time of year, with all the gifts pilling up to be wrapped. So get in to class and learn to stress less. Everything will get better.

Did I mention that the gift of yoga is the best gift you can give your loved ones? We have many packages available, online purchasing and a Holiday special! You can plan now for the New Year and get that task off your plate! I can't wait to see you after class, all calm and content.

SLEEP BETTER THIS HOLIDAY SEASON

Everyone knows that sleep is essential to good health. The body needs to do it's house cleaning which can only be accomplished while we are asleep. Many people find it harder to sleep well during the holiday season than they do the rest of the year. This may be due to shorter days (less sunlight) or it may be because we are under more stress trying to accomplish too much and attend holiday events.

Whatever the reason for your less than stellar night's sleep, here are a few things that may help you sleep longer and sounder.

The first is to make good evening meal choices. Eating healthy but high glycemic foods, like rice and potatoes, for dinner or no sooner than 4 hours before bed where shown to help people fall asleep 49 percent faster according to a study published in The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition. This is because those foods increase the concentration of tryptophan, a precursor of serotonin, which is a sleep-inducing agent.

The next thing you can do is take a brisk walk for 20 minutes. Exercisers are more likely than nonexercisers to have a sounder night's sleep.

Lastly, use lavender oil or even sprigs of dried lavender to scent your bedroom. Herbalists have known for centuries that lavender has calming and sedative properties. It is also thought to decrease heart rate and blood pressure.

In fact, when I hear the unique, lowtone hooting of an owl, I feel a sense of warmth and comfort that is hard for me to describe. Just knowing that owls nest in the trees close to where I live is like an honor to me. We are truly blessed with nature's goodness in our hillside village!

I recently came across an article entitled Homeless Owls Need Homes, Too, about a project that provides alternative habitation for owls rendered homeless due to development in the San Gabriel Valley. I decided to contact the author, Steve Scauzillo to ask him a few questions, and he was kind enough to take the time to chat with me. Steve admitted that he is not an owl expert and may not be the best person to consult about local owls. His column covers a variety of current issues and concerns regarding the environment, and this particular article just happened to be about owls. Steve suggested that I contact Kimball Garrett at the LA Museum of Natural History, who truly is an expert on owls, so I gave Kimball a call.

Kimball Garret was more than willing to share what he knows about the owls that inhabit our foothills. Apparently there are a few types that might be seen nesting in the forest right behind us and visiting our village, but the ones we may hear exuding resonant hooting sounds ("hoo, hoo-hoo, hoo") back and forth to one another are most likely Great Horned Owls (Bubo virginianus pacificus). He explained that this particular owl is more prominent in our parts because their environment, so they are willing and able find alternative nesting spots when preferred locations are not available. Great I so enjoy erving the tall trees, but when older, taller trees go missing, which seems to be more of a trend now than ever in our town. the Great Horned Owl is wise enough to take up residence in lower lying canopies. Some will even nest in manmade boxes built on stilts where they are protected from predators, high winds and hard rains.

> Like all living things, owls play a very important part in keeping nature in balance. With this in mind, the next time you are tempted to complain about having too many rats running around in your yard or under your house, let it be a reminder of how important the big trees are. Indeed, big trees provide a place where owls and other birds of prey will stay and help keep that rat population in check.

> I had a remarkable experience with a couple of local owls on the morning my dad passed away. I slept in a little later than usual that Saturday morning, so I was still lying in bed at 8am when I suddenly heard two owls calling out in unison, one slightly higher pitched than the other. They were so close and so loud that the huge picture window on the north wall of my room seemed to vibrate from the resonance. My husband was there to witness the experience, so I can always rely on his confirmation when I share this story with my friends. They may not believe it really happened, otherwise.

We both laid there listening, amazed at how loud those owls were. We assumed they had to be very close by, maybe even perched in the avocado tree in our side yard. To me, having owls visit my property is a blessing, like nature's reward for being a good steward on behalf of the environment. This is not to say I think I am a saint when it comes to giving earth the respect it deserves, but I do try my best to treat it with kindness by cleaning up trash I find on the trails and sidewalks, and abstaining from the use of toxic chemicals on my property. I also allow fallen leaves to remain where they lie, so they can return to the soil and nourish the trees and fauna they they are adaptable to changes in fell from. I even talk to trees, telling them how important they are and how thankful I am for their beauty, their shade, their photosynthesis and their fruit. I truly believe that humane and respectful treatment toward any living thing is our duty as human beings.

> When I heard those owls hooting away so loudly near my bedroom window that morning, I thought is sounded like some sort of heavenly choir singing a sacred hymn just for me. Just moments after hearing the owls, I got out of bed and went down to make coffee. That's when I got the call from my family back east, telling me the sad news that my father had just passed away. When I hung up with my brother, I sat for a while crying and trying to take it in, that I would never again have the chance to see or talk to my dad here on earth. With such shocking news to process, the owls left my thoughts completely until later that day when it dawned on me; at the very moment my dad died, I was lying in bed listening to the amazing sound of two owls hooting louder than I had ever heard before.

> There are many mysterious, mystical myths associated with the owl, passed down through oral traditions of various peoples. One myth says that the owl is an omen of death soon-to-come. Another regards the owl as the bearer of the deceased soul as it passes from this world into the next. I have never subscribed to mythical theories about animals before, but I must say that the experience I had on the morning my dad passed away made me think twice about whether those ancient theories might hold some truth.

> One thing that is definitely true for me is that I love these amazing birds of prey. I love them because of their beauty and elegance, their tenacity and their symbiotic relationship with nature, not to mention the fact that they provide excellent examples to us humans through their loyal, familial life-style. They work very hard to overcome life's hurdles, just to survive in today's world where fast-paced development is so quickly stealing away the places where they used to stay. I thank God every day for this beautiful earth and all the creatures he placed on it, particularly the mythical, mystical, magical Great Horned Owl.

So is Weebo!!

Santa for a home of his own for Christmas!! Weebo came to the shelter in August of 2012 in a very fearful state of mind. He was found in dirty living conditions, tied to a bed, and his demeanor suggested that he might have been abused. He was very hand-shy, timid with people, and nervous around loud noises

Volunteers have spent many hours working with Weebo to reduce his anxiety levels. He has come a long way, has learned to trust the people he sees often, and has shown an interest in "normal" dog play. He has always got along well with his kennel mates, and enjoys playing with them.

He loves to go on walks, and if you sit down with him on the grass or in his kennel, he will snuggle up close and ask for a belly-rub. He is a very loving little dog who just wants some love and security.

It will take someone special to adopt Weebo - he needs someone with patience who will take the time to get to know him, and give him the extra attention he needs. He would do better in a quiet home where there is not too much activity. He would enjoy a nice yard to play in, and going for daily walks. He would probably do well with another dog in the household to play with.

Weebo is believed to be a miniature pinscher/spaniel mix, about 2-3 years old, and weighs

He currently resides at the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society located at 851 E. Grand Avenue in San Gabriel. We are located off San Gabriel Blvd., north of Mission and south of

To arrange a 'Meet and Greet' with Weebo (aka....5090), please stop by any time from 10:00am to 4:30pm Tuesday thru Sunday.

THE GOOD LIFE

HOW TO GUARD AGAINST WINTERTIME HEART ATTACKS

Dear Savvy Senior:

When I had a mild heart attack about six months ago my doctor told me I needed to be extra careful during the winter when recurring heart attacks are more common. Is this true? How can the seasons affect your heart?

Dear Leery:

Everyone knows winter is cold and flu season, but most people don't know that it's also the prime season for heart attacks too, especially if you already have heart disease or have suffered a previous heart attack. Here's what you should know, along with some tips to help you protect yourself.

Heart Attack Season

In the U.S., the risk of having a heart attack during the winter months is twice as high as it is during the summertime. Why? There are a number of factors, and they're not all linked to cold weather. Even people who live in warm climates have an increased risk. Here are the areas you need to pay extra attention to this winter.

Cold temperatures: When a person gets cold, the body responds by constricting the blood vessels to help the body maintain heaf. This causes blood pressure to go up and makes the heart work harder. Cold temperatures can also increase levels of certain proteins that can thicken the blood and increase the risk for blood clots. So stay warm this winter, and when you do have to go outside, make sure you bundle up in layers with gloves and a hat, and place a scarf over your mouth and nose to warm up the air before you breathe it in.

Snow shoveling: Studies have shown that heart attack rates jump dramatically in the first few days after a major snowstorm, usually a result of snow shoveling. Shoveling snow is a very strenuous activity that raises blood pressure and stresses the heart. Combine those factors with the cold temperatures and the risks for heart attack surges. If your sidewalk or driveway needs shoveling this winter, hire a kid from the neighborhood to do it for you, or use a snow blower. Or, if you must shovel, push rather than lift the snow as much as possible, stay warm, and take frequent breaks.

New Year's resolutions: Every Jan. 1, millions of people join gyms or start exercise programs as part of their New Year's resolution to get in shape, and many overexert themselves too soon. If you're starting a new exercise program this winter, take the time to talk to your doctor about what types and how much exercise may be appropriate for you.

Winter weight gain: People tend to eat and drink more, and gain more weight during the holiday season and winter months, all of which are hard on the heart and risky for someone with heart disease. So keep a watchful eye on your diet this winter and avoid binging on fatty foods and alcohol.

Shorter days: Less daylight in the winter months can cause many people to develop "seasonal affective disorder" or SAD, a wintertime depression that can stress the heart. Studies have also looked at heart attack patients and found they usually have lower levels of vitamin D (which comes from sunlight) than people with healthy hearts. To boost your vitamin D this winter, consider taking a supplement that contains between 1,000 and 2,000 international units (IU) per day. And to find treatments for SAD, visit the Center for Environmental Therapeutics website at cet.org.

Flu season: Studies show that people who get flu shots have a lower heart attack risk. It's known that the inflammatory reaction set off by a flu infection can increase blood clotting which can lead to heart attacks in vulnerable people. So, if you haven't already done so, get a flu shot for protection. See flushot.healthmap.org to find a nearby vaccination site.

KATIE Tse.....This and That "WHEN THE DOG BITES! WHEN THE BEE STINGS!"

"The hills are alive..." with the sound of critics. Did you watch "The Sound of Music" last Thursday? My husband and I did, and though I doubt any of the cast are going to be nominated for acting awards, I shamelessly admit that I loved it! (That doesn't mean I want to watch it again, but it was fun the first time.)

Like all great musicals, "The Sound of Music" has a unifying effect on people. The fact that NBC is selling a sing-along DVD attests to this. There are a surprising variety of people you wouldn't expect to know, or care, about "The Sound of Music." One of my junior high teachers was a big, tall "man's man" who liked rough and tumble sports and had a Saint Bernard with a head the size of a basketball. The topic of faith came up one day during class. Misty-eyed, my teacher described the scene in which the Mother Superior exhorts Maria to "Climb Every Mountain!

grammar school for a Christmas program.

Of course, what I love most are Rodgers & Hammerstein's songs! Commenting on the musical score, Rodgers once stated, "You don't leave the theater humming the scenery." While no one has criticized Carrie Underwood's singing, many have lambasted her acting ability and her nerve to attempt Julie Andrew's iconic role as Maria von Trapp. Frankly, I think any actress would be crucified for taking on that role. (The same can be said for Dorothy in "The Wizard of Oz," or Scarlet in "Gone With the Wind." Actually, there was a "sequel" to the latter, but it was so awful it doesn't warrant mentioning.)

While I'm by no means extolling Underwood's acting, I think we all need to take a step back and remember that this was a LIVE, MUSICAL. I readily admit I know as much about acting, singing, dancing, and the theater in general as I do about higher math. However, as a closet old person, I've watched many movie musicals, and even went to see a few musical plays.

As far as I can fathom, movies are vastly different from plays, especially musicals. First, theater actors have to project their voice, movements, and overall character enough so the people in the nosebleed section can appreciate them. This, in itself, necessitates some over-acting. Now, when you add dancing and singing to the mix, even more is required from actors. Not only do they have to remember their lines, but they've got to belt them out, sometimes while dancing. I can barely hike and talk at the same time, so I have a deep respect for those who sing and dance simultaneously. Heck, I can't even stand being "dressed up" for more than a couple hours.

Furthermore, while movie actors have the luxury of multiple takes and breaks in between scenes, theater actors have to get it right the first time. There are no second chances in front of a live audience. For all of these reasons, I've always considered musical theater actors more as athletes. The stamina it must take to pull off these productions night after night, week after week boggles my mind.

The difference in the amount of skill and energy expended by these actors is kind of like comparing my little column to the work of a stand-up improv actor. It's one thing to come up with witty oneliners on the spot, and it's another to sit typing at home in your jammies, as I am now. By the time you read this, it will be at least my third draft, (and even then, I can't promise anything). But at least it's a lot cheaper than buying theater tickets! And now I must bid you "So long, Farewell, Auf Wiedersehen, Good bye!"

SENIOR HAPPENINGS

FYI: THINK OUTSIDE THE GIFT BOX

Don't let the real reason for the season get lost under a pile of presents. Here's how to balance the "gimmes" with giving back. Choose charities: www.charitynavigator.com has everything listed from A to Z in the Los Angeles area. Wherever your interests lie, you can find a charity that matches that interest...There are 218 organizations listed alphabetically with a description of each, followed by a rating system. When you make a difference in someone or something's life, it truly enriches your own. Create Coupons for Family and Friends: Vouchers for special outings to museums, movies, or football games make great stocking stuffers. Go the Homemade Route: The thought is really what counts, especially if you're giving gifts to close friends or family. Even if you're not the crafty type, there are lots of easy projects you can do...really. I got most of the information for my column from an article in the Better Homes and Gardens Magazine, so I would be remiss not recommending their web site for Christmas gift ideas, they're really quite good and all in one spot... Browse www.bhg. com/divgift Surprise your friends and family with your handiwork! You might surprise yourself too.

HELPFUL HINT: Repurpose those paper towel rolls: (1) Make an Art Tube out them... Either for a child's masterpieces or yours. Just be sure to label each one. (2) Roll linens around them for wrinkle-free storage.

FOR YOUR FUNNY BONE - A lady walks into a drug store and tells the pharmacist she needs some cyanide. The pharmacist said, "Why do you need cyanide?" The lady then explained that she needed it to poison her husband. The pharmacist's eyes got big and he said, "Lord have mercy, I can't give you cyanide to kill your husband! That's against the law! I'll lose my license; they'll throw us both in jail! You absolutely can NOT have any cyanide!" The lady reached into her purse and pulled out a picture of her husband in bed with the pharmacist's wife. The pharmacist looked at the picture and replied, "Well now, you didn't tell me you had a prescription." ~

The Best Sci-fi movies

The best Sci-fi movies contain familiar ideas and beliefs that are expressed in a strange and at times in unimaginable environments.

The best sci-fi movies has wild looking characters appear on the silver screen and demonstrate all the strengths and weakness of mere human mortals. At times these aliens possess physical and mental abilities that are, to humans, so far beyond our worldly experiences.

The Science Fiction genre, aka the Sci-Fi genre, uses, for the purpose of entertainment, science-based elements that are not proven or accepted by conventional science and scientists. These elements include, but are not limited to aliens, time travel, cyborgs, and technology far more advanced than currently exists.

Sci-Fi films have been around for decades, but they really weren't taken seriously until the 1960s. Despite the genres' slow start, since the '60s, it has taken off and has produced some of the most popular movies and movies series in history! Possibly one the first Sci-Fi moves was George Melies' A Trip to the Moon, which was produced in 1902 and used "trick photography" special effects.

Despite the fact that the best Sci-Fi movies didn't gain great recognition until the '60s, there were still some popular films of the genre over the decades. These films were a far cry from the Sci-Fi films we watch today because they lacked the special effects and large budgets of current Sci-Fi movies.

Despite this, these the best Sci-Fi movies and their effects were still viewed as future- forward and high- tech for the age. Some popular Sci -Fi movies of the 1930s are King Kong, Flash Gordon, and The Invisible Man. In the '40s, Black Friday, Dr. Cyclops, and Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde hit the big screens. In the 1950s, The Thing from Another World, 20,000 Leagues under the Sea, and Journey to the Center of the Earth came out.

The best Sci-Fi movies is influencing the film culture and the culture of the people. It changed the film culture by proving to be one of the most popular and profitable film genres. It has also changed the culture of the general public. One very recent example of this is the development of Google Glass. Ever since the '80s, Sci- Fi films have featured characters using wearable computers. Because of all the hype, Google, in the last few years, has been making this once Sci-fi contraption into a reality with its wearable computer glasses, Google Glass.

If you're looking for some great Sci-Fi films to see, but don't know where to start, here's a list of must-see Sci-Fi films from free movie websites: King Kong, all of the Star Wars episodes, all of the Star Trek episodes (that will keep you busy for a while!), Back to the Future, Pacific Rim, and Godzilla.

THE GRINCH, THE MAYOR, SANTA AND THE PRINCESSES

SIERRA MADRE CHAMBER GAVE A JUMP START TO THE HOLIDAY SHOPPING SEASON WITH THE 2nd ANNUAL WHOVILLE FESTIVAL

On Saturday, November 30th, downtown Sierra Madre was transformed into a most magical place, complete with snow, horse drawn carriages and trains, vendors and service clubs with crafts and goodies, and lots of shopping fun!

Formerly called Dickens Village, The Grinch and Santa Claus greated young and old. Introducing families to the wonderful shops in our downtown was the primary goal as the event was held on Small Rusiness Saturday. The weether on Small Business Saturday. The weather was mild during the day with just the right amount of chill in the evening.

The Sierra Madre Civic Club, Garden

Club, SM Historical Preservation Society, Rotary and Kiwanis were all on hand as well as the Friends of the Arts in Kersting Court who provided an Art Activity for children.

Merchants reported a marked increase in sales and it is hoped that many of the parents who did not have the opportunity to shop will return for those special Christmas gifts.

Santa rode into town in style escorted by the 2014 Sierra Madre Rose Float Princesses and chauffered by the Sierra Madre Fire Department. The Grinch was on his very best behavior and full of the Christmas spirit.

A silent auction was held by the chamber of Christmas Trees beautifully decorated by students at The Gooden School. Sierra Madre Elementary and Middle Schools and St. Rita School. The proceeds from the auction (100%) was donated to the respective schools for various activities.

Left, Chamber President Ed Chen kept the line moving for both the trains and the snow slide Right, the Civic Club sold beautifully hand crafted gifts all day

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS:

By Sean Kayden

ABOUT TIME

"About Time" is the latest feature film from writer/director Richard Curtis ("Love Actually"). This romantic/faux sci-fi tale is about one young man's desperate pursuit to find love with his newfound ability to travel back into time. Oddly enough, he finds it rather quickly. The movie was advertised as a romantic comedy but is only for the first half at that. It switches gears and is more about this young man and his ability to go back into a certain time of his life.

At first glance it was to aid him in finding true love. Then it led to helping others like his sister, who dealt with her own relationship woes. It was also a link between Tim and his father to maintain a strong connection. The movie wants to be so many things and never really decides on which it will ultimately be. It's a movie where there's a lot of telling rather than showing. It is also very dialogue driven and the dilemmas never seem all too serious. At first it's romantic and that sort of fades once love is secured. It has a few lighthearted moments, but a comedy it is not. The third act heads into more drama, but never does it feel utterly dramatic. "About Time" suffers from a gimmicky plot device that becomes more tedious than clever. It has sweet moments scattered throughout and has a trio of fine performances especially from the father character played by Bill Nighy. However,

"About Time" is far too long for such a thin plot. It had the potential to be something far more superior with the time traveling element as a key component to the film's story.

Lead actor, Domhnall Gleeson is quite likeable as Tim. He's endearing in a dorky, oblivious sort of way. The problem is how the film puts so much emphasis on how it seems like the end of the year not to find love at 21 years old. Not only does he marry the first girl that loves him, but also had another chance with his first love he hadn't seen in a number of years. The movie also feels too long with how it's over the span of many years. Rachel McAdams as the love interest is lovely as usual. However, she doesn't have a whole lot to work with after the initial setup, eventually leading up to marrying the kind and perceptive Tim. McAdams' character strangely takes a backseat as Tim focuses on helping his sister with her own complexities and unhealthy relationship (which is never shown only told through dialogue). After that small subplot is quickly resolved, the last part of act three is where Tim and his father connect. It almost feels as if it is a little too late. I wish the film expanded the father-son dynamics more. Don't get me wrong, it's still rather sensitive, but the murky plot device makes the film almost feel too phony. Luckily, when you have great actors like Bill Nighy, your material is elevated to greater heights more so than it should be with such shortcomings found in the screenplay.

In the end, "About Time" is a fine film that's simply too elongated. There's quite a bit of filler to make it feel a bit overstuffed. Fine performances, a couple of tender moments and a few scattered laughs make "About Time" merely a Redbox rental/Netflix stream then a must-see love story in theaters. Unfortunately, when it finally ended, the only thing that came to mind was, "about time."

"plain Jane" of sorts: bullied in high school, trouble-making brother and indifferent mother, no father, and her picture-perfect turned war hero older sister.

Added to her plight is her feeling of isolation from others, and turning to junk food to fill the void. The tone of "Fat Angie" is rather dark, somewhat bleak, and overall somber until new student KC Romance arrives and takes a shine to Fat Angie, which prompts Angie to make small, simple changes for her mindset, and gradually opens up to KC Romance as a friend. KC Romance is that one character who immediately makes herself known in the way she sticks up for Fat Angie, and readers will be able to connect with her as well; she is that one cool friend who always listens, does not judge, and looks good doing it. "Fat Angie" is dark and bittersweet, but eventually takes on a more of an uplifting tone towards its conclusion, which goes to show readers of any age that we can find a true friend who will always have your back.

Copyrighted in 2013, and receiving praise from various critics, as well as Booklist and

Publishers Weekly, "Fat Angie" is another profound work perfect to teach important life lessons on individuality and friendships for any reader in this day and age.

CONTROVERSY OVER USE OF ROMAN INGOTS

Two thousand years ago, a Roman vessel with ingots of lead extracted from the Sierra of Cartagena sank in the waters off the coast of Sardinia. Since 2011, more than a hundred of these ingots have been used to build the Cryogenic Underground Observatory for Rare Events (CUORE), an advanced detector of neutrinos—almost weightless subatomic particles—at the Gran Sasso National Laboratory in Italy.

In the 18th century, another ship loaded with lead ingots was wrecked on the French coast. A company of treasure hunters recently retrieved this material and, despite problems with French authorities, managed to sell it to the Cryogenic Dark Matter Search (CDMS) team. This team's detector, located in a mine in Minnesota, looks for signs of the enigmatic "dark matter."

These two examples have served as reference for the discussion that two researchers have opened between archaeologists, worried about the destruction of our underwater cultural heritage, and particle physicists, pleased to have found a material that is uniquely valuable for research on neutrinos and dark matter.

"Roman lead is essential for conducting these experiments because it offers purity and such low levels of radioactivity—all the more so the longer it has spent underwater—which current methods for producing this metal cannot reach," explains Elena Perez-Alvaro from the University of Birmingham.

"Lead extracted today is naturally contaminated with the isotope Pb-210, which prevents it from being used as shielding for particle detectors," adds physicist Fernando González Zalba from the University of Cambridge.

These two researchers have published a study in the journal "Rosetta," also commented upon this month in "Science," which poses a dilemma: Should we sacrifice part of our cultural heritage in order to achieve greater knowledge of the universe and the origin of humankind? Should we yield part of our past to discover more about our future?

The underwater archaeologist and the physicists are encouraging dialogue between both collectives, as well as the development of legislation that regulates these kinds of activities.

The jury is still out. In the case of the CUORE detector, for example, in principle the lead from the least well-preserved Roman ingots is used, although their inscriptions are cut and preserved. Some archaeologists also suggests that there are other pieces of valuable metal, such as anchor stocks, rings or tackles for fishing that we should assess whether or not to sacrifice for science. Further complicating the issue is the fact that these artifacts are protected by UNESCO's 2001 Convention on the protection of underwater cultural heritage if they have been under water more than 10 years, as well as by the 2003 Convention for safeguarding intangible cultural heritage.

Regarding the use that the Romans made of these ingots, Pérez Álvaro points out that they were generally used as a water-resistant material for pipes, water tanks or roofs, and also for making arms and ammunition.

A special case is the cargo of large lead bricks recovered from the largest Roman ship of the excavation of the Mediterranean, the wreck of the Bou Ferrer, which sank very close to the port of La Vila Joiosa (Alicante). A series of engravings on the ingots (IMP. GER. AVG) have enabled specialists to determine that their owner was the Emperor of Rome himself, probably Caligula, Claudius or Nero.

STUART Tolchin......On LIFE DON'T BE SO SURE

Monthly Atlantic (December 2013) appears the following very short book extract:

" All the way back to primary school, John Lennon is remembered as a garden-variety delinquent----the type of kid who would pocket the change he was instructed to deposit in the church collection box, and pilfer from his aunt's handbag. He would hitch free rides on the bumper of tramcars, steal cigarettes and then sell them, pull down girls' underpants, vandalize phone booths, set stuff on fire, act the clown in class, skip detention, gamble, pick fights, and arouse fear in others as he and his friends tooled around on their bicycles. His best childhood friend, Pete Shotton, explained that Lennon "... came to be regarded, by all but his small circle of friends, as thoroughly bad news. Even I sometimes worried that he seemed destined for Skid Row."

--From Beatles vs. Stones by John McMIllan

I include this entire paragraph to begin my article in recognition of the fact that no public-figure during my lifetime has had the profound influence upon me as did John Lennon. His music, on those first Beatles albums, was contemporaneous with my college entrance. It went from the most basic beginnings of I Want to Hold Your Hand through the experiences with the Maharishi and psychedelic drugs, through his concerns with world politics. He evolved to become an activist, profoundly interested in equality and justice and completely dedicated to his role of father and nurturer. His choice of Yoko Ono as a spouse, someone whom he uniquely supported and appreciated, gave a kind of recognition to the special qualities of a type of person not usually appreciated by our celebrity-driven main stream culture. His assassination by a person who claimed that the murder was motivated by Lennon's half-serious claim that he was more popular than Jesus Chris, was a devastating illustration of the conflicting passions and beliefs that exist simultaneously within our complex

It was absolutely amazing for me to read that this larger-than-life being was initially viewed as some commonplace typical jerk who would leave nothing behind him other than the unpleasant memories of those who had encountered him. I knew that Lennon had a difficult childhood, during which he had lost both parents and received minimal nurturance from his aunt. Typically young delinquents, like John Lennon ,would grow up with criminal records and a history of detentions. Normally these experiences would mark a person for life. Their criminal backgrounds would

In this month's prevent them from obtaining jobs. What friends they had were usually involved in new crimes, which generally meant more trouble for the juveniles as they became adults. Advanced education was hardly an option, as such people rarely had the skills, interest, or discipline necessary to stop themselves from sinking further into

> How fortunate the world is that John Lennon somehow escaped these forces and lived long enough to create songs like Imagine, that still resonate within our brains in these unharmonious times and inspire many of us to believe that there is still a reasons to optimistically cherish hope. I wonder how many other young men and women are so stigmatized by the experiences of youth such that their true talents never are allowed to emerge. The life-history of John Lennon also tells another story. How can someone like the young John Lennon acquire and maintain the belief that he has something special to offer the world. Why was he not brought down to believe in his own ordinariness, much like the rest of us?

> This past weekend I watched part of College Football game with a young friend who is a new father. The mother was out running errands and I had the opportunity to spend a little time with the father and a five-month old baby. It has been a long time since I spent much time with a baby and this time I was actually allowed to be alone with him while his Dad prepared lunch. How exciting it was for me to see how this young miracle enjoyed his existence. How he laughed and moved and examined everything around him, even including placing his foot in his mouth.

> Shouldn't we be able to maintain this contagious appreciation of ourselves, not as a contest against others but as simple self-appreciation? Instead we learn to compare ourselves against others, to inevitably experience jealousy, envy, and regret. Often we crave outside validation as we cannot alone believe in our individual self-worth. I'm afraid that's just the way it is, which is why it is so amazing to realize that some few individuals like John Lennon or Nelson Mandela or Mahatma Gandhi or Martin Luther King or Jesus Christ manage to go through life staying in touch with their best selves and inspiring the rest of us.

> Let us do the same. If Mike Tyson can be a Broadway Star and Muhammad Ali still has the power to inspire us, it should not be too difficult to appreciate what a wonderful, unique miracle lies beneath each of our often fatigued, troubled outer

my Christmas Cheer Drama

time is a special time to be cheerful and I try my best to live up to it. Occasionally, the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage will suggest I am going a little too far.

During the rest of the year I stay out of shopping malls as much as possible. During the Christmas season, I want to go to the shopping mall and walk around without any purchases to make. I like watching people spend their money on things they do not need and for people they may not like.

I like to give cheer more than anything else. Actually, it is the only thing I can afford. And so I will send my cheerfulness into cheer bankruptcy. Whatever that may be.

The Christmas season has never been a time for me to spend excessive amounts of money. I leave all that to my wife. She knows how to shop and she begins her Christmas shopping right around February. I could never figure that out. When I buy a gift for someone, I want to hand it to them right then. She has the discipline to buy Christmas gifts months ahead of Something happened this past week that brought all of my cheerfulness to an abrupt halt.

I had just come from the mall where I was making fun of people scurrying around trying to find the latest bargain. It is a little strange to me that when people get a gift for somebody they look for a bargain.

When I got home, I sat down in my recliner reminiscing about the day and then I did something I do not normally do. I took out my wallet to clean it. This is something I do at least once a year.

Sometimes I get cards in my wallet that have expired or are no longer valid. No sense in having things in your wallet that you do not need or cannot use. Several cards had expired and so into the trashcan they went.

You can tell a lot about a person by the things in his wallet. My wife, on the other hand, carries a purse. I will not be caught dead looking in that purse. In fact, I would be dead if caught looking. I am not sure what she has in her purse and I do not want to know what she has in there. I love living.

A man's wallet is a little different. He has things in there that are rather practical. There will be a driver's license, a Social Security card, insurance card, not to mention credit cards. Everything he

I enjoy being cheer- needs to get through a week with plenty ful and Christmas of cheerfulness on the side.

Going through my wallet this time I found something that shocked me to the core of my being. There in my wallet, folded up rather neatly and tucked in a corner, was a $50 bill. I cannot tell you the last time I saw a $50 bill. How it got there, I will never know.

My father always had a folded $50 bill in his wallet for emergencies. I am not my Ordinarily, you would think finding $50 in your wallet would be a moment of rejoicing. Not so here.

It is towards the end of the year, all gifts are purchased for Christmas and all bills are paid. I like to pay ahead of time just to make sure the bills are being paid. And so there was nothing that needed to be paid at that time.

Life has taught me several lessons and one in particular. If you find extra money it means some disaster is about to befall. Usually the catastrophe that happens costs more than the money you find. I found $50 and so it is reasonable to believe that the catastrophe facing me will cost $100.

I did not know if I should mention this to my wife. It is not that we are superstitious, we have just live life long enough to know what comes around goes around and what goes up usually comes down.

What is going to happen now? What is going to go wrong? What in the house is going to fall apart?

Then my dilemma was solved.

My wife came into the room and said, "I was wondering," and she was stammering a little bit as she said it. "I was wondering if perhaps we could take the grandchildren out for Christmas lunch tomorrow. I know it costs a lot, but I think they would enjoy it."

smiled and she looked at me a little quizzically and asked, "What are you smiling about?"

It was then I pulled out of my wallet the neatly folded $50 bill and waved it in her direction and said, "I think Christmas lunch with the grandchildren tomorrow would be a fantastic idea."

Some people worry about what they do not have. I worry about what I have to make sure I am using it in the best possible manner. "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the LORD, and to sing praises unto thy name, O most High" (Psalms 92:1). I am thankful for what I have but I am also thankful for what I do not have. Nothing takes the place of a contented heart and my contentment rests in the Lord Jesus Christ. I need nothing more.

HOWARD Hays As I See It

"contributed employee pension obligations, though it only Obama to (our) debt burden more than any other president". As far as the numbers go, tracking how they've changed during Obama's presidency, Greg has a point. To what extent the president himself contributed", though, is another matter.

The Associated Press pegged major responsibility for our debt on the Bush tax cuts of 2001 and 2003. This was the first time in history taxes were cut in a time of war. These cuts were financed by debt and, a couple years ago, were estimated to have already cost us some $1.6 trillion. For the most part, they remain in place - and continue to add to the red ink.

A second major cause of the debt was healthcare entitlements - with $1 trillion added to our debt over the past few years solely from the extent healthcare cost increasingly exceeding the overall rate of inflation. Despite the best efforts of Congressional Republicans and conservative money-launderers, the prospect of these increases becoming "basically 100%" of our debt problem was averted by enactment of the Affordable Care Act.

Medicare Part D (enacted 2003, effective 2006) has added nearly a half-trillion in red ink. This was the prescription drug plan where taxpayers subsidize participants opting for high-price (and high-profit) brand name drugs rather than lower-price generics. It also prohibited Medicare from negotiating whom have incomes below the poverty level with drug manufacturers for lower prices (like the V.A. does). This program was not paid for, and was financed by debt. Again, many of its problems will be alleviated by the Affordable Care Act.

The Watson Institute at Brown University estimates the cost of the Iraq War at $1.7 trillion. Adding the wars in Afghanistan and Pakistan, along with commitments to returning vets and their families, brings it up to $4 trillion. It's estimated we'll be paying an additional $4 trillion in interest on that debt over the next forty years.

President Óbama did take an action which significantly added to the record of our budget deficits and debt. In the Bush years expenditures, such as for the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan and Medicare Part D, were dealt with off-budget as "emergency" and "supplemental appropriations" - another way of saying they were kept off the books. The incoming president directed such expenditures be put back on the books, so we could get a clearer picture of our nation's financial situation. It wasn't pretty, but it was Still, the budget deficit is now lower as a percentage of GDP than before the Great Recession, after spiking when Obama first took office. The first eleven months of this fiscal year, it's shrunk $400 billion from a year

The subject of Greg's column, though, was Detroit's heading for bankruptcy - with the focus on public employee pensions and "lavish" benefits.

To start off, I had to The average Detroit city worker retires on check on Greg Welborn's $19,000 a year. For police or firefighters, it's statement in his column about $30,000 – with no Social Security. Greg last week that President devoted maybe 90% of his column to public > comprises 20% of Detroit's debt. Whatever the problem might be, it's not the pensions. Our economy was strongest, the middle-class most prosperous, retirements most secure when pensions were most prevalent. In 1980, 40% of our workforce, public and private, were covered by pensions.

> low it's less than 20%. When 401(k)s came out in the late-1970s, they were seen as a supplement to pensions. When employers realized a 401(k) would cost the company only half what a pension would, they became not a supplement but a substitute. Best of all, whatever risk there was would shift from the employer to Wall Street.

The problem was that retirees would end up with only 10-33% of the income as they would from a pension. And, there was shifting of that risk from employers who may have some connection of loyalty to their employees to those who simply loved playing with other people's money.

In 2009, 50 million workers lost over $1 trillion in 401(k) investments. The Wall Streeters who gambled and lost got bailed out by the taxpayers. Nobody bailed out the taxpayers whose retirement accounts were gambled away by the Wall Streeters. The primary cause of Detroit's problems the decimated tax base caused by unemployment and de-population. As stated by the Economic Policy Institute, "It's unrealistic to expect Detroit's remaining 700,000 residents, more than one-third of and whose per capita income is only $14,000, to support a city and an infrastructure built for 1.8 million."

The other problem is the billions of dollars tied up in municipal bonds and other Wall Street creations. As Demos reported last month, "Detroit's bankruptcy was primarily caused by a severe decline in revenue and exacerbated by complicated Wall Street deals that put its ability to pay its expenses at greater risk. To address the city's cash flow shortfall and get it out of bankruptcy, the emergency manager should focus on increasing revenue and extricating the city from these toxic financial deals?

Municipal bonds are investments, often insured against loss. Pensions are contracts, promises made between a government and its workers. Those holding bonds own powerful voices in Lansing and Washington to make sure they're first in line to be paid, and paid in full. Those same voices have worked over the years to weaken unions and the collective voice of public employees, so if those workers want promises made them to be kept, they'll have to wait much further back in that line and wait to see if there's anything left.

I usually open my column with a quote, but this time I'll close with one - one that made me feel a certain kinship with Nelson Mandela. Someone referred to him in his presence as a "saint", and he replied that he wasn't any saint, "unless by a saint you mean a sinner who keeps trying.

IN PRAISE OF NELSON GREG Welborn MANDELA

For the vast majority of his adult life, Mandela was cut from the same Marxist revolutionary cloth that has produced one failed African leader after the other. The pursuit of the collective at the expense of the individual and the concomitant abuses of power and position that are the unavoidable fellow travelers have kept Africa one of the poorest continents on earth despite its rich natural resources.

Into that history, Mandela was born and trained as a lawyer. He joined the African National Congress. As he rose in party ranks, he moved solidly toward Marxism and admiration of the Soviet model. Above his desk at home, he kept portraits of Stalin and Lenin. As his embrace of their revolutionary prescriptions increased, so too did his frustration with the ANC's peaceful resistance to apartheid. He came to believe that only armed revolt would free his country of the scourge that was apartheid.

Perhaps frustration and embrace of armed resistance can be excused. It always depends on the circumstances. Our own country was formed as a result of an armed rebellion, but only after all peaceful efforts had been exhausted and a full articulation of the grievances presented to the ruling authorities. Something similar had occurred in South Africa, and the ruling elites were just as intransigent as were King George's governors.

Mandela was arrested for plotting violent sabotage, convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment on Robben Island, near Cape Town. He then began what would become a 25-year incarceration. Despite his revolutionary leanings and violent advocacy, his trial gave us insights into someone who would be different than the typical radical revolutionary. In his own closing arguments, Mandela said, "I have fought against white domination and I have fought against black domination. I have cherished the ideal of a democratic and free society in which all persons live together in harmony and with equal opportunities."

Unlike too many leftists who promise equality only to practice the Orwellian version of all are equal, but some are more equal than others, we would learn that Mandela meant what he said. He disappeared for 25 years, but he was freed in February 1990 at the age of 71. He was the de facto leader of the ANC, and all presumed – correctly it turned out – that he would soon rule the country that had imprisoned him.

In the country's first free presidential elections, Nelson Mandela was elected president. He showed no bitterness, nor sought revenge. Enough to earn him praise in all quarters. Be he seared his integrity into the consciousness of his countrymen and millions around the world by actively working to unite an anxious nation. He worked with his former enemies to establish a robust constitution with protections for all and an independent judiciary.

Then, he did something no other African strong man has done. He willingly gave up power at what can only be described as the pinnacle of his popularity. Thus, like Washington in an earlier century on a different continent, he can truly lay claim to the title of father of his country. We should all pray that his successors live up to his standards.

GETTHE CREDITY OUDESERVE

Mortgage applications are being reviewed far more thoroughly now than in the past, and your credit score should be 680 or higher to qualify for the best in-terest rates. So how do you determine your score, and know you're getting the credit you deserve?

Everyone is allowed one free credit report per year from the three reporting agencies (Experian, Equifax and TransUnion). Review the reports for accura-cy and act quickly to correct any errors or Approximately 35% of your credit score is based on the timeliness of your payments. Make sure that no late payments older than seven years are still on your report.

If you have paid off loans or credit cards, a zero balance should appear on those accounts. Sometimes, agencies don't properly update those balances af-ter settlement.

15% of your credit score is based on the length of your credit history, so make sure that the opening dates of all your accounts are accurate. Also make sure that the limits on your credit cards are correct, and keep the balances under 50% of those limits. Total debt accounts for 30% of your credit score.

Finally, think twice about closing credit card accounts with zero balances, be-cause this negatively reduces your ratio of "available credit" to your debt. First, get the facts. Then, make corrections. Finally, apply for home fi-nancing with confidence!

WINNING WITH COLLABORATIVE COMPETITION

If you're in a major city and see the infamous golden arches in the distance letting you know that a Big Mac or other familiar options await you at McDonald's, you can guarantee that you will find at least one or more of their major competitors in very close proximity. Jack In The Box, Carl's Jr's or the heathier Subway option are certain to be among your choices. The big guys understand and embrace the benefits of a collaborative competition, of sorts.

Modern day malls and shopping centers are nothing more than a contemporary adaptation of the age-old concept of the marketplace dating back to ancient times. These marketplaces were sometimes permanent fixtures in townships, an in other instances, operated similar to weekly farmers' markets and community festivals. Each month across America, a robust schedule of traveling trunk shows, crafts fair and other specialty events appeal to millions with interests in everything from jewelry making to collecting antique firearms.

All of these examples point to the power and profitability of collaborative competition. Entrepreneurs who understand this concept are better able to identify and develop opportunities otherwise hidden to those who can view competition only as threat. The opportunity for more individuals and families to own businesses increased as we made the transition from small clusters of townships, separated by vast rural areas where the majority of American lived prior to the Industrial Revolution of the early 1800's. Today's major urban centers evolved out of this economic boom as waves of people moved to benefit from job opportunities.

With the temporary dismantling of the traditional, one-stop country store and the cursory one store per major merchandise category that dictated one-blacksmith, or one-seamstress, or one-café per town, the reality of supply and demand made it feasible for competitors to come together to create the modern day marketplaces. As the population density increased, so did the need for more businesses selling goods and services in the same categories.

There was a time in small town USA when opening a similar business close to a competitor would have been considered an insult, a frontal assault. We're almost three generations beyond the era when the successful strategy for retail and food businesses was to maintain a healthy physical distance from one's direct competition. Clusters of vendors hocking their crafts and wares at community festivals and similar venues were the exception and one of the few places where this practice would have been viewed as acceptable.

Take a stroll into the food court area of any regional mall to see the benefits of collaborative competition. There was a time when the choice of food outlets in these venues was very limited, and it would have been thought quite outrageous for them to have been located in adjacent spaces. A brief observation will reveal that all of the competitors in this situation benefit as hungry shoppers, who are undecided when they step into this area, gaze across the choice of eateries. Repeated hundreds of times daily, think of this process as the lottery that results in wins for every competitor in the food

Likewise, small businesses have opportunity to develop collaborative competition models to their benefit within specific industry categories or geographic categories. Regions where cities are clustered near major urban centers and accessible transportation are ripe for establishing shopping districts and travel associations. This can create opportunities for small businesses to benefit from shared marketing and promotional efforts. Thoughtful and well-planned models for collaborative competition can contribute to a significant increase in business at a more favorable cost for all of the small businesses involved.

Thanks to social media outlets like facebook and Twitter, going viral is more and more of a regular societal happening.

Remember, you ask the little black ball and quickly turn the ball over. One of 20 or so different sayings on a 20 sided dice (called a icosahedron) popped up. The sayings? Ten of the sayings were positive: "It is certain," "It is decidedly so", "Without a doubt", "Yes definitely", "You may rely on it", "As I see it, yes", "Most likely", "Outlook good", "Yes", yes", "Most likely", "Outlook good", "Yes", Speaking of luck, the Vegan community and and rounding out the positive answers, "Signs" our desire to all be lucky have helped another point to yes".

And the last five were not optimistic: "Don't or 400 for $195.00. Wanna get lucky?

Your web site is the cornerstone of your online presence. Investing in it is important. Your web site is often the first impression a potential customer, client, volunteer, donor or investor has of your business or non-profit. Isn't it

Step One - Needs Assessment

"I need a new web site. How much does it cost?" is like asking "I need new transportation. How much does it cost?" Do you simply need a new pair of shoes, a piggy-back ride, a bus pass, a skateboard, a boat, a hot air balloon, an airplane ticket, or do you need a Ferrari that matches your private jet? The point is, creating your website is not a one-size fits all solution.

Every business requires a unique solution. Sure, some of the technology will be similar to other sites, but the final solution should be customized to fit your business.

A good web site solution is designed to fit an organization's needs, wants and intended audience. Each business and non-profit has a unique flavor, unique needs, unique offerings, unique budget and unique goals. Each deserves a unique look and feel.

Since the potential solutions have a wide range of possibilities, step one is to define your needs and hence the scope and purpose of your new web site.

Needs assessment starts with four important questions:

- What do you want your web site to do? (sell, inform, collect information, etc.) 1.
- How does it fit into your overall online system and business? 3. What is your budget?

What other tools need to work with your site? (email capture, social media etc.) 4.

worth a bit of planning?

Taking time to answer these questions will set the stage to move on to the next important step of establishing an online web presence that will contribute to the success of your business or organization.
