WALKING SIERRA MADRE.....THE SOCIAL SIDE

By Deanne Davis

"A daughter is a day brightener and a heart warmer."

"A Father is his son's first hero and his daughter's first love." Anonymous

A couple of pictures arrived on my phone the other day from our daughter, Crissy, in Texas. As always, they gripped my heart and made me smile. My son-in-law, Christopher, is holding the hands of his two little girls; Emily who is three and Jessie, who is six and doing splendidly in Kindergarten. Emily looks like she's about to giggle, and Jessie is looking up adoringly, dressed to the teeth in black velvet, hair-bows and a beatific smile.

I asked their mommy what was happening and she said that Chris and Jessie were off to the Daddy-Daughter Dance at school. I immediately thought back a number of years to when their mommy, our daughter, dressed to the teeth with an equally beatific smile, was off to the Father-Daughter Dinner Dance at Alverno High School, just down the road from us. In those days, Crissy was driving a Dodge Dart which, I think, was older than she was, but was made, apparently, of solid steel as she drove it into all sorts of things but the Dart always came out the winner. Being a teen-ager's first car is fraught with peril for the car. Our son was driving my Oldsmobile station wagon, delivering pizza, when the rear axle broke. Something I never knew could happen. But I digress! No, the Dodge Dart did not take them to the dance!

The relationship between fathers and daughters is a beautiful thing. Mothers and daughters, especially in those teen years, not so much. We're the ones who are always having to say, "clean your room," and "why isn't your homework done," and "I've asked you 35 times to finish the dishes," well, all you moms out there, you remember. On the other hand, I have the distinction of being the only mother I've ever heard of who told a 13-year old seventh grader to "Go put some blush on, for pity's sake!"

We have three daughters, all of whom are grown with children of their own and one of our greatest pleasures is hearing them say and watching them do all the things they said they'd never say or do because we, terrible parents that we were, did and said them. Yes indeed, the Parent's Curse - May you have children just like you - still works!

Classic mother-daughter conversations:

"Are you up?" this to a daughter who was still nowhere near up, she knew it, I knew it, but the rhetorical question is the parent's friend. Her answer, "Almost!"

"Do you know what time it is!!" Of course she knew what time it was. It was about 2:30 a.m. and, while the father slept peacefully, the mother stood by the window waiting for a car to drive down the driveway, alternating between terror and rage. Her answer, "Well, yeah, but I knew you wouldn't mind." I knew I was OK." The mother, "You couldn't call!!" Her answer, "No, I didn't want to wake up Dad!"

Emily, Christopher, Jessie Brown

Another mother, a dear friend of mine, reported this conversation, "Mom, I think you should know... I don't believe in God." My friend's answer, "That's OK, honey, God believes

I'm not exactly sure what Christopher and Jessie talked about at the Daddy-Daughter Dance, but he went and she was thrilled. He went to the one they had for pre-school, too. Crissy's Dad went to the Father-Daughter Dance, he also went to move her back home when things went wrong for her. The Fathers, most of them, are amazing guys who will go to a dance with a six year old, attend every game they play in, ballet recital they dance in, pick them up in the middle of the night when their cars fail, or drive to Buttonwillow to bring them home when they run out of gas and money.

I realize it's nowhere near Father's Day, but the Daddy-Daughter Dance and the look on Jessie's face when she and her Daddy stood still so her mommy could take their picture has made me want to celebrate Dads. So! If you haven't talked to yours lately, pick up the phone!

"The heart of a father is the masterpiece of nature."

Antoine Francois Prevost - Manon Lescaut

"I believe that what we become depends on what our fathers teach us at odd moments, when they aren't trying to teach us. We are formed by little scraps of wisdom." Umberto Eco, Foucault's Pendulum

Council Oks Jay Z, Beyoncé Concert

By Dean Lee

The City council cleared the way, during a special Tuesday afternoon meeting, for singers Jay Z and Beyoncé to hold an August concert at the Rose Bowl. This makes the 18th major event scheduled for the stadium this year.

The Jay Z show, Aug. 2, will also come just days before another concert featuring Rihanna and Eminem.

The Monster Tour with Rihanna and Eminem is scheduled, for two shows, Aug. 7 and Aug. 8. The Rose Bowl is also set to host a three night concert with performers One Direction Sept. 11, 12 and 13.

Rose Bowl General Manager Darryl Dunn said the six concerts, is the most they have ever had in a single year.

He said each of the concerts could bring as much as $400,000 to the city.

Dunn also said the concerts are a way of raising money that could take the controversial plan to bring a temporary NFL team off the table.

Officials said the concerts are a way to generate money spent on the recent $155 million renovations to the stadium.

Both councilmembers Terry Tornek and Jacque Robinson said they thought this was a great opportunity for Pasadena. In a letter to Mayor Bill Bogaard and the council, the Linda Vista-Annandale Neighborhood Association, concerns over impacts such as air quality, noise, recreation and traffic.

JPL Cargo Launched to Space Station

When the SpaceX-3 cargo resupply mission launched to the International Space Station last week, an experiment designed by NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., was among the cargo headed to space.

The experiment, Optical PAyload for Lasercomm Science (OPALS), will test the potential for using a laser to transmit data to Earth from space. Instead of being broadcast on radio waves, data is packaged onto beams of laser light and pointed to a receiver station on the ground. Radio wave transmissions are limited by the speed they can transfer data, but beaming information packages with lasers can greatly increase the amount of information transmitted over the same period of time.

SpaceX-3 is NASA's third contracted resupply mission to the space station by U.S. company SpaceX of Hawthorne, Calif. SpaceX's Dragon spacecraft launched atop the company's Falcon rocket from the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station in Florida at 3:25 p.m. EDT April 18.

SpaceX developed its Dragon capsule, the only cargo spacecraft currently servicing the space station with the capability to return cargo back to Earth, with NASA and now successfully has completed three missions to the orbiting outpost.

The space station remains the springboard to NASA's next great leap in exploration, including future missions to an asteroid and Mars.

ARCADIA-- U.S. News and World Report has named Arcadia High School as one of its gold medal schools in its "2014 Best High Schools" national rankings. Less than three percent of the more than 19,000 schools that were evaluated earned a gold medal. This is the third consecutive year that Arcadia High School has been recognized with the top honor.

Arcadia High School is ranked 432nd in the country, and 89th among public high schools in California. Among the top 100 high schools in California, Arcadia is one of just three with more than 3,000 students.

Arcadia Unified has taken several other measures to conserve water in recent years and to limit its impact on the environment. Several schools and district buildings have been equipped with low-drip irrigation systems, drought-tolerant plants and landscape, and low-volume sinks and restrooms.

Most AUSD schools feature advanced Energy Management Systems (EMS) for their heating and cooling units. Some of the other energy-efficient features in buildings include setback timers on thermostats, low-VOC (Volatile Organic Compounds) paints, recycled building materials, daylight and occupancy-sensored lighting, and low-energy light sources.

EDUCATION & YOUTH

A DICTIONARY FOR EVERY THIRD GRADER

The Rotary Club of Sierra Madre was awarded a grant by Rotary District 5300 that allowed the Club to put a dictionary into the hands of every 3rd grade student in Sierra Madre. The Club was also able to provide a companion workbook called, "How to Use a Dictionary,

How to Use a Thesaurus."

Marilyn Diaz, President of the club said, "Sierra Madre Rotary decided to embark on a series of literacy projects this year, and the dictionary distribution seemed like a great fit." The dictionary, titled "The Best Dictionary for Students" contains about 33,000 words, just over 10% of the 300,000 words that comprise the English language. "It's a great first dictionary for students because it's comprehensive, without being overwhelming for the kids," said

The response from the 3rd graders themselves has been very enthusiastic. Because the dictionary is given to the students and not just learning to use a dictionary during the third grade, a critical year for building reading and comprehension skills. As they take on ever more challenging material, the students often encounter words they haven't seen before.

The Rotary Club of Sierra Madre hopes to continue the project during the coming school year.

SIERRA MADRE CHILI COOK-OFF

No Beans about the Annual Sierra Madre Kiwanis Chili Cook-Off is just around the corner. I am an old hand at these events; you see I put on the very popular Pasadena Chili Cook-Off for some 12 years. At one point we attracted some 30 cooks and 1200 attendees. I invite all of you to this event, I judged last year and I was absolutely impressed with the quality of entrants. My idea of a true chili is one that has no beans, but I have a feeling that there will be all sorts of entrants that I will state "This is Chili?"...I did a little research on how this Chili Craze got started, and these are the two that make the most sense. See everyone Saturday Night, May 17th at the Sierra Madre Room 611 E. Sierra Madre Blvd. Sierra Madre.

Now, about Chili:

There is little doubt that cattle drivers and trail hands did more to popularize the dish throughout the Southwest than anybody else, and there is a tale that we heard one frosty night in a Texican bar in Marfa, Texas, about a range cook who made chili along all the great cattle trails of Texas. He collected wild oregano, chile peppers, wild garlic, and onions and mixed it all with the fresh-killed beef or buffalo - or jackrabbit, armadillo, rattlesnake, or whatever he had at hand - and the cowhands ate it like ambrosia. And to make sure he had an ample supply of native spices wherever he went, he planted gardens along the paths of the cattle drives - mostly in patches of mesquite - to protect them from the hooves of the the paths of the cattle marauding cattle. The next time the drive went by there, he found his garden and harvested the crop, hanging the peppers and onions and oregano to dry on the side of the chuck wagon. The cook blazed a trail across Texas with tiny, spicy gardens.

Pates Sills
The "King of Cuisine"

The other story I like as well, is that a small Rio Grande Jail in Texas was home to the original chili, the story goes that the inmates gathered scraps of meat, any kind of spices or anything that was left over and made a think soup, as they added vegetables the "soup" got thicker and thicker. The inmates added gruel, bread and water to thicken it up. By the 1850's each Texas Jail was rated by the chili that was served!!

A BURNING ISSUE: SOY BASED CANDLES VS. PARAFFIN BASED CANDLES

Many of us enjoy burning candles for a number of reasons. From setting the mood and aroma therapy to enjoy while relaxing in the tub, candles offer us a chance to enhance our surroundings with our favorite fragrance to soothe our souls.

With many candle products on the market today, there are big differences in the way they are produced and the materials used to make them.

Most candles are either Soy based or Paraffin based. There are advantages and disadvantages to both. Soy wax is produced from soybeans. Paraffin wax is produced from petroleum.

Since they are made of vegetable oil, soy based candles burn cleaner and release no known carcinogens.

Whereas paraffin based candles can produce atoxic soot that can affect people, pets and the environment.

Soy candles burn 50% longer than paraffin and almost always leave no excess wax on the sides of their containers. While you may pay more for soy, in the long run it cost effective due to the longer burning time.

Soy candles burn cleaner than paraffin candles, due to the fact they are vegetable based and not chemically based. Soy will not produce the same amount of soot and if you burn a lot of candles over time it can discolor walls, furniture and carpet. If you have had a soy candle that did produce a lot of soot, it is likely that the candle was not 100% soy.

The scent of a soy candle is much stronger due to the fact they have a lower melting point and therefore a larger liquid wax pool around the wick. The essential oils of a candle are evaporated into the atmosphere through this process.

Just a couple of tips to help in keeping your candles longer and cleaner:

Always keep the wick trimmed to ¼" and use a wick dipper instead of a snuffer, as this will cut down on the smoke when extinguishing your candle.

It is best to burn a candle in 2-3 hours intervals to keep it more level. If your candle comes with a lid, keep the lid on when candle is not burning, as this will help the fragrance to last longer.

Of course, never leave a candle burning unattended.

We have a wonderful and varied selection of candles in the shop now – from Citronella, Sake Lemon Flower to Peach Blossom. We are sure there is one to delight your senses!

THE JOY OF YOGA A BALANCING ACT

In yoga there are three inherent attributes to nature. There are 3 forces that are philosophical concepts of the mind or constitutions of the mind. The minds constitution is determined by the exact balance of these three forces. They are: Rajas, Tamas and Sattwa. We are a blend.

Discriminative knowledge is the way to liberation, according to the great sage Patanjali. The word for it in Sanskrit is SATTWA which we think of as clarity, balance and ease. Sattwa is Luminosity, light and

We want to cultivate Sattwa.

Rajas is dynamic, active, vibrant, agitated, turbulent. It helps us to evolve, to expand and to grow. But the way we usually see it throwing off our balance is restlessness, activity and distraction. It can even be a little too type A?

Tamas is darkness, solid, mass, inert, stuck, dense and thick. It is heavy and slow. Tamas does not like change.

So while the mass of our body is heavy - we want it to be light in the world.

Rajas and Tamas cause Duhka, or suffering. So if your mind is disturbed - add some Rajas. If your mind is distracted - add some Tamas. Help it get clear by cultivating the opposite and reach for

Yes, of course we can help you with this in yoga class. We start with the body and work toward the mind. The mind should be stable but not stuck. It should be quick but not too aggressive. It should be balanced, clear and at ease. Welcome to yoga and yoga psychotherapy. It's all a beautiful balancing act!

See you in class. Namasté, René our skin changes. We begin to develop crow's feet around sags. I don't know about you but I feel is a way to keep looking younger than my years, I'm interested!

If we want to help skin younger naturally, we need to know what is happening to our skin as we age, independent of any skin damage such as over exposure to the sun or smoking. There are a couple of changes taking place once we reach 35 to 40. The very outer protective layer of our skin thickens and gets drier. My friends who always had oily skin are happy when their skin starts drying up. If you are like me and originally had normal to dry skin, it stinks! Even my friends with oily skin eventually are not happy. At the same time, your second layer of skin thins and loses its elasticity.

New research suggests there is a way to really slow and even reverse some of this skin aging, yeah! Scientists at McMaster's University in Ontario, Canada found that frequent exercise as we are aging will keep or even reverse some skin aging. They found that people who exercised regularly had a thinner outer layer of skin and a thicker inner layer. People as old as

As the years go by, 65 were found to have skin close to a 20 to 30 year old.

You may be thinking what I was thinking, maybe the eyes, wrinkles the test participants eat a healthy diet and have and then our skin great genes. Well, the researchers did a second study using sedimentary volunteers who were 65 or older with skin representative of their age. young. And if there They had them exercise moderately, 2 days a week for roughly 60 minutes, for three months. What the researchers found was that most if not all of these participants had skin that looked like that of a 20 to 40 year old. OK, I do have to state that the researchers used skin that wasn't expose to the elements or so called skin care products. They used the skin from the participants bottoms.

> Research shows that we are living longer. The question is how do you want to live your last 20 or so years? Skin is a part of our bodies and maintaining its health is part of maintaining our overall health. So maybe the fountain of youth is available to all of us. Just think of the possibilities of eating a healthy diet and getting regular physical activity. I know I want to live my last 20 years the same way I am living today, vibrantly!

AIR TRAVEL TIPS FOR SENIORS WITH SPECIAL NEEDS

Dear Savvy Senior:

I would like to fly my elderly parents across the country next month for my daughter's wedding but have some concerns about the flight. My mom has trouble walking long distances and my dad has COPD and needs an oxygen tank. What airport or airline services are available to help old passengers?

Dear Concerned:

Flying can be physically exhausting for anyone, but for seniors with health issues or physical limitations it can be extremely challenging. Here are a few tips that can help.

Booking the Flight

When you go to book your parent's flight, this is the time to make special requests that can help make the trip easier for them. You'll need to make these requests over the phone.

For example, you may want to inquire about seats in the front of the plane for easier access or bulkhead seats that provides extra leg room, and you should probably request a wheelchair or two with attendant(s) to maneuver your parents through the airports they will be departing from and arriving to, and if there's a connecting flight in between.

If your parents don't want a wheelchair, but want some help, ask about electric carts.

You also need to check with the airline regarding their policy for portable oxygen concentrators for your dad. Some airlines require specific medical forms that will need to be signed by his doctor.

Airport Assistance

If your parents are flying on their own, you should know that airlines allow elderly fliers to be escorted to and from the gate by a non-traveling companion, as long as the escort provides his or her full name, birth date and government-issued ID.

If no one is available to help your parents, find out how the airline can assist them. Delta Airlines, for example, can have an employee help your parents through check-in with 48 hours notice, and American Airlines provides special assistance to passengers with disabilities.

Or, consider hiring an independent company like Royal Airport Concierge Services (isroyalusa.com), who will meet your parents at the curb to help them check their bags and escort them to security. They typically charge $150 to $250 and serve dozens of airports across the U.S.

There are also a number of traveling companion services like FlyingCompanions.com and PreferredTravelHelpers.com that will do everything, including making the travel arrangements, accompanying your parents on the trip, and facilitating their needs along the way. Fees vary, depending on what's needed and travel costs.

Going Through Security

All U.S. airports offer expedited screening to passengers 75 and older that allows them to move through security without removing their shoes or jacket, and many airports have lanes specifically for use by passengers with disabilities and medical conditions so they don't have to wait in line. They should ask about these when they check-in.

If your parents are packing medications in a carry-on bag, they should know that their pills and/or liquid medications do not have to be packed in their prescription containers to get through airport security, but they will need to separate them from their other belongings so they can be screened. Liquid medications in excess of 3.4 ounces will require separate screening.

For more information on other airport security screening policies and procedures visit tsa.gov/traveler-information, or call TSA Cares at 855-787-2227 where you can ask specific questions.

Boarding and Deboarding

When it's time to board, your parents can take advantage of the airlines pre-boarding option for elderly passengers who need some extra time to get on the plane and get settled. And for getting off the plane, they can wait for the other passengers to debark so attendants can assist them with carry-ons and escort them from the plane.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit Savvy Senior. org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

KATIE TseThis and That THE GOOD, THE BAD, AND THE CRAZY

It's that time of year again! The weather's getting warmer, flowers are blooming, and school children are itching with spring fever! And it's only the end of April! But you must remember that many schools started way back in the middle of August. That leaves only about 30 school days left, and both students and teachers are running on fumes.

Most "naughty" kids push the envelope of their teacher's patience at the beginning of the school year. But there are always a few who students snap and revert to their old ways in this last leg of the race. This is what happened near the end of one of my mom's last years of teaching third grade in a public school.

The student in question (let's call him Ned) came to third grade with a reputation for chronic sassy-ness, noncompliance, and general misconduct. Ned's previous teachers had exhausted all the usual disciplinary methods: e.g., behavior contracts, punishment, rewards, screaming --all to no avail. Since my mom had 30 plus years of experience in the trenches dealing with every variety of students, she had a full arsenal of strategies at her disposal.

You see, some kids just get so callused and jaded over the years that traditional approaches at behavior modification fall short. These kids have grown accustomed to having teachers negotiate with them, cajole them, punish them, and yell to the point of developing vocal nodules. What they're not used to is teachers who are just as crazy as they are!

My mom and Ned maintained a working relationship for most of the year, but near the end Ned started to slip back into his whinny, argumentative habits. Specifically, he claimed that my mom had confiscated a ring of his at the beginning of the year, and now he wanted it back.

Of course there was no such ring, but that didn't matter to Ned. He just wanted a fight. Their conversation went something like this:

Ned: "Hey, Mrs. Hopkins, you never gave back my ring that you took away."

Mom: "I never took a ring from you. What are you talking about?" Ned: (whining) "NO! You took it! I remember!"

Mom: (walking to her desk, she cut a small rectangle of paper, connected the ends with tape, and handed it to Ned.) "Ok, here's a ring for you."

Ned: (surprised, but still angry) "No! It was a real ring! My dad gave it to me!"

Mom: "That is a real ring. Look, you can put it on your finger."

Ned: "No! It had a diamond on it!" Mom: (she takes the paper ring back and draws a diamond shape in the middle) "Okay, here's

Ned: (walking away with his new ring) "I'm telling my dad!"

Mom: "That's fine. While you're at it, remind him to sign and return your report card." Ned had a big, strong male teacher for fourth grade. Around the end of the year, Ned's mom came back to thank my mom for working with him. "You're the only one who was able

SENIOR HAPPENINGS

FYI -SENIORS - DON'T BE A TARGET

THE F.B.I. Common Fraud Schemes webpage provides tips on how you can protect you and your family from fraud. Senior Citizens especially should be aware of fraud schemes for the following reasons:

Senior citizens are most likely to have a "nest egg," to own their home, and/or to have excellent credit—all of which make them attractive to con artists.

People who grew up in the 1930s, 1940s, and 1950s were generally raised to be polite and trusting. Con artists exploit these traits, knowing that it is difficult or impossible for these individuals to say "no" or just hang up the telephone.

Older Americans are less likely to report a fraud because they don't know who to report it to, are too ashamed at having been scammed, or don't know they have been scammed. Elderly victims may not report crimes, for example, because they are concerned that relatives may think the victims no longer have the mental capacity to take care of their own financial affairs.

When an elderly victim does report the crime, they often make poor witnesses. Con artists know the effects of age on memory, and they are counting on elderly victims not being able to supply enough detailed information to investigators. In addition, the victims' realization that they have been swindled may take weeks—or more likely, months—after contact with the fraudster. This extended time frame makes it even more difficult to remember details from the events. Senior citizens are more interested in and susceptible to products promising increased cognitive function, virility, physical conditioning, anti-cancer properties, and so on. In a country where new cures and vaccinations for old diseases have given every American hope for a long and fruitful life, it is not so unbelievable that the con artists' products can do what they claim.

REGISTRATION OPENED APRIL 16! SOUTHLAND RESIDENTS CAN SAVE SOME CASH WITH ANNUAL LAWN MOWER EXCHANGE PROGRAM

SCAQMD Expects to Exchange 4,000 Lawn Mowers This Spring

Southland residents can register starting on Wed., April 16 to get up to 75 percent in savings on a new electric lawn mower with the South Coast AQMD's popular Lawn Mower Exchange Program.

Now in its 12th year, the program helps the wallet and air quality by trading residents' used, highly polluting gas-powered lawn mowers for environmentally friendly, cordless battery-electric models.

This year's program offers 4,000 mowers for trade-in. SCAQMD encourages residents to act fast once registration opens and secure a spot at one of four events being held this year in Long Beach, Pasadena, Riverside and Anaheim.

"By participating in the Lawn Mower Exchange Program, residents will get a brand new mower that is easier to operate and quieter than a gas model for just a fraction of the retail price," said William A. Burke, Ed.D., SCAQMD's Governing Board Chairman. "In addition to taking advantage of this great offer, residents will also help better their community by eliminating air pollution from old gas

In fact, an older gas-powered lawn mower can spew more pollution into the air in a single year than a car driven more than 22,000 miles.

Residents have the opportunity to register and choose from one of five Black & Decker and Greenstation battery electric models ranging from $100 to $250:

- -- Black & Decker 18" 36 volt, $100 (Retail price: $379) (75 percent savings!)
 -- Black & Decker 19" 36 volt, $180 (Retail price: $429)
 -- Black & Decker 19" 36 volt self-propelled, $250 (Retail price: $479)
 -- Greenstation 20" 24 volt, $160 (Retail price: $430)
 -- Greenstation 19" 24 volt self-propelled, $230 (Retail price: $470)

To take advantage of this great offer, residents must pre-register at www.aqmd.gov by clicking on the Lawn Mower Exchange banner, or calling 1-888-425-6247. Registration opens April 16 at 8 a.m. and is on a first-come, first-served basis.

Exchanging a mower is easy and convenient – only a 10- to 15-minute process – and participants never have to leave their car. Upon arrival, workers will remove the old gas mower from the vehicle and drain it of hazardous fluids prior to its destruction at a metal recycling facility. After payment is made, attendants will place the new, boxed mower in the customer's vehicle. To view a video on the exchange process, visit www.aqmd.gov.

Residents must be at least 18 years old to participate in the program. Gas-powered mowers must be in working order and only one mower per household can be exchanged. Cash, check or major credit cards are accepted for payment.

Exchange events will take place as follows. All events will take place on Saturdays from 8 a.m.

- -- May 3 in Long Beach
- -- May 17 in Pasadena -- June 14 in Riverside
- -- June 28 in Anaheim

When the program ends this summer, SCAQMD will have scrapped more than 55,000 highly polluting gasoline mowers, removing almost 114 tons of smog-forming pollutants from the Southland's air.

This year's program is sponsored by the SCAQMD, in cooperation with the California Air Resources Board, Southern California Edison, Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, City of Anaheim, City of Pasadena, Long Beach City College, Bourns, Inc., UC Riverside, and Anaheim Public Utilities. The program is funded through SCAQMD's Air Quality Investment Program (AQIP), which is financed by Southland companies that pay a fee in lieu of offering rideshare incentives as required by SCAQMD's Rule 2202.

The Lawn Mower Exchange Program will offset more emissions than would be achieved by an employer rideshare program. SCAQMD is the air pollution control agency for Orange County and

CALIFORNIA ASSEMBLY APPROVES THREE HOLDEN BILLS

AB 1557 – AB 1912 – AJR 33

Sacramento – The California Assembly today gave overwhelming, bi-partisan approval to three bills authored by Assemblymember Chris Holden (D-Pasadena). The three include legislation to give veterans a stronger voice in college leadership, ensure the legacy of President Obama is included in school textbooks, and a resolution to honor unsung heroes of the Vietnam War.

AB 1557 gives veterans permanent seats on the Board of Governors of the California Community College system by adding a student member who is a veteran or current member of the military. The bill also requires one of the existing 12 board seats to be held by a member or former member of the Armed Forces who has demonstrated expertise and leadership in the field of veterans' affairs.

AB 1912 would encourage the State Board of Education to provide academic curriculum on the election of President Barack Obama and its historical impact. The state's history-social science standards for grades 7 – 12 have not been revised in nine years due largely to the state's fiscal crisis. The next review and adoption of instructional materials will not take place until the 2015-2016

AJR 33 calls on the Department of Defense to "set the record straight" by adding the names of 74 sailors killed during the Vietnam War, to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C. The men were killed when their ship sank in the South China Sea during naval exercises. The Defense Department has said the destroyer was outside the combat zone when it collided with an Australian aircraft carrier. The families of the brave men who died have been battling for 45 years to have the names of their loved ones inscribed on the Vietnam wall memorial.

SENATOR HUFF'S BILL TO SAVE KIDS' LIVES WINS UNANIMOUS SUPPORT IN SENATE HEALTH COMMITTEE

Student Allergy Emergency Treatment Bill Now Moves To Senate Judiciary Committee

SACRAMENTO: The Senate Health Committee voted unanimously to approve SB 1266 by Senate Republican Leader Bob Huff (R-Diamond Bar) which requires public schools to stock epinephrine which requires public schools to stock epinephrine which requires public schools to stock epinephrine adult and pediatric allergies.

"What you as policy makers can do is to save lives, and this bill will," said Dr. Kari Nadeau, M.D & Ph.D. auto injectors – commonly known as epi-pens - on campus. According to expert testimony during the committee hearing, this critically important medicine can be administered quickly and safely if a student suffers from a serious allergic reaction during school hours. California law allows public schools to stock epinephrine, but does not require it.

"This bill will save lives by ensuring emergency medication is available at schools, so we can be sure that all students with allergies are safe at school even when they don't know they have any allergy," Senator Huff said. "Anaphylaxis is a potentially lethal allergic reaction and the number of children with this condition is skyrocketing. It can happen when a person is stung by a bee, ingests food such as shellfish or nuts, or even comes in contact with something as simple as latex. Reactions can be so severe, even fatal, without prompt action. Epinephrine - commonly known as adrenalin - is the first line of treatment. It can be easily administered and it can take as little as five seconds to save a life."

According to Food Allergy Research & Education, which sponsored Senator Huff's bill, as many as 15 million Americans suffer from life threatening allergies. It is estimated that nearly 6 million of these people are children under the age of 18 -one in every 13 children or 2 in every classroom. Approximately 25% of first time allergic reactions that require epinephrine happen at school. Members of the Senate Health Committee heard compelling testimony during the

"What you as policy makers can do is to save lives, and this bill will," said Dr. Kari Nadeau, M.D & Ph.D. of the Lucille Packard Children's Hospital (and the Stanford Alliance of Food Allergy Research (SAFAR). "Our nation spends $26 billion per year on food allergy therapy and most of that is on emergency room visits. Every three minutes in our country a child or adult is going to an emergency room because of a food allergy reaction. 1.2 million children will have an allergy reaction in school and for a quarter of them it will be their first experience. Those children are at risk and I urge you to pass this bill so we can protect

SB 1266 is supported by the American Academy of Allergy Asthma and Immunology; Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America; American Red Cross; California Academy of Physician Assistants; California School Nurses Association, California Advocates for Food Allergies; California American College of Emergency Physicians; California Society of Allergy, Asthma and Immunology, and many other local organizations and individuals. SB 1266 will be heard next in the Senate Judiciary Committee on April 29th at 1:30pm in Room 112 of the State Capitol.

Senator Huff serves as the Senate Republican Leader and represents the 29th Senate District covering portions of Los Angeles, Orange and San Bernardino Counties. Follow Senator Huff on Twitter at @bobhuff99.

SAVING THE BRICK AND MORTARS OUR NATION IS BUILT ON

Think about which three independently owned businesses you'd miss most if they were gone. Stop in and say hello. Pick up a little something that will make someone smile. Your contribution is what keeps those businesses around.

If just half the employed, U.S. population spent $50 each month in independently owned businesses, their purchases would generate more than $42.6 billion in revenue.* Imagine the positive impact if 3/4 of the employed population did that.

> For every $100 spent in independently owned stores, $68 returns to the community through taxes, payroll, and other expenditures. If you spend that in a national chain, only $43 stays here. Spend it online and nothing comes home.

EVIDENCE OF 26 ATOMIC BOMB-SCALE ASTEROID IMPACTS SINCE THE YEAR 2000

Artist's view of last year's fireball explosion over Chelyabinsk, Russia - termed a "superbolide" event. Credit: Don Davis

At a press conference April 22 at the Seattle Museum of Flight, three prominent astronauts supporting the B612 Foundation presented a visualization of new data showing the surprising frequency at which the Earth is hit by asteroids. The astronauts were guests of the Seattle Museum for a special series of public events on Earth Day 2014.

Dr. Ed Lu, former US shuttle and Soyuz astronaut and co-founder and CEO of the B612 Foundation, was joined by former NASA astronaut Tom Jones, president of the Association of Space Explorers and Apollo 8 astronaut Bill Anders, first chairman of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and former chairman and CEO of General Dynamics, to discuss findings recently released from the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty Organization, which operates a network of sensors that monitors the Earth around the clock listening for the infrasound signatures of nuclear detonations.

Between 2000 and 2013, this network detected 26 explosions on Earth ranging in energy from 1 to 600 kilotons—all caused not by nuclear explosions, but rather by asteroid impacts. To put that in perspective, the atomic bomb that destroyed Hiroshima in 1945 exploded with an energy impact of 15 kilotons. While most of these asteroids exploded too high in the atmosphere to do serious damage on the ground, the evidence is important in estimating the frequency of potential "city-killer-size"

The Earth is continuously colliding with fragments of asteroids, the largest in recent times exploding over Tunguska, Siberia, in 1908 with an energy impact of between 5 and 15 megatons. More recently, we witnessed the 600-kiloton impact in Chelyabinsk, Russia, in 2013, and asteroid impacts greater than 20 kilotons occurred in South Sulawesi, Indonesia, in 2009, in the Southern Ocean in 2004, and in the Mediterranean Sea in 2002. Important to note as well is the fact that none of these asteroids were detected or tracked in advance by any existing space-based or terrestrial observatory.

While most large asteroids with the potential to destroy an entire country or continent have been detected, less than 10,000 of the more than a million dangerous asteroids with the potential to destroy a major metropolitan area have been found by all existing space or terrestrially-operated observatories," stated Lu. "Because we don't know where or when the next major impact will occur, the only thing preventing a catastrophe from a 'city-killer' sized asteroid has been blind luck."

The B612 Foundation aims to change that by building the Sentinel Space Telescope Mission, an early warning infrared space telescope for tracking asteroids that would provide many years to deflect an asteroid when it is still millions of miles away. The B612 Sentinel Mission will be the world's first privately funded deep space mission that will create the first comprehensive dynamic map of our inner solar system, identifying the current and future locations and trajectories of Earth crossing asteroids. Sentinel will detect and track more than 200,000 asteroids in just the first year of operation, after a planned launch in 2018.

The B612 Foundation (http://www.b612foundation.org) is named for the asteroid home of the "Little Prince" in Antoine de Saint-Exupery's classic novel, Le Petit Prince. The Little Prince came to realize that what is essential in life is often invisible to the human eye.

For a video visualization of the findings, showing the impact size range and location of all 26 explosions, see: https://b612foundation.org/portfolio/impact-video

JUST FOR BEST FRIER

"Right now at this moment, you have a mind which is all the basic equipment you need to achieve complete happiness." ~ Dalai Lama

Is it just me, or has the majority of the population in our "highly advanced" American society lost sight of what really matters in life? Perhaps the wonders of technology and the seemingly unlimited resources that make our lives so much easier in America, have become a distasteful distraction from life's true treasures.

I remember a conversation I had with a couple of close friends at an open house Christmas party a few years ago, during which I lost my audience when I admitted that, in some ways I envy those who live in lesser developed countries where they still practice tribal rites, they value their cultural roots, and have not been tainted by the lures of the western world. If that wasn't enough, I continued my 'monologue' by confessing that if given the option, I doubt I would ever have even invented the clock. I know that sounds pretty radical, but I truly feel that way.

Understandably, my friends were quite perplexed by my less-than-conventional comments, and they were rather astounded by my overall opinion that mankind has lost it's way in this world by leaving their original roots behind to chase rainbows of power, success, fame and fortune, and last but not least, to trade irreplaceable treasures of nature for the conveniences and comforts of life.

I have been told that moderation is a key component to health and happiness, and for the most part I agree. So, when new cultural concepts arise, I often wonder why people find it necessary to completely do away with, and replace the original ways of living with the new. Knowledge and understanding are God-given virtues that we humans were blessed with from the beginning, and He instilled such virtues within us for an express purpose; to determine and choose the right path for ourselves as part of His creation. While the relatively recent rise of technology & scientific discovery are considered to be positive developments for mankind, they can never replace the basic inherent virtues that God gave us as tools for living on earth, from the beginning.

It seems that few cultures have managed to adhere to the basic premises of life that were taught from the start, but there is one "under-developed" nation, centered deeply in the eastern hemisphere whose people seem to have found a way to maintain their appreciation for their original roots of happiness. An ancient country with a mere population of about 600,000 population declared themselves to be 'happy'. In terms of monetary and material wealth, Bhutan hardly even registers on the world index, so I cannot help asking myself, "What is it about Bhutan that generates so much contentment?". The simple answer is that the kingdom of Bhutan has chosen an alternate path to that of economic development. Ironically, while Bhutan is considered to be among the poorest countries on earth, more of God's creatures thrive in their natural habitat there, than in any other country!

Bhutanese people live by a code of life that is very different from ours in the western world. Their decidedly slow-growth approach in today's society, sets them apart from the rest of the world. The Bhutanese culture is guided by the ideals of sanctity of life, preservation of nature, and giving back to earth what has been taken away, so in keeping with their philosophies they intentionally resist the influences of western "progressive" culture, particularly the idea of making life simpler with technology, and the pursuit of monetary gains. To me, this makes total sense.

Indeed, the Bhutanese are people after my own heart. One thing that I really respect about the Bhutanese culture, is the fact that the citizens never assume true ownership of the property they occupy. Not because the government says so, but because they believe that the earth can never truly be owned, but only borrowed for the period of time during which they occupy it. How true this is, regardless of where you live on planet earth.

The lessons that can be learned from the cultural lifestyle of the Bhutanese are manifold. They protect the animals with which they share their land-mass. They appreciate every aspect of nature, and are careful to reciprocate to keep a healthy balance. They are calm-spirited individuals who do not let themselves become caught up in the trap of need or greed, and to me that is the ultimate true root of happiness.

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND?

Thea is a beautiful miniature pinscher-chihuahua mix. She has been at our shelter since September 2011. We have no idea why she has been passed over for adoption. Many of her kennel mates have found homes during the past two years, but Theas family has not found her yet.

Thea will greet anyone near her kennel by jumping up and down on her long legs. It's as if she is saying, "Pick me! Pick me!" She loves the staff and volunteers she has interacted with, and will reward them with a quick kiss when she is picked up or harnessed for a walk.

to play with. She is very playful with other dogs and with toys, but when you are least expecting it, she will jump into your lap for a little kiss and cuddle time. Then she is off again playing tag with her dog friends (or people friends). She is a smart girl and will sit for treats. She has gone to several off-site adoption events, and is a perfect lady out in public. Thea can be shy with new people, and is a little selective on who she will allow in her personal space, but once you have gotten to know her, she is friendly and happy to see you. Thea needs a family who will allow her the time to get to know them and earn her trust. It doesn't take long once she is feeling comfortable and secure. Then she will love you forever! Thea is about 3 years old and weighs about 10 pounds. She is mostly black with beautiful tan highlights showing off her pretty face and her long legs. Her coat is very short and does not require much grooming. Please consider coming in to meet the lovely Thea.

She currently resides at the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society located at 851 E. Grand Avenue in San Gabriel. We are located off San Gabriel Blvd., north of Mission and south of Las Tunas.

To arrange a 'Meet and Greet' with Thea (aka...5199), please stop by any time from 10:00am to 4:30pm Tuesday thru Sunday.

Her adoption fee is $120 which includes her spay surgery, a microchip, first vaccinations and a free wellness check-up at a participating veterinarian. Feel free to call us at (626) 286-1159 for more information on Thea.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS:

By Sean Kayden

APRIL'S PLAYLIST

Vacationer – "The Wild Life" – Vacationer features Kenny Vasoil former frontman of emo pop-punk band, The Starting Line. Their new song, "The Wild Life," is officially the first estival jam one can really get behind. It features tropical beats and a glazed lazy summer vibe. It's very similar to something off their first record, "Gone," which debuted two years ago. That album was solid and a nice departure from Vasoil's previous venture. If "The Wild Life" is any indication of what the entire album ("Relief," due out June 24th) may sound like, we're once again in for a treat. The soundtrack to the upcoming summer may just belong to Vacationer.

The Antlers – "Palace" – The Antlers' new glowing single, "Palace" is delicate and somber. The track, which is off the forthcoming record, "Familiars," features a soft piano, horns, and Peter Silberman's wispy, tender croon. This marks the band first LP since 2011's "Burst Apart," which was one of the best records of that year. Comparative to songs off their previous two LPs, The Antlers have crafted another gorgeously compose gem. If you're looking for a meditative experience then look no further. The third full-length album is due out June 17th. It may not be the idyllic summer record, but there is no denying the sheer beauty that lies within their songs.

Wye Oak - "Shriek" - Wye Oak has ditched guitars for their fourth record, "Shriek." Lead singer Jenn Wasner now plays bass whilst singing in this duo. The title track is extremely melodic with the band's new shift in direction. With their latest endeavor, the rhythmic elements thrive. The bass and keyboards combination are infectious along with Wasner's breezy vocals. This new passageway finds Wye Oak in 80s snyth-pop stimulated territory. I'm totally on board with the lane change and "Śhriek" hits shelves April 29th.

Fear Of Men - "Decent" - Brighton's Fear Of Men specializes in sweet-pop music. Their latest single, "Decent" offers a darker foray into the lyrics department. The track is razor sharp. It's absolutely glorious from start to finish. The surprisingly upbeat approach is unusual given the haunting lyrics. This trio (one girl, two guys) just released their debut LP, "Loom," on April 22nd via Kanine Records. These newbies have a bright sound that makes them the dark horse pick for rising up and comers. Be sure to check "Loom" from Fear of Men if you're in need of a fresh start on the music forefront.

The Crookes - "Outsiders" - Sheffield rockers, "The Crookes" recently released "Soapbox" this month. "Outsiders" is a typical rock jam from young lads from Britain these days. Comparative to mega successful band, Arctic Monkeys, "Outsiders" has big hooks. The aforementioned track has great melodies and is fairly magnificent in the way it plays out. From what I could tell, this new record has the group pushing past their previous limits for a more cohesive effort. Perhaps with this

And, of course, the Friends of the Library will have a booth selling their famous sweet breads and quick breads.

For the children, the Creative Arts Group has planned an imaginative craft activity from 10:00am-4:00pm both days. Participants will have an opportunity to have fun creating a design on the wings of a butterfly.

This year we will again have a silent auction. Many of the artists who are displaying and selling their creations at this year's fair have donated lovely, one-of-a-kind pieces for the auction which means that you'll have a chance to bid on some really beautiful artwork.

So come early and stay all day. Browse through the wonderful displays of artwork, relax in the wine garden and listen to music, have a little lunch, check on your silent auction bids, and then go back and purchase those lovely pieces of art that have been calling your name ever since you spotted them. Proceeds from the Art Fair benefit the Sierra Madre Library. For more information, visit our website at sierramadrelibraryfriends.org or call 626 355-7186.

CAFFEINATED: HOW OUR DAILY HABIT HELPS, HURTS, AND HOOKS US by Murray Carpenter

The most popular drug in America is a white powder. No, not that powder. But an additive under the radar. This is caffeine in its most essential state. And Caffeinated reveals the little known truth about this addictive,in that it is a largely unregulated drug found in coffee, energy drinks, teas, colas, chocolate, and even pain relievers. We'll learn why caffeine has such a powerful effect on everything from boosting our mood to improving our athletic performance as well as how brands such as Coca Cola have ducked regulatory efforts for decades. We learn the differences in the various ways caffeine is delivered to the body, how it is quietly used to reinforce our buying patterns, and how it can play a role in promoting surprising health problems like obesity and anxiety. Drawing on the latest research, Caffeinated brings us the inside perspective on this

THE SIXTH EXTINCTION: AN UNNATURAL HISTORY by Elizabeth Kolbert

This is a book about the future of the world, blending intellectual and natural history and field reporting into a powerful account of the mass extinction unfolding before our eyes. Over the last half a billion years, there have been five mass extinctions. Scientists are currently monitoring the 6th extinction, predicted to be the most devastating extinction event since the asteroid impact that wiped out the dinosaurs. This time around, the cause is us. Kolbert draws on the work of scores of researchers in half a dozen disciplines, accompanying many of them into the field: geologists who study deep ocean cores, botanists who follow the tree line as it climbs up the Andes, marine biologists who dive off the Great Barrier Reef. She introduces us to a dozen species, some already gone, others facing extinction, including the Panamian golden frog, staghorn coral, the great auk, and the Sumatran rhino. Through these stories, Kolbert provides a moving account of the disappearances occurring all around us. The sixth extinction is likely to be mankind's most lasting legacy; it compels us to rethink the fundamental question of what it means to be human.

FAMILY MATTERS

By Marc Garle

VACATIONS ARE THE PERFECT TIME FOR FAMILIES TO TALK ABOUT ESTATE PLANNING

If you are like most Americans, you will probably be spending at least some of your vacation time this summer with older family members. While there are few perfect times to talk with parents about their estate plan, the relaxed times you spend together on vacation can be one of them.

Here are some tips on how to conduct this critical conversation:

Find a good place to start. One of the best ways to ease your parents into this type of discussion is to bring up your own planning. Tell your parents you were looking into estate planning and wondered if they had already executed a plan of their own. Sometimes you can use current events to good effect – there are lots of recent stories about celebrities or others who neglected to plan and whose families suffered the dire consequences.

Take it easy. If you feel your parents may need some help with organizing their financial lives, be reassuring rather than applying pressure. Let them know your goal is to make sure their financial independence is kept intact for as long as possible. Take things one step at a time, such as extending an offer to help them use online bill pay or assist them with organizing their information at tax time.

Respect boundaries. Many parents feel uncomfortable discussing their finances with their children. If you face this obstacle, let your parents know that you at least need to know where to find their important documents when it becomes necessary, but that you aren't attempting to control them in anyway. You simply want to help and make things as easy as possible for you and your siblings when something does happen.

Sometimes initiating a conversation with parents about estate planning can be easier with the help of a trusted professional. During a Family Estate Planning Session we can guide the conversation and help you and your family take control of their affairs. Call our office today at 626.355.4000 to schedule a time for us to sit down and talk about designing an estate plan that fits the needs of you and your family, or visit www.GarlettLaw.com for more information.

Marc, a local attorney, father, and CASA volunteer (Court Appointed Special Advocate for Children) is on a mission to help parents protect what they love most. His office is located at 49 S. Baldwin Ave., Ste. G, Sierra Madre, CA 91024.

NEED SOME MONEY? CHECK OUT THE BANK OF DAD

By Gregory J. Welborn

We've all done it, usually when we were kids to impress a date or just hang out when we'd already burned through the week's allowance. We called it a loan, but in many instances, the old man forgave the debt.

Fast forward to the present, and we're all grown up now. While few of us need money for frivolity, there are occasions when borrowing from dear old dad makes sense. Of course, there are times when it doesn't, and I'll cover those a bit later. When does it make sense? When the money will be used to purchase something valuable and securable. The ideal situation is to purchase a house.

Borrowing from family offers both sides several benefits. First, for the borrower, the trust factor is already established. Mom and dad know you better than any banker ever will. Assuming you really are good for the money, family will be more willing to lend based on your character than will a bank. Qualifying is easier, and borrowing from family allows you to make an all cash offer for the property, or at least to put more down and get a better deal from the bank. The borrower also should be able to get a better interest rate than borrowing from the bank.

For the lender (dear old dad), a loan to the kid is more secure and can pay better than a comparable investment. The loan, which should be secured by an interest in the house, can be more secure than buying a bond, and the loan certainly will pay better rates than a CD or many bonds. Both parties can benefit here.

The details are key. The loan should be structured with a properly written and executed note, and a properly drawn and recorded deed. This secures the lender's interests and makes clear that repayment is expected. Repayment schedules can be flexible, but they need to be documented. If you're not going to formalize it, don't lend the money. It also helps to use an intermediary. National Family Mortgage is one such institution. They can offer invaluable advice, help structure the deal and monitor payments.

Borrowing from dad isn't like it used to be, and it can certainly provide benefits to both parties. The secret is to be honest about what's expected, document it, and treat it like any other loan or investment

SIERRA MADRE BUSINESS WATCH

Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed

DON'T CHASE THE MARKET

Buyer's market or seller's market - the simple fact is that your home is worth only what a buyer will pay for it. The simple law of supply and demand usually determines the final sale price. If there are fewer homes for sale in your area, then buyers must compete for those listings, making it a seller's market.

However, when there is a glut of homes for sale, buyers have more choice and more power to dictate price and terms, creating a buyer's market. Many communities are seeing large inventories of homes for sale, due to economic conditions and defaults.

So if your home is to get attention in those conditions, you've got to price aggressively against your competition. Do not overprice your home, because you may end up making even less money than if you had priced properly from the start. Why? Because sellers who overprice have to keep chasing the market down by reducing their price.

While setting a price is ultimately your decision and your decision alone, do some research and educate yourself first. Order an appraisal and consult with a real estate professional to get a realistic figure for your home's value. If you choose not to comply with current market value, then you won't be a seller, you'll just be an owner with a For Sale sign in the yard.

I know you're an entrepreneur... but do you LOVE what you do?

It's easy to get side-tracked. To start following the customer, rather than your own heart. To work around the clock and forget balance. To ignore passion in lieu of the sale. Bottom line... it's easy to fall out of love with your business.

It happens subtly. Each action sending you in an ever- so-slightly revised direction. And eventually, you end up in a different business. And you can't get out of bed in the morning.

Where the heck are you? Far from your true self.

It's important in business, as in life, to stay connected to The Real You. To your essence... your spirit. Your spirit knows you intimately, and it knows why you're here. Its job is to help you reach your TRU, outrageous potential! There's nothing to guess at. You simply have to stay connected within to hear and do what it's telling you.

But there's an antagonist.... that part of the left brain containing those recordings of fear and doubt. It's the part of you that does not want risk, is afraid of the unknown, who runs from possibilities. It seeks safety, not adventure. And its voice is powerful and can overshadow the softer, pure voice of the spirit.

The spirit knows the way, but you've got to make room. Find a place to be still in each and every day to listen. Write down what you hear your spirit saying. Ask questions as you would a friend. It IS your friend. And it will always guide you to the adventure. It will tell you where to go and how to get there, when you're off base and when you're in LOVE.

STUDY SUGGESTS 'GRIT' CAN BE DEVELOPED

By Cynthia Kurtz President, SGVED

What makes one business person successful while another in the same business fails? Why do students with the same backgrounds perform so differently on difficult tasks? Is it possible to predict which employees will do well on challenging work?

Traditionally, when we ask these questions, we look to IQ - the Intelligence Quotient - as the way to predict achievement, job performance and even income potential. IQ is measurable. It is mathematical. It is a standard that allows comparisons between people.

There is research underway that suggests that IQ is not the only measure, maybe not even the most important measure that can predict whether someone will do well in school and in life.

Angela Lee Duckworth was teaching seventh grade math when she began to notice that it wasn't always her high IQ students who did best on tough assignments. She began to watch more closely to see if she could determine what it was that determined success.

She became so interested in understanding this phenomenon that she decided to study psychology and started working with children and adults in difficult situations - rookie teachers in tough schools, West Point Military Academy cadets, and people in high pressure sales positions. She looked for the variables that would allow her to predict who would do well.

Instead of social skills, family income, good looks, or even IQ, she determined it was "grit." What is grit? Remember the movie True Grit? The John Wayne movie in which a young girl decides to track down her father's murderer. She didn't know it wasn't proper or possible. She simply decided to do it and she did it. That pretty much is "grit." It is a pervasive stamina, a determination to succeed along with some just plain old follow-through.

Grit raises the same questions we have about IQ - how do you get it? Can you learn it? Do you inherit it? Can it be taught? The exact answer is still unclear but Carol Dweck at the Stanford University has published interesting research that suggests that there is a way to develop grit.

Professor Dweck says it starts with "growth in mindset." To the non-academic that means believing that you have the ability to learn and that failure isn't permanent.

When self-worth is measured only by success, then it is unlikely that a person will pursue anything that doesn't guarantee success.

Students who are taught that the brain is a muscle that grows with exercise are fueled by setbacks. Failure becomes an opportunity to learn instead of a reflection of inadequacy. Not getting a problem right the first time means working harder and trying again.

The theory of mindset growth has implications for many aspects of our lives but most certainly for how businesses develop employee skills and encourage innovation. Good performance shouldn't be just about success but also about how someone approaches risk and responds when things don't go as planned. The result could well be motivation and productivity gains for employees and businesses.

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

I AM ON A ROLL SO DON'T ROCK MY BOAT!

one of those weeks where everything went exactly as planned? Well, neither have I, except for last week. I do not know what was going on last week, all I know is everything went according to plan. My plan, that is.

In a sense, that worries me. I am not accustomed to having my week work out according to my plans. Normally, if I can get 50% of my plans accomplished in a week, I am doing pretty good. Last week was one of those weeks, which may never repeat itself ever again, I am sorry to say. Or, am I sorry?

In contrast, the week before it was

I was out of town on business for the week and had to return via the airplane. If you have ever been on an airplane, you know that the 10 dwarfs of Snow White fame designed the seats. I think the one in charge of the seat project was Grumpy.

I was flying from Chicago to Orlando, which is not that bad of a trip. I boarded the plane in Chicago and took my seat at B3. I got all snuggled and strapped in and was prepared for the trip. No sooner had I gotten into this state of affairs, and you know getting into those seats is one of the great challenges that a real man has, somebody came and stood at the aisle looking at me and said in a high pitch grumpy voice, "You are sitting in

The emphasis on the word "my," indicated to me I was up against someone that I did not want to be up against.

"I'm sorry, madam," I stated as calmly as possible, "but this is my seat." I tried to emphasize the word "my" to get the

She stared at me with one of those stares that penetrates the very soul of a person's manhood. Then she waved her ticket at me and said, "You are sitting in MY seat."

I took out my ticket to wave at her and prove she was wrong. Much to my chagrin, my seat was B13. Do you know what it takes to get unbuckled from a plane seat and extradite yourself out of it? Especially when Ms. Grumpy is staring at you with one of those stares.

I went back to B13 and went through the same procedure to get myself situated in the seat for someone half my size. Just before the plane took off, I heard in the seat behind me a little baby start to cry.

"Oh, no," I said to myself, "not a crying baby!" Sure enough, in the seat behind me was a baby with lungs the size of an elephant. I tried pretending I did not

Have you ever had hear, but the more I pretended the more I heard. That baby cried from the moment we took off until the moment we landed. When we landed, the baby fell asleep. I wanted to cry myself.

That was last week. This week was different in every respect. I enjoyed this week, particularly the fact that I got all my "to-do-list" accomplished and by early Friday afternoon, I had nothing to do.

Nothing to do!

Then a thought wrestled my brain to the mat. What if the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage found out I had finished all my work and had nothing to do?

When I thought about this, one thought that was predominant was that it is a good thing when I do NOT finish everything in a week. Then, I have the excuse that I have too much to do to delve into the "honeydo-list" of which my wife is most famous.

I believe this "honey-do-list" is something mothers pass on to their daughters. It is part of the women's secret society that does not permit any intrusion from the non-female counterpart. It is the reason wives prefer their husbands call them the secret name, "Honey." Whenever the husband uses this term of endearment the wife smiles one of those romantic smiles that her husband has no idea what is behind that smile.

It has taken me a long time to come to this point of understanding. While, it is very gratifying to get your work for the week done ahead of schedule, it creates an opportunity for the intrusion of that infamous "honey-do-list." This list has no

When you accomplish one item on the "honey-do-list," three other items appear automatically. It is virtually impossible to finish everything on that list. It is part of the wife's secret society no man can

Being on such a good roll in any given week is not the grand thing I thought it was. I am now content to have my desk piled high with unfinished work at the

Since I had a little bit of time on my hands, I read what good old King Solomon, the wisest man that ever lived, thought along these lines. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest" (Ecclesiastes 9:10).

If I do not use my time to the best of my ability, the probabilities are pretty high somebody will intrude and use that time for some other use.

HOWARD Hays As I See It

concentrated in the hands of a few, but we can't have both."

-Louis Brandeis

It's a topic that's been a favorite among pundits and politicians for as long as there's been liberal/conservative, left/right, blue/red and Hays/ Welborn. But this wasn't your standard opinion piece about government for sale to the highest bidder. It's a dry, scientific analysis concluding that our country's transformation from democracy to oligarchy is already pretty much a done deal. It's titled, "Testing Theories of American Politics: Elites, Interest Groups, and Average Citizens", by Professors Martin Gilens of Princeton and Benjamin Page of Northwestern - due to appear this fall in the journal, "Perspectives on Politics".

The first theory "tested" is Majoritarian Electoral Democracy, which holds that within the range of views Americans hold on an issue, there's a place in the middle that has the most support - and that policy reflects most of the

The next is Economic Elite Domination. The authors clarify they're not referring necessarily to those considered "elite" because of high positions – but to those who have lots of money.

There's Majoritarian Pluralism, where those with common interests get together. The idea is that competition between interest groups usually leads to a moderate outcome.

Finally, there's Biased Pluralism – groups formed not from peoples' common interests but to promote a corporate interest.
For their study, Gilens and Page analyzed

1,779 policy change issues over twenty years, and the views of those in the bottom 10% in income, those at the median and those in the upper 10% - not all super-rich, but with incomes starting around $150k a year. Those with median income also tended to have a median view on issues.

They took interest groups pro and con on a particular issue, crunched the numbers and came up with a "net" interest group position.

They found that individuals with average incomes tend to agree on most things with those who are more affluent, but they don't agree with interest groups. This was true with the "economic elite", as well. While, for example, as individuals they might support smaller government, the business groups they bankroll will support whatever corporate welfare and government subsidy program that helps boost profits.

Half-way through the study comes the main point: When testing each of those four "theories" independently, they can each be affirmed as having an effect on policy changes. It's when you start comparing them that things get out of whack.

When matched up against Majoritarian Democracy, Economic Elites are shown to have a "quite substantial, highly significant, independent impact on policy, while ordinary citizens have "little or no independent influence on policy at all." The result is somewhat of a mix, finding that "both individual economic elites and organized

"We can have interest groups (including corporations, largely democracy in this country, or we can have great wealth interest groups (including corporations, largely owned and controlled by wealthy elites) play a substantial part in affecting public policy, but the general public has little or no independent influence."

Establishing constants for the "net" interest group position and that of the Economic Elite, the authors found that when it comes to achieving policy changes, "it makes very little difference what the general public thinks". If one-in-five of those in the upper 10% supports something, it has an 18% chance of getting done. If four-in-five support it, the chance of it happening increases to 45%. As for the rest of us, whether a policy change is supported by a tiny minority or by an overwhelming majority, it doesn't really matter.

The authors concede the system itself has an inherent bias towards the status quo. Of those 1,779 issues they studied, policy changes supported by a bare majority of the public actually took place only 30% of the time. If support grew to 80% among the public, the chance of it happening increased only to 43%.

Many of us do get our way, but that's not because of participatory democracy as much as the fact that our desires often align with those of the more affluent. The authors call this "democracy by coincidence, in which ordinary citizens get what they want from government only when they happen to agree with elites or interest groups that are really calling the shots. When push comes to shove, actual influence matters?

The two types of interest groups are compared. The business-oriented groups are twice as effective in influencing policy as the people-oriented ones - mainly because there are twice as many of them. The net positions of populist interest groups have only a very slight positive correlation with the preferences of average Americans. For the business-related groups, it's a negative correlation - and they're the ones with the most influence over policy.

The authors remind that their study focused on influence over matters up for decision. But they point out that the same influence bias applies in setting the agenda for what's to be considered in the future, and in "shaping" the preferences of the average citizen. In any case, "when a majority of citizens disagrees with economic elites and/or with organized interests, they generally lose."

In other news this month, the NY Times reports that corporate profits are at their highest level in 85 years, while employee compensation is at its lowest in 65 years.

The Supreme Court in its McCutcheon decision gutted overall campaign spending House Republicans killed President Obama's minimum wage proposal, which was supported by 75% of Americans (but only 40% of the wealthy).

Republican hopefuls for 2016 went to Vegas to kiss the ring of casino magnate Sheldon Adelson, and to New Hampshire for the "Freedom Summit" thrown by the Koch Brothers (whose combined worth just topped $100 billion). Professors Gilens and Page conclude by warning, "if policymaking is dominated by powerful business organizations and a small number of affluent Americans, then America's claims to being a democratic society are seriously threatened."

Their study leads one to doubt whether there's still any "if" about it.

RESTAURANTS SHOULDN'T GREG Welborn SERVE CHEAP SANDWICHES

So, we've been told that the ideal unwillingness business model – at least insofar as employees are concerned - is embodied in Costco and Zingerman's Deli. These are two companies to which President Obama paid special tribute on his minimum wage marketing tour. Both pay their employees more than the minimum wage so they are to be applauded and emulated. But both are actually perfect examples of why the minimum wage shouldn't be raised.

Let's take Costco. By all accounts, it's a great place to work offering a great environment an above-minimum-wage scale. But for the national debate on this issue, what's missing is that they can afford to do this. As reported by Michael Saltsman of the Employment Policies Institute, Costco charges its members an annual fee and sells products at prices which allow it to earn an average $10,000 profit per employee each year. Your average casual dining restaurant, on the other hand, earns roughly $2,000 in profit per employee. That's a 5 to 1 ratio, allowing Costco to pay employees more than a casual dining restaurant.

Perhaps that's why President Obama also referenced Zingerman's Deli. If ever there was a casual dining joint it's a deli. Casual or not, Zingerman's sandwiches run about $12 to $14. Most local sandwich shops, McDonalds, Subways, Burger Kings, etc. couldn't charge ten bucks for a sandwich to someone coming off a diet. Raising the minimum wage will not affect companies that are already paying more than the minimum wage. But raising the minimum will have a tremendous effect on those businesses which hire the least skilled workers and sell lower priced items.

If you force these businesses to increase their wages, they have three choices: A) raise their prices - thus passing the burden on to customers who probably shop there because they can't afford the more expensive alternative – or B) reduce the number of workers who have to receive the new higher wage - thus unemploying those who need an entry level job the most – or C) a little of both.

The President is on a tear to raise the minimum wage because he claims to support the little guy, but his policy prescription will hurt them most. Those who can least afford to lose a job where they're learning job skills will be fired, and all of them will pay more for the products and services they purchase from the businesses affected by the minimum wage.

This isn't complicated, but there is something about the inequality between those who earn a lot and those who don't earn much which blinds this president, and most in his party, to the laws of economics. They are willfully ignoring the unintended, but very predictable, consequences which will devastate the very constituency they hope to help.

Beyond that blindness, there is also really deal with the primary cause income inequa inequality: single-parent families. It may have taken some time for statistical analysis to prove what common sense, and the good Lord, told us, but the correlation between economic inequality and single-parent families is stronger than the correlation of inequality with any other factor.

Consider some basic statistics. In 1960, 97% of whites, and 76% of blacks, were born to married couples. Today, those rates have dropped to 70% for whites, 30% for blacks, and 50% for Hispanics. On the economic side, it is equally clear and devastating. Only 2% of children raised in two-parent families live in poverty long-term, while more than 20% of the kids raised in singleparent homes live in poverty longterm. Numerous books and studies by credentialed, respected academics from Susan Mayer to Charles Murray have chronicled the decline and causes of income inequality and poverty. Today, the causal relationship between singleparent homes and poverty is stronger than that between smoking and cancer.

Lest I be accused of racism, because I'm picking on the victims, who happen to be overwhelmingly black and Hispanic, please consider that even Harvard University - a bastion of Liberalism – produced a study showing that communities with high percentages of single-parent homes are less likely to enjoy upward mobility.

As a conservative, I am a friend of the poor and certainly more of a champion of the poor than any Liberal in the modern era. I say that because as a conservative I care about outcomes, not just intentions. I care about opportunity; I care about mobility; I care about people having a job - any job - in which they can have opportunity and learn the skills they'll need to advance up the income scale. I don't care about how rich the rich are; I care about how poor the poor are and how long they have to stay there.

Liberals, like President Obama, claim the greatest of intentions and many times generate the most compassionate sound bites, but they seem to care very little about outcomes among the poor, the very people they claim to champion. Rather than making sure the poor can get a job and work their way up the income ladder, the Liberal solution to income inequality boils down to telling restaurants to stop serving cheap sandwiches. That won't help anyone. About the author: Gregory J. Welborn

WHAT'S ON 98

April 28 - May 4, 2014

That Uncertain Feeling is playing Monday at 1:00 p.m. Released on April 20, 1941: A lady visits a psychoanalyst to get rid of her attacks of the hiccups, but may lose her husband instead.

Ernst Lubitsch was a famed director of the golden age of movies. He made this one right after the Jimmy Stewart classic 'The Shop Around the Corner.' You know that you are in for a treat from a great director, so pop a large bowl of popcorn, drizzle on lots of warm melted butter, and settle down for a romantic dramatic comedy with Merle Oberon, Melvyn Douglas, Burgess Meredith and Eve Arden.

The Bakers have an ideal marriage. He is a high-powered insurance salesman, they live on Park Avenue in New York City, and she has everything a wife could want . . . and more. As the movie opens, we learn that Jill Baker gets sudden attacks of the hiccups. One of Jill's girlfriends suggests that she visit a psychoanalyst that could surely cure her hiccups. Jill is skeptical, but goes to the doctor, who informs her that she has problems with her husband. Jill thought she was very happy in her marriage, but after the doctor told her otherwise, she started seeing all of the flaws in her hubby, and believes that he is the cause of her hiccups.

One day on a visit to her analyst, he is delayed, and Jill meets another patient, a totally whacked out pianist (Burgess Meredith), and somehow they become attracted to each other. Jill's husband gets suspicious of the two, and it looks like their marriage is heading for the rocks. One afternoon when Jill's husband returns home early in the afternoon to talk to his young wife, and discovers that the pianist is already there having a fun afternoon with Jill. Jill faints dead away, and her husband and her pianist friend are together, mano-a-mano, and Jill's husband starts a classic 'Lubitsch' style sales job to win his wife back. The biggest sales pitch he's ever made. He starts divorce proceedings, and 'gives' his wife to the pianist. Of course, Jill gets regrets, and soon they are both playing the ends against the middle. Things go back and forth, each trying to speed up the divorce, and then slow down the proceedings, right up to the happy ending.

This movie was released in April of 1941, eight months before Pearl Harbor, and the U.S. was divided over whether to help Europe fight the German Nazi's or not. When Jill's husband confronts Burgess Meredith about his affair with Jill, Burgess Meredith repeats over and over again, "I will not fight," thinking that Jill's husband will fight him over her. Jill's husband replies, "So you are an isolationist," referring to the segment of the U.S. that believes that the country should isolate itself from the war in Europe and not get involved. And later her husband does a sarcastic 'heil' salute, making reference to the Nazi's as dictatorial. Movie goers of 1941 would have understood this immediately and either agreed or disagreed with one side or the other. Of course, once the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor in December of the same year, U.S. sentiment was united in favor of war, and the mightiest war machine in the history of the world was born.
