Story by Bill Coburn

One thing for sure, Matt Gallagher, his wife and two teenagers will not be sleeping at home in the house they've lived in since 2001 tonight, after fire swept through their home early this morning, leav-ing it uninhabitable for now, if not for good. Insurance investigators were at the site on West Laurel Ave. just west of Baldwin Ave., when I dropped by late this afternoon to see the Gallagher home, which caught fire shortly after nine. A neighbor reported that the fire department was there within minutes, and while they were able to put it out fairly quickly, the damage to the house is extensive. Mr. Gallagher didn't know if any of the house would be salvageable, noting that this had just happened hours ago and he was waiting to hear from the people who do this type of work for the house would be salvageable. Noting that the hear from the people who do this type of work for the hear from the people who do the hear from the people who a living. "I don't do this every day," said Gallagher.

Mr. Gallagher tells me that he heard some early speculation that the fire may have been electrical in origin, but that Fire Marshal Rich Snyder is investigating, and he'll know more about how it started after the results of that investigation are completed. He said that he had been impressed that the insurance people had arranged for the house to be boarded up and protected from the weather within hours of the fire being extin-guished, and even had folks come by to gather clothing to get dry cleaned in an effort to salvage them before the smoke damage set in permanently.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE...... The Social Side By Deanne Davis

"There is something particularly magical about the Mount Wilson Trail. On the first venture up there is perhaps a slight feeling of both terror and beauty as you climb in elevation the switch back trail." MWTR Blog

"Carefully maneuvering each turn and always being aware of one's footing, you are suddenly struck with a feeling of complete aloneness and peace" MWTR Blog

Yes, aloneness and peace almost every other day of the week except the Saturday of Memorial Day Weekend when the Mt. Wilson Trail Race is happening! This year, the 106th running of this grueling 8.6 mile race will feature more runners than ever before, including my very favorite race participants, the kids!

Former Trail Race winners Sharon Pevsner and Jill Liston have, for the second year in a row, hosted the Mt. Wilson Kids Training Camp. On April 16th and again on May 10th kids, ages three to eleven, stretched, exercised and ran laps around Sierra Vista Park in preparation for their race this Saturday.

The first kid's race will feature the older crowd, ages seven to twelve who will run all the way up to the top of Baldwin, make a quick water stop at the water station there, then dash all the way back to the starting line. In the second race, those ferociously competitive three to six year olds will make a fast break and go all the way to Highland and back. Each race participant will receive a shirt and a ribbon and it's all free! Kids just need to register Saturday morning. Sharon and Jill are expecting almost 250 junior racers this year.

The kids are so great to watch. Every year one or two of the littlest ones start the race crying but then that natural competitiveness kicks in, they start to run and, as none of them know what they're actually capable of, it's a delight to see some tiny little person get up and back in a breathtakingly short time. We love watching them, those huge shirts looking a lot like nightgowns, racing up the hill. Some of the parents run with their kids, frequently holding some tiny future Trail Race winner on the way up or down.

The bigger kids are much faster than you'd expect and they, too, are in it to win it. There will be many special volunteers available to be sure that the bigger kids don't run right over the little ones. Dick Hoyt, who has pushed his wheelchair bound son, Rick, in many marathons will be heading up the volunteers for the kid's races. There will be one extremely special volunteer: Simon Cooper aka The Rabbit, who will run in front of the kids to get them started, possibly sporting ears and a fluffy tail. Talk about good sports!

Got to spend a few minutes with Sharon talking about her trip to the Boston Marathon a few weeks ago. You need to hunt her down and get her to tell you some of her stories, just so you can see the joy on her face. Sharon went to Boston and ran the marathon purely to join in solidarity with everyone there. She took pictures, encouraged runners, hugged folks who needed a hug, and mentioned a woman named Melanie from North Carolina who was back in Boston this year. Melanie was there last year, fifty feet from the finish line when the bomb went off. She was there on pre-race Saturday for a practice 5K but found she just couldn't bring herself to cross the finish line. Just couldn't. But she was able to finish the race and cross the finish line on Marathon Monday. She and Sharon are FaceBook friends now along with many others Sharon met in Boston last

This year eighty Sierra Madre residents will be competing in the Mt. Wilson Trail Race, some of whom have never run it before. This is great! Hopefully, it won't be too hot, runners will be safe and runners and spectators will thoroughly enjoy a wonderful community event. There will be some new bike rack fencing sort of things to help spectators stay safe and in the right place during the race. My own Mt. Wilson Trail hiker, the noncompeting but highly supportive John, has reported glorious times hiking up to First Water to look out over the valley and appreciate the beauty of the Trail terrain. He highly recommends one Mt. Wilson Trail hike per week.

THE HISTORY OF MEMORIAL DAY

veterans — the Grand Army of the Republic (GAR) — established Deco-ration Day as a the war dead with flowers. Maj. Gen. John A. Logan declared that Decoration Day should be observed on May 30. It is believed that date was chosen because flowers would be in bloom all over the country.

The first large observance was held that year at Arlington National Cemetery, across the Potomac River from Washington, D.C.

The ceremonies centered around the mourningdraped veranda of the Arlington mansion, once the home of Gen. Robert E. Lee. Various Washington officials, in-cluding Gen. and Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant, presided over the ceremonies. After speeches, children from the Soldiers' and Sailors⁷ Orphan Home and members of the GAR made their way through the cemetery, strewing flowers on both Union and Confederate graves, reciting prayers and singing hymns.

A stone in a Carbondale, Ill., cemetery carries the statement that the first Decoration Day cer-emony took place there on April 29, 1866. Carbondale was the wartime home of been named in connection with the origin of Memorial Day, many of them in the South where most of the war dead were buried.

Official Birthplace Declared In 1966, Congress and President Lyndon Johnson declared The National Moment of Remembrance Waterloo, N.Y., the "birthplace" of Memorial Day. There, a ceremony on May 5, 1866, honored local veterans who had fought in the Civil War. Businesses closed and residents flew flags at half-staff. Supporters of Waterloo's claim say earlier observances in other places were either LaSpada states: "It's a way we can all help put informal, not community-wide or one-time the memorial back in Memorial Day."

By the end of the 19th century, Memorial Day ceremonies were being held on May 30 throughout the nation. State legislatures proclamations passed designating the day, and the Army and Navy adopted regulations for proper observance at their fa-cilities.

It was not until after World War I, however, that the day was expanded to honor those who have died in all American wars. In 1971, Memorial Day was declared a national holiday by an act of Congress, though it is still often called Decoration Day. It was then also placed on the last Monday in May, as were some other feder-al holidays.

> Gen. Logan's order for his posts to decorate graves in 1868 "with the choicest flowers of springtime" urged: "We should guard their graves with sacred vigilance. ... Let pleasant paths invite the coming and going of reverent visitors and fond mourners. Let no neglect, no ravages of time, testify to the present or to the com-ing generations that we have forgotten as a people the cost of a free and undivided republic."

> The crowd attending the first Memorial Day ceremony at Arlington National Ceme-tery was approximately the same size as those that attend today's observance, about 5,000 people. Then, as now, small American flags were placed on each grave — a tradition followed at many national cemeteries today. In recent years, the custom has grown in many families to decorate the graves of all departed loved ones.

The origins of special services to honor those who die in war can be found in an-tiquity. JUST BEFORE MEMORIAL DAY, HOUSE PASSES REP. SCHIFF AMENDMENT URGING SECRE-TARY HAGEL TO PUT NAMES OF "LOST 74" ON VIETNAM WALL

Washington, DC – Today, Rep. Adam Schiff to find their son, Thomas Belue Box was not on (D-Burbank) announced that on the eve of the Wall. On June 3, 1969, the USS Frank E. Evans was cut in half by an Australian aircraft carrier in the South Chi-na Sea – 74 American sailors lost their lives. The USS Frank E. the combat zone as defined by Executive Order military conflict in Vietnam and the crew was instrumental in advanc-ing American military objectives in Vietnam. Not to mention, the crew collision. Vietnam veterans have long argued that inclusion on the monument should not be determined by geographic location, and exceptions to this rule have previously been made for service members killed as part of the conflict but not in Vietnam itself. For example, those involved in operations in Laos (Laos was later included in the combat zone) and those dying in transit to or from Vietnam have been healing for a generation; made are eligible for the memorial.

Since first being approached several years ago by a family of a sailor lost on the ship, Rep. Schiff has been pushing the Administration and successive Defense Secretaries to rectify this situation. After meeting with Rep. Schiff in Nov. 2010, Secretary of the Navy Mabus expressed his support for adding the 74 sailors to the Vietnam

After the vote in the House, Schiff stated: "Hopefully today's vote puts us one step closer to the reali-ty of seeing the names of the Lost 74 of the U.S.S. Frank E. Evans on the Vietnam Wall. They died serv-ing our country during the Vietnam War and there is no reason for to deny these sailors their rightful place on the

The U.S.S. Frank E. Evans Association praised the amendment and urged the Secretary to act

"The tragic loss of the USS Frank E Evans on 3 June, 1969, continues to haunt the families and ship-mates of the 74 lost sailors who gave their lives for their country," said Tim Wendler, President of the Association. "I lost my father days before my second birthday, and my mom, became a much too young 21 year-old widow. This haunting continues because we, as a nation, have failed to adequately address an issue which could, once and for all, provide closure to the families, shipmates and survivors of this tragedy. We deeply appreciate the action of the House today, led by Congressman Adam Schiff, to remember our Lost 74 Heroes and begin the healing process."

The Vice President of the Association, Steve Kraus, stated: "I can't think how awful it must have felt in 1985 when the Box Family traveled to 1969 be added to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial visit the Vietnam Memorial in Washington D.C.

Rep. Schiff has continued to keep close contact with the USS Frank E. Evans Association and While the U.S.S. Frank E. Evans was not in has once again sought to right this injustice. This summer, Schiff wrote to Secretary of Defense 11216, the ship was supporting the ongoing Hagel to ask for a meeting so that he can make the case personally that the names of the Lost 74 sailors of the USS Frank E. Evans be added to the memorial - Hagel is a Vietnam veteran, had participated in conflict just days before the himself - and Schiff has now met with Hagel, and is continuing to follow up. Schiff also wrote to Secretary Panetta.

> Schiff's amendment to the defense authorization bill reads:

> Whereas the Congress notes the continued popularity and importance of the Vietnam Veter-ans Memorial as a place of reflection and

Whereas the simple inscriptions of the names of the Nation's dead bear mute testimony to the sacrifice of more than 58,000 Americans, serving as a deep source of comfort and pride for the families of those who were lost;

Whereas, 74 sailors were lost aboard the USS Frank E. Evans, which sank after colliding with the HMAS Melbourne on June 3, 1969 during a Southeast Asia Treaty Organization exercise just outside the designated combat zone;

Whereas the Frank Evans had been providing support fire for combat operations in Vietnam before the exercise that resulted in the accident and was scheduled to return after the exer-cise;

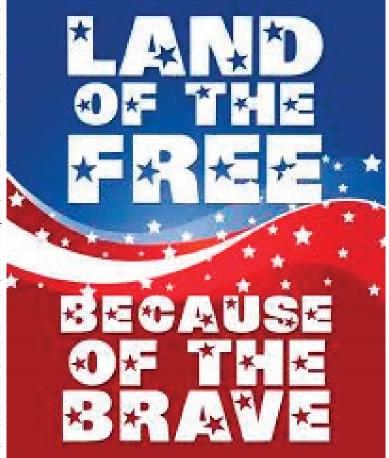

Whereas the families of the 74 men lost aboard the USS Frank E. Evans have been fighting for decades to have their loved ones added to the Memorial;

Whereas exceptions have been granted to inscribe the names on the Vietnam Veterans Me-morial for other servicemembers who were killed outside of the designated combat zone, including in 1983 when President Ronald Reagan ordered that 68 Marines who died on a flight outside the combat zone be added to the wall;

Whereas Secretary of the Navy Ray Mabus, in a letter dated December 15, 2010, expressed support for the addition of the 74 names to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial;

Whereas heroism and sacrifice should never go unrecognized because of an arbitrary line on a

Now be it therefore resolved that it is the sense of Congress that the Secretary of Defense should order that the names of the 74 military personnel lost aboard the USS Frank E. Evans on June 3,

Broker, Associate Charged with Fraud

By Dean Lee

A former Pasadena city council candidate and sitting member of the city's Northwest Commission along with a former Altadena licensed real estate salesperson, both, pled not guilty Wednesday after being charged with grand theft, recording false documents and perjury, stemming from a 2005 residential property purchase.

Police investigators alleged that employment, income and financial information, including a counterfeit bank statement submitted, by Eddie Turner, of Altadena with the assistance of Allen Shay, of Pasadena, to Countrywide Home Loans in 2005, and again in 2007, to purchase and refinance a residential property on Altadena Drive were false.

The total amount of the fraudulently obtained loans was a little over $2.3 million.

Shay is also being charged with misrepresenting the source of a $29,916 down payment which was deposited into escrow to obtain the loans.

Investigators said Turner filed a false identity theft report, to avoid foreclosure, with the Sheriff's Department claiming he did not take out the 2007 loans. He then filed a lawsuit under penalty of perjury against Bank of America, which had acquired Countrywide Home Loans.

While investigating Turner's identity theft claim, sheriff's detectives uncovered the

INDOOR MARIJUANA CULTIVATION BUST

Arcadia Police Department received a tip of a possible indoor marijuana cultivation in the 1000 block of North First Avenue. Arcadia detectives were called in and they obtained a warrant.

On May 20, 2014 at 3:00 AM, Arcadia Detectives and officers served the search warrant and found two indoor marijuana cultivations. The first cultivation was in the process of being dismantled. The second cultivation was a sophisticated marijuana grow operation with approximately 150 plants in various stages of growth. The grow consisted of multiple rooms with irrigation, lighting, ventilation, and electrical wiring run throughout. It appears there was possible utility theft since electricity used to power the grow had bypassed the electrical meter.

Three suspects were arrested for suspicion of marijuana cultivation. The suspects were identified as: Viet Van Tran, a 24 year old Arcadia resident. Jessie Soi Chu, a 32 year old Temple City resident. Rodrigo Salas Rodriguez, a 48 year old El Monte resident. All three suspects are being held at the Arcadia City jail.

The investigation is continuing by Arcadia Police Department Detectives. Anyone information is asked to call the Arcadia Police Department at 626-574-5150. You can also submit crime tips and information via text, phone, or web to LA Regional Crime Stoppers, 800-222-TIPS (8477)

TWO LANCERS APPOINTED TO WEST POINT

Pasadena, CA - La Salle High School is proud to announce that two graduating seniors, Renaissance Forster, and Elizabeth Lynch have been admitted to the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Forster is an honors student and All-League volleyball player who helped lead the Lancers to their second consecutive CIF D1 Volleyball Championship. Forster says she looks forward to earning her commission as she comes from a long line of family members who have served their country in the military. "It was just a dream as a young girl to go to West Point, but La Salle challenged me and as I worked harder and got better grades, West Point a challenge and I think it would be hard to find a bigger challenge than going to a military academy." She was courted by both the Army and Naval Academy at Annapolis to attend on an athletic scholarship, yet she chose the Army because she was accepted on her academic achievement alone. "I still plan to "walk-on" the volleyball team and I think I have a good shot at playing for the Black Knights," she says. Forester will study medicine at the Academy and most likely graduate as a medic. She hopes to earn her MD following her active duty.

Elizabeth Lynch said, "It's kind of corny, but a really want to serve my country. That's why I applied to West became a possibility, then a reality. I love Point. Plus I'll get an education at one of the best schools in the country." A member of CSF and the NHS, Liz is also a fouryear cheerleader who led the Lancers to a top ten finish in the 2014 National Cheer Championships. "I love the competition and the friendships you make in cheer," she says. "I qualified for the cheer team at West Point during the pre-admittance physicals and I'm really excited about that." Lynch has yet to declare a major, but hopes to make the military her career.

> Prior to La Salle's graduation on Friday, May 23 both girls received leather bound and engraved Certificates of Appointment to the United States Military Academy.

ALEXANDER RUGGIERI MEMORIAL MUSIC SCHOLARSHIP -APPLICATIONS NOW ACCEPTED

The Ruggieri Scholarship Committee a Southern California vocal musician in June. This award was established to honor Alexander Ruggieri—conductor, composer, and vocalist—who contributed so much to Southern California's musical culture before his passing in 2012.

This $250 scholarship will be awarded to a student who: is a vocal musician; will be a college undergraduate student in the fall of 2014; is majoring or is planning to major in music; and lives in and/or attends school in Southern California. Please note that high school seniors are also eligible to apply if they intend to enter college in the fall of 2014. In addition, vocal musicians who are also composers are welcome to apply and have the choice of auditioning as a vocalist or submitting a manuscript.

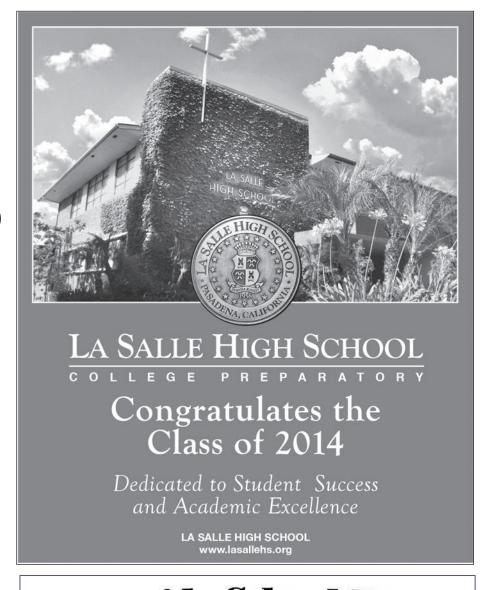

Please contact RuggieriScholarship@gmail. com or 626-579-2433 for an application. Applications will be accepted through May 25 and finalists will be auditioned in early to mid-June. The audition will consist of a prepared solo of the applicant's choice and a short interview with the selection panel.

Alexander Ruggieri (1952-2012) shared his many gifts with a number of Southern California musical organizations throughout his career. At the time of his passing, Alex was the Music Director of the famed Gilbert and Sullivan repertory company Opera A La Carte, as well as Music Director of the 32-year old University Campus Choir in Westwood and Artistic Director of the San Gabriel Valley Choral Company. For five years he was the Artistic Director of the Los Angeles Bach Festival and for seventeen years he was Artistic Director of the Cambridge Singers in Pasadena. He frequently did Russian language coaching for, and occasionally sang with, the Los Angeles Master Chorale. He conducted numerous church choirs in the Los Angeles area, Wichita Falls, TX, and Detroit, MI, over his extensive career.

Alex Ruggieri was a man of talent, passion and presence. With a keen mind, a sincere and abiding love of great music, and a booming bass voice, he was an imposing figure that housed sharp wit and a kind heart. He was well-known in Southern California and well beyond, as his tenacity and deep knowledge of choral repertoire made him a sought-after conductor, coach and author. An award-winning composer, Alex was a man of many diverse passions, reading extensively and fostering interests in film, literature, science, history, sports and travel, as well as the performing arts.1

Mr. Ruggieri passed away in July 2012, after a two-year battle with pancreatic cancer.

We honor his memory and his love of music with the Alexander Ruggieri Memorial Music Scholarship. This scholarship is given annually, that his legacy live on through the continued music education of young people.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show

THE AMAZING SPIDERMAN 2

With Disney's Marvel Universe doing exceptionally well, there are still some pieces that the Mouse House does not own. One of these includes The Amazing Spiderman. When the first Spiderman reboot did well, I was excited to see where Sony would take the series and how it would be different than the Disney Marvel films.

Following the events of 'The Amazing Spiderman', this movie picks up right where the first left off. Peter Parker (Andrew Garfield) and Gwen Stacy (Emma Stone) are just graduating High School and, sadly, moving on to bigger and better things in their lives. However, when the powerhouse company, Oscorp, seems to be covering strange events up, Peter and Gwen are forced to discover the dark secrets that the billion dollar corporation, and Harry Osborn (Dane DeHaan), are trying so hard to keep under wraps.

This movie is different from all the other superhero movies that have come out within that past decade, and that is because of one thing: tone. The film move from very funny moments to exceptionally sad and powerful moments in the blink of an eye. Spidey 2 is able to pull off several genres, including but not limited to, action, mystery, romance, and drama, without faltering. Usually, movies that try to fit a massive cast (this movie had three main villains) together with a complex plot feel crowded and just feel like a mess. 'The Amazing Spiderman 2' is the perfect example of how Hollywood can fit good world building, compelling storytelling, and excellent acting into a two and a half hour movie, and still make every minute truly

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

THE MORAL OF THE PRICKLY, PRECARIOUS PORCUPINE

I recently received an e-mail is comprised of a hard shell, to prevent the poking effect, offering an interesting moral derivative about what might be considered a somewhat controversial survival technique employed by the prickly porcupine. When I read the e-mail I was immediately inspired to write about that curiously contentious, yet undeniably cute little creature.

The e-mailed story was entitled, "The Moral of the Porcupine" and it included a few photos of infant porcupines nestled in a human's hand. To me, the baby "porcs" in the pictures looked a lot like small bundled-up balls of fur with minute, mouselike faces that you can't help falling in love with. As far as my memory serves me, I don't think I had ever seen a baby porcupine before, and I was amazed at how adorable the small ones really are.

The baby porcupine somehow reminds me of the woodlouse, which is a strangely pre-historic looking insect that most of us have seen crawling about in our yards and gardens. Very much like the woodlouse (more commonly known to lay-persons such as myself as a "rollie pollie"), baby porcupines know how to curl themselves up into a tight round ball as a means of protecting their soft and very vulnerable underbellies any time they sense the danger of a potential intruder.

little else in common, the themselves from one another porcupine and the oddly armored woodlouse termite do happen to share one particularly unique characteristic. They both have upper sides to their bodies that serve as an effective protective defense The mechanism. main difference is that the upper side of the woodlouse's body

from a good friend of mine, whereas the porcupine's upper side is designed more like a prickly bed of needle-like nails!

> The basic gist of the "moral" given in the e-mail I received, is that while the long, pointy pokers on the upper side of the porcupine may serve as an important means of survival against a threatening predator, they also have the potential to prohibit vital bonding, by getting in the way when the infants simply want to snuggle with their siblings. Indeed, this is where the valuable lesson comes in to play. And, if it is interpreted, understood and applied properly, this is a lesson that can actually help lead to a longer, happier life for we simple-minded human beings.

The fond fable of the porcupine goes a little like this: It was the coldest winter ever, and many of the wild animals in that region had already died from exposure to the freezing temperatures. Realizing the situation, the thoughtful porcupines decided to group together to keep warm. It seemed like the logical thing to do, to share the warmth of each other's bodies and thereby survive through the cold winter. However, the closer the tiny porcs came together, the more their quills began to inflict wounds on the soft under flesh of the loved ones they were closest to.

After a while, the little Although the two have very porcupines decided to distance and before long they each began to die alone and frozen like the other animals that had succumbed to the elements that season. Soon it became clear that they had to make a choice; either accept the painful pricks of their closest companions' quills, or die alone. Wisely, the young porcupines opted to stick close together and learn to live with the wounds caused by the quills of their siblings, in order to share the warmth and survive

And so, the moral of the story is that the best relationships in life are not necessarily those that bring together perfect people who do not chafe or rub one another wrong", rather one must learn to live with the prickly, uncomfortable wounds that come with close relationships while learning to appreciate the good qualities of a companion and the warmth they share in order to survive and thrive in this world.

For what it's worth, this simple short but sweet story about the precarious porcupine comes with an enormous moral, and it had a huge impact on me, personally. I hope the moral of this story will be valued by others who hear it. Animals can teach us so many wonderful unique lessons in life. I say, let them be our teachers. May we humans learn to respect all living things, and may we learn to humble ourselves enough to love and let live!

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND?

Raven is a very sweet, lovable and cute black and brown short haired Chihuahua and Min Pin mix has the best traits of both breeds! She is looking for a special person or family to call her own, toss toys for her to play with, and take her on daily walks

Raven has a calm temperament and has demonstrated that she is adaptable in different social situations. She participated in a big fund raising event for the shelter, "Tea for Tails." She had several costume changes and proudly 'strutted her stuff' in front of an appreciative, happy audience. She was very cooperative, easy to handle and behaved beautifully in front of the happy group. Raven has also spent a lot of time with other dogs, in kennels, on pack walks and in play yards. We are pleased to report that she gets along famously with all of them. She is a social butterfly, but when it comes down to it, she prefers the company of people!

Raven is approximately five years old and although she has adapted to shelter life, she is longing and waiting for her new family to adopt her and welcome her into their home. If you feel a connection with her, please come and introduce yourself. You might be the one she is waiting for.

She currently resides at the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society located at 851 E. Grand Avenue in San Gabriel. We are located off San Gabriel Blvd., north of Mission and south of Las Tunas. To arrange a 'Meet and Greet' with Raven (aka...5081), please stop by any time from 10:00am to 4:30pm Tuesday thru Sunday. Her adoption fee is $120 which includes her spay surgery, a microchip, first vaccinations and a free wellness check-up at a participating veterinarian. Feel free to call us at (626) 286-1159 for more information on Raven.

PET OF THE WEEK: CALVIN ANIMAL ID #A4706577

Meet Calvin, a sweet little guy that is ready to give you a lifetime full of love and affection if you'll let him! Calvin (A4706577) is an endearing one-year-old brown and white male Chihuahua mix puppy that was found tied to the gate when the Baldwin Park Shelter opened on May 8th. This small fellow weighs nine pounds, and does not seem to have had any leash training yet. Calvin has the classic Chihuahua personality of being initially shy when meeting new people, and then warming up quickly once he gets to know them. It is unfortunate that he ended up tied to the shelter fence, but it's clear that this boy deserves more than to be abandoned. With some loving care from that special person lucky enough to be his owner, he will be able to trust and be comfortable just living his life as a happy-go-lucky dog. He is good with other dogs and we think he would be content in a family with well-behaved children. Calvin is a soulful companion and lapdog for anyone in any living situation. To watch a video of Calvin please visit the following link:

www.youtube.com/watch?v=n-w81H5rD1M

To meet Calvin in person, please see him at the Baldwin Park Shelter, located at 4275 N. Elton, Baldwin Park, CA 91706 (Phone: 626-430-2378 or 626-962-3577). He is available now. For any inquiries about Calvin, please reference his animal ID number: A4706577. The shelter is open seven days a week, 12 pm-7 pm Monday-Thursday and 10am-5pm Friday-Sunday. This is a high-intake shelter with a great need for adoptions. For more information about Calvin or the adoption process, contact United Hope for Animals Volunteer Adoption Coordinator Samantha at Samantha@hope4animals.org. "SQUATTER IN LOS ANGELES"

A new e-book on Kindle By Christoper Nyerges

Nyerges is a naturalist who is mostly known for his books on wild foods, survival, and self-reliance, and his other books are available on Kindle, Amazon, and fine bookstores everywhere. He has led self-reliance field trips since 1974. He can be reached via School of Self-Reliance, Box 41834, Eagle Rock,

"Squatter in Los

year and a half as a squatter in the Highland Park district of Los Angeles. This book is not intended as a how-to guide, nor is it meant to encourage anyone to break any laws. It happens to be the true story of what I did during a very influential time in my life. I learned how to get more for less, and I realized – just like Thoreau at his pond in the woods – that we can live quite well and fulfilled if we attempt to differentiate our true needs from mere wants.

I share how I came to be a squatter, and some of the details of moving into an empty house. In the book I describe the concern of never knowing when someone would come up the driveway and tell me to get out (which never quite happened), and how I took the time to learn about gardening, permaculture, recycling of resources and water recycling.

It's true I had no rent to pay so I was able to devote more time to learning things. But I also had hardly any income, which made it clear to me why most people get regular jobs. But I was in my early 20s at the time, and still trying to figure things out.

"Squatter in Los Angeles" is about 100 pages Angeles: Life on on Kindle, and it's a fast moving story of the the Edge" is the mixed experiences during this short period true story of my in my life: dealing with a ghost, a near-death experience, learning how to recycle everything, learning how to dowse, insights into sustainable gardening, an emergency toilet test, and also a rain dance in August with rain the next day. The book also includes a period of homelessness and how I dealt with it, and what I learned from it.

> According to Dude McLean, author of "The Songwriters Survival Guide to Success,"

> Your story is filled with a lot of truth -- some might even be uncomfortable with it. All that means is you have touched them in a manner they never thought of in the past. Few authors make you think. They are writing to please others rather than being truthful to themselves. I think this is a very interesting and unique book. The book has a great lack of desperation. I feel it is a very positive outlook. Good job!"

PASO ROBLES

Paso Robles, Spanish for the "Pass of Oaks" and most commonly pronounced as Paso "Robles" or simply referred to as "Paso" by the locals, is located in San Luis Obispo County, half-way between San Francisco and L.A. on California's stunning Central Coast. Paso Robles has 26,000 acres under vine and is home to over 200 wineries. The most commonly grown grape is the Cabernet Sauvignon, over 40% of all juices are "Cab" makes sense with the large swing of climate changes of the area.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

My favorite and a rising star from the region is JLohr, they have been producing wines from this region since 1974, Jerry Lohr started with 280 acres and now has over 900 acres in Monterey and 2000 in Paso Robles.

(ing of Cuisine)

The 2011 Cabernet Sauvignon Seven Oaks is smooth easy to drink and I should say ready to drink for those of you that like to enjoy a glass after work or anytime, for me I would pair this with a hearty meat such as spare ribs or even a beef stroganoff. I rather enjoy reds with a meal, never alone. To each his own though.

The quality of the 2011 vintage is apparent in the wine's density and strong regional expression of black cherry and blackberry fruit and soft tannins. I first discovered Jlohr simply by luck, I was in Paso Robles on a weekend getaway and invited to go wine tasting. Some 10 years later the secret seems to be out on these great Paso Robles wines, but I am ok that the secret has finally gotten out. Is the 2011 Jlohr as good as my Jan 25th review of Ghost Block? No but you can get three bottles. Enjoy!

INGREDIENTS

2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts (about 1 pound) Extra-virgin olive oil, for drizzling Kosher salt and freshly ground pepper

3 tablespoons orange marmalade

1 medium shallot, minced 1 green apple, diced

1 cup red seedless grapes, halved

Juice of 1 lime

1 cup low-fat Greek yogurt, mixed well

1 tablespoon canola or peanut oil 1 teaspoon brown mustard seeds or cumin seeds

1 clove garlic, minced

2 teaspoons curry powder 2 tablespoons roasted salted cashews, chopped

Fresh cilantro leaves, for sprinkling

DIRECTIONS

Preheat the oven to 425 degrees F. Line a baking sheet with foil. Put the chicken breasts on the foil and drizzle with olive oil. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and rub until coated. Pop the chicken in the oven and roast until a thermometer inserted into the thickest part registers 150 degrees F, 15 to 20 minutes.

Switch the oven to the broiler setting. Brush 1 tablespoon marmalade on each chicken breast. Broil, brushing occasionally with the pan drippings, until the chicken is cooked through and golden, about 5 minutes. Let cool.

Meanwhile, build the salad: Toss the shallot, apple, grapes, lime juice, yogurt, 1/2 teaspoon salt and the remaining 1 tablespoon marmalade in a large bowl.

Heat the canola oil in a small skillet over medium heat until shimmering. Add the mustard seeds and garlic; cook until the seeds stop popping (cover if they're popping out of the pan). Quickly add the curry powder; cook, stirring, 30 seconds, then pour the spiced oil over the yogurt mixture. Stir until combined.

Once the chicken breasts are cool, thinly slice them. Fold into the salad and adjust the salt and pepper. Top with the cashews and cilantro.

HEALTHY LIFESTYLES

THE JOY OF YOGA GET UPSIDE DOWN!

Going upside down is what we call the "anti-aging" and "anti-depressant" secret of yoga. Going upside down changes your mood in seconds and leaves you with a smile, every time. You do not need to stand on your head. There are surprising techniques that can help you get all the benefits with out the fear or the strain on your neck. Going up side down or inversions, change the way the prana flows. It gets that vital life energy moving upward toward the head and it lifts the corners of the mouth and the corners of the eyes. It lifts your spirits and it's great for the immune system. Yogis have been doing inversions for years. If you are in a bad mood and need an immediate change, go upside down. I never dreamed I would be able to do a hand stand. I could not do one when I was a kid. But I soon learned it's possible and fun! Shoulder stand is easier, especially with a block under your low back. But you can just do what we call legs up the wall.

Sit right next to a wall, with your hip touching the wall. Roll onto your side keeping that hip at the wall, so you are in a tight little ball on your side with your bum at the wall. Then swing your legs up the wall and come onto your back. Close your eyes and slow your breath for 5, 10 or 20 minutes. Come out by rolling back onto your side and pressing to your hands and knees. 'Legs up the wall' pose is better than a nap. It will leave you feeling rejuvenated and fresh, not groggy like a nap. Everyone can do legs up the wall. It's safe and relaxing. For other inversions you need the instructions of an experienced teacher. There are some medical conditions that are not good for going upside down. Be sure to tell your teacher if you have glaucoma or blood pressure issues.

If just half the employed, U.S. population spent $50 each month in independently owned businesses, their purchases would generate more than $42.6 billion in revenue.*

Imagine the positive impact if 3/4 of the employed population did that.

For every $100 spent in independently owned stores, $68 returns to the community through taxes, payroll, and other expenditures. If you spend that in a national chain, only $43 stays here. Spend it online and nothing comes home.

Vibrant Living Wellness Center Heathcare the Way Nature Intended

Dr. Tina is a traditional naturopath and nutritionist at Vibrant Living Wellness Center

Frequent consumption of vegetables appears to cut one's odds of depression significantly. A recent review in a nutritional journal suggests that eating lots of fruits and vegetables "may present a noninvasive natural and inexpensive therapeutic means to support a healthy brain."

CHASE THE BLUES AWAY WITH GREENS

To understand this research, we need to understand the underlying biology of depression. It is thought that depression may arise out of a chemical imbalance in the brain. In order for the billions of nerves in our brain to communicate with each other they need chemical signals called neurotransmitters. Nerve cells do not touch, there is a gap between them. When one nerve wants to communicate with another nerve they release a neurotransmitter into the gap. As soon as the first nerve has got its message across the gap it sucks the neurotransmitter back up to use again some other time. The nerves also produce substances that digest the neurotransmitters so just the correct amount is kept. If the levels of our neurotransmitter digesting substances is elevated, then our levels of neurotransmitters drops, and we become depressed.

So why then would fruits and vegetables improve our mood? They contain substances that can be inhibitors of depression. Spices, such as clove, oregano, cinnamon, and nutmeg, can also inhibit the substance that digest neurotransmitters, but people don't eat enough to have an effect by themselves. There are special nutrients found in apples, berries, grapes, kale, onions, and green tea that may indeed affect our brain biology enough to improve our mood. It has been shown that those with superior mental health eat a lot of fruits and vegetables. And who doesn't want superior mental health... eat up!

HEALTH INSURANCE OPTIONS FOR EARLY RETIREES

Dear Savvy Senior:

At age 63, I will be retiring in a few months and need to find some health insurance coverage for my wife and me until Medicare kicks in. Is Obamacare my only option?

About to Retire

Dear About:

There are actually several places early (pre-Medicare) retirees can go to find health insurance cov-erage - Obamacare isn't the only game in town. Here are your options depending on your in-come and health care needs.

Government Marketplaces

If your yearly income falls below the 400 percent poverty level, the Obamacare insurance marketplace is probably your best option for getting health coverage because of the federal tax cred-its they offer, which will reduce the amount you'll have to pay for a policy.

To qualify for the tax credits, your household's modified adjusted gross income for 2013 must have been under $45,960 for an individual, or $62,040 for a couple. If your income will drop be-low the 400 percent poverty level in 2014 or 2015 because of your retirement, it may still make sense to buy coverage through the Obamacare marketplace, even if you don't qualify for the tax credits based on last year's income.

To help you see how much you can save, see the subsidy calculator on the Kaiser Family Foundation website at kff.org/interactive/subsidy-calculator.

To shop for marketplace plans in your state, visit Healthcare.gov or call their toll-free helpline at 800-318-2596.

Outside the Marketplace

If you aren't eligible for the government subsidy, or you want additional policy options to what Obamacare offers, you can also buy health coverage outside the government marketplaces directly through insurance companies, brokers or agents. This option is not available if you live in Washington D.C. or Vermont.

These policies do not offer the federal tax credits, but they are required to offer the same menu of essential benefits as Obamacare policies do, and they can't deny you coverage or charge extra for pre-existing health conditions. You might even find slightly lower premiums on outside poli-cies, assuming that you don't qualify for the tax credits.

Another possible reason for shopping outside the marketplace is to find a plan that has your preferred doctors and hospitals in its network. Many plans offered in the Obamacare marketplaces provide a very limited number of health care providers.

To shop for these policies, contact insurance companies, brokers or agents and ask them if they offerpolicies that are not available through the government marketplaces.

To find a local broker or agent that sells insurance plans, check the National Association of Health Underwriters website (nahu.org) which has an online directory. But keep in mind that agents won't necessarily show you all available policies, just the ones from insurers they work with.

You can also look for these plans at insurance shopping sites like eHealthInsurance.com or GoHealth.com, which lists plans and providers that may not be listed on Healthcare.gov.

If you only need health insurance coverage for a short period of time before becoming Medicare eligible, another option you may want to consider is COBRA. COBRA coverage allows you to remain on your former employer's group health plan for up to 18 months, but not every employer plan is COBRA eligible. Contact your employer benefits administrator to find out if yours is.

In most cases COBRA is expensive, requiring you to pay the full monthly premium yourself. But, if you've already met or nearly met your employer plan's deductible and/or out-of-pocket maxi-mum for the year, and don't want to start over with a new plan; or if you find your employer's health plan to be better or more affordable that the government or off-marketplace options, it makes sense to keep your current coverage under COBRA.

KATIE TseThis and That NOTHING GOOD IS TOO SMALL TO CELEBRATE

May is more than half over. That means two things: 1) you've survived Mother's Day and won't have to brave the busiest restaurant day for another year, and 2) school is almost out for those who started the year way back in August! A couple of weeks ago I wrote about some fun ways teachers count down to the last day of school. As with many of my articles, I took some creative license when first hand information was lacking. For example, I wrote (and illustrated) throwing darts at balloons with the number of school days left. Not too many people know about my column, therefore, you can imagine my surprise when one of my teacher friends told me about a fun new idea she's started this year. For the last 15 days of school, her second graders are popping a new balloon each day!

Her idea is way better than mine. She put a little slip of paper in each balloon with a different fun activity the kids could do the next day. So far they've had "Listen to music all day," "Wear jeans day," "Twin day," and "80's day." (The last two are examples of creative license.) I'm not exactly sure how the kids are popping the balloons. They're probably not using darts, like my idea of teachers taping the balloons to a cork board in the lounge, but however they're doing it, it sounds like a lot of fun!

As usually happens when teachers start a new class tradition, last year's second graders are complaining to my friend that they didn't get to do that when they were in her class. ("Yeah, and you didn't have to take the grueling Common Core pilot test, either!" Although my friend wouldn't say that.) She jokingly asked the kindergarten and first grade teachers to not steal her idea, so that it would remain a special second grade tradition. (I suppose that also implies that anyone reading this shouldn't use my friend's idea without giving her credit --or at least, not claiming to have come up with the idea themselves.)

It's little things like this that help make mundane tasks more enjoyable. And it doesn't have to be big or flashy. My friend didn't spend a fortune on balloons or burn the midnight oil agonizing over what activities to write on the slips of paper. Not only has it helped her students look forward to coming to school these last few weeks, but it's also given my friend a much needed shot in the arm. This is a teacher who, weeks before, sounded practically anemic when she bemoaned the final slog toward the finish line. Now she laughs as she describes her students excitement during the activity of the day, and their anticipation of what the remaining balloons hold!

I imagine that many of my friend's students will remember her lessons and use the skills she taught them. Some of them will probably need a few refresher courses in order for those skills to sink in. But they'll all remember how they looked forward to popping the balloon for the next day closer to summer!

the academic calendar, I wish you a wonderful summer as well! And for all you primary teachers out

So, for parents of school children, I wish you a wonderful summer! For those of us not involved in there, I wish you a good end of the school year and, of course, a wonderful summer! But remember, if you use my friend's idea and then receive complements for it, please give her the credit!

CAL FIRE - Urging Caution for Memorial Day Weekend Severe Drought Leading to Higher Fire Threat

Sacramento - Memorial Day weekend is often considered to be the kick-off for summer vacations and outdoor activities, but CAL FIRE officials are asking the public to use caution as fire danger remains higher than normal. As the weekend approaches, temperatures are forecast to increase leading to a higher fire threat in California.

"We are asking the public to be extra vigilant and take steps to prevent sparking a wildfire," said Chief Ken Pimlott, CAL FIRE director. "All it takes is a single spark to start a fire and with the dry conditions caused by drought, we are seeing fires burn with unseasonable intensity."

Since the beginning of the year, wildfires have already caused major destruction. Most recently Southern California endured wildfires fanned by Santa Ana winds, burning nearly 27,000 acres and de-stroying dozens of homes. California is in the midst of a severe drought, creating conditions that are ripe for devastating and extremely dangerous wildfires. Everyone is encouraged to be vigilant and remember that one less spark is one less wildfire.

- Obtain a campfire permit (www.PreventWildfireCA.org)
- Check for local fire restrictions
- Clear away grass, leaves and other debris within a 10-foot perimeter of any campfire
- Have a responsible person in attendance at all times
- Ensure all campfires are completely extinguished before leaving
- When barbequing, never leave the grill unattended

Fire is not the only danger that can occur in the outdoors, as water drownings also increase dramatical-ly during the holiday weekend. Warm temperatures make the cool waters of California's beautiful riv-ers and lakes very enticing, yet very dangerous. In recent weeks, CAL FIRE crews have responded to water rescues across the state, many of which have tragically led to fatalities.

In the Water:

- Always wear a life jacket!
- Children should always be supervised by a responsible adult
- Never swim alone
- Drinking and swimming is just as dangerous and drinking and driving.

For more ways to be safe this holiday, visit www.ReadyforWildfire. org or www.fire.ca.gov.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS:

By Sean Kayden

NEIGHBORS

"Neighbors" features the same Seth Rogen you've seen in every comedy he's ever been in. For most people, there is certainly nothing wrong about that, but the real draw for me is whom he surrounds himself with. In this case, Rogen is paired with Zac Efron and Rose Byrne, among a few other notable characters. The outrageously advertised comedy isn't quite as daring and bold as I imagined, but kept my attention for its 96 minutes duration. It features some very funny moments, but never gets deeper than surface level. The film features Mac and Kelly Radner (Rogen and Byrne) as new parents and their lives are turned upside when a fraternity moves in next door to them. At first it seems all will be swell, but when Teddy (Efron), Pete (Dave Franco) and their band of brothers can't keep the noise level down night after night, Rogen calls the cops, which eventually leads us to family vs.

fraternity. "Neighbors" generally moves along in a brisk pace, but any longer I think the film would have completely lost steam. The raunchy humor isn't anything new for R-rated comedies. Obligatory penis jokes and weed references are present, like in all of Rogen's pictures. As far as comedies go, the film does deliver jokes, mostly hits than misses. However, as story purposes go, the script is paper thin, ultimately being a one-note film.

Rogen plays the same old character—chubby dude that scores a hot wife. We've come to expect that in this day and age with comedies. He's fine in his role (coming from a script he didn't write), which he isn't going too overboard like he's done in previous flicks. Byrne is great because she isn't simply just Rogen's wife but plays a vital role in the take down of the fraternity. Efron, who I can't say I'm a fan of, does a pretty bang up job here. His character Teddy, who is the president of their fraternity, wants to be up on their wall of fame of sorts by throwing the craziest party in history. He'll stop at nothing to make sure Mac and Kelly never interferes with his goal in mind. The other members of the brotherhood have small roles and none of them take away from Efron's spotlight. His best buddy in the film, Pete, has the second most screen time, but he can't surpass Efron. On the other side of the fence, Rogen's co-worker Jimmy (Ike Barinholtz) is hilarious in his role. I often wished there was more of him because with the little time he had on screen compared to the rest of the crew, he came through each and every time. New writers Andrew J. Cohen and Brendan O'Brien wrote a very funny script, but they ran into some problems with the story. First of all, they tried to give Efron's character a little more depth with a scene that depicts him not going to be ready for the real world when he finishes up college. They hinted at this side story as if he was going to change his tune about being remembered by his fraternity but he keeps along doing what he does best (partying and getting back

"Neighbors" is still one of the better comedies in recent years since 2013 was void of many standouts. This summer still features two other R-rated comedies, "22nd Jump Street" and "Let's Be Cops." I liked "Neighbors" for what it was. It's not a classic by any means and does get a little weary in its closing stages. It's Efron's best performance (which sadly isn't saying all that much). Director Nicholas Stoller ("Forgetting Sarah Marshall," "Get Him To The Greek," "The Five-Year Engagement") keeps things moving quickly and offers some really cool sequences usually not found in broad comedies. Overall, 'Neighbors" gets a recommendation for me, but as I seem to grow older, the immaturity side of Rogen is wearing thin for me. I can only laugh at genital and bong jokes for how long?

Summer knows that kouun means "good luck" in Japanese, and this year her family has none of it. Just when she thinks nothing else can possibly go wrong, an emergency whisks her parents away to Japan—right before harvest season. Summer and her little brother, Jaz, are left in the care of their grandparents, who come out of retirement in order to harvest wheat and help pay the bills. The thing about Obaachan and Jiichan is that they are old-fashioned and demanding, and between helping Obaachan cook for the workers, covering for her when her back pain worsens, and worrying about her lonely little brother, Summer just barely has time to notice the attentions of their boss's cute son. But notice she does, and what begins as a welcome distraction from the hard work soon turns into a mess of its own. Having thoroughly disappointed her grandmother, Summer figures the bad luck must be finished—but then it gets worse. And when that happens, Summer has to figure out how to change it herself, even if it means further displeasing Obaachan. Because it might be the only way to save her family. THE WORLD AROUND US

ASTRONOMERS FIND SUN'S 'LONG LOST BROTHER'

A team of researchers led by University of Texas at Austin astronomer Ivan Ramirez has identified the first "sibling" of the Sun—a star that was almost certainly born from the same cloud of gas and dust as our star. Ramirez' methods will help other astronomers find other "solar siblings," work that could lead to an understanding of how and where our Sun formed, and how our solar system became hospitable for life. The work will be published in the June 1 issue of The Astrophysical Journal.

"We want to know where we were born," Ramirez said. "If we can figure out in what part of the galaxy the Sun formed, we can constrain conditions on the early solar system. That could help us understand why we are here."

Additionally, there is a chance, "small, but not zero," Ramirez said, that these solar sibling stars could host planets that harbor life. In their earliest days within their birth cluster, he explains, collisions could have knocked chunks off of planets, and these fragments could have travelled between solar systems, and perhaps even may have been responsible for bringing primitive life to Earth. Or, fragments from Earth could have transported life to planets orbiting solar siblings. "So it could be argued that solar siblings are key candidates in the search for extraterrestrial life," Ramirez

The solar sibling his team identified is a star called HD 162826, a star 15 percent more massive than the Sun, located 110 light-years away in the constellation Hercules. The star is not visible to the unaided eye, but easily can be seen with low-power binoculars, not far from the bright star Vega.

The team identified HD 162826 as the Sun's sibling by following up on 30 $\,$ possible candidates found by several groups around the world looking for solar siblings. Ramirez' team studied 23 of these stars in depth with the Harlan J. Smith Telescope at McDonald Observatory, and the remaining stars (visible only from the southern hemisphere) with the Clay Magellan Telescope at Las Campanas Observatory in Chile. All of these observations used high-resolution spectroscopy to get a deep understanding of the stars' chemical make-up.

But several factors are needed to really pin down a solar sibling, Ramirez said. In addition to chemical analysis, his team also included information about the stars' orbits—where they had been and where they are going in their paths around the center of the Milky Way galaxy. The team's experts in this field, which is called "dynamics," are A. T. Bajkova of the Pulkovo Astronomical Observatory in St. Petersburg, Russia, and V. V. Bobylev of St. Petersburg State University.

162826 Vega-YRAEAST May 2014, about midnight (binocular view)

Combining information on both chemical make-up and dynamics of the candidates narrowed the field down to one star: HD 162826.

While the finding of a single solar sibling is intriguing, Ramirez points out that the project has a larger purpose: to create a road map for how to identify solar siblings, in preparation for the flood of data expected from future surveys.

"The idea is that the Sun was born in a cluster with a thousand or a hundred thousand stars. This cluster, which formed more than 4.5 billion years ago, has since broken up," he says. "A lot of things can happen in that amount of time." The member stars have broken off into their own orbits around the galactic center, taking them to different parts of the Milky Way today. A few, like HD 162826, are still nearby. Others are much farther afield.

FAMILY MATTERS

UNCONDITIONAL LOVE DOESN'T HAVE TO MEAN UNCONDITIONAL INHERITANCE

Most parents love their children unconditionally and want to do whatever they can to smooth life's loan mortgage debt. This will make a big difference rough patches for them. But that unconditional love doesn't necessarily mean parents should unconditionally trust their children when it comes to leaving them a hefty inheritance.

Here are some smart ways parents can pass their love along while still protecting the wealth they have spent their lifetimes working hard to accumulate:

Annual exclusion gift test. A parent can gift up to $14,000 every year to each child without incurring gift taxes; both parents together can give a total of $28,000 to each child. You can use this annual exclusion gift to test the waters on how your children will handle a financial windfall. Do they pay off debt, save it or place it on the ponies? Their actions can give you insight into how they might handle their inheritance.

Incentive trust. Parents that have worked hard to accumulate their wealth often worry that a large inheritance may harm a child's ambition to succeed on their own. If that is a worry for you, an incentive trust allows you to set goals or milestones for your children to achieve before distributions are made.

Staged distributions. Parents can create a trust with the distributions tied to different ages, stages, or life events (graduating college, starting a business) so the inheritance is doled out over time.

Leave a legacy. Creating a personal foundation to support the causes you believe in, and involving your children early on in that foundation, will help them learn about the responsibilities that come with wealth and create empathy for a world outside to their financial future without tempting them with large amounts of cash.

Wealth creation trust. As I mentioned in a previous article, one of the best ways your unconditional love can be expressed to a child or grandchild is through the establishment of a wealth creation trust to commemorate a birth, milestone birthday, or event, and then directing monetary gifts to the

When your child gets to be an age specified in the Trust, he or she can step into the role of Co-Trustee of the Trust, learning how to operate the trust and best utilize the funds in the Trust. He or she will be trained on the best types of investment for the Trust, learn the purpose of the Trust (to encourage the creation of wealth from one generation to the next, rather than the squandering or wasting of assets); how to protect it (keep the investments in the name of the Trust, regardless of how funds are used, so always title investments properly and sign on behalf of the Trust); and how to create more wealth in the future using the Trust assets.

One of the main goals of my law practice is to help families like yours plan for the safe, successful transfer of wealth to the next generation. PURCHASE SOME PROTECTION

A listing that offers a home warranty presents a win-win for all parties. Sellers can use this attractive marketing tool to give buyers some added assurance and confidence in their purchase, by giving the buyers protection against failures in the home's systems and appliances.

Not all home warranties are the same, however, so sellers should be careful to educate themselves about the differences in cost, coverage, and policy owner feedback among the various companies that offer these contracts. These war-ranties may cost between $250 and $500 for one year, but that investment is well worth the return when a confident buyer makes an offer.

Even if the seller does not offer such a policy, buyers are able to purchase one themselves, if they wish. Visit websites such as homewarrantyreviews.com to check reviews and ratings with the Better Business Bureau.

Also pay attention to what fees, if any, are charged for the service calls, and what exclusions may apply. All warranties offer a "basic coverage" policy, and you can often upgrade to include additional systems and appliances that are not included in the core package.

Chances are that the listing agent and buyer's agent will have a list of recom-mended companies that offer these warranties, and will have worked with many buyers and sellers in the past who gave them feedback. Don't be afraid to ask!

CONTRIBUTE TO A ROTH 401(K)? SHOULD YOU

By Greg Wellborn

Someone recently me whether they contribute to their employer's 401(k) Roth option, which is simply the ability to open a Roth account inside an employer's 401(k) plan. It was tempting to say yes because Roths offer a number of great benefits, but the correct answer has to be more nuanced and depends on a couple of factors.

Regular 401(k)s offer a tax deduction for contributions made from the Roth. Contribute to the regular 401(k) and at least get a tax your paycheck so they reduce your current income taxes. Any growth in the account is tax free until you withdraw the money.

You are allowed to withdraw

Any withdrawal is treated as income in the year withdrawn, but in return for 20 years of tax free growth AND tax free withdrawals premature withdrawals are subject to a 10% penalty tax on top of almost always provides substantial benefits. the income taxes.

deduction for contributions. The growth in the account remains tax free, and withdrawals are also tax free; this is the major difference from a regular 401(k).

So when should you contribute to a Roth as opposed to a regular 401(k)? It depends on what you expect your tax rate to be in retirement and how long you intend to keep the money in the retirement account. If you anticipate your tax rate to be the same, or less, in retirement as it is now and you're only going to keep the money in the account for 5 years, there's not much advantage to deduction for 5 years. On the other extreme, if your tax rate might be higher in retirement and if you plan on keeping money in the account for 20 years, then only when you're 59 ½ and have separated from employment. the Roth will make more sense. Giving up a tax deduction now

The decision is less obvious between these two extremes. The longer Roth 401(k)s reverse many of these benefits. There is no tax the money stays in the Roth and the larger it grows, the greater is the tax-free withdrawal benefit of the Roth. The shorter the investing timeframe, the greater is the tax deduction benefit of the regular 401(k). A little analysis is needed to make the right decision. It's not complicated, but it's not necessarily easy. Any qualified financial advisor should be able to do it.

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

WHY DID GOD GIVE US COFFEE?

face-to-face with a genuine dilemma. I had several meetings across town and for some reason I miscalculated and ended up with a 2-1/2 hour gap between meetings. I hate to waste time, but if I drove back to my office, I would simply have to return to my meeting later and with the cost of gas these days, one cannot be too cautious.

You know gas is getting high when it costs more to fill up the car than the car is really worth. The most valuable thing in my car is in my gas tank, at least when it is filled.

I remedied the situation by stopping in a small coffee shop for cup of Joe. As far as I am concerned, there is no bad time to have a cup of coffee, in spite of the price. I ordered my coffee and when the waitress brought it to me, I began to think about coffee. Why did God give us coffee?

Then my mind went back to my grandfather, whose greatest gift to me was a love of coffee. Nobody loved coffee more. I remember one of his favorite quotes, "You can always tell a man by the coffee he Anathema to my grandfather was the idea of instant coffee. No man, in his judgment, would ever drink anything of the kind. "If a man would drink instant coffee," my grandfather perked, "there's no telling what else he would do. Never trust a man who drinks instant coffee.'

Making coffee was an art form to my grandfather. There was a right way and a wrong way to make cof-fee, and he always insisted on the right way. Of course, the right way was the way he made coffee.

In grandfather's kitchen was an old wood-burning cook stove. On this oldfashioned stove, my grandfa-ther brewed his famous mud broth. He never allowed my grandmother to make the brew; it was his job, which he took seriously.

Once for his birthday, we all chipped in and bought him an electric coffee pot. I had never seen my grandfather so mad. When he saw what it was, he would not even take it out of the box.

He had strong ideas about coffee and how it should be brewed and woe be to the person who contra-dicted his ideas.

Grandfather always kept a fire in the old wood cook stove and on the back of the stove he kept his cof-fee pot, a large 2-gallon pot — one of those old-fashioned percolators long since gone out of style. The coffee was always on, and no matter when you stopped in to see him, he always had "fresh" coffee brewing.

When I say, "fresh," I need to explain. Actually, the coffee was only fresh on

This week I came Sunday. On Saturday night, he routinely face-to-face with a emptied the coffee pot and prepared fresh coffee for Sunday morning.

> He had an old coffee grinder and ground the coffee beans on Saturday night. He put some other things in the coffee, I have never figured out what. One thing I know he put in was a crushed eggshell. What it did to his coffee, I have no idea but grandfather was sure it was an important ingredient.

> The freshly ground coffee beans were put in, the pot filled with fresh water and set on the back of the stove to slowly perk. This coffee would last the entire week. The coffee was so strong on Sunday that if it did not wake you in the morning, you were

> In fact, Cousin Ernie died on a Sunday afternoon, so my grandfather tells the story, and one sip of his black coffee roused him and he lived seven more years, which was unfortunate for grandfather, as he had to support him.

> Before going to bed each evening my grandfather took care of his coffee. He would freshly grind a few coffee beans, sprinkle it on top of the old coffee grounds and then add a newly crushed eggshell. Then he would refill the coffee pot with

> His coffee percolated 24/7 and by Saturday it was so strong you needed a half-cup of sugar just to drink one cup. It was thick enough to use as syrup on your pancakes, but so strong, it dissolved your pan-cakes before you could eat them.

My grandmother once tried washing the coffee pot. When my grandfather saw her, he became furious, "Never wash that coffee pot," he spouted, "you'll ruin its character and a coffee pot needs a lot of char-acter to make good coffee."

When my grandfather died, I looked at his old black coffee pot and discovered two things. One, the original color was blue. And two, although it was originally a 2-gallon pot, it only could take three quarts of water. The "character," so important to my grandfather, had built up so much over the years its capaci-ty was diminished.

In pondering my grandfather, I thought about my Heavenly Father and His gifts. The Bible puts it this way; "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning" (James 1:17 KJV.)

I really do not know why God gave us coffee, but I do know God's character is of such a nature that it never diminishes His ability to bless me each day.

GREG Welborn

HOWARD Hays As I See It

"Academic freedom doesn't guarantee the right to be a speaker or receive an honorary degree." - Rudolph Bell, professor of history at Rutgers University

another rebuttal to a Greg Welborn column. suggested that if Michelle Obama is unwilling / unable to persuade her husband to launch an attack on Nigeria to rescue those kidnapped schoolgirls, she should just shut up about it. Expressing concern and support through social media is "insipid" and "demeaning".

Myself, I was glad to see our First Lady publicly express her concern and support whatever the medium; but didn't see much need to argue the point.

Greg also complained about scheduled commencement speakers withdrawing from their engagements; "forced" to do so out of concern their views might interfere with the indoctrination of liberal dogma.

No, I was going to let that slide, as well – until I saw the L.A. Times editorializing on the same subject of students being overly picky in selecting their commencement speakers. The mere idea of Greg and the Times' editorial board agreeing on something impelled me to look into it.

The Times objects to the "uncompromising nature of the opposition" to certain speakers; an insistence they "agree 100%" with protestors. It condemns "rhetoric" described as "strident and

An example cited by both Greg and the Times was the withdrawal of former UC Berkeley Chancellor Robert Bergeneau from his engagement to give the commencement address at Pennsylvania's Haverford College. Greg says the alleged offense was that as Chancellor he'd 'allowed police to arrest Occupy protestors". Not quite. The allegation was that in 2011 he'd condoned the use of batons against students protesting non-violently against tuition fee hikes. Bergeneau later rationalized that once the students had linked arms, it ceased being 'non-violent". This led several Haverford students and faculty members to question the appropriateness of Bergeneau receiving a high nonor from a Quaker university.

Both Greg and the Times also brought up the withdrawal of International Monetary Fund Dir. Christine Lagarde from her commencement engagement at Smith College. The online petition asking the school to "reconsider" states that "although we do not wish to disregard all of Ms. Legarde's accomplishments as a strong female leader", it describes IMF policies as having "led directly to the strengthening of imperialist and patriarchal systems that oppress and abuse women worldwide." Any show of support for the IMF would be "going against Smith's values to stand in unity with equality for all women, regardless of race, ethnicity or class."

Greg mentions Brandeis University's revocation of its invitation to Ayaan Hirsi Ali. She's known not so much for her "feminism" as for her personal war on Islam. ("You mean radical Islam?" she was asked to clarify in an interview with Reason magazine. "No, Islam. Period" she replied.) Brandeis Prof. Jytte Klausen wrote that while there might be a suitable opportunity for Ali to speak, offering her an honorary degree 'undermines years of careful work to show that Brandeis University promotes the ideals

I hadn't intended to write of shared learning, religious toleration and other rebuttal to a Greg coexistence, irrespective of religion."

The Southern Poverty Law Center describes Dr. Charles Murray as one who uses "racist pseudoscience and misleading statistics to argue that social inequality is caused by the genetic inferiority of the black and Latino communities, women and the poor." Greg bemoans the withdrawal of Dr. Murray's invitation to speak at Azusa Pacific University "Sadly, even in the Christian realm", as he put Hard to think, but most of those graduating have no real memory of 9/11. They've only recently begun to experience a period when their country is not at war. But, with recent news of VA hospitals and by tens of thousands of first-hand impacts on family and friends, it's clear the effects of recent history will last for generations.

Students and faculty at Rutgers were aware of this history when, as noted in the Times editorial, they protested the invitation for Condoleezza Rice to give their commencement address (along with an honorary degree and $35,000). They are aware of how she dismissed warnings from outgoing Clinton national security staffers of threats posed by Osama bin Laden and Al-Qaeda (a "star wars" missile defense shield was her priority at the time); how she just couldn't bring herself to admit before a Senate committee that the CIA daily briefing ignored by President Bush in August 2001 was titled, "Bin Ladin Determined To Strike in US"; how, when pushing for war in Iraq, she warned us, "We don't want the smoking gun to be a mushroom cloud."

The Rutgers faculty council forwarded a resolution stating Rice "played a prominent role in (the Bush) administration's effort to mislead the American people about the presence of weapons of mass destruction, and "at the very least condoned the Bush administration's policy of 'enhanced interrogation techniques' such as waterboarding . . . An honorary Doctor of Laws degree should not honor someone who participated in a political effort to circumvent

I hadn't intended to weigh in on a subject that's primarily a matter for students and their schools. It led me to reflect on personal memories, though: of a time when an undergrad enrollment no longer guaranteed a 4F deferment; when if you were nineteen and your lottery number was low enough, and you couldn't swing a National Guard enlistment, you were faced with a major disruption of your life's plan.

With nothing comparable to focus the attention of students today, I've wondered how much they'd stay concerned and involved with their community, their country and the world This commencement controversy, if anything, shows that with issues like protecting the right to protest, fighting economic exploitation, protecting rights of women and refusing to tolerate religious persecution, racism and lying the country into war, there are voices on our campuses being heard loud and clear.

This is ample reason to be optimistic for our future, and ample reason to congratulate the

Last week we were treated to stories about they become political correctness in our universities, absorbed, but this week a little middle school has narcissistic, upped the ante. That's right; the Cole Middle School of Providence Road Island has shown its betters about how to really implement Liberal philosophy. The school cancelled "Honor's Night" because, as the other hand, when principal explained, it was "too exclusive". It's tempting to just ridicule this as the idiocy it truly is, but that would not do justice to the lessons we can learn. You see, this principal - and those parents who support the decision - truly believes that her decision was the right thing to do. This is not maliciousness, cruelty, or anger. Principal Alexis Meyer believes so much in the liberal dogma of egalitarianism that she sees Honor's Night as a moral wrong and cancelling it as a moral right. The stridency of this belief allows Liberals to be blind to the harm they do. The first issue to be addressed is simply the practicality of implementing the principle. To banish any sign of exclusivity is to make life unworkable. Every award, every degree, and every program that has competitive admissions standards is college excludes those who are rejected. Awarding a degree to college students who pass their classes excludes those Ph.D.s to lofty Liberals is itself an act of degree. There's no comment about these exclusive programs and degrees because to deal with them is to unravel the basic argument.

But let's look beyond the logistical of banning the vast majority of exclusive events or awards? As much as Liberals nature, or to believe that they can be readily changed, human nature changes only slightly more than glaciers (preglobal warming of course). The truth is more of it; if you punish something, you'll get less of it. The corollary is that if you fail to reward difficult but needed activity, you'll get less of the needed activity.

It should be axiomatic that we want people to work hard. Whether it is completing homework, perfecting a sport, practicing medicine carefully, or managing a company, city, state or nation When middle schools forbid the awarding well, we want to incentivize people to of honors, we've lost our way. We've do the hard work necessary. We cannot expect them to do so without rewarding them more than the people who choose not to do the hard necessary work.

Psychologically, we also do great harm when we teach people - implicitly or explicitly - that hard work is not good or that rewards should be given without something for nothing, or when they know it is unwarranted by their actions, small some something for nothing for when they community. He can be reached gregwelborn2@ gmail.com dissatisfied with life. There is no legitimate self-worth that is not truly earned. On the people know they have earned what they receive, they learn contentment and humility and develop a true sense of self-worth.

Lastly, turning to basic moral principles, we must recognize that egalitarianism the belief that all must be equal - comes from the good side of human nature. This is not one of the seven deadly sins. Humans have a good side to their nature and a bad side. What's too often missed is that both sides taken to an extreme result in bad outcomes and often in outright evil.

Avarice taken to an extreme is obvious. It is part of our bad nature, and taken to an extreme is the base cause for most crimes of property. Egalitarianism is less obvious. Basic equality is a very noble value. But taking equality of outcome to its extreme is the base cause of the crimes exclusive by definition. Honoring junior of communism and the vast majority high students who have achieved excludes those who have not. Admitting some into have been willing to send millions to reeducation camps for no reason other than the fact that they owned more than their students who do not. And lastly, awarding neighbors. In China, it was routine for egalitarian spasms to prompt the arrests exclusion against those who don't earn the of shop owners because they were shop owners. In Cambodia, the extreme was seen in the forced starvation of people for no reason other than they wore glasses and thus likely were more educated than the average citizen. Millions have died considerations. What would be the effect horrible deaths because of the excesses of egalitarianism.

The greatness of America is that we have would like to deny the basics of human largely found the solution for balancing the various passions of the people - the good ones and the bad ones. Our founders were not as afraid of the meanness of the masses as they were of the excesses of their good that if you reward something, you'll get intentions. They built a system to provide equality before the law while allowing the warranted and earned inequality of outcomes. In so doing, they drew on a deep understanding of human nature and a solid grounding in biblical wisdom. The Scriptures are full of exhortations to care for the downtrodden, but also to allow the hard working the fruits of their efforts.

May 26 - June 1, 2014

The Jungle Book is playing Sunday Morning at 7:00 a.m. Rudyard Kipling's famous story of Mowgli the jungle boy comes alive with Sabu as the boy raised by wolves learns to live among Rudyard Kipling was a British Nobel laureate that published a series of stories in magazines of 1893 and 1894. Kipling was born in India, and lived there, in Britain, and later in Vermont, US, where he wrote and published his stories. Most of his stories were fantasy tales about the animals of India, and Mowgli, a boy raised by wolves that returns to civilization.

This telling of the story of Mowgli starts with an English woman on Safari in India that takes a picture of an old sage telling stories of the past. He tells her and us the story of the wolf boy, a child raised by wolves that can speak the language of all of the animals of the jungle. A group of people find a spot in the Indian jungle that they decide will be the home of their new village. There is a little baby boy that walks off into the jungle while no one is paying attention. His father discovers that he is missing and goes off into the jungle calling his son's name and searching for him, but he is killed, leaving his mother as a widow without her son. The boy is raised by a pack of wolves, and one day is chased by a terrible tiger that promises to kill him, but the boy escapes the tiger and stumbles upon the village of his mother. He is discovered by the tribesmen, and they eventually decide that he must be the boy that wandered away many years ago. His mother doesn't think that it is her lost son, but she is a kind woman that promises to care for him and teach him the ways of the people.

One man thinks that the boy is a devil, and wants to kill him, because he will never lose his wild animal instincts. He forbids his daughter to be around the boy, but of course the daughter and Mowgli find an immediate attraction for each other. As Mowgli learns to speak, we learn that he is afraid of the tiger named Shere Khan, who has threatened to kill the boy, and he buys a knife from the girl's father so that when he again meets Shere Khan the tiger he may be victorious in the battle. One day Mowgli and the girl go off into the jungle because she wants to experience the jungle as Mowgli sees it, and hear him converse with his jungle friends. They stumble upon the ruins of an ancient Indian city and discover a King's treasure room with untold riches that is guarded by an old obra snake. But then the girl wakes from her nights sleep, and is not sure whether she actually experienced the jungle trip, or if it was a dream.

But her father discovers a gold coin in her hand, and when she tells the story of her and Mowgli finding the jungle treasure, her father gets a glint in his eye, and promises not to threaten harm to Mowgli any more, because he secretly wants Mowgli to lead him to the hidden treasures of the lost city. Thus begins an adventure that the whole family will enjoy while munching on freshly popped corn. Sabu, the actor who played Mowgli in this adventure, was a lad of Indian descent that appeared in 23 movies before his death in 1963 at the young age of 39.

Case No. BP151826

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of HELEN M. ARTMAN

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Janet L. Breidenbach in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Janet L. Breidenbach be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on June 10. 2014 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 5 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. Attorney for petitioner:
