officials closed the Eaton Canyon Upper Falls on Friday (Aug 1st) This Health and Safety Closure of the area sur-rounding the Upper Waterfall only applies to Forest Service lands. Access will still remain open to the Lower Falls.

In recent years, there have been a number of rescues, injuries and deaths associated with climbing to the upper waterfalls in Eaton Canyon. The trails to the waterfall user-created, and not authorized or main-tained by the Forest Service. Most particularly, the climb to the Upper Falls is steep and dangerous with frequently getting lost or falling off the narrow ridges into the canyon. The waterfall is not the dangerous second waterfall that is creating the increase in rescues and deaths. ### THREE SIERRA MADRE RESIDENTS - THE BLACKWELL BROTHERS GO ON THE ROAD

LA.'s Hottest new band: Canto - Up in Smoke Tour at The Whisky A Go Go Los Angeles

Aidan Blackwell

Armed with lead guitar, Seamus Blackwell strutted the stage at The Whisky A Go Go and cut riffs with the speed and accuracy of an acetylene torch. While passionate love ballads lifted spirits in the hallowed darkness, the equally male-female audience took comfort in his testosterone injected high-octane, fracking lyrics, and driving melodic overdrive. Connecting eye to eye from the stage during "Gasoline" set Canto apart from all other Beastie Boy incantations as each unique composition touched these souls and captivated their attention. Canto's endless energy packed the house and discharged onto Sunset Blvd. past midnight.

A sleek choreographed stage presence dominated the act while brother-bassist Aidan's stoic demeanor placed front man Seamus (age 21) clearly in control. Calling out praise to their touring band Shatterproof after a 14-day epic journey through Colorado, Washington and Oregon before the proverbial bus break-down in Eugene, band members recounted bathing in a river, bonding on Peanut Butter, Patron, and Tootise Pops as a reward,. "Maybe even two pops tonight," quipped lead Seamus Blackwell to celebrate their pursuit of their American Dream and polished performance on the Los Angeles stage.

Don't confuse Canto's presence with bravado. Their caustic vibe and unique sounds crushed the crowd's faces who were seduced by good looks and inspired (continue on page 3)

A WORD FROM THE PUBLISHER

You would think that a woman of my maturity would rather not speak of birthdays. That is incorrect. First of all, as my mother used to say, "The only way to avoid growing old is to die young." I listened and happily chose not to die young. And my father whispered another gem in my ear that made me appreciate birthdays even more. He said, "Your birthday is your own personal holiday. Enjoy it!" And so, in the spirit of wisdom of both my parents, I want to celebrate, a very special birthday. No, not mine - that's in February, but the birthday of the Mountain Views News nee Observer!

It has been seven years this month that this paper was created and believe me, we are proud to be here. This paper follows in the traditions my parents spoke of. We will not die young and we will take the time to appreciate our own special day.

As you notice, I keep saying we? Well that is because the Mountain Views is not just the paper that I own and publish. It belongs to many other people too. To the wonderful staff, contributors, volunteers, supporters and caretakers, and most of all, it belongs to the communities we serve. Without you, this paper would not be possible. Oh, and yes, to our detractors, we thank you too, because your unrelenting criticism makes us stronger.

There are several people who have been with this paper since the beginning. Special birthday greetings to: Dean Lee, Pat Birdsall, Rich Johnson, Bob Eklund, Mary Carney, Kim Clymer-Kelley, Jeff Brown, John Avery, and Peter Dills. This paper also has a stellar alumni that for a variety of reasns, mostly relocation, are no longer with us. They include Chris Bertrand who retired to Northern with us. They include Chris Bertrand who retired to Northern California to be closer to her grandson; Hail Hamilton who just I love it. I love sharing information with others. I love learning and anyone, is so, I am certain you will let me know! For seven years, 364 consecutive weeks, you have been with us in pen and/or spirit. We also wish to thank those who have been behind the scenes supporting the paper with their kind deeds and encouraging words. You shall remain nameless, but I want you to know that we truly appreciate you.

And last but not least, thanks to my family who have withstood so much. They've been willing to share companion, mom and grandmom, sister, and aunt with the paper. You are also appreciated and loved.

It has not always been easy, but I have the same commitment that I had when I suggested that Sierra Madre needed a real community paper. A few years ago, , I answered a question that was asked of me by someone in town, "Why Are You Doing this?" Now that is truly a good question. Let's see. Perhaps my parents dropped me on my head when I was a child. No, that's not it. Ok, well perhaps I just like working 100 hour weeks. Or better yet, maybe I just love pouring every penny I have into this enterprise. Hmm...that recently retired and moved away; and Joe Russo, who spent many, many hours working with me on the production of the paper. writing about the treasures in our community. I love providing a needed service to the community. I love bringing people together, even when they don't agree.

> I love providing the opportunity for others to share their talents. And please know, there is no one associated with the Mountain Views that supports their families or even their cheapest hobbies with the money they earn, if any. The people celebrating with me today all participate because it is a labor of love, and we love to do this because you, the community have shown that you

I wish that more people would look around and see what they can contribute to make our communities a better place. Many people do, but there are many more that don't. If you don't, you have no idea how good it would make you feel. Sharing your talents unconditionally is the best feeling in the world. And, when you have done it long enough to have a 'birthday' you really rejoice.

So, pick something, a school, a library, a church, an organization, someone who is sick and shut in, or even your next door neighbor. Take a little time to share what God has given you. When you do you will find that, birthdays roll around pretty fast but they feel really good!

So, Happy Birthday Mountain Views News. We should all be very proud of what we have accomplished in such a short time. And, thanks to each of you for all you have done.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

"Loud is the summer's busy song. The smallest breeze can find a tongue, while insects of each tiny size grow teasing with their melodies, till noon burns with its blistering breath around, and day lies still as death." John Clare

I'd say that's a pretty accurate description of August. All we can do is move slowly, remember that only "Mad dogs and Englishmen go out in the mid-day sun," (Noel Coward); clip the burned leaves off our plants; water sparingly early in the morning and keep praying for that El Nino thing to show up this winter. John, best traveling companion ever, and I just spent nine days in Wylie, Texas to celebrate granddaughter, Emily's 4th birthday and her mommy's birthday, too. Wylie is outside Dallas and they are, purportedly, in the grip of a drought also, except that it's the greenest place I ever saw. It rained the day we left, they had flooding the week before we arrived and a flood warning was posted again today. I like their version of drought lots better than ours!

"The pleasure of jogging and running this time of year is rather like that of wearing a fur coat in Texas in August: the true joy comes in being able to take the darn thing off." Joseph Epstein Walking around town, we notice Monsieur Crepe has now sold over 10,000 crepes to hungry Sierra Madreans! Way to go, Aurelien Mosconi! We hope you sell 10,000 more! If you haven't stopped in there lately, give yourself a treat! Don't you just love the umbrella tables outside Cycle de Pro, T-Neer, iFruggi and Subway? So inviting. Perfect spot for mountain viewing!

Had lunch a couple of weeks ago at Sierra Brigante, sat outside on the front patio in the shade, enjoyed something involving eggplant which was fabulous and a glass or two of wine with a dear friend. So pleasant sitting where we could admire our own personal mountains. Highly recommend it.

"August in sub-Saharan Los Angeles is one of the great and awful tests of one's endurance, sanity and stamina." Henry Rollins

In our efforts to conserve water, which we have to confess, we've not been very good about lately, we got these nifty things called "Solar Sun Rings" which lock together with magnets, float around the pool and keep the water from evaporating. Last year's pool cover was sort of a disaster. Yes, kept the water in the pool, but made it impossible to actually use or clean it. My pool guy, John, was out there cleaning it this morning and the Solar Sun Rings were a breeze to get around. Speaking of water, we have resolved again to use less. I seem to have become a watera-holic in the kitchen, using far more than necessary. Old habits die hard, don't they? So, shorter showers, no water running, the lawn will have to fend for itself and we're still being pretty good about that flushing thing.

"A perfect summer day is when the sun is shining, the breeze is blowing, the birds are singing and the lawnmower is broken." Iames Dent

The tomatoes have been delicious this year and the cantaloupe seeds we stuck in the tomato plant pot are putting out leaves.

Dahlias look spectacular just now, they don't seem to mind the heat, but roses are on strike till it cools off. Our neighbors the Giant Pumpkin growers have giant pumpkins already and it's months till Halloween but pumpkins seem to love the heat. We heard it on the grapevine that there's a fox living somewhere behind our garage, or our neighbor's barn. Rumor had it that every evening around 6:00 or so he (or she) walks up our driveway and wanders through the neighborhood seeing what's going on. Well, we saw him! He was jumping around on our lawn one evening and then we saw him across the street in our neighbor's yard nibbling on something! He's lovely! Grey with a very fluffy tail.

It's not too late to put in a tomato plant! Be good to yourself and drink a lot of water. Take heart: Fall is on the way!

May you have a perfect summer day every single day this

Monday, July 21st

At approximately 7:00pm, Sierra Madre Police Officers were driving North on Santa Anita Ave from Grandview Avenue. As Officers approached the center median, they noticed a male individual laying in the grass performing inappropriate acts on himself. The suspect seemed unfazed by the traffic passing through in the area he was exposed to. In an attempt to deter the suspect, Officers drove past him but the suspect continued his act. When Officers approached the suspect they noted that the suspect's pants and underwear were unzipped and opened. When the suspect was questioned by Officers, he claimed that he was simply resting. The suspect was arrested and charged with the violation of performing a lewd act in a public place.

At 7:57pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 350 North block of Lima St. regarding a petty theft report. When Officers arrived the victim informed them that she had placed an ad on a webpage inquiring for assistance around her home. At around 6:15pm she met with the suspect who had replied back to her ad and has the suspect move boxes from her attic to another location. Shortly after the suspect left, the victim noticed her white cellphone was missing. The victim attempted to locate it in her home and was unable, so she then called the suspect to ask if he had seen it prior to leaving which he informed her that he did not have it or had seen it. Using the phone locator, she victim was able to determine her phone was located in Irwindale. Several attempts to contact the suspect went unanswered. This case had been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

At approximately 8:35pm, Sierra Madre Police responded the 300 block of Sturtevant Dr. regarding a reckless driver. Upon arriving on scene, Officers were informed by on off-duty Officer and two victims that as they were traveling north up Mountain Trail Ave, the suspect rolled a stop sign and made a left turn from Grandview onto Mountain Trail Ave, nearly hitting the victim's vehicle. As both vehicles traveled up Mountain Trail, the suspect tailgated the victim. The suspect then pulled up alongside the victim and attempted to ram their vehicle, causing the victim to swerve. The victim caught up with the suspect and used her vehicle to block the vehicle in as the off-duty Officer identified himself and Sierra Madre Police was called. The suspect was arrested and charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Friday, July 25th

At 6:10pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 300 East block of Laurel Ave. regarding a residential burglary report. Upon arriving, Officers were informed by the victim that after doing some errands away from home, he came back to discover his laptop, passport, and legal documents pertaining to a pending divorce and restraining order were missing. He indicated a separate laptop that was next to the one that was stolen was left untouched, along with all his check books and personal information in the desk the laptop was left on. When questioned by Officers as to who could have done this, the suspect informed them he believes it was his wife. He informed them that she had called multiple times throughout the day and when he informed her he was out on an errand she abruptly hung up. A thorough investigation determined there to be no signs of forced entry. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

City Council Declares Level 1 Water Shortage

The Pasadena City Council voted unanimously Monday night declaring a local water 20-percent conservation goal and implementing the city's Level 1 Water Supply Shortage Plan, with mandatory water waste restrictions effective immediately.

The Level 1 plan limits watering to three days per week in summer, one day, Saturday, per week in winter and requires that leaks be repaired within 72 hours, in addition to permanent water waste prohibitions according to a statement by the city.

One person spoke against the plan, only to say that 20 percent was a lofty goal and that residents would only respond if it affects their pocket books. Phyllis Currie, General Manager of Pasadena Water and Power said she was optimistic that the city could meet the 20 percent goal.

Pasadena Water and Power (PWP) customers can report water waste by calling (626) 744-8888 at any time or report online via the Pasadena Service Center at www.cityofpasadena.net/csc. Fines for repeat offenders can be up to $500 per violation for residential customers, and up to $1,000 per violation for commercial accounts. A complete list of water waste restrictions is available at www. PWPweb.com/WaterWaste.

"Pasadena already has restrictions in place and our customers have made exemplary efforts to conserve," PWP Chief Deputy General Manager Eric Klinkner said.

"However, Pasadena's water use has increased over the last few years due to a lack of rain emergency, establishing a and the improving economy. Tonight's City Council vote reiterates the significance of the drought and is a call to action for all of our customers to step up their efforts to conserve our precious water supplies," Klinkner said.

The City Council approved Pasadena's existing Water Waste Prohibitions and Water Supply Shortage Plans Ordinance in 2009. The key conservation measures currently in effect for all PWP water customers include:

Outdoor watering is limited to three days per week, on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, during the summer months.

No watering outdoors between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m., except with a hand-held container or hose with a shut-off nozzle. No watering during periods of All water leaks must be fixed within 72 hours.

DUSD SUPERINTENDENT ANNOUNCES LAUNCH OF THE T.E.A.C.H. PROJECT VIA COLLABORATION WITH CITY OF HOPE & CITRUS COLLEGE TO OPEN FIRST HEALTHCARE

Students Graduate With High School Diploma and Associate Degree in Information Technology

(Duarte, CA) - Dr. Terry Nichols, Superintendent of the Duarte Unified School District (DUSD) announced today that DUSD is partnering with City of Hope and Citrus College to create a customized version of the Pathways in Technology Early College High School (P-TECH) model, the first of its kind in California, which will launch at Duarte High School this Fall. Named The T.E.A.C.H. Project (Train, Educate, and Accelerate Careers in Healthcare), this academy will serve grades 9 to 12 and enable students to graduate with both a high school diploma and a low, to no cost, Associate in Information Technology Degree that will equip students with the marketable skills needed to secure skilled positions in the highly competitive health industry.

The T.E.A.C.H. Project is an adaptation of the version originally created by The  $International \ Business \ Machines \ Corporation$ (IBM). P-TECH schools are innovative public schools that bring together the best elements of high school, college, and career. The first P-TECH school started by IBM and partners opened in Brooklyn, NY in 2011. Its success prompted President Obama to applaud the model in his 2012 State of the Union address. IBM's second P-TECH school, called Sarah E. Goode STEM Academy, opened in Chicago in 2012 and was featured in a Time magazine cover story. Inspired by the P-TECH model, The T.E.A.C.H.

Project is proud to join the ranks of these cutting-edge institutions.

The T.E.A.C.H. Project will be customized to incorporate a curriculum specifically designed to engage the district's unique student body, which is comprised of high percentages of traditionally underrepresented minority populations in the information technology field that include Hispanics/ Latinos and African Americans.

Once completing the program, The T.E.A.C.H. Project graduates will have priority interviews with City of Hope and other healthcare partners for job placement.

Students will participate in an integrated sequence of high school and college classes provided by Duarte High School and Citrus College instructors. Currently, Duarte High School is the only high school in the area offering an Early College program partnership with Citrus College. In operation since 2007, the program provides graduates first in line for globally competitive students the opportunity to complete a high school diploma and 30 college credits simultaneously.

The T.E.A.C.H. Project is an extension of this unique and successful collaboration.

Students enrolled in The T.E.A.C.H. Project will also engage in workplace learning activities such as mentoring, job shadowing and internships offered by City of Hope, a comprehensive cancer center located in

TECHNOLOGY EARLY COLLEGE HIGH SCHOOL IN CALIFORNIA

Duarte, California. Students will learn the processes, procedures and skills necessary for success in the health information technology field through interactions with scientists, healthcare professionals and educators who are experts in the industry. Classroom teachers will also participate in on-going professional development opportunities with the assistance of City of Hope professionals to ensure they are teaching students the most cutting-edge skills needed to attain occupations in this sector.

"There is a shortage of skilled health IT professionals and we need to help children and their parents better understand that the healthcare industry offers great career options. We believe The T.E.A.C.H. Project will be a game changer in how we invest in and develop the youth of our community and introduce them to possible careers they may never have become familiar with" stated City of Hope's Chief Human Resources & Diversity Officer, Stephanie Neuvirth.

Based on industry research, trends indicate in the next decade, half the new jobs will be "middle skills" high-tech occupations suited for those with associate's degrees. "We are thrilled to be the first school district in California to partner with City of Hope to develop this program," said Dr. Terry Nichols, Superintendent of DUSD. "The opportunities that will be available through The T.E.A.C.H. Project fit perfectly with our initiative to create Shoulder Tapped Graduates, students who are prepared to reach their highest potential and are actively recruited by both colleges and businesses. Graduates of The T.E.A.C.H. Project will develop skills and gain experiences that are in demand today, and this program will put our jobs and success in our 21st Century society."

The T.E.A.C.H. Project will be joining an elite group of less than 20 schools modeled on IBM's P-TECH blueprint currently in operation nation-wide to improve the ability of high school students to simultaneously earn a high school diploma and associate's degree and "first shot" at jobs in the industry. An important component of the program is that each T.E.A.C.H. Project student will be matched with an industry mentor who will help the student understand how classroom learning has real-life application to the workforce. The T.E.A.C.H.

Project students will gain both a rigorous academic education and the workplace and technology skills that many top employers require as well as To ensure the successful design and launch of The T.E.A.C.H. Project, a Steering Committee comprised of key leaders and staff from each member organization has been established. Advisory panel members include Ann Miller - City of Hope Senior Director of Talent Acquisition & Workforce Development, Dr. Jim Lancaster -Citrus College Dean of Education, Dr. Terry Nichols - Superintendent DUSD and Kevin

- DUSD Director of College, Career and Community Services and T.E.A.C.H. Project

"We are excited to be in partnership with City of Hope and Citrus College in developing this innovative program. The mission for The T.E.A.C.H. Project is to provide programs that extend beyond the traditional goals of any new school to provide students with a personalized and customized pathway towards mastery of the skills and knowledge that they will need to make the transition from education to industry. Students learn better when they understand the direct link between what they are learning today and the worlds of college and work" said Dr. Terry Nichols, Superintendent DUSD.

Enrollment in The T.E.A.C.H. Project is open to all interested students in grades 9-12. There are no required assessments, screenings or lottery to participate in the program. For more information, please contact Kevin Morris, (626) 786-1306 or kmorris@duarteusd.org.

THIS SCHOOL YEAR, RAISE GRADES WITH ONLINE LEARNING TOOLS

classroom learning can't be tailored to every student's individual needs -- particularly these days, as class sizes are growing and funding for special enrichment programs becomes limited. In fact, at least 35 states provided less funding per student for the 2013-14 school year than they did before the

Many children will need to spend some time outside the classroom going beyond their regular homework to keep up or get ahead in school. No matter what your child's education goals are, there are great ways you can help make this school year the best one

Math practice: Square roots, polynomials, quadrilaterals. Learning these terms and concepts can get dicey quickly. Keeping up at home is important, and sometimes requires more than just doing the day's take-home

Consider supplementing homework with online tools. For example, Shmoop, an online there is really no substitute for quizzing edge this school year.

(StatePoint) Unfortunately, the pace of learning and test prep provider, provides yourself with a flash card. Even the act of free study guides for review and courses for remedial work in many academic topics, including social science, arts and music, science and English. Their math tutorials cover everything from Pre-Algebra to Calculus and the step by-step explanations that the program offers can be helpful to any student looking for an extra edge.

> Read the classics: Kids who read for pleasure can improve their grades. Not only will the exposure to literary giants like John Steinbeck, Mark Twain and Harriet Beecher Stowe build vocabulary and improve reading comprehension, there is much to be learned about history and culture from picking up a great book, such as "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn."

> Be sure to use tools that can help clarify some of the denser material. Online learning guides can be a great place to get synopses and creating the flashcard can help reinforce concepts and facts.

Extra Help: A little extra academic help after school can sometimes mean the difference between struggle and success. But between school and soccer practice, ballet lessons and getting dinner on the table, adding a tutor or after school class to the list might be a logistical impossibility.

Consider online courses that can be completed from the comfort of home and are common core aligned. For example, Shmoop's offerings are diverse, ranging from 7th grade math to second semester 12th grade British Literature. For those students taking Advanced Placement courses this fall, check out their AP test prep courses. These courses help students nail the important, for-credit, year-end exam. More information can be found at www. Shmoop.com.

With a bit of extra effort and the use of savvy Use flashcards: It may sound quaint, but learning tools, kids can gain a competitive

BIG DADDY'S FIRE GRILL ORANGEWOOD PLAZA WEST PASADENA

How many burger joints are there in Pasadena? Many! Have you noticed the competition in the hot dog and burger arena in Pasadena has increased dramatically? Although Bob's Big Boy, Johnny Rocket's and Wolfe Burger bowed out, it seems that Pasadena has gotten a lot of new burger joints, and I found one that stands apart from the rest: Big Daddy's Fire Grill. How can Big Daddy be a strong contender? I went to the new Big Daddy's after my radio show last Sunday night, wanting to get a burger and watch the games on one of their nine big screen TV's. I was accompanied by Mr. Dean Lee who films my radio show for the internet. The menu has as many selections as the original location on Foothill Blvd. They have a chicken wing appetizer (some of the best wings I have had in the San Gabriel Valley, marinated in a secret sauce and are fresh never frozen), dawgs, grilled sandwiches, salads and, of course the burger.

The claim here is that each burger is freshly ground daily and hand formed. On my first visit I had no proof, but after the burger "The Daddy Burger" ($6.95) I wanted another! It wasn't that the burger didn't fill me up, but it was that good. My mind was racing on how I would write a full story on just one burger, and it occurred to me that this burger reminded me of a burger that you would have at a backyard BBQ. Now I ask you.... where else would you indeed have another burger? Yep, bingo! At a friend's BBQ or tailgate! Friend Dean Lee had the Lamb Burger 1/3 lb. ($9.75) and promised to tell every one that would listen about his find. Now, when I explained to Dean that the burger reminded me of one that you'd have in the backyard, this usually laid-back man acted as if I had just parted the Red Sea and brought the sun came out on a cloudy day. He stood up and said, "You are right Peter?" I ate the sandwich so fast that Dean thought I hadn't eaten in two days. Nope, it was just that good. I even thought about ordering another.

Prices here are ridiculously competitive, with combos available. All and all there are plenty of dishes to love, and they have many beers on tap, as well as wine by the glass or bottle. Why Big Daddy's name? Every dad claims to make the best backyard BBQ, and the owners might have the claim for the best burger. Another bonus -- the walls are well, wall-to-wall with nine huge flat screen TV's, much like the original. Big Daddy's is a great place for a burger and to hang out with friends and watch your favorite sporting event. My only minus is that the French Fries are pre-frozened, the only blemish on another wise stellar performance.

At the risk of over-doing it by writing too much about fun run events designed to help save the lives of would-be forgotten animals (I refer to last week's article about The Marine Mammal Center's Run for the Seals event this month), this week I decided to write about yet another up-coming event focused on rescuing homeless shelter pets that would otherwise most likely be euthanized.

Best Friends Animal Society is a well-known non-profit organization with a no-kill mission. Their goal is to prevent the senseless and untimely death of thousands of shelter animals each year in our country. Through their own sanctuary and in close coordination with numerous shelters and animal care volunteers and professionals throughout the country, they have succeeded in helping save and place countless homeless pets into forever loving homes where they will receive the compassionate care they so desperately need and deserve.

As part of Best Friend's endeavor to carry out their mission, they hold an annual Strut Your Mutt fun run campaign, for all animal advocates to participate in and raise funds for the many animal-life-saving programs they have established over the years. Using the slogan, "Dogs just want to have fun", they invite any and all who wish to take part in the fun run/walk event, with several to choose from across the

This year, Best Friends has arranged for twelve separate Strut Your Mutt events, to be held on various dates and in different cities in the United States. The variety of dates and locations provides the opportunity for animal lovers across the nation to get on board with this amazing fundraising, life-saving project. Here is the event schedule line-up for the 2014 Strut Your Mutt

STRUT YOUR MUTT AND HELP SAVE LIVES!

August 23 - San Francisco, CA September 6 - Jacksonville, FL & Los Angeles, September 13 - Austin, TX, Portland, OR & Salt Lake City, UT

September 20 - Houston, TX

September 27 - Kanab, UT, Maryland/D.C., Minneapolis, MN, New York, NY & St. Louis,

All Strut Your Mutt events include a festival along with a walk and fun run, so participants get to enjoy lots of exciting activities with their family and friends, along with the company of their own pets, while helping save the lives of animals who are in need of a loving home. Even if you are unable to attend one of the events in person, you can still be an important participant by taking the Strut Your Mutt Challenge, a virtual fundraiser for rescue groups and shelters across the country. No matter where you are, or no matter where you live, you can join the challenge and raise funds for either Best Friends or for the rescue group of your choice by registering on line in the comfort of your own home.

Best Friends is one of the most revered and respected animal rescue organizations in the country. During the time they have been in operation, they have succeeded in saving more animals' lives than any other single animal rescue group in the US. The proceeds from their annual Strut Your Mutt campaign all go directly toward rescuing shelter animals. Through the good work of hundreds of volunteers and the pro bono assistance of various animal care professionals, they do whatever it takes to prevent pets from meeting a pre-mature death.

If you are interested in participating in this year's Strut Your Mutt fund-raising campaign, or simply wish to learn more about this fantastic group and the awesome work they do, please visit strutyourmutt.org, or go to Best Friends Animal Society's web site at: bestfriends.org.

There is no better feeling than that which you get by knowing you have done your part to help save the life of a helpless, homeless shelter animal. We all love to talk about our pets; how cute they are, how funny they are and how much joy they bring to our lives. So, let's not forget about the ones still waiting for that loving human to take them home, love them and brag about them to their friends! Thank you for caring about the animals and don't forget to love and let live.

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND?

Who wants to be part your summer fun? So Trisha! Trisha is very irresistible and easy to fall in love with! She is an adorable, sweet, fun and lovable white long haired terrier mix with loads of personality! She was found as a stray in the streets dirty, skittish and frightened, but once she was bathed, fed, taken care of and loved, it didn't take long for her to relax, come out of her shell and be her true, sweet, funloving self!

Trisha can be shy when she first meets you, but she loves people, warms up quickly, and enjoys attention, receiving loving pets and being cuddled in a lap. She is also comfortable with other dogs and would be very happy to share her life with another dog or two in the home. During the walks and time spent with her, she has blossomed into a social butterfly, always greeting and initiating play with other dogs. It is very entertaining to watch her in action, and adorable the way she smiles, bows and flirts with other dogs Trisha has average, happy energy! She is easy to manage on a leash and very pleasant to walk with. She will occasionally get a little nervous around loud and busy street activity, but she loves rolling in the grass, running and exploring. But most of all, she loves spending time socializing with the volunteers and the other dogs she walks with or meets along the way.

Trisha is young and has a lot of living to do and would love to share it with fun-loving people. She approximately 1 1/2 years old and is looking for an active and loving family or couple that will give her a safe, secure, fun and happy home. If you have another dog or two for her to hang out with, she would love that

She currently resides at the San Gabriel Valley Humané Society located at 851 E. Grand Avenue in San Gabriel with her roommate. We are located off San Gabriel Blvd., north of Mission and south of Las Tunas. To arrange a 'Meet and Greet' with Trisha, please stop by any time from 10:00am to 4:30pm Tuesday thru Sunday.

Her adoption fee is $120 which includes a microchip, spay surgery, first vaccinations and a free wellness check-up at a participating veterinarian. ### 16TH ANNUAL WIGGLE WAGGLE WALK COMING SEPTEMBER 28

Community dog walk, fundraiser for the Pasadena Humane Society sets $375,000 goal

PASADENA, Calif. (July 30, 2014) - - Animal lovers are invited to put their best feet forward at the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA's 16th Annual Wiggle Waggle Walk - a community fundraiser for animals - at Brookside Park adjacent to the Rose Bowl. Organizers hope to raise $375,000 through the event, which and asking family, friends and co-workers for will provide food, shelter and medical care to donations. Non-walkers, and those unable to homeless animals, nearly 12,000 of which are attend the event, can also create fundraising taken in by the PHS every year. The walk will start at 9 a.m. on Sunday, September 28.

Thousands of people and their dogs are expected to take part in the walk. Walkers and their dogs can choose either a one-mile or three-mile route around the outside of the Rose Bowl stadium before enjoying a free Pet Expo at Brookside Park. Participants do not need a dog to join the fun—just a desire to help animals—and they can walk individually or form teams.

"The Wiggle Waggle Walk is a community event for animal lovers," says Steve McNall, president and CEO of the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA. "This is our biggest fundraiser of the year. We would not be able to provide the level of care to all the animals in our nine-city service area without the community's support."

Participants are encouraged to fundraise for the animals by creating personal web pages through the Wiggle Waggle Walk website web pages through this site. Entrants who raise $50 will receive an official Wiggle Waggle Walk T-shirt. Registration is free.

Check-in starts at 8 a.m. at the entrance to Brookside Park. The walk will begin at 9:00 a.m. and the Pet Expo will take place immediately after the walk until 1 p.m. The Pet Expo will feature K-9 demonstrations, a variety of pet product booths, food trucks, pawtapping music and canine contests. Brookside Park is located at 480 North Arroyo Blvd in Pasadena. Sponsors include Wells Fargo, 89.3 KPCC, VCA Animal Hospitals and Boehringer Ingelheim. ### THE JOY OF YOGA

THE DEAL WITH STRESS

Stressed? We are constantly dealing with the business and responsibility of life as it is today. Driving, phones and work, not to mention juggling kids, keeping a home and the news, can all leave us completely stressed out! The way the nervous system works, we have the fight or flight mode (sympathetic nervous system), where we are on alert and ready for task or survival. The flight response is triggered by a perception of a threat by a thought. The parasympathetic nervous system or resting/digesting mode, is when we are calm and assimilating the nutrients from our

But this does not happen just because we are eating. In fact, we may be eating on the move. If we are not getting adequate nourishment from our food – yet we are eating, it could be because we are not in digestion mode. This can cause all kinds of problems in our systems. Watching a suspenseful action movie while eating will not allow the system to calm down and digest properly. Because the food is not completely digested and we are rushing around eating a salad in the car or grabbing a latte on the run, the organs get taxed. The kidneys cannot do the proper filtration job, the adrenals to produce adrenalin to keep combating stress. We can get headaches, muscle tension, fatigue, anxiety, agitated, develop IBS and or adrenal fatigue and many more worse conditions. The more time we spend in the Sympathetic mode, the more we get used to it. It is then harder to switch to resting mode where our bodies need to spend time! Yoga and meditation can help us combat the effects of our hectic life styles. Restorative yoga can put us right at ease. We need breath practices that we can learn to do anytime to help us from jumping in to flight mode. Meditation can help us to spend more time in the calm/ resting mode during waking hours and train our get a good night sleep because we are fighting our yoga, meditation and breath practice can help us get a better nights rest. I promise!

Try our restorative class on Sunday's at 5:00 or a gentle class in the morning first thing. Many of your little ailments might just fade away as you get used to leading a calmer, less stressful life.

See you in class. Namasté,

This story was originally printer on August 1, 2009. We checked and Dr. Brown is still meed a doctor: mope, not me. I don't need to pay a doctor all that money for 4 minutes and 30 seconds of his time. I've got the internet and besides, I'm a Medic and have studied anatomy. Yeah, I've got this handled . . . well almost. So, here's my story.

The other night I woke with a knife-like pain in my upper right quadrant of my abdomen. So at 3 AM I go on to the internet at a favorite doctor site and it helps point out that my appendix may be rupturing. After reviewing my symptoms again with another website, I became even more concerned. I spend the rest of the night worrying about losing work time recovering from surgery and the cost. Finally, my wife says to either go to emergency, or suck it up and wait for Dr. Brown in Sierra Madre to open at 9AM. So I wait.

I get over to Dr. Brown's office, right there on Sierra Madre Blvd. in Sierra Madre, and he spends an amazing 90 minutes with me patiently going over all details of my history and giving me a thorough exam. Early on he agrees and says that the symptoms could very well be appendicitis. I keep my despair to myself as he continues. Finally, he asks me about my day yesterday and if I did something unusual. Nope, says I with confidence. Well
. . . actually, I did help move two washing machines but my younger helper did most of the lifting. He looks at me with a knowing grin. Perhaps, I pulled a muscle in my gut he suggests. After some more poking around, he says, "Yup, I think you strained those muscles right here" as he probes to make his point. A short grunt later I agree.

Then it hits me. Being the self-sufficient, money saver that I was, I attempted to avoid solving the problem myself. Dumb! All my past doctor visits have been done in record time (usually less than 5 minutes) and that after a 50 minute wait reading old magazines. What I ended up with was a long session with a very caring doctor who looked at all aspects of my life and physical condition to evaluate my complaint. This experience was a first for me. And . . . Doctor Brown saw me precisely at my

The session ended with a check of my eating habits and a recommendation to take certain vitamins. He even encouraged me to contact him with any follow-up questions I might have. Huh? This must be a dream, but no, it's Doc Brown has an amazing background of experience and is actually interested in preventing problems, unlike many other doctors. He strikes me as the old fashioned type of doctor who used to come to the house with his black bag, yet he's totally modern in his knowledge of medicine. I wish more doctors could be like him. He actually cares and has the knowledge to back it up, and he wasn't even expensive!

THE GOOD LIFE

IS LIFE INSURANCE NEEDED IN RETIREMENT?

Dear Savvy Senior:

Is life insurance needed in retirement? I'm about to retire and have been thinking about dropping my policy to escape the premiums. Is this a good idea? Over Insured

Dear Over:

While many retirees choose to stop paying their life insurance premiums when they no longer have young families to take care of, there are a few reasons you may still want to keep your policy. Here are some different points to consider that can help you determine if you still need life insurance in retirement.

Dependents: Life insurance is designed to help protect your spouse and children from poverty in the case of your untimely death. But if your children are grown and are on their own, and you have sufficient financial resources to cover you and your spouse's retirement costs, then there is little need to continue to have life insurance.

But, if you had a child late in life or have a relative with special needs who is dependent on you for income, it makes sense to keep paying the premiums on your policy.

You also need to make sure your spouse's retirement income will not take a significant hit when you die. Check out the conditions of your pension or annuity (if you have them) to see if they stop paying when you die, and factor in your lost Social Security income too. If you find that your spouse will lose a significant portion of income upon your death, you may want to keep the policy to help make up the difference.

Work: Will you need to take another job in retirement to earn income? Since life insurance helps replace lost income to your family when you die, you may want to keep your policy if your spouse or other family members are relying on that income. If, however, you have very little income from your retirement job, then there's probably no need to continue with the policy.

Estate taxes: Life insurance can also be a handy estate-planning tool. If, for example, you own a business that you want to keep in the family and you don't have enough liquid assets to take care of the estate taxes, you can sometimes use a life insurance policy to help your heirs pay off Uncle

It's a good idea to talk to a disinterested third party (not your insurance agent), like an estate planning expert or a fee-only financial planner to help you determine if your life insurance policy can help you with this.

Life Settlement Option

If you find that you don't need your life insurance policy any longer, you may want to consider selling it in a "life settlement" transaction to a third party company for more than the cash surrender value would be, but less than its net death benefit. The best candidates are people over age 65 who own a

Once you sell your policy, however, the life settlement company becomes the new owner, pays the future premiums and collects the death

How much money you can expect to get with a life settlement will depend on your age, health and life expectancy, the type of insurance policy, the premium costs and the value of your policy. Most sellers generally get 12 to 25 percent of the

If you're interested in this option, get quotes from several brokers or life settlement providers. Also, find out what fees you'll be required to pay. To locate credible providers or brokers, the Life Insurance Settlement Association provides a referral service at lisa.org.

KATIE Tse.....This and That IF YOU GIVE A CAT A STEROID...

was President, the longest baseball game at Wrigley Field lasted 22 innings, and the lowest August temperature in Cleveland was a cool 38°F. But such was not the case in southern California. Rather than being remembered for this trivia, the summer of 1982 was remembered as a particularly bad flea season. However, the fleas didn't bother me. I was six months away from being born, so I was well insulated.

My grandma had gone to visit family in Michigan, and left my mom in charge of watching Boots, her cat. Being pregnant and having other distractions, Mom did not immediately realize that Gran's house had become infested with fleas! They had taken up residence in the shag carpet (this was early 80's, remember). One day when she went to feed Boots, Mom found him languishing on the carpet, his blood-drained body nearly dry to the bone. (Think Terry Thomas in "The Abominable Dr. Phibes." You must see this dark comedy classic if you haven't already!)

She and Dad took quick action and brought Boots to a vet in Arcadia. He prescribed steroid treatments that were administered in a series of shots. Boots gradually recovered, and by the time Gran returned from her trip with a small kitten named Squeaky, he had regained his pre-drained plumpness. But unbeknownst to everyone, "The Madness of Boots" had begun.

Squeaky was, as the name implies, a small, timid female cat. Boots took an instant overprotective attitude toward her, and was often subject to fits

It was summer, 1982. Reagan of jealous rage. Gran's living room had a large floor-to-ceiling window that looked out over the quiet street she lived on. If Boots happened to see another cat outside he hurled himself against the window, practically frothing at the mouth. But, not being able to fight off his "competitor," Boots lashed out at the closest living thing, which was typically Gran's leg.

> It was around this time that Boots also developed small bony protrusions on his forehead, like little horns. Gran tried to keep his anger at bay, but it was not always possible. I was about four by this time, and Gran would often watch me while Mom was at work. It was on one of these days that Boots went into another violent fit, and sank his fangs deep into Gran's ankle. With Gran down, I was left in his pathway. But seconds before he lunged at me, Gran dove between us and quickly pulled me into the safety of a closet. When Mom arrived that afternoon, she found "what looked like a crime scene!" The white carpet was streaked with bloody footprints leading toward the front door. She heard a muffled sound coming from the closet, "Mary! We're in here!"

By now Boots' bloodlust had ended, and he was placidly munching Kibbles &

The life and times of Boots ended a few years later when my mom and dad found him stiff behind the loveseat. We never learned what, exactly, caused his mania. Did his near brush with death push him over the edge? Had he been injected with some potent cocktail of hormones? Whatever was to blame, the lesson of the story is to be very careful if you give a cat a steroid...

THE ROSEBUDS

North Carolina indie rock duo are set to release their sixth studio album, "Sand + Silence" on August 5th.The record was produced by Justin Vernon of Bon Iver. Vernon and his Bon Iver bandmate Matt McCaughan are present by diving in on guitar, keyboards, and drums. While a new Bon Iver isn't planned in the foreseeable future, the real question is posed; will The Rosebuds finally break out of indie obscurity with their latest endeavor? Their first single, "Blue Eyes" is a big, summery indie gem. It's the epitome of an indie rock tune of the early 00s. In fact, the record has a certain charismatic approach to it. "Sand + Silence" boosts expert lyrics, big harmonies and beautiful melodies. From ballads to cheerful tunes to slick rock tracks, the record navigates a lot of terrain. For the most part, the record stands as jovial and upbeat. However, the lyrics run deep with an optimistic outlook on the uncertainties of life.

Kelly Crisp and Ivan Howard, the duo behind The Rosebuds kick off their record with "In My Teeth." It's an overly simplistic and positive song that is carried effortlessly with effervescent guitars. "Sand + Silence," sounds like something between Bon Iver and Justin Vernon's other band, Volcano Choir would have crafted. It's soulful and hypotonic. Clearly Vernon's hand was involved with this beautiful track. A "Give Me A Reason," one of the ballads off the record is quite mesmerizing. A touching, heartfelt, sensitive experience could easily describe the aforementioned tune. Howard's crooning vocals are warm and achingly beautiful. "Give Me A Reason," describes finding a new love, amidst the uncertainty that is entangled with it. After listening to this one, you'll know it's one of the best tracks on the compilation. "Death Of An Old Bike" ventures into this story about making changes within. If you're tired of whom you have become, be done with your old self and make way for a better tomorrow. The song deals with individual development. The harmonies are way too good to ignore. "Death Of An Old Bike" is easily the most endearing song found here. Closing track, "Tiny Bones," feels fitting. It's a song that blows down the tempo of the album ever so softly. Howard's falsetto is in play and works incredibly well with the layouts of drum beats and guitar riffs. The song finishes with the gentle sound of night rain making the entire album feel more than just music but an experience to fade off into the night with.

'Walking" is probably the only true filler track I heard here. At under two minutes and rather ordinary, among some truly extraordinary songs, the tune didn't hit the right chords with me. The other ten tracks glide and touch the soul in many ways. Some stand out more so than others, but even those that don't still find a way into your heart. Overall, The Rosebuds have crafted yet another exquisite record that will only be a shadow among the overproduced, redundant material found in popular music. If you're seeking change in a world that has your down, let "Sand + Silence" point you in the right direction. Although, at any rate, let it be your listening selection as you make your way to the place or person you want to be.

Grade: 8.5 out of 10 Key Tracks: "Sand + Silence," "Give Me A Reason," "Blue Eyes," "Death Of An Old Bike"

Mom & Me & Mom by Maya Angelou
The legendary author shares the deepest personal story of her life: her relationship with her mother. For the first time, Angelou reveals the triumphs and struggles of being the daughter of Vivian Baxter, an indomitable spirit whose petite size belied her larger than life presence, a presence absent during much of Angelou's early life. When her marriage began to crumble, Vivian sent 3 year old Maya and her older brother away from their California home to live with their grandmother in Arkansas. The subsequent feelings of abandonment stayed with Angelou for years, but their reunion, a decade later, began a story that has never before been told. Angelou dramatizes her years reconciling with the mother she preferred to simply call "Lady," revealing the profound moments that shifted the balance of love and respect between them.Delving into one of her life's most rich, rewarding, and fraught relationships, Mom & Me & Mom explores the healing and love that evolved between the two women over the course of their lives, the love that fostered Maya's rise from immeasurable depths to reach impossible heights.

Liberty's Torch: The Great Adventure to Build the Statue of Liberty by Elizabeth Mitchell

The Statue of Liberty is one of the most recognizable monuments in the world, a powerful symbol of freedom and the American dream. For decades, the myth has persisted that the statue was a grand gift from France, but Mitchell reveals how she was in fact the pet project of one visionary French sculptor, Frédéric Bartholdi. He not only forged this 151-foot-tall statue in a workshop in Paris and transported her across the ocean, but battled for money to make her a reality. Inspired by a trip to Egypt where he saw the pyramids, he traveled to America carrying the idea of a giant statue of a woman. There he enlisted the help of notable people including Ulysses S. Grant, Joseph Pulitzer, Victor Hugo, Gustave Eiffel, and Thomas Edison to help his scheme. While the French and American governments dithered, Bartholdi made the statue a reality by his own entrepreneurship, vision, and determination.

American Catch: The Fight for Our Local Seafood by Paul Greenberg

This award winning author uncovers the tragic unraveling of the nation's seafood supply, why Americans have stopped eating from their own waters? In 2005, the United States imported five billion pounds of seafood, nearly double what we imported twenty years earlier. Bizarrely, during that same period, our seafood exports quadrupled. The book examines New York oysters, Gulf shrimp, and Alaskan salmon to reveal how it came to be that 91 percent of the seafood Americans eat is foreign. In the 1920s, the average New Yorker ate six hundred local oysters a year. Today, the only edible oysters lie outside city limits. Following the trail of environmental desecration, Greenberg comes to view the New York City oyster as a reminder of what is lost when local waters are not valued as a food source. On visiting the Gulf of Mexico, he finds that the immediate threat to business comes from overseas. Asian farmed shrimp,cheap, abundant, have flooded the market. Finally, he visits Alaska, home to the biggest wild sockeye salmon run in the world. Bristol Bay is now at great risk: The proposed Pebble Mine project could undermine the spawning grounds that make this great run possible. Why is this precious resource not better protected? Greenberg encounters a shocking truth: the majority of Alaskan salmon is sent out of the country, much of it to Asia. Sockeye salmon is one of the most nutritionally dense animal proteins on the planet, yet we are shipping it abroad. Some hope abounds. In New York, Greenberg connects an oyster restoration project for how the bivalves might save the city from rising tides. In the Gulf, shrimpers band together to offer local catch direct to consumers. And in Bristol Bay, fishermen, and environmentalists, gather to roadblock Pebble Mine. Paul Greenberg proposes a way to break the current destructive patterns of consumption and return American catch back to American

7TH ANNUAL IDENTITY FESTIVAL

The 7th annual Identity Festival organized by the Armenian Community Coalition of Pasadena was a smashing success on Sunday, July 20, 2015. Victory Park that day was transformed into a bee hive with more than 4,000 people, Armenians and non-Armenians alike, from all walks of life were in and out through out the day from 12:00 noon to 7:00 p.m. in the evening. This event was cosponsored by Congresswoman Judy Chu, The City of Pasadena and the Pasadena Library.

The theme of the day was to celebrate the 125th anniversary of the first Armenian settlement in the city of Pasadena, which was incorporated into cityhood just three years earlier. I was pleasantly impressed that the Mistresses of the Ceremony were young and talented Armenian Ladies from our community, namely Nayri Krouzian and Serah Chahinian, who masterfully conducted the program in English and Armenian respectively. Another young artist, Sevag Chahinian, was the D.J. for the day.

The festivities of the day began with an acapela rendition of the American and Armenian National Anthems by Maral Kurdian, a junior at the Armenian General Benevolent Union's Vatche and Tamar Manougian High School in Pasadena. She mesmerized the audience by her beautiful voice.

Among the dignitaries attending the festival was Congresswoman Judy Chu, who reflected upon the contributions of some the famous Armenian scientists, inventors and entrepreneurs, who had helped advance the technology, which made America a better place to live and prosper. She then presented several Certificates of Congressional Recognition to some of the hard working members of the Armenian Community Coalition of Pasadena.

Pasadena Mayor Bill Bogaard, addressing the audience said that "This festival demonstrates how deep the roots are for the Armenian community. We welcome and celebrate different cultures and learn from one another. That makes Pasadena a more enjoyable and a more stimulating city."

Pasadena Police Chief Phillip Sanchez congratulated the Armenian Community Coalition on the occasion of the 7th annual Identity Festival and said that "We have a great city and a great police department and many of the lessons learned come from our Armenian brothers and sisters. The influence you have in Pasadena is extraordinary, in medicine, engineering, and entrepreneurship." He then continued saying, "I'm proud to announce that in the great history of the Pasadena Police Department, about six months ago, we hired our first Armenian woman."

Assemblyman Chris Holden and Glendale City Councilwoman Lorry Friedman also addressed the audience, congratulating the Armenian Community Coalition and reiterating the important role of the Armenians in their respective district and city.

Dr. Hovhannes Ahmaranian and Kevork Keushkerian spoke on behalf of the Armenian Community Coalition of Pasadena in Armenian and English, respectively. They both dwelled upon the fact that Armenians had settled in Pasadena 125 years ago and that now the Armenian population in Pasadena had grown to have 4 schools, 6 churches, 4 cultural organizations and 2 weekly newspapers.

They also mentioned that the first settler, Mr. Movses Pashgian, had become the Grand Marshall in the Tournament of Roses Parade in 1915. Coincidentally, 100 years later, the first Armenian Rose Float will parade along the 5.5 mile route on Colorado Blvd. on January 1, 2015. This will be a unique opportunity for Armenians to share their 7000 year old rich cultural heritage with the whole world, making them proud and resolute to pass the torch on to the next generation.

Entertainment was provided throughout the day by a selected host of singers and dancers; such as Nshan Tchaghatsbanian, Kevork Chakmayan, Gantegh (Lantern) choir, Pateel (Snow Flake) and Nor Serount (New Generation) Dance Groups and Vartan & Seranoush Kevorkian Dance Ensemble. The audience was elated by their performances and gave them loud applauses and constantly shouted words of praise.

Finally, it was time for cutting the 125th anniversary cake. Congresswoman Chu, Mayor Bogaard and Police Chief Sanchez, along with Chris Chahinian, Chairman of the Armenian Community Coalition of Pasadena participated in the cake cutting ceremony. The cake was donated by Sarkis Pastry of Pasadena. The cake was big enough to satisfy all the children and the adults of the community who happened to be there at around 4:30 p.m.

SACRAMENTO, -;Assemblymember Roger Hernández (D-West Covina) announced he will be honored with the Solidarity with Immigrant Workers Award by the California Labor Federation during the 2014 Biennial Convention, which takes place on July 29-30 in San Diego. "I want to thank Executive Secretary-

Treasurer Art Pulaski and the California Labor Federation for this great honor being bestowed upon me. It gives me great pleasure to accept this honor on behalf of all the men and women of labor. To many, California is the American Dream," stated Hernández. Hernández is being honored for his work in protecting the rights of immigrants in the state who often face retaliation, fear and intimidation in the workplace. Last year, Hernández sponsored AB 263, which was signed by Governor Brown to protect immigrant workers against retaliation on the jobsite against unscrupulous employers who take advantage of their employee's legal status. Also, Hernández introduced AB 1897 in 2014 which provides protections to temporary workers when companies use staffing agencies and other labor contractors to supply workers.

"Many employers follow the letter of the law, pay great wages, provide benefits and look after workers' safety, but often times, some employers take advantage of their workforce. These employees work hard for their wages and to provide for their families. I will continue to fight for the rights of others and protect the erosion of the middle class against employers who take advantage of Californians," said Hernández.

The California Labor Federation is made up of more than 1,200 AFL-CIO unions, representing 2.1 million union members in the manufacturing, retail, construction, hospitality, public sector, health care, entertainment and other

Cassini Reveals 101 Geysers on Icy Saturn Moon

Scientists using mission data from NASA's Cassini spacecraft have identified 101 distinct geysers erupting on Saturn's icy moon Enceladus. Their analysis suggests it is possible for liquid water to reach from that moon's underground sea all the way to its surface.

These findings, and clues to what powers the geyser eruptions, are presented in two articles published in the current online edition of the Astronomical Journal.

Over a period of almost seven years, Cassini's cameras surveyed the south polar terrain of the small moon, a unique geological basin renowned for its four prominent "tiger stripe" fractures and the geysers of tiny icy particles and water vapor first sighted there nearly 10 years ago. The result of the survey is a map of 101 geysers, each erupting from one of the tiger stripe fractures, and the discovery that individual geysers are coincident with small hot spots. These relationships pointed the way to the geysers' origin.

After the first sighting of the geysers in 2005, scientists suspected that repeated flexing of Enceladus by Saturn's tides as the moon orbits the planet had something to do with their behavior. One suggestion included the back-andforth rubbing of opposing walls of the fractures generating frictional heat that turned ice into geyser-forming vapor and liquid.

Alternate views held that the opening and closing of the fractures allowed water vapor from below to reach the surface. Before this new study, it was not clear which process was the dominating influence. Nor was it certain whether excess heat emitted by Enceladus was everywhere correlated with geyser activity.

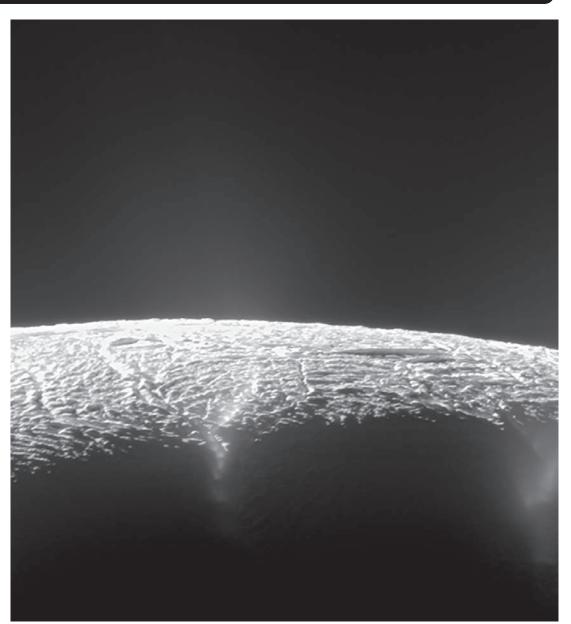

To determine the surface locations of the geysers, researchers employed the same process of triangulation used historically to survey geological features on Earth, such as mountains. When the researchers compared the geysers' locations with low-resolution maps of thermal emission, it became apparent the greatest geyser activity coincided with the greatest thermal radiation. Comparisons between the geysers and tidal stresses revealed similar connections. However, these correlations alone were insufficient to answer the question, "What produces what?"

The answer to this mystery came from comparison of the survey results with highresolution data collected in 2010 by Cassini's heat-sensing instruments. Individual geysers were found to coincide with small-scale hot spots, only a few dozen feet (or tens of meters) across, which were too small to be produced by frictional heating, but the right size to be the result of condensation of vapor on the nearsurface walls of the fractures. This immediately implicated the hot spots as the signature of the geysering process.

"Once we had these results in hand, we knew right away heat was not causing the geysers, but vice versa," said Carolyn Porco, leader of the Cassini imaging team from the Space Science Institute in Boulder, Colorado, and lead author of the first paper. "It also told us the geysers are not a near-surface phenomenon, but have much deeper roots."

Thanks to recent analysis of Cassini gravity data, the researchers concluded the only plausible source of the material forming the geysers is the sea now known to exist beneath the ice shell. They also found that narrow pathways through the ice shell can remain open from the sea all the way to the surface, if filled with liquid water.

THE OLIVE TREE - How to process olives for food, and make oil

Christopher Nyerges

Olives have been valued since ancient times for their fruit and for their oil. Drought-tolerant, evergreen trees were brought to North America from Europe and they have done quite well here. Because of this, they are widely planted in parks, along streets, on school campuses, and in housing complexes where a "California look" is desired.

When the mission system came into California, the native way of life was displaced, overrun, and largely destroyed as a functioning viable lifestyle. As part of the agricultural system brought by the missionaries from Spain, the so-called mission olives were brought here and planted at most of the missions. Other now-seemingly ubiquitous plants were the mission figs and the mission

Old olive trees, laden with their dark purple fruits, providing shade around the old missions, seemed to be the quintessential tree of California as mission era segued to ranch era.

And olives are still very popular today as landscaping trees, dropping their olives for gardeners to rake up and discard. But rare is the person who realizes you can collect and eat these olives. They are olives, after all, and everyone sees cans of olives in the store but isn't clear how to turn the olives that fall to the ground into something tasty. If you bite into a fresh raw olive that you've picked up from the ground, it's astringent and not flavorful.

How are they prepared? Is it hard to do? Is it

When I was growing up, our next door neighbor, Mrs. Yamada, would always process her own olives from a tree in their backyard and from olives they collected from local trees. She used the lye process, and kept a five gallon crock in her cellar where she did the processing. Once, when I was about 13, she took me down there to show me the crock full of olives. It was interesting, but I didn't learn how to process them just by looking at a crock full of olives. In time, I learned that there are many ways to process olives.

The lye solution is one of the most common ways to process olives. Yes, the same lye that you could use to help open clogged drains, which you need to wear gloves if you use it because the lye is so caustic. In fact, many cans of lye say right on their labels how you can use it to process olives. I have processed olives with lye many times, but never liked using such a dangerous product in order to produce an edible food. Weren't olives commonly used in the Middle East and much of Europe centuries ago? Would they have used lye, I wondered?

It turned out that peoples of the past processed their olives using only salt. Today, I no longer use lye for processing olives, but instead buy a few boxes of table salt. Here is an example of what I

I select olives that are not bruised. Once I collect the olives, I wash them. Sometimes – but not always - I pit the olives using an olive-pitter, a device which is not common. I generally try to process as many olives as possible because it takes the same amount of work and time to process a cup of olives as it does to process five gallons. In general, I end up with about a gallon of olives each time I process. I select olives that are not bruised.

I put them into a container, which is usually plastic or glass, depending on what is handy. For a gallon container, I will dissolve one full (round) box of 26 ounces of salt in water and pour it over the olives. This is a very salty brine, and I just let the bucket sit for about two weeks. I place a cheesecloth cover over the bucket to keep out bugs or dirt. After the two weeks, I pour off the water, rinse it, and then add water in which only a half box of salt has been dissolved, and this time let it set for just a week. At this point, you can begin to taste the fruits to see if they are ok to eat. Generally, I do at least one more weak brine solution before they are ready to eat. Then I pack them into glass jars with a little salt, some garlic and other seasonings, and refrigerate them. They seem to last for years this way since I have had some that were over 10 years old and were still good.

Of course, if you don't want to refrigerate, you need to do proper canning, and there are several books and classes which will teach you how to do that safely.

What I learned about processing olives came from seeing what other people did, asking a lot of questions, and trial and error. One of the best sources of information on the home processing of olives is a pamphlet called "Home Pickling of Olives" published by University of California, Cooperative Extension, Berkeley, CA 94720. OLIVE OIL

How about olive oil? Before I knew how to make olive oil, I figured that it couldn't be all that complicated because people in the ancient world figured it out. Since all of the literature I had collected told me how to process the olives, but not how to make olive oil, I began by asking the olive oil vendors at farmers markets. I would just simply ask, "How do you make your oil?" Surprisingly to me, they all just smiled but were not forthcoming in their methods of processing. I assumed that this was because there were some mysterious proprietary secrets to doing this.

vary, and the manner of pressing varies, to make olive oil you simply crush the olives so that the oil is expressed. You collect the oil and let it settle. Once it has settled, you can readily filter out any dirt and any water. That's all there is to it!

The first time I processed a batch of olive oil, I used an Acme food processor and juicer. My friend David Arzouman and I first decided to remove the pits from each olive. Obviously, in commercial operations, this is not done because it's time consuming, tedious, and simply not necessary. But we felt we should do it for our small experiment.

We carefully packed the olive pulp into a large cloth container, and then put it back into the processor and turned it on so that it began to press on the pulp. We did this slowly and eventually a clear liquid flowed from the machine. We collected about two cups of pure olive oil, and discarded the pulp.

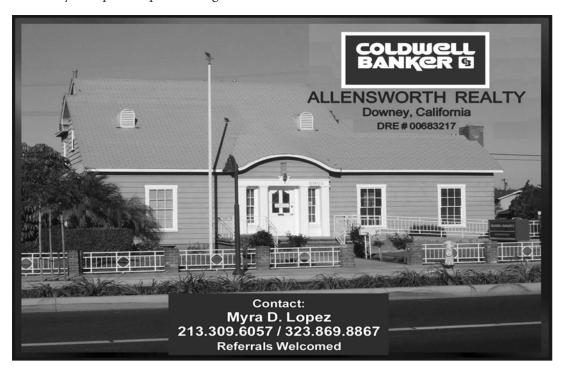

We let our oil settle in a glass jar. Within an hour or so, a little debris was floating on the top, which we easily removed. On the bottom was a little water. So, what naturally happens is that the oil and water separate. We carefully divided the clear pure oil into two containers so we could both take some home to use. It had a remarkably clean flavor. It was subtle, and very good, and went well with salad dressing and sautéing eggs. Both David and I found it to be the best olive oil we've ever had.

Apparently, there are different grades of olive oil in the normal world of commerce: Extra virgin, virgin, and just olive oil. Within each of these three grades can be found several types. The extra virgin and virgin olive oil is the first pressing of the olives and no heat or chemicals are applied. The extra virgin is ideally suited for use raw, such as in salads, and must have an acidity level of less than 0.225%. The virgin olive oil is ok for cooking, and its acidity level must be below 2%. Other olive oils that have an acid level of 3.3% or more are further refined with heat and chemicals. This is sometimes called refined oil.

So, the pure clean oil that David and I produced would be considered extra virgin olive oil, the very best!

The common olive is a member of the Olive Family (Oleaceae). This family contains about 25 genera and 900 species world-wide. Although the genus Olea contains 20 species, only Olea europaea occurs in the wild in California. Others may be found in cultivation.

Legal Steps to Take When Facing a Dementia Diagnosis

Locals love you

Locally owned, independent merchants return

Maria Shriver knows the devastation of planner can help preserve assets for future long-Alzheimer's disease firsthand. Her beloved father Sargent Shriver, founder of the Peace Corps and one-time candidate for Vice President of the United States, died of the disease in 2011 after being diagnosed in 2003. Often called "the long goodbye," Alzheimer's disease affects more than five million Americans and its prevalence will continue to grow as the population ages. Shriver recently reported for NBC.com on the five things Alzheimer's or dementia victims should do once a diagnosis has been confirmed, and she is spot on:

- 1. Execute powers of attorney and advance medical directives. These allow for the designation of a trusted person or persons to make financial and medical decisions before cognitive impairments
- 2. Create an estate plan. If you do not have a written plan that designates how your assets will be distributed upon your death, you need to create one. If one exists, check it over for any necessary updates to beneficiaries or the addition of any assets acquired after the original plan was made.
- 3. Create an asset preservation plan. Asset preservation is usually critical for those diagnosed with Alzheimer's or other forms of dementia. An estate planning attorney and/or a financial

4. Communicate. Once diagnosed, you should have a conversation with your family about your decisions for your care. Let them know where important documents are stored. As part of your legacy planning, we can help you capture and pass on your own story and wishes for your loved ones through a special recording we provide for each of our clients.

5. Do it sooner rather than later. Alzheimer's and other dementia diseases are progressive illnesses, so prompt action is necessary to ensure protection for you and your loved ones.

THINKING OF SHRINKING

It's not just the economy - there are lots of reasons that people choose to downsize. It could be retirement, a recently emptied nest, or just plain "maintenance fatigue." Whatever the reason, plan your new lifestyle carefully.

When you search for a smaller home, don't forget that Location is still the key ingredient. Even if you don't have kids or they've flown the coop, a good school district and proximity to public transportation and recreation are still the best bets for retaining value.

If this will be a retirement move, think about the future and seek out homes on one level, or at the very least, with the master bedroom on the ground floor. For practicality's sake, at least one bathroom should be handicap-accessible or easily remodeled as such. Even if you don't think you'll need it later on, your visitors might appreciate the convenience.

If downsizing to you means less maintenance, you may be tempted by town home or condominium living, but be aware of "hidden costs," like annual or monthly homeowners association fees. Check recent association meeting reports to see if there is a building renovation planned, as you could be hit with an assessment fee in the future, too.

There are a lot of considerations in advance of your move, so ask an agent for more advice and enjoy your new lifestyle!

Wait up Twitter!

I can't keep up with Twitter. Sound familiar? In order to appreciate Twitter, you have to know how to slow it down and filter out the noise. Categorizing users into "Lists" helps you organize the people or topics you follow.

You can create your own lists or subscribe to a list created by someone else. When you click on the list, it will show a stream from only the users on that list. To create a new list, go to your main profile page (you'll find that by clicking on "me"). Select "Lists" under "More" in the top bar navigation. "Create new list" and decide if this is a public or a private list. If you make it public, other people can see it and subscribe to it. Add users (@name) to your list, then test it. Select your list (under "More). Only the recent tweets from those users will show up.

You can also subscribe to a list created by someone else.

For example, if you go to the L.A. Times Twitter page, click on their lists. Often a newspaper will create lists of their writers and editors. When you select a list that someone else has created, you have the opportunity to subscribe to it and the list will be added to your main

A few weeks ago, an entrepreneur client confided that she felt like a failure. She sighted the diverse career path she had traveled over the years as evidence. She was about to embark on a new venture, and she was fighting it. The thought "I shouldn't be changing career directions again" was stopping her dead in her tracks.

The truth is creative people (and I've never met an entrepreneur that wasn't) are curious.

They explore and experiment. Their work histories are diverse... but that doesn't make them "bad." The only thing that makes them "bad" is us. Because we are saying

In the book Refuse to Choose, Barbara Sher talks about multiple interests and suggests that we not deny them. That we make room to do all the things that we feel passionate about.

It is a beautiful fusion of all I've learned and loved up until now. Even positions I had labeled "a waste of time," at the time. Nothing has been wasted. The good, the bad and the ugly have landed me in this moment, doing work I love. As I continue to be guided by my heart, I will remain on my right path.

And it will be the same for my client. And for you. Follow what excites you. It may not look "logical." Others may disapprove. Does it feel like the right thing? Every path, every step, is unique. No one knows yours but you. Give yourself permission to be true. No one else can.

HOWARD Hays As I See It

This was printed in August 2009 with but today are not the same issues with us in other parts of the world?

In 1992 I walked my precinct for presidential candidate Bill Clinton and U.S. Senate candidate Dianne Feinstein. My neighborhood was largely Hispanic, and in one household I was invited in to discuss the contests. I was asked what I knew of Feinstein's opponent. Tailoring my remarks to the audience, I explained that the Republican in the race was one of those who blamed most everything - crime, the economy, unemployment, failing schools on Mexican immigrants. My host nodded in recognition, saying that as one whose family had roots in Mexico he found such scapegoating to be divisive and unacceptable. "Besides", he added, "it's those damn Salvadorans who're causing all the problems".

I'm a bit defensive on that subject; a favorite family member is the beautiful bride a cousin brought back from El Salvador following a stint in the Peace Corps. Since moving to Southern California, I've developed an appreciation for the contributions the Salvadorans, Costa Ricans, Nicaraguans, Guatemalans, Panamanians and Hondurans (almost forgot Belizeans) have made to the fabric of our region almost 400,000 with roots in Central America residing in L.A. County. In a nation of immigrants where we all have stories to tell, I've wondered about the stories of those from that handful of countries which, for most of the last century, comprised the most troubled region in our hemisphere. I wonder how they feel about a chain of trendy clothing stores being named "Banana being named Republic".

The term "banana republic" originated in a short story by O. Henry, used to describe a fictional country inspired by a trip he'd taken to Honduras in the late 1890's. Prior to that, the main allure of Honduras to outsiders was its silver, which drew Spanish conquistadors centuries before. After the turn of the last century, it was bananas - and the Cuyamel Fruit Co., later merging with United Fruit Co., and Standard Fruit Co. (now known as Dole Foods) basically controlling the land, the wealth, the economies and the governments of Honduras and its Central American neighbors for the next fifty years. Major urban areas became virtual "company towns". Companies used the leaders and militaries of host countries to crush populist opposition movements, and to stage cross-border incursions against neighboring governments threatening to exercise more domestic control over their affairs. In this they often had the support of the U.S. military - seeking to protect not only the companies' interests, but also our own interest in the Panama Canal Zone.

In the second half of the century, armed intervention continued not so much on behalf of the banana barons but rather as proxy battles in the Cold War. Democratically elected leaders, such as those in Guatemala who said they drew inspiration from FDR's New Deal, were overthrown in CIA-backed Wealthy oligarchies and corrupt dictatorships that protected U.S. corporate interests also served as a bulwark against left-leaning reform movements. Instability in Honduras peaked in the 1980's when, after the Sandinistas took power in Nicaragua in 1979 and won a popular election in 1983, the U.S.-backed Contras, funded by arms sales to Iran and drug sales through Panama, used Honduras as a staging area for its attacks on the Nicaraguan government. In return for U.S. aid, Honduran officials acquiesced as its military joined in the notorious Battalion 316, whose members were taught the techniques of abduction, suppression, torture and the "disappearing" of civilians by Pinochet's henchmen from Argentina and the CIA. All this history, though, is so-last-century; Central America is now a region of stable democracies and peaceful transitions of power - that is until last month.

On June 28, Honduran President Manuel Zelaya was abducted by the military and flown into exile forbidden to re-enter the country. No doubt actions he'd already taken were perceived as threatening to the ruling elite, such as raising the minimum wage by 60%, increasing teachers' salaries and improving access to education. The justification offered, that Zelaya was attempting an illegal revision of the Constitution in order to run for re-election. didn't make sense. The measure he proposed was a non-binding opinion poll to gauge public sentiment on whether to have a referendum on reforming the Constitution. The referendum would appear on the same November ballot where voters would choose Zelaya's successor, who'd take office in January. Ironically, Honduran Congressman Roberto Micheletti, installed by the military to replace Zelaya, in 1985 was involved in an unsuccessful effort to revise the Constitution in order to - you guessed it - allow the then-president to run for re-election.

A distressingly familiar litany of events followed; journalists and opposition figures detained, a media blackout, military and police firing at peaceful protesters (tens of thousands in a country of 7.5 million, with at least two killed). The Organization of American States and the U.N. General Assembly promptly called for the "immediate and unconditional return" of President Zelaya. Our own government seemed to kind of hope that maybe things would sort of work themselves

It might be our history; many still in Washington remain nostalgic for the days when the legitimacy of a government was assessed not by its popular support but by the extent it allowed human and natural resources to be exploited by our corporate interests. There are personal connections; Honduran coup leader Gen. Romeo Vasquez is a product of our own School of the Americas, joining an alumni comprised of leaders of military coups and right-wing death squads. Campaign advisors for Secretary of State Hillary Clinton in last year's presidential campaign are now lobbying on behalf of the "new" Honduran government.

It's comforting to cling to the past, but now in the 21st century it's time to be able to state clearly and unequivocally that the overthrow of any democratically elected government by a military coup is unacceptable. It's time to stop regarding any nation, especially those in Central America, as a "banana republic".

UNION BADLANDS GREG Welborn

Themore things change the morethey stay the same.Read Howard Originally printed in August, but members can't retire 2009. Has anything changed your way of financial thinking since then? articleand see if you With the economic downturn and the last national election only just in are rear view mirrors, there's still a lot being written about the sins of Wall Street and corporate fat cats who have purportedly abused their customers and their employees. Interestingly the abuses of union fat cats directed against the rank and file have received nary a peep from the national press. It's time we focus a little light on these dark corners of arrogance, abuse and corruption. Most people don't understand the dynamics at work in the ubiquitous pension plan, but it's a necessary requirement to truly comprehend how union leaders have exceeded in many instances the worst sins ever imagined from corporate chieftains.

Let's start with a little pension economics 101. Unlike a 401(k), a pension plan is not a retirement plan governed by the contribution that's made. In a 401(k), workers contribute what they want – sometimes matched, sometime not, by a corporate contribution. The employees get to direct the investment choices in the competition from punishing offending plan, and at the end of their employment, whatever their 401(k) has grown to is the amount they get for their retirement.

In a pension plan, on the other hand, the contribution is not the defining element. Rather, the plan sponsor - usually the employer - defines a benefit they agree they will pay to every worker who participates upon that worker's retirement. For example, an employer might say that they are willing to pay 80% of the employee's last year's salary as a lifetime benefit. The employee counts on the fact that when he retires, there will be enough assets in the pension plan to generate sufficient income to make the promised payments for the rest of his or her life. It's a pretty simple concept.

To make it work, the plan sponsor must make enough contributions each year to insure that there will be enough assets to make the promised benefit payments. The federal government regulates these plans through the Pension Benefit Guarantee Corporation (PBGC) so that there will in fact be enough assets in the plan. From year to year, the PBGC calculates how much should be in each plan and then determines whether the assets in the plan actually equal 100% of this necessary amount or 90%, or 80%, etc.

There is some latitude extended so that sponsors can manage their cashflow. Generally speaking the PBGC allows pension plans to be funded to the 80% level before it considers the plan to be "endangered", and at 65% it's considered "critical". So there's the background against which I want to review how corporate America has performed vs. union America. You see, employers aren't the only ones who can sponsor a pension plan. Most unions sponsor a pension plan management does relative to their pension plans. So who's doing a better job?

As we review the most recent government data regarding pension plans and their funding levels, it's with some degree of irony that we find that corporate sponsored pension plans are on average well above the 80% level. It is the union sponsored and controlled plans that we find significant levels of under funding. The country's largest union, the SEIU reported that their pension plan was at 74% of its fully funded level. Thirteen of the largest Teamsters' plan clocked in collectively at 59%. Twenty six of the United Food Workers Union were at 58%. These are just a few examples of a trend which permeates the union pension

Sadly, this isn't the only place where arrogance and ill treatment at the hands of union leaders can be found. In many of these union organizations - taking the SEIU as an example, the benefits accorded the union officials are substantially better than those negotiated for the actual union members. In the SEIU, union officers get a 3% cost of living increase, the members get none. The officers qualify for an early pension at 50, early with a pension.

As a conservative, I don't easily relegate people into prejudiced categories "management" and "labor" like and (good) I believe that (bad). power corrupts and that absolute power corrupts absolutely. Accordingly, I am as suspicious of the fat cat corporate manager as I am of the labor union fat cat. Unless there are some checks and balances in the system, people with power will tend to abuse those below them without power. Our free market system is the best system designed to build in those checks and balances. In a free market, if management of any organization abuses its workers or customers, then those workers or customers will gradually - or quickly - migrate elsewhere, and the offending organization will fail or be forced to take corrective action. All this works beautifully within a system of maximum personal freedom.

Unfortunately, when the government interferes and restricts the movement of workers or customers, or prevents organizations, you find that more people suffer at the hands of incompetence and/ or corruption. The reason that more labor union pension plans are severely underfunded than corporate pension plans is because the government has in one way or another restricted worker's freedom to join or not join a union.

In those instances where getting a job means you have to join the union, it's not surprising to find that union management doesn't treat its own rank and file very well. It's only human nature. If a union boss doesn't have to pay attention to his members' concerns or doesn't have to fight for their membership because it's mandated by law, the union boss tends to take members for granted. Why would we be surprised to learn that those same union bosses have allowed the pension plans to become severely under-funded? What recourse do the members actually have?

In a corporate pension plan, employees aren't forced to work for that company and aren't forced to stay in the plan. They aren't forced to make contributions they would rather not make as they are in unions. As we consider whether to change our laws so as to shift the balance of power away from corporate "management" toward union "labor", we might consider that government actions forcing anyone to work for anyone is a sure fire recipe for disaster.

As a conservative, I'm all for a level playing field, and I'm absolutely ambivalent toward unions and union membership. If workers want to form or join a union, that's O.K. by me. If workers want to quit a union and work without representation because they trust their bosses, that's O.K. with me. If workers don't want to make contributions for the workers they represent. As such, to a union's political action committee, union management serves in the same role that's O.K. with me. And if workers want relative to their pension plans as corporate to cast their vote for or against the union in private using a secret ballot system, that's exactly what they should be allowed to do.

Conservatives don't see the world through the prejudiced lens of management vs. labor. We don't attribute virtue to one side at the expense of attributing ill intent to the other. We are objective in our assessments of right vs. wrong and steadfast in support of maintaining a level playing field for everyone without government favor showered upon one party at the expense of another. In the weeks, months and years to come, there will be plenty of opportunities for these principles to be implemented and defended, ironically enough in steadfast opposition to the counter productive policies of the Obama administration which came to power promising support for the common man.

Things I have learned in my lifetime

OUT TO PASTOR A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

In celebrating my recent birthday, I found myself caught up in a case of nostalgia. I never imagined I would really get this old. Not that I am old, mind you, but I have reached the point in life I never thought I would when I was younger. Had I known I would get this old, I would have saved some of the energy I wasted during my teenage years.

How was I to know that as you got older your supply of energy began diminishing? When I was younger, I could not sit still for long and no matter where I went, I ran. It was impossible for me just to walk. Often my mother chided me by saying, "Slow down, young man." But I never could. I have finally come to the point where I am in harmony with my mother's desire. The only problem is, I am not a young man anymore.

Today, I can sit in my easy chair for hours and not even move. I keep a little mirror on the stand next to my chair so my wife can periodically check to see if I am still breathing. Often, the only indication of life is the occasional snoring.

One thing I have learned in growing older is that my eyes are not quite what they used to be. For example, the mailbox used to be rather close to the front door of our house. Now, I can barely see it from the front door and it takes over an hour to reach it by walking. To be truthful, halfway to the mailbox I have to pause and catch my breath.

And, when I look at my checkbook, I can barely see to the end of the month. When I was young, I used to hear the saying, "A penny saved is a penny earned." Now, my eyes are so bad, I cannot see anything to buy for a penny.

Not only are my eyes going, but my hearing is not quite what it used to be when I was young. It is not as bad as it might seem. There is a good side to diminished hearing. When I am in a crowd with people talking, I can sit back, smile, nod my head occasionally and not have to be bored with what everybody is saying.

Experience has taught me that people are not really interested in hearing what I have to say. Rather, they want me listening to what they have to say. Usually, people have a lot to say and all they require are two ears. It does not have to be ears that hear, just ears that appear.

Most things heard in such circumstances are not worth hearing. Perhaps that is the genius of our ears. In aging, they develop a little bit of wisdom and after a while, they just give up, not hearing anything really worth hearing. I cannot remember the last time I heard something under such circumstances worth hearing the first time, let alone

This brings me to my memory. The best thing about memory is, you can remember things the way you want to remember them. After all, it is your memory and it should be up to you to remember what you want. My memory has a way of bringing out the positive to the absolute exclusion of the negative. And who wants to dwell on the negative?

Whoever said you cannot live in the past is probably not old enough to have any past worth remembering. And the marvelous thing about remembering things in the past is that you can remember them as you like. It is your version of the past. Some people write journals, I like to trust my

As my memory has aged, it has become better, just like a fine wine. In fact, my memory is so good I can distinctly remember things that never happened. And the details I remember are simply astounding. Each time I recount a memory I remember new details.

The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage has quite a different take on all of this. She remembers everything that actually happened. She has a photographic memory, whereas I have, according to her, a problematic memory. At her discretion, she can marshal all of the facts of the incident in the order in which it happened. Usually her memory throws my memory in a different light.

No matter how I recount my memory, she always has some correction to it. More than once, she has claimed I stretched the truth. But I believe, if the truth cannot handle some stretching what good is it in the first place? If it is so fragile and cannot handle a little bit of stretching, I am not sure it is worth remembering.

As my body gets weaker, my memory gets stronger.

In the Old Testament, David spoke often of the importance of memory. "I remember the days of old; I meditate on all thy works; I muse on the work of thy hands" (Psalms 143:5 KJV). For David, in his old age his memory brought him a great deal of comfort. "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread" (Psalms 37:25 KJV).

My goal is to live each day in such a way that years down the road I will have a good memory.

> DO I HAVE TO GO BACK TO SCHOOL?

You can help.

In your neighborhood, some parents are spending hundreds of dollars to outfit their kids for Back to School ... as others are struggling to keep a roof over their heads.

Not having the right things on the first day of class has a huge impact not only on children's self-confidence, but their readiness to learn. That's why Foothill Unity Center's annual Back to School Distribution is such an important effort.

With your support, we'll help these kids start the school year on a level playing field with new backpacks, uniforms, clothing, school supplies, even professional haircuts and manicures.

We expect to register 1,500 children grades K-12 for our 16th Back to School Distribution on August 5 at Santa Anita Park racetrack.

Can you help give them a better start to school that lasts all year long? Please send a check or click Donate Now - and play a part in changing young lives.

WHAT ON 98

August 4 - August 10, 2014

Good Morning Boys is playing Thursday at 7:00 p.m.

Released on July 26, 1937: Will Hay as teacher Benjamin Twist takes his class of rowdy boys to Paris and become involved with the theft of the Mona Lisa.

I only went on one class trip while I was in high school in Shanksville, Pennsylvania in the late 1960's. Our Spanish teacher took us on a marathon one day bus trip to Washington, D.C. where we did a quick tour of some historic highlights.

We left the night before and arrived in Washington the next morning. I remember climbing the steps of the Washington Monument to the top and back down again, and the main reason for our trip, a visit to a South American Embassy where we enjoyed a Spanish snack and tour and a short talk on the country that the Embassy represented.

Then back onto the bus and the marathon journey back to Shanksville. While memorable, it was nothing like the trip that British comedian Will Hay took with his class of boys in this amazing adventure. Americans had Laurel and Hardy, Charlie Chaplin and other fine comedians, but none compare to the unique style and personality of Will Hay.

This good natured bumbling Brit fumbles his way through adventure after adventure, always innocently stumbling into a crisis that is bigger than life, and always stumbling his way to conquering the adversaries and coming out on top. He is the embodiment of the sentiment that the angels watch over young children and fools.

In this adventure he manages to earn a trip to Paris with his class and manages to get involved with a band of thieves who steal the Mona Lisa painting from the famous Louvre Museum. Pop a big bowl of white kernel popcorn with warm melted butter on it and enjoy a fast romp through Paris with Will Hay and his motley class of mischievous miscreants.
