ALLEGED SOUTH PASADENA MASS MURDER PLOT AVERTED

First day of class peaceful at South Pasadena High as police increase foot and bicycle patrols around school

By Dean Lee

Police stepped up enforcement around all South Pasadena schools on the first day of class Thursday, a day after prosecutors officially charged two teens, aged 16 and 17, with making criminal threats to kill another teen in connection with a thwarted mass shooting plan at South Pasadena High School.

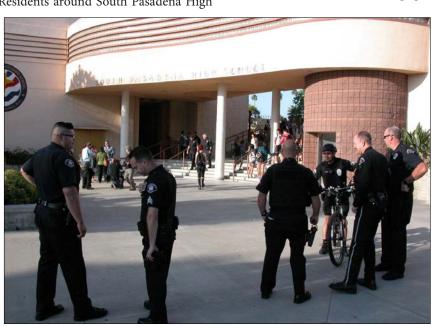

"As is a tradition here, we always provide extra patrol [on the first day] to our schools, we have five schools in our city, in this case I've asked for off duty officers to come in and work around the schools... I want there to be a sense of safety within our community," said South Pasadena Police Chief Art Miller. Residents around South Pasadena High including parents, students and teachers, held a prayer vigil Wednesday evening that ended with a walk to the campus. Some expressed compassion for the teens, still in custody, hoping they get the help that they need. "It is so hard to even grasp," one of the parents said.

Miller said the two teens were arrested Monday after police uncovered an alleged threat to massacre students and specifically kill three staff members at the high school.

"The South Pasadena Police Department was notified by the high school staff that they had received information of a possible treat to the school that a shooting was going to occur," Miller said. He said investigators had been "working on the case around the clock" since being notified the Thursday before.

CONVICTED CHILD SEXUAL PREDATOR-PORNOGRAPHER BACK IN SIERRA

MADRE After serving an 8 Year Sentence in Federal Prison, AWest, now a registered sex offender, has come back to Sierra Madre near a local school

AWest aka Andrew West Reid, Jr., was released from federal prison on January 17, 2014 after serving 8 years for multiple sex crimes against children. He was found guilty of two counts of committing lewd acts with children in state court and one count of possession of child pornography in federal court. The crimes for which he was convicted were perpetuated against a friend of his daughter who was only six years of age. Sentenced in 2006 to two 6 year and one 8 year terms, he was allowed to serve them concurrently. Now, eight years later, AWest is back in Sierra Madre.

AWest and his wife were also sued in civil court by the victim. The suit alleged that Awest was "a renowned director for children's shows and utilized his position of trust to gain access to plaintiff [victim] and sexually abused her". She sued AWest for sexual battery and breach of fiduciary duty, and sued his wife, Patrycja AWest for negligent supervision and breach of fiduciary responsibility. The court awarded a judgment in the victims favor for $2.4 million pain and suffering, $500,000 future medical expenses and $2.5 million in punitive damages. However, to date, the victim has not received anything.

In 2012, the California Court of Appeals reversed the lower court's civil ruling. AWest, who represented himself in the civil suit, convinced the Appellate Court that due to the fact that he was in custody and unable to appear in person or telephonically, he should have a new civil trial.

He utilized the services of an attorney for the appeal who also argued that the award was excessive. The Appellate Court agreed and reversed the judgment of the lower court with direction for a retrial of the case. No new trial date has been set, in fact, in late May of this year Attorney Tony DiMarco of Pasadena who represents the child that was molested, filed a request for dismissal.

AWest aka Andrew West Reid, Jr., was spotted by a Sierra Madre resident who noticed him washing a vehicle contrary to city's new water conservation policy.

The request was filed "without prejudice" meaning the victim may refile at any time. In a telephone interview with DiMarco, he indicated that the young lady, now a teenager, has until she is 26 years of age to do so. DiMarco also hopes that other victims who were very young at the time may now be ready emotionally to come forth.

SMTV CHANNEL 98 B 10 WATER CONSERVATION SOLUTIONS: The Messersmith's Masterpiece

It's that time of the year again. With weather up in the 80's and higher, bright sunny skies, and those warm Summer nights we all love so much, it's no wonder the majority of our time is now spent trying to cool off. While many of us have been lounging pool-side or hiding in the comfort of our well air-conditioned homes, others have been going above and beyond to make environmentally conscious decisions that have caught the eyes of the neighborhood.

Although beating the heat has posed no threat to us, our foliage would say otherwise. Lawns have turned from a lush green to practically hay. The only way to maintain the beauty would be to water constantly, but with the ongoing water crisis that has taken a toll on the city that would be nearly impossible . . . or would it? Our neighbors, Jim and Wendy Messersmith, have done the impossible and proved to the community that making a few mindful changes can actually reap many rewards both for themselves and the neighborhood.

The homes of Sierra Madre are all quite lovely, but have you ever gone past one that literally makes you stop dead in your tracks? For the sake of this article we can call that the "Messersmith effect". From a passerby's view you are immediately greeted by a highly decorated yard filled with all sorts of beautiful succulents, grasses, and rocks. What many don't know is that this brainchild was spawned by the very humble, Jim Messersmith.

The Messersmiths told me of the great headache they had once called their yard. Jim battled against different fungi, weeds, and horrible weather conditions to sustain the splendor. When he noticed their water bill skyrocketing and heard all the water conservation hype in town, he knew it was time to make a change. "Finally it got to the point where I was just sick of it. I couldn't do it anymore. So I just completely stopped maintaining it; the amount of water and all." Within a blink of an eye their yard had nearly withered away creating more of a fire hazard than anything. Although this lawn suicide was a heartbreak, it fueled Jim to construct this drought tolerant masterpiece, what is now a scenic spot for neighbors and town visitors a like.

What makes this work so special is the fact that each individual component has a specific memory associated with it. The Messersmiths have had some of their most cherished memories, while camping in the Anza-Borrego Dessert. The family would cross a series of bridges to get to the natural oasis in Palm Canyon, which is the inspiration for the dry riverbed and bridge. On one of their hiking adventures, they journeyed for what seemed like forever and came upon an Elephant Tree, a tree so rare that skeptics once refused to acknowledge its existence. While hunting tirelessly for California native plants to add to the lawn they miraculously found a young Elephant Tree, which now stands tall, growing in the middle of it all. Each big boulder, grass, and plant was specifically placed in order to give off the sensation of being back at the desert and for them, bring back memories that will now last for a lifetime.

If you think the yard is amazing, you would be left speechless after getting the grand tour of the Messersmith home. Jim, being a jack-of-all-trades, has completely transformed his childhood home (did I forget to mention this Sierra Madre native was born and raised in that very house?). Everything from the photographs on the walls, home décor, backyard greenhouse oasis, vegetable garden, cacti collection and, soon to come soda pop room for the grandkids, were all created and hand-built by he himself.

Always keeping the water crisis in mind, Jim has gone through great lengths to recreate his stunning home, hardly using any water. They share all of these memories with their seven grandchildren, who absolutely love playing all over their creation, and now also with the entire neighborhood.

Both teens denied the charge of making criminal threats, in Pasadena Juvenile Court Wednesday afternoon, according to a statement from the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office. Their names were withheld because of age.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE...The Social Side By Deanne Davis

"We seek tranquility in the midst of conflict and danger, we strive to control our bodies, mind and emotions. We strive to avoid conflict when possible, defend ourselves when necessary, and protect others when possible." Part of the G3 Mission Statement

Walking Sierra Madre a week or so ago, about 6 a.m. while it was still cool enough for a walk, my patient and equally inquisitive walk partner, John, and I found ourselves in front of the G3Academy of Martial Arts & Wellness, right next to Arnold's Hardware. People were racing into G3, like they were coming off a 5K run! As we thought G3 was just for little kids learning Martial Arts, we stopped looking astonished, took a step back, and read all the new lettering on the window. Let me just tell you, G3 is not just a kid place anymore! Here's what is going on now:

There are weights, padded floor mats, exercise equipment, and highly qualified trainers. Owner and chief instructor, Gary Gapezzani, and instructors Peter Sandford and Eric Phillips are all delightful guys and in great shape...and, this is so cool, Gary, Peter and Master Darlas, who is G3's Martial Arts Master instructor, have been friends since they were all in 3rd grade together!

Gary began studying Hapkido in 1988 under Grandmaster Chong Song Kim. He is currently a fourth degree black belt, certified as a Ki Gong instructor and has practiced the art for over 20 years. In 2012 he founded G3 Academy of Martial Arts along with Master Bill Darlas, who also began Hapkido in 1988 under Grandmaster Chong Kim, becoming a Master in 2006. Both Gary and Master Darlas have been teaching the art for over twenty years.

Before G3, Gary was an elementary and middle school teacher for 17 years in the Los Angeles Unified District, which is where he learned how to bring out the best in kids, how to get them to respond, to learn to take on life with gusto and, mostly, to just try. ### SEX OFFENDER (cont. from page 1)

Public notification?

AWest's return went unnoticed by Sierra Madreans until a resident saw him washing a vehicle in his driveway. Had the city not been under new water conservation guidelines, he may have continued to go unnoticed. Local police departments notify the public via the official state sex offenders website. In California, that is the Megan's Law website. And, although law enforcement at every level encourages parents and concerned citizens to monitor the Megan's Law website for sexual predators that may be in their neighborhood, during our research for this article, we found that both that website, as well as the Crime Alert site were negligent in posting the location of this predator.

Captain Islas of the SMPD informed the Mountain Views News that AWest had indeed registered when he was released and that SMPD Detective Henry Amos has been working with the Department of Justice in an effort to keep the public information on all sex offenders current. DOJ is responsible for submitting information to all official Sex Offender websites, of which the Megan's Law site is one. There are four registered sex offenders in Sierra Madre according to Islas but until Friday, only two were listed. AWest was added to the site late Friday afternoon. According to the Megan's Law site, Pasadena has 114 registered offenders, Altadena 28 and Arcadia 20, Monrovia 28 and Duarte 21. It should be noted that certain types of sex offenses require registration with the local police, but do not require listing on sex offender websites. For more information on the identities of these offenders and locations go to www.meganslaw.ca.gov.

S. Henderson/MVNews

SIERRA MADRE'S SEX OFFENDERS ORDINANCE

One of the issues brought to the attention of the SMPD is whether or not AWest's residence is in compliance with the city's Sex Offenders Ordinance. At the urging of Los Angeles County Supervisors in 2009, municipalities were encouraged to create ordinance's that would strengthen the current state and federal laws and provide additional protection for our children. Sierra Madre Mayor Mary Ann MacGillivray brought the matter before the council where, after staff review, a unanimous vote created the new law. http://mtnviewsnews.com/ v03/htm/n29/index.htm

Enforcement of that ordinance, along with the ordinances of 30 other cities have been put on hold as the result of a January 2014 California Appellate Court ruling. "... the Court's decision effectively terminates any remaining city and county sex offender ordinances banning a registrant from public facilities such as parks, beaches, libraries and bus stops, as well as privately owned businesses like movie theaters, arcades and fast food restaurants with children's playgrounds."

The Sierra Madre Ordinance does go beyond the scope of public facilities, Child Safety Zones, but challenges to all local ordinances like Sierra Madre are pending. The Sierra Madre Ordinance includes designatation of "Residential Exclusion Zones" which requires that registered sex offenders are prohibited from living at least 2,000 feet from any school, public or private. The residential exclusion zone is consistent with state law regarding residency restrictions. The unanswered question in Sierra Madre today is whether or not AWest's residence is in compliance.

AWest lives very close to St. Rita School.

Woman Guilty Of Leaving Children in Hot Car

A Highland Park resident, who left her two children locked in a car parked on a Pasadena city street earlier this month, was convicted on two counts of child endangerment — the Pasadena City Attorney/ City Prosecutor's Office said they will rigorously seek convictions in similar cases.

"There is no such thing as a quick errand when it comes to leaving kids or animals in the sweltering heat inside a car," Pasadena City Attorney/ City Prosecutor Michele Beal Bagneris said. "Our message is clear: don't leave children inside a car in the heat."

Corina Lopez, 35, pled guilty on Aug. 5, to child endangerment stemming from an Aug. 1, incident in which she left her two children, ages 3 and 7, inside a car parked on the street near the Pasadena Public Health Department. The Department's security guard alerted public safety officials to the situation.

Pasadena Fire officials at the scene determined the temperature inside the car was over 120 degrees. Authorities got the children to unlock the car door to free themselves prior to forcing entry into the car. The children were checked by paramedics who determined they were otherwise unharmed.

Lopez was sentenced to five years of probation; 120 days in county jail; mandatory year of parenting classes; pay court fines and fees; ordered to stay away from the children completely and to obey all orders from the Department of Children and Family Services.

Bagneris said such cases in Pasadena, while rare, will not be tolerated.

Cyclist Show Support for Citywide Bike Plan

By Dean Lee

Over 50 cyclists and local residents came out Monday night to show support for a new bicycle master plan that would create 38 miles of bike new corridors including cycle tracks, buffered bike lanes and bicycle boulevards.

The plan divides the city bike paths into north-south corridors and east-west corridors.

East-west streets include Washington, Orange Grove, Villa, Union, Green Street, Del Mar and Colorado.

North-south streets include El Molino Ave., Wilson Ave., Sierra Bonita Ave., and Craig Ave.

Residents and cyclists simply asked what they could do to help something Senior Transportation Planner Richard Dilluvio said was, input, "If you think there are too many east-west then you might want to lower those on the priority, that's what we really need to get from you."

SANTA ANITA'S FUTURE DEVELOPMENT PLANS

From Arcadia's Best

By Scott Hettrick

Santa Anita Park is contemplating adding 800 horse stable barns in the north parking lot area, building two "high-class" restaurants on the opposite corner of the property near the Huntington Drive entrance to the Westfield Santa Anita mall, and potentially developing a major retail/ entertainment component in the next couple of years to adjoin the track that could also include a hotel.

None of these plans has been officially proposed or submitted to the City for consideration. But during a study session prior to the Aug. 5 Arcadia City Council meeting, the Mayor, Council members, city staff and members of the public heard the tentative plans of Santa Anita Park chairman Keith Brackpool for future development of the 304-acre site.

Just a few years ago the City Council unanimously approved a major 800,000 commercial development called Shops at Santa Anita by the creator of The Grove and The Americana at Brand, Rick Caruso, for the 85-acres of the south parking lot of the track. But after legal challenges by neighboring Westfield the project died during bankruptcy proceedings for Santa Anita. Track owner Frank Stronach sought to change the partnership agreement he had with Caruso when he brought the track out of bankruptcy through the newly-formed Stronach Group, which resulted in Caruso ending his relationship with Stronach and the track.

Keith Brackpool

But now Brackpool, who was appointed chairman last year, said the company seeks to develop much more of the entire property than the big parking lot on the south side along Huntington Drive.

"A Caruso-type project would be nice," he said, as would a hotel built into the track similar to the Camden Yards baseball stadium in Baltimore (or Meydan in Dubai). "We could build something magnificent there (in the first turn of the track)," he said. "We don't need all 65,000 seats."

But the first priority is the northern 219 acres. Brackpool said that with the demise of Hollywood Park last year, there is an immediate demand for 800 horse barns. Santa Anita will soon make this proposal to the City.

Next will be making use of two acres of long-vacant land by the old Gate 1 at the southwest corner of the parking lot alongside Huntington Drive next to the mall.

In response to a question by Council Member Roger Chandler about the long-term commitment to this future and a succession plan for Stronach given his age (he will be 82 next month), Brackpool said he is one of two partners of Stronach with an equity stake in Santa Anita. "There is a plan in place if any one of us is hit by a bus," he said, noting that they all believe in the future of the viability of horse racing as a spectator sport.

"Coming to the track is better than sitting at home," he said.

Brackpool further noted that said Stronach is the only horse track owner currently putting money back in to racing facilities; $30 million in the last two years for improvements to the track (being completed this month), new luxury suites (more coming), and other remodel facelifts — "Churchhill Downs (home of the Kentucky Derby) is not interested in putting money into horse racing." He pointed out that the Stronach Group owns seven race tracks as well as horse farms and a TV network. Santa Anita is taking over operations of their operations in south Florida, he said. Stronach owns Gulfstream Park between Miami and Fort Lauderdale, which has developed adjacent office, retail, restaurant, residential, entertainment, and casino gaming Brackpool said he would like to introduce restaurants at Santa Anita 'something like the restaurants at Gulfstream.'

In response to a query by Council Member Sho Tay about retail and entertainment with an international flavor, Brackpool said they have already had "three very interesting offers from developers with an Eastern influence." However, Brackpool told ArcadiasBest.com after the study session that Santa Anita/Stronach will not be looking for a developer investment partner again as they had with Caruso, noting that they would not be interested in giving up any equity stake.

In discussing the state of horse racing in general during the Study Session, Brackpool said there are improvements needed to revive the industry's health. For one, he said California horse racing gets "zero money from gaming — the only state that is that way."

He also said the exodus of horses leaving California tracks to race elsewhere where returns are better has stopped with recent legislation being passed to give horse owners a bigger cut of wagers

The meeting was sparked by a conversation at the City's goal-setting workshops earlier this year during which the City Council suggested the City be more pro-active regarding future development at the track property. In addition, the City is in the process of re-evaluating zoning throughout Arcadia. City officials said they want to avoid being too descriptive by creating specific zoning of every square foot of the Santa Anita property. The City has indicated in its 2010 General Plan update and by staff and Council Member comments that it would like to see any future development of the property around Santa Anita be developed as a cohesive project rather than piecemeal buildings and projects. The new about-to-be-opened Hale medical building on the five-acres across from Methodist Hospital should be the last of that kind of one-off project they

The city would like any future development performance criteria to include the support of horse racing and related activities, to be world class in scope while generating revenue for the city and being compatible with the character of Arcadia. No single family uses are contemplated, although City Manager Dominic Lazaretto noted that the school district has said recently that it could absorb students from families in new housing developments. But any residential use of the land would require re-zoning. And any development would trigger consideration of historic preservation issues.

Huff Education Bill Passes Final Test in Senate

SB 1022 Helps College Students Make Effective Career Choices

SACRAMENTO: The State Senate gave unanimous approval today to legislation authored by Senate Republican Leader Bob Huff (R-Diamond Bar) that will give students and parents an understanding of the value that individual degrees have in the job market. SB 1022 will require the California State University (CSU) system and encourage the University of California (UC) to provide easily understood information, such as median annual wage for degrees that are offered by each institution.

Public universities already have access to this data through state law. Senator Huff's legislation would simply make it available to prospective and current students, and the public.

"Next to purchasing a home, a college diploma is one of the biggest investments we ever make," said Senator Huff. "California students deserve to know what their college degrees are worth, and giving them that information will help guide key career decisions."

SB 1022 will provide access to labor market data – including salary earnings and job placement statistics – for all UC and CSU graduates. This kind of information is critical to the decision making process that faces every student as they will learn what fields of study provide for the greatest of opportunities in terms of finding employment and

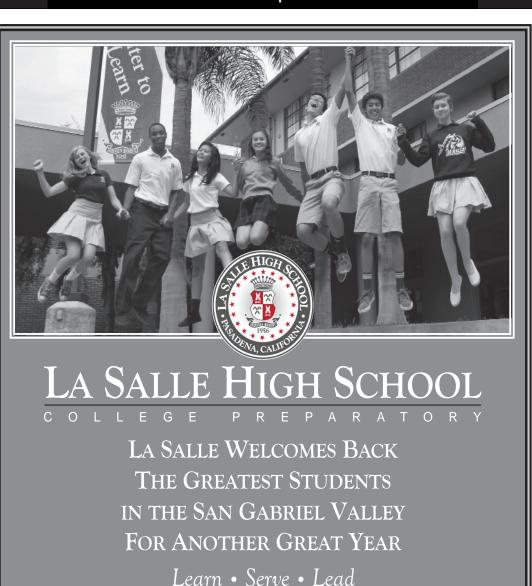

The study, from the Center for College Affordability and Productivity, found that out of 41.7 million working college graduates in 2010, 48 percent of them - representing more than 20 million people -- held jobs that required less than a bachelor's degree. Thirty-seven percent held jobs that required no more than a high school diploma.

"The least we can do – as policy makers – is to ensure that students are armed with accurate data and information about the labor market," said Senator Huff. "Giving students a picture of college graduate salary earnings and industry placement will allow students to make thoughtful, data-driven decisions about where and what they want to study."

SB 1022 has earned broad support from student leadership, CSU, UC, business leaders and civil rights groups. The measure will be forwarded to the Governor for his signature.

PASADENA UNIFIED LOCAL CONTROL ACCOUNTABILITY PLAN APPROVED

Pasadena, CA --- The Local Control Accountability Plan (LCAP) of the Pasadena Unified School District (PUSD) has been approved by the Los Angeles County Office of Education (LACOE). Cited by LACOE as a "high-quality plan," PUSD's LCAP was developed with the input of staff, parents and community members.

PUSD, along with other California school districts, has transitioned to the new Local Control Funding Formula (LCFF) funding model, radically changing how schools are funded in the state of California. LCFF provides new decisionmaking power to local school districts to act based on the needs they see for students. In addition, this shifts California from treating funding as an input to support students to a resource that is linked to performance expectations.

See the final version of PUSD's LCAP and learn more about PUSD's LCAP process by visiting http://www.gopusd.com/LCAP. PUSD will begin working with the LCAP workgroup in the fall for the 2015-2016 school year.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show

The Giver Review

When it comes to post-'Hunger Games' futuristic teen movies, they all seem to be the same. However, what makes 'The Giver' so interesting is the source material this film is based on; the book by Lois Lowry covers a very interesting topic.

In a perfect society, Jonas (Brenton Thwaites) is chosen as the new Receiver of Knowledge. Unlike other people, he gets to work with the mysterious man known as the Giver (Jeff Bridges) and learns the secret past of the world he thinks he knows.

This film, like the book, has many plot twists, so the fewer trailers that you have seen for this movie, the better. Try to know as little about this film as possible, if you have not read the book. 'The Giver' is one of the better films in the post-apocalyptic, teen angst genre in recent memory, and is a must see for fans of movies like 'The Host', 'Divergent', and 'Ender's Game'.

FOOD AND DRINK

IT'S WINE 101

It's been awhile (Holidays) since I have written about my first love, yes sparkling wine, I'll drink it at any time and moment with any meal. Summer rain winter... you get the idea. As long as it's quality It's my first choice from the wine list. Though there is a difference between champagne and sparkling, remember to be champagne the wine must come from that region of France. In 2000 the millennium year, Newsweek magazine did a story on the "best" bubbles for celebrating New Year's I took their advice and 14 years later I am still enjoying Roederer Estate's Brut NV sparkling wine from California's Anderson Valley.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

To this wine geek Roederer has got to be one of the best value sparkling wines around. So much so that I'd rather purchase two bottles then one of a Vueve Cliquet or a Mumm, not say they are bad, but we are talking exceptional value here.

On this home assignment I poured the liquid gold into a chilled champagne flute and watched the Tiny bubbles rise persistently forming to and around the rim of the glass. I enjoyed by bubbles with a creamy soft cheese, almonds and a handful of pistachios. Oh my!

If the name sounds familiar, it is owned by Louis Roederer estates the same winery that produces Crystal, so the linage is there.

Roederer Estate Brut NV is a traditional method sparkling wine, in that the second fermentation took place in the bottle. It is a blend of about 60% Pinot Noir and 40% Chardonnay, all from estate vineyards.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

A local friend of mine recently told me about an incident that occurred a week or two ago while she was out walking with her dog in town. She and her small pup (a darling, dainty mystery-breed rescue dog) were pleasantly padding along the path when another person suddenly emerged from around the corner with a dog on-leash and started walking up the hill towards them. As the two duo-teams drew closer, they quickly closed the space gap between, and my friend realized that the other dog was looking more and more excited, and possibly getting agitated at the sight of her own dog swiftly coming into close proximity.

In an effort to prevent a less-than-friendly confrontation between the two dogs, my friend decided to take the proverbial path of least resistance by detouring down and around a car that was parked on the side of the road, in hopes that the other 'dog team' would get the message and pass on by peacefully without incident.

As it turned out, the other dog walker apparently did not get the message, and instead of moving along, she turned her dog toward where they were and moved in the same direction, as if she was hoping for an impromptu meet and greet right there in the street! Fortunately for all involved, there was no traffic at the time, so my friend was able to walk her dog across the street before a would-be potential tussle could ensue.

When I heard this story, my first thought was, "It would have been so easy to neutralize the stress apparently caused by two people and their dogs passing on the street, if there could have been just a bit of clear, kind communication." My second thought had more to do with wishing dog walkers, in general would practice better etiquette while they are out and about with their pets in public.

In my humble opinion, the approaching dog walker in that case should have paid way more attention to the body language displayed by my friend who was already headed down the street before she turned that way. If she had been more aware, she may have also been more sensitive to the space that may have been needed between them, while passing by and could have acted accordingly.

Perhaps she felt the need to stand her ground and exercise her right to walk her dog wherever she wished, regardless of the circumstances. I'm not sure about her, but I personally prefer to keep things as simple and sane as possible when I am walking dogs in public. It is a simple task, to avoid a negative confrontation between two leashed dogs, if you are aware of your surroundings. And, it can't hurt to speak...you know, use the voice as a mechanism for communication? This may sound silly to some, in this new age of constant texting and messaging, but to me it is nothing more than simple common

Proper Etiquette For Walking Your Pet

Then there was another acquaintance of mine who recently reminded me of how much she wishes people would be better about cleaning up after their pets while they are wandering out and about, and I happen to agree with her 100%. I've stepped in more than my fair share of felonious forgotten stools, and I've even gone to the trouble of picking up putrid poops left behind by others, but now I'm all done with that. Anyone with the brain power enough to own and (hopefully) care for a domestic pet should know there is a law against leaving their four-legged furry friend's feces sitting like a land-mine on the sidewalk or on a neighbor's lawn. Maybe the dog poop pickup code needs to be more consistently enforced to achieve desired results. At least it might generate a bit of extra revenue for the city.

One very interesting comment I heard recently voiced by a non-pet-owner is that he cannot stand it when people walking their dogs will allow uninvited contact between himself and the beast they have on leash. Well, being the avid animal lover that I am, I find it hard to imagine resisting contact with a friendly furry four-legger that may happen across my path, but I do try my best to understand the minds of people who prefer not to keep close company with canines and I recognize and respect their right to dine on the sidewalks of our town, without being forced to interact with other peoples' pets.

The collective comments I have mentioned above are what drove me to write this article and remind locals in Sierra Madre to use proper etiquette while sharing the road, trail or sidewalk with other people and their pets in public. Please use your common sense in communicating with your fellow animal lovers. Be aware of the laws and rules that pertain to owning a pet and taking them out for a leisurely walk. Let your dog teach you a few lessons for a change! Based on my experience, the animals seem to be able to work these things out pretty swiftly and smoothly, if given the opportunity in the absence of human intervention.

I believe that social skills are not necessarily inherent with one's lifestyle. I think the learning process begins with early childhood teaching and influence followed by life-long training and practice. As pet owners and dog walkers, let's all do our best to be aware of the responsibilities that come with the privileges we enjoy. Show respect to others, and do your best to prevent unwanted insult or injury. And as always, above all, love and let live!

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND?

Looking For A Best Friend?? To share adventures with? So is Midnight!

Midnight is a very handsome and lovable 4 year old, 19 lb black and brown Mini Pinscher boy who was found roaming the streets around the 4th of July.

His owner was contacted but never came to pick him up. During his first couple weeks at the shelter, Midnight was scared and confused about his whereabouts. But since volunteers have been taking him out for walks and playtime, he has become more relaxed, happy, playful, and affectionate.

Midnight is very friendly, social and made lots of friends. He loves people and other dogs. With his cute smile and happy disposition, he eagerly greets you and will climb and curl up in your lap when you sit down. He loves it when you give him cuddles, pets, belly and back massages. Midnight is also very nurturing and loving to his kennel mate, and is always watching over him.

Midnight is strong, agile, and has medium high energy on his walks. He loves to have fun and run on his walks. He is also observant, smart and quick to pick up on activities shown to him and would learn and do well with the right training courses. He loves a challenge to focus on. He quickly caught on to chasing after toys and bringing them back for more play. It also didn't take him long to jump into a kids' wading pool to retrieve a fun

Midnight's dream is to be loved and live out his life with a best friend or family who are active and like to have fun like he does. A home with a big yard to run and play in would be ideal. And if there is another dog or two to hang out and play with, he would love that! Are you or someone you know the one he is looking for? If so, please come to the shelter to meet him! He is waiting

He currently resides at the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society located at 851 E. Grand Avenue in San Gabriel with his roommate. We are located off San Gabriel Blvd., north of Mission and south of Las Tunas.

To arrange a 'Meet and Greet' with Midnight, please stop by any time from 10:00am to 4:30pm Tuesday thru

His adoption fee is $120 which includes a microchip, neuter surgery, first vaccinations and a free wellness

THE JOY OF YOGA

JUST THE RIGHT FIT

I had a student once that had been coming to me for some time. She came every week, but didn't seem all that crazy about it. One day she came in all excited. She told me that she had taken a class that had changed her whole practice because the teacher said to 'link the movement to the breath'. I couldn't believe it! I said that all the time, many times in class. Had she not heard me? How could this be? We ALL say that. I asked other students, "Do you hear me say that?" They all said of course! And then I understood. We hear different things from different people at different times. It could be the very same sentence, but we may not be ready to hear it, or we block out the way one person says things and hear them from another. From that day on, I asked the Universe to send me students that could hear me. It's not really about me at all. It's about the lessons in the tradition. I am just the messenger. But my unique personality can really get through to some people,

This is why it is so important to find the right teacher. We need to hear what they are teaching us. Then we can go to other classes and enjoy them.

To find your true teacher is huge. This is totally different than just taking classes. It is a very personal relationship. We need to be inspired and given lessons that are specific to each of us. After it clicks, then we need to stick with that teacher. We cannot decide that we do not like the lesson of the day and switch teachers. We need to trust in the process. I am so pleased that we have so many amazing teachers at our studio. Come and get inspired – there are so many choices!

See you in class. Namasté,

Heathcare the Way Nature Intended IS YOUR FEMALE VITALITY NOT UP TO PAR?

Menopause can be a trying time in the lives of many women, affecting day to day activities, mental clarity, and mood. Many women find relief from annoying menopause symptoms using herbs as they have less side effects compared with hormone replacement therapy (HRT). Here are four very effective herbs for menopause.

Black Cohosh: Probably one of the most trying symptoms of menopause are hot flashes. The use of Black cohosh to ease menopause symptoms is nothing new. This herb has been used for centuries as a powerful tool for alleviating hot flashes. Black cohosh effectively reduces hot flash occurrence, duration and intensity.

Ginseng: A great general-purpose herb for menopause. Menopausal women will often feel physically drained because of symptoms, such as hot flashes which can deplete energy. Sleep is often interrupted thanks to hot flashes. Ginseng may help by possibly supporting healthy sleep cycles and aiding relaxation. Its primary menopausal benefit is its ability to support vitality and ease stress. Wild Yam: This is native to North America and has been used for both cycling and menopausal symptoms. Wild yam contains an ingredient similar to DHEA which is a precursor to human sex

Tribulus: The leaves and stems of Tribulus make it a great menopausal herb because it promotes vitality and stamina, supports physical endurance and promotes an overall feeling of well-being. Note: quality Tribulus is only found in the Central European regions of Bulgaria and Slovakia. For optimum

Midlife should be a time women look forward too. It should be a time to do the things you have always wanted since family responsibilities usually ease at this time. Menopausal symptoms do not have to hold you back from doing all the things you have been waiting to do. Along with drinking plenty of water and eating a whole foods diet there are herbs that can help you transition easily through this time in your life.

What do I need to do to get Social Security disability? I'm 57 years old and have some health issues that are keeping me from working, but I've heard it's very difficult to get benefits. Need Assistance

The process of getting Social Security disability benefits can be tricky and time-consuming, but you can help yourself by doing your homework and getting prepared.

Last year, around 3 million people applied for Social Security disability benefits, but two-thirds of them were denied, because most applicants fail to prove that they're disabled and can't work. Here are some steps you can take that will improve your odds.

The first thing you need to find out is if your health problem qualifies you for Social Security disability benefits.

You generally will be eligible only if you have a health problem that is expected to prevent you from working in your current line of work (or any other line of work that you have been in over the past 15 years) for at least a year, or result in

There is no such thing as a partial disability benefit. If you're fit enough to work part-time, your application will be denied. You also need not apply if you still are working with the intention of quitting if your application is approved, because if you're working your application will be denied. Your skill set and age are factors too. Your application will be denied if your work history suggests that you have the skills to preform a less physically demanding job that your disability does not prevent you from doing.

To help you determine if you are disabled, visit ssa.gov/dibplan/dqualify5.htm and go through the five questions Social Security uses to determine disability.

How to Apply

If you believe you have a claim, your next step is to gather up your personal, financial and medical information so you can be prepared and organized for the application process.

You can apply either online at ssa.gov/ applyfordisability, or call 800-772-1213 to make an appointment to apply at your local Social Security office or to set up an appointment for someone to take your claim over the phone. The whole process lasts about an hour. If you schedule an appointment, a "Disability Starter Kit" that will help you get ready for your interview will be mailed to you. If you apply online, the kit is available at ssa.gov/disability.

It takes three to five months from the initial application to receive either an award or denial of benefits. The only exception is if you have a chronic illness that qualifies you for a "compassionate allowance" (see ssa.gov/ compassionateallowances), which fast tracks cases within weeks.

If Social Security denies your initial application, you can appeal the decision, and you'll be happy to know that roughly half of all cases that go through a round or two of appeals end with benefits being awarded. But the bad news is with backlog of about 900,000 people currently waiting for a hearing it may take a year or longer for you to get one.

Get Help

You can hire a representative to help you with your Social Security disability claim. By law, representatives can charge only 25 percent of past-due benefits up to a maximum of $6,000, if they win your case.

It's probably worth hiring someone at the start of the application process if your disability is something difficult to prove such as chronic pain. If, however, your disability is obvious, it might be worth initially working without a representative to avoid paying the fee. You can always hire a representative later if your initial application and first appeal are denied.

To find a representative, check with the National Association of Social Security Claimants' Representatives (nosscr.org, 800-431-2804) or National Association of Disability Representatives (nadr.org, 800-747-6131). Or, if you're low-income, contact the Legal Services Corporation (lsc.gov/find-legal-aid) for free assistance.

KATIE Tse.....This and That JUNK --A CAUTIONARY TALE

is a familiar platitude along with other classics such as, "Cleanliness is next to godliness" and "Have nothing in your home that you do not know to be useful or believe to be beautiful." And then there's my personal favorite, "If there is righteousness in the heart, there will be beauty in the character. If there is beauty in the character, there will be harmony in the house." I wonder if the dusty pile of sneakers and flip flops in my closet implicates a questionable character, a disharmonious dwelling, or both? But it gets worse, "If there is harmony in the house, there Now I've got the responsibility for world peace on of time" --literally! But any physical exertion my guilty conscience!

Although keeping ahead of my own junk is a challenge, I can only begin to imagine the physical and mental exhaustion of going through someone else's stuff! This is the daunting feat my parents are dealing with at the moment. Before they retired, neither of them had the time or energy to sort through the things they had accumulated over the years. And when my grandparents passed, my parents inherited even more stuff. Some people prefer to keep their things out of sight and out of mind in storage, but that's expensive! Therefore, my parents' things occupied the living room for a while, and then spilled over into the back room. They finally condensed it all into a tightly packed area in the garage while the house was being remodeled.

When I say that they used the garage for storage, I don't just mean that they stacked things up. Oh no! Every last cubic inch of available space was jam packed to the gills. This meant that some furniture was taken apart so that it would better fit into the limited space. When my husband and

"A place for everything, and everything in its place." This said we could have their old dining room table (to replace the TV trays we're accustomed to eating off of). I suppose there's something inherently disorderly and tacky about TV trays --that's probably why we haven't achieved world peace yet. Anyway, our table was trapped in "the core" of stuff for a long time. Every so often I'd catch a glimpse of a leg sticking out at an odd angle like an appendage in a Picasso painting.

At last their building project is done, and now they're faced with deconstructing the core in the garage. Mind you the garage dates back to the 50's. It vacillates between freezing in the winter and sweltering in the summer. So you will be order in the nation. If there is order in the can imagine my parents' discomfort toting boxes nation, there will be peace in the world." Shoot! around and dodging avalanches of "the sands pales in comparison to the difficulty of their decisions as to which of the things they should keep and which they should get rid of. One small box often holds a multitude of miscellaneous items from generations ago, all with a certain amount of sentimental value.

It doesn't seem to help much whether or not there's a logical reason to keep the stuff in question. The other day my mom asked me if I wanted my old bassinet or any of its blankets or other things. "Did you make any of them?" I asked. "Yes, a couple of blankets," she said. "Okay, I'll keep them." "What are you going to do with them?" she asked. "I don't know. I can't get rid of them. You made them!"

Well, after many weeks and much deliberation, the clutter in the garage is starting to thin out. My dad's work bench is almost visible, so hopefully he'll be able to return to his ship model building before 2015. And my husband and I just recently brought home our very first proper dining table and chairs. Maybe world peace is within our grasp!

Let's Be Cops

"Let's Be Cops" is the latest buddy comedy to have hit theaters this summer. In fact, it's the last R-rated comedy of the season. Is it worth the price of admission? Well, that's a tricky one. The film is no "22 Jump Street" (which debuted earlier this summer).

While in that film, the leads are actually cops impersonating college students, "Let's Be Cops" features two best friends who don't know a thing about being a police officer. The film has some good laughs and quite a few small chuckles mainly through the first half of the film. When act three becomes more "serious," the laughs are conspicuously lacking. The plot was pretty generic and loose. Most of the funny scenes felt like sketches than rather part of the main storyline. "Let's Be Cops" wasn't as humorous as I was anticipating, but it's not a total waste either.

The film stars Jake M. Johnson and Damon Wayans Jr., (coincidentally both portray characters in the TV series, The New Girl.) as two struggling 30 year-old buddies that kind of lost their way after college. Johnson, plays Ryan, an ex-QB for Purdue, who suffered a knee injury that ended any shot he had for the pros. He came to LA to be an actor, where he's been living off an $11,000 check for a herpes commercial he did two years ago. Wayans portrays Justin, an assistant at a videogame company where no one gives him the time of day for a dream project he wants to create. The two attend a "costume" party for their college reunion in LA dressed up as police officers. Ryan, confused masquerade with costume party and the two guys become somewhat of a laughing stock with their ridiculous outfits.

Dejected and wanting to move back to Ohio, the two guys are mistaken for police officers walking down a busy boulevard. After a few funny encounters, Ryan takes the idea of impersonating cops even further. When they are deemed heroes at a local diner, they eventually find themselves getting tangled up in a real life crime situation. Grade: 3 out of 5

Ryan is all for it, but Justin doesn't want take things next to the next level. However, when things at work don't pan out for Justin, he's easily persuaded to join forces (especially since he has a crush on a girl at the diner, who thinks he's something special). The setup is actually not bad, but unfortunately the film's writers struggle with developing it into something much bigger than what it ended up becoming. The steady script flaws and sitcom-y situations become a burden for

"Let's Be Cops" as it enters the second half.

The film navigates through the normal tropes found in these genre films. The bad guys are nothing special and there's the inevitable plot twist that doesn't seem organic. It feels cheap, ripped off from other, better films. I don't want to give away too much here because frankly, there's not a lot of story involved within the 104 minutes running time. Johnson and Waynes have tons of chemistry together. I really like both actors and strongly believe they have bright futures in comedies (especially Jake Johnson, who was fantastic in 2012's "Safety Not Guaranteed"). Unfortunately, the two had little to work with "Let's Be Cops." Their natural comedic talents lifted the film above mediocrity. In the end, "Let's Be Cops" is mildly funny, but not nearly consistent enough, which is a shame given the decent concept and dynamic duo on screen.

We'd like to hear from you!

Jeff's Book Picks By Jeff Brown

Edgar Allan Poe: The Fever Called Living by Paul Collins Looming large in the popular imagination as a serious poet and lively drunk who died in penury, Edgar Allan Poe was also the most celebrated and notorious writer of his day. He died broke and alone at the age of forty, but not before he had written some of the greatest works in the English language, from the chilling "The Tell-Tale Heart" to "The Murders in the Rue Morgue", the first modern detective story, to the iconic poem "The Raven." Poe's life was one of unremitting hardship. His father abandoned the family, and his mother died when he was three. Poe was thrown out of West Point, and married his beloved thirteen-year-old cousin, who died of tuberculosis at twenty-four. He was so poor that he burned furniture to stay warm. He was a scourge to other poets, but more so to himself. In the hands of Paul Collins, one of our liveliest historians, this mysteriously conflicted figure emerges as a genius both driven and undone by his artistic ambitions. Collins illuminates Poe's huge successes and greatest flop (a 143-page prose poem titled Eureka), and even tracks down what may be Poe's first published fiction, long hidden under an enigmatic byline. Edgar Allan Poe is a spellbinding story about the man once hailed as "the Shakespeare of America."

To the Edge of the World: The Story of the Trans-Siberian Express, the World's Greatest by Railroad Christian Wolmar

To the Edge of the World is an adventure in travel, full of extraordinary personalities, more than a century of explosive political, economic, and cultural events, and almost inconceivable feats of engineering. Wolmar recounts the origins of the railroad, the vital artery for Russian expansion that spans almost 6,000 miles and seven time zones from Moscow to Vladivostok. The world's longest train route took a decade to build, in the face of punishing climates, rampant disease, scarcity of funds and materials, and widespread corruption. Once built, it led to the establishment of new cities and transformed the region's history. Exceeding all expectations, it became,, "the best thing that ever happened to Siberia."It was not all good news, however. The railroad was the cause of the 1904–1905 Russo-Japanese War, and played a vital, and at times bloody, role in the Russian Revolution and the subsequent Civil War. More positively, the Russians were able to resist the Nazi invasion during the Second World War as new routes enabled whole industries to be sent east. . And what began as one meandering, single-track line is now, arguably, the world's most important railroad.

Book of Unknown Americans: A novel by Cristina Henríquez A boy and a girl who fall in love. Two families whose hopes collide with destiny. An extraordinary novel that offers a resonant new definition of what it means to be American. Arturo and Alma Rivera have lived their whole lives in Mexico. One day, their beautiful

fifteen-year-old daughter,

Maribel, sustains a terrible injury, one that casts doubt on whether she'll ever be the same. And so, leaving all they have behind, the Riveras come to America with a single dream: that in this country of great opportunity and resources, Maribel can get better. When Mayor Toro, whose family is from Panama, sees Maribel in a Dollar Tree store, it is love at first sight. It's also the beginning of a friendship between the Rivera and Toro families, whose web of guilt and love and responsibility is at this novel's core. Woven into their stories are the testimonials of men and women who have come to the United States from all over Latin America. Their journeys and their voices will inspire you, surprise you, and break your heart. Suspenseful, wry and immediate, rich in spirit and humanity, The Book of Unknown Americans is a work of rare force and originality.

On the Marquee: Notes from the Sierra Madre Playhouse

A Set by Any Other Name

By Christian Lebano, Artistic Director

When theater does several plays at the same time it is called a repertory. And when an actor participates in that kind of season he or is called she "repertory actor". Well, this season SMP has a Repertory Set!"

Audiences and critics have been delighted with the beautiful set that SMP currently has on its stage for 6 RMS RIV VU. Alice-Denise Walker in Life in LA said, "The set design by Emmy nominated John Vertrees adds an important character in the production. It has nice nuanced touches of an empty rent controlled apartment... It has the potential for future greatness." And Dink O'Neal in Arts in LA said, "Scenic designer Vertrees works magic, given that the entire set contains not one stick of furniture. Out-of-style wallpaper, marked with gritty outlines depicting where the previous occupant's framed items hung, reveal Vertrees's exquisite attention to detail.'

Audiences are in for a surprise when they come to see our next production, Amy Herzog's Pulitzernominated 4000 Miles opening September 26 and see the same set transformed into an apartment that has been lived in for 50 years. It will have some very simple changes made - we'll add sliding doors, turn a closet into a bedroom, change the color and add lots of furniture and the audience will barely recognize it as that other empty apartment.

And this Spring we'll use it once again as Oscar Madison's bachelor pad in Neil Simon's The Odd Couple and with John's skill as a designer it will be transformed once again!

Sets are often our biggest expense and I thought it would be smart to try to amortize the cost of the beautifully realized set for 6 RMS over several productions. As a small theater with limited resources we have to find economies everywhere we can. But with a talent like John's that makes it

What a lucky day it was for SMP when John walked into the Playhouse to offer his services. As he says, "my wife Felicia and I have been patrons of the Sierra Madre Playhouse since we moved to town three years ago. Friends of ours would come from neighboring towns to see performances so we've felt lucky to have such high quality shows so close. As a designer I enjoyed the live entertainment experience so much that I volunteered to design for the Playhouse." And I quickly jumped at his offer and had him design Battledrum for us last season. And this season we've talked him into three sets albeit all based on the same basic apartment.

As John (who is currently working on a hit TV show that he declines to name) says: "There are certainly many design differences between Theatre, TV and Film. Live theater can be broader in scope and style and can be more abstract. I find that nothing can compete with live entertainment, as there is just something undeniable about a live performance that is unique. My college professor had a terrific phrase: "Sculptors carve in stone while theatre artists carve in ice."

Compare the two renderings and then come see the shows to see the sets as they were realized

MUTUAL AID AND FIRE SERVICE: A GREAT PARTNERSHIP

I live in the county area of Monrovia just east of Myrtle Avenue. When I helped form

Monrovia-Arcadia- Duarte Town Council in 1993, the constant complaint/issue was "Why can't the Monrovia City Fire Department-Station 105- just a few blocks north- serve us?"

I got blue in the face explaining that years agoin the 1950's- the residents of Mayflower Village WERE GIVEN the opportunity to incorporate and receive City services but refused to because they didn't want to pay city taxes! I had proof of this. Shortly after our election, an original homeowner Hugh Campbell gave me paperwork from the "Mayflower Village Association" warning residents NOT to vote to incorporate!

But forget our boundaries! Doesn't matter whether you are in the City of Arcadia, the City of Monrovia or Los Angeles County! We have AWESOME fire service- not only because of our great individual departments - but because of Mutual Aid. (There are several other cities that participate in this great

Since last Saturday, there have been two REALLY DANGEROUS fires in the City of Arcadia. Not in the "regular" city limits, but just south and southeast of Monrovia County. Since we are two houses from Myrtle, I hear A LOT of sirens. If the fire is in my area, LA County Engine #169 (Peck/ Hemlock) responds first; after a few minutes #167 (Peck/ Bryant) Paramedics follow.

When there is a fire in the little "City of Monrovia" pocket south of my street, Monrovia Fire #105 responds going south. By the direction of the trucks, I can ascertain whether it's a county or city fire.

On Saturday afternoon, the sirens began and there were really many responders. I learned it began at the Peck Road Park and then the wind spread it to "Pick-a-Part" where a few cars caught fire. 150 firefighters fought the blaze. Now this is where Mutual Aid comes in. Technically the site was the "City of Arcadia" but Monrovia #105 and LA County #169 (Captain Larry Burke and the "A" shift) were first responders because of proximity to the site. Of course Arcadia was there and in charge, but I also saw engines from San Gabriel, San Marino, and LA County 244 (From Duarte). A LA County Fire Helicopter and the "Quint" from LA County #166 (Captain Alex Haua) also assisted in the effort. We are SO FORTUNATE that all of these great Departments work so well together.

About 5:20 AM Monday, I heard a loud "Boom" followed by sirens traveling south. I looked outside and saw smoke in the sky. What had happened was there was a mechanical problem with a street sweeper-then an explosion. This occurred in An Arcadia city yard on Goldring Rd. LA County #169(Captain Burke and the "C" Shift) and Monrovia #105 also were on scene as well as LA County #29 (Baldwin Park) assisting Arcadia.

I would like to thank Beth Stogner and Battalion Chief Barry Spriggs from the Arcadia Fire Department for their assistance. Every time I have called her, Beth has provided me with information on how the fires began and who assisted Arcadia Fire Department. Chief Briggs also issues press releases. I also would like to thank LA County Captains Burke, and Haua, Station #169 for their

SAN GABRIEL VALLEY MUNICIPAL WATER DISTRICT REVISED $7.5 BILLION WATER BOND PASSED BY LEGISLATURE FOR NOVEMBER 2014 BALLOT

Legislation Transmitted to Governor Brown for Signature

Late last week, just hours before the California Secretary of State was to begin printing election voter guides, the Assembly and Senate each approved new legislation entitled the 'Water Quality, Supply, and Infrastructure Improvement Act of 2014' (AB1471 - Atkins/Rendon approved by votes of 77-1 in the Assembly and 37-0 in the Senate) which will lead to a $7.54 billion water bond being placed on the statewide November 2014 ballot, replacing the $11.14 bond that had previously been slated.

The compromise vote by the legislature is nothing less than historic in the midst of the State's severe drought as it ends a multi-year stalemate on addressing the State's imminent water needs, reflects a broad range of support from diverse stakeholder groups including water interests, business, labor and agriculture, and recognizes the fiscal limitations facing

Among the factors that came together to enable passage of the compromise legislation were the Governor raising his support from his recent $6 billion borrowing proposal to the $7.5 billion level, allowing for an increase in funding for water storage, local water supply and water quality assistance, and agreement that the Water Bond would be "neutral" relative to the Bay Delta Conservation Plan. A key objective of the legislation is greater regional self-sufficiency statewide.

This long-awaited action reflects growing concern about the severe drought which is causing a myriad of water supply, environmental and economic impacts statewide, and a growing awareness that climatic conditions do not favor a short-term end to the drought. California's severe drought is resulting in historically low levels of groundwater, reservoirs and snow pack, and these conditions are worsened by 2014 being the warmest year on record in the State and further impacted by 2013/2014 being amongst the driest years on record . Here in the San Gabriel Valley, thanks to long-term planning and improved water conservation, we have enough water in storage for 1-2 years, even if the drought continues. Even though that is the case, enhanced conservation is essential to ensure those supplies last.

In January of this year, the Governor called for greater voluntary water conservation and for a while, the State made progress as water use declined. The progress was short-lived, however and consumption levels began to increase in the Spring. Consequently, in late July the Governor called for mandatory water use reductions and enforcement. A variety of penalties for excessive water use went into effect on August

CUSTOMERS CONSERVING WATER IN RESPONSE TO STATE MANDATES

Foothill Municipal Water District would like to thank residents in its service area for their conservation efforts and urges to continue reducing demands on potable water. Demands for July have dropped about 13% in comparison to the same period in 2013 and 16% for the same period in 2012 as shown in the graphic below:

"With the decreasing likelihood of an El Niño bringing wet weather to the State this winter, it is important that customers continue to conserve," said Board President Richard Atwater.

To that end, FMWD offers rebates on a variety of devices that can help customers conserve water. "Devices and other measures that conserve and use more water efficiently are an easy way to conserve," said General Manager Nina Jazmadarian. "For example, about 70% of water use in the FMWD service area is for outdoor irrigation. Replacing thirsty lawns with drought tolerant, native plantings will help the consumer save a significant

PUBLIC DISCUSSION OF RECREATION, ACCESS AND RESOURCE OPPORTUNITIES TO BE HELD AUG. 26

Angeles and San Bernardino National Forests to host event

Arcadia, Calif. -- The U.S. Forest Service will host a panel of local user groups, youth corps, cultural preservation experts, land management specialists and elected officials to explore opportunities for enhancing access, recreational use and protection of scenic, cultural and historic areas of interest on the Angeles National Forest and portions of the San Bernardino National Forest. The public discussion will be held Aug. 26, 2014, from 4:00-7:30 p.m. at the Baldwin Park Performing Arts Center- 4640 North Maine Avenue, Baldwin Park, CA 91706.

The historic and cultural significance of the San Gabriel Mountains and the surrounding forests are recognized by forest users, the public at large and elected representatives. Over the past decade, studies have been conducted to assess the way some of the last remaining open space should be protected and managed in the future. The Angeles National Forest is surrounded by a patchwork of intense urban development. It is the scenic mountain backdrop for the Los Angeles basin; includes over 70 percent of the open space for Los Angeles County and one third of the county's drinking water; and is one of the largest and most diverse population centers in the world. The portion of the San Bernardino National Forest west of Lytle Creek is part of the contiguous San Gabriel Mountains range and shares the same unique natural character and significant recreational use by forest visitors

The managers of the most urban forest in the country must reassess how to remain committed to forest and watershed conservation while meeting the challenge of increasing recreational demands. The Forest Service will engage the public to explore opportunities to achieve our shared goals to enhance protection of wildland and watershed values.

About the U.S. Forest Service: The mission of the Forest Service, an agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, is to sustain the health, diversity and productivity of the nation's forests and grasslands to meet the needs of present and future generations. The agency manages 193 million acres of public land, provides assistance to state and private landowners, and maintains the largest forestry research organization in the world. Public lands the Forest Service manages contribute more than $13 billion to the economy each year through visitor spending alone. Those same lands provide 20 percent of the nation's clean water supply, a value estimated at $7.2 billion per year. The agency has either a direct or indirect role in stewardship of about 80 percent of the 850 million forested acres within the U.S., of which 100 million acres are urban forests where most Americans live.

SWIRLING ELECTRONS IN THE WHIRLPOOL GALAXY

The Whirlpool Galaxy Messier 51 (M51) is seen from a distance of approximately 30 million light-years. This galaxy appears almost face-on and displays a beautiful system of spiral arms.

A European team of astronomers was able to observe M51 with the International LOFAR Telescope in the frequency range 115-175 MHz, just above the normal commercial FM radio frequency band of 88-108 MHz. The team obtained the most sensitive image of any galaxy at frequencies below 1 GHz so far.

With LOFAR's high sensitivity, the disk of M51 in the radio regime could be traced much further out than before. The astronomers detected cosmic electrons and magnetic fields 40,000 light-years away from the center of M51. With LOFAR's high angular resolution, the spiral arms are clearly visible. Magnetic fields and cosmic rays are densest in spiral arms. Compared to higher radio frequencies, spiral arms appear broader at low frequencies due to the diffusion of cosmic electrons away from the spiral arms where they have been formed.

The view of galaxies in the radio regime is different to their optical appearance. Whereas optical images show predominantly the visible light from stars, the radio waves unravel two constituents of galaxies that are invisible to optical telescopes: electrons and magnetic fields. Their role for the stability and evolution of galaxies is increasingly under discussion. The electrons are "cosmic ray" particles produced in the shock fronts of giant supernova explosions. Magnetic fields are generated by dynamo processes driven by gas motions. When the electrons spiral around the magnetic field lines, radio waves are emitted, a process called synchrotron emission. Its intensity increases with the number and energy of the electrons and with magnetic field strength.

For many decades, radio astronomy has been unable to explore low frequencies below 300 MHz because the ionosphere acts as a barrier of low-frequency radio waves (which are completely blocked below about 10 MHz). Sophisticated methods of data processing and superfast computers are needed to recover the emission. Due to these technical challenges, spiral galaxies have hardly been studied before at these very low radio frequencies. The only observations were of poor resolution and no details could be made out.

The target of investigation in David Mulcahy's PhD project was the beautiful spiral galaxy Messier 51, which is visible with small telescopes in the constellation Canes Venatici (not far from the Big Dipper).

"Low-frequency radio waves are important as they carry information about electrons of relatively low energies that are able to propagate further away from their places of origin in the star-forming spiral arms and are able to illuminate the magnetic fields in the outer parts of galaxies," says Mulcahy. "We need to know whether magnetic fields are expelled from galaxies and what their strength is out there."

The Low Frequency Array (LOFAR), designed and constructed by ASTRON in the Netherlands, is a brand new radio telescope giving access to very low radio frequencies.

LOFAR explores the relatively unexplored frequency range below 240 MHz and consists of a multitude of small and simple antennas without moving parts. LOFAR consists of 38 stations in the Netherlands, 6 stations in Germany and one station each in the UK, France and Sweden. Signals from all of LOFAR's stations are combined online in a powerful computing cluster located at the University of Groningen (Netherlands).

FORAGING FOR GINKGO

How to use the nuts and leaves of this "living fossil"

Botanists

believed that the Ginkgo biloba tree was extinct, but then it was found in a Chinese Buddhist monastery in the 1700s, where specimens were being cultivated.

Ginkgo is a smooth-barked tree, often growing upright in a very vertical fashion when young, and then producing a much larger angular crown as it matures. Each leaf is fan-shaped, and has the appearance of a fern. The leaves turn yellow in the fall. The fruits, formed only on the female trees, are covered in a light brown fleshy coating that is very odoriferous. The nut has a thin shell that is easily cracked. Both nuts and leaves are considered edible, if properly prepared.

Once it was rediscovered, ginkgo has been cultivated and spread all over the world as an ornamental and street tree. It is popular because of its unique appearance, and its relative resistance to insects and disease. To Buddhists, the tree is regarded as sacred.

THENUTS

In Japan, and other parts of Asia, processed nuts are added to rice and stir fry dishes. Ginko nuts are high in protein and low in fat. The medicinal properties of the nuts, which you get by eating them, are said to include the release of stress and hypertension (the result of dilating blood vessels and increasing oxygen into the blood stream). The nuts are also reportedly good for pain and soreness, as well as aid to digestion.

Yes, I harvest the ripe ginkgo nuts, and yes, I have to hold my nose! The fleshy tissue around the seed really stinks! Some people have learned to not-mind the strong odor, generally reminiscent of fresh feces. Yes, you can get used to just about anything, and in time, you can learn to not be bothered by the "aroma" of the flesh around the ginkgo nuts.

My suggestion is that you just get over it. It might help if you chew on some aromatic gum, like licorice gum, while collecting.

while collecting.

Once collected, you can let the nuts and their soft outer shell dry, which makes it significantly easier to clean. Or you can just clean them right away, as I tend to do. I always wash them outside. You can put all the fresh ginkgo nuts in a pan of warm water, and roll them around between your hands to clean off all the outer coverings, which you should then toss into your compost pile.

The cleaned nuts are then best dried, such as in the oven at pilot-light temperature. I have dried them with their shells, and without their shells. I don't know if one way is right or wrong, and I believe it is just a matter of preference. However, ginkgo nuts dried in the shell seem to keep a lot longer than the shelled and dried ones. If you plan to eat them right away, then it probably doesn't matter how you prepare them.

Once roasted, you can just eat the ginkgo nuts as-is. (Yes, there are two types of people: Those who like ginkgo nuts, and those who do not....)

I have never eaten these nuts raw because of the foul odor. However, there have been some reports that the nuts can make you ill if you eat them raw (no doubt!). The nuts must be boiled or roasted for about 25 minutes. You'll know they are done when you can easily break the thin shell with a nutcracker. They taste is akin to a bean.

To extend shelf life, they can be simply dried, though freezing might be even better.

Caution: there have been reports of sickness by some people who have eaten about a dozen cooked nuts at one time. So my suggestion is to try a few and monitor the results. Your body will tell you whether or not you should eat more.

THE LEAF

When you see pills of Ginkgo biloba in health food stores, such pills are made from the ground or powdered leaf

Leaf extract has been subject to many clinical tests, and it apparently increases circulation for the limbs and for the brain. This is why it seems to be helpful for improving memory and assisting with retaining memories. Suggestions that ginkgo can reverse dementia don't seem to hold up to clinical tests. Nor do the claims that ginkgo can cure cancer seem to be valid, so far.

A leaf extract has also been found to improve the immune system, and to protect the heart by clearing plaque from the arteries. In fact, ginko biloba extracts are used for many ailments such as headaches, asthma, kidney disorders, and more.

I have found that when I am experiencing a "slow day," ginkgo pills, or homemade tea from the leaves, seem to offer a subtle yet noticeable "pick-me-up" without the eventual slowdown that follows drinking coffee.

There has been some debate about the safety of gathering your own ginkgo leaves for making your own tea. From what I have concluded, it seems safe enough to brew an occasional cup of tea from the leaves. Also, apparently the best time to collect the leaves for tea is when the leaves have turned yellow and are falling from the tree. This also apparently bypasses any toxic properties (e.g. ginkgolic acid) that may be in the leaf.

Most negative reactions from using ginkgo are not from the leaf, but from eating the nuts raw.

FORAGER NOTES

Don't bring raw nuts with the husks into your house without warning the family. I remember I brought some home once when I was living with my parents. They were all in a brown paper bag in the kitchen, since I intended to clean them right after dinner. My mother insisted that everyone check the bottom of their shoes since she was certain someone stepped in dog poop. Finally, I remembered the bag and took it outside. It seemed like years before I heard the end of that one. [Nyerges is the author of "Foraging California," "Guide

How to Protect Your Real Estate Assets

If you own real estate, chances are you have purchased insurance to protect the property against damage or loss. But have you taken the necessary steps to protect your assets against lawsuits or probate?

If you own rental properties, there is likely a nagging fear in the back of your mind about being sued by one of your tenants. And if there isn't, there should be. It's a major risk.

And while it may be heartbreaking to think about, there is always a chance your death could trigger a family feud over your home, vacation home, or other real estate investments.

Two common estate planning tools for real estate asset protection include limited liability companies (LLCs) and trusts:

The LLC. If you have income-producing property, then an LLC probably makes sense for you, since it shields your personal assets from lawsuits or claims that result from your ownership of the real estate. LLCs may also offer owners privacy since the property can be listed in a company name, not in your name directly. However, you must be sure you maintain the LLC properly so the planned for protections remain intact. It's not too difficult to accomplish that though, especially with the help of counsel.

The Trust. If you own property that you do not rent out on a regular basis, then a trust may be a better choice for you. There are several options: a Qualified Personal Residence Trust (QRPT) is an irrevocable trust (meaning it cannot be changed without the G, Sierra Madre, CA 91024.

consent of the beneficiaries) that allows an owner to use the property for a fixed term, and then pass the property on to heirs. This is a commonly used structure to reduce the size of your estate for estate tax purposes.

A revocable trust (which can be changed without consent of the beneficiaries) is more flexible and, if you choose a dynasty trust, can last for multiple generations. The major benefit of the revocable trust, besides control of what happens to the assets after the death of the grantors, is that it keeps your assets out of the hands of the Court after your death, and totally within the control of your family.

You can also use a combination of LLCs and trusts to protect real estate assets if you have a combination of primary residence and rental properties. We can help you determine the best course of action for your individual circumstances.

Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed

by Luther Tsinoglou

ATTITUDE ADJUSTMENT

In spite of the real estate roller coaster of the last few years, homeownership remains the bedrock of financial and familial security. Having a longterm investment that provides the satisfaction and pride of ownership beats just about anything else you can do with your savings.

When the market exploded several years ago, the expectations of many consumers grew too high, too fast. Homes became more commodities than investments, and now markets and attitudes have been forced to realign.

Conditions today make it an opportune time to secure your future. Home prices and interest rates are still low, and tax advantages are abundant. You just have to get past all the negativity in the media. All the bad news has drained consumer confidence, and frankly, you cannot underestimate the effect of intangibles like confidence and expectation on the real estate industry.

Real estate transactions are unlike any other financial transaction. The demand and desire for homeownership doesn't expire like other flashy investment instruments. The inherent value of a stock can be calculated by a formula of company profits, earnings ratios, performance history, fund managers, and so on.

However, a home's value is ultimately determined by what a buyer is willing to pay for it, and the security and well-being that owning your own home provides. Honestly, there's hardly been a better time to make your move.

LEFT TURN AND MORE

HOWARD Hays As I See It

"There is no 'us and them'. There is only 'us'."

President Bill Clinton in his First Inaugural Address (January, 1993)

I don't "tweet". I still haven't fully accepted the tic-tac-toe symbol as the "pound sign" on a telephone, let alone a 'hashtag".

There are a couple Twitter users who got something going last week, though, that I found interesting. They asked followers to submit examples of how individuals with a certain characteristic in a certain circumstance had been depicted in the media, published or broadcast. I'll give five examples from each of two groups, and maybe you can guess from these actual media depictions the characteristic and circumstance the five in each of the two

- groups have in common: "... brilliant, but social misfit"
- . . 'soft-spoken, polite, a gentleman', exprincipal says"
- . fascinated with guns but was a devoted Mormon, friends say
- . described as 'fine person"
- . brilliant, athletic but his demons were the death of parents"

Here's the second group:

- . . had history of narcotics abuse, tangles with the law"
- . . had been shot before . . . possibly drug-related"
- .. had many run-ins with law"
- . was gang member"

"Trayvon Martin was suspended three times from school"

That last one probably gave it away. The first five are media descriptions of murder suspects, all white. The second five are murder victims, all black.

I don't know how many readers of this column regard themselves as "brilliant", 'athletic", "polite", etc. - but it's the crowd we like to think we hang with - it's "us". Those with a "history of drug abuse", "many run-ins with law", or a "gang member" - it's nothing personal, but it's definitely "them". The above Twitter project followed the Ferguson (Missouri) Police Dept.'s releasing video of what they claim was a "strong-arm robbery" by 18-year-old Michael Brown of a local convenience store shortly before he was killed by one of their officers. (When is the last time you heard the expression "strong-arm robbery"?)

The U.S. Dept. of Justice asked the Ferguson Police not to release the video, warning it would only inflame the nightly street protests they were trying to calm down. The Ferguson Police went ahead and released it anyway, and guess what - the Feds were right; there went the relative calm of the night before.

The video release blindsided Missouri Gov. Jay Nixon (D), as well. Referring to Brown's family, the governor said on "Meet The Press", "When you see your son gunned down in the street and then you see a police chief begin an attempt to attack his character, that's just not the way to operate. .

Toxicology results are pending, but it appears Brown might have smoked pot. Not only that, he was reportedly an aspiring rapper. This was enough for David Horowitz to label him "a criminal and a thug"; one of

The release of the video and selective leaking of information from off-the-record, anonymous sources, contradicting on-therecord statements from publicly identified eyewitnesses, is to establish before any federal or grand jury investigation that Michael Brown was one of "them". The protests became re-enraged with the re-emergence of a familiar strategy - establishing an "us vs. them" narrative to preclude any white cop / black victim accountability. Sometimes this stereotyping is calculated; other times it seems to be media habit, as with the tweet sent out by the AP announcing the verdict earlier this month in the killing of a black teenager in Dearborn Heights, MI last November.

Renisha McBride was a 19-year-old who went out and got wasted, booze and pot, at a friend's place. Heading home in the wee hours, she smashed up her car. Hurt and needing help, she banged on the door of a house within walking distance. She was killed when the homeowner fired a shotgun at her face through the locked screen door. When the killer was found guilty of seconddegree murder and manslaughter, the AP tweeted, "Suburban Detroit homeowner convicted of second-degree murder for killing woman who showed up drunk on porch". This didn't go over well, so the AP sent out a revised tweet, "Jury convicts Michigan man in killing of unarmed woman on his porch".

By then, however, a group called Black Twitter had come on the scene, established the hashtag #APHeadlines and invited followers to submit suppositions as to how the AP might have tweeted coverage of other events:

"Lincoln signs Emancipation Proclamation. Several hundred thousand blacks out of work"

"Unarmed Black Man Trips Into A Chokehold: NYPD Blamed For His Death" "Mitt Romney posts impressive secondplace finish behind possible Kenyan

"Black youth charged with stealing police bullets: Found hidden in torso"

"BREAKING: Stray bullet strikes uppity negro speechifying on balcony"

"Africans infect eminent white doctors with lethal virus"

"The poor of New Orleans leave their cramped apartments to wait out hurricane in spacious Superdome"

"Homeless blasphemer from low-income Nazarene family, low on stamina, fails to survive crucifixion"

(Thanks to Lee Bailey's Electronic Urban Report website for the above)

The "us vs. them" narrative is played out in the media through their focus on the looters and Molotov cocktail-throwers in Ferguson, and not the masses of protesters trying to stop them and protect threatened businesses. The Ferguson Police established the narrative early by coming on not to protect citizens exercising their rights, but confronting them as an occupying force with heavy mobile armor, military gear and assault weapons.

For a while I regarded these reports as about "them" in Missouri, so distant from "us" here in Southern California. Then I learned that last month the Compton School Board authorized its school police to arm themselves with AR-15 assault rifles.

Not being very familiar with the Twitter vernacular, for that Compton story I believe users would employ the expression, "Well, That's Flummoxing!", or rather its abbreviation, "WTF!".

RICH Johnson WHAT'S YOUR JOURNEY?

promise the Court Jester will return shortly. Seeing the funny side of life is seriously important. I shall return. "Get it? Got it! Good!" (Can anyone tell me where that quote came from?)

How old are you? In your twenties? Thirties? Fifties? Seventies? How is your life progressing? Are you filling your life with what you always wanted to do? If the answer is no, you are like most of us. How did you end up doing what you are doing? Parents talk you out of that career as a rock drummer and send you to accounting college? It happens all the time. Find your true love and settle down? You're lucky, but it doesn't mean you have to derail your other dreams and goals.

If you have unfulfilled dreams, it just may be time to reassess and modify your game plan. No, I'm not suggesting abandoning the family. I'm suggesting you come up with a new game plan that involves the family in helping fulfill your goals (and theirs). And realize you are not alone. This is nothing new. Let's talk about people you may have heard of who didn't achieve their goals until later in life.

Abraham Lincoln ran for statelegislature and lost and then won. In between he had a business fail. He got engaged and his sweetheart died. He ran for Congress and lost. Then he won and then he lost again. Then he ran for the Senate and lost. He ran again and lost again. And then a funny thing happened. He was elected President of the United States at age 51. Huh?

Gifted singer Andrea Bocelli was defense attorney until the age of 34, graduating from the University of Pisa. He left his job to pursue singing. He has, to date, recorded 14 studio albums, 3 greatest hits albums and 9 complete operas. Not bad for a fella with no sight.

Morgan Freeman was 43 when he earned his first credited role: a small one in "Brubaker". 51 when Freeman did "Driving Miss Daisy." Samuel Jackson was 45 when his big role in "Pulp Fiction" thrust him to the top. Gene Hackman and James Gandolfini were in their late 30s before they hit success. Interesting thing about all these guys is they kept pushing long after a lot of us would have given up.

Now, what about those of us a little later in life? Is it too late? A guy named Harland

Sanders (you may know him as Colonel Sanders) had been an insurance salesman,

a streetcar conductor and then opened up a gas station. He started offering meals at his Corbin, Kentucky gas station in 1930. A mere 25 years later, at age 65, he came up with the idea of franchising his chicken with 11 secret herbs and spices. Now he (well not him personally) serves 12 million customers a day in 110 countries. Not bad for a senior citizen. Anna Mary Robinson Moses was a skilled embroiderer, whose hands became crippled by arthritis at age 76. Her sister handed her a paint brush and 1,600 painting later she passed away at age 101. Here's one for the books. At age 88, Mademoiselle Magazine featured her as their "Young Woman of the Year". You may remember her as Gramma Moses.

Do you have something you'd like to try but are afraid you might fail? Ever hear of the Birmingham Barons, or the Scottsdale Scorpions? They signed a 31 year old "rookie" whose batting average leveled at .202 (not good). You may remember him. His name was Michael Jordan. Yes, that Michael Jordan.

Pursue your dreams. I am. I'm thrilled to have spent the last two and three years fulfilling my personal dreams of being part of a comedy radio show and an oldies rock and roll band. (By the way, the band is playing September 20th at Corfu Restaurant and November 8th at The Peppertree Grill. The radio show, the Barry, Rich and Lisa show, can be found on iHeart radio)

Pursue your dreams. Please.

OUT TO PASTOR A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

IT WAS A SHOOFLY PIE CELEBRATION WEEKEND

People ask me questions all the time. Some of those questions I can answer, some I cannot answer and some I will not answer. I wish people would ask me questions

I could answer and look good about it. However, it never happens. The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage asks me questions all the time. After 43 years, I have finally figured out her questions. Most usually require one word answers. For somebody like me who spends most of his time preaching and writing, boiling an answer down to one word is something that is quite difficult.

The one great thing about my wife is, when she asks me a question, she does not really want an answer, because she already has the answer. I do not know how wives have developed this kind of intellectual mystique. I have just never had the opportunity to ask her. This probably would be the main question I would ask. Sometimes, living in the dark is okay.

Some people ask questions to get information. Some people ask questions to show off how smart they think they are, which, merely proves how dumb they actually are. Do not let them know that I said this, or they may have some questions for me. Then some people ask questions in order to trick you.

Questions are important. Sometimes my friends (both of them), will ask me a question. The primary question is simply, What is a shoofly pie? This is the kind of question I like and furthermore, I like to answer

The trouble with a question like this is, where do you begin? With something as marvelous and wonderful as a shoofly pie, where do you start to explain all of its

To begin with, a shoofly pie is a slice of heaven. I am quite sure that in heaven at supper time there will be shoofly pies aplenty. I know quite a few Mennonite and Amish women who, I am quite sure, are in heaven, and if they are, they will insist on making shoofly pie. I do not know if it is in their genes, but I do know it is in their aprons.

If anybody has ever had the wonderful opportunity of eating a shoofly pie, they will know exactly what I am talking about. It is hard to explain the experience without your mouth watering so much you need a towel.

To start with, the bottom of a shoofly pie is sheer liquid pleasure. Depending on the woman preparing the pie will depend on how thick that bottom layer is. Once that is laid down, the next layer is a delightful mix of flour and sugar and other secret ingredients. That layer seems to float on top of that liquid pleasure.

On the top is a crust of munchable delight that has absolutely no equal. Then, to set it off, there is a circular crust that holds all of this together in one magnificent

I am not a baker so I do not know how they put all of this together and then put it in the oven and then bring out this awesome, classical dessert known as shoofly pie. Some things are so wonderful that they cannot be fully explained.

Personally, I would rather not spend much time trying to answer the question, What is a shoofly pie? I would preferably utilize that time delving into eating a shoofly pie. That is my greatest delight.

Recently I indulged this marvelous delight in the center of shoofly pie country. Everybody knows that to be Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

A conference was going to be there that I wanted to go to but I had many things that prohibited me from going there. All I could think about was the wonderful shoofly pies I could indulge in if I went to that conference. So, I worked hard to eliminate everything that would keep me from going there. Some things are, indeed, worth fighting for.

About a month before the conference was to start, I had dealt with the final obstruction and was able to make plans to go. All I could think about was, "Shoofly pie, here I come.'

As soon as my flight landed, I hurried off to the nearest restaurant and indulged in my first slice of shoofly pie for the weekend. I am happy to say it was not my last piece.

At the conference, they had breakfast, lunch and dinner and for dessert, even at breakfast, was shoofly pie. I cannot tell you how many pieces of shoofly pie I ate, for the simple reason I cannot count that high without taking off my shoes. A slice of shoofly pie highlighted every meal. I am happy to say that they had more shoofly pie at this conference than I could consume although I did my very best, I assure you. I know that life sometimes has its hard paths and things can become very difficult. That is why we need to have something to really look forward to.

The writer to the Hebrews understood this when he wrote, "Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God" (Hebrews 12:2).

Celebrating the delicacies of life enable us to survive the adversities of life.
