SMPD IMPLEMENTS ADDITIONAL PROCEDURES AFTER TOWN HALL MEETING

During the public comment segment of Tuesday's City Council meeting and in the wake of public outcry regarding the return of AWest a convicted sex offender who has returned to Sierra Madre, Police Chief Larry Giannone gave an update on what the department has done in an effort to address the community's concerns.

Giannone informed the council and public that he has been in contact with AWest and reviewed all 23 conditions of his release with him. Of those requirements, Giannone reiterated to the public that should they observe a violation of any of the terms, especially those listed below, they should contact the SMPD immediately. AWest is:

1- Not live in a place where he is in view of where children congregate;

2. Must not loiter anywhere children under 18 are present and

Must not contact children under 18 without parental consent and he must tell parents before they give consent that he is a registered sex offender.

Giannone has implemented, with the council's blessing the following additional procedures for making certain that the public is notified as soon as possible when predators register with the city.

These enhanced procedures include:

- 1. Notifying the Department of Justice within 24-48 hours of an offender registering;
- 2. Following up with the DOJ to make certain they have received the information and posted it on the Megan's Law website;
- 3. Monitoring the Megan's law website and once the information has been posted
- 4. Advising the public via social media and electronic communications whenever a change has been made on the site. These notifications will include notice to the schools, all of whom the SMPD has met with as of this date.

Mayor John Harabedian thanked the Chief and the department for an outstanding and timely response to this situation. Harabedian noted, however, that the issue of sex offenders living within 2000 feet of schools is a matter which the city must revisit. He is proposing that the city write a letter to all Federal, State and County agencies indicating Sierra Madre's disapproval of their failure to prosecute those who violate the proximity laws. For details on sex offenders in Sierra Madre go to: http://www.meganslaw.ca.gov/

A Note from The Mountain Views News Editor:

Earlier this week via email, this paper received an interesting communication from attorney claiming to represent the convicted sex offender, AWest. In it, she "demanded" that I "immediately cease and desist any further publication of information regarding Mr. AWest".

It is unclear what a licensed attorney's objectives were in sending such a 'demand', as the United States Constitution is the backbone of our legal system and freedom of speech and the press is an integral part of it.

I informed the writer that The Mountain Views News is committed to reporting news of importance to our community and will continue to do so. AWest's return to Sierra Madre was and remains news of great importance.

I am deliberately omitting the name of the attorney for if her goal was to solicit free publicity for herself and/or the advocacy group for that wants to change current sex offender laws that she organizes, she has failed.

As stated in this paper's mission statement every week, "The traditions of community newspapers and the concerns of our readers are this newspaper's top priorities. We support a prosperous community of well-informed citizens. We hold in high regard the values of the exceptional quality of life in our community, including the magnificence of our natural resources. Integrity will be our guide."

Committed to delivering the news our community cares about,

Sierra Madre Pasadena:

WALKING SIERRA MADRE...The Social Side By Deanne Davis

By Deanne Davis

"When the goldenrod is yellow, and leaves are turning brown -Reluctantly the summer goes, in a cloud of thistledown.

When squirrels are harvesting and birds in flight appear -By these autumn signs we know September days are here." Beverly Ashour, September September days are here, but summer is certainly being reluctant about packing its bags and getting out of town! I, for one, am ready for that to happen! Ready for another bunch of days like last Monday when it rained! Actual rain! What a treat! Of course, it only lasted for a few minutes, but for those of us here in Sierra Madre who think twice before we shower, and three times before we water, it was sooo nice.

Here's another splendid thing about September: School is back! Yes, indeed, all our adorable children are out of the house, off the couch, the refrigerator door remains closed for hours at a time, and no one is demanding lunch at 10:30 in the morning. Living around the corner from St. Rita's, we can hear the kids playing, and it's such a delightful sound. Psalm 100 says, "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands," and I'm sure that's exactly what a joyful noise

September gardening? Not so much. The only things that are doing fairly well are the succulents. The tomatoes are still gamely putting out blossoms which promise future tomatoes, everything else just looks sunburned.

We're seeing deer up at the top of Santa Anita fairly frequently, a herd of five, one guy with antlers, a couple of does and a couple of young kids. They leisurely wander up the median, cross over to somebody's lawn, nibble, look at all the cars waiting for them, then continue up and into the hills. Seeing deer is awesome. It really is. We know they eat everybody's flowers, but they're so elegant.

The 3rd annual Scarecrow Festival is coming up, starting this Saturday, sponsored by the Creative Arts Group. This was so cool last year, my scarecrow admiring buddy, John, and I thoroughly enjoyed all the creative scarecrows our downtown folks did and can't wait to see what's going to happen this year. Businesses AND residents can enter the contest. There's a free Scarecrow Building workshop this Saturday from 10-4 at Creative Arts Group and there is more information on this event, which will be ongoing from September 28th through the end of October elsewhere in the Mountain Views News. Sierra Madreans are so good at this kind of thing. We really like to throw ourselves, wholeheartedly, into fun town projects. You can see the picture we took of our scarecrow to inspire you to make a much better one. Maps will even be available from Creative Arts Group so you can find them all. All you need to get started is a really good hat! Saw an excellent movie: "The 100 Foot Journey" with Helen Mirren and a wonderful cast. A family leaves India and ends up in France to open a restaurant. We highly recommend it. You'll laugh, you'll be touched, and there are no car chases, zombies or transformers. Woo hoo!

One last thing about September; in just a couple of days, our Nation will be remembering 9/11. This year marks the 13th anniversary of what is, to quote FDR, "a date which will live in infamy." In 2013, construction workers placed the final pieces atop New York City's newest skyscraper, One World Trade Center, making it the tallest building in the Western hemisphere at 1,776 feet. The single skyscraper replaces the http://news.bbc.co.uk/hi/english/static/

Sierra Madre Police Blotter

During the week of Sunday, August 31st to Sunday, September 7th, the Sierra Madre Police Department responded to approximately 490 calls for service.

Monday, September 1st

At 6:30 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 300 Block of North Sunnyside Avenue regarding a welfare check. The call was placed by the subject's daughter who claimed her father had been drinking all day and was not answering his phone. A previous incident of the man stating he'd drink himself to death caused the daughter's concern. When Officers arrived on scene, they were met by a very intoxicated male subject. When Officers informed him they were there because of his daughter's concern for his welfare, the man was staggering and having trouble maintaining his balance. The man informed Officers he was depressed and that was the reason for his drinking. As the man kept asking Officers why they were there, the Officers on scene felt the man was a danger to himself based on his extreme intoxication and history of wanting to drink himself to death. The man was taken into custody and transported to a local hospital to be placed on a 72 hour medical hold.

Tuesday, September 2nd

At 5:23 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 100 Block of North Baldwin Avenue regarding a suspicious vehicle in the area. Upon arrival, Officers located the vehicle and were approached by the owner. The subject informed Officers that he was visiting his child, but did not live there due to a restraining order. He stated his wife called him earlier that morning stating she needed money and wanted him to come over and that she wanted to drop the restraining order. He arrived at around 11 am and remained there all day, knowing he was in violation of his restraining order. Shortly after the wife arrived at the residence and confirmed to Officers that she had asked her husband to come over and that she would be going to the court to have the restraining order dropped. Upon review of the restraining order, it was determined it was issued as a domestic violence restraining order. Due to the man being in violation, he was taken into custody and booked for Intentional and knowing violation of a domestic violence court order.

Friday, September 5th

At 5:52 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the area of Baldwin and Alegria Avenue regarding a hit-and-run incident. Upon arriving on scene, Officers were met by a subject who witnessed the incident. She informed Officers that a red truck had made a right turn into a residential drive way and then backed out. While backing out, the rear portion of the truck collided with the driver's side door of another vehicle that was unoccupied, parked along the curb. The witness stated the suspect did not attempt to stop or provide any information withess stated the suspect did not attempt to stop or provide any information regarding the collision. While inspecting the substantial amount of damage of the driver's side door, Officers were approached by the vehicle's owner. The owner was shocked by the damage and informed Officers she parked her vehicle there only thirty minutes prior. She stated she desired prosecution if the suspect was found. At around 7:19 pm, the victim contacted Sierra Madre Police after she spotted what she believed to be the vehicle that hit her, parked down the street of the original collision site. Officers arrived and inspected the down the street of the original collision site. Officers arrived and inspected the vehicle, noting the positive ID made by the witness and the damage to the rear end of the vehicle. When Officers made contact with the owner, he confirmed the same series of events the witness described, and explained he fled because he panicked. The man was arrested and charged with Hit and Run Property Damage Only.

Sunday, September 7th

At 5:19 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 100 Block of Rancho Road regarding a residential burglary. On scene Officers were met by a female subject who informed them that the residence belonged to her deceased parents and was currently vacant. When she arrived earlier to check the property, she noticed the master bedroom had been ransacked and items appeared to be missing. She then notified her brother who stated the real estate agent had been there at around 11 am. When Officers made contact with the agent, he informed them he went to the residence after a neighbor reported seeing the front door open. He arrived and secured the home then left. Investigation concluded the unknown suspect(s) entered the rear yard through an unlocked gate and then removed the louver window panes from a rear window to gain entry into the residence. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

SIERRA MADRE POLICE TAKING BACK UNWANTED PRESCRIPTION DRUGS ON SEPTEMBER 27th

[SIERRA MADRE, CA] - On September 27 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. the Sierra Madre Police Department and the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) will give the public its ninth opportunity in four years to prevent pill abuse and theft by ridding their homes of potentially dangerous expired, unused, and unwanted prescription drugs. Bring your pills for disposal to the Police Department Lobby at 242 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. (The DEA cannot accept liquids or needles or sharps, only pills or patches.) The service is free and anonymous, no questions

Last April, Americans turned in 390 tons (over 780,000 pounds) of prescription drugs at nearly 6,100 sites operated by the DEA and more than 4,400 of its state and local law enforcement partners. When those results are combined with what was collected in its eight previous Take Back events, DEA and its partners have taken in over 4.1 million pounds—more than 2,100 tons—of

This initiative addresses a vital public safety and public health issue. Medicines that languish in home cabinets are highly susceptible to diversion, misuse, and abuse. Rates of prescription drug abuse in the U.S. are alarmingly high, as are the number of accidental poisonings and overdoses due to these drugs. Studies show that a majority of abused prescription drugs are obtained from family and friends, including from the home medicine cabinet. In addition, Americans are now advised that their usual methods for disposing of unused medicines-flushing them down the toilet or throwing them in the trash-both pose potential safety and health hazards.

DEA is in the process of approving new regulations that implement the Safe and Responsible Drug Disposal Act of 2010, which amends the Controlled Substances Act to allow an "ultimate user" (that is, a patient or their family member or pet owner) of controlled substance medications to dispose of them by delivering them to entities authorized by the Attorney General to accept them. The Act also allows the Attorney General to authorize long term care facilities to dispose of their residents' controlled substances in certain instances.

STUDENTS CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY TO COMMIT MURDER

The Los Angeles County District Attorney's office charges added new against two High School students from South Pasadena alleged to have masterminded a mass shooting plan thawed by police.

The charges filed Monday include conspiracy, to both, commit murder and commit assault with a deadly weapon. The teens, aged 16 and 17, denied all charges.

They are due back in court Sept. 23.

The teens were first charged Aug. 20 with one count of making criminal threats after the mass shooting plan was uncovered by school officials and then followed up by a police sting investigation.

The South Pasadena Police Department was notified by the high school staff that they had received information of a possible treat to the school that a shooting was going to occur," South Pasadena Police Chief Art Miller said at the time.

The two teens were arrested Aug. 18. Their names are still being withheld because Police served search warrants at both teens' homes after investigators monitored their behavior online, which included researching tactical training, explosives, weaponry and methods for disarming police.

The two also communicated over Skype Miller said.

"As they put it, they just wanted to kill as many people as possible," He said adding that they later told detectives they were prepared to die.

No weapons or explosives were found during the search although police seized two computers they

LA LOMA BRIDGE TO GET SEISMIC RETROFIT

By Dean Lee

The city council voted Monday night to move forward with an agreement between the city and Caltrans to fund over $13 million for the long awaited construction of the La Loma Bridge Seismic Retrofit and Rehabilitation Project.

City officials said construction on the bridge would likely begin early next year and is expected to be completed in fall 2016. They failed to say if construction will close the bridge to traffic or close the walking trails underneath to the public.

Although the item was up for discussion, no one from the public spoke. The vote was unanimous with the exception of Councilmember Victor Gordo who recused himself.

"The reason that it was held [from the consent calendar], as Mr. Gordo placed on the record is, a potential economic interest involved in that matter [the La Loma Bridge Seismic Retrofit and Rehabilitation Project] because of his work," Mayor Bill Bogaard said.

"The Wiggle Waggle Walk is a community event for animal lovers," says Steve McNall, president and CEO of the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA. "This is our biggest fundraiser of the year. We would not be able to provide the level of care to all the animals in our nine-city service area without to fundraise for the animals by creating personal web pages through the Wiggle Waggle Walk website and asking family, friends and co-workers for donations. Non-walkers, and those unable to attend the event, can also create fundraising web pages through this site. Entrants who raise $50 will receive an official Wiggle Waggle Walk T-shirt. Registration is free.

Check-in starts at 8 a.m. at the entrance to Brookside Park. The walk will begin at 9:00 a.m. and the Pet Expo will take place immediately after the walk until 1 p.m. The Pet Expo will feature K-9 demonstrations, a variety of pet product booths, food the community's support."

Helen Romero Shaw. Public Affairs Manager for the Gas Company, Addresses Arcadia Chamber Meeting

By Joan Schmidt

Attendees to the recent Arcadia Chamber of Commerce Government Forum $Meeting\ were\ treated\ to\ a\ very\ special\ Guest\ Speaker,\ Helen\ Romero\ Shaw,\ Public$ Affairs Manager for the Southern California Gas Company, which oversees ten cities in the west San Gabriel Valley as well as several communities in Los Angeles County. Ms. Shaw gave quite an informative presentation.

Ms. Shaw began, "Natural Gas is a foundation fuel for a clean and renewable energy future, and the Southern Gas Company is the largest natural gas distribution company in the United States with 8000 employees, serving 20 million consumers from Visalia down to Mexico with its 6 million meters and 20,000 pipelines across Southern California!" Some natural gas uses include cooking, heating, and transportation- autos and even school buses in Arcadia.

The Federal Clean Air Act of 1970 (Amended in 1990) has facilitated California's climate change goals by regulation of ozone, a colorless, reactive oxidant gas that is a major constituent of atmospheric smog and nitrogen oxide. (Ground level smog is formed in the air by the photochemical reaction of sunlight and nitrogen oxide-NOx, facilitated by a variety of volatile organic compounds (VOCs) which are photochemically reactive hydrocarbons. Current state carbon dioxide pathways miss the federal ozone target, but natural gas is helping us reach the Federal Ozone Target. The Gas Company has been working with manufacturers and has gone beyond the benchmark. Electric vehicles may have "0" emission, but their power plants release emissions.

Ms. Shaw said the biggest polluters include trucks and railroads; "We have to work with them to go to natural gas...we are launching new research, putting more into refueling stations...currently UPS and Foothill Transit use natural

Ms. Shaw also spoke of decarburization of electricity, "If it's not windy or if the sun is not out, backup fuel is natural gas...We're the pathway-from organic waste to renewable power to gas, decarburizing the pipeline... Take electricity, convert it to gas-methane or hydrogen gas...You cannot store electricity, but you can store natural gas-underground storage is below abandoned oil fields. Advantages of natural gas are it's abundant, affordable, domestic and clean.

Natural gas is non-transitional. Pipelines are very safe; they've been around 150 years. "We are constantly checking them for pipe corrosion or leaks...look at all pipelines under high pressure. If they don't meet criteria, they are replaced." Ms. Shaw also told us pipelines are rented out to large companies. No more pipelines can be built, so Southern Ca Edison rents the pipelines and pays a tariff.

The big success is that the Gas Company has an energy efficiency program, "we're not producing, but buying and we make sure there is no impact on the water table.'

Ms. Shaw also explained that the Gas Company gets natural gas from the Midwest. "We take custody of gas when it comes into the state."

The Federal Government is in charge of Pipelines; "We run Smart Pig -it tells us how thick it is, if there are leaks...we have certain standards for pipelines...we are adding valves now...companies, even cities puncture our gas lines...call 811 and a team will go out and take care of it."

Of course, Ms. Shaw feels the Gas Company has the "best crew". And after hearing her presentation, I would certainly agree.

CITY ASKS RESIDENTS AND BUSINESSES TO COMPLY WITH NEW STATE WATER RESTRICTIONS

DUARTE, CA, September 11, 2014 – The City of Duarte has passed Resolution 14-R-21 making it a code violation for residents or businesses to fail to comply with the recently passed State Emergency Regulations addressing severe statewide drought conditions. Regulations include: (1) using potable water on outdoor landscapes causing runoff into adjacent properties; roadways, parking lots, or private/public walkways; (2) using a hose to wash a vehicle except when the hose is fitted with a shut-off nozzle; (3) using water on driveways and sidewalks; and (4) using potable water in a fountain or other decorative water feature except where water is part of a recirculating system. Violations of these regulations may result in fines. Specifically, the City is treating violations as an infraction utilizing written warnings combined with sufficient time for the violation to be corrected. If, in some cases, warnings fail, the City can then issue citations with penalties ranging from a fine of $75 for the first offense, $150 for the second, and $300 for the third.

The decision to move forward with Statewide restrictions came after a State Water Resources Board survey showed previous conservation measures failed to achieve the 20% reduction in water usage sought by Governor Brown back in January of this year. These regulations were also reaffirmed more recently on August 14th when the California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC) issued a resolution requiring all water agencies such as the City's water system owner, California American Water company to inform their customers about the four statewide, mandatory water restrictions. Within 10 days of this ruling, California American Water published notice of the Emergency Regulation in both local newspapers and on their respective website. They also, within 20 days, provided direct mail notice to their customers of the newly enacted emergency regulations. They, like the City, will also continue to publicize the restrictions throughout April of 2015. Additionally, Cal Am shall assist in assuring compliance by working with the City's Code Compliance division charged with enforcing the mandatory restrictions.

In a prior resolution passed by the Duarte City Council on May 14th, the City had previously asked Duarte residents and businesses to take immediate action to "voluntarily" conserve water. Duarte residents were encouraged to take simple steps to save water, including taking shorter showers, not leaving water running, checking for leaks, washing only full laundry loads, promptly fixing defective plumbing or sprinklers, and watering only when landscaping needed it during early morning hours.

Since 2009, the City has been taking steps to conserve water. For example, City street crews have utilized drip irrigation, regularly inspected and replaced broken sprinklers, utilized weather sensing irrigation clocks, and regularly replaced turf with drought tolerant shrubs. Most recently, the Facilities Maintenance Division of the Parks and Recreation Department has also taken measures to conserve water at the City's facilities by installing water free urinals, automatic toilet flush systems, and low-flow shower heads.

California American Water is an investor-owned water utility providing water service to about 28,000 households and businesses, in the cities of Bradbury, Duarte, El Monte, Irwindale, Monrovia, Rosemead, San Gabriel, San Marino and Temple City, as well as unincorporated portions of Los Angeles County and the Baldwin Hills area. It is these communities that comprise the Los Angeles service area. The majority of the water service in the Los Angeles district is groundwater, pumped from the region's main and central basins. In the City of Duarte, California American Water has seven wells that provide approximately 95% of the local water.

For additional information on water conservation, visit the Utilities section ofwww.accessduarte.com or www.saveourh20.org. Local residential or business violations may also be reported to the City's Code Compliance Division by calling 626-357-7938.

LANCERS ON THE GRIDIRON

PASADENA UNIFIED PARTNERS WITH HUNTINGTON MEDICAL RESEARCH INSTITUTES TO SAVE LIVES OF STUDENT ATHLETES

Potentially life-saving head and heart scans will be offered to PUSD high school student athletes free of charge

This fall, every high school student athlete in the Pasadena Unified School District (PUSD) will be eligible to receive a free head and heart Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) scan. PUSD has partnered with the Huntington Medical Research Institutes (HMRI) to conduct a cutting-edge research program focused on diagnosis and prevention of sudden cardiac death and traumatic brain injury in student athletes. This program is motivated by increased public recognition of traumatic brain injuries by the National Football League and others and the deaths of students across the country due to sudden cardiac death. This study is a first for Pasadena high school athletes.

"I am extremely excited to partner with the Huntington Research Institute to provide this service to PUSD students and I believe this program is beneficial for our athletes," said PUSD Interim Superintendent Dr. Brian McDonald. "As someone who witnessed the sudden heart related death of a childhood friend immediately after a coccar game. I understand the importance of friend immediately after a soccer game, I understand the importance of preventative care to protect our student athletes. We are grateful to the HMRI for their willingness to include us in this important endeavor.

Student athletes will be eligible to receive a free cardiac MRI designed to identify an inherited heart condition that predisposes a student to sudden cardiac death (SCD), a non-traumatic, non-violent, unexpected event resulting from the cessation of the heart beating within six hours of a previously witnessed state of normal health. People at risk for SCD are usually without symptoms and unaware that they have a predisposing condition. An Altadena resident and former PUSD student who was attending Harvard-Westlake succumbed to SCD last year. Devastating events such as this could potentially be prevented by the simple scan offered to PUSD athletes.

"I am excited to be able to offer this new benefit to our PUSD athletes," said Ann Rector, PUSD Coordinator of Health Programs. "This study has the potential of not only saving a life, but also helping researchers understand sports-related trauma."

PUSD athletes can also receive brain scans designed to diagnosis and prevent brain injuries resulting from a concussion. Concussions are traumatic brain injuries that can lead to chronic cognitive and neurobehavioral difficulties especially if the concussions are recurrent. Although the majority of athletes who experience a concussion are likely to recover, an unknown number of these individuals may experience difficulties related to recurrent injury, commonly referred to as Post-Concussion Syndrome.

Two MRI head screening exams, an initial screening early in the school year and a follow-up at the end of the school year, are available to student athletes free of charge. Any athlete who experiences a concussion while participating in a PUSD sporting event will also receive a follow-up scan to see how the injury has affected the brain. Participation in both the brain and heart scans is optional and will supplement the annual physical exam that athletes receive. An MRI does not involve radiation exposure and the scans

"HMRI's expertise in non-invasive imaging is an important resource for PUSD and we are pleased to offer these normally expensive studies to young athletes at no cost to the student or the district," said HMRI's Chief Scientific Officer, Marie Csete MD, PhD. "HMRI scientists will also benefit from studying students because there is insufficient data about the incidence of cardiac abnormalities that could lead to SCD. Importantly, HMRI is at the forefront of understanding how imaging can be used to diagnose and follow patients after they sustain a head injury, but we have focused on older patients to date, so important information about trauma to young brains can help fill in the scientific picture and, we hope, help future athletes."

For more information about these programs, contact Ann Rector at rector.

PATRICK TIERNEY NAMED AUSD TEACHER OF THE YEAR

ARCADIA-- The Arcadia Unified School District is pleased to announce Patrick Tierney as its Teacher of the Year for the 2014-2015 school year. Tierney, who speaks fluent Spanish, Latin, and Portuguese, has been a Spanish and literature teacher at Arcadia High School since 1987.

'Patrick represents everything that is right about public education and the consummate professionals who educate our children each day," said Arcadia Unified School District Superintendent David Vannasdall.

Tierney was a college professor before a profound visit to a high school campus changed his career path and life forever.

"I was all set to continue my career as a college instructor in 1977 when I arrived in California," Tierney said. "While visiting a friend at a local high school, I was caught in a hallway as the bell rang to end class. I had never before been aware of such passion, agitation and movement all in one cramped space. I jettisoned my college career immediately to be a part of this environment, and you might say that the educational community has never been the same. I certainly haven't."

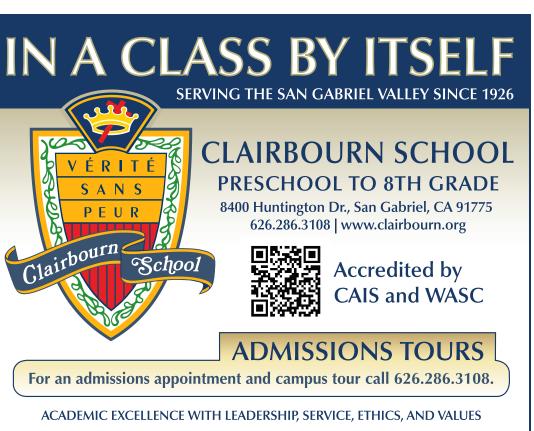

Tierney, who established the Advanced Placement (AP) Spanish Literature program at Arcadia High School, has been teaching for 38 years. He graduated with a Bachelor of Arts Degree from the University of Pittsburgh, and also earned Masters Degrees in Spanish and Portuguese, and in Latin Literature.

"We are thrilled for Patrick to receive this worthy distinction," Arcadia

Dr. Brent Forsee said. "Considering we have some of the most innovative and best teachers in the country in our district, it's high praise to be named Teacher of the Year in Arcadia Unified."

Arcadia Unified School District employs more than 400 teachers. Arcadia High School has been named a Gold Medal School for the past three years by U.S. News and World Report on its annual Best High Schools Rankings list. Less than three percent of the more than 19,000 schools that were evaluated nationwide in 2014 earned the gold medal distinction.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show AS ABOVE SO BELOW REVIEW

Nowadays, horror movies are a dime a dozen. They all involve demons of some sort, stupid characters, and derivative plots that get recycled every movie. So, what makes "As Above So Below" special in the horror genre?

Absolutely nothing. Scarlett (Perdita Weeks) is looking for the fabled philosopher's stone. It if rumored to be somewhere in Paris, but she has no idea where. After tracking down several key clues, she discovers the stone lies in the catacombs, and she and a team of guides go down into the ancient tunnels to find it.

This is like "Indiana Jones" gone wrong. Weak, whiny, and downright stupid characters make the movie funny. What makes this film hilarious is the fact that there are almost no demons/ ghosts/evil spirits. Ninety-nine percent of the deaths come from the characters' own negligence. The only thing that makes this film any good is a very impressive technical trick used at the end of the movie. See "As Above So Below" if you are looking for a good laugh.

DILLS' GREEK VACATION + GREEKFEST AT SANTA ANITA

Thomas Wolfe wrote a book titled 'You Can't Go Home Again' but throughout the years there have been different variations of that familiar title. Ah but this man lived in an era that didn't include airbuses now did he? It has been some 40 years that I departed Greek Soil. I recently returned to Greece and am excited to share my experience with you. If it is history that you seek, there is plenty of that to enjoy, if you are looking for relaxation then this is your spot, how about superior cuisine? I will attest that the worst meal of the trip wasn't really all that bad. Yes,

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

Getting There: It's a long flight, with choices of airlines and layovers in Toronto, Washington and Greece has something for everyone.

New York. We traveled on Air Canada and had a layover in Toronto. As a beer drinker, a few Molson's at the airport restaurant helped make the time go by fast. One warning though, if you are using dollars they will give you back Canadian currency, so my suggestion is to use your credit card. Unless you want to have a couple of dollars as a keepsake. Once you make it to Athens, you'll have the choice of a taxi, renting a car, or if you are on a tour like we were then someone will greet you at the terminal. My suggestion is that if this is your first trip a taxi or hotel shuttle would be prudent. However, if you are on the islands, renting a car is safe and easy.

Where to stay: In Athens there is a list of five star, four star and three star hotels. We stayed at the Metropolitan just outside Athens, and while the hotel was clean and a great view of the port, I wouldn't say it was five star. But I liked that it had a view and was away from downtown Athens that is congested and a bit dirty with graffiti and scooters everywhere. Once in Santorini and Mykonos, the accommodations are very nice, in fact while our hotel in Santorini Greco, wasn't on the beach it reminded me of staying in a storybook village: very upscale and with four different pools. In Mykonos there are many small/boutique hotels very close to the beach, while our accommodations were close to being cramped, I will call it cozy. To tour or not: If you have traveled to Athens or any other surrounding Islands before, I don't see any need to sign up for a tour. We did and I am glad we did, but it was the consensus of our group that if any of us and the stadium, that none of us would spend much time in Athens.

were to return, that you could easily do it on your own. We agreed that once if you have seen the ruins

Getting Around: Big difference in getting around in Athens and getting around in Greece. First of all it's much hotter in Athens then it is in the islands, and as I mention in when to go July and August have is severe heat. My mother to this day reminds me of the 100+ day in July when I was born on a US Army base. The buses in Athens are usually filled with locals and would opt for taking a taxi or even the tram. On the Islands I do recommend the buses, many of them are new, air-conditioned and dependable, a bus ride is about $1.40 euro. On the islands you can rent a scooter by the day, it looks fun, but I was warned that many a kid has seen the hospital by crashing into the wall on a narrow road. Getting from island to island is done by Ferry, a boat that costs about $45 euro. There are airplanes that do fly from the Athens Airport to Santorini/Mykonos, and when I return I will take advantage of them, but for your first visit it adds to the fun of the trip. Bring a book or a crossword puzzle. If you aren't on a guided tour tickets can easily be purchased at the port.

When to go: Athens is hot, I mean temperature hot, in fact many workers and vendors take off August to visit friends and families elsewhere. If you are there to relax and get a tan, then by all means July would be OK, however just visiting the Acropolis in June we were overheated and water was our best friend, I couldn't imagine a July tour of Athens. My suggestion is early June or late September.

Dollar v. Euro: Those looking for bargains, we found that even though Greece is in a financial crisis, they haven't put out the distress flag yet, when shopping you can always ask for the best price. I was warned that dinners can easily run $60 euro, while I did see that price tag, it was very few and in between. I did notice that the restaurants closest to the water were pricier. A tip is to go to supermarkets, not the markets and buy beer, water and fruit and have it in your hotel refrigerator. The fruit there is some of the best I've had. The beer and sodas at the hotel can be twice or three times as much as getting them at the market or a Kiosk.

Dining in Greece: Originally I was going to give a few reviews of the restaurants that I visited, and after collecting business cards of places that I dined, I came up with this conclusion, where ever you go, you really can't go wrong. You want affordable dining? They have it. Want to dine on or near the beach? Yes, fish and chicken are the most popular items that we came across both in Athens and in Santorini and Mykonos. The items on the menus at each restaurant are very similar. You won't find too many steaks or burgers, yes, they are available but there are no beef cattle being raised in Greece. We enjoyed the Greek Salad and the Rocket Salad pretty much with every meal. You'll find that the Greek Salad has no lettuce, and is made up of cucumbers, olives, tomatoes and Feta Cheese. Something I found odd, the extra charges on the bill, first when they ask if you want bread, we always say yes, there is an additional charge of 2 to 3 euro. Plus sit down restaurants have a cover charge, no not the night club admission, this is a sitting charge, this charge gives you the privilege of sitting at your table for as long as you want, I think this was initiated more for the locals that like to sit for hours and conversing over cigarettes and espresso. Note.. everyone smokes, even while they are working. One spot that did stand out in Athens, near our hotel was Restaurant Kalypso. The food was above average and the waiter even assisted us with our Greek language lessons. We returned there while waiting for our flight home.

Tipping: This isn't as big of a deal that it is in the states. Workers are working for what is called a "living wage", don't ask me to explain a living wage, I am restaurant reviewer not workers rights lawyer, however you won't get the typical service that you'd expect from the waiters, it's not bad, it's "are you ready to order" your food is brought and you might not see your server again, at least until you flag them down/ and I did a lot of flagging down. My suggestion is 10 to 12 % tip. Taxi Cab drivers same thing, a couple of euro are sufficient. As with any trip leaving the chambermaid and if you are on a tour, a tip is suggested.

Sightseeing: The first day is full of sight seeing, visit the Acropolis, Zeus Statue, Temple of Poseidon, and the Stadium, an afternoon at the beach in Athens is also a pleasant way to end your day in Athens, a day in Athens? Yes, ! I found Athens to be hot, congested and plain dirty. If you want to see the ruins, I took a boat trip to the Island of Delos. There is a small admission charge once you get there, but you will get a sense of the history of Greece. One of the highlights of the trip was our seven-mile hike on The Santorini; we started at Fira and ended our walk in OIA, beautiful walk looking the cliffs and sights of the Volcano's and the Aegean Sea. Two other musts while we are on Mykonos we took a small boat along the shore and you have your choice of five beaches, a beach for everyone, a party beach, a topless beach, we opted for Elia, plenty of sand and chairs to enjoy a relaxing day sun bathing. Santoroni has been voted top ten sunsets in the entire world. We took the Sunset Cruise that was quite relaxing and is a must; another bonus is the boat stop briefly at one of the volcanic hot springs, hot? No, but quite warm.

Is Greece Safe?: Yes!! On our first day on our vacation we stayed just a few miles from downtown, it wasn't till we went to downtown did we see any police presence, you are more likely to be hit by a scooter then witness any crime that goes for the Islands of Santorini and Mykonos as well.. In fact on the Islands we noticed no police at all, I mean none. I was surprised by the text messages and facebook postings asking me if I was OK? Just like Los Angeles, some areas are better then others, if you are looking for a demonstration I am sure if you wait long enough you can find one.

Opa!! Pack your bags save your money and head to the Islands of Greece. The locals are waiting for you with open arms and a glass of Ouzo.

2. Meanwhile, heat broth with 21/2 cups water in a small covered saucepan and leave it on low heat.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

SIT, STAY, SMILE FOR THE CAMERA!

The 21st century has been ever-so-kind to the modern-day lover of the canine, wouldn't you agree? I am amazed at how much things have changed since just a few short decades ago, when your average dedicated dog lover would have been deemed obsessive compulsive if they were heard talking about their pet during a conversation in public. Anyone who may have been caught thinking or talking about their four-legged best bud in a social setting was assumed to be some kind of a weirdo, groping and hoping for love and in dire need of "getting a life".

Not so much anymore. In fact, most people I know are serious dog lovers and/or pet owners, and when we get together for a little social time in town, we are hard pressed to come up with an alternative topic to discuss! How is it that our precious pets have become such a major part of our everyday lives? I think it has to do with the fact that domesticated animals have proven to be consistently loving and affectionate through thick or thin, while we humans often choose to wiggle our ways out of being dedicated to relationships that turn out to be inconvenient or less than comfortable.

Regardless of why pets have become such a major part of the average civilized citizen's life on this planet, one thing is for sure; the human's intensified friendship with the animals has had an enormous impact on our society, and has given birth to an entirely new and fast-growing market for pet pampering services, retail pet products and pet care paraphernalia. Who knew the average family dog might end up helping America's economy stay afloat during a time when we need it most?

Among the many fantastic facets for pampering our pets with products and services that have emerged in today's market, is that of professional pet photography. There have been numerous famous photographers throughout history who've used their skills to document various subject matter since the art of photography was developed, but the concept of focusing specifically on pet photography is relatively new, and quickly becoming a prolific practice these days.

Allow me to digress to the origin of photography, if you will. The art itself dates back to the early 1800's, when daguerreotypes, ambrotypes and tintypes were the mainstream media used to preserve, print and document images captured by a rustic camera using the basic elements of light, time and an immense amount of skill to achieve desired results. Even then, way back in the day, when photography was a newly invented art form, the subject matter of photos often included animals, mostly domestic livestock or pets. Now, in 2014, vintage photos depicting animals in the subject matter tend to be more desirable and collectible than those wherein animals are absent; a known fact that I love to brag about!

I recently caught up with a friend who happens to be a professional pet photographer here in Sierra Madre. I was already working on this article, so it seemed natural to ask him for an interview to add to my story. Steve Johnstone, owner of Canyon Pet Portraits is a talented artist who has photographed several of my canine clients as well as my bloodhound, Tatertotts. The photo shown is one that Steve took of Zola, a gorgeous Great Pyrenees and dear client of mine. When I first saw the results of his work, I was impressed immediately! Steve agreed to an interview, during which I became even more fascinated with his story, his work and his amazing skills.

CL: So, Steve, how did you get into pet photography? SJ: After I retired from the movie industry, I set up a small studio to continue in photography. I was doing fine art and portraits, but people kept asking me to photograph their dogs. I really enjoyed it. People seemed to like the results and I started doing more and more.

CL: So, you're a dog person?

SJ: I've had dogs, cats and other critters throughout my life and always knew they are an important aspect, another dynamic in life. They become part of the family, true companions. And I try to treat them as such, with the dignity they deserve in my portraits. Of course, you can't get too solemn because having a pet should be fun - even a little goofy at times!

CL: Today it seems everyone has a phone or camera to take pictures with. Why should they go to a pet photographer if they go to a pet photographer if t can take photos of their pets themselves?

SJ: Excellent point. Today's phones and point-andshoot cameras are amazing. But nothing compares to an high-quality, archival print on the wall or in an album. There's something about prints that you just can't replace. It's the difference between receiving an email versus an hand-written letter.

CL: What distinguishes you from other pet photographers?

SJ: There are some really fine pet photographers out there. I can only give you my approach: Everything I do is in my studio. With my background in motion picture lighting and photography, I feel I can get the best results under those controlled conditions.

CL: So, how is the business going?

SJ: Great! I work with my wife, Rosemarie who is also retired from the movie industry. Only this is a lot more fun for us both. And, it is also very satisfying to give our clients something they will treasure for years to come

CL: What is the best way for a person to contact you, if they are interested in learning more about your pet photography services?

SJ: We are always reachable by phone at 626-355-2808, or 818-292-5014, or visit our website at canyonpetportraits.com to view samples of my work and to contact us via email.

THESE GUYS COULD USE YOUR HELP

A dear friend of mine passed away recently, leaving behind his three beloved bird-hunting English Pointers. They are in good hands, with my friend's bereaved widow for now, but since she is not into hunting, she has asked if I can be of assistance in finding a new forever home for her pups. Here are photos of "Luna", the mom, and her two babes, "Chuck" and "Pearl".

All three dogs are cordial and in excellent health, with current vaccines and all vet care up-to-date. They are beautiful babes, I know personally because I had the opportunity to spend a little time with them when my friend was traveling, about a year ago. Please take a look, and share this post with anyone whom you think might be interested. They are excellent at the craft of birding, but would also make fabulous pets. Anyone interested, please contact me and I will put you in touch with the owner. Chris@canyoncanine.com

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND?

Looking For A Best Friend??

Mitzi is a 7 year old white Maltese mix, weighing around 11 pounds who came to the shelter as a stray. She looked like she had been living on the streets for a while – her fur was dirty and badly matted. Volunteers pitched in to send her for a professional grooming and the transformation was dramatic.

Mitzi is a very happy dog who loves people. She gets along with other dogs she has met at the shelter, including the two kennel mates she has had since she arrived with us, but her preference is being with people. She loves getting pets and cuddles, and will put her paws on your leg asking to be picked up. She will also dance on her hind legs for treats. She hasn't shown much interest in playing with toys, and would rather be getting human attention. Mitzi enjoys going on walks and is easy to handle on leash.

Mitzi is a friendly, good-natured girl who would make a wonderful family pet. She would do well with a single person, couple, or family who can give her the love and companionship she needs. She would love to have a yard to explore, but would be very happy to sit on the sofa with you to watch TV.

Mitzi would qualify for our "Senior for Senior" program, although she would be a great dog for any age person or family. Please come in to meet her and see if she is the right dog to share your home and life. She will happily meet you with a smile on her face, and maybe a kiss or two.

She currently resides at the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society located at 851 E. Grand Avenue in San Gabriel. We are located off San Gabriel Blvd., north of Mission and south of Las Tunas.

To arrange a 'Meet and Greet' with the perky

Mitzi, please stop by any time from 10:00am to 4:30pm Tuesday thru Sunday. Her adoption fee is $120 which includes spay surgery, a microchip, first vaccinations and a free wellness check-up at a participating veterinarian. She is also eligible for our Senior For Senior reduced-fee adoption program. Feel free to call us at (626) 286-1159 for more information on Mitzi.

THE JOY OF YOGA Thursday Night Sutras are for Everybody!

So, you have heard me say before that the "real" yoga is not about the poses. It is not about being a pretzel or balancing on one leg. It is not about stretching or downward dog. It's not about the workout or the cute clothes. It is about finding true happiness. It is about freedom. But that freedom is maybe not what we think. Doing the physical can help us get to know ourselves better. The physical helps us learn to control the physical body. The physical helps us learn a discipline. Then the real work starts: The Practice. It's about meditation. It's about learning to control your mind so that you can be free from the minds wandering, vacillating thoughts. It's about learning to choose your thoughts instead of them choosing you.

Only at this place can we be free, unaffected by drama. It is at this place that we can see what our true purpose is. We can identify and let shine our inner luminosity. This week my Grand teacher, Pandit Rajmani Tigunait will be speaking about the Yoga Sutras, the yoga text. Yoga Madre is proud to host a night of lecture and a meditation practice with this amazing man. He will also be signing books.

All are welcome. No stretching. Just listening and quieting the mind.

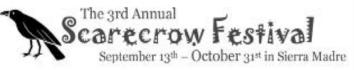

Please join us at the Neighborhood Church in Pasadena, Thursday evening, September 18. Details and registration at yogamadre.com.

Come find your lovely stable mind. I'll see you there!

CHASE THE BLUES AWAY WITH GREENS

Frequent consumption of vegetables appears to cut one's odds of depression significantly. A recent review in a nutritional journal suggests that eating lots of fruits and vegetables "may present a nonin-vasive natural and inexpensive therapeutic means to support a healthy brain."

So why then would fruits and vegetables improve our mood? They contain substances that can be inhibitors of depression. Spices, such as clove, oregano, cinnamon, and nutmeg, can also inhibit the substance that digest neurotransmitters, but people don't eat enough to have an effect by them-selves. There are special nutrients found in apples, berries, grapes, kale, onions, and green tea that may indeed affect our brain biology enough to improve our mood. THE GOOD LIFE

WANDERING SOLUTIONS FOR ALZHEIMER'S CAREGIVERS

Dear Savvy Senior:

My mother, who lives with me, has Alzheimer's disease and I worry about her wandering away. What tips can you recommend to help me protect her? Concerned Daughter

Dear Concerned:

According to the Alzheimer's Association, about 60 percent of people who suffer from dementia wander at some point. For caregivers, this can be frightening because many of those who wander off end up confused and lost, even in their own neighborhood, and are unable to communicate who they are or where they live. But there are things you can do to guard against this and protect your loved one.

Wandering Prevention

For starters, to help reduce your mom's tendency to wander, keep her occupied and involved in familiar daily activities such as preparing dinner or folding the laundry. It's also important to encourage daily exercise and limit daytime napping to reduce nighttime restlessness.

There are also a number of simple home modifications you can make to keep her from wandering away. Some possible solutions include: adding an extra lock on the top or bottom of the exterior doors out of the line of sight; install child-proof door knobs or levers; place a full-length mirror, or put a "STOP" or "Do Not Enter" sign on the doors you don't want her going through; or get a signal device or motion sensor that lets you know when the door is opened. See alzstore.com for a variety of product solutions. And, be sure you hide the car keys to keep her from driving.

It's also a good idea to alert your neighbors that your mom may wander so they can keep an eye out, and have on hand a recent picture to show around the neighborhood or to the police if she does get lost.

If you want some added protection in case she does wander off, there are a number services you can turn to for help, like the MedicAlert + Safe Return program (medicalert.org/safereturn).

This service comes with a personalized ID bracelet that will have your mom's medical information engraved on it, along with her membership number and the toll-free MedicAlert emergency phone number.

If she goes missing, you would call 911 and report it to the local police department who would begin a search, and then report it to MedicAlert. Or, a Good Samaritan or police officer may find her, call the MedicAlert number, to get her back home safely.

Another option that could help, depending on where you live, is a radio frequency locater service like SafetyNet and Project Lifesaver, which are offered by some local law enforcement agencies.

With these services, your mother would wear a wristband that contains a radio transmitter that emits tracking signals. If she goes missing, you would contact the local authorities who would send out rescue personnel who will use their tracking equipment to locate her. Visit safetynetbylojack. com and projectlifesaver.org to see if these services are available in your community.

There are also a number of GPS tracking devices that can help you keep tabs on your mom. With these products, she would carry or wear a small GPS tracker that would notify you or other caregivers via text message or email if she were to wander beyond a pre-established area, and would let you know exactly where to find her if she did.

To find GPS tracker's, consider the PocketFinder (pocketfinder.com) or the Alzheimer's Association Comfort Zone (alz.org/comfortzone). Or, if you have concerns that your mother wouldn't wear a GPS device or would take it off, there's the GPS SmartSole (gpssmartsole.com), which is an insole with an embedded GPS device.

For more wandering prevention tips and solutions, visit the Alzheimer's Association Safety Center at alz.org/safety and This Caring Home at this caringhome.org.

KATIE Tse.....This and That Trader Joe's -- Ambassador of Food

You've gotta love Trader Joe's! go there at least once a week. Our relationship has had its bumpy moments (like when they discontinued bagged grapefruit). But for the most part, I usually leave the store satisfied.

Besides reasonable prices and convenience, Trader Ioe's bridges the gap between unadventurous shoppers and "ethnic" food. Case in point: my family has Trader Joe's to thank for my dad's new love of dim sum, wasabi, and roasted seaweed. This is a big deal because my dad and I both love, LOVE, routines. We can eat the same four or five meals for years on end without complaining. So, you can imagine my dad's resistance when I recommended

"exotic" dishes such as sushi, hummus, and Japanese snacks.

My dad claims he first came to appreciate hummus when one of his coworkers suggested they grab a meal at Zankou's. Had it been my mom or I choosing our lunch destination, my dad would've undoubtedly refused. But he's ever-accommodating to non-family members. Though he may have first tried hummus at Zankou's, I believe it was my aunt's regular inclusion of Trader Joe's hummus at holiday gatherings that won my dad over.

Trader Joe's offers a safe haven for people to try suspicious, unknown non-American food. Some folks are intimidated by the thought of going to Super King to pick up pita bread and humus, or to go out for dim sum on Valley blvd. But if these foods are available at Trader Ioe's, in a nice, friendly container with English writing, it's okay. Similarly, when I was dating a Japanese guy, my dad declined all the classic Japanese snacks like roasted seaweed. Now that Trader Joe's carries it, my dad's hooked! He even says the original flavor's too bland, and prefers the wasabi. Recently, he also bought wasabi peas from Trader Joe's, all on his own, without any prompting. I reminded him that, years ago, I offered him the same product (in Japanese packaging), which he strongly declined.

I'm convinced that if Trader

Joe's came out with chicken feet, such as is served for dim sum, there would be a great demand for it from people who would've never before considered eating the stuff. At the end of the day, the majority of us like things that are fatty, salty, sweet, or all of the above. If something seems too weird to try now, don't worry. Trader Joe's will come out with a friendlier version of it for you to try soon. Until then, enjoy the humus, seaweed, and wasabi peas!

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: VANCE JOY

By Sean Kayden

Australian James Keogh, the man who performs under the moniker Vance Joy is getting quite the attention these days. His ukulele-driven single,

"Riptide" has been a huge hit over the airwaves this summer. The pop-folky sound has been played out over the years, but Vance Joy somehow makes it all fresh again. This rare feat makes up his debut record, "Dream Your Life Away." His record continues upon this folk revivalism movement made by bands prior to Vance Joy. The 13-track album is a beautiful, emotionally packed unit that is relatively upbeat but with a lyricism that has both your mind and heart in a complete whirlwind. The debut is a dreamy, warm, easy going ride. It'll tug on the strings of your endearment, which should be a warning that "Dream Your Life Away" will undoubtedly have you contemplating your own life choices.

Nearly fifty minutes of pure folk-pop rock, "Dream Your Life Away" is infectiously appealing. The simplicity is refreshing, the lyrics are heartfelt, and the honesty is fierce. While similarities can be drawn to Mumford & Sons, Keogh's record is no imitation. Even if it feels like a Jack Johnson meets Mumford & Sons kind of album, I think the comparisons are merely on the surface. When you dig deeper, which won't be difficult with such an effective piece of work, you'll discover all similarities aside are fruitless. Keogh's skillful writing abilities, beautiful melodies, and adept guitar playing are impressive on all levels. "Winds of Change" kicks off the record in a brief way. Under two and a half minutes, it's a wondrous intro to what's to come in the next 12 tracks. "Mess is Mine" feels like another radio-friendly tune. It starts off slow before erupting into something ethereal. The lyrics grab you like a long lost love seeing you for the first time in years. Many of Vance Joy's songs are painstakingly romantic. At least the best ones are. "We All Die Trying To Get It Right" is another melancholy take on love. When he hits the right chords, everything feels like magic. This abovementioned tune awakens the spirit when it seems to need it the most. It's one of my favorite songs of the year. "Georgia" is a mellow, guitarpicking tune that showcases Keogh's downright superlative vocal powers. The closing track, "My Kind Of Man" is brimming with beauty and saccharine vocals. "Dream Your Life Away" features the hit single, "Riptide," but it's one of these rare instances that many of the album's other tracks outweigh the depth of the single. I hope Vance Joy doesn't just ride the coattail of his radio-friendly single because there's a lot to love here, a lot to discover and a lot for the listener to connect with. In a world where it's getting more and more arduous to connect on a human level, something like "Dream Your Life Away" comes along to remind us that there is beauty still left to be found and cherished.

Miniaturist: Novel by Jessie Burton being who composed some of Set in seventeenth century Amsterdam, a city ruled by glittering wealth and oppressive religion, a masterful debut steeped in atmosphere and shimmering with mystery. On a brisk autumn day in 1686, eighteen-year-old Nella Oortman arrives in Amsterdam to begin a new life as the wife of illustrious merchant trader Johannes Brandt. But her new home, while splendorous, is not welcoming. Johannes is kind yet distant, always locked in his study or at his warehouse office-leaving Nella alone with his sister, the sharp-tongued and forbidding Marin. But Nella's world changes when Johannes presents her with an extraordinary wedding gift: a cabinet-sized replica of their home. To furnish her gift, Nella engages the services of a miniaturist—an elusive and enigmatic artist whose tiny creations mirror their reallife counterparts in eerie and unexpected ways . . . Johannes' gift helps Nella to pierce the closed world of the Brandt household. But as she uncovers its unusual secrets, she begins to understand—and fear—the escalating dangers that await them all. In this repressively pious society where gold is worshipped second only to God, to be different is a threat to the moral fabric of society, and not even a man as rich as Johannes is safe. Only one person seems to see the fate that awaits them. Is the miniaturist the key to their salvation . . . or the architect of their destruction? Enchanting, beautiful, and exquisitely suspenseful, The Miniaturist is a magnificent story of love and obsession, betraval and retribution, appearance and

The Sierra Madre Playhouse continues making strides in its quest to join the first rank of small theaters in the greater Los Angeles area with its announcement this week of a new Mission adopted for the Playhouse and a new Management Team to lead it into the future. The new management team is comprised of Estelle Campbell as Managing Director, Ward Calaway as Director of Operations and Ben Womick as Technical Director, and most importantly, Christian Lebano as Artistic Director the first at the Playhouse in nine years.

Christian is a familiar face on and off the Playhouse stage as the leading actor in To Kill a Mockingbird, Our Town, and God's Man in Texas and the director of Driving Miss Daisy, Woman in Mind, and Battledrum. As Artistic Director, he will be responsible for the overall artistic vision and quality of the theater through the selection of its season and the hiring of directors, designers, and other artists for each production. Christian has been the driving force behind the Field Trip Series, the Playhouse's new educational outreach program which brought over 1700 students to school-day performances of Battledrum last Spring, and the Sunday Music Series: Emerging Artists at the Playhouse, the Playhouse's collaboration with the prestigious Colburn Conservatory of Music bringing young classical musicians to Sierra Madre in concerts programmed by them with input from Christian.

Recognizing that the Playhouse's role in our foothill community has evolved since the theatre was first constructed in 1923 its newly defined mission reflects that change. The new Mission Statement

The Sierra Madre Playhouse is dedicated to the American creative experience. It produces American plays and puts them into a historical context. It celebrates and produces music by emerging artists. It encourages and fosters an appreciation of live performance in people of all ages.

As Christian told us, "What better place to celebrate the American experience than in the All-American small town of Sierra Madre. Our vision is to make the Playhouse a cultural center in the San Gabriel Valley with a programming mix of superior theater, exciting musical performances, and quality family fare, supported by special events that put the work in an enlightening context." "I want to make SMP a destination theater - to encourage people to come for the day to hike the beautiful trails, shop in our stores, have a great meal, and see a wonderful show." "We ask you to join us as the Playhouse continues to grow and evolve. If you haven't attended a play recently or know someone who has never visited our theater, summer presents the perfect opportunity to come home to the Playhouse and introduce it to your friends. Our next production, the delightful romantic comedy, 6 Rms Riv Vu, opens on August 1and plays through September 6 - we hope to see

The Playhouse will be announcing their new Season next week and Christian promises a season with something for everyone, mix of comedies and dramas, a charming holiday show, and a rip-roaring

FOOTHILL UNITY CENTER'S BETTY MCWILLIAMS HONORED AMONG WOMEN ACHIEVERS OF 2014 BY BUSINESS LIFE MAGAZINE

Betty McWilliams, Executive Director of Foothill Unity Center, has been named one of 27 Women Achievers of 2014 by Business Life Magazine. The awards will be presented at a luncheon and expo on Monday, September 29, at the Glendale Hilton. This marks the 25th year for the awards. Criteria for nomination include contributions to the community, adversities overcome, volunteer work, recognitions and factors that make the nominee deserving of this honor.

sixteen years, McWilliams has been instrumental in the fight against hunger, homelessness and poverty in the San Gabriel Valley as Executive Director and previously Deputy Director of Foothill Unity

Center, the primary provider of food, case management/crisis help, and access to health care resources across eleven cities in the San Gabriel Valley. During that timee, she has played a leadership role in the growth of the organization's client base, services and supporters. Ms. McWilliams, who holds a Bachelor of Sciences degree in Gerontology from the University of Southern California, began her career in human services as a VISTA volunteer working with low income residents of a settlement house. She came to Foothill Unity

GROUNDBREAKING AT MONROVIA SQUARE STATION: HISTORY IN THE MAKING AND A REUNION OF SORTS

By Joan Schmidt

This past Wednesday, September 10, 2014 saw the official ground-breaking of Monrovia Station Square and what a great event it was. The turnout was awesome- many stakeholders and interested residents in addition to so many dignitaries, Police Chief Jim Hunt, Chaplain Terry Brown and members of the Monrovia Police Department, Fire Chief Chris Donovan and members of the Monrovia Fire Department and THREE of their vehicles-one truck had a ladder draping an American flag, City officials- current and past- the list just goes on.

There was a huge canopy and underneath were seating and tables of refreshments. I arrived fifteen minutes early and got a chance to mingle with many old friends: Joan Whitenack, retired from Foothill Unity with hubby Ray Wheeler; Penny Arroyo, Executive Director of the Volunteer Center of San Gabriel Valley-but also the mom of one of my former students; Brenda Trainer and a canine friend from Wonder Ranch; and Connie Aguilar from Options. Of course representatives came from Monrovia's neighbors- Arcadia's Mayor Pro Tem Gary Kovacic and Duarte's Mayor Pro Tem Tzeitel Paras-Caracci with cute Jack Russell. All of the current Monrovia City Council attended- Mayor Mary Ann Lutz, Mayor Pro Tem Becky Shevlin, Council Members Tom Adams, Larry Spicer and Alex Blackburn; City Clerk Alice Atkins, City Treasurer Steve Baker, Director of Community Development Steve Sizemore, Interim City Manager and MC for festivities Francis Delach, Carl Hassel, Director of Public Works, School Board Members Rob Hammond and Terrence Williams and Alexis Bakofsky, the City's Press Coordinator.

Assemblyman Chris Holden himself attended and presented Mary Lutz with a Certificate of Recognition for the City. Also present and making presentations were Joyce Roys-Aguilera from Senator Carol Liu's office, Hector Elizalde for Congresswoman Grace Napolitano, Enrique Robles and Becky Cheng for Congresswoman Judy Chu, Brian Mejia for Supervisor Antonovich, and Nicole Leiva for Assemblyman Roger Hernandez.

Why is this History in the Making? Station quare is the largest Public Works project in Monrovia's history. It is a community-driven project that fulfills a long and involved planning process to deliver a unique vision. Monrovia is utilizing $25 million from the State Urban Greening grant, Measure R funds, Proposition C monies, Federal 5309 funds and $16.5 million from the Gold Line Construction Authority from the sale of land for the Gold Line Operations Campus (Maintenance and Operations Yard) for the project and surrounding street and infrastructure improvements to benefit the community and complement the opening of the Gold Line Station.

Mayor Mary Ann Lutz thanked all of the many people who played a role in this project and their vision, including former Mayors Bob Bartlett and Rob Hammond, Council Members Joe Garcia, Dan Kirby and Lara Blakely. She also recognized the different groups, organizations and politicians involved. There was mention of South Pasadena and how the community benefited from its station: so many businesses came in, and it has become a very desirable place to visit. It is everyone's hope that this station square will bring in even more visitors to their great City of Monrovia.

Half of All Exoplanet Host Stars Are Binaries

Imagine living on a planet that has two suns. One you orbit, and the other is a very bright, nearby neighbor looming large in your sky. With this "second sun" in the sky, nightfall might be a rare event, perhaps only coming seasonally to your planet. A new study suggests that this could be far more common than we realized.

NASA's Kepler Space Telescope has confirmed about 1,000 exoplanets. Until now, there has been an unanswered question about exoplanet host stars: how many host stars are binaries, or double stars? Binary stars have long been known to be commonplace—about half the stars in the sky are believed to consist of two stars orbiting each other. So, are stars with planets equally likely to have a companion star, or do companion stars prevent the formation of planets?

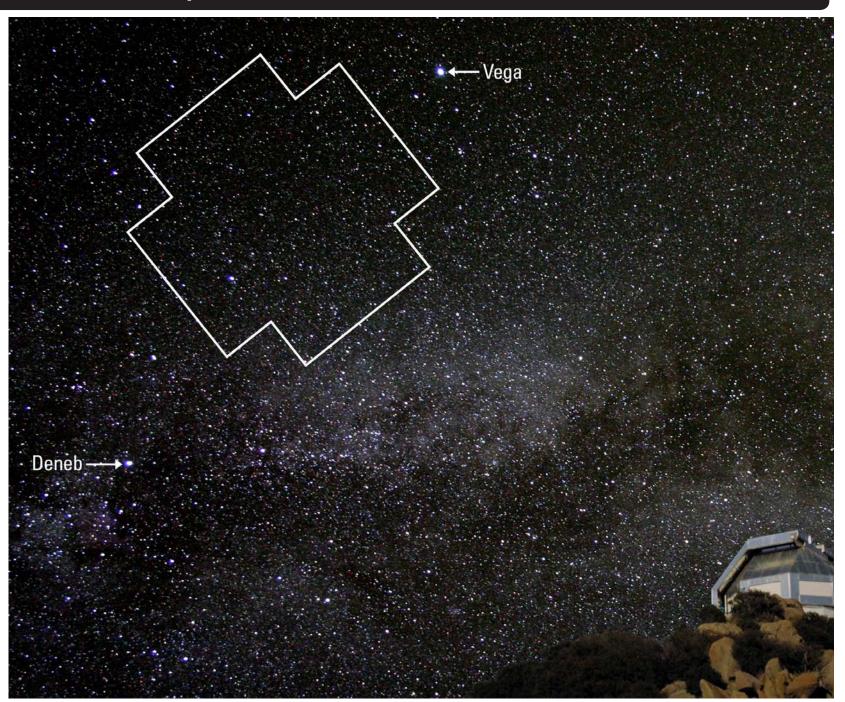

The study, by a team of astronomers led by Dr. Elliott Horch, Southern Connecticut State University, has shown that stars with exoplanets are just as likely to have a binary companion: 40% to 50% of the host stars of confirmed exoplanets are actually binary stars.

Their study makes use of very high spatial resolution observations that were carried out on the WIYN telescope located on Kitt Peak in southern Arizona and the Gemini North telescope located on Mauna Kea in Hawaii. The technique used by the team is called speckle imaging and consists of obtaining digital images (15 to 25 times a second) of a small portion of the sky surrounding a star of interest. The images are then combined in software using a complex set of algorithms, yielding a final picture of the star with a resolution better that that of the Hubble Space Telescope.

By using this technique, the team can detect companion stars that are up to 125 times fainter than the target but only 0.05 arcsecond away. For the majority of the Kepler stars, this means companion stars with a true separation of a few to about 100 times the Sun-Earth distance. By noting the occurrence rate of these true binary companion stars, the discoveries can be extended to show that half of the stars that host exoplanets are probably

Co-author of the study, Dr. Steve B. Howell (NASA Ames Research Center), commented, "An interesting consequence of this finding is that in the half of the exoplanet host stars that are binary we can not, in general, say which star in the system the planet actually orbits."

The Kepler orbiting telescope has discovered a number of circumbinary planets, that is, a planet that orbits both stars in very close binary systems. There also exist exoplanets that are known to orbit one of the stars in very wide binary systems. If the two stars are very close to each other and the planet far away, a circumbinary planet will be reminiscent of the planet Tatooine in "Star Wars." If instead the exoplanet orbits one of the stars in a very wide pair, the companion star might appear are advocates of the "front lawn." Our front area is planted with fruit trees, herbs, and ornamentals. Once, while we tending were this area, a visitor of ours stated that he does not grow anything in his yard. He told us he was so concerned about dry weather conditions, and drought conditions, that he regarded any sort of plant cultivation as "wasting water."

Of course, our visitor was tacitly suggesting that we were wasting water.

We realized that this idea was rather widespread when yet a second person suggested that we forget about planting any more trees, bushes, or vegetables due to what seems to be regular periods of drought and water shortages in Southern California.

This counter-productive idea seems to have gained a foothold in the minds of many residents of our Southland. We've even heard some "garden experts" suggest this idea, that to "save water" we should simply not grow plants.

We are able to grow fruit trees and roses and herbs and other edible plants partly because we direct all of our washing machine water, and most of our dish water, out into the garden areas and not down the city's sewer line. We are using the water twice!

To the visitor who suggested that we stop growing for awhile, we casually asked, as we were showing him our water recycling system, "So where does all your used water go?" He was silent for a moment, and then told us that it all goes into the sewer. In fact, with careful attention to the type of detergents purchased, we can direct virtually all of our water into our yards. This is done in many possible ways. The dish basin, full of used water, can simply be carried outside and poured manually around your plants. Or you can fill one gallon plastic buckets with your used bath, shower, or dish water, and then carry it outside to where it is needed. With a bit more work, you can disconnect from your sewer line and permanently direct all of your used water into your own yard, as we've done with the washing machine.

There are two major benefits of sending your used household water into your own yards, rather than letting it flow unceremoniously down the

As more and more people move into this coastal mountain-locked desert plain, we have quickly begun to use the water faster than nature's ability to replenish the supply. Thus, our underground water table has steadily dropped. Directing all our household water into our yards could have at least a minimal positive affect on the water table (as long as we avoid bleaches and dyes in our detergents that could be harmful to the soil and

More importantly, one of the best "weapons" to combat desertification and the serious effects of the cycles of drought is the presence of trees! Throughout recorded history, the harvest and non-replenishment of trees has led to weather changes that have resulted in large deserts. All the major deserts on earth were once forests, but the trees were cut down for making boats or other products. Conversely, since the transpiration cycle of trees releases large amounts of water into the environment, the planting of trees on a large scale can reduce the effects of drought, can alter weather and can reverse the downward cycle towards desertification.

We don't want to stop our efforts to plant -- and to nurture -- trees just because there is a period of drought. But we must do so wisely. By using all possible grey water, we're able to keep our necessary trees and plants alive and transpiring.

When we read that the average residence of Los Angeles County uses about 400 gallons a day, we were astounded. We're not sure what constitutes an "average" family, but when we average out out water usage, it doesn't come close to 400 gallons on a daily basis. Imagine how astounded we both were to learn that Hugh Hefner's Playboy mansion uses 25,000 gallons of water daily!! Or that the Hotel Bel-Air, an 11 acre retreat, uses 98,000 gallons a day!

No wonder we have water troubles. People flock her to the desert and they use water profligately, as if they were living in Canada or the Rockies or some other water-rich environment. With all this in mind, we wonder:

- Where doesn't every single family residence in Southern California direct all their own gray water into their own yard? This raises the water table, and allows plants to grow with water that was already used and paid for?
- * Why isn't the city, or various water agencies, actively promoting not just low-flush toilets but composting toilets, which use NO water at all?

- Why does the average residence pay more for the water they so-carefully use, when the "big users" get to buy their water wholesale?
- Why do we allow any new construction at all, either residential or business? If our water situation is only going to get worse as population increases, shouldn't we take some steps to encourage development elsewhere? Or are we dwellers how to live better with less.]

so caught up in the suicidal money-making mindset that "development is always good for business" that we are blind to what we are doing

We know that there are countless other "easy" and practical ways to fight water shortages and to live lightly on the earth.

Another deep-seated idea that all should root out of our thinking is that "Sunny weather is good weather, and rainy weather is bad." Most Southern California weather reporters have interpreted the weather this way for decades (with a few rare exceptions, such as the former television meteorologist Dr. George Fischbeck). Though we are not badmouthing sunny weather, we need to begin to think about rain as a valuable, friendly, needed gift from heaven, without which our home here between the sea and the mountains would quickly revert to a semi-barren desert.

FAMILY MATTERS

WHY INHERITING IN TRUST IS A MUST

You bring your children into the world with love. You raise them with love. If you're going all the way as a parent, you also create an estate plan to safely pass on your legacy of love as well as your assets. But does your plan simply leave your assets outright, so they pass directly to your children all at once? Or are they protected via a trust?

A trust is a must if you're looking for true protection when passing on assets. Just as you protect your children from harm while you raise them, you can also protect them from any threat that could come from irresponsible behavior or external risk. The safest choice is to place the inheritance in a trust.

Trusts can be designed to protect assets from things like bankruptcy, creditors, lawsuits and even divorce. No one is immune from making a few mistakes during their lifetime, but that shouldn't have to cost them their inheritance. If your child has a marriage that dissolves, for example, their future inheritance can be safely tucked into a trust, separating those assets from marital property and rendering them untouchable by an ex-spouse.

You can also set up a trust to distribute an inheritance according to your own wishes and for specific purposes, such as education, starting a business, maintaining a family vacation home, or whatever will benefit your children the most.

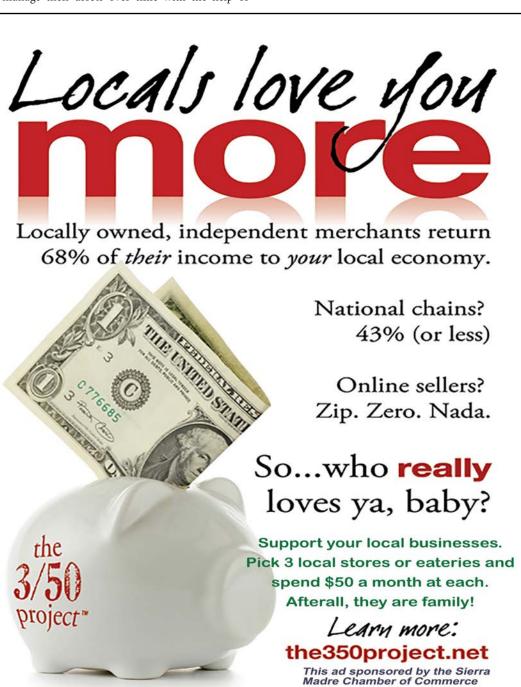

Gifting a large sum of cash to a 21-year-old is not usually considered the best practice. Many parents leaving assets in trust choose to stagger distributions at certain age milestones, which helps children learn to manage their assets over time with the help of a trustee. Then, at a later age, the child can become the trustee with full control when they have the knowledge to make better financial decisions.

If your child is still a minor or has special needs, a trust is even more critical. Under the law, minors cannot inherit outright, so a trust is necessary to safeguard the assets for their benefit until they reach the age of maturity. The trust preserves assets for their benefit, names a trustee to oversee distributions, and does not disqualify them from receiving special government benefits like an outright inheritance

Inheriting in trust provides substantial benefits that an outright inheritance does not. Look into the benefits of setting up a trust for your children. It can be one of the best things you do for them as a parent. All the best to you and your family,

Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed

GET THE CREDIT YOU DESERVE

Mortgage applications are being reviewed far more thoroughly now than in the past, and your credit score should be 680 or higher to qualify for the best interest rates. So how do you determine your score, and know you're getting the credit you

Everyone is allowed one free credit report per year from the three reporting agencies (Experian, Equifax and TransUnion). Review the reports for accuracy and act quickly to correct any errors or Approximately 35% of your credit score is based on the timeliness of your payments. Make sure that no late payments older than seven years are still on vour report.

If you have paid off loans or credit cards, a zero balance should appear on those accounts. Sometimes, agencies don't properly update those balances after settlement.

15% of your credit score is based on the length of your credit history, so make sure that the opening dates of all your accounts are accurate. Also make sure that the limits on your credit cards are correct, and keep the balances under 50% of those limits. Total debt accounts for 30% of your credit score.

Finally, think twice about closing credit card accounts with zero balances, because this negatively reduces your ratio of "available credit" to your debt. First, get the facts. Then, make corrections. Finally, apply for home financing with confidence!

IS ACTIVE INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT GOOD?

By Greg Welborn

One of the biggest investment debates is whether "active" management is a good thing. management is the attempt to pick a small number of stocks (or bonds) and beat the index. "Passive" management, on the other hand, is the attempt to match the index by simply using index funds which reflect the composition of an actual index. There are solid arguments on both sides, and, we believe, there is a good compromise between the two competing

On the passive side of the argument, advocates would tell you that the vast majority of all money managers fail to beat the index over the long-term. They would also argue that the transaction costs of trying to buy and sell individual stocks and bonds in an average investor's portfolio will be prohibitive and further reduce returns. Passive management advocates would be correct in all those statements.

On the active side of the argument, advocates would tell you that stock and bond markets are not perfect, that there are inefficiencies which a skillful manager can exploit to earn more than the index would return. Further, they would argue that there are a solid minority of excellent money managers who have beaten the index over reasonable periods of time and that the costs of using them are warranted by the extra return they earn for the investor. Active management advocates would be correct in all those

So both sides are correct; case closed, right? No. The fact that both sides have valid points only leaves us further confused. Here's how to reconcile the competing claims. Passive and Active management are not mutually exclusive. You can use both. For some investment categories, it might make sense to use an active money manager with a solid long-term record that exceeds that category's index. In other categories, it might make sense to simply use an index fund which matches that category's index.

To make this work, a couple of things have to be present. First, you have to be able to use the cheapest share class of the active managers' mutual funds by avoiding commissions. Second, you have to be able to switch between managers or index funds without excessive costs by using a discount brokerage firm. Third, you have to be able to objectively determine which active managers are worth their cost. And fourth, you have to be able to measure performance against the indexes to determine when to change to or from any given money manager.

By logically and objectively combining a bit of both strategies, you can have the best of both worlds. The goal in all cases is to identify your objectives and make sure your portfolio is consistently working toward them.

F.E.A.R. = FALSE EVIDENCE APPEARING REAL

For the entrepreneur, fear shows up in many ways. We worry about losing clients. We're afraid of not meeting the rent. We are scared our products won't sell. Fear lurks wherever the unknown hangs out.

The feeling of fear is created by fearful thoughts. The amygdala part of our brain sends messages designed to help us survive. Its threatening words, however, are loud and scary. Then our imagination joins in. Anything outside the status quo is reason for concern.

These thoughts trigger the body. I know you have felt that surge of fear! In this state, we cannot access peace. Or our innate creativity and problem solving abilities. Our options close, and we are in fight or flight... known as survival mode.

Never make a decision when you are here, unless it's a true issue of life or death! Wait until you return to peace. Peace is critical for wise, authentic decisions. Journal. Go for a walk. Talk to a trusted friend. Do some deep breathing. Change your thoughts. Do whatever it takes to return to calm and your imagination will open. In the right brain, you have access to your tru self and your best strategies. Maybe that's why they say "don't worry!

RICH Johnson BUFFET AND MY OTHER FAVORITE WORDS

Anyone know what my favorite word "buffet" means? Believe it or not the French definition is different than the

The French word means "to strike with the hands or the fist". That's certainly not my favorite use of the word. The British word means "a meal at which guests help themselves from a number of dishes and often eat standing up".

I like the British definition better. I've rarely eaten at a buffet standing up (maybe in transit when I couldn't wait to get back to the table). I wonder if, when you eat standing up, your shoe size will expand rather than your waist. Gonna have to try that.

Currently there are two great buffets in Sierra Madre. The Peppertree Grill is back to being open on Monday Night offering an all-you-can-eat buffet to keep you occupied while you watch the Monday Night Football game (They are at 322 W. Sierra Madre Blvd). I think it starts at 5:00 on Monday nights. And Tuesday and Wednesday noon time Corfu has a buffet (They are at 48 W. Sierra Madre

What's your favorite word? I read somewhere (so it must be true) that our favorite word is our name. When I asked my friend, Barney, he just laughed at me. I guess there are some exceptions to that rule.

Along with buffet, I would have to consider my kids names as my favorite word: Olivia and Alex. But which child? Probably Olivia more than Alex cause she's the good child. It would probably rotate. High up on my list of favorite words you would also find Beatles and guitar.

Can acronyms count as favorite words? Acronym is a set of initials representing a name or organization. If acronyms are acceptable I know my friend Carolyn's favorite word: NASCAR!! If they aren't acceptable I'll bet Carolyn's favorite word would be "Disneyland".

I think it's a pretty safe bet acronyms are peoples least favorite words. Like take IRS for example. Ór DMV, or DÓA. Are you someone who thinks the whole new genre of texting acronyms like LOL, are horrible and portents of the fall of Western Civilization?

In my considerable library of useless trivia and quotes, lives a book entitled The Superior Person's Book of Words", penned by Peter Bowler. It houses 500 word missiles we can use to establish our superiority. Here are a couple:

Acerebral: Without a brain. Usage of this word could be aimed at species on this planet that use both two and four legs to get around.

Afflatus: A sudden rush of divine or poetic inspiration. I get this a lot.

Alopecia: Unfortunately this word also describes me. It's meaning? Baldnes. My alopecia really shines on a sunny day.

Bastinado: Beating the soles of one's feet. Some people would prefer that to the ear bashing one receives at one of our JJ Jukebox golden oldies concerts. (By the way, JJ Jukebox is performing Saturday, November 8, 2014 at the Peppertree Grill. 6:30 to 8:30. 322 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. Make reservations at (626) 355-8444.)

Be sure to try the Peppertree Grill's Monday Night Football Buffet. It's on Monday nights I think (I think I'm going acerebral).

CLEANING UP MESSES, PARSONAGE STYLE

By Dr. James L. Snyder

Throughout the glorious years of our marriage, the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage and Yours Truly has had few disagreements. I suppose I could count them all on my one hand, but I am not sure if it is my right hand or my left hand so I will just leave it at that.

I hear, of course, of many couples who do nothing but bicker and fight from morning till night. I have always wondered what the purpose of all that was and what it ever accomplished. I think there is a better way to live together.

There are several phrases I have memorized and used throughout the years of our marriage that has kept me in good standing.
"Yes, dear." "You're right, dear." "I'll do it right away, dear."

"Yes, dear." "You're right, dear." "I'll do it right away, dear."

I have found that if I include the word "dear," with all of my responses it fares better for me. Of course, I am the kind of person that does not have to be right all the time, which makes me the perfect husband. Admitting you are wrong, even if you do not think you are, is really not the end of the world. In fact, it may be the beginning of a bright new world.

I said "few disagreements," and I need to explain what I meant by that.

The major disagreements that my wife and I have had throughout the years can be boiled down into one phrase, "It's a mess." Usually, actually all the time this phrase is being used, it is coming from the lips of my

Our disagreement is in the definition of "mess." She has one definition and I have another definition, and the twain shall never meet. Mark my words on that. If you would come into our home, you will discover that every room in the house is well organized and very neat. Well, not every room. The one room that does not come up to that criterion is the room in which I occupy. It is my space. My well-organized wife will walk by my room, pause, look in and say, "It's a mess."

It took me a long time to realize what she was talking about. Eventually, I got to the point where I understood that what she was referring to was "my space." Unfortunately, we did not share the same vision of my space. I am of the mindset that if I am working I need to have organized messes all around me. I have tried explaining to my wife that I am a messologist. I had to explain to her that a messologist is someone who specializes in organizing intentional messes. I am not sure I have convinced her yet of this.

I really think that one person's mess is another person's workspace. I cannot really work efficiently unless there are intentional messes around me, protecting me, giving me the incentive I need to pursue the job at hand. My basic philosophy is simply this, if I cannot find what I need when I need it, I probably do not really need it. It has worked for me most marvelously.

The real trick of a messologist is knowing where to find what you need when you need it. My wife can walk into my space and look around and be utterly confused by what she calls "a mess."

Of course, it looks like a mess to her. It is not her mess! If it was her mess she would understand it and be comforted by it.

My wife is of the idea that organization has to do with numerical or alphabetical order. Now that works for some people, I suppose. But, as I keep telling her, that is not the only circus in town! I cannot tell how many times something new has developed in my thinking while I was searching for something I could not really find. That is the genius of a messologist.

Some people, like my wife, like to go from 1 to 2 to 3 to 4; or, A to B to C to D all the way to Z. To a normal person, and I am guessing my wife is normal, that makes a lot of sense. But to a messologist, that kind of thinking is rather confusing.

What I want to know is, what do you do when you come to the end of the alphabet? Where do you go from there? Then, it is rather important that you have the alphabet in alphabetical order. If I would ever try to do that I would end up being so confused, they would have to admit me in some rehab facility to clean

So, the thing that makes our marriage so blissful is that we have an agreement and that she does things her way and I do things my way. This has been the recipe for blissfulness in our marriage. I do not make her do it my way and she cannot make me do it her way. We both have brains, but they tick after a different

I then thought of a verse of Scripture that rather fit my situation. "There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death" (Proverbs 14:12). My way has to be in complete harmony with His way or my life will be completely destroyed. Rev. James L. Snyder is pastor of the Family of God Fellowship, PO Box 831313, Ocala, FL 34483. HOWARD Hays As I See It

"I'm not going to apologize for trying to do something while they're doing nothing.

- President Obama, responding to House Speaker John Boehner's threatened lawsuit last June

I was glad to see Greg Welborn back with his column last week. Reading through it, I was almost surprised he didn't somehow attribute the Ebola outbreak in West Africa to the president's "incompetence".

I know – the world's a mess. I also know how impatient some are to have us once again invade and occupy a Muslim country, or reignite a Cold War with a nuclear power. Dan Rather had a good response to

"I will hear you out if you're prepared to send your son, your daughter, such eagerness; your grandson, your granddaughter to that war for which you're beating the drums. If you aren't, don't even talk to me."

. This is being written in advance of President Obama's address to the nation Wednesday night. I'm sure he'll make a priority of building coalitions with allies and regional players. A German diplomat interviewed on NPR, asked to compare coordinating with the Obama Administration on Ukraine with coordinating with Bush on Iraq, had a quick response: "At least we're talking with the Obama Administration."

Another ongoing priority is to make clear that for our help to do any good, nations have to get their own acts together - we can't do it all for them. After months of pressure, there's finally a new Prime Minister in Iraq with whom we can coordinate to help defeat the Islamic State in that country. He replaces the previous CIA-approved holdover from the Bush years, who'd become one of ISIS' biggest recruiting tools.

In Afghanistan, as we're trying to get our troops out by the end of the year, we're dealing with two presidential candidates who both continue insisting on claiming victory some three months after the June run-offs, and despite a subsequent U.N.-monitored re-count. In Libya, there's fortunately only one government in its capital, Tripoli. The problem is, there's another in Tobruk claiming it's the real deal. There's Qatar, host to one of our largest air bases in the region and also one of the largest sources of funding for Islamic

It's complicated, and it's reassuring to have a president who thinks things through before "trying to do something". For Congressional Republicans, though, it's simple responding the same as to immigration reform or most any other issue: knock the president for not taking action on his own, avoid having to cast a vote on the record by doing nothing" as a legislative body, and then threaten to sue (or impeach) the president for taking too many actions on his own (as House Speaker Boehner did last June). Aside from that, it's hoping things go south to provide a better campaign issue against President

Obama and the Dems. Now that Congress is back from vacation, planning for maybe two weeks in session before the November elections, it looks like they'll manage to run out the clock "doing nothing". If anything, the focus might be on Congressional tea-baggers toying with another government shutdown, with "establishment" Republicans concerned about reelection wishing they'd shut up.

It's hard to predict how evolving world crises will play out in the campaigns. Republicans have got to be hoping things only get worse, as they're running out of issues to campaign on. There's the Affordable Care Act, for example. Sen. Minority Leader Mitch McConnell remains opposed to "Obamacare", but now tries to suggest it's somehow "unconnected" to the popular Kentucky exchange, which has enrolled nearly a million in the state. Republican governors in Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Utah, Indiana and Wyoming have abandoned their initial opposition and are now moving to implement the ACA's expansion of Medicaid in their states. Enrollment nation-wide has exceeded targets. Premium costs, which Republicans warned would skyrocket, are projected to undergo a "modest" increase at most, or to actually go down - as has per-person costs for Medicare.

It'll be hard for them to hit Democrats on the economy. Last week, Forbes came out with an analysis by Bob Deitrick, CEO of Polaris Financial Partners, who offered this assessment of the Obama presidency: "This is the best private sector job creation performance in American history." The Purchasing Managers Index of the Institute for Supply Management shows 63 straight months of economic expansion, with 25 straight months of manufacturing growth.

As for Wall Street, Deitrick points out that at this point in the Reagan presidency, a dollar invested when he took office "would have yielded a staggering 190% return. Such returns were unheard of prior to his leadership." Under Obama, the return would be 220%. "This level of investor growth is unprecedented by any administration."

Continuing the comparison, "the current administration has reduced the deficit, which skyrocketed under Reagan. Additionally, Obama has reduced federal employment, which grew under Reagan . . . and truly delivered a 'smaller government'." Forbes concludes, "President Obama's administration has outperformed President Reagan's in all commonly watched categories."

The policies which brought this "unprecedented" economic recovery were, of course, universally opposed by the Republicans.

With issues like the economy and the Affordable Care Act effectively taken off the table as viable campaign fodder, the most Republicans can hope for heading towards November is intensifying world crises and a bungled response from a Democratic administration. Here's a theory: The surest way to achieve that would be to good the president into repeating the same disastrous mistakes made under the Bush Administration; which is maybe, just maybe, why so many Republicans are urging him to rush in and "do something" without taking the time to think it through.

Most voters, though, appreciate a leader who's thoughtful and deliberate while actually 'trying to do something", and aren't going to be conned by those "doing nothing" other than complaining about those who are.

THE PRESIDENT'S WAR PLAN

As we mark the 13th anniversary of 9-11, it will be interesting to see if this week's and last week's articles stand as philosophical bookends to the Obama presidency. I was very critical of President Obama's unwillingness to seriously engage the world as it really is and to therefore confront the evil which walks so much of the world unconcerned about what the greatest nation will do. If it turns out I wrote prematurely and that the President does have a coherent war plan, then I will be more than happy to commend him for that action. For now, I will simply say that he deserves hearty and unreserved public support if he is truly willing to fight this war. A willingness on the President's part to do just that would be in and of itself a major accomplishment. It would mean he has undergone a sea-change and is now willing to acknowledge that we are in a "war" (not a skirmish, struggle, police action or even a conflict) and willing to acknowledge that he is a wartime leader. For someone who has gained so much political mileage from opposing past wars and has based so many of his presidential decisions on extracting the U.S. from physical military participation in, or even leadership of, the world war which rages around us, this change is no doubt difficult, but nonetheless desperately needed.

But this change from naivety to reality, and hopefully from failure to success, will require other changes in how this president conducts his administration and chooses to lead the nation. These will not go well with his closest advisors - made up almost entirely now of sycophants - or closest supports - made up largely of the hard left who may not be able to make this same transition.

Starting with the obvious, the war campaign he needs to launch will have to focus on the goal of destroying ISIS, not just degrading it, and certainly not on trying to manage it. Each of these verbs has been used by the President in recent speeches, and each represents dramatically different goals, strategies and tactics. His words last night were the right ones. I pray they were not just words to smooth the American public while he implements more benign and disengaged actions to satisfy he core base.

A successful transition also means accepting the wisdom and prescriptions of an earlier president from whom Obama has so assiduously distanced himself. President Bush told us that boots on the ground would be needed for the long-term unless we wanted to "surrender the future of Iraq to Al Qaeda", "risk mass killings on a horrific scale", "allow terrorists to establish a safe haven in Iraq", and to "confront an enemy even more dangerous". President Bush is owed an apology for the mockery his words received, but at the very least, President Obama will take to heart the senior president's advice and stop trying to distance himself from someone whose policy prescriptions he is increasingly having to continue or reinstitute. In short, President Obama will have to commit significant boots on the ground. There will have to be an American presence over there.

President Obama also needs to quit eviscerating the U.S. military. He will go before Congress at some point to ask for funds to finance this new campaign, but those will be the tip of the iceberg. We can no longer draw down the standing forces we have, starve the services of needed technological developments or accept the current diminished size of our naval fleet. As he wages war on ISIS, it's time to stop waging war against our own military.

His pattern of giving a speech and then moving on to another topic must stop. This topic needs President Obama's full attention and effort, and will likely need such sustained focus for the remaining 28 months of his presidency. If September 10th's address becomes just another speech, just another idle warning, there will be hell to pay on the shores of these United States. If that's the type of commitment we just witnessed, we're going to witness some mass killings of Americans very soon.

Domestically, President Obama needs to unify the political leaders currently serving at the behest of their constituencies. Republicans can no longer be referred to as the enemy, ridiculed for having evil motives and dismissed as having no good input or place at the table. Elections do matter, as this president is so fond of saying, and every one of our representatives is there as a result of an election. Acknowledging that and negotiating accordingly is a requirement if any military campaign is to work.

President Obama also needs to restore domestic trust in his leadership. Much has been written about how our nation's enemies do not fear him and our friends do not trust him; a similar sentiment exists domestically because of the President's habit of lying to the nation about known facts and his habit of threatening to simply use that magic pen and phone of his to dictate extra-constitutional executive orders. Elected officials and the public at large do not trust this man as much as a wartime president needs to be trusted. President Obama has a few short weeks (maybe even days) to correct that problem with honest, inclusive and truly transparent communications and processes.

In summary, we need to be willing to rally around this president. The stakes are too high to not give him a full measure of the support that is needed for what lies ahead. But that is not a one-sided requirement; it is not without its quid pro quo. President Obama seems to have made a crucial and healthy transition, but there are other important actions and changes which are needed if we are to be successful and safe.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: ROBERT MARTIN YOUNG

CASE NO. BP155195

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of ROBERT MARTIN YOUNG.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by ROBERT REID YOUNG in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that ROBERT REID YOUNG be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 09/24/14 at 8:30AM in Dept. 5 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

The Kensington Sierra Madre invites caregivers, families and friends to an inspiring presentation featuring real-life caregiving stories and advice from noted author and speaker Elaine K. Sanchez

Caregiver Survival Training

Tuesday, September 23, 2014 at The University Club 175 North Oakland Ave, Pasadena, CA

Session I: 12:30-2:30pm | Refreshments, lunch and coffee Session II: 6-8pm | Cocktails, hors d'oeuvres, dinner and coffee

RSVP - Limited Seating

laine K. Sanchez is an author, speaker and co-founder of CaregiverHelp.com. She has been described as part Erma Bombeck and part Garrison Keillor, but don't let the entertainment value of her presentation fool you. Her three-step process of developing an "Attitude of Creative Indifference" toward the emotional stress of caregiving has helped thousands of family and professional caregivers learn:

- In order to care for another person, we must make self-care a priority.
- Even in the very worst end-of-life situations, there is still an opportunity for mental and spiritual growth.
- * As long as we have the ability to think and to reason, we have the power to choose our attitude toward any person, situation or event.

Elaine's real-life caregiving stories bring hope, humor and heart to caregiver anger, guilt, depression and grief. You will learn that you are not alone, that having negative feelings doesn't make you a bad person, and that it is possible to survive the emotional stress of caring for those who can no longer care for themselves.
