WALKING SIERRA MADRE...The Social Side By Deanne Davis

"It is my passion. When I dance I don't notice the weather, the crowds, nothing!

I am totally in the dance." Alexander Gallagher

Are you planning to go down to Santa Anita Park this coming weekend for the Greek Fest? It's going to be fantastic! I met some delightful young Sierra Madreans this week who will be part of it - Friday, 5 p.m.-1 a.m.; Saturday, noon-1 a.m.; Sunday, noon-10 p.m. There will be food, wine tasting, exhibitions, kids games, a sports bar, even more incredible food and admission is just $5! And, speaking of wonderful things to eat, the ladies of St. Anthony's Greek Orthodox Church are making all of it, just the way it has been made for generations! Yes, every bit of it!. I understand that there will be 7,000 Souvlaki, which is chicken, lamb or beef on a skewer. And that's just one dish! There will be many more and Greek food is soooo good!

Let me get to the dancing! This is the major passion of the young folks I met. Greek dance is a competitive event among the young people. They start learning when they are really little, i.e., three! Kids cycle through various groups based on age until they are 19, then many of them go on to coach Greek dance. The two young men I met yesterday, George and Alexander Gallagher are students at PHS, 9th and 11th grade respectively, and they are dedicated to Greek dance. They also are involved in water polo, Boy Scouts and other youth groups. I said to George, "You don't have time to get into any trouble at all, do you!" He laughed.

Young people involved in Greek dance practice once a week for a 2-1/2 hour session, all of which leads up to a huge annual competition in February: Folk Dance Festival, which includes dance groups from not only the West Coast, but as far flung as Hawaii, Alaska, Las Vegas and more. The groups are judged not only on dancing, but on singing – and that's in Greek, and on costumes. As the Festival draws nearer, the practice sessions bump up to three times a week. These kids are serious about this and take much pride and joy in their dance. Greek musicians, from Greece, play the traditional music. I asked George and Alexander if they spoke Greek, and they do, "almost fluently!"

St. Anthony's Greek Orthodox Church in Pasadena is the hub for Greek Dance in our area. It's an all volunteer group, taught through the church, which includes about 75 children, with very young dancers learning from the high school/college age, passing down the traditions of song, dance and authentic costumes made by the grandmothers of the community, many of whom are from Greece. The costume the group wears determines the dance they will perform. The St. Anthony's dance groups are consistent prize winners, by the way. The dance is beautiful, unison work, and how the faces of the dancers shine! It's exciting, dear friends!

It was an absolute delight to see our amazing young local artist, Alexia Saigh, (see art by Alexia and Ariana at Leonora Moss in Kersting Court) who attends Gooden School and wins prizes all over the place for her artwork, the most recent being the Sweepstakes Award at the L. A. County Fair for her history report and art project on Pompeii. She and her sister, Ariana, both entered projects and all of their entries won first prizes. Ariana and Alexia are both very involved and dedicated to Greek Dance. Alexia is part of the Spitha (name translates as Little Sparks) group and Alexander, George, and Ariana are part of high school group, Pyrkagia (which translates to On Fire). Dance performances at the Fest for Spitha are 5:30 on Sat/Sun and Pyrkagia is at 7:30

And the costumes! Oh my! The costumes are gorgeous! All handmade, all traditional and as authentic as possible. They are extremely intricate with lots of embroidery and beading. And they are heavy! The costume Alexia is wearing represents the Serres region of Greece. I had an opportunity to email chat with Iulia Kiotas who was a dancer as a teen; her children were both dancers and have moved into coaching, as they love their culture and the teens they train. Julia's mother has been the dance school's volunteer seamstress for

It was thrilling to meet kids filled with excitement and dedication, pride in their heritage, loving their connection.... "the connection...it makes us what

Go on down to Santa Anita this weekend, see these amazing young people dancing the dances their parents, grandparents and great-grandparents danced. You'll have the best time ever and the best food you'll find anywhere, made by the ladies who know how to make Greek food the way it ought to be! Children under 12 are free! AND, there's a coupon involving free admissions http://www.pasadenagreekfest.org" "Celebrate...Eat...Live...Greek!"

Sierra Madre Police Blotter

During the week of Sunday, August 31st to Sunday, September 7th, the Sierra Madre Police Department responded to approximately 490 calls for service.

Monday, September 1st

At 6:30 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 300 Block of North Sunnyside Avenue regarding a welfare check. The call was placed by the subject's daughter who claimed her father had been drinking all day and was not answering his phone. A previous incident of the man stating he'd drink himself to death caused the daughter's concern. When Officers arrived on scene, they were met by a very intoxicated male subject. When Officers informed him they were there because of his daughter's concern for his welfare, the man was staggering and having trouble maintaining his balance. The man informed Officers he was depressed and that was the reason for his drinking. As the man kept asking Officers why they were there, the Officers on scene felt the man was a danger to himself based on his extreme intoxication and history of wanting to drink himself to death. The man was taken into custody and transported to a local hospital to be placed on a 72 hour medical hold.

Tuesday, September 2nd

At 5:23 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 100 Block of North Baldwin Avenue regarding a suspicious vehicle in the area. Upon arrival, Officers located the vehicle and were approached by the owner. The subject informed Officers that he was visiting his child, but did not live there due to a restraining order. He stated his wife called him earlier that morning stating she needed money and wanted him to come over and that she wanted to drop the restraining order. He arrived at around 11 am and remained there all day, knowing he was in violation of his restraining order. Shortly after the wife arrived at the residence and confirmed to Officers that she had asked her husband to come over and that she would be going to the court to have the restraining order dropped. Upon review of the restraining order, it was determined it was issued as a domestic violence restraining order. Due to the man being in violation, he was taken into custody and booked for Intentional and knowing violation of a domestic violence court order.

At 5:52 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the area of Baldwin and Alegria Avenue regarding a hit-and-run incident. Upon arriving on scene, Officers were met by a subject who witnessed the incident. She informed Officers that a red truck had made a right turn into a residential drive way and then backed out. While backing out, the rear portion of the truck collided with the driver's side door of another vehicle that was unoccupied, parked along the curb. The witness stated the suspect did not attempt to stop or provide any information regarding the collision. While inspecting the substantial amount of damage of the driver's side door, Officers were approached by the vehicle's owner. The owner was shocked by the damage and informed Officers she parked her vehicle there only thirty minutes prior. She stated she desired prosecution if the suspect was found. At around 7:19 pm, the victim contacted Sierra Madre Police after she spotted what she believed to be the vehicle that hit her, parked down the street of the original collision site. Officers arrived and inspected the vehicle, noting the positive ID made by the witness and the damage to the rear end of the vehicle. When Officers made contact with the owner, he confirmed the same series of events the witness described, and explained he fled because he panicked. The man was arrested and charged with Hit and Run Property Damage Only.

Sunday, September 7th

At 5:19 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 100 Block of Rancho Road regarding a residential burglary. On scene Officers were met by a female subject who informed them that the residence belonged to her deceased parents and was currently vacant. When she arrived earlier to check the property, she noticed the master bedroom had been ransacked and items appeared to be missing. She then notified her brother who stated the real estate agent had been there at around 11 am. When Officers made contact with the agent, he informed them he went to the residence after a neighbor reported seeing the front door open. He arrived and secured the home then left. Investigation concluded the unknown suspect(s) entered the rear yard through an unlocked gate and then removed the louver window panes from a rear window to gain entry into the residence. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

Health Dept. Confirms West Nile Virus Cases

The Pasadena Public Health Department announced this week that tests have confirmed five human cases of West Nile Virus (WNV) this month in its jurisdiction. The last case of WNV previously confirmed by the Pasadena Public Health Department was in December WNV is transmitted through the bite of an infected mosquito. Signs and symptoms may include fever, body aches, rash, nausea, vomiting, and headache. Up to about 80 percent of people infected have no apparent symptoms and can go undiagnosed, according to the Centers for Disease Control. Severe cases, while rare, can include brain inflammation, paralysis or death.

The Pasadena Public Health Department, www.cityofpasadena.net/ PublicHealth, recommends anyone exhibiting symptoms or who suspects they might have WNV should seek immediate medical care.

To protect against WNV, it is important that the public take the following precautions to prevent the breeding of mosquitoes and to prevent being bitten:

Empty all standing water in containers left outside swimming clean with all circulation and filtration equipment operational and drain water from pool covers

Check for mosquito larvae in still water sources such as bird baths and ponds

Wear insect repellants containing DEET

Avoid areas likely to be inhabited by mosquitoes at dawn and dusk

Wear long sleeved shirts and long pants when outdoors

Check window and door screens for holes

Report dead birds and squirrels to the West Nile Virus and Dead Bird Hotline at (877) 968-2473 or online at http://westnile.ca.gov

The proportion of mosquitoes infected with WNV is at the highest level ever detected in California, health officials said.

Health Department staff travel throughout the City at least once a week to treat gutters, puddles, pools, and other free-standing water sources water that serve as prime breeding grounds for mosquitoes. to report a green pool or still water source, call the Department's Environmental Health Division at (626) 744-6004.

A judge reinstated an injunction Tuesday barring the release of the Office of Independent Review's findings in the officer-involved shooting death of Kendrec

Many news organizations have filed public records requests to obtain a copy of the report.

The matter was heard before Superior Court Judge James Chalfant. After renewing the Temporary Restraining Order, at the request of Pasadena Police Officers Association, Chalfant ruled to prevent the release of even a redacted OIR Report that the city intended to release.

"The City understands and appreciates the interest of the public and the news media in accessing the Office of Independent Review's report on the shooting of Kendrec McDade," said Pasadena City Manager Michael J. Beck. The City continues to support both the principles of open government and our officers' privacy rights as guaranteed by state law. We believe we had the right balance between the two and we were prepared to issue a redacted report. However, as a result of the Court's action this morning, the City has been ordered not to disclose the report or any elements thereof at this time. It is important for the City to be able to release as much information as permissible and we look forward to a fair resolution of this issue." The matter returns to his court on October 14.

McDade was shot in March of 2012 after two Pasadena police officers were responding to a 9-1-1 armed robbery call.

Making history: Walk of Champions

From Arcadia's Best

By Scott Hettrick

Fifty-four years ago a groundbreaking ceremony was held for the Hollywood Walk of Fame in February 1960. It quickly became world famous and remains one of the most popular tourist attactions to this day, with new stars regularly added. A groundbreaking ceremony and activities for the Arcadia Historical Society's new Thoroughbred Racing Walk of Champions will begin at 5 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 27, in the heart of Downtown Arcadia on First Avenue, north of Huntington Drive close to Wheeler Avenue.

The project, initially featuring 67 square bronze plaques that memorialize noteworthy horses, jockeys, trainers, owners, and other race industry notables, has already generated national news in the Chicago Tribune, the Miami Herald, the HRTV network, and a litany of stories in horse racing industry trade magazines and web sites including Blood-Horse., Horse Racing Nation, Cal Racing, ThoroughbredInfo.com, and Thoroughbred Report / The Handicapper's Edge.

The City of Arcadia has had several articles about it in City newsletters, water bill notices and special mailings. The City, which has supported the Society's ongoing History Lives Here series of historical markers since the dedication of the first one in 2007, also agreed to the installation of the Society's Walk of Champions plaques in the sidewalks along both sides of Huntington Drive from Santa Anita Avenue to The Derby restaurant just east of Second Avenue. The plaques also line a short section of First Avenue north of Huntington and will eventually go all the way to the new Gold Line train station and transit plaza where the next History Lives Here marker from the Society will be placed to detail Lucky Baldwin's original train station at the same location directly across from his Oakwood Hotel. Among the most prominent subjects of the plaques are jockeys such as Willie Shoemaker (corner of First and Huntington), owners and influencers such as Lucky Baldwin (at entrance of Denny's restaurant) and horses such as Seabiscuit (near First and Huntington).

Just as it was the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce that initiated the Walk of Fame in that town, which took seven years to become a reality, it was then-Arcadia Chamber of CommerceExecutive Director Beth Costanza who has been working for years with former Arcadia Mayor Gail Marshall to get their horse race version of the Hollywood Walk of Fame off the ground (er, in the ground, in this case). After a couple of unsuccessful attempts over the past couple of decades, in 2012 Marshall and now-retired Costanza resurrected the pursuit of their long-dreamed project. This time they were invited to join the Arcadia Historical Society, which formed a committee to focus on the project, with Society board member and horse racing afficionado Sandy Snider becoming an integral additional component of the committee. With the Society's reputation and track record for generating most of its own funding and resources for projects like the historical markers, the City Council this time quickly approved the concept of the project if it could be funded. With Snider's help and with the Society's 501 (c)(3) non-profit status for tax-deductible donations, Marshall and Costanza were able to raise the substantial necessary funding, though it was still a formidable challenge. Santa Anita Park became the lynchpin for the project with the first and biggest donation.

The result is another terrific grassroots community initiative by a small group of people that brings still further prestige and another unique attribute to Arcadia in general and Downtown Arcadia in particular. For the latter, it will serve as a spark for the fledgling business district's efforts to capitalize on the 2016 opening of the Metro Gold Line Foothill Extension light rail line and station at First Avenue and Santa Clara Street to attract riders in to a planned revitalization of the Downtown area as a thriving retail and entertainment walking area.

It also brings much-needed attention, a celebratory spotlight, and historical perspective to horse racing in general and, by extension, Santa Anita Park, which will provide additional reasons for out-oftown visitors to Santa Anita and Breeders' Cup events to stay and

The dedication ceremony on Sept. 27 (the actual ceremony will begin no earlier than 6:15 p.m.) will include live appearances by legendary retired Hall of Fame jockeys Eddie Delahoussaye and Laffit Pincay Jr., with the entire event from 5 p.m. until approximately 7:30 or 8 p.m. featuring live music, free popcorn, bottled water, a vintage car display, and souvenirs. Guided and self-guided walking tours of the plaques will be offered, and merchants in the area will offer special discounts and stickers with the words, I (heart) Downtown

Three cheers for the passion and persistence of Gail Marshall and Beth Costanza, the skills and tenacious diligence of Sandy Snider, and the support and resources of the Arcadia Historical Society, which now adds the Throughbred Racing Walk of Champions to decades of achievements that include saving and relocating the Santa Anita Depot and Hugo Reid Statue, creating the city's first historical museum that led to spearheading what has become the current Gilb Museum of Arcadia Heritage, and the series of History Lives Here historical markers that dot the community.

MONROVIANS HONOR LT. COL. ALLEN ALLENSWORTH

By Joan Schmidt

This past Sunday, the heat was unbearable, but I kept thinking about Lt. Col. Allen Allensworth who died exactly 100 years ago in Monrovia from injuries sustained on Myrtle Avenue. While he served in the United States Army, he was the highest ranking African American at the time, and that was quite a milestone, so I decided to attend the special festivities at the Monrovia Historic Museum. Upon arrival, I had to park some blocks from the Museum but was thrilled to see so many of all ages in attendance in spite of the 100+ temperature! Former Monrovia Historian Steve Baker and Mark Still, Monrovia Historical Museum, Jimmy Oballes, Latino Historian, Assemblyman Anthony Portantino, Assemblyman Chris Holden, the entire Monrovia City Council, Monrovia School Board Members Terrence Williams and Alex Zucco, Betty McWilliams from Foothill Unity Center, and many more!

How could one define Allen Allensworth? In his lifetime, he was Military Leader, Nurse, Minister, Journalist, and Founding Father of the town of Allensworth. James Walker, Master of Ceremony began festivities in front of the Museum reminding us that we came to honor Lt. Col. Allen Allensworth. Then a Buffalo Soldier rode up, and Monrovian Historian Steve Baker spoke of the great man. We walked through the Museum seeing collages with photos of Allensworth at different periods during his remarkable life. Then we walked outside, sat beneath canopies and were offered water and a hand fan if needed. After the National Anthem by Monrovia High's Camerata Singers, Council Member Tom Adams mentioned a call a year ago from Thomas Stratton, President of Friends of Allensworth. Allensworth died in Monrovia on September 14, 2014. Would the City/ Museum wish to honor this great man on the Centennial of his untimely death? Mr. Adams, a history buff decided to read up on Allensworth. The more research Adams did, the more intrigued he was: "This gentleman we're honoring today is one of the most incredible men I've read about in my life, and I love history."

Another great speaker was former Duarte Mayor Lois Gaston, member of the Second Baptist Church, Monrovia. Allensworth was their FIRST Pastor!) Ms. Gaston spoke of his impact on the Church and community and his untimely death (There is still question of whether he was intentionally hit by the motorcycle.) Lois felt "this great man should be far better known...

he changed the course of history." (And Lois is SO RIGHT!) There was SO MUCH more to this great man. (Thank you to Mr. Baker, Ms. Gaston, Mr. Spicer, Thomas Stratton and the Friends of Allensworth for much of the following information.) Allen was born into slavery in Louisville,

SPEAK UP DURING NATIONAL BULLYING PREVENTION MONTH

(StatePoint) With classes, sports, homework and other activities, weekdays are action packed for kids. Unfortunately, some students deal with an unwelcome addition to their daily routine -- bullying. An estimated 13 million students are bullied annually, according to

With online social media so widely available to kids today, bullying doesn't necessarily stop after school, and often takes place round-theclock. The repercussions can be missed days of school, depression and even suicide.

Fortunately, kids are getting more help these days as bullying prevention efforts are growing nationwide. Cartoon Network has been a pioneer in this space and its "Stop Bullying: Speak Up" campaign has been empowering bystanders to put a stop to bullying since it launched in 2010. On average, more than 100,000 people visit the initiative's website monthly to learn prevention strategies.

"Speaking up to a trusted adult is the safest, most effective way for victims and bystanders to bring an end to a bullying situation," says Alice Cahn, Cartoon Network vice president of social responsibility. "Bystanders in particular can be powerful agents for change when they report incidents." Support for Cartoon Network's award-winning pro-social effort has come from such diverse organizations as Facebook, Boys & Girls Clubs of America, LG Mobile, and CNN. President Obama even invited Cartoon Network to the first Bullying Prevention Summit at the White House, and later introduced the initiative's first documentary, "Speak Up."

This year, Cartoon Network's Speak Up Week (Sept. 29 - Oct. 3) kicks off National Bullying Prevention Month in October and is a great time to review ways that adults and kids can stand up to bullying:

• Cyberbullying: Don't contribute to the problem by sharing, saving, forwarding or reposting information. If you're on the receiving end, resist the urge to get back at the person or fix the issue online -- both can make the problem worse. Get offline and deal with it in real life. Parents can help prevent cyberbullying by monitoring kids' use of computers, mobile phones and tablets.

• Don't stand by: Research has found that when bullying occurs and a bystander intervenes by speaking up, more than half of bullying situations stop within just 10 seconds.

• Share your voice: Cartoon Network is recruiting 1MM students, parents, teachers, legislators and anyone concerned about bullying prevention to submit user-generated videos that feature individuals declaring the phrase, "I Speak Up!" You can use a smartphone or go online to upload your own video to the www. StopBullyingSpeakUp.com website.

Participants are also encouraged to use the hashtag, #ISpeakUp to share videos via their own social media platforms to help spread the word and enlist friends to take part in the 1MM challenge. Select videos will appear on-air as part of new campaign spots for Cartoon Network, its digital platforms and Boomerang.

• Listen: Parents should check in with kids periodically to make sure they're safe and happy at school, on the playground and online. If you're an adult and a child tells you about a bullying situation, listen. Either let the school know about the issue or talk to the other children's parents about putting a stop to the behavior.

Whether you're a victim, a bystander or a concerned adult, don't sweep bullying under the rug. By speaking out against cruelty, you can help end bullying.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show DOLPHIN TALE 2

When it comes to family movies, they are meant to do one thing: keep the kids interested while also trying to hold the adults attention as well. 'Dolphin Tale 2' tries to do this, but gets very lost along the way.

Sawyer (Nathan Gamble) and Hazel (Cozi Zuehlsdorff) are having a great summer working at their local aquarium, where their dolphin friend Winter lives. But, when Winter's surrogate mother suddenly dies, and leaves a hole in the hearts of both kids and Winter, everyone must race to find her a new partner before she is forced to leave the aquarium.

With a film that only advertises the two dolphins, they sure do not get as much screen time as many of the human characters. And, to make matters worse, the humans' plot lines are what sadly drat this movie down. If you do choose to go see this somewhat dull, overly-sappy movie, then expect to see more humans that you would think.

SURFS UP AND HOW !!

I was inspired by our recent local big waves that hit both North and South facing beaches. Inspiration brought me to Longboard 2011 Blend. Yes, if you have been following these articles you know I have been riding a wave of blends recently, why? If done right a blend can be some of the best wines at your local wine retailer today, if done wrong well it could end up at the three buck chuck aisle. I think this Longboard Blend will make the wine snob in all of us very happy.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

I learned one thing this week, while watching the waves first hand, I realized that both surfers and winemakers spend a lifetime searching for near perfect conditions so they can capture and express a special moment in time; a great vintage, a perfect wave. Longboard Vineyards was established in 1998 by Oded Shakked as a way to bring these two passions together. A life-long surfer, Oded travelled and surfed the Atlantic Coast of Europe, the waters of Australia, Hawaii, Central America, Mexico, and both the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts of the US. As a winemaker with close to 30 years of experience in Sonoma County, Oded has worked with the region's best grapes and grape-growers in addition to farming his own grapes on Westside Road just outside the town of Healdsburg.

The taste is superb; the finish is fine the tannins are out of this world. The cost is right in line with my usual budget of $15 to $20 a bottle. The Blend consists of a mixture of Cabernet Sauvignon, Syrah, Merlot and a bit of Zinfandel. Carignane and Malbec join in . My food pairing is a shrimp and red onion pizza. Case allotment is low so you might check with your local supermarket.

Dills Score 90 Retail Around $19 on sale $15

Each week I will give you my Dills Score. Starting with a base of 50 points, I added 8 points for color, 7 points for aroma or "nose", 9 points for taste, 9 points for finish, and 9 points for my overall impression, which includes my value rating.

Meet the cuddliest little canine, Marzipan(A4752575)! Marzipan is a lively 10-year-old white female Maltese who was found in Hacienda Heights and brought to the Baldwin Park Animal Care Center on September 4th. Weighing 8 lbs, she looks more like a girl than a middle-aged lady! She has a yeast infection in her ears and has cataracts, but she remains spirited and happy, ready to share her sweet energy with her handler. This little one delights in cuddles and adores being held close. She walks excellently on the leash, appears to be housebroken, and seems to get along well with other dogs. Marzipan will make a loving and lovable indoor pet for a single person, adult couple, or family living in a condo, apartment, or private home. To watch a video of Marzipan, please visit the following link: http://youtu.

THESE GUYS COULD USE YOUR HELP

A dear friend of mine passed away recently, leaving behind his three beloved bird-hunting English Pointers. They are in good hands, with my friend's bereaved widow for now, but since she is not into hunting, she has asked if I can be of assistance in finding a new forever home for her pups. Here are photos of "Luna", the mom, and her two babes, "Chuck" and "Pearl".

All three dogs are cordial and in excellent health, with current vaccines and all vet care up-todate. They are beautiful babes, I know personally because I had the opportunity to spend a little time with them when my friend was traveling, about a year ago. Please take a look, and share this post with anyone whom you think might be interested. They are excellent at the craft of birding, but would also make fabulous pets. Anyone interested, please contact me and I will put you in touch with the owner. Chris@canyoncanine.com

THE JOY OF YOGA

It never ceases to amaze me how resistance can effect our lives and accepting change can bring about peace. The simplest examples can help us learn big lessons. How many times in our lives have we resisted change only to finally, reluctantly, change and then wish we had done it years before? This is not to say that there are not things worth holding on to, but the ability to flow can make it all so much more peaceful. Resistance or "holding" does not flow with the law of nature. In fact energy or prana is always moving. We are always changing on a cellular level, we are always breathing, moving and thinking. So when we get stuck or hold on to ideas and things and thing that are no longer serving us it creates a block in the flow. So how do we learn to be more accepting of change? How do we discern what we want to keep around? Well, first accepting that nothing is truly ours. Then we can learn to study our own behaviors. Observing our tendencies and our habits is the key. We start this process with the lessons our own movement can teach us. How long have we been stuck with those tight hamstrings? The older we get the more stuck we become. It is imperative that we keep moving and stay flexible. Every day on the yoga mat we breathe into the change and move the body to stay open and flexible.

This then translates to our minds. What thoughts are we hanging on to? Are these thoughts serving us? What about our feelings? Are they really productive for us or are they habitual? Once we notice, we can see the possibilities of change or seeing things in a new way. Once that happens the laws of nature can help us to become unstuck. And then it all comes back to the breath. We breathe in the fresh new thoughts and abilities and exhale the old. A sense of peace sets in that we are in the flow.

So, if you have been stuck, in a rut, or resistant to change, take some time to breathe. Move the body in new ways everyday. Be gentle and learn to go with the flow. And of course, get into a yoga class. I will see you there!

Food Assistance Programs Can Help Seniors in Need

Dear Savvy Senior,

I run a community counseling program for needy families and am frustrated that so few eligible seniors take advantage of the food stamp program. Can you write a column on this to help educate seniors to this underutilized benefit? Reaching Out

Dear Reaching,

It's hard to imagine that a government program serving more than 46 million Americans each month is considered severely underutilized. But that's the reality of the federal Food Stamp Program when it comes to serving seniors.

Nationwide, food stamps (now called the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, or SNAP) reaches around 80 percent of those eligible, but the numbers are much slimmer among the seniors, age 60 and older. Recent statistics indicate only 39 percent of eligible seniors receive SNAP

There are a number of reasons for the lack of participation. Some seniors are too embarrassed or too proud to apply. Others think that if they receive SNAP they will be taking food benefits away from others (which they won't). Some think it is too difficult to apply for SNAP, and others don't even know the program exists.

With all that said, here's a run down of which seniors are eligible for SNAP, what they get and how they can apply.

Who's Eligible?

For seniors to get SNAP, their "net income" must be under the 100 percent federal poverty guidelines. So, households that have at least one person age 60 and older, or disabled, their net income must currently be less than $958 per month for an individual or $1,293 for a family of two. Households receiving TANF or SSI (except in California) are also eligible.

Net income is figured by taking gross income minus allowable deductions like medical expenses that exceed $35 per month out-of-pocket, and shelter costs (rent or mortgage payments, taxes and utility costs) that exceeds half of the household's income.

In addition to the net income requirement, a few states also require that a senior's "assets" be below $3,250, not counting the home, retirement or pension plans, income from SSI or TANF, and vehicle (this varies by state). Most states, however, have much higher asset limits or they don't count assets at all when determining eligibility.

The SNAP pre-screening tool at www.snap-step1.usda.gov/fns can help seniors, and their family members, figure out if they qualify.

To apply, seniors or an authorized representative will need to fill out a state application form, which can be done at the local SNAP office or it can be mailed or faxed in, or in many states it can be completed online.

If eligible, benefits will be provided on a plastic card that's used like a debit card and accepted at most grocery stores.

Depending on the person's financial situation, the amount of SNAP a beneficiary may be eligible for will range between $15 and $189 per month as an individual, or $15 to $347 for a family of two. To learn more or apply, contact your local SNAP office - call 800-221-5689 for contact information or visit www.fns.usda.gov/snap.

Produce Coupons

In addition to SNAP, the Senior Farmers Market Nutrition Program is another underused program that provides coupons that can be exchanged for fresh fruits and vegetables at farmers' markets, roadside stands and community supported agriculture programs.

This program is currently available in select counties in 43 states, seven Indian reservations, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, to seniors, age 60 and older, with gross monthly household incomes below 185 percent of the federal poverty line, which is currently below $1,800 for individuals, or $2,426 for a family of two. For more information visit www.fns.usda. gov/sfmnp or call 703-305-2746.

Other Programs

Seniors that are eligible for food assistance may also be eligible for a host of other programs that can help pay for medications, health care, utilities and more. To locate these programs, visit benefitscheckup.org, or call the Eldercare Locator Man" have in common? If you answered that they were all produced between 1945 and 1955, you're right, but there's an even bigger similarity. That's right --you've never heard of them!

These are just three of an infinite number of obscure films made in that small window of were it not for a seemingly unlimited supply of these oldies to download. Growing up without network television, my family and I watched a lot of old movies. In elementary school, my lack of TV knowledge posed somewhat of a social barrier. When all my classmates were talking about the Smurfs and Pee Wee Herman, I could tell them about Laurel & Hardy or the Road Movies, but I was clueless about what was shown on Nickelodeon the previous night, or anything made after 1959 for that matter.

Even as an adult, my TV-less past occasionally comes back to haunt me. Every so often my colleagues make references to some popular show or movie, and everyone will get the joke except me. I've given up trying to fake it by laughing along with them. Now I just smile and wait until they eventually say, "Oh, right. You don't know about that..." Needless to say, I thought I was pretty well versed regarding all the old films. But the age of downloading has shown me that what I thought was a "well of film knowledge" is barely a drop in the cinematic bucket!

Granted, you've probably never heard of these films, and there's a reason for that --they stink! "The Big Leaguer" is a perfect example. It has Vera Ellen wasting her singing and dancing talent in a straight role, and Edward G. Robinson is not very believable as a fun-loving baseball club scout.

What do the titles, "The Hmm... Someone in the casting department must Big Leaguer," "His Kind of have been out sick when they put this together. Woman," and "The Wrong Robinson doesn't look natural unless he's clenching a sausage-size cigar between his teeth and toting a tommy gun. The ball cap and wad of chewing gum just doesn't fit.

Then there are the flicks with dialogue that's so bad, it's hilarious! You can tell that all the writers were on strike that week. My favorite example of this is Barbara Stanwyck in "Blowing Wild." The time. And I wouldn't know about them either, title itself is ripe with possibilities for ridicule!

Duringaparticularlydramatic scene, she pleads with Gary Cooper, "I'd give you my teeth for a watch fob!" You'd do what? Even Barbara knew it was a dumb line, and tried to not draw attention to herself by saying it really fast. But think about it, would the dashing Coop be seen with a toothless girlfriend gumming her food, not to mention sacrificing his favorite watch fob? Beyond the bad casting and bad writing, these movies are amazing if only for the fact that there appears to be a never-ending supply of them! Just when I thought I'd heard of all the good, bad, and ugly films from the 40's and 50's, my dad gives me the titles for 20 I've never heard of. How can a finite period of time have produced a seemingly infinite number of films? It reminds me of the Energizer Bunny --it keeps going, and going, and going.

Although these films haven't added much to our appreciation of cinematography, there is one silver lining to Dad's gleanings. While other people need to worry about the cops coming to take them away for pirating Lady Gaga's latest album, one can rest assured that no studio cares about someone downloading a "B" movie that has played on The Late Show for the last 60 years. I'm sure Bella Lugosi's estate isn't living off the

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: THE DROP

By Sean Kayden

Moody and ominous, "The Drop" boosts superb acting by the always-dependable Tom Hardy and most of its main players. However, the old school storyline hinders a somewhat clever and often unusual atypical crime drama. Tom Hardy stars as Bob, a peculiar, soft-spoken bartender who tends bar at his cousin Marv's joint.

The late James Gandolfini plays Marv, a former kind of wiseguy dealing with the fact he doesn't really own the bar any longer since the mob has moved in on his territory. The Brooklyn set crime drama focuses on Marv's bar where money drops are made for a Chechnya mob. Things go awry after closing hours when two lowlife criminals rob the bar and make way with the money that belongs to the Chechens. When heat is increasingly put upon Marv and Bob by the mob, things begin to unravel for the two men. "The Drop" offers many of the same film tropes found in crime dramas, but side stories from supporting characters give it a fresh approach even if these stories sometimes become a bit muddle along the way.

The film is somewhat of a character study on Hardy's character. Bob is mild mannered, soft-spoken and even has a caring heart for the lonely, elderly and abused animals. However, there's just something more about him. This realization you can't really put your finger on for half the film until you recognize there's a mystery percolating within. I found Hardy's performance enthralling and tantalizing. His presentation easily outshines the restrained film. Supporting character Noomi Rapace plays the female role, in which the writer never knows how to fully develop her. Ultimately, she becomes a bargaining chip in the end for Hardy, but her presence wasn't utilized very well. She's the closest thing to a love interest, but if she ever becomes one remains unknown. Rapace has a great acting prowess. Sadly, she seems to be misused in US films time after time.

Relatively unknown stateside, Matthias Schoenaerts, who plays Deeds, a lowlife just recently out of the psych ward, is haunting and absolutely terrific. His character and when he's squared up with Hardy are easily the most entertaining and engaging aspects of the film. "The Drop" was Gandolfini's last feature role. He wasn't the main character, but his acting chops were on full display. He played a lesser version of Tony Soprano. Nonetheless, he was solid with his larger-than-life

Michaël R. Roskam Directed By: Written By: Dennis Lehane (short story "Animal Rescue") Release Date: September 12th, 2014 Rated R: For some strong violence and pervasive language.

"The Drop" has the common twist ending, but while it's being called unexpected by many critics, you just knew something was about to be revealed in the last act. When things unravel, it's almost if Hardy's character doesn't even blink an eye. From him only being a single piece to the puzzle, he becomes the entire puzzle. I thought "The Drop" also had an interesting, if somewhat ambiguous final shot. It definitely made it seem like a different kind of crime drama and because of that I do give it much respect. "The Drop" delivers on mood and atmosphere, superior class-A acting, and interesting subplots. However, the old school storyline has a few problems and feels unmistakably outdated, like a 90s film. First time screenwriter Dennis Lehane ("Shutter Island," "Gone Baby Gone," "Mystic River") adapted "The Drop" from his own short story "Animal Rescue." There's definitely much intrigue here, but there's a lot of telling rather than showing. Maybe "The Drop" comes off too much like a novel and not enough like a motion picture. It's still worth checking out for Hardy and company, but it doesn't come close to the works of Lehane's other adapted

Emerging Artists in Concert at the Playhouse

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano

On October 5, 2014 we start our second season of $collaborations\,with\,the\,Colburn\,Conservatory\,when\,the$ Alma Quartet plays a program of Haydn and Beethoven. All our Sunday evening performances begin at 7:00~p.m.Ticket prices vary, but the Colburn Concerts are $20 for adults and $15 for Seniors and Students. Reservations can be made at 626.355.4318. For a long time, I have been struck by the number of music conservatories producing world-class professional musicians in Los Angeles. We have The Colburn School, The Thornton School at USC, the Herb Alpert School at UCLA, and CalArts - each producing amazingly talented musicians. In 2013, I started working on establishing a Series at the Playhouse which I am calling Emerging Artists in Concert at the Playhouse and my first call was to the Colburn Conservatory.

Founded in 2003, the Ćolburn Conservatory has quickly established itself as one of the nation's leading conservatories. I got a wonderful reception from Nate Zeisler, Director of Community Engagement and Continuing Education at the School who saw potential in working with SMP to create a venue for young artists to gain experience creating programs meaningful to themselves while working in collaboration with a producing organization. I have enjoyed working with Nate and his colleague Susannah Ramshaw to work out the execution of the collaboration – they have been

The Series has been a resounding success. We've had some of the most remarkable early-career musicians play on our stage. All of them have been taken with the quality of the sound in our theater – they've told me how easy the room is. Anyone who has heard music performances in our jewel box of a theater knows how remarkable a space it is for music.

The Sunday Series is an important part of our programming and has been for a long time and I have made it a key part of my new mission at SMP. I have some remarkable performers joining us this year. Please see our website www.sierramadreplayhouse.org for a full schedule of performances.

This Emerging Artists Series intends to present and celebrate the emerging talent coming out of these conservatories as well as programming new approaches to accepted notions of classical music. Eventually, we hope to program a wide range of music from jazz to opera - and I am negotiating with a dance troupe to join the series – more on that as it develops. We hope that patrons will begin to think of the Sierra Madre Playhouse not only as a place to see great theater and but also as a place to hear wonderful music.

I hope this is the start of something big. As I've been saying for a while to anyone who will listen: "Hear them at the Playhouse before you hear them at

THE LIQUID AMBER TREE STRIKES AGAIN: Do You Love It or Hate It?

By Joan Schmidt

Tuesday morning I drove down my street towards California Ave. and really was shocked at what I saw. Over the last few years, huge branches have fallen off different neighbors' liquid amber trees and have done excessive damage to various vehicles. Each time, everyone has commented how fortunate there was no one walking down the street or in front of the house.

This time, the huge set of branches landed on someone's home, dented in the roof, and destroyed the façade over the front of the house. Thank God it occurred at 1 a.m. If it were during the day and children were walking to and from school, or residents walking to the bus stop, the results could have been

The trees make a beautiful shade. When I moved here 27 years ago, I loved the tree-lined street. But their fruit (dubbed "sticker-balls" by a neighbor) have cause many falls. My contractor friend said his mom tripped over one, fell, and broke her arm. When I walked my daily 2 1/2 mile track years ago, I ruined a few pairs of pants-getting holes in the knees-after tripping over

Ten years ago, our front lawn area that belongs to the County, had a constant small pool of water because of a leaking water meter. After several calls to the Water Company, they came out and said the tree roots had done this. I was glad to see my tree removed, but over the years, I have seen my neighbors' problems from the

the street and sidewalk) about one foot deep. He got a shovel and tried to reach the bottom of the hole, but the shovel went way down! We called L.A. County Public Works. Their crew came and was going to fill up our "hole". It ended up being close to 4 feet deep and 7ft by 15ft! The Tree Crew came and said they never saw a hole that big. What had happened was, when the tree was removed ten years ago, a few roots were left and they kept decomposing!

Tuesday morning I spoke to Larry Vega, the Area Supervisor for LA County Public Works. Public Works already had several vehicles at the site and were waiting for the Tree Crew. Mr. Vega told me, "When even the smallest branch falls, the Tree Crew comes and assesses the situation to see if there could be a further problem. If necessary, the Tree Crew will recommend that Public Works remove branches or the entire tree. We are ready to do removal a tree immediately if necessary."

Mr. Vega looked at the downed branches and they appeared healthy. He spoke of the tree's Self-Preservation. In this drought the tree needs more water and will get it from the ground; then becomes top-heavy. That often causes the branches to snap or break off.

FOOTHILL TRANSIT, AN ENVIRONMENTAL

From The San Gabriel Valley Economic Partnership By Cynthia Kurtz

Keeping the San Gabriel Valley healthy and protecting the environment are important to residents and businesses alike. The region has seen much improvement in recent years. The air is cleaner and the mountains are no longer hidden in gray "haze".

One company in particular stands out as a leader in environmental stewardship - Foothill Transit.

Since 1988 Foothill Transit has been transporting people around the San Gabriel Valley. It all began when the Los Angeles County transit system announced that it would cut service and raise fares. Knowing these changes would hurt the San Gabriel Valley, a group of cities formed a joint powers authority and assumed 14 lines of service that had previously been provided by the county-wide transportation authority.

Twenty-six years later, Foothill operates 331 buses on 33 fixed-routes, covers 327 square miles, and serves 14 million customers per year.

In addition to providing on-time, quality transit service, Foothill Transit is committed to environmental protection and sustainability. In 2002, the agency began its conversion to a compressed natural gas or CNG fleet. Since then, Foothill has put 316 CNG buses into service and retired its diesel fleet in December 2013.

In 2011 the agency became the first transit and grow a business.

agency in the United States to embrace zeroemission bus technology by purchasing the first of its kind all-electric Ecoliner. The Ecoliner is the first electric bus to utilize in-route fast charging capability. Everything on the bus including the air conditioning is powered by electricity.

The Ecoliner incorporates elements borrowed from Formula-1 race cars and naval and tank technologies designed to reduce vehicle weight without compromising safety.

Using the rapid charger located on its roof, the Ecoliner can dock at charger stations along its route and recharge from 20% to 90% in less than 10 minutes.

The rapid charge technology allows the Ecoliner to remain in service throughout the day.

And Foothill Transit was the first California transit agency to order the next generation of electric buses called the Proterra Solution.

It's not just their green fleet and the automobiles that are being supplanted from our roads that make Foothill Transit "green".

In 2012 Foothill even began producing its own green power with solar panels on the roofs of the Arcadia and Pomona Operation and Maintenance Yards. The combined facilities generate over 420,000 kilowatt hours of energy, thereby reducing carbon dioxide emissions by 218 tons per year.

Day after day Foothill Transit continues to make the San Gabriel Valley a better place to live

MARS CURIOSITY ROVER ARRIVES AT MARTIAN MOUNTAIN

NASA's Mars Curiosity rover has reached the Red Planet's Mount Sharp, a Mount-Rainier-size mountain at the center of the vast Gale Crater and the rover mission's long-term prime destination.

"Curiosity now will begin a new chapter from an already outstanding introduction to the world," said Jim Green, director of NASA's Planetary Science Division at NASA Headquarters in Washington. "After a historic and innovative landing along with its successful science discoveries, the scientific sequel is upon us."

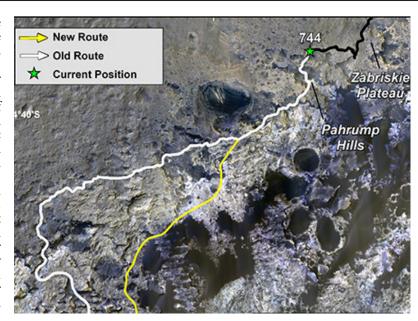

Curiosity's trek up the mountain will begin with an examination of the mountain's lower slopes. The rover is starting this process at an entry point near an outcrop called Pahrump Hills, rather than continuing on to the previously-planned, further entry point known as Murray Buttes. Both entry points lay along a boundary where the southern base layer of the mountain meets crater-floor deposits washed down from the crater's northern rim.

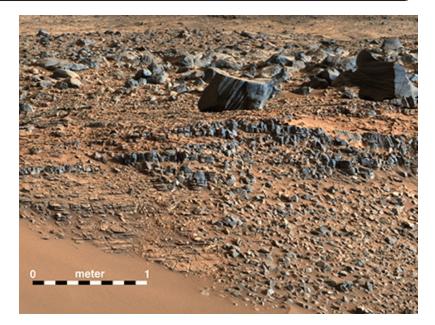

"It has been a long but historic journey to this Martian mountain," said Curiosity Project Scientist John Grotzinger of the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena. "The nature of the terrain at Pahrump Hills and just beyond it is a better place than Murray Buttes to learn about the significance of this contact. The exposures at the contact are better due to greater topographic relief."

The decision to head uphill sooner, instead of continuing to Murray Buttes, also draws from improved understanding of the region's geography provided by the rover's examinations of several outcrops during the past year. Curiosity currently is positioned at the base of the mountain along a pale, distinctive geological feature called the Murray formation. Compared to neighboring crater-floor terrain, the rock of the Murray formation is softer and does not preserve impact scars, as well. As viewed from orbit, it is not as well-layered as other units at the base of Mount Sharp.

Curiosity made its first close-up study last month of two Murray formation outcrops, both revealing notable differences from the terrain explored by Curiosity during the past year. The first outcrop, called Bonanza King, proved too unstable for drilling, but was examined by the rover's instruments and determined to have high silicon content. A second outcrop, examined with the rover's telephoto Mast Camera, revealed a fine-grained, platy surface laced with sulfate-filled veins.

Curiosity reached its current location after its route was modified earlier this year in response to excessive wheel wear. In late 2013, the team realized a region of Martian terrain littered with sharp, embedded rocks was poking holes in four of the rover's six wheels. This damage accelerated the rate of wear and tear beyond that for which the rover team had planned. In response, the team altered the rover's route to a milder terrain, bringing the rover farther south, toward the base of Mount Sharp.

After landing inside Gale Crater in August 2012, Curiosity fulfilled in its first year of operations its major science goal of determining whether Mars ever offered environmental conditions favorable for microbial life. Clay-bearing sedimentary rocks on the crater floor, in an area called Yellowknife Bay, yielded evidence of a lakebed environment billions of years ago that offered fresh water, all of the key elemental ingredients for life, and a chemical source of energy for microbes.

NASA's Mars Science Laboratory Project continues to use Curiosity to assess ancient habitable environments and major changes in Martian environmental conditions. The destinations on Mount Sharp offer a series of geological layers that recorded different chapters in the environmental evolution of Mars.

WHY AMERICANS LOVE RUSSIANS A Lesson in Persistence By Christopher Nyerges

Our small group had just finished a wild food class at a picnic area in the Angeles National Forest. We'd collected wild morels, miner's lettuce, chickweed, and other greens, and we cooked up a superb four course meal. We made our fire the old-fashioned way, using a hand drill.

We discussed various survival skills, including how we might survive after a major tsunami. Finally, we hiked out to the parking area, only to discover that one of our group had forgotten her keys inside her locked car.

Thus began another "survival exercise."

We found a weak clothes hanger in the parking lot, and tried to open the door. But we couldn't get a grip on the flat door lock knob. The knob didn't have the little bump on the top that makes it easy to grab with a clothes hanger.

A passerby decided to try, and he worked the driver's side window. Another passerby found a heavier coat hanger in his car trunk and began to try again on the passenger side. It was easy enough to get the wire into the car, but it was hard to manipulate it onto the little protruding flat

Three Russian men, who had been picnicking down by the river with their families, saw the action and came over to the locked car. They brought a flat aluminum tent stake with them, and then proceeded to use it like a slim jim. I spoke with the one Russian who had some mastery of English. He was the shortest of the group, with a large grin, and nearly bald. He smiled as he told me that they could do it.

The three of them spoke loudly and animatedly about what they were about to do, and then one slipped the aluminum bar into the door siding, hoping to engage the linkage from the latch to the knob, and open the door. They tried this on the outside, and then into the inside of the door, and they were unable to capture the linkage. The short Russian explained that the linkage was probably in some sort of internal cover. They then moved over the drivers side, trying once again to grab the linkage. This went on for about 20 minutes without success.

A Japanese passerby watched for awhile, and then politely explained that it might be possible to open a Toyota door if someone had another Toyota key. He explained how he has many times opened Toyota doors, by taking any Toyota key and jiggling it a certain way in the keyhole. Someone else produced a Toyota key, and 10 minutes of jiggling did not open the door.

All this time the two coat hangers had been passed to at least five different individuals who each tried to open the door. The doors remained locked.

Our small group had just finished a wild food class at a picnic area in the Angeles National Forest.

The three Russians persisted with one method after another to enter the car. It was obviously a challenge to them, and they showed no signs of frustration or desire to quit. It was a puzzle to be solved, an obstacle to be overcome. Failure was not an option.

They attempted to grab the linkage, but it didn't work. They managed to push a button inside the car which should have opened the door. It didn't They actually grabbed the inside latch, and managed to pull it outward, but could not leverage enough to open the door. They attempted to go into the outside door handle, and through the trunk key hole. No success.

These three casually-dressed men constantly spoke in Russian amongst themselves as they moved around the car trying each method. We could not tell if they were arguing or problemsolving. But clearly, at this moment, all that mattered was getting into the car.

A teenager walked up with backwards hat and pants falling down. He walked with an arrogance towards the car. One observer yelled out, "I've got my money on the kid!" The teenager took the clothes hanger and worked on the driver's side for all of five minutes before quitting in defeat. The Russians persisted.

I had someone drive the car's owner up out of the canyon so she could get coverage on her cell phone and call emergency road service for a locksmith. I waited, as the Russians continued, and one after another man would step up to the car and try his hand and opening the door. They each looked like the types of guys you'd see in a police line-up, so you'd think they could open the door. But none of them succeeded.

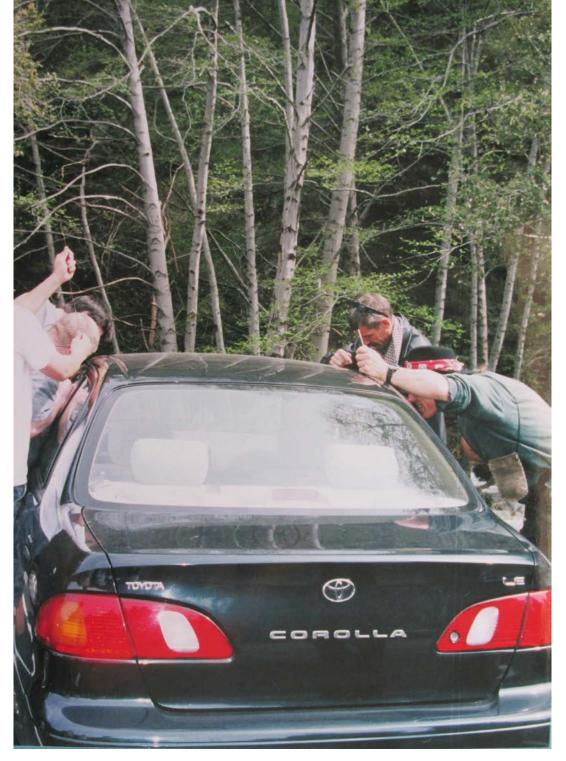

All along, the Russians continued, discussing each aspect of their task amongst themselves, as they tried tactic after tactic.

By now, about 55 minutes had elapsed and perhaps 20 individuals had tried to open to locked door. A tall fourth Russian, who'd been down by the river with his family, came over and joined the other three. The tall Russian didn't say very much, but he carefully examined the situation. He took the stiff wire clothes hanger, and began making a series of very careful bends and angles as the other three Russians animatedly spoke among themselves about what the forth man was doing.

The tall Russian quietly and carefully slipped the wire into the car, and managed to slip the end of it between the knob and the glass, and then exerting just the right amount of tension in the right direction, he freed the knob and the door was open. The small crowd cheered in that parking lot in the Angeles National Forest, and everyone was shaking hands with the Russians.

With the broadest possible grin, the short Russians said to me, "This is why Americans love Russians." Then they disappeared back down to their families and I drove the car out of the canyon to where the owner was waiting, with no emergency road service in sight.

Before we departed, three of us discussed what had just happened, and the value of "urban" survival skills –such as locksmithing. We also discussed those Russians, and their unique character of not quitting easily, when all the "average Americans" gave up easily. And though they all wore obviously American clothes with obvious makers' mark such as Nike and Tomy Hilfinger, they had a certain nitty-gritty quality about themselves that told me they'd be far more likely to survive in an emergency – be it urban or in the wilderness –than any of the polite, proper, and nice people.

It's hard to say with precision what the short Russian meant by his statement "that's why Americans love Russians," but we certainly admired their persistence and willingness to help someone else with no promise of any "reward" but a handshake. Those are good character traits that we could use more of.

Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed

HARDER THAN IT LOOKS

With markets so rapidly changing, it's easy to imagine how property appraisers might sit in a darkened room, waving their hands over a crystal ball, and producing the mysterious and all-powerful document of a home's value. Let's dispel the notion of magical figures and look more carefully at the process.

When comparing against similar properties, it's not just the final price that counts. Appraisers also factor in any "incentives" offered, such as sellers who pay closing costs or remodeling

Perhaps the most important factor that lenders review in an appraisal is the closing dates of the "comparables" (other homes by which yours is measured). Unfortunately, with today's stricter lending requirements, most "comps" must have sold within the last 60 or even 45 days to carry weight. Markets change so quickly that any sale price over two months old may be completely

Now a few words about how foreclosures in a neighborhood affect determination of value. Technically, appraisers shouldn't consider them, because they don't fit the Appraisal Institute's definition of "a property reasonably exposed in a competitive market." However, if several area homes have been abandoned, we know the negative effect that can have on a home's 'perceived" value.

If you're planning to sell, express your concerns about the appraisal process to your representative, who will offer explanations and suggestions for improving your report's results.

SBA INTRODUCES NEW ONLINE COURSE FOR YOUNG ENTREPRENEURS IN SPANISH

Hosts Live Hangout for Spanish-Speaking Young Entrepreneurs with GobiernoUSA.gov on September 25, 2014

WASHINGTON - Young entrepreneurs have a new tool to help determine if they're ready for business ownership and to help them get started. Young Entrepreneurs: An Essential Guide to Starting Your Own Business (Jóvenes Emprendedores) is a free, self-paced online course in Spanish that gives an overview of basic business principles and introduces resources available from the U.S. Small Business Administration. "This month, the SBA recognizes the vital contributions Hispanic American small business owners have made to our economy as we observe National Hispanic Heritage Month," said Maria Contreras-Sweet, SBA Administrator. "As a proud Hispanic American, I believe that providing financial, educational and technical assistance to Hispanic entrepreneurs is a major means to create jobs and stimulate the economy. The new course is an essential business development tool for young entrepreneurs that can be central to the future success for many generations to come." The Young Entrepreneurs course is designed to help with the essentials of starting a small business, including evaluating business ideas, choosing the best financing options and registering a business. The course also includes useful resources that will help with each step along the path to entrepreneurial success.

The course is accessible from the SBA's Learning Center under the banner "Starting a Business" at http://go.usa.gov/mnFT, and is also available in English. The Spanish version of the course includes a special video introduction. Young Spanish-speaking entrepreneurs will receive a personal greeting from SBA Administrator Contreras-Sweet when taking the course. Together, SBA and GobiernoUSA.gov will host a live Hangout on Thursday, September 25 to chat about the new online course and entrepreneurship with Sarah Farzam, owner of Bilingual Birdies, a foreign language and live music company that encourages cross-cultural awareness through combining language and music. Farzam will answer questions about getting started as a young entrepreneur.

Hangout participants can submit questions for Farzam by email to learning@sba.gov or tweet questions using the hashtag #jovenesempresarios. No registration is needed to watch.

The Obama Administration has a good record of SBA assistance to the Latino community, and the SBA's 7(a) loan guarantee program has increased its level of assistance to Hispanic-owned businesses over the last five year period.

The agency has placed more than $3.3 billion in loans to Hispanic business owners over the four-year span from 2009 through 2013. And this year, SBA's 7(a) lending pace has already exceeded last year's volume, attaining a level of more than $857 million."

SOME CALIFORNIANS MAY BE OWED REFUNDS ON AUTO PURCHASES

Sacramento - Board of Equalization, (BOE) Chairman Jerome E. Horton announces that the Department of Motor Vehicle (DMV) may have charged you too much use tax on your purchase of a car from a private citizen.

When purchasing a car from a private party you are required to register the vehicle with the DMV, and pay the use tax. The use tax a buyer should generally pay is the applicable sales tax rate for the area where the vehicle will be registered (usually the new owner's home or business address).

The Department of Motor Vehicles, working with the BOE, has discovered that some taxpayers may have been charged the wrong rate in computing their tax liability on the purchase of a vehicle from a private party.

For example, if you bought a used car for $10,000 and the car will be registered to your home address in the City of Inglewood, you would owe $950 in tax (based upon Inglewood's sales and use tax rate of 9.5 percent). If your home was nearby in the unincorporated area of Los Angeles County, which is also in the 90045 zip code, you would owe $900 based on that area's

The Board of Equalization, working with the DMV, is in the process of implementing safeguards to protect California taxpayers from being over-charged in the future. However, Chairman Horton encourages taxpayers to report any concerns to the Board of Equalization.

'Taxpayers have the right to pay the correct amount of taxes under the law, and correcting this mechanical or human error preserves that right," said Chairman Horton.

To verify that you were charged the correct amount of tax, and to file a claim for refund if the wrong amount was collected by the DMV, please visit www.boe.ca.gov. Your request for a refund must be made in writing, and must state the grounds or specific reason for the overpayment. You may use the form BOE-101. More information and instructions are available on the BOE's website in Publication 117.

If you were overcharged tax by a registered vehicle dealer, you should request a refund from that dealer. For further assistance, consumers may contact the BOE's Customer Service Center at 1-800-400-7115.

RICH Johnson HEAT IS HOT

I don't want to bore you with tedious scientific research and fact finding but I have personally experienced over the last several days the hotness of heat. I can say relatively confidently that heat is hot. In fact, as of this writing (1:49 Tuesday afternoon), it is 106 F degrees

In my research I discovered the hottest day on record in California took place on July 10, 1913 in, of course, Death Valley. It hit 134 F. That beat every other state in the country. Second was Arizona in 1994. 128 degrees F in Lake Havasu City. By the way, there is no place on the planet that was ever hotter than Death Valley. Tunisia in Africa hit 131 degrees and Kuwait in the middle east hit 128.5 degrees.

What melts at high heat aside from ice cream and popsicles? Candles can melt around 120 degrees. If you see them drooping over you know why. Crayons will start to soften at 105 degrees. Especially the ones your kids leave in between the seats of your car. Keep an eye on those plastic toys. I'm told steering wheels can start to melt. Watch out for your CDs and cases in your car. So, use a sunshade protector whenever you park. I've had a brain meltdown. When that happens the brain never quite comes back. So be

'If you saw a heat wave, would you wave back?" Steven Wright

"If you can't stand the heat, don't go to Cancun in the Summer." Ben Stein "A perfect summer day is when the sun is shining, the breeze is blowing, the birds are singing, and the lawn mower is broken." James Dent

Now, for perspective, the coldest place in California was in a small town near Truckee called Boca. In January 20, 1937 it reached -45 degrees F. That's below zero. The coldest day in the United States was January 23, 1971 in Prospect Creek, Alaska. The temperature hit -80 degrees below zero. Honorable mention goes to Montana and Utah who had -70 degrees and -69 degrees coldest day. Antarctica had -128 degrees below zero and Russia had -90 below zero.

You know, I'm not the only one pondering the hotness of heat. The esteemed website, ScienceDirect.com is also taking up these important questions. Look what I found on their website:

"Is heat hot?" Inducing conceptual change by integrating everyday and scientific perspectives on thermal phenomena.

Abstract (which means brief summary) An account of conceptual change within the domain of thermal physics is described. In particular, the difficulties of inducing an ontological change in students' concept of heat is examined. While the overall goal of this research is to document microgenetically the process of conceptual change that takes place as students learn thermal physics, this paper describes the specific role of metaconceptual teaching. It is argued that metaconceptual teaching that addresses the fact that students and scientists may use the same terms for different conceptual referents and that scientific conceptions can account for everyday ones, helps to effect the targeted ontological changes. The pedagogical success of integrating the scientific and the everyday view is consistent with young adolescents' difficulties with a relativistic epistemology in which scientific and everyday views are presented as valid alternatives.

I couldn't have said it better. In fact I couldn't have said it at all. But we can safely state with even more confidence that heat is hot. -Rich

Closer Than My Cell Phone

Traveling, especially by air, is not my favorite pastime. I know some people who just delight in flying from one point to another point. If you would count all of those people who do, I would be nowhere on that list.

Recently I had to travel involving changing planes, which involved spending a night at the Orlando airport. I could have come home, which is about two hours away, or I could spend the night and catch the plane the next day. It would cost me about the same to stay overnight at the airport as it would to travel back home and then return to the airport the next day. So, after all of my meticulous calculations, I decided to spend the night at the airport.

I determined while there to get the most of my night's stay at the airport. The hotel at the airport was one of those big international hotels. It had more stories than a politician on the campaign trail. As is usually the case, my room was on one of the top stories of the hotel.

Checking in at the front desk, I then went to my room and settled down for the evening. I was not going to waste my time huddled in my hotel room, rather, I was going to look around and experience the "nightlife" at this international Airport.

Have you ever made a decision, then looking back on it you thought to yourself, "Self, we are never going to do that again." Such was my case.

I decided to get some supper around 8 o'clock in the evening. This, I found out, was the time high society folk eat. Why they eat so late, I will never know. But, since I was with high society, I decided to act and eat like high society. The restaurant in this international hotel was one of those highfalutin restaurants where you really do not know what is on the menu. The menu was in every language except English.

Fortunately, they had some pictures and fortunately, my index finger was still in good working order. I ordered my supper, set back and observed the high society all around me.

One thought that stumbled through my brain at the time was, "I wonder if these people in this restaurant know that I am not part of high society?"

About this time the wine steward, I guess that is what he is called, came by to take my wine order.

About this time the wine steward, I guess that is what he is called, came by to take my while order. The only wine I know is spelled with an H. When I declined the wine, people began to suspicion I was not part of high society. I guess you cannot be part of high society unless you wine a little. I finished my supper and decided to wander around in the huge lounge area on this floor. Everybody there was talking and so I got an order of coffee, went to a couch, sat down and just observed what was going on around me. One thing I noticed was that most people seemed to be on their cell phone. What would happen in our society if cell phones suddenly stopped working for three minutes? There would be such a panic across our country that nobody would actually survive. I decided I should call someone on my cell phone. After all, I am trying to fit in with this high society. My dilemma came when I tried to figure out who in the world I should call at 10 o'clock in

Then it dawned on me. I will call the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. I do not know why I did not think of this before. So, I pressed the speed dial and the phone started ringing.

As soon as the phone started ringing, a thought danced in my mind. What in the world am I calling her for? What in the world would I talk about?

Before finishing all of the questions floating around my cranium my wife answered the phone. The first words out of her mouth were, "What did you forget now?"

It seems that whenever I go on a trip, before I get too far down the road I remember something I forgot. When I assured her that I had not forgotten anything, I sensed a slight pause on the other and and then she said "Did you miss your plane?" end and then she said, "Did you miss your plane?"

Within the next few minutes I was bombarded with question after question, all I did was call, and at this point, I could not remember why I had called her. It just seemed like the thing to do at the

After she settled down a little bit and her panic seizure ceased, I told her I just called to call.

"Oh," she said, not knowing how to answer that. I was shocked. It had never happened before. I am going to cherish this memory for as long as I live. I actually caught her when she had nothing to say. Needless to say, I relished that moment because it will probably never happen again.

After I hung up, I sat sipping some more coffee when one of my favorite verses came to mind. "And it shall come to pass, that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will

The corporations are getting it. But for much of the media, the story is on the NFL's attempts at damage control under Commissioner Roger Goodell. (Goodell's salary of nearly $20 million doesn't factor in bonuses; total compensation for 2012 was $44

There was the initial two-game suspension given Ravens running back Ray Rice after video surfaced of him dragging his unconscious girlfriend from an Atlantic City casino elevator last February. The State of New Jersey let Rice avoid jail time and clear his record by paying a $125 fine and receiving counseling for anger management.

Goodell rationalized the two-game suspension by explaining that when it was handed down last July, there was still ambiguity as to what had happened in that elevator. ESPN reports sources say Rice came to Goodell in June and told him exactly what had happened.

The "indefinite suspension" came with the video on TMZ a couple weeks ago of Rice knocking out his girlfriend with a punch inside the elevator. Goodell says he hadn't seen the video until it surfaced on TMZ. The A.P. reports a "law enforcement official" told them the NFL has had the tape since April.

A highlight of the new season was the opening of Levi's Stadium, new home for the 49ers. Commissioner Goodell was a no-show. (S.F. defensive lineman Ray McDonald is currently under investigation for felony domestic violence.)

Shifting the focus from Goodell, "Fox and Friends" turned to Rice's victim, with Brian Kilmeade joking, "The message here is, take the stairs". Steve Doocy added a lesson about not getting caught; "The message is when you're in an elevator, there's a camera."

When Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee sent a letter to Goodell calling for "greater transparency" from the NFL, Fox host Eric Bolling called it "convenient"; 'They love to perpetuate this war on women . . ." Rush Limbaugh accused NFL officials and sports media of being "in a race to see who can be the most politically correct, feminized guy", and warned that "if we keep chickifying this game, we're going to ruin it." (Rush also offered dating advice; "'No' means 'yes' if you know how to spot it.") Fox News' Elizabeth Hasselbeck tweeted a connection between this NFL controversy and

When the Texans' Arian Foster observed that "now they're concerned", he was referring to NFL sponsors and their bottom lines. From Bolling's comments on Fox, though, it's clear there's also concern about the upcoming elections, and recognition that when Republicans lost seats in Congress two years ago it was because voters saw "this war on women" not as something Democrats were trying to "perpetuate", but as something real. (Remember senate candidate Todd Akins' observation of the unlikelihood of pregnancy resulting from "legitimate rape"?)

While many have been following the NFL controversy, there were other stories in the news about men determining what's best for women. There was state Rep. Paul Wieland (R-MO) suing the federal government for the Affordable Care Act's making contraception available to his teenage daughters. Former state Sen. Russell Pearce (R-AZ) resigned as his state's Republican chairman after suggesting mandatory sterilization for women on Medicaid.

This past week, Meredith Vieira used her show to relate her own harrowing experience as a victim of domestic violence, and to address the question, "Why didn't you just leave?"; "I would feel like maybe I contributed somehow to this and they are saying this about Ray Rice's wife, that it takes two to tango."

Our new Miss America, Miss New York Kira Kazantsev, has taken the national stage to relate her personal experience suffering in an abusive relationship while in college and of her work in groups advocating for victims of domestic violence, like Safe Harbor. For those on the right, though, Miss America is not to be congratulated but condemned - for having interned for three months in support of educational programs at Planned

Domestic violence and the victimization of women have now become prominent stories in the media. The NFL's corporate sponsors have shown their concern – making clear their insistence the league deal with the problem openly and decisively. It remains unclear whether Republicans in Congress share that concern. While these stories were making news, Senate Republicans successfully blocked, for the fourth time, the Paycheck Fairness Act. Women comprise half our nation's workforce, being the primary or cobreadwinner of two-thirds of our households. Apart from any concern over women who are victims of domestic violence, Republicans in this Congress can't even be concerned they get equal pay for their work.

Two Viruses And Two Reactions

President Obama's decision to send 3,000 American soldiers to contain and eradicate the Ebola virus before it breaks out is the right decision, and Conservatives should support it without reservation. Given President Obama's penchant for moving very slowly when committing U.S. troops, he has shown wisdom and courage in reacting to the prospects for the world and the U.S. should Ebola start to spread rapidly. But the same could be, and should be, said for the virus which is Islamic terror, now at least "contained" to one predominant region of the world but seeking to spread far and fast. We need the same swiftness of action and the same, or greater, commitment of U.S. ground troops to defeat ISIS in Iraq and Syria before the two viruses combine and attack the U.S.

Lethal viruses kill, and the amount of people they kill is determined by the combination of how quickly the virus kills and how quickly it spreads. Viruses which kill quickly but take longer to spread tend to burn out on their own; too many of their victims die before they can contaminate others at a compounding rate. This is measured by the "basic reproductive number" - usually shortened to R0. An R0 of less than 1 means an outbreak will subside. R0s greater than 1 mean the virus will spread. Recent analysis of the current West African epidemic pegs the R0 at greater than 1 and further stressed that the virus is mutating. Viruses do that. They try to live and reproduce like all organisms. If Ebola continues to grow and mutate to the point where it could be transmitted through the air (it cannot now), we would see a worldwide epidemic – perhaps even spurred by bio-terrorism.

President Obama is right to send U.S. troops – and lots of them. Only the U.S. has the personnel, stature and efficiency to put up the necessary facilities, isolate and treat those infected and stop this virus. Political dithering would costs lives - thousands of live. The President has been told that and reacted appropriately. Whether he did it for the right reasons or political reasons is irrelevant. This has to be stopped.

This brings us to the other virus – Islamic terror, now resident in the form of ISIS. It's not a virus in the medical sense of the world, but it kills with equal dispatch and abandon, seeks to replicate itself worldwide and infects too many who ostensibly claim to belong to a religion of peace. If Islam in the broader sense is a peaceful religion, then it is an appropriate analogy to see the ISIS strain of Islam as a virus infecting that body of believers. Like other viruses, ISIS's strategy is not particularly new. Viruses tend to follow predictable paths. While the name is something we hadn't heard before, ISIS's goals, methods and strategies for dealing with the United States are similar to what we've faced before. Whether it's been North Korea, Vietnam, the first Gulf War, Al Quada, the Iraq War, Afghanistan or now ISIS, the terrorists practice a similar path of asymmetric warfare. They kill to terrorize a population, they refuse to wear uniforms, they hide among civilian populations and they strike sporadically as guerrilla's. They also play on the world's sympathetic media to amplify their claims of a justified cause to excuse their wanton cruelty. Like other viruses, they seek the weakest elements in the cultures they target to convince the innocent and disaffected to die for their advancement. And like all viruses, they seek domination of ever increasing swaths of Fortunately, the comparisons also apply to how we must deal with them. Ebola must be stamped out. It must be met now with an overpowering counter force which will contain and then eliminate the threat. You can't creep up on Ebola; you can't use an incremental strategy. And yes, only the U.S. can supply that overwhelming force. It bears repeating; President Obama got it right in his response to Ebola.

The President must also do the same with ISIS. Before the Obama administration, the last time we practiced an incremental approach to warfare was Vietnam. From that came a quagmire, but also out of that came the Powell Doctrine. General Collin Powell persuasively articulated the need for an overwhelming force when America goes to war. From Vietnam until the current administration, that philosophy guided our successful engagements in the Gulf War, Iraq and Afghanistan. Because of it, we beat back those who would have enslaved nations and whole regions. Obama's premature removal of troops from Iraq, his communication of a withdrawal timetable for Afghanistan, his dithering on Syria and Libya, and now his open argument with our generals about ground troops have allowed the terrorists to regroup, mutate and emerge in many ways more powerful than they were when we first engaged them. Historians of the future will accurately record this as the seminal weakness of the Obama presidency. Should Ebola mutate to air-borne capabilities and should an Islamic terrorist release that strain in an American city, Obama's weakness will become America's disaster.

But, there is a chance that future historians will also record a turning point in this presidency if Obama, like several Chief Executives before him, learns from his fatal mistakes and finishes well. For President Obama and the nation to finish this chapter successfully, Obama must immediately and resolutely commit the overwhelming force that only boots on the ground can supply to the battle against the virus that is Islamic

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. The Kensington Sierra Madre invites caregivers, families and friends to an inspiring presentation featuring real-life caregiving stories and advice from noted author and speaker Elaine K. Sanchez

Caregiver Survival Training

Tuesday, September 23, 2014 at The University Club 175 North Oakland Ave, Pasadena, CA

Session I: 12:30-2:30pm | Refreshments, lunch and coffee Session II: 6-8pm | Cocktails, hors d'oeuvres, dinner and coffee

RSVP – Limited Seating

laine K. Sanchez is an author, speaker and co-founder of CaregiverHelp.com. ✓ She has been described as part Erma Bombeck and part Garrison Keillor, but don't let the entertainment value of her presentation fool you. Her three-step process of developing an "Attitude of Creative Indifference" toward the emotional stress of caregiving has helped thousands of family and professional caregivers learn:

- In order to care for another person, we must make self-care a priority.
- · Even in the very worst end-of-life situations, there is still an opportunity for mental and spiritual growth.
- As long as we have the ability to think and to reason, we have the power to choose our attitude toward any person, situation or event.

Elaine's real-life caregiving stories bring hope, humor and heart to caregiver anger, guilt, depression and grief. You will learn that you are not alone, that having negative feelings doesn't make you a bad person, and that it is possible to survive the emotional stress of caring for those who can no longer care for themselves.

To RSVP, call 626-355-5700; or email SSciurba@KensingtonSL.com; or visit us online at www.TheKensingtonSierraMadre.com and click on "Upcoming Events."
