LOCAL GROUP CITES APPROXIMATELY 39 REASONS WHY COUNCIL SHOULD REVERSE PLANNING COMMISSION DECISION ON STONEGATE DEVELOPMENT By Susan Henderson

Where Your

Duarte-

Madre City Council will take on what may very well be one of the most controversial decisions in the city's history. On the agenda is a Public Hearing on the call for a review of the Planning Commission's decision to approve the plans for the first of 29 homes to be built at Stonegate (formerly known as 1 Carter.). As reported in an earlier news story in the Mountain Views News (http://mtnviewsnews.com/v08/htm/n44/ 4 assertions that the approval violates index.htm), there is a considerable amount of the city's Conditional Use Permit regulations community outrage over the development.

The review, requested by Councilpersons John Capoccia and Denise Delmar will scrutinize the decision to allow contruction of a 3,125 square foot, two story, single family home at 610 Baldwin court. The procedure is in lieu of a formal appeal being filed by residents at a cost

Earlier this week, the grass roots organization, Preserve Sierra Madre, in preparation for the review ,sent the entire council, as well as the city manager an 11 page document for their consideration. It appears to be a rather comprehensive, well written argument that gives approximately 39 reasons why the Planning Commission's decision should be reversed.

On Tuesday, November 25, 2014, the Sierra The group lists the following violations that they have deemed reasons to reverse the decision:

9 assertions that the approval violates the 1 Carter/Stonegate Settlement Agreement;

9 assertions that the approval violates the Stonegate Design Guidelines;
7 assertions that the approval violates the city's Hillside Management Zone;

10 assertions that the approval violates the city's existing 1996 General Plan.

Preserve Sierra Madre states on its website thatit's objectives are sustainable slow-growth, limiting the quantity and size of new houses, keeping and maintaining the last remaining open spaces preserving the small-town atmosphere. It also notes that its existence is the culmination of "A number of Sierra Madre groups are concerned about the threat of over-development in our village and about the water shortage. We have united to form the group Preserve Sierra Madre.".

CLASSIC LA DETECTIVE YARN TAPPED AS THE NEXT ONE BOOK, ONE CITY SELECTION

Sierra Madre, CA. - November 17, 2014 - Raymond Chandler's classic, The Long Goodbye, has been chosen as Sierra Madre's One Book One City selection for 2015. Published in 1953 and featuring his famous detective, Philip Marlow, Chandler called the novel "my best book". Set in Los Angeles in 1949, The Long Goodbye is notable for using hard-boiled detective fiction as a vehicle for social criticism, as well as for including factual elements from Chandler's life. Within an anthology of American crime stories The Long Goodbye was praised as "a serious and significant mainstream novel that just happened to possess elements of mystery". In 1955 it won the Edgar Award for best novel.

The One Book One City Committee is planning a series of activities related to Chandler's "Noir" novel. Following a kickoff event on January 31, 2015, the Sierra Madre Library will host panel discussions, contests, book clubs, a mystery night, and a couple of surprises during the month of February. Starting this December, be on the lookout for posters and brochures providing specific details about the events and contest rules. Copies of the Long Goodbye are available at the Sierra Madre Public Library.

A committee of volunteer local residents meets throughout the year to review books and make the annual selection based on literary merit, popular appeal and connection to Sierra Madre or California history. One Book, Once City is a nation-wide community reading program designed to include encourage everyone in a city to read and discuss the same book.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

Walking Sierra Madre this time of year is such a pleasure. There are still pumpkins on neighbor's decks and deck railings, which will last for months, till the squirrels find a weak spot. Those folks who say we don't have Autumn color haven't seen our leaves and it finally feels like Fall. I expect we're all doing something about Thanksgiving. Brining our turkey (best thing ever for a moist and tender Festive Bird!), making a pie, being in charge of the sweet potatoes and, best of all, inviting family and friends to share the feast. I'm kind of wondering if any of you folks have ever had the following experience...

The Ghost of Thanksgivings Past

The Festive Bird is in the stove, And time now for a nap. I laid me down, closed my eyes, And on the window heard a tap.

It's far too soon for guests to come, I need a little peace! The stuffing's ready, cranberries chillin', Pies overflow with pumpkin fillin'.

The tap just keeps on at my window, But I'm not gonna look! There's nothing more for me to do, This is one tired and sleepy cook.

So I snuggled deep down in my afghan. Turned my head the other way. I don't care who's at that window, They can tap all day.

Off I went to slumberland and dreamed a lovely dream,

A kitchen, clean and washed and spotless, everything just right. But then I dreamt a dreadful dream, That made me shriek with fright!

The tapping at my window, More insistent grew. And what was out there tapping, I'll now describe to you. The Ghost of my Thanksgivings Past,

A turkey that was huge! Tapped an enormous beak at my window, And gobbled.... "J' accuse!"

"Forty Thanksgivings, and more," he said, "Since you walked down the aisle. Forty turkeys you've served up, With sweet potatoes and a smile."

"Forty turkeys come and gone, And still your gravy's awful! And the year the turkey hit the floor, Should be declared... unlawful!!"

"Most of them were nicely done, I'll give you that," he said. "But some were cooked so badly, You should have ordered Chinese instead!" What an awful dream, I thought, as I

The Ghostly Turkey wasn't finished, With his accusations many. And I, offering excuses, cowered in my bed.

Discovered I hadn't any!

But then he smiled and said to me, "Your crimes are all forgiven. For those who've gathered at your table, Have rejoiced and laughed for hours."

"We turkeys relish meals like these, They are as sweet as summer flowers! Enjoy today, with friends and family, gathered 'round your table, Give thanks for health and joy and peace... Then share this Thanksgiving fable.'

And with a last gobble...gobble, the Ghost of Thanksgivings Past, Flew up, up, and away...

And I heard him exclaim, ere he flew out of sight...

"Happy Thanksgiving to all... And for heaven's sake, learn to make better gravy!"

Happy Thanksgiving to you all! Hope it's the best one ever!

Sierra Madre Police Blotter

During the week of Sunday, November 9th, to Sunday, November 16th, the Sierra Madre Police Department responded to approximately 347 calls for service.

Sunday, November 9th

At 4:55 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 100 Block of North Sunnyside a suspicious man walking and talking to himself. Officers located the suspect who informed Officers he was on both probation and parole and had recently been released from jail. While the suspect was speaking to Officers, they noticed his slurred speech and mumbling. After giving Officers consent to search, it was discovered the suspect had marijuana and heroin, complete with a broken pipe. The suspect was arrested and transported to Pasadena jail.

Monday, November 10th

At 8:30 am, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 400 Block of East Montecito Avenue regarding suspicious circumstances. Upon arrival, Officers were informed by the resident that upon returning from a short out of town trip, they noticed the panels on the rear wood fence had been tampered with and left ajar. During the investigation, Officers came across a screwdriver that did not belong to the residence. While canvasing the area, the residents informed Officers that nothing seemed to be missing from their property. More importantly Officers determined there were no signs of pry marks or forced entry. The residents informed Officers that several neighbors had experienced the same issue of panels being tampered with on one or both sides of the fence. During a close examination of the screwdriver, a name was revealed on the tool, which matched that of a nearby neighbor. The neighbor informed Officers he had lost the tool some time ago and that he was not responsible for tampering with the panels. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

Monday, November 10th

At 6:24 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the station lobby regarding a personal identification theft. The victim informed Officers that an unknown person used their personal information to open up a credit card in the victim's name. The victim informed Officers that he never gave anyone any permission to open a credit card in his name. Thankfully the credit card was mailed to the victim's address and was never used for any charges.

Friday, November 14th

At 3:54 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 1900 Block of Vista Avenue regarding a hit and run. When Officers arrived on scene, the resident informed them that shortly before 3:50 pm, she walked outside and noticed her trees and shrubbery had been damaged by what appeared to be a vehicle. The resident explained she did not see or hear when the collision happened, but remembered going outside an hour prior, and noticing no damage to her trees and shrubbery. A partial tire print was discovered at the scene. Officers determined an unknown vehicle performed an unsafe turning movement, causing the vehicle to collide and damage the trees and shrubs.

DUARTE AWARDED $325,171 CAL-GRIP GRANT FOR GANG PREVENTION INTERVENTION REINTEGRATION PROGRAMS

DUARTE, CA, November 18, 2014 -- The City of Duarte has been awarded a $325,171 competitive state grant under the California Gang Reduction, Intervention and Prevention (CalGRIP) Program to sustain its gang prevention, intervention, and expand reintegration programs for 2015. The grant will be up for annual renewal for the next two years (through 2017), pending state restitution funds sourced from the State Budget Act, for a total of $975, 513 for three years. Out of 45 applicants, Duarte's evidence-based anti-gang project was one of 19 awardees.

A portion of the grant will provide the Duarte Prevention, Intervention, Reintegration Project with the funds necessary to maintain the services of Los Angeles County Probation and the Sheriff's departments despite recent budget cuts which threatened programs.

Grant funds will also support the Duarte Public Safety and Teen Center youth outreach programs, including the Duarte Boxing Gym, and expansion of Duarte Dance and Arts programming serving the Duarte Teen Center, Pamela Park, and Mt. Olive School. Four main partner organizations are included in the grant: the Flintridge Center, the Boys and Girls Club of the Foothills, the Santa Anita Family YMCA and Southland Sings. These non-profit organizations support families with after-school care, positive summer programming, and evidence-based programming proven to assist in prevention, intervention, and reintegration efforts by providing juveniles and young adults with positive alternatives. The grant funds will enable the Boys and Girls Club and YMCA to expand their services and provide additional positive pro-social activities to families in need. Southland Sings will deliver art-therapy based programs to help in early prevention, primary and secondary intervention. The Flintridge Center will expand reintegration services in the surrounding communities of Duarte, Monrovia and unincorporated areas.

The focus of the Duarte Prevention, Intervention and Reintegration Project is to reduce gang membership, gang related crime and juvenile arrests by working closely with at-risk youth, parents and teachers. The goal is to ultimately achieve a 25% overall reduction in the aforementioned areas during the life of the grant.

In 2009-2010 Duarte was awarded a Cal-GRIP grant of $191,312, and in 2013-2014 the grant award increased to $334,332, which positively impacted the City's prevention efforts with a 49% reduction in juvenile arrests. L. A. County Probation also reported a significant reduction in gang recruitment with fewer of Duarte's minors being institutionalized in probation camps. In addition to her athletic success, she maintains a GPA above 3.7. two of 100 high school athletes will play in college.

The La Salle athletics program emphasizes commitment, discipline, and character. However, the academic program is our priority with athletics serving as a valuable companion. These two, coupled with the school's Lasallian values, help develop the complete Lancer student-athlete.

Many high school athletes dream of becoming an Olympian team All-State; San Gabriel Valley Newspapers' All-Area First Team. $\;\;\;$ or professional athlete and parents dream of their child earning a often unrealistic goal. PASADENA AWARDED GRANT FOR 2015 SUMMER, AFTERSCHOOL MEAL PROGRAMS

PASADENA, Calif.—The City's Human Services and Recreation Department received a $50,000 grant from the National League of Cities (NLC) to streamline afterschool and summer meal programs for Pasadenaarea children. The department will also receive customized technical assistance, access to best practices and national experts, and opportunities for peer learning.

Pasadena is among 13 cities receiving grants ranging from $30,000 to $50,000 because of a continued commitment to combatting childhood hunger through year-round meal programs. Fourteen percent of Pasadena residents live below the federal poverty level. During the 2013-14 school year, 68 percent of Pasadena Unified School District (PUSD) students were approved for free and reduced meal benefits, according to PUSD. The grant funding will help the City, PUSD and community partners achieve the long-term goals of creating a coordinated, citywide system for providing child nutrition programs; reducing the lunch-to-breakfast meal gap; and increasing awareness of the citywide child nutrition program. "This opportunity aligns with the strategies in our school-city-community work plan to continue offering services that improve student outcomes and foster innovation in Pasadena," said Mercy Santoro, Director, Human Services and Recreation Department.

'The grant will help improve participation in our nutrition programs while also allowing us to brand various community-based meal programs under one name."

Starting in December 2014, the Human Services and Recreation Department will begin meeting with community partners, identifying and creating a database of existing resources, assessing community needs and creating a work plan for the grant cycle.

The CHAMPS grant is part of the National League of Cities' Institute for Youth, Education & Families' initiative: Cities Combating Hunger

Through Afterschool and Summer Meal Programs. CHAMPS is made possible by a grant from the Wal-Mart Foundation and in partnership with the Food Research and Action Center. The grant funding has helped supply 7.5 million meals during the last 2.5 years.

After seeing 'Frozen' and the massive mark it made on the world, the question on everyone's mind was what will Disney do next? 'Big Hero 6', a Western and Eastern superhero fusion movie, may not have been what people were expecting but the idea was fresh enough that it had me hooked.

Hiro (Ryan Potter) loves to fight robots. His big brother Tadashi (Daniel Henney) is more focused on college and his upcoming robotics project. When a chance presents itself for Hiro to join the college and get on a better life path, he takes it. But the consequences of doing so are more disastrous than anyone could have ever imagined. The trailers for this film did a very clever job of hiding most of the plot. However, after seeing

BECKHAM GRILL IN PASADENA ONE LAST TIME

There are rumors swirling around that one of my favorite restaurants in Pasadena is about to announce a Swan Song. I hear it on good authority that the land has been sold and that a hotel is going up. So one last visit to Beckham Grill, it started many years ago(1977) by Bob Beckham, originally named Beckham's Place. I am fully aware that the holidays are approaching and when you are going to spend your hard earned dough, you want to feel that you got your monies worth.

Beckham Grill has been around since 1977, originally named after owner Bob Beckham, it was known as Bechkam Place. The management team led by Ed " " is the best around. The restaurant by today's standards is "Old School," its not a dark restaurant but shows in a cozy and faintly lit. The Bar, or "The Crown Room," as it is familiarly known, is illuminated by the burst of a fireplace. There's an old Car decorating the outside, and a 1960s English style Telephone Booth starts you on a journey. Often I come to Beckham to sit in the bar by the fireplace, a soothing respite. Beckham Grill has an item which serves it... Smoked Norwegian Salmon with Capers ($9.50). Seriously, I could order a double and have that alone for dinner, it's that good. That may not be your cup of tea, so, maybe you are here for meat? Roasted Prime Ribs of Beef is the specialty, always has been and I suspect always will be. Prices are ($23.50 to $32.95) for the Crown Cut, on my visit I ordered the End Cut at ($26.75). All the aforementioned items come with Yorkshire pudding, creamed Corn and creamed spinach. The menu is skillfully represented with fish, meat, duck, steak and salad. My dinner companion Mike Bingley from Charter Cable had the Duck for ($19.95), he gave it two thumbs up. No room for dessert on this visit, but next time for sure.

FLINTRIDGE PREPARATORY

middle school, high school, co-ed

I almost listed this as My recipe, but then I remembered that I actually got this recipe from my dad's sister and my favorite Aunt Catherine. For whatever reason, we only had this on Thanksgiving and you had to be quick if you wanted a serving. One pass around the table and that was it. (The same can be said for my household today. Susan Henderson)

INGREDIENTS

12 to 13 ears fresh corn, husks removed

1/4 cup sugar

3 tablespoons all-purpose flour 2 teaspoons baking powder

1 1/2 teaspoons salt

Pepper to taste. (You can spice it up with a little Cayenne pepper instead).

2 cups evaporated milk (I use Half and Half instead but either is good)

1/2 cup butter, melted

DIRECTIONS

Preheat oven to 350°. Get a 13 x 9 baking dish and grease the sides with butter or butter flavored cooking spray - my Aunt did not tell me that!

Cut corn off the cobs into a large bowl (about 6 cups). You can substitute frozen corn if you like but canned corn really is only to be used if there is a blizzard and you can get to the grocery store. In a separate bowl or measuring cup, mix sugar, flour and baking powder together.

Next, whisk eggs until smooth then gradually add milk or half and half and butter in a large bowl. Pour the sugar mixture into the bowl with the egss and continue whisking. Make certain the mixture is smooth and then stir in the corn. Abandon the whisk, use a wooden spoon and stir the mixture so that the corn is distruted evenly. Pour mixture into prepared baking dish and bake at 350° or until you can stick a cake tester in it and it comes out clean. Let it stand about 5 minutes before serving.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

I recently resumed my on-going pursuit of learning new techniques for proper dog-handling, by reading books and articles and viewing tutorials online as well as related television programs that might enhance my skills. I go through phases of learning, followed by the purposeful application of what I've learned while spending time with my four-legged friends. I think this system works because I believe a little knowledge goes a long way when it comes to the humans' intentional influence on the dog.

We two-legged, upright walkers have a tendency to think we know more than our pets know, therefore we need to teach them how to think the way we do. I personally tend to maintain the mind set that I am the one learning from them, more often than the other way around. There are important lessons to be learned on both our parts, but I am very aware of my own need to look, listen and anticipate the interesting and enlightening messages the dog has to offer.

I realize that dogs benefit from the structure and consistent patterns we humans set forth for them, and I know that basic behavioral training is an important aspect of helping a puppy mature more happily. But I also think there is a sensitive, and extremely important balance we should endeavor to achieve in the relationships we have with our canine companions.

So, if the purpose of the dog is just to be a pet, versus one being trained for a position of service, I think it is important that we humans give them mutual respect and let them be themselves. There's a reason why we call them our best friends, and to miss out on what a dog is capable of teaching us would be a travesty of opportunity.

One challenge most trainers address in their programs is the basic concept of leash-training a dog. Of course, every pet owner wants to be able to take their dog out in public without the stress of excess pulling or over-excitement when another dog passes by, and fortunately there are some very simple, basic tips available to help in training a dog to walk obediently on-leash.

But, what about when it comes to allowing a dog to take their time and sniff around in a leisurely fashion, during a walk? Should that be allowed? Or, does it mean you are being a lazy owner by letting the dog take charge of the time you are spending together? There are various schools of thought regarding this issue, from far right to far left, and for some trainers the bottom-line question is; "Who's walking who?" I guess my question is; "How important is it for the human to control every moment of the dog's attention during a walk around the block?'

I vacillated from one side of the fence to the other regarding this specific dog-handling technique for quite some time, but I now know for sure where I stand. My personal take on allowing the dog to stop and have a sniff break now and then during a walk is based on what I've learned about the physical characteristics of the canine's olfactory system, along with what I understand about the dog's way of thinking. First and foremost, I accept that a dog does, indeed, think, and that his thoughts do matter.

I won't go into the specific 'rules of the road' I have heard told by the many trainers I've come across over the years, because it is such a wide variety of opinion to consider, and because I am not a professional trainer, myself. I am just a person who spends a lot of time around different dogs on a daily basis, and I've come to realize that each one is an individual, just as my human friends are. I don't assume any particular behavioral response from one human that I might expect to get from another, and the same goes for my canine friends. However, there are a few predictable traits I can definitely anticipate from every dog I know, not the least of which is the need for a sniff break during a walk.

MY TAKE ON THE SNIFF BREAK

The dogs' way of "reading" or "seeing" the world definitely applies to whether or not random sniff breaks should be allowed on leash, and you can be sure that any healthy dog is going to want you to let him enjoy those precious moments. Why? Because their noses work over time, and they are viewing the world through their nostrils much in the way we are viewing the world through our eyes. How would you feel if you were forced to wear a blind-fold every time you were out for a walk? I imagine it would be very frustrating, and that is how I imagine a dog feels when he is not allowed to use his nose to sniff or "view" the world when he is out and about.

Inasmuch as we humans want to believe dogs think and experience the world the way we do, that philosophy could not be further from the truth. In her book, Inside of a Dog (Simon & Schuster, 2009), Alexandra Horowitz shares her wealth of knowledge about why dogs do what they do, and what they are most likely thinking when they do it. In one chapter she makes the point that humans place an immense amount of value on inanimate objects, whereas dogs don't give them a second thought. They don't assign meaning to, say a chair or a couch unless we've been sitting there, leaving multiple molecules of our personal scent for them to investigate with their overactive olfactory's when we walk away. Then, and only then does that sitting spot become of paramount importance to the dog.

The same goes for a tree or flower you may come across during a walk with your dog. Regardless of what comes to your mind, I assure you that the dog won't be thinking, "What a beautiful tree or flower." He will only choose to pay attention to that object if there happened to have been a previous visitor of (typically) the furry four-legged type who passed by and sprinkled a urinary "calling card" on that spot for the next passing pet to take a whiff of. Then, and only then is when the tree or flower becomes an object of interest to the dog.

So, my dear dog-loving friends, are you getting the picture? If you will let yourself think the way the dog thinks while you are out for a walk together, you will likely want to allow him to take that occasional momentary sniff break, just so he can enjoy the great outdoors with his nose, the way you are enjoying it with your eyes. If you can forego being the alpha, at least for this purpose alone, I can almost guarantee your pet will be a much happier pup!

There's a lot more to know about the dog's way of enjoying life, but I hope I've touched on the basic premise of sniffing clearly enough to inspire you to pay attention to your dog and learn more about why he behaves the way he does, so he can live a fuller, happier life. After all, isn't that the whole reason we have pets? To give them a good life? Get out with your animals often and enjoy the wonders of nature together. Try not to focus on constantly being the boss of your dog, rather work toward achieving a respectful balanced friendship between the two of you. And, as always, love and let live!

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND??

Looking For A Best Friend to share the Thanksgiving holidays with???? So is Jake! He is a shepherd mix, about 6 years old, weighing 56 pounds. He has a beautiful short reddish tan coat with white highlights, and is a handsome boy. Jake is a little timid when meeting new people, but once he warms up, he shows his loving personality, and can be very affectionate. He enjoys getting pets, but he is not demanding for attention.

Jake loves to go for a walk and is very easy to handle on leash. He is quite contented to take a break and sit in the park under a tree with his companion. Jake has been chosen to go to several adoption events because he is so polite and well-behaved in public. He has a calm, easygoing personality and is a pleasure to be around.

Jake needs a forever home with a family who can give him the love and security he deserves. In return, he will be your loyal companion and will happily share your life. He is patiently waiting for the right family to come in and recognize what a special dog he is. Please come in to meet Jake who will happily sit for a treat!

THE JOY OF YOGA AN INVESTMENT IN YOU

Originally, yoga was practiced oneon-one between student teacher. A practice was handed down through tradition

Today, we have group yoga classes which put many different bodies in the room. Each person progressing at their own physical, mental, and spiritual pace. It takes time and discipline to stick with and grow in your practice. And in starting out, it's so important to have a teacher, even if it's just in group classes. For those already established in their yoga practice, there may come a time when working one-on-one with a teacher is the next indicated step. You could want to reach a particular goal, physical, spiritual or personal. A personalized practice may be in order. That's what private time with a teacher is for. Often through private sessions, a student can deepen their practice much faster than just through group classes. Your need could be a simple as wanting privacy, free of intimidation or as complex as a very challenging physical condition. In any case, establishing a one-on-one relationship with a teacher can prove to be an invaluable, inspirational experience.

OPEN SEASON FOR IDENTITY THIEVES

by Lisa Weintraub Schifferle Attorney, FTC

It's open season for everyone who wants to switch health coverage. As you select your health insurance plan, watch out for scams. Whether you are on Medicare, selecting a plan through the Affordable Care Act (ACA), or have private insurance, here are some tips to help you more safely navigate the open enrollment season.

A variety of scams take advantage of Medicare recipients. Here are a few:

An "official Medicare agent" knocks on your door selling Medicare insurance that can save you money. Stop. It's a scam. There are no Medicare sales representatives. It's probably someone who wants to use your information to commit fraud or identity theft.

· Someone calls and says you must join their prescription plan or else you'll lose your Medicare coverage. Don't believe it. The Medicare prescription drug plan (also known as Part D) is voluntary. · Someone calls claiming that you need to give your Medicare number in order for you to keep your Medicare coverage under ACA. It's a scam. Don't give your personal information over the phone. If you need help with Medicare, call 1-800-MEDICARE or go to medicare.gov.

Affordable Care Act

If you are shopping in the Health Insurance medical identity theft.

Marketplace, only shop at HealthCare.gov.

Please call (626) 470-7711 to make an appointment

www.vibrantlivingwc.com

People who try to sign you up elsewhere may be scammers. If you're overwhelmed, you can find free official helpersat HealthCare.gov. Official helpers will never ask for money or try to sell you a particular plan.

Another important tip: the government will not call to sell you health insurance. And no one from the government will ask you to verify your Social Security number or bank information over the phone.

Private insurance

If you're looking for health insurance, make sure that's what you're buying. Be on the lookout for medical discount plans. They're not the same as health insurance, even though they sometimes pretend to be. Many of these plans are scams that don't deliver on the services promised. Others are just a way for identity thieves to get your personal information. Your state insurance commissioner's office can tell you if a plan isn't insurance and whether the seller is licensed in your state.

Report health care scams

If you think you may be a victim of a health care scam, report it to the FTC. If the scam is Medicare-related, report it at medicare.gov.

If you gave our personal information, then call your banks, credit card providers, health insurance company, and credit reporting agencies immediately. The FTC's website has more information on health care scams and

PERSONAL TECH PRODUCTS DESIGNED SPECIFICALLY FOR SENIORS

Dear Savvy Senior,

Can you recommend any tablets, smartphones or computers that are specifically designed for seniors? I would like to buy a device for my technologychallenged grandmother so she can get online and keep up with her grandkids better, but it needs to be super simplified so she can use it.

Holiday Shopper

Dear Shopper,

There are actually several new tech products on the market today that are designed specifically for older boomers and seniors that are unfamiliar or uncomfortable with technology.

These devices come equipped with simplified software, big, vivid features, less clutter and better customer support packages, which makes them more appealing and much easier to use than mainstream devices. Here are several top seniorfriendly options to look into.

Smartphone

If you're thinking about a smartphone for your grandmother, check out the new GreatCall Touch3. Made by Samsung, this Android smartphone has a 4-inch touchscreen with an organized large icon menu list on the home screen that provides users simple access to often-used features like the phone, text messages, camera, pictures, email and Internet, along with your contacts and apps.

Monthly service plans that include unlimited 5Star and Urgent Care service start at $25. And their data plans start at $2.50 per month for 20MB.

Tablet Computer

If you're considering a tablet, a top senior-friendly option is AARP's new RealPad, which costs $189 at aarprealpad.org, walmart.com/realpad or Walmart stores.

Produced in partnership with Intel, the RealPad

If you think your grandmother would like a desktop computer, the Telikin (telikin.com, 800-717-7640), which has been around for three years us with the hope of rain. Rough as the drought is, I'm grateful to be here rather than in places like Buffalo, NY, where packed snow greets residents as they pry open their front door in the morning. (They call it Buffalo because that's one of the few species that can survive those temperatures!)

There's probably a host of fall and winter activities to distract us from dark nights and cold weather, but I've vet to embrace them. It's times like these that I start scrolling endlessly through articles and blogs online. And every so often there'll be a boredom-busting gem in the mail, like "The Vermont Country Store" catalogue.

The Vermont Country Store is essentially a seller of bygone items ranging from retro candies to neck, arm, and thightoning wraps. Current specials include the "Milk House" heater, one of those boxy, top-heavy floor lamps in which glowing orange wires create warmth, and occasionally light a shag rug on fire.

A great variety of clothing is also available. There's a colorful collection of muumuus, slimming microfiber undergarments for both sexes, and blankets that can be pinned around your neck. The ice scraping quilted mitt was especially interesting. Imagine an oven mitt with a small rake at the end. Good for fall and winter, Halloween, and anytime you have a hard-to-reach itch!

I could imagine myself enjoying most of the edible goods. Things like chocolate and butter cookies never go out of style. However, a couple items seemed to be unlikely candidates. Barleyflavored hard candy might not go over big when competing against Snickers.

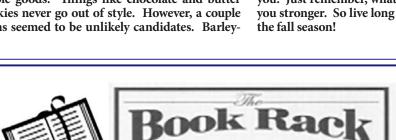

Some of the kitchen gadgets seemed possibly helpful. A wearable kitchen timer lets you know, no matter where you are, that it's time to take out the roast. But many accessories seem too task specific, such as the crank apple corer and the poached egg holder.

The best part of the catalogue is always the health and wellness

It'd probably also work as a marinade for stewing chickens and other tough meats. Don't worry about sagging skin. As long as you can wrap an elastic bandage around it, there's hope of rejuvenation! And I'm sure you've seen your coworkers and relatives wearing those metallic bracelets intended to improve circulation. Well, now there's the acupuncture "Third Wedding Ring!" While it's not particularly romantic, the ad claims that wearing it at night will help you stop snoring. I don't know what the acupuncture aspect is, nor do I wish to.

And finally, there's the elixir of youth -- "Vim & Vigor!" The name itself sounds potent enough! An ounce a day keeps the doctor away. At least that's what the bottle claims. It sounds like Geritol, which I've never tried, but people tell me it's at least 12% alcohol. So, if your liver can survive Vim & Vigor, there's a good chance you'll outlive whatever viruses the season may throw at you. Just remember, what doesn't kill you makes you stronger. FOR YOUR FUNNY BONE - A 45 year old woman had a heart attack and was taken to the hospital. While on the operating table she had a near death experience. Seeing God, she asked, "Is my time up?" God said, "No, you have another 43 years 2 months and 8 days to live." Upon recovery, the woman decided to stay in the hospital and have a face-lift, liposuction, breast implants and a tummy tuck. She even had someone come in and change her hair color and brighten her teeth! Since she had so much time to live, she figured she might as well make the most of it. After her last operation, she was released from the hospital. While crossing the street on her way home, she was killed by an ambulance. Arriving in front of God, she demanded, "I thought you said I had another 43 years? Why didn't you pull me out of the path of the ambulance?" God replied, "I didn't recognize

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: A DEEPER LOOK INTO THE ALBUMS YOU MAY HAVE MISSED THIS YEAR

By Sean Kayden

The War On Drugs – "Lost In A Dream" - Deep and profound, the Philadelphia

band's third album, "Lost in the Dream" will guide your mind and soul into a wilderness you've been desperately seeking. It breathes new life into the spectrum of what we know as indie rock. The record speaks to generations young and old (although the young these days don't have a clue about good music). It's wild, yet there is a sense of calmness is present. There's pain, darkness, and broken hearts scattered throughout the course of the album. You're lost then found then lost again inside the magnificent "Lost In The Dream." The War On Drugs is a rock band that bleeds with heart, soul, and rockin' guitars that bring some of you back to a much happier time and place. If you want to feel live again, here's the one record of 2014 sorely missing from your music collection.

She Sir - "Go Guitars"- The Austin, Texas quartet She Sir started playing together nearly a decade ago. After a series of hiatuses and a couple of EP's along the way, the band has lastly released their full-length debut record, "Go Guitars" this past February. What a truly unique and disparate band She Sir is. I've always had a penchant for dreamy pop music. It's absolutely calming and sometimes transcendent. Bright melodies, tight arrangements, subtle rhythms make up most of "Go Guitars." She Sir's debut dream pop album hits all the right melancholic chords. Go Guitars" is a thirty-two minute dream from beginning to end. Each track effortlessly transitions into the next. The richly textured melodic sound alongside Russell's Karloff soft and compelling vocals is indeed a marvelous conjunction. Tuneful, meditative, and graceful are just few of the things to describe the record. If you want to get lost for a few hours, take "Go Guitars" for a few spins. You never know what you'll discover on each go around and that's the true beauty of this album for each individual.

The Gaslight Anthem - "Get Hurt" - "Get Hurt" was the deeply personal new record from The Gaslight Anthem this past year. Lead singer Brian Fallon's new direction comes after the divorce from his wife of ten years. Instead of wearing Springsteen on their sleeves like with their previous efforts, the band has splashes of U2, Tom Petty, and Pearl Jam sounds scattered throughout the record. "Stay Vicious" kicks off the compilation. It starts off like a hard rock track, reminiscent of grunge rock. The chorus softens up, which makes the song much better (and more in tune with the rest of the record). "1000 Years" has Kings Of Leon type of guitar riffs. It's a solid tune that reflects upon Fallon's own darkness. "Get Hurt" begins very soft and it feels like Fallon is talking right to his ex. He is ceaseless with sharing his own personal pain, but that's the point of the record. Coping with something unimaginable until it actually happens. Somehow, The Gaslight Anthem can take ominous lyrics and give them light with their terrific arrangements and song structure. "Underneath The Ground" is another ambitious tune. With this track, the band is shedding old feathers and spreading their newfound wings. Break Your Heart" is a lovely ballad that has a Tom Petty style to it. It's a painful and fervent song that seems like a letter from Fallon to his ex-wife. After a first listen, it may just break your own heart. In the end, "Get Hurt" is a captivating, compelling record. Vehemently intimate, consistently ardent, and genuinely heartfelt, this ranks among the finest American rock albums of the year.

The All-Girl Filling Station's Last Reunion: A Novel by Fannie Flagg

The one and only Fannie Flagg, beloved author of Fried Green Tomatoes at the Whistle Stop Cafe, Can't Wait to Get to Heaven, and I Still Dream About You, is at her hilarious and superb best in this new comic mystery novel about two women who are forced to reimagine who they are.Mrs. Sookie Poole of Point Clear, Alabama, has just married off the last of her daughters and is looking forward to relaxing and perhaps traveling with her husband, Earle. The only thing left to contend with is her mother, the formidable Lenore Simmons Krackenberry. Lenore may be a lot of fun for other people, but is, for the most part, an overbearing presence for her daughter. Then one day, quite by accident, Sookie discovers a secret about her mother's past that knocks her for a loop and suddenly calls into question everything she ever thought she knew about herself, her family, and her future. Sookie begins a search for answers that takes her to California, the Midwest, and back in time, to the 1940s, when an irrepressible woman named Fritzi takes on the job of running her family's filling station. Soon truck drivers are changing their routes to fill up at the All-Girl Filling Station. Then, Fritzi sees an opportunity for an even more groundbreaking adventure. As Sookie learns about the adventures of the girls at the All-Girl Filling Station, she finds herself with new inspiration for her own life. Fabulous, fun-filled, spanning decades and generations, and centered on a little-known aspect of America's twentieth-century story, The All-Girl Filling Station's Last Reunion is

Alex: The Commandant Camille Verhoeven Trilogy by Pierre Lemaitre

Upon winning the prestigious 2013 Crime Writers Association International Dagger Award, the judges praised Alex by saying, "An original and absorbing ability to leash incredulity in the name of the fictional contract between author and reader... A police procedural, a thriller against time, a race between hunted and hunter, and a whydunnit, written from multiple points of view that explore several apparently parallel stories which finally meet."Alex Prevost--kidnapped, savagely beaten, suspended from the ceiling of an abandoned warehouse in a tiny wooden cage--is running out of time. Her abductor appears to want only to watch her die. Will hunger, thirst, or the rats get her first?Apart from a shaky eyewitness report of the abduction, Police Commandant Camille Verhoeven has nothing to go on: no suspect, no leads, and no family or friends anxious to find a missing loved one. The diminutive and brilliant detective knows from bitter experience the urgency of finding the missing woman as quickly as possible--but first he must understand more about her. As he uncovers the details of the young woman's singular history, Camille is forced to acknowledge that the person he seeks is no ordinary victim. She is beautiful, yes, but also extremely tough and resourceful. Before long, saving Alex's life will be the least of Commandant Verhoeven's considerable challenges.

WARNING: FRAUDSTERS IMPERSONATING GOVERNMENT AGENTS

From the City of Duarte

Beware! Fraudsters impersonating IRS and Department of Treasury agents are calling people across the country demanding they pay taxes that they don't even owe.

The IRS warned of this "pervasive" scam saying it has been identified in nearly every state. We have had several confirmed incidents reported in Duarte this week.

They target innocent taxpayers -often immigrants or people retired or close to retirement age -- victims are answering their phones only to be informed they owe money to the IRS and need to pay it immediately by either loading money on a prepaid card or sending it via a wire transfer. If they argue or refuse to pay, scammers will threaten to arrest or deport them, or even suspend their business or driver's license. "In many cases, the caller becomes hostile and insulting," the IRS said in a statement.

Duarte resident reported they called many times and gave a 24 hour deadline to get the prepaid card and meet them at a local Duarte business. These calls may be convincing, because the scammers use caller ID spoofing to make sure the IRS's toll-free phone number or 911 shows up on the caller ID, they make up bogus badge numbers and may know the last four digits of a victim's Social Security number.

Sometimes victims will even hear background noise that sounds like a call center. And if the victim hangs up, they may get another call seconds later from the same scammer -- or another one -- saying they are with the police or an agent at the DMV and someone will issue a warrant for their arrest if they do not pay.

To avoid getting duped, don't believe anyone claiming to be a government agent who calls to ask for your credit card number or requests a prepaid debit card or wire transfer. The IRS said it will never ask for payments to be made by prepaid debit card or wire transfer, and it typically makes its first contact with taxpayers by mail. Nasty language and threats should also be a red flag.

You should also be immediately suspicious of any caller demanding money, especially if you aren't aware that you owe anything.

"If someone unexpectedly calls claiming to be from the IRS and threatens police arrest, deportation or license revocation if you don't pay immediately, that is a sign that it really isn't the IRS calling," IRS Acting Commissioner Danny Werfel said in a statement.

To report any calls like this, contact the Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration at 800-366-4484.

If you have been a victim please report it by calling your local police department.

ROSETTA CONTINUES SCIENCE PHASE; NEW HORIZONS SET TO WAKE UP FOR PLUTO ENCOUNTER

With the Philae lander's mission complete, Rosetta will now continue its own extraordinary exploration, orbiting Comet 67P/Churymov-Gerasimenko during the coming year as the enigmatic body arcs ever closer to our Sun.

Last week, ESA's Rosetta spacecraft delivered its Philae lander to the surface of the comet for a dramatic touchdown. The lander's planned mission ended after about 64 hours when its batteries ran out, but not before it delivered a full set of results that are now being analyzed by scientists across

Rosetta's own mission is far from over and the spacecraft remains in excellent condition, with all of its systems and instruments performing as

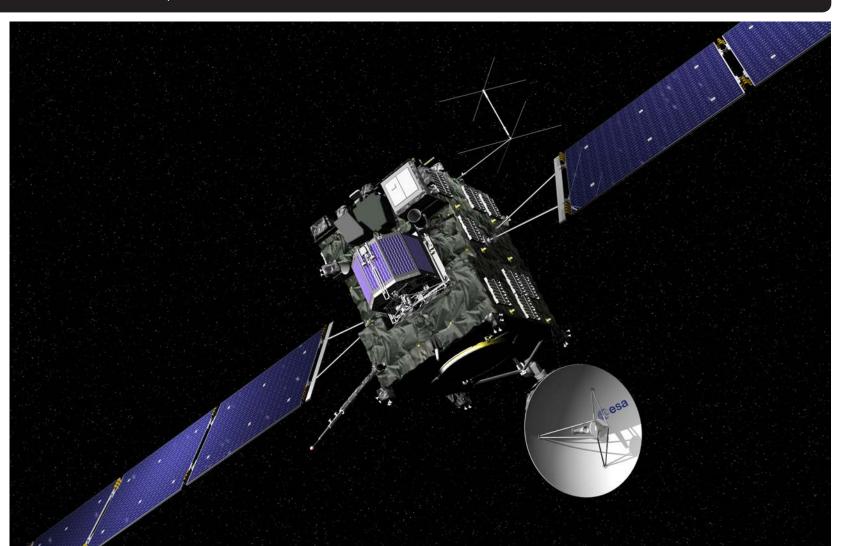

With lander delivery complete, Rosetta will resume routine science observations and we will transition to the 'comet escort phase'," says Flight Director Andrea Accomazzo. "This sciencegathering phase will take us into next year as we go with the comet towards the Sun, passing perihelion, or closest approach, on 13 August, at 186 million kilometres from our star."

WAKEUP CALL FOR NEW HORIZONS. NASA's New Horizons spacecraft will come out of hibernation for the last time on Dec. 6. Between now and then, while the Pluto-bound probe enjoys three more weeks of electronic slumber, work on Earth is well under way to prepare the spacecraft for a six-month encounter with the dwarf planet that begins in January.

New Horizons is healthy and cruising quietly through deep space—nearly three billion miles from home—but its rest is nearly over," says Alice Bowman, New Horizons mission operations manager at the Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory (APL) in Laurel, Md. "It's time for New Horizons to wake up, get to work, and start making history."

Since launching in January 2006, New Horizons has spent 1,873 days in hibernation—about twothirds of its flight time—spread over 18 separate hibernation periods from mid-2007 to late 2014 that ranged from 36 days to 202 days long.

In hibernation mode much of the spacecraft is unpowered; the onboard flight computer monitors system health and broadcasts a weekly beaconstatus tone back to Earth. On average, operators woke New Horizons just over twice each year to check out critical systems, calibrate instruments, gather science data, rehearse Pluto-encounter activities and perform course corrections when necessary.

New Horizons pioneered routine cruise-flight hibernation for NASA. Not only has hibernation reduced wear and tear on the spacecraft's electronics, it lowered operations costs and freed up NASA Deep Space Network tracking and communication resources for other missions.

Tops on the mission's science list are characterizing the global geology and topography of Pluto and its large moon Charon, mapping their surface compositions and temperatures, examining Pluto's atmospheric composition and structure, studying Pluto's smaller moons and searching for new moons and rings.

New Horizons' seven-instrument science payload includes advanced imaging infrared and ultraviolet spectrometers, a compact multicolor camera, a high-resolution telescopic camera, two powerful particle spectrometers, a space-dust detector (designed and built by students at the University of Colorado) and two radio-science experiments. The entire spacecraft, drawing electricity from a single radioisotope thermoelectric generator, operates on less power than a pair of 100-watt light bulbs.

Distant observations of the Pluto system begin Jan. 15 and will continue until late July 2015; closest approach to Pluto is July 14.

THOUGHTS ON THANKSGIVING By Christopher Nyerges

has always been my favorite holiday of the year. Even moreso than Christmas. It is our uniquely American holiday where the family gathers, where we remember our roots, we share a meal, and we give thanks.

But look how quickly such simple and profound holidays get perverted. Today, we hardly know what "giving thanks" even means, and so the act of giving thanks is lost on most of us. Newscasters talk about "turkey day," as if all there was to the day was eating turkey. Interestingly, most folks would not know whether or not they were eating turkey, or eating crow, and most of the time we're doing the latter, figuratively speaking. Then, when we have barely taken the time to consider the notion of "giving thanks," we get up early on the following "black Friday" to rush around with the mobs "looking for a good deal" to help us celebrate the consumer-driven commercial craze into which we've morphed "Christmas."

Wow! How did we get here? What can we do about it? Let's take a moment to look at the roots of Thanksgiving.

In the history of North America, we are told that the first historic Thanksgiving Day was in October of 1621. After a successful harvest that year at the Plymouth colony, there was about a week of celebrations. The local Indians and the colonists joined together, with the Indians generally showing the colonists (mostly city folks) how to hunt for the meal which consisted of fowl, deer, duck, goose, and fish. Corn bread. wild greens, plums, leeks, and many other vegetables (wild and domestic) were shared in this celebration. Interestingly, there is no evidence that wild turkey or wild cranberries (totally unpalatable without cooking and adding sweeteners) were part of the menu.

In fact, some historians question whether or not there were any religious overtones at all on this "first Thanksgiving," citing such evidence as the archery and firearms games, and the running and jumping competitions, which they say would never be done at religious ceremonies by the Puritans.

Some say that the "first Thanksgiving" was just another Harvest Festival.

What then is it, if anything, that sets the American (and the Canadian) Thanksgiving celebration apart from any of the other myriad of Harvest Festivals?

The pilgrims experienced a severe drought in the summer of 1623. That season, they were totally dependent on wild game and wild plants, and owed their survival largely to the Englishspeaking Indian Squanto. In their lack, they refocussed upon their real purpose for coming to this new land. They sought to establish a time to give thanks for their spiritual bounty, in spite of the fact that they had no material bounty that a day of thanks is intended to remind us that there is more to life than the physical bodies and material food. The day of thanks is set apart so that we do not lose sight of our spiritual heritage, which is the real bounty.

A harvest festival implies revelry and fun because of the material bounty; by contrast,

Both Thanksgiving and the Fourth of July are the times that Americans have traditionally set aside to reflect upon the concepts of "freedom" and "giving thanks." The purpose of such special times of reflection is to see how well we have done during the past year, and determine what corrections we should make if we find that we are veering away from our chosen path. It should not be a time of merely "having fun." As long as we confuse "giving thanks" with "eating a lot of really good food," the practical effect is that Thanksgiving today is little more than a Harvest Festival. "Giving Thanks" is a particular attitude which accompanies specific actions. Perhaps sharing our bounty with the needy would be a better Thanksgiving activity than eating large volumes of food. More to the point, perhaps we should use Thanksgiving to give thanks where it is due -- to the American Indians who have become the "forgotten minorities." Rather than "eat a lot," perhaps we could send blankets, food, or money to any of the American Indian families or nations who today live in Third World conditions. To me, the essence of Thanksgiving was the coming together of two cultures, trying to work together under trying circumstances. Yes, they shared a meal. Food sustains us. But it was not about food, per se. They practiced with their bows and guns, a sign of mutual preparedness. And in their own ways, they "prayed to God," in the ways that were appropriate to each culture. By the way, much has been said about the term "Indian," supposedly because Columbus thought he was in India when in fact he never got beyond the Carribean islands. But not everyone agrees with that linguistic conclusion. For one, India was not called "Indian" in the late 1400s. Some have suggested that it was the phrase "en Dios" (with God) that Columbus used to describe how the native, who lived simply and were perceived to be "close to God," was the actual root of the term "Indians." It is still debated.

There is much to be thankful for on Thanksgiving, whether we give thanks to friends and family, thanks to God, and thanks for our relative bounty.

But we really should not forget our national roots. Don't just give lip-service thanks to the Native Americans whose land was taken. Rather, find those organizations that are actually providing real assistance to Native Americans in poverty, such as many of those living in the third world conditions so prevalent on today's reservations. (IF you have trouble locating such organizations, contact me and I will make some suggestions).

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

THE FINAL LOG-OFF: WHAT HAPPENS TO OUR DATA WHEN WE DIE?

Take a moment and consider how much of your life you live online. If you are like me, you bank, pay bills, make purchases, connect with friends and conduct business online (in fact, I even met my wife online)! Now think about all the digital assets you have accumulated account information, passwords, emails, photos, videos, etc. But what happens to all of it when we die?

Since you will not be around anymore, you may not care. But chances are good your loved ones will. There have been many stories of families trying to get access to a deceased family member's photos and emails on social media sites - in fact, there have been so many requests that most of these sites now have policies in place for family to gain access or deactivate online accounts:

Google. Last year, Google unveiled its Inactive Account Manager, which allows users to choose to name a beneficiary for their online account activity on all Google sites (which includes YouTube) or to delete it after a set amount of time passes during which the Facebook. Facebook allows family members to request that a decedent's account be deleted or provides them with an option to "memorialize" the decedent's page so it stays up, but is essentially frozen in time. Facebook requires you to provide a death certificate or a published obituary to accomplish this.

LinkedIn. LinkedIn provides an online form to remove a deceased member's profile page from the site. You will need to furnish the member's name, email address, the URL to their LinkedIn profile and some other information as well as a link to their online Twitter. You must email Twitter a request to delete the account of a family member who has passed and mail them a copy of the death certificate, the obituary as well as a copy of your ID and proof that the decedent owned the account if his or her Twitter handle is different from their given name.

Yahoo. You can have an account deleted by providing Yahoo with paper copies of the death certificate and the document appointing you are the executor of the estate or personal representative of the deceased along with a letter furnishing the Yahoo ID of the decedent and your request that the account be deleted. Yahoo will not transfer or preserve any data in the account.

But why make your loved ones jump through hoops to deal with your digital assets? You can take care of it yourself with these three simple steps:

List all your digital assets. You may already have a list of all your online accounts and passwords (who can remember them all?) so you're halfway there. Add to that a list of documents on your computer as well as photos and other data that may be stored on backup or flash drives.

Decide to keep or delete. Not everyone wants their family to have access to all their digital files, so review your list and decide which files are worth preserving and which ones can be deleted. Then tell your family.

Designate a digital executor. If you have already named an executor in your estate plan, you may want the same person to handle the disposition of your digital assets. If not, then designate someone in your will to handle this task. Do NOT include your accounts and passwords in your will! A will is a public document and this private information can easily be stolen.

Many of my clients come to me, because they are miserable at their jobs. They are sick of the hamster wheel, working hard and feeling unfulfilled. They want answers... what kind of job would they truly love? What were they created to do?

They remember they used to be creative as kids, even as teenagers, but once college hit, they abandoned that part of themselves. They left their natural passions for something more "grown up." For a "real job." For something that made lots of money. The problem is if your work does not include passion, no matter how much you make, you will be left unsatisfied.

Who you were as a child offers clues to who you are as an adult. You're probably not going to make a living playing with legos, but construction and design may be your thing. Dolls could point to a deep desire to nurture. If you're miserable, go back and look. What interests did you leave behind and how might they be employed today to create meaningful work?

When you reconnect to those innate passions, you will rediscover your path and find that fulfilling work. It's what you're here to do.

Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed

DON'T RISK IT

When listing your home, you may need to move before a sale takes place. If you vacate the home, it's very important that you notify your insurance company, because many homeowner policies have a 'vacancy clause" that goes into effect once the home is unoccupied, usually for more than 30 to 60 days.

Insurers see different risks in vacant homes, like vandalism, systems failures, or other liabilities. In most cases, you'll simply purchase an endorsement to your existing policy, but different insurers have different options, and if an endorsement is not available, you can get a separate "vacant-home" policy. It may be an additional cost, but it's called "insurance" for a reason, and could save you a lot of money down the road. If you don't notify your insurance agent about vacating your home, they could reject any claims you file for property damage or liability, or accuse you of insurance fraud.

It may be tempting to just hope that your home will sell within 30 to 60 days after you have to move out, but it's critical to speak with your insurance agent before you move to discuss your options. They may even pro-rate and refund part of your premium if you sell before the end of the policy's term. It's a small price to pay to protect your home and your peace of mind.

"DON'T CAGE ME IN"

Have you ever tried to cage a wild animal? I know Guinea Pigs don't conjure up visions of wild, fierce, untamed beasts, but work with me here...

Over the weekend a friend asked me to pet-sit her guinea pig. I was to pick him up from her garage and transport him in a small cage back to my house. When I arrived, it was clear that this fast and feisty rascal was master of his domain. This guinea pig (we'll call him Sam to protect his anonymity) roamed freely and had no interest in being caught, let alone put in a small carrier. He was enjoying himself too much. On all fours I tried to chase, coax, trick and bribe Sam in order to catch him. Finally with only a carrot for arsenal, I grabbed him. He fought me tooth and nail (and I mean that quite literally) refusing to be caged. Finally, after a dramatic struggle between man and beast, I was able to get him safely inside the cage and quickly close

Sam got quiet on the thirty-minute ride home. Was he sulking? Giving me the cold shoulder? Was he being passive aggressive in a rodent-like way? Finally home,

I placed the cage in my empty garage, opened the little cage door and with arms wide open, declared, "You're free!" He lay still in the back corner of his prison cell refusing to leave. I put my hand in to lift him gingerly out of this isolation chamber and on to the floor. But Sam would have nothing to do with it. With every attempt to get him out, he dodged my grasp. Giving up, I sat on the floor in front of the cage. I thought.... I get it, Sam. You're just like me. Well,

We all have that isolated creature hiding in the cage of our discarded selves. In fact it seems we spend the first half of our lives deciding what parts of ourselves to put into the cage and then the next half of our lives trying to coax them back out. Of course Carl Jung brilliantly described this as the "human shadow." We're born whole. But over the course of our childhood, we learn to hide pieces of ourselves. The parts our parents look at disapprovingly. By the time we get into High School and have had a multitude of relationships, even more pieces of ourselves are caged.

Somewhere in our fourth or fifth decade, after a great many life experiences, we're ready to start opening our cage and trying to retrieve what we've been hiding all these years. We discover that the pieces of ourselves we've kept hidden, unattended to in the cage haven't evolved like the rest of us has. In the dark, these shadow pieces have regressed; they've become primitive and sometimes hostile to the person who finally opens that cage. They're angry. Beaten down. And

I thought about what I have held prisoner in my own cage. I thought about how impatient I can be to recover those pieces of me and bring them back into the light where I now understand they belong and have their place. I realized I couldn't just drag them out of isolation and expect them to run free. It takes time. It takes love and it takes patience. With this newfound insight, instead of forcing Sam through the narrow door of the cage, I disassembled the cage around him. I breathed deeply with the knowledge that he needed space and he would come out when he was

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

THE EARLY TURKEY GETS THE GOBBLE

I awoke a little groggy and made my way to the kitchen only to be confronted by the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. There are times to confront her and then there are times to run the other way. Being in such a groggy state of affairs, I was not really

"Here is your coffee and breakfast," she said rather sternly, "go to your study, eat this and stay out of the kitchen."

As usual, I did what I was told, collected my breakfast and headed for my study. As I sat in my chair and started consuming my breakfast, I suddenly noticed I was surrounded with an overpowering aroma I knew was not my breakfast. Until I have had my first cup of coffee in the morning, I am really not sure that it is morning.

As the little grey cells begin to wake up after a half a cup of coffee, it dawned on me that the aroma was a familiar aroma but I just could not place it. Then it hit me. It was Thanksgiving and my wife was preparing the family Thanksgiving dinner. If this Thanksgiving preparation time was like all the times before, I needed to avoid the kitchen area as much as possible.

Just saying. When she is in her family Thanksgiving turkey-roasting mode, I need to stay out of her way. This is an important history lesson for me unless I want to be history.

Then she poked her head through the doorway and said, "I have to go for several hours, I do not want you to go to the kitchen."

What if I need another cup of coffee?" "OK, but that's it. Don't get anywhere near the turkey. Understand?'

I understood, at least I thought I understood. I have been married long enough to know not to take anything for granted when instructions are coming from your celebrated spouse. I was going to stand up and salute, but she disappeared before I could get into

Everything went well for the first half hour. Then I noticed my coffee cup was empty and I needed to refill it. I am at the stage of life where I cannot do anything without my coffee. I am not addicted to it, but I think it just might be addicted to me. I cannot afford a psychiatrist to straighten me out on that I want everybody to know, my intentions were good. I was going to go into the kitchen and get a refill on my coffee and then come back to my study and resume the project I was working on. Anyway, that was the plan.

Something happened as I poured my coffee. I smelled the most wonderful aroma in the world. I should have stopped myself when I had the strength, but I did not. I looked in the direction the aroma was coming and there it

One of the most scrumptious looking roast turkeys I have seen in my life. There it was on the counter waiting for the family to assemble and then dig in.

I can identify with that person who said that the only thing they cannot resist is temptation. I guess it all determines on your definition of temptation.

There it was in all of its glory. The smell was just overwhelming. I thought that it would not harm anything if I just went over and had a closer look at that magnificent delicacy. It just looked so good.

I then began thinking to myself, I always get in trouble when I think to myself, what harm would it be if I just tasted a wee bit of that turkey? After all, there was plenty of turkey for everyone.

I pulled off a little sliver of the turkey and examine it rather carefully and then popped it in my mouth. Oh, did my taste buds dance for joy. I was about ready to turn around, get my coffee and resume my project in my office when the taste buds clamored for just one more taste.

After all, what would it harm to have just one more little sliver?

I am not sure how many little slivers I had, I lost count, but I thought I had better stop and go back to my office before I went too far. About an hour later I heard someone coming into the house, I knew it must be my wife. I went back to my work and busied myself.

"Honey," a familiar voice yelled from the kitchen, "did you get into that turkey?"

It was then that I had one of those "uk-oh' moments. At first, I did not comprehend what she was talking about, and then it came to me that I had devoured several slivers of the roast turkey. From the tone of her voice I knew I was in deep "uk-oh" trouble, the kind of trouble you cannot talk your way out. The evidence was sorely against me.

After her formidable lecture, she left me to my solitude to, as she said, "think about what you just did." As I reflected upon the situation, I thought of a verse in the Bible. "But if ye will not do so, behold, ye have sinned against the Lord: and be sure your sin will find you out" (Numbers 32:23).

Good intentions have never taken away the sting of doing something wrong, especially when you are caught.

CONGRESSMAN SCHIFF CALLS FOR NEW WAR AUTHORIZATION

Rep. Adam Schiff (D-CA), a senior Member of the Intelligence Committee and author of legislation providing a limited and narrow authorization for use of military force against ISIL, sent a letter to Speaker of the House John Boehner calling on him to schedule a debate and vote on a new war authorization against ISIS during the lame duck session after the midterm election. During his press conference today, President Obama called for Congress to approve a new authorization for use of military force against ISIS. The letter is below:

Dear Speaker Boehner:

As you prepare for the session that will close out the 113th Congress, I urge you to schedule time for consideration of an authorization for the use of military force (AUMF) against ISIL.

As you know, American forces have been engaged in combat against ISIL since early August with operations currently underway against targets in both Iraq and Syria. President Obama has made repeated reports, as required by the War Powers Resolution, detailing these operations. Now, after three months of presidentiallydirected airstrikes and other activities undertaken to "disrupt, dismantle and defeat" ISIL, Congress must meet the obligations of Article 1, Section 8 of the Constitution by deciding whether to grant the president the power to conduct this new war in the

The use of the 2001 AUMF as legal justification for current the military action requires an extraordinarily broad and problematic reading of that measure. While ISIL may share al Qaeda's hatred for the United States and the West, the group did not exist in 2001 and had no role in the 9/11 attacks. Nor is ISIL affiliated with or aiding al Qaeda, having been expressly repudiated by the Zawahiri leadership, and, despite reports of talks between the two groups, little evidence of an alliance between Vehement opposition to Bashar al Assad's brutal government in Syria and the harshly sectarian policies of Nouri al Maliki in Iraq, not 9/11 or allegiance to Osama bin Laden, has fueled the rise of ISIL and allowed it to capture a huge swathe of territory in those two countries. From this redoubt, ISIL threatens tens of millions and the group's extreme violence and barbarity, including the recent mass murder of a Sunni tribe in Iraq's Anbar province, cannot be underestimated.

I believe that the threat to core American foreign policy interests and our national security from ISIL is sufficient to warrant military force as an element of a multifaceted campaign. But, I also believe that no President has the power to commit the nation's sons and daughters to war without authorization from Congress. This is not a decision that can or should wait until 2015; this action was begun during the sitting of the 113th Congress and it is well within our ability to authorize it properly before adjourning sine die.

In September I introduced a draft Joint Resolution (HJ Res 125) that provides for an 18 month authorization for continued airstrikes and limited special operations activities in Iraq and Syria and against ISIL. While I believe that my proposal merits consideration, whether it, or some other form of authorization, is ultimately taken up, the most important thing is for us to do our duty to American people and the Constitution. I look forward to working with you on this most important issue. Rep. Adam Schiff (D-Burbank) is a senior member of the House Intelligence Committee.

HOWARD Hays As I See It

"Doubt is our product, since it is the best means of competing with the 'body of fact' that exists in the minds of the general public. It is also the means of establishing a controversy.

(Attribution for the above comes later.)

In his column last week, Greg Welborn expressed doubt about President Obama's greenhouse emissions agreement with China. He had concerns over the "tsunami of new regulations" sure to come from the president's commitment to reduce our emissions 28% from 2005 levels by 2025. Those levels had already been reduced 10% as of 2012 – which means to reach the president's goal we simply have to continue at the pace we've been on the past several years. Greg also doubts China's commitment. Back in 2011, China surpassed the U.S. to take the number one spot as the world's top producer of wind-generated power. In 2012, China unilaterally announced plans to quadruple solar energy production by 2015. It'd already been a world leader in solar manufacturing; now it would turn more of its products over to domestic use, no doubt spurred by the pollution choking Beijing and Shanghai.

In citing dismal poverty statistics in metropolitan areas of L.A. and San Bernardino counties, Greg attributes them to the inevitable move of businesses to states with "lower burdens and costs". According to the U.S. Census, California's poverty rate ranks a nonetoo-impressive 34th worst out of the 50 states. Some of those states with presumably "lower burdens and costs", however, fare worse. There's Texas (39th), South Carolina (41st), Kentucky (44th), Arizona (45th) and Louisiana (48th), for example.

It's hard not to doubt the sincerity of those interests fighting regulations, environmental or otherwise, as they express concern over "poverty". They will simultaneously fight minimum wages and worker protections, while encouraging employees to avail themselves of food stamps and local charities in order to survive at poverty incomes. Their aim, though, is to raise doubts about businesses' being able to continue providing jobs at all under "excessive" regulations.

There were arguments fifty years ago which raised doubts about the ability of our nation's preeminent automobile industry to survive under additional regulations. The concern was that cars would become so expensive consumers would no longer be able to afford them, should seat belts, and later air bags, become mandatory.

The tobacco industry also warned of the demise of a legacy American industry in the face of threatened government regulation. In doing so, its public relations firms developed strategies that have since been adopted by the fossil fuel industry in its fight against regulations responding to global warming. Indeed, some of the same parties making the case for Big Tobacco by raising doubts about medical science decades ago later became involved in protecting the profits of Big Oil by questioning climate science.

This week's opening quote is taken from an internal memo of the Brown and Williamson tobacco company from 1969, reflecting a strategy that had been in the works since a decade earlier when the connection between cigarettes and cancer became undeniably established.

As described in a 2007 report from the Union of Concerned Scientists, the strategy originally developed by the tobacco companies, later replicated by the fossil fuel industry, included: raising doubts about "even the most indisputable scientific evidence" and shifting the debate to one over "sound science"; creating front organizations to put out information favorable to the industry; recruiting members of the scientific community, regardless of area of expertise, to give the propaganda an air of credibility; and establishing close ties to government officials and members of Congress.

The enemy is the "body of fact' that exists in the minds of the general public"; accepted realities such as that seat belts are a necessary safety feature, cigarettes cause cancer, global warming is a threat demanding action, and sending Canadian crude through our agricultural heartland to Louisiana for shipment overseas is a dumb idea.

Last week on Fox News, columnist Jonah Goldberg took a page from the tobacco industry's decades-old playbook by casting doubt on the veracity and motivation of climate scientists; accusing them of being "deeply invested in the whole industry of global warming", and "financially incentivized to go one way."

Goldberg appeared as a "fellow" of the American Enterprise Institute, a front group for fossil fuels like those formed to protect tobacco interests half a century ago. AEI took $3 million from ExxonMobil from 2001 through 2011 and another quarter million in 2012. The Guardian reported in 2007 that AEI offered $10,000 to scientists and economists who'd write articles that would "emphasize the shortcomings" of the UN's report on climate change – to raise doubts.

The front groups backing the Keystone XL pipeline have apparently given up trying to suggest it has anything to do with gas prices or energy independence. The "body of fact" recognizes that oil is not a national resource, but a privately-manipulated commodity in a global marketplace, with the Saudis now threatening to curtail production in response to our low prices and record-high production.

But now doubt in the wisdom of letting it die has been raised, because we'd be sacrificing much-needed jobs. First there were estimates of 42,000 jobs at stake. Then it was down to 4,000 with qualifiers that this includes both "direct and indirect" jobs, most temporary and lasting no more than a couple years. Finally, there's the admission that full-time permanent jobs will ultimately number about fifty.

It's been part of my lifelong liberal DNA to "question authority", to doubt. It's also clear that raising doubt has long been a strategy of those trying to discount basic science, such as the link between tobacco and cancer and between carbon emissions and global warming, and ignore basic history, such as the ideology and policies that brought us the Great Recession as differentiated from those that brought us out of it. There's no doubt about that.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF PATRICIA ANN MCNAUGHTON aka PATRICIA MCNAUGHTON

Case No. BP157426

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of PATRICIA ANN MCNAUGHTON aka PATRI-CIA MCNAUGHTON

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Marc McNaughton in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Marc McNaughton be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on Dec. 10, 2014 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 9 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Pat Ostrye's Non-Recipe Turkey(The Best)

My recipe would be that my husband always fixed the turkey. I really don't know how it began but, even when we had turkey a lot through the years, he always fixed it. So when he died 21 years ago, the men in the family thought I didn't know how to do it, which was fine with me. So, for this Thanksgiving, the family is going to Martin's in Arcadia. He is the youngest who was 27 when his dad died in October of '88. A few days before Thanksgiving that year he called to say he had the turkey but where should he fix it since he had a small apt in Arcadia at that time. Two of his sisters helped him do it and they brought it all to my sister-in-law's because I was living in Escondido yet, moving back to the area the first of that year. That Christmas, the oldest son took care of it, buying and fixing 2 turkeys. As long as the family doesn't run out of men, we have it made.

Dixie Countant's Easy Anti-marshmallow Yams For those of us who don't like marshmallow on our yams, here's the family recipe for Candied Yams.

Ingredients:

Yams or sweet potatoes Butter Light Brown Sugar Buy as many yams as you need depending on how many people are coming to dinner. I plan two medallions per person if I'm doing a full-blown dinner with all the Wash and slice yams (or sweet potatoes) into one-inch medallions. Steam medallions until barely done. (Not too soft) Skin the medallions by gently cutting the skin and lifting - it will almost fall off.

Arrange medallions in baking dish. (They can touch, but don't stack them) Put a small pat (aprox 1/4 tsp of butter on top of each médallion. Sprinkle light brown sugar over medallions. Cover and bake in 350 oven for 1/2 to 1 hour.

Thanksgiving Day Breakfast

The festive bird is stuffed and in the stove, the potatoes are boiling for mashed potatoes, you've said the gravy prayer (please, Gravy Deity, let it be smooth this year). And people are saying, "we're hungry!"

This is not a problem, put down that ladle and in just minutes, you can hand everybody an Eggnog-Brandy Muffin! If you're truly feeling like Wonder Woman, whack up some bacon and an onion into small chunks, sauté them together, throw in some eggs, scramble it altogether, and serve the Thanksgiving breakfast they'll remember with delight all year long.

Eggnog-Brandy Muffins

2 cups flour

2/3 cup granulated sugar 1 TB. Baking powder

½ tsp. Salt

3/4 cup prepared eggnog

½ cup brandy 5 TB butter, (unsalted if you've got melted 1 egg, beaten

½ tsp. Grated nutmeg plus a little more for sprinkling on top it...use a little less salt if you don't)

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease 12 muffin pan.

In a large bowl mix flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Add eggnog, brandy, butter, beaten egg and ½ tsp nutmeg. Stir only till mixed. DO NOT OVERBEAT or muffins will be rubbery and tough.

Spoon batter into greased muffin cups and sprinkle tops of muffins with nutmeg. Bake about 20 minutes or until tester inserted into center of muffin comes out clean. Remove from tin, butter and enjoy.

They freeze nicely and are probably about 200 calories per muffin.

Happy Thanksgiving! May your turkey be tender, succulent and juicy, and may somebody who really knows how.. offer to carve it.

Good Eats Roast Turkey

Recipe courtesy Alton Brown Prep Time: 15 min

Inactive Prep Time: 7 hr 0 min Cook Time: 2 hr 30 min Level: Easy Serves: 10 to 12 servings

INGREDIENTS

1 (14 to 16 pound) frozen young turkey

For the brine: 1 cup kosher salt

1/2 cup light brown sugar gallon vegetable stock tablespoon black peppercorns

1 1/2 teaspoons allspice berries 1/2 teaspoons chopped candied ginger

1 gallon heavily iced water

For the aromatics: 1 red apple, sliced

1/2 onion, sliced 1 cinnamon stick

1 cup water

4 sprigs rosemary

6 leaves sage Canola oil

DIRECTIONS

2 to 3 days before roasting:

Begin thawing the turkey in the refrigerator or in a cooler kept at 38 degrees

Combine the vegetable stock, salt, brown sugar, peppercorns, allspice berries, and candied ginger in a large stockpot over medium-high heat. Stir occasionally to dissolve solids and bring to a boil. Then remove the brine from the heat, cool to room temperature, and refrigerate.

Early on the day or the night before you'd like to eat:

Combine the brine, water and ice in the 5-gallon bucket. Place the thawed turkey (with innards removed) breast side down in brine. If necessary, weigh down the bird to ensure it is fully immersed, cover, and refrigerate or set in cool area for 8 to 16 hours, turning the bird once half way through brining. Preheat the oven to 500 degrees F. Remove the bird from brine and rinse inside and out with cold water. Discard the brine.

Place the bird on roasting rack inside a half sheet pan and pat dry with paper

Combine the apple, onion, cinnamon stick, and 1 cup of water in a microwave safe dish and microwave on high for 5 minutes. Add steeped aromatics to the turkey's cavity along with the rosemary and sage. Tuck the wings underneath the bird and coat the skin liberally with canola oil.

Roast the turkey on lowest level of the oven at 500 degrees F for 30 minutes. Insert a probe thermometer into thickest part of the breast and reduce the oven temperature to 350 degrees F. Set the thermometer alarm (if available) to 161 degrees F. A 14 to 16 pound bird should require a total of 2 to 2 1/2 hours of roasting. Let the turkey rest, loosely covered with foil or a large mixing bowl for 15 minutes before carving.

HAPPY THANKSGIVING

At The Kensington, we'll remember what your loved ones are beginning to forget

Introducing two unique levels of memory care

If your Mom was an amazing baker who loved yellow lilies or if your Dad was a decorated colonel who started every day with strong, black coffee, we'll be sure to know. We will acquaint ourselves with the meaningful details of your loved ones' lives. Then, when memory fades, we will help them revisit the pleasure of past times, even if only moments. We will care for them—and you—as progressive memory loss occurs.

The Kensington's memory care programs are highly personalized. Two distinctive "neighborhoods"—Connections and Haven—feature support that accommodates residents with different degrees of memory loss.

Connections residents are in the early to middle stages of dementia. They can independently engage in activities that give purpose to each day. Haven residents are in the middle to late stages of dementia. They need a higher level of clinical assistance and soothing care that increases comfort and reduces agitation.

Connections and Haven neighborhoods are cozy, intimate environments. Here, loving professionals honor the past but "meet residents where they are" now. By making the most of their strengths, they make today as joyful as possible.
