PUBLIC INFORMATIONAL SESSION ON OLD RECREATION CENTER PROJECT TO BE HELD NEXT SATURDAY

The property located at 186 W. Highland across from Sierra Madre School is back on the City's development agenda. On Saturday, February 21st, there will be an informational session from 10-11 am, where the community will have the opportunity to hear a presentation from Heritage Housing Partners and the city regarding proposed plans for the "adaptive reuse" of the site.

The building (right) was originally a church and for a brief period it was used as a recreation center; After years of being vacant, the city eventually acquired the property with Community Redevelopment Agency funds (CRA). When that purchase was made, it was done under the auspices that it would be converted to 15 units of 'work force housing. The term is used for affordable housing created as an incentive for people who work in the city such as firefighters, police officers, teachers, etc., to move to Sierra Madre. It is not 'affordable housing' in the common use of the term, but one that provides less expensive housing for local workers.

With the demise of the CRA, the future of the project has been in purgatory. Many neighbors surrounding the property are opposed to its development with legitimate concerns over the environmental impact of the units. (http://mtnviewsnews.com/ $\frac{\sqrt{0.5}/\text{htm/n15/index.html}}{\text{mod}}$ And, with the current drought and water restrictions, new questions about the appropriateness of the project now are certain to be raised.

Late last year, the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors approved an amendment to their "infill site program" that could ultimately bring $500,000 in county funds for the development of the old recreation center, providing that the city, acting as the successor agency to the RDA and Heritage Housing Partners enter into a development agreement.

According to their website, "Heritage Housing Partners (HHP) was founded in 1998 as a 501(c)(3) non-profit. Our mission is to promote long-term affordable homeownership through the preservation of existing historic homes and the construction of new, contextual single-family residences. We believe that providing low-, moderate-, and workforce-income first-time homebuyers with affordable ownership opportunities results in overall neighborhood revitalization. HHP aspires to develop homes that will instill the homeowner with pride not only in their own home, but also in their community."

The purpose of this informational meeting on Saturday according to sources, is to see if such an agreement is a possibility. There has been no approval by the council of the project as of this date. The meeting will be held in City Council chambers on Saturday, February 21, 2015 from 10-11 am.

SIERRA MADRE STREET REPAIR PROJECT UPDATE:

SOUTH MICHILLINDA REOPENED: Tere Pave, the contractor on the projects, completed the repair of So. Michillinda and W. Montecito on Friday. Both streets are now open to through traffice without limitation. Some additional work that does not require the complete street closure will be completed next week.

SENIOR MASTER PLAN TOWN HALL MEETING

The initial stages of the update will focus on two Town Hall meetings to gain feedback from our older adult population. Participation in these Town Hall meetings is an excellent way to provide your input and help shape the future needs of the older adult community.

The second Town Hall meeting is on Saturday, February 28, 2015 at 11:00am. The meeting is at the Hart Park House, located at 222 W. Sierra Madre Blvd., Sierra Madre, CA 91024.

TRUE SWEETHEARTS MAKE SIERRA MADRE THEIR HOME

Just in time for Valentine's Day, Helen and James Chinn moved into their new home at The Kensington in Sierra Madre. Their timing couldn't have been more perfect as their story is one of an enduring true love.

Helen, 93 and James, 90, met as students at San Jose State University in the 1940's. When WWII came along, James was drafted into the U.S. Army. He achieved the rank of Sgt. however, his desire to marry Helen got him into a little hot water with Uncle went on to serve his country proudly.

After the war was over and his undergraduate studies were complete, he brought his bride to Arcadia, California to raise his family. According to news reports and his son, they were one of the first Chinese American families to live in Arcadia in the early While Dr. Chinn was establishing a very successful private practice, Helen, who had set her sights on a medical career as well, was busy taking care of the couples four children in Arcadia. Their children inherited their parents passion for medicine. Their sons, Drs. Mahlon and Douglas Chinn are also urologists and practice medicine with their Dad in Arcadia. Daughter Deborah became an OB/GYN physician and daughter Donna has a Masters in Nursing.

The Chinn's influence has truly been a contagious asset for the family as they are now into their third generation of medical

TURF REMOVAL REBATE PROGRAM

There is still funding for the Turf Removal Rebate Program! Property owners may be eligible to receive a rebate of $1.00 per square foot of turf that is removed. The maximum rebate is $1,000 per property owner.

Applications are available at City Hall, and applications will be processed on a "first come, first served basis." There is a total of $48,000 in grant funds available. To be eligible, rebates are only available for turf removed from private property yard areas visible from the street. Rebates do not apply to parkways or back yards. The rebates are not retroactive, meaning that the program does not apply to properties where turf has already been removed. There are additional regulations, which are available in full at City Hall and on the City's website.

Applications are available on the City's website at www. cityofsierramadre.com, but applications must be submitted in person to City Hall. Emailed or faxed applications will not be accepted.

For additional information, please visit City Hall on Monday to Thursday from 7:30 am to 5:30 pm, or call (626) 355-7135.

CITY COUNCIL CONSIDERATION TO EXTEND AN INTERIM MORATORIUM ORDINANCE PURSUANT TO GOVERNMENT CODE SECTION 65858 ON THE DEMOLITION, IN PART OR IN WHOLE, OF SINGLE-FAMILY HOMES AND DUPLEXES CONSTRUCTED PRIOR TO A DESIGNATED DATE AND DECLARING THE URGENCY THEREOF

On January 27, 2015, the City Council adopted Ordinance No. 1360-U, an Urgency Ordinance of the City Council of the City of Sierra Madre, establishing an Interim Moratorium Ordinance pursuant to Government Code Section 65858, on the demolition, in part or in whole, of single-family homes and duplexes that were constructed prior to December 31, 1940. Government Code 65858 part or in whole, of single-family nomes and duplexes that were constructed prior to December 31, 1940. Government Code 65858 a provision of State Planning and Zoning law authorizes an urgency zoning ordinance to prevent development related actions which may be inconsistent with a plan under development, such as the General Plan Update that would require amendments to the R-1 Zoning Ordinance, and the historic resources survey that could identify potential resources and result in more detailed review of structures prior to demolition. Ordinance 1360-U expires on March 13, 2015, and the City Council will consider extending it for an additional 6 months (until September 23, 2015.)

All interested parties may attend this meeting and the City Council will hear them with respect thereto. If you have any questions, please contact the Planning and Community Preservation Department at 626-355-7138 and ask to speak to either Leticia Cardoso, Acting Planning Director, or Anne McIntosh, Project Planner.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"All you need is love. But a little chocolate now and then doesn't hurt." Charles M. Schulz

"Oh, if it be to choose and call thee mine, love, thou art every day my Valentine." Thomas Hood

It's Valentine's Day today, Saturday, February 14th and I know that all my readers are totally prepared. You've got your card, you've got a dinner reservation or you're cooking your Valentine's favorite dish, even if it's something totally off the wall like a beet soufflé. Think of that...beet soufflé! Ugh! Put that out of your mind. Now think of chocolate. Now think of chocolate and wine. Nice! Now, when was the last time you read Elizabeth Barrett Browning's famous love poem:

"How do I love thee? Let me count the ways. I love thee to the depth and breadth and height I love thee to the level of everyday's Most quiet need, by sun and candle-light. I love thee freely, as men strive for Right; I love thee purely, as they turn from Praise. I love thee with a love I seemed to lose With my lost saints, --- I love thee with the Smiles, tears, of all my life! --- and, if God choose, I shall but love thee better after death."

I'm not sure I could actually say that to my Valentine, my ever-patient, walking buddy, John, but I could write it, which is what I'm pretty sure Elizabeth Barrett Browning did, too. Not to say I'm anywhere near Elizabeth, but I wrote about love like this... "The Best of Marriage"

"I sit at your desk and look out your window at the sky.

And I think of you and how much I love you. So many years we've spent together, mostly sunny with just a little bit of rain.

I treasure these years which have flown by us. I've grown to love you, respect you, admire you, need you more with each one. There is so much about you that makes me want to be the best that I can be.

It makes me smile each time you walk into a

How many thousands of times have I watched Valentine's Day gift!

you enter the space where I am,

And each time I feel pleasure, delight, at just the sight of you.

You make me laugh, you make me think. You make me challenge myself, you make me want to be the best me I can be.

You've even taught me to enjoy college football! Go Trojans! I love just to talk with you, to exchange the ordinary stuff that our days are made of, Conversations that are the flour and salt of life.

You are ever in my mind. You are the other half of my heart.

You are, very simply, the one person selected by God to be my lover, my friend, my husband. I have known you for more than half my life. The best half.

We have shared all that there is in life: Joy, sorrow, laughter, tears, death, birth, pleasure, misery, poverty, not quite so poverty, Pride in our children, and absolute disgust

And always, always we have had each other to Sometime today, tell your special Valentine how much he or she means to you. Kisses and holding hands are good, too...maybe even better than chocolate. Hope this is your best Valentine's Day ever!

Thursday, February 5th

At 10:15 am, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 200 Block of North Mountain Trail Avenue regarding a possible residential burglary report. The victim stated to Officers that the day before, while checking on her daughter's apartment, everything was intact. The following day she returned to find a security safe and all of its contents were missing from the apartment. The victim stated there was several hundred dollars held within the safe and that she is the only one with permission to be within the apartment while her daughter is away. The victim believed the apartment was accessed by her daughter's ex-boyfriend. When Officers contacted the man via telephone, he stated he was now living in North Carolina. Neighbors confirmed that they had bit seen the ex for quite some time. During the investigation, Officers did not find any sign of forced entry. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives

At 5:30 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the station lobby regarding a theft report. The victim informed Officers that suspicious incidents had been occurring over the past six months in her home since her roommate moved in and her roommate's boyfriend started visiting the residence. To start with, about a month and a half ago, the victim placed an envelope containing several hundred dollars in her top drawer of her dresser. Several weeks later when she went to retrieve it, the envelope was missing, but she was unsure what happened and said nothing of it. Shortly after she placed another envelope containing several hundred dollars in the same drawer, and several weeks later noticed a hundred dollars was missing. Several days later, when the victim was in the home Office, she came across a piece of paper that had her full name and social security number on it. Concerned her identity may have been compromised, she confronted her roommate. The roommate denied having any knowledge of the note and said the writing did not belong to neither her nor her boyfriend. Officers did a check into the roommate and the roommate's boyfriend and found that they both had a history of criminal activity. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

City Manager Appoints New Health Officer

Pasadena City Manager Michael Beck announced Monday the appointment of Dr. Ying-Ying Goh as the city's new health officer.

The city is currently still conducting a nationwide search for a new department director who will be responsible for the overall planning, administration and operation of the Public Health Department.

Prior to her new role, Goh served as Pasadena's Interim Health Officer from May 2014 to Jan. 2015. Since 2011, she has been the Pasadena Public Health Department's Medical Director for Programs and Research, securing new grant funding and managing programs related to diabetes care management and childhood obesity prevention.

The City separated the health officer duties from the department's (administrative) director position, adopting an organizational structure similar to the model used by the department prior to 2007. Goh, as the City's Health Officer, provides medical supervision and consultative direction for City health services and programs. The Health Officer also has authority to declare public health emergencies and quarantines.

"Dr. Goh continues to demonstrate healthcare and leadership skills," City Manager Beck said. "Her extensive training as a researcher and clinician is municipal health department.

THE RETIREMENT OF CHIEF ROBERTA ABNER

By Joan Schmidt

Although petite in stature, Roberta Abner is a "MEGA LADY" in every sense of the word! In 2000, after Neal Tyler promoted and transferred, Captain Abner assumed command of Temple Station. Everyone from staff to civilians soon realized what an exceptional woman Roberta was She held Temple Station together after Dave March's tragic death. Her Eulogy at the funeral was heart-wrenching, yet she retained her composure. To this day, Dave's parents, John and Barbara hold her dear to their hearts. Roberta never gave up till Dave's coward murderer was found, convicted and sentenced.

When questioned, all past/current LASD personnel will have the highest praise of Roberta. Her 35 year career in the Sheriff's Department is unmatched. She was the first female to be promoted to Chief; Sheriff Lee Baca chose her to work in his office after her promotion to Commander. (Lee and Carol attended festivities.)

Her assignments include Sybil Brand Institute, West Hollywood, Century and Temple Stations, Internal Investigations Bureau, Office of Professional Ethics and Standards, Safe Streets Bureau, Internal Affairs Bureau, Court Services Division, Leadership and Training Division, and Homeland Security Division.

Besides her exceptional career with LASD, Roberta became involved in the annual Baker to Vegas Competition. She ran in station coed competitions and played an integral role in the Women's Team's success. (Roberta was an inspiration to the many female runners as witnessed by the many who came to her retirement

REP. NAPOLITANO: "WE MUST DO ALL WE CAN TO PROTECT OUR WATER"

(Washington, DC) Today, at a joint House and Senate hearing, "The Impacts Of The Proposed Waters of the United States Rule on State and Local Governments," Rep. Grace F. Napolitano (CA-32) called for protection of clean water while providing regulatory certainty to water agencies, residents, and businesses.

"The proposed rule is an attempt to undo the confusion and uncertainty created by the former administration in a way that protects both the nation's economy as well as its water-related environment," Napolitano said. "This rulemaking is necessary because nearly 125 million Americans, over one-third of the total population, rely on public drinking water systems that draw from surface waters. In California alone, over 7 million rely on intermittent, ephemeral, and headwater streams for their daily drinking water supply."

She argued if private interests are successful in blocking this rule, it is the public who will suffer,

"In my state, it will mean less publicly available drinking water, less protection over those drinking water sources that remain, and an increased likelihood of flooding for our communities. We must do all we can to protect these water resources, because this is all we have. When the water dries up, our way of life and our local economies will dry up with it.";

Today's bicameral hearing between the House http://1.usa.gov/1CwnF0f.

Transportation and Infrastructure Committee and the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee was the first of its kind. Napolitano is the Ranking Member on the Water Resources and Environment Subcommittee. Her full opening statement from today's hearing can be viewed at

FISH CANYON FALLS TRAIL RE-OPENS

DUARTE, CA, February 11, 2015 - Duarte Fish Canyon Falls Trails will officially re-open to the public for use on Wednesday, February 11th following a thorough trail assessment for both accessibility and safety conducted by representatives from the Angeles National Forest Service, the Los Angeles County Fire Department, the City of Duarte and the Vulcan Materials Company. The trail closed on December 17, 2014 following a rockslide, which required a group of hikers to be rescued.

As with many outdoor activities, there are inherent risks and hazards with hiking and trail users are advised to take caution, heed public safety warnings and assume responsibility for their actions. Hikers should also be aware that the trail, although not particularly strenuous does have portions that wind along very narrow edges, steep drops and high cliffs. As such, hikers are encouraged to wear appropriate gear, remain on the trail at all times, and obey posted signage. Ticks and substantial poison oak growth are currently present along the trail and precautions should be taken. The trail is also not currently recommended for young children. The City of Duarte continues to strive to ensure that the Fish Canyon Falls Trail remains accessible and safe for hikers. The City and its partners acknowledge that to create the ideal hiking experience, the trail does require additional work. With that goal in mind, the City applied for and has been awarded a $25,000 grant from Los Angeles County 2015 Competitive Excess Funds Grant Program to rehabilitate the trail in partnership with the San Gabriel Mountains Trail Builders and the Angeles National Forest Service. The City Council has agreed to provide matching funds in the amount of $8,750 for additional staffing. A total of 8 trail crew workers will be hired for temporary part-time work to complete the rehabilitation project. For additional information on the trail or to apply for the part-time positions, please contact the City of

Weapon on School Grounds - Suspect Arrested

February 10 at 1:47 p.m., staff from an elementary school called police to report a student being detained for possession of a folding knife. A male student brought the knife to school and passed it on to one of the female students. The female student started showing off the knife to others. When school staff learned about the knife and confronted the student, she ran and gave it back to the male subject she received it from. The knife was eventually recovered and the female student was cited for possessing a knife on school grounds.

Vehicle Burglary

February 11 at 8:16 p.m., a vehicle burglary was reported in the 500 block of Diamond. The victim parked and thought she locked her vehicle in front of her home. When her husband went out to use the vehicle the next evening, he found the car was unlocked and property was missing. The investigation is continuing.

Domestic Violence

February 11 at 11:46 p.m., officers were dispatched to a domestic violence incident on Duarte Road. Both the suspect and victim were last seen in front of the location. The officer arrived and found the victim had sustained a cut lip and finger after the male suspect hit her several times. The officer located the male suspect and arrested him for domestic violence.

Driving Under the Influence/Traffic Collision

February 12 at 1:30 a.m., an officer was dispatched to the 300 block of Wildrose regarding a hit and run traffic collision where the suspect had fled the scene. The suspect vehicle was described as a green Chevy Silverado. As the officer was getting information from the reporting party, the suspect vehicle was seen driving down the street. The officer stopped the vehicle and determined the driver was driving under the influence. The driver was arrested and taken into custody.

(Duarte, CA) – Dr. Terry Nichols announced his decision to retire from the Duarte Unified School District (DUSD) effective July 2015 after 14 years of distinguished service to the district that included five years as Superintendent. Dr. Nichols got his start in the field of education as a teacher and coach in his home state of Arkansas 37 years ago. He first became a member of DUSD in 1998 as the Principal of Northview Intermediate School. Dr. Nichols then went on to serve as the Principal of Duarte High School from 2001-2005, Director of Curriculum and Instruction from 2005-2007 and Assistant Superintendent of Instructional Services from 2007- 2009. After a brief term as Superintendent of Schools at Claremont Unified, Dr. Nichols returned to DUSD and has remained at the helm of the district ever since 2011.

"I am very proud that my time as Superintendent will be included within the incredible story of the Duarte Unified School District, and I firmly believe there will continue to be no better place to educate a child because this community values education. I have had the privilege of working with many wonderful people including administrators, teachers, support staff, parents, volunteers, community leaders, business owners and board of education members who dedicated much of their time and talent. Together we worked as a team so that as soon as Duarte students earn their high school diplomas, they are prepared to work, lead, and make positive contributions to our global community," said Dr. Nichols. "Nothing pleases me more than knowing our children have hope for a bright future."

Under his leadership, DUSD committed to equipping students with the 21st Century skills all high school graduates need in order to flourish in an exceedingly competitive world. Dr. Nichols led the charge for the active recruitment of Duarte Unified students by universities and employers offering immediate career opportunities, which is why DUSD is now known as the provide home of the Shoulder Tenned Craduates.

as the proud home of the Shoulder Tapped Graduates.

Over the past five years the district has increased student achievement test scores across the board, narrowed the achievement gap and transitioned to the Common Core State Standards. Throughout some of the worst fiscal times in recent California history, DUSD has remained financially solvent and maintained high credit ratings. Dr. Nichols has been a leader in advocating for more adequate state funding and was able to bring in substantial competitive grant resources. In addition, Dr. Nichols was instrumental in ushering in the age-of- technology in Duarte Unified. Now all schools are connected to the district's Wide Area Network to provide the entire DUSD community immediate access to web based programs and educational online resources to improve teaching, learning and communication. The district also partnered with the non-profit organization One Million NIU, to achieve the goal of every student having a computer in their homes with affordable access to the

During his tenure as Superintendent, Dr. Nichols oversaw the implementation of several landmark initiatives that included:

- · Implementation of an unparalleled K-12 STEM program in partnership with the City of Hope through the attainment of a multi-million dollar grant from the National Institutes of Health
- Establishment of the only Early College program offered in the area with partner site Citrus College
 - Launch of The T.E.A.C.H. Project, the first P-Tech Model High School in
- California with City of Hope and Citrus College
- Placement of SMART Boards in every classroom throughout the district
- Successful roll out of laptops issued by the district to every 2nd 12th Support for Maxwell Elementary as an IB Candidate School for the
- Primary Years Programme - Revitalization of instrumental and choral music education programs
- within all elementary schools and expansion of music education at the
- Introduction of the M.I.N.D. Institute programs to teach advanced math concepts and keyboarding

 - Creation of the S.T.E.P. Mentor program that matches high school students
- with community leaders
- Formation of the Creativity & Innovation Team to empower DUSD teachers to develop strategies, cultivate new ideas and implement cuttingedge practices to strengthen teaching and learning in our district.

In addition to these achievements, Dr. Nichols supervised the largest facilities modernization program in the history of DUSD. Utilizing funds provided by Bond Measure E that passed with overwhelming community support, major building and renovation projects took place at all school sites. These projects included the new construction of the Northview cafeteria complex, Maxwell library & collaborative room, Duarte High School biotech lab, culinary arts, woodshop and team/weight rooms and state-of-the art

Board of Education members commended Dr. Nichols for his visionary leadership and ability to build a strong culture of collaboration focused on shared goals both within the district and between the district, the city of Duarte and the community.

When Dr. Nichols returned to Duarte, the District was ready for leadership and innovation that would build upon the contributions previously made by its staff and Duarte residents. Today, the District is focused on developing "Shoulder Tapped Graduates." It has community partners who have joined with the District to achieve its goals and funding to make them happen. Dr. Nichols has given his time, talent and energy to make a difference in the lives of students and all of us in this community have benefited from his contribution. I wish Dr. Nichols Godspeed in his future work and heartfelt gratitude for the legacy he leaves for others to build upon," said Board of Education President, Reverend Doug Edwards.

Board Member Ken Bell joined the board president in thanking Dr. Nichols for his contributions to the district. "Though leadership may be hard to define, the one characteristic common to all leaders is the ability to make things happen. That is who Terry Nichols is and has been for DUSD.

Dr. Nichols is looking forward to spending more time with his family during his retirement, but plans on staying active in the Duarte community and will always continue to be involved in furthering educational opportunities for all children. Details of the search process to select a new superintendent will be provided following the Board of Education meeting to be held February 12, 2015.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show JUPITER ASCENDING REVIEW

The Wachowskis have made some very interesting choices after their success with 'The Matrix'; however, most of them have not been commercially successful. In the trailers, 'Jupiter Ascending' appeared to be their comeback, their return to sci-fi movie mastery.

Jupiter Jones (Mila Kunis) works as a maid with her mother and her aunt. With rough life that she has no hope of ever getting out of, her life is unexpectedly uprooted one day when she is saved by Caine (Channing Tatum) and is introduced to a world of intergalactic politics, a secret family industry that runs the galaxy, and the three heirs who rule it.

What could have been an interesting sci-fi action-adventure film turned out to be a predictable, even laughable farce. 'Jupiter Ascending' presents some very interesting ideas but for every good one, there are even more ridiculous, unbelievable twists and turns that they ask the viewers to believe. While the film itself is beautiful, and has very well shot action sequences, it is an overall flop and plays very much like a cheesy B-movie from the 80s.

FOOD AND DRINK

We jump up in class a bit this week, staying in California and opening the dark reds as we travel to Paso Robles. Why Paso Robles? Benefitting from the perfect climate for producing award-winning premium wines, Paso Robles wine country is located in California between Los Angeles and San Francisco, and is home to more than 200 wineries, mostly comprised of boutique and small familyowned vineyards and wineries. Speaking of award wining wines from Paso Robles, this past week I enjoyed the San Simeon 2010 Cabernet Sauvignon. This Paso Robles stand-out is aged for at least 18 months in French oak barrels leading to structured tannins,* and provides texture and depth with a lengthy somewhat spicy finish.

Winemaker Anthony Riboli tells me that this wine is one of his favorites when he is home with his family enjoying dinner. He went on to say "as a fourth generation winemaker, I really want every consumer to taste the quality and care that our family imparts into every bottle of San Simeon Cabernet Sauvignon. From estate vineyards to artisan winemaking, we want the consumer to feel part of our family... to feel special." Thanks Anthony! With Valentines Day fast approaching this reviewer would suggest some dark chocolate though on my tasting I enjoyed it with a firm cheddar cheese or a dry jack cheese.

Tannins.... The Dills Definition: Tannin is the textural element that makes the wine taste dry, though I use the word often to describe how is feels on my tongue, thus dry, sandy, bitter etc...

Dills Score

Each week I will give you my Dills Score. Starting with a base of 50 points, I have added 8 points for color, 8 points for aroma or "nose", 8 points for taste, 8 points for finish, and 8 points for my overall impression, which includes my value rating.

INGREDIENTS

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 6 ounces pork tenderloin, halved lengthwise
- 1/2 teaspoon salt, divided
- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper, divided
- 1 large yellow onion, sliced 2 cloves garlic, sliced
- 2 teaspoons chili powder
- 3 cups canned hominy (about 3 cans, 15 ounces each), drained
- 6 cups low-sodium vegetable broth
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 small head green cabbage, cut into ribbons
- 8 radishes, sliced
- 1/2 medium avocado, sliced
- 1 jalapeño chile, sliced

DIRECTIONS

Heat oil in a Dutch oven over medium-high heat. Sprinkle tenderloin with 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/8 teaspoon pepper and cook until meat no longer sticks to pot, about 2 minutes. Turn and repeat on other side, then remove and slice into 1/4-inch strips. Add onion and garlic to pot; reduce heat to mediumlow. Add remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/8 teaspoon pepper and cook, stirring occasionally, until onion is transparent, 15 to 20 minutes; reduce heat as needed to keep from burning. During last minute of cooking, stir chili powder into onion mixture. Return meat to pot, along with hominy, broth and bay leaves. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, 20 minutes. Add cabbage, cover and cook another 10 minutes. Remove bay leaves. Divide stew among 4 bowls; serve garnished with radishes, avocado and jalapeño.

FIVE QUICK TIPS TO AVOID COMMON DIETING PITFALLS

than to achieve. Life can often seem at odds with your health and wellness goals. Luckily, there are plenty of ways to avoid common pitfalls.

· Snack and drink smart: When you're one-thego, easy protein-packed snacks will help you stay on track. Try beef jerky, low-fat string cheese, or 100 calorie packs of almonds. Fiber-rich wholegrains, fruits and vegetables can also help keep hunger at bay.

Calories from drinks add up fast. Stick with dry wines, as they often have fewer calories than sweeter varieties. Light beers, with approximately 100 calories for every 12 ounce serving, are also a good choice. If you prefer cocktails, use caloriefree mixers, such as seltzer with 1.5 oz. of spirits.

• Make it easy: Dieting should be easy. Most people often complain they fail at diets because they need to constantly count calories, or weigh and measure foods.

Look for programs that help you stick to your goals by offering convenience and support. For example, Nutrisystem helps with the hard part -- the counting, weighing and measuring -- by offering pre-portioned and personalized meal plans designed to fuel individuals with the right amount of calories for how their metabolism burns, as well as satisfy individual taste. And with their Fast 5+ kit, you can jumpstart your weight loss, since it promises to help you lose five pounds to time, but it's always the perfect time to commit plus an inch off your waist in your first week of to your weight loss goals.

(StatePoint) Weight loss goals are easier to make dieting. You'll see results quickly, giving you motivation to keep going.

> There's no better time than now to start your weight loss journey and make your pledge to lose. To learn more, visit www.Nutrisystem.com or the Nutrisystem Facebook page to #pledgetolose today.

> Eat out, right: Eating out is sometimes unavoidable. Just be sure to check out a restaurant's nutrition information online before you go, so you can make wise choices.

> Make substitutions like salad, with dressing on the side, instead of fries and don't be afraid to ask if a menu item can be modified. Also, be mindful of portion sizes. Take half your meal home and enjoy it for tomorrow's lunch.

- Facing the scale: Weight fluctuates throughout the day. Weigh yourself at the same time of day in similar weight clothing to get the most accurate readings. Remember though, the number on the scale won't always reflect your hard work. Focus instead on healthy, positive changes and how you
- Aim for 30: Squeeze 30 minutes of activity into your day. Walk during lunch, jump rope during your favorite nightly TV show or turn on music and dance around the house.

Remember, everyone falls off the wagon from time

DISCIPLINE & A HEALTHY LIFE

"Discipline is getting yourself to do something you don't necessarily want to do to achieve a result you -Andv Andrews

Most people want to be healthy, want to feel good, want to function well and live a long life. The healthiest and happiest people on the outside have usually done a lot of work on the inside or in

The discipline it takes to be healthy requires daily choices done consistently for a long time. Many of these choices are not easy. It requires that we have habits, good habits that we rely on to give us the best opportunity to have a healthy state of being. This requires that we take responsibility for our lives. "Learn to love the things that are good for you." --Dr. Eric Plasker, author The 100 Year Lifestyle If we can discipline ourselves and take responsibility for our lives, we recognize that between stimulus and response we have the ability to respond and this is where our power lies. We discipline ourselves to make choices, good choices and when we practice this discipline we develop habits and these habits develop our true character and this character determines our ultimate results. This discipline frees us to live unencumbered by illness or injury.

In regards to our physical health we will make choices in the areas of exercise, nutrition, rest and protecting our spine and nervous system.

The question arises are you developing good or bad habits in regards to taking responsibility for your health? Good habits require discipline and are not easy to put in place but once they are in place they are easy to live with. Bad habits develop when you are not responsible and do not discipline yourself. Therefore bad habits are easy to put in place but hard to live with.

When you are in crisis and suffering, the situation requires your utmost attention, you are motivated and desirous to reclaim your health. You will do whatever is required and follow instructions in an admirable fashion. However, as you become stable and relief has been achieved, do you proceed into the critical transition of rehabilitation and regeneration with the same fervor? Do you continue on the path to achieve optimum fitness and achieve lifestyle care?

Protecting your spine and nervous system with exercise, nutrition, rest and practicing good posture, and having your spine checked for interference and function is a discipline and practice of top performers whether it be in sports, entertainment, the board room or top performers in any industry. They make chiropractic care part of the health disciplines they practice regularly so their nervous system can function with ease and be well connected. The nervous system controls all the other systems so they are all necessary to build and maintain health.

In 2015 make regular chiropractic care part of the disciplines you employ to create great habits, outstanding character and the life you desire and deserve.

HEART HEALTH NOT HEART DISEASE

Dr. Tina is a traditional naturopath and nutritionist at Vibrant Living Wellness Center

Do you you destined to have high some other form of heart disease because of your family history? There is no question that there is enough evidence out there that shows that our family passes on (information in our genes) that predisposes us to being more susceptible to diseases than maybe our neighbor. More important though than DNA is lifestyle. In particular your lifestyle and what you eat. I tell all of my clients that "your DNA loads the gun but your lifestyle pulls the trigger". To date, heart disease remains the leading cause of death in the someone who does, checking out a plant based United States for both men and women. If you diet may be well worth your time. Adjusting your could simply change the way you eat and either diet may be one way to lower your cholesterol and prevent getting heart disease or reverse the heart prevent heart disease.

Do you have heart disease you already have would you do so?

The evidence is pretty compelling, a plant based are diet lowers your risk of ever developing heart disease and may reverse or certainly lessen the blood pressure or severity of existing heart disease. Even former president Bill Clinton who was notoriously known for having a less than healthy diet has seen the light. During his time in the White House he was known to try and jog off his fast food binges. It worked and he was able to pass all of his health checks while he was president. During that time his heart disease was progressing. In 2004 Clinton underwent bypass surgery and in 2010 that surgery failed. Later that year, Clinton began a plant-based diet. The result, he began to feel great, he lost weight and his heart disease began to reverse itself. In an analysis published in 2009 in the American Journal of Cardiology, a plant based diet has been shown to: Lower levels of triglycerides, lower blood pressure, decrease body weight, decrease risk of death from any cause including heart disease, improves insulin sensitivity and more.

So, if you have high cholesterol, or you know

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

of different dogs on any give day, and I am on a constant quest to learn more about my canine companions. Most importantly, I endeavor to educate myself on various canine health topics, and I try to be prepared for whatever emergency might occur on my watch. I am vigilant in paying attention to what my curious little clients are poking their noses into when they sniff about in the grass, and I pull them away from anything that might be harmful or unhealthy, such as a dead bird or droppings left behind by a previous passer-by.

I also watch out for wildlife whenever I am walking dogs in our hillside village. It is not unusual to sight a deer, a coyote or a bear roaming the streets in Sierra Madre, and some dogs tend to react radically, causing a potential confrontation which is totally up to me to avoid. Then there are the small creatures that we either don't see or are so used to seeing, we take them for granted. Birds and butterflies always add an aesthetically pleasing and interesting dimension to the outdoor experience, but some creatures can cause serious injury to our pets. Clearly, our elusive friend the snake is one we should always steer far clear of. And there are also other types of creatures that can pose a threat to our pets during an otherwise pleasant stroll through the neighborhood.

Last week I was walking around the local block with my little girl, Molly when she suddenly put the breaks on, sat down on the sidewalk and began licking fiercely at the underside of her front paw. Assuming she had stepped on some sort of prickly sticker, I lifted her foot up to take a look and I saw a bee fall to the asphalt. I immediately turned her around and we ran back to the house to get a pair of tweezers so I could remove the stinger. Having read an article on the subject, I knew it was important to get that stinger out as soon as possible, then apply baking soda and water to the affected area. If the stinger is left in place, it is sure to cause further swelling and discomfort, followed by infection.

Before I had a chance to settle Molly down enough to look for the stinger, her gut began to heave and out came her breakfast in a messy pile on the floor. She continued to vomit until the full contents of her stomach had been purged. That's when I ran to the phone and called my veterinarian. I told her I was on my way with Molly, who'd sustained a single bee sting and was apparently having an allergic reaction. She told me to come quickly and they a steroid and an antihistamine, to counteract the aware and prepared!

venom in her bloodstream and stabilize her system. They kept Molly for the rest of the day, to observe her and make sure her allergic reaction was under control.

Fortunately, Molly pulled through the ordeal and experienced no further symptoms of concern. The vet told me to give her 50 milligrams of Benadryl every 12 hours, for the next couple of days while the venom continued to work it's way out of her system. She told me how pleased she was that I had gotten her there in such short order, because had I waited much longer it could have

I was relieved that I had acted in a timely enough manner to avoid the untimely death of my precious dog. Had I not been paying close attention, and had I not investigated right away, Molly may not have gotten to the vet in time. I thought later, about how horrible it would have been if I hadn't had my car to take her to the vet, or if I'd been aloof and allowed too much time to pass. The outcome would have been heart-wrenching.

> This situation is only one of many potential circumstances that can arise when I am taking care of my clients' pets, which is why I consider it so very important to be aware and be prepared. I know of one other dog walker in our area who does not own a car, only a bike and I can't help wondering what would happen if one of his canine clients were to have a similar experience. Sometimes we don't think of these things until it is too late. I, personally will do whatever it takes to save the life of a furry four-legged friend and would never put them at risk by being less than prepared.

> I hope my experience helps others to be aware of what can happen when a dog is stung by a bee. From what I understand, few dogs react the way my Molly did, so I don't want to put fear in the hearts of my fellow pet owners. However, I do want to emphasize the importance of paying close attention to what your dog is up to while you are strolling down the street. And, in the case of a bee sting or stings, you definitely want to look for signs of an allergic reaction, in which case you should transport your pet to the vet as quickly as possible. Even if your dog shows no apparent signs of reaction, you still need to remove the stinger and apply baking soda and water to the affected area right away. Whether there is a reaction or not, it is still a good idea to contact your vet for advice on whether you should administer Benadryl, and if so, the proper frequency and dosage.

.....to be your Valentine?

Asia is an adorable Pekingese mix, about 3 years old and weighing 14 pounds. She has a beautiful long fawn colored coat that looks soft and silky when she is cleaned and brushed.

Asia seems to love people, as well as other dogs she has met at the shelter. She has a happy, friendly personality and usually has a smile on her face when she greets you.

Asia has an eye condition, which is causing her to lose her vision, so she will need to go to a safe and secure home where her family can care for her and give her an environment where she can learn her way around. As with most dogs that have visual problems, she has an excellent sense of

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND??

Asia can go for walks on leash, but she needs some gentle guidance to help her find her way. She can be coaxed with little "kissing" noises to let her know the direction of her handler. In spite of her sight limitations, Asia is a very playful dog. She loves soft, squeaky toys and will take them in her mouth and shake them vigorously to entertain herself. A toy that makes some kind of noise will give her more stimulation. Asia is a sweet, cheerful dog who has a lot of love to give and would be a wonderful companion to the

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: MILO GREENE - 'CONTROL'

By Sean Kayden

indie pop quintet with not a single member having the name Milo Greene. The five-piece band which includes Robbie Arnett, and Marlana Sheetz have changed course with their anticipated sophomore, Control. A darkly snythpop resonance encompasses the newest effort. Their luminous self-titled debut was influenced by 70s soft rock and contemporary indie pop. It exhibited a deep catharsis as well as pastoral and rustic style which led to an incredibly laidback listen from beginning to end. The unique aspect of Milo Greene is how four of the five members share vocal duties. The most distinctive vocals come from lone female member, Marlana Sheetz. However, the rest of the members still provide intoxicating and affecting vocals. With the assistance of Joey Waronker (drummer of Beck, Atoms For Peace, R.E.M.) and Jesse Shatkin (Sia, Foster The People, Ellie Goulding), Control is a complete tonal shift from Milo Greene's previous outing. This time around, the band pushes the envelope with a more buoyant, propulsive sound. Additionally, there is this sense of urgency surrounding the record. The opaque tones alongside the strong lyrical conviction give new life to Milo Greene. In fact, this latest enterprise demonstrates an entirely new image for a band obviously desiring to move forward rather than standing still.

winning fashion. Right from the getgo, the fan of Milo Greene will hear and most of all feel the difference. While the transformation at first is surprising, the accessibility of settling right into it becomes effortless by the end of the track. Sheetz is on this track and her vocals are smooth and soulful in quality. The song moves at a faster pace than what you might have come to expect from Milo Greene. Succeeding track, "On The Fence," pushes the band's soundscape even further. The infectious drumbeat paired up with overlapping vocals dance worthy track, "On The Fence" is the catchiest song Done," "Lie To Me"

Milo Greene is an LA-based of Control. "Save Yourself" brings the same rhythmic indie pop quintet with not power as "White Lies." Like much of the record, it exhibits new musical channels not heard before from Milo Greene. "Heartless" is a beautiful exposition of dreamy vocals, cinematic-pop undertones, and incredible harmonies. "Lie To Me" is another gem among Graham Fink, Andrew Heringer, Curtis Marrero, an exceptionally assembled album from beginning to end. The spectacular and meticulously produced arrangements are quite celestially in composition. Arnett's raspy voice paired with Sheetz glossy vocals sounds ravishing as a unit. One of the catchiest tunes on the album, "Lie To Me" is exceedingly well crafted. "When It's Done" presents a heart-pounding drumbeat and vocals that are substantially formidable. It's as if Control ends with the barebones acoustic track, "Royal Blues." It quietly echoes the likes of Milo Greene's debut record. This all translates into something haunting The single, "White Lies" introduces the album in and stirring. With murmurs of "oh, oh, ohs," the band brings the listener in closer in than ever before. The contemplative tune expands into richer musical terrain in the last minute allowing the solitary listener to rest their weary mind. Control does just about everything right and sends you off thinking about all that is bordering you. It's the proper album to handle the circling circumstances of one's own passageway from getting to one place to the next, wherever that may be.

Grade: 8 out of 10 by several members is an engaging combo. A downright Key Tracks: "Save Yourself," "Heartless," "When It's

His Excellency: George Washington by Joseph J. Ellis To this landmark biography of our first president, Joseph J. Ellis brings the exacting scholarship, shrewd analysis, and lyric prose that have made him one of the premier historians of the Revolutionary era. Training his lens on a figure who sometimes seems as remote as his effigy on Mount Rushmore, Ellis assesses George Washington as a military and political leader and a man whose "statue-like solidity" concealed volcanic energies and emotions.Here is the impetuous young officer whose miraculous survival in combat half-convinced him that he could not be killed. Here is the free-spending landowner whose debts to English merchants instilled him with a prickly resentment of imperial power. We see the general who lost more battles than he won and the reluctant president who tried to float above the partisan feuding of his cabinet. His Excellency is a magnificent work, indispensable to an understanding not only of its subject but also of the nation he brought into being.

Donald goes beyond biography, illuminating the gradual development of Lincoln's character, chronicling his tremendous capacity for evolution and growth, thus illustrating what made it possible for a man so inexperienced and so unprepared for the presidency to become a great moral leader. THE GOOD LIFE

WHO SHOULD BUY LONG-TERM CARE INSURANCE?

Dear Savvy Senior,

Is there a good rule of thumb on who should buy a long-term care insurance policy? My wife and I have a few assets we'd like to protect but we hate the idea of paying expensive monthly premiums for a policy we may never use.

Planning Ahead

Dear Planning,

There are two key factors – your financial situation and health history – you need to mull over that can help you decide if buying a long-term care (LTC) insurance policy is a wise decision for you and/ or your wife. Currently, only around 8 million Americans own a policy. Here's what you should

LTC Insurance?

As the cost of LTC (which includes nursing home, assisted living and in-home care) continues to skyrocket, it's important to know that most people pay for LTC either from personal savings or Medicaid when their savings is depleted, or through a LTC insurance policy. National median average costs for nursing home care today is over $87,000 per year, while assisted living averages $42,000/year.

While national statistics show that about 70 percent of Americans 65 and older will need some kind of LTC, most people do not need to purchase a LTC insurance policy.

In fact, according to a recent study at the Boston College Center for Retirement Research only 19 percent of men and 31 percent of women should actually get one.

The reasons stem from a range of factors, including the fact that relatively few people have enough wealth to protect to make purchasing a policy worthwhile. Seniors with limited financial resources who need LTC turn to Medicaid to pick up the tab after they run out of money.

Another important factor is that most seniors who need LTC only need it for a short period of time – for example, when they're recovering from surgery. For those people, Medicare covers in-home health care assets from Medicaid equal to the benefits that your and nursing home stays of 100 days or less following policy pays out. a hospital stay of more than 3 consecutive days.

So who should consider buying a policy? LTC insurance policies make the most sense for show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

people who can afford the monthly premiums, and who have assets of at least $150,000 or more that they want to protect – not counting their home and

Another factor to weigh is your personal health and family health history. The two most common reasons seniors need extended long-term care is because of dementia and/or disability. And, almost half of all people who live in nursing homes are 85 years or older. So, what's your family history for Alzheimer's, stroke or some other disabling health condition, and do you have a family history of longevity? The U.S. Surgeon General offers a free tool at familyhistory.hhs.gov to help you collect, organize and evaluate your genetic risks.

You also need to factor in gender too. Because women live and average of 5 years longer than men they are at greater risk of needing extended LTC.

LTC Policy Shopping

After evaluating your situation, if you're leaning towards buying a LTC policy, be sure to do your homework. The cost of premiums can vary greatly (ranging anywhere between $1,200 and $8,000 per year for a couple) depending on your age, the insurer, and the policy's provisions. To help you find a policy, get a long-term care insurance specialist who works with a variety of companies. See aaltci.org to locate one. Also shop insurers like Northwestern Mutual and New York Life, who work only with their own

If you want to save money, find out if your state offers a LTC partnership program (see aaltci.org/ partnership). Under these programs, if you buy a long-term care policy approved by your state Medicaid agency, you can protect an amount of

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

GOOD REASONS TO ESTABLISH A TRUST (AND BEING RICH ISN'T ONE OF THEM)

As far as estate planning goes, many people have the misconception that trusts are only for the wealthy during their lifetime, failed to plan to keep their families out of probate court. while wills are for everyone else. But that couldn't be further from the truth. You don't need to live in a mansion or own a fancy yacht to benefit from having a trust. The fact is, a will simply isn't enough for most of us. Why not? There are many reasons, but one of the biggest is that a will won't keep your family out of probate.

What is probate? Probate is a court process used to transfer the assets (not held in a trust) of a deceased person to their heirs. In other words, after your death - if you don't have a trust in place – someone will have to petition the court to open probate so your assets can be transferred to your beneficiaries. A will only serves to guide the court on how to distribute your assets, it does not keep your family out of court. So why do I want to avoid probate? All assets passing through probate court become a matter of public record, and as such, vulnerable to creditors, predators, and opportunists – and believe you me, there are plenty of scammers and con-artists who read the probate records to identify who is receiving an inheritance so they can go after their next mark. The court system in California is underfunded and overburdened and the probate process can take years to get through. Also, probate is very expensive, ultimately diminishing the overall assets available to your family by a substantial margin. Keep in mind too, if you have minor children the probate court will give them complete, unrestricted control of their inheritance as soon as they turn eighteen. And think about it, the probate process is generally the last thing family members want to endure after losing a loved one. Ultimately, probate just makes a hard time that much harder.

for people with little to no assets or for those who, for more information.

What are the advantages of a trust? Putting your assets in a trust avoids the probate process once you pass away. This saves your loved ones the time, money, and emotional hassles associated with probate. A trust can also be kept confidential which allows families to keep their privacy in the process. Another advantage is that a trust allows you to give your assets to minor children exactly when and how you see fit - they don't have to become instant millionaires at eighteen if that's not what you want. Finally, a trust can provide asset protection from your beneficiaries' creditors, court judgments, divorces, and even their own bad money management practices.

As you can see, there are many reasons to create a trust, and being rich isn't one of them. You can learn more about how a trust might benefit you and your family by calling us to schedule a Family Estate Planning Session. I'd be happy to sit down with you, talk about your particular situation, and help you make sure things are as easy as possible for your loved ones in the future.

To you family's health, wealth, and happiness,

DON'T FORGET THE VARIABLES

You're ready to make an offer! You've done your homework by reviewing a CMA (Comparative Market Analysis), local DOM (Days On Market), and even the LP:SP (List Price to Sales Price) ratio to formulate your offer based on the numbers, and you have confidence in the

However, there may be "non-tangible" factors that don't fit neatly into the equation. Your representative will endeavor to discover variables like the seller's motivation and your possible

If the home you want has been listed much longer than the average DOM, the sellers may have become more realistic and more motivated to accept lower offers. Sometimes the sellers are motivated by the pressure of having purchased, or offered to purchase, another home. Then time becomes more important than money. No one wants to pay two mortgages or risk their ability to close on another purchase because they can't sell their first home.

Also try to find out if other buyers are making offers on your chosen property. If so, make your first offer your best offer, because sellers are unlikely to counter in this situation. But... never offer more than your representative believes the home will appraise for, or your financing will fail and you'll be back at Square One. Talk to your agent about the facts and the variables, and then make your offer with confidence.

Their turn at what? At life, of course.

They're waiting while I struggle at night, in bed, with my existential need to ask why. "Why am I here? Why does any of this matter? Why can't my greater purpose be revealed to me?" Then, I settle down for my cozy eight-hour coma. And when I lay my head on the pillow and close my eyes, this is the image I see behind my still pulsating lids...

a big race. Fanfare. This is what happens:
I'm running what I think is a marathon. I'm keeping a decent pace but I'm feeling, quite frankly, a bit bored by the whole event. I've been running for a while and I'm noticing less and less the majestic mountains in front of me and more and more the dusty earth choking my lungs and getting my new Nike Lunar Chenchukkas dirty. All of a sudden I get the strange feeling that I'm being watched. I look over my shoulder... and there they are. Same image...the mob of people waiting at the starting area. They are on their mark, anticipating with great excitement, the resounding gunshot that will catapult them forward. This time I view them less as people and more like souls...souls with sneakers on. They mean no evil; they're not rooting for my demise. They're just...ready. They're itching to get their turn. And I consider the idea that I must have been one of them once.

Their enthusiasm and envious longing to get head outside in search of a mountain.

Have you ever gotten the feeling that someone is in the race seems to at first inspire anger in me. waiting for you to die? And I'm not talking about This anger soon clearly defines itself as a cynical, an angry spouse who seems obsessed with where embittered antagonism. I want to tell them, "Calm down for God's sake...it's not what you more to an over-zealous, impatient new soul who think. Your overblown expectations are a clear sign of your newbie ignorance. You have no idea what it's like on this track...the obstacles that keep getting in the way. It's dangerous out here!" They envy my present and the truth, is I envy their future.

Their presence and the pressure of them watching and waiting is having a profound effect on me. I tell myself, "One of those souls is waiting specifically for me to finish this race. Who exactly in that crowd is my successor? Which one of them is waiting for me to die?"

I turn my head away from them and try to focus on the path in front of me. My eyes start to make out the view of the mountains again but this time in much more detail and with greater focus. The earth I kick up no longer chokes me but provides comfort with its familiar smell and taste. I start picking up my pace. Not too much. I don't want to go too fast and miss anything. I take a deep breath and leap over a fallen branch that's in my path. I'm back on track, so to speak. I can still feel their energy behind me but it no longer unnerves me. Instead, it gives me a feeling of privilege and pride; an appreciation for all the moments that add up to "my turn." And as I jog on, I'm conscious of the fact that what I have, this life, will one day end so that some new eager soul can get their shot at it.

I open my eyes and look at the clock. It's seven forty-five. I get out of bed; put on my sneakers; and

GOOGLE GIVES LICK OBSERVATORY $1 MILLION

Google Inc. has given $1 million to the University of California's Lick Observatory in what astronomers hope is the first of many private gifts to support an invaluable teaching and research resource for the

The unrestricted funds, spread over two years, will go toward general expenses, augmenting the $1.5 million the UC Office of the President gives annually to operate the mountaintop observatory for the 10-campus UC system.

"This is very exciting," said UC Berkeley astronomy professor Alex Filippenko, who has been beating the bushes for funds to operate the observatory after UC support dropped as a result of the recent recession.

"Astronomy is the 'gateway science'—kids are enthralled by cosmic discoveries, spectacular images, and far-out concepts, which can inspire them to pursue technical fields such as applied physics, engineering and computer science," Filippenko said. "So there's a real opportunity to make a difference, through the research, education and public outreach we do at Lick Observatory."

 $\hbox{``I am delighted that Google is supporting the Lick}\$ effort and thus helping provide UC students with unique hands-on experiences in valuable astronomy research," said UC Berkeley Vice Chancellor for Research Graham Fleming.

Lick Observatory, located atop Mt. Hamilton east of San Jose, was established in 1888 and currently houses seven telescopes, including the Katzman Automatic Imaging Telescope run by Filippenko, which scans the sky each night in search of exploding stars (supernovae) and helps astronomers understand the accelerating expansion of the universe and dark energy. Another robotic telescope, the Automated Planet Finder, closely examines many stars each night to find planets that may be orbiting them.

Faculty, researchers, postdoctoral scholars and students throughout the UC system can observe remotely on the main general-use telescopes, the three-meter Shane telescope and the onemeter Nickel telescope. "These telescopes provide undergraduates with a unique opportunity to participate in substantial astronomical research," Filippenko said. "I have about a dozen undergraduate the centers of galaxies.

The streets were still dark, and cool, and devoid of people. I began to bicycle through the streets of Pasadena, working my way first through the downtown apartment areas, and then gradually north where there were more trees and bigger yards. The mountains were glowing with the rising sun, and by now the sky was light and birds were chirping everywhere. A few cars were now on the road, and an occasional jogger the monsters. whished by on the sidewalk.

Oh, I knew that there was some chance of encountering no-good criminals who would try to accost or rob me -- that's part of the tightness a pebble, making sounds, and truly enjoying of the city. But everyone seemed to be asleep, even the muggers. I didn't even see homeless, for they too were tucked away in whatever spots they'd found for staying warm.

The sun took its time in rising and the sky was overcast and cloudy on this early Saturday morning. A cool breeze blew down the city streets as a mountain breeze might blow down a canyon. Where you'd expect to see hawks perched high in that I am covered in dirt as is Jim. She smiles, and the tallest mountain trees, I saw pigeons perched on the edges of the tall buildings. No matter what man does, nature usually adapts, and ultimately overcomes.

I began to bicycle to the north, towards the mountains and Altadena, to nowhere in particular except north. What had been a truly casual and leisurely ride was now becoming a bit of work as I went uphill closer to the mountains. I slowly and eventually rode to the very base of the mountains and watched a group of Boy Scouts unloading from the family vans and station wagons and loading on their backpacks for a day or weekend of adventure. I could see the excitement in their faces and hear it in their voices. For most of them, this would be a first adventure in campcraft.

I turned my bicycle around and began to coast back down the hill, and after a few miles, I turned down a street where a family I knew lived. I slowly bicycled by and saw that only Jim, the young six-year-old, was out in the yard playing. I said hello, and he recognized me and said hello. He asked me if I wanted to see the dirt people. I got off my bike, and got down on my hands and knees, and he showed me the little tunnels and trails of the dirt people, and he showed me where imagine. they lived, and how they drove around on little

It was very quiet, and I could actually feel sounds like a car when the dirt people wanted to the collective heave and sigh of relief as the city turn quick or stop suddenly, and I had to keep the took a break from the madness of racing around pebble on the roads that Jim had built. Jim told me about the monsters that come out it is that you believe you'd rather be doing than and the dirt people have to run and hide, because the monsters are so powerful.

He pointed to a little ant that had come out of a hole, and Jim gave voice to the monsterant, a slow, deep growl as it walked along the dirt people's road. I was informed that the monster always takes the easy path along the dirt people's road, because the monster was lazy. That was its weakness, and the dirt people could use that fact to their advantage when they wage a war against

Each pebble, each leaf, each stick, each The city was magical when everyone undulation of the ground had a name and a meaning in Jim's world into which I had entered. I was lying there in the dirt with him, pushing myself when his mother came out.

What are you guys doing?" she asked.

'The dirt people are all getting together because the monsters are getting ready to invade. We watched the monsters begin the war, and the dirt people are now all trying to defend themselves, right?" he looks at me.

His mother looks at me sideways, noting says only "Oh." She just stands there and looks, and I know that it means nothing to Jim, but I feel the censure of an adult in the adult world, and I realize that I should feel embarrassment. When I think about it, I realize that I did feel a little embarrassed, but mainly because somehow I've been taught that some things are for children and some things are for adults. Adults are not allowed entry into the make-believe world of children, at least not by other adults. So after a while, I got up, and shook off the dust. I told Jim's mother that I was just passing by, and I said goodbye to Jim. I rode on, and eventually headed back home.

I had truly enjoyed myself lying there in the dirt, without video games or electronic entertainers. We were enjoying a simple pleasure of life that required nothing but an active imagination and the ability to believe. And that's what's wrong with adults. Our bodies got older and we allowed our minds to ossify. We put aside imagination for pragmatism, and we gave up the ability to believe for hard-earned cynicism.

That morning, I realized that childhood ends when you can no longer lie in the dirt and

Can one remove all traces of one's self from the Internet? It seems that once something has found its way online, it's pretty much there forever. This seems to be the hard lesson that many are finding out through social media gaffes that enable personal messages and photos finding their way to places where the original owners never intended them to be.

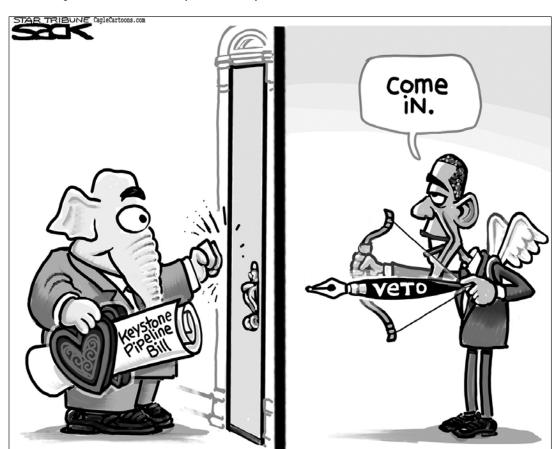

This is the side effect of our living in an increasingly connected world where our digital identities are replicated and spread over thousands of online services and tens of thousands of servers located all over the world. For the most part this isn't too bad of a thing, as our favorite sites keep track of our preferences but, in truth, the high price we pay is none other than our surrendered privacy and personal information.

Once our personal data is the hands of these online companies, they may then use our data as they see fit. Some of the more reputable companies often use our preferences to target us with directed advertising, but some of the less scrupulous companies often sell our details to the highest bidders. When this consumer behavior is viewed in the short term, it might not seem like that big of a deal since most people are at least somewhat careful with the information that they let out about themselves. But when viewed over a longer period of time, such as 10 years or so, who can really remember all the online sites and services one may have joined? Do you remember what you posted on a music forum in 2004? Or which services you tried for free email before Gmail?

We're only human, so it's only natural that we sometimes forget these services as we move on to newer and better ones. The problem is that these services don't forget us. Tracking down these no longer wanted services can sometimes be tricky and tedious. Online Reputation Management services offer an array of products that claim to be able to give one a proverbial "digital clean slate" for a pretty penny. Sometimes one finds oneself in a case of "the-horse-having-already-left-the-barn" and what's done can't possible be changed.

What one can do going forward is take certain steps to protect one's digital footprint going forward. Users are warned to be aware of the elements that make up your digital identity (PIN's, IP Addresses, email addresses, names, avatars, photos, blog entries, etc) and to note that the concept of "managing one's digital identity" means monitoring the use of these elements.

When creating a user profile for a new site, always use an alias and do not post any personal information about yourself on the internet. Keep in mind that once an element of your digital identity has been posted on the internet you effectively lose control of that data.

A BOX OF VALENTINE CHOCOLATES NEVER MISSES ITS TARGET

I spent a few very profitable hours searching for a special box of Valentine chocolates. After all, that special person in my life deserves all the time I can spare in choosing the right box of chocolate.

I'm not sure who came up with the idea of giving your "Sweetheart" a box of chocolates on Valentine's Day, but I would like to shake his hand sometime. Of all the gizmos, doodads and gimmicks in the wide world, this one tops them all.

It took me a long time to uncover this mystery of romance. As a young husband, I thought chocolate was simply a piece of candy. Never in my wildest dreams did I ever imagine that one piece of chocolate could solve so many problems in life.

I do not claim to understand it myself. I do not need to know how, in order to use it to my advantage. Therefore, when it comes to a box of Valentine chocolates I do not need to know why it works or how it

Buying a box of chocolate on Valentine's Day can cover a multitude of sins and trespasses committed during the past year. Thus, my investment in a box of chocolate once a year pays rich and creamy dividends. It is a small price to pay for a year's worth of faux pas, mistakes and rolled up socks under

That infamous day when I met, what later became the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage, at a church altar reciting those words "I do," was the beginning of my life. Whoever thought that two words, just three letters, could make such an impact upon a person's life?

Of course, at the time I was too naïve and inexperienced in women-lore to understand that attached to those two little words, "I do," came the dreaded "honey-do-list." Only a bride, coached by her mother, understands the import of the whole scenario.

Like every husband to be before me, I stood at the altar looking goofy, wearing an insufferable smile thinking all was well with the world. Little did I know that when I said, "I do," it was done. I have learned all the phases; do, did, done. And when I said, "I do," I was done.

I must admit that the first years were quite a learning experience, especially for me. I do not think being a husband is natural. It is something you have learned all by yourself. And, it is nothing that fathers and sons talk about. Father passes on to their sons an appreciation for sports, knowing what team to root for and an appreciation for good hard work and doing your best.

The only thing a father can pass on to his son concerning understanding women is this little bit of wisdom; "Son, nobody has ever figured out women." This may be why God created Adam before he

In the first few years of our marriage, I made a dreadfully wrong assumption. I assumed that being married to me was enough. After all, at the wedding altar we took each other for "better or worse." She fulfilled the "better," and I, of course, brought up the "worse." In a marriage, everybody has his or her responsibility and that was mine.

But in that first year of marriage I did something wrong. I cannot remember what it was now; I probably did not know what it was then. That is the way it is with men. They have no idea what is going on around them. But something I did, or maybe it was something I did not do, had created a little bit of

It was close to Valentine's Day and I happened to be shopping at the supermarket when I spied a very large red heart shaped box of chocolates. Ñormally, I would not have given it a second thought because it was quite expensive. It certainly was beyond our modest budget at the time. However, something came over me that I could not quite explain. In a flash of impulse, I put the box of chocolate in my basket, and purchased it.

It was not quite Valentine's Day so I hid it and waited for the day to approach.

Finally, the anticipated moment had come and I presented my wife with the biggest box of chocolate she had ever seen up to that time. I do not know what happened, even to this day, but that box of chocolate canceled out everything I had done wrong up to that point.

In fact, she still has that Valentine box that she uses to hold her jewelry. It is a constant reminder to me that chocolate has a magical quality to it when it comes to women.

I have no idea how chocolate solves problems; I just know that it works. Possibly, one bite of that chocolate immediately goes to the brain erasing forever, whatever her husband did the preceding twelve months. No husband knows how it works, but why fool around with something that does work?

This is precisely the way forgiveness works. I do not know how it works I just know it works. "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." (1 John 1:9).

God's forgiveness never misses its mark, either.

COINS OF THE REALM

What's in your wallet? Probably not a lot of coins. Interesting to note that the first general circulation of paper money by the federal government didn't happen until 1861. They became known as "greenbacks" because of their color. I guess the color stuck. Paper money sure came in handy. Imagine having only coins when you pulled into the Sears parking lot to buy a refrigerator. Now that I think of it I wonder if paper money is legal? Under Article I of the U.S. Constitution, Section 8 it says: "...Congress shall have the power to coin money..." It says nothing about printing paper money. I'll have to look into that. Another conspiracy with which to deal.

The earliest coins in the world were probably from the 11th Century BC in China. The earliest coins in western history were from Greece around 700 BC. The Romans got into coinage early on as well probably beginning around 300 BC. At first those of us in the west used hammers and anvils to bang out coins, while the Chinese cast their coins. By the way, the study of currency and coins is called numismatics. Remember that for the test.

Anyway, back to the future. There are four primary mints in the country. Can you name them? Philadelphia is numero uno. Then the Denver Mint, San Francisco and the West Point Mint, named so as it is close some American landmark whose name escapes me. Coins have a letter, a mint mark on them identifying them with where they were issued. Can you guess what letter coins made in Philadelphia bear? If you said "P" you are right. "D" was for Denver, "S" was for San Francisco, and "W" was for West Point. As Carl Sagan might have said, "Billions and billions of coins are produced every year at these mints".

What I found particularly interesting was a list of obsolete US coins. Did you know we offered the following at various times in our history? Half cent (up to 1857) Steel cent (1943 cause copper was used up in the war) Two-cent and three-cent piece (up to 1873) (up to 1873) Half dime (up to 1878)\ Twenty cent piece (up to 1889) Gold dollar Quarter eagle ($2.50) (up to 1929) Three-dollar piece (up to 1889) Half eagle ($5.00)

Eagle ($10.00)

Double eagle ($20.00) (up to the 1930s) (2009) (1877 and 1915) Half-union ($50.00)

Well, now that we are so much more educated on money, I'm going to go out and see if I can find some. Have a good week!

HOWARD Hays As I See It

"It is evil things that we will be fighting against - brute force, bad faith, injustice, oppression and persecution—and against them I am certain that the right will prevail."

British P.M. Neville Chamberlain, September 1939

It's not the most pressing issue, but since Greg Welborn occasionally brings up the name, as he did again in his column last week, it's time for somebody to stick up for Neville Chamberlain. He's been getting a bum

His name's become synonymous with "appeasement", and the "peace for our time" pronouncement made following his meeting with Hitler, ceding half of Czechoslovakia, at Munich in 1938. A recent biography by British historian David Dutton, however, provides some Britain was in no shape to go to war with Germany over Czechoslovakia (or anything else, for that matter) in September 1938. Its army had maybe two divisions, neither prepared for war on the continent. The rearming of its navy and air force following WWI had barely begun, while Hitler had been doubling and re-doubling the size of his Luftwaffe.

Prime Minister Chamberlain's military advisors warned they weren't ready to go up against Hitler right then - but they would be, and could prevail, if they had more time to prepare. Britain put the following months to good use - focusing on turning out fighter planes with newly-developed radar.

Aside from a ready military, another thing Chamberlain lacked was willing allies to join the fight. The U.S. had its neutrality laws (binding even the president), and Chamberlain had doubts about France. As for the British, still smarting from the Great War twenty years earlier and familiar with newsreels of the devastation raining down on Spain from the Luftwaffe, they wanted no part of it. And Czechoslovakia, after all, was just one of those made-up countries from the last war. When Chamberlain returned from Munich proclaiming "peace for our time", Britain cheered.

When Hitler took Prague in March 1939, Chamberlain doubled the size of their National Guard, and the next month oversaw Britain's first peacetime draft. In September, after 11 months of strengthening their military following Munich, Britain went to war against Germany.

The costs of the Second World War can never be overstated. It's disturbing to consider, however, what course history might have taken had the war begun with the defeat in Central Europe of whatever there was of the British military In September 1938.

Greg brought up Chamberlain in drawing a comparison with what could be President Obama's "legacy". The comparison may not be that far off. As Nick Baumann wrote in Slate, The maligned British prime minister did what we would want any responsible leader to do.' The president's responsibility is not to respond to whatever Republicans are complaining about on Fox News, but to act as a "responsible leader" in protecting our country.

Under our Constitution, Congress has responsibilities, too - with one of the gravest being to declare war. When President Polk announced in 1846 we were at war with Mexico regardless of any involvement by Congress, Rep. Abraham Lincoln (R-IL) responded that "Kings had always been involving and impoverishing their people in wars . . . This our Convention understood to be the most oppressive of all Kingly oppressions; and they resolved to so frame the Constitution that no one man should hold the power of bringing this oppression upon us."

Agreeing with Rep. Lincoln's understanding of Congress' role, President Obama asked for its authorization to continue the war against ISIS. While acknowledging its responsibility, the Republican Congress made clear that rather than drafting the authorization themselves, the president would have to come to them with the specific language. They'd then have something new to go and complain about on Fox News.

The House in particular has responsibility for funding those institutions that keep us safe, like the Department of Homeland Security. Its Republican majority, though, is having too much fun holding DHS hostage in an attempt to kill President Obama's actions on immigration - building on their own legacy of threatening to shut down the government or ruin our nation's credit rating if they don't get their way.

It's hard to say what President Obama's ultimate "legacy" will be in foreign affairs. At least, we know it won't be anything like George W. Bush's: 175,000 veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan who are at least 70% disabled – with 30,000 of those 100% disabled; 6,500 soldiers and marines with "severe penetrating brain injuries"; 1,700 with one or more limbs amputated; an unprecedentedly massive and barbarous terrorist organization, ISIS, enabled to establish itself largely because of the billions in advanced weaponry left behind from the adventures of George W. Bush.

To encapsulate the president's "legacy", Greg offers the quote, "leading from behind". It was used by an Obama advisor in an interview with The New Yorker, but originated with Nelson Mandela in his book, "Long Walk to Freedom"; describing a leadership concept akin to a shepherd remaining in control of his flock while walking behind it.

It'll be interesting to see which quotes remain as encapsulations of the Bush legacy; it might be "We will, in fact, be greeted as liberators." (Dick Cheney), or maybe "It could last six days, six weeks. I doubt six months." (Donald Rumsfeld). After all that, it would be satisfying enough if the foreign policy legacy of President Obama simply amounted to Nick Baumann's characterization of Neville Chamberlain; that he "did what we would want any responsible leader to do." And especially with this Republican Congress, we should be thankful for any indication there's a grown-up in the room.

CALIFORNIA'S TRAIN RIDE INTO THE ABYSS

national events. While there's some notable legitimacy in that level. Now's as good a time as any to return to our California shores and explore how our state is doing. To hear Governor Brown tell the story, we're doing great. He's upbeat about the future, taking credit for turning deficits into surpluses, and bullish about the benefits to be derived from additional massive expenditures into "infrastructure". Is it real? Have we really turned the corner? Is our future really golden? Sadly, no. Despite the most heart-felt belief in the fantasy that all is good, California is heading for a disaster. According to the Governor himself, his biggest achievement is turning an $18 billion budget deficit into a $2 billion budget surplus. It's true enough that tax receipts are up. The combination of economic recovery, the stock market boom and the "temporary" tax hike voters approved in 2012 have lifted revenues. So what could be wrong?

Despite the gush of new revenue, California is still running a real deficit as large as the ones that threatened to cripple us in the past. State government practices accounting techniques that would put the managers of a private company in jail. These accounting practices allow the state to simply ignore the deterioration in public pension plan liabilities that should be covered each year.

Pensions are nothing but promises to pay retirees in future years. They represent a liability the state must meet. Private companies that offer pensions are required to contribute to the pension each year to make sure that the liability doesn't become unfunded - a fancy word meaning not enough money to meet the liability.

A recent Stanford University study determined that California's unfunded pension liabilities for public employees is roughly $300 billion. That's a huge number, even for a state our size, but the more dangerous issue is the fact that this unfunded liability is increasing each year by about $17 billion. It's increasing because the state is not contributing into the pension plan each year the money it should contribute.

California is simply ignoring the requirement to pay $17 billion. It's an expense that government accounting rules somehow allow the state to skip. Here's the real math.

Current Budget "Surplus" Less: Pension Expense Being Ignored: Real Budget Deficit

$2 billion -$ 17 billion $(15) billion

In the real world where you and I live, if we keep racking up real expenses, we really have to pay them; we can't just ignore them. There's a host of federal laws which force private companies to cover their pension expenses. They can't ignore them and pretend they don't exist any more than you and I can. But Jerry Brown can, and the press lets him get away

Each year, this real deficit adds to our state's debt. We, our kids, and our grandkids will have to pay off this debt. It won't just go away. The situation becomes worse if the "temporary" tax hike voters approved in 2012 is really temporary. If it goes away (that's the meaning of the word temporary), the budget deficit will worsen.

Why is this important? Why is this more than just an accounting debate? The answer is that behind these numbers are real people who will bear the burden; real people who will have to pay the debt. Ignoring the people behind these numbers is another one of Governor Brown's massive failures. He has failed to stabilize the state's revenues. Currently, approximately 1% of the people pay 50% of the taxes. No small group like this should be responsible for paying this much of the burden. Recent statistics show that these people are leaving California, and as they do, the deficits will grow worse; the burden on the rest of us will also grow worse.

Real people, young people trying to start out, trying to survive, trying to get ahead in California, will be hurt. More and more they will not be able to survive or to get ahead. The truth is that Governor Brown has presided over the fastest deterioration in our fiscal structure in state history.

The fact that Governor Brown is claiming credit for artificial improvements in the face of real deterioration just proves how much of a politician he is. The fact that his response to all this is to trumpet an unneeded, overpriced high-speed train to nowhere, which will add even more to the deficit, shows how little he really cares about Californians. Polls show that he is the most popular politician in the state right now, but polls can be fickle. When the charade is over, Californians will realize they're on a train ride into the fiscal abyss.

This year, the Chinese New Year begins on February 19th and lasts for 15 days ending with the Lantern Festival. The Chinese Calendar has a 12-year cycle with an animal representing each year. This year it is the sheep or goat.

Each day of this festival has its own traditional customs and events, and more modern ones too, depending upon where people live. Join in the fun by making a dinner or going to a parade or other event celebrating the Chinese New Year.

Read the clues to learn about some of the days of the Chinese New Year and to fill in the puzzle:

- 1. On the first day, the New Year, people visit _____ members bringing small gifts of tangerines or oranges. Treats are served on a "Tray of Togetherness" - a plate with 8 (a lucky number) sections, each holding a different treat. 2. People pay respects to Tsai Shen, the God of Wealth, on the second day. This
- day is the birthday of all dogs, so people _____ their pets and strays as well. 3. The third day is filled with people visiting _____ of family whom have died.
- 4. People welcome their gods into their homes on the fourth day by lighting incense and _____. People pay respects to their in-laws. On the fifth day all businesses reopen. People eat _____
- 6. People visit temples, family and friends on the sixth day. Some throw out old _____ to get rid of the 'ghost of poverty.' 7. The seventh day is the birthday of all people (traditional) and everyone turns
- one year older. People eat fish and very long _____ that stand for a "long life"! 8. On the eighth day large family _____ are held. People pray to the Jade Emperor at midnight. 9. The ninth day is the birthday of the Jade _____ – people sing songs to honor him.
- 10. On the thirteenth day, people eat no _____ and pay respect to Guan Yu, the God of War and Success 11. People get ready for the Lantern Festival, practicing _____ dances – a dance done by a team in a line, holding up the dragon's head and long body on poles. Shops sell lanterns.
- 12. On the fifteenth day or the last day, the Lantern Festival, people watch fireworks, parades and dancing, and carry _____ throughout the streets.
