CIVIC CLUB TURNS 70!

On February 12th, members of the Sierra Madre Civic Club welcomed past presidents to a gala celebrating 70 years of service and philanthropy. Tables were decked with sparkling birthday decorations, balloons adorned the room, and a lovely birthday cake was served.

In keeping with the theme "You Light Up My Life", each of the past presidents was given a candle as she was introduced. Of those in attendance, the earliest past president was Ann Tyler, a charter member of Club who was president in 1951-1952 and the past president who came the farthest to the celebration was Judy Young Zaretzka, president in 1995-97, who joined us from Arroyo Grande.

The Sierra Madre Civic Club is a civic and philanthropic organization. Members raise thousands of dollars every year that is given away in educational scholarships and in grants to community organizations. You'll find us working at Huck Finn Day, the Mt. Wilson Trail Race, Fourth of July Games in the Park, the Wistaria Festival, Concerts in the Park, and other community wide events. We meet the second Thursday of every month at 7:30 PM in the Hart Park House.

CITY OF SIERRA MADRE / VOLUNTEER IMPACT SOFTWARE AVAILABLE TO SM COMMUNITY GROUPS

Dear Sierra Madre Community Group Members, Sierra Madre is happy to announce a new volunteer database made specifically for non-profit community groups and organizations. The new Volunteer Impact database is now available for Sierra Madre non-profit community groups to use. Volunteer Impact is a forum, for all Sierra Madre community groups, to announce volunteer opportunities to existing volunteers and the general public. If your group is hosting a specific event and is in need of volunteers, you can now post about the event on Volunteer Impact and those interested in volunteering can sign up. Additionally, Volunteer Impact keeps a log of each volunteers' hours worked and allows the community group easy access to it.

This is a shared database created for all Sierra Madre nonprofit organizations. If a non-profit community group or organization is interested in operating a private database, there is an option to create and maintain a separate database for an annual cost of $300/per database.

A staff member would like to attend one of your meetings, to better explain this new database and to answer any questions you may have. In the meantime, if you have any questions please feel free to contact me.

Thank you

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"Eat – Sleep – Scoot Repeat!'

Saw six deer ambling down Alegria early Tuesday morning. They sniffed and nibbled, turned right up Mountain Trail, wandered through turtle park and leapt up the hillside. The very hillside where my son fell into a patch of poison ivy (oak?) and burst into a misery the likes of which he had never imagined. Calamine lotion didn't do nearly enough and he and I sat out the wedding of one of his cousins because he was too miserable to get out of the car. Good times!

The fig trees are showing tiny green leaves at the ends of their branches, and the tomatoes on my volunteer tomato, which came out of nowhere, is five feet high and growing, are getting bigger. Camellias are blooming all over town, we still haven't trimmed back our roses and the naval oranges this year have never tasted so sweet. We are scanning the skies for rain while, somewhat guiltily, enjoying the sunshine and mild weather. If only we could figure out a way to get all that snow out of Boston and plop it down on our mountains, the drought problem would be solved, and it would help those poor people back there who are spending all their time shivering and shoveling.

We're sure you've noticed them around town the last few years, people in the eight to twelve age group hurtling down our streets on Razor scooters. They're wearing helmets, which is good because that's the law in Sierra Madre, and heading for school with the speed of light. Those babies are fast! Walking Sierra Madre this week my favorite Valentine and walking buddy, John, and I took a serious look into the window at Left Coast Scooters at 183 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. right next to Sierra Madre Pizza Company, and discovered a whole new world! Chatting with Jim Edwards, owner of Left Coast Scooters, I discovered that scooters seem to have boldly gone where skateboards used to go. Scooters, as seen at Left Coast, are gorgeous in iridescent peacock colors, and scooter seekers can custom build their own scooter or go for a "complete" which is a prebuilt scooter. Left Coast was full of young gentlemen in the aforementioned 8-12 age group, who were helping Jim out with all sorts of useful information while we chatted.

Just to fill you in, the Razor scooter is a distributed by The Sharper Image in 1999 and became extremely popular in the next year or so. The hot brands are Envy, District Freestyle Scooter, Dominator and several others which are available at Left Coast, along with some great t-shirts, accessories, and the latest scooter magazines.

Jim Edwards opened the doors to Left Coast last November and tailors his hours there to work around his other business, which is being a General Contractor. He lives close by in Hastings Ranch and his son (10) and daughter (12) are in our local schools. His hours fit school schedules, too, when all his young clients can come hang out and see what everybody's riding. This new breed of scooter is built much tougher than the original Razor scooters, specially designed to take abuse, like jumping and skatepark riding. There's a whole world of competition for scooter lovers, too. Locally, scooters are welcome at the skatepark on Bonita in Arcadia, Monrovia skatepark on East Olive, and Duarte skatepark on Central. Sierra Madre frowns upon scooter riders zipping through the central business area, but pretty much elsewhere, scooter kids are good to go. Yes, helmets, elbow and kneepads are enforced at the skateparks, which seems like a very good idea.

Who's riding scooters? Jim says he gets kids as young as 5 right up to about 16 or so and they are really bonded to their scooters. Watching them ride in and out of Left Coast made me think of horseback riders in close order dressage work. The scooters are extremely maneuverable, the riders are fearless, and Left Coast is a popular after-school hang for local scooter guys and a gal or two. How much are we talking about here? Well, let's say a good one starts at $100 and goes

Jim is looking to host more scooter events and he will be donating prizes to the Sierra Madre Elementary School Jog-a-thon, which is planned for Friday, February 27th from 8:00 a.m. to noon on the SME Field. Go on in and say hi! Left Coast is open Mondays from 2:00-6:00; Tuesday-Friday: 3:00-6:00; Saturday Noon-6:00 and Sunday by appointment only. You can give Jim a call at 626-705-4120.

Lent has begun, looking toward Easter, and here's a new thought I came across this morning: Instead of giving up something for Lent, how about giving something to someone in need instead? Just saying!

Sierra Madre Police Blotter

During the week of Sunday, February 8th, to Sunday, February 15th, the Sierra Madre Police Department responded to approximately 306 calls

Monday, February 9th

At 7:10 am, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 100 Block of East Sierra Madre regarding a hit and run traffic collision. Upon arrival, Officers discovered that a vehicle parked along the street was struck and damaged by an unknown vehicle. Officers were unable to obtain any witnesses. By law, the driver of any vehicle involved in an accident resulting only in damage to any property, including vehicles, shall immediately stop at the nearest location that will not impede traffic or jeopardize the safety of other motorists and leave in a conspicuous place on the vehicle or property damaged a written notice giving the name and address of the driver and notify the Police Department within the city wherein the collision occurred. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

Tuesday, February 10th

At 1:43 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 300 Block of Acacia Street regarding a residential burglary. Upon arrival Officers were informed by the victims that at around 11 am, the house was left locked and secured. Upon returning home at around 1:30 pm, the victim realized she could not find her cell phone that was left in the home and upon calling it, the cell went straight to voicemail. While looking for the phone, the victims went upstairs to search for it, when they then discovered the upstairs bedrooms had been ransacked. The victims went downstairs and checked all points of entry and discovered the lock for the family room sliding glass door had been removed. It was immediately discovered that numerous jewelry items and coin collection had been stolen. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

Thursday, February 12th

At 2:52 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the station lobby to take a theft report about an incident that occurred in January. Officers were informed by the victim that back on January 22nd, he bid on an item on an online selling site. The victim won the item in the bid and paid the suspect over $500 plus $16 for shipping. On January 27th, the victim received a package, which was fully intact and firmly sealed with packing tape, but the item he bought was not in the box. Upon contacting the suspect, he informed the victim that he placed the item in the box and that he was lying about not receiving the product. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

Sunday, February 15th

At 3:56 am, Sierra Madre Police conducted a traffic stop on a vehicle that was not compliant to code. Officers approached the driver, and immediately noticed she was nervous and had obvious burn marks around her lips. As Officers requested the driver to exit the vehicle to allow them to conduct the investigation out of a high traffic area, Officers noticed a small glass pipe in the driver's side door panel. Upon questioning if the vehicle contained anything illegal, the driver informed them that there was not. Officers inspected the vehicle and discovered a glass smoking pipe and a plastic container containing cocaine. Based on the Officer's findings, the driver was placed under arrest and the vehicle was towed. While being processed, Officers discovered an additional glass pipe inside the driver's shoe. The driver was subsequently booked and cited.

MONROVIA HIGH SCHOOL ROBOTICS TEAM ADVANCES TO WEST US CHAMPIONSHIP

Ten students from Monrovia High School and their purple robot "Sir Lancelot" were one of the top teams at the Los Angeles FTC (FIRST Tech Challenge) Regional Championship Tournament held in Monrovia this past Saturday. Along with seven other teams from across Southern California they qualified to advance to compete with 71 top teams from twelve western states at the West Super-Regional FTC Robotics Championship to be held at the Oakland Convention Center March 27-29. Teams at the West Super-Regional will compete for the chance to go on to the FIRST Robotics World Championship to be held in St. Louis in April.

The "Kings and Queens" team, made up of four seniors, one sophomore and five freshmen, designed and built their own 18 by 18 inch robot from t-slot channel, Plexiglas, and machined aluminum to compete with alliances of robots on a 12 by 12 foot playing field. They stand out not just for their driving skill, design prowess, and their robot's ability to quickly scoop up baseball-sized whiffle balls and deposit them in four-foot-high goals. Heads turn when they take the field dressed in their signature costumes of purple velvet gold-embroidered renaissance dresses for the girls and fur-trimmed black velvet jerkins with purple capes for the boys. They also spread the word of robotics design as they share their robot adventures with students around Monrovia as well as mentor other middle and elementary school robotics teams.

ALVERNO HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNAE RETURN TO MENTOR CURRENT STUDENTS ALUMNAE SPENT TIME MENTORING JUNIORS AND SENIORS ON FUTURE CAREERS

Sierra Madre, CA (February 19, 2015) - Twelve Alverno High School alumnae recently returned to campus to participate in the school's 8-Minute Mentoring Program and share their careers and work experiences with students.

Each of the mentors shared a different career for current Alverno students to consider as they begin to make decisions about college. Current professions held by the alumnae mentors included a marriage and family therapist, mediation judge and family attorney, event planner, dentist, police officer, veterinarian, outreach coordinator, assistant professor of oncology, program manager and program supervisor for different organizations, and Senior Specialist for the American Cancer Society.

"I thought the mentoring program was great for the students," said Lauren Capoccia '01, a Registered Nurse at Huntington Memorial Hospital. "A lot of them were unsure of what they wanted to study in college, let alone what career path to choose,a and I was no different when I was at Alverno. Even if they weren't interested in my career, one of the main points I wanted to get across was to make sure that whatever they end up choosing as a major in college or career path, that they truly are interested in the subject and enjoy their work."

"This was my first time participating in the program," said Diana Phillippi '78, Event Planner and Business Owner. "This is an exceptional opportunity for the students to learn about a variety of career options. As a result, I will be mentoring two of these young women on the event planning industry. I look forward to it being a win-win for all of us!

Alverno is fortunate to have over 4,200 alumnae in professions acros the country," said Julia V. Fanara, Head of School. "These women help to serve as role models for our current students and are examples of the ways that Alverno works to empower each young woman to be exactly the person she wants to be. We are extremely proud of their accomplishments and are always grateful for their continued support and commitment to their alma mater."

ALVERNO HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS ENJOY "THE YULE BALL" ALVERNO HOSTS ANNUAL WINTER FORMAL

Sierra Madre, CA – On Saturday, January 31 Alverno High School hosted its annual Winter Formal, "The Yule Ball," in the Villa del Sol d'Oro.

Winter Formal, an Alverno tradition, is the only all school formal dance at Alverno. Freshmen through seniors are invited to bring a date and enjoy the dance put on by Alverno's Student Union (ASU). This year's chosen theme was "The Yule Ball" and the Villa's 1920s décor served as a perfect complement to the theme.

After enjoying dancing, a delicious buffet of appetizers, and photos the evening ended with the announcement of Alverno's Winter Formal Court. Each class was represented by finalists who had been chosen through a larger pool of applicants. In order to be considered for Winter Formal, students were required to fill out an anonymous application and have an interview with ASU before each class voted on their princess at Winter Formal on Saturday, January 31.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show KINGSMAN: THE SECRET SERVICE REVIEW

The trailers for this film made it look like someone gave Michael Bay the chance to direct a James Bond movie. 'Kingsman' looked like a ridiculous spy movie ripped right out of the pages of a comic books, shamelessly marketed male teenagers. While the production value looked very high and everyone involved with the project had good résumés, I was not very hopeful for 'Kingsman'.

Gary, better known as 'Eggsy' (Taron Egerton), is not the most responsible. He has a sleazy mother, making his home life terrible, and he has even less of a social life. That is until he gets involved with the Kingsman, a secret service that his father used to work for and is looking for a new agent.

While I expected this to be a train wreck, 'Kingsman' actually turned out to be in the middle: not the worst movie ever but certainly not the best. The story is good enough for an action movie, the acting is ok as well (with the exception of the standout performances of Colin Firth and Samuel L. Jackson), and, in the end, what the biggest fault of the movie was the lack of relatable characters. There were no characters that I found myself sympathizing with throughout the course of the movie, which cause it to feel flat, and makes for a very average moviegoing

Stadium, Staples Center, the Rose Bowl - so I can honestly say that the FrontRunner (Santa Anita Park's restaurant and bar) offers top-notch food. It's not that I don't enjoy a $7 hot dog at Dodger Stadium, but there so many levels of enjoyment when dining at the racetrack. Sure, you can go to the concession stand to get a dog and a beer, but I recommend going to one of the many carving stations and getting one of the best sandwiches this side of the 405 freeway. Roast beef, corned beef, turkey, and ham all sliced in front of you - under $11, and you can get it your way. Rye bread? Sure, they have it. Pickles a must? You got it! I got mine with just mustard. Nothing beats getting a sandwich and a Firestone DBA and sitting in the Club House with an unobstructed view of the San Gabriel Mountains... and of course the ponies running in front of you.

• When I feel like a big shot and still want a killer view, I head over to the FrontRunner. Prices here are very reasonable for topnotch food and a wine list Wolfgang would appreciate. The kitchen is in great hands with Executive Chef Maranowski. I am a creature of habit, so on my first day I will head right up to the FrontRunner and order the "real deal" Chesapeake Lump Crab Cakes ($29.50) breaded with a panko crust (really enough crab for two to share). I have gone to a dozen or so "seafood houses" in Los Angeles and Orange County that serve crab cakes for $14, and let me give you a tip: pay more and be happy. I will start off the Creamy Clam Chowder ($9) - the menu says famous, so I have to have that, right? Another great starter is the caeser salad. For you steak fans, I suggest the Petite Filet Mignon ($28) with a side of asparagus

- win or lose that day, the price is a winner. Ahi Tuna is another popular dish - this one is seared to perfection ($26). Saving the best for last, the view from FrontRunner is a true postcard, and the bar, I am told, is the longest bar west of the Mississippi.

• There is a true "cool buzz" when hanging around FrontRunner. New to the scene is the The Gallop Out, located just past the finish line on the Club House level, a sports lovers dream come true with plenty of TVs, a private bar, and a menu that would make Charlie Wittingham proud! I suggest starting with a great stakes cocktail, representing all the "big" horse races of the year. You can't go wrong with a Mint Julep inspired by the Kentucky Derby or a Black Eyed Susan from the Preakness. I loved the Bavarian soft pretzel stick with gobs of mustard and cheese dipping sauce - add a Stone IPA for your perfect exacta. The menu is relatively small, but so was Seabiscuit, and I like that. The burger ($15), is one of the best I've had - bring your appetite; it's a half pounder on a brioche roll and comes with fries. They've also got a full bar and very user-friendly wine list. There's something for everyone to have a great day of dining at the Santa Anita Race Track. I hope you enjoyed the tour.

THE JOY OF YOGA WHY HOLD?

found, there are many different types yoga classes classes have a lot of poses, while others may have less. The pace at which the class flows can vary greatly. I've attended classes where it felt like I was tossed around in a windstorm, non-stop movement, with very few stopping points. It was hard to keep up. Alternately, I've experienced a lovely flow class that had incorporated longer holds into the poses. The effect produced by this was the exact opposite of a windstorm! It felt warm, solid, and energizing all at the same time.

There are a few reasons why we prefer to hold poses for a bit in class. First, we are able to find our alignment in the pose. Each supporting muscle can engage, we can line up our legs, hips, belly, arms, head and hands. Additionally, after we make our physical adjustments, we can settle into our breath and simply experience the pose. The mind will want to tell us to come out; we may have an itch, clothing adjustment or any myriad of other reasons. It's hard to stay!

Secondly, performing poses with longer holds RYT 500, Teaching at the lovely, Yoga Madre

As you've probably creates stability for the mind. Through practicing one-pointed focus, we begin to train the mind. It's this focused concentration that builds strength, stability and stamina. We often joke that we're "building character" as we hold a pose. This is so true. We hold steady in midst of challenge. Additionally, our heightened awareness not only empowers us, but it assists us toning our energetic body as well. We become aware, balanced, and self-regulating.

Ultimately, we stay in the pose for the benefits. Our physical body benefits from the muscular engagement and cardiovascular workout. Our mind and energetic bodies are simultaneously enlivened, toned and stabilized. Granted, there are poses that you don't want to hold indefinitely, but most of the standing poses and even cool down poses that release tension are best held. Start with 4 breaths, working on smooth and steady inhales and exhales, then work up to 6-8 breaths for more stamina. Advanced practitioners may take up to 12 breaths in a pose.

Try it and report back! See you in class.

LET'S FIGHT FATIGUE!

Dr. Tina is a traditional naturopath and nutritionist at Vibrant Living Wellness Center fatigue. Fatigue is be debilitating. For movement. some people they have to push through every day. For these same people, at the and exhausting day, sleep is yet another challenge. Oddly, for many people the more exhausted they are during the day, the worse sleep at night. After a restless night of tossing and turning, the cycle begins again as the sun arises.

Feeling great and energetic requires reversing the things that contributed to the problem in the first place. Fatigue is something that gradually goes away so you have to be committed. Supporting your body with lots of fresh fruits and vegetables which will improve your body's immune system will greatly aid in restoring normal energy levels. Here are 5 more things that you can do to get started on a path of eliminating fatigue.

1. Cut back on caffeine.

Adrenaline is what gives athletes that winning burst of energy and also gives a person the strength to lift a car that has rolled onto a child. Adrenaline is the source of our "fight-or-flight" response, which enables us to run for our lives if the need arises. Caffeine stimulates your adrenal glands to produce this fight or flight response. When the over stimulation of your adrenals wears off you feel fatigue, and possibly irritability and headaches. If you are constantly using caffeine you are keeping your body in "flight-or-flight"

2. Try to relax.

frustrating and can 3. Generate feel good hormones through

Endorphins are the "feel good" chemicals induced by exercise. Of course, you can be so fatigued that doing anything seems impossible which is a real "Catch 22" because moving is needed to eliminate end of each long fatigue. We need to be physically tired as well as mentally or emotionally. A simple walk can be the first step. Once you have established a routine, begin to walk farther or slightly faster. Yoga is another great option to get your body moving again and to relieve fatigue.

4. Try to develop good sleep habits.

Our bodies need a mini tune-up daily. Sleep, especially deep sleep, is when our bodies do this repair and maintenance. There are many things you can do to promote a good night's sleep. Once you have done 1, 2 and 3 above to improve your odds of sleeping well then try to; establish a schedule, don't eat too close to bedtime, and keep your bedroom as dark as possible.

5. Embrace whole food or herbal therapy instead of drug therapy.

If you are taking any type of drug therapy, be aware that it may actually be contributing to fatigue. Nutritional deficiencies can make it difficult to get your energy levels back even when you are doing all of the above. There are whole food and herbal supplements that feed the body what it needs to overcome fatigue without side effects. Herbs can help relieve the symptom of fatigue directly by enhancing immune function, balancing hormones, and stimulating the healing systems of the body.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

LOVE 'EM & LEASH 'EM

As a youngster growing up in a rural setting in the deep south, I was lucky enough to have had lots of farm animals and domestic pets throughout my childhood. I remember enjoying the luxury of allowing my dogs to roam freely at will, knowing that they would most likely wander through the woods in our back yard, head off to the neighbor's house to play with their dogs and beg for left over scraps, then return

That was indeed a luxury of freedom for both myself and my pets, and I imagine there are many Sierra Madre locals who have similar childhood memories of their own. Those were the days, weren't they? With acres of undeveloped land surrounding us, ample space between our homes, and a heck of a lot less traffic passing through our neighborhoods, the risks were minimal for a pet with a nose for wanderlust and the desire to explore the great outdoors. It just seems natural, right? Well, unfortunately the open acreage and broad land gaps that used to exist between homes have shrunk dramatically in most parts of America over the years, and few & far between are the moments of silence without a vehicle passing swiftly by on the boulevards and streets that divide our properties.

Lets face it folks, as residents in America, or at least most certainly in Los Angeles County, the days of "free-range" pet ownership are far-and-away long-gone. Not only is it extremely risky to allow a dog to run free these days, it is also against the law. Pet owners who live in Sierra Madre and other parts of LA County should now know better than to think it is OK to let their dogs roam off-leash.

I learned my lesson several years ago, while living in Hermosa Beach with my dog, "Lady". She was a friendly pup, so I was never concerned that she might hurt anyone, and at the time it never dawned on me that she herself could be hurt by roaming free. I lived 2 blocks from the beach, and I loved to let "Lady" go play on the sand during the off-season months when there was minimal traffic and there were few tourists in town. One day, I let Lady go and a cop stopped and cited me for having my dog offleash. The leash laws were new to me, so I was taken very much by surprise when I was told I had to take a day off work to appear in court and pay a fine. That was the last time I ever allowed my dog to roam

Although I admit that it seemed ridiculous at the time, I have since learned to respect the leash laws, particularly in LA County (one of the most densely populated places in the entire US) and I guess I have become a self-appointed advocate for full compliance, mostly for the sake of the animals. While we would all love to think that our own dog is smarter than most; smart enough to stay out of the street and behave properly no matter what, it is simply an unsafe assumption that amounts to nothing less than negligence.

A domestic dog is a creature driven more by instinct than taught intelligence or allegiance to it's master, regardless of how much training he has received. In fact, the human's delusion of owning the perfectly obedient dog is an excellent example of how, in some ways the dog is indeed smarter than the human being. No offense to those responsible owners who have taken the time to properly train and discipline their pets, it's just that humans need to come to grips with the fact that a canine will do what comes naturally to itself, and much of the time the instinctual behavior of the canine is not in tune with the natural behavior of the human being.

Even a well-trained, very obedient domestic dog harbors a tendency to chase a squirrel scrambling up a tree, a bird taking flight, or a cat meandering by on the opposite side of the road, and when he does see such playful prey within his proximity, his instincts are likely to override any obedience training he may have had, prompting him to cross the street and take chase after whatever it was that caught his

It only takes one time for a fast-moving vehicle to pass by the wrong place at the wrong time, to end the life of a beloved pet, so I say set your "pet pride" aside, and take proper precautions. The risks are simply not worth it, and it would be you, not your dog to be blamed if such a tragic accident should happen. A truly loving, caring pet owner will always protect their pet from harm, and that kind of unconditional love includes educating ones-self and forfeiting some of the freedoms that we would all love to enjoy, such as roaming off leash like we did in the good old days. If you love them, you will leash them!

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND??

To share quality time with? Timo is a handsome, friendly American Staffordshire terrier mix, estimated to be about 4 years old, weighing around 47 pounds. Timo has a sleek, short black coat with white highlights. His grooming requirements are quite simple – just an occasional bath and brushing will keep him looking and feeling his best.

The first thing you will notice about Timo are his eyes - one sable brown and one ice blue. They give him a unique look all his own, and they are clear and alert as he takes in the world around him. He is an intelligent dog who likes to sniff and explore. Timo enjoys going for walks and has a medium energy level, is very easy to handle and is manageable on the Timo has the energy to be a great hiking or running companion, but he can also enjoy some quiet relaxation time with his family. He is happy to take a break and lie on the grass next to his walking buddy, and is able to sit quietly after he rolls on the grass and does a belly crawl stretch.

Timo would do best in a home where he has regular exercise and a large yard, and where he would be part of the family with a nice, soft bed near his people at night. Timo needs to get some training to live up to his potential to be a great pet, and to channel his energy appropriately. He wants to be a good dog, and with the right patience and guidance, he will be some lucky family's forever best friend. Please come in to meet Timo – he is waiting for the right match – maybe it can

He currently resides at the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society located at 851 E. Grand Avenue in San Gabriel. We are located off San Gabriel Blvd., north of Mission and south of Las Tunas.

To arrange a 'Meet and Greet' with Timo, please stop by any time from 10:00am to 4:30pm Tuesday thru Sunday.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: CATFISH AND THE BOTTLEMEN – 'THE BALCONY'

By Sean Kayden

North Whales. The quartet

has been piloting the UK indie rock circuit for several years with a few EPs under their belt. This past year, Van McCann (lead vocals), Johnny Bond (lead guitar), Benji Blakeway (bass guitar) and Bob Hall (drums) have performed at numerous music festivals throughout the UK. Next month will mark their US debut LP, "The Balcony." Caught somewhere in between emerging UK acts such as Arctic Monkeys and The Vaccines, Catfish and The Bottlemen have a distinguishing quality that differentiates themselves from the pack. McCann noted that both Oasis and The Strokes have inspired him, in which some circumstances you can hear the influences bleed through the band's material. Catfish and The Bottlemen have been touring extensively and their hard work is paying off. "The Balcony" is a record filled with pent-up anger that displays extensive, spiraling choruses best suited for stadiums from my perspective. The path being traveled on isn't anything quite new yet the way Catfish and The Bottlemen are going about it feels organic and authentic. Their addictive, raw, and immensely fervent rhapsody signifies the workings of seasoned musicians and still
The song feels appropriately titled with commanding this is merely just the beginning for Catfish and the Bottlemen.

"Homesick" leads "The Balcony" with a soft opening before bursting with vigor. At two and a half minutes, it's a terrific opener setting the stage for what's to come. "Kathleen" is one of various singles the band has released over the past year. It's a razor sharp track with sawing guitars and heart pounding drums. Instrumentally it sounds like a Kings Of Leon track that's paired with a British accent. McCann posses weathered, but self-confident vocals. "Pacifier" is a colossally sweeping endeavor that deliveries spirited melodies and huge guitar hooks. "Hourglass" is a barebones acoustic track, the only one found here. It's Catfish and The Bottlemen squarely placed right dab in the middle of the album. "Business" explores themes of young love infused with hailing from Llandudno, a lyricism leaning toward alcohol and nostalgia. Slick guitars, swift drums, and an instrumental structure with impetus, "Business" makes all the right choices from start to finish. "Fallout" soars and dazzles with its final minute being utterly dance worthy. As the drums pound, your head goes up and down, side to side feeling once again alive. "The Balcony" for all it's deeply rooted rage, longing, and intensity makes one feel very alert within one's own ever changing (or seemingly never changing) surroundings. 'Sidewinder" is a strong addition with transcendent guitar riffs and fantastic bass lines. Catfish and The Bottlemen explore both poppier and harder rock echoes that ultimately offer the record a keen sense of balance. The longest track is the closer, "Tyrants." guitar riffs, assured vocals, and enrapturing drums. The guitar solos toward the end completely rivets one's undivided attention as the record comes to an absolutely exhilarating conclusion. At eleven tracks and a few seconds over 37 minutes, "The Balcony" proves to be a great leap forward for a band exposing tons of potential and room for progression. If you're looking for something fresh and electrifying, "The Balcony" will positively fit the bill.

THEY KNOW EVERYTHING ABOUT YOU: HOW DATA-XCOLLECTING CORPORATIONS AND SNOOPING GOVERNMENT AGENCIES ARE DESTROYING DEMOCRACY by Robert Scheer

The book is a groundbreaking exposé of how government agencies and tech corporations monitor virtually every aspect of our lives, and also a fierce defense of privacy and democracy. The revelation that the government has access to a vast trove of personal online data demonstrates that we already live in a surveillance society. But the erosion of privacy rights extends far beyond big government.

Intelligence agencies such as the NSA and CIA are using Silicon Valley corporate partners as their data spies. Seemingly progressive tech companies are joining forces with snooping government agencies to create a brave new world of wired tyranny. Life in the digital age poses an unprecedented challenge to our constitutional liberties, which guarantee a wall of privacy between the individual and the government. The basic assumption of democracy requires the ability of the individual to experiment with ideas and associations within a protected zone, as secured by the Constitution. The unobserved moment embodies the most basic of human rights, yet it is being squandered in the name of national security and consumer convenience. Robert Scheer argues that the information revolution, while a source of public enlightenment, contains the seeds of freedom's destruction in the form of a surveillance state that exceeds the wildest dream of the most ingenious dictator. The technology of surveillance, unless vigorously resisted, represents an existential threat to the liberation of the human spirit.

one of television's most respected broadcasters interweaves the story of his life and career with lively firsthand tales of some of the most thrilling events and fascinating figures in modern sports. No sportscaster has covered more major sporting events than Al Michaels. Over the course of his forty-plus year career, he has logged more hours on live network television than any other broadcaster in history, and is the only play-by-play commentator to have covered all four major sports championships: the Super Bowl, World Series, NBA Finals, and the Stanley Cup Final. He has also witnessed first-hand some of the most memorable events in modern sports, and in this highly personal and revealing account, brings them vividly to life. Michaels shares never-before-told stories from his early years and his rise to the top, covering some of the greatest moments of the past half century, from the "Miracle on Ice" (the historic 1980 Olympic hockey finals) to the earthquake that rocked the 1989 World Series. Some of the greatest names on and off the field are here, Michael Jordan, Bill Walton, Pete Rose, Bill Walsh, Peyton and Eli Manning, Brett Favre, John Madden, Howard Cosell, Cris Collinsworth, and many more. Forthright and down-to-earth, Michaels tells the truth as he sees it, giving readers unique insight into the high drama, the colorful players, and the heroes and occasional villains of an industry that has become a vital part of modern culture

My Sunshine Away unfolds in a Baton Rouge neighborhood best known for cookouts on sweltering summer afternoons, cauldrons of spicy crawfish, and passionate football fandom. But in the summer of 1989, when fifteen-year-old Lindy Simpson, free spirit, track star, and belle of the block, experiences a crime late one evening near her home, it becomes apparent that this idyllic stretch of Southern suburbia has a dark side, too.In My Sunshine Away, M.O. Walsh brilliantly juxtaposes the enchantment of a charmed childhood with the gripping story of a violent crime, unraveling families, and consuming adolescent love. Acutely wise and deeply honest, it is a page-turning debut about the meaning of family, the power of memory, and our

SIMPLIFIED SMARTPHONE OPTIONS FOR TECH-SHY SENIORS

Dear Savvy Senior,

I'm interested in getting my 72-year-old mother a smartphone, but want to get one that's very easy for her to use. What can you recommend? Shopping Around

Dear Shopping,

There are several different ways you can go about getting your mom a simplified smartphone that's easy for her to use. Depending on how much you're willing to spend, here are some different options to consider.

Simplify a Used Phone

The cheapest way to set your mom up with an easy-to-use, uncomplicated smartphone is to get her a second-hand android phone, and install a senior-friendly "launcher app" on it, which is a user interface software application.

This type of launcher will turn the appearance and performance of most android smartphone into a simplified phone with big understandable icons for commonly used features (phone, text messaging, camera, contacts, etc.) and no excess clutter. Most launchers can also be customized to fit your mom's needs and preferences.

There are a variety of launcher apps available today that provide this type of technology and are completely free to use. Some popular options include, Necta Launcher (launcher.necta.us), Wiser (wiser-me.com), Seniors Phone (seniorsphone. mobi), Fontrillo (fontrillo.com) and Big Launcher (biglauncher.com), which also offers an upgraded

Or, if you have an old Apple iPhone that you'd like to convert, check out Silverline Mobile (silverline. mobi) that converts both Apple and androids for

Purchase a New Phone

If you're interested in purchasing your mom a new smartphone, you have options here too. For starters, you could purchase her a smartphone that's specifically designed for seniors, like GreatCall's Touch3 that costs $150 (with no contract) at greatcall.com or 800-918-8543. This is an android phone, made by Samsung, that has a 4-inch touchscreen and provides a simple menu list to often-used features like the phone, text messages, camera, pictures, email and Internet, along with

THE SNOW LINE

I'm not as up-to-date on current events as I should be, but I do know that, at least here in sunny

California, we're still in the throes of a historic draught. In contrast, your contacts and apps.

It also offers a variety of health and safety features like the "5Star app" that would let your mom speak to a certified agent 24/7 that could identify her location and get her the help she needs. "Urgent Care," which provides access to registered nurses and doctors for advice and diagnoses. And MedCoach," which sends medication reminders.

Another way you could go is to purchase her a standard/mainstream smartphone that provides a built-in "Easy Mode" or "Simple" feature in the phone's settings. This will let you convert the phone into a much simpler mode of operation, that provides larger, well labeled icons, to only commonly-used functions like the phone, camera, messaging, Internet, pictures, contacts and her favorite apps.

Smartphones that offer the "Easy Mode" or 'Simple" feature include the Samsung Galaxy phones, which are available through most cell phone carriers at prices typically ranging between $400 and $850 without a contract. Or, for a more budget-friendly option, the Huawei Vision 2 and Huawei Ascend Mate 2, which you can buy as an unlocked phone or through Consumer Cellular (consumercellular.com, 888-345-5509) for $80 or $225 without a contract. Consumer Cellular is a top-rated no-contract service provider that also offers discounts to AARP members.

A nice advantage of getting your mom a mainstream phone is that if she masters the Easy/ Simple mode (or gets bored with it), and is ready to expand her skills, you can always switch the phone back to the standard operation mode exposing her to more options. You can also add any number of health and safety features to her phone, like what the Touch3 offers, by downloading their apps at greatcall.com/medical-apps.

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

"TO KNOW AND NOT TO ACT IS NOT TO KNOW" -CHINESE PROVERB

When people learn what I do for a living they often designated agent to quickly gain access to your for my family." When I hear that, I get excited. I talk to them about why planning is so important, just how easy it really can be, and all the cool things they can do to truly protect and provide for their family and pass on a lasting legacy.

I make myself available to guide them, answer their questions, and help them in any way I can even if they don't do their planning with me. I'm just thrilled to be a small part of their journey toward greater consciousness. Some, then, begin the planning process. Many, however, never follow

So even though they've said they "know," I can only assume they don't really get it. They must not understand the consequences for their loved ones if they fail to plan. They must not grasp the immense peace of mind and satisfaction a good plan will bring into their lives. They must not appreciate the fact it is not too late for them to plan now but that one day, it will be.

If you've already handled your planning, congratulations. You're in the know. If you haven't yet begun your planning, are you ready to make the shift between just saying you know and really, consciously, actively knowing? If so, then here's what you need to know:

Will. If you're an adult and you don't have a Will if and when something happens to you, a judge decides who is in charge of your affairs and state law determines who receives everything you own. GET THE CREDIT YOU DESERVE

Mortgage applications are being reviewed far more thoroughly now than in the past, and your credit score should be 680 or higher to qualify for the best interest rates. So how do you determine your score, and know you're getting the credit you deserve?

Everyone is allowed one free credit report per year from the three reporting agencies (Experian, Equifax and TransUnion). Review the reports for accuracy and act quickly to correct any errors or Approximately 35% of your credit score is based on the timeliness of your payments. Make sure that no late payments older than seven years are still on your report.

If you have paid off loans or credit cards, a zero balance should appear on those accounts. Sometimes, agencies don't properly update those balances after settlement.

15% of your credit score is based on the length of your credit history, so make sure that the opening dates of all your accounts are accurate. Also make sure that the limits on your credit cards are correct, and keep the balances under 50% of those limits. Total debt accounts for 30% of your credit

Finally, think twice about closing credit card accounts with zero balances, because this negatively reduces your ratio of "available credit" to your debt. First, get the facts. Then, make corrections. Finally, apply for home financing with confidence!

DOG LETTERS TO GOD

My friends Australian Shepherd asked me to rerun this column from several years ago. She said I owed it to her. I told her I was going to do her a favor and tell everyone that Australian Shepherds are not from Australia. They were bred in Western America because they were great herders of sheep. So if you see her, don't start with the Aussie accent. Do dogs speak to God? I'm not sure but I'm fairly certain God speaks to dogs. Anyway here is a list of questions many of us believe made it past the Pearly Gates.

Dear God: I don't mean to complain but humans name cars after the jaguar, cougar, mustang, stingray and even the puny little rabbit. Every four-legged creature but dogs. How many of those other animals do you see with their heads out the window on a Sunday afternoon drive? Why can't Ford come out with the Mercury Maltese. Or Chrysler come out with the Dodge Doberman or something like that.

Dear God: More meatballs please, and less spaghetti.

Dear God: When dogs die and come back as humans, is that good or bad?

Dear God: I see people love to smell flowers but they never ever smell each other. What's with that? Dear God: When we get to heaven can we sit on the couch? Or is it the same old story?

Dear God: If a dog barks his head off in the forest and no one hears him, is he still a bad dog?

Dear God: Are there dogs on other planets? I howl at the moon and the stars every night, but all I hear back is the Irish Setter across the street.

Dear God: Is it true that in heaven, dining room tables have on-ramps? Dear God: We dogs have to learn and understand not only human verbal instructions, but hand signals, whistles, horns, beepers, electromagnetic energy fields and yes, even Frisbee flight paths. What do humans have to learn and understand? Have a good week!

OUR SUN HAD A CLOSE ENCOUNTER WITH ANOTHER STAR—JUST 70,000 YEARS AGO

Astronomers have identified the closest known flyby of a star to our solar system: a dim star that passed through the Oort Cloud about 70,000 years ago, coming within 0.8 light years of the Sun.

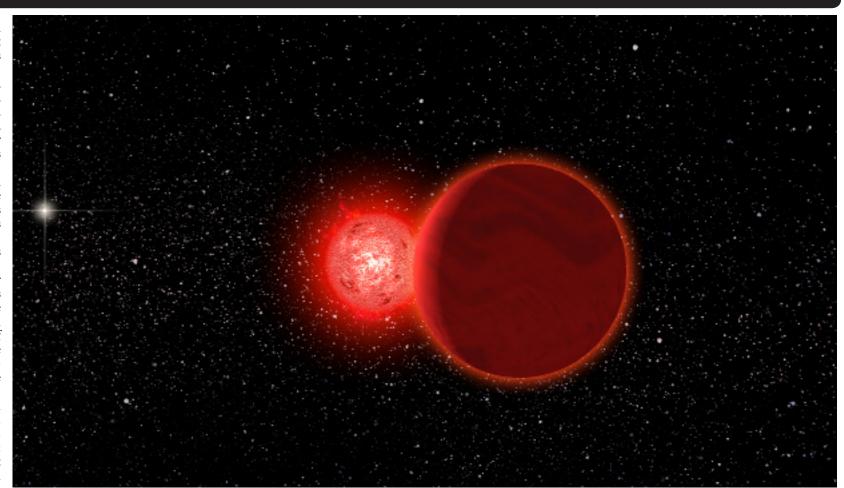

A group of astronomers from the U.S., Europe, Chile and South Africa have determined that a recently discovered dim star is likely to have passed through the solar system's distant cloud of comets, the Oort Cloud. No other star is known to have ever approached our solar system this close—five times closer than the closest star, Proxima Centauri.

In a paper published in Astrophysical Journal Letters, lead author Eric Mamajek from the University of Rochester and his collaborators analyzed the velocity and trajectory of a low-mass star system nicknamed "Scholz's star."

The star's trajectory suggests that 70,000 years ago it passed roughly 0.8 light years (5 trillion miles) from the Sun. This is astronomically close—our closest neighbor star today, Proxima Centauri, is 4.2 light years distant. In fact, the astronomers are 98% certain that it passed through what is known as the "outer Oort Cloud"—a region at the edge of the solar system filled with trillions of comets a mile or more across that are thought to give rise to longperiod comets orbiting the Sun after their orbits are

The star originally caught Mamajek's attention during a discussion with co-author Valentin D. Ivanov, from the European Southern Observatory. Scholz's star had an unusual mix of characteristics: despite being fairly close (only 20 light years away), it showed very slow tangential motion, that is, motion across the sky. The radial velocity measurements taken by Ivanov and collaborators, however, showed the star moving almost directly away from the solar system at considerable speed.

Mamajek worked with former University of Rochester undergraduate Scott Barenfeld (now a graduate student at Caltech) to simulate 10,000 orbits for the star, Of those simulations, 98% showed the star passing through the outer Oort cloud, but fortunately only one of the simulations brought the star within the inner Oort cloud, which could trigger so-called "comet showers."

While the close flyby of Scholz's star likely had little impact on the Oort Cloud, Mamajek points out that "other dynamically important Oort Cloud perturbers may be lurking among nearby stars." The recently launched European Space Agency Gaia satellite is expected to map out the distances and measure the velocities of a billion stars. With the Gaia data, astronomers will be able to tell which other stars may have had a close encounter with us in the past or will in the future.

Currently, Scholz's star is a small, dim red dwarf flaring events.

in the constellation of Monoceros the Unicorn, about 20 light years away. At the closest point in its flyby of the solar system, Scholz's star would have been a 10th magnitude star—about 50 times fainter than can normally be seen with the naked eye. It is magnetically active, however, which can cause stars to "flare" and briefly become thousands of times brighter. So it is possible that Scholz's star may have been visible to the naked eye by our ancestors 70,000 years ago for minutes or hours at a time during rare

The star is part of a binary star system: a lowmass red dwarf star (with mass about 8% that of the Sun) and a "brown dwarf" companion (with mass about 6% that of the Sun). Brown dwarfs are considered "failed stars"; their masses are too low to fuse hydrogen in their cores like a star, but they are still much more massive than gas giant planets like

Our freestanding fireplace has completely transformed our home. We would strongly encourage anyone without one already to seriously consider installing one. On very cold nights, we had been using those small electric heaters that really drive up your electric bill. The fireplace made the house really feel like a home, and we now are uncertain how we got along without it.

In our case, the transition to wood heating was fairly easy, because we had plenty of firewood readily available. We were actually doing a neighbor a of dead and fallen wood from his property. Our weekly cleaning of his yard, just for the cost of our the old, wasteful model.

STEPS TO HOUSEHOLD ENERGY EFFICIENCY

1. You can do without some electrical devices.

This will probably involve changing your behavior, for instance, thinking twice before switching on an electrical tool or appliance when a non-electric alternative will work just as well or better.

This step, too, requires changes in habit, but once you've understood the extra expenses caused by inefficiency and waste, you'll feel good about it -

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

NOW I LAY ME DOWN TO SLEEP

This year I celebrate another birthday. I hate to say it, but this is getting rather monotonous. Every year I celebrate my birthday. Of course, when the year comes around with no birthday to celebrate everybody will know what has happened.

The only thing I am wrestling with is which birthday am I going to celebrate? I have so many from which to choose, it is hard to really pick out the birthday I want to celebrate. Some people like to pick the newest birthday to celebrate. I, on the other hand, believe that since it is my birthday, I have the option and right to pick which birthday I am going to celebrate.

It will take me several months to decide, so I need to get started now to pick out which birthday to celebrate. In thinking this matter over, I have been tempted to celebrate my first birthday because I have no memories of that birthday whatsoever. I am not sure my parents could afford a camera, because there are no pictures of that first birthday. It is rather sad, but I think I can change that.

To celebrate my first birthday would be a rather awesome thing. The first birthday is celebrating the beginning of your life. However, the thing that makes it somewhat crazy is, at that time in life you do not know what to think about as far as life is concerned. After all, being only one year old does not give much time to contemplate what the world is all about. There is a certain degree of innocence in a one year old that fast fades as birthdays come and go.

As I think about celebrating my first birthday, I thought about sitting on the floor in diapers, drooling, while everybody is singing happy birthday to me. That picture kinda cancels any desire I have to celebrate my first birthday. Then I thought about celebrating my 100th birthday. That would be awesome. I may not be around when I am 100 years old and even if I was around at that time, I may not know what is going on around me. Now that would be the perfect time to celebrate.

Then another disturbing thought entered my head. Just like my first birthday on my 100th birthday, I could be sitting on the floor in diapers, drooling, while everybody around me is singing happy birthday. I do not think we want to go there.

Before I can make any real decisions along this line, I think I am going to have to take a little nap.

As I was taking my nap and just before I slipped off into la-la land, I thought about how old I really am. I am old enough so that I can take a nap in the afternoon without anyone thinking anything negative about it. If that is not something to celebrate, I don't know what is.

If I am going to celebrate my birthday, whichever one I choose, I will have as the focus of that celebration the wonderful privilege of taking naps. The older I get, the more accommodating an afternoon nap really is. That's worth

I can remember when younger, if caught taking a nap people made fun of me. "What's the matter with you," people would say as they pointed laughing in my direction.

To tell them I was just taking a nap did not do anything for my reputation.

Now, the situation is completely changed. I can have a nap in the morning and then another one in the afternoon and then, believe it or not, I can take a nap just before I go to bed for the night.

I feel sorry for those people who are not able to sleep at night. I am definitely not one of them. Sleep has not been a hobby to me; it is a full-time occupation I have mastered.

I am not quite sure how old I was when my parents taught me a little prayer for when you go to bed. It began, "Now I lay me down to sleep." If only I could remember how old I was when I learned that, I would celebrate that birthday. Nothing has been more beneficial to me than being able to say, "Now I lay me down to sleep," regardless of the time of day. What a wonderful thing it is to be able to sleep and not be harassed by "well-meaning friends" who just don't get

I have not come to any conclusion about which birthday to celebrate this year, but I do plan to celebrate this whole idea concerning sleep.

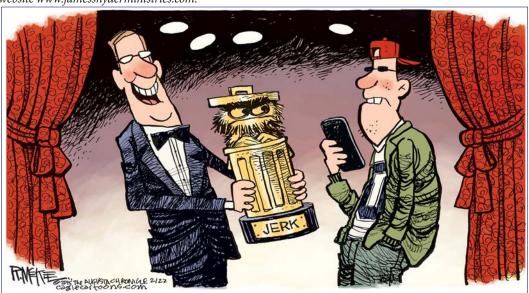

When I was very young, I would fall asleep whenever and not think anything of it. As I got older, it became embarrassing for someone to catch me napping. Then, I passed a certain milestone in life; I do not know which milestone it was, where I am not embarrassed anymore for anybody catching me asleep.

I think that is what I am celebrating this year. At my birthday party, right after the cake, everyone will join me in taking a nap.

David understood the importance asleep when he wrote, "It is vain for you to rise up early, to sit up late, to eat the bread of sorrows: for so he giveth his beloved sleep" (Psalm 127:2). What puts you to sleep is a good indication of what kind of person you are.

WHO IS SANDRA SIRAGANIAN?

A school board race might not seem as important as races for higher profile offices such as Congress and the Legislature. But a school board can have a direct effect on the lives of thousands of community children and their families. When voter turnout is small, it's all too easy for candidates with extreme views and questionable interests to make their way on to the school board. So who are these candidates running for school board? It turns out to be a very interesting question, in the case of District 6 in the Pasadena Unified School District, which includes Sierra Madre, East Pasadena, Chapman Woods, and my neighborhood, an area of unincorporated Los Angeles County between Pasadena and San Marino. Two candidates are running to replace the retiring Tom Selinske for our district's seat.

Larry Torres is National Board Certified Teacher with 29 years' experience teaching in public schools. He's served for 14 years on PUSD school site councils and holds a master's degree in education from Harvard. He has a campaign website and has appeared at multiple local candidate forums, providing district residents with plenty of opportunities to get to know him and his positions.

Torres' opponent is Sandra Siraganian, a Sierra Madre real estate agent. Siraganian doesn't have a campaign website, and she's not bothered to show up for any candidate forums yet, making it hard to get any sense of what she thinks about education or what kind of board member she would be. We do know that the Pasadena Foothills Association of Realtors has endorsed Torres for the seat. Why would Siraganian's own co-workers endorse her opponent?

When I was teaching journalism at USC, I told my students that the best way to get to know a candidate is to learn about the people donating money to that candidate. The City of Pasadena publishes campaign contribution reports from candidates for the PUSD board. It's still early, but Siraganian has submitted one contribution report already

And it's a biggie — $1,000 from Frederick "Fritz" Hitchcock, who was listed with a Las Vegas address on the contribution report. Despite the Vegas address, Hitchcock is the chairman of California Chamber of Commerce and lives most of the year in the Ritz Carlton Residences at L.A. Live, according to an interview published on the chamber website. He's a major player in Republican politics, having contributed more than $142,000 to federal and California state candidates and campaign committees alone just last year.

Why is a high-roller GOP player from Vegas and downtown LA dropping a grand on a Pasadena school board candidate? Let's take a look at Siraganian's own campaign contributions to get a better picture of her political beliefs.

Siraganian doesn't give nearly as much money to political campaigns as Hitchcock. But she did give nearly $400 to a Tea Party Political Action Committee in 2011. She also gave $250 to the California Lincoln Clubs in 2013, and $100 to Tim Donnelly's campaign for governor last year. Donnelly enraged even his fellow Republicans during the gubernatorial campaign by accusing fellow GOP candidate Neel Kashkari of supporting the imposition of Muslim Sharia Law in the U.S. Donnelly has had his own issues with the law — he was busted by the TSA in 2012 for trying to bring loaded handgun on a plane.

On the subject of guns, Donnelly sponsored a bill in the California Legislature to allow teachers and school janitors to have guns in schools. Does Siraganian support bringing guns into our schools, too?

Donnelly also was one of the founders of the "Minuteman" movement, a group of border-control vigilantes. The Los Angeles Times reported last year that Donnelly in 2006 reacted to that year's immigrant rights rally by saying, "We are in a war. You may not want to accept it, but the other side has declared war on us."

Does Siraganian agree with the candidate she supported? Does she really see immigrants as the enemy in a war? What does Siraganian think about the thousands of immigrant children and families she would be called to serve as a school board member? With her being a no-show at candidate events, it's hard to ask her that question.

But there is another clue online: Siraganian appears to have a Twitter account, though it's been inactive since late 2011. The posts reveal a political outlook very much in line with the Tea-Party views that her political contributions suggest. Here's a Twitter post on immigration:

Let's ignore the nonsense math and the dubious accounting. It's the use of the slur "illegal alien" that ought to concern voters. Yes, "illegal alien" is a slur -- a phrase intended to demean and dehumanize immigrants. In no other case do we use the word "illegal" to modify an entire person, instead of that person's acts. And the use of the word "alien" -- an old legal term -- further serves to make immigrants seem inhuman.

It's fair to question whether a candidate who so casually uses this slur can serve a school district where the majority of students are of Hispanic origin. PUSD voters deserve to know what Siraganian thinks about the use of this slur, today. Two other tweets also prompt concern:

🜣 🔩 Follow

The gay agenda has gone too far this time.

Sandra Siraganian

The Web addresses in those tweets no longer work, but the words in the tweets say enough to make voters want to ask questions. The phrase "the gay agenda" is almost exclusively used by people who oppose the efforts to allow gay and lesbian citizens equal rights under the law, including the freedom to marry.

The timing and content of the second tweet appears to reference an April 2011 controversy when Los Angeles Laker Kobe Bryant called a referee a "faggot." That's another despicable slur, and Bryant swiftly and appropriately apologized for using it. But many commentators, including many on the right wing of American politics, chose to joke about the incident, recalling the word's archaic meaning as "a bunch of sticks."

Voters deserve to hear what Siraganian thinks about the gay, lesbian, and bisexual teachers, parents, and students in the PUSD community. Will she protect their rights as citizens and their dignity as community members? Or will she make jokes about them, dismiss them with slurs, and insist that they head directly for the closet once they pass through the schoolhouse door?

We need to know what Sandra Siraganian thinks and believes. Her record paints a picture of a radical Tea Party member who has supported racists for public office and supported the casual use of terms that evoke racism and bigotry. Is this who Sandra Siraganian really is?

Maybe if she bothered to show up for a candidate forum, we could ask her.

HOWARD Hays As I See It

- H. L. Mencken

"In this world of sin and sorrow there is always something to be thankful for; as for me, I rejoice that I am not a Republican."

We should all be thankful, though being satisfied merely because things could be worse is sort of a cop-out. We should always strive for the best; not simply for better than what it otherwise might be.

In his column last week, Greg Welborn expressed concerns about the current state of our State of California – and well he should. He focused on the annual shortfall of $17 billion in the state's contribution to the public pension fund. It's reassuring, though, to note that CalPERS reported investment income for its fund of over $45 billion for FY 2013-14. This compares to a loss of $196 million in the first full FY after Gov. Jerry Brown took office.

Greg also notes that 1% of us pay 50% of the taxes. I assume he's referring to income taxes. Those percentages don't seem out of line in a state where, as of 2012, the average income of the top 1% ($1.6 million) is some 35 times the average of the other 99% ($45,800). I share Greg's frustration with this high-speed rail project. Especially after my having recently returned from Tokyo, it's hard to accept any excuse for why we remain so far behind the rest of the industrialized world in this area.

News from other states, however, gives us ample reason to be thankful we're here in California. Things could be worse – a lot worse. Here are some stories we might keep in mind when getting frustrated with the goings-on in Sacramento:

In Montana, State Sen. David Moore (R) proposed an indecent exposure law that could prohibit "tight-fitting beige clothing", explaining, "Yoga pants should be illegal in public, anyway."

In Árizona, State Sen. Jason Rapert (R) wades into foreign affairs by suggesting ISIS be taken care of with "a strategically placed nuclear weapon."

In Alabama, racial gerrymandering led to the recent Supreme Court decision on the Voting Rights Act and current voter ID laws threaten to bar hundreds of thousands from the polls. Still, Secretary of State John Merrill (R) suggested last week that, in regards to past acts of voter suppression, it's time to "forgive people" and "move on".

Mississippi State Rep. Gene Alday (R) explained he opposes funding for education and literacy because he comes "from a town where all the blacks are getting food stamps and what I call 'welfare crazy checks'".

North Carolina passed tax code revisions to count mortgage debt forgiveness as taxable income and to end the deduction for tuition expenses. These new taxes on college students and those trying to get back on their feet after losing their homes come two years after those with million-dollar incomes got tax cuts of $10,000 a year. Republican Gov. Pat McCrory and the Republican legislature are also targeting research centers in the University of North Carolina system; the Carolina Center for Public Service, Carolina Women's Center, Center for Black Culture and History, UNC Center for Civil Rights, UNC Institute on Aging, Center for Poverty, Work and Opportunity, etc.

The Education Committee of the Oklahoma legislature approved a bill banning Advanced Placement US History in its high schools. The bill offers instead its own list of "foundational documents" for study, including the Ten Commandments and speeches by Ronald Reagan (but nothing from any Democratic president since LBJ). The bill's author, Rep. Dan Fisher (R) complains that AP History fails to adequately address "American exceptionalism".

The Republican-led senate in Wyoming overruled its Republican governor and blocked Medicaid expansion in the state under the Affordable Care Act, thus denying coverage for some 17,000 of the state's uninsured.

Kansas Gov. Sam Brownback (R) is still trying to deal with the billion-dollar budget hole caused by his tax cuts for the highest-income residents. In addition to forcing disabled Kansans off Medicaid, now there are proposals to cut $127 million from education, $300 million from road repair and withholding $446 million in state pension fund payments (estimated to cost the state $3.7 billion in the long run). In the meantime, Gov. Brownback rescinded protections state workers had against discrimination based on sexual orientation. Thanks to Gov. Brownback, it's now okay to be fired because you're gay.

Shortly after speaking at a Washington D.C. conference on the importance of funding education, Louisiana Gov. Bobby Jindal (R) returned to push for cutting state colleges by $300 million – a third of their current budget. Meanwhile, despite a $1.6 billion budget shortfall, he continues doling out subsidies to those who don't need them (like $330,000 for each episode of "Duck Dynasty" filmed in the state).

Arizona Gov. Doug Ducey (R) proposed cutting $75 million from the state's universities, while earmarking $5 million for a private prison that even Maricopa County Sheriff Joe Arpaio calls unnecessary. Gov. Ducey received $10,500 in campaign contributions from the private prisons industry.

Legislation called the "Second Amendment Education Act" proposed in South Carolina would require all elementary, middle and high schools to conduct an NRA-developed course on the subject for at least "three consecutive weeks" per semester.

Former Republican State Senate leader Dale Schultz of Wisconsin offered this assessment of Republican Gov. Scott Walker's budget; "As soon as there was any revenue, [Walker] wanted to cut taxes. It's great for turning on a certain element of his base, but I'm not sure what it's doing for the average mother and father in Wisconsin." The state now faces a $2 billion deficit, and a proposed budget state officials call "nonsensical".

California faces serious problems. A look at other states, though, affirms Mencken's observation that "there is always something to be thankful for." Rather than "rejoice" about whatever our own individual political affiliation might be, we can at least be thankful our state isn't being run by those other guys.

GREG Welborn

JOBS FOR JIHADIS

President Obama headlined the White House Conference on Violent Extremism with an impassioned call for jobs, more jobs and lots of jobs so that terrorists won't feel the call to arms. The specifics were a bit fuzzy – clearly to be worked out later in the rumble tumble of various high-level committees – but I half expected to hear about programs to teach "Electronic Activation Systems for Non-bomb Makers", or "Aircraft Flight Dynamics for Pilots Who Want To Live". The Middle East is deteriorating faster than anyone could have imagined, and this president's solution is a Jobs-For-Jihadis bill.

What the Jihadis thought about the proposal is hard to tell. I'm not sure they had a chance to really monitor the conference's progress; they've been pretty busy lately. In just the last several weeks, Jihadis burned to death a Jordanian pilot. They have organized and carried out the simultaneous beheading of 21 Coptic Christians. They produced, edited and distributed fairly high-quality videos of both events. 17 caged captured Kurdish fighters were paraded through streets in Iraq, presumably on their way to the ovens. Yemen has all but fallen to the Jihadis, while in Niger and Chad they have captured more territory. Advancing their reach beyond the immediate Middle East, in efforts mocking the "Je Suis Charlie" movement in Europe, Jihadis destroyed all the headstones in a French Jewish cemetery and fired automatic weapons into a free-speech gathering in Copenhagen.

And the President of The United States calls for jobs. So accustomed are many Americans to hearing this president talk about jobs that his call had a momentary appeal to logic and common sense. Who doesn't support good jobs? Who doesn't support "good" government, another of the items within the President's program? It seems funny in the context of all that's happened – almost a bad joke Obama didn't quite delivery correctly. But President Obama was absolutely serious; he, and others on the left, honestly believe that the lack of good jobs and sound governance are the root causes of terrorism. Nothing could be further from the truth, and no other belief has hampered this president more from truly meeting the civilizational challenge he faces

It is a truism to say that jobs are a good thing, as it is to say that good governance is good. However, the opposite is not true. Lack of jobs and lousy government do not automatically lead people into terrorism. There are hundreds of millions of people on this planet who do not have decent jobs; they live in, or close to, poverty levels. There are equal numbers who live in countries managed terribly by their governments. These people are not killing and torturing others. Tibetans have lost their country to China. Many Indians live in poverty. Thousands of Christian Africans live in poverty and under oppression by their governments, and yet there is no large movement of any of these people toward terrorist tactics or terrorist organizations.

Terrorism is a choice made because of a value system, a philosophy, which justifies it and/or calls for it in the name of some perceived greater philosophical or religious good. Al Qaeda, ISIS, Boko Haram and other such groups are motivated by a deeply held religious belief. They are all Islamic, drawing credibility from real historical interpretations of the Koran which call for violence against the infidels. The Jihad is a movement within Islam that has powerful adherents and respected religious leaders who justify and support the violence in the pursuit of their religion.

We can trace the calls for Islamic terrorism back to Ibn Taimiyyah in the 14th century and, more recently, to Sayyid Qutb in the 20th century. This is a strong movement within Islam to return to the "literal teachings of the Koran and the Hadith". These people do not believe there is a middle ground between pure Islam and a life of decadence. Anything which is not purely, and literally, Koranic is by definition evil and must be stopped.

What this president does not understand is that modern terrorism is fighting more than a military campaign. This is not an effort to simply establish political bona fides in preparation for negotiations or an effort to simply win territory. Modern terrorism is fighting a philosophical and religious war; it seeks nothing less than to capture the soul of Islam. Theirs is a philosophy that directly challenges Judeo-Christian values and modernity. They recruit based not on the promise of jobs, riches or power, but on the promise that the Jihadi warrior will be doing the will of God and ridding the world of the infidel.

What's morbidly fascinating here is that only our president, among all the world's leaders, denies this reality. None of this is denied by leaders in the Muslim world. Most recently, Abdel Fattah Al Sisi, President of Egypt, addressed leading Islamic clerics at Cairo's al-Azhar university, telling them, "[they] need to revolutionize [their] religion". He meant by that to reclaim for Islam that vein of the religion which might reasonably be expected to join other major world religions as a true religion of peace. In so doing, he is all but admitting that today Islam cannot legitimately be called as practiced a "religion of peace". Only our president sees Islam for what he wants it to be, ignores the strains of that great religion which contradict his vision of it, and thus calls for jobs rather than for a full frontal assault against an enemy which will not accommodate, but will only surrender.

At a practical, real-politik level, our president must come to realize that the world needs moral leadership. This will not come from Russia, nor from China, and Europe is physically and emotionally spent. The world – including the parts of the Middle East that want to resist radical Islam – awaits the moral, philosophical and practical leadership that only the United States can provide.

Once again, we have arrived at an American moment – a time when our destiny is pushed upon us. Previous generations rose to that calling, to that demand, to that moral imperative. At a time such as this, the world needs more than a jobs program.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR SCHOOL BOARD ELECTION

I received a mailer from candidate Siraganian and it left me with one question. In this attack piece she stated that Larry Torres helped found City of Angles School and is the "curriculum" coordinator. She then pointed out that this school is one of the worst performing schools in the state and that the majority of the students there are below proficient in English and math. The piece was about curriculum standards and the implication was clearly that Mr Torres is somehow responsible for this purported poor

Although it appears that candidate Siraganian had done some research to come up with the statistics she cited, she left out one key detail: City of Angels is a Continuation School, one for "atrisk" kids that have not succeeded in normal schools. It serves all sorts of students, is a school of 2000 kids on San Pedro street in LA, composed of 90% minority population, abut 80% Hispanic, and serves kids that are among the neediest and most challenging of any student population in the country. Of course they have statistics far below normal schools, this is a school for kids that have burdens placed on them that most people couldn't bear. This is a school that does tremendous things for kids most in need.

All I could think of is one thing - What kind of person would put out such a bald faced half truth? How does this real estate agent believe she is qualified to question the effectiveness of a curriculum for a special needs school?

This is a total and clearly intentional misrepresentation, and I hope the average voter spends 5 minutes Googling "City of Angels School" to better understand just what kind of an institution this candidate is deriding while giving the impression that it is a normal school that is performing poorly because of Larry Torres.
