THE LIFE AND WILD TIMES OF AVIATRIX PANCHO BARNES

On Thursday evening March 19th, the Sierra Madre Historical Preservation Society will be presenting historian and raconteur Terry Terrell's talk and slide show on aviatrix and all-around character Pancho Barnes. Born Florence Leontine Lowe in 1901 in Pasadena, she was the granddaughter of Thaddeus Lowe of Mount Lowe Railway fame, and was the daughter of Pasadena wealth, brought up in a mansion in San Marino.

The Life and 🍴 Times of Aviatrix Pancho Barnes From Riches to Rags Four Times, One Lifetime A talk and slide show by Barnes historian and raconteur Terry Terrell Thursday, March 19, 7:30 p.m. Hart Park House in Memorial Park 222 W. Sierra Madre Blvd., Sierra Madre Free to the public

A real handful, a wild tomboy, she would go on to ride horses in the early movies, and later, when she took up flying, she would pilot for the movies as well. But that was just the beginning. Over the course of her lifetime (during which she would go broke four times), she would go on to be a rum-runner, a minister's wife, an adventurer, a record-setting air racer, a composer, a union organizer, a barnstormer, and, most famously, a saloon keeper in her legendary Happy Bottom Flying Club up near Lancaster, where she entertained her Hollywood friends and the test pilots from what would become Edwards Air Force Base. Among those pilots were Chuck Yeager and Buzz Aldrin, and their good times there, as well as Pancho Barnes's colorful personality, were memorialized in the movie The Right Stuff.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"Of Wistaria blooms, I caught sight, today, And ever since as violet of the deepest hue, My passion, grows ever more profound!" Ise

That pretty much says it all. Walking Sierra Madre this week, gearing up for the Festival this weekend, we've noticed, my horticultural expert walking buddy, John, and I, that the wistaria this year all over town is spectacular and the Vine should be absolutely amazing. Don't know if it's more rain or warmer days, but we saw a wistaria on Laurel today that was beyond beautiful and I hope they took a picture of it. It's all over town, just keep an eye peeled for those lovely purple blossoms.

This weekend's activities look to be a lot of fun. The music should be great, too. How can you miss with bands like The Gem City Jazz Cats and Chico's Bail Bonds! This year we're adding a vintage auto show. I love looking at those pampered beauties which have been restored beyond their wildest dreams.

We don't know about you, but Daylight Shifting Time last Sunday took the starch out of us for a couple of days. This is one of those concepts that has definitely outlived its usefulness. Did you know there are more auto accidents right after Daylight Shifting time than usual. Could it be because drivers are crankier than usual and a little off their game, too. Apparently, it was Benjamin Franklin's original idea to save on candles. Probably needed something to fill up a blank spot in "Poor Richard's Almanac." How did your daffodils do this year? Ours were a little disappointing...well, a lot disappointing, as they put up the usual stalks but produced few flowers. The Dutch Iris, however, are looking like they're planning to give us a bumper crop.

St. Patrick's Day is next week, March 17th, which reminded me of a really splendid family of folk singers, The Galligans, we knew a few years ago, who made an amazing Irish Soda Bread.

You might give it a try to go along with your corned beef and cabbage...

Put 3 cups of flour in a bowl with 1 TB. of baking powder, 1 tsp. baking soda, 1 tsp. salt.

Blend in 4 TB. of soft butter, add 1 TB caraway seeds, 1 cup of currants, 1 cup dark raisins, 1 cup golden raisins. Mix!

Then add ¾ cup of sugar, one beaten egg and 2 cups of buttermilk. (As few of us have 2 cups of buttermilk lounging around in our fridge, try this: 1 TB of white vinegar per cup of milk. Measure the vinegar into the cup then add the milk to get a correct measurement. Let it sit for about 10 minutes and...voila! buttermilk.)

Pour into a greased iron skillet or loaf pan. Bake 10 minutes at 400 degrees then 45 minutes at 350 degrees. Test with toothpick in the center for doneness. Let it cool a bit, spread with butter and enjoy. As Jim Galligan says on his recipe, "Grandma Galligan made it this way in Ireland, County Armagh, many years ago." He never said, "Faith and Begorra!" and probably nobody else Irish does either, but he was a fine singer and this is really good bread. Happy St. Patrick's Day!

We are going to have such great weather for the Wistaria Festival this Sunday. Be sure you plan your day to be there. We're going to check out the music, the Art & Garden Faire and the Vintage Cars. Sorry to see that Sierra Brigante is closed for remodeling so we won't be sitting out on their lovely patio enjoying a snack, a glass of something, and a spectacular view of our own personal mountains. Did you know we have one of those curbside libraries where you can take a book and leave a book? They're called Little Free Libraries and we admired ours this morning. This is such a fantastic thing to do. It's on Laurel, if you need a book or can give a book. Their selection was excellent, btw.

Sierra Madre Police Blotter

During the week of Sunday, March 1st, to Sunday, March 8th, the Sierra Madre Police Department responded to approximately 390 calls for service.

Tuesday, March 3rd

At 9:25 am, Sierra Madre Police responded to the station lobby regarding a suspicious incident that had occurred on her residence on the 300 Block of North Baldwin Avenue. The victim informed Officers that on February 28th, between the hours of 6:00 and 7:00 pm, she left her apartment to go to the laundry facility within the apartment complex. The victim stated she left her front door open with the screen door closed but not locked. She returned a few minutes later and discovered her front door closed with the deadbolt locked and the blinds on the front door drawn. The victim looked between the blinds of the front door and saw her back door was open, which was closed and locked prior to her leaving the apartment. Nothing appeared to be missing from the apartment and she never saw anyone enter or leave the area of her apartment. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

Wednesday, March 4th

At 10:18 am, Sierra Madre Police responded to the station lobby regarding an identity theft report. The victim informed Officers that the night before, she attempted to file her income tax online using an online software. During the process, she received an alert from the software which informed the victim that her social security number had already been used in an income tax return. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives

Saturday, March 7th At 5:50 am, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 400 Block of West Highland Avenue regarding a vehicle burglary. The victim informed Officers that earlier that morning while he was getting ready to leave for work, he noticed the driver side panel of his work utility truck was open. The victim inspected the panel and discovered several of his tools were missing. Upon inspection, Officers discovered the metal hooks to keep the panels in place were bent and appeared to be damaged to gain access to the interior. Fortunately, the victim had a working security camera and recorded the incident. The video displayed a newer model dark colored sedan drive past his residence, then come back a short time later and park in front of the driveway. Two male subjects and approach the driver's side panel. The suspects gain access to the panels and remove the tools and flee in the dark colors sedan. Estimated loss was totaled at around $1800. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

At 9:11 am, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 600 Block of Valle Vista Dr. regarding a theft report. The victims informed Officers that they went out to their vehicle earlier that morning and discovered the rear passenger door was open. Upon further inspection, the victims noticed various small items were missing from the vehicle, along with petty cash and coins. The husband stated the last person to use the vehicle was his wife, who often forgets to lock the vehicle. The estimated loss was totaled to be less than $50. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

At 1:00 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 2100 Block of Santa Anita Ave. regarding a theft report. The victim informed Officers that earlier that day, she came out to her vehicle which was parked in her driveway, and noticed the front left door and trunk door were open. Upon further inspection, the victim discovered her car had been rummaged through with the contents of her glove compartment being strew all over the vehicle. Other than a $5 dollar bill, nothing more from the vehicle appeared to be missing. The victim informed Officers that she never locks her vehicle doors, as there were no signs for forced entry. This case has been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

Sunday, March 8th

to the Detectives Bureau.

At 2:40 pm, Sierra Madre Police to the 200 Block of North Hermosa Ave. regarding a residential burglary. The victim informed Officers that they were contacted by the fumigation company that was working on their house, after the workers discovered two tears in the tarp covering the home, with the both the front and back door left open. During the Officer's investigation, it appeared the suspect(s) entered the home by tearing the tarp and gaining access through a back door. The suspect(s) ransacked several rooms stealing various items including jewelry. The suspect(s) then tore a second hole and exited the home through the front door. Current estimation of loss is totaled to about $1,000. A more detailed investigation will occur once the pesticide is cleared from the home. This case has been forwarded

Police to Conduct DUI Patrol St. Patrick's Day

The Pasadena Police Department will conducting a roving DUI patrol this Tuesday, St. Patrick's Day, looking to stop and arrest drivers who are impaired by alcohol or drugs. This DUI patrol is, in addition to regularly scheduled patrol officers, all looking for the tell-tale signs of an impaired driver behind the wheel.

The Pasadena Police Department offered this advice to partygoers: "Get ahead of the decision this year. If you know you're going to celebrate Patrick's Day with alcohol, then figure out a plan ahead of time for how you'll get home. Don't wait until you're too buzzed to decide, and don't let your friends drive drunk." Buzzed Driving Is Drunk Driving, so if you have anything to drink, count on a sober friend, taxi, or public transportation to drive you home safely. Not drinking? Maybe this St. Patrick's Day, you'll be the saint who drives your friends sober.

DDVIP: The California Office of Traffic Safety DDVIP app is now available for free download on iOS and Android devices. Launched last year the new DDVIP app offers enhanced features, allowing users to "Map a Spot" with their current location to find DDVIP partnering establishments in their area or a "List of Spots" to search all participating bars and restaurants throughout California. Also through the app, for those who want to imbibe but also make it a point to plan ahead, users can easily order a sober ride from Uber, Lyft or Curb all from one screen.

Couple Gives Caltech Historic $50 Million Pledge

In one of the largest acts of philanthropy in Caltech's history, alumnus Ron and Maxine Linde have pledged at least $50 million to the Institute officials announced last week. According to a press statement, their donation creates an endowment without a specific permanent designation. In this way, the Lindes' newest contribution, like many of the couple's previous gifts to Caltech, is earmarked to advance promising initiatives in their early stages. Once those initiatives are well established and positioned to garner additional external support, the endowed funds can be redirected to "the next important project Caltech should be undertaking," as Ron Linde describes it.

exceptional "The Lindes" generosity will have a farreaching and enduring impact on Caltech," said President Thomas Rosenbaum, holder of Caltech's Sonja and William Davidow Presidential Chair and professor of physics. "They understand deeply the Institute's fundamental values and appetite for bold research endeavors. The Lindes' remarkable gift is an evocative endorsement of our community of scholars and the contributions they make to science, technology, and society, geared to the future."

The couple's connection to Caltech reaches back more than 50 years, to Ron Linde's time as a graduate student who earned the Institute's first doctorate in materials science. Maxine Linde, a mathematician, worked as a scientific programmer at the Caltech-managed Jet Propulsion Laboratory during the early days of the U.S. space program.

"Our giving is not just a matter of loyalty," Ron Linde says. "We measure the success of our philanthropic investments by the impact achieved per dollar spent. Caltech's long track record speaks for itself. A dollar invested in Caltech can provide unparalleled returns."

Maxine Linde added, "As informed investors, we see Caltech as the best opportunity we will ever encounter to have a significant, lasting, personal impact on the world.

Partners in life and in business, Ron and Maxine Linde are chairman and president, respectively, of The Ronald and Maxine Linde Foundation. Ron previously was founder, chairman, and CEO of Envirodyne Industries Inc., a company where Maxine served as general counsel and chief administrative officer.

BE A SAINT. DRIVE SOBER.

St. Patrick's Day is One of the Deadliest Days of the Year Because of Drunk Driving

Arcadia, Ca—St. Patrick's Day brings to mind shamrocks, leprechauns, pots of gold, and good luck. But no amount of luck can save you from a drunk-driving crash. So whether you're buzzed or drunk on St. Patrick's Day, it doesn't matter. NHTSA wants to remind everyone that Buzzed Driving Is Drunk Driving—drive sober.

The Arcadia Police Department will be deploying a roving DUI patrol this St. Patrick's Day looking to stop and arrest drivers who are impaired by alcohol or drugs. This dedicated DUI patrol, in addition to regularly scheduled patrol officers, are all looking for the tell-tale signs of an impaired driver behind the wheel.

In 2013, there were 31 people killed in drunk-driving crashes on St. Patrick's Day. All in all, during the St. Patty's Day period from 2009 to 2013, there have been 276 drunk-driving fatalities. Every one of those lives was lost because of bad decisions. Unfortunately, March 17 has become a deadly day in the United States, with a dramatic spike in drunk-driving fatalities. And we're not just talking about a little bit too much to drink here; from 2009 to 2013, almost three-fourths of the drunk-driving fatalities on St. Patrick's Day involved drivers who were twice the legal limit.

The Arcadia Police Department offered this advice to partygoers: "Get ahead of the decision this year. If you know you're going to celebrate St. Patrick's Day with alcohol, then figure out a plan ahead of time for how you'll get home. Don't wait until you're too buzzed to decide, and don't let your friends drive drunk." Buzzed Driving DRUGS, MEDICATION & ALCOHOL= CRASHES: Recent Is Drunk Driving, so if you have anything to drink, count on a sober friend, taxi, or public transportation to drive you home safely. Not drinking? Maybe this St. Patrick's Day, you'll be the saint who drives your friends sober. Let's make 2015 different. Use this partyplanning checklist to stay safe this St. Patrick's Day.

DDVIP: The California Office of Traffic Safety DDVIP app is now available for free download on iOS and Android devices. Launched last year the new DDVIP app offers enhanced features, allowing users to "Map a Spot" with their current location to find DDVIP partnering establishments in their area or a "List of Spots" to search all participating bars and restaurants throughout California. Users can stay up-to-date with the latest from DDVIP and see what other users are saying via its social tab. Also through the app, for those who want to imbibe but also make it a point to plan ahead, users can easily order a sober ride from Uber, Lyft or Curb – all from one

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show CHAPPIE REVIEW

'District 9' caught the world's attention and launched Neill Blomkamp's career; however, 'Elysium' did not live up to the general public's expectations. 'Chappie' hopes to regain some of Blomkamp's lost popularity, but can it accomplish the job?

Deon Wilson (Dev Patel) has created a new type of police force: a robotic kind. They work perfectly and the human police of Johannesburg, South Africa could not be happier. Vincent Moore (Hugh Jackman), however, is furious that his human operated robots are not being used. As Deon begins to work towards the invention of artificial intelligence, he finds himself on a collision course with a group of local criminals who seek to use his artificial intelligence for their own purposes.

'Chappie' was a very poorly advertised movie. None of the trailers showcased the unique and extremely interesting story that the movie follows. This film also happens to be very quirky, with some of its oddities turning some people off. For some, 'Chappie' is a mixed bag. For others, it may be amazing or terrible; however, it is worth taking a chance with and going to see because the story and Chappie himself are both wonderful.

FOOD AND DRINK

POP IS POPPING AND A CAB FOR THE AGES!!

Have you ever heard the term "oaky" or "buttery" to describe certain wines? Sure you have. Many years ago clay pots were used to store wine. As transportation developed it was discovered that closed wooden barrels were more solid and could be moved around like a wheel, so beer and wine were stored and transported in wooden barrels. The beer and wine makers realized that this storage benefited their product with extra flavors. It was also discovered that the barrels lose their flavor just after a few years, thus becoming neutral. Those barrels are still used today and are less expensive to use as the oxygen still helps soften the wine and adds no tannins. One wine that has benefited from this process is the 2011 Freemark Abbey Cabernet Sauvignon.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

Started over 130 years ago and recently (2005) purchased by the Jackson Family Estates, I first came across Freemark Abbey Chardonnay while working my way through college at Jurgensen's Grocery Store. I have referred many times to that part of my life, and I am always happy to see wines that have lasted the test of time. Freemark Abbey Cabernet, like many cabs, has a ruby red color. The aroma and first taste are very generous with the fruit, and the finish has a hint of spice, cinnamon, and yes, oak flavor (glad you read my first paragraph now aren't you!). If this Napa gem winery has been off your radar, put it back. The 2011 cabernet is a full body wine, a touch sweet, and can be drunk now - or buy two, one for now, one for later. My food pairing recommendation would be roasted brussel sprouts, braised short ribs, and a scoop of Vanilla ice cream. Retails for about $40 on sale for $33 for smart shoppers at your local Vons

SAVOR THE FLAVOR TEA TALK

All tea comes from the same plant: Camellia sinensis. How the tea is processed determines what type it will become.

There are four major types of tea - green, oolong, black and black scented. This ignores, of course, the growing variety of herbal, floral and spice combination teas. In general, tea-growing estates and gardens employ a single style of processing which is largely dictated by geography, including altitude, moisture level and farming practices.

Tea grows fastest at about 6,500 feet above sea level in sandy or clay soil. The climate needs to be hot and moist--80 to 150 inches of rain annually with high humidity and fog. Tea also grows at higher elevations and in shaded areas, but at a much slower rate. This climactic change also produces a more intensely flavored tea.

Beyond the usual preparation of hot and cold beverages, tea's unique properties lend themselves to a broad array of applications: tea can be an infusion to thin down or flavor another liquid; it can substitute for oil or other liquids in cooking and baking; as a marinade or braising liquid; powdered as a flavoring for foods or as a coating or rub; whole leaves can be used for smoking other foods; tea can also be used as a coloring agent and fresh or dried leaves can serve as a decorative garnish. (Excerpt from The Tea Cookbook by Joanna Preuss and John Harney)

Here's a great recipe as an example: Tea Spiced Pecans

3/4 lb. Pecan halves Vegetable oil Egg white 1/4 c. Sugar

2 Tbsp. Hot Cinnamon Spice Tea, finely ground (available at Savor the Flavor) 1/2 tsp. Salt

Preheat oven to 350 F.oil a large baking pan or Beat egg white in a deep bowl until frothy. In a separate bowl, combine sugar, tea and salt. Add the pecans to the egg white, turning slowly. Transfer sugar, tea and salt mixture and toss to cover evenly. Spread nuts evenly over baking pan and bake for 15 minutes. Remove and turn nuts with a spatula until cool. Store in an air tight container.

Popular this time of year are the fresh brewed iced teas. They come in wonderful flavors such as Raspberry Herbal, Peach, Pomegranate Oolong, Organic Green with Coconut and Black Currant.

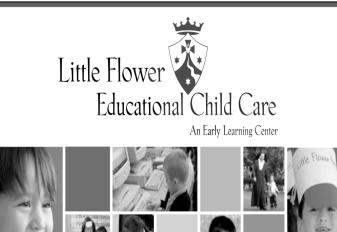

Savor the Flavor offers a selection of various teas and tea products. Stop in for a visit.

THE JOY OF YOGA WHAT'S AN ADVANCED PRACTICE?

"That was a great class, but it was too mellow for me." Another said, "Oh no, I won't take a beginning class, I practice at an advanced level." This brings a question to It's interesting to lead to the component of the component mind: What is an advanced practice?

In yoga, there are internal practices and external practices. The external practice is our Service to others, or karma yoga, would be an external practice. Internal practices include meditation, mantra, most pranayama and energetic techniques.

Believe it or not, it's the internal practices See you in class, and Namaste that are the most challenging! One of the most advanced practices is achieving the balance of Sukha & Sthira, or ease & steadiness (we've talked

I often hear yogis about this before). Applying these principles in say they want an asana practice, and later into life, can prove an advanced to be incredibly challenging. It's difficult for the practice. Some hard-driving person to soften and conversely, will say after class, the easy-going kind to become unwavering. Many advanced practices lie in our meditations. Through this internal work, we heal, grow and

Can you believe some of the most adept yogis and gurus never even did an asana practice?

I DO IT TWICE A DAY FOR HEALTH!

Every day, my husband and I get up at 5:20 am and go for a walk. We do about 30 minutes in the morning and then again after work for about 15-20 minutes. We've done this long enough that this is now routine.

Dr. Tina is a traditional naturopath and nutritionist at Vibrant Living Wellness Center

By design, humans were meant to walk. Unfortunately as we have advanced in some areas we have gone backwards in others. We have come up with so many advances to move us places faster but we are actually moving less. One of the biggest problem I see in my practice is chronic sitting. Sitting can actually be akin to smoking because it raises your risk of an early death from poor health regardless of your fitness and other lifestyle habits. Frequent, prolonged sitting whether it is at work, commuting, or watching TV at night, significantly impacts your heart and circulation health as well as your metabolic

WE ALL JUST NEED TO MOVE MORE! Once in a while my husband or I sleep funny and when we wake, our back hurts. You may think this isn't a good time to walk... wrong. We've found that sticking with our normal walk helps the pain go away. It's better to get out and MOVE!

I recommend to all my clients to limit sitting as much as possible. I know it can be difficult with some of the jobs people have but you can be creative and find ways to move. Most studies recommend sitting less than 3 hours a day. This means you have to make it a priority to walk more. I suggest aiming for 7,000 to 10,000 steps per day.

My husband has an office job and wears an activity tracker that vibrates when he doesn't move enough in an hour. He's found some easy ways to move more. He takes conference calls on a speaker phone and stands up and moves about the office. He'll take some calls on his cell phone while going for a walk outside. Sometimes, he just gets up and goes for a 10 minute walk outside. No one will miss you for 10 minutes... they may think you're just on a bathroom

Bear in mind that this walking is in addition to any regular fitness regimen you already have, not in place of it. My clients find that tracking their steps allows them to see how simple changes to their routine can add many steps to their day. It also holds them accountable, allowing them to see when they are falling short of their goal. Here are some examples of

- how you can add steps to your day:

 Stand or pace your office while on the phone at
- · Take the stairs instead of an elevator whenever
- Park your car in the space farthest away from the entrance of your destination
- Take a walk at lunch

Studies show that people who walk more reduce their risk of heart disease and diabetes. They sleep longer and have better restorative sleep. Walking is one of the easiest forms of exercise. No matter what your age or fitness level, walking more can improve your

Handy Aids For Achy Hands

Dear Savvy Senior:
What products can you recommend for seniors with hand arthritis? I really struggle with anything that requires gripping and turning, which makes most activities difficult. Gripless Joan

There are literally hundreds of different arthritis aids and other products on the market today that can help people with arthritic hands and carpal

To find out which devices can best benefit you, a good place to start is to ask your doctor for a referral to an occupational therapist, who can test the strength and functionality of your hands and recommend appropriate aids. With that said, here's a rundown of some helpful products for different

Kitchen aids: Activities like gripping cooking utensils, cutting and chopping, opening jars and cans, and moving around heavy pots and pans can make preparing a meal much more difficult when you have hand arthritis.

Some products that can help are Oxo Good Grips, which makes dozens of soft, large-handle cooking, baking and cleaning utensils that are easier to grip. And for cutting and chopping the Dexter DuoGlide and Ergo Chef knives are excellent ergonomically designed options.

For opening jars, the wall-mounted or under-counter mounted Zim Jar Opener is a top manual opener. It has a V-shaped grip that holds the lid as you twist the jar with both hands. Some other good options are the Hamilton Beach Open Ease Automatic Jar Opener, and a nifty tool called the JarPop that pops the seal on jars so lids can be

For opening cans, an electric can opener is the best option. West Bend and Hamilton Beach make some of the best.

And if you're interested in arthritis-friendly pots and pans, look for lightweight cookware that has two handles. These are much easier to lift and move

Household helpers: Turning doorknobs, key locks, twist-handles on kitchen or bathroom faucets, and twist-on lamp switches can also be difficult. To help, there are doorknob lever adapters, key turners,

KATIE Tse.....This and That

"ISN'T IT ORGANIC!"

THE GOOD LIFE

lamp switch enlargers, and lever handles for faucets that provide leverage for easier turning.

Personal care: Squeezing a shampoo bottle or a tube of toothpaste, or gripping a bar of soap, a toothbrush handle or even a piece of dental floss can make grooming a challenge. Solutions include a wall-mounted soap, shampoo and toothpaste dispenser, which provides easy access to suds. And for brushing and flossing, there are wide-handled, electric toothbrushes and flossers that vibrate or spin to do the cleaning for you.

Easier dressing: Fastening buttons, pulling zippers and tying shoelaces can also present problems. To help with these chores there are buttonhooks and zipper pulls, and elastic shoelaces, which transform lace-ups into slip-ons.

Reading, writing and computing: Holding and turning the pages of a book, hand writing and using a computer mouse can also stress arthritic hands.

For readers, an eReader like a Kindle or Nook is recommended because they're lightweight and easier to hold than regular books. For writing, there's the soft rubber Pencil Grip that fits on pencils and pens, and ergonomic-shaped pens like the Pen Again that reduce hand fatigue. And for easier computing, the 3M Ergonomic Mouse and Contour Roller Mouse can eliminate hand and wrist stress.

Hobby helpers: There are dozens of arthritis aids for hobbies too. For example, there are automatic card shufflers and cardholders for card players. If you like to paint, knit or crochet, there are ergonomic paintbrushes, and oversized knitting needles and crochet hooks that are easier to hold. And for sewing, quilting or crafting, there are tools like Fiskars self-opening Easy Action Scissors that spring open for easier cutting.

For a rundown of additional products and where you can purchase them, visit my online article at AchyHandAids.org.

SENIOR HAPPENINGS

FYI: TIPS FOR STAYING HEALTHY IN YOUR 70S, 80S, 90S...

Aging can be defined as: "progressive changes related to the passing of time." While physiological changes that occur with age may prevent life in your 70s, 80s and beyond from being what it was in your younger years, there's a lot you can do to improve your health and longevity and reduce your risk for physical and mental disability as you get older.

Research shows that you're likely to live an average of about 10 years longer than your parents and not only that, but you're likely to live healthier longer too. According to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, 40.4 million Americans (about 13 percent) were 65 years of age or older in 2010 and by the year 2030, almost 20 percent of the total U.S. population will be 65+. So how do you give yourself the best possible chance for a long, healthy life? Although you aren't able to control every factor that affects health as you age, many are in your hands. Some keys to living a long, healthy life include:

Make healthful lifestyle choices—don't smoke, eat right, practice good hygiene, and reduce stress in your life

Have a positive outlook

Stay as active as possible—mentally and physically

Take safety precautions

See your health care provider regularly and follow his or her recommendations for screening and preventative measures One of the most important things you can do to stay healthy in your golden years is to maintain your sense of purpose by staying connected to people and things that matter to you. However, this isn't always easy—especially in a society that all-too-often views older people as a burden.

Visit your local senior center. Spend time with at least one person—a family member, friend or neighbor—every day. Volunteer in your community, attend a local event, join a club or take up a new hobby.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

WHISPER CAN SPEAK LOUDER THAN A SHOUT Learning from the Heart of a Horse

When I was a kid, I begged my parents to let me have a horse. We had domestic pets along with a back yard full of chickens and rabbits, and I often went to the local barn to ride my friend's horse, but my lifetime dream was to have a horse of my own. My parents were missionaries, so we weren't exactly in the financial position to become horse owners, but my hope sprang

When I think back on those days growing up as the "baby" in a family of seven with limited monetary resources, I find it interesting that I never noticed we were poor. I suppose it didn't matter because we had everything we needed, and most importantly we were rich in love. My mother sewed most of our clothes, my father did all the yard work and home improvements, and we kids were expected to do chores for our weekly allowances. Maybe that's why money never seemed important to me as a kid, and it still isn't important to me as an adult. My parents taught me to be content with what I have, and for that I am grateful.

When I turned thirteen, my father finally broke down and bought me a pony. Unbeknownst to me, he had been watching the classifieds in the local newspaper for quite some time, hoping to find a horse that we could afford. He finally came across a Welsh pony for sale at a nearby farm and surprised me with it on my birthday. He paid $75 for "Coco", and even at that price, I know my dad was going out of his way to accommodate my burning desire to have my own horse.

Coco came with nothing more than a halter and lead rope, so I learned very quickly to ride bareback and handle him without the force of a bit and bridle. My sister, Vicki and I had so much fun doubling up on Coco and traipsing about the rural areas close to our neighborhood, riding on the local mountain trails and playing in the back woodlands surrounding our town. Those are some of the best memories of my life and I wouldn't trade them for anything.

When I realized how much responsibility went into owning a pony, it was a rude awakening for me. Every day after school, I had to go out and find Coco in the field, rope him and bring him back to the barn, groom him, clean out his stall, feed him, and let him rest a while before I could finally enjoy the fun of taking him out for a ride. Coco was a bit of a curmudgeon, so it was a challenge to ride him at times. If he preferred to stay inside the fenced area that day, he often got his way at first. It took me a while to convince him that I was "in charge", and I'm not real sure if I ever was!

I later learned that Welsh ponies are known to be headstrong, so they require a lot of patience and loving discipline to help keep them in line. According to my memory, I suppose I did OK working with Coco, considering he was my first pony and I had little previous experience with horsemanship. I bonded with him immediately, which made it easier to be patient and understanding when he tried to buck or bolt. Little by little the two of us learned what to expect from each other and eventually we established a close relationship based on mutual

Caring for Coco and learning about his way of thinking was such an important part of my teenage years. My folks used a good balance of encouragement and discipline in raising us kids, and I was lucky enough to have had an excellent education, but there is nothing like working with a horse to teach a person how to live gracefully. A few years later, after graduating from high school I bought a beautiful registered appaloosa named Charity and my education for living, taught from the heart of a horse, continued.

All these memories flooded back to me after watching a documentary entitled "BUCK", a biopic focused on the life of a gentleman named Buck Brannaman, who inspired the story behind the film, "Horse Whisperer". I remember seeing "Horse Whisperer" when it first came out and being very impressed and emotionally affected by the story, but until I watched the 'Buck' documentary, I had no idea "Horse Whisperer" was based on a real life

The film is about a man who has a unique ability to communicate with horses, and he uses that ability to train and handle them in a very calm and humane manner. Ultimately, the character in the film succeeds in bringing new life to not only his equine subjects, but to the humans involved as well. It was such a heart-warming story and it validated what I always believed to be true about the relationship we humans can have with animals. If we are willing to take the time to understand the mind and heart of other species, we are far more apt to succeed in living our lives with grace and

Many lessons in life are learned while sitting in a classroom with printed curriculum and constant correction, but some of the most important lessons can only be learned by spending time in a dusty field under an open sky with beautiful beasts who have ages of knowledge to share with those who show them due respect. If we have the desire to learn, and the patience to be silent and listen with an open mind, we are sure to benefit greatly from what horses have to teach us. I am on a constant quest to learn from the animals, and I will always appreciate the age-old knowledge I gained from my two equine friends, Coco and Charity...knowledge that can come only from the heart of a horse.

PET OF THE WEEK Hazel: Animal ID #A4804216

Meet a stunning beauty with a personality to match, the amazing Hazel (A4804216)! Hazel is a five-star 2-yearold black-and-brown female Doberman Pinscher and Cattle Dog mix who came to the Baldwin Park Animal Care Center as a stray from Baldwin Park on February 27th. Weighing 56 lbs, Hazel earns the "five star" rating because she has so many wonderful attributes.

and just (in the words of her handler) "strikingly gorgeous." She's also unaffected by the shelter environment, which seems to say she's well adjusted and self-possessed. She's affectionate with people; she's also responsive to them and eager to please (for example, she was eager to get out of her kennel but showed self-control as the handler led her out and about). Add to all this fact that she has a gentle demeanor and is playful, curious, and smart, sizing up her surroundings with a sort of can-do attitude. She pulls on leash, so we assume she'll benefit from some training, which should be easy given her eagerness to please and intelligence. She has no problem with little dogs—she merely sniffs them and wags her tail, as if to say they're sort of funny! Bigger dogs should be introduced properly, however, since she's less at ease please see her at the Baldwin First off, she's beautiful—sleek, wonderfully colored, Park Shelter, located at 4275 N. Elton, Baldwin Park, CA 91706 (Phone: 626-430-2378 or 626-962-3577). She is available now. For any inquiries about Hazel, please reference her animal ID number: A4804216. The shelter is open seven days a week, 12 pm-7 pm Monday-Thursday and 10am-5pm Friday-Sunday. This is a high-intake shelter with a great need for adoptions. For more information about Hazel or the adoption process, contact United Hope for Animals Volunteer Adoption Coordinator Samantha at Samantha@hope4animals.org. LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND??

So is Andre! He is being called a Border Collie mix, home he deserves for his retirement years although his size is quite large for that breed, so his 'mix" must be a much larger dog. He has the familiar He black and white coloring of a Border Collie, and his resides at the coat is quite beautiful, long, and silky.

Andre came in to the shelter weighing close to 100 pounds, which is overweight for his size. He is on a special diet and exercise program. He is walked as often as volunteers are available to take him out, and he has dropped a bit of his extra weight, which has increased his energy level.

Andre's age is estimated to be about 12 years old, but he has good energy for a senior dog. He is quite playful if he has the opportunity to interact off leash. He is a smart boy with a gentle disposition.

Andre enjoys his walks with volunteers and has a calm, mellow personality. He does not react to other shelter dogs that bark when he walks by their kennels; he just prefers to mind his own business and make the most of his exercise time. Volunteers describe him as "determined, active, and easy going." He is easy to manage on leash, and does not pull. When he is in his kennel, you will find him lying near the gate, quietly watching the activity going on around him.

Andre would make a great companion who does not demand a lot of attention to keep him happy. A nice shady yard, a few easy walks, and a soft bed at night near his family would be a good life for him. Please consider giving this beautiful senior boy the loving information and photos of all our available pets.

The Wistaria Vine

Celebrating Sierra Madre's Most Well Known Landmark

The Vine

Sierra Madre's121-Year Old Wistaria* Vine By Phyllis Chapman

In 1894, William and Alice Brugman purchased a home on what was then called Piedmont, which is now called W. Carter Ave. The house had been built one year before by builder Amos Trussell for his daughter Winona and son-in-law Edward B. Jones when they married. It was the first wedding celébrated in early Sierra Madre.

The Trussells and the Jones had a change of plans, sold to the Brugmans and moved away. To enhance her new home, Alice Brugman and her neighbor Mrs. W. B. Črisp, drove by horse and buggy to the R. H. Wilson Pioneer Nursery in Monrovia and for $.75 purchased a gallon can of wistaria. It was the Chinese Wistaria variety (Wisteria sinensis). She planted it in a corner of her front porch remarking to her neighbor: "They say Wistaria grows fast." And

Mr. Brugman, a mining engineer, was in Mexico when the vine was planted. He died in 1899 and Mrs. Brugman sold the home in 1906. The property changed hands until it was purchased in 1913 by Henry T. and Estelle Fennel. Mr. Fennel, who was a bit of a horticulturist, loved the vine, and gave it devoted care, even building support trellises.

Although the Wistaria is a vigorous grower, the added support of the trellises may have contributed to this vine's phenomenal growth. The arbors prevented the end tendrils from hanging down and causing the tender terminal buds to die from the added weight. Wistaria requires good drainage, certainly provided by this hilly, terraced location. There may also be an underground spring providing water to the tap

The vine eventually destroyed the original nome, growing into the walls and fireplace and causing the roof to collapse. Mr. Fennel built new home 200 feet to the north (the present upper home) and trained the vine to grow up to, but not covering the new residence. A portion of children there. In 1972, Ron and Marian sold the the foundation of that original home was saved o continue to provide support for the vine as its branches extended such a distance.

When the vine was in bloom, the Fennels would invite friends to come and enjoy the blossoming plant. Visitors also came from Pasadena's main hotels: The Green, The Huntington, and The Raymond. In 1918, the Fennels opened the vine to the Sierra Madre Chapter of the American Red Cross, which sponsored a very successful fundraiser to help the war effort. 12,000 people attended the event. This was the beginning of many Wistaria festivals that took place year after year. Sierra Madre became known as the Wistaria City. Many local organizations, including the Board of Trade (now the Chamber of Commerce), the Woman's Club, the Masons and Eastern Star, the Sierra Madre Volunteer Fire Dept., etc. were Many homemade items, fancy work, ceramics, artwork, gift books, and Wistaria fragranced perfume, hand lotion and bath salts were sold at booths under the vine. Luncheons and teas were served, often with young Japanese women vearing their kimonos.

The hard work and money earned at the vine by the Woman's Club paid off the mortgage of their first clubhouse. One year the Fire Dept. parked 30,000 cars on the parking lot that existed in Floral Canyon. (This is now Sierra Meadow Dr.). Easter sunrise services were among vine activities. People came from all over the world and extra street cars were added to handle the crowds. Among the famous were Fritz Kreisler, Janet Leigh, Mary Pickford, and Norman Rockwell. These two helped select the festival's Wistaria Queen. Packard Automobile Co. used the vine as a backdrop to advertise its automobile.

purchases the vine property from Mrs. Fennel, who was now a widow, for $17,000.00. December 5th was Mrs. Lawless' birthday, and according to one account, she was making a present to herself of the world's largest bouquet. Also a widow, her husband William J (Bill) Lawless was mayor of Sierra Madre during 1928-29. She, herself, was a successful businesswoman having founded the Weaver Jackson Beauty Co. in Los Angeles and was active in the community, serving as president of the Woman's Club and the Garden Club.

Mrs. Lawless spent a small fortune (around $100,000) enhancing the grounds of her new property and caring for the vine. When the estivals were held they often lasted for the weeks the vine was in bloom, not just for one day. Mrs. Lawless, a patron of the arts, also sponsored vine activities all year long.

She hosted art exhibits, musicales, and poetry readings. Nearby residents objected to the constant activity and took their complaints to the City Council. Nothing was done as Mrs. Lawless presented the argument that the vine existed perfore these neighbors purchased their properties.

In recognition for her contributions to the community, the Garden Club planted another Wistaria in the terraced garden on the west side of what is today the Solt's garden. It blooms a bit later than the original vine and the plaque commemorating the occasion is gone.

When Mrs. Lawless died in 1942, she provided for the vine by leaving a legacy to her nephew and heir, Bruce McGill, to continue care of the property with a committee headed by the Garden Club President. In 1944, the property was purchased by Richard and Marian Thayer. Marian is the daughter of M. Penn Phillips, a well-known developer of desert property. In 1944 the vine was overgrown and in poor condition. Richard Thayer planned to chop it up and get rid of it. A protest was raised and an association was formed to protect the vine, with money provided to pay property taxes and provide year-round care

In 1961, after Richard Thayer died, the lot was split. Marian married builder Ronald Cook who developed the west side of the property with homes and built the present Solt home for he and Marian in1962. The upper home was sold to Joseph and Marie Feeney who raised eight lower home to Bob and Nell Solt. In the late 1990s, Joe Feeney died and Maria sold the property. was purchased in 2003 by the present owners, Dan and Dana Dorrance.

By the 1970's Vine Festival activity had about ended. It started up again in the late 70's when sponsored for one day each year by the Chamber of Commerce. The Sierra Madre Beautification Committee was the yearly sponsor in the 1980's. Approximately 500-600 people attended the festival each year. In the spring of 1989, Huell Howser came to film the vine for his program Videolog, which aired on KCET. The next year, approximately 6,000 people came to view the vine The festival organizers were unprepared for such a turnout; lines stretched for two blocks. Howser returned in 1992 to film again for his California Gold program. Sierra Madre and the Chamber of Commerce quickly organized and combined the annual Vine viewing with a downtown street fair. A shuttle bus is provided, and people procure tickets to see the vine at a pre-scheduled time.

The Guinness Book of World Records has named the Vine the World's largest flowering plant. It is estimated that at the height of bloom it has 1.5 million blossoms with 40 blossoms per sq ft., weighs 250 tons and has branches that extend 500 feet. Wistaria is a member of the pea family though its seeds resemble a flat bean. Seed pods burst open in the summer. The plant is deciduous losing its leaves in the winter. Wistaria seeds were brought from China by Marco Polo in the 13th

Today, the vine covers approximately one acre. Over the years, it has shown distress and seemed to be dying. Experts have been brought in from Cal Tech, Occidental, and Cal Poly Pomona. Correct pruning, treatments with hormones, and vitamin B have helped the vine to recover and On December 5, 1936, Carrie Ida Lawless to flourish. To help maintain the Vine's health, records of vine growth and care are now kept on a computer log. The Vine seems to produce its greatest flowering after a cold winter followed by a sudden hot spell.

> What is the correct spelling for wisteria—wisteria or wisteria? In the Sunset Western Garden Book it is spelled wisteria. Sierra Madre has always spelled it wistaria. According to L. A County Arboretum and Botanic Garden senior biologist Jim Bauml and Librarian Joan De Fato, the plant was named to honor Caspar Wistar (1761-1818), an American physician and teacher, who taught at the University of Pennsylvania. Among his accomplishments, he wrote the first text-book on anatomy. When the name of the genus Wisteria was put into the books, it was incorrectly spelled, says De Fato. So, one could say that all along, Sierra Madre has correctly spelled

Legends of the Wisteria Vine, Art, Literature, and Lore

By Elizabeth Converse - Sierra Madre

'The languid and aromatic Wistaria, topping the garden trellis, bears a multitude of delicately hued flower, pale purple, light blue, mauve and white." Its dappled sunlit walkways are a calm and peaceful place to reflect and think."

Last Tuesday Watercolorist, I, sat with watercolorist, Pete Morris, under The Vine in Sierra Madre on Hermosa Street. In multihued shades from light to dark, the blooms and trailing whispers of blossoms and petals above and below, inspired us. We spoke of art, teaching, and the amazing the complexity this beautiful vine presented us.

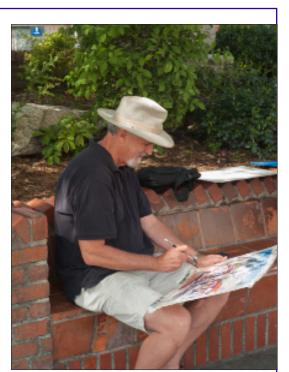

Born in a pot just down the road, "Jack's Beanstalk," "Lavender Lady," and "The Monster", Sierra Madre's glorious vine, weighed in at 250 tons when it entered the Guinness World Records in 1990. It is legendary. Businesses of every kind in town: open their doors, streets are filled, Avenues are lined with booths of other crafters, artisans, sellers. Visitors throng to The Vine during the Annual Festival and the city of Sierra Madre itself becomes an open house of festivities and displays of our town's abundant offerings.

Among them, Friends of the Artists, FOA, a membership organization sponsors an Art Alley on Windsor Lane. Pat Ancona is President of this vigorous organization that teams with the Chamber of Commerce to create art events for its members and the community at large. During the Wistaria Festival, the Art Alley is open to all members of FOA as Windsor Lane is set aside for local artists of every ilk.

"FOA sponsors are an amazing support system and space to give local artists representation. Sierra Madre has always had a thriving art community and it's important to keep that spirit alive and visual in the streets" Jennifer Lindstrom, artist, Sierra Madre, CA (Jennifer's Bird Painting attached)

But there is more Art in the Festival in other parts of the Festival. On North Baldwin there is Creative Arts; in Kersting Court is the Mission Renaissance Art School. There is also Art on Display on East Montecito and at many of the vendor booths.

Digging into Wistaria culture, it is mentioned in literature and lore, with attributed magical, powers, mystical qualities, archetypal energies healing properties. Symbolic meanings include: Love Grace, Bliss, Honor, Memory, Patience, Enjoy the LEGEND... Endurance, Longevity, Exploration, Creative expansion, Release. The duality of love. Victory over hardship. Aligning with its energies helps manifest, opportunities, awakens inspiration, and awakens the "poet's ecstasy". It stimulates the brain, aids in keeping thought organized, develops creativity, intellectual development. And the oil maybe used, or the flowers made into tea.

À century ago, Claude Monet painted Wistaria in his garden at Giverny (1917-19) Today artists of every medium draw inspiration from it. It's various artistic expressions are hung in galleries, homes street fairs and artists venues.

It's many Literary references include: Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, The Adventure of Wistaria Lodge - Sherlock Holmes; William Faulkner, Absalom Absalom - "It was a summer of Wistaria. The twilight was full of it ... the odor, the scent,..."; Patrice Greenwood, The Wistaria Tearoom Mysteries; Laura Joh Rowland -The pillow book of Lady Wistaria and don't forget, Wistaria Lane of Desperate Housewives!

WISTARIA FESTIVAL SHUTTLE TICKETS STILL AVAILABLE! www.sierramadrechamber.com

Shuttle tickets to ride up to view the Wistaria Vine at the annual Wistaria Festival are still available for purchase! The 2015Wistaria Festival will take place next Sunday, March 15th, 2015.

Ine Festival teatures tours of the world's largest blossoming plant, certified by the Guinness Book of World Records. Each year, the property owners upon whose land the vine sits open their homes to allow thousands to view the vine. Dozens of Sierra Madre residents volunteer to act as docents at the property, telling the story of the vine, which was originally planted from a 1-gallon pot that was purchased for $0.75 in 1894. In addition to the tours of the vine, the two main downtown streets of Sierra Madre are closed to traffic so that crafters and artists can set up booths to display and sell their wares. This year we have added a free Vintage Car Show to the festivities. Downtown village shops are open, and musical acts perform at multiple outdoor venues. Memorial Park is transformed into a combination Kids/Food zone and a hub of information about local non profits.

The shuttle to the vine from downtown avoids a long uphill walk from downtown to the neighborhood in which the vine sits. Tickets for the shuttle are $15 for adults. Seniors (over 65) and children (6 to 16) receive a discounted rate of $7. Children under five ride for free. Families of 6 or more can ride the shuttle of $30. (No more than 2 adults).

You can purchase tickets on the chambers website, www.sierramadrechamber.com or by stopping by Savor The Flavor, Beantown or The Bottle Shop.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: GEOGRAPHER

By Sean Kayden

Ghost Modern is the third album from San Francisco electro-pop act Geographer. The record marks Geographer's first new material since 2012's

Myth. Geographer's mastermind, Michael Deni, blurs the lines between electronic and alternative in creating an ethereal pop resonance. With Ghost Modern, Deni mostly avoids much of the spastic electronic beats with tranquil, tender structures to enthrall listeners. In fact, the direction the band is seemingly heading down is different than preceding journeys. There's an incredible amount of elements that make Ghost Modern stand out as a deeper than expected type of release. Deni and company profoundly create a sonic palette that resemblances a dreamlike scenario. There are a wide assortment of instruments at work here too, including both live and drum machines, cello, violin, guitar, percussion, and piano. Nonetheless, Michael Deni's most dominant instrument is his placid vocal abilities that have been extremely distinguishable over the years. While Ghost Modern is an ephemeral endeavor at 37 minutes long, the dreamy arrangements and strong vocals evoking pure catharsis makes the listening experience irrefutably exceptional.

Their first single, "I'm Ready" is a warm tune that features honeyed melodies and airy vocals. The musing tune is a skillful demonstration of delicate arrangements paired with a heartbreaking cello. It opens up the record with much beauty and grace indicating this record sound much sweeter than previous records. "Need" has a slow build up before catching any momentum. Deni's vocals elevate high with this serene tune. "You Say You Love Me" includes synth-y undertones that add a certain spacey vibe to the track. The tempo is faster than the first two tracks, but it doesn't take away from the emotional aspect of the song. The strongest new song from Geographer is "Too Much." Deni's soft vocals paired with a completely layered musical structure of numerous instruments at work are striking to say the least. The way

Geographer crafts music effortlessly bestows the listeners with the purpose to paint their own picture from each individual song. With the combination of heartfelt, personal lyrics and piquant melodies, Ghost Modern establishes Geographer as a band delivering the highest form of commitment to artistry. The craftsmanship behind "Read Your Palm" is unquestionably beautiful. While just under two minutes, the harrowing quality heard is by far breathtaking. The aptly titled "Patience" soothes and relaxes the mind. It's an unrushed piece of art that combines the dual forces of piano and violin to form a rhapsody that could melt hearts. It's one of the few songs off the record that reaches four minutes in duration, but the celestial tune isn't something you would want to ever end.

"Keep" starts with some mighty drumbeats before it unravels into the fastest tempo song off Ghost Modern. It's more in vein with previous records, however, remains suitable for this compilation. The summery attributes attached to "Keep" are perfect for the spring release. It completely serves as a dance-worthy addition to the record. Geographer wraps up the album with the appealing, "Falling Apart." This lovely closer is very reflective as it follows suit to the other echoes and noises Ghost Modern has demonstrated with prior tracks.

The composition of smooth vocals and an airy structure lead to another strong offering for what may be deemed Geographer's most established work to date. The range of beauty on Ghost Modern is immeasurable. Those readily eyeing something to be stimulated by on an emotional and mental level need not to look any further than Geographer's latest and greatest contribution yet. Grade: 9 out of 10

DEAD WAKE: THE LAST CROSSING OF THE LUSITANIA by Erik Larson

On May 1, 1915, with WWI entering its tenth month, a luxury ocean liner as richly appointed as an English country house sailed out of New York, bound for Liverpool, carrying a record number of children and infants. The passengers were surprisingly at ease, even though Germany had declared the seas around Britain to be a war zone. For months, German U-boats had brought terror to the North Atlantic. But the Lusitania was one of the era's great transatlantic "Greyhounds"the fastest liner then in service—and her captain, William Thomas Turner, placed tremendous faith in the gentlemanly strictures of warfare that for a century had kept civilian ships safe from attack. Germany, however, was determined to change the rules of the game, and Walther Schwieger, the captain of Unterseeboot-20, was happy to oblige. Meanwhile, an ultra-secret British intelligence unit tracked Schwieger's U-boat, but told no one. As U-20 and the Lusitania made their way toward Liverpool, an array of forces both grand and achingly small—hubris, a chance fog, a closely guarded secret, and more-all converged to produce one of the great disasters of history.It is a story that many of us think we know but don't, and Erik Larson tells it thrillingly, switching between hunter and hunted while painting a larger portrait of America at the height of the Progressive Era. Full of glamour and suspense, Dead Wake brings to life a cast of evocative characters, from famed Boston bookseller Charles Lauriat to pioneering female architect Theodate Pope to President Woodrow Wilson, but also captivated by the prospect of new love. Gripping and important, Dead Wake captures the sheer drama and emotional power of a disaster whose intimate details and true meaning have long been obscured by history.

LESS MEDICINE, MORE HEALTH: 7 ASSUMPTIONS THAT DRIVE TOO MUCH MEDICAL CARE by H. Gilbert Welch

The author describes seven widespread assumptions that encourage excessive, often ineffective, and sometimes harmful medical care. Dr. Welch is worried about too much medical care. It's not to deny that some people get too little medical care, rather that the conventional concern about "too little" needs to be balanced with a concern about "too much": too many people being made to worry about diseases they don't have—and are at only average risk to get; too many people being tested and exposed to the harmful effects of the testing process; too many people being subjected to treatments they don't need—or can't benefit from. The American public has been sold the idea that seeking medical care is one of the most important steps to maintain wellness. Surprisingly, medical care is not, in fact, well correlated with good health. So more medicine does not equal more health; in reality the opposite may be true. The general public harbors assumptions about medical care that encourage overuse, assumptions like it's always better to fix the problem, sooner (or newer) is always better, or it never hurts to get more information. Less Medicine, More Health pushes against established wisdom and suggests that medical care can be too aggressive. Drawing on his twenty-five years of medical practice and research, Dr. Welch notes that while economics and lawyers contribute to the excesses of American medicine, the problem is essentially created when the general public clings to these powerful assumptions about the value of tests and treatments—a number of which are just plain wrong. By telling fascinating (and occasionally amusing) stories backed by reliable data, Dr. Welch challenges patients and the health-care establishment to rethink some very fundamental practices. His provocative prescriptions hold the potential to save money and, more important, a man lost to grief, dreading the widening war improve health outcomes for us all.

DAWN SPACECRAFT BECOMES 1ST TP ORBIT DWARF PLANET

NASA's Dawn spacecraft has become the first to achieve orbit around a dwarf planet. The spacecraft was approximately 38,000 miles from Ceres when it was captured by the dwarf planet's gravity at about 4:39 a.m. PST Friday, March 7.

Mission controllers at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) in Pasadena, California received a signal from the spacecraft March 7 that Dawn was healthy and thrusting with its ion engine, the indicator Dawn had entered orbit as planned.

"Since its discovery in 1801, Ceres was known as a planet, then an asteroid, and later a dwarf planet," said Marc Rayman, Dawn chief engineer and mission director at JPL. "Now, after a journey of 3.1 billion miles and 7.5 years, Dawn calls Ceres home."

In addition to being the first spacecraft to visit a dwarf planet, Dawn also has the distinction of being the first mission to orbit two extraterrestrial targets. From 2011 to 2012, the spacecraft explored the giant asteroid Vesta, delivering new insights and thousands of images from that distant world. Ceres and Vesta are the two most massive residents of our solar system's main asteroid belt between Mars and Jupiter.

The most recent images received from the spacecraft, taken on March 1, show Ceres as a crescent, mostly in shadow because the spacecraft's trajectory put it on a side of Ceres that faces away from the Sun until mid-April. When Dawn emerges from Ceres' dark side, it will deliver ever-sharper images as it spirals to lower orbits around the planet.

"We feel exhilarated," said Chris Russell, principal investigator of the Dawn mission at the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA). "We have much to do over the next year and a half, but we are now on station with ample reserves and a robust plan to obtain our science objectives."

Ceres appears to be differentiated into a rocky core and icy mantle, and may harbor a remnant internal ocean of liquid water under the layer of ice. The surface is probably a mixture of water ice and various hydrated minerals such as carbonates and clay. In January 2014, emissions of water vapor were detected from several regions of Ceres. This was somewhat unexpected, because large bodies in the asteroid belt do not typically emit vapor, a hallmark of comets.

Italian Giuseppe Piazzi discovered Ceres on January 1, 1801 while he was searching for a star. He first believed that he had discovered a comet, but he was not confident in his belief. By the end of the year, with the help of other astronomers, he had collected enough evidence to call it a planet.

It takes approximately 4.6 Earth years for Ceres to make one revolution around the Sun. Ceres is located 415 million kilometers from the Sun and revolves around the Sun in an orbit between Mars and Jupiter. In 1802, additional objects were also found to be orbiting in the same area. Sir William Herschel labeled these objects as asteroids, so in 1802 Ceres became known as an asteroid, not a planet. Ceres was the largest known asteroid in the asteroid belt until 2006. In 2006, the International Astronomical Union formed a new class of solar system objects known as dwarf planets. By definition a dwarf planet is spherical and travels in an orbit around the Sun. Ceres fit the definition perfectly.

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

HOW LIVING WILLS BECAME A WAY OF LIFE IN ONE AMERICAN TOWN

With just over 50,000 residents, La Crosse, WI is a lot like most other small towns in America - but one thing makes La Crosse stand out: 96% of La Crosse residents who have died had an advance health care directive (also commonly called a living will) in place. Nationally, only about 30% of American adults have an advance health care directive in place.

Actually, there are two things that make La Crosse stand out: the town also has lower healthcare costs than any other place in the U.S. And these two things - a high percentage of residents with advance directives and lower healthcare costs -- are inextricably linked.

According to a recent NPR story, all this came about because of one man: Dr. Bud Hammes, Medical Humanities Director at Gundersen Hospital in La Crosse. Dr.Hammes often found himself sitting with families of terminally ill patients, trying to figure out what to do next. He said the conversations were excruciating: "Did mom ever say anything to you?" "Do you know what dad wants?" He felt the moral distress of those families and it was palpable.

Dr. Hammes knew these scenarios could easily be avoided, since most patients were usually sick for years. So he started training nurses to ask patients early on if they wanted to sign an advance directive, and over the years, planning for death has become a way of life in La Crosse.

And the lower healthcare costs? Dr. Hammes said the reduction in spending was a complete accident; simply a byproduct of letting people make their own choices. He said that when you let patients choose and direct their own care, they often make a much less expensive choice.

Making end of life plans is one of the easiest, and yet most comforting things you can do for your family. Tips of the Trade: Real Estate Revealed

by Luther Tsinoglou

BENEFITS ON BOTH SIDES

but the legalities and legwork can overwhelm even the most savvy. Of course, that's where the real estate agent shines, handling the paperwork and the phone calls, leaving you to focus on your move. Keep in mind that if you're expecting to buy a home on short sale, you can get a great deal, but don't expect miracles from a bank that has agreed to accept a price lower than what the sellers owe on their mortgage. These short sales often generate multiple offers, and if a home has been approved to sell for $200,000, don't expect to waltz in and offer $125,000.

There are new rules regarding short sales meant to improve the experience for both sellers and buyers,

The real advantage of a short sale deal is that the home will likely be in much better physical condition than its foreclosure counterpart. Often, a foreclosed home will have been abandoned for months, and perhaps trashed before being vacated. A short sale property in better condition is in and of itself a benefit with real value that offsets any lower price you could offer on a foreclosure.

And for sellers, a short sale preserves your dignity, reduces some of the stress, and won't damage your credit history as much as a foreclosure. Whether selling or buying, consult an agent for the best

OUT TO PASTOR

One aspect of trying to keep up with the Joneses is being on top of what is referred to as being Politically Correct. As far as I know, I do not have a political bone in my body. I do have a bone to pick with some politicians, but that is another story. Everybody is so afraid they are going to break some PC rule and offend somebody. Most people today are so easily offended that it is virtually impossible not to offend somebody. I do not want to intentionally offend anybody and I try my best not to. However, for the life of me, I am not able to keep up with all of this political correctness that seems to be domineering in our country today. Because, as soon as you figure it out somebody changes the rules and another word or phrase has been deemed not politically correct.

What was politically correct yesterday may be politically incorrect today. If you get your days mixed up and confused, you are not going to know what is politically correct. I think a book should be published every year listing all of the things that are politically correct and politically incorrect. Nobody is allowed to change any, at least for a year. Then, when they come to change it there has to be a national election to vote the political correctness in. Some people believe it to be un-American to use phrases that are politically incorrect. I for one, have a hard time keeping a list of all of these politically correct and incorrect words

I had some business with an attorney and once we finished our business, we had a few moments and were chatting together. I could tell from his chatting that he was rather politically correct in everything he does. I guess that is what comes to being an attorney. Somebody once said that sticks and stones may break your bones, but words can never hurt you. Whoever said that was so wrong we need to take that phrase and make it politically incorrect.

"This is America," he pontificated with me, "and we have freedom of speech. Everybody is free to have their opinion and to express it. That is what America's all about." He went on and on about this matter of freedom of speech.

Then, I am not quite sure how it happened, but we got on some rather indelicate subject that was positively politically incorrect. With the majority of people, freedom of speech does not really mean that the other person is free to speak. It simply means I have the freedom to speak.

"So," I said rather delicately trying to feel my way through this subject, "you believe everybody has the freedom to express their opinion?"

"Yes, sir," he said very emphatically. Then he went off on another pontificating spree asserting the rights of all Americans to express their opinion.

I knew which side of the issue, he was on and so I broached it this way. "You then believe," I said weighing each and every word and syllable, "that you have the right to say a certain thing is right." I mentioned what the thing was but I do not need to include it here.

'Not only do I believe it," he said on another pontificating spree, "but I practice it every day of my life. Nobody has the right to tell me what I can and cannot believe!"

"Let me get this right, you have the freedom to say that this," and I mentioned what it was, "is perfectly right."

He nodded and smiled very broadly and then I continued my thought. "Do I have any rights in this area?" He nodded and indicated I could continue speaking. "You have the right to believe that this certain thing is right, but do I have the right to believe that it is wrong?

Well, you might have hit him with a double-barreled shotgun. He never thought of it that way. All he thought of was what his opinion was and that he had the complete freedom to express that opinion. Anybody who had a different opinion did not have the same right as he did to express it.

"I never thought of it that way," he stammered as he stared at me. "I'm going to have to give that some more thought."

Somebody who believes something is right has the complete freedom to say so. On the other side of the track, the person who believes it is wrong has just as much right to think and say that it is wrong.

It is hard to keep up with a world that is constantly changing, especially in this area. That is why I love the Bible so much. That is why I am a follower of Jesus Christ because neither one ever changes. I take great refuge in what the Bible says. "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever," (Hebrews 13:8).

Today I rest in the unchanging grace and character of the God who loves me and provided for my salvation. And, tomorrow will be the same.

HOWARD Hays As I See It has not changed is the was set upon by a group of men with clubs. that willingness of a 26 year-old deacon, or a Unitarian minister, or to decide they loved this country so much that they'd risk everything to realize its promise."

President Barack Obama - Selma, Alabama March 7, 2015

I watched some of the speech on TV, and then read the transcript. With the passage quoted above, when the president mentioned that "26 year-old deacon", "Unitarian minister" and "young mother of five", I got a feeling of them being real people - and wanted to know them more.

'The Americans who crossed this bridge were not physically imposing. But they gave courage to millions. They held no elected office. But they led a nation.'

James Orange was a year out of high school when he became an organizer with the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. In February 1965 he was arrested and jailed for contributing to the delinquency of minors - enlisting youngsters to help with voter registration.

There was concern he might be lynched. 500 left the Zion United Methodist Church intending to march to the jail a half-block away, sing hymns, then return. They were met by police, sheriff's deputies and Alabama State Troopers. Suddenly the street lights went out, giving cover as the cops rushed and beat on the marchers.

Jimmie Lee Jackson ran to a café behind the church to escape, along with his mother and 82-year-old grandmother. Cops clubbed the grandmother to the floor. Her daughter came to help and was clubbed, too. When Jackson went to protect his mother, he was shoved against a vending machine and shot twice in the stomach, clubbed some more, and died a week later.

As rage spread, the Selma SCLC envisioned a march from Selma to Montgomery to channel anger while protesting for voting rights. Jimmie Lee Jackson was 26 and a deacon at his church.

"The American instinct that led these young men and women to pick up the torch and cross this bridge is the same instinct that moved patriots to choose revolution over tyranny. It's the same instinct that drew immigrants from across oceans and the Rio Grande; the same instinct that led women to reach for the ballot and workers to organize against an unjust status quo."

James Reeb grew up in Kansas and Wyoming. He got his theology degree and became involved in social causes, living with his wife and four kids in poor, black neighborhoods where he felt he could do the most good. He worked on desegregation and encouraged his congregation to get involved with civil rights.

Reeb, like most Americans was horrified by Bloody Sunday on the Edmund Pettis Bridge - and knew he had to be there to - President Obama

"Fellow marchers, so join in the struggle. Two days later he was in much has changed in Selma, leaving an integrated restaurant after fifty years . . . But what dining with two other ministers when he imperative of citizenship, Reeb was 38 when he died two days later, his wife at his side, following brain surgery. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. eulogized, "James Reeb symbolizes the forces of good will in a young mother of five, our nation. He demonstrated the conscience of the nation . . . He was a witness to the truth that men of different races and classes can live, eat and work together as brothers."

President Lyndon Johnson mentioned Reeb when he delivered a draft of the Voting Rights Act to Congress. Another president mentioned him fifty years later, speaking from the spot where, fifty years before, events happened that brought this Unitarian minister to Selma.

"It's the idea held by generations of citizens who believed that America is a constant work in progress; who believed that loving this country requires more than singing its praises or avoiding uncomfortable truths. It requires the occasional disruption, the willingness to speak out for what's right and shake up the status quo."

Viola Riuzzo was six when, in the depths of the Depression, the family moved to Tennessee. She didn't understand, and to her it didn't seem right, that although they were as dirt-poor as the black families in their community, they were for some reason treated with more deference and privilege. Settling in Detroit in the early 1940s, Riuzzo eloped as a teen, married a Teamsters agent and went back to school. She witnessed the racial violence and rioting in segregated Detroit, joined the NAACP and helped organize local protests.

She heard the call of Dr. King after Bloody Sunday for people of all faiths to come because it's "everybody's fight". Riuzzo hooked up with the SCLC, packed her car, said goodbye to family and headed for Selma.

Her job was meeting volunteers and ferrying them between airports, bus stations and train depots. After participating in the largely peaceful March 21-25 march from Selma to Montgomery she went back to work – assisted by black teenager Leroy Moton, taxiing participants to their hotels and bus stops.

On Route 80, a car tried to force them off the road. Down a back road returning to Selma, a car with four Klansmen overtook them and fired into the car, which crashed into a fence. Covered with blood, Moton froze as the Klansmen came to check on the passengers. As soon as they left, he flagged down help, but it was too late - Riuzzo had been killed by two shots to the head. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Roy Wilkins attended Viola Riuzzo's funeral five days later in Detroit.

With one of the Klansmen an FBI informant, J. Edgar Hoover started a smear campaign alleging Viola Riuzza was a Communist and drug addict who abandoned her family to sleep around with black guys. She was 39, the young mother of five.

"We honor those who walked so we could run. We must run so our children soar. And we will not grow weary.'

GREG Welborn

NO DEAL IS BETTER THAN A BAD DEAL

President Obama was so disdainful of will get a nuclear Benjamin Netanyahu that he publicly commented he hadn't even bothered to watch the Prime Minister's address to Congress, and then obfuscated about its text not offering any "viable alternative". From that statement alone, we can deduce that the President really didn't even bother to read the text of the speech or Obama would have realized that Netanyahu actually articulated a much better alternative to the bad deal Obama seems willing to sign. Interestingly, despite Obama's public slap at Netanyahu, the Prime Minister was gracious enough to offer Obama a face saving overture by praising Obama for "all he has done for Israel". Netanyahu is to be complimented for that gesture. He knew his speech would anger Obama, but he also knew he had to give the speech because the stakes are so high in this negotiation with Iran. Obama is committed to getting a deal – any deal – for the sake of his legacy, but the result of this approach is likely to be deadly for Israel, the U.S. and the west.

The Prime Minister didn't pull any punches in discrediting the details of what the Obama administration is about to accept. The very heart of Netanyahu's criticism is the nature of the Iranian regime. A deal is only as good as the deal's participants, and here is the critical flaw of Obama's approach. Netanyahu pointed out in painstaking specificity the evidence which shows Iran continues to be a sponsor of terrorism, fanatically committed to the "annihilation of Israel" and determined to dominate its neighbors. The historical record is not pretty, including internal repression and mass killings, continued military support of Assad's regime, destabilization of other countries' governments and the on-going arming of Hezbollah, Hamas, and Shiite militias.

The bottom line is that Iran cannot be allowed a nuclear bomb. In stark contrast to Obama's assertion that Iran would join as a responsible member the family of nations, Iran would actually conquer, dominate and intimidate other nations. The key evidence of Iran's intention in this regard is Iran's continued development of intercontinental ballistic missiles. Nobody develops ICBMs to deliver anything except nuclear warheads to countries far afield. ICBMs are designed to deliver these payloads to other continents - say Europe and America.

The critical issue is something called "breakout time" - the time it takes to go from a peaceful nuclear program to actually putting together a bomb. If you have all the components ready to go, just needing assembly, your breakout time is short. If you don't have those components - the primary one being enriched uranium then your breakout time is long.

The Obama deal guarantees that Iran keeping the deal violating or by The deal the deal. allows Iran to enrich as much uranium as it wants after 10 years, but the deal doesn't require the dismantling of any enrichment facilities. This means Iran could easily enrich uranium in secret. As Netanyahu pointed out, "inspectors document violations; they don't stop them". This was echoed by the International Atomic Energy Agency in its most recent report which expressed its concerns "about the possible existence in Iran of undisclosed development of nuclear payloads for missiles". The only way to stop Iran is to force Iran to dismantle as many of its existing facilities as we can find. The only way to force the dismantling is to maintain existing economic sanctions and to impose even tougher ones if Iran does not agree to dismantling their facilities.

As Netanyahu pointed out, the economic sanctions are working. They're forcing Iran to the negotiating table. This isn't the time to reduce that pressure. This is also why Saudi Arabia continues to pump oil at capacity in the face of falling oil prices. Economically, Saudi Arabia should cut back in hopes of raising the price of oil. But Saudi Arabia knows that Iran is a threat and knows that Iran needs a $136/barrel oil price to meet its cashflow demands. Iran, for all its bluster and all the trouble it causes in the Middle East, is still a weak country hurting economically. If we let them off the economic hook, they will only become more dangerous to their neighbors and the west.

Obama wants a deal for the deal's sake so that his legacy will be "peace in his time". Unfortunately, this leads him to accepting terms which will only guarantee that the next president's crisis will be nuclear proliferation. If Iran gets the bomb, Saudi Arabia, Egypt, and others will not be far behind.

Obama claims to be a man of peace. Well the best way to get peace and keep that peace is to make sure it is a just peace for all concerned. Iran must be shown, in no uncertain terms that its current actions must stop and its nuclear capabilities dismantled. The best way to do that is to reject the deal, increase sanctions and let it be known that the U.S. will not stand in the way of any other regional power taking steps to destroy Iran's nuclear facilities.
