PREVENTING THE McMANSIONIZATION OF SIERRA MADRE

Council Upholds Planning Commissions Recommended Revisions On Family Residential Zone

At Tuesday's Sierra Madre City Council meeting, amendments to the current "One Family Residential Zone" (R-1) dominated the agenda. The proposed changes, which were approved by the Planning Commission in earlier this year, led to a lengthy public comment period as well as considerable discussion among the members of the

The council, however, was not unanimous as to whether or not the proposed changes in their entirety was the right course of action at this time. Mayor John Harabedian however, who voted against the changes as presented, was pleased with the manner and tone of the discussion during Public Comment and Council deliberations. "Everyone was coming from a good place. I think they had the best intentions to preserve the town that we live in," he said.

In the end, the Council followed the recommendation of Staff and the Planning Commission by approving the changes.

The final vote was 3/2. Mayor Pro Tem John Capoccia and Council persons Denise Delmar and Rachelle Arizmendi voted in favor of the revisions. Mayor Harabedian and Councilman Gene Goss voted against the Ordinance as submitted.

SIERRA MADRE PLAYHOUSE WANTS TO KNOW: CAN YOU TOP NEIL SIMON?

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano Photo by Gina Long

My freshman year of college I was paired up with a young man from Long Island. He was friendly, neat, and absolutely head-over-heels in love with a girl from back home. She wasn't attending our school and he was pining away, heartsick with longing and desire. They spoke for hours on the phone in our dorm room (pre cell phone days, of course) and when he wasn't on the phone he played Peaches & Herb's Reunited (that dates me doesn't it?) every moment he was in the room. He never seemed to go to class and always seemed to be in our room when I was (which was as little as I could because of that song). He ended up flunking out for the love of this girl -he'd been Valedictorian of his High School. I cannot hear that song now without being instantly back in that dorm room. "Reunited and it feels so gooood" aaarrrgh!

We'd love to hear your stories. Neil Simon wrote the classic mismatched roommate tale in The Odd Couple and we'd love to hear YOUR story about a roommate situation that went wrong, or that still causes you to cringe or laugh....or shake your head in wonder. We'll post all of the stories in our lobby for the run of the show AND the winning submission will get 4 tickets to any Friday night (except opening night) of the show which runs from May 8 to June 27. Submit your story to info@sierramadreplayhouse. org by opening night and the winner will be selected by May

I was at the rehearsal last night and with three weeks to go the cast is in great shape. The show is coming along really well and should be a great, rollicking time in the theater. Fascinating to see characters taking form and moments being practiced. The cast has bonded in a strong way and are playing poker together now! I'm so excited to share this show with our patrons. Friday was the last performance of Einstein is a Dummy and it is now only a memory. The series played for 16 schools at 21 performances and was wildly successful with the young people we targeted. The set will come down on Monday after our Colburn Concert by the Calla Quartet on Sunday, April 19 at 7:00 pm. These talented musicians will be playing Haydn, Mendelssohn, and Szymanowski. If you haven't been to one of our Sunday Series Concerts yet – come hear this one. It is the last one until next Fall.

The count-down to opening begins. Much to do in the next few weeks. As always we do it for you - our SMP family whose support and loyalty mean so much to us and for whom we hope we bring pleasure and joy and moving experiences in the theater. Please let me know how you think we are doing. ArtisticDirector@

DID YOU EVER WANT TO PEEK INSIDE THE OLD NORTH

On Saturday, April 25th, the Sierra Madre Historical Preservation Society will present a tour of not only the church but also the two historic buildings just to the west of it, the ca. 1919 Old Mortuary (now called the New Life Center) and the ca. 1915 Caretaker Craftsman (now called the Hospitality House). SMHPS is very grateful to the Sierra Madre Congregational Church for opening the doors of these wonderful buildings.

The program will start in the Old North Church, where Church Historian Jim Constantian will show a 20-minute video of footage shot in Sierra Madre in 1927 and 1928 by the late Rudy Hartman. The video includes Rudy's narration, which was recorded at a later time. Jim will then give a brief talk, which will be followed by the tour of the Caretaker Craftsman and Old Mortuary next door.

While driving, the victim observed that the three men appeared to be under the influence of an unknown drug. After arriving to the location, one of the men needed assistance getting out of the vehicle by his two friends. While exiting the vehicle, the man lost his balance and fell backwards into the vehicle, with his elbow hitting the rear passenger door, causing a dent. The victim contacted the company he works for and they advised him to file a police report. After leaving the location, the victim discovered a backpack had been left in the back seat of his car. When he inspected it, he found marijuana and drug paraphernalia. The property was booked into evidence and this case has been forwarded to the Detectives Bureau.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side by Deanne Davis

KAREN SWISHER & THE SIERRA MADRE GROCERY COMPANY

Karen's Bucket List:

- 1. Find strength
- 2. Make time for all the stuff that matters
- 3. Love, Love, Love

"A fresh fruit medley of Mangos, Peaches and Pineapple, combined with a hint of Ginger, finished off with a Jalapeno and Cayenne Pepper kick!" That's Fruit N' Fire Bruschetta Salsa. Now I ask you, doesn't that sound scrumptious? You could put it on almost anything but oatmeal...and it might do wonders for that, too! Fruit N' Fire is just one of the items created by the delightful Karen Swisher, President/Food Scientist, of Sierra Madre Grocery Co. Had a great time meeting Karen and her dog, Jack, this week to chat about how Sierra Madre Grocery Co. came to be. Karen casually offered me a bowl of pecans she had transformed from pecan bland to an ecstasy of chili blended spices. This bowl of pecans in front of me was a serious distraction as I was hearing Karen's story of her walk through the world of food creation, beginning with a degree in Food Science from Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, which would qualify her to do just about anything in the kitchen that she can imagine.

Karen and her husband, Michael, came to Sierra Madre in 1987, so what else could she possibly consider naming her new company than Sierra Madre Grocery Co. Karen has worked with many of the major food companies: Del Monte where she was their Quality Assurance person, creating meals for airlines, "and they were good, too!" Karen has worked in Research & Development with various chefs, taking what they produced and making it airline possible. Karen has been with Spice Islands, Carnation, Lawry's, and she was the creative force behind Jenny Craig's first energy bar.

Karen and her identical twin sister, Kirsten, started Huntington Food Products in 1997 where they developed the pan, mix and process for, believe it or not, low-fat donuts! Their products were marketed under the Van de Kamp label along with a line of Savory Flavored English Muffins. Sierra Madre Grocery Co. came several years later, starting with Roasted Garlic & Olive Bruschetta Salsa. Working with another of Sierra Madre's unique businesses, Savor the Flavor, Karen's Roasted Garlic & Olive Salsa burst on the scene under the Savor the Flavor label. With her Salsa making appearances all over town (including the Pasadena Showcase House of Design) to an increasingly enthusiastic public, Karen realized it was time for her own label. Next for Sierra Madre Grocery Co. was Black Bean & Corn Bruschetta Salsa, then the Caramelized Onions & Roasted Garlic. There's a flatbread now, a Cheese & Olive Toasted Crisp, and more tasty products in development.

I've saved my personal favorite for last, the Sierra Seasoning Rub. Simply stating that I don't think I could live without that wonderful stuff would not be out of line. I put Sierra Seasoning on fish, chicken, every kind of meat and Sierra Rub makes it incredible. In 2010 I was wandering through our Albertson's (alas, poor Albertson's, I knew it well - apologies to Shakespeare) and a friendly lady asked me if I wouldn't like a bite of a new product. Well, yeah! So I had a cracker with Roasted Garlic & Olive Salsa and picked up a little tin of the Sierra Seasoning. I tried it on salmon and it was so good we had it three nights in a row! The Seasoning, btw, was developed for a barbeque for our very own Rotary!

Asking Karen what's ahead, she said to look for the Mountain Trail sweet and spicy snack mix. Her labels have just been redesigned and are even more classy and eye-catching. Numerous demos in various locations are coming up in the next few weeks and this terrific local company is in more stores than you can count... Bristol Farms ... Von's ... Albertson's ... Safeway ... San Antonio Winery...Taylor's Meats here in town, just to name a few. Karen and the Sierra Madre Grocery Co. won the SOFI Award in 2012 (Specialty Outstanding Food Innovation) and Karen's on track to win another one. She's involved with the community with Rotary, Foothill Unity Center and more. Delicious products, beautifully packaged, perfect gift items, Sierra Madre Grocery Co. and Karen Swisher are most definitely assets to our community.

Check out her website: www.sierramadregroceryco.com and plan to take home and try everything. For instance: Black Bean & Corn - Salsa Madre Taco Pie - Brown ground beef, drain fat. Add Salsa Madre, simmer. Layer beef and Salsa Madre in a casserole dish. Top with shredded cheeses, tomatoes, onions, guacamole, sour cream and shredded lettuce. Serve with tortilla chips. Oh

CONSERVE TIME AND WATER WHILE GROWING BEAUTIFUL AND PRODUCTIVE GARDENS

By Melinda Myers

Reduce your workload, increase productivity and be water wise, whether you are planning, planting or already harvesting produce or enjoying beautiful floral displays from your garden.

Container gardeners may want to invest in self-watering pots. These containers have built-in reservoirs to reduce watering frequency. Commercial and homemade self-watering devices can also reduce watering frequency. Just make sure to test their effectiveness before leaving town. Or consider a one-time investment in a drip irrigation system, like the 2014 Green Thumb Award-winning Snip-n-Drip Pot and Planter Soaker System especially designed for container gardens. Drip irrigation and soaker hoses are also a great way to water in-ground plantings. These irrigation systems apply the water directly to the soil which reduces water lost to overspray, evaporation and runoff. They also reduce the risk and spread of disease by preventing water from efficiently and avoid overwatering nearby drought-tolerant plants. settling on the leaves of the plants.

content. These minerals can build up and clog soaker hoses. Micro irrigation systems experience fewer problems and the nozzles can be cleaned to prevent clogs. Because the nozzles can be clipped onto stakes, tomato towers or other supports, this system makes it easy to continuing to enjoy beautiful and productive gardens. deliver water right to the plants.

gardens often dry out more quickly than their in-ground counterparts and need more frequent watering. Some, like the Raised Bed Snip-n-Drip soaker system (gardeners.com), are easy to assemble and allow you to water when needed. Further save time by using preformed Melinda's Garden Moment segments. Myers is also a columnist and corners with built-in spigots when constructing raised beds. Simply slide the boards into the metal corner pieces to create the raised bed. www.melindamyers.com, offers gardening videos and tips.

Some corner systems, like Aquacorner, have built-in spigots to make irrigation even simpler.

Correctly installed irrigation systems can help conserve water by ensuring you water properly and only when needed. Plus, using a timer and an irrigation system allows you to apply water at the best time for the plants. Just set the timer for early in the morning - when less water is lost to evaporation - and the plants will be watered even if you are not Always water thoroughly and only as needed to encourage plants to develop deep root systems that are more drought-tolerant. Be sure to avoid high nitrogen, fast release fertilizers that promote lush succulent growth which needs more frequent watering.

Further conserve water and time spent watering by grouping moisture-loving plants together. You can provide needed water more And remember to mulch your garden. A thin layer of shredded leaves, Opt for a micro irrigation system if your water has a high mineral evergreen needles or other organic matter helps conserve moisture and reduces erosion. As the mulch breaks down, it helps improve the soil, while decreasing its' water needs. So make this the year you take a break from watering, while

HOLDEN HONORS PASADENA HOLOCAUST SURVIVOR AT CAPITOL CEREMONY

Sacramento - In a moving ceremony today at the State Capitol, Assemblymember Chris Holden (D-Pasadena) honored Holocaust survivor Ike Langholz of Pasadena whose nightmarish journey through the Nazi occupation of Poland was recounted on the Assembly floor as part of Holocaust Remembrance Week.

"I am honored to be able to share Ike Langholz' story of survival in the face of incredible pain and suffering at the hands of the Nazis," said Assemblymember Holden. "Ike lived through extreme persecution and horrific experiences during this agonizing dark history. The number of survivors is dwindling, so we are here today to raise awareness of these dark events and honor Ike for his courage and his willingness to tell his story."

Ike's story begins as 8-yer-old along the Poland/Ukraine border. Following the Nazi conquest of Poland in 1939, any sense of normalcy became impossible. Jews were beaten and forced to work in labor camps or killed simply because they were Jews. Three of Ike's six brothers and sisters, as well as his mother, grandmother, and other family members were killed by the Nazi SS. Ike and his brother Sam ran away from the labor camp where they had been forced to work as slave labor and hid in the woods, surviving on potatoes and sugar beets and their own skills.

With the liberation of the camps by Russian troops in the waning days of World War II, Ike and his brother, two sisters and their father made their way to a displaced persons camp in Germany. There he learned a trade as an electrician and said he "learned to be human Ike and his brother arrived in Pasadena in 1951 and soon got jobs and later owned a small retail business. He married Faye Chason and they have four children and six grandchildren.

The now 88-year-old survivor looks back on those years and says it is important to remember:

'For decades I was silent, but I and other survivors have an important story to tell so that no child will have to deal with the hatred and violence that my family experienced."

ARCADIA AAUW TO LEARN MORE ABOUT FUNGI AND GLOBAL WARMING CONNECTION

Who would have thought that the lowly fungi (think of molds and mushrooms) are also contributing to global warming? Because of longer springs and summers in such cold regions as Alaska, fungi are more rapidly reproducing and releasing more carbon dioxide during their brief life cycles. Researcher Adriana L. Romero-Oliveres can explain this phenomenon and its possible long-term effects. Adriana is an International Fellowship recipient from Mexico who is working toward a Ph.D. in Écology and Evolutionary Biology at UC-Irvine. Her Fellowship is partially funded by the American Association of University Women (AAUW) through its AAUW Funds project which supports women in research and advanced studies.

The Arcadia Branch of AAUW will climax a successful year of meetings and events with a luncheon meeting that features Adriana L. Romero-Oliveres as speaker. An inveterate researcher, Adriana has done lab work and has also spent months doing field experiments in Alaska, both in the forest soil and in a special greenhouse. Adriana hopes to resolve an ongoing debate: "Do fungi adapt to global warming and what are the consequences to our environment?" Her upcoming doctoral dissertation will conclude with the answer to that question.

The luncheon meeting will take place on Monday, May 11, in the Church of the Good Shepherd's Jordan Hall, at 400 W. Duarte Road (SW corner of Duarte Rd. and Holly Ave.), Arcadia. The luncheon is scheduled to begin at 11:30 p.m., with Adriana Romero-Oliveres' power-point presentation to follow. The AAUW-Arcadia meeting will conclude with a brief business meeting. The Board of Directors will be installed. Long-time members Shirley Campbell and Kathryn Brandes-Tyler will be honored with certificates for their fifty years of AAUW membership.

A festive Mexican-style luncheon is planned for the occasion with Taco Salad, Fruit Kebobs, Flan as a dessert topper, and a choice of beverages. The cost of the luncheon for members and guests is $15. Reservations are due by May 8. To reserve, call Joyce McGregor at (626) 447-6543, payable at the door. JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

WHAT'S THE BUZZ? BEES GET A BREAK FROM THE EPA? REALLY?

It's been a long time coming, and it may be just a drop in the bucket, but earlier this month the Environmental Protection Agency finally announced new restrictions on the manufacture and use of neonicatinoids, the class of pesticides implicated in causing the dieing-off of bees, contributing to colony collapse disorder (CCD). For those who have been even slightly tuned in to this on-going issue, you know how epic this new FDA restriction is. Well, they are calling it a restriction but in reality it is a temporary moratorium.

In letters to companies that apply neonicatinoids outdoors, the EPA warned that it won't be likely to issue new permits for their use until they can determine they won't cause "unreasonable adverse affects on the environment". While this first step toward protecting pollinators is good news, there is still much more to be done in terms of making changes for the better on behalf

The fact is, the US is way late to the party in terms of addressing adverse affects of toxic chemicals being used on our crops. The EU (European Union) put a moratorium in place back in 2013 when the scientific data was made available. What took us so long? Clearly our governing agencies move more like slugs than bees when it comes to protecting the environment. Why is this so? I am guessing it has to do with the fact that money talks louder than nature. If you travel down the rabbit hole of history, you will probably agree that bureaucracy is one beast that will never make it's way to the endangered species list. Allow me to elaborate, and bear with me as I take a deep breath in order to do so.

In September 2012, the Office of Chemical Safety & Pollution Prevention, the Office of Pesticide Programs, and the Environmental Fate & Effects Division in Washington DC got together with the California Dept. of Pesticide Regulation and a few environmental groups in Ottawa, Canada to draft a document entitled the White Paper in Support of the Proposed Risk Assessment Process for Bees, and submitted it to the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) Scientific Advisory Panel (SAP) for review. WHEW! I'm overwhelmed with red tape already, and I'm just getting

So, the FIFRA and the SAP were given the White Paper document to review in consideration of coming up with a plan to begin assessing the effects of neonicatinoids. After all, what's the big rush, right? Remarkably, the very first sentence in the White Paper document reads, "Over the past 60 years the number of managed honey bee (Apis mellifera) colonies in the US has been in decline and recent reports have indicated that the numbers of insect pollinators have been in decline both in North America and Europe." So in 2012, they knew there had been a problem for at least 60 years, and they were just getting around to doing something about it. One has to wonder what happened 60 years ago to initiate the mass death of pollinating bees.

I am no chemist, nor am I a farming expert, but I can't help thinking that Monsanto's 1970 introduction of a new chemical called glyphosate to their pesticide products had something to do with it. Interesting timing, don't you think? Monsanto claimed the new chemical was environmentally friendly and would enhance crop renderings, so naturally the farmers, desperate to mitigate their losses, wanted to give it a try. Later discoveries resulted in the farmers begging to differ with Monsanto's claims. Indeed, the new products changed the way crops could be grown in most farming regions, forever. But by that time it was too late. The horse was out of the barn.

The growers became disgruntled because Monsanto's new pesticides, along with the synthetically altered seeds designed as proprietary partners to the pesticides, eventually prevented the effective propagation of purely organic seed crops due to wind and other forces of nature spreading the invasive synthetics throughout their lands, without discrimination.

Don't let the semantics confuse you. It's really not all that complicated. Basically, Monsanto created a corner on the farming market when they convinced desperate rowers that their new product was the answer to crop loss due to acts of God, when in reality the invasive seed and pesticide partnership took control of the farmers' ability to choose which seeds they preferred to

What does this have to do with the bees? I believe it was the beginning of their demise. Knowing how much influence Monsanto has over our country and globally, and considering the timing, it just makes common sense. Our government has probably known neonicatinoids helped cause the bees demise for years, but until the profit loss of farm crops exceeded the potential loss to be sustained by Monsanto if their products were taken off the shelves, they refused to listen to the scientific data. I am really not a paranoid conspiracy theorist, but some things just seem obvious to me. Money talks, nature walks and unfortunately the bees get caught in the

So, this new "breakthrough" we are hearing about the EPA addressing the diverse affects of toxic chemicals on honey bees - may sound like an epic event to some, but to me it sounds like a baby step in a valley of giants. I don't know if the political powers in this country will ever get real with what's causing colonies to collapse because infortunately their lust for power and fortune dictates their behavior. Monsanto seems to be controlling the agencies that are supposed to be controlling them. It's been going on for decades, about 60 to be exact. One thing is for sure; The environmentally conscious in the US will continue pressuring our government to do the right thing". Who knows? Maybe our voice is finally being heard on behalf of the bees. We can only WAIT

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND?

Bandit is a Jack Russell terrier mix with a lot of happy energy and a friendly disposition. Bandit is about 10 years old and weighs around 22 pounds. His coat is short and easy to care for, mostly white with some tri-color highlights.

Bandit was surrendered to the shelter by an owner who could no longer care for him. It seems that Bandit spent most of his time tethered by a chain in his yard. As a result, Bandit has a sensitive throat and coughs when he is excited. Shelter staff and volunteers use a harness that does not put additional pressure on his trachea, and he does not wear a collar.

Bandit has a lot of energy for an older dog, and he loves to go for a walk. He will meet you at the gate of his kennel, smiling and wagging his tail, eager to go on new adventures. Bandit likes to sniff and explore the world and is very happy on his walks.

Bandit is very friendly with people, and appears to get along well with other dogs he has met at the shelter. He is also quite playful, and enjoys fetching and chewing on soft toys. Bandit is a smart boy and will sit on command for a treat. He would probably respond well to additional training, as he seems eager

Even though Bandit is a senior dog, he is a spunky boy with a good energy level and he has a lot of life left to share with his forever family. He deserves a yard and more details on 'Tea for Tails'.

His adoption fee is $120 which includes his neuter surgery, a microchip, first vaccinations and a free wellness check-up at a participating veterinarian. Feel free to call us at (626) 286-1159 for more information on Bandit.

He currently resides at the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society located at 851 E. Grand Avenue in

ST. RITA SCHOOL: SPIRIT OF GIVING

Sierra Madre, CA – Students at St. Rita School recently demonstrated their spirit of giving with a Peanut Butter and Jelly drive for the St. Francis Center of Los Angeles. The St. Francis Center provides relief and support to homeless and extremely lowincome individuals and families in Los Angeles. Throughout the Lenten season the students of St. Rita were asked to remember it is not what you give up that's most important, but what you can do for others.

As the students, families, and staff of St. Rita were preparing for spring break it was shared that many underprivileged children would not be able to have two meals a day provided by their own school district due to spring break. In an effort to stock the pantry of the St. Francis Center, and provide nutrition to these students many families participated in the drive.

It was very exciting to see our children recognizing their own blessings, and taking action to help others. St. Rita was able to donate 290 jars of peanut butter and jelly to the St. Francis Center. This was such a success that the school plans to have additional drives next school year.

St. Rita is a top-ranked Catholic parish school, located at 322 N. Baldwin Ave. in Sierra Madre, which focuses on faith, stewardship academic excellence. Visit www.st-ritaschool.org for more information.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show FURIOUS 7 REVIEW

Having not seen any of the previous 'Fast and Furious', I had no idea what to expect from this movie. This franchise has a massive fan base, and I had heard from many people that this was the best film yet, so I had high hopes for it; however, I was worried that my lack of knowledge of the franchise would not enable me to enjoy the film, and so I went into the theater with high hopes but slightly doubtful.

Having taken down Owen Shaw (Luke Evans), Dom (Vin Diesel) and his team have attracted the unwanted attention of Shaw's older brother, Deckard (Jason Statham). They have also got the attention of the mysterious Mr. Nobody (Kurt Russell) who will give them the tools they need if they get him the powerful hacker known as Ramsey (Nathalie Emmanuel).

'Furious 7' is an exceptional action film simply because you do not have to have seen any of the previous films to not only understand what is going on but also feel for the characters. The story is very slick and wellrefined for an action film, with no extraneous action sequences and the clunky, cliché dialogue cut back to a minimum. The standout of this film is the cinematography, which is extremely revolutionary. The camera angles and shots that are chosen make the film flow beautifully. 'Furious 7' is an exciting yet highly emotional film that works as a perfect action movie as well as a stunning tribute to the work of Paul Walker, who shines

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS:

THREE MUST HEAR ALBUMS RELEASED THIS MONTH

By Sean Kayden

Positions" - April 17th, 2015 - Australian rock act Gang of Youths have always been something of several singles over the

the band itself. They've always intrigued me with their brooding sense of style. The anthem-driven melodies are unequivocally enthralling. After refining their technique these previous couple years, the quintet has lastly accumulated enough tunes for a debut album. tracks that are vehemently cathartic. Lead singer David Le'aupepes' initially imagined this endeavor as a solo effort chronicling his strained relationship with know it's still there for the taking. a woman fighting terminal cancer. His perception, as grand as it was, turned into a complete band with a dynamic intensity that is essentially unmatched. The Positions pushes emotional indie rock to new peaks. Gang of Youths' debut is exceptional and easily distinguishes itself from the crowd. It covers many topics, from the vigilant tales of grief and sorrow to the search of faith and contentment. Generally sprawling and blatantly intimate, The Positions is filled with six plus minute tracks. This is no conventional rock album from a not-so conventional rock band. It's entirely palpable these guys are playing on a completely different level than their peers. For an album so deep in thought, so utterly pensive, you'll find yourself ready to take on anything in your way after listening to "The Positions" from start to finish.

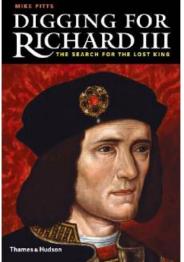

Lord Huron – "Strange Trails" – April 7th, 2015 - In 2012, LA quintet Lord Huron released their first record "Lonesome Dreams"—an immensely grand and poignant piece of music that resonated along the borders of Fleet Foxes. As the record caught on like wildfire, unexpectedly Lord Huron was making a substantial impression in indie folk-rock. With a lot riding on the follow-up, it's safe to report that Ben Schneider Trails touches upon a peaceful quality with a "western"

Gang of Youths – "The ambiance rooted in the fourteen new tracks. There is this sense of a railroad train chugging along in the old west and there is Lord Huron making music on one of the freight cars. That image comes to mind when listening to this sophomore release. Like an aged painting, worn enigma. They've released in impression, surrounded with framework of emphatic fanciful lyrics and sound quality. The vast soundscape past few years, but not much was known about them of Strange Trails is tough to disregard as the band have extended past their bold debut with a lusher, gutsier, and much more impressive effort. In conclusion, the subsequent album from Lord Huron stirs up various feelings from its harrowing sounds, deep storytelling lyrics, and this floating layer above that with ambiguity The Positions consists of ten profoundly harrowing in life ultimately comes a time for hope. Despite the perpetual leeriness that is deep-seated within the record, sanguinity is there to peak its head out letting the listener Priory - "Need To Know" - April 7th, 2015 -Portland based act Priory gained an overpowering awareness on the Internet when they released the single "Weekend" last fall. It surely placed long-standing buddies Brandon Rush and Kyle Sears on the map in spite of previously releasing their first record in 2011 on an indie label. The transformation of musical style into the realm of dance-pop/electro-rock allowed for the duo to obtain much responsiveness from larger labels. With the sophomore album and making their Warner Bros. Records debut, Priory are growing beyond their 4-song EP from last fall with Need To Know. It is a 10-song collection of revitalizing electronic pop songs in time for summer. It's altogether delightful from start to end, providing the listener with much excitement to be had. Furthermore, there's an overabundance of danceable rhythms to enjoy to in the relatively short (thirty-five minutes) endeavor. Nevertheless, this idea of surviving is involved in the record. On "Need To Know" an energetic zest is in existent as Priory tries to clench onto adolescence. As many of us are aware, this phase of life quickly fades before one actually recognizes it's gone. The inherent likability the songs possess is conclusively notable. Priory's high-energy manner is somewhat to and his band have returned in pristine form. Strange be well regarded as they effectively attempt to go past the customary sounds of indie-pop.

FOR RICHARD III: THE SEARCH FOR THE LOST KING by Mike Pitts The

of archaeology behind dig that found Richard III, told through a fascinating array photographs, diagrams, and firsthand accounts.In August 2012 a search began and on February 4, 2013 a team from Leicester University delivered its verdict to a mesmerized press room, watched by media studios around the world: they had found the remains of Richard III, whose history is perhaps the most contested of all British monarchs. History offers a narrow range of information about Richard III which mostly has already been worked to destruction. Archaeology creates new data, new stories, with a different kind of material: physical remains from which modern science can wrest a surprising amount, and which provide a direct, tangible connection with the past. Unlike history, archaeological research demands that teams of people with varied backgrounds work together. Archaeology is a communal activity, in which the interaction of personalities as well as professional skills can change the course of research. Photographs from the author's own archives, alongside additional material from Leicester University, offer a compelling detective story as the evidence is uncovered. 41 iillustrations in color and black-and-white.

THE RESIDENCE: INSIDE THE PRIVATE WORLD OF THE WHITE HOUSE

by Kate Andersen Brower

A remarkable history with elements of both In the President's Secret Service and The Butler, The Residence offers an intimate account of the service staff of the White House, from the Kennedys to the Obamas.America's First Families are unknowable in many ways. No one has insight into their true character like the people who serve their meals and make their beds every day. Full of stories and details by turns dramatic, humorous, and heartwarming, The Residence reveals daily life in the White House as it is really lived through the voices of the maids, butlers, cooks, florists, doormen, engineers, and others who tend to the needs of the President and First Family. These dedicated professionals maintain the six-floor mansion's 132 rooms, 35 bathrooms, 28 fireplaces, three elevators, and eight staircases, and prepare everything from hors d'oeuvres for intimate gatherings to meals served at elaborate state dinners. Over the course of the day, they gather in the lower level's basement kitchen to share stories, trade secrets, forge lifelong friendships, and sometimes even fall in love.Combining incredible first-person anecdotes from extensive interviews with scores of White House staff members—many speaking for the first time—with archival research, Kate Andersen Brower tells their story. She reveals the intimacy between the First Family and the people who serve them, as well as tension that has shaken the staff over the decades. From the housekeeper and engineer who fell in love while serving President Reagan to Jackie Kennedy's private moment of grief with a beloved staffer after her husband's assassination to the tumultuous days surrounding President Nixon's resignation and President Clinton's impeachment battle, The Residence is full of surprising and moving details that illuminate day-to-day life at the White

SEVEN DAUGHTERS WINE FOR NOW

There are certainly advantages to drinking wine with the "closure" being a screw top. No bottle openers, no cork residue plus screwtops don't contaminate the wine like some corks tend to do. In fact 75 % of the wine in Australia now has a screw top. Recently as last week I was at a wine and cheese party and was making fun of the "Screw top" wines that my friends buy. The conversation turned to "Have you ever had the Seven Daughters Cabernet"? why no I hadn't, I quickly checked my own wine snobbiness and decided that I would give it a try.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

Named after the seven grapes that the winery uses to produce a host of varieties of wine. Sorry there weren't seven daughters to be found for this story.

I enjoyed a glass of the Cabernet with a recent home dinner and I can agree with my recent host that screw tops have come a long way. To this end, I suggest allowing it to breathe for a little while when consuming straight out of the bottle. The tannins were soft, the color was a dreamy ruby red and the taste was right up there with any of the $20 California Cabernets that I have written about in the last year. Screaming Eagle or Stag's Leap? No it's A picnic wine for sure! For $10 you can't go wrong with this well-balanced Cabernet from the Monterey area of the Central Coast. Consider pairing it with glazed spare ribs, pizza or even a rotisserie chicken. Seven Daughters also produces a pinot nior and a chardonnay in the same price range.

Dills Score

Each week I will give you my Dills Score. Starting with a base of 50 points, I have added 8 points for color, 8 points for aroma or "nose", 8 points for taste, 8 points for finish, and 8 points for my overall impression, which includes my value rating.

DEBUNKING 4 COMMON MYTHS ABOUT GIFT TAXES

April 15 is upon us! It is not only the deadline for money at no interest and forgiving the loan. filing your state and federal income tax returns, but also the deadline for filing gift tax returns via a loan, not a gift. You will have to charge a fair IRS Form 709.

Many people are confused about the subject of gift taxes. While only two states -- Connecticut and Minnesota -- have a state gift tax, there is a federal gift tax you may need to be concerned about. Here are some common myths and the actual truths about gift taxes:

Myth 1: The recipient must pay taxes on gifts. Reality: While the gift giver may face taxes on certain gifts, the recipient usually doesn't. There are some circumstances, however, when that will not be the case. For example, if you receive a bonus from an employer or tips, these may be subject to income tax. If you are gifted property that has appreciated in value since the giver bought it, you receive the cost basis as part of that gift. But if you sell the property, you will be liable for taxes on the difference between the sale price and the cost basis (what the giver paid for it).

Myth 2: A giver must pay tax on gifts of over $10,000 per year.

Reality: The annual gift tax exclusion rate is currently $14,000 (it increases periodically), and you can give gifts of that amount to an unlimited number of individuals each year without having to pay gift tax. If you give to a charity or your spouse, you can give an unlimited amount without incurring taxes. The lifetime gift tax exemption for 2015 is $5.43 million per person and your annual gifts (so long as they are under $14,000 per person) don't count towards that number.

Myth 3: Gift taxes can be avoided by loaning

Reality: The IRS requires that you treat a loan like market interest rate and put the terms of the loan

Myth 4: You can always deduct charitable contributions from your taxable income.

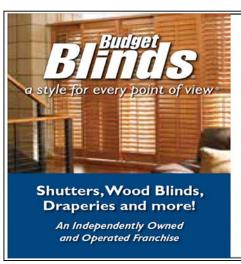

Reality: Charitable contributions must be made to a qualified tax-exempt charity, and must be itemized. You can check the status of your charity on the IRS website with its Exempt Organizations Select Check Tool.

CAN SKIN AGING BE REVERSED?

Dr. Tina is a traditional naturopath and nutritionist at Vibrant Living Wellness Center our skin changes. We begin to develop crow's feet around the eyes, wrinkles and then our skin sags. I don't know about you but I feel young. And if there is a way to keep looking younger than my years, I'm interested!

If we want to help our skin look younger naturally, we need to know what is happening to our skin as we age, independent of any skin damage such as over exposure to the sun or smoking. There are a couple of changes taking place once we reach 35 to 40. The very outer protective layer of our skin thickens and gets drier.

My friends who always had oily skin are happy when their skin starts drying up. If you are like me and originally had normal to dry skin, it stinks! Even my friends with oily skin eventually are not happy. At the same time, your second layer of skin thins and loses its elasticity.

New research suggests there is a way to really slow and even reverse some of this skin aging, yeah! Scientists at McMaster's University in Ontario, Canada found that frequent exercise as we are aging will keep or even reverse some skin aging. They found that people who exercised regularly had a thinner outer layer of skin and a thicker inner layer. People as old as 65 were found to have skin close to a 20 to 30 year old.

Heathcare the Way Nature Intended

You may be thinking what I was thinking, maybe the test participants eat a healthy diet and have great genes. Well, the researchers did a second study using sedimentary volunteers who were 65 or older with skin representative of their age. They had them exercise moderately, 2 days a week for roughly 60 minutes, for three months. What the researchers found was that most if not all of these participants had skin that looked like that of a 20 to 40 year old. OK, I do have to state that the researchers used skin that wasn't expose to the elements or so called skin care products. They used the skin from the participants bottoms.

Research shows that we are living longer. The question is how do you want to live your last 20 or so years? Skin is a part of our bodies and maintaining its health is part of maintaining our overall health. So maybe the fountain of youth is available to all of us. Just think of the possibilities of eating a healthy diet and getting regular physical activity. I know I want to live my last 20 years the same way I am living today, vibrantly!

MEDICATION MANAGEMENT TOOLS FOR ORGANIZING AND REMEMBERING

Dear Savvy Senior,

What products or solutions can you recommend to help seniors keep up with their medications? My mom is supposed to take several different medications at different times of the day but frequently forgets.

Reminding Son

Anybody who juggles multiple medications Reminding Services can relate to the problem of forgetting to take a medication, or not remembering whether they already took it. This is especially true for people solutions that may help.

Medication Helpers

Getting organized and being reminded are the two keys to staying on top of a medication schedule. To help your mom achieve this, there are a wide variety of affordable pillboxes, medication organizers, vibrating watches, beeping pill bottles and even dispensers that will talk to her that can make all the difference. To find these types of products go to Epill.com (800-549-0095), where you'll find dozens to choose from.

Also check out Reminder Rosie (reminderrosie.com, $130), a voice activated talking clock that tells you when to take your medicine, and can be used for other reminders, too.

And for a super comprehensive medication management device, there's the MedMinder automatic pill dispenser. This is a computerized pillbox that will beep and flash when it's time for your mom to take her medication, and will call her if she forgets. It will even alert her if she takes the wrong pills. This device can also be set up to call, email or text family members and caregivers letting you know if she misses a dose, takes the wrong medication or misses a refill. Available at MedMinder.com, or 888-633-6463, the MedMinder rents for $40 to $65 per month. Medication Packaging

Another possible way to help simplify your mom's medication use is to get her prescriptions filled in single-dose packets that put all her medications (vitamins and over-the-counter drugs can be included too) together in neatly labeled packets organized by date and the time of day they should be taken. This does away with all the pill bottles and pill sorting. Some compounding pharmacies or independent drug stores offer single-dose packaging along with a number of online pharmacies like PillPack.com.

Another simple solution that can help your mom stick to her medication schedule is to use a medication reminding service. These are services who take medications at varying times of the that will actually call, email or text your mother day. Here are some different product and service reminders of when it's time to take her medicine and when it's time to refill her prescriptions. Some even offer extra reminders like doctor and dentist appointments, wake-up calls and more.

Companies that offer such services are MyMedSchedule.com, which provides free medication reminders via text message or email. Their website can also help you make easy-toread medication schedules that you can print out for your mom to follow. Or, if your mom uses a smartphone or tablet, there are free medication reminding apps that can help, like MediSafe (medisafeproject.com) or MedCoach (greatcall.

If, however, your mom doesn't receive texts or use a smartphone, tablet or computer, OnTimeRx. com or Snoozester.com may be the answer. With starting prices ranging between $4 and $10 per month, these services will call your mom on her phone (they can send text messages and emails too) for all types of reminders including daily medications, monthly refills, doctor appointments, wake-up calls and other events.

Or, if you're looking for extra help, Care Call Reassurance (call-reassurance.com, 602-265-5968 ext. 7) may be a better fit. In addition to the call reminders to your mom's phone, this service can be set up to contact a family member or designated caregiver if she fails to answer or acknowledge the call. This service runs between $15 and $20 per month.

SENIORS - DON'T BE A TARGET

THE F.B.I. Common Fraud Schemes webpage provides tips on how you can protect you and your family from fraud. Senior Citizens especially should be aware of fraud schemes for the following

Senior citizens are most likely to have a "nest egg," to own their home, and/or to have excellent credit—all of which make them attractive to con artists.

People who grew up in the 1930s, 1940s, and 1950s were generally raised to be polite and trusting. Con artists exploit these traits, knowing that it is difficult or impossible for these individuals to say "no" or just hang up the telephone.

Older Americans are less likely to report a fraud because they don't know who to report it to, are too ashamed at having been scammed, or don't know they have been scammed. Elderly victims may not report crimes, for example, because they are concerned that relatives may think the victims no longer have the mental capacity to take care of their own financial affairs. When an elderly victim does report the crime, they often make poor witnesses. Con artists know the effects of age on memory, and they are counting on elderly victims not being able to supply enough detailed information to investigators. In addition, the victims' realization that they have been swindled may take weeks—or more likely, months—after contact with the fraudster. This extended time frame makes it even more difficult to remember details from the events. Senior citizens are more interested in and susceptible to products promising increased cognitive function, virility, physical conditioning, anti-cancer properties, and so on. In a country where new cures and vaccinations for old diseases have given every American hope for a long and fruitful life, it is not so unbelievable that the con artists' products can do what they claim. For more information go to: http://www.fbi.gov/scams-safety/fraud/seniors

THE WORLD IS "LOOKING UP" ON APRIL 25; WESTCHESTER JOINS THE PARTY

Saturday, April 25 is the night of all nights for you to look skyward. That's when the whole world will be celebrating the "Global Star Party"—an evening devoted to appreciating the skies that surround our fragile planet Earth. The night's celebration is part of Global Astronomy Month (GAM), sponsored by the astronomy advocacy organization Astronomers Without Borders (AWB).

Use this link to check out AWB's worldwide events: http://astronomerswithoutborders.org/gam2015programs/observing/1558-global-star-party-forgam-2015.html

One April 25 global event of special interest will be the "Hangoutathon" a shared program of AWB and

This online Marathon-length event runs from 8:00 a.m. April 25 to 8:00 p.m. April 26. During the Hangoutathon, CosmoQuest invites you to race to map the worlds: Mercury, the Moon, Mars (yes, we'll have Mars!), and cold distant Vesta.

While you do science, we'll take you on a tour around the world as we follow the terminator to Global Star

Party events taking place around the world. The Hangoutathon runs for 36 hours straight so no matter where you are in the world you will be able to tune in and see some exciting astronomy

This year, as part of the Hangoutathon, AWB is teaming up with CosmoQuest to let you participate live online in Global Star Parties being run by clubs all over the world!

AND HERE AT HOME, JUST ABOVE THE BLUFFS IN WESTCHESTER, the public is invited to look skyward from 7:30 to 10:00 p.m. Saturday, April 25, at our local version of the Global Star Party. Host Bob Eklund welcomes you to join him at the parking lot of the Christian Science Church at 7855 Alverstone Ave., corner of 79th St.

Telescopes will be set up for everyone's enjoyment. We'll be looking at Jupiter with its four moons, our own Moon and its craters, and stars and nebulae.

ALL are welcome—bring the children, learn astronomy together, and enjoy the sky! And if it's cloudy or rainy, come anyway—there'll be an indoor learning session on basic astronomy, especially for children (of any age).

There is no charge, and refreshments will be served. If you have a telescope of your own, feel free to bring it—experienced amateur astronomers will be on hand to help you set it up if necessary.

THE WINDS ERASE YOUR FOOTPRINTS

A book by Shiyowin Miller

One of the books that came out of my family was "The From chapter 7: The Sing Winds Erase Your Footprints," written by my wife "Before we came here," her husband began, "when Dolores' mother, Shiyowin Miller. Shiyowin, who was I tried to tell you about everything which might seem drums, pots, and artifacts from all over the country. Shiyowin had been a music and dance teacher, and was a professional dancer. She knew Iron Eyes Cody, and worked with Luther Standing Bear, a Lakota Sioux who wrote "My People the Sioux" and other books. Luther Standing Bear adopted Shiyowin, and let Shiyowin act as his agent for his various books and other legal matters. It brought the past alive to me when I was able to see and feel the pipes, sandals, robe, and other materials that Standing Bear had given to Shiyowin. (There is a special exhibit of Standing Bear's robe and other items at the Crazy Horse Museum in South Dakota.)

Shiyowin also had many friends from the Navajo lands. In the 1930's, Shiyowin's best friend, Juanita, fell in love with a Navajo man, Luciano, who'd been working as an extra in Hollywood. Juanita and Luciano got married, and moved back to Luciano's Navajo lands in Shiyowin kept in touch with Juanita, and wrote about the experiences that Luciano and Juanita underwent on the reservation, during the Depression when there was so little work.

Shiyowin edited and revised and rewrote her book many times over the next 30 years, and she died in 1983 before it was ever published. I married Shiyowin's daughter Dolores in 1986, and when I saw the box with hundreds of pages of manuscript, I asked Dolores if I could read it. In fact, Shiyowin had hired Dolores to type many of the revisions over the years, and so Dolores was familiar with the content.

Once I started reading it, I couldn't put it down. I was amazed at the quality and depth of the story, and could barely believe that it had never been published. Shiyowin had actually received an offer from a publisher some 20 years earlier, but since she kept rewriting and revising, it never got published. To me, it was like reading a Tony Hillerman novel, except it was true!

Everyone said that the book accurately depicted life on the Rez during that time, mixed in with some accounts of Navajo witchcraft. With some editing, Dolores and I got the book published in 2002 by Naturegraph Press, which features many Native American titles. If you do an internet search with the book's title, you'll see some of the reviews that have been published about this book.

The story was descriptive, compelling, and you feel as if you are re-experiencing the harsh winds, the life in the Hogan making coffee, the search for work, and all the ceremonies and gatherings that were a part of the Navajo way of life. The books, which was 335 pages when published, also contained hints and clues in the backdrop about Navajo witchcraft, and the ma-itso, the wolf clan which was feared by most.

The freak death of Luciano was generally attributed to the work of the ma-itso, and Shiyowin gives the clues in bits and pieces, in the way that Tony Hillerman so masterfully slowly revealed his mysteries.

The line drawings for the book were drawn by Navajo artist Chester Kahn. Shiyowin's daughter Dolores stated that the drawings seemed the ideal artistic representation of Shiyowin's work, capturing the feeling and quality of the historical account.

The books is available from Amazon, or from the Store at www.SchoolofSelf-Reliance.com.

part Osage, was immersed in Native American culture. strange to you, I didn't tell you about ma-itso--the wolf I remember visiting her home in Temple City, which clan. One reason, it no longer seemed as believable to me seemed like an Indian museum with a full library, as it once had; perhaps all the years in school did that; anyhow, in Hollywood I seldom thought of it. When we came here, my mother told me the wolf clan was still strong in Cañoncito. I didn't tell you then because I could see no reason why they would try to harm us. But to be sure you were safe, my mother and sisters watched you every minute.

"There were times when I almost told you, those times when you were upset about things you didn't understand. And yet I hated to frighten you needlessly. Already there was so much for you to worry about. It seemed better to wait until I had a job, until we were living in town and then tell you. "But now two things have happened which make me sure the ma-itso is for some reason after us. I found yellow pollen in an X mark on my hat brim, and today my mother found pollen on our clothes. That is their warning. Lorencito thinks you will be safer if you know about this evil thing." A hundred questions sprang to Juanita's lips, but her husband went on talking, interrupted now and then by Lorencito or his mother.

"The wolf clan is as old as the Navajo tribe. From the beginning some men turned certain powers, which should have been used for good, toward evil things. Corn pollen, used for blessing, is used by the ma-itso as a warning to a person marked for death. And death does not come in a usual manner; it comes in a round-about way which cannot be easily traced. The victim sickens suddenly; sometimes his mind leaves him. No Medicine Man can cure him. Sometimes the victim meets with a mysterious and fatal accident.

Fom chapter 13: Wolf Tracks

Juanita had hung up two diapers when she became suddenly aware of something across the arroyo. When she looked carefully nothing seemed unusual; in the dim light she could see the sharp banks of the arroyo, the clumps of juniper in dark patches on the other side. Then gradually, two of the dark juniper patches began to take on the indistinct forms of dogs sitting on their haunches.

That was what imagination would do for you. She even thought now that she could see the large pointed ears. Juanita smiled to herself. This must be what Lu had seen, the queer-shaped juniper bushes. They looked surprisingly like coyotes, only larger. The likeness had even startled her for a moment and her mind had certainly not been on wolves or wolf tracks. She pulled her eyes away and began resolutely to hang up more diapers.

A sudden movement, one dark figure detaching itself from the other and moving farther down the arroyo, a third form appearing almost directly across from her on the opposite bank. Juanita stood absolutely still. There was no sound except the flapping of the clothes on the

When Juanita reached the kitchen door, she called to her husband to bring the shotgun. "Those figures that you saw are out there again." This couldn't be her voice, tight and choked.

Two of the dark forms were loping off down the arroyo when Luciano reached the bank, but the third sat directly across from him like a very large coyote on its haunches. Luciano raised his gun and fired directly at it. The animal seemed to gather itself into a ball and plunge down the bank of the arroyo--across the wide, sandy

PREPARATION AND EXECUTION OF MY INCOME TAX RETUR

April 15th is the time of the year when and rigid. What is so special about April

However, to be perfectly honest (and calling for a new attitude on this whole business who's perfect), I am a little disappointed. All the years I have included a personal letter in with my tax returns, I have yet to get a personal letter in return.

I'm beginning to think this is a one-way relationship and it wouldn't take much for me to quit this correspondence entirely. Then what would my government think? How would they know what I've been up to all year long? I am not one to complain, but filling out my income tax return seems to be getting more complicated each year. When I familiarize myself with the rules for one year, someone changes them the next year. What could not be deducted last year can be this year; and what was not deductible last year I must pay twice. Why can't someone in the government make up my mind and quit all this unnecessary fluctuation?

On April 16, each year, our government immediately destroys the tax books to keep them from falling into the hands of a foreign power. By "foreign," I mean Canada.

Heaven help us if our neighbor north of the border ever got their hands on this information. Canadians are not usually known for their joviality, but once they see these books, the entire country would break out into uncontrollable laughter. Who knows what this would do to the delicate relationship now existing between the two countries. Because of this important precaution, need new tax laws each year. Right after the New Year's Eve party, someone in the Internal Revenue office asks his assistant to "bring me those tax books." When informed there are no books, this writing my own ticket for my personal same person (who shall remain nameless for obvious reasons) says to his assistant, "Bob, write me a new tax law book for this year and have it on my desk by 5 o'clock."

This sets the wheels of government to whirling and by golly, by 5 o'clock that new tax law book is on the desk. The reason the tax laws differ from one year to the next is the assistant responsible for this is fired every year and a new one hired. The only requirement for the assistant is that his name must be "Bob." I wish one year Bob would call me. It seems he has overlooked many legitimate deductions of God Fellowship, PO Box 831313, Ocala, FL

Americans can communicate with their 15 that our government should have government. I cannot testify for anyone such an apprehension about me missing else, but I look forward to this marvelous this deadline? What is wrong with June opportunity and I am careful not to waste it. 15? Or, September 22, for that matter? This year, for example, so much has happened I believe the IRS should be more to me since last year it took 15 single- understanding and practice a nonjudgmental spaced typed pages to include everything. attitude. After all, this is a new millennium > my taxes whenever I'm ready, or remember. There are some deductions I have never seen on the forms I have filled out and I have always wondered why. Let me list some:

> of taxes. They ought to trust me to send in Grandchildren — have never been listed as a legitimate deduction. Does the IRS know just how expensive grandchildren are? Myjellybean budget alone could finance a small third world country and I only have three grandchildren. Pets — have never been included as deductions. Pets have a marvelous role in enhancing our lives and giving us a good excuse togetoutofthehouseandwalkaroundtheblock. Petfoodis expensive, as any pet owner knows, not to mention those exorbitant veterinary bills. (Does my doghouse qualify as a home office? I spend a lot of time there so it should.) Vacation — is another overlooked item. Does the IRS think I am taking a vacation just for my health? Oh, yea. I am. Well, my health is important. Every dollar I spend on vacation should be deducted from my income and not be taxable, which would take a lot of stress off my next vacation. Presents — don't tell me Christmas presents are not authentic tax-deductible considerations. If it were not for me buying all those Christmas presents the general economy of our country would go into a slump. Buying Christmas presents is the one thing I can do for my country and I should expect some compensation.

These are just a few suggestions would make if left up to me. There is no way I could get away with income tax return. The government has set up rules and regulations to guide everyone.

The Bible clearly says; "There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death." (Proverbs 14:12 KJV.) And, "Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." (John 14:6 KJV.) Some people think they can write their own ticket when it comes to God, forgetting God has established rules and regulations that apply to everyone. Rev. James L. Snyder is pastor of the Family 34483. He lives with his wife, Martha, in Silver

- Hermann Goering

There's a big debate going on in Washington, about nothing less than how the United States engages with the world in matters of war and peace.

One side argues that this president and future ones be given wide latitude in taking actions on their own, unhindered by Congressional grandstanding and second-guessing. The argument is focused on the need for the administration to have the ability and flexibility to act decisively, without Congressional meddling.

The other side argues it's Congress' duty and responsibility under the Constitution to publicly debate, oversee, scrutinize and ultimately decide whether or not to authorize actions affecting our nation's security.

In this particular debate, it's President Obama and most Congressional Democrats taking the latter side, arguing for more Congressional involvement. It's the Republicans who argue that the president be given free reign - while Congress remains on the sidelines.

The issue is renewal of the War Powers Act, which has been held up now for months. But on the issue more in the news lately, the framework of a nuclear deal with Iran, the positions are reversed.

Republicans have it backwards. With the president trying to make peace, negotiating with leaders of other nuclear powers to prevent Iran from acquiring nuclear weapons, they feel obliged to use their Congressional majorities to do whatever they can to scuttle the deal and alienate us from our negotiating partners. If a president wants to make war, however, under their version of the War Powers Act they'd just stay out of the way, do what they can to grease the skids and let it happen.

If anything, Congress' role should be to help make peaceful resolution easier and war harder - not the other way around.

There's a real concern because so many of those making the case for war now were doing the same thing thirteen years ago - with disastrous consequences. Rep. Mac Thornberry (R-TX), current chair of the House Armed Services Committee, warned then that our policy of containment towards Saddam Hussein had led Iraq to become "one giant WMD factory". Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) predicted military action to remove him "would not be very difficult". Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-SC), then in the House, said attacking Iraq was "long overdue", and that its people would "taste freedom for the first time in decades."

Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) warned that the risks of continuing to deal with Saddam through more diplomacy were "simply unacceptable".

That was then. Today, many of those Sunni Muslim soldiers of Saddam's army we sent packing after the invasion have gone on to form the military backbone of the Islamic State. In his column last week, Greg Welborn cited the nuclear deal with North Korea as a lesson in the futility of preventing dictators from getting bombs. Maybe the problem with that deal was one of bad timing. The "Agreed Framework" negotiated under President Clinton was signed in October 1994. Three months later, Republicans took over both houses of

From the outset they branded the deal "appeasement", and did their best to prevent us from keeping our end of the bargain (fuel oil shipments, a light water reactor, etc.). Then, under President Bush, North Korea was in the "axis of evil" and we used accusations they were enriching uranium as justification to kill the deal.

Although our concern was keeping North Korea from getting nuclear weapons, theirs was getting rid of sanctions and normalizing relations with the outside world. We'll never know what would've happened had the deal negotiated under Clinton been kept, but we do know what happened as a consequence of it being killed under Bush: North Korea pulled out of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, kicked out the international monitors and cranked up production. While under the deal plutonium production had been successfully halted for eight years, now the estimates are that North Korea has a half-dozen plutonium warheads and a couple dozen "nuclear weapon equivalents".

Those responsible for that outcome and the disaster in Iraq are now telling us why talks with Iran are a bad idea. They're advising Republican presidential candidates. In trying to make their case, they've taken Iran's Ayatollah Ali Khamenei's word on what the deal entails over that of President Obama and Secretary of State John Kerry. Sen. McCain, who predicted that incursion in Iraq "would not be very difficult" now calls Sec. Kerry "delusional", and 47 senators send a letter to Iranian leaders warning them not to expect the United States to keep its commitments.

We've seen it before; efforts to maintain the peace scuttled because some were simply too anxious to start the bombing. Herr Goering thought it an easy matter to sway public opinion away from peace and towards war. But not this time - our memories are still fresh and the consequences of those actions are still with us.

As Malcom X said, "If you don't stand for something you will fall for anything." Too many of us stand with the president and the other world leaders in support of resolution through negotiations with Iran, and whatever lines we're fed by those arguing for a different approach, we're not falling for it.

GREG Welborn

THE DROUGHT OF WISDOM

California is suffering from a record drought - perhaps one for the history books. But the drought to which I refer is not the water drought, but the wisdom drought. Rain comes and goes in California – always has, always will - but the stupidity among the Liberals who run this state seems unending.

A harsh statement, you might be inclined to argue back. How can I possibly blame politicians for the fact that it hasn't rained much in the last 4 to 5 years? But I'm not holding them accountable for how much it rains; I'm holding them accountable for what they did with the water when it rained a lot and was plentiful, and now for what they're doing with the water when it's in relatively

California is an arid state. It is on the low end of rainfall volume in the United States. We get more than the truly desert states, but certainly less than the east coast and Midwest. But that's a given. We've always been at the low end, on top of which we're subject to the occasional drought. Even severe droughts are not unheard of in California. Again, though, all this is normal; all this has been known to the state's leaders since the state was founded. That's why previous generations put so much effort into building what once was one of the greatest reservoir and aquifer systems of its time

Our present problems are the result of short-sighted and callous politicians who allowed that system to fall into disrepair, who refused to build any new storage facilities over the last 30+ plus years when our population grew to 40 million people, and who gave into the ruinous policy prescriptions of the crazy wing of the environmentalist movement.

The numbers tell the story pretty clearly. In an average year, California receives enough snow and rain to accumulate 200 million acre feet of water (an acre foot is an acre of land covered 1 foot deep). During that same average year, California consumes approximately 60 million acre feet. The consumption estimates I found actually ranged from 40 million to 60 million acre feet. I'm giving the politicians the benefit of the doubt, going with the higher estimate. Even still, in an average year, there's more than enough water to use and – if we had intelligent leadership – to store for the dry years. In fact, in normal years - let alone "wet" years - we are relative to our consumption needs

On the opposite end of the spectrum in droughts, the water received can decrease substantially while the usage stays fairly constant. That just emphasizes the need to store the water we do receive. Here's where the bunglers in Sacramento did the bungling. Environmental laws intended to protect various fish species and wetland habitats have us dump half the normal water we receive out to the ocean. That's 100 million acre feet flushed out to San Francisco Bay and the Pacific to save a couple of fish. Carly Fiorina, former CEO of Hewlett Packard and thus a pretty sharp cookie, quoted one estimate that 70% of our rainfall is flushed out to sea.

The magnitude of the water we throw away is staggering in its own right, but it might be attributable to some sliver of logic if this actually helped the fish. Unfortunately, the "endangered" fish populations have decreased over the last 40 years, which is also roughly the time period during which no new reservoirs were built. The best laid plans of mice and Dems have truly gone awry.

The failure to build those reservoirs and damns is the other component of our present problem. Even if we decided to keep the water we get in average and good years, we would need to store it some place. Environmental groups have passed laws and used the courts to effectively block the construction of any new significant storage facility since 1980. In a weird way, we have to grant the logic of this last one. If you've passed laws mandating that you not keep the water you get, why would you spend any money to build damns or reservoirs to store the water you aren't keeping?

Liberals are always surprised when their policy prescriptions make things worse, and California's water policies are no exception. One of the unintended consequences of refusing to store more water in order to "help" the environment is that farmers in the great valley are being forced to dig their wells deeper, thus reducing the water table lower than is probably good for us. The law of unintended consequences has not been suspended.

The sad reality is that even under the most dire of circumstances this year (official measurement of rain and snow fall for the year won't end until June 30th), we will have received enough water to meet our needs if we had captured and kept everything that fell from the sky. The lack of water can't be blamed on Mother Nature. All she did was expose the drought of common sense and wisdom that passes for political leadership in

CEQA Finding. The City Council hereby finds that it can be seen with certainty that there is no possibility the adoption of this Ordinance may have a significant effect on the environment, because it will impose greater limitations on development in the City and protect the aesthetic character of Sierra Madre and potential loss of potential historic resources, thereby serving to reduce potential significant adverse environmental impacts. The adoption of this ordinance is therefore exempt from California Environmental Quality Act review pursuant to Title 14, Section 15061(b)(3) of the California Code of Regulations.

Effective Date. This Ordinance is adopted by the City Council and shall take effect 30 days after approval by the City Council. This Ordinance and the City Clerk's certification, together with proof of publication, shall be entered in the Book of Ordinances of the City Council.
