At 2:52 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the station lobby to take a report regarding use of another person's identity. The victim informed Officers that they received notification that $700 had been withdrawn from their bank account using their ATM information, even though the victim had possession of his ATM card at the time. The victim canceled the card and notified his bank. This case has been forwarded to the Detective Bureau.

At 8:15 am, Sierra Madre Police responded to the station lobby to take a report regarding the use of another person's identity. The victim informed Officers that when he attempted to file his tax return online, he received notification that his request was rejected due to his personal information already being used to file a tax return for this year. The victim has no knowledge of who may have used his information. This case has been forwarded to the Detective Bureau.

Saturday, April 25th

At 10:41 am, Sierra Madre Police responded to the station lobby to take a report regarding a possible domestic dispute. Officers were informed by the victim that the day prior, she was hiking with her short-term boyfriend at a local trail when he started to rough house with her and pretend box her, and hit her several times on her shoulder. When the victim told the man to stop, he continued. The victim stated she felt threatened, and ultimately punched the man in the face in an effort to make him stop. She was then struck in the back by the man causing her to receive a significant bruise. Upset, the victim returned to her vehicle and the man followed. As she was driving away, the victim stated the man smashed her rear windshield with his hand. Upon interviewing the man, he stated the windshield was broken because his girlfriend had unintentionally backed up into him and he hit the windshield with his hand in an effort to make the vehicle stop and denied any physical altercation. Officers determined the man was the main aggressor of the altercation. The woman refused to pursue charges against the man, but requested he be required to replace the windshield. This case has been forwarded to the District Attorney's Office for filing and review.

He stated he heard pounding on his back door, and upon investigating he discovered his spouse throwing a brick through the door to gain access. An altercation ensued and when his spouse threatened him with a weapon, the homeowner called police. The spouse refused to be interviewed by Officers. The spouse was taken into custody and released to Pasadena Jail. This case has been forwarded to the Pasadena District Attorney's Office.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side by Deanne Davis

"The soft sound of rain...exquisite purple droplets, The Jacaranda tree weeps wet purple kisses, A welcome shower of love...royal messengers of Spring."

Jade Celeste

The Jacarandas are blooming and they are fabulous. All over town there are purple clouds of blossoms and my arborist walking partner, John, and I are anticipating the moment when all the trees on our street are in lavish bloom. Yes, I know we then track the fallen 'wet purple kisses' in the house, but that's a small detail when looking up at them is such a pleasure.

I've just gotten back from Texas, friends and neighbors, where I spent ten days with family there, youngest daughter, Crissy, her husband and their two little girls, seven year old Jessie and four year old Emily. Emily is absolutely positive that unicorns are real and informed us, while I was mixing up pumpkin pancakes, that, "If you give a unicorn a pancake, he will eat the plate!" Visited Jessie's school where she's a First Grader, Wally W. Watkins Elementary, while we were there, and were so delighted with the sign we saw on the wall: "We are each unique and beautiful, but together we are a masterpiece." Nice.

About pumpkin pancakes...we love them and have enjoyed them at CoCo's, Mimi's, Dish Restaurant, and every brand of mix available from Trader Joe's, Cost Plus World Market, and wherever else I found it. I've tried so many recipes, but the bottom line has always been kind of "meh" "blah" "eh" or "What were you thinking!" But I had never come across the mix we had in Texas, which is Target's house brand, Archer Farms Pumpkin Pancake Mix. It was great! Now I have to see if our local Target carries it, too.

OK, back to being in Texas, where they tell you constantly they are in a drought, have been in a drought, and will always be in a drought. Now, being from here, we know what drought looks like, and it doesn't look a thing like the Dallas area of Texas! While I was and more rain. Construction of housing developments is going on everywhere and I don't see how they can build anything as all these fields, littered with earth-moving equipment, are giant morasses of mud! And it's green there. Green like you can't believe! There are ducks all over the place, floating in ponds and lakes...water, water, everywhere! The bluebonnets - Texas state flower - were blooming and folks were plowing through the mud to take pictures. That's the kind of drought we need to have! They even flush their toilets!

We had rain here last Saturday but not enough to make a dent in our dry, I'm afraid. It's time to feed our citrus trees, time for you to feed yours, too...just saying...and I figured Tuesday morning that it there, we had torrential rains, hail, tornado watches, flash flooding would be easy as the ground would still be wet from Saturday's rain. Heavy sigh...it wasn't.

The Art Fair is this weekend and we can't wait to see all the beautiful things, new artists, new concepts and ideas that will be covering Memorial Park. We are crossing our fingers hoping that David Van Noppen, the glass blower, will be back. His Venetian-style glass sculptures of bowls, vases, vegetables, flowers, and hanging gardens took my breath away and I've been waiting all year to buy one of his gorgeous pumpkins. Featured artist, Frank Yee's, Bonsais will be spectacular. There are special activities for kids, food trucks, live music. It's 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on Sunday. As it will all benefit our own Sierra Madre Public Library, why not plan to buy your Mother's Day present. You'll see something wonderful there, guaranteed!

HAMPTON WINS DISTRICT 1 COUNCIL SEAT

Local businessman Tyron Hampton won the District 1 council seat beating retired Fire Chief Calvin Wells after Pasadena City Clerk Mark Jomsky completed the second count of ballots Wednesday for the April 21 elections. Hampton had 1,238 votes or 51 percent to Wells' 1,185 votes or 48.9 percent.

Wells and Hampton were so close election night, with about 60 votes separating them, that no clear winner was declared. At the time Pasadena Public Information Officer William Boyer said mail in ballots were still be counted, "as long as they were postmarked by April 21, they will be counted." Jomsky also counted about 400 remaining provisional ballots.
Hampton a former Pasadena

School member also runs his family's construction company. Hampton said as a business owner, he would bring that perspective to the city council. Vice Mayor Jacque Robinson gave up her District 1 council seat to run for Mayor. She lost the election to councilmember Terry Tornek.

The official tally for Mayor had Tornek with 8,549 votes at 54.3 percent to Robinson's 7,170 votes at 45.6 percent.

Boyer said the second count is considered to be the "unofficial final" results to be used as the basis for the "Certificate of Canvass" which will be presented to the City Council at its Monday night meeting.

Hampton and Tornek will also be sworn in Monday night along with councilmembers Margaret McAustin, Gene Masuda and Steve Madison all three ran unopposed during

LOCALS PROTEST MAUNA KEA TELESCOPE

About two dozen protesters took to South Arroyo Parkway Wednesday in front of the Thirty Meter Telescope (TMT) Headquarters, as part of a growing movement spreading from "the Big Island" of Hawaii to Pasadena to stop the planned $1.5 billion telescope project on Mauna Kea— considered by many Hawaiians the most sacred place in the islands.

The telescope is being contracted by Caltech and partnered with, Canada, China, India and the University of California among others.

"We want to stop TMT from building on Mauna Kea," Protest organizer Mikilani Young said. "We are not against science; we are just against them building it on Mauna Kea. Just choose a different spot."

Young disputed claims made by TMT officials saying the project and existing telescopes on Mauna Kea present no danger to groundwater.

"There are aquafers under there and we know that TMT is building things under there to store chemicals," she said. "They're hazardous and no one can guarantee us that there's not going to be fractures or anything that effects the aquafers.

Statements released by TMT say the research area is well above the watershed recharge areas for Mauna Kea, at 14, 000 in video of the meeting.

Young said even more TMT is set to begin operation in important is what Mauna Kea means to Hawaiian culture. "It's our scared spot, this is where some people still go, up there to worship, it's like their church." She also said building telescopes on the mountain has been a long standing problem and that the builders are out of compliance, "the University of Hawaii, they're the ones with the lease and technically, was supposed to build only one telescope and without permission, built two more, and now there are 13."

On Thursday, The Office of Hawaiian Affairs voted to rescind support for construction of the telescope over the same concerns.

DROUGHT WORKSHOP HELD BY FOOTHILL MUNICIPAL WATER DISTRICT

A drought workshop was held by Foothill Municipal Water District Manager Jeff Kightlinger provided a presentation on hydrologic and its retail agencies on Tuesday, April 28, 2015. The workshop was conditions, water supplies and the Bay-Delta Conservation Plan water and allocation of imported water to the region as hydrologic conditions continue to decline this fourth year of drought. This vear follows on the heels of California's hottest year on record in 2014 and the driest year ever recorded in 2013. It is already seeing some of the warmest and driest months on record, including a record low snowpack in the Sierra Nevada.

Governor Brown issued an Executive Order on April 1 that calls for the first-ever statewide mandatory water reductions, prohibits watering of medians with potable water, requires water efficient landscape irrigation in all new residential construction, launches a statewide rebate program for turf removal, other water-saving landscape changes and appliance replacement, and calls for new actions to increase water efficiency from business and agriculture. Board President Richard Atwater began the meeting stating: "We are in a historic drought with impacts reaching throughout the State and beyond. We must change the ethics in which we view water and our lawns. We do not have the water to spare for the lush lawns we are used to having. Converting to California Friendly landscaping is the right thing to do."

Deliveries from Northern California through the State Water Project are currently at just 20 percent of the contracted amount. The SWP typically provides about a third of the Southland's water. Storage in the other imported supply source—the Colorado River stands at less than 50 percent of capacity after 15 drought years in the Southwest. In 2014, the groundwater basins in Southern California were drawn down about 1 million acre-feet.

years of drawing down storage reserves, adopted a 15% reduction in imported water at its Board meeting on April 14, 2015. For Foothill, any water taken above its allocation means a penalty surcharge of up to about three times as much as its water rate in addition to the cost of the water purchased. These penalties would be passed through to the retail agencies which exceed their allocation of held in response to the State's emergency regulations to conserve to the audience. Mr. Kightlinger stated: "Since 1995, Southern California has invested over $12 billion in conservation and local supply projects which have allowed us to stay out of allocating water. When the drought started, we had almost 3 million acre-feet of water in storage to help stave off shortages. We now have less than 1 million acre-feet left. We don't know when this drought is going to end. We need to stretch the remaining supplies so the impacts of shortages in future years are softened on the end customer."

> Foothill Municipal Water District General Manager Nina Jazmadarian then followed up with what consumers can do to conserve water. "The greatest water savings occurs with reducing outdoor water use. We are asking the public to limit irrigation to two days a week with no runoff onto hard surfaces as required by the State," said Jazmadarian. "Better yet, remove your lawn this summer by not watering at all but keep your trees alive by deeproot watering. Metropolitan offers rebates for turf replacement and this is a great time to start the project."

Other steps that customers can take to conserve include: Turning off the tap when not needed Taking shorter showers

Running only full loads of dishes and laundry Sweeping paved surfaces instead of hosing them down Limiting watering time to before 9 a.m. and after 5 p.m. Fixing leaks within 48 hours.

To help customers reduce water usage, rebates are offered on turf removal and various other devices including hot water recirculation systems, moisture sensors and rain barrels. Rebate information can Metropolitan Water District of Southern California, after three be found at http://www.fmwd.com/Conservation.aspx. Residents and businesses must register and prequalify for some rebates prior to starting any work.

Foothill Municipal Water District provides imported water to Crescenta Valley Water District, La Cañada Irrigation District, Mesa Crest Water Company, Valley Water Company, Lincoln Avenue Water Company, Las Flores Water Company and Rubio Cañon Land & Water Association. ASSEMBLYMAN GATTO'S BILL TO CREATE STATEWIDE HIT-AND-RUN ALERT SYSTEM SAFELY PASSES COMMITTEE

SACRAMENTO, CA - Assemblyman Mike Gatto's (D-Glendale) fight to reduce hit-and-run crimes continued today when the Assembly Public Safety Committee voted to approve his AB 8. The measure would establish the "Yellow Alert" system, which would allow law enforcement to engage other drivers to help identify and apprehend hit-and-run perpetrators.

AB 8 would enable the use of the state's existing network of freeway signs to broadcast information about vehicles suspected in hit-and-run incidents. Use of the system would be limited to hit-andruns that result in death or serious bodily injury. Alerts would be issued by local law enforcement when there is a sufficient description of the offending vehicle or the identity of the suspect is known. A 'Yellow Alert" would be limited to the area where the hit-and-run crime occurred. When Denver created a similar alert system in 2012, they saw a 76% arrest rate in cases where the alert was activated, compared to a previous arrest rate of around 20%. The success of the program prompted Colorado's legislature to implement the program

"It's gotten to the point to where not a single weekend goes by without another hit-and-run tragedy," said Gatto. "People flee because there's little chance they will be caught."

Matters are so bad that local officials and community members are taking matters into their own hands. Los Angeles City officials are now offering a $50,000 standing reward for information in hitand-run cases. Traffic app Waze is sharing hit-and-run data with Waze users, and the mother of a hit-and-run victim in Orange County has petitioned every city in that county to create a hit-and-

'California has the existing alert infrastructure in place and it costs us next to nothing to use it," said Gatto.

In 2013, Gatto authored AB 184, which doubled the statute of limitations to prosecute hit-and-run drivers. In 2014, he authored AB 47 and AB 1532, the latter of which would require mandatory license suspension for anyone convicted of a hit-and-run involving a person. Both bills passed the legislature with overwhelming majorities. Despite the bipartisan support and narrowly tailored language of AB 47, Governor Brown vetoed the bill in September. Mike Gatto is the Chairman of the Consumer Protection and Privacy Committee, and currently the longest-serving member in the State Assembly. He represents California's 43rd Assembly District, which includes Burbank, Glendale, La Cañada Flintridge, La Crescenta, Montrose, and the Los Angeles neighborhoods of Atwater Village, East Hollywood, Franklin Hills, Hollywood Hills, Los Feliz, and Silver Lake. www.asm.ca.gov/gatto

CINCO DE MAYO: FIESTA TIME OR JAIL TIME?

Buzzed Driving Is Drunk Driving

[Arcadia, CA] — In the United States, Cinco de Mayo - like St. Patrick's Day - is for many people just an occasion for having a good time with alcohol. Do you plan to join the fiesta on May 5th? The Arcadia Police Department has planned a DUI Saturations Patrol to deploy officers looking to identify and stop suspected drunk drivers. Additionally, every traffic and patrol officer assigned to duty will be on heightened alert to prevent a senseless tragedy due to alcohol or drugs.

The unfortunate truth is this: many people might be making party plans for Cinco de Mayo, but they aren't planning ahead for getting home. Only 64 percent of the drivers in fatal crashes on Cinco de Mayo weekend in 2013 had no alcohol in their systems. What about the other 36 percent? They were driving after drinking. Too many people are lying to themselves about the dangers of drinking and driving. Some fiesta-goers think that they can play it by ear, and wait until after they drink to decide whether they're "okay to drive." By then, it's too late.

Recent statistics reveal that 30 percent of drivers in fatal crashes had one or more drugs in their systems. A study of active drivers showed more tested positive for drugs that may impair driving (14 percent) than did for alcohol (7.3 percent). Of the drugs, marijuana was most prevalent, at 7.4 percent, slightly more than alcohol. Mixing medication or drugs - legal or illegal - is a dangerous cocktail. Specially trained drug recognition experts will be checking for drug impairment whenever suspected.

If you don't designate a sober driver ahead of time or have a solid plan for how you'll get home safely, you are setting yourself up for disaster. Buzzed Driving Is Drunk Driving, and when you drive drunk, you run the risk of killing yourself or someone else. Even if you don't harm anyone, the average DUI costs about $10,000. Wouldn't you rather pay for a taxi?

'Our main goal is to save lives," said Captain Paul Foley of the Arcadia Police Department. "Around the county, we want to debunk the myth that you can drink until you feel it and then get behind the wheel. You can't. Remember that Buzzed Driving Is Drunk Driving." Cinco de Mayo can be a fun and festive time for those who choose to celebrate the right way: with a plan for a sober ride. If you make your plans when you're sober, you won't make a bad decision when you're

As you make your Cinco de Mayo plans, the California Office of Traffic Safety is offering a free mobile app - DDVIP - aimed at thanking the sober designated driver with perks and free offers at area bars and restaurants. And for those without a DD - make a sober ride home your priority; the new SaferRide app from NHTSA makes it easier than ever.

A final statistic to remember: drunk-driving deaths are 100 percent preventable.

Funding for this is provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety, through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration who reminders every motorist to Report Drunk Drivers - Call 911! Remember, Buzzed Driving Is Drunk Driving. Don't do it.

PROPOSED RENAMING OF COMMUNITY SERVICES / PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT

As you may recall, when the operations of the Community Services Department and Public Works Department were merged, a small group of staff from each division of the combined operations began meeting to gather ideas and develop concepts for naming the newly constituted department.

After much discussion with colleagues in each division, the committee has developed the following department name recommendation – Department of Public Services. The committee felt that since all divisions of the new department work with the public and serve the public, the proposed name accurately reflected the purpose every work unit housed in the newly comprised operation. If a water main breaks... or if someone is looking for a recreation class... of if someone has a concern with a sidewalk... or if a resident needs help with literacy services... or if a tree is about to fall down... or if someone wants to rent a space at the park... it is believed Public Services will be intuitive enough for a person to know to look to this department for that service need.

WATER CONSERVATION THINK TANK TEAM WORKING ON A RESPONSE TO THE STATE'S CONSERVATION ORDER

Representative from the Public Services Department, the City Manager's Office, and the Administrative Services Department met this past week to further develop Monrovia's plan to respond to the State's mandatory water use restriction order. As you may recall, based on the preliminary proposed regulatory framework developed by the State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB), Monrovia is required to reduce our water consumption by 28% below 2013 usage levels. This compilation of talented City staff, dubbed the Water Conservation Think Tank, divided the work into four separate subcommittees, including Education / Outreach, Data / Analysis, Changing Operations, and Rates / Enforcement. We are now looking at how all of these issues will impact our various customer categories (Residential, Commercial, Industrial, and Municipal), and the committee is now meeting weekly to develop a comprehensive plan that will be shared with the City Council on May 19, 2015. Please let me know if you have any questions regarding this matter.

NEIGHBORHOOD COMPATIBILITY / HISTORIC PRESERVATION UPDATE

As you may be aware, the City has been coordinating an overall neighborhood compatibility and historic preservation outreach program in advance of our work to update existing City codes and regulations. To date, we have published a survey regarding the issues at hand and have had directed focus group meetings with real estate / development representatives, MAP leaders, and with MOHPG. In addition, our crack Planning Team has met with of the Planning Commission and Historic Preservation Commission to solicit their feedback regarding the issues at hand.

Moving forward, we are coordinating details related to hosting a general public outreach meeting that will take place during either the second or third week of May 2015. At the conclusion of that meeting, we are planning to hold a study session with the City Council to present our findings in June / July 2015. Following that overview meeting, staff is planning to host a joint meeting between the City Council, Planning Commission, and Historic Preservation Commission in July / August 2015 to review our next steps in the

We have obtained terrific feedback from the community regarding the complex issues related to neighborhood compatibility and historic preservation, and our outstanding team in the Community Development Department has handled all of the different issues related to this topic with aplomb! Many thanks to all involved in

AFTER SCHOOL SPORTS AT PLYMOUTH ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

Staff met with Plymouth Elementary school officials on Friday, April 17, 2015 to discuss the possibility of bringing the After School Sports program to their campus. On Wednesday, April 22, 2015, staff visited Plymouth Elementary in the morning to pass out fliers and promote the program.

Later that afternoon, staff was on-site to do more recruiting. Based on the response to date, we are happy to share that a modified program will be implemented immediately at the school, with practices starting this past Monday, April 27, 2015! Given that the sports programs have already started this year, Plymouth Elementary will not be competing in the games this season due to the late start.

However, the school will be invited to attend the awards ceremony on May 28, 2015, where they will be introduced as our newest addition to the program, and next year, the After School Sports league will need to take into consideration the Plymouth Elementary Dragons! Many thanks to our Public Services Department staff and representatives from the Monrovia Unified School District for collaborating to bring this program to fruition for our kids at Plymouth Elementary!

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

SERVICE DOGS PROVIDE THERAPY FOR AUTISTIC CHILDREN

Autism spectrum disorder (ASD) is a range of complex neurodevelopment disorders, characterized by social impairments, communication difficulties, and restricted, repetitive and stereotyped patterns of behavior. Autistic disorder, commonly known as Autism, is the most severe form of ASD, while other conditions along the spectrum include a milder form known as Asperger syndrome, childhood disintegrative disorder and personal development disorder not otherwise specified (usually referred to as PDD-NOS).

Experts estimate that 1 out of 88 children age 8 will have an ASD (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention: Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, March 30, 2012). Autism occurs in all ethnic and socioeconomic groups and affects every age group, although statistics show that males are four times more likely to have some form of ASD than females.

The hallmark feature of Autism is impaired social interaction. A child with Autism may appear to develop normally and then withdraw and become indifferent to social engagement. They may fail to respond to their names and often avoid eye contact with other people. They may also engage in repetitive movements such as rocking and twirling and often have difficulty playing interactively with other children.

There are various therapies known to help Autistic children with behavior modification using positive reinforcement, but success is limited with no promise that the child will ever become completely independent. Indeed, in most cases, the Autistic child will remain fully dependent on others for the entire duration of their life.

No matter how much a parent loves their Autistic child, there is only so much they can do and there are only so many hours in a day. We humans are limited to a finite amount of energy and number waking hours, regardless of how dedicated we may be to a cause. This becomes particularly problematic when there are other siblings in the home, with their own set of needs for love and attention. Often parents become exhausted with the constant demands of raising an Autistic child, and they must reach out for help and they must reach out for help.

In comes the canine. That's right, there are service dogs specifically trained for the sole purpose of assisting Autistic children! Just the thought of this warms my heart. Although it comes as no surprise to me, because it just makes sense that a dog could do such a thing for a child in need. But when I read about how and why interaction with a therapy dog can have such a positive impact on an Autistic child, other than the obvious benefits we all get from our pets, I was truly amazed. It is more scientific than you might think.

First, here is a little background on what has been found to be a major culprit of Autism. Cortisol is the body's stress hormone, produced in anticipation of stressful situations. A body's level of cortisol typically peaks a half hour after waking, which is called "Cortisol Awakening Response" (CAR). By measuring

CAR, scientists can determine how stressed someone is, without having to verbally ask them

According to a new study at the University of Montreal, "Effects of Service Dogs on Salivary Cortisol Secretion in Autistic Children", specifically trained service dogs can help reduce anxiety and enhance the social skills of children with Autism. "Our findings show that the dogs had a clear impact on the children's stress hormone levels", says Sonia Lupien, senior researcher and professor at the UM Dept. of Psychiatry, and Director of Centre for Studies on Human Stress at Louis-H Lafontaine Hospital. She continued, "I have not seen such a dramatic effect before."

The test results showed an average CAR level increase of 58% prior to the introduction of a service dog. With a service dog, tests showed the CAR levels plummeted to a mere 10% increase, significantly lower than before. Next, the dog was taken away for four weeks, and the CAR shot back up to a 48% increase every morning as the child awoke from sleep. Remarkable results, to say the least! Lupien also observed a notable improvement in the children's behavior with a decrease in irritability and incidents of "acting out", as reported by their parents.

A number of hypotheses were drawn, to explain the desirable CAR response experienced by the subject children after spending time with the dogs, including positive psychological factors (e.g. calmer, happier children), or changes in their sleep patterns (some parents reported improved sleep habits when the service dogs were in the home), or perhaps the presence of the dogs created an anchoring effect that made testing cortisol levels easier on the children. For whatever reason, the fact remains that the dogs' presence had a very positive impact on the children, and that is a fantastic fact!

I found several groups on line, that offer trained service dogs to children with Autism, but the one that impressed me the most is 4 Paws for Ability. They were the first group to start training dogs for the specific purpose of assisting Autistic children, and in spite of the huge number of calls they receive every year, they have never turned down a child in need of a canine companion. It must be very gratifying to know you are helping a child with Autism by training a dog to be their best friend!

PET OF THE WEEK OLIVE: ANIMAL ID #A3902223

Like a fine wine, dogs get better with age! Such is definitely the case with Olive (A3902223). Volunteers are sure she was a cute puppy, but cannot get over how stunning she has become! Olive is an easygoing 7-year-old black with white spayed female Cocker Spaniel mix whose owner left her at the Baldwin Park Animal Care Center for no known reason on April 22. Volunteers cannot imagine why because Olive is such a beautiful dog inside and out! Weighing 15 pounds (a great size for an apartment or condo), Olive walks daintily on leash and is curious about socializing with other dogs. Olive is a lap dog at heart, and happily climbs into available laps for snuggles. Olive has experienced some neglect, and will benefit from a dental cleaning and a good diet. With her adorable face and long legs, she is supermodel material, once she gets some TLC. Olive will be a fantastic best friend to any individual or family looking for a loyal, friendly dog to join them on walks and evenings on the couch.

To meet Olive in person, please see her at the Baldwin Park Shelter, located at 4275 N. Elton, Baldwin Park, CA 91706 (Phone: 626-430-2378 or 626-962-3577). She is currently available now and is ready to go home with you! For any inquiries about Olive, please reference her animal ID number: A3902223. The shelter is open seven days a week, 12 pm-7 pm Monday-Thursday and 10am-5pm Friday-Sunday. This is a high-intake shelter with a great need for adoptions. For more information about Olive or the adoption process, contact United Hope for Animals Volunteer Adoption Coordinator Samantha at Samantha@

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND?

Puppers is a senior Chihuahua mix, about 15 years old, who was surrendered to the shelter by an owner who could no longer care for him.

It's always difficult to see a dog surrendered, but especially an older dog that has fewer chances to get adopted. Puppers was very lost and confused his first few days at the shelter, but gradually he became used to the daily routine, and got accustomed to the staff and volunteers who interact with him each day. He now greets visitors with a smile and a wiggle where his tail ought to be. At some point in his life, Puppers lost his tail, but he can still express his happiness with that wiggle.

Puppers likes people as well as other dogs, and he gets along well with his kennel mate. Puppers is easy to harness and handle on leash, and he enjoys going for walks. He likes to keep moving on his walks, and has more energy than would be expected in a dog of his age. If he didn't have a few gray hairs on his face, he could easily pass for a much younger gentleman.

Puppers has an easy-going, mellow disposition, and likes getting pets and attention from people. He is also fond of treats and he appears to be carrying a few extra pounds because of that. As much as he enjoys walking, he should be back to his ideal weight before long.

If you can find a place in your heart and your home for this sweet senior boy, he would happily be your new best friend. Senior dogs to not ask for much more than a secure and comfortable home to spend their Golden Years, and they have a lot of love to give in return.

He currently resides at the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society located at 851 E. Grand Avenue in San Gabriel. We are located off San Gabriel Blvd., north of Mission and south of Las Tunas. To arrange a 'Meet and Greet' with Puppers, please stop by any time from 10:00am to 4:30pm Tuesday thru Sunday.

Pupper's adoption fee is $120. This includes his neuter surgery, vaccinations, microchip and a free wellness exam at a participating veterinarian. He is also eligible for the shelter's reduced-fee 'Senior For Senior' adoption program.

If you are interested in meeting Puppers or any of the other wonderful pets at the shelter, visit the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society at 851 E. "Mike will be a great addition to our coaching staff as he is a proven leader with a successful coaching career on all levels and has a Christian-based ethic that will be a perfect fit for us," said La Salle's Athletic Director, Anthony Harris.

The gimmick behind this movie is actually the only thing that I had no problem with. Watching the interactions on the computer screens was very interesting and, surprisingly, made up for the lack of action throughout the film. There are, however, two other, major problems with the film. One, none of the characters are likable; they are not even relatable. Not enough time is given to their development in a positive, interesting way; we only see their flaws pointed out and it makes them uninteresting. The other major flaw that came to me once I had left the theater was that the reason for their Skype conversation, the central interaction that the film revolves around, has no reason for happening. None of the characters bring up why they are talking over Skype and not, for example, over a

Overall, the film works as a horror movie to some extent, but its lack of likable characters and its inability to rationalize why said characters are doing the action that leads to their being killed, severely limits its likeli-

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEW FUTURE ISLANDS - 'THE CHASE'/'HAUNTED BY YOU' SINGLES

breakthrough of 2014. The band band's exhilarating and off the beaten path performance on The Late Night with David Letterman went viral last summer. It turned the Baltimore synth-pop trio into an over night sensation or so it seemed. No question about it, they are the hardest working guys in indie rock. They formed in 2006 and have been touring incessantly. 'Singles,' their fourth full-length record was released last year and like all their albums before, it was well received my critics. Up until that release, they garner a small, but strong following. The release came from 4AD, a major indie label. Perhaps it was the record label change, but this particular new enthusiasm was found layered onto their trademark sound. The results were absolutely invigorating. Other albums encompassed a theme about looking back and reflecting on particular times in one's own life. On 'Singles' singer/songwriter Samuel Herring affectedly sings about the future that lies ahead. Such with earlier albums, questions are raised, but answers are seldom found, for both past and future situations.

While they didn't release a full up follow-up to 'Singles' just yet, they did record a new single entitled "The Chase" with a B-side called "Haunted By You." "The Chase" feels like something off 'Singles,' which is a terrific thing to be in company with. It has their signature, cavernous synths along with Herring's hoarse but sometimes smooth vocals. He doesn't throw in his usual deep scream, in fact, he sounds crisper than ever. It's a tightly constructed song while displaying B-side 'Haunted By You' for purchase as well.

than the time before. It's pure Future Islands in their new era of sound and once again it impresses on all levels. It's incredible it took these guys this long to gain the success their finally receiving.

The real gem here is the B-side, "Haunted By You." It's a mildly slower tempo song than "The Chase," but lyrically more effective and harrowing. The lyric "There's no home, no home like the one I found in you," is gorgeously and soulfully sung by Herring. This is not some radio friendly tune since it's so profound in both delivery and on a lyrical standpoint. It flows with effortless grace and pensiveness. "Haunted By You" is pure beauty in the form of nearly four minutes making it the finest song of any artist from this year by a long shot. Like the title suggests, this one will definitely haunt the listener in the best possible way. Once again and with no surprise at all, Future Islands astonishes with utter elegance and true artistry. If you're seeking truth, depth, and simply great music of the modern age, look no further than Future Islands. If 'Haunted By You' doesn't stir up emotions after one listen, one best better check their pulse to see if they're still even alive.

We are in the "crunch" period of putting a show up. We will be adding the technical elements (sound and lights) to The Odd Couple over the weekend. Tonight we have our "dry tech" - which is when we run through all the technical cues without the actors in preparation for our "wet tech - cue to cue" tomorrow with the actors. Last night our costume designer, Angela Nicholas, previewed all the looks for all the characters for us. She's created a fun and period-appropriate looking show -

SIERRA MADRE CHILI COOK-OFF

No Beans about the Annual Sierra Madre Kiwanis Chili Cook-Off is just around the corner. I am an old hand at these events; you see I put on the very popular Pasadena Chili Cook-Off for some 12 years. At one point we attracted some 30 cooks and 1200 attendees. I invite all of you to this event, I judged last year and I was absolutely impressed with the quality of entrants. My idea of a true chili is one that has no beans, but I have a feeling that there will be all sorts of entrants that I will state "This is Chili?"...I did a little research on how this Chili Craze got started, and these are the two that make the most sense. See everyone Saturday Night at the Sierra Madre Room 611 E. Sierra Madre Blvd. Sierra Madre.

There is little doubt that cattle drivers and trail hands did more to popularize the dish throughout the Southwest than anybody else, and there is a tale that we heard one frosty night in a Texican bar in Marfa, Texas, about a range cook who made chili along all the great cattle trails of Texas. He collected wild oregano, chile peppers, wild garlic, and onions and mixed it all with the fresh-killed beef or buffalo - or jackrabbit, armadillo, rattlesnake, or whatever he had at hand - and the cowhands ate it like ambrosia. And to make sure he had an ample supply of native spices wherever he went, he planted gardens along the paths of the cattle drives - mostly in patches of mesquite - to protect them from the hooves of the marauding cattle. The next time the drive went by there, he found his garden and harvested the crop, hanging the peppers and onions and oregano to dry on the side of the chuck wagon. The cook blazed a trail across Texas with tiny, spicy gardens.

The other story I like as well, is that a small Rio Grande Jail in Texas was home to the original chili, the story goes that the inmates gathered scraps of meat, any kind of spices or anything that was left over and made a think soup, as they added vegetables the "soup" got thicker and thicker. The inmates added gruel, bread and water to thicken it up. By the 1850's each Texas Jail was rated by the chili that was served!!

HOW TO AVOID PROBATE BY PROPERLY FUNDING YOUR TRUST

A common estate planning mistake made by many people – including celebrities and the wealthy – is not ensuring the trust you have created actually holds all your assets. This process of transferring your personal assets into your trust is called "funding."

Unfortunately, most lawyers do not make sure this is properly handled for their clients, so even if you've worked with an attorney you need to double check this critical issue. If you do not transfer your assets into your trust correctly, it is nothing more than an empty shell and will not accomplish the objectives (such as avoiding probate) you had in mind when you established it.

Here is a basic rundown of the proper procedures for

Real estate – a new deed in the name of the trust must be drawn and recorded at the county clerk's office. For properties with mortgages there may be additional issues to consider so always seek legal counsel before recording a new deed.

Stocks, bonds, mutual funds - to transfer the ownership of these assets into your trust, you need to contact your broker, investment counselor or transfer agent for the proper paperwork and complete those documents as instructed.

Savings bonds - you will need to obtain a reissue form from the Federal Reserve Bank and re-title the more information.

bonds in the name of the trust.

Brokerage accounts - contact your broker for the proper forms that will enable the broker to close the existing accounts and transfer the assets into a new Stock certificates – you will need to send a completed "stock power" form as well as a W-9 form with your tax ID number with the original stock certificates to the company's transfer agent.

Bank accounts, CDs – new accounts will need to be established in the name of the trust. If your bank cannot transfer CDs until the maturity date, then mark them "in trust for" a beneficiary until the CDs mature and you can transfer them to the trust.

Life insurance, retirement plans – these assets cannot be owned by a living trust but it may be appropriate to name your trust as beneficiary. Seek legal counsel before changing the primary or contingent beneficiary on these types of assets.

Written confirmation – don't just assume everything has been transferred correctly because you submitted the paperwork. Always ask for and keep a copy of a written confirmation indicating your assets have been moved into your trust.

As your partner in planning for the financial security of yourself and your family, we would never let your trust go unfunded. That's because our concern for you doesn't stop with the signing of your legal documents we always follow up with clients to ensure everything has been done properly so they are fully protected.

If you'd like to learn more about how a trust might benefit you and your family, call us to schedule a Family Estate Planning Session and get educated about your options. There's no obligation and if you mention this article there will be no fee.

WHERE HAS ALL THE TASTE GONE?

author of the article, Mark Schatzker, also the author of the book, The Dorito Effect, says that diets come and go and ultimately don't work because we are not addressing the real issue which is the divide between flavor—the tastes we crave—and the underlying nutrition.

Schatzker states, that since the late 1940s, we have been slowly leeching flavor out of the food we grow. Ask your grandparents or parents depending on your age, if strawberries or tomatoes were tastier and sweeter when they were kids as compared to now? It is animal nature that we crave certain food so that we will get the nutrition that we need to grow and repair our bodies.

So why are our foods blander? It has been shown that spinach in 1950 had way more iron in it than it does now. The same has been seen in all the nutrients found in tomatoes. The problem is we are trying to produce more crops on a given acre of land than nature intended. In doing so, we are taking raw Over time, avoiding the artificial foods will allow materials out of the soil before they can be replaced your tastes to adapt to real foods again.

I was traveling last by nature. We have not been satisfied with the size week and read an of the crops so we alter them so they grow larger. article in the Wall To top it off we have created disease resistant crops. Street Journal about What we are really saying is that nature got it wrong. how our foods are As crops become more productive, affordable and getting blander. The disease resistant they lose their nutrition and in turn

 $To \, compound \, matters, we have \, created \, processed$ foods like salad dressings, ketchup, bottled sauce and the like to drown our bland food in. Many of the ingredients that make these foods taste good to us are created in a lab artificially. Even worse we take the flavors we crave and sprinkle them on so called foods that have no nutrition in them at all, like snack chips (potato, corn....) and sodas. Schatzker points out that today's junk food aisle is over flowing with the flavors that are disappearing like tomato, strawberry, blueberry, and cherry to name a few.

What can we do? Spend your food dollars on good organic food. If possible, grow your own crops, especially heirloom crops as each and every year there are many of these crop varieties that just disappear. I have found that my tastes have changed. I removed most of these artificially processed foods and my taste has improved and is more sensitive. So, try eating good quality foods with less salt, sugar and store bought sauces and in a few weeks, you will begin to need less of all that extra artificial flavor.

THE GOOD LIFE

Dear Savvy Senior:

What tips can you offer for tracking down a lost pension from a previous employer?

About to Retire

Dear About:

It's not unusual for a worker to lose track of a pension benefit. Perhaps you left an employer long ago and forgot that you left behind a pension. Or maybe you worked for a company that changed owners or went belly up many years ago, and you figured the pension went with it.

Benefit Guaranty Corporation (PBGC), a federal government agency, waiting to be claimed by their rightful owners. The average unclaimed benefit with PBGC is about $6,500.

To help you look for a pension, here are some steps to take and some free resources that can help you search if your previous employer has gone out of business, relocated, changed owners or merged with another firm.

Contact Employer

If you think you have a pension and the company you worked for still is in business, your first step is to call the human resources department and ask how to contact the pension plan administrator. Ask the administrator whether you have a pension, how much it is worth and how to claim it. Depending on how complete the administrator's records are you may need to show proof that you once worked for the company and that you are pension eligible.

Your old income tax returns and W-2 forms from the years you worked at the company will help you here. If you haven't saved your old tax returns from these years, you can get a copy of your earnings record from the Social Security Administration, which will show how much you were paid each calendar year by each employer.

Call 800-772-1213, and ask for Form SSA-7050, "Request for Social Security Earnings Information," or you can download it at ssa.gov/ online/ssa-7050.pdf. The SSA charges a $136 for pension eligibility are summary plan descriptions that you should have received from your employer when you worked there, and any individual benefit statements that you received during your employment.

Search PBGC

If your former employer went out of business or Today, millions of dollars in benefits are sitting if the company still is in business but terminated in pension plans across the U.S. or with the Pension its pension plan, check with the PBGC, which guarantees pension payouts to private-sector workers if their pension plans fail, up to annual limits. Most people receive the full benefit they earned before the plan was terminated. The PBGC offers an online pension-search directory tool at search.pbgc.gov/mp/mp.aspx.

Get Help

If you need help tracking down your former company because it may have moved, changed owners or merged with another firm, contact the Pension Rights Center, a nonprofit consumer organization that offers seven free Pension Counseling and Information Projects around the U.S. that serve 30 states. For more information, visit pensionrights.org or call 888-420-6550.

If you, your company or your pension plan happens to be outside the 30-state area served by the projects, or if you're trying to locate a federal or military pension, use Pension Help America at pensionhelp.org. This resource can connect you with government agencies and private organizations that provide free information and assistance to help your search.

NASA'S NEW HORIZONS SPACECRAFT DETECTS SURFACE FEATURES, POSSIBLE POLAR CAP ON PLUTO

For the first time, images from NASA's New Horizons spacecraft are revealing bright and dark regions on the surface of faraway Plutothe primary target of the New Horizons close flyby in mid-July.

The images were captured in early to mid-April from within 70 million miles (113 million kilometers), using the telescopic Long-Range Reconnaissance Imager (LORRI) camera on New Horizons. A technique called image deconvolution sharpens the raw, unprocessed images beamed back to Earth. New Horizons scientists interpreted the data to reveal the dwarf planet has broad surface markingssome bright, some dark-including a bright area at one pole that may be a polar cap.

"As we approach the Pluto system we are starting to see intriguing features such as a bright region near Pluto's visible pole, starting the great scientific adventure to understand this enigmatic celestial object," says John Grunsfeld, associate administrator for NASA's Science Mission Directorate in Washington. "As we get closer, the excitement is building in our quest to unravel the mysteries of Pluto using data from New Horizons."

Also captured in the images is Pluto's largest moon, Charon, rotating in its 6.4-day long orbit. The exposure times used to create this image set—a tenth of a second—were too short for the camera to detect Pluto's four much smaller and fainter moons.

Since it was discovered in 1930, Pluto has remained an enigma. It orbits our Sun more than 3 billion miles (about 5 billion kilometers) from Earth, and researchers have struggled to discern any details about its surface. These latest New Horizons images allow the mission science team to detect clear differences in brightness across Pluto's surface as it rotates.

"After traveling more than nine years through space, it's stunning to see Pluto, literally a dot of light as seen from Earth, becoming a real place right before our eyes," said Alan Stern, New Horizons principal investigator at Southwest Research Institute in Boulder, Colorado. "These incredible images are the first in which we can begin to see detail on Pluto, and they are already showing us that Pluto has a complex surface."

The images the spacecraft returns will

PRACTICAL SOLUTIONS TO OUR ECONOMIC WOES by Christopher Nyerges

[Nyerges is the author of "Self-Sufficient Home," a member of the local environmentally-focused non-profit WTI, and an occasional blogger of current events. He can be reached at Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041, or

Nicole recently at Bean Town, we got into a discussion of how the recent economic problems are affecting the income of so many people. We began to consider the solutions that are available.

Our discussion didn't so much focus on how there was a lot of blame to go around - after all, it is true that the over-paid bankers in fine suits extended loans that the recipients were unable to pay. But why did the recipients accept such loans?

Nicole and I agreed that both greed and wishful thinking were in abundance a few years back. We both thought back to my father's good old days when the banker-thieves jumped off bridges as their final act of contrition. Today they get a bailout from Washington, and guess who ultimately gets to pay for the bailout? Anyway, Nicole and I both focused upon the question:

What does someone unemployed do? Should one just sit and collect unemployment and wait for someone to hire them? Certainly that is one option. Everyone's financial situation is different, of course, but we tried to consider the question: from whence comes real wealth (for an individual or a country)?

Obviously, one big part of the solution to unemployment is to get someone to hire you, someone whose business requires your unique skills or talents. MĀKING A LIST

But "getting hired" is only one-half of the equation. As I have personally done many times, and have advised people dozens of times, when you need to earn money, you should also sit down and make a long list of all your talents and skills, as well as all the things you can sell. WHAT CAN YOU SELL?

Selling stuff, of course, is a short-term solution, but sometimes that's what's needed. And the very act of taking inventory of the physical stuff you have acquired can force you to re-look at your own needs and priorities. The act of getting out and talking to people and trying to raise some short-term cash allows you to let others know your plight, and opens the door for others to hire you, or offer some advice.

Some examples of raising short-term cash by selling stuff includes yard sales, estate sales, sales on ebay, taking individual items to antique dealers, and calling all of your friends and offering them deals on something you have.

MARKET YOUR SKILLS

Then, another list should be made where you list all of your skills. This includes things you can do, possibly on a free-lance basis, for hire. The list should also include all the things you can make and sell.

It is noteworthy that rarely does the politician who talks about unemployment ever mention the fact that just about everyone has latent skills that can and should be put into action. And keep in mind that real intrinsic wealth occurs when something of higher value is created from something of a lesser value. Lasting real wealth does not and cannot occur when a government simply prints more paper currency. Even the local Native Americans understood this when they created beadwork and basketry which served as articles of trade that had intrinsic value.

Of course, everyone's list will be unique. Such a list of things you can make could include woodworking (making bookshelves, desks, canes, etc.), various useful crafts (candles, soaps, metal-works, etc.), and making clothes. If you know how to sew, you could not only

When I ran into my friend make custom clothing but could also make repairs. Many larger businesses started when just this way. GRÓW FOOD

> You can make foodstuffs, like pies, cookies, soups, salsas. Unfortunately, in today's very controlled society, you will need Health Department permits to sell foodstuffs to stores or farmer's markets - and maybe you can go that route. But you could also just let your neighbors know that you need the income and are currently selling meals, pies, etc. You might be surprised at the response.

> Growing and then selling fruits, herbs, and produce is another way to create something and introduce new wealth into the economy. I have done this parttime for years, and did once go the route of getting the Department of Agriculture certification so that I could also sell the fruits of my labor to farmer's markets. Useful artworks are also worth considering, such > as greeting cards, posters, hand-made art pieces, photography, etc. Again, everyone's list is different. When I was laid off from a regular office job in 1993, I felt tinges of fear as to how the bills would be paid. But I quickly segued into making arts and crafts and selling them at craft fairs around Southern California. which included cards, walking sticks, twig pencils, bull roarers, and booklets that we wrote and published. A NEW WAY OF THINKING

> One of the personal benefits of pursuing such an unconventional way of "making money" is that it just might open you up to doing those things that you really enjoy doing, and you might find that you look forward to getting up each day. Though such efforts generally take time, and generally do not replace a full "hired job" income immediately, they can be valuable ways to bring a family together, and create a hitherto unknown sense of family and community. I know for me that such days have been the best times of my life. We had the money we needed, but not always the money we wanted. By the way, the details of this are all recorded in "Extreme Simplicity: Homesteading in the City," available at Amazon or www.ChristopherNyerges. coml.

> Which leads to another benefit. When you have no incentive to save and to find other ways to fulfill your basic needs, you tend to do what is easiest. When there is a pressure, you often are highly motivated to make other things succeed. Plus, you learn that you can do things for less, that you can recycle, and you learn how to produce a produce with minimal waste.

WHAT CAN I DO FOR YOU?

At our home, we grew as much of our own food as possible, raised chickens, composted, burned our scrap wood in the fireplace, and never let anything go to waste. When we had a need, we approached others with the mindset of "What can I do for you?" (rather than "can you help me?"). This way, when we put the other persons needs first, people were more than willing to help solve our problems. And at that point, we were not so much "solving a problem" as we were doing things that we all benefited from.

What a wonderful mental attitude. It is precisely this attitude put into action that can provide real solutions in today's economic depression.

Though I have written about 10 books about "survival" and self-reliance issues, it is always worth reminding ourselves how money and the use of money seems to dictate so much of our daily life.

OUT TO PASTOR

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

WHEN DID CUTE STOP BEING CUTE?

to make room for a few new books when it happened. I was in for a surprise and did not quite know it. There behind some books on my bookshelf was an old family photo album I had not seen in years. When I say old, I mean these were pictures taken when cameras were really cameras with film in them. Nobody knows what those cameras were like today.

Today, you take a picture and instantly it is on your cell phone. Back in "the day" cameras had film in the and you had to buy film and then when you took the pictures you had to take the film out and send it away and hopefully within four weeks you get those pictures back.

Sometimes when those pictures did come back, nobody could remember them. We had to get together and sort them out because my father usually took all the pictures. My father was a great camera buff, not a good photographer, but he had his camera with him everywhere and was always taking pictures. One thing my father could not understand was, you had to pose the picture and adjust the lens so it would be clear. He just pointed the camera and click.

I remember one summer we went to the mountains for a week's vacation and as usual, father brought his camera along and clicked all week long. We could hardly wait to get back and get those pictures processed so we could relive our vacation.

That was the longest four weeks of my life. Every day someone in the family would say, "Have the pictures arrived yet?" It got so bad that when anybody started a sentence with "Have the..." my father just glared and nobody could finish the sentence.

Finally, they arrived. Everybody was excited to relive our summer vacation around the old family table. At least we thought we were going to do that.

As we look at the pictures and passed them around everybody had a very puzzled look on their face. Nobody could remember the pictures.

My father stepped in to clear up the situation. "Yes, yes," he said, "these are wonderful pictures and that is you, don't you recognize yourself?"

Well, I didn't. In fact, nobody recognized any of those pictures.

Then mother stepped in. You know how it is, mothers always solve problems. Well, she solved our problem.

She looked at father and said, "Dear, where did we spend our vacation this summer?" That seemed like a very interesting question and rather irritated my father. "You know," he growled, "we spent our vacation in the mountains. What's wrong with you?"

Mother was quiet for a moment and then or in almost a whisper she said, "If we spent our was rearranging vacation in the mountains why are there so bookshelves many pictures of the beach?" My father stared at her and then stared at the pictures and I cannot repeat what he said. He never liked it when mother was right. For some reason we got somebody else's vacation pictures who were at the beach and probably they had our pictures of our vacation in the mountains. I would have loved to been around the table at that home with everybody trying to figure out why there were so many trees and mountains in their family vacation at the beach.

Those were wonderful days and leafing through my photo album from the past, I saw many pictures I did not recognize. In some of these pictures, there was a little boy I did not quite recognize. In fact, there were many pictures I did not recognize, but this little boy puzzled me.

I always thought I had a good memory, but this really perplexed me. Who was this little boy that was part of my life 60 years ago or

My wife noticed I was grimacing as I looked at the photographs. Incidentally, all of the photographs were black-and-white. Most do not remember those days. Finally, my wife queried me on what was going on.

"I just cannot figure out who this little boy is in all these pictures."

I handed the photographs to her, she looked at them and then a smile began dancing across her face.

'You really don't know who that little boy is," she said flippantly.

When I assured her I had no idea who that little boy was, she broke out in hearty laughter. I did not think it was funny. There was this little boy all through my photographs and I do not know who he was.

"Why," she said when she could speak, "that little boy is you." Then she commenced her laughing parade.

I looked again and I really could not believe it. Here was this cute little boy with a mischievous smile on his face and it was me. I have looked in the mirror many a time and that cute little face has long ago disappeared. Whatever happened to that cute little boy in the photographs? When does cute stop being cute? And why?

David might have been thinking along this line when he wrote, "O God, thou hast taught me from my youth: and hitherto have I declared thy wondrous works" (Psalms

I like to think that under all of the grimacing and scowling and wrinkles there is that cute little boy that was once me.

- Andrew Fahlund, deputy director of California Water Foundation International news over the past several days has been focused on the tragedy in Nepal, with thousands of lives lost. I heard a USC professor of Earth Sciences interviewed on the subject, and what he said came off as a plug for "big

He said it's inevitable we'll experience something of a similar magnitude (7.8) on the San Andreas Fault - maybe not tomorrow, but most certainly within the next century.

He repeated a paraphrase of the NRA popular among those in his field; "Earthquakes don't kill people; buildings kill people". A big difference in our situations is that in Katmandu, for example, not more than a quarter of the structures were built to code. He said it made him want to go out and "hug a building

The big news nationally came from Baltimore, another situation with cops allegedly committing criminal acts themselves and a community fed up with their routinely getting away with it. Covering these stories, there are always those compelled to point out that victims of black-on-black crime far outnumber black victims of white cops. For those thus implying that police be held to no higher standard than inner-city gang-bangers, I think they owe an apology to the hundreds of thousands serving with honor in law enforcement.

Locally, I was relieved to find no mention of me in the MVN's "Sierra Madre Police Blotter". I was busted (or rather notified) twice. One notice caused me to re-set the sprinkler when the spray heads were seen popping up on the wrong day. The other resulted in half-a-Saturday spent fixing a leak in my outdoor plumbing. Aside from this personal impact, the drought led me to find out about things I didn't know much about before. (Did you know it takes a gallon of water to grow a single almond?)

In hindsight, maybe we should have paid attention sooner. Back in 2004, another Earth Sciences professor, Lisa Sloan of UC Santa Cruz along with a grad student published a paper on the effects of melting Arctic ice caused by global warming. As the ice melts, heat rises from the ocean causing vast high pressure zones. Another effect of global warming is that it thickens the atmosphere – so these zones become all the stronger, blocking jet streams and normal weather patterns.

As predicted by Prof. Sloan, the effect of this would be for expected Pacific winter storms to be diverted from California up to British Columbia and Alaska, and all the way over to the East Coast. Ten years later, it turns out she was right.

NASA-funded research out of Utah State University last year confirmed the strengthening high pressure center off the west coast and the low pressure zone back east, bringing increased warm temperatures and less rain to the west coast and more frigid storms to the other side of the country. These zones will get stronger and the weather more extreme as the atmosphere thickens because of global warming.

The warming has other effects. More rain falls in infrequent downpours, which drain away faster. More rain and less snow in the mountains means less water from melting snow in spring and summer. More heat means faster evaporation.

In his column last week, Greg Welborn cited presidential wannabe Carly Fiorina's claim that 70% of California's rainwater is "flushed out to sea". According to the California Water Federation's Andrew Fahlund (quoted above), the number is more like 50%. That runoff not only protects vital ecosystems, but also keeps salt water from the San Francisco Bay from heading upstream to the Delta, which would render even less suitable for drinking and irrigation. Anyway, according to the Public Policy Institute of California, "These waters are largely isolated from major agricultural and urban areas and cannot be used for other purposes".

The reservoirs Fiorina complains we didn't build might have increased supplies by 1%. John Lund, director of Watershed Sciences at UC Davis, estimates the most ambitious projects under consideration might increase capacity by 5-15%. But the bigger problem is that by the fourth year of a drought, most would be dried up, anyway. Lund estimates that under current conditions, every million acre-feet of capacity might capture only 50,000-150,000 acre-feet of water a year.

Other suggested options have included integrating surface and groundwater storage, and updating our urban delivery systems - like that century-old pipe that burst in Westwood last year, spilling about 20-million gallons. And then there's agriculture, which uses four times the water in our state as does urban areas. Adjustments won't be easy; the Central Valley has 1% of our nation's landmass, but provides 25% of its food.

Politically, the problem has not been that environmentalists get in the way of projects, but that nobody wants to pay for them. No doubt, ten years ago we should have paid more attention to the likes of Prof. Sloan of UC Santa Cruz who warned that global warming is real, as are its consequences. For now, blaming "liberals" and the delta smelt isn't going to help.

THE REAL WAR ON THE MIDDLE CLASS

Politicians serious about helping middle-class Americans should allow individuals to opt out of Social Security and Medicare by not having to pay payroll taxes if they agree to never accept federal retirement or health care benefits. Individuals are quite capable of meeting their own unique retirement and health care needs if the government stops forcing them into one-size-fits-all plans.

Middle-class families with college-age children would benefit if government got out of the student loan business. Government involvement in higher education is the main reason tuition is skyrocketing and so many Americans are graduating with huge student loan debts. College graduates entering the job market would certainly benefit if Congress stopped imposing destructive regulations and taxes on the economy.

concerned with the harm inflicted on the middle-class populations of countries targeted for regime change. These politicians also disregard the harm U.S. foreign policy inflicts on Americans. Middle- and working-class Americans, and their families, who join the military certainly suffer when they are maimed or killed fighting in unjust and unconstitutional wars. Our interventionist foreign policy also contributes to the high tax burden imposed on middle-class Americans.

Politicians who support an interventionist foreign policy are obviously not Middle-class Americans also suffer from intrusions on their liberty and privacy, such as not being able to board an airplane unless they submit to invasive and humiliating searches. Even children and the physically disabled are not safe from the Transposition Security Administration. These assaults are justified by the threat of terrorism, a direct result of our interventionist foreign policy that fosters hatred and resentment of Americans.

Some "military Keynesians" claim that middle-class workers benefit from jobs in the military-industrial complex. Military Keynesians seem to think that the resources spent on militarism would disappear if the Pentagon's budget were cut. The truth is, if we reduced spending on militarism, those currently employed by the military-industrial complex would be able to find new jobs producing goods desired by consumers. Even those currently employed as lobbyists for the militaryindustrial complex may be able to find useful work.

Few things would benefit the middle class more than ending the Federal Reserve. The Federal Reserve's inflationary policies erode middle-class families' standards of living while benefiting the financial and political elites. Middle-class Americans may gain some temporary benefits from Federal Reserve created booms, but they also suffer from the inevitable busts.

As I write this, the dollar still reigns as the world's reserve currency. However, there are signs that other economies are moving away from using the dollar as the reserve currency, and this trend will accelerate as the Federal Reserve continues to pump more fiat currency into the economy and as resentment toward our foreign policy grows. Eventually, international investors will lose confidence in the U.S. economy, the dollar will lose its reserve currency status, and the dollar bubble will burst.

These events will cause a major economic downturn that may even be worse than the Great Depression. The main victims of this crisis will be average Americans. The only way to avoid this calamity is for the American people to force Congress to free them from the burdens of the warfare state, the welfare state, taxation, and fiat currency.
