VOLUME 9 NO. 20

SIERRA MADRE: - 24th Safest Statewide of Cities With Populations of 10,000 or more. Topped ranked San Gabriel Valley City

There are many reasons why city of Sierra Madre is considered a great place to live. Certainly, its' village character is one reason. Our independence is another. We have excellent schools and our own police and fire departments. We have our own library. We have our own grocery store, hardware store, auto repair shops, coffee shops, florists, restaurants and much more. However, if a survey were taken today, you would probably find that most residents consider safety their number one priority. And, according to a recent survey released by safewise.com, Sierra Madre ranks No. 24 in the top 50 cities in the State of California and, based upon the survey's findings, it is the safest city in the San Gabriel Valley!

38 million residents call home. Safewise examined those cities with populations over 10,000 and evaluated recent FBI Crime Report data. and compiled a list of the 50 safest cities based upon the incidents of crime compared to the national average. "From there, we determined the number of Violent Crimes, which are considered murder, aggravated assault, robbery and forcible rape, as well as Property Crimes, consisting of burglary, motor vehicle theft, arson, and larceny-theft that were reported in each city. Then, to create a level playing field and make it easy to compare crime

24. SIERRA MADRE

You'll find the safe city of Sierra Madre 13 miles south of Los Angeles. For roughly a century, the Sierra Madre Police Department has worked with citizens to keep the community a safe place to settle. Leveraging the latest technology, the department uses the free online service CrimeReports to give residents insight into what types of crime are happening in their community. In all, the safe city cited only 13 violent crimes for the year and only five other cities on our list reported fewer forcible rapes and

> Violent Crimes per 1,000: 1.17 Property Crimes per 1,000: 11.67

> > www.safewise.com

There are 482 cities in California that rates among several cities, we calculated the chance of these crimes happening out of 1,000 people.

> "The average violent crime rate among our safest cities was 1.12 per 1,000 people, and the average property crime rate was 11.32 per 1,000 people. That means the average safe city listed below experienced 70 percent less violent crime and 60 percent less property crime than the typical U.S. city. We were particularly impressed to discover that 42 of California's 50 safest cities (84 percent) reported no murders. And the safest city on our list, Hillsborough, reported no incidents of violent crime whatsoever." Sierra Madre has had no murders and ranks well below the national average when in comes to crime. In the report, this is attribute to the use of technology by the SMPD.

Other San Gabriel Valley Cities that make the top 50 list are: Temple City - No. 37; La Canada Flintridge - 43 and La Puente -

The incorporated cities and unincorporated neighborhoods of the San Gabriel Valley with a population over 10,000 include:

Altadena, Alhambra, Arcadia, Azusa, Baldwin Park, Citrus, Covina, Diamond Bar, Duarte, East Pasadena, El Monte, Glendora, Hacienda Heights, Hillgrove, Irwindale, La Cañada Flintridge, La Puente Monrovia, Monterey Park, Pasadena, Rosemead, Rowland Heights, San Gabriel, San Marino, Sierra Madre, South El Monte, South Pasadena, South San Gabriel, South San Jose Hills, Temple City, Valinda, Vincent, Walnut, West Covina and West Puente Valley.

SUSPECTS ARRESTED FOR ATTEMPT ROBBERY AND POSSESSION OF STOLEN PROPERTY

Sierra Madre, CA. -

On Wednesday May 13, 2015 at 04:00 AM a resident on Grove Lane heard noises in the front of his residence. The resident looked out the window and observed a suspect breaking into his vehicle. The resident went outside and confronted the suspect, who was now inside his vehicle, and a brief struggle ensued. The suspect had a large silver object in his hand which the resident felt was a gun. Fearing for his safety the resident backed away from the suspect allowing the suspect flee southbound to a dark colored SUV. As the SUV pulled up another suspect ran out of the residence south of the original victims and fled to the vehicle.

Within minutes of the original call officers spotted the dark colored SUV traveling at a high rate of speed southbound on Baldwin from Sierra Madre Blvd. A high risk traffic stop was conducted and three suspects were detained without incident. Stolen property and narcotics were located inside the vehicle.

Police Chief Larry Giannone said "we discourage residents from confronting suspects for their safety but are glad the victim is okay. The quick response from the officers was instrumental in apprehending these suspects and recovering the victim's property". Police located additional property in the vehicle and will be attempting to identify other victims.

The three suspects are gang members and have lengthy arrest records. All three suspects reside in El Monte and were booked at the Pasadena City Jail. Bail for each is set at $50,000.

COMMUNITY INPUT SOUGHT TO HELP BALANCE SIERRA MADRE'S BUDGET

With the reduction of revenue for the next fiscal | Community Garden | Community Newsletter year, July 1, 2015 through June 30, 2016, and the reality that Sierra Madre cannot sustain the level of services it currently provides, Mayor John Capoccia, Councilwoman Rachelle Arizmendi led one of many outreach efforts to solicit input from the community as to how the council should balance next year's budget.

On Tuesday, the presentation made to the Sierra Madre Kiwanis Club asked residents to review the city's financial situations and let their elected officials know what services were most important to them; what services should be cut; suggest ways to increase city revenue and ideas on how to address the current situation.

The Mayor noted that the city does have healthy reserves, however those funds are needed for emergencies such as the fires of 2008 or the windstorm on 2011. In each instance, because of the size of our town and other factors, the city had to pay a portion (and for certain items all) of the funds needed to repair the damages done.

The current decrease in revenue, which is projected to be approximately $600,000 for the next fiscal year and as much as an additional $1 million for the 2016-2017 fiscal year is the direct result of the failure of residents to pass the Utility User Tax modification in 2014. The current UUT will decrease to 8% for the 2015-16 fiscal year and 6% the following year. Had the ballot measure passed, the rate would have remained where it is today, at 10%.

The presentation focuses of the city's general fund, the unrestricted revenue that operates Sierra Madre.

ST. RITA SHINES IN SPEECH AND DEBATE

St. Rita School recently competed in their own Elementary Speech Tournament hosted by La Salle High School. This was the second annual tournament, and the team made an outstanding showing. Speech and Debate at St. Rita begins in the fourth grade with a forensics class and is led by Ralph Seymour. The students learn to write and deliver speeches, debate, and perform interpretive events such as storytelling, duo interpretation, poetry interpretation, and impromptu speaking.

The tournament truly highlighted the skills these students have obtained. Bella Zuniga took 3rd in Storytelling and Mark D'Leon tied for 5th. In Duo Interpretation Cassie Pichardo and Charlie Hardy tied with Maggie Hungate and Catherine Mispagel for first, Robby Nardoni and Nicholas Froio took second, Martin Boskovich and Adam Amerio took third and Angelina Cao and Caitlin Cruz took 5th. In SPAR debate, Shane O'Neil took 3rd place and Guy Gruppie was top speaker in the event. Ethan Kilpatrick was the top Novice speaker in Impromptu. Charlotte Bax, Sophia Bruny, Cole Shepard, Samantha Ikari, Hailey Mata, Dominic Chimenti and Sean Peters also placed high among the Novice speakers in Poetry, Duo, and Storytelling. These elementary students really shined, and their future in speech and debate looks very bright.

It is also important to note the strength of our middle school students participating in Speech and Debate. Recently, they competed at the California State Middle School Speech and Debate Championship. Twenty-six schools from around the state competed, and two St. Rita students reached the finals. Katy Bauer in Dramatic Interpretation, and Esteban Sanchez in Extemporaneous Speaking, This was the first time the team had competed at the state level. St. Rita is very proud of their student's hard work and their outstanding showing.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side by Deanne Davis

"The Chili this year was the best ever!" Peter Dills, Chili Contest Judge

Peter was absolutely right! The chili at the Kiwanis Boot-Skootin' Dance and Chili Cook-off Fundraiser last Saturday night was amazing. There was Volki's Rotary Club Rub Chili by Vokouhi Unell,; Glenn and Amy Putnam's version of the legendary chili created by long-departed Chasen's Restaurant in Beverly Hills big favorite of movie stars. Liz Taylor loved Chasen's chili so much she had several orders of it flown to the set of Cleopatra! Chasen's closed in 1995 so Glenn's chili was a delight to see. Rumor has it that the secret ingredient in Chasen's chili is a quarter cup of Kahlua. Just saying.

There was Cincinnati Chili by Hattie Harris which incorporated chili served over spaghetti, and as Hattie said, "That's just the way we do it in Cincinnati!" It was good, too! There was Joe's Vegetarian Chili, presided over by Joe and Sara Capoccia; and turkey chili by Chili Tony, assisted by the lovely Elaine.

Peter Dills' personal favorite and official contest winner was Glenn and Amy Putnam's Chasen's Chili. Second place winner, and Sierra Madre Elementary Volki's Chili. Judge Dills said that Paul Yokum's "Just Chili with Beans" was "the closest to real chili." My favorite quote of the evening was, "Never argue about a man's chili!" These chili folks take this personally.

The People's Choice winner (we all got to vote on our favorite) was Volki's Chili. Second place was Steve Heydorf and his White Chili with chicken.

There was a silent auction featuring great stuff, like the newest Keurig coffee maker, a bright pink hoodie with Sierra Madre in silver letters on the front that I really wanted. Then there was the succulent plant arrangement from Leonora Moss. I really wanted that, too. A trip to your destination of choice. Let's just say I spread myself pretty thin on the silent auction and didn't come home with

The Bottle Shop sent over some really nice wine, soda, water and so forth. Henry D was the DJ and line dance leader extraordinaire. It was a blast to see a whole lot of Sierra Madreans out on the floor line dancing with grace and style. Proceeds of the evening went toward the Paul Magaris Mini Grant Program and programs for children such as the Creative Arts Group's ImaginaArt program

Now, aren't you sorry you didn't go? Next year, for sure!

Did you know that there's a nifty new bulletin board up at Mt. Wilson Trail's First Water describing the area? My trail hiking-non-line dancing buddy, John, reported back this week!

WATERWORKS AQUATICS WATER SAFETY DAY AT THE SIERRA MADRE AQUATIC CENTER

Sierra Madre, CA. – May 11, 2015 – With the warm summer months upon us and kids out of school for the summer, it's time to hit the beach and pools for some fun. Come out on Monday, May 18th from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. and Splash into Summer Safety with Waterworks Aquatics and the Sierra Madre Fire Department. This eventful day will take place at 611 E. Sierra Madre Blvd. in Sierra Madre. See first-hand at what Sierra Madre firefighters and lifeguards do when a drowning occurs and how parents and babysitters can be prepared for a safe outing at any pool. A live demonstration of a "Mock" drowning water rescue will take place at 1:30pm with FREE recreational swim for the community to follow. Specialized rescue equipment as well as activities and games will provide a unique learning opportunity for children and adults.

Drowning is the nation's number one killer of children under the age of 5 and it's the second leading cause of death from unintentional injuries for ages 1 to 14. Drowning can happen in bathtubs, mop buckets, toilets, and even in standing water as shallow as 2 inches. They happen year round!

With your assistance, we all can make a difference in a child's life by educating the public about the importance of adult supervision around all bodies of water, multiple barriers around pools and spas, as well as classes for children and adults. Active adult supervision is the key to preventing these senseless tragedies.

Waterworks Aquatics Sierra Madre offers one 33 yard, 6 lane pool and one circular teaching pool that are both heated to 86-88 degrees year-round. They provide Private, Semi-Private, Group, Parent and Me, Adult and Stroke Clinic swim classes. Waterworks also offers youth swim teams, summer swim camps, lap swimming, water aerobics, recreation swim, and a venue for birthday parties as well as facilitating aquatic therapy.

"The teaching methodology at Waterworks Aquatics is what waterworksswim.com/sierramadre or call 626.836.1200.

differentiates us from other swim schools," said Jon Alpert, founder of Waterworks Aquatics. "We utilize an original instructional philosophy of teaching children to roll to their back for a breath rather than lifting their heads to breathe, which allows children as young as 18 months the capability to swim across the pool. The other key component is the use of a specialized muscle memory teaching technique, where students are taught stroke technique at a very young age."

With a commitment to "Learning it the Right Way, Right from the Beginning", Waterworks Aquatics has been voted the Best Swim School in Orange County for six consecutive years by the readers of Parenting OC Magazine.

SIERRA MADRE POLICE BLOTTER

During the week of Sunday, May 3rd, to Sunday, May 10th, the Sierra Madre Police Department responded to approximately 320 calls for service.

Sunday May 3rd

At 6:10 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to West Sierra Madre Blvd. regarding a disturbance at a local liquor store. The reporting party indicated to the dispatcher that a man was trying to get into his car by hitting the glass windows. Upon arrival, Officers discovered the man standing between two parked cars. As the man walked towards the Officers, his movements were slow and unsteady as he appeared to have some difficulty keeping his balance. As the Officers questioned the man, he informed them that he had several drinks at a local bar. Officers could smell a strong odor of alcohol coming from the man's breath. Officers determined the man was unable to care for himself in his current state and ultimately arrested the man for public intoxication. He was transported to Pasadena Jail where he was booked and released on a citation.

Wednesday, May 6th

At 6:23 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 100 Block of South Hermosa Ave regarding a medical assist. Upon arrival, Officers were informed by the patient's mother that the patient had been having multiple seizures beginning the day prior. The mother stated the seizures may be a result of the daughter's battle with an illness. While on scene with the Fire Department, the patient had several more seizures but declined to be transported. Two hours later the Officers were dispatched to the residence again regarding the same issue. Upon arrival Officers informed the patient

she would be placed on a medical hold and be transported to the hospital

At 5:03 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the area of Sierra Madre Blvd. east of Michillinda Ave regarding a suspicious person in the area after two juveniles came into the station to report they were being followed by a man. Officers searched the area but were unable to locate the suspect. Upon interviewing the young girls, Officers determined that both girls were walking home from school. When they reached a local business Girl #1 noticed the reflection of a man walking approximately two feet behind Girl #2, in the shop's window. Girl #2 was unaware, so when Girl #1 told her to walk faster, she thought it was a game. As they increased their pace, Girl #1 noticed the man began walking faster also. Girl #1 told the other girl to run and follow her into a local business. Once they were within the business, the girls witnessed the man looking into the business at them, while covering his face with his hand. The girls described the man as 6 ft. tall, weighing 190 lbs. with a dark complexion and long hair while wearing a grey or dark colored shirts and dark jeans. The young girls waited in the business until the man walked away, and then walked into the station to report the incident. This case has been forwarded to the Detective Bureau.

that if she did not voluntarily consent to be transported to the hospital, for her overall safety and well-being. The patient refused transport and became combative with Officers and firefighters. Ultimately the patient was placed and secured into the gurney and was transported to a local hospital for further evaluation.

Earthquakes The Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) awarded $83,095 to USC Pacific Asia Museum (USC PAM). The museum will use the grant funds to upgrade the museum's collections storage area officials announced last week.

This is the fourth phase of a long-term project to protect museum's collection from the effects of seismic activity, expand collections storage capacity, improve collections storage conditions and increase accessibility. IMLS museum grants support a wide variety of projects that create learning experiences, strengthen community communities, care for collections and provide broad public access.

IMLS has supported the museum's project to significantly improve the collections storage since 2009. In 2009-2011, the museum stabilized its collection of ceramics and other threedimensional works in its lower-level storage facility. In 2012-2014 the museum provided new seismic mounts for all three-dimensional works of art on display in the permanent collection galleries, securing freestanding cases against seismic activity and reinforcing glass shelving with

ARCADIA CITY BUDGET ELEMENTS EXPLAINED FOR CHAMBER GOVERNMENT AFFAIRS

Director Hue Quach says horse race revenue for capital improvements down millions per year

Many interesting and little-known aspects of the City of Arcadia's budget were presented by Hue C. Quach, Administrative Services Director Officer for the City of Arcadia, at the Arcadia Chamber of Commerce's monthly Government Affairs Forum on May 7, 2015, sponsored by Keystone 365 Sponsor Singpoli.

Speaking to an engaged crowd in the Chamber's conference room sponsored by Foothill Credit Union, Quach noted that in addition to Accounting and Finance, he also has oversight of IT as well as Human Resources and Purchasing.

Arcadia Chamber CEO Scott Hettrick filled in as moderator of the Forum that also included reports from the offices of Congresswoman Judy Chu, Senator Dr. Ed Hernandez and Supervisor Antonovich, and City of Arcadia officials, among others. Chairman Jack Orswell from Örswell & Kasman, Inc. Environmental Assessments & Consulting, and co-chair Peter Ulrich, were absent.

One point Quach made was that the Capital Improvement Fund gets its revenue stream from the racetrack, with one-third of onepercent of all bets placed at the racetrack going to this fund. But that revenue for capital projects has severely declined over the past three decades from a high value of nearly $4.5 million in the 1980s to about a half-a-million dollars per year now, despite the addition of a spring season of racing. This is due to so many bets being placed off-track and on electronic devices as opposed to being place at the track betting windows.

Another point is that nearly half the City's overall $103 million budget is not open for decisions by the City Council or others since this is all money that can only be spent for specific purposes.

Quach said the City will show a net profit of $4,387,500 based on approximately $59.3 mil. in revenue, and $55 mil. in expenditures in the General Fund. The primary expenditures are for police (35% - $18.864 mil.) and fire (25% - $13.7 mil.). Arcadia is a full-service city, meaning the city provides police, fire and public works services as opposed to other area cities that contract out with County fire or the Sheriff's Department for protection. Together, police, fire and public works accounts for 69.7% of the budget. Some of the sources of general fund revenue include property and sales taxes. Property taxes account for 23% of general fund revenue with sales taxes bringing in 22% of that revenue. For every dollar collected in property taxes the City of Arcadia gets 9-cents. With respect to sales tax, the city gets 1 penny for every dollar spent.

ELLEN ("LENNY") DUNNE AND MARCELLA LEACH:

Two Mothers Who Never Gave up

This past Mother's Day LaWanda Hawkins, (Justice for Murdered Children) posted about Marcella Leach, a mother who never stopped fighting for Justice for Homicide Victims and how greatly missed she is. (Marcella passed away on March 16 at age 85) I have had glaucoma surgery and still have blurry vision, so I have not been able to write very much or drive distances. I even missed Justice for Homicide Victims 31st Annual Memorial in April at Rose Hills, but La Wanda's post reminded me of "Lenny" and Marcella-their stories MUST be retold not only because of their great accomplishments, but also because today people are still being killed and devastated families deal with unimaginable, painful loss the rest of their lives.

A little more than thirty-one years ago, "Lenny" (Ellen Griffin Dunne) called Marcella Leach on the phone, "You don't know me, but we have something terrible in common".

The Dunne family's "terrible" tragedy was their beautiful daughter, aspiring actress Dominique was brutally murdered by her former boyfriend, John Sweeney. She had tried to break up with him on two occasions, but he murdered her on November 4, 1982. Because the jury was not allowed to hear testimony of physical abuse by Sweeney's former girlfriend, he was convicted of manslaughter and served three years in prison!

A year later, Marcella Nicholas Leach experienced the same tragedy. On November 30, 1983, her daughter Marsalee Ann Nicholas was murdered by her ex-boyfriend who was stalking her. Marcella suffered the trauma of violent victimization by the criminal justice system. A week after the funeral, Marcella met the murderer coming out of the market! He had been released on $50,000 bail and lived only two blocks from her. It would be two years before he went to trial!

This is why "Justice for Homicide Victims Foundation" (JHV) began. Last year marked its 30th Anniversary and they honored the two founders, Lenny and Marcella. Lenny had passed away in 1997, but her two sons, Griffin and Alex, were there. They spoke of their brave mom who had MS and was confined to a wheelchair-but she was a fighter for justice. Although shy, Lenny went to countless meetings and spoke tirelessly to bring justice to the victims.

At last year's Memorial, I also was honored to meet personally meet Marcella. All these years this now-frail woman had also worked tirelessly for justice. She and her son Dr. Henry Nicholas fought for "Marsy's Law"- California's "Bill of Rights" for murdered victims. Marcella had tears in her eyes when introduced and thanked everyone for their love, hard work and support.

At the ceremony, Jane and Bill Bouffard, current Presidents of JHV traced its history and spoke of its many accomplishments. They also presented Star News Editor Frank Girardot with a gavel. (Frank has written series about unsolved murders and is on the board of JHV.) At the yearly Memorial, there are hundreds of posters/pictures of many victims of all ages from all walks of life. It's heart-wrenching to see young children's photos and meet parents who never get over burying their child. Jeannette Chavez' daughter Samantha Salas was brutally murdered a few blocks from my house, and the crime has been solved. However Jeannette is still very involved with JHV to help others.

Two remarkable mothers- "Lenny" (Ellen Griffin Dunne) and Marcella Leach-may we never forget you. There were many obstacles along the way, but you never gave up. No mother would. God bless you and may JHV (Justice for Homicide Victims and Marsy's Law continue to help people deal with their great losses. Please visit www.justiceforhomicidevictims.com to learn more.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

A FEW FUN FACTS ABOUT OUR FELLOW BEINGS

Just when I think I've heard it all regarding the nonhuman creatures we share this planet with, I come across yet another new interesting fact about how animals survive or why they behave the way they do, and I am again reminded of how little I actually know. Few things stimulate my mind as much as fellow life forms, and this week I thought I'd share a few fun (new-to-me) animal facts that I hope will stimulate your mind as well.

their feces to create cozy coves in which to breed their young? That's right, when the time comes to lay their eggs, they gather closely together and intentionally deposit their poop within the proximity of their partners in order to melt the ice, so their eggs and subsequent hatchlings will have a

Another interesting tidbit that you've probably never before been privy to is one that the average grown man is bound to admire. We all know that snakes are, by nature, active breeders. But did you know that male snakes spend mega calories just doing "the deed"? The fact is, every spring, redsided garter snakes leave their hibernation burrows to engage in a frenzied jumble of mating, and studies show that this is no easy feat for the males. Indeed, this particular type of male snake spends up to a whopping 18% of his daily energy to ensure I am amazed on a daily basis and I hope you are his personal mating success.

Male red-sided garter snakes use all that energy to create gelatinous copulatory plugs that they put on the female after they mate, to trap the sperm inside and to prevent other males from penetrating and interrupting the process of their own sperm's procreation. Pretty amazing, eh? Unlike many humans who question paternal identity after ways. Love and let live. the birth of their baby, red-sided garter snakes test to determine "who's the daddy" when their hatchlings arrive!

And here's a fun fact about bats that I thought was pretty amazing; It's no news to most of us that bats are excellent flutterers, hoverers and dive-bombers. This is quite obvious to anyone who has observed them flitting about in the local skies, and scientists have known for quite some time that bats owe most of their incredible aerial agility to echolocation. However, recent research results attribute their remarkable navigation skills not only to the brain's ability to sense space through echolocation, but also to sensors instilled in the bats' wings themselves.

In the April 30 issue of the journal, Cell Reports, bat wings are described as sporting a unique touch-receptor design. The design consists of tiny learning the how's and why's pertaining to our sensory cells associated with fine hairs that enable the animal to change the shape of it's wings in a split second, granting them impressive midair maneuverability that our modern-day man-made For example, did you know that penguins use drones would die for, if indeed they were alive to die. Oh the wonders of nature!

Here's one more new-found fact that doesn't exactly fit into the category of fun, but it is interesting, and could help save a senior feline's life. The United Kingdom based charity, International Cat Care recently reached out to nice warm spot to hatch and mature in. Talk about veterinary specialists after receiving surprising recycling, penguins put us humans to shame in complaints from cat owners that their feline their practice of the old adage, "Waste not, want friends were apparently having seizures in response to high-pitched sounds.

A scientific survey of the cats' owners revealed that the sound-induced seizures were more common in older cats, and the most common triggers were crinkling tinfoil, hitting a ceramic bowl with a metal spoon and tapping glass. Senior cat owners, this may or may not be a prevalent epidemic, but it certainly can't hurt to be cautious

In my constant quest to learn more about animal behavior and nature's way of working its wonders, equally impressed with these off-the-beaten-trail fun facts about our fellow beings. Take the time to enjoy nature and the wildlife it inhabits. Try to spend a short bit of time each day, away from the stresses of rushing traffic and hurried bustling we humans tend to engage in, and sit quietly; simply absorb the peaceful sanctuary of nature and it's

AN EMPIRE ON THE EDGE: HOW BRITAIN CAME TO FIGHT AMERICA by Nick Bunker

Written from a strikingly fresh perspective, this new account of the Boston Tea Party and the origins of the American Revolution shows how a lethal blend of politics, personalities, and economics led to a war that few people welcomed but nobody could prevent. In this powerful but fair-minded narrative, British author Nick Bunker tells the story of the last three years of mutual embitterment that preceded the outbreak of America's war for independence in 1775. It was a tragedy of errors, in which both sides shared responsibility for a conflict that cost the lives of at least twenty thousand Britons and a still larger number of Americans.

The British and the colonists failed to see how swiftly they were drifting toward violence until the process had gone beyond the point of no return. At the heart of the book lies the Boston Tea Party, an event that arose from fundamental flaws in the way the British managed their affairs. By the early 1770s, Great Britain had become a nation addicted to financial speculation, led by a political elite beset by internal rivalry and increasingly baffled by a changing world. When the East India Company came close to collapse, it patched together a rescue plan whose disastrous side effect was the destruction of the tea.With lawyers in London calling the Tea Party treason, and with hawks in Parliament crying out for revenge, the British opted for punitive reprisals without foreseeing the resistance they would arouse. For their part, Americans underestimated Britain's determination not to give way. By the late summer of 1774, when the rebels in New England began to arm themselves, the descent into war had become irreversible. This book was a 2015 Pulitzer

ENCOUNTERS AT THE HEART OF THE WORLD: A HISTORY OF THE MANDAN PEOPLE by Elizabeth A. Fenn

How Britain Came to Fight America

Inthisextraordinarybook, Elizabeth A. Fenn retrieves their history by piecing together important new discoveries in archaeology, anthropology, geology, climatology, epidemiology, and nutritional science. Her boldly original interpretation of these diverse research findings offers us a new perspective on early American history, a new interpretation of the American past. By 1500, more than twelve thousand Mandans were established on the northern Plains, and their commercial prowess, agricultural skills, and reputation for hospitality became famous. Recent archaeological discoveries show how these Native American people thrived, and then how they collapsed. The damage wrought by imported diseases like smallpox and the havoc caused by the arrival of horses and steamboats were tragic for the Mandans, yet, as Fenn makes clear, their sense of themselves as a people with distinctive traditions endured. A riveting account of Mandan history, landscapes, and people, Fenn's narrative is enriched and enlivened not only by science and research but by her own encounters at the heart of the world.

THE ODD COUPLE - PHASE II

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano

The Odd Couple opened last week and has gotten terrific reviews and our audiences are really enjoying it. Frances Baum Nicholson in the San Gabriel Valley Tribune said, "Well done from start to finish, it highlights just how funny Simon's play is, and how little it has aged --- especially if (as this one is) it is set in its original time frame of the mid-1960's." Don Grigware of BroadwayWorld.com said, "Don't miss this Odd Couple. The entire cast and crew are delightful and make this a magical night of theater."

The actors are having a wonderful time and they have been so great to work with. Watching them on opening night I was struck that they were now entering the second phase of putting on a show. The first phase, of course, is the rehearsal period. That's when everything is new: you are meeting people that you will be spending the next several months with, you are struggling to build a character - to master the individual idiosyncrasies and motivations that make your take on the role different from anyone else's, to learn your lines, to trust yourself and your fellow cast-mates. There are all the doubts about whether what you are doing is funny or good, and whether you have any business being on stage at all!

Then you open and, if you are lucky, you learn that all the work, the worry, the stress have paid off! Audiences are laughing, appreciating the work you have done - there is nothing like the sound of laughter to buoy spirits. But now the real work begins. It is easy to become complacent and take a performance for granted. Keeping a role fresh isn't easy. You have to dig deep and find the truth of what you are doing - creating each moment anew. It is easy to fall into the trap of "recreating" something that you did before rather than finding the impulse that lead you to that moment or that bit of stage business in the first place.

A show always grows over time. Actors learn to trust themselves, the material, and the audiences. That's really when it all comes together. I'm eager to see how

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

WHAT YOU CAN LEARN FROM THE ESTATE PLANNING MISTAKES OF OTHERS

There is much to be learned from the mistakes of others and the celebrity world abounds with cautionary tales when it comes to estate planning. Even with all the financial resources available to them, celebrities can neglect the basics when it To your family's health, wealth, and happiness, comes to protecting assets.

We come across sad tales all the time of "regular" people failing to take the proper steps to create an estate plan that assures their assets pass properly and that their heirs are spared from having to untangle costly legal messes.

1. Don't die without a will. Celebrities are the they will live forever - but they differ greatly in that they usually have a lot more money to leave behind. Actor Heath Ledger died without updating his will to include his daughter; all his assets went to his parents and siblings.

2. Equal isn't always the same. Thinking she was treating her two children equally in her bequest, one woman left her home to her son and her investment portfolio to her daughter. Unfortunately, when she died, there was a sizeable tax liability on the home, and the only assets available were from the portfolio, leaving the daughter shortchanged.

3. Name the right executor. Naming a friend as executor is fine, but not always the best option. One woman named her best friend as her executor, but they happened to be the same age. When the woman died at age 86, her friend followed a few weeks later and no one was left to serve as executor since she hadn't named a backup.

4. Provide for your children from a prior marriage. A man with children from a first marriage left all his assets to his second wife; when she died, she left all of those assets to her children, leaving nothing for his children. Instead, he should have provided for them directly or placed his assets in a trust so they could pass to his children after her death.

5. Promises don't count. Before he died, Marlon Brando allegedly promised his house to his caregiver but did not record that promise in his will. She did not get the house. If you want to leave something to someone, you need to put it in writing in your will or a trust.

You can protect, provide for, and make things as easy on your family as possible. Learn from the mistakes of others. Don't repeat them.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

It's been written by this lover of wines that the pinot noir grape is one of the most difficult grapes to grow. An ideal climate and soil are necessary friends to this grape. While California has become a haven for chardonnay and cabernets, friends, don't give up on pinots just yet. I recently had lunch at Celestino's with Andy Niner.

A month or two ago I wrote about the Fog Catcher Winery of Paso Robles. Hailing from the same farm system (as close as I could come to a baseball metaphor) is the Niner Pinot Noir 2012. Many great pinots come from Paso Robles, but the grapes here are from Edna Valley. It seems the winemaker, wanted to throw a curve and try a cooler climate, and the results worked. At the top end of prices for pinots, the Niner delivers both in taste food companionship. I must admit that I opened the bottle with high expectations because of my fondness for Fog Catcher. My food mate this evening was pasta tossed with buttered prawns - my compliments to both the chef and the winemaker. My first sip reminded me of ripe cherries, the tannins were soft, and the color was dark like a cabernet. The finish was mild to earthy, fruity with a last scent of graham crackers. While the wine is ready to drink upon opening, if you can wait twenty minutes, I suggest letting this

If you read the paper exposure 365 days a years, is not necessary because or watch the news, you have heard about the importance of vitamin D. Most people know that the best way to get their vitamin D is through daily sun exposure. Our bodies make vitamin D when our skin is exposed to the sun. Actually, vitamin D is not a vitamin at all but rather a hormone that targets more than 2000 genes in your body. Because most people do not get out in the sun on a regular basis without sunscreen on, (sunscreen blocks vitamin D production) vitamin D deficiency is believed to be wide spread. To complicate matters, as we age it becomes more difficult to produce vitamin D.

Experts can't agree on the amount of vitamin D we need but we know that the body produces approximately 10,000 IU's of vitamin D when our skin is exposed to the sun for 20 to 30 minutes. We know that daily exposure to the sun, meaning absorption.

SUNSHINE IS HEALTHY

the body stores vitamin D for future use. What if you can't get out in the sun regularly? Is a vitamin D supplement the next best thing? Most experts agree that allowing your skin to be exposed to the sun is best but in the event you can't do this, go for a supplement. If you take a vitamin D supplement you need to make sure it is being absorbed. When we take vitamin D supplements we may require more fat soluble vitamins like vitamins A, E and K. People with certain illnesses such as ulcerative colitis, celiac disease, and pancreatic issues may find it hard to absorb fat soluble vitamins.

I always tell my clients that the best way to get your vitamin D is from the sun. Sunshine is healthy for you. You just need to respect the sun. To make up for insufficient sun exposure, vitamin D supplementation may be in order. Have your doctor routinely check your vitamin D levels with blood work. If you are taking a supplement and your vitamin D levels are still low you may not be absorbing well. Try supplementing with digestive enzymes which can help you to maximize nutrient

HOW TO SEARCH FOR LOST PENSION MONEY

What tips can you offer for tracking down a lost pension from a previous employer?

About to Retire

Dear About,

It's not unusual for a worker to lose track of a pension benefit. Perhaps you left an employer long ago and forgot that you left behind a pension. Or maybe you worked for a company that changed owners or went belly up many years ago, and you figured the pension

Today, millions of dollars in benefits are sitting in pension plans across the U.S. or with the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (PBGC), a federal government agency, waiting to be claimed by their rightful owners. The average unclaimed benefit with PBGC is about $6,500.

To help you look for a pension, here are some steps to take and some free resources that can help you search if your previous employer has gone out of business, relocated, changed owners or merged with another firm.

Contact Employer

If you think you have a pension and the company you worked for still is in business, your first step is to call the human resources department and ask how to contact the pension plan administrator. Ask the administrator whether you have a pension, how much it is worth and how to claim it. Depending on how complete the administrator's records are you may need to show proof that you once worked for the company and that you are pension eligible.

Your old income tax returns and W-2 forms from the years you worked at the company will help you here. If you haven't saved your old tax returns from these years, you can get a copy of your earnings record from the Social Security Administration, which will show how much you were paid each calendar year by each employer.

Call 800-772-1213, and ask for Form SSA-7050, "Request for Social Security Earnings Information," or you can download it at ssa.gov/online/ssa-7050.pdf. The SSA charges a $136 for this information.

your views on education is the most unlikely way to win friends and influence people. And few issues in education are as controversial as common core.

Although I'm happily not responsible for teaching common core, it still manages to seep into my job at a public school. My run-ins with common core typically occur during staff meetings. Like communism, common core sounds good in theory. And when you read the standards, they don't seem that evil. What causes eyes to roll are the various applications of common core. A collective groan erupted when one of my coworkers explained "addition" is out, and "number bonding" Kindergarteners are now busy learning to "decompose" numbers. Meanwhile half of them are strangling each other. But when we're racing to match other developing nations in math and language, training in civility must take the back

The term "omphaloskepsis" comes to mind. Toss that one around at to do so! All we need is to sign into our work gazing into one's navel, and I'm reminded of it at be neatly stacked and waiting for us in the copy every common core professional development day. We sit in groups and ponder questions like, "Why do we use 10 as a base for counting?" and "What does 3 X 5 really mean?" Deep stuff... And that's just 1st grade! I shudder to think of what the junior high teachers have to do! I'm waiting for a meeting at which the presenter will be wearing his shirt backwards and ask why our society expects the buttons to be in front. But these are depressing observations, and who wants to read about that on a lovely Saturday

While common core continues to rile teachers.

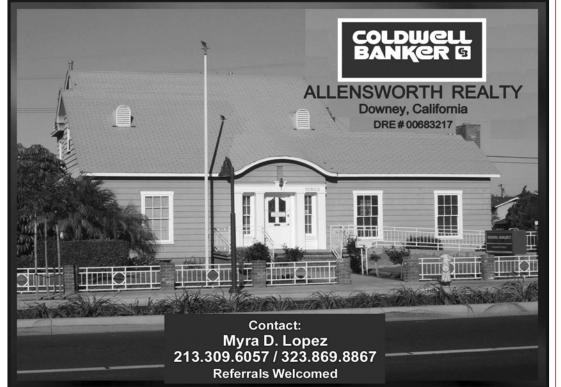

I try to keep my articles students, and parents, some things in education light and inoffensive. So, I actually have gotten better! I'm talking about our new Xerox machine! Ah, the Xerox machine. It used to be an incomprehensible monster that randomly consumed the papers of unsuspecting teachers and aides. The worst thing was to be the person responsible for jamming it in morning. Jamming the copier anytime was bad, but the morning is a particularly frantic time of the school day. People are printing out tests, worksheets, homework, and other vital papers. The foreboding sound of a page ripping deep in the bowels of the machine is sure to drain the blood from the bravest teacher's face. And attempts at repairs usually just made the problem worse. Finally someone tapes the sign "Copier Broken!" on it, and your name would be mud until the maintenance guy came later in the week to fix it. Yes, I'm sure fear of Xerox machines caused some people to choose another line of work instead of teaching.

But it's not like that anymore! Now the graphic display on our copy machine shows us exactly where the problem is, and what knobs and levers we need to pull to get the mangled paper out. We even have little buttons on our ID badges to scan instead of punching in our code each time. And we can print from home if we have a burning desire your next party! It refers to the practice of intently __email. click "print," and BAM! Our papers will room when we arrive in the morning.

So, if you're reading this humble article and considering a career in teaching, I can't promise that common core will be gone by the time you get your first job. I can't even be certain the common core police won't put me away for suggesting that it might eventually be (gasp!) obsolete. But, you can rest assured that the old tales you've heard of copier machines breaking down when people looked crooked at them are simply that, old tales from the past. Now is the dawn of the future in education -- the obedient Xerox machine! It truly is a brave new world

SEA SALT ON EUROPA; SUNSET ON MARS

NASA laboratory experiments suggest the dark material coating some geological features of Jupiter's moon Europa is likely sea salt from a subsurface ocean, discolored by exposure to radiation. The presence of sea salt on Europa's surface suggests the ocean is interacting with its rocky seafloor—an important consideration in determining whether the icy moon could support life.

"We have many questions about Europa, the most important and most difficult to answer being is there life? Research like this is important because it focuses on questions we can definitively answer, like whether or not Europa is inhabitable,' said Curt Niebur, Outer Planets Program scientist at NASA Headquarters in Washington. "Once we have those answers, we can tackle the bigger question about life in the ocean beneath Europa's

"If it's just salt from the ocean below, that would be a simple and elegant solution for what the dark, mysterious material is," said research lead Kevin Hand, a planetary scientist at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, California.

One certainty is that Europa is bathed in radiation created by Jupiter's powerful magnetic field. Electrons and ions slam into the moon's surface with the intensity of a particle accelerator.

To identify the dark material, Hand and his co-author Robert Carlson, also at JPL, created a simulated patch of Europa's surface in a laboratory test apparatus for testing possible candidate substances. For each material, they collected spectra -- which are like chemical fingerprints -encoded in the light reflected by the compounds.

"We call it our 'Europa in a can," Hand said. "The lab setup mimics conditions on Europa's surface in terms of temperature, pressure and radiation exposure. The spectra of these materials can then be compared to those collected by spacecraft and telescopes."

For this particular research, the scientists tested samples of common salt-sodium chloridevacuum chamber at Europa's chilly surface temperature of minus 280 degrees Fahrenheit. electron beam to simulate the intense radiation mission. on the moon's surface.

Tips and Recipes for Gatherers. A Falcon Field Guide 2015 by Christopher Nyerges book California" released, a full-color guide to the most common and widespread wild foods of California.

This month, a sequel to that book has been released, "Nuts and Berries of California," another full color guide to just nuts and berries. The foraging of nuts and berries has long been a family tradition, even by those who are just a bit too timid to collect figs, loquat, mulberries, olives, and pyracantha. wild greens or wild mushrooms. This is partly because there really aren't that many toxic nuts or berries in North America, and the edible ones are fairly widespread and easy to recognize.

Had my father lived to see this book, he would have loved it, and would have used it for one of his jokes, saying that I wrote about the "fruits and nuts" of Washington, or Hollywood.

In my new book, I first discuss native nuts, then native berries, and then the introduced ornamental plants which produce edible nuts or berries. I wrote the book with advice from Paul Campbell, author of "Survival Skills of Native California," who kept giving me suggestions about what to include in the book. I used many of Campbell's suggestions in the book, but not all. Some of his suggestions of nuts or berries to include were marginal foods, or were rare, or were found only in very localized areas. So when I outlined my book, I included those plants which had the broadest distribution, and which were relatively easy to identify.

The wild nuts include the acorn, which every child can recognize, and which every Indian tribe in California once used in their daily diet. Wild walnuts are included, and when most people think of wild nuts, they think of

Bay, pine, chinquapin, jojoba, and mesquite are all included in the native nut section. There is unique information about how to process the California buckeye nuts, which were widely used by the Pomo people

Last year, my "Foraging elderberries, strawberries, grapes, manzanita, rose was hips, toyon and many others.

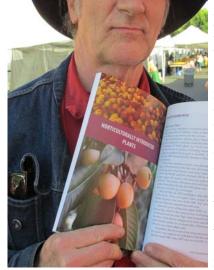

> The last section is called HIP, a term coined by my wife Helen, meaning horticulturally introduced plants. These are plants that were brought here from somewhere else for ornamental purposes and can now be found surviving in the wild as well as in the urban landscape. There are many HIP plants, but I only include some of the most common, like

The book is beautifully illustrated with color photos and contains many recipes for how to use these nuts and berries.

When I was first introduced to the world of ethno-botany many decades ago, it appealed to me on a deep subconscious level. Food is every where, not just on farms! The native peoples from around the world actually ate, and often ate well, and this is at least partly because they had no other choice.

There was a mystery surrounding this field when I was first learning about it in the late 1960s. Though there were books on the subjects, many of the authors obviously wrote about it in a very detached second-hand nature, talking about something that doesn't exist anymore. I saw the very pragmatic aspects of learning about the uses of plants, and I realized that so many of the food-related fears which mankind suffers are not necessary, assuming we educate ourselves and live in accord with the natural world. Yes, there is a trend in that direction, slow but

My involvement with wild foods has included sampling everything that I learn about, and including many in my regular diet. I have also written about how these plants are used in books, and teaching classes. I led my first wild food outing in 1974, and published my first book, "Guide to Wild Foods," in 1978. Nearly every one of my books since then has included some information about wild foods and wild plant uses.

which I thank God every day. At the time, however, I did not know how good I had it.

I was always hearing how great and wonderful city life was. The school teachers raved about all the excellent entertainment, museums and such in the city. It was so bad I began to feel I had missed out on a lot of things.

I never went to a Broadway play. I never attended one of those highfalutin orchestra concerts. I never even went to a fancy restaurant. I thought I was missing out on television. Television had come to our neck of the woods, but not everybody could afford a television set. I would go into the small town square where they sold appliances, stand with other people at the window and watch television.

Being from the country at the time seemed to be rather boring and with no future. According to all I heard about city life, it was the life to live. Of course, I did not know any better. I thought everything I heard was true. That is a problem with us country boys. We cannot figure out why anybody would lie about something. If it is not true, do not lie about it. When people told me how wonderful city life was, I thought they were telling the truth.

I guess it is true what they say. Nobody really appreciates their boyhood until they are 50 years down the road from it. I did not know how good I had it at the time.

When thinking about city life I thought of all the money people were making and all the good times they were having and all the fancy food they were eating. Why, I thought to myself, that must be heaven. I have since had to apologize to heaven.

Not having a television in our home at the time, we did not know about all the bad stuff happening in the cities. The riotings, the murders, the debauchery. All of this was far, far from our experience. When we thought of city life, we thought of the brilliant lights

Meanwhile, back in the country, as I was experiencing my boyhood I thought I was missing life. When I got older I realized I was missing out on a lot of things and I am mighty glad that I did miss out on some of the debauchery.

Out in the country, we either raised our own food or we swap something with the neighbor out of his garden. Processed food was something we never even thought of. We ate real food and enjoyed it.

When one neighbor was in trouble, everybody in the neighborhood came or website www.jamessnyderministries.com. together and helped. It was just what we did out in the country. We knew all our neighbors

I was born and raised in the country for by name and even celebrated their birthdays.

When I felt God was calling me to be a pastor, I thought this was my chance to indulge in city life. I could now live where the lights were the brightest.

Unfortunately, or fortunately, however you look at it, I never pastored a city church. I lived close to a city at one time, Baltimore. It was then that I realized that city life was just a myth people indulged in to make us country folks feel guilty about the goodness of our life.

I certainly am glad to be a country pastor. When I was growing up, we did not have I do not need to worry about all the latest technology, fads and trends out in society. I do not have to worry about what celebrities

> I remember out in the country our celebrities. They were all hunters who would regale us with stories of their hunting adventures. We would sit around the stove in a little country store and listen to these > hunters tell their stories. Now as a country pastor, I realize one important thing. Someone put it this way, "You can take the boy out of the country, but you can't take the country out of the boy." I never really understood that until I got out of > the country a little bit. I visited cities; New York, Baltimore, Chicago, Los Angeles just to name a few. Looking back, I am so glad I did not grow up > in any of those cities. I remember once walking down a New York City street and just stopped and looked around me. Everybody was rushing here and there, the noise was deafening, I took a deep breath and the streets stank to high heaven (another apology to heaven).

> I am only now beginning to appreciate the great privilege I had growing up in the country. Now that I am a country pastor, I can say this with a great deal of authority, "You can take the country preacher out of the country, but you can't take the country out of the country preacher."

David appreciated the country life and is of Broadway and all the good times people reflected in one of his Psalms. "As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God" (Psalms 42:1).

Only out of the country can you really appreciate the quietness of a water brook and meditating upon God.

We are in danger of losing our country life and when we do, we will lose our Country.

OPINION

- CÍA Director George Tenet addressing pre-war intelligence on Iraq's weapons programs at Georgetown University, February

After submitting my column last week, I became concerned a Jeb Bush supporter might be disappointed their favorite wasn't included in my overview of candidates for the 2016 nomination. Bush, who hasn't yet made it "official", got some notice last week for a response given in a TV interview.

It aired last Monday on Fox News, with Bush asked whether he would have authorized the invasion of Iraq "knowing what we know now". He dodged the specific question and responded, "I would have, and so would Hillary Clinton, just to remind everybody. And so would almost everybody that was confronted with the intelligence they got." He blamed the whole mess on

"the intelligence that everybody saw; that the world saw, not just the United States." Also making the rounds last week was former NY Times reporter Judith Miller plugging her just-published memoir, in which she too blamed our bad intelligence for her discredited stories in the build-up to war. (In Miller's case, however, it was anonymous Bush Administration figures using her to plant warnings about Saddam Hussein in the Times that others - Condoleezza Rice, Colin Powell and Donald Rumsfeld - would later cite in their case

The CIA had a different take. Paul Pillar, head of Middle East operations for the agency during that time, wrote in Foreign Policy in 2006 that "... it has become clear that official intelligence analysis was not relied on in making even the most significant national security decisions, that intelligence was misused publicly to justify decisions already made . . . and that the intelligence community's own work was politicized . . . Official intelligence on Iraqi weapons programs was flawed, but even with its flaws, it was not what led to the war."

The Senate Intelligence Committee released its Report on the matter in June 2008, with Chairman Sen. Jay Rockefeller (D-WV) concluding, "In making the case for war, the Administration repeatedly presented intelligence as fact when in reality it was unsubstantiated, contradicted, or even non-existent... There is no question we all relied on flawed intelligence. But, there is a fundamental difference between relying on incorrect intelligence and deliberately painting a picture to the American people that you know is not fully accurate." 'Sadly", he stated, "the Bush Administration led the nation into war under false pretenses."

The Report cited specific assertions made by President Bush and Vice President Cheney; of an association between Iraq and Al Qaeda, of Saddam's providing weapons to terrorist groups for attacks on the U.S., of the rosy outlook for a post-war Iraq and Saddam's chemical weapons capability as being either "not substantiated by", "contradicted by", or "did not reflect" the available intelligence.

The Committee also dealt with the administration's establishing its own intelligence groups at the Defense Department. The CIA and other services weren't coming up with what the administration wanted, so they set up these other outfits to come up with "intelligence" tailored to take our country to war.

The focus of these groups was linking 9/11 and Al Qaeda to Saddam Hussein. Mike McConnell, Director of National Intelligence for the last two years of the Bush Administration, offered his take on these non-CIA agencies on Meet The Press in 2007: "My sense of it is their political faith and convictions influenced how they took information and interpreted . . . they did set up a whole new interpretation because they didn't like the answers. They've gotten results that in my view now have been disastrous."

Jeb Bush referred to "intelligence everybody saw". No, they didn't. Outside the administration, the full 90-page National Intelligence Estimate on Iraq was available only to select members of House and Senate intelligence committees. According to former Sen. Bob Graham (D-FL), what other Senators got a week before they were to vote on war was a 20-page glossy marketing brochure prepared by the administration - with all caveats and qualifications from the original report omitted.

Jeb Bush suggested "the world" saw this intelligence, too. Much of the world had its own intelligence capabilities, and was troubled by what we were doing with ours. The "Downing Street Memo" of July 2002 quotes the head of Britain's M16 as observing that "Bush wanted to remove Saddam Hussein, through military action, justified by the conjunction of terrorism and WMD. But the intelligence and facts were being fixed around the policy." British Foreign Secretary Jack Straw added that although Bush had "made up his mind" to attack Iraq, "the case was thin."

The German Federal Intelligence Service warned us about "Curveball", the Iraqi informant they described as "crazy . . . out of control", and who friends called "a congenital liar". Nonetheless, his bogus claims about mobile weapons labs (debunked by our own intelligence agencies) made it into over a hundred government reports and Secretary of State Colin Powell's address to the U.N.

To protect their propaganda from actual intelligence, the administration went so far as to commit the treasonous act of outing an undercover CIA agent, blowing an entire operation combatting actual nuclear proliferation in the Middle East, merely to discredit her husband who'd debunked the president's State of the Union claim about Iraq's obtaining uranium from Jeb Bush calls his brother George one of his foreign policy "advisors". There's something to be said about learning from one's mistakes, but first you've got to own those mistakes. It's called "character". In shifting blame instead to those whose job is to gather and assess intelligence, not to market a war, he reveals a lack of character - which, as I see it, disqualifies him from the office he may or may not announce he's seeking.

OBAMA SHOULD RELEASE TRADE AGREEMENT DETAILS

President Obama is "personally" offended his own party refuses to allow him to "fast track" the Trans Pacific Partnership (TPP) free trade

Considering the details are hidden from everyone except select international insiders negotiating the fate of American workers, the American public should be "personally" offended by Obama and the Republicans willing to go along.

Republican Pat Buchanan asks, "Where is the liberal morality in passing laws to ensure U.S. workers a living wage and clean and safe conditions, and then, through fast track and free trade, signaling their bosses that they can evade these laws by shutting factories here, moving their plants to Asia, paying coolie wages, and subjecting Asian workers to conditions that would earn a U.S. industrialist a tour in Leavenworth?"

In 2013, Obama was fighting for the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership when the liberal Economic Policy Institute crushed Obama's claims of gaining hundreds of thousands of jobs, reporting, "U.S. trade with Mexico after the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) has cost the United States nearly 700,000 jobs through 2010. U.S. trade with China has certainly failed to deliver on the promised benefits of growing exports. Since that country entered the World Trade Organization (WTO) in 2001, the U.S. has lost 2.7 million jobs through 2011 due to growing trade deficits with China."

Today's TPP is no exception to American job

When was the last time the U.S. had an international trade advantage? Over four decades ago.

Economists estimate "free trade" has cost a cumulative 29 million American jobs between 1992 and 2011.

Left-wing news site Slate reported in February that liberal activist Matthew Covington pleaded with Republican David Young at an Îowa event commemorating Dr. Martin Luther King, "to beware of the executive overreach that Obama would be engaging in if he secured fast-track powers. 'I said, 'This is such a deal and the Constitutiong i v e s Congress the authority to that, not the president. This would give the authority to the president. But we elected you to give you that authority, to see what's in this trade deal, to make sure it doesn't jeopardize Iowa values.'

If that sounds more like a Tea Party American than a liberal, you've noticed a political convergence surrounding free trade.

Pathetically, Ted Cruz has acquiesced to Obama, but fellow Republican presidential candidate Rand Paul promises a "no" vote on the deal, telling The Hill he's "hesitant to give blanket authority on stuff we haven't seen.

Paul noted that he might support the trade agreement if he were about to see it, but warned that the Obama administration doesn't want the American people to find out the details "because they're afraid that if the public knows what we are going to vote on, that somehow that would destroy the republic."

Bottom line: Obama's economic policies failed dramatically. For the first time in history, 93 million Americans seeking work can't find jobs. He is desperately seeking a legacy with a secret deal with Iran, free trade or anything besides the Unaffordable Care Act that he can call a "success." He has failed to earn Americans' trust to negotiate in our interest.

Senate Democrats are feigning disagreement, seeking phony amendments designed to create the false narrative that they're concerned about American workers.

Unfortunately, his record does not foretell a good ending for any of this.
