SIERRA MADRE'S RESIDENT BELLY DANCER KATRELYA ANGUS WILL MISS JULY 4TH FESTIVITIES FOR THE FIRST TIME IN 24 YEARS

Earlier this week, Katrelya Angus contacted the Mountain Views News with the following note to the community:

'I am very sad to announce that, on what would have been my 24th Anniversary of uninterrupted belly dancing in the Fourth of July Parade, I am physically unable to dance in the Parade this year due to a knee injury.

Most belly dance movements come from the knees, and a belly dancer must take good care of his or her knees in order to give good clean and safe performances. I am working very hard at speeding up my recovery and hope to be all better by Halloween and hope to be in top form, once again, by Christmas.

I may be able to dance at smaller parties and smaller venues in the meantime. I just want to give my fellow Sierra Madreans, those who work in Sierra Madre, and all of our wonderful guests the high-quality work that I have been striving to provide this town since 1977, when I first learned how to belly dance, at the Sierra Madre Rec Center, at age 16.

I am paying very close attention, and, even after my recovery, will continue to pay very close attention, to the trainers at Sierra Fitness for whom, without exception, I have the very deepest respect in regards to getting me strong, and keeping me strong.

I am looking very forward to the Fourth of July 2016, in which I hope to be back in the Parade, stronger than ever before!" Best Regards, Katrelya Angus (Photo MVNews Archives)

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

"Everything good, everything magical, happens between the months of June and August. Winters are simply a time to count the weeks until the next summer." Jerry Han

'Summer afternoons...to me those have always the two most beautiful words in the English language." Henry James

We're thinking summer, and it looks like it's upon us...but waking up to those wonderful drizzly mornings was kind of nice. It dampened the roses, refreshed the tomatoes, didn't really water anything, but made us think that rain might possibly be on the way. It wasn't. We still need to watch every drop of water and try even harder to use less. More Mediterranean gardens are popping up around town and these things are nice with gravel and different colors of mulch covering up the ground.

School is out, happy kids are running around all over the place, free at last from the desk and textbooks. Mothers are signing their little sweeties up for every VBS in town, regardless of denomination. Mother Moo is advertising popsicles and summer flavor ice creams, and the next thing we know, it will be hot and we can barbecue and eat outside, invite people over for a glass of wine and a salad and just enjoy our lives. We plucked and devoured our first tomato of the season. There are more ahead but that first one was beyond delicious. Let's go with ambrosial! Nothing like tomatoes you grow yourself. We've got cantaloupe sprouting, some more tomato seeds are coming up, the dahlias have started blooming and my favorite rose tree has given up the ghost. Ah well...

Have you noticed the new hair salon there on the northeast corner of The Kensington? It's Hair Studio 245 (that's the address of The Kensington). Met the delightful proprietress, Lynda Sheum, and her daughter, who happened to be hanging out with mom the day I stopped in. Lynda was formerly at Votre Salon in Arcadia but when the opportunity arose to open Hair Studio 245, Lynda went for it! She has another stylist, Kela Browning, with her and is looking for one more to complete the salon.

Originally from Indonesia, Lynda arrived in the United States in 1982 as a student and lived with her aunt in New York. Her husband owns a wholesale meat company and the family, including her daughter and a son live in West Covina. She says the thing she misses most about Indonesia

If you haven't peeked in the windows or walked into Hair Studio 245, you're going to want to do that. It's an absolutely exquisite place, décor matching that of The Kensington, with orchids in many shades placed around the salon. Soothing earth tones and some really nice pieces of art complete the look of a place where one could relax and enjoy just about anything imaginable in a full service salon. Lynda specializes in color and she's ready to give you Ombre colors, painting, highlights, all the latest newest trends in style and color. Lynda is accomplished in cuts, and she also does roller sets, perms and just about anything to make you walk out looking and feeling fabulous. There will soon be a manicurist on hand, too.

Hair Studio 245 is open Tuesday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.. This beautiful new salon is available to everyone, friends and neighbors, not just residents of The Kensington. You can stop by to make an appointment or give Lynda a call at (626) 355-5700. The address is 245 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. here in town.

Tomorrow is Father's Day. You've still got time to get your Dad a card, plan to make a phone call if he's far away, and tell him you love him, appreciate him, and be sure to share a laugh together.

And last, but certainly not least...There was an ad in the Star News stating, "Zombies Needed To march in the Sierra Madre 4th of July Parade. Please call A.S. Rogers/Zombie Players Association. Ask for Patty 626-282-2156. Make-up Artists Needed!" So, if you've always wanted to be a zombie in our parade, here's your chance!

Special Exhibit at our Museums

During WWII and for some time afterwards, there was a shortage of decorative pottery in the U.S. due to both the lack of imports during the war and the U.S.'s own pottery manufacturers having to devote themselves to war-related projects. In our own little Sierra Madre, which has always harbored artists, potteries sprang up, concentrated mostly on Montecito Ave., to meet the popular demand for decorative ceramic items. Many of these potteries grew to employ hundreds. Often employees could work from home, creating a cottage industry that particularly benefited the elderly. In addition, employment offered many the opportunity to accumulate desperately needed Social Security work credits, Social Security being a relatively new program at the time.

An extensive special exhibit at our museums focusing on Sierra Madre manufacturers, businesses and services from the 1930s through the 1950s will celebrate not only the potteries but also other Sierra Madre manufacturers, grocery stores (Roess and The Green Frog), pharmacies, banks and even the Red Car. Most of the manufacturers, businesses and services are long gone, but some, such as Ward's, are still going strong. The museums are located at 167 E. Mira Monte (next to Mount Wilson Trail Park at the top of Mountain Trail Ave.) and are open from 10:00 a.m. - noon every Saturday.

This wonderful new exhibit will be spotlighted at the June 27th Sierra Madre Historical Preservation Society's Chicken & Ravioli dinner which will be held in the park next to the museums. Please ioin us! Tickets are on sale at Arnold's Frontier Hardware, the library, Savor the Flavor, Mary's Market and Lizzie's Trail Inn. For further information, look for the posters around town, or visit our website www.smhps.org.

You can read more about Sierra Madre's potteries and their powerful boost to local employment in Michele Zack's award-winning history of Sierra Madre and the forces that shaped it, Southern California Story; Seeking the Better Life in Sierra Madre. Ms. Zack devotes several pages, rich with photographs, to Sierra Madre's many potteries. If you don't already own a copy of this delightfully written, lavishly illustrated history, you can purchase a copy at the museums, at the Historical Society booth at city festivals, and at the library, Vroman's, Arnold's Hardware and Bean Town.

"After last year's rousing success, we are incredibly excited to be hosting another free adoption day," says Kevin McManus, adoptions supervisor. "We hope to have just as many, if not more adoptions, this year."

All dog and cat adoptions include the spay or neuter surgery, a microchip and a set of vaccines. The 2015 "Free Adoption Day" coincides with the implementation of a mandatory spay and neuter ordinance in the City of Pasadena. As of July 1st, all dogs and cats 6 months of age and over must be spayed and neutered. Pasadena residents will have one year to comply.

The event is open to anyone looking to adopt a pet; not just residents of our service cities. Regular adoption policies and screening apply. To expedite the adoption process, download and print an adoption application in advance on our website.

ALDI GROCERY STORE COMING TO ARCADIA

By Scott Hettrick, Arcadia's Best

Arcadia will be among the first cities in California to open a new Aldi lowprice grocery store in the coming months.

Aldi is owned by Aldi Nord, the same German-based company that owns Trader Joe's. In a recent Market Force Information consumer survey, Aldi was chosen as one of the top three favorite grocery store chains in America, as well as named the leading low-price grocery store for the fourth consecutive year.

Aldi targeted Arcadia months ago, with the former southern half of the CVS store at 1401 S. Baldwin Avenue in the retail strip mall at Naomi Avenue having been sealed off last winter in preparation for the reconfiguring of the space for the Aldi store. Aldi director of real estate Paul Cornejo told ArcadiasBest.com that the company is leasing 25,000 square feet of space from CVS, which is remaining in the northern 18,000 square feet. The two spaces are owned by two different property owners. City of Arcadia officials say they are progressing with Aldi officials and hope to get the store into the Plan Check phase soon.

Cornejo says that even though construction work will continue on the store and it will likely be ready to go in a few months, it will not open until March at the earliest because the company has yet to set up a regional distribution center (the closest one right now is in Texas). That center is being built in Moreno Valley. Once that is built, Aldi will begin the hiring and training of employees for the California stores, including Arcadia.

Ald i offers fresh, high-quality groceries, primarily under the store's own brand.Aldi generates savings for its customers through a low-overhead, focused approach that includes:

•Volume purchasing: By concentrating its full buying power on 1,300 of the most commonly purchased grocery items in the most common size, Aldi secures sizable discounts.

•Exclusive brand products: More than 90 percent of products at Aldi are their own exclusive brands rather than national brands.

He was arrested and transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking.

Wednesday, June 10:

A REAL WINNER ON AND OFF THE TRACK

of any jockey let alone Victor Espinosa. Twenty years ago, I chided my children at Ralph's three years ago with jockey Joe Talamo changed all of that.

Now my hubby and I love going to the great Race Place, watching the horses and cheering the guys on. Most recently, all the hype about the Triple Crown has kept us on the edge of our seats. After California Chrome came so close last year only to suffer defeat, it (Triple Crown) seem even harder to achieve.

Last year before Victor traveled to New York for the Belmont race, I the Triple Crown-it had been so many years. He saw American Pharoah at met him and was blown away. To me, he was the perfect role model. Success wasn't easy. It was after a lot of hard work. What stood out to me was his donations and commitment to City of Hope-especially the visits to the Children's cancer ward. When I asked him about it, Victor was emotional and said how it upset him to see these children suffering with that terrible disease.

This past Monday, Victor was home at Santa Anita and the Press was invited. There were many questions with detailed answers and then Victor repeated everything in Spanish to include the Hispanic Community.

Victor began telling us how nice it was to be home (Santa Anita) after being on the road for a few weeks. He really wasn't ready for the win- all the publicity, excitement, commitments. He recently had thrown the first pitch at Yankee Stadium and that was a thrill. He was given #3=Babe Ruth's number, but it represented the TRIPLE Crown.

Of course he was questioned about coming down the stretch in the race and his feelings. He explained how much he "loved American Pharoah and felt good, even the last 1/16 of the mile", but he "didn't want to get

Four years ago, I couldn't tell you the name excited till he crossed the wire; things can go wrong, by the 8th hole, I just wanted to make sure I crossed the wire."

"That moment changed my life forever...to win after so many years...

for going to Santa Anita. But an interview at Belmont I realized how special he is, a true champion...such a strong campaign." "For the first race, (he) not really ready, but ran a strong race-I rode him harder, he needed that race to win the Triple Crown...I was proud of him." "In the Preakness, I had never ridden a horse in so much rain. He ran so well, I got so much confidence. He was outstanding in his last two

Victor went on and told us that he felt sooner or later someone would win

Del Mar last year and knew he was special-he wanted to ride

This humble man, one of twelve children, was raised on a small farm in Hidalgo, Mexico. Each morning he had to get up early and led the cattle up the hill for grazing. The Victor would come down and go off to school. He had the "best childhood" and "best parents'. At seventeen he moved to Mexico City and drove a bus to earn money for jockey school.

Victor told us your "health" is the most important thing. He works out hard every day. Victor has a mechanical horse and has videos of jockeys winning important races. He would put the videos in and go on the horse and do what they Victor's advice was to "Set Goals. NEVER GIVE UP...keep working until you achieve these goals...when you reach the top, work harder. ..everyone needs goals...mine is to win as many as I can.

Miguel Cabrera texted Victor, "Congratulations" and gave him his glove. Victor will probably give him his goggles.

Victor plans to stay at Santa Anita and ride here-immediate goal-get ready for Del Mar. What an awesome man.

cats must be thinking about the canine counterparts they are forced to share their domestic space with. The whimsically written short story struck me as so funny I decided to put it in this week's column. I needed a bit of comic relief myself this week, and I hope you will enjoy it too.

Remember, it's all in good fun so please do not be offended on behalf of your precious pups. After themselves. Perhaps next time I'll write a little something about what our doggies must think of their kitty counterparts. Meanwhile, please take a moment to pause and laugh.

Dear Human: A Letter From Your Cat by Janet Eve Josselyn

Dear Human.

Apparently you need to be reminded of the rules of You may think I am just staring out the window without this house. My house. The house I let you and that a thought in my mind but I am actually reviewing filthy dog share with me. Rule number one is you scenarios for getting rid of the dog. Unfortunately, each need to do what I want you to do when I want you to do it and I want you to get rid of the dim-witted dog. Now. Please.

Let me elaborate. He never cleans himself. Gross. He licks food off the floor. He also gets up on our bed as soon as you leave the house. Our bed. The one you and I sleep in. Despite the fact that he has his own smelly dog bed on the floor. So you see, he is mischievous and cannot be trusted.

You are partly to blame for this, however, as you have reinforced some of his bad behaviors. For example, when you throw your ball away and he goes and gets it and returns it to you, you act all happy and thankful and you tell him what a good boy he is. And then the two of you do it all over again while I watch in amazement at how neither of you ever learns from this experience. Like Sisyphus, you both are doomed to repeat the task over and over and over again. So sad, really.

PASADENA HUMANE SOCIETY GEARS UP FOR BUSY 4TH OF JULY WEEKEND

Experts say a current ID tag is your pet's best ticket home

PASADENA, Calif. (June 19, 2015) - - Nothing says 4th of July like a spectacular fireworks display; but how do fireworks affect our pets? Dogs, cats and other animals are easily frightened by the loud booms and bursts of fireworks and may run away. With the 4th of July falling on a Saturday this year, the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA (PHS) is expecting a considerable increase in stray animals over the holiday weekend.

In response, the shelter will be open additional hours to accommodate the reunification of pets with owners. All return to owner fees will be waived from Sunday to Tuesday for stray animals arriving over the holiday weekend.

•Friday, July 3: Normal business hours from 9am to About the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA

•Saturday, July 4: Shelter closed in observance of the •Sunday, July 5: The office will open at 9am for pet reunification only. The shelter will be open from 11am

•Monday, July 6: The main office will be open from 9am to 1pm to facilitate pet reunification requests •Tuesday, July 7: Normal business hours resume.

A current identification tag is the best way to ensure your pet is returned to you promptly. On July 3rd and 4th, PHS Animal Control Officers will be out in the field to return lost animals with current ID tags directly to their homes. If you live in our service area and see a stray animal, call (626) 792-7151 ext. 102.

Remember, it's best to keep your pets indoors over the 4th of July weekend. If your pet runs away, make sure to search the kennels of your local shelter and post signs in your neighborhood. PHS updates its website, www.pasadenahumane.org, hourly.

National research shows that students who participate in library summer reading programs score higher on reading achievement tests at the beginning of the next school year than those who did not participate. According to the Children's Reading Foundation, children need to hear and see books from birth. Reading with a child 20 minutes every day develops critical brain connections that determine future growth and learning! According to expert Colleen D. ## THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show SPY REVIEW

Melissa McCarthy has slowly been falling out of mainstream Hollywood, with several of her past few movies not performing well at the box office. Is 'Spy' a refreshing, new Melissa McCarthy film, of is it just another to add to a growing list of recent failures?e

Susan Cooper (Melissa McCarthy) has been doing her job at the CIA for years: being the voice in the earpiece of some of the world's top spies. But when well-known terrorist Rayna Boyanov (Rose Byrne) obtains a tactical nuke, and learns the identities of all the active CIA agents, Cooper must get into the field before the world

Spy' is a great comedy. Not only are the jokes new and well thought out, their delivery is just as refreshing. The entire cast does a great job here with a script that has clearly been fine-tuned to be a lean, mean, comedy machine. 'Spy' may even go down as one of the great comedy classics, as it is so original and such a great restart for Melissa McCarthy's career.

HOW TO PASS REAL ESTATE TO YOUR KIDS (AND HOW NOT TO)

Many parents believe that by adding children's names to a property deed, they can easily pass along that property to their children. Unfortunately, those who act on that belief often find they have invited more problems than they have avoided.

This is because in California, when more than one person owns property together and they are not married, the default form of title ownership is referred to as tenants in common. This means that if one of the owners dies, his or her ownership share does not transfer to the other owner(s). Instead, it goes to the deceased owner's heirs through probate.

The problems of probate (and there are many) can be avoided if the deed designates property ownership as joint tenants with the right of survivorship. However, there are several big reasons why it may not be advisable for you to deed real estate to your children in this manner, with adverse deeding property to children is actually considered a gift, and the cost basis for that gift is what you paid

For example, let's say you paid $150,000 for your home many years ago. You then add your children to the deed at some point, which the IRS deems a gift. After you die, the children sell the home for the current market value of, let's say, $550,000. They will be taxed on the difference between the cost basis of $150,000 and the sale price of $550,000 - or $400,000. That's a huge tax burden you've left for your children. It would be better if your children inherited the property via your will, then selling it under the scenario described above would not create the same tax liability because their cost basis would be what the property was worth when they inherited it (that being the current market value of $550,000).

But there is an even better way; much better in fact. While inheriting property through a will does avoid some of the tax issues discussed above, it does NOT avoid probate. The way to avoid tax issues AND probate is by creating a living trust and titling the property in the name of the trust, and naming your children as the trust's beneficiaries. You avoid or more accurately, your kids avoid – the problems and costs of probate and do so in a tax-advantaged

Social Media Tips, Tricks & Ideas

INSTAGRAM SYSTEM: Post Once, Populate Many

Building systems for your social media will save you time and help you get your message out. There are lots of ways to set up your tools so you can post in one place and populate others. Instagram is a great starting tool in a system. You can take a picture from your smart phone, post it on Instagram and it will automatically post on Twitter, Facebook and your website.

Here are two easy steps that will build a system for your Instagram posts:

1. Instagram settings: choose "share settings." Select Facebook and Twitter and follow the instructions to link to your accounts. You can set up your Facebook feed to go to your personal profile page or to a business page you admin.

Add a feed to your website: Use a widget maker like Snapwidget.com to create code that you can install on your website. There are several widget format types to choose from (grid, slide show, scrolling etc.) This is a great way to keep images current on your website. Setting up systems saves you time and extends the reach of your content.

Post Once, Populate Many:

Post to Instagram, feed your website through an installed widget, feed your Twitter and Facebook Page through Instagram share settings.

A wonderful, effective cooling pranayama is Shitali. It's like an air-conditioner for the body. To perform this pranayama, you'll curl your tongue like a tube and begin to gather saliva on it. Reader Jack Theil, a Pasadena legend and my former dentist, wrote to me about my term "picnic" wines. It seems that Jack thinks we don't go out on picnics anymore, which got me thinking he might be right. Although the term is used as a metaphor on the quality of the wine that I am reviewing, in layman's terms when this writer says "picnic wine" it usually means a wine that you could bring as a gift or as a contribution to a backyard BBQ without being scrutinized on how much you paid for the wine. With the overcast days of May in our rear view mirrors, and the promise of a bright June in the forecast, I went back to an old friend for this week's appraisal.

 $Kim\ Crawford's\ 2014\ Sauvignon\ Blanc\ is\ indeed\ the\ quintessential\ picnic\ wine.\ Priced\ right\ at\ around\ $13\ (actually\ $2\ less\ then\ the\ 2011\ I\ sampled\ two\ years\ ago),\ it\ actually\ breaks\ my\ longstanding\ fear\ properties of the properti$ of screw-top bottles. Sauvignon blanc is a white wine grape from western France, now successfully grown in emerging and established wine regions all over the world including New Zealand. This is one sauvignon blanc that goes well with a spicy shrimp dish, oysters, lobster, or any shellfish for that matter. I first discovered Kim Crawford at a wine tasting a few years back - it's always ready to drink upon opening, and you will see a light straw-like color and smell a hint of grapefruit (or at least a tropical fruit). This sauvignon Blanc doesn't have the long finish of a red wine, but its still got a delightful aftertaste. As I mentioned previously, I sip and never swirl!

THE GOOD LIFE

Dear Savvy Senior,

What tips can you recommend to help senior pet owners with their veterinary bills? I have two cats and a dog that are family to me, but their vet bills have become unaffordable.

HOW SENIORS CAN TAME PET CARE COSTS

Fix Income Frankie

Dear Frankie,

The high cost of veterinar care has become a problem for millions of pet owners today, but it can be especially difficult for seniors living on a fixed income. Routine medical care can cost hundreds of dollars, while urgent/specialized treatments and procedures can run into the thousands. But, it is possible to reduce your pet care costs without sacrificing their health. Here are some tips that can Shop around: If you're not attached to a particular veterinarian, call some different vet clinics in your area and compare costs. When you call, get price quotes on basic services like annual exams and vaccinations, as well as bigger-ticket items, like to repair a broken leg, so you can compare. Also, check to see if you live near a veterinary medical school (see aavmc.org for a listing). Many schools provide low-cost care provided by students who are overseen by their professors.

Ask your vet for help: To help make your vet bills more manageable, see if your vet's office accepts monthly payments so you don't have to pay the entire cost up front. Also, find out if your vet offers discounts to senior citizens or reduces fees for annual checkups if you bring in multiple pets.

Search for low-cost care: Many municipal and nonprofit animal shelters offer free or low-cost spaying and neutering programs and vaccinations, cutting your veterinary bills, you can also save on and some work with local vets who are willing to provide care at reduced prices for low-income and senior pet owners. Call your local shelter or humane society to find out what's available in your area.

Look for financial assistance: There are a number of state and national organizations that provide financial assistance to pet owners in need. To locate these programs, the U.S. Humane Society provides Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior. a listing on their website that you can access at humanesociety.org/petfinancialaid.

Buy cheaper medicine: Medicine purchased at the vet's office is usually much more expensive than you can get from a regular pharmacy or online. Instead, get a prescription from your vet (ask for generic is possible) so you can shop for the best

Most pharmacies such as Walgreens, CVS, Walmart, Kmart, Rite Aid and Target fill prescriptions for pets inexpensively, so long as that same drug is also prescribed to humans. And, many pharmacies offer pet discount savings programs

You can also save by shopping online at one of the Veterinary-Verified Internet Pharmacy Practice Sites accredited by the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy, like 1-800-PetMeds (1800petmeds.com), Drs. Foster & Smith (drsfostersmith.com), KV Supply (kvsupply.com), and PetCareRx (petcarerx.com).

Consider pet insurance: If you can afford it, pet insurance is another option worth looking into. You can get a basic policy for under $10 per month, and some insurers provide discounts for insuring multiple pets. See petinsurancereview.com to compare policies. Membership discount plans like Pet Assure (petassure.com) are another way to save, but you'll need to use a vet in their network.

Look for other ways to save: In addition to pet food and other supplies depending on where you shop. Target, Walmart, Costco and the dollar stores typically offer much lower prices than supermarkets and specialty retailers like Petco and PetSmart. You can also save on treats and toys at sites like coupaw.com and doggyloot.com.

LONELY GALAXY "LOST IN SPACE;" SCHOOLBOY DISCOVERS A NEW PLANET

Space is big, dark, and lonely. But some parts of it are more lonely than others.

Most galaxies are clumped together in groups or clusters. A neighboring galaxy is never far away. But one galaxy, known as NGC 6503, has found itself in a lonely position, at the edge of a strangely empty patch of space called the Local

The Local Void is a huge stretch of space that is at least 150 million light-years across. It seems completely empty of stars or galaxies. The galaxy's odd location on the edge of this never-land led stargazer Stephen James O'Meara to dub it the "Lost-in-Space galaxy" in his 2007 book, Hidden Treasures.

NGC 6503 is 18 million light-years away from us in the northern circumpolar constellation of Draco the Dragon. It is some 30,000 light-years in diameter, about one-third the size of our own home galaxy, the Milky Way.

WORK-EXPERIENCE SCHOOLBOY DISCOVERS A NEW PLANET. A 15-year-old schoolboy has discovered a new planet orbiting a star 1,000 light years away in our galaxy. Tom Wagg was doing work-experience at Keele University, Staffordshire, England, when he spotted the planet by finding a tiny dip in the light of a star as a planet passed in front of it.

"I'm hugely excited to have a found a new planet, and I'm very impressed that we can find them so far away," says Tom, now aged 17. (It has taken two years of further observations to prove that Tom's discovery really is a planet.)

Tom found the planet by looking at data collected by the WASP (Wide Angle Search for Planets) project, which surveys the night skies monitoring millions of stars to look for the telltale tiny dips (transits) caused by planets passing in front of their host star.

Tom's planet has been given the catalogue number WASP-142b, being the 142nd discovery by the WASP collaboration. It is in the Southern constellation of Hydra the Water Snake. While astronomers worldwide have now found over 1,000 extra-solar planets, Tom is possibly the youngest ever to have done so.

"The WASP software was impressive, enabling me to search through hundreds of different stars, looking for ones that have a planet," says Tom. The planet is the same size as Jupiter, but orbits its star in only two days. With such a short orbital period, the transits occur frequently, making such planets much easier to find.

Tom, a pupil at Newcastle-under-Lyme School, who has always been deeply interested in science, asked for the work-experience week after learning that Keele University had a research group studying extra-solar planets.

the International Astronomical Union has started "Tom is keen to learn about science, so it a contest to name extra-solar planets. Tom is looking forward to making a suggestion for his planet.

I found work doing such tasks as roofing, framing, writing magazine articles.

But somehow I convinced myself that -- for better or worse - my "free" lifestyle was more important for the solace of my soul, and for the salvation of the planet. Still, my soul wasn't always solaced by my "lifestyle" because I always had a nagging fear anytime anyone came up the driveway. Furthermore, I constantly wavered between confidence and doubt that my way of life had any effect whatsoever on the direction the planet was taking.

My time was divided between my work, my studies and research with the non-profit organization that brought me to Highland Park in the first place.

the very meaning of life and wanted to discover the point of all the rushing about to get somewhere. Unable to discover these answers in his town, Thoreau built and moved into his little shack in the woods and learned how to grow the food that he ate, and found it nourishing and satisfying. He also ate purslane, an import from the old world, which even then was common throughout the eastern United States in tilled soil. He wrote "I learned that a man may use as simple a diet as the animals, and yet retain health and strength. I have made a satisfactory dinner off a dish of purslane which I gathered and boiled. At night, thinking over the day's classes and studies, typing up my notes and insights, I often ruminated over how life should be lived, and wondered why we take up so much time and waste so much of life on trivial pursuits. I felt that it was important to live simply, to grow food, to discover nature's secrets, and to find answers through thinking and through research. I wondered why others did not think like me. And with the purslane growing right in my yard, I could eat it for lunch in my salad and fancy myself some sort of urban Thoreau as I thought over these ideas.

I did learn some years later when Thoreau was mentioned by the academics he was regarded as I drove a Honda 90 motorcycle at the time that got a brilliant intellectual who discovered the simple 100 miles to the gallon so my transportation costs were reality that was right in front of everyone. In the kitchen hanging next to the door to go outside was a very interesting parenting tool, at least in my father's eyes. It was a paddle with a religious inscription, "I Need Thee Every Hour." life in our home.

My father had the idea that if you were in trouble know how to respect authority. in school you were also in trouble at home. He had this fantastic idea that the teacher was right and I was wrong. I guess he knew me and that I could take a little bit of truth and spin it into a lie. I wonder who I learned that from?

Several times I got in trouble at school, which involved a spanking down at the principal's office. The first time this happened, I well remember walking into the kitchen and saw my father standing there holding in his hand that infamous paddle. Within a few moments, the paddle was doing its duty and I was doing the "For whom the LORD loveth he correcteth; 'paddle dance."

After the paddling, my father sat down with me and said, "Okay, what trouble did you get into at school requiring the principal to paddle you?" I wished he had asked me before the paddling, because now I had no incentive whatsoever to lie. Looking back, maybe that was the whole purpose of the paddling.

I well remember one time out in the backyard, I did something requiring parental action. My father looked at me and said, "Go get me a switch. You need to be taught a lesson."

back to my father. He has been gone quite a spell after the fact I could see no humor whatsoever but his memory lingers. I often wonder what he in it. I went to get the "switch," according to my would think of what is happening in our world father's instructions and came back with a twig. I thought it was funny, but my father had no sense I grew up with a father who believed in being of humor about this. In a few moments, my sense the father. I confess he was not always right all the of humor evaporated because my father went and got a switch, which is a whole lot different from a twig, just ask my backside.

Ruminating over these things, I tried to figure out how many spankings I actually got during my lifetime. Let me just say, it was significant. More than that. It taught me respect for authority.

I wonder if some of these young people getting father did not believe in PC, but he did believe emphatically in BS (Back Side). I think if parents Although my father was not a very well today would focus more on BS than PC, things might be a lot different.

Today, people think those old-fashioned spankings represent cruel and unusual punishment. However, if you look at this generation that has not had an old-fashioned spanking, I think the evidence speaks for itself. To spank or not to spank, that is the dilemma today. Most gravitate towards the "not to spank" aspect unaware that they are creating a lot of damage for the next generation.

I must say that my father was not too much interested in what we call "love" today. He was more interested in respecting authority. In fact, The inscription was quite true to the reality of as I think about this, when you are respecting authority you are exhibiting love. People today Spanking was a routine exercise in our home. do not know how to love because they do not

> I think if some of these youngsters could spend a week with my father and his infamous "paddle" they would grow to respect authority. Unfortunately, there is no authority figure in most homes today. Even those homes that have fathers are coerced into believing the father has no real significance in the family.

All I can do is to quote a famous psychologist,

'How's that working?" Well, how is that working?

The wisest man in the world, Solomon, said, even as a father the son in whomhe delighteth" (Proverbs 3:12).

True love always corrects that which is wrong, especially in the person they love.

TUESDAY WAS NOT A GOOD DAY IN AMERICA, WEDNESDAY WAS WORSE. AND TOMORROW ISN'T LOOK GOOD EITHER!

TUESDAY: Trump, in his prove themselves right. announcement that he seeking nomination the Republican Candidate President said,

"When Mexicosends its people, they're not sending the best. They're not sending you, they're sending people that have lots of problems and they're bringing those problems. They're bringing drugs, they're bringing crime. They're rapists and some, I assume, are good people, but I speak to border guards and they're telling us what we're WEDNESDAY: 21 year old Dylan Roof in the midst of a killing rampage that took the lives of 9 innocent people in church said of African Americans: "You rape our women and you're taking over

The week didn't get any better. On THURSDAY, the landscape became even more polluted when NRA Board Member and Attorney Charles Cotton told the Associated Press what he posted on social media - that Pastor Pinckney, who was murdered in the church massacre, was to blame for the deaths because as an elected official he (Pinckney) blocked legislation that would have allowed the members of the church to carry their own guns. Cotton's statement implied that if everyone had come to Prayer Meeting with their guns, they'd be alive today. Absolutely asinine. By the way, Pinckney, according to the AP, ".....a search of legislative archives could not immediately find any such measure".

I don't know about you, but for me, this week has been a national disaster. For me, it isn't possible to just stick my head in the ground and ignore what is happening around us. It isn't possible to watch powerful, self-serving egomaniacs make a mockery of the way we choose our leaders. It isn't possible to listen to such a person, certainly not a man, although that is his stated gender identification, spew forth such ignorance and hatred by denigrating people based on their race. Ironically he chooses words that some could use to describe him and his business practices over the years.

to ignore the proliferation of the kind of to do about it?

hateful rhetoric that the likes of the D o n a 1 d NRA's Cotton uses in order to try to

> And, it isn't possible for me not to was notice that Roof, a 21 year old, has picked the up some of the same hateful rhetoric and used it to justify killing innocent people who were worshipping in church.

It is not possible for me to ignore it, and it shouldn't be possible for you to ignore it either. Ignoring it just spreads the contagion like a virus, and makes life in these United States unsafe for everyone.

The tragedy in Charleston goes beyond the death of the nine victims. It goes to the very core of what is wrong with our nation today. Where is our future headed when a mere 21 year old can be so full of hatred that he lost his humanity?

Roof did not sink to that level of depravity without help. He is the product of his environment and that environment is not limited to his family. Our society bears a lot of the blame. This young man, who was allowed to guarantee his failure in life by dropping out of school in the 9th grade, (no educational program to save him?) learned from the people and the world around him.

We tolerate a culture of fear and hatred. We tolerate a culture of oppression, a culture of instant gratification regardless of the damage caused. We waste time bickering over who is right and who is wrong rather than WHAT is right and wrong. We will not work together to identify and prioritize our problems and find solutions for them. priorities aren't about preserving future generations. It has become all about what? I'm not certain.

But I do know that we just keep on sticking our heads in the sand and the tragedies just keep coming. And, with each tragedy, we continue to skip right over the real problems and latch on to the sensational.

In President Obama's remarks he said, "I've had to make statements like this too many times. Communities like this have had to endure tragedies like this too many

But let's be clear: At some point, we as a country will have to reckon with the fact that this type of mass violence does not happen in other advanced countries. It doesn't happen in other places with this kind of frequency. And it is in our power to do something about it."

No, this hasn't been a good week for It is also not possible for me to continue America. Question is, what are we going

TINA Dupuy RACHEL DOLEZAL IS ACTING LIKE A CHILD ABUSE VICTIM ACTS

the Duggar molestation scandal and now the quirky case of Rachel Dolezal, one thing is clear: We as a public don't know what child abuse looks like.

The CDC estimates that one in four American children experience some form of abuse and yet we're not quick to spot it or identify with it. Instead there's a tendency to be irked that "this stuff" is even being discussed publicly. Or as we've seen with the Duggars and the Dolezals, we default into our preexisting paradigms of partisanship: The Duggars are rightwingers and are typical of those people and Dolezal is a liberal Obama's America "transracial" fruitcake.

But both these cases also feature fringe Christian movements protecting their ideals over their daughters.

The saga of reality show subject Josh Duggar, who admittedly sexually abused five girls (four of whom were his own sisters), was a grotesque display of what religious zeal conditions people to be able to rationalize. "They didn't even know he had done it," said Michelle Duggar during the soft-focus Fox News Megyn Kelly

I've talked to sexual abuse victims who didn't realize what had happened to them until decades later. They had fears and phobias and things they just avoided, seemingly without reason—but they didn't put two and two together. So the idea of child abuse being contingent on the victim's memory, identification or understanding is just wrong. Being asleep, unconscious or blocking it out—doesn't make one not a victim. And it surely doesn't mean it didn't happen.

Kelly, to her credit, repeatedly asked the Duggars about their daughters and they repeatedly answered by talking about their son, the abuser. To me it was Christian-based traditional gender-role activists valuing the man and his sexual proclivities over anything their own daughters might undergo.

And another painfully public tale of throwing your daughter under the bus is Rachel Dolezal. While the national discourse instantly tee-heed and tsk-tsked at a white woman identifying herself as black, immediately branding her as a freak, a fraud and a phony—we all missed the real story. Why are her parents on TV at all? Their daughter wasn't hurting anyone. She had adopted a new persona. She had found another father who loves the wake her-a community who embraced her. She didn't get a salary from her position at her local chapter of the NAACP. She was fighting for the marginalized as an unpaid volunteer. She was trying to help people and further a cause of justice. Loving and compassionate parents don't go on media tours calling their daughter a liar and a disappointment-especially when, by every measure, she was successful and just living her life.

> Then it came out that this is yet another story hinging on child abuse. "Joshua Dolezal, 39, was charged in 2013 with four felony counts of sex abuse of a victim who was a minor at the time, sources and court records confirmed," reported the NY Daily News. Rachel is, of course, supporting the victim and that threatens these homeschooling young Earth fundamentalists. To them, if Rachel is a liar, everything can go back to the way it was.

> Rachel's birth parents are abusive. Two of the other children in the family (so far) have corroborated Rachel's claims of abuse: physical labor, forced isolation and physical violence.

> Rachel is acting like an abuse victim acts. She's estranged from her birth parents for a reason. And when she says she can't prove that Ruthanne and Larry Dolezal are really her parents, she's divorcing herself from them. She's trying to move on and move past them. I haven't called my neglectful and emotionally abusive birth parents "mom" and "dad" in over a decade. And if you ask me if they're my parents, I'll say no. I have parents; they didn't give birth to me.

> When Rachel says she identifies as a black woman and says she understands struggle, I think she does. Something about oppression resonates with her. Also, in seeing herself as black, she becomes the opposite of the people who hurt her. She's running away from them—and she's told > Surviving is messy. It's complicated and it compels people to do seemingly absurd things. Some recreate their trauma by acquiring different abusers; some pass on their trauma by abusing others. Some hurt themselves, or in my case blame themselves. One became Oprah. And some vow to protect others—advocate for others—and dedicate their lives to helping others sporting a spray tan and a weave to tap into a culture noted for strength, endurance and triumph in the face of adversity.

HOWARD Hays As I See It

Andrea Senatorial Committee of the "war on women" accusation against Republicans. That was the year Rep. Todd

Akin (R-MO), while campaigning for the Senate, explained how in becoming pregnant the body tries to "shut that whole thing down" in cases of "legitimate rape". Also arguing against rape and incest exceptions for abortion bans, Richard Mourdock, Senate candidate from Indiana, suggested we instead just accept any resulting pregnancy as "something God had intended to happen". Tom Smith, Senate candidate from Pennsylvania, characterized pregnancy from rape as simply an out-of-wedlock pregnancy. (All three lost their races.)

2012 saw strong opposition from Congressional Republicans to renewal of the Violence Against Women Act. In Wisconsin, current GOP presidential candidate Gov. Scott Walker saw to repeal of his state's Equal Pay Enforcement Act, describing it as little more than a boon for trial lawyers and an attack on the "job creators". In support, Republican State Sen. Glenn Grothman added, "You could argue that money is more important for men . . . maybe because they expect to be a bread-winner someday, may be a little more money-conscious". (Grothman now serves in the U.S. Congress.)

The "war" became apparent in 2011, as the new Republican Congressional majority took over. They insisted the modifier "forcible" be included in legislation, so that an exception to the ban on abortion funding could not be made simply for "rape" - it had to be "forcible rape". Further clarifications protected doctors and hospitals that not only refused to perform abortions themselves, but refused to arrange patient transfers to facilities that did, even in emergency situations where the life of the mother was at stake. Rep. Kristen Gillibrand (D-NY) said such legislation showed a "heinous disregard for the health and well-being of women in America."

Rep. Dan Burton (R-IN) that year introduced legislation to promote contraception for wild horses, while at the same time he and his colleagues tried to deny it for women by eliminating funding for Title X, the federal family planning program for humans. On the state level, a Republican legislator tried to change Georgia's criminal codes so that a rape "victim" would henceforth be referred to as the "accuser".

We're now seeing consequences of these actions. Two months ago, Indiana Republican Gov. Mike Pence instituted an emergency needle-exchange program to combat an unprecedented HIV outbreak in the rural parts of his state, caused by intravenous drug use. A few years earlier, Republican funding cuts forced the closure of five rural Planned Parenthood clinics in the areas hardest hit. None provided abortions; all provided HIV testing.

"Democrats' obnoxious As Gov. Pence was taking these emergency strategy to use women actions, the legislature in Texas, a state with as political pawns was the third-highest HIV infection rate in the rejected in 2014 and will country, was passing a measure to transfer $3 million in funding from HIV/STD prevention Bozek, over to programs promoting abstinence-only spokeswoman for the sex education. When the sponsor was asked how National Republican much more funding would have to be taken from these other programs, he answered as much as it takes for as long as people continue having sex

Actually, it was 2012 before marriage. that saw popularization The Texas Health and Human Services Commission estimated the state's closing of Planned Parenthood and other facilities a few years ago would bring 23,760 additional births to low-income families over 2014-2015, at an additional cost to taxpayers of $273 million in Medicaid and other medical expenses.

This past week, House Republicans again passed a budget eliminating funds for Title X, which for over forty years has been helping provide millions of low-income Americans contraceptive care, sexually-transmitted disease screening, AIDS / HIV testing, cervical cancer screenings, etc. (Title X has never been involved with abortions.) Along with Title X, they're targeting sex education programs and teen pregnancy prevention. Even after the Supreme Court's "Hobby Lobby" decision, they want to make it easier still for employers to dictate what is covered under their female employees' health

House Republicans have passed these cuts before - but now it's not so clear whether they can be stopped in the Senate as they've been in the past with the Senate under Democratic 25% of the 4.7 million served by Title X are here in California. According to Julie Rabinovitz, President of the California Family Health Council, the program helps prevent 1.2 unintended pregnancies in the state every year. There's also $7 taxpayers' money saved for every $1 spent on family planning.

The concern of Republican spokeswoman Andrea Bozek, quoted above, seems to be over how Democrats' exploitation of such issues might affect next year's campaigns. The concern for most of us, though, is how these real issues affect real Americans and real families today. As Cecile Richards, president of Planned Parenthood Action Fund puts it, "If Republican leaders in Congress think they can take away millions of women's access to health care and shut down programs that are reducing teen pregnancy without one hell of a fight, they have another thing coming."

In 1967, Rep. George H.W. Bush (R-TX) urged federal agencies to "work even more closely with going private agencies like Planned Parenthood" to achieve universal access to family planning. A year before signing Title X into law in 1970, President Nixon wrote, "It is my view that no American woman should be denied access to family planning assistance because of her economic condition."

Forty years ago, issues such as women's health, family planning and preventing teen pregnancy didn't seem to be partisan issues to fight about. When Republicans take party-line actions stripping these programs and protections from those who need them most, however, they should be neither surprised nor offended to see them reemerge as campaign issues in 2016.

DONALD TRUMP'S Trump is not CIRCUS ACT the Ross Perot of 2016. Perot

He's Donald Trump's first Republican victim, but he won't be his last.

On Monday Bush officially declared he was a Republican candidate for president, something everyone knew was coming.

Jeb gave a serious, by-the-book announcement speech, explaining his many qualifications, making his claim that he's a true conservative and promising to make America great again.

It was boringly Bush, and maybe a little too moderate for hardline conservatives. But it was mature and dignified. Presidential even.

The mainstream media gave Jeb token coverage for about a day. Some were especially impressed by his fluency in Spanish.

But then on Tuesday the one-man, one-ring, Donald Trump circus rolled into Republican town.

The Donald wasted no time proving to everyone why he should not be president. He also proved why he's going to spell trouble for the GOP primary process.

Winging it without a written speech or a Teleprompter, Trump mangled lots of facts about the economy, attacked Republicans Jeb and Marco Rubio, offended the Mexican nation and admitted proudly that he was absurdly rich and ready to spend millions electing himself.

Entertaining and scary at the same time, Trump was a speeding political train wreck before he got a chance to leave the station.

He said horrible and untrue things about illegal Mexican immigrants, saying they were mostly criminals and murderers while admitting only 'some of them may be good people."

Yet Trump surely hit some nerves when he said we've become a country of losers because our leaders are a bunch of losers who can't get it right in Iraq, Iran, Washington or anywhere else.

And who's going to argue with the Donald when he says the Chinese are winning every trade deal we make with them? Or that we're stuck with crumbling Third World airports like LAX and LaGuardia.

It was Trump in all his self-powered

The media began bashing and mocking him immediately, mainly by merely repeating some of the dumb or outlandish things he blurted.

was a serious businessman who wanted to fix the economy and balance the federal budget.

Trump is a vanity candidate. He's also the wild-and-crazy GOP guy the liberal media have been praying for.

Jon Stewart — whose progressive shtick on the "Daily Show" usually reflects the worst ideas and values of the Democrat faithful — thanked the heavens for Trump's decision to run.

The Donald is a gift that will keep Hollywood's comedy sector supplied with a steady stream of material guaranteed to get laughs and always eflect poorly on Republicans.

Another thing. When Trump's on the stage, he becomes the center of attention and sucks the air out of the room with his wild and crazy personality.

Trump might actually possess some right answers for dealing with the legacy of problems the Obama gang will leave behind.

But he will not be able to get anything done because to fix things in government, you have to know how to work with other people.

Trump doesn't. He's a solo act, an ego in chief, an order-giving business exec. He isn't used to negotiating or working with others.

Everyone knows Trump can't win. He knows it too. He's a dangerous distraction and a stain on the GOP brand, but conservatives stuck with

For him the 2016 GOP primary is just another TV reality show. But this time it's a show with real consequences, domestically and internationally.

He'll create lots of late-night laughs. He might even force substantive candidates to address important subjects they'd prefer to dodge, like immigration reform.

But as long as Trump's in the race, he can only hurt the Republican cause, whether it's by making the party's primary process look like a clown convention or bumping someone smart and fiery like Carly Fiorina off the TV debate stage.

The Donald and his multi-billions have crashed the GOP's exclusive 2016 party for now. But in the long run, he'll be the joker who'll be trumped.
