SMPD OPENS INVESTIGATION AMID ALLEGATIONS OF UNLAWFUL SEXUAL ACTS WITH A CHILD UNDER THE AGE OF 14

The Mountain Views News has learned that the Sierra Madre Police Department is investigating allegations of sexual abuse involving a child under the age of 14.

At press time, no arrest had been made, however the primary suspect is a person believed to be in his mid-twenties, according to a SMPD spokesperson.

It also does not appear, based upon the preliminary information received from the SMPD, that the suspect is one of the known registered sex offenders living in the city.

Detective Charles Kamchamnan is heading up the case and was not available for comment Friday afternoon.

VOLUME 9 NO. 29 CITY ADOPTS UPDATED GENERAL PLAN - FINALLY!

After hundreds of hours of volunteer and staff time spanning several years, the updated plan will replace the previous 1996 version.

It was June 11, 1996 when Sierra Madre last approved a General Plan, which has been called the "Bible" of Sierra Madre. The plan is a "collection of policies and maps that defines what the city will look like and how it will be economically managed and developed over a long period of time." It is used to guide our elected officials in all matters of policy and is not unique to Sierra Madre. The State of California requires that every city has one.

There are seven mandatory components of a General Plan:

- 1) Circulation
- 2) Conservation
- 3) Housing 4) Land Use
- 5) Noise

On Tuesday, the council voted unanimously to approve the updated plan. This was quite an accomplishment as over the years, there has been a great deal of controversy over the issues of Conservation, Housing and Land

Several public meetings and other outreach efforts were put forth in an effort to make the plan "the people's document".

ORDINANCE NO. 1366-U

AN URGENCY ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SIERRA MADRE, CALIFORNIA RESCINDING AN INTERIM MORATORIUM ORDINANCE PURSUANT TO GOVERNMENT CODE SECTION 65858 ON THE DEMOLITION, IN PART OR IN WHOLE, OF SINGLE-FAMILY HOMES AND DUPLEXES CONSTRUCTED PRIOR TO A DESIGNATED DATE

the City of Sierra Madre, which was incorporated over 107 years ago, is proud of its eclectic mix of residential architectural styles reflected in its existing neighborhoods, predominated by the natural terrain and mountain view, which lend to its character as the "village of the foothills;" and WHEREAS, this existing housing stock—some examples of which have been deemed a historic resource and many of which may be considered potential historic resources—help to create the identify and atmosphere of community, and the City actively encourages historic preservation through the use of Mills Act contracts; and WHEREAS, the historic and potentially historic quality and character of Sierra Madre's neighborhoods directly contributes to a healthy and safe life for residents, who walk, $congregate, play \ and \ want \ to \ live \ in \ neighborhoods \ that \ have \ character \ and \ history; \ and \ WHEREAS, \ given \ the \ concern$ that a development trend in the San Gabriel Valley of demolishing existing older homes, regardless of the homes potential historic value in favor of new construction which often does not reflect the character of the neighborhood or the community, on January 27, 2015, the City Council adopted Urgency Ordinance No. 1360-U, a temporary moratorium on demolition of residential structures, pursuant to the authority and procedures under Government Code Section 65858; and WHEREAS, on February 24, 2015, the City Council adopted Ordinance No. 1362-U, extending the demolition moratorium for an additional six months, until August 24, 2015,unless earlier rescinded; and WHEREAS, the City Council has updated the provisions of its development and zoning code to implement new zoning and development requirements and conditions of approval to enhance protection of its potential and historic resources, such as revisions to Chapter 17.82 regarding historic preservation and Chapter 15.04 regarding building code and permit requirements, thus accomplishing the purpose of the temporary moratorium on demolition; and WHEREAS, until the existing moratorium expires on August 24, 2015 or is rescinded earlier by action of the City Council, the new zoning and development requirements regulating demolition and construction of replacement structures cannot be uniformly

NOW THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SIERRA MADRE FURTHER FINDS that the purpose of the demolition moratorium has been accomplished through the adoption of revised development and zoning codes updating regulations for the demolition and construction of replacement structures and that it is necessary for the protection of the public safety, health and welfare to immediately rescind the existing demolition moratorium in order to enable the uniform use of the updated demolition and related regulations, in order to ensure well-planned development of properties in the City; and

THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SIERRA MADRE DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS

Section 1. Urgency Ordinance No. 1362-U Extending an Interim Moratorium Ordinance Pursuant to Government Code Section 65858 on the Demolition, in Part or in Whole, of Single-Family Homes and Duplexes Constructed Prior to a Designated Date and Declaring the Urgency Thereof is hereby rescinded in its entirety. CEQA Finding. The City Council hereby finds that it can be seen with certainty that there is no possibility the adoption of this Ordinance, and the decision to rescind the moratorium hereby, may have a significant effect on the environment, because the adopted development and zoning standards impose greater limitations on development in the City, and protect the aesthetic character of Sierra Madre, thereby serving to reduce potential significant adverse environmental impacts. The adoption of this ordinance is therefore exempt from California Environmental Quality Act review pursuant to Title 14, Section 15061(b)(3) of the California Code of Regulations. Severability. Should any provision of this Ordinance, or its application to any person, parcel or circumstance, be determined by a court of competent jurisdiction to be unlawful, unenforceable or otherwise void, that determination shall have no effect on any other provision of this Ordinance or the application of this Ordinance to any other person, parcel or circumstance and, to that end, the provisions hereof are severable.

Effective Date. This Ordinance is adopted by a 4/5 vote of the Sierra Madre City Council, shall Section 4. take effect immediately upon its adoption as provided by Government Code Section 36937 and 65858 $\underline{Certification.} \ \ The \ City \ Clerk \ shall \ certify \ to \ the \ passage \ and \ adoption \ of \ this \ Ordinance \ and \ shall$ Section 5. cause the same to be published or posted according to law

by Deanne Davis

Elaine Holmgren during Happy Hour at Sierra Madre's Kensington Senior Living.

"The society which scorns excellence in plumbing as a humble activity and tolerates shoddiness in philosophy because it is an exalted activity will have neither good plumbing nor good philosophy: neither its pipes nor its theories will hold water." John W. Gardner

"Plumbing is usually boring." Alex Berenson

Plumbing really is boring until something goes wrong with it. Then the last thing you need is a philosopher! You need a plumber and you need him right now! We have all had moments in our lives as homeowners when something plumbing related has gone seriously and/or dangerously awry. Recently, our kitchen sink backed up and refused to drain that nasty collection of egg shells, orange peels, and goodness (actually, goodness had nothing to do with it!) knows what else. I plunged and plunged but all it did was spit back at me...yes, I did plug the other sink... all to no avail. My plumbing expert, John, and I took a trip to OSH to buy Liquid Plumber's most lethal concoctions...a complete waste of about $15.00! Yes, I'd tried baking soda and vinegar. Nada! John took the elbow pipe off... let me just say it got uglier from there.

So, we called Mike. We've been calling Mike and his brother, Jim, for years for various projects, i.e., a new bathroom, redesign a closet, figure out why the downstairs shower didn't work, what was wrong with the main sprinkler valve, and now, the kitchen was totally out of order. Mike arrived, said the clog was in the wall between the sink on this side and the washing machine on that side, and, of course, almost impossible to get to. And ugly stuff!!! Oh my word! Our house was built in 1916 and what was clogging that pipe probably started building up then! OK, maybe not, but it was yucky and Mike fixed it all.

You're saying, "And we care, why?" OK, brace yourselves! And if the following awful story happens anywhere around your yard, be ready for pain in the pocketbook! We noticed the other day that we had this fabulous green patch in our otherwise dead backyard lawn. We thought about it sort of casually then really started to think about it! There should be no green! I stepped on it and it was like stepping into a marsh! We were horrified!

What did we do? We called Mike! He appeared late afternoon, dug a hole about 4' deep and 4' wide which exposed a broken galvanized pipe, probably installed a hundred years ago. He capped it so no more water was leaking out. Remember those pictures last week of the broken water main at Vermont and Melrose in Los Angeles? Ours wasn't quite that bad, but it was

Mike and his son, Matt, spent most of Saturday ligging trenches, through the rose bed, under a concrete walkway, and eventually all the way to the garage. A mile of PVC pipe and we're in business again. You're saying, "And we care, why?" Because, dear friends and neighbors, we have been bending over backwards to conserve water every way conceivable. Our showers are over in seconds, teeth are brushed dry, toilets... you know... if it's yellow... Watering is three minutes here and three minutes there and we're putting in more succulents. Just like you are. Then disaster strikes and we lose more water in a week than we've saved all year. Needless to say, we've lost our status as H20Heroes completely and will be viewing our next water bill with shock and

Have to end on a good note, though, and here it is... we got to attend Happy Hour at the Kensington last week to visit Elaine Holmgren, our son-in-law, Chuck's, mother. Elaine is a delightful woman of 94 who has done much in her lifetime and has great stories to tell of her grandparents, parents, and her own exciting and productive life. Happy Hour at the Kensington, btw, starts around 4:00. Great pianists played the baby grand on two different days, then a guitarist who sang. There was a warm feeling of conviviality and happiness as the residents and guests were served the cocktail of their choice and hors d'oeuvres. I know several Sierra Madreans who have family members there. I was going to put in a picture of our incredibly expensive broken pipe, but I think I'll put Elaine in instead! Lets all hope we look as great as she does when we're 94! Cheers!

CITY TO ENHANCE ANTI-SCAVENGING LAWS

By Dean Lee

The Pasadena city council is set to vote Monday night to enhance the city's antiscavenging ordinance to include special events and large venues, such as the Rose Parade, football games and concerts at the Rose Bowl. The item is on the council's regular meeting consent calendar,

They will also vote to clarify the definition of "scavenging" to include all material that is placed in residential or commercial city collection containers, including organic material.

According to a city staff report, The Rose Bowl's events are of special concern since, as the Rose Bowl's waste hauler, the city provides recycling services. The city proposes incorporating the State's definition of large venue. "Large venue" means a permanent venue facility that seats or serves an average of more than 2,000 individuals within the grounds of the facility per day of operation of the venue facility. For purposes of this chapter, a venue facility includes, but is not limited to a public, nonprofit, or privately owned or operated stadium, amphitheater, arena, hall, conference or civic center, performing arts center, museum, theater, or other public attraction facility.

Police will also issue tickets to drivers scavenging for materials or organized groups utilizing vehicles for large scale scavenging. Fines would start at $106 for the first offence.

If passed, the city attorney will draft the ordinance amendments within 60 days.

According to city staff, residents are also encouraged report instances of scavenging that they observe. The Department of Public Works and the Pasadena Police Department conduct focused enforcement of the antiscavenging Ordinance on a quarterly basis, concentrating on the residential curbside recycling program the staff

- The only clinical Good Manufacturing Process (cGMP) suite in an incubator facility anywhere in the world

These unique capabilities will serve as a major draw for life science startups from across the Southern California area and beyond, and could serve as a game-changing development in our efforts to bring to Monrovia high-growth / high-tech businesses that are set to thrive in the 21st Century.

The establishment of the incubator facility has involved coordination and support from a number of entities, including the team at LabLaunch Monrovia, Samuelson Fetter, and the City. As part of our discussions during the past several months, and in accordance with one of our key strategic goals, staff has had multiple discussions with LabLaunch Monrovia regarding the establishment of closer ties between the City and their operation. To that end, we have discussed the possibility of the City being provided with a seat on the LabLaunch Monrovia Board of Directors to ensure that the City's interests are well represented as the overall biotech / science / technology platform continues

Based on those discussions, LabLaunch Monrovia has expressed an interest in serving as a resource for professional development and career advancement for the Monrovia community. They have been working with staff on developing an overall dedicated Open Lab that could allow groups from local schools and youth organizations to learn skills in biological sciences far beyond what is generally available in formal secondary education. In addition, beginning in the Fall 2015, we have also discussed the possibility of establishing an overall internship program whereby a small number of exceptional year students could apply for internships at the facility to learn industry-relevant biology lab skills.

Additional information about LabLaunch Monrovia can be viewed on their website (http://lablaunch.org/) that is now up and running. Based on the development of the working relationship between the City and LabLaunch Monrovia, we plan on bringing forward an overall partnership proposal for City Council consideration at our next meeting on July 21, 2015. At that time, Dr. Llewellyn Cox, CEO of LabLaunch Monrovia, will also be giving a presentation about their overall plans at their incubator facility moving froward.

REMEMBERING ZEKE

By Joan Schmidt

Last November Bob and I attended the Retirement Party for Monrovia Police Lieutenant Zeke Cerecerez. I wrote a column, marveling at his accomplishments-besides close to thirty years in law enforcement, he had been a Navy Seal, a stint in the Army, a psychology degree, drill instructor at Rio Hondo Academy, and Desert Storm.

Last week, prior to Supervisor Antonovich's Meeting with the City of Monrovia, Police Chief Jim Hunt gave me very sad news-Zeke had passed away suddenly the day before. How could this be possible? Chief Hunt said Zeke was the most physically fit of all the MPD personnel. At Zeke's Eulogy, he told of a special Training Class, doing pushups wearing 50 pounds of gear. Officers half his age could barely do the minimum; Zeke surpassed them by twice the spoke of what a great father he was. Tuesday was the funeral service-a beautiful Mass at Saint Peter and Saint Paul in Alta Loma. All of Monrovia PD personnel attended because Arcadia PD covered for MPD. Great camaraderie exists among law enforcement at sad times. (Irwindale POA did the beautiful monument of Live Oak Ave.) Among the beautiful floral arrangements for Zeke was one from Arcadia POA.

I could fill ten pages telling about this extraordinary man who I knew 25+ years, but I will just explain how he was remembered.

An Honor Guard extended down the steps of the Church onto the sidewalk quite a distance, including all of Monrovia PD personnel, as well as representatives from Arcadia, Azusa, Fontana, El Monte, Monterey Park, South Pasadena, and LA County, San Bernardino County, Tulare County Sheriff's Departments, California Highway Patrol, the Army Reserve, Coast Guard, Navy, and Veterans Groups. (I apologize for any group I

The Mass was beautiful-Father Patrick Kirsch officiated. Police Chief Jim Hunt eulogized Zeke, tracing his career through the ranks doing everything-bike patrol, patrol officer, K-9 handler, detective, sergeant and retired as a Lieutenant. He was part of their SWAT Team and SET, both as an officer and sergeant. Zeke and the Chief worked patrol many hours. Zeke spoke of Ava and his sons-he was so proud of them. He loved his family, God and his country. Chief also spoke of how conscientious Zeke was. Officer Glenn Coleman asked Zeke to be his mentor when Glenn was taking a special course. Zeke actually attended all classes although he wasn't getting credit just to help Glenn.

At his retirement party, Zeke told us that he wouldn't be where he was or able to accomplish what he did if it weren't for the love and support of his devoted wife Ava and their sons. None of us can imagine their grief.

At the Church, I saw many retired Monrovia PD Captain Don Lacher, Lieutenant Rick Miglia, Detective Carlos Calderon, Officers Stacey Henry, Dottie Pershey, Bill Couch, and Chris Rawlings- to name a few.

I also need to mention Retired Chief Bill and Darlene Tubbs, Tom Wright and Phil Nelson. Distance prevented their attendance but Ava and the entire Cerecerez family were in their thoughts and prayers.

After the funeral Mass, a Police Motorcade led the procession to Riverside National Cemetery, where Zeke was laid to rest with full military honors.

Father Kirsch said it best, though Zeke lived only 63 years, he packed so much in that short time...and the greater the love, the greater the pain. RIP Zeke-you were greatly loved and admired; you will be greatly

GOVERNOR SIGNS GATTO'S BILL GRANTING CHILDREN ACCESS TO AILING PARENTS

Legislation inspired by Kerri Kasem, daughter of radio personality Casey Kasem, who was denied visitation rights to her now deceased father.

SACRAMENTO, CA – Today, Assemblyman Mike Gatto's (D-Glendale) legislation to provide access for adult children who wish to visit an ailing parent was signed into law by Governor Brown, culminating almost two-year's worth of work on this issue. The legislation, AB 1085, will provide legal recourse for children who are denied access to a parent, by their parent's current spouse or another family member.

With divorce and remarriage common, there is a possibility of conflict between a subsequent spouse and a child from an ailing parent's previous marriage. Current law provides no remedial mechanism for children or relatives to petition a court for visitation.

"Conflict among family members is the last thing our loved ones want to see as they approach their final hours," said Gatto. "I hope this bill will help decrease the heartache and stress of families already facing difficult circumstances."

AB 1085 would give judges authority to direct, or grant, a conservator the power to enforce senior's right to receive visitors, telephone calls, and personal mail. This will be an important mechanism for families attempting to connect with elders for what is often the last time. The measure also will require caretakers to give notice of an elder's death to certain family members.

Assemblyman Gatto developed the legislation with several adult children who have been denied access to their ailing parents, including radio and television personality Kerri Kasem, current co-host of the "Protect Your Family" and "Gurvey's Law" talk shows on KABC Radio. Kerri is an outspoken advocate of visitation rights for adult children as a result of her struggle to see her beloved father, broadcasting legend Casey Kasem, who struggled with poor health before his passing last year. After sharing her struggle to see her father on various media outlets, Kerri and Assemblyman Gatto received thousands of communications from across the country of similar stories of heartache. Recently, FoxNews.com reported about how other states are following Assemblyman Gatto's footsteps on this legislation. "AB 1085 will provide hope to families experiencing isolation of a loved one by giving the court a way to provide visitation," said Kasem. "I want to thank Assemblyman Gatto, and the Kasem Cares team that worked closely with him, for bringing more awareness to the issue of elder abuse through the passage of this important legislation."

Mike Gatto is the Chairman of the Consumer Protection and Privacy Committee, and the longest-serving current member of the State Assembly. He represents California's 43rd Assembly District, which includes Burbank, Glendale, La Cañada Flintridge, La Crescenta, Montrose, and the Los Angeles neighborhoods of Atwater Village, East Hollywood, Franklin Hills, Hollywood Hills, Los Feliz, and Silver Lake. www.asm.ca.gov/gatto

ASPEN FOODS RECALLS FROZEN, RAW, STUFFED & BREADED CHICKEN PRODUCTS DUE TO POSSIBLE SALMONELLA ENTERITIDIS CONTAMINATION

WASHINGTON, July 15, 2015 – Aspen Foods, A Division of Koch Poultry Company, a Chicago, Ill. establishment, is recalling approximately 1,978,680 pounds of frozen, raw, stuffed and breaded chicken product that may be contaminated with Salmonella Enteritidis, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) announced today.

The frozen, raw, stuffed and breaded chicken items were produced between April 15, 2015 and July 10, 2015 with "best if used by" dates between July 14, 2016 and October 10, 2016. To view a full list of recalled products, please click here (XLS). The brands associated with this recall include:

Acclaim Antioch Farms Buckley Farms Centrella Signature Chestnut Farms Family Favorites Kirkwood Koch Foods Market Day Oven Cravers Rose Rosebud Farm Roundy's Safeway Kitchens Schwan's Shaner's Spartan

Sysco
The product subject to recall bears the establishment number "P-1358" inside the USDA mark of inspection. This product was shipped to retail stores and food service locations nationwide.

FSIS was notified of a cluster of Salmonella Enteritidis illnesses on June 23, 2015. Working in conjunction with Minnesota State Departments of Health and Agriculture, FSIS determined that there is a link between the frozen, raw, stuffed and breaded chicken products from Aspen Foods and this illness cluster. Based on epidemiological evidence and traceback investigations, three case-patients have been identified in Minnesota with illness onset dates ranging from May 9, 2015 to June 8, 2015. FSIS continues to work with the Minnesota Departments of Health and Agriculture as well as the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention on this Consumption of food contaminated with Salmonella can cause salmonellosis, one of the most common bacterial foodborne illnesses. The most common symptoms of salmonellosis are diarrhea, abdominal cramps, and fever within 12 to 72 hours after exposure to the organism. The illness usually lasts 4 to 7 days. Most people recover without treatment. In some persons, however, the diarrhea may be so severe that the patient needs to be hospitalized. Older adults, infants, and persons with weakened immune systems are more likely to develop a severe illness. Individuals concerned about an illness should contact their health care provider.

FSIS and the company are concerned that some product may be in consumers' freezers. Although the product subject to recall may appear to be cooked, this product is in fact uncooked (raw) and should be handled carefully to avoid cross-contamination in the kitchen. Particular attention needs to be paid to safely prepare and cook these raw poultry products to a temperature of 165° F checking at the center, the thickest part and the surface of the product.

This frozen, raw, stuffed and breaded chicken product was labeled with instructions identifying that the product was raw and included cooking instructions for preparation. Some case-patients reported following the cooking instructions on the label and using a food thermometer to confirm that the recommended temperature was

INTELLIGENCE COMMITTEE RANKING MEMBER SCHIFF STATEMENT ON NUCLEAR AGREEMENT WITH IRAN

Washington, DC – Today, Rep. Adam Schiff (D-Burbank), the Ranking Member of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, released the following statement:

"Throughout the long standoff with Iran over its nuclear program, I have expressed my preference for a diplomatic solution that would prevent Tehran from obtaining a nuclear weapon. To accomplish this, I have supported a series of ever tightening American sanctions and efforts to rally the international community to isolate Iran, raising the costs of Iran's enrichment program and helping to dry up a portion of the funding Iran has used to carry out its nefarious conduct in the region and beyond.

"In the coming days I will be examining the terms of the agreement hammered out by Secretary Of State John Kerry and his team, with particular attention to the verification regime that is central to ensuring that Iran cannot cheat. Whether I can support the agreement will hinge on our ability to verify that Iran is complying, and whether we have timely access to any site of Iran's potential nuclear development activities, including venues controlled by the Iranian military. It will also be necessary for the United States and our partners to get an accurate accounting of Tehran's nuclear program from its inception. Additionally, I will be looking at the sequencing of Iranian actions and any loosening of sanctions and the mechanism for re-imposing them -- the so-called 'snap back' provisions -- should Tehran fail to meet its commitments.

"The nuclear program has always been the greatest threat from Iran, but not the only one, and I also remain deeply concerned about Tehran's actions in the region -- from its efforts to dominate Iraq and Lebanon, to prop up the Assad regime in Syria, to back the Houthi rebels in Yemen, to its unrelenting hostility to Israel and its support of terror around the world. I will also be examining any relaxation of UN sanctions on Iran's acquisition of weapons or missile technology.

"Given Iran's long record of duplicity and the consequence of Iran's getting a bomb or having a greater economic power to project its destructive influence, we cannot be too careful, nor can we afford to take Tehran at its word.

"As the terms and consequences of this agreement become clear during the period of Congressional review, I would urge my colleagues to give the measure the serious thought it deserves. If the agreement is flawed it should be rejected; at the same time, we must not compare the proposal to an ideal, but rather to any credible alternative. Will rejection of the deal lead to additional sanctions and an Iran willing to concede more, or to renewed enrichment and a path to war? These are the stakes and our decision should be made with sober thought and a minimum of partisan demagoguery."

achieved. Therefore, FSIS advises all consumers to treat this product like a raw chicken product. Hands and any surfaces, including surfaces that may have breading dislodged from the product, should be cleaned after contact with this raw product. PASADENA CHAMBER CROWDFUNDS TO RAISE MONEY FOR STIPENDS FOR SUMMER YOUTH INTERNS

Go Fund Me campaign will support provide funding for 50 or more summer interns placed with local businesses by the Pasadena Chamber Pasadena, CA – In partnership with the Pasadena Unified School District office of College and Career Pathways, the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce placed fifty (50) student interns with local businesses this summer. When a promise of funding to support stipends for each of the students did not materialize, the Chamber chose to utilize crowdfunding through Go Fund Me to solicit financial support for the student interns. Through www.gofundme. com/pasadenayouthworks the Chamber is hoping to raise at least $10,000 or more to provide a small stipend for the 50 students placed through the effort.

Student interns are not employees. Internships are a way for young people to become acquainted with the work environment and learn about potential careers they may want to pursue once they leave school. Stipends re not salaries or pay for work, but rather a reward for completing the program, which includes classroom instruction with PUSD, supervised placements with local businesses and follow up with Chamber and PUSD staff.

All of the students are enrolled in Pasadena Unified School District and will be high school seniors next year.

"We had hoped to secure financial support through the Human Services and Recreation Department at the City of Pasadena, but couldn't get over some procedural hurdles," said Pasadena Chamber CEO Paul Little. "We wanted to provide some measure of support for the students and thought appealing to the community for help through Go Fund Me would be a way to fund modest stipends for these industrious students."

The public can help provide that support for our local students by donating as little or as much as you can. Donations are tax-deductible. Donations can be made through the website at www.gofundme.com/pasadenayouthworks. Donations can be as small or as large as the donor chooses.

"We are seeking at least $10,000 to provide a small stipend for each of our student interns," said Mr. Little. "Though we have many more deserving students and will distribute all the money raised to student interns. The effort is being led by a PUSD intern in our offices."

Interns are spending the summer learning about our hospitality industry, law and government, health careers, public service, restaurant, business and much more.

The public is invited to support these students in their efforts and provide funding to modestly reward these deserving young people for their dedication and industriousness during the summer. 100% of funds received by the Chamber will be used to fund stipends for these students.

Everyone who donates will be recognized and thanked publicly.

The Pasadena Chamber of Commerce and Civic Association is a professional business organization. Since the earliest days of Pasadena, the Chamber has played a major role in the development of this internationally renowned city. Since 1888, when the organization was founded as the Board of Trade, the Chamber's primary purpose has been the enhancement of both the business climate and the quality of life in Pasadena. The Pasadena Chamber of Commerce serves more than 1400 members.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show MINIONS REVIEW

The Minions themselves are extremely popular characters, always being the center of attention when being talked about. Both kids and adults love the small yellow creatures, and the idea of them having their own movie has interested all of their fans. Are the Minions just as interesting without Gru (Steve Carell) or can they not survive alone in a movie?

For a long time, the Minions have lived on our planet and sought to server the most evil masters on the planet; but when, after a while, they cannot replace a master, three of the Minions (Kevin, Stuart, and Bob) go on a quest to find the most evil super-villain to serve so they can save their species.

'Minions' is very quirky, strange, and funny. Made primarily in France, many of its European roots show throughout the film, making the humor of the film slightly different than you may have seen before. The Minions themselves are still their usual cute, funny selves, and their stand-alone film offers many laughs that all ages can enjoy.

"Summertime, and the living is easy." Well, maybe. Depending on your geographic location the dog days of summer are now upon you. Summer wines are defined as light, crispy, and fruitful, and generally lower in alcohol. How about a chardonnay (shar-don-ay)? Many vineyard acres in California mer wines are defined as light, crispy, and fruitful, and generally lower in alcohol. How about a chardonnay (shar-don-ay)? Many vineyard acres in California dedicate their dirt to the chardonnay grape, and for good reason. The grape is used not only for chardonnay wine, but for California sparklers as well.

A few months ago I mentioned Susan Lueker and Megan Schofield of Simi Winery as being two of a handful of female wine makers. That trend continues at Wild Horse where the director of winemaking is Chrissy Whittmann. Bravo ladies! What do we look for when purchasing a chardonnay? A few years back the term "buttery" was popular, then "oakey" took the stage. I look for how the chardonnay tastes at room temperature, and since it is July, how does it do when chilled, and of course, the price. The central coast, as represented by this Wild Horse chardonnay, passes on both fronts. You'll get more flavor from a below room temperature glass, but if you need to chill your wine the flavors of the fruit are still prominent. My suggestion is this, if you are drinking it just below room temperature, go with some summer fruit as a pairing -- watermelon, peaches, or a handful of cherries. You prefer it cold? Then have it with a nice hot pizza or grilled shrimp. The price is right, and many stores offer discounts for case purchases.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

DOG DAYS OF SUMMER

Have you ever heard the phrase, "Dog days of The Hottest Days? summer" used to describe an extremely hot summer day, or perhaps a lazy day in the life of a vacationing student? Well, here's an article by Becky Little on the National Geographic website, that explains the origin of the phrase and why neither of those meanings actually pertain.

Why do we call them the 'Dog Days' of Summer? The "dog days" I always thought, were those summer days so devastatingly hot that even dogs would lie around on the asphalt, panting.

Many people today use the phrase to mean something like that-but originally the phrase actually had nothing to do with dogs, or even with the lazy days of summer. Instead, it turns out, position in the heavens.

To the Greeks and Romans, the "dog days" occurred around the day when Sirius appeared to rise just before the sun, in late July. They referred to these days as the hottest time of the year, a period that could bring fever, or even catastrophe.

"If you go back even as far as Homer, the Iliad, it's referring to Sirius as Orion's dog rising, and it describes the star as being associated with war and disaster," said Jay B. Holberg, author of Sirius: Brightest Diamond in the Night Sky and senior research scientist at the University of Arizona Lunar & Planetary Laboratory. "All throughout Greek and Roman years, the sky shifts about one degree." literature, you found these things."

The phrase "dog days" was translated from Latin to English about 500 years ago. Since then, it has taken on new meaning.

'Now people come up with other explanations Curzan, an English professor at the University of Michigan.

"This is a very human tendency," she said. When we don't know the origin of a phrase, we come up with a plausible explanation. "The meaning has been lost," said Holberg, "but the phrase has lived on."

So, did the Greeks get it right? Are the dog days, around when Sirius rises, really the hottest days of the year? Well, no.

Although July and August are generally known as the hottest months of the year in the Northern Hemisphere, the hottest period can vary from vear to year. And depending on your latitude, the astronomical dog days can come at different times. In Athens, for instance, Sirius will rise around the middle of August this year. But, farther south, it'll happen earlier in the year; farther north, it'll happen later.

There's another reason that the dog days don't the dog days refer to the dog star, Sirius, and its correspond neatly with the heat: the stars in CAMIS MAJOR AND LEPUS.

Earth's night sky shift independently of our calendar seasons.

"Our Earth is like a spinning top," said Bradley Schaefer, professor of physics and astronomy Louisiana State University. you toss it onto a table, after it slows down...the pointing direction of the top will slowly go around in circles." Similarly to a top, "the Earth's rotation is kind of wobbling around."

The calendar is fixed according to certain events, but the start have shifted according to the way that the Earth wobbles," said Larry Ciupik, astronomer at Adler Planetarium and director of the Doan Observatory. "So in about 50-some

This means that the dog days of ancient Greece aren't the dog days of today. What is also means is that several millennia from now, this astrological event won't even occur during the summer.

"In 26,000 years, the dog days would completely for why they're called the 'dog days' of summer, move all around the sky'. said Schaefer. "Roughly [like] this is when dogs can go crazy." said Anne 13,000 years from now, Sirius will be rising with the sun in mid-winter." Ah yes, the dog days of winter. When it's so cold that even the dogs lie around the fire, trying to stay warm.

Ballard's words are wistful alongside a breezy melody while shimmery details invite us to imagine a moment in slow motion, or from different viewpoints, rewinding and unwinding the dream muddled by other little delusions. Citing a definite 1970s influence, "Holding On" feels like it's gliding on air. "A Part Of Me" is breathtakingly beautiful. It's one of those rare songs that will rattle your bones for and stir your soul. While summer time is usually the a time for poppy jams, "The Thief Who Knows sum My Name" explores deeper themes and as you of 2015. On the Marquee: Notes from the Sierra MadrePlayhouse

AN ACTING FAMILY

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano

Last night was another busy night for the Playhouse. We had final callbacks for Deathtrap at the same location in which Always...Patsy Cline is rehearsing. We had a wonderful response to our call for submissions from actors for this show. As you'll see when Deathtrap opens on October 2, it is a really fun show filled with all kinds of stuff that is appealing to the "playing makebelieve" aspect of acting - deaths, and guns, and scare-inducing moments, and great laughs. We have put together a wonderful cast for this show – with two SMP veteran actors returning to work with us again: Don Savage (who first worked at the Playhouse in 1984 and was most recently in To Kill a Mockingbird, Our Town, and Morning's at Seven) will play the attorney, Porter, and Lynn Ann Leveridge (Our Town) will play Helga, the psychic.

Once a show has been cast everything moves into a higher gear. For month's now, I've been thinking about this play, imagining how scenes would be played, planning the setting, the music, the effects I want to build, and now I have faces and personalities to add to the mix. Each of these very talented actors will bring with them their own ideas and together we will build our production of Deathtrap. It's as if I get to cast the members of my family. We'll start working on the play with a "Meet & Greet" on August 10 and then we'll have eight weeks together before we open on October 2. That's two months of being in each other's lives - sharing all the ups and downs of our lives while working on the lives of the characters in the play. Then after opening, the actors will be together another six weeks. It's a commitment, and it does create a "family."

That's the funny thing about acting – you create this "family" and share a very intense experience for a few months and then it ends and you rarely see the actors you've become so close to again. When I was a young actor, I swore that I would stay in touch with each cast, but I quickly learned that rarely happens. Sometimes friendships are formed that go beyond the bounds of the run, but more often life intervenes, the next project starts, and a new "family" is formed. One of my earlier essays referred to the "ephemeral now" and that applies to many of the relationships you form in theater. In some ways that makes them sweeter and more special.

It's an odd calling, acting.

While we were doing our final auditions, I could hear the singing coming from the rehearsal room down the hall. Cori Cable Kidder who is playing Patsy will knock your socks off. She has a remarkable voice and the work she has done with our Music Director, Sean Paxton, has made her sound so like Patsy Cline that it is a real treat to hear. What's wonderful is that as much as she sounds like Patsy you still get Cori – our Director, Robert Marra has been so clear that he didn't want a carbon copy, that he wanted Cori to bring her sensibilities to the role as well. I'm so very excited about this production. Tickets are selling well don't miss out, buy yours now! The show opens July 31. Remember we give 20% discounts for groups of 10 or more who purchase their tickets ahead of their attendance date. Please call Mary Baville at 626.355.4318 to arrange your purchase.

THE BILLION DOLLAR SPY: A TRUE STORY OF COLD WAR ESPIONAGE AND BETRAYAL

by David E. Hoffman

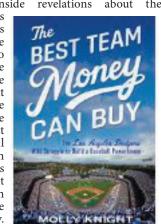

From the author of the Pulitzer Prize-winning history The Dead Hand comes the riveting story of a spy who cracked open the Soviet military research establishment and a penetrating portrait of the CIA's Moscow station, an outpost of daring espionage in the last years of the Cold War. While driving out of the American embassy in Moscow on the evening of February 16, 1978, the chief of the CIA's Moscow station heard a knock on his car window. A man on the curb handed him an envelope whose contents stunned U.S. intelligence: details of top-secret Soviet research and developments in military technology that were totally unknown to the United States. In the years that followed, the man, Adolf Tolkachev, an engineer in a Soviet military design bureau, used his high-level access to hand over tens of thousands of pages of technical secrets. His revelations allowed America to reshape its weapons systems to defeat Soviet radar on the ground and in the air, giving the United States near total superiority in the skies over Europe. Tolkachev was one of the most valuable spies to work for the United States in the four decades of global confrontation with the Soviet Union. The CIA had long struggled to recruit and run agents in Moscow, and Tolkachev was a singular breakthrough. Using spy cameras and secret codes as well as face-to-face meetings in parks and on street corners, Tolkachev and his handlers succeeded for years in eluding the feared KGB in its own backyard, until the day came when a shocking betrayal put them all at risk. Drawing on previously secret documents obtained from the CIA and on interviews with participants, David Hoffman has created an unprecedented and poignant portrait of Tolkachev, a man motivated by the depredations of the Soviet state to master the craft of spying against his own country.

THE BEST TEAM MONEY CAN BUY: THE LOS ANGELES DODGERS' WILD STRUGGLE TO BUILD A BASEBALL POWERHOUSE

by Molly Knight

News-making, inside revelations about the years tumultuous when the Los Angeles Dodgers were remade from top to bottom—from the ownership of the team to management to the players on the field—becoming the most talked-about and most colorful team in baseball. In 2012 the Los Angeles Dodgers were bought out of bankruptcy in the most expensive sale in sports history. Los Angeles icon Magic Johnson and his partners hoped to put together a team worthy of Hollywood: consistently entertaining. By most accounts they have succeeded, if not always in the way they might have imagined. Now Molly Knight tells the story of the Dodgers' 2013 and 2014 seasons with detailed, previously unreported revelations. She shares a behind-the-scenes account of the astonishing sale of the Dodgers, and why the team was not overpriced, as well as what the Dodgers actually knew in advance about rookie phenom and Cuban defector Yasiel Puig and how they and teammates handled him during his first two roller-coaster seasons. We learn how close manager Don Mattingly was to losing his job during the 2013 season—and how the team turned around the season in the most remarkable fifty-game stretch (42-8) of any team since World War II. Knight also provides a rare glimpse into the infighting and mistrust that derailed the team in 2014, and resulted in ridding the roster of difficult personalities and the hiring of a new front office. Knight also reveals new facts behind the blockbuster trade with the Red Sox. She paints an intimate portrait of star pitcher Clayton Kershaw, probably the best pitcher in the game today.

HOW TO PROTECT YOUR EYES FROM MACULAR DEGENERATION

Dear Savvy Senior,

Is macular degeneration hereditary? My mother lost her vision from it before she died a few years ago, and now at age 65, I'm worried I may get it. What can you tell me?

Nearsighted Susan

Having a parent or sibling with macular degeneration does indeed increase your risk three to four times. But the good news is there are things you can do to protect your eyesight, and a number of treatments that are available if you do happen to progress. get it. Here's what you should know.

What is AMD?

Macular degeneration, also known as age-related macular degeneration (or AMD) is the most common cause of vision loss in people over age 50, affecting about 10 million Americans.

AMD is a progressive eye disease that damages the macula, the part of the eye that allows us to see objects clearly, causing vision loss in the center of your vision. This affects the ability to read, drive, watch television and do routine daily tasks, but it does not cause total blindness.

There are two types of AMD – wet and dry. Dry AMD, which affects about 90 percent of all people that have it, progresses slowly and painlessly over a period of years. While wet AMD is much more aggressive and can cause severe vision loss in a matter of weeks or months.

Factors that can increase your risk of getting AMD include age (60 and older); smoking; excessive exposure to sunlight especially if you have lightcolored eyes; certain genetic components; a family history of AMD; high blood pressure; obesity; and being Caucasian.

For anyone over the age of 60, it's a smart idea to get your eyes examined by an ophthalmologist every year. They can spot early signs of AMD before vision loss occurs. Early signs, however, may include shadowy areas in your central vision or unusually fuzzy or distorted vision. The Amsler grid at amslergrid.org, is a good tool to check your eyes for AMD.

Preventing AMD

some things you can do if you're high risk. One option is to talk to your doctor about taking a daily dose of antioxidant vitamins and minerals known as AREDS - vitamins C and E, plus copper, lutein, eaxanthin, and zinc. Studies by the National Eye Institute have shown that ARÉDS can reduce the risk by about 25 percent that dry AMD will

Most drug stores sell these eye supplements in tablet or soft gel form over-the-counter for around $20 to $30, but be aware that not all eye supplements contain the proper formulation. Choose either the PreserVision Eye Vitamin AREDS Formula, PreserVision Eye Vitamin Lutein Formula, PreserVision AREDS2 Formula, or ICAPS AREDS. These four options contain the right formula mix.

Other lifestyle adjustments that may help prevent or delay AMD include eating antioxidant-rich foods such as dark green, leafy vegetables, and cold-water fish for their omega-3 fatty acids; protecting your eyes from the sun by wearing UV protective sunglasses; controlling high blood pressure; exercising regularly; and if you smoke,

Wet AMD Treatments

For wet AMD, there are several effective medications (Lucentis, Avastin and Eylea) available that can stop vision loss and may even restore it. These medications are given by injection into the eye, and repeated every month or two, perhaps indefinitely.

Note that each of these three drugs works equally in treating wet AMD, but there's a big cost difference. Avastin costs just $50 per month, compared with $2,000 for the other two. So experts recommend Avastin as the first choice for most people with wet AMD, especially if you don't have supplemental Medicare coverage.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior. While there's currently no cure for AMD there are org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

These were my thoughts when I embarked on my shorthand journey. Not all shorthand systems are created equal, which I quickly figured out when trying to decide which to study. Some systems are easier to learn than others, promising proficiency in a matter of weeks or months, while others take many months, possibly even years, to master. The tradeoff is that some of the simpler systems aren't likely to yield as high a rate of speed as more sophisticated ones. I mean, why settle for 80 words a minute when you could do 300?

After finally settling on classic Gregg Shorthand, the next step was to find a manual or tutor. There are some YouTube tutorials, but, as you can imagine, people who are immersed in something as antiquated as shorthand are usually just about as antiquated themselves when it comes to using modern technology in order to teach it. I watched several sessions by a couple of instructors, and much of the time was taken up with comments like "Is this thing on?" and "I'm learning how to use this new mouse to draw the forms, so bear with me." Eventually I ordered a vintage 1929 "Gregg Shorthand Anniversary Edition" from Amazon.

If you without actually recording them (e.g., meetings, have any doubts as to my deplorable spelling skills, check out my article from last week about etc.). The script itself looks like code, so knowing a friend's pet Chiwawa.) So, phonetically, "hour" sounds (and therefore looks) the same as "our." That's reasonable enough I supposed. Similar sounds are often formed in a similar way, differing only by length or size. So "m" is the same as "n," only longer, likewise "t" and "d." Many commonly used words are abbreviated, resulting in "good" looking just like "go," in addition to "be," "by," and "but" all written identical. To further muddy the water, vowels are often dropped, and there is no indication of where similar looking consonants start or stop. Since "m" and "n" are virtually the same, "minimum" looks like two long strings of 'm" and "n" sounds with a vowel in the middle. "Okay," I thought, "I can use the context of the sentence to figure it out."

It's all well and good to assume that a particular sentence is about the "rate of grain sold" if you correctly interpreted the preceding sentences as being about buying and selling in the stock market. But taken by itself, I might mistake it for telling about a "rat in the green salad!" (I don't remember the exact examples I ran across during my shorthand folly, but you get the idea.) Admittedly, I haven't invested enough time and effort in this endeavor yet, but until I find another good supplemental resource for learning "Great!" I thought, "Now all my shorthand issues shorthand, I think I'll stick to punch needle for

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

IF YOU HAVE A TRUST, DON'T SETTLE FOR A FALSE SENSE OF SECURITY - PART I

It is estimated that more than 80 % of trusts fail a shameful statistic. Think about it. Out of every five people who put the time, effort, and money into creating a trust, only one of them actually protects and provides for their family as they intended. That means the vast majority of people with a trust have nothing more than a false sense of security while they are living and leave their family with a big mess to clean up after they die. There are three equally important phases to trustmaking. Neglect any of these phases and your trust is likely to fail. Phase 1 is the actual creation of your estate plan documents. This includes not only the trust, but many other critical documents as well (your will, powers of attorney, healthcare much at stake and your family has too much to directives, HIPAA waiver, kids protection plan, etc.). Each of these documents should be customized to your own specific situation, goals, and assets. Remember, your family is unique and your estate plan should be, too.

The courts are filled with cases where simple, fill-in-the-blank, template wills or trusts, downloaded from the internet, led to family disputes, ugly probates, expensive litigation, and hundreds of thousands of dollars (or more) in lost inheritance for intended beneficiaries. The recent family quarrel over an "E-Z Legal Form" estate plan serves as one such cautionary tale. But all one really has to do with such services is read the fine print, such as the Legalzoom disclaimer, A local attorney, father, and CASA volunteer to be very clear they're just selling documents, without any legal guidance, advice, direction, or guarantee about what they mean or whether they'll even work.

Unfortunately, people who get sold on saving a few thousand dollars now by doing it themselves, often force their families to hand over tens of security for your family by calling 626.355.4000 or thousands of dollars to lawyers later, to straighten visit www.GarlettLaw.com for more information.

out the mess they've left behind. Of course many times those messes cannot be straightened out at all. But it's not just online legal services selling a false sense of security. I've also heard far too many stories of cut-rate, cheaper-than-anyoneelse lawyers whose plans don't work when they're needed. And yet again, it's families who are left holding the bag.

This should all be malpractice, if you ask me. Regrettably, it's common practice instead. So what can you do to protect yourself - and more importantly, protect your family? Here's how NOT to get sold a false sense of security:

- If the lawyer or service you're using to prepare your estate plan doesn't first spend some serious time asking you questions, getting to know you, your background, and your goals, they are much more interested in selling you a set of documents than a plan that will actually work. And if they quote you a fee before getting to know you first, that's a good indication they are never going to invest their time in you.

- Ask the lawyer or service if they are available to provide guidance and answer questions throughout the process. If they answer is no, move on. If the answer is yes, ask them how much they charge for that. If it's not included as part of a flat fee, they are clearly more concerned about at the trustor's death. EIGHTY PERCENT! What selling documents than they are about providing good legal counsel.

- Determine if the plan fee is too good to be true. If the lawyer or service undersells everyone else, that's a big red flag. It takes a lot of work and time to customize a plan for someone so it is guaranteed to perform as intended. Cut-rate firms and services work on a volume based business model. Their goal is to sell you a set of documents with the smallest time investment possible, then

You can, and should, strive to do better than that. Don't settle for a lawyer or service who's just in the business of selling documents. There's too lose. The documents are critically important but they should not be the sole focus of the lawyer or service you work with. The documents alone won't give you real security - the kind of security both you and your family deserve.

To your family's health, wealth, and happiness,

NASA'S NEW HORIZONS 'PHONES HOME' SAFE AFTER PLUTO FLYBY

The call everyone was waiting for is in. NASA's New Horizons spacecraft phoned home just before 9 p.m. EDT Tuesday, July 14, to tell the mission team and the world it had accomplished the historic first-ever flyby of Pluto.

"I know today we've inspired a whole new generation of explorers with this great success, and we look forward to the discoveries yet to come," NASA Administrator Charles Bolden said. "This is a historic win for science and for exploration. We've truly, once again raised the bar of human potential."

The preprogrammed "phone call"—a 15-minute series of status messages beamed back to mission operations at the Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory in Maryland through NASA's Deep Space Network—ended a very suspenseful 21-hour waiting period. New Horizons had been instructed to spend the day gathering the maximum amount of data, and not communicating with Earth until it was beyond the Pluto system.

Pluto is the first Kuiper Belt object visited by a mission from Earth. New Horizons will continue on its adventure deeper into the Kuiper Belt, where thousands of objects hold frozen clues as to how the solar system formed.

New Horizons is collecting so much data it will take 16 months to send it all back to Earth.

PLUTO'S ICY MOUNTAINS. New close-up images of a region near Pluto's equator reveal a giant surprise: a range of youthful mountains rising as high as 11,000 feet above the surface of the icy body.

The mountains likely formed no more than 100 million years ago—mere youngsters relative to the 4.56-billion-year age of the solar system—and may still be in the process of building, says Jeff Moore of New Horizons' Geology, Geophysics and Imaging Team (GGI). That suggests the close-up region, which covers less than one percent of Pluto's surface, may still be geologically active today.

Moore and his colleagues base the youthful age estimate on the lack of craters in this scene. Like the rest of Pluto, this region would presumably have been pummeled by space debris for billions of years and would have once been heavily cratered—unless recent activity had given the region a facelift, erasing those

"This is one of the youngest surfaces we've ever seen in the solar system," says Moore.

Unlike the icy moons of giant planets, Pluto cannot be heated by gravitational interactions with a much larger planetary body. Some other process must be generating the mountainous landscape. The mountains are probably composed of Pluto's water-ice "bedrock."

Although methane and nitrogen ice covers much of the surface of Pluto, these materials are not strong enough to build the mountains. Instead, a stiffer material, most likely water-ice, created the peaks. "At Pluto's temperatures, water-ice behaves more like rock," said deputy GGI lead Bill McKinnon of Washington University, St. Louis.

The close-up image was taken about 1.5 hours before New Horizons closest approach to Pluto, when the craft was 478,000 miles from the surface of the planet. The image easily resolves structures smaller than a

FORAGING FOR GINKGO (GINKGO BILOBA)

How to use the nuts and leaves of this "living fossil"

By Christopher Nyerges [Nyerges is the author of the California," "Foraging California," "Guide to Wild Foods," "How to Survive Anywhere," and other books.

He leads wild food and natural history walks on a regular basis. Contact him at www.SchoolofSelf-Reliance.com, or Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041]

My latest book, "Nuts and Berries of California," is mostly about the wild nuts and berries that Native Americans used for subsistence all throughout this large state of ours. But because there are so many introduced plants in our urban areas, I included a short section in the book describing those ornamentals which are also useful for food or medicine. That section is called HIPs, for "horticulturally introduced plants." I only included have also survived well on their own, even in the wild. The Ginkgo tree is one of those HIP plants.

those plants in that section which

Botanists believed that the Ginkgo biloba tree was extinct, but then it was found in a Chinese Buddhist monastery in the 1700s, where specimens were being cultivated.

Once it was rediscovered, ginkgo has been cultivated and spread all over the world as an ornamental and street tree. It is popular because of its unique appearance, and its relative resistance to insects and disease. To Buddhists, the tree is regarded as sacred.

In Japan, and other parts of Asia, the processed nuts are added to rice and stir fry dishes. The nuts are high in protein and low in fat. The medicinal properties of the nuts, which you get by eating them, are said to include the release of stress and hypertension (the result of dilating blood vessels and increasing oxygen into the blood stream). The nuts are also reportedly good for pain and soreness, as well as aid to digestion.

Yes, I harvest the ripe ginkgo nuts, and yes, I have to hold my nose! The fleshy tissue around the seed really stinks! Some people have learned to not-mind the strong odor, generally reminiscent of fresh feces. Yes, you can get used to just about anything, and in time, you can learn to not be bothered by the "aroma" of the flesh around the ginkgo nuts.

My suggestion is that you just get over it, and it might help if you chew on some aromatic gum, like licorice gum, while collecting.

Once collected, you can let the nuts and their soft outer shell dry, which makes it significantly easier to clean. Or you can just clean them right away, as I tend to do. I always wash them outside. You can put all the fresh ginkgo nuts in a pan of warm water, and roll them around between your hands to clean off all the outer coverings, which you should then toss into your

The cleaned nuts are then best dried, such as in the oven at pilot-light temperature. I have dried them with their shells, and without their shells. I don't know if one way is right or wrong, and I believe it is just a matter of preference. However, the ginkgo nuts in the shell seem to keep a lot longer than the shelled and dried ones. If you plan to eat them right away, then it probably doesn't matter how you prepare them.

Once roasted, you can just eat the ginkgo nuts as-is. (Yes, there are two types of people: Those who like ginkgo nuts, and those who do not....) I have never eaten these nuts raw because of the foul new book "Nuts and Berries" odor. There have been some reports that the nuts can make you ill if you eat them raw (no doubt!), and they must be boiled or roasted for about 25 minutes. You'll know they are done when you can easily break the thin shell with a nutcracker. They taste is akin to a bean.

To extend the shelf life, they can be simply dried, though freezing might be even better.

Caution: there have been reports of sickness by some people who have eaten about a dozen nuts at one time. These were nuts that were cooked. So my suggestion is to try a few and monitor the results. Your body will tell you whether or not you should eat more.

THELEAF

When you see pills of Ginkgo biloba in the health food stores, they are made from the leaf. The leaf extract has been subject to many clinical tests, and it apparently increases circulation for the limbs and for the brain. This is $apparently\,why\,it\,does\,seem\,to\,be\,helpful$ for improving memory and assisting with retaining memories. Suggestions that ginkgo can reverse dementia don't seem to hold up to clinical tests. Nor do the claims that ginkgo can cure cancer seem to be valid, so far.

An extract from the leaf has also been found to improve the immune system, and to protect the heart by clearing plaque from the arteries. in fact, the extracts are used for many ailments such as headaches, asthma, kidney disorders, and more

I have found that when I am experiencing a "slow day," ginkgo pills, or homemade tea from the leaves, seem to offer a subtle yet noticeable "pick-me-up" without the ventual slowdown that follows drinking coffee.

There has been some debate about the safety of gathering your own ginkgo leaves for making your own tea. From what I have concluded, it seems safe enough to brew an occasional cup of tea from the leaves. Also, apparently the best time to collect the leaves for tea is when the leaves have turned yellow and are falling from the tree. This also apparently bypasses any toxic properties (e.g. ginkgolic acid) that may be in the leaf.

But most negative reactions from using ginkgo are not from the leaf, but from eating the nuts raw.

Forager Notes:

Don't bring the raw nuts with the husks into your house without warning the family. I remember once when I brought some home when I was living with ny parents. They were all in a brown paper bag in the kitchen, since I intended to clean them right after dinner. My mother insisted that everyone check the bottom of their shoes since she was certain someone stepped in dog poop. Finally, I remembered the bag and took it outside, and it seemed like years before I heard the end of that one.

Ginkgo is a smooth-barked tree, often growing upright in a very vertical fashion when young, and then roducing a much larger angular crown as it matures. each leaf is fan-shaped, and has the appearance of a fern. The leaves turn yellow in the fall. The fruits, formed only on the female trees, are covered in a light brown fleshy coating that is very odoriferous. The nut has a thin shell that is easily cracked.

The tree is widely cultivated tree, planted as a street tree, in parks, gardens, and yards.

WHY CAN'T SUMMER BE FOREVER?

Of all the seasons in the year, summer has to be my favorite. I am reminded of an uncle of mine who, when asked what his favorite piece of pie time." Maybe I have something of my uncle in me, I do not know. I just know that I love summer. It started back when I was a young boy and realized during summer I did not have to go to Another aspect of summer is that it is usually the time when people take vacations. Although I am not big on vacations, I am not against them at all, particularly when it comes to my vacation.

It was right after Christmas when the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage approached me and said, "What are we going to do for vacation this summer?" I have been married long enough to know that that was simply a rhetorical question. It was her way of introducing of R&R (readin and riting). the subject she had already decided upon. Our motel was not fa

Over the years, I have learned how to be a husband. It is too bad they do not teach that time I am in St. Augustine, I have a desire in high school, but you have to learn it on your own. Most men never really learn how to be a husband. If I were not so lazy, I would write a book on How to Be a Successful Husband. However, I am too busy doing nothing.

In response to my wife I said, "I don't know. What do you have in mind?" Because, I knew she had something in mind and probably had it all planned out. I do not mind that, because it is less that I have to do. The only thing I have to do about the vacation is to come up with the "Cha Ching!"

"I was thinking..." this is always the beginning of problems in my direction. Whenever my wife gets to thinking, I know I am in trouble. "I was thinking, maybe it would be nice for us to go to St. Augustine for a week this year. What do you think?" Well, I do not think she really wants to know what I actually think. Nevertheless, I went along with her "thinking," and told her what a great idea it was and I am all in. As far as I am concerned, a vacation is a vacation no matter where you go. I would rather go someplace where there is no stress and plenty of harmony, particularly in the motel room. That was in the beginning of January. For the next six months, I heard little tidbits here and there about our, "wonderful vacation in St. Augustine." I secretly smiled, knowing that all of the details were planned and prepared and I would not have to do anything.

As far as I am concerned, vacation is the whole idea of "vacating." The thing I want to vacate is doing things.

I knew exactly why St. Augustine was our destination for our vacation this summer. The whole area is infested with "thrift shops." I do not like to speak out of school, but someone was, always said, "The one I'm eating at the in our house is addicted to thrift shops. I am not mentioning who, just that it is not me!

The time came for us to go on our vacation and the beautiful thing about it was, I did not even have to drive. My wife wanted to take her van because she had plans to visit every thrift shop in the county and bring her treasures back home.

I sat back in the van and enjoyed the ride. We had a wonderful vacation and by that, I mean my wife visited every thrift shop in the county at least once. Overall, it was a wonderful time of rest and relaxation. At least on my part. I would get up in the morning and she had already gone to some thrift shop, which meant that I was on my own, which can be a dangerous scenario.

My idea of a good vacation is getting in plenty

Our motel was not far from what is known as the Fountain of Youth. Every to go to the Fountain of Youth. Every time I dismissed the thought. What if it really worked? And what if my wife came with me?

I really do not want my wife to regain her youth because I can barely keep up with her now. Can you imagine the energy she would have for visiting thrift shops? No, the Fountain of Youth is not in my plans, but may be the Swamp of Old Age. That is more my style.

Driving home from our vacation late Friday afternoon, someone in the van was very excited about the "treasures" she had discovered at St. Augustine. I was very excited that she was very excited because that makes for a happy house.

King Solomon, quite a connoisseur of women and wives, gave this advice, "Who can find a virtuous woman? for her price is far above rubies. The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her, so that he shall have no need of spoil. She will do him good and not evil all the days of her life" (Proverbs 31:10-12). Summer is a good time for vacation, especially if that vacation creates a happy house.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

MORE HOURS FOR MORE INCOME?

All of a sudden both political parties are interested in the issue of raising the incomes of the lower and middle income earners.

Last week Jeb Bush was reported to have suggested that part of the solution was that part time employees be able to find full time employment. The media and some politicians got all excited that he might be seen as saying that some other workers may need to work more hours.

I'll grab the third rail and suggest that to increase the incomes of the members of, say, the lower 60 % of earners of wages, salaries, and commissions some may need to work longer, some may need to work smarter, and some both, and that we, the taxpayers and our legislators have some responsibilities as well.

It is no longer enough to say that a mere willingness to work hard is sufficient in today's economy to earn a living wage or better. If we are going to talk about minimum wages at $15 we should also talk about expecting everyone to have a high school diploma or equivalent and a workable command of English in order to earn such a minimum rather than it simply be charity from employers who will soon find ways to weed the least qualified out.

No longer are there enough jobs for people with minimal qualifications, no matter how willing, which means that everyone is going to need to get added education or training and keep them current.

Finally, I can't think of anyone earning in the top 40% that I think is only working a 40 hour week.

Thus, having played the role of the little boy who revealed that the Emperor was wearing no clothes and mentioned the implication for those workers are going to have to upgrade their skills and/or work more if they expect to find themselves closer to the top 40%, the taxpayers and legislature also have to face some truths:

First we need to put more money into our community colleges, CSU and University of California and technical schools so that students can get the classes and come out without a mountain of student debt (which is just a way of dumping on the younger generation burdens that we did not have to bear a generation or two earlier), and we should also find ways to ease the burdens of student debt on those who are already carrying it.

Second, we need to re-look the way we look at wage and hour laws. Presently they are predicated on the ideas that 8 hours per day and 40 hours per week are holy writ, that the nature of work is no more complex than a factory of low skilled workers screwing nuts on bolts for 8 hours and going home, that workers are not very intelligent and need to be "protected" from working beyond those limits or making other arrangements and employers should be treated like Simon Legree if they offer a 9th hour or any flexibility. The penalties against any employer who doesn't know the last idea or makes a good faith mistake in calculation or forms are so $draconian\ that\ the\ conservative\ thing\ to\ do\ is\ err\ on\ the\ side\ of\ minimizing$ any chance of an hourly worker for added income or accommodation and this weighs most heavily against the lowest paid hourly workers and small businesses that do not have the resources to hire attorneys and consultants to outguess the latest ideas of Plaintiffs' lawyers and keep their paperwork perfect. The reality that workers have a stake in more complex compensation situations including flexibility to take advantage of the opportunity to receive tips (such as wait persons) or complete work where the employee shares in the fee from the customer (such as mechanics) or anyone who uses a cell phone or email outside hours.

If everyone is honest about it, we should be able to seriously improve prosperity for those who work for a living as well as everyone else.

THE FUTURE OF CALIFORNIA'S 50 MILLION RESIDENTS

By Joe Guzzardi

California As heads high in the midst of its fourth year of a punishing drought, question most residents ask is whether the state has hit the limits of growth. If the answer is yes, then radical lifestyle adjustments must be made.

University of Southern California historian Kevin Starr, who has exhaustively chronicled the fluctuations of the state's fortunes in his multi-volume series "California and the American Dream," is candid in his evaluation. Starr told the Los Angeles Times that Mother Nature didn't intend for 40 million people, today's population, to live in California, and that the culture which has since 1880 continuously invented and reinvented itself is on the brink. California is not, said Starr, about to cease functioning but will have to make major changes in the coming years. Those modifications will have to start soon, and should begin with dramatically reduced water consumption. Some experts predict that the drought could last for decades if not indefinitely.

At jeopardy during the sustained drought is California's economy. California's $2.2 trillion economy is the world's seventh largest and is, as reported by the Times, more than quadruple 1963's $520 billion economy, adjusted for inflation. The median household income jumped to an estimated $61,094 in 2013 from $44,772 in 1960, also adjusted for inflation.

In what may be California's most daunting challenge, the largest contributor to the state's economyagriculture—also uses the most water. Approximately 80 percent of California's surface water is allocated to agriculture.

According to the California Department of Finance, California will have 50 million residents by 2050. Today's 40 million Californians struggle to comply with a mandatory and first-ever 25 percent water reduction usage to accommodate its 164,000 square miles of farmland, coastal regions, and cities. Desert cities like Palm Springs have been ordered to cut water usage by 50 percent. Forty million is more than double the 15.7 million people who lived here in 1960, and the state's labor force exploded to 18.9 million in 2013 from 6.4 million people in 1960.

Governor Brown agrees with Professor Starr but isn't as worried. Brown says that if Californians live "more elegantly," the state can easily house 10 million more people. The metaphor Brown likes to use is "Spaceship Earth," where everything is reused. Brown, however, said little about the billions in the dollar costs of planning, engineering and implementing systems that would recycle water.

Californians have taken tiny steps in the right direction. Public utilities pay their customers to replace their lawns with drought-tolerant landscaping. As a result, consumption is down in major cities like Los Angeles and San Francisco compared to the 1980s, a major triumph given that during the elapsed 30 years, California's population has soared, home construction has exploded, and thousands of new businesses have opened.

Optimists like Professor Starr predict that California will, over time, change itself into a state that can cope with the drought and whatever other natural disasters may come its way. After all, Starr reminded Californians, in previous eras the state has run out of electricity, and even money, but always rallied back from the brink.

Pessimists, however, can't envision any practical solution to coping with an additional 10 million people who will put pressure on California's water supply, and its roads, highways, schools, and hospitals. When looking ahead, Californians comfort themselves with the "one day at a time" mantra.

HOWARD Hays As I See It

but the facts and the not . . . what began as a strategic opening to Iran deteriorated, in hostages."

President Ronald Reagan on Iran-Contra, March 1987

Reagan wasn't referring to the 52 hostages taken at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, but to seven Americans held years later by alleged Iranian proxies in Lebanon.

As for those hostages held earlier in Iran, candidate Reagan made clear what his approach would have been in securing their freedom. As reported by the Washington Post in September 1980, "Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan said last night that the United States should agree to virtually all the new demands of Iran's Avatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in return for the prompt release of the American hostages." Reagan dealt with his own hostage crises after the retreat following the 1983 bombing of our Marine barracks in Beirut, with 241 Americans opening" in shipping HAWK and TOW missiles sponsor of terrorism", tightening oil and trade restrictions. But with the election of reformist Mohammad Khatami as Iran's president, he acknowledged CIA involvement in the 1953 assassination of their President Mossadegh and the harm caused by our support of the Shah. Ayatollah Khamenei insisted we lift trade restrictions, withdraw support for Israel and stop accusing his country of seeking nuclear weapons. While considering the trade restrictions, Clinton wouldn't budge on the latter two. Still, it looked like relations were improving.

An indication of this improvement came nine months into the presidency of George W. Bush when, after 9/11, Iranians gathered for a candlelight vigil in Tehran's Mohseni Square in sanctions on their own. The senator's response a moving expression of condolence. President Khatami released a statement "On behalf of the Iranian people and the Islamic Republic" to "express my deep sorrow and sympathy with the American people." Bush then lumped Iran in with Iraq and North Korea in his "Axis of Evil". Iranians turned to the mullahs, and the mullahs turned to Mahmoud Ahmadinejad.

As later with President Obama, Bush's policy focused on preventing Iran from acquiring nuclear weapons. Talks began, but Bush heeded the advice that "no deal is better than a bad deal", and to "walk away from the table" if demands aren't met. Bush demanded "zero-enrichment" of uranium. Iran refused, and the Bush team walked away. As a result, the number of Iran's uranium-enriching centrifuges grew from 164 at the time talks began under Bush to some 19,000

With the release of this latest agreement with necessarily his expectation.

"A few months ago I told Iran, Rep. Adam Schiff (D-CA) said although the American people he had "concerns", he hesitated saying more I did not trade arms because he hadn't yet gotten through the entire for hostages. My heart document. In wanting to first make sure he and my best intentions knew what he was talking about, Rep. Schiff still tell me that's true, stood in marked contrast to those contenders for the GOP presidential nomination with no evidence tell me it is hesitancy in rushing to the media to expose their cluelessness.

The deal extends Iran's break-out time for nuclear weapons from a couple of months today to over implementation, a decade. Sanctions would be lifted and assets into trading arms for unfrozen, but with provisions to re-impose them within 65 days of a violation. Iran's uranium would be limited to 3.67% enrichment (okay for a light water reactor; the standard for weaponsgrade is at least 80% enrichment.) Inspection provisions extend for 25 years, encompassing both nuclear and military facilities, as well as the supply-chain of materials into and out of the country. Iran's barred from conventional weapons markets for five years; ballistic missiles

With new technology developed over the past vears, arms control experts assess the deal's verification safeguards as better-than-expected. Nicholas Burns, undersecretary of state in the Bush Administration who helped put together the original sanctions, pointed out how the deal would also "diminish" the likelihood of Sunni states like Saudi Arabia developing nuclear arms programs of their own.

But - no matter. Sen. Marco Rubio (R-FL) lives lost. Perhaps he sensed some "strategic didn't just comment without taking time to read the agreement, he already had a TV spot set to air showing the ultimate outcome of the deal as President Clinton declared Iran a "state a mushroom cloud. Gov. Scott Walker (R-WI) promised to "revoke" the agreement on "day 1" of his presidency, and implement "crippling" sanctions. Left unexplained was how the other parties (China, Russia, France, Germany, the U.K.), who themselves spent years working towards this agreement, might regard such an action - or how sanctions would be "crippling" when those other parties go ahead and lift them

An answer was suggested by Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-SC) in an NPR interview. His alternative was to impose sanctions forcing Iran to give up all nuclear activity – and if they didn't, we'd take care of it militarily. He was asked what if allies like France and Germany decided to lift was that we would then cease all trade with France and Germany. When reminded we'd need these allies in any military action against Iran, the answer was that we'd take on Iran by ourselves. (Among GOP candidates, Sen. Graham is regarded as the most astute in foreign

In his press conference Wednesday, President Obama said, "My hope is that everyone in Congress also evaluates this agreement based on the facts -- not on politics, not on posturing, not on the fact that this is a deal I bring to Congress as opposed to a Republican president, not based on lobbying, but based on what's in the national interest of the United States of America."

Gov. Rick Perry (R-TX) responded that the president was "very naïve". I'll take issue with that characterization of the president as "naïve". After all, he said it was his "hope" - not

MICHAEL Reagan Making Sense

DONALD TRUMP,

Donald Trump has jumped to the top of the national polls for the Republican Party's presidential nomination.

It's an embarrassing moment for the GOP, the country and the planet.

But everyone knows America's richest celebrity businessman will never become the Republican candidate, much less president of the U.S. Unfortunately for the GOP's future, however, the billionaire blowhard is not going to fade away in a week or two like Herman Cain or Michele Bachmann did Whether he's really worth $10 billion, as Trump claims, or just a few billion, he has more than enough money, ego and media pull to keep him in the race all the With an ego bigger than America, Trump could pull another Ross Perot and put another Clinton in the White House. Meantime, Candidate Trump has been a running political joke for weeks.

Underneath his criticism of America's weak and stupid leaders and his boasting about his being able to make better trade deals with foreign countries than anyone else, he really has just one issue – immigration. An issue which he blew badly.

In trying to explain his crude position on that politically complex subject, he managed to offend every Latino in the hemisphere by implying that illegal immigrants from Mexico are mostly murderers and rapists.

As for Trump's positions on other issues important to conservatives and the future of America, they remain a total mystery.

The media won't ask, and he won't tell. Is he pro life or pro choice?

Is he for national health care or against it?

How exactly does he plan to create all those new good jobs for Americans? Is he going to raise taxes on the rich? Flatter taxes or fairer taxes?

What would he do to fix the education problem? If indeed immigration is his signature issue, how is he going to stop or control it? And what's he going to do about the 12 million illegals already here? Maybe Candidate Trump filled in Ted Cruz on where he stood on these issues the other day when Cruz made a friendly visit to Trump in his Tower.

But other conservatives need to find out if Trump is really a Republican. He sure doesn't act like one. He's already broken Ronald Reagan's 11th Commandment - never speak ill of another Republican - dozens of times.

(Trump's 12th Commandment is "Speak ill of everybody.") So before any more conservatives jump on the Trump bandwagon, wouldn't it be better to find out where he stands? We only get sound bites from Trump's events. But no one in the liberal media is in a big hurry to go deeper on him and his views.

They aren't going to dig deep into his "colorful" personal or business history in an attempt to discredit him or prove, as some people say, that he's not even as conservative as Bill Clinton.

If the media did some excavating, they might be surprised by Trump's answers. They might find that he doesn't say the same thing to conservatives in private as he when he bloviates in front of crowds and cameras.

What, for instance, did Candidate Trump say in private when he talked to the Friends of Abe, the support and networking group actor Gary Sinise started for about 2,000 political conservatives working in Hollywood?

Were the FOA's elite members put off by him? Did they embrace him? Who

No one in the mainstream news media seems too eager to expose Trump for the conservative fake he really is.

They treasure him for his celebrity and his entertainment value and don't want to spoil the show.

But the liberal media treasure Trump even more because he spends so much time helping them discredit the Republican Party and conservatism.
