One of the unique characteristics of the Village of Sierra Madre is its ability to come together as a community when needed. Earlier this week, the plight of one of our volunteer firefighters was posted on social media and within a matter of days more than $20,000 was raised to help the family of Chris Morrison.

Having lived in Sierra Madre for 39 years, "Chris Morrison has always epitomized what it meant to be part of this community.

A volunteer firefighter, engineer and Captain with Sierra Madre Fire Department for over 20 years, Chris and his family have served their neighbors selflessly. Now, they need our help" said the call to action.

DROUGHT CONDITIONS CONTINUE TO THREATEN WATER SUPPLY

The City would like to remind its residents that the drought continues to affect Sierra Madre's water supply. The State has set a goal for the City to reduce water use by 32% over 2012-2013 water consumption. While meeting that goal is critical, it remains one of the City's highest priorities to return to the use of its high quality local water. Until those goals are reached, it is important that everyone in the community do their part to reduce water consumption. Many of the City's water customers have taken this message to heart and have done a great job of conserving. To encourage further conservation, the City started assessing penalties to those not meeting conservation goals and issuing citations for illegal irrigation practices.

TAKE THE PLEDGE AND REDUCE WATER USE...GET A FREE LAWN SIGN!

Have you done all you can conserve water? The City has launched new campaign to help remind everyone that this drought is no joke.

If you go to the city's website (in conjunction with the San Gabriel Valley Municpal Water District): http:// www.sgvmwd.org/water_pledge/sierra_madre_pledge.htm.

"Taking the Pledge" is easy. Just submit your contact information. As thanks for your commitment, we'll provide an educational lawn sign for your home or place of employment. Please display it proudly!"

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

"There's no better feeling in the world than a warm pizza box on your lap." Kevin James

"Your little chefs will have a blast earning their Pizza Diplomas! After they decorate their aprons and chef's hats, we'll teach them how to flip dough and decorate their own personal pizzas. Once they've worked up an appetite, they can take their seats for pizza and desserts!" (The Kid's Pizza Cooking Class for Birthday Parties)

Now I ask you, doesn't that sound like a great party? Having just attended a birthday party at Chuck-E-Cheese, where the noise level is...well, it's pretty intense...this party where your little birthday person and their guests can get up close and personal with their pizza sounds simply divine. Where is this, you're wondering? It's Village Pizza, conveniently located at 41 North Baldwin, or Villaggio Pizzeria to use the Italian version.

Village owner, Jinah Yang, took me out to the party patio, charmingly decorated with murals of a Venice canal, gondola and handsome gondolier. That romantic O sole mio feeling settled over me just like a balmy evening in Venice. Well, we haven't actually experienced a balmy evening in Venice, but, hey, I can use my imagination. Jinah said they have special tablecloths, balloons, games, TV and parents can bring along a piñata if they want one. Think Top Chef Pizza!

Jinah is really excited about her pizza making birthday parties. She's had at least 25 of them since last October and word is spreading. The Kid's Pizza Class includes chef's aprons and hats, decorating supplies, the pizza diploma, of course, a personal pizza with two toppings, a Nutella dessert pizza and pitchers of fountain soda. It's just $15/child,10 person minimum, and let's face it, you can't put on a home party for that and then there's the horrendous cleanup! Jinah described one exceptionally artistic little guy who wanted to create a pizza mountain and did exactly that with cheese, cheese and more cheese! He loved and devoured every bite of his creation! She's had very successful parties with birthday people as young as 5 up to about 14.

Originally from South Korea, Jinah and her family immigrated to the United States when she was ten. She's owned Villagio Pizzeria for the last ten years and fell in love with Sierra Madre the first time she drove up Baldwin. "It's so cozy, like an extra vacation kind of place." Her husband, Sean, is a CPA and the Jangs have three grown children. She employs all local young people and prides herself on her gourmet pizza. There's also a catering menu which includes lasagna, several pastas and salads, buffalo wings and hot or cold sandwich baskets.

The day I stopped in to chat a young woman and her daughter were enjoying a late lunch. She had one of the best looking salads I've seen in a while...Antipasto with mixed greens, assorted Italian meats, Provolone cheese, olives, tomatoes, red onions, pepperoncini; and they were sharing a small pizza. I'm pretty sure it was the Olive Tapenade with roasted tomatoes, pine nuts, mozzarella, romano and olive tapenade. Or it could have been the Caprese with cherry tomatoes, baby balls of fresh milk mozzarella, fresh basil chiffonade, pesto sauce and fresh basil. Or maybe the House Specialty with artichoke hearts and sun-dried tomatoes on a whole wheat crust. After Jinah handed me a menu I needed to take home The Village Works pizza with pepperoni, sausage, Canadian bacon, mushrooms, onions, green peppers, olives, extra cheese. Village has traditional pizza, California pizza and New York pizza so they've got your favorite, no matter what it is.

If you haven't been in to Village Pizza lately, you need to go! And they deliver, too! Check out their website for hours, delivery times, specials and menus. www.villaggiopizzeria.com

If you've got a birthday coming up, give Jinah a call and get yourself on the schedule. Reservations required for parties, of course. 626-355-8817. How about Chipotle Pizza?

PASADENA UNIFIED NAMES ASSOCIATE SUPERINTENDENT FOR SCHOOL SUPPORT SERVICES

Pasadena, CA--- Pasadena Unified School District (PUSD) Superintendent Brian McDonald, Ed.D., has named Mercy Santoro as Associate Superintendent for School Support Services. Under the direction of the Superintendent, Santoro will be responsible for the district's school support programs, including after school enrichment services, enrollment, communications, parent engagement, community engagement and intergovernmental relations. She will also serve as the Superintendent's spokesperson for

"After having worked closely with Mercy over the last few years through Collaborate PASadena, I am thrilled to welcome her to the district," said McDonald. "Her leadership and experience will help propel the district forward in implementing new operating principles focused on leadership, flexibility and accountability at the school and district levels so that we can provide a stimulating educational experience for today's learners and tomorrow's leaders.'

Santoro has extensive experience in human services, municipal government, strategic planning and staff development. She joins PUSD from the City of Pasadena, where she has been Director of Human Services and Recreation since 2011. Santoro played a critical role in developing and leading the 2013-2016 School/City Work Plan, now known as Collaborate PASadena, that aligns resources to improve educational outcomes and the quality of life for children, youth and families of the Greater Pasadena area. Key community-building projects implemented during her tenure include Parks after Dark, the 40 Developmental Asset Survey and UCLA's Early Child Development Index.

"I am honored to be selected as the first Associate Superintendent of School Support Services for the Pasadena Unified School District," Santoro said. "During my service with the City of Pasadena, I made establishing a collaborative working relationship with the school district a top priority with a goal of aligning services to benefit students and families in and out of school. Through the development and implementation of the initial School/City/Community Work Plan, now known as Collaborate PASadena, I became familiar with many of the excellent programs and services offered. I see incredible opportunity in working with staff, educators, community partners, students, parents, and the Pasadena Educational Foundation to build on this work, to align the various services and offices this position will support, and to ultimately work toward ensuring the Pasadena Unified School District is a district of choice. This is a very exciting time for the residents of Altadena, Pasadena and Sierra Madre given the reenergized vision and leadership that the Board of Education and Superintendent McDonald are championing. I am looking forward to being a part of the team.'

Prior to the City of Pasadena, Santoro was Director of Human Services for the City of Claremont and worked as an adjunct professor for the University of La Verne teaching developmental psychology.

She holds a Bachelor's degree in English Literature from California State University, San Bernardino, a Master's degree in Child Development from the University of La Verne and completed post-Master's work in Human Services Leadership at Pacific Oaks College

IS YOUR TEEN READY FOR THE SEXT TALK?

- TeenSafe Gives Parents Tips to Face the Uncomfortable "Sext" Talk With Their Child -

Chances are vou've talked to your teen about reproduction at some point, but what about the inappropriate conversations that could be happening behind the screen? If you are wondering if your child's sexual curiosity is being expressed online where they spend most of their time, it may be time to have the "sext" talk with them.

It is estimated that 40 percent of all high school students have sent or received a "sext" and 70 percent of teens admit to sexting with their boyfriend or girlfriend. Parents should talk to their kids about sexting and teach them how to protect themselves, preventing serious damage to their reputation.

Why do they do it?

Interest in sex typically enters the brain during puberty. Between 12 and 13 years old, preteens and teens look for information about sex in any way they can, the easiest way being the internet.

For 77 percent of boys, the reason for sexting is to initiate sex For 40 percent of girls, sexting is humorous

While the other 34 percent of girls sext to feel sexy

Because of feeling pressured, 61 percent of both sexes engage in the behavior, but girls are asked to send risqué photos 68 percent more often than boys.

Is it dangerous?

A common misconception circulating among our children is that there are no threats like pregnancy or transmitting diseases associated with sexting. While this can be true, sexting has its own set of risks, and often exposes our sons and daughters to a variety of repercussions that can have a negative impact on their lives.

When to have the sext talk?

Our children's connectivity and reliance on digital devices starts at a very young age, so the conversation about online safety should begin early and should build on that foundation as a child ages. It is recommended for parents to begin teaching children social media etiquette long before they hit the teen years.

TeenSafe has compiled a list of details to help this conversation go smoothly and accurately. Here are a few key points to include in the discussion:

A sext lasts forever, with the potential to be saved, forwarded, and recovered years from now.

Never send intimate texts to people you do not know in real life. Sexting leaves you vulnerable, giving another person all of the power in the relationship.

If you witness inappropriate sexting, tell an adult! Teach them self-respect and to never feel pressured to do things they don't want to do. There are legal ramifications that can negatively impact lives for

If you feel you need to keep a closer eye on your child with a monitoring solution, go to TeenSafe.com, and for more resources and parenting tips, go to Teenology.com.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show ANT-MAN REVIEW

Most, if not all, Marvel movies include several main characters (usually Avengers), relate to all other Marvel movies that have come out recently, and are generally used to introduce upcoming villains. 'Ant-Man', however, seemed to be confused as to what it wanted to be; the trailers made it seem like a hodgepodge of family friendly comedy, heist film, while also trying to fit into the Marvel universe. Does 'Ant-Man' successfully blend all these genres or is it an awkward misstep for Marvel?

Scott Lang (Paul Rudd) has just been released from prison and he's looking to start a new, crime-free life to try to reconnect with his daughter; however, he is soon drawn into the world of Hank Pym (Michael Douglas) and his mysterious past. Does Lang have what it takes to save Pym's company, as well as the rest of the world, and become a superhero to his daughter?

'Ant-Man' is a complete success. It turns the idea of the Ant-Man, which is a ridiculous sounding superhero, into something awesome. The visual effects used to show the world from Ant-Man's point of view are spectacular, and the performances from the entire cast, as well as a cleverly written script and ingenious directing, make this film and unlikely and surprising summer smash hit.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

OLD DOG, NEW TRICKS

Ever wonder if there was more you could have done, or could be doing to keep your senior dog healthier and happier in it's golden years? Well, I often think about what I could have done to provide a better quality of life for my beloved girl, "Tater" when she started showing signs of her age before she passed away last September. She was almost 13 years old when she crossed the rainbow bridge and although I know for sure she got plenty of tender loving care, I can't help thinking that there was more I could have done to keep her comfortable as her final day approached. I am so pleased to have the resources we now have available to us on the internet and I have learned a lot from my veterinarian Dr. Sylvia Domotor, who liberally shares the wealth of knowledge she has gained over the many year's she's been in practice. Dr. Domotor's wise advice to owners of senior dogs is to recognize that they are indeed old and are unable to do many of the things they were able to do when they were young.

It is really no different from what happens when we humans get old. "Patience is number one" she said in a conversation we had regarding caring for older canines. "Sometimes we forget how old they are. Dogs are considered $seniors \, at \, 7 \, and \, that \, is \, when \, they \, begin \, to \, loose \, their \, hearing, \, their \, eye-sight \, and \, their \, olfactory \, senses. \, Understanding$ why an elderly pet might poop or pee in inappropriate places, or fail to respond to a recall is very important in having

 $Although \ manufacturers \ do \ tend \ to \ exploit \ the \ ever-growing \ market \ for \ elderly \ pet \ care \ products, \ statistics \ indicate$ that dogs are living longer these days, presumably due to improved technology in veterinary care and the development of innovative products to help accommodate the specials needs of our furry senior friends, and keep them more

Specially formulated kibble, therapeutic beds, specialized food bowl designs, ramps to help "Fido" get into the car, restraining harnesses for the ride, diapers for incontinence, dietary supplements, herbs and holistic remedies designed to cosset a senior dog through its last years are among the many new products found on the shelves of most pet supply stores today. Doting pet owners find it hard to resist blowing the bundle to help their four-legged family member, and I am most definitely one of them.

While the many newfangled products now available do help when it comes to taking good care of a senior pet, there is one not-so-new thing we can do to ensure that their golden years are happy ones. Spending quality time with any dog is important, but for an older dog, time spent coddling and snuggling is extremely important for their mental and physical health. This is particularly true if the dog's senses are waning.

I remember noticing that Tater had become much more demanding of my attention when she was about 11 years old and slowly loosing her eyesight, and fortunately I knew enough to attribute that extra neediness to her age. Her favorite time of day was when I'd come home after walking several other dogs, and lay on the couch where she insisted on joining me for an afternoon nap.

I always let Tater lay with me, even though she was quite enormous and took up most of the couch, because I could tell she needed that time with me. She'd crawl up slowly, work her way around my legs, let out a low groan, and lay her huge head on my shoulder where she'd fall asleep and snore into my ear. Saying goodbye to Tater was one of the hardest things I have ever had to do, but one thing I am grateful for is the fact that she went quickly and did not have to linger

I find it amazing how pet owners' priorities change when it comes to caring for an elderly dog. I was truly touched when singer Fiona Apple cancelled the South American leg of her tour a couple of years ago so she could fly back home to be with her ailing 14-year old pit bull "Janet". That says a lot about how much she loved her dog. In one part of a heart-warming apology letter to her fans, Apple wrote: "I know she is coming close to the time where she will stop being a dog, and start instead to be part of everything. She'll be in the wind, and in the soil, and the snow, and in me, wherever I go. I just can't leave her now, please understand. If I go away again, I'm afraid she'll die and I won't have the honor of singing her to sleep, of escorting her out..."

As dog lovers, I think we can all relate to what Fiona Apple was going through, and understand why she made it a priority to spend quality time with her beloved old girl, Janet versus continuing her tour. I can't think of anything that could keep me away from my Molly when her time is close in coming. Our pups give us so much unconditional love, and nothing - including money or fame can possibly compare to that!

Be kind to your canine, and pay close attention to their needs. They don't complain and they can't speak our language, so it is up to us to interpret the things they are telling us in the way they communicate. Don't forget to give them all the attention they need. Show them and tell them (yes, in human language) that you love them. They'll understand, as they seem to be able to interpret our way of communicating quite well. Love and let

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND?

Who enjoys the lazy, crazy, hazy days of summer? Meet Papasito!

He is a sweet, young Chihuahua mix who came to the shelter as a stray. He is around 9 months old, and weighs just less than 10 pounds. He has a beautiful tri-color coat of short fur, long legs, and big ears. His appearance is quite striking.

When he was first brought into the kennels, Papasito was very frightened. Then he was introduced to his new kennel mate, Butch – a one year old Beagle mix. Within a couple of days, Butch had helped Papasito adjust to found romping and playing together in their kennel, or out on a walk.

Papasito is still a little shy when he first meets new people, but each day finds him getting a little braver and more secure in his surroundings. He likes people getting attention in the form of pets and treats. He seems to warm up more quickly to women than men at this point, although he is still learning how to trust and build his confidence.

Papasito is easy to harness and loves to go on walking adventures with shelter volunteers and his best friend and kennel mate, Butch. Papasito does not like Butch to get too far out of sight.

Papasito is still a young dog, so he needs a lot of exercise in the form of walks or playtime, as well as some basic training to help him learn to be a great family member. He would do well in an active household where he has a yard to play in, and is treated as part of the family. Papasito would especially love to have Butch join him in a loving home that has room for two dogs. Two dogs are often easier to adopt than one, as they will entertain each other. Please consider a Buddy Adoption at a reduced fee.

Papasito currently resides at the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society

the shelter environment, and the two boys have since located at 851 E. Grand Avenue in San Gabriel. We bonded and become best friends. They can often be are located off San Gabriel Blvd., north of Mission and south of Las Tunas. To arrange a 'Meet and Greet' with Papasito, please stop by any time from 10:00am to 4:30pm Tuesday thru Sunday.

His adoption fee is $120 and includes neuter surgery, vaccinations, microchip and a free wellness exam at once he is comfortable with them, and he enjoys a participating veterinarian. Feel free to call us at (626) 286-1159 for more information on Papasito and his buddy, Butch. If you are interested in meeting Papasito or any of the other wonderful pets at the shelter, visit the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society at 851 E. TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills

thechefknows@yahoo.com

Peter Dills Says.....

We all know restaurant locations throughout Sierra Madre and Pasadena that seem to turn over every fall. I have heard the word "cursed" used for several locations many times. For instance, the location on the corner of San Gabriel and Colorado seems to be one that is cursed for sure – it started as the Vault, then it became Rio Rio, then Ta Vu, and then a sushi joint (which I actually loved because the prices were right). Now It's a chicken wing restaurant. Well, I love wings! For another "cursed" location, remember Jerry's Famous Deli in Old Pasadena? Let's name all the restaurants that went through that location: Union Cattle Company, Pasadena Brewing, Brix, Haven Gastro Pub... and it started as a gym!

When interviewing existing owners, they often point the fingers at the landlords saying the rents are too high. The excitement and the confidence of "I'll do it better" might be too strong of a lure for restaurateurs to handle. I was bewildered that El Chollo moved from Fair Oaks (Old John Bull) to the Paseo. As the building sat empty for a few years, I thought isn't some rent better then no rent at all? Celebrity Chef Rocco said on his TV show that the mortality rate for restaurants is 90% the first year. My father said he'd rather have open heart surgery than own a restaurant.

Let's look at this fact: the survival rate is higher then 10%, and these numbers are not specific to our area. Several years ago, researchers at Cornell University and Michigan State University conducted a study of restaurants in three local markets over a 10-year period. They concluded the following: after the first year, 27% of restaurant startups failed; after three years, 50% of those restaurants were no longer in business; and after five years 60% had gone south. At the end of 10 years, 70% of the restaurants that had one need for business of the restaurants that had opened for business a decade before had failed. Those are far different numbers than the 90% first-year failure rate quoted by our television star chef. Another academic research study concluded that 81.4% of all small business failures result from forces within the control of the owners/managers. The bottom line is that even if the failure rate is a little daunting, failure is not inevitable.

Sundays at CPM
Sunday

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: SOUTHPAW

and suddenly he has nothing. However, this is a humanistic story that reaches your heart early on and stays with you until the end. Southpaw doesn't reinvent cinema but writer Kurt Sutter (Sons of Anarchy) and director Antoine Fuqua (Training Day, The Equalizer) team up providing an outstanding account of one man's journey from glory to downfall to some sort of redemption in the end. Jake Gyllenhaal stars and he is absolutely incredible. I love the trajectory of this guy's career from End of Watch to Prisoners to last year's Nightcrawler and now Southpaw, Gyllenhaal is picking the best possible projects out there in American films. His acting prowess is phenomenal and delivers yet again another powerhouse performance as he gained over 30lbs of muscle. Rachel McAdams, as Gyllenhaal's wife in the movie and Forest Whitaker, as a boxing trainer, are both solid in their own supporting roles. Curtis

Jake Gyllenhaal plays Billy Hope, a junior middleweight boxing champion who has it going for him—a lavish lifestyle with a beautiful wife and daughter. In the blink of an eye, tragedy unexpectedly strikes and his world is shattered. Ominous days lie ahead, which then for a year. THE OREGON TRAIL: A NEW AMERICAN JOURNEY

By Rinker Buck

An epic account of traveling the length of the Oregon Trail the audacious journey that hasn't been attempted in a century—which also chronicles the rich history of the trail, the people who made the migration, and its significance to the country. Spanning two thousand miles and traversing six states from Missouri to the Pacific coast, the Oregon Trail is the route that made America. In the fifteen years before the Civil War, when 400,000 pioneers used the trail to emigrate West-scholars still regard this as the largest land migration in history—it united the coasts, doubled the size of the country, and laid the groundwork for the railroads. Traveling from St. Joseph, Missouri, to Baker City, Oregon, over the course of four months, Buck is accompanied by three cantankerous mules, his boisterous brother, Nick, and an "incurably filthy" Jack Russell terrier named Olive Oyl. Along the way, they dodge thunderstorms in Nebraska, chase runaway mules across the Wyoming plains, scout more than five hundred miles of nearly vanished trail on foot, cross the Rockies, and make desperate fifty-mile forced marches for water. But The Oregon Trail is much more than an epic adventure. It is also a lively and essential work of history that shatters the comforting myths about the trail years passed down by generations of Americans. Buck introduces readers to the largely forgotten roles played by trailblazing evangelists, friendly Indian tribes, female pioneers, bumbling U.S. Army cavalrymen, and the scam artists who flocked to the frontier to fleece the overland emigrants. Generous portions of the book are devoted to the history of old and appealing things like the mule and the wagon. We also learn how the trail accelerated American economic development. Most arresting, are the stories of the pioneers themselves—ordinary families whose extraordinary courage and sacrifice made this country what it became. At once a majestic journey across the West, a significant work of history, and a moving personal saga, The Oregon Trail draws readers into the journey of a lifetime.

THE AUTOIMMUNE EPIDEMIC

by Donna Jackson Nakazawa

Hailed by Mark Hyman, MD, as "a ray of light and hope" for autoimmune sufferers, this groundbreaking book provides research and solutions for those affected by autoimmune disorders including Crohn's disease, type 1 diabetes, rheumatoid arthritis, and more.In the first book of its kind, journalist Donna Jackson Nakazawa examines nearly 100 debilitating autoimmune diseases—such as multiple sclerosis, lupus, Crohn's disease, type 1 diabetes, and rheumatoid arthritis-that cause the body to destroy itself, mistakenly attacking healthy cells as the immune system fights off bacteria, viruses, and other invaders. As Nakazawa share the vivid, heartbreaking stories, including her own, of people living with these mysterious, chronic, and often hard-to-diagnose illnesses, she explores the alarming and unexpected connection between this deadly crisis and the countless environmental triggers we're exposed to every day: heavy metals, toxins, pesticides, viruses, chemicals in the foods we eat, and more. With the help of leading experts, Nakazawa explores revolutionary preventions, treatments, and cures emerging around the world and offers practical advice for protecting your immune system and reducing your risk of autoimmune disease in the future.

DANCING ACROSS THE FOOTLIGHTS

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano

By the time you read this Always...Patsy Cline will have opened to a sold-out weekend! At our Thursday preview we had our first "Bloggers Night" at which we invited a dozen bloggers to live-tweet the show and then write blogs about it afterwards. It was an incredible success. They and the rest of the audience rose to their feet in a spontaneous standing ovation at the end of the performance. The universal opinion is that we have a big hit on our hands! I couldn't be more thrilled.

Over the course of the last week, I've sat in at the dress rehearsals leading up to opening, so clear that the show would be good; watching our wonderful performers work out the timing and practice quick costume changes. The role of Louise, Patsy's number-one fan and pen pal, is played by the very funny Nikki D'Amico who had the unenviable job of having to perform a role which calls for a lot of audience interaction for all of the designers and theater staff who were attentive but focused on so many other things. It made me realize again how much of a dance between actors and audience a play is.

I don't know if audiences appreciate just how much a part of the performance they are. No two performances of a show are ever the same – partly because of the actors but mostly because of the audience. When you are performing for an audience who comes in eager and ready to be entertained, brimming with energy and expectation, an actor cannot help but feel energized by them. Audiences who openly express their enjoyment and meet the actors half-way always get a better show - and not because the actors are doing anything differently. I've always said that the show doesn't happen on stage or in the audience but in the intersection of the two.

Last night Nikki had an audience to play with. Her jokes landed, she was able to flirt and charm and dance (both literally and figuratively) with the audience. That was the final element that needed to be rehearsed and added to Always...Patsy Cline to make it fly. And fly it did!

This show, which we have so long wanted to produce, has exceeded all of our expectations. Robert Marra has done a bang-up job with his direction, Sean Paxton, the music director and the extraordinary Cori Cable Kidder seemingly channel Patsy, the designers have all brought their best to this show. A special acknowledgment of Estelle Campbell, SMP's Managing Director has to be made – she got this show produced almost single-handedly while I was away on vacation. So now it's up to you, our loyal audiences, to come dance with us across the footlights.

The show runs through September 12 and has been selling very well. Remember we give 20% discounts for groups of 10 or more who purchase their tickets ahead of their attendance date. Please call Mary Baville at 626.355.4318 to arrange your purchase.

MEDICARE OPTIONS FOR RETIREES WHO TRAVEL

Dear Savvy Senior,

What are the best Medicare coverage options for retirees who travel a lot? Almost 65

Dear Almost,

The best Medicare options for retirees who travel extensively depends on your destination.

Let's start with a quick review of the different coverage choices Medicare offers beneficiaries

One option is Original Medicare, which has been around since 1966, and covers (Part A) hospital services and (Part B) doctor's visits and other medical services.

If you choose Original Medicare, you may also want to get a Medicare (Part D) prescription drug plan (if you don't already have coverage) to cover your medication costs, and a Medicare supplemental (Medigap) policy to help pay for things that aren't covered by Medicare like copayments, coinsurance and deductibles.

Or, you could get Medicare Advantage (Part C) plan, which is sold through private insurance companies, that covers everything Original Medicare covers, plus many plans also offer prescription drug coverage and extra services like vision, hearing and dental care all in one plan.

To help you evaluate your options, the National Council on Aging offers an online tool at MyMedicareMatters.org, and your State Heath Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP) provides free Medicare counseling – call 800-677-1116 for contact information.

You can also shop and compare Medicare health and drug plans and Medigap policies at Medicare.gov/find-a-plan, or call 800-633-4227.

Also note that whatever Medicare plans you choose to enroll in, if you find that they are not meeting your needs or your needs change, you can always switch to a different plan during the open enrollment period, which is between Oct. 15 and Dec. 7.

If you and your husband are planning to travel domestically, Original Medicare provides coverage everywhere in the U.S. and its territories (this includes all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands and American Samoa) show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book. as long as the doctor or hospital accepts Medicare.

your coverage may be restricted. This is because most Medicare Advantage plans (which are usually HMOs or PPOs) require you to use doctors, hospitals and pharmacies that are in the plan's network within a service area or geographic region. So if you're traveling outside that area, you may need to pay a higher fee, or your services may not be covered at all.

Before enrolling in a Medicare Advantage plan, check the benefit details carefully to see what costs and rules apply when traveling outside your service area.

If you're planning to travel abroad, Original Medicare does not provide coverage outside the U.S. including cruising, except in rare cases, and Medicare drug plans will not cover prescription drugs purchased outside the U.S. either.

But, there are some Medigap policies that do provide limited coverage abroad. Medigap C, D, F, G, M, and N plans will pay for 80 percent of medically necessary emergency care outside the U.S., but only for the first 60 days of the trip, and you have to meet an annual $250 deductible first. There's also a lifetime maximum benefit of $50,000, so you'd need to cover any costs above that amount.

If you have a Medicare Advantage plan, your coverage outside the U.S. will depend on the plan. Some plans offer emergency care coverage while others don't. You'll need to check your plan for

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

IF YOU HAVE A TRUST, DON'T SETTLE FOR A FALSE SENSE OF SECURITY - PART III

There are three critical aspects to estate planning. Let's review: first, a customized set of documents unique to your situation and goals should be the foundation of your plan; second; the plan must be properly and completely funded (your assets must actually be transferred into the plan). So what's the third?

Once you have your documents in place and your plan fully funded, you can't simply stick it on your shelf, check it off your bucket list, and assume it will work like you need it to 20 or 30 years from now. If you don't periodically review (and update, when necessary) your plan you have only managed to buy yourself a false sense of security.

Over time your assets will change. You may buy property; you may sell property. Your stock portfolio may lose value; you may receive an inheritance. There are thousands of things which can – and will – change with your estate (your estate is simply the legal way of saying, "all the stuff you own"). Your plan needs to adapt and transform to your changing financial situation.

Over time your family dynamic will change. There may be births; there may be deaths. There may be marriages; there may be divorces. Your kids will grow up; you may have grandkids on the horizon. Your plan needs to acclimate and adjust to your ever evolving family.

Over time the laws regarding estate planning will change. For example, the estate tax exemption has been as low as $600,000 and as high as unlimited over the last two decades. The estate tax rate has been as high as 55% and as low as 35% over that same period. The laws in this area change all the time. Your plan needs to change and adapt to meet whatever new laws Washington throws at you from year to year.

My firm reviews the plans we put in place for clients every 1 to 3 years – at no additional charge. And if your plan isn't being reviewed at least as often, you may be living with a false sense of security. And ultimately, it's your family's security that's on the line. Do NOT let that happen!

You cared enough to put a plan in place. Make sure it is up to date with your present situation, your family goals, and the current laws. That's the only way to ensure your plan will protect and provide for your family as you intend, when it's needed.

If you already have a plan in place and haven't had it reviewed recently, it's time for a checkup. And if you're ready to put a plan in place to provide the protection your family deserves, be sure to ask your attorney how often they will review the plan and how much extra that will cost.

I recommend putting an attorney on your team who will take care of all that for you, so you don't even have to think about it. That's the only real way to make sure it's not forgotten about and that your plan stays up to date, providing a "real" sense of security rather than a false one.

Dedicated to your family's health, wealth, and happiness,

THE JOY OF YOGA COBRA/UP DOG

There are two important poses in a standard vinyasa flow that deserve a breakdown. They are cobra pose, or bhujangasana and up dog, urdhva mukha svanasana. Both are excellent backbends, but they each have their individual alignment. As a teacher, I often see a hybrid of the two that's not so good for the lower back.

Cobra pose is a lovely, strong belly backbend. İn a standard vinyasa, you come into cobra from knees, chest and chin (ashtanga prinom) or chaturanga dandasana.

As you lower down, the belly comes all the way to the earth. Hands are planted right in line with the chest and elbows are in toward the ribs. Tops of the feet are pressing down onto the floor actively and triceps move toward the feet. As you inhale, press into your hands, activate the muscles along your spine and peel the heart up. Shoulder blades draw together on the back and collarbones in front become broad. Elbows stay bent the entire time in cobra. The legs and pelvis stay on the mat. Release on exhale and press back into downward dog. Upward facing dog, is usually reached from chaturanga. You have a choice to keep your toes tucked or come onto the tops of the feet. On the inhale, you powerfully press into the hands while pulling the heart and chest forward. The thighs and legs are actively engaged. Arms are straight and the entire leg(s) excluding the toes are off the mat. Find extra space right at the top with an external rotation of the inner upper arm and draw shoulder blades deeper into the back.

So, in short, elbows stay bent in cobra, while in updog, arms are straight with thighs off the mat. If the arms are straight with thighs down, there is undue compression on the lower vertebrae. It's best to work up to transitioning into updog. Both are excellent for the breath and gaining strength in the back body and stretch on the frontside.

Happy practice and enjoy your flow with comfortable alignment!

WHEN AND WHAT TO EAT? Recently, a friend asked me about food combining and if it could help with her digestive distress. So I thought I would give you a brief idea of what food combining is and how it can work for or against you. The first thing you need to know is that all foods require different amounts of time to digest and move though our system. The next thing you need to know is that eating certain food combinations can hinder digestion. If you suffer from gas or bloating after meals you may want to give food combining a try. One of the secrets of establishing good health as well as maintaining weight loss is to have a properly functioning digestive system. This means that you are able to absorb the maximum amount of nutrients, proteins and enzymes from your food. When this is accomplished it can prevent bloating, burping, gas and even indigestion.

Fruits digested faster than any other food. Next in line would be non-starching vegetables including herbs, nuts, seed, and seed and olive oil. The third group is your grains (products made from grains), then sugars and starchy vegetables like corn on the cob. The foods that digest slowest are meats, dairy and fish.

Raw fruits (cooked fruits take a little longer and dried fruits even longer still) take approximately 30 minutes to exit the stomach. Try to eat fruits first thing in the morning or 3 hours after a meal. Problems arise when you eat a slow digesting food followed by a quickly digestible food. The quickly digestible food will remain in the digestive track too long and can cause gas and bloating.

All non-starch vegetables may be eaten with flesh dishes.

naturopath and nutritionist at Vibrant Living Wellness Center

All vegetables may be eaten with starches. This is very basic description of food combining. You can get much more detail and fine tune what you eat but this is a quick primer for those just starting with food combining. What I take away from this is that the traditional meal I grew up on of meat, potatoes, vegetables and a raw lettuce salad is hard on the digestive system. A better meal would leave out the potatoes. Or keep the potatoes and eliminate the meat!

There are many books available on the subject of food combining. When done properly, food combiningcan help you feel great, lose weight and maintain weight loss.

KEPLER SPACE TELESCOPE FINDS EARTH-SIZED WORLD ORBITING A COUSIN OF THE SUN

Scientists analyzing four years of data from NASA's Kepler mission have released a new catalog of exoplanet candidates. The catalog adds more than 500 new possible planets to the 4,175 already found by the famed space-based telescope.

'This catalog contains our first analysis of all Kepler data, as well as an automated assessment of these results," says SETI Institute scientist Jeffrey Coughlin who led the catalog effort. "Improved analysis will allow astronomers to better determine the number of small, cool planets that are the best candidates for hosting life."

The Kepler space telescope identifies possible planets by observing periodic dips in the brightness of stars. However, confirmation of their true planetary status requires observations by other instruments, typically looking for slight shifts in the motion of the host suns. Historically, the overwhelming majority of Kepler's discoveries have turned out to be actual planets.

The new catalog includes 12 candidates that are less than twice Earth's diameter, orbiting in the socalled habitable zone of their star. This zone is the range of distances at which the energy flux from the star would permit liquid water to exist on the planet's surface. Of these candidates, Kepler 452b is the first to be confirmed as a planet. At a distance of 1,400 light-years, Kepler 452b accompanies a star whose characteristics are very similar to the Sun: it is 4 percent more massive and 10 percent brighter. Kepler 452b orbits its star at the same distance as Earth orbits the Sun.

"Kepler 452b takes us one step closer to understanding how many habitable planets are out there," notes Joseph Twicken, also of the SETI Institute and the lead scientific programmer for the Kepler mission. "Continued investigation of the other candidates in this catalog and one final run of the Kepler science pipeline will help us find the smallest and coolest planets. Doing so will allow us to better gauge the prevalence of habitable worlds."

Kepler 452b has a better than even chance of being a rocky world on the basis of its size and the type of star that it orbits. It falls into a class of planets that are between the size of Earth and Neptune. While these are the most abundant type of world found by Kepler, our own solar system does not boast such a planet.

Intriguingly, while similar in size and brightness to the Sun, Kepler 452b's host star is 1.5 billion years older. It therefore can give us a peek into a crystal ball showing a possible future for Earth.

ADVICE TO THE TRAVEL-WEARY VACATIONER

number of citizens, no summer is actually official until every American pursues this activity vigorously. Of course, I am referring to summer family vacation.

Our American government guarantees its citizens the right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." This is the great American dream, drawing people from all over the world to our shores. Once they become full-fledged American citizens, they then dream of taking a summer vacation to Italy or France.

I am not sure how it happened, but somewhere, someone defined "the pursuit of happiness" to mean summer family vacations. Actually, if left up to me, I could find happiness in some other pursuit. Like an afternoon pursuing Apple fritters. However, who am I to buck the great American tradition?

Since the "pursuit of happiness" is the annual summer vacation, I thought it might be beneficial if I offered, out of my vast years of experience, some advice to my fellow vacationers on this crucial subject. After all, somebody needs to learn from my mistakes; I am not sure I have.

Every family vacationer consists of two categories; those who plan the vacation and those who fund the vacation.

The difference is obvious. If you plan a vacation, you are not required to fund it. If you fund the vacation, you have no say in the planning.

Rules are rules and I would like to know who made up these rules. I am guessing it was no one in the funding category.

If your responsibility is to fund the family vacation, there are certain things you are not allowed to say to those who are planning said vacation. For one, the sponsor of the vacation is never allowed to mention the word "budget." Nothing kills the exuberant spirit of the vacation planner than mentioning that foul word "budget."

If you insist on interjecting the concept of budget to the summer vacation, you might as well stay at home. Now, if you exercise this option, be prepared to endure the worst summer of your life. The entire cast of your family will work together to make you regret this option. They will find ways to finagle money out of you throughout the summer, far exceeding what you would have spent on the vacation, which brings the curtain down on He invites us to "Come unto me, all ye that your precious budget.

One year I thought I had a brilliant idea. I sent my family on vacation while I stayed at home. It was the most relaxing two weeks I had ever enjoyed in my life, not to mention the quietness.

Unfortunately, a month after my family returned from their vacation, I began getting

Summer is usually a busy the credit card bills from their delightful jaunt. time, with everybody According to my credit card statement, my engaging in one of family had the time of their life and no expense the great American was spared for their enjoyment.

The next year, and every year after, I accompanied my family on the annual summer vacation just to keep tabs on my credit card. And believe me; the tab grew each day of our vacation. So, when anyone in your family mentions the word "vacation," bite your tongue if the word

'budget" pops into your mind and take it like the man you are, which is the only sensible thing to do if you love a happy life. I know when the first mention of the concept comes up in the family discussion, immediately

you might think to yourself, "is it really worth

I have wrestled with this question for many years. Every annual two-week vacation takes six months to prepare, five months and two weeks to recover, along with the mysterious disappearance of a full year's salary. Following the vacation there is no logical explanation as to where that money went.

Someone said a picture is worth a thousand words. Let me modify this to apply it to the family summer vacation. A vacation picture is worth $1,000.

Following every vacation, there is the necessary time to recover. Recuperating from the summertime vacation is like recovering the living room couch. The sofa looks refreshed and refurbished, but you know what is underneath and you know it really is not what it boasts to

No matter how much you recover that old living room sofa, it is still old and worn out. Appearances can be deceiving and appearances at the summer vacation can also be deceiving.

After years of financing the annual summer vacation, I have concluded that fun is expensive. I have found no way of getting around this

On the other hand, grumpy is free. Lately, I have been leaning toward grumpy.

Summer vacations are necessary and a person just has to learn to deal with it and make the most of it, or the least of it, depending on your perspective.

Everybody needs to get away and rest. Even Jesus understood this concept.

The best thing about the "rest" Jesus offers is he has already paid for it. Now I can really enjoy that vacation.

WILL Durst Raging Moderate MORE THE MERRIER

I've got to congratulate Donald Trump for how fast he's become more annoying to the Republican Party than a mouse in an air conditioning unit. He's like that popcorn husk that gets stuck in the back of your molars and you can't pry it out with a cord of toothpicks. He's almost as grating as the Kars for Kids commercial.

The aerodynamically coiffed real estate developer recently announced that if the GOP big boys don't stop saying mean things about him, he might run as a third party candidate. "Be nice or I'll poop on your parade" is pretty much the bombastic billionaire's blackmail. And the way he looks when he purses his lips in concentration, you kind of get the feeling he ain't speaking figuratively.

In other professions, behavior like this is commonly called extortion, but with these guys, it's just politics. It's effective politics that rekindles memories of 1992, when Ross Perot deprived Jeb's daddy of a 2nd term. Or so GOP party stalwarts would have you believe. Of course, they also would have you believe that Ronald Reagan never raised taxes and George W. was a wartime genius.

Trump is sucking up so much oxygen from the airwaves that his rivals have resorted to shooting off verbal flares trying to climb into the top ten of any poll and be considered Fox \check{W} orthy come debate time.

Ted Cruz accused his own majority leader of lying to his face. Lindsey Graham destroyed his cell phone on video because Trump gave out his private number. But the major takeaway by most viewers was that Lindsey Graham still uses a flip phone. Way to appeal to the young, Mr. Modem.

Scott Walker said if elected, he's willing to start bombing Iran on Inauguration Day. And that's if he's in a good mood. God have mercy should he have a flashback and think he's dealing with a Wisconsin teachers' union. Jeb Bush talked about phasing out Medicare and moving on to some sort of coupon plan. Because old people love coupons.

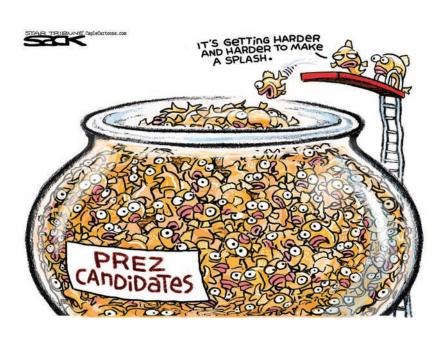

So far, Republicans have managed to frighten minorities and seniors, and it's 16 months before the election. Figure the over/under on a "legitimate rape" comment

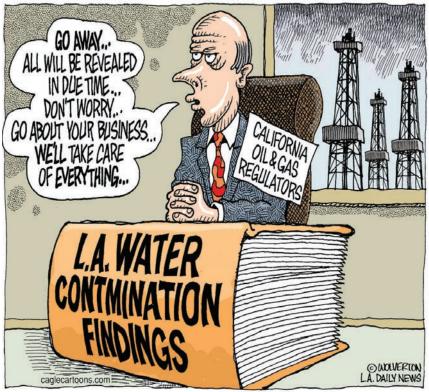

On the Democratic side, Bernie Sanders vowed never to run as a third party candidate but that was before he started drawing stadium crowds like a rock star. A 73-year-old socialist rock star, but a rock star nonetheless. Without the leather pants. Thank god.

But say he does get rolled by the machine known as Hillary; Senator Sanders could easily return to his lovably independent ways and run on the Vermont Loon ticket. Besides, by then, he might not be a 3rd party candidate, but a 4th party candidate. Then you consider Ralph Nader is only eight years older than Bernie, so maybe he could be convinced to return to the fray. And Pat Buchanan obviously has things left to say. The Green and Tea Parties both get into the act, and pretty soon we're a 3rd world country with upwards of 20 legitimate candidates on the ballot, and the winner has to form a coalition with some of the also-rans and be forced to actually compromise.

Naw. You're right. Could never happen here.

It wasn't about some military or CIA complex, but whether these things should become part of a family's experience in going to the local multiplex; whether security for catching a movie shouldn't be as routine and intrusive as for catching

Responding to the Lafayette shootings, Republican presidential candidate Rick Perry of Texas told CNN he advocated more people bringing more guns into more places – as if the prospect of a firefight breaking out in a darkened movie house should make us feel more secure.

Louisiana's Gov. Bobby Jindal, another GOP hopeful, didn't think this was the "appropriate time" to discuss gun policy, while acknowledging "folks will want to score political points off this tragedy". It wasn't time a week earlier, either, when four Marines and a Naval officer were killed at recruitment facilities in Chattanooga.

A month before that, President Obama spoke at the White House the morning after nine were killed at the Emmanuel AME Church in Charleston; "I've had to make statements like this too many times. Communities like this have had to endure tragedies like this too many times. . . . once again, innocent people were killed in part because someone who wanted to inflict harm had no trouble getting their hands on a gun."

Back then, Gov. Jindal said "Now's not the time", and accused the president of "trying to score cheap

Louisiana has no background checks for private gun sales (including assault weapons), no registration requirements, no state licenses for gun dealers, and no limits on how many guns can be purchased at one time. Local governments are prohibited from enacting their own gun laws. Thanks to Gov. Jindal, it's now okay to bring concealed firearms into places that serve alcohol and to church.

Louisiana has the second-highest gun death rate in the country (after Alaska). A study from

New York has relatively strong gun laws, a gun ownership rate of 18.1% and comes in 48th with a 4.39 death rate per 100,000. California is 42nd with a 7.89 death rate. With all the shootings in Chicago despite tough gun laws, Illinois' rate of gun deaths per 100,000 is 8.67 – less than half that of Louisiana's.

> Data came from the Centers for Disease Control, with another CDC-funded study showing having a gun in the home brings a threefold increase in the risk of a homicide. Republicans in Congress responded, right after the shootings in Charleston, by moving to block further CDC research into gun violence.

> John Houser, accused of the Lafayette shootings, had a decades-long criminal record and history of mental illness. MICHAEL Reagan Making Sense

DUMB AS TRUMP

Trump can't help being Trump.

He says outrageous or dumb things about immigrants or his fellow Republican primary candidates five times a day.

But no one - not even the liberals of the mainstream media - really takes Donald Trump or what he spews seriously.

No one thinks the billionaire's mix of egotistical bloviating and off-the-cuff policy positions represents the Republican Party or conservatism. Mike Huckebee and Rick Perry are a whole other story.

They're not clowns. They're ex-governors. They're supposed to be serious candidates for the Republican nomination for president. Yet last week, they each said something dumb as Trump. Perry's statement, at least, was made, more or less, in defense of the Second Amendment. But in the wake of last week's theater shooting in Lafayette, La., he said that the way to prevent future shootings would be to encourage moviegoers to take their guns into the theaters.

I'm a fervent Second Amendment guy. And I agree with Perry that gunfree zones are always a bad idea because they attract the well-armed crazies who want to commit mass murders. But even I wouldn't want to go into a movie theater where everyone was packing – especially a John Wayne or Clint Eastwood movie. Especially in West Texas. Gov. Perry should have held his Texas tongue. All he did was make himself - and by extension the GOP – look like he was exploiting a tragedy to make a political point about gun rights.

Then there's Mike Huckabee.

What he said about the effect the Obama administration's nuclear deal with Iran was going to have on the state of Israel caused a national political hissy fit. Huckabee was right on target when he charged that the president's foreign policy "is the most feckless in American history" and that trusting the Iranians was "naive." Where he got himself in trouble was when he said the Iran deal was so bad it "will take the Israelis and march them to the door of the oven." Huckabee's Holocaust reference was not the real problem. As the leaders of some Jewish American groups protested, the real problem was his premise that the state of Israel is a weakling that can't defend itself from Iran.

Israel counts on our support, but it can take care of itself if it has to. It has a strong government, a strong leader and a strong military, not to mention lots of tanks, jet planes and scores of nukes. Israel's leaders also have something else -- courage. They're not afraid to act decisively or preemptively when their nation is threatened, as they proved 35 years ago when their jets bombed Iraq's nuclear research facility. Huckabee's Holocaust rhetoric was tut-tutted by some other Republican candidates who thought it was too strong.

Hillary Clinton and other phony Democrats, plus the usual liberal crybabies in the media, made faces and agreed that it was "offensive" and

What Huckabee said didn't hurt his already slimmer-than-slim chances, but he hurt the GOP team. He set up an easy layup for the Democrats so they could rise up in fake outrage and paint all the other Republicans as nuts as Trump.

Perry and Huckabee are desperately trying to boost their low poll numbers to qualify for next week's "Top 10" primary debate. They tried to out-trump Trump. But all they did was cause trouble in their own ranks and give Democrats a boatload of fodder that will be used against the GOP next fall. Michael Reagan is the son of President Ronald Reagan, a political
