SIERRA MADRE POLICE BLOTTER

During the week of Sunday, October 4th, to Sunday, October 12th, the Sierra Madre Police Department responded to approximately 287 calls for service.

Monday, October 5th

At 2:40 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 300 block of West Montecito Avenue regarding a residential burglary. Upon arrival, Officers were met by a witness who stated that she had heard an audible alarm going off while she was standing near her home. Shortly after she witnessed a man running southbound on Grove Lane while carrying a red pillow case and saw him get into a blue Jeep Cherokee. The neighbor stated she attempted to run after the man but was unable to catch up to him before he jumped into the vehicle. Officers determined the suspect entered the home by breaking a back door window. The home was ransacked and the homeowner reported jewelry to be missing. This case has been forwarded to the Detective Bureau.

Tuesday, October 6th

At around 1 pm, Sierra Madre Police were patrolling the area near 300 block San Gabriel Court when Officers observed an open package box in the middle of the roadway. As the Officers approached the package, they observed a silver Toyota sedan without plates parked along the curb. Officers initiated a traffic stop and as they approached the vehicle, Officers observed several open package boxes in the back seat of the vehicle. When questioned what their reason was for being in the city, the two men stated they were here to go hiking but Officers were unable to locate any hiking equipment or clothing on the subjects. A closer look of the packages revealed they were all addressed to various residents within the city and the subjects stated that they had found them. A vehicle search revealed several open packages with their property, the vehicle's plates, rubber gloves, and pawn shop receipts. The box in the middle of the street was addressed to a residence on that street and the property was found within the vehicle. Both men were taken into custody and arrested for receiving and concealing stolen property.

Saturday, October 10th

At 3:10 am, Sierra Madre Police were patrolling the area of Baldwin Avenue and Sierra Madre Boulevard when they observed a vehicle parked in front of a local bar with its window wipers on. Officers continued to observe the vehicle turn on its lights, switch between the right and left blinker, and the brake lights turning on and off. As the vehicle backed out of the parking spot and continued down the boulevard, it failed to turn on its headlights. Officers initiated a traffic stop and upon making contact, they immediately noticed the driver's eyes were blood shot, the odor of alcohol was present, and he was talking in a very loud voice. When asked how much he had to drink, the man stated he had too much. The man consented to a field sobriety test which ultimately determined he was unable to safely care for himself or his safety. The man was arrested and cited for driving under the influence of alcohol and transported to Pasadena Jail.

GET YOUR HANDS DIRTY AT THE COMMUNITY PLANTING DAY!

Sierra Madre, CA. - October 14, 2015 - After months of landscape demolition, grading and irrigation work, the Community Planting Day is finally here! The Sierra Madre Garden Club and City of Sierra Madre are seeking eager volunteers to help replenish the landscape outside City Hall with beautiful drought-resistant plants. The event is part of a joint community project aimed at saving water and demonstrating the beauty and economic benefits of native plant gardens!

Rain or shine, members of the community will be gathering in downtown Sierra Madre on November 7th to plant 200-300 plants on the grounds surrounding City Hall and the Police and Fire Station. The project was made possible through generous grants and donations from the community. As the City was unable to contribute financial resources to the landscape project, the City of Sierra Madre owes a special debt of gratitude to those organizations and individuals who stepped in to bring this project to life. Including, but not limited to:

The Sierra Madre Garden Club The Sierra Madre Community Foundation FormLA Landscaping

LA County Board Supervisor Michael D. Antonovich, Fifth District San Gabriel Valley Municipal Water District The Sierra Madre Senior Community Commission

The Neiby Family Glenn & Amy Putnam Richard Wilson

The Community Planting Day will take place outside City Hall on November 7, 2015 from 9:00AM 12:00PM. Volunteers for the event are advised to bring adequate gardening gear including: hats, gloves, sunblock, as well as digging and trenching shovels. The San Gabriel Valley Municipal Water District will provide water and Girl Scout Troop 2991 will be on hand with refreshments.

For more information, visit the City's website at: www.cityofsierramadre.com.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

"Life is full of beauty. Notice it. Notice the bumble bee, the small child, and the smiling faces. Smell the rain, and feel the wind.

Live your life to the fullest potential and fight for your dreams." Ashley Smith

Once in a while one gets to meet people who are so neat, so filled with great ideas to create beauty of every kind all around them that it's a delight to just sit with them and listen to a few of the things they've done to improve the world. I'm hoping you've gotten up to the Gooden School to visit the Kelly Watson Reading Garden and relax for a moment on those fabulous benches hand painted by Two Drops of Blue, which is really Jennifer Lindstrom and Milo Ominetti. Here's something you might not know, the red cardinal on the bench is in special honor of Kelly Watson, who loved those birds. Jennifer and Milo have been collaborating on art, music and life for the last twelve years and they agree that after they merged their talents, their skill levels went up dramatically.

We sat for a few minutes right next to the mural of poppies which Jennifer and Milo created for the Poppy Cake Baking Company right here in town. If you haven't been in to Poppy Cake lately, you should go, check out the poppy mural and give in to

In addition to beautiful benches for children to sit together, read and dream a little, Jennifer and Milo have dedicated much of their time and talents to L.A. Works, a volunteer organization whose major function is to create an incredible background to learning in schools all over the city where it's gray, functional, and no fun at all. Jennifer and Milo create a pattern and sketch it on a bare wall, classroom trailer, or any space that needs livening up, and other volunteers come in, sometimes as many as a thousand of them to fill in a really big space, and in just a few hours, create dragons and solar systems, jungles, a library wall filled with 'castles, dragons and books, Oh My!' A huge representation of "We are the world, we are the children." And color, color, color! Children walk into their classroom in the morning, come out just a few hours later to see that their school has been totally transformed into an exciting place to learn, to play, to enjoy.

Murals are their favorite expression, but they have so many other areas where they shine: Color consultation, faux wall finishes, scenic work. They do movie sets, where they can take a big bare room and transform it into a mansion, a western bar, a restaurant. An ordinary kitchen can be whatever era is needed, from a pump and a wood burning stove to space age modern. These guys are amazing! They enjoy transforming kids' bedrooms into exciting places where dragons prowl the wall, a fairy sits on a flower, or gorgeous fish swim along the wall; maybe you'd like a blossoming cherry tree coming in from your door and blooming along two or three walls, goldfish in your bathroom, a rooster in your kitchen, Jennifer and Milo can do it for you.

I asked them what their house is like, working on available there... the concept that usually artists and craftspeople create An excellent wedding gift. Teachers would love it, too!

beauty for everyone else and none for themselves. Wrong! They exchanged smiles and said they paint it every couple three months and currently have fish on the bathroom ceiling and piano keys going up the

That's not all, friends and neighbors, Milo is a folk singer/songwriter with his own band, Milo & The Pickpockets. I treated myself to a YouTube Video of Milo and his band doing, "Missing Sierra Madre." They've got an album, too! Look them up on You Tube, Reverbnation and FaceBook, very mellow sound.

Jennifer is also a canvas artist in her spare time, when she's not at various events doing face painting, glitter or henna tattoos. She's always at the Wistaria Festival doing faces and glitter tattoos and she will be in front of Belle's Nest on Baldwin on Halloween face painting anyone who would like a face to match their costume. And here's something you'll want to know, the glitter tattoos won't come off if the wearer happens to get suddenly sweaty.

Google Jennifer Lindstrom and Milo Ominetti, or LA Works and see examples of their beautiful work. What joy they bring to school children when they completely change their environment. Go take a look at those benches and meet Jennifer in front of Belle's Nest on Baldwin on Halloween.

Have a wonderful week, pray for rain and cooler weather and look for scarecrows!

At first, Dad and I didn't see eye to eye about moving to The Kensington, but ever since he did, we've both been thrilled

f you were to ask my Dad before he moved to The Kensington why he should, he'd have assured you that everything was fine—that there was no need. However, I didn't see things the same way. Sure, my Dad had enjoyed a wonderful life with his wife in their home. But for the last few years, he'd been caring for her while she was terminally ill. Once she died, he was lonely and sad living by himself. It broke my heart. I understood that leaving memories behind would be hard, but when The Kensington came to Sierra Madre, I got excited for both of us. It took some persuasion to get my Dad to move. Finally, he did! Now, he is joking around again. New friends and lots to do have made him incredibly happy. Thanks to The Kensington, I have my Dad back.

DETAILS ABOUT MONROVIA RENEWAL AND THE WATER / SEWER RATE ADJUSTMENTS

During the past year, the most visible capital improvement program that the City has established is a project we have called, Monrovia Renewal, a comprehensive community wide infrastructure project geared towards replacing / repairing every street, water facility, and sewer facility in need of improvement here in Monrovia. All told, the overall Monrovia Renewal project is estimated to cost $51.7 million. To help fund the initiative, last Tuesday, we held a Public Hearing at our City Council meeting to consider an adjustment to the City's existing water and sewer rates. If approved, the increased rates would allow us to make the capital improvements identified in the overall Monrovia Renewal program. Based on the process mandated by Proposition 218, if 50% + 1 of our customers submitted a protest against the proposed rate changes, then the City Council would not be allowed to consider the adjustments.

Practically speaking, what this meant was this... the City has 9,103 water customers, and if 4,552 customers (50% + 1) protested the water rate adjustment, the City Council could not consider the proposed changes. Similarly, the City has 8,559 sewer customers, and if 4,280 customers (50% + 1) protested the sewer rate adjustment, then the proposed changes could not be considered.

Ultimately, after the Public Hearing took place this past Tuesday, we had 463 protest votes against the water rate adjustment, and 378 protest votes against the sewer rate adjustment. This meant that the City could in fact consider the proposed changes, and after deliberating the matter for several hours, the City Council voted unanimously to approve the newly proposed water and sewer rates on first reading. In order for the new rates to be implemented, the item must be approved on second reading, and that hearing will take place on October 20, 2015.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show THE SICARIO REVIEW

Few movies, to my knowledge, have been made about the drug wars in Mexico and how the cartels have an impact on the people who live along the southern border of the United States. And even fewer have been as mainstream as 'Sicario'. With a great cast and a director fresh off a success ('Prisoners'), does 'Sicario' succeed as not only a movie but as a political statement as well?

Kate Macer (Emily Blunt), an FBI agent with the morals of U.S. government deeply imbued in the way she handles drug raids. After discovering a particularly gruesome drug house, she is recruited by Matt Graver (Josh Brolin) and a mysterious man whose name she does not know (Benicio del Toro) to be on a task force with an unknown goal; however, she knows one thing: the task force will make a big impact on the drug war. But will she have to compromise her

'Sicario' is, like 'Gone Girl', a slow-burn movie; it takes a bit to get into the action. While the beginning does feature a brutally violent sequence, the film takes its time, building character and intrigue whenever it can. The cinematography is particularly impressive, breathing life into the deserts of Arizona and Mexico, and brings the stark reality of the drug war to American audiences.

DEER CROSSING AND A BUNCH OF OTHER REASONS TO SLOW DOWN!

I'll never forget the first time I saw a family of deer wandering around on the property where I lived when were wild deer that lived in the foothills, and that they often came down into the canyons and neighborhoods while foraging for food during the day. But until that morning when I awoke early and saw them nibbling away on the weeds in my yard, I had no idea how majestic that sight would be.

I was amazed at how peaceful they were, roaming of our houses and into our cars, then swiftly down the hill to the freeway and eventually to work, hopefully on time! Those deer gave me a sense of serenity. Just respect and bidding that we allow them to carry on with their simple daily routine. It made me realize all the more, how fortunate I was to live in this unique

Many years have passed since my first deer sighting in Sierra Madre and much has changed in our town, but one thing that has stayed the same is my looking forward to the next time I'll get to see deer passing through my neighborhood. I tend to keep an eye out for them, in hopes that they will indeed come around and I will be blessed with that majestic moment of serenity that they have a way of bringing to my day.

I drive on Grand View Avenue daily, and often, when I am headed east toward Santa Anita Blvd. I'll catch a glimpse of some darling deer grazing in the huge yard on the north side of the street, or in the city yards on the south side. I always slow down when I see them because I know there may be a young straggler still trying to scale the fence to cross the street and join the others, or perhaps one of the adults taking up the rear to ensure that everyone else made it safely across.

It only takes a couple of seconds for me to slow down, just in case, and for me it is always such a pleasure to see them. This is why I am completely mystified by the many motorists I see speeding across Grand View on a daily basis, with the pedal to the metal as if they are on a freeway somewhere in LA rather than on a residential street in Sierra Madre. The speed limit on Grand View is 30 miles per hour, just in case that is not made clear enough by the signs. I'm just saying.

One might argue that Grand View is such a wide over the limit a bit because of the steep hill and wide us moved here.

range of visibility. I get it, I do. But still, the law is the law. Please abide by it when you are driving through our town. I sense that there are numerous drivers these days who somehow feel exempt from such "petty" traffic laws as 'going the speed limit' or stopping at a stop sign', so allow me to clarify; You are not exempt! No one is exempt, so get with the program and drive accordingly! There really are reasons why those laws have been put into place. It's ok if you don't understand.

And then there are the tiny winding roads up in the canyon where residents wish to enjoy a peaceful, quiet lifestyle and they pay dearly for it. Did you know that the speed limit on I moved to Sierra Madre 24 years ago. I had heard there most canyon roads is 15 miles per hour? Yep, just like the signs say...FIFTEEN, not fifty! As a dog walker who often has no choice but to walk along the short shoulders of those tiny canyon roads, I know for a fact that there are far too many people who apparently do not know the speed limit up there, or again, perhaps they think they are exempt.

Please read and acknowledge the speed limit signs free among the humans as we bustled about to get out in the canyon, even if 15 mph may seem ridiculous for you drive in your speedy new vehicle. And if there happens to be a pedestrian walking on the road where there is no sidewalk, you might have to slow down knowing they were there, trusting us to show them enough to allow them to get to a place where they can get off the road onto someone's driveway or yard to allow you to pass by. Don't threaten them by revving your motor or pressing in so close they feel forced to climb a boulder or a tree to get out of your way. Basic common sense, right? One would think.

Then there are those who, in lieu of showing the courtesy of slowing down and allowing the pedestrian enough time to get off the road, choose to speed up even more and zoom around them with a scowl as if that person intentionally set out to conspire against their morning commute. Anyone who is in that much of a hurry might want to consider leaving the house earlier and allow for enough time to accommodate the canyon-dweller slash LA-commuter lifestyle they chose for themselves. Just a thought.

The other day I had to laugh when a "friend" asked me, Why do people need to walk their dogs on the streets in the canyon anyway?" There once was a time when could have had a field day with that one and left him feeling like a real moron, but not anymore. I just smiled on the outside and laughed real hard on the inside before backing away slowly and leaving him apparently still waiting for an answer. No, it wasn't a rhetorical question, and no, he wasn't kidding! I had to laugh.

Now I realize this little rant doesn't quite qualify as "Happy Tail", but I do hope it may have brought on a little giggle or smile to lighten the day for those who 'get it'. Most importantly, though, I hope the message hits home with at least one reader who is ready to admit he or she needs to slow down when driving in town. Peace and tranquility...if I remember correctly, open road, it is tempting for even a good driver to go these were top on the list of many reasons why most of

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND?

To be your best buddy?

Flash is a spunky, independent terrier mix, almost 10 years old, weighing about 14 pounds. Flash has a coat of reddish blond fur that can be worn longer or short. He has had a couple of professional grooming sessions during his time at the shelter, and looks very handsome with his summer cut. When you a smile on his face and will greet you with a friendly welcome bark.

Flash was surrendered to the shelter because his family had to move to a home where pets are not allowed. It is often a hard adjustment for a dog coming from a family home to a shelter, but Flash is resilient, and has made the best of it. He has made new friends and gets along well with staff, volunteers, and other dogs he has met during his time with us.

Flash is easy to harness and enjoys going for walks to the park with our volunteers. He is interested in the outside world and likes to sniff and explore when he gets out, taking in all the activity going on around him. He is happy especially some treats. Flash is very motivated by food and will sit on command if there is a reward offered. He is not known as a lap cuddler, but he does like to get attention, and has been known to roll over for a belly rub.

Flash has had several different kennel mates during his time at the shelter. He seems to want to be the Alpha dog, and does not enjoy sharing his food with another dog. Although Flash usually takes the dominant role, he has met his match with Roy, his most of the time, but in a friendly manner, and often information and how to sign up!

FOOD AND DRINK

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

This past week I hosted a wine tasting at a local supermarket. The tasting was successful, but what really amazed me was the consumer's quest for knowledge about wine. The wine itself was a medium priced chardonnay that, quite honestly, is available anywhere you shop. The myriad of questions ranged widely, from finding a nice sparkling wine for a wedding, what to have with steak dinner, what's oaky, what's buttery, chill the wine or not, keep in the refrigerator or not, and on and on. I'll actually answer that last question right now: never put your wine in the fridge until you are ready to drink it. And don't get me started on wines at weddings - can't we just bring our own?

We are all creatures of habit. I have a very short list of sparkling wine and champagnes that I will purchase off a restaurant menu. You might be thinking ok, Peter, you get a lot of new bees to your wine tastings, why should I go to a wine tasting? Simple: you get to taste before you buy. The laws have loosened a bit over the past few years and many of our local supermarkets now offer wine tastings in their stores. Vons, Whole Foods and Bev Mo come to my mind. The laws are still there - over 21, only a taste and limited hours - but I can't think of a better way to try something new. The tastes are limited to an ounce so what do you have to loose? If the supermarket tasting experience isn't your thing, how about hosting your own? I have done this several times with friends and it's always a hit. Each person is assigned a different country and must come in with tasting sheets for the wine that they have brought. Add a little cheese and, bingo you have your own tasting panel. Many of the wines that I have written about right here in this column were found at such events. Go one step further, keep all the wines in a paper bag and rate them!

For more wine events, please go to my website wwwpeterdills.com and listen to Dining with Dills Sundays at 6 pm AM 830 KLAA. Wine Tasting this Thursday in Pasadena, please email at thechefknows@yahoo.com for additional details.

of champagne and a variety of red wines from France, which also has their fair share of wonderful chardonnays, though the terrain is not as smooth as our friends in Napa and Sonoma have it. Located in the southern part of Burgundy, at the north edge of Beaujolais (a great restaurant in Eagle Rock is named after this region) Pouilly Fuisse is one of top wines of these regions.

This is my first non-bubbles review of French wines - a 2013 Jadot Pouilly Fuisse made with 100% chardonnay grapes. While we tend to give California wines labels like "buttery", I'll go with "crisp". This wine is a medium-bodied chardonnay with notes of honey and melon, and if you close your eyes long enough, a touch of oak. I will admit, however, on my review I did cheat - my bottle was way above their recommended 12 degrees Celsius, and my wine's food companion was red seedless grapes. An interesting wine maker note: one part of the wine is fermented in stainless steel vats and in oak barrels, a combination that delivers a silky, smooth finish. The wine maker recommends a fish or cream sauce pairing. Pouilly Fuisse is a great representation of old world wine making. Bravo!

Each week I will give you my Dills Score. I have added points for value. I'm starting with a base of 50 points; I added 7 points for color, 8 points for aroma or "nose", 8 points for taste, 9 points for finish, and 9 points for my overall impression, which includes my value rating. Total Score 91, retail $25 on Sale, around $21 at most area supermarkets including Ralph's and Vons.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: SMALL BLACK - 'BEST BLUES'

By Sean Kayden

of in indie rock. After crafting two terrific LPs, can the band's new LP Best Blues finally serve as their breakthrough record? Let's back track for a moment. On their debut, New Chain, the Brooklyn quartet fell into the genre of chillwave. With lo-fi production and hazy melodies, the snyth-pop record was spellbinding and eclectic. Their follow-up album Limits of Desire arrived three years after their debut and demonstrated a change of direction. A much more personal and mature record, Small Black included more acoustic guitars, alongside live drum as opposed to exclusively sticking with snyths. On Best Blues, lead singer Josh Kolenik seems as if he is whispering his words. He isn't showy or belting out the lyrics, but displays a discreet delivery. However, within the ten glistening tracks, you can sense a deep emotional attachment. Ryan Heyner (guitar/keyboards), Juan Pieczanski (bass/guitar), and Jeff Curtin (drums) round up Small Black. Best Blues delves into the realm of melancholic pop with wistful melodies and wondrous hooks. As the record continues to play on, you become lost inside the land of Small Black and frankly, there aren't too many records this year you would rather wander

As I speak about being lost in Best Blues, one of the themes of the record is personal loss. A particular loss of the people you were the closest to. The opener, "Personal Best," has a specific line that could resonate with a lot of people..."I see you running out of time." Small Black does a lot of exploring here. Not only with their exquisite sound, but their lyrically as well. There's this regretful tinge in Kolenik's voice that occupies both a delicate and devastating tone as it is layered over a tuneful arrangement. "No One Wants It To Happen To You" is a peaceful gem that expands the group's Grade: 8.1 out of 10

Small Black may be the sound palette. With a repetitive chorus of the song's most underrated band title, there's definitely a sense of vulnerability for sure. The songs operate as ones that truly pacify the listener. The first single "Boys Life" lyrically touches upon deep sentiment yet provide a nightclub snyth composition. "The Closer I Look" is breezy, soulful, and sepia-toned. The reverb-doused track supplies an emotional punch as many of the songs on Best Blues so effortlessly do. It's difficult not to describe this record as bittersweet, delicate, or easy listening. "Big Ideas, Pt. 2" displays Kolenik's ethereal vocals in the foreground while a pulsating bass line supports the background. Once again, the assortment of songs are pretty, appealing, and mostly subtle.

"Back At Belle's" blurs the line of chillwave and snythpop. The haziness found on the earlier work of Small Black is evident here. It's another song that gives off a sense of longing. "Between Leos" is striking with a dreaminess that touches upon the likes of The Cure. Best Blues holds together very well and if you like one or two songs right off the bat, chances are you will enjoy this entire record. "XX Century" is richly textured, beautifully composed, and alleviating. After absorbing the record in, it's clear that Small Black is carrying a lot of emotional weight within their new series of songs. The breathtaking experience is worth every minute as Small Black looks back at a shattered past in the efforts to let it go and pursue new

A is for Arsenic: The Poisons of Agatha Christie by Kathryn

People are fascinated by murder. The popularity of murder mystery books, TV series, and even board games shows that there is an appetite for death, and the more unusual or macabre the method, the better. With gunshots or stabbings the cause of death is obvious, but poisons are inherently more mysterious.

How are some compounds so deadly in such tiny amounts? Agatha Christie used poison to kill her characters more often than any other crime fiction writer. The poison was a central part of the In his introduction, guest editor James Patterson novel, and her choice of deadly substances was characteristics of each poison provide vital clues to the discovery of the murderer. Written by former research chemist Kathryn Harkup, each chapter takes a different novel and investigates the poison used by the murderer. Fact- and funpacked, A is for Arsenic looks at why certain

DEEPENING THE MYSTERY

"The job of the artist is always to deepen the mystery."

A good friend, whom I consider a mentor, uses that quote at the bottom of his emails. I've been thinking about it a lot recently. Last week I wrote about the constant juggle that I face trying to keep the Playhouse moving forward and growing and making it a place that deepens the mystery. I was asked by another friend if it was worth all the stress that it adds to my life. I love theater. I believe that theater can be a force for change and growth both for myself and for others. And, I am an artist. I live in the world as an artist. What does that mean? I think constantly about the big issues love, connection, intolerance, man's inhumanity, friendship, family, patriotism, etc. – as I try to work them out for myself and find meaning, and because I can't paint or sing or write, I think about them as theater. The immediacy and the communion of theater makes it speak to me as an artist. Being in the same room as an audience at the moment of creation - because all good theater is an act of constant creation. Feeling considering, probing together is a dialogue between me and you. I am thinking out loud when I plan a season, when I direct a play, when I act. Thinking out loud and inviting others into a conversation that I hope will both deepen the mystery and offer some answers.

I have had a few extraordinary experiences as a theater-goer. I remember being a very young man and seeing Chekov's The Three Sisters at the American Conservatory Theater in San Francisco. The yearning of Masha, Olga, and Irina for Moscow spoke to me so profoundly that I couldn't get up after the show. I sat in my seat stunned that a hundred year-old play could so explicitly capture how I was feeling at that moment - the yearning I had to move on, to find my desires, to fulfill myself. I had one of the most thrilling experiences at Antony and Cleopatra at the National Theater in London with Judy Dench and Antony Hopkins in Peter Hall's sublime production. This 500 year-old play spoke to me so directly about love and desire that I have never forgotten it.

So I'll keep on with the struggle. I hope that the Playhouse will be the scene of some heart-stopping moments for our patrons. Not every show has to do that - we need a good mix of shows that will make you forget yourself as well as find yourself. But I am trying to build a theater that means something. I am trying to deepen the mystery for myself and for you. Please let me know what you think at ArtisticDirector@ SierraMadrePlayhouse.org

If you haven't seen Patsy you have until October 30 to do so. We are planning a big party for the closing performance and are inviting our audiences to come join us – there will be food and drink and lots of music. Tickets for the closing party are $25. and Americans complain that they suffer some sort of fatigue. It may range from needing a nap mid-day to symptoms more severe like chronic fatigue. Fatigue is frustrating and can be debilitating. For some people they have to push through every day. For these same people, at the end of each long and exhausting day, sleep is yet another challenge. Oddly, for many people the more exhausted the worse sleep at night. After a restless night of tossing and turning, the cycle begins again as the Feeling great and energetic requires reversing the things that contributed to the problem in the first place. Fatigue is something that gradually goes away so you have to be committed. Supporting your body with lots of fresh fruits and vegetables which will improve your body's immune system will greatly aid in restoring normal energy levels. Here are 5 more things that you can do to get started on a path of eliminating fatigue. 1. Cut back on caffeine.

Adrenaline is what gives athletes that winning burst of energy and also gives a person the strength

they are during the day,

arises. Caffeine stimulates your adrenal glands to produce this fight or flight response. When the over stimulation of your adrenals wears off you feel fatigue, and possibly irritability and headaches. If you are constantly using caffeine you are keeping your body in "flight-or-flight" mode. 2. Try to relax. Make your world as small and uncomplicated as possible by reducing your everyday needs. Start by filtering news and information. If you cannot do anything about it and it stresses you, you do not need to be concerned with it. Learn to practice relaxation techniques whenever you can. Meditation, even for a couple of minutes can relieve stress as can a few slow deep breaths.

3. Generate feel good hormones through

Endorphins are the "feel good" chemicals induced by exercise. Of course, you can be so fatigued that doing anything seems impossible which is a real 'Catch 22" because moving is needed to eliminate fatigue. We need to be physically tired as well as mentally or emotionally. A simple walk can be the first step. Once you have established a routine, begin to walk farther or slightly faster. Yoga is another great option to get your body moving again and to relieve fatigue.

4. Try to develop good sleep habits.

Our bodies need a mini tune-up daily. Sleep, especially deep sleep, is when our bodies do this repair and maintenance. There are many things you can do to promote a good night's sleep. Once you have done 1, 2 and 3 above to improve your odds of sleeping well then try to; establish a schedule, don't eat too close to bedtime, and keep your bedroom as dark as possible.

5. Embrace whole food or herbal therapy instead of drug therapy.

If you are taking any type of drug therapy, be aware that it may actually be contributing to fatigue. Nutritional deficiencies can make it difficult to get your energy levels back even when you are doing all of the above. There are whole food and herbal supplements that feed the body what it needs to overcome fatigue without side effects. Herbs can help relieve the symptom of fatigue directly by enhancing immune function, balancing hormones, and stimulating the healing systems of the body. Feeling good every day does require a healthy lifestyle and some effort but it well worth it!

THE GOOD LIFE

SOCIAL SECURITY'S VIAGRA BENEFIT FOR KIDS

Dear Savvy Senior:

I've been told that my children, who are 13 and 16 years old, may be eligible for Social Security when I file for my retirement benefits. What can you tell me about this?

Older Dad

It's true. If you're retired and are still raising young children, there's a little-known Social Security benefit dubbed the "Viagra benefit," that can put some extra money in your family coffers.

Here's how it works. When you file for Social Security retirement benefits, each of your minor children can get money on your work record equaling half of what you would receive at full retirement age, which is currently 66. Even if you were to take a smaller benefit by claiming earlier, your kids will still get half of your full-retirement age amount.

To qualify, your kids – whether they're biological, adopted or step children – must be unmarried and under age 18. Kids that are over 18 but still in high school, can collect too until they graduate or turn 19, whichever comes first. (Other rules apply to kids that are disabled.)

But that's not all.

Because you have one child that's only 13, your wife (if you're married) can collect Social Security benefits on your work record too. And it doesn't matter if she's just 40 years old. The minimum age requirements to collect retirement benefits (62) or survivor benefits (60) do not apply when it comes to collecting benefits as the caregiver of a young child. The spouse's benefit, which is also worth up to half of your benefit, will stop when your child

But be aware that there are limits to the amount of money that can be paid to a family. The Social Security "family maximum payment" is determined by a complex formula (see ssa.gov/ oact/cola/familymax.html) and can range from 150 to 180 percent of your full retirement benefit amount. If the total exceeds that, each person's benefit, except yours, is cut proportionately until it equals the maximum.

Here's an example of how that's figured. Let's say, for example, that your full retirement age benefit is $2,000. After doing the Social Security math computations that would make your family maximum benefit $3,500.

Subtract your $2,000 benefit from the $3,500 family maximum benefit, which leaves $1,500. That's the monthly amount that can be split between your two children - $750 each. If your wife wants in on it too, the individual checks are smaller, at $500 a piece, but the family amount is

File and Suspend

One other benefit boosting strategy you should know about that's relevant here is "file and suspend." If you're still working and would like to wait, say to age 67 or even 70 to start claiming your own benefits, you can file and suspend starting at full retirement age 66.

This option gives you the ability to start monthly payments for your minor children and wife, but suspend your own benefit so you can collect a larger amount later. Your benefit will increase by 8 percent per year for every year you delay collecting your retirement benefit up until age 70. That means your retirement benefit at age 70 will be 132 percent of what it would have been if he had collected at age

You should also know that minor children can collect Social Security benefits based on the earnings of a parent who is disabled or dead too.

VAMPIRE-IZE IT!

Halloween upon us I thought I'd re-submit a piece muscle suits and leotards. I wrote a few years ago about the film, "Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter."

yet seen the film, but now I've had the pleasure of viewing it in all its campy glory. So here is my (somewhat) new and enhanced critique of a thoroughly enjoyable horror flick.

"Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter" has all the stock elements we'd expect from a movie with that title. It has action, (Abe swings his axe around like a Jedi knight's light saber), special effects, sex appeal (there are a few scantily clad vampire vixens), and blood. What vampire movie would be complete without copious amounts of blood?

At the time I wrote this America was still in the throws of an obsession with death and vampires. We are still flying through the air like a character from obsessed with death, but now we've transitioned from vampires to zombies. Nevertheless, the vampire craze did have an insanely long run. What started "Buffy, the Vampire Slayer"? That was back in 1997! There are young people for whom much of their lives digress. Back to Lincoln.

old theme was that its main character is Abraham it here first!

I have a confession to make Lincoln. Lincoln is great for documentaries, but an that I'm sure won't be a surprise unusual choice for the subject of a thriller/horror to anyone who's followed my movie? Everyone knows that the main character column for a while --I don't in these things has to be sexy. Lets consider some always get around to writing new current action flicks. (These were "current" at the stuff. I have good intentions, but time, so that lets you know how old this article is!) things seem to have just been "The Dark Night Rises" and "The Amazing Spiderreally busy lately. For that, I apologize. So, with Man" have Christian Bale and Andrew Garfield in

The creators of "Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter" couldn't have chosen a less sexy historical In revisiting this article, I had to update a few figure. Even Lincoln himself defamed his things. Namely, when I originally wrote it I hadn't appearance in his famous rebuttal, "If I were two-faced, do you think I'd be wearing this one?" Not only was Lincoln far from being eye candy, his wife, Mary Todd, resembled an angry Pillsbury Dough Boy in a dress. And she was a nut on top of that! Of course this movie couldn't portray her as a dumpy, raving lunatic. The similarity between actress Mary Elizabeth Winstead, who plays Mary Todd, and the historical figure herself end with their first names. It's like comparing Angelina Jolie to Robin Williams as "Mrs. Doughtfire."

Ludicrous as it sounds, I actually enjoyed this film. You can't go wrong with a former president

"Crouching Tiger." Back when I first wrote this piece there was a trend in books and entertainment about middle aged women "finding themselves" it all? Surely not Bram Stoker's Dracula. At the time I supposed that Hollywood could come out with a movie about Baby Boomers flocking to India in search of the fountain of youth. have been spent during the great American vampire I further imagined that an older Thelma and Louise era. PLUTO'S BIG MOON CHARON REVEALS A COLORFUL AND VIOLENT HISTORY

NASA's New Horizons spacecraft has returned the best color and the highest resolution images yet of Pluto's largest moon, Charon-and these pictures show a surprisingly complex and violent

At half the diameter of Pluto, Charon is the largest satellite relative to its planet in the solar system. Many New Horizons scientists expected Charon to be a monotonous, crater-battered world; instead, they're finding a landscape covered with mountains, canyons, landslides, surface-color variations and more.

"We thought the probability of seeing such interesting features on this satellite of a world at the far edge of our solar system was low," said Ross Beyer, an affiliate of the New Horizons Geology, Geophysics and Imaging (GGI) team from the SETÎ Institute and NASA Ames Research Center in Mountain View, California, "but I couldn't be more delighted with what we see!"

High-resolution images of the Pluto-facing hemisphere of Charon, taken by New Horizons as the spacecraft sped through the Pluto system on July 14, and transmitted to Earth on Sept. 21, reveal details of a belt of fractures and canyons just north of the moon's equator. This great canyon system stretches across the entire face of Charon, more than a thousand miles, and probably around onto Charon's far side. Four times as long as the Grand Canyon, and twice as deep in places, these faults and canyons indicate a titanic geological upheaval in Charon's past.

"It looks like the entire crust of Charon has been split open," said John Spencer, deputy lead for GGI at the Southwest Research Institute in Boulder, Colorado. "In respect to its size relative to Charon, this feature is much like the vast Valles Marineris canyon system on Mars."

The team has also discovered that the plains south of the canyon, informally referred to as Vulcan Planum, have fewer large craters than the regions to the north, indicating that they are noticeably younger. The smoothness of the plains, as well as their grooves and faint ridges, are clear signs of wide-scale resurfacing.

One possibility for the smooth surface is a kind of cold volcanic activity, called cryovolcanism. "The team is discussing the possibility that an Lunar and Planetary Institute in Houston. internal water ocean could have frozen long ago,

CHRISTOPHER Nyerges TREE TOBACCO (NICOTIANA GLAUCA)

Don't eat this poisonous plant!

Nyerges has led botanical field trips since 1974. He is the author of several books including "Guide to Wild Foods and Useful Plants," "How to Survive Anywhere," and others. More information about his classes and books is available from School of Self-Reliance, Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041, or www.SchoolofSelf-Reliance.com.]

The most common wild tobacco in the west and southwest is Nicotiana glauca, commonly called tree tobacco or Indian tobacco. It's a member of the Nightshade family. The plant is not a native of the U.S., but was introduced first into California by the Spanish missionaries from Bolivia, Argentina, and Paraguay.

It's far more common than the smaller native tobaccos. Tree tobacco grows large and tall, almost tree-like with its large bluish-green waxy leaves and yellow tubular flowers.

This South America native is now found along the flood beds of streams, along trails, and the least hospitable arid wasteland areas all over the southwestern and western United States. It is also readily cultivated in gardens, especially by people who grow them because the yellow tubular flowers attract hummingbirds. I have done this, and always enjoyed seeing the brilliant hummingbirds and bees around the tall plant.

The ovoid leaves are entire (not toothed), glabrous (not hairy), bluish green, and alternately arranged. The leaves of the new young plant are extremely large, sometimes up to two feet in length. The average length of a leaf, however, is approximately six inches. As the plant matures, the leaves become much smaller—from one inch to three inches.

DON'T EAT TREE TOBACCO!

It is poisonous to eat this plant. Poisonings occur most often with the new growth of the tree tobacco plant, well before any flowers have formed.

In one case, a man in Los Angeles County purchased and planted some collard seeds in his backyard, not far from the wild hilly country of the Angeles National Forest. Eventually, some plants came up which he picked, cooked, and ate like collard greens that he remembered from back home in the South. He became severely sick, and managed to get to the hospital where they pumped his stomach.

Later, he took some of the plants to a nearby nature center, and he learned that the plants which grew in his collard patch were actually tree tobacco. The tree tobacco seed was most likely already there, and they grew up before the collards had a chance. In fact, the new growth of tree tobacco does bear a resemblance to collard, so this man's mistake was somewhat understandable. Fortunately, he lived. In the last few years, there were some women in the Sierra Madre area who actually died by confusing the young tree tobacco for something they thought was edible.

People from the Southern states, and from Mexico, may be accustomed to eating the cooked greens of pokeweed (Phytolacca americana). Pokeweed is a OTHER USES toxic plant with water soluble toxins, and is never consumed raw. The young greens are boiled, the water discarded, and the greens are cooked again. The toxin in pokeweed is water soluble, so the greens are then safe to eat. In fact, pokeweed is a longtime traditional southern food, but everyone who eats it knows that you have to cook it first. When some of these folks move out to the western confuse the two.

If tree tobacco is eaten, it can cause vomiting, stomach pains, diarrhea, general weakness, irregular pulse, shaking, convulsion of muscles, and even death. Although tree tobacco does contain about 1% nicotine, it also has about 10% of anabasine, the alkaloid found in its leaves, stems and flowers. This alkaloid has been linked to birth defects in cows, pigs and sheep who graze on the plant. All parts of the tree tobacco are poisonous. According to Dr. James Adams (co-author of "Healing with Medicinal Plants of the West"), "Anabasine is a compound similar in structure and activity to nicotine, but more toxic in terms of seizure induction. As few as three leaves of Nicotiana glauca can be fatal."

Even though you should never eat tree tobacco, there are a few good uses for the plant.

MEDICINAL USES

According to Edward K. Balls, author of "Early Uses of California Plants," tree tobacco leaves were once used medicinally. "The leaves were supposed to be good steamed and used as a poultice to relieve a swollen throat, and steamed into the body for those suffering from rheumatism," he explains.

A poultice made from the leaves of this plant was occasionally used as a pain killer on cuts and was applied to a rattlesnake bite after an attempt had been made to suck out the venom.

A dense tea brewed from the tree tobacco leaves can be used as an insect repellent and can be sprayed directly onto roses, vegetables, and animal pens and cages. This works great to get rid of aphids. Cook an ample concentration of fresh leaves in water in a big (covered) pot until there is a brown tea. Let cool, then strain and spray on your plants. You might wish to add a biodegradable liquid detergent to the states and see young tree tobacco, they periodically tobacco tea so it will better adhere to the foliage.

I'M SO ITCHY I DON'T KNOW WHERE TO START SCRATCHING

In our house, we have an ongoing debate. The am the king of procrastination.

At first, I did not quite understand what she was talking about and asked if I could get back to her on that question.

She has the idea that I put things off until the last minute, then, according to her, I'm in a panic to get it done. I am not saying she is right; she just might have a good point there. I'll get back to you on

Before I do anything, I like to give it plenty of thought, sit in my chair and meditate on that project until I really have it clearly developed in my mind from beginning to end. The problem is my wife thinks my meditation is closer to taking a nap than meditation. She just does not understand the dynamics of meditation. Sure, when I am meditating on a project, it may seem like I am taking a nap. It takes an awful lot of meditating on a subject for me to form a good plan. I like to know what I am going to do every step of the way and I do not like to get started until I have it completely fixed in my mind.

This is particularly true when it comes to the infamous "honey-do-list." Sometimes that list is so long and complicated I just do not know where to start. Starting, as you well know, is the first step in getting it done.

If you do not start a project right, it will not end up right. That is the argument I try to give to my wife who counters with, "The first step in doing the project is to start doing the project."

I am trying to get her to understand my "starting a project" begins with some deep meditation on that project. I cannot help it if that meditation period is comprehensive.

"Could it be," my wife suggested, "that you're so itchy you don't know where to start to scratch?"

Well, I could not have been more offended in my life. When I am itchy I know when and where to scratch. In fact, right now I am getting a little itchy on the subject of procrastination. However, I will wait until tomorrow to do anything about it.

I must confess I do put things off at times. I learned one thing in life; sometimes when you put things off long enough, they do not need doing. I do not know how many times I tried doing something and by the time I got it done it was no longer necessary. I want to be very careful that what I start needs to be finished.

My wife, if you will permit me, is super ambitious. When a project comes to the forefront she wants to get it started and finished right away.

For example, Take Christmas shopping

When it comes to Christmas shopping for Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage claims I myself, I usually wait until Christmas Eve. That is the traditional time for me to do Christmas shopping. Then, if you shop on Christmas Eve and they run out of something you can always say, "I wanted to get you this, but they were all out at the time."

Not so for the other resident in the house. She begins Christmas shopping in the month of January. Yes, I said January!

Before we put away all the Christmas decorations she has prepared a list for next year's Christmas gifts. I really do not know how she does it. Even while people are opening their presents, she is thinking of what to get them next year.

Land sakes alive!

Sitting around the Christmas tree opening our presents, I am literally amazed at some of the gifts. I never would have thought somebody would want the present my wife bought. They all thank her and are appreciative and do not know how she knows exactly what they want.

I well remember when we first got married and the first time I took her grocery shopping, I was stunned. I had never gone grocery shopping in my life.

We got a shopping cart and she began piling that shopping cart full of food. I noticed she had a two-page list of groceries that she needed to buy and little by little she cross them off.

When we got to the counter, we had a shopping cart and a half of groceries and the person behind the counter just stared with open mouth.

What my wife had done, and I have never seen it before, she bought groceries for the entire month. How did she know what we would be eating for a month?

Her motto is simply, "Never put off buying tomorrow what you can buy today."

As the cashier was ringing up the groceries, she would sneak a glance and smile at me. It finally dawned on me what she was smiling about. Not my good looks. But my checkbook that was going to have to pay for all of these groceries. I did not see that coming.

I was reminded of what Solomon said. "The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun" (Ecclesiastes 1:9).

Procrastination never scratches where it really itches.

The Benghazi Select Committee nothing more than a taxpayer funded opposition research group determined to stop Hillary Clinton from becoming president. Investigating the attack on our consulate in Benghazi might have started as a way to show that Barack Obama was weak on national security, but after seven investigations and 13 hearings, Benghazi has become Hillary Clinton's Whitewater.

Until McCarthy's gaffe, however, congressional leaders did a good job of pretending the Benghazi Select Committee, which has spent $4.5 million over 72 months, was seeking the truth about Benghazi. Now, that's impossible.

What happened was that Fox's Sean Hannity was pressing McCarthy for a single reason why Republican voters should not feel betrayed by their congressional leaders. McCarthy flailed. He offered up the 50 votes to repeal Obamacare. Hannity scoffed. McCarthy mentioned the shrinking deficit. Hannity talked over him, which in retrospect might have been a blessing.

Finally McCarthy found an accomplishment that passed muster with Hannity:

"Everybody thought Hillary Clinton was unbeatable, right? But we put together a Benghazi special committee, a select committee. What are her numbers today? Her numbers are dropping. Why? Because she's untrustable," said McCarthy.

good. I'll give you credit."

It's easy to forget that the email scandal is a byproduct of Benghazi, which was the first grounds not for unity but for partisan a stand down order. Jigs up, fellas.

The speed at which Mitt Romney blamed Obama for the Benghazi attack was shocking. He appeared so suddenly before the press that night on September 11, 2012, that he didn't even take the time to straighten his hair. Romney was so quick to seek political advantage from an attack on an American consulate that not only did he not wait until the bodies were buried but he didn't even wait until they were counted. Partisan politics

TIME FOR THE went well beyond the water's edge that day.

Obama won, but Benghazi lives on. The Benghazi Select Committee has devolved into a naked attempt to bring down Hillary Clinton. The Select Committee has not yet held a hearing with anyone from the Defense Department, but has questioned eight At least they're not current or former members of the Clinton campaign.

> The Select Committee isn't trying hard to hide what it's up to, but it's a model of discretion compared to the Republican Party. In 2014, the GOP's congressional arm put up a fundraising webpage to "hold Hillary Clinton and Barack Obama accountable for their actions." Rep. Trey Gowdy, the chairman of the Select Committee, complained at the time, but the website only came down last week when the Clinton campaign pointed out that they were still raising money off Benghazi.

The last time we went through all of this was late in Bill Clinton's second term, when congressional Republicans investigated Bill Clinton for an old real estate deal but impeached him for lying to a special prosecutor about cheating on his wife. What the Republicans could not do at the ballot box they attempted to do by perverting the legal process, turning politics into prosecution.

Now here we are again. Republicans are not even waiting for Hillary to win before ginning up a political prosecution. And they've long since lost interest in parsing the details about what happened in Benghazi. This is Whitewater, except with emails.

The Select Committee has been meeting for 72 months, making it the longest congressional investigation ever, longer than congressional probes into Watergate, 9/11, Pearl Harbor, and the Kennedy assassination. The beatings will continue until polling improves.

The problem isn't the Clintons. The real scandal is that Republicans are so outraged "I agree," said Hannity. "That's something that they can't beat them that they'll do anything to stop them, and they're only too happy to use your tax dollars to fund their political operation. If there's a grownup left at the Republican National Committee, it's attack on our country that instantly became time to give the Benghazi Select Committee

MICHAEL Reagan Making Sense

time for common sense national background checks for journalists. It's time we closed the political loophole and prevented biased, ignorant political operatives from getting their hands on a dangerously misleading national microphone. RedState has a perfect example this week. Former Bill Clinton White House aide, and current Clinton Foundation donor George Stephanopoulos, is the host for ABC's This Week. He uses his "bully pulpit" to bully conservatives and Republicans.

During an interview with New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie, Stephanopoulos interrupted Christie to assert, "But there's no question the pace of mass shootings is accelerating, happening more frequently than anywhere else. If it's not the gun, then what is it?"

This is a perfect example of leftist thinking. As Dennis Prager points out, the left always blames the inanimate object and never the

During the Cold War the left wanted to ban atomic weapons rather than condemn and work to overthrow totalitarian regimes that could use The Bomb to further their ends. Leftist-in-Chief Obama continues to be fixated on nuclear weapons and behind the scenes is working to render our nuclear deterrent impotent.

Now the left is fixated on the gun. Blaming the user of the gun is out of the question, because that involves individual responsibility.

Once America starts thinking in terms of individual responsibility again, it has the potential to open up a line of questioning that is very uncomfortable for big government leftists.

For example: Why can't you find a job? Where is the father of your children? How did your home enter foreclosure? What do you spend your money on? Why have we lost the War on Poverty?

After demonizing the gun, leftists like Stephanopoulos use false data from anti-gun pressure groups to contradict defenders of the 2nd Amendment.

First they change the definition of "mass shooting." Before the numbers started to trend against them, the definition was at least four deaths NOT counting the shooter. Now gun grabbers use three deaths as a minimum or they include the wretched shooter in the total. Naturally, as if by magic in a cloud of cordite, there are more mass shootings, but even doctored statistics can't support the 'accelerating" claim.

The RedState graph shows mass shootings peaked in 2004 and have not reached that peak since. Since 2008, mass shootings have been trending downward.

I'm certain rabid Democrat defenders of media bias will block my common sense background checks for journalists bill in the Senate. So in the meantime I can only advise you to beware leftists bearing statistics.
