THE GOOD THE BAD ABOUT EL NIÑO By Dean Lee

The anticipated El Niño event this winter is not expected to get us completely out of the drought and the much needed rainfall will be "manageable" with any damage concentrated into local individual events, JPL climatologist Dr. Bill Patzert told the Kiwanis Club Tuesday. Patzert said its local, personal, things like "Your roof is not fixed, you're in the foothills below a burn area, or you have been flooded every time it rains and don't do anything about it," that are associated with El Niño. He said a lot of the problems are just preparation and common

"My point is, the largest floods are not El Niño, El Niño tends to be steady but more frequent," good shape."

Patzert noted "real" flooding happens when the area gets a Pineapple Express, "These are things that come out of the tropics like a firehose." A Pineapple Express is a continuous surge of tropical moisture extending from near Hawaii to the west according to AccuWeather.com. Patzert said it's not fully understood but these storms can produce over 10 inches of rain in a single event compared to 1.5 inches for El Niño events. With El Niño we get more rainy days, noting that during the El Niño of 1998 there were 13 rain days with 13.68 inches of rain in February alone. Patzert also said El Niño only happens has rained 10 times, none of about every 17 to 20 years and supplies roughly 7 percent of the state's water. "Sixty percent Patzert said. "That's the good of the water comes from these news." He also said with the pineapple express kind of areas flood control, "We're in events, which can happen any year. We make a big deal out of El Niño but it's not a drought

To get out of the drought the state needs a decade or more of above normal rainfall and snowpack, said Patzert plus, we need to learn to adapt to a warmer and drier California. All in all, he advised getting flood insurance and to make copies of important documents and keep originals safe (stored outside of you house), take photos of possessions and make an itemized list of them. Safeguard valuables by moving them to higher ground and to know your evacuation routes. Patzert ended his talk by saying in the Rose Parade's history it which was an El Niño year.

First PHS Turkey Tussle Victory in 20 Years!

The last time Pasadena High came close to winning the annual 'big game' with John Muir High was in 1998 when there was a tie game. Three years earlier in 1995, they actually won, but it has been a dry season for PHS since then. That is, until Friday night when the PHS Bulldogs broke the spell and won the Turkey Tussle with a score of 13-6.

No, 5 Jeremiah Jones helped lead his team to victory with a 71 yard touchdown in the 4th quarter. PHS also intercepted the ball in the last two minutes of the game.

The Turkey Tussle is the annual homecoming tradition between the two cross town rival since

The coveted Victory Bell which came as a gift from the Santa Fe Railroad in 1955 at the pep ralley for the Turkey Tussle will come home with the Bulldogs, something that has only happened 19 times in the 69 year history of the rivalry and not since 1995.

The bell was intended to be used, as it still is, as a perpetual trophy to rotate between John Muir High School and Pasadena High School,

One of the highlights for the winning team is to rush to the end zone, celebrating their win, by ringing the VictoryBell. In June 2005, the John Muir High School campus was burglarized and the Victory Bell was stolen. On February 7, 2006 the Victory Bell was found near a road in the Angeles National Forest.

In November 2007 a documentary about the Turkey Tussle was produced and featured on Fox Sports West cable channel. Although it didn't tell the entire story of the Turkey Tussle, it did showcase the cross town battle that has been going on for 60 years between Pasadena High School and John Muir High School.

During the week of Sunday, October 25th, to Sunday, November 1st, the Sierra Madre Police Department responded to approximately 306 calls for service.

Tuesday, October 27th

At 2:26 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 500 block of Ramona Avenue regarding a suspicious circumstances report. Upon arrival the victim informed Officers that when she arrived home the night before at around 8:30 pm, she noticed a man wearing a hoodie type sweatshirt walking southbound on Park Avenue, in the middle of the street. After the victim parked her car and made her way towards her front door, she noticed another man also wearing a hoodie walk southwest across her front lawn and say hello to her. The woman initially thought nothing of the incident, but when she went to open her front door, it was unlocked. Upon entry, she noticed a few doors left ajar and several drawers in different rooms left slightly open, but believed her sons may have been the cause of it. The following morning, before calling Officers, she discovered the window screen from the laundry room had been removed. She explained to Officers that she typically keeps this window open and in the past her sons have used it when they have forgotten their key but when she asked her sons if they had used the window they stated that they had not. The woman informed Officers that she was unable to determine if anything was missing at this time. This case has been forwarded to the Detective Bureau.

Wednesday, October 28th

At 11:10 pm, Sierra Madre Police conducted a traffic stop on a vehicle. When Officers made contact with the driver and asked if there was anything illegal within the vehicle to which the driver stated there was marijuana. Officers located marijuana rolled into a cigarette inside the glove compartment. The driver stated that his work pays his tips out with marijuana and that he did not have a medical marijuana license. Officers took possession of the marijuana and booked it into evidence while the driver was cited for possession of marijuana and was released.

Thursday, October 29th

At 9:31 pm, Sierra Madre Police were patrolling the area of Michillinda Ave and Foothill Blvd when they conducted a traffic stop on a vehicle. Upon approaching the vehicle and making contact with the driver, Officers immediately smelled a strong odor of alcohol. When questioned about who had been drinking, the passenger informed Officers that he was the one who had been drinking, and while the driver stated he was underage therefore he had not been drinking. Officers noticed the driver's eyes were watery and bloodshot and asked the driver to perform a Field Sobriety Test. The driver complied and when he opened the door, Officers noticed a near empty beer bottle in the door side cup holder. The driver ultimately failed the field test was arrested and charged for driving while under the influence.

GET YOUR HANDS DIRTY AT THE COMMUNITY PLANTING DAY SATURDAY, NOV. 7TH!

Rain or shine, members of the community will be gathering in downtown Sierra Madre on November 7th to plant 200-300 plants on the grounds surrounding City Hall and the Police and Fire Station. The project was made possible through generous grants and donations from the community. As the City was unable to contribute financial resources to the landscape project, the City of Sierra Madre owes a special debt of gratitude to those organizations and individuals who stepped in to bring this project to life.

The Community Planting Day will take place outside City Hall on November 7, 2015 from 9:00AM – 12:00PM. Volunteers for the event are advised to bring adequate gardening gear including: hats, gloves, sunblock, as well as digging and trenching shovels. The San Gabriel Valley Municipal Water District will provide water and Girl Scout Troop 2991 will be on hand with refreshments.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

mistakes to occur." Lisa Agaran

Lisa Agaran teaches people like us to explore the true creativity within through the art of mixed media. If we have looked within ourselves and think we have no art at all crouching deep inside we are wrong. Lisa can coax it out through mixed acrylic applications, layering, textures and found objects...like those beautiful fall leaves and cute little acorns you walked past this morning, wishing you could do something with them. The thing about mixed media is that anyone at all, including us, with little or no prior experience can do it. In Lisa's workshops folks are free to experiment, be spontaneous, and, as she says, the magic happens when we invite accidents and mistakes to occur. In art, there are no mistakes. Your art is what your heart wants to express.

Having taken an art class at PCC once upon a time, I realized I was taking up the space of someone who actually had some clue about what the instructor was teaching. Needless to say, dropped out, hung my head in me and, if you've always wanted to create art that experience. expresses who you are, help is in sight!

Lisa Agaran teaches workshops for adults in several places, one of them our own Creative Arts Group right here on Baldwin. We got together this past week and had a splendid time. Lisa is a delightful person and would be fun to work with. She has a BFA from Art Center College of Design in Pasadena and a Masters in Psychology. After she achieved that Masters in Psychology, she stopped painting for a number of years and concentrated on being a therapist. Her Dad's passing in 2008 was a wake-up call for her to stop putting off art! She is a lifeline for those folks she calls "shadow artists," people who long to express their creativity, but fear holds them back. Blending her artistic and psychology talents, she is now a creativity coach, helping people just like us to find their untapped potential.

If you take a look at Lisa's website, ArtByLisaAgaran.com, you will see many of her completed works. I was particularly taken with her Lotus series. Lotus blossoms in various stages of life, from bud to full blown. The lotus signifies rebirth-transformation, which is what Lisa brings to her workshops, the opportunity for change within one's self. She also has a "statue series" where she photographs statues, many with a mythological intent, and integrates them into her

"The magic happens when we invite accidents and art. These are wonderful. We talked about statues at home and abroad, both that we've seen and would like to see. Lisa is always on the look-out for

The thing about Lisa's Mixed Media Workshops is that people are amazed at the end of just one day to see what they can do. They come in weighed down with fear and doubt about their ability to express themselves and end with a thing of beauty media. What's that? It's blending collage, different that is theirs forever. She also offers Visual Art shame and walked the three miles back to where or just have fun. If you are already journaling or I had parked my car. With Lisa and mixed media, blogging, Visual Journaling is a perfect addition there could have been a very different outcome for where you can create without any prior artistic

> Mark your calendar for the week of November 14-21. Lisa has a solo show, "A Collective Body of Work," at ArtCrush Studio, 2361 Lincoln Ave. in Altadena. There will be a pre-holiday sale, raffles where you have a chance to win an original piece, limited editions and prints at the Opening Reception which is 6:30-9:30 p.m. on Saturday, November 14th. Lisa will also be teaching workshops during the week of the exhibit.

> Lisa says there is creativity within us all if it is encouraged. Remember art class in third grade where the teacher told you your horse looked nothing like a horse!! Hopefully, that doesn't happen anymore. We need to have freedom to create for the sake of our own soul. If you don't know where to start, Lisa Agaran and her Mixed Media Workshops might be your first step onto the yellow brick road of true creativity and finding your creative potential. For upcoming dates and registration, visit: TrueCreativityWithin.com. I hope to see you at Lisa's show.

IN MEMORIAM

THE SHIP

I am standing on the seashore. A ship at my cloud just where the sea and sky come down to side spreads her white sails to the morning breeze and starts for the blue ocean. She is an object of beauty and strength and I watch her until at length she hangs like a speck of white mingle with each other. Then someone at my side says, "There, she's gone."

Gone where? Gone from my sight - and that is all. she is just as large in mast and hull and spar as she was when she left my side, and just as able to bear her load of living freight to the place of destination. Her diminished size is in me, not in her; and just at the moment when someone at my side says "There, she is gone," there are other eyes watching her coming, and other voices ready to take up the glad shout,"Here she comes!" And that is dying.

THE BASEBALL RELIQUARY PRESENTS LOS ANGELES PREMIERE OF DOCUMENTARY, HANO! A CENTURY IN THE BLEACHERS

The Baseball Reliquary will present the Los Angeles about the project was cited in a Supreme Court premiere of Hano! A Century in the Bleachers, a documentary film chronicling the extraordinary enjoyed by hikers today. As a sportswriter, Hano life and times of Arnold Hano, one of the most prolific writers of the 20th century, on Sunday, November 15, at 2:00 p.m., at the Donald R. Wright Auditorium, Pasadena Central Library, 285 E. Walnut St., Pasadena, California. decision, saving hundreds of trees and pristine land championed the efforts of Latino ballplayers to gain full acceptance in the major leagues in the late 1950s and early 1960s. He wrote profiles of Orlando Cepeda, Roberto Clemente, and other Latino stars sportswriters, and the racism that persisted in major color barrier in 1947.

DVDs of Hano! A Century in the Bleachers will be available for sale and signing by the filmmaker.

You may not know the name, but you've probably read him at some point over the past sixty years. Between 1955 and 2013, Arnold Hano authored twentyseven books, which collectively sold over one million copies, and penned 500 magazine articles. Hano! A Century in the Bleachers is the untold story of a man who is arguably the "Babe Ruth of writers." But this is not just a tale about a writer. It's the journey of a man who lives what he believes, fighting social injustices and lending a hand to the less fortunate. After almost a century, Hano has demonstrated how one person can make the world a better place.

Hano's fingerprints are on the pages of 20th century American culture. He wrote one of baseball's most iconic books, A Day in the Bleachers, his spirited account of attending Game One of the 1954 World Series, where Willie Mays made one of the greatest catches in baseball history. As a freelancer, he wrote profiles and stories for The New York Times, The Saturday Evening Post, Sport, Sports Illustrated, TV Guide, The Los Angeles Times, Esquire, Seventeen, Good Housekeeping, and other periodical staples of the day. As a result, Hano interviewed a constellation of sports, TV, and movie stars, including Marlon Brando, Mickey Rooney, Carol Burnett, Willie Mays, Roberto Clemente, and Muhammad Ali.

he was voted Magazine Sportswriter of the Year by his peers and awarded the prestigious Sidney Hillman Memorial Award for his incisive piece on the mistreatment of migratory farmworkers in California's Central Valley.

Hano is a transplanted New Yorker, currently living in Laguna Beach, California, who has brought a strong social conscience to his journalism. He successfully battled racism and land developers in Laguna Beach in the 1960s and early 1970s. When Lyndon Johnson proposed new hydroelectric dams in the Grand Canyon, Hano's article in the New York Times Magazine helped defeat it. When Disney wanted to build a resort development at Mineral King in the Sequoia National Forest, Hano's article at http://hanodoc.com/.

Hano has also taught writing at the University of Southern California, Pitzer College, and the University of California, Irvine.

This singular American story is told through the perspectives of Arnold Hano, as well as prominent sportswriters such as George Vecsey, Ray Robinson, John Schulian, and Al Silverman, and baseball greats Orlando Cepeda and Felipe Alou. The 53-minute film was shot on location in Los Angeles, Phoenix, San Francisco, and New York.

Hano! A Century in the Bleachers is produced and directed by award-winning filmmaker In 1963, Hano pulled off a rare double play: Jon Leonoudakis, one of the producers of the internationally-acclaimed music documentary, The Wrecking Crew. His previous documentaries, The Day the World Series Stopped and Not Exactly Cooperstown, are in the permanent collection of the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum in Cooperstown.

> The screening is supported, in part, by a grant from the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors through the Los Angeles County Arts Commission. THE SHOOTING IN DUARTE NOT MONROVIA

When Will the 20+ Year Error End?

By Joan Schmidt

On October 25, the news said a man had been shot dead in Monrovia. "How awful" I thought. What street did this happen on?

The news said, "Lincoln Avenue". I thought, "Lincoln, could that be in northern Monrovia"? But within minutes I realized where "Lincoln Avenue" is. It is in the DUARTE COUNTY AREA not the Monrovia County area!

I am a proud Monrovian and love Monrovia-my girls graduated from Monrovia H.S. However, Duarte is also MY Kind of Town and I have many wonderful Duarte friends-both in the city and county areas. For ten years I wrote about the City of Duarte, served on the Duarte Education Foundation, and was even on the Selection Committee for the Habitat for Humanity Duarte site! What I am going to write about is NOT a putdown of the WONDERFUL city of Duarte, but it a matter of principle and ending the misidentification of a county

From March-June 1993, I was on the Town Council Formation Committee, which purpose was to form a Town Council serving the unincorporated areas bordering the cities of Arcadia, Monrovia and Duarte. My first task was to identify the county area. The Thomas Guide used pale yellow for the unincorporated areas for easy identification. The maps were reproduced and used to explain our county area and the upcoming election.

Not long after the election, I remember shootings on Euclid Avenue, Duarte. The paper and Sgt. Sammy Jones said, "Monrovia County Area". I was flabbergasted. THAT AREA is DUARTE COUNTY! After a few more incidents, I brought up the matter to Temple Station Sheriff's Department. They have a contract with five cities, one of which is Duarte and specific vehicles are assigned there. There was one "COUNTY" car that works the Monrovia-Arcadia-Duarte County Area. So the Sheriff's Department dubbed our entire area, "Monrovia County" so their personnel wouldn't be confused! It is MIND-BOGGLING to me that anyone cannot distinguish between a "County" and "City" area.

This problem of MISIDENIFICATION has gone on for OVER TWENTY YEARS and MUST STOP! Shortly after the Town Council formed, we met with Supervisor Antonovich and Los Angeles County Community Development Commission. There was MUCH excitement over a parcel of "county land" on Euclid Avenue, Duarte. Habitat for Humanity homes were to be built. At the ground breaking and all ceremonies after, Duarte Mavor and city officials were present, as this was the DUARTE County area. ALL press releases that were issued spoke of these homes in Duarte, which they should because this is the DUARTE County area. However, ANYTIME a crime happens in this EXACT AREA, it is dubbed, "MONROVIA County"!

Several years ago, Martha and Samuel Flores suffered a terrible tragedy that NO parent should endure. Their beloved eldest son Francisco was killed in Iraq. His family lives in the Duarte County area, on a street off Euclid, so it was announced that a "Duarte" man died in Iraq. What is mind-boggling is that when a murder was committed off the SAME Euclid Avenue last year, the SAME AREA now becomes "MONROVIA"!

Over a year ago, the County put new street signs in our county areas on the main streets, so there would be NO CONFUSION! The west side of California Avenue in the County area is "Monrovia" and the signs say so. The east side of California Avenue up to the west side of Mountain Avenue is "Duarte" and the signs also say that.

However, once again, "PATCH" and several TV stations have misidentified LINCOLN AVENUE as MONROVIA. The stupidity is the Lincoln Avenue sign had Duarte on it and the TV Reporter was standing below the sign that had DUARTE on it! This column will be forwarded to Duarte Public Safety, Temple Station and Sheriff Mc Donnell and Supervisor Antonovich. Enough is enough.

THE REEL DEAL: by Ben ShowCRIMSON PEAK REVIEW

Initially, I was very excited for this film: one, it was a Guillermo deal Toro film, two, it featured Tom Hiddleston and Jessica Chastain as the lead villains and, three, it was a horror movie. How could you go wrong? Then, I started hearing the reviews about the film and I was caught off guard. How could this movie have been messed up with the amazing team behind it?

Edith (Mia Wasikowska) and her father (Jim Beaver) live a happy life, even though her mother is dead; however, when the charming Thomas Sharpe (Tom Hiddleston) and his sister, Lucille (Jessica Chastain), appear in town, looking for funding for Thomas' mining device. Strange events ensue as Edith tries to discover the truth behind the strange siblings and the house known as Crimson Peak.

This film suffers from only one thing: misleading advertising. 'Crimson Peak' is not a horror movie, it it more of a Shakespearean/Edger Allan Poe, gothic love story with murder, intrigue, and incest. The performances are very good, the script builds the tension very well, and the set pieces are stunning. Overall, 'Crimson Peak' is a great film that led people on to believe that it was something that it was not

When it comes to animal advocacy in today's society, It seems that we are somewhat stuck in a rut with a repeated pattern of taking one step forward and two steps back. Right now I can't think of a better example to fit this pattern than what occurred in LA this past May.

I'll start at the beginning, with the 'one step forward' portion of the pattern that played out in this prime petprotection example. In 2012, the news hit the headlines that the city of Los Angeles had banned the sale of commercially-bred puppy-mill pets in retail shops. Now shop owners would only be allowed to sell rescued pets. This victory came as part of an on-going campaign to discourage breeding and lessen the inordinate number of animals being euthanized in LA shelters.

I was so happy to hear the good news! Finally the 'powers that be' had realized how serious the problem had become and had taken action by showing compassion through legislation. It brought new hope that perhaps the pendulum was swinging in a more positive direction for the humane treatment of animals in Los Angeles.

The new law would be good for all involved, but there was one slight "technicality" that would need to be worked out. Because rescue groups deal mostly with adult pets versus puppies and kittens, they would be required to obtain a special permit to conduct business in a retail-zoned location rather than the industrial zones they'd been limited to in the past.

Clearly, the beauty of a pet adoption shop in a busy retail storefront is having the advantage of constant foot traffic. Unwitting shoppers out for a quick lunch or a new pair of shoes might catch a glimpse of a darling dog or cat in the window, find it irresistible and arrange to take it home. Presumably, the city council viewed the permit issue as nothing more than a minor, previously overlooked bug that could be worked out in short order, so they met with the requesting rescue organizations, and permission was granted. It proved to be a huge success, as numerous otherwise euthanized animals were fortunately finding forever loving homes.

Now, fast forward to May of this year to hear what lead to the 'two steps back' portion of the story. When the city decided to permit rescue pet retailers to keep (more than four) adult cats and dogs in their retail-zoned shops, they failed to notify the public of the hearing. Maybe in their minds the issue was, well, a non-issue; simply a matter of interpretation. The commercially-bred animals sold in kittens and puppies while most rescued pets happen to be worth it! adult dogs and cats.

However, when one particular citizen caught wind of the 'permit decision' that had been made in her absence, it did not sit well with her. Indeed, she threatened to sue the city on the grounds that the council had broken another one of their own ordinances by failing to post public notice of the meeting. Ultimately, that disgruntled citizen, a self-proclaimed animal activist in her own right (really?) kept her promise. She did file her law suit against the city and she

The result was devastating (wait for it...here come the two steps). Because of the law suit, the city was forced to reverse their decision, as insignificant as it may have seemed at the time. The rescue-pet retailers were now told that, in spite of previous permission granted, they would have to cease doing business in retail-zoned areas until they obtained a conditional use permit (CUP) which can take several months and cost thousands of dollars.

Animal rescue groups are typically non-profit organizations dedicated to caring for the pets they rescue and finding them good homes. Unlike other retailers, they can't just close up shop and sell the merchandise they have left on the shelves at a slash discount. They work very hard to raise funds for every project they take on. They don't have thousands of dollars to throw at the city, or extra stash cash to put towards advanced rent in hopes of getting a conditional use permit at some point in the future. It simply doesn't work that way.

Who knows what that lady was thinking or what her true motive was when she chose to file her law suit. What she did succeed in doing was to make it all the more difficult for rescued pets to get adopted, and that is just plain wrong. I'll refrain from using the sue-happy citizen's name in this article, to avoid the possibility of being pursued with a suit myself, but I will say that I am truly mystified as to why an individual who claims to care about animals would make such a fuss over a minor grey-area infringement, knowing the outcome would create huge hurdles for the facilitation of pet adoptions in LA.

Whatever her reason, the deed is done and now we true animal advocates must focus on what we can do to help get the pet-protection pendulum swinging back in the right direction. If you want to get on board and be part of the solution, there are a couple of ways you can help. First, you can spread the word to any and all animal-loving retail property owners you may know, and appeal to them for assistance.

You can also go to Petopia.com or Luckypuppyrescueandretail.com where you'll find details about their specific needs as well as information on how to get involved and make a donation. These two LA-based animal rescue nonprofs are suffering the consequences of the city's sudden permit reversal and they need our help. Let's strive to get yet another step forward on behalf of rescued pets. It takes a community to save an animal retail stores before the law changed in 2012 were mainly and if you ask me, the animals are most definitely

BLEND YOUR WAY TO HEAVEN

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

In 1917, the first Los Angeles winery was established, and it is still open today. But, years before the San Antonio Winery opened its doors, Pasadena, Eagle Rock, and Sierra Madre were all gaining a reputation for growing quality grapes. Fast-forward to today, the San Antonio Winery is the largest and oldest winery in Southern California. The grapes/juice are now brought in from Monterey and the wine regions of Paso Robles. That is where our wine comes from for today's review.

The 2013 Opaque Darkness from the San Antonio Winery is a blend of zinfandel, syrah, cabernet, grenache, petite sirah, and petit verdot. I have been a fan of blends for years, and this Opaque is in a class by itself - the mix of grapes stands out to me; other reds use more cabernet in their mix. You'll appreciate the texture and smooth tannins that the syrah grape brings to this dark red blend. Zinfandels have always been a great companion to BBQs, and with this 50% grape I can highly recommend it to any back yard cooking event. The price is a bit higher than my previous blend recommendations, but with the popularity and customer acceptance this one is well worth it. Opaque Darkness is a dark, inky red wine, exhibiting ripe berry notes. The taste is exceptional. If you are looking for a bit of spice with a great first taste, then this blend is for you. Many reviewers will call wines like this "jammy" (I'll say "blueberry pie"). You'll find it at Whole Foods, Vons and at the winery in Downtown Los Angeles. They also have a petit verdot under the Opaque label same price range and it is easier to find.

Each week I will give you my Dills Score. Starting with a base of 50 points, I add 9 points for color, 9 points for aroma or "nose", 8 points for taste, 8 points for finish, and 8 points for my overall impression, which adds up to my value rating of 91. Overall price: $24

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: SANTAH - CHICO

By Sean Kayden

am I quoting the boldly unequivocal statement from Socrates? Well, Chicago natives Santah have this new record called Chico and it's a record of that explores the dichotomy finding yourself and escaping from your former self. In order to do to be condemned in making the same mistakes for your future self. As I digress, the second full-length record Chico from the quintet is a range of dreamy-infused and snyth-pop laden tracks. Led by brother/sister duo, Stanton and Plock on drums, Mike Winegardner on bass and one's mind and heart. Tommy Trafton on keys/synths. This is proper (and excruciatingly overdue) follow-up to the 2011 debut, White Noise Bed. Terrific in its own approach, Santah find themselves on new roads with Chico as they have developed a tonally rich sound brimming with emotional potency. The amalgamation of Trafton's wizardry on the snyths, Winegardner's tightly structured bass, and Stanton McConnell's tantalizing vocals become key components in this light yet strappingly compacted album. The band has undoubtedly taken a substantial leap forward in their creative track to the next. Toward the later part of the prowess as Chico is wonderfully executed on all

"Did We Sing?" builds into a pensive musical landscape topped with the plush vocal harmonies of the brother/sister combo. The track brings in wistful touchstones without drifting too far from more conventional pop-rock concepts and hooks that are equally charming and pleasing. 'Sunkeeper" is a highlight here as guitars and honeyed harmonies blend into something undeniably magical. The propulsive drums, dark snyth tones and airy guitars provide substantial and their efforts more grand than ever before. drive for McConnell's tunefully luminous vocals. Chico passionately moves the listener as it lifts spirits and triggers deep contemplation. One nothing shy of impressive. It's a beautiful sight the band's singles is "Here Are My Shells," and to see (and hear), as listeners are able to share to put it simply, it is beautiful. The sprawling within the experience while forging their own arrangements, immersive synths, fast drums, and individual path along the way. pop melodies all form together to sound absolutely amazing. I think the resemblance falls somewhere Grade: 8.5 out of 10

"The unexamined life is not worth living." Why between acts such as Delta Spirit and Snowmine, but Santah have enough creative originality to spare. "Once More Gone" is a dynamic piece of work with lyrics fervently sung by the acutely poised McConnell. The lush landscape allows one to become easily immersed within. Vivian so, you'll have to examine your past in order not McConnell adds her gorgeously lenient vocals in the background, which becomes another strong point for the track. "Disguises" is the around the half way mark of the record and it showcases a superlatively divine record that explores a wide steady and pleasant stream of gentle descants. As the listener make their way into the latter half of Chico the realization that something unbelievably Vivian McConnell, the act also includes Steve special is on the horizon has already infiltrated

> Artist: Santah Album: Chico Label: Yes Club Records Release Date: November 6th, 2015 Review By: Sean Kayden

"Sun On Ice" is heartwarmingly striking. The tenderness of guitars, impassioned vocals, and hooky snyths once again prove Santah show an extensive variety of talents as we move from one song, we have some great guitar work going on. Taking Jn The Mist" is a short closing track that comes off a bit more barebones to the other ten tracks yet equally if not more absorbing. Santah don't come up short with any of their eleven tracks as they have something else each time to show off. You'll be significantly rewarded by the experience Chico delivers. It's without any doubt that Santah have grown musically, but simultaneously have developed individually. Their words are wiser, their music more complex, The roads they are wayfaring may be cemented with much ambiguity yet their determination is

Lights Out: A Cyberattack, A Nation Unprepared, Surviving the Aftermath by Ted Koppel In this tour de force of investigative reporting, Ted Koppel reveals that a major cyberattack on America's power grid is not only possible but likely, that it would be devastating, and that the United States is shockingly unprepared.Imagine a blackout lasting not days, but weeks or months. Tens of millions of people over several states are affected. For those without access to a generator, there is no running water, no sewage, no refrigeration or light. Food and medical supplies are dwindling. Devices we rely on have gone dark. Banks no longer function, looting is widespread, and law and order are being tested as never before. It isn't just a scenario. A well-designed attack on just one of the nation's three electric power grids could cripple much of our infrastructure—and in the age of cyberwarfare, a laptop has become the only necessary weapon. Several nations hostile to the United States could launch such an assault at any time. In fact, as a former chief scientist of the NSA reveals, China and Russia have already penetrated the grid. And a cybersecurity advisor to President Obama believes that independent actors—from "hacktivists" to terrorists—have the capability as well. "It's not a question of if," says Centcom Commander General Lloyd Austin, "it's a question of when." And yet, as Koppel makes clear, the federal government, while well prepared for natural disasters, has no plan for the aftermath of an attack on the power grid. Elain Baylor: The Man Who Changed Basketball by Bijan C. Bayne

NBA Hall of Fame player Elgin Baylor was an innovator in his sport, a civil rights trailblazer, and a true superstar. He influenced future NBA All Stars such as Michael Jordan and Kobe Bryant, and is considered by many to be one of the most important players in NBA history. Baylor led Seattle University to the 1958 NCAA championship game, averaged 38.3 points a game during the 1961-62 season. Baylor dropped 61 points in a NBA Finals game against the greatest dynasty in basketball history ,the Boston Celtics, facing the best defensive player of all time, Bill Russell. He once was even the league's Executive of the Year with the Los Angeles Clippers, in 2006, during one of the few bright spots in franchise history. A prolific scorer who baffled opponents with his twists and turns and inventive moves, Baylor was a force both on and off the court for the Minneapolis and Los Angeles Lakers. The book tells the story of how a kid from the streets of segregated Washington, DC, who didn't attend college until he was over twenty, athletes spoke out about racial inequality, Baylor personal reflections from Baylor's old schoolyard in the NBA, and noted sports journalists, bringing to

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

The practice of burying our dead in the ground has been traced back over 100,000 years ago. For the vast

In fact, the practice of embalming, one of the most

Green burial is now making a comeback. In a recent

The benefits of the Capsula Mundi mirror the guidelines issued by the Green Burial Council in determining whether burials are "green":

No embalming or the use of only postmortem fluids that are nontoxic;

Natural, plant-based casket materials that release no toxic byproducts when made or when placed in the ground; and

No use of vaults, concrete, slabs, or liners in burial

Unfortunately, before these capsules will be in widespread use in the United States, both laws and cemetery regulations must be changed. Many states prohibit the burial of human remains without a casket, and cemeteries often require vaults to prevent the ground from settling.

MILK DOESN'T DO A BODY GOOD?

We have all been told to drink our milk to build strong bones and reduce our chances of bone frac-tures. New research published last year in the British Medical Journal suggests that a diet rich in dairy products does not mean a lower risk of bone fractures. Instead, dairy may be associated with a higher rate of fractures and even death.

One reason for this is because dairy is composed of high levels of sugars, mainly lactose and galactose. These two sugars have been shown to increase oxidative stress and chronic inflammation in animal studies. A research team in Sweden set out to examine whether high milk intake may increase oxidative stress, which, in turn, affects the risk of mortality and fractures. This study tracked over 100,000 men and women for over 20 years. Analysis of the data collected showed a positive association between milk intake and biomarkers of oxidative stress and inflammation.

They concluded that a higher consump-tion of milk does not lower ones risk of fracture and instead may be associated with a higher rate of death. Women in this study did not benefit from drinking milk at all, in fact, three or more glasses per in but as we know pain is a great motivator."

day was actually associated with a much greater risk of bone fracture. For men and women both, the more milk they'd consumed, the greater the risk of death. Milk drinkers were associated with a higher risk of cardiovascular troubles, higher blood pressure, lower high-density lipoprotein cholesterol levels (HDL), and higher insulin

This study was extensive. It followed a lot of people over a long time. It definitely should tell us that this topic needs much more independent study. And from researchers not associated to the dairy in-dustry.

You can be sure of this, things do change; A new day, a new challenge, a new opportunity, a new way of seeing things. You wish you could count on things and some things you can (like death and taxes) but surprises pop up.

In regards to health, challenges can manifest seemingly from nowhere. In my office I see patients who hobble in with a problem and in questioning them more than often they say, "I woke up with it. I didn't do anything." Yet they are really suffering. How does this happen?

In one's personal health there are certain things you must do to have the best chance of staying healthy and avoiding injury and illness. In regards to the patient who showed up in crisis, but did not do anything' to cause it, the questioning that follows exposes the cause of the problem.

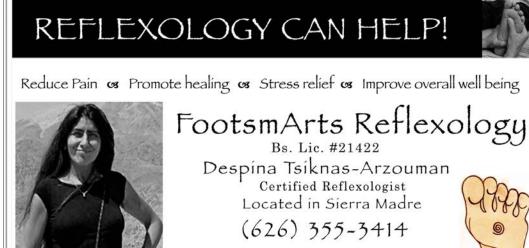

"How much exercise have you been getting lately?" "How has your diet been?" "How have you been sleeping lately?" "When was the last time you were checked for nerve interference and adjusted?" Usually the answers are as follows: No exercise (too busy), Bad diet (too busy), Not enough sleep (Stressed from being too busy) and have not seen their chiropractor because they haven't had any problem and/are too busy. I have to tell them, "Yes, you didn't do anything before this crisis hit today. You're not making good choices and not living the 100 Year lifestyle so this is the result. You weren't too busy today to come

The things you can be certain about, the disciplines you can put yourself through, can help you navigate the uncertainties of life. Unforeseen problems and challenges will pop up, this we are certain of, but it is the uncertainty of when and how that can strike you down that catch us off guard and when we look back we realize we weren't doing the things we know we should do on a regular basis to be proactive and protect our health.

 $Regular\ exercise, great\ nutrition, proper\ rest\ and\ a\ spine\ and\ nervous\ system\ that\ is\ free\ of\ interference$ will certainly help you deal with the uncertainties of life. Be prepared. See your chiropractor and get checked and receive lifestyle care or most certainly you will need to go for crisis care.

HOW TO CHOOSE A GOOD NURSING HOME

Dear Savvy Senior,

Can you give me some tips on picking a good nursing home for my mother who has Alzheimer's disease? I've been taking care of her at home, but she's gotten to the point where she's too much for me to handle. Overwhelmed Daughter requires careful evaluation and some homework. Here are some steps that can help you find a good facility and avoid a bad one.

Dear Overwhelmed,

Make a list: There are several sources you can turn to for referrals to nursing homes in your area: Your Area Agency on Aging (call 800-677-1116 for contact information); your mom's doctor or nearby hospital discharge planner; or friends, family or neighbors who may have had a loved one in a nursing home. Ideally, the nursing homes should be close to family members and friends who can visit often, because residents with frequent visitors usually get better care.

Compare nursing homes: To research and compare the nursing homes on your list, use Medicare's nursing home compare tool at medicare.gov/ nursinghomecompare. This tool provides a 5-star rating system on recent health inspections, staffing, quality of care, and overall rating.

You should also contact your local long-term care ombudsman. This is a government official who investigates nursing home complaints and can tell you which ones have had problems in the past. To find your local ombudsman, call your Area Agency on Aging or see ltcombudsman.org.

Contact the facilities: Once you've narrowed your search, call the nursing homes you're interested in to verify that they have a dementia unit that can facilitate your mom's needs. Also, find out if they have any vacancies, what they charge, and if they accept Tour your top choices: During your nursing home visit, notice the cleanness and smell of the facility. Is and kind to its residents? Also be sure to taste the food, and talk to the residents and their family members, show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

Choosing a good nursing home for a loved one with Alzheimer's disease is a very important decision that at different times of the day and different days of the week to get a broader perspective.

Also, find out about their staff screening (do they do background checks) and training procedures, staff-to-patient ratio, and the staff turnover rate.

To help you rate your visit, Medicare offers a helpful checklist of questions to ask at medicare. gov/nursinghomecompare/checklist.pdf, does the Alzheimer's Association at alz.org/ visitinganursinghome.pdf. Print these lists from your computer and take them with you on your visit. Paying for care: With nursing home costs now averaging $250 per day nationally for a private room, paying for care is another area you may have questions about or need assistance with. Medicare only helps pay up to 100 days of rehabilitative nursing home care, which must occur after a hospital stay. Most nursing home residents pay for care from either personal savings, a long-term care insurance policy, or through Medicaid once their savings are depleted.

The National Clearinghouse for Long-Term Care Information website (longtermcare.gov) is a good resource that can help you understand and research your financial options. You can also get help from your State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP), which provides free counseling on all Medicare and Medicaid issues. To find a local SHIP counselor visit shiptacenter.org, or call 800-677-1116.

For more information, see Medicare's online booklet "Your Guide to Choosing a Nursing Home" at medicare.gov/publications/pubs/pdf/02174.pdf.

But that are either hilarious, stranger than fiction, or, how do you randomly pick one from the middle?

Child psychology says that middle children are more well adjusted, so maybe this couple were ahead of their time in that regard. Or maybe they just chose the kid who annoyed them the most. That's what I would've done anyway.

Luckily for the child, Florence's aunts welcomed him or her into the family and possibly even went through the legalities of formal adoption. brings up all sorts of fascinating hypothetical fascinating situations. If this child became the legal heir to

I can totally imagine a group of greedy relatives pounding on the door for handouts. Wait, I think I did see returned from her dinner with Florence. I've this story before. Yes, it was "Secondhand Lions" with Robert Duvall and Michael Caine. However, I'm sure if we really analyzed the story against Florence's account, Florence's version would be strangers. NASA STUDIES EL NINO AS NEVER BEFORE

Every two to seven years, an unusually warm pool of water-sometimes 4 to 5 degrees Fahrenheit higher than normal—develops across the eastern tropical Pacific Ocean to create a natural shortterm climate change event. This warm condition, known as El Niño, affects the local aquatic environment, but also spurs extreme weather patterns around the world, from flooding in California to droughts in Australia. This winter, the 2015-16 El Niño event will be better observed from space than any previous El Niño.

This year's El Niño is already strong and appears likely to equal the event of 1997-98, the strongest El Niño on record, according to the World Meteorological Organization. All 19 of NASA's current orbiting Earth-observing missions were launched after 1997. In the past two decades, NASA has made tremendous progress in gathering and analyzing data that help researchers understand more about the mechanics and global impacts of El Niño.

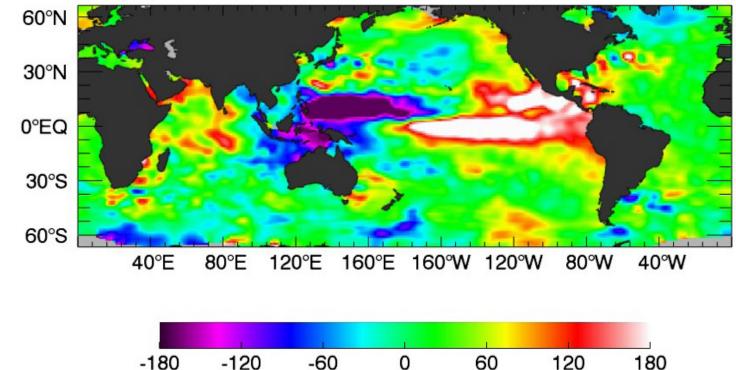

"El Niño is a fascinating phenomenon because it has such far-reaching and diverse impacts. The fact that fires in Indonesia are linked with circulation patterns that influence rainfall over the United States shows how complex and interconnected the Earth system is," said Lesley Ott, research meteorologist at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Maryland.

Using NASA satellite observations in tandem with supercomputer processing power for modeling systems, scientists have a comprehensive suite of tools to analyze El Niño events and their global impacts as never before. Throughout this winter, NASA will share the latest scientific insights and imagery updates related to El Niño.

For instance, scientists are learning how El Niño affects the year-to-year variability for fire and Indonesia. El Niño may also affect the yearly variability of the ground-level pollutant ozone that severely affects human health. Researchers will be keenly focused on how the current El Niño CNES/EUMETSAT Jason-2 satellite measures will affect the drought in California.

"We still have a lot to learn about these quantifying the heat stored and released by the connections, and NASA's suite of satellites will oceans during El Niño years. help us understand these processes in a new and deeper way," said Ott.

NASA's Earth-observing satellites help monitor those and other impacts by measuring land and ocean conditions that both influence NASA satellites also help scientists see the and are affected by El Niño. CHRISTOPHER Nyerges THE FOURFOLD PATH TO MEANING

How we seek and find the meaning to life

[Nyerges is the author of "How to Survive Anywhere," "Foraging California," and other books. He can be reached at Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041, or www. SchoolofSelf-Reliance.com]

In March, I was asked by professor Nicole Deweese to guest-teach her iology class one Tuesday night when she had to be away in Arizona. I asked her what she wanted me to talk about. "The class is called 'Urban Contemporary Youth" she responded. I thought about it. "So what do you want me to say about urban contemporary youth?" I asked. "Should I discuss the causes of their problems, how to avoid the problems, or what?" Nicole explained that they already spent time talking about the causes of problems and that I should not try to reinvent the wheel of her class. "Just talk about what you do, your classes, how you teach youth how to live off the land. I think everyone will find that interesting. I agreed to do the class, but still felt a bit worried about whether or not I could fill three long hours while adult students stared at me, wondering whether or not they should have stayed home when only a guest teacher was filling in. I spent many hours over the next few days in trying to come up with something useful for the class. Yes, I would talk about my teaching youth groups how to identify plants, and how to build shelters, and all the skills that I teach. Somehow, just talking about that didn't seem sufficient for this class.

I tried to put myself into the mind of an "urban contemporary youth" and attempted to see what I would see when I wear that hat.

I wasn't concerned with trying to determine "the meaning of life." After all, what young person thinks about that? They think about "what is the meaning of MY life." Right? So I was simply trying to think back to my earliest years, and how I thought about the world, and how an intelligent adult could have, and should have, led my thinking and activities. So, first, what are the questions that I used to ask myself?

Who am I? First, who am I as a being in a body, either masculine or feminine. This is a critical question that everyone asks themselves.

Who am I? This question has to do with the idea of being, of consciousness, not so much male or female, but simply as a living sentient being in a world that we are born into, where everyone is racing around furiously, doing something, as if they know what they are doing and why. This is, obviously, a major category of thought.

Of course, all these are inter-related and interwoven. We ask ourselves "Who am I?" in the context of the culture we are born into: rural, urban, modern, country, rich, poor, etc. etc. What is my relationship to my environment? Furthermore, despite what everyone around me seems to be doing, what should be the ideal way in which I interact with my world around me, including the people I interact with?

As I considered what to present to Nicole's class, I considered a fourth area of major concern and question, one which seems to largely ignored at least as it pertain to educating youth. What is this thing called "money" and why does it seem to govern and control nearly everything about everyone's life. In fact, the avoidance of dealing with the money issue seems to be a major factor in the ignorance in the way in which we deal with our environment. We have been taught by others that as long as you need money, and a job, you can do nearly anything you want, including ruining your environment!

I realized intuitively that these four areas are the four inter-related categories in which youth seek their answers. Of course, most of us grow out of youth while never finding satisfactory answers to any of the above four categories, and we bumble along in life, and pass our ignorance along to our children, who learn from our example.

THE FOUR PATHS

The four paths seemed to comprise the areas of overwhelmingly greatest import to any thoughtful person growing up and seeking meaning. Yes, there are almost certainly other and different areas of internal investigation, possibly even as tangents of the basic four.

No one of these is a discrete category unto itself. Each overlaps and relates to one or more of the other

As I prepared my notes for Nicole's class, I focused on the category of "environment," since Nicole had specifically asked that I talk about how I teach about the environment and dealing with ecological issues. That part was somewhat easy, and I added notes from my "Extreme Simplicity" book. My personal interest was how we allow money to control nearly every aspect of our lives, so I decided that I would give extra attention to the issue of money. As I wrote my notes, I realized that I have learned a lot in the last few decades simply by working through my many ignorances, and that I actually might have something useful to share with others, assuming they followed the advice.

I finally gave the class lecture, and I began by sharing the concept of the Four Paths. I mostly addressed the environment and money categories, and managed to cover about a half of what I'd prepared.

As I continued to get feedback from Nicole and others, I realized that I should compile my various notes of the Four Paths into a book. Looking at life from the view of a very young person, born into this confused world, seemed (to me) to be a good perspective. I don't know if I actually will write a whole book about, but even the outline would be very useful for teachers dealing with youth.

clouds. My head was stuffed and every other breath I took I had a sneezing fit. I felt miserable. I looked miserable. I know this because The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage said, "You look miserable."

I vaguely remember my wife saying something to the effect that she was going somewhere and to be ready for something or other. In my condition, I could not have cared less. She could have taken a trip to the moon and I would not have cared. All my ocean of misery.

Taking refuge in my easy chair, I pampered myself with a nice hot cup of tea with honey. I had a slight fever and my head was thumping like a marching band at a football game. Trying to ease my pain, I wrap my head in a wet towel. My eyes were bulging and watery as if I had just swallowed a hot spicy Mexican taco in one gulp. To monitor my temperature I sucked a thermometer. I must have looked a sight but I was not anticipating being a contestant at some beauty pageant.

Suddenly, I was aroused by a terrible explosion. It seemed like the noise rocked the very foundation of the house.

As I opened my bleary eyes, there was another explosion, louder than before. My thoughts lead me to believe some terrorist was attacking my house with the ferocity of a nuclear bomb.

It took several moments for me to extract myself from my chair and stand up. Once up, every step I took reverberated in my head like the tom-toms of a thousand war

Later on, I heard some mumbling rumbling sound. It has a familiar ring to it but I really could not place it at the time. I slowly opened my eyes and there was I wanted was to be left alone to wallow in my wife looking at me and saying, "You remembered that tonight was trick-ortreat night for the children?"

> The next morning I felt somewhat better and around the breakfast table my wife casually mentioned, "Did we have any trick-or-treaters last night?"

I stop to think for a moment and then said, "I don't think anybody came to our door last night."

'Then," she asked, "where did these six bags of candy come from I found at our front door when I come home last night?"

Things are not always as they seem. When the whole picture is not in view it is easy to jump to the wrong conclusion. The Bible says, "For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known." (1 Corinthians 13:12

DANNY Tyree - Tyrades! OUR NATION'S VETERANS: WHY THEY'RE SPECIAL

Make no mistake about every civilian who does his job conscientiously and delivers an honest day's work for an honest day's pay deserves a pat on the

But as Veterans Day approaches, I would like to pause and elaborate on why our active and honorably discharged military personnel are so special. Grumbling and griping is only human, but very few civilian jobs offer anything like the kind of stress weighing on those who defend our country.

Perhaps you are overwhelmed by workplace politics and wonder "Who can Î trust???" Our service people know it's a life-or-death situation if their buddy is off his game a little when combat time arrives. And that foreign fighter who is being trained — will he be an appreciative ally, or will he shoot the American in the back?

Do you feel pressure to measure up those who went before you — whether it is your grandfather (in a family-owned business) or "the award-winning guy who had this territory before you"? Our service people labor in the shadow of those who exhibited brilliant strategy and extreme courage, including those of whom it can be said "some gave all."

Is your job boring? Do you get tired of the same stretches of road, the same assembly line, the same cubicle? Think of enduring ocean wave after ocean wave or sand dune after sand dune — with the break in the monotony coming, not from a favorite customer or a "casual Friday," but from a sudden burst of enemy fire.

Do you stress over "the one who got away" — the college basketball prospect or the wealthy investor whom you just couldn't impress enough to get them to sign on the dotted line? Sure enough, those folks can go on to sign with your competitor. On the other hand, when someone in the Armed Forces lets an enemy get away, that combatant may go on to blow up a water purification plant Facebook fan page "Tyree's Tyrades". or an orphanage.

Do you chafe under your immediate supervisor's arbitrary meddling, or the nonsensical rules and regulations passed down through the corporate hierarchy? Our service people have to deal with the sometimes incomprehensible decisions of the military chain of command but they are also at the mercy of the purely political maneuvering of the commander-in-chief and Congress. Such maneuvering may incite either timidity or reckless invasions, just for the sake of votes.

Do your sometimes feel that the public doesn't properly appreciate the product or service you offer? Our service people are generally "out of sight, out of mind" and are ripe targets for budget cutting.

If you're a stay-at-home mom or dad, does it drive you crazy when your housekeeping efforts are instantly undone by spouse, kids or pets? Think about having your hard work destroyed by enemy bombs.

Are you tired of being on the road for a week at a time or working a shift that has your children already asleep when you get home? Let's talk a little about the hardships of military families...

By all means, take pride in your job and try to improve your working conditions. But let's keep it in perspective and never pass up an opportunity to say 'Thank you" to a veteran, send cards and letters to active military personnel and maintain the sort of nation that our defenders can truly feel is WORTH defending.

HOWARD Hays As I See It

And it did."

· Niya Kenny on CNN, describing scene prior to assault on fellowstudent who refused to put down her cellphone

I clicked on the video soon after it appeared on Huffington Post. A big guy (an "adult") grabs a teenage girl, slams her to the floor and throws her across the room. There's little if anything I'd find more disturbing, or would make me angrier. Yes, but - one thing that did was the repeated use of "Yes, but . . ." in reaction to the incident. For Don Lemon on CNN, it was yes, "it does look horrible", but "this only shows a small slice in time." What the video shows is a sixteen-year-old student seated at her desk, assaulted by a uniformed "school resource officer".

That officer's boss, Sheriff Leon Lott of South Carolina's Richland County, acknowledged that yes, "there's no justification for some of his actions", but 'If she had not disrupted that school and disrupted that class, we would not be standing here today." There would've been no need for the "muscling techniques", as the officer put it in his report, to get the girl out of her desk.

To David French in National Review, yes, the incident didn't look good on camera", but that "doesn't make his actions wrong."

To former LAPD officer Mark Fuhrman on Fox News, it's all relative; Yes, "he threw her on the ground, he handcuffed her" - but 'He didn't kick her. He didn't hit her. He didn't choke her."

Former NYPD detective Harry Houck admitted on CNN that yes, the footage looks really bad", but the officer "can use whatever force is necessary" to make the

Yes, one of the most common "Yes, but"s over the past week was that yes it's disturbing, but police officers can and must use "whatever force is necessary" in making arrests. But these are kids in school.

Yes, kids shouldn't mouth off or disobey teachers and administrators. As experienced teachers have remarked, in a situation like the one at Spring Valley High, once the student made clear she wasn't going to put down her phone or leave when told to, the class should've simply resumed with the offending student dealt with after the others had left. But in some states such behavior risks not just detention, but arrest. Nineteen states have on their books a "disturbing schools" statute, with South Carolina's more broad than most. It can students or teachers of any school" or "to act in an obnoxious manner.'

came on her arm, but she also faces misdemeanor in the classroom, I charges carrying up to a $1,000 fine and immediately told my 90 days in jail – with a criminal record classmates, 'Get your coming out of high school. Yes, her 18-yearphones out, get your old friend Niya Kenny, quoted above, did phones out. I think this mouth-off at the officer assaulting her is going to go downhill.' friend, but for that she was arrested, too – and faces the same charge, fine, jail time and criminal record.

Over the past school year, 1,189 students in South Carolina were arrested for the "disturbing schools" offense and entered the Juvenile Justice system, not including teens charged as adults. Federal data shows black students twice as likely to be charged as white students.

The U.S. Justice Dept. complained two years ago that school officials in Jefferson Parish, LA have given armed police officers "unfettered authority to stop, frisk, detain, question, search and arrest schoolchildren on and off school grounds." This past summer, officers in Kentucky were sued for handcuffing eight and nine-year-olds. According to Huffington Post, over the past year at least 25 kids, and several faculty members, have sought medical attention due to school officers' use of Tasers, pepper spray and stun guns.

Yes, kids are kids all over. But how they're treated largely depends on where they go to school; whether in a "disadvantaged' (large, highly-centralized) school district, or not. In his study last summer, Penn State sociologist David Ramey notes that although in the late-1990s crime "declined massively", sensational crime headlines brought a push for "zero-tolerance" - more suspensions, expulsions, and criminal referrals. And, he found that "for the same minor levels of misbehaviors -- for example, classroom disruptions, talking back -- white kids tend to get viewed as having ADHD, or having some sort of behavioral problem, while black kids are viewed as being unruly and unwilling to learn".

Yes, white students are likely to be moved into a program for "special needs"; but black students are more likely to be kicked out.

According to the U.S., Dept. of Education, black students are three times more likely to be suspended and expelled than white students. This trend goes back to preschool. Yes, it's bad, but it's worse for girls - with black girls six times more likely to be kicked out than white girls.

Students with multiple suspensions before 10th grade are much more likely to drop out, and high school drop-outs are eight times more likely to end up in the criminal justice system.

Yes, kids should be learning proper behavior from parents at home, but it's tough, as President Obama noted last week, when one-in-nine black kids have a parent in prison. Still, he repeated his determination to "disrupt the pipeline from underfunded schools to overcrowded jails."

Yes, it's a major issue, but some things be considered a crime "to interfere with or aren't so complicated. Yes, as Hillary to disturb in any way or in any place the Clinton tweeted last week, "There is no excuse for violence inside a school. #AssaultAtSpringValleyHigh Yes, after not giving up her phone, the unacceptable—schools should be safe

CRUEL APPRENTICE WHERE THE BOSS IS FIRED -

It seems Jobs "Rn't" Theirs at Toys "R" Us.

Breitbart News uncovered a particularly flagrant example of H—1B visa abuse at Toys "R" Us. The story is particularly timely in the wake of the exchange between Donald Trump and Marco Rubio at the CNBC Inquisition.

Rubio wants to greatly expand usage of the H—1B visa program that ostensibly brings in foreign workers to do jobs Americans are not qualified to perform. Rubio justifies his support with the rationalization that if there are abuses, those companies shouldn't be allowed to participate in the program.

I can only conclude, sadly, that Marco is not among the readers of my column.

Exploiters of the H—1B loophole use foreign workers to fill jobs that Americans are fully capable of filling. Even the state of California does it as you can read here.

According to Breitbart, "Other companies that have displaced American workers in favor of H-1B visa laborers include Disney in Florida, Southern California Edison, Harley Davidson Wisconsin, Cargill in Minnesota, Pfizer in Connecticut, and Xerox in New York."

And in spite of Rubio's recycling H—1B supporters' false claim that we need more Americans trained in the İT and STEM fields, the truth is "there are far more U.S. graduates with STEM and IT degrees than there are jobs available."

I will give Toys "R" Us credit for creativity in tossing Americans on to the unemployment heap. Where Disney and Southern California Edison subjected its employees to the exquisitely cruel assignment of training the people one—on—one who would be filling your desk chair before it had time to grow cold, Toys trained the trainer.

Employees in the accounting department (American's can't do bookkeeping? Who knew?) were stalked by employees from the Tata Consultancy Services who watched their every move and then produced "intricate manuals" for TCS workers back in India who would then perform the work Americans were perfectly willing to do.

As one employee who had worked for Toys for almost 12 years lamented, "Why am I sitting here showing this man how to do my job when they are taking it away from me and sending it to India?" Once the information extraction was complete 67 citizens lost their jobs.

Before Marco Rubio comes out in favor of tripling the size of this American displacement program again, I suggest he meet individually with laid off employees from Disney, Toys, Harley Davidson or Xerox and ask them how well the program is working.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) TITLE AND SUMMARY

TITLE: STOP THE UTILITY USERS TAX

SUMMARY: The current rate for utility users tax is 8%, which will step down to 6% on July 1, 2016. If approved by a majority of Sierra Madre voters, this initiative would repeal all current City utility users taxes, including those imposed on charges for telephone, electricity, gas, water

The City's existing utility users taxes fund general City services, including police, paramedics, parks, libraries, streets, and other public services and facilities. If voters approve the initiative, the City must either reduce funding for these programs and services or find some other funding source for them, if possible.

(Eastern Cherokee Nation Band) Did you know that archaeologists think the first people to live in North America were the Paleo-Indians? At the end of the last Ice Age (around 12,000 years ago)

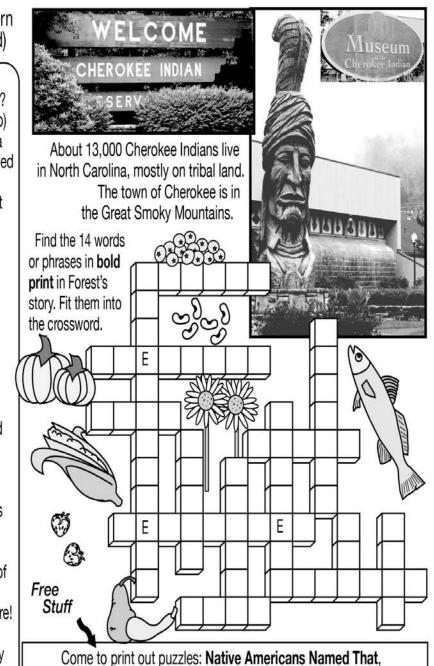

these people moved from Asia into North America on a land bridge that existed then. It is believed that they lived in small family groups and moved constantly to hunt animals like the mastodon (an elephant-like animal that is now extinct) and to gather foods like berries and nuts. Arrowheads for spears and other tools mark places where they lived. In the Archaic period (8,000 to 1,000 BCE), families had homes with wooden poles covered with hides, which could be moved. In the spring they would move to the river valleys to fish and collect shellfish. In the fall they would move to the forest to hunt deer or turkey and gather nuts and berries. Archaeologists have studied tools, soapstone bowls, burial grounds and pottery to understand these people's ways.

In a more recent period, Woodland Indians, people are thought to have had villages as well as seasonal camps. Corn, a key part of the Indian diet, was introduced. The first evidence for the bow and arrow were found. It is believed that people were trading: salt, beads, shells, fish, pottery and animal skins.

During the next period, Mississippian Indians, settlements became more permanent. Squash, corn and beans, known as the Three Sisters, were important and foods from hunting and gathering were now added to the foods harvested from gardens. Beautiful jewelry and pottery were created too.

After 1650, when Europeans arrived, there were years of both peace and fighting. In 1836, the U.S. Senate accepted a treaty signed by a small group of Cherokee to sell their land and the Cherokee were forced to leave the east to be resettled in Oklahoma. They were expected to walk 1,000 miles to get there! On this hard walk, now called the "Trail of Tears," an estimated 4,000-8,000 people died. Some Cherokee refused to move and hid in the mountains. Many of their descendants now live on Qualla Boundary, a preserve.
