HAPPY 100TH ADIE GENEVA MENTZER!

Adelaide (Adie) Geneva Mentzer was born in Pittsburgh, Penn in 1915. She was one of 8 children born to German Catholic parents. She married Warren Marshall in 1940 at the age of 25 and had the first six of their nine children; Trudy, Paul, Connie, Jacquie, Warren Jr (Rocky) and Marianne, in that order. They moved to Sierra Madre, California in 1954 and had three more children, Linda, Betty Jeanne and Audrey, in that order.

She had a busy, active life between her kids and activities. She always enjoyed playing bridge weekly with her girls club and often played card games with her children and grandchildren, which she still does today. She also played the organ and piano regularly throughout her life. She was a dedicated parishioner to St. Rita's Church in Sierra Madre for over 60 years. All her children and some of her grandchildren attended school at St. Rita's and her daughters were all married at the church.

She was fortunate enough to celebrate her 50th wedding anniversary with Bud, however, he passed away one month before their 55th Anniversary in 1995. She loved him dearly and always said, I got a great guy and he was the only guy for me.

She had a total of 10 children, 9 survived birth, and 24 grandchildren. To date, she has 40 great Marshall's are an ever-growing family, totaling grandchildren and 1 great-great granddaughter who will is almost 2-years old. BURGLARY SUSPECTS ARRESTED FOR BEST BUY PHARMACY BREAK IN Early Sunday morning, December 6, 2015, an alert Sierra Madre resident reported suspicious activity to the rear of the businesses on Montecito Court. The 3:00 AM call raised the awareness of the responding officers after a recent burglary at the pharmacy located on north Baldwin.

Responding officers saw a vehicle driving out of the area as they arrived. Officers continued to the rear of the businesses and located two suspects attempting to break into the rear door of the pharmacy. The suspect fled on foot. While the two suspects fled, the vehicle returned to the area. The driver was detained and eventually taken into custody.

Police units from Arcadia and Monrovia Police Departments arrived to assist Sierra Madre's units. Another alert citizen spotted one suspect hiding in her side yard and called the police department. The suspect was taken into custody. The third suspect had taken refuge on the roof of the Bean Town Coffee House and when the assisting units arrived, jumped off the roof in an attempt to flee the area. He was quickly taken into custody after fracturing his leg from the fall.

Director of Public Safety, Chief Larry Giannone, stated "The moto of See Something, Say Something works. This was a great team effort by the alert citizens and police officers to put these criminals back behind bars."

Lebron and Brooks were booked at the Pasadena Jail for suspicion of commercial burglary and possession of stolen property. Shaw was booked at the LACO USC Medical Center on the same charges. The three suspects reside in Long Beach. Bail for all three was set at $20,000.

All three suspects are out on bail and due back in court at the end of December.

Anyone that may have witnessed this incident or has any additional information are urged to contact the Sierra Madre Police Department at 626 355-1414.

Leonora Moss will definitely get you into the Christmas spirit. Our light posts are Here's your traditional Eggnog: Beat yolks and whites of 8 eggs separately. garlanded, parking lots are full, we've all survived Black Friday and now Christmas Add 1/2 lb. sugar to whites, beat until stiff. Add beaten yolks to whites, mix until is everywhere. If it weren't 80 degrees, we'd almost think it was winter.

of Christmas stuff, try to last year with the manger scene that made it look sweetly reverent, promise ourselves we(re not going to do so much this year, and then put up more than ever before. There's no way we can't put out all the Christmas goodies the children made in Sunday School through the years; the little hands pressed into plaster of paris, the pictures mounted in bread dough frames, the miniature red felt stockings with family names in glitter, the red globes that date from the beginning of our marriage, which are cracked and crazed (as is, occasionally, our marriage), but precious in our sight. And the lights. Even though you carefully put each string in a separate Ziploc bag, the little stinkers are still tangled. And the string you didn't test before you put it on the tree doesn't work, causing you to want to say unpleasant things.

Yep, it's two weeks before Christmas. The beautiful real tree that smells so fresh and forest-y that you want to bury your face in it is in the house in the timehonored Christmas tree spot. It's time to decorate. The family scatters like roaches when the light is turned on, and you and Tree find yourselves alone, even though you made cookies to convince everyone how much fun this is going to be. This intimate moment deserves a small celebration. It(s definitely time to make Eggnog! Look through any Christmas Cookbook and you'll find Eggnog, all right, the Chill well. Grate nutmeg over top. trim the tree. Lovingly, Serve. Seriously? A bottle of whiskey?? Make this and Tree will still be naked we unearth all the boxes tomorrow and you'll have a headache!

remember what we did Here's a much easier, kinder, gentler version:

- 1. Buy a carton of prepared low-fat eggnog right out of the dairy case at your favorite market.
- 2. Put a tray of ice cubes in your blender.
- 3. Fill the blender two thirds full of eggnog mix.
- 4. Add a half cup of rum, brandy, or a little of both to the blender (or more, or less, depending on how annoyed you are).
- 5. Blend until ice is pleasantly crunchified.
- 6. Pour into a large, beautiful, stemmed glass. Grate fresh nutmeg over top. 7. Sit down and admire Tree, while enjoying eggnog. 8. Realize that peace reigns now that family has scattered to unknown
- destinations.
- 9. Put on the Christmas CD that YOU like. the one that has (Grandma Got Run Over By a Reindeer) on it, if that's your cup of eggnog. Or maybe Andrea Bocelli's "My Christmas" if you're feeling a little more classical.
- 10. Relax. Breathe. Allow joy to flood your heart, soul and mind. 11. Plug in the first string of lights and think about that first Christmas night,
- that first Light.
- 12. Rejoice! Peace on Earth, Good Will To Men! 13. Know in your heart that Tree will be the most beautiful one ever! 14. Invite friends and family over to share your eggnog and admire Tree.

SIERRA MADRE POLICE BLOTTER

During the week of Sunday, November 29th, to Sunday, December 6th, the Sierra Madre Police Department responded to approximately 252 calls for service.

Tuesday, December 1st

At 7:28 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 600 block of Woodland Dr regarding a theft report. The victim informed Officers that he had recently ordered a laptop and had been tracking the order for several days. While the victim was at school, he received notification from the delivery service that the laptop had been delivered to his home but when he arrived home later that day he could not locate the package. When he victim called and contacted the delivery service, they stated the package was delivered to his home and signed for by initials the man did not recognize. The estimated loss of value was $1500. This case has been forwarded to the Detective Bureau.

Thursday, December 3rd

At 12:31 pm, Sierra Madre Police responded to the 200 block of Jameson Ct regarding a theft from a vehicle. Upon arrival the victim informed Officers that while he was mowing the lawn of the residence he was working at, he noticed a grey colored vehicle stopped next to his truck that was parked on the street. The victim continued to mow the lawn and shortly after noticed someone standing next to his truck, so the man began to walk toward his truck to investigate and the grey car suddenly drove away. When the man approached his truck he realized several pieces of equipment were missing and notified police. This case has been forwarded to the Detective Bureau.

Saturday, December 5th

At 10:35 pm, Sierra Madre Police were patrolling the area of Foothill Blvd and Michillinda Ave when they noticed a vehicle driving with a broken passenger headlight. Officers initiated a traffic stop and upon making contact with the drivers, they smelled a strong odor of marijuana. The driver of the vehicle stated he did not have a valid driver's license and the passenger stated he was on parole and did not have any identification. Both men consented to a search and Officers discovered marijuana, methamphetamine and drug paraphernalia on the men. A vehicle search uncovered several bags from a local grocery store containing numerous bottles of liquor with the security device still on them, as well as various other items. When Officers questioned the men about the items found in the vehicle, they stated they were only dropping of the car who belonged to a friend and the items in the car were already there when they picked it up. Both men were arrested for various charges and the vehicle was towed. A follow up with the local grocery store revealed the men had been to the store earlier that night and stole the merchandise amounting to a total of over $600. This case has been forwarded to the Detective bureau and District Attorneys

SCAG DEALS FURTHER BLOW TO SR-710 TUNNEL PROJECT BY DELETING REFERENCES FROM DRAFT REGIONAL TRANSPORTATION PLAN

Change in regional transportation policy opens the way for a better approach to mobility in the western San Gabriel Valley

December 8, 2015 -- The Southern California Association of Governments on Thursday overwhelmingly approved a draft Regional Transportation Plan (RTP) that deletes all references to the SR-710 tunnel and instead defers an alternative recommendation to the outcome of the ongoing Caltrans/Metro SR-710 North EIR/EIS process. The development marks continuing progress for those who oppose a SR-710 freeway tunnel project and instead favor replacing the tunnel with a great streets, multimodal approach. The approval opened a 55-day review period for the RTP and related review documents.

"I applaud SCAG for recognizing that the tunnel no longer is seen as a likely answer to western San Gabriel Valley mobility issues," said Jonathan Curtis, a member of the SCAG Regional Council and the Mayor pro Tem of the City of La Cañada Flintridge. 'The tunnel is an idea whose time has passed. We look forward to promoting a solution to these issues with our Beyond the 710 proposal."

The SCAG action follows a series of other victories for anti-tunnel forces. Earlier this year, the San Gabriel Valley Council of Governments approved a transportation priority list that omitted the tunnel, admitting that that the proposed SR-710 tunnel suffers from so much opposition that inclusion of the controversial freeway in a proposed county-wide sales measure would doom it to defeat. In addition, the Beyond the 710 proposal was announced in May of this year and quickly attracted support from many elected officials and organizations.

"As a family physician, I am deeply concerned about the negative health effects a 710 freeway extension would create for many communities if it went forward," said Dr. Marina Khubesrian, South Pasadena councilmember, chair of Arroyo Verdugo Steering Committee, and vice chair of Beyond the 710. "We are very grateful for the Regional Council's decision to not include references to the SR-710 tunnel, which can clear the way for more holistic proposals like Beyond the 710."

The Tunnel alternative is not only facing major political opposition, the EIR/EIS process currently underway has revealed that the tunnel alternative would not achieve its two major justifications: improving congestion and reaching air quality goals. In fact, the draft EIR/EIS shows that congestion improvement would be minor, that it would not address the local traffic that clogs local streets, and that it would actually worsen air quality. Both the U.S. EPA and the Southern California AQMD have described the EIR/EIS as inadequate. The tunnel alternative also presents significant problems in the area of historic resources, geology, and financing, among many others.

"I commend the Regional Council for their promoting of 21st century mobility concepts and sustainability strategies, including recommending more resources for transit in the new draft Regional Transportation Plan," said Diana Mahmud, South Pasadena councilwoman and the city's representative to the San Gabriel Valley COG. "However, I would recommend that the RTP devote even more resources for transit and other alternatives to driving. We need to continue with modern mobility solutions, and reject out-moded thinking such as calling for new freeways, especially the SR-710 tunnel project. The $1 billion 405 freeway project provides ample evidence that expanding freeways fail to alleviate congestion; scarce transit funds would be better spent on developing our transit and active transportation systems."

Senator Carol Liu also presented a statement through her district representative Daniel Cedeno encouraging the Regional Council to release the draft RTP for public review and to maintain the new neutral approach to the SR-710 north alternatives.

Congressman Adam Schiff also presented a statement through Michael Aguilera criticizing the SR-710 alternatives being studied by Caltrans and promoting alternatives not currently being studied. Congressman Schiff is a supporter of the Beyond the 710 Proposal.

The Beyond the 710 Proposal shows that congestion can be relieved and economic development promoted by removing the freeway stubs at both the I-10 and I-210 freeways. The Proposal has started a robust community discussion about how to bring about a mobility solution that benefits everyone and destroys no one's community. The Proposal can be found at http://bit.lv/1hk0o9u.

Beyond the 710 is a project of the Connected Cities and Communities, comprised of the cities of Glendale, La Cañada Flintridge, Pasadena, Sierra Madre, and South Pasadena, as well as the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the Natural Resources Defense Council.

Beyond the 710's Plan is the result of many months of study and collaboration to seek solutions that work for all the affected communities. The effort was led by Nelson\Nygaard, a full-service transportation firm, with offices across the United States, committed to developing transportation systems that promote vibrant, sustainable, and accessible communities.

ANTONOVICH HIGHLIGHTS ACCOMPLISHMENTS, COOPERATION AND REFORM

LOS ANGELES COUNTY — In his final speech as administered and coordinated through an integrated Mayor of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors, Supervisor Michael D. Antonovich discussed the year's successes. He expressed his appreciation for incoming Chair Hilda L. Solis, his colleagues on the Board, and county departments who have built upon past achievements to improve and enhance foster care, public safety, municipal services, government, interdepartmental communication transparency and accountability:

"This has been a very exciting year. We hit the ground running and we haven't stopped. This was the first time in Los Angeles County history where we began the year with two new supervisors--Supervisor

Hilda Solis and Supervisor Sheila Kuehl, a new sheriff Jim McDonnell, a new tax assessor Jeffrey Prang and Mary Wickham, our new County Counsel. Additionally, our new CEO Sachi A. Hamai has rapidly responded to reforms critically needed to improve the quality of life for our technology and e-government, helping small 2007 interim governance structure and eliminated an unnecessary $2 million bureaucracy established greater accountability, flexibility, transparency, and

As far as efficiency is concerned, recommendations by the Quality and Productivity Commission saved the county $75.3 million this year and $4 billion in total since 1981. In addition, we established a coordinated health agency to integrate the operations of the departments of health services, mental health, and public health to improve access to care and streamline

We also moved forward with the jail plan, put additional deputies in the unincorporated areas, and we are moving forward with the trafficking issue. District Attorney Jackie Lacey has done a very fine job in this area and we were able to help supplement her in helping victims with their services. We created further savings through an ordinance that allowed us to issue rewards for sex offenders who have absconded while on probation or parole and we increased the number of victim services advocates within the District Attorney's Office.

We successfully executed the Memorandum of Agreement with the Department of Justice and we expanded necessary programs. For Fire, we leased two additional Super Scoopers once again for a total of four -- and we have the Ericson Air Crane that responds to fires. Our L.A. County Fire Department is one of the best in the world. They are often called to foreign countries to help with tragedies, earthquakes, flooding and tsunamis. We also expanded the public awareness campaign for earthquake and other emergency

On children's services, we created the Child Sex Trafficking Integrated Leadership Team and expanded first responders, initiated public outreach campaigns and enhanced the electronic child abuse reporting system between law enforcement and child protective services. The new Office of Child Protection is providing overreaching guidance which Judge Michael Nash is now going to be heading when he takes over

We advocated state legislation clarifying the prioritization of foster youth for subsidized childcare. We improved training for qualified social workers with a 52-week curriculum that our universities will now implement to upgrade the caliber of social workers coming out of our universities. We also hired additional social workers and support staff.

We also initiated the Career Development Internship rogram which provides jobs for former foster yout in partnership with 30 cities, schools and government to support the potential public private partnership. agencies to provide valuable workforce experience and create a foundation for these young people to succeed.

With Health Services, Mayor Eric Garcetti and I met with Housing and Urban Development Secretary Julian Castro and with, to discuss solutions to the entered into an agreement to provide trauma services for the East San Gabriel Valley at the Pomona Valley Hospital.

incarceration and homelessness. We transferred to the Department of Health Services where health, mental health and substance abuse services will be 88 cities and public and private businesses."

In economic development, we created a one-stop permitting center by consolidating regional planning, fire and public health permits at one location. We decentralized the locations of conditional use permit applications to district offices. We supported development efforts with national/international partners, bringing in the successful BYD electric bus manufacturer and rail car manufacturer Kinkisharyo who is building the rail cars for the Gold Line, the Green Line, the Expo Line and the Blue Line that will be coming on shortly.

We continued the procurement process through residents. Under Sachi's leadership, we repealed the minority enterprises, women-owned, disadvantaged and veteran-owned businesses to be competitive. We altered the list of qualified local workers to automatically include veterans. Veterans need to have that type of opportunity -- it's time we serve them when they come home.

We acquired 27 acres in Chatsworth in Brown's Canyon, preserved for multi-use open space for an equestrian park and acquired acres along Portal Ridge to preserve for public use.

For Animal Services, we expanded the Department of Animal Care and Control broke ground on the new Palmdale Animal Shelter, providing new positions, and expanded Baldwin Park Care Center. We teamed up with NBC4 and Telemundo for the national "Clear the Shelters" initiative to find permanent homes for unwanted pets. We amended Title 10 of the County Code to require mandatory spaying and neutering and micro-chipping of cats in the unincorporated areas of our County. We had a three-month pilot program with reduced adoption fees to help increase the number of animals adopted.

For our veterans, we sponsored the special recognition at the Bob Hope Patriotic Hall honoring our veterans of the Second World War, 70 years after its end. We also did one with China at the auditorium for the men and women who served in the war when the United States and China defeated Japan. The Bob Hope Patriotic Hall is now the largest one-stop center for veterans in the County. We continue to work with veterans to ensure that VA claims are filed properly and lowering average VA wait claim times to less than a month. We created additional employment opportunities for veterans and expanded veteran internships to assist them in their transition to civilian workplace. My office sponsored the 18th Annual Salute to Veterans and their families to provide public outreach, employment opportunities and support and organized free transit passes for veterans on Veterans Day.

The Board was very united in selecting Phil Washington to lead the Metropolitan Transit Authority -- he's a cut above. We completed the extension of the Metro Gold Line on time and on budget and we opened the Gold Line stations at Arcadia, Duarte, Azusa and Monrovia, and a new express bus service which will be linking the Gold, Red and Orange Lines when the Gold Line extension opens in early 2016. We implemented a 25 percent fare reduction on the Metrolink Antelope Valley Line and a second conductor on every Antelope Valley Line for greater fare enforcement and security for passengers. We advanced the High Desert Corridor Project for the environmental impact report in April 2016 and funding for rail revenue and ridership study

L.A. County was named one of America's best employers of 2015 by Forbes Magazine. We received the "7 Seals" Award for support of men and women who served in the military. We received the California Employer Advisory Council Veterans Employer homelessness problem. And with Supervisor Solis, we of the Year Award for our hiring and promoting of veterans. REP. SCHIFF ANNOUNCES ANNUAL CONGRESSIONAL STUDENT STEM CHALLENGE

Today, Rep. Adam Schiff (D-Burbank) announced the start of the annual congressional science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) academic competition, the Congressional App Challenge, for the 28th Congressional District. THE REEL DEAL: by Ben Show CREED REVIEW

'Creed' is the continuation of the long-standing, extremely popular 'Rocky' franchise. Naturally, many people got very excited for this film, being long time fans of the franchise; however, I have not seen any of the 'Rocky' movies. Sports film, in general, even classics like 'Rocky', are not the type of movie that I want to see in theaters, but I decided to see 'Creed' to see if it could win me over on sports

Apollo Creed (Carl Weathers) was one of the greatest boxers of all time. That is, until a Rocky Balboa (Sylvester Stallone) defeated him. Unknown to the world, Apollo had a son with someone he cheated on his wife with. Adonis (Michael B. Jordan) was raised in secret, keeping his identity hidden, and with a penchant for fighting everyone and everything. When he grows up and meets Rocky, he is determined to get the retired boxing legend to train him, and to help him make a name for himself.

'Creed', from what I hear from fans of the franchise, was as good as the original 'Rocky'. For me, it was a decent film with some exceptional aspects. One, the cinematography is amazing; it makes you feel like you are either part of the fight going on or right in Adonis' corner in the ring. Two, Stallone delivers a spectacular performance as an aging Rocky. It was an unexpected delight to see him do such an amazing acting job. 'Creed' is definitely a film made for fans of the 'Rocky' franchise but, for those who are not fans, it breaks no new ground in the genre, but it is a film worth giving a in and around Sierra Madre, and I adore hearing the musical calls of birds echoing through the air. I especially love hearing the audacious calls that come from the enormous birds of prey living among us. In fact, when I hear the unique, low-tone hooting of an owl, I feel a sense of warmth and comfort that is hard for me to describe. Just knowing that owls nest in the trees close to where I live is like an honor to me.

A few months ago I read an article, Homeless Owls Need Homes, Too, about a project that provides alternative habitation for owls rendered homeless due to development in the San Gabriel Valley. Interested in learning more, I contacted the author, Steve Scauzillo and he was kind enough to take the time to chat with me. Steve admitted that he is not an owl expert and may not be the best person to consult about local owls. His column covers a variety of current issues and concerns regarding the environment, and this particular article just happened to be about owls. Steve referred me to a true owl expert at the LA Museum of Natural History, Kimball Garrett, so I gave him a call.

To my delight, Mr. Garret was more than willing to share his knowledge about the owls that inhabit our foothills. Apparently there are a few different types that might be seen nesting in the forest and visiting our village, but the ones we are most likely to hear exuding resonant hooting sounds back and forth to one another are Great Horned Owls (Bubo virginianus pacificus). Garret explained that this particular owl is more prominent in our parts because they are more adaptable to environmental changes, and are therefore willing to inhabit alternative nesting spots when preferred locations are no longer

Great Horned Owls prefer nesting in very tall trees, but when those trees go missing, which seems to be more of a trend now than ever in our town, the Great Horned Owl is wise enough to take up residence in lower lying canopies. Some will even nest in manmade boxes built on stilts where they are protected from predators, high winds and hard rains.

Like all living things, owls play a very important part in keeping nature in balance. With this in mind, being too many rats running around in your yard, let Horned Owl.

it be a reminder of how important the big trees are. They provide a place for owls and other birds of prey to stay and help keep the local rat population in check.

I had a remarkable experience with a couple of local owls on the morning my dad passed away. I slept in a little later than usual that Saturday, so I was still lying in bed at 8am when I suddenly heard two owls calling out in unison, one slightly higher pitched than the other. They were so close and so loud that the huge picture window

I so enjoy observing the local wildlife that resides in my room seemed to vibrate. My husband was there to witness the experience, so I can rely on his confirmation when I share this story with my friends. They may not believe it really happened

> We both laid there listening, amazed at how loud those owls were. They had to be very close, maybe perched in the avocado tree in our side yard. It is so rare that I see owls that close or hear hear them that loud, so when I heard those owls near my bedroom window, I thought is sounded like a sort of heavenly choir singing a sacred hymn just for me. It brought a sense of serenity to my soul.

> Just moments after hearing the owls, I got out of bed and went down to make coffee. It was then that I got the call from my family, telling me the sad news that my father had just passed away. When I hung up the phone, I sat for a while crying and trying to process the shocking news. The owls had left my thoughts completely until later that day when it dawned on me; at the very moment my dad died, I was listening to the amazing sound of two owls outside my window, hooting louder than I had ever heard before.

> There are many mysterious, mystical myths associated with the owl, passed down through oral traditions of various peoples. One myth says that the owl is an omen of death soon-to-come. Another regards the owl as the bearer of the deceased soul as it passes from this world into the next. I have never subscribed to mysticism about animals before, but I must say the experience I had on the morning my dad passed away made me think twice about whether those ancient theories might hold some truth.

One thing that is definitely true for me is that I love those amazing birds of prey. I love them because of their beauty and elegance, their tenacity and their symbiotic relationship with nature, not to mention the fact that they provide excellent examples to we humans through their loyal, familial life-style. They work very hard to overcome life's hurdles, just to survive in today's world where fast-paced development is so quickly stealing away the places where they used to stay. I thank God every day for this beautiful earth and all the creatures he placed on the next time you are tempted to complain about there it, particularly the mythical, mystical, magical Great

PET OF THE WEEK: STEWART: ANIMAL ID #A4901139

Sweet little Stewart has one wish, and that is for a place he can call home. Stewart (A4901139) is a soulful 7-year-old tricolor (black, white, tan) male Chihuahua whose owners left him and his son, Sammie [A4901142] at the Baldwin Park Animal Care Center on November 30th because they felt they no longer had time for their dogs. Weighing just shy of 9 lbs, Stewart lives to cuddle, and will seize on any opportunity for a hug or a pet. He is a gentle dog who watches the world with curiosity. His former owners tell us that he hasn't had much in the way of training yet, so he would benefit from a basic obedience class to help him become the star-quality dog he is meant to be. Stewart seems fine with other dogs, and is especially fond of Sammie. Stewart will blossom in a loving household committed to making him a part of their family forever. To watch a video of Stewart, please visit the following link: https://youtu.be/ LWK4o9gWwNY

ACUPUNCTURE FOR NECK PAIN

What is neck pain?

Neck pain is a common condition — so common, in fact, that the expression "a pain in the neck" is an oft-used figure of speech in English. Because of its position and range of motion, and because it plays a vital role in the support of the head, the neck is more subject to injury than any other portion of the spine. While it is much less frequent than back pain, neck pain can occasionally be severe enough to warrant attention from a licensed health professional.

Neck pain can have a variety of causes. Keeping your head in an awkward position can cause your neck muscles to fatigue and the joints in your neck to "lock" in place, causing discomfort, stiffness and limited range of motion. Neck pain can also be caused by a sudden force (such as an automobile accident), or a medical condition (swelling, disease, tumors, bleeding, inflammation, etc.). Some neck pain can also cause headaches (see the "Acupuncture for Headaches and Head Pain" section for more information).

Who suffers from neck pain?

Almost everyone will experience some sort of neck pain or stiffness during their lifetime; however, certain occupations appear to be predisposed to neck symptoms. Manual laborers, for instance, have more symptoms than office workers, and the type of work seems to affect the risk. A person's age and a history of twisting and bending during work can also contribute. Workers who have been required to do repetitive tasks with their upper extremities, or who undergo periods of prolonged sitting with their head in a flexed position (such as typing on a keyboard at a desk) are at risk of developing mechanical neck pain.

What can acupuncture do for neck pain?

Studies have shown acupuncture to be effective in relieving certain types of neck pain, particularly those caused by whiplash. Some studies suggest acupuncture can treat degenerative neck disorders such as ankylosing spondylosis and cervical spondylosis; in many cases, acupuncture has worked for patients whose conditions could not be solved using conventional approaches.

Acupressure and herbal medicine are sometimes used in conjunction with acupuncture for neck pain. Applying acupressure to the neck muscles can reduce spasm and lessen pain, leading to a relaxed state and a heightened sense of well-being. Depending on the patient's condition, certain herbal products can be used to improve circulation and blood flow and ease muscle contraction.

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

HOW TO RAISE RESPONSIBLE KIDS -PART 2

Last week I wrote about the definition of responsibility. happiness, In short, responsibility means your children are "able to be trusted to do what is right.

So let's see what that looks like in several different contexts and explore how we can support our kids to become truly responsible.

I'll start with money because most parents want to raise kids responsible in that area.

So what does it mean to be responsible with money? A local attorney and father, Marc Garlett is on a What does it mean to be trusted to do what is right with money?

To begin with, it means that we are confident our children know how to make good use of the resources that come to them.

But before we can ensure our children become responsible in this area, we must look at whether and how - we are taking responsibility in this area ourselves. So I ask you, can you be trusted to make good use of the resources that come to you? In my experience, many people do not feel confident in this area. That lack of confidence may show up as an over focus on money, an unnecessary stinginess with money, or as an unwillingness to make the time to really look and organize assets and resources.

If you see yourself in any of these examples, supporting your children to become responsible with money needs to begin with you.

You can take responsibility yourself by getting clear on what you have and what you need to have to provide a life of comfort and connection with the ones you love. You can show your children what responsibility looks like by creating a Family Estate Plan which is more than just a set of legal documents - it should engage your children in planning for their

When you bring your children into the Family Estate Planning process, in a well thought out manner, you are helping prepare them for a life of financial responsibility.

Whether you have young kids or adult kids, it's never too late - or too early - to start the process of taking full responsibility for your money and leading your kids by example.

THE GOOD LIFE

HOW MUCH YOU'LL PAY FOR MEDICARE IN 2016

Dear Savvy Senior,

I know there won't be a cost-of-living increase in Social Security benefits next year but what about Medicare? I've heard some beneficiaries will get hit with a big Part B monthly premium increase in 2016. What can you tell me, and who will this affect?

Planning Ahead

Dear Planning,

All things considered, the news regarding your Medicare costs next year is pretty good. For about 70 percent of the nation's 52 million Medicare beneficiaries, there will be no Part B premium increase in 2016. And thanks to the 2015 Bipartisan Budget Act that was signed into law by President Obama on Nov. 2, the other 30 percent will pay much less than previously projected. Here's what you can expect.

Part B Premiums

Because the Social Security Administration will not be giving out a cost of living increase (or COLA) in 2016, the Medicare Part B premiums for most current beneficiaries will not go up either. Thanks to the "hold harmless" provision in the Medicare law, which prohibits Part B premiums from rising in any year that there's no COLA, the 2016 monthly premium will remain at $104.90 for most current Medicare Deductibles and Co-Pays participants.

However, this provision does not protect new Medicare enrollees (those who enroll in 2016), beneficiaries who are directly billed for their Part B premium, or current beneficiaries who have deferred claiming their Social Security. This includes people 65 or older who are still working but have signed up for Medicare because their employer doesn't offer health insurance. It also hits people who have filed and suspended Social Security benefits to allow a spouse

If you fit into any of these categories, your Medicare Part B premium will increase to $121.80 a month in 2016 - which is much lower than the $159.30 that it would have been, had the budget deal fell through.

The hold-harmless rule also does not protect highincome Medicare beneficiaries who already pay higher Part B premiums because their annual incomes are above $85,000 for an individual or $170,000 for a couple. If you fit into this category, here's what you'll pay for your Part B premium next year, based on your 2014 tax returns.

Individuals with incomes of $85,000 to $107,000, or married couples filing joint tax returns with incomes of $170,000 to $214,000, will pay $170.50 per month. Individuals earning $107,000 to $160,000 (couples $214,000 to $320,000) will pay $243.60.

Individuals with incomes of $160,000 to $214,000 (couples $320,000 to $428,000) will pay $316.70.

Individuals over $214,000 or couples above $428,000 will pay $389.80.

Another increase high-income beneficiaries (those with incomes over $85,000, or $170,000 for joint filers) need to be aware of is the surcharge on Part D premiums. Affluent seniors that have a Medicare Part D prescription drug plan will pay an additional $12.70 to $72.90 per month, depending on their income, on top of their regular Part D premiums.

Other changes you need to know about that will affect all Medicare beneficiaries include the Part B deductible, which will increase to $166 in 2016 (it's currently $147); and the Part A (hospital insurance) annual deductible which will go up to $1,288 (it's currently $1,260) for hospital stays up to 60 days. That increases to $322 per day for days 61-90, and to $644 a day for days 91 and beyond. And the skilled nursing facility coinsurance for days 21-100 will also increase to $161 per day (it's currently $157.50).

For more information on all the Medicare costs for 2016 visit Medicare.gov and click on "Your Medicare Costs" tab at the top of the page, or call 800-633-4227.

that I loved it! (That doesn't mean I want to watch it again, but it was fun the first time.)

Like all great musicals, "The Sound of Music" has selling a sing-along DVD attests to this. There are a surprising variety of people you wouldn't expect to know, or care, about "The Sound of Music." One of my junior high teachers was a big, tall "man's man" who liked rough and tumble sports and had a saint Bernard with a head the size of a basketball. The topic of faith came up one day during class. Misty eyed, my teacher described the scene in which the Mother Superior exhorts Maria to "Climb Every Mountain!"

Then there was my Mom's principal, an Asian man in his 40's; he loved the movie so much that he even gave his daughter the Alpine name, Heidi. Even my multiple takes and breaks in between scenes, theater husband surprised me by knowing many of the songs. Apparently he sang them in grammar school for a Christmas program.

Of course, what I love most are Rodgers & Hammerstein's songs! Commenting on the musical score, Rodgers once stated, "You don't leave the theater humming the scenery." While no one has criticized Carrie Underwood's singing, many have lambasted her acting ability and her nerve to attempt Julie Andrew's iconic role as Maria von Trapp. Frankly, I think any actress would be crucified for taking on that role. (The same can be said for Dorothy in "The Wizard of Oz," or Scarlet in "Gone With the Wind." Actually, there was a "sequel" to the latter, but it was so awful it doesn't warrant mentioning.)

While I'm by no means extolling Underwood's long, Farewell, Auf wiedersehen, Good bye!"

"The hills are alive..." with the acting, I think we all need to take a step back and sound of critics. Did you watch remember that this was a LIVE, MUSICAL. I readily "The Sound of Music" last admit I know as much about acting, singing, dancing, Thursday? My husband and I and the theater in general as I do about higher math. did, and though I doubt any of the cast are going to However, as a closet old person, I've watched many be nominated for acting awards, I shamelessly admit movie musicals, and even went to see a few musical

As far as I can fathom, movies are vastly different from plays, especially musicals. First, theater actors a unifying effect on people. The fact that NBC is have to project their voice, movements, and overall character enough so the people in the nosebleed section can appreciate them. This, in itself, necessitates some over-acting. Now, when you add dancing and singing to the mix, even more is required from actors. Not only do they have to remember their lines, but they've got to belt them out, sometimes while dancing. I can barely hike and talk at the same time, so I have a deep respect for those who sing and dance simultaneously. Heck, I can't even stand being "dressed up" for more than a couple hours.

Furthermore, while movie actors have the luxury of actors have to get it right the first time. There are no second chances in front of a live audience. For all of these reasons, I've always considered musical theater actors more as athletes. The stamina it must take to pull off these productions night after night, week after week boggles my mind.

The difference in the amount of skill and energy expended by these actors is kind of like comparing my little column to the work of a stand-up improv actor. It's one thing to come up with witty one-liners on the spot, and it's another to sit typing at home in your jammies, as I am now. By the time you read this, it will be at least my third draft, (and even then, I can't promise anything). But at least it's a lot cheaper than buying theater tickets! And now I must bid you "So

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

Do you have kids? I do, anyone need one until the economy picks up again, she is well mannered? Just kidding honey, but I will need that iPhone back, with the receipt. A certifiable winner on every Wednesday and Sunday Night is Robin's where the Kids eat for free!! I have a feeling we can all afford that one. With each adult entrée your child can eat for free from the kids menu. No kids, you say, well they also offer all you can eat Rib Tips for ($13.95). Wow!!!

Now let's review an American favorite!!! It is also one of my personal favorites, BBQ, not the oven roasted version which Tony Roma's panders. No, Barbeque is made low and slow. Low heat and slowly cooked. There is only one authentic BBQ in The San Gabriel Valley; you guessed it, Robin's Woodfire BBQ and Grill in Hastings Ranch.

Owner and head politician Robin Salzer has perfected the BBQ at his name sake. Robin, will readily admit it took a few months to perfect the BBQ at Robin's. Robin hails from Milwaukee and opened Robin's 33 years ago this month. The original menu had everything from breakfast, to pizza, nachos and little bit of the BBQ. About ten years ago Robin made the decision to go strictly BBQ. "Everyone in the neighborhood, thought I was crazy," Robin recalled. But, "I decided to stay the course". The result is some of the best BBQ in all of Southern California. The awards in the past five years include: Best of City Search, numerous Best of Awards by local newspapers, write ups in the LA Times and a feature in Westways Magazine.

Depending on the meat, each entrée is cooked between 4 to 6 hours on wood. The sauce is then put on the meat about twenty seconds before meat is done. This is done to avoid burning the outside skin of the meat.

Prices range from ($8.95) for salads to ($35.95) for the ultimate Garbage Can Combo. Check out my food blog for pictures www.peterdillstumblr.com The combo includes chicken, beef ribs, tri tip, baby back, spare ribs and a beef link. The garbage combo is big enough for two people

What to order: The Beef Ribs are a must!! Four rib dinner ($19.95) and the six Rib dinner is ($29.95). Robin tells me the ribs are notched, thus insuring extra meat. For dessert order the peach cobbler, its house made.

What to avoid: Mondays & Tuesday, the restaurant is closed. They don't take reservations on the weekends, so I suggest making the visit on a Thursday Night. No separate checks. Four Stars. Worth the drive from anywhere in Los Angeles. Check out the website. Robinsmenu.

Deathtrap! This diabolical show was originally slated to open on October 2 but because of the extensions 2016 opening. It is my great good fortune that the cast and designers have all stayed with me through the various postponements – and after the first two weeks of rehearsals, I can say with certainty that you are in for a real treat. This is a dynamite cast

One of the things you think about is the audience of Always...Patsy Cline we moved it to a January 15, being able to follow the action around the room - for example, if an actor reacts immediately to something another actor says or does the audience won't see it. So you have to build in little delays for the audience to turn from one actor to another. That way they will see both the thrust and the parry. Acting is pretending. All of us in the theater were probably once those kids with hyper-active imaginations who jumped at the chance to play cops favorite TV shows. So to get to work on a show where part of the consideration is how to hold a crossbow so it looks most menacing, or how to believably die on the hearth rug, or exactly when to scare the audience is just so much fun.

And for me it is such a pleasure (and relief) to be back in the rehearsal room. It's been a year since I last directed and I've really missed it. Bringing life onto the stage is always a challenge - you have to balance making the characters real enough for the audience to recognize them but also theatrical sure that the story is being told and that the plot fall. You remember that thing we did with dominoes purchase.

I am thrilled too that we've already begun selling tickets! We haven't done a non-musical play since The Odd Couple last spring and haven't done a thriller in years - and clearly there is pent & robbers, pirates or superheroes, or to re-enact our up anticipation. I'll let you know how things are coming along - but I hope you'll join us for Deathtrap.

A Christmas Memory continues to delight audiences. It really is perfect for all ages and speaks to a time when Christmas was much simpler. A Christmas Memory runs through the holidays to December 27. electronic music while attending Ohio University in 2009. After adopting the name, Brothertiger, he released his fanciful synth-laden debut EP "Vision Tunnels." Since then, Jagos has released the critically praised LPs, Golden Years (2012) and "Future Splendors" (2013). With his recent move to Brooklyn, New York, Jagos is about to release his third LP, "Out of Touch." The ten-track endeavor is an emotionally heavy outing, but it's not overwhelming. Jagos takes a lot of personal experience and embeds it into his optimistic melodies. Underling themes of distress, apprehension, and fearfulness are present, but that's only natural to explore for any artist in there twenties. As noted by Jagos, "Out of Touch" is a deeply personal record that explores the positive and negative aspects of trying to find one's self in society in a post-college setting. Sure, the album focuses on all these things in life, but does it sound any good? The short answer is one along their own footpath.

"Beyond The Infinite" is the grand opener for Jagos and it's a real beaut. The oscillating synths and lush soundscape mixed with Jaogs lyrics that look inward rather than outward all form perfectly together. So right off the bat, we have something incredibly moving to set the stage for "Out of Touch." "Wake" features warm, wistful vocals constructed around electronic music that leans toward the soft-rock side. Jagos showcases ambient tones over his sanguine lyrics. "Fall Apart" is yet another lovely tune that encouragingly moves forward as it progresses. Jagos utilizes his signature ethereal quality again and everything just falls into place effortlessly. In many ways, the album is shaping up to be the feel-good record of the season. While many life-changing themes are explored, optimism is always center stage. With all that's dark in the world, Brothertiger tries to shed light in the most Veridian Waterways"

The title track delves into 80s synth-pop and there's nothing to complain about here. It's an electro-pop track showcasing exceptional sounds that evolve into something memorable. new and special each go around. "Engulfed" starts off with bouncy and tropical beats. The chilled vibe and dreamy impression it gives off definitely makes the listener feel at home. As the album moves forward, we land on "Grenada," a peaceful, nostalgic track that really hits every note faultlessly. It's utterly affecting and meditative in every aspect of the song. Jagos has the remarkable propensity of writing just the right lyrics for his immaculate sounds. Everything goes hand in hand making "Out of Touch" feel like the perfect album. "Drift" ends this latest chapter for Brothertiger and it's another spotless example in perfection. The impactful song is colorful and engaging with pleasant vocals and comforting emotion throughout. In the end, I was deeply moved, inspired, and enlightened by the complete journey that was offered. "Out of Touch" speaks volumes beyond the listener finishing the record. It will linger with you, stick inside your mind, and enter into your soul. Frankly, it's captivating to say the least. Brothertiger's latest composition brings a lot to the table as Jagos firsthand approach to songwriting and outlook on life is splendid, touching, and authentic all at the same time.

DAVID GESSNER

All The Wild That Remains: Edward Abbey, Wallace Stegner, and the American West by David Gessner

An homage to the West and to two great writers who set the standard for all who celebrate and defend it.Archetypal wild man Edward Abbey and proper, dedicated Wallace Stegner left their footprints all over the western landscape. Now, awardwinning nature writer David Gessner follows the ghosts of these two remarkable writer-environmentalists from Stegner's birthplace in Saskatchewan to the site of Abbey's pilgrimages to Arches National Park in Utah, braiding their stories and asking how they speak to the lives of all those who care about the West. These two great westerners had very different ideas about what it meant to love the land and try to care for it, and they did so in distinctly different styles. Boozy, lustful, and irascible, Abbey was best known as the author of the novel The Monkey Wrench Gang (and also of the classic nature memoir Desert Solitaire), famous for spawning as "monkeywrenching" and to law enforcement as nestic terrorism to disrupt commercial exploitation of western lands. By contrast, Stegner, a buttoned-down, Americans it was a reunion for Americans with their own disciplined, faithful family man and devoted professor of creative writing, dedicated himself to working through the system to protect western sites such as Dinosaur National Monument in Colorado.In a region beset by droughts and fires, by fracking and drilling, and by an ever-growing population that seems to be in the process of loving the West to death, Gessner asks: how might these two farseeing environmental thinkers have responded to the crisis? Gessner takes us on an inspiring, entertaining journey as he renews his own commitment to cultivating a meaningful relationship with the wild, confronting American overconsumption, and fighting environmental injustice, all while reawakening the thrill of the words of his two great heroes.

Lafayette in the Somewhat United States by Sarah Vowell

From the bestselling author of Assassination Vacation and The Partly Cloudy Patriot, an insightful and unconventional account of George Washington's trusted officer and friend, that swashbuckling teenage French aristocrat the Marquis de Lafayette. Chronicling General Lafayette's years in Washington's army, Vowell reflects on the ideals of the American Revolution versus the reality of the Revolutionary War. Riding shotgun with Lafayette, Vowell swerves from the high-minded debates of Independence Hall to the frozen wasteland of Valley Forge, from bloody battlefields to the Palace of Versailles, bumping into John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Lord Cornwallis, Benjamin Franklin, Marie Antoinette and various kings, Quakers and redcoats along the way. Drawn to the patriots' war out of a lust for glory, Enlightenment ideas and the traditional French hatred for the British, young Lafayette crossed the Atlantic expecting Amazon .com to join forces with an undivided people, encountering instead fault lines between the Continental Congress and the Continental Army, rebel and loyalist inhabitants, and a conspiracy to fire George Washington, the one man holding together the rickety, seemingly doomed patriot cause. While Vowell's yarn is full of the bickering and infighting that marks the American past and present—her telling of the Revolution is just as much a story of friendship: between Washington and Lafayette, between the Americans and their French allies and, most of all between Lafayette and the American people. Coinciding with one of the most contentious presidential elections in American history, Vowell lingers over the elderly Lafayette's sentimental return tour of America in 1824, when three fourths of the population of New York City turned out to welcome him ashore. As a Frenchman and the last surviving general of the Continental Army, Lafayette belonged to neither North nor South, to no political party or faction. He was a walking, talking the idea of guerrilla actions, known to admirers reminder of the sacrifices and bravery of the revolutionary generation and what the founders hoped this country could be. My Brilliant Friend: Neapolitan Novels, Book One by Elena Ferrante

A modern masterpiece from one of Italy's most acclaimed authors, My Brilliant Friend is a rich, intense, and generous-hearted story about two friends, Elena and Lila. Ferrante's inimitable style lends itself perfectly to a meticulous portrait of these two women that is also the story of a nation and a touching meditation on the nature of friendship. The story begins in the 1950s, in a poor but vibrant neighborhood on the outskirts of Naples. Growing up on these tough streets the two girls learn to rely on each other ahead of anyone or anything else. As they grow, as their paths repeatedly diverge and converge, Elena and Lila remain best friends whose respective destinies are reflected and refracted in the other. They are likewise the embodiments of a nation undergoing momentous change. Through the lives of these two women, Ferrante tells the story of a neighborhood, a city, and a country as it is transformed in ways that, in turn, also transform the relationship between her protagonists, the unforgettable Elena and Lila. Ferrante is the author of three previous works of critically acclaimed fiction: The Days of Abandonment, Troubling Love, and The Lost Daughter. With this novel, the first in a tetralogy, she proves herself to be one of Italy's great storytellers. She has given her readers a masterfully plotted page-turner, abundant and generous in its narrative details and characterizations, that is also a stylish work of literary fiction destined to delight her many fans and win new readers to her fiction. 1. Abraham Lincoln is best known for abolishing has come to remember him for setting our Nation slavery and keeping the United States together through the Civil War, but he also helped the country become the scientific and engineering powerhouse we know today. For example, Lincoln signed the Morrill Act in 1862, creating a system of landgrant colleges and universities that revolutionized higher education in the United States, notes famed astrophysicist and science communicator Neil deGrasse Tyson."Known also as the people's colleges, they were conceived with the idea that they would provide practical knowledge and science in a developing democratic republic,". Notable land-grant institutions include the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cornell University, the University of Florida, the Ohio State University, the University of Arizona and the schools in the vast University of California system.Lincoln, the 16th president of the United States, also chartered the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) in 1863, establishing the august body that advises Congress and the president about science and technology matters to this day. The speech, which Tyson called "The Seedbed," reflects on the importance of the NAS, and of science generally to the United States and its future."In this, the twenty-first century, innovations in science and technology form the primary engines of economic growth," Tyson's speech reads. "While most remember Honest Abe he was inaugurated on March 4, 1861, seven southern for war and peace, and slavery and freedom, the time on a course of scientifically enlightened governance, without which we all may perish from this Earth."

2.Abraham Lincoln lost five separate elections before being elected president. For Lincoln, electoral successes had to be taken hand-in-hand with failures. Since losing his first race for the Illinois General Assembly in 1832 he had gone on to lose a race for the U.S. Congress, two races for the U.S. Senate, and one campaign for a vice-presidential nomination. His ambition was unchecked, however, and by 1858 he was a national player in the new Republican Party and perhaps its most prominent intellectual voice. He won the 1860 Republican presidential nomination after a tough battle at the national convention, defeating notable opponents William H. Seward, Edward Bates, and Salmon P. Chase, before wading into the four-way general election against Democrat Stephen Douglas, Southern Democrat John Breckinridge, and Constitutional Unionist John Bell. Lincoln and Douglas, rivals from the Lincoln-Douglas senatorial debates of 1858, squared off in the north while Breckinridge and Bell divided the southern states between them. In the end the demographic dominance of the Republican Party gave Lincoln a victory, even though he lost every single southern state by a large margin. By the time states had seceded.

CERES' BRIGHT SPOTS SIMILAR TO EPSOM SALT

Dwarf planet Ceres reveals some of its well-kept secrets in a study published in the journal Nature, thanks to new data from NASA's Dawn spacecraft. They include highly anticipated insights about mysterious bright features found all over the dwarf planet's surface and especially in the crater

Ceres has more than 130 bright areas, and most of them are associated with impact craters. Study authors, led by Andreas Nathues at Max Planck Institute for Solar System Research, Göttingen, Germany, write that the bright material is consistent with a type of magnesium sulfate called hexahydrite. A different type of magnesium sulfate is familiar on Earth as Epsom Nathues and colleagues, using images from Dawn's framing camera, suggest that these salt-rich areas were left behind when water-ice sublimated in the past. Impacts from asteroids would have unearthed the mixture of ice and salt.

"The global nature of Ceres' bright spots suggests that this world has a subsurface layer that contains briny water-ice," Nathues said.

The surface of Ceres, whose average diameter is 584 miles, is generally dark—similar in brightness to fresh asphalt. The bright patches that pepper the surface represent a large range of brightness, with the brightest areas reflecting about 50 percent of sunlight shining on the area. But there has not been unambiguous detection of water ice on Ceres; higher-resolution data are needed to settle this question.

The inner portion of the crater called Occator contains the brightest material on Ceres. Occator itself is 60 miles in diameter, and its central pit, covered by this bright material, measures about 6 miles wide and 0.3 mile deep. Dark streaks, possibly fractures, traverse the pit. Remnants of a central peak, which was up to 0.3 mile high, can

With its sharp rim and walls, and abundant terraces and landslide deposits, Occator appears to be among the youngest features on Ceres. Dawn mission scientists estimate its age to be about 78 million years old.

Study authors write that some views of Occator appear to show a diffuse haze near the surface that fills the floor of the crater. This may be associated with the observations of water vapor at Ceres that were reported by the Herschel space observatory in 2014. The haze seems to be present in views taken at noon local time and absent at dawn from minus 136 degrees to minus 28 degrees resembles the activity at the surface of a comet, with water vapor lifting tiny particles of dust and residual ice. Future data and analysis may test this hypothesis and reveal clues about the process causing this activity.

One of our improvements, once we had removed bits of old metal, wood scraps, logs, and and old shack, was to very heavily mulch the barren yard and the neglected courtyard areas. Mulch consisted of natural materials such as wood chips, leaves, grass clippings - organic matter that can be spread on the ground to hold in moisture. As the mulch decomposes, it helps to increase the soil's fertility.

MY CHRISTMAS "MISS-HER-TOE" CELEBRATION

Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. That was, up

I am not known as Mr. Perfect by any stretch of the imagination. If there is a mistake to be made, I have already made it or it is on my "Bucket List." I have made a lifetime profession of making mistakes.

Sooner or later, I am going to come to the end of this and stop making mistakes. I suppose I will have to live as long as Methuselah to achieve that goal, and believe me, I do not plan to live that long, only long enough to come to the end of all of my

I must say I was making progress until this past week. Actually, it was not my mistake that highlighted the week, which made it remarkable.

My wife does not make mistakes, but this past week she made a blunder of all blunders. Believe me; I am not smiling except on the inside where I am actually laughing hysterically.

It is that time of the year when Christmas decorations magically appear in our very gracious and merry domicile. The procedure along this line is that I am to just stay out of her way. It is amazing what she can do when I am out of her way!

I suppose this year she was a little behind schedule, which is rather unusual for her and she made the blunder of all blunders by asking if I could help bring in the Christmas tree.

I remember the last time I brought in the Christmas tree. At this point, I will not give any details only to say that somebody had to go out, purchase a new Christmas tree and then clean up the mess from the old Christmas tree. Enough said along that line.

Whether my wife forgot about that incident in the busyness of the season or whether she thought

I had grown out of that kind of thing.

What most wives do not understand is that every man reaches the height of maturity at the age of 15, if lucky. It does not matter how old a man gets, he is always 15 in heart and mind, particularly mind.

In the beginning of our marriage journey, we had live Christmas trees for Christmas. Through the years it became more prudent to buy an artificial Christmas tree. And so, the artificial Christmas tree was packed away in some corner of the garage.

I say garage, but it is not garage in the typical sense of the word. I am not allowed in the garage without being supervised. Years ago, my wife transformed our garage into her woodworking shop with all of the equipment needed for that kind of work. Since I do not work with woodworking projects, I am not allowed in that area.

When she supervises my visit in her "workshop," I am not allowed to touch anything. And by Making mistakes is not in the resume of the anything, she means, "Don't touch anything!" She visualizes this instruction by placing both hands on her hips and staring at me with one of "those

> I followed her into that sacred space, "her workshop," to assist her in taking the Christmas tree into the living room.

> All was going very well as we extricated ourselves from her "workshop," and navigated into the living room. I might mention that the Christmas tree was well packaged in a very heavy box and I had the heaviest end.

> Then it happened. I am not sure how it happened, I just know it happened.

For some odd reason the Christmas tree box decided on its own to jump out of my hands and make a dive for the floor. There was a loud crashing sound and a lot of yelling on both sides of the box. I am not quite sure who was yelling louder, my wife or me.

In the midst of it all I heard my wife scream,

When all the screaming died down and the dust settled, we were able to examine the damage. For one, the box seemed broken beyond repair. The Christmas tree inside the box did not seem to suffer any damage. That was not the worst of it.

Neither of us moved until we had examined the situation and much to my alarm the box had fallen within one half inch of my wife's foot. At this moment, I was sweating profusely.

Then I heard her softly, almost whisper, say, "You can be glad it missed my toe."

My greatest temptation at the time was to laugh. I mean, really laugh out loud. One glance at my wife informed me that to laugh out loud at this moment was to jeopardize my toe.

Sometimes the best form of valor is to laugh inside without your face knowing you are

Later that evening as we were sitting around the Christmas tree drinking some eggnog I thought of a verse of Scripture. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest" (Ecclesiastes 9:10).

Tis the season to reflect on all the work that our hands have found to do during the past year. The Christmas tree is just a symbol of working together and it is always the outcome that matters not the process.

CHRISTINE Flowers

DONALD TRUMP, THE ANTI-CHRISTIAN

This week I spent an unseasonably warm evening at church listening to kids sing Christmas songs when I suddenly found myself tearing up. During an inspired rendition of "Do You Hear What I Hear?" I was overwhelmed with a sense of gratitude that these children could distract me in their sweet, showy innocence from the meanness and insanity of adults.

For a moment, the pageant cleansed me of the nuclear poison caused by Donald Trump. The past weeks have been difficult ones for people who don't fit easily into any tidy political category. I certainly don't.

On the one hand, I hate people who take offense at the drop of a hat. It's ridiculous to dance around the fact that the massacre in San Bernardino was executed by a radicalized U.S. citizen and his jihadist wife. They were Muslim.

On the other hand, the radiologist who fought mightily to save my father's life three decades ago and who cried at his funeral was also Muslim.

So are many people I call friends.

So are some arrogant apologists at CAIR.

So are the soldiers on the ground in the Middle East fighting ISIS.

So are most of its victims.

Religion is relevant, then. But it's not determinative. And the idea that we're going to applaud someone who thinks you can bar an entire group of believers from the United States is frightening to me. I'm more afraid of the people at Trump rallies who think he's an immigration and Constitutional Scholar, and are willing to draw barbed wire in front of a Muslim seeking admission. They parrot talking points they've heard on the radio and television, and lack any sense of doubt or humility. They call themselves Americans. I'd call them something else.

I remember seven years ago, when Sarah Palin was being ridiculed by liberals for being stupid. It was beyond offensive, and showed that progressives like to demean the intelligence of their philosophical opponents.

I vowed then that I would never do that. But I will also not ignore that some people, in order to maintain the integrity of their values, will not listen to facts. They will integrate opinion into their arguments, and convince themselves that their beliefs are objectively true.

They will also report poll statistics from polls with which they agree, and ignore the statistics from those that run counter to their preconceptions. You will try and discuss with them, calmly, the issues. They will take offense, and respond with a certitude that stuns, or at least cuts off the conversation.

If you say you can't exclude an entire group of people based on the way they pray to God, regardless of the deformation of their faith by others, you hear Roosevelt did it, with the Japanese." Actually, Roosevelt interned a lot of people, didn't exclude them, but he also refused to accept Jewish refugees from the Holocaust, and set up camps for Italian and German Americans as well. This was not based on religion, and this was during wartime, but it is now seen as having been the singular dark mark on an otherwise admirable political life.

This is not an example to bolster the righteousness of Trump's position.

And still we end up with a low threshold debate about all Muslims being potential terrorists so we have to keep them out. And the buffoon with the hairdo gets standings

That's why I had moist eyes at the Christmas concert. Those sweet, high voices were inviting me to listen to the message of grace, of welcome, a Christian message of hope. And all I could feel was gratitude that these babies weren't yet old enough to hate the stranger more than they loved their neighbor, mixed with regret that they would have to grow up, possibly under a President Trump.

Hence, the tears.

HOWARD Hays As I See It

(R-SC) Questions getting attention over this past week have been how do we best fight ISIS abroad, and prevent terrorism here at home? I could address them with three words: "I don't know."

Sometimes it's easier knowing what not to do. You shouldn't, for instance, advance the goals of the enemy – as Donald Trump has been doing. With positions in Syria and Iraq under attack and France, Germany and the U.K. increasingly on the offensive, the problem for the Islamic State has been recruitment. They've dealt with unpopularity ranging from 5% approval in Saudi Arabia down to 1% among Sunni Muslims in Lebanon, according to figures out a year ago from the Washington Institute of Near Eastern Studies.

celebrated the "Charlie Hebdo" attack in Paris early this year for advancing its recruitment strategy; it "eliminated the grayzone" - one of peaceful coexistence between Muslims and those who aren't. It brought "further division in the West will soon find themselves between one of two choices; either apostatize" or head on over to the "Islamic State, and thereby escape persecution from the crusader governments and citizens.'

They expressed appreciation for the previous administration and its role in boosting Islamic State's recruitment; "Bush spoke the truth when he said, 'Either you are with us or you are with the terrorists.' I.e. either you are with the crusade or you are with Islam."

But now, the biggest recruitment booster and most effective propagandist for their cause is Donald Trump. There was his proposal to require Muslims to register in a national database; there was talk of surveillance over and shutting down of mosques; and now declaring we have no choice" but to ban Muslims from entering the country - including the return of U.S. citizens travelling abroad and, presumably, Muslim members of the U.S. Armed Forces stationed overseas.

the presidential race and final decisions. There inaction is "wrong, dangerous and falls far short may be issues we're concerned about, but Trump's celebrity buffoonery remains a sideshow.

Elsewhere, it's different. Throughout Europe, Asia and the Gulf States they're taking Trump's words seriously – and with great alarm. They're alarmed by signs of xenophobic fascism, by the betrayal of values long-exemplified by the United States. They're alarmed by gifts of such invaluable propaganda given to the Islamic State. Most of all, they're alarmed that Trump maintains a significant lead for a major party's nomination to be President of the United States. Here at home, alarm is bipartisan. House Speaker Paul Ryan (R-WI) reminds that "This is not conservatism . . . not what this party stands for. And more importantly, it's not what this GOP senator tell a purveyor of ISIS propaganda country stands for." Former V.P. Dick Cheney where to go.

"You know how to make said Trump's proposal "goes against everything America great again? Tell we stand for and believe in." Jeb Bush called Donald Trump to go to hell." Trump "unhinged" (though he joined Ben Sen. Lindsay Graham Carson and Sen. Ted Crux in suggesting Syrian refugees be limited to Christian-only). It's not just politics, values and/or our Constitution. Sen. Graham, quoted above, warns "This helps the enemy. It puts our soldiers and diplomats at risk, it undermines the war effort, and it's ruining the Republican Party." Pentagon spokesman Peter Cook points out, "Anything that bolsters ISIL's narrative and pits the United States against the Muslim faith is certainly not only contrary to our values but contrary to our national security". Secretary of Homeland Security Jeh Johnson said although he's tried to stay out of politics, When a leading candidate for office proposes something that is irresponsible, probably illegal, unconstitutional, and contrary to international law, un-American, and will actually hurt our efforts at homeland security and national security, we have to speak out." Deputy White House National Security In its online magazine "Dabiq", Islamic State Advisor Ben Rhodes told CNN, "The fact of the matter is ISIL wants to frame this as a war between the United States and Islam, and if we look like we're applying religious tests who comes into this country, we're sending a message that essentially we're embracing that frame. to the world", leading to a time when "Muslims And that is going to make it very difficult to partner with Muslim communities here in the United States and around the world to prevent this scourge of radicalization that we need to be focused on. We should be making it harder for ISIL to portray this as a war between the United States and Islam, not easier."

We know what not to do. The harder question is; what do we do?

Under Article I, Section 8, Clause 11 of our Constitution, the power is vested in Congress "To declare War". In France, Germany and the U.K., actions against ISIS were preceded by vigorous debates in their respective parliaments on costs, objectives, strategies, etc. before military action

White House Press Secretary Josh Earnest called for Congress to pass an Authorization for Use of Military Force resolution President Obama sent it over a year ago, confirm a counterterrorism financing chief in the Treasury Department, tighten security on the Visa Waiver Program and prevent those on the terrorist Most of us are months away from focusing on watch list from buying guns. He said Congress' of what the America people deserve" and that it "must stop using the fact that these issues are difficult as an excuse for doing nothing.'

The Republican Congress has managed to take action on its own priorities: taking healthcare away from millions of Americans; enforcing government and employer control over women's reproductive decisions and protecting wouldbe terrorists from inconveniences in obtaining firearms and explosives. It would be reassuring to see congress consider the fight against ISIS abroad and terrorism here at home as priorities, as well - more than just a source for campaign talking points. But it was nice, anyway, to hear a prominent

MICHAEL Reagan Making Sense

NO SUCH THING AS A TRUMP REPUBLICAN

"You can't be a Trump Republican and a Ronald Reagan Republican."

That's the tweet I sent to Jeb Bush the other day, when virtually the entire planet was united in bashing Donald Trump's call for a temporary ban on Muslim immigration to the USA.

I also tweeted another obvious truth, "If the Republican Party doesn't dump Donald Trump, the American people will.

Trump's outrageous "Muslims Keep Out" plan - apparently his policy answer to last week's terrorist attack in San Bernadino – is an embarrassment to our country and what it stands for. It's also a serious threat to the Republican Party, because it's being used by

Hillary, Democrat hacks in Congress and the Big Liberal Media to smear the GOP as the party of bigots and idiots. Completely shutting down Muslim immigration is the latest – and probably the worst -- idea in a series of awful ideas that Trump throws out whenever he feels he's not getting enough media attention. He launched his political career by promising he'd "solve" the immigration problem by rounding up 11 million Hispanics and other illegals and tossing them out of the country. Now he's attacking 1.2 billion Muslims. Who will be his next target? Three

Trump is awful - for America and for the Republican Party. But we've known that for months. What bothers me even more than the stupid things the billionaire says, however, are the cheers I hear from the crowds at his packed events.

 $Iknow \, those \, hardcore \, Trump \, Yahoos \, are \, not \, all \, Republicans \, or \, conservatives.$ But when they go nuts over something as idiotic as Trump's plan to keep out Muslims, it's scary to me -- very scary.

Someone needs to tell the Trump Yahoos we're not in a war against the world's 1.2 billion Muslims. We're in a war against radical Islam and the barbaric terrorists who've decided that their 8th Century interpretation of their religion gives them the duty to declare a bloody holy war on Western Civilization. By the way, most Muslims are at war against the radical Islamists, too, mainly because they're the ones who are getting killed by ISIS in the biggest

Many Trump Yahoos are just as confused about what conservatism really

If one more person comes up to me and says, "I loved your father and I'm supporting Donald Trump," I may hit him.

Trump is nothing like my father. My father united people. That's why he won elections. Trump doesn't unite anyone but confused white people. Republicans are always the minority party. The only way we ever win a general election is by bringing people together - Ronald Reagan Democrats and conservative Latinos, blacks, Asians and Muslims.

Yes, there are conservative Muslims. Or at least there were. In 2000, nearly 80 percent of American Muslims voted for George W. Bush.

If the Republican Party nominates Donald Trump, it's certain that Hillary will become the next president and we'll all lose.

Trump is in the process of killing what's left of my father's GOP. He spends most of his time throwing people off the Republican bus, not inviting them

The GOP has to find a way to stop Trump. It has to nominate a real Republican, a real conservative, who can unite the party around its core principles and show the country that Republicans are nothing like the

Donald. If the Party of Lincoln can't dump Trump and go back to its conservative roots, by next fall we'll be hearing my father say from his grave, "I didn't leave the Republican Party, they left me."
