CLEM AND NINA BARTOLAI CHOSEN AS SIERRA MADRE'S 2015 CITIZENS OF THE YEAR

Surprise - Surprise! Nina and Clem Bartolai (center) had no idea of the surprise awaiting them when they opened the door on Friday. SMCC Board Members Ed Chen on their left and Carol Canterbury on the right along with Susan Henderson (Photographer) made the announcement.

The Sierra Madre Chamber of Commerce announced on Thursday the winner of the 2015 Citizens of the Year. By an overwhelming number of ballots cast, Clem and Nina Bartolai selected.

The announcement came as a complete surprise to the Bartolai's at their home on Friday afternoon by Chamber Board Members Ed Chen, Susan Henderson and Carol Canterbury. The couple, who have resided in Sierra Madre for more than 52 years, are well known for their community involvement including (but certainly not limited to), Clem's service as a former Mayor and Nina's chairmanship of the Senior Community Commission.

The COTY award is granted to outstanding Sierra Madrean(s) who are the personification of the town's spirit of volunteerism. The Chamber has bestowed this honor upon 52 citizens since 1966. Recent honorees include (partial listing) Dave Loera (2014), Joe and Jacquie Pergola (2013), Marlene Enmark (2012), Richard Mays (2011), Glenn and Amy Putnam (2010), Paul and Louise Nieby (2009), Angel Throop (2008), Pete Siberell (2007), Bud Switzer Grijalva (2005), Hank Landsberg (2004), Rob Stockly (2003), Bill Messersmith (2002), Carol Canterbury (2006), John (2001)and Marilyn McKernan (2000).

The COTY dinner honoring Nina and Clem will be held on Saturday, January 30, 2016 in The Sierra Madre Room, 611 E. Sierra Madre Blvd., Sierra Madre, Ca. Reception at 6:00 p.m. - Dinner at 7:00. Tickets are $30 per person/Tables of 10 $275.00.

Established in 1946, the Sierra Madre Chamber's Mission is: "To encourage a healthy business environment by advancing, promoting and supporting the businesses serving Sierra Madre." This includes providing a voice for local businesses when dealing with local government, creating networking opportunities monthly, supporting other non profit groups in town and sponsoring events such as the Wistaria Festival, Winter Festival and the Citizen of The Year, to help promote and brand the city of Sierra Madre. For more information, please contact the Chamber of Commerce at 626-355-5111 or visit the Chamber; s website at www.sierramadrechamber.com. MVNews

STOP THE UTILITY USERS TAX PETITION SIGNATURES CERTIFIED By Susan Henderson

After several failed attempts, Sierra City Clerk to cause publication of the Madre residents Earl Richey and David McMonigle finally gathered enough signatures to place their initiative to repeal the City of Sierra Madre's Utility OPTION 3b

User's Tax on a future ballot. In October, 2015 their latest petition drive began and on December 21, 2015 they submitted 384 signatures to Sierra Madre City Clerk Nancy Shollenberger. By law, the required number of signatures is based upon 5% of voters casting ballots at the last gubernatorial election which was in 2014. The ballots cast in Sierra Madre for that election was 3,824 and meaning a total of 191 valid signatures were required to qualify the initiative petition. The petition was then sent to LA County Registrar-Recorder Dean Logan and on December 29th, he sent the following information to Shollenberger:

Signatures filed: 384 Verified: 264 Sufficient: 191 Not Sufficient: 73.

With the required signatures confirmed, the matter will be taken is January 15, 2016. (A copy of the up by the council at its January 12th meeting.

According to the staff report submitted to the council, the city must choose from one of several options:

OPTION I

Adopt the ordinance, without alteration, at the regular meeting at which the certification of the petition is presented, or within 10 days after it is presented.

OPTION 2

Pursuant to EC Section 9212, order a report analyzing the impact of the ordinance on municipal operations. Staff must present the report no later than 30 days after it is ordered by the City Council. When the report is presented to the City Council, the City Council shall either adopt the ordinance within 10 days or order an election.

OPTION 3a

Pursuant to EC Section 1405(b), submit to be held April 10, 2018, and direct the Fire and Paramedics.

Should the Council decide to forgo the ordering of a report analyzing the impact of the ordinance on municipal operations (Pursuant to Elections Code 9212), the Council may schedule a special Council meeting, prior to January 15th, to adopt the necessary resolutions to place the matter on the April 12, 2016 ballot, and direct the City Clerk to cause publication of the entire text of the proposed ordinance in the sample ballot. The City Clerk would need to establish deadlines for preparation of ballot arguments and rebuttal arguments.

Option 3 is presented with two alternatives due to the timing of placing items on the April 12, 2016 municipal ballot and because the Proponents did not request a special election. Pursuant to the Elections Code, the last day to call for an election for a ballot measure Elections Calendar is attached.) If the Council requests the report pursuant to Elections Code 9212, staff must present the report no later than 30 days after it is ordered by the City Council. Thirty days from January 12th is February 11, 2016. This essentially means the report would return to the February 9th Council meeting, which is past the January 15th deadline to place measures on the April 12, 2016 ballot.

This petition is touted as another victory for the California Tax Limitation Committee on their website and similar measures have been pursued in the cities of Glendale, Arcadia, Santa Monica and South Pasadena. However, Sierra Madre, unlike the other cities, has no car dealerships, shopping centers, etc. to support its general fund.

There will be a ballot measure on the April 12, 2016 Sierra Madre ballot to the ordinance, without alteration, to the increase the existing UUT in an effort voters at the General Municipal Election to maintain city services such as Police, Knowing what steps to take in an emergency is the key to protecting oneself and family. Disasters can happen anytime and anyplace. The effects of a disaster can be sudden and devastating.

When a disaster strikes you may have only a short time to respond or prepare for the consequences. An accidental release of a hazardous chemical could mean a need for sheltering-in-place or an immediate evacuation. Strong winds could confine your family to your home. A flood could cut off basic services in the community; things like gas, water, and electricity for days. It's important to make a plan. Below are a list of questions that could help prepare a strategy in case of an emergency.

How do you get in touch with family members if you are not together?

How will you get to a safe place? How do you get back together with one another?

What would you do in different situations?

Does everyone know what the emergency plan is? Are there enough supplies?

BUILD A KIT

When ordered to evacuate, there may be little or no time to shop or search for supplies. Pre-assemble a disaster supply kit and keep it up to date. The kit should include the following:

Water, one gallon of water per person per day for at least seven

Household chlorine bleach and medicine dropper - When diluted nine parts water to one part bleach, bleach can be used as a disinfectant. Or in an emergency, it can be used to treat water by using 16 drops of regular household liquid bleach per gallon of water. Do not use scented, color safe or bleaches with added cleaner Fire Extinguisher Matches in a waterproof container Feminine supplies and personal hygiene items Mess kits, paper cups, plates and plastic utensils, paper towels Paper and pencil Books, games, puzzles or other activities for children

There are important differences among potential emergencies that will impact the decisions and actions. Learning what to do in different situations and developing and customizing plans for local hazards, the locations frequented by household members, and the specific needs of household members (including animals) can help reduce the impact of disasters which may save lives and prevent injuries.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"May this new year all your dreams turn into reality and all your efforts into great achievements."

Can we believe it, friends and neighbors, it's 2016! Our fabulous Rose Parade float, "Rollin' On The River," won the animation trophy, rightfully so, and we're launched into another new year. Exciting times. There's an old, possibly, ancient, Chinese curse: "May you live in interesting times." The thought being if things are sorta boring and uneventful then there's really not a lot to concern oneself about, so things are good, right? Not necessarily.

Here's what fellow author and blogger Michelle Griep said to start off her new year:

"It's a new year. Be awesome. Wear a helmet. Don't forget to call your mom.

Or your therapist. Whatever. Be real."

To that I would like to add: floss your teeth, write thank you letters for anything someone gives you, or for something nice someone does. Read your Bible. Yeah, I know, you've already read it, but it's not The Hunger Games, friends, it's God's letter to us, telling us He loves us. Look around you. Notice stuff. Like flowers and trees and butterflies and bees. And people. Buy a tomato plant at OSH or Home Depot and put it in a pot in a sunny spot and water it once in a while and you'll be so excited when a Carson and Mrs. Hughes actually get married? Will tomato appears. Say nice things to people. Smile. Hug. Eat healthier. Walk more. Look at sunrises and sunsets and what other people are doing in their yard. Be silly once in a while.

Thinking about a picture to put up with this week's column, of course, I thought about the float, but we've had so many great pictures of those adorable pink flamingoes. Then I thought about how the new year is always symbolized by a baby. I just happen to have a picture of a terrific baby, born on my birthday last year. Mr. Brady Benjamin Davis, our #13 grandchild, with his mommy and daddy. If the new year turns out to be as amazing as this little guy is, it's going to be a fabulous year!

I hate to say it, but Christmas is over. I'm hoping everybody leaves their outside lights on a while longer. Love those. We need to take the Christmas wreath off the front door and pack up the decorations. AND, we need to get rid of the rest of the cookies and candied nuts and that fudge some of us have been hoarding and start thinking about getting back on track as far as diet and exercise are concerned. Of course, the famous quotation: "Whenever I Feel the Urge to Exercise I Lie Down Until It Goes Away," which has been attributed to everybody from Mark Twain to Jimmy Durante, available time so don't wait too long. comes to mind. But I push it out of mind and resolve to get away from the computer more, get up and friends. Hope to see you out and about in 2016. walk more, go to the gym more, and spend less time in front of the TV. But, "Downton Abbey, Season 6" just started and I can't wait to get into it. Will Bates and Anna ever be free of this murder charge? Will www.authordeanne.com

Mrs. Patmore ever get out of the kitchen? And then "Grey's Anatomy" will be back sometime soon, even though it's lost a lot of sparkle with Derek gone and the squabbling sisters are a little tiresome. See what happens? No wonder I don't get enough exercise. I'm also two bank statements behind, and I don't even want to think about thank you notes!

Our house is officially 100 years old this year. We've lived here since 1970 and love it more every year. Last year it required complete new plumbing through our downstairs after it sprang a leak which soaked the carpeting, the walls, the one and only photograph of my husband's dad in a marching band, circa 1900 or so, and cost almost as much as a year at USC to repair. However, it's all more beautiful than ever now, and our new copper and flexpipe plumbing, which replaced all the galvanized, should last forever. Rumors have it that our water problems have hastened much galvanized pipe into total and final collapse here and there 'round town. So now we're back to the wells, replacing groundwater with imported water. El Nino, we can hardly wait for you to arrive!

Have you got your tickets to "Deathtrap" at the Playhouse? We do, and I had to work to get an

REP. NAPOLITANO COMMENDS STATE WATER BOARD SALE OF $1.2 BILLION IN BONDS FOR CLEAN WATER FUND

Revenue bonds from sale may be used to fund water recycling projects in Southern California.

WASHINGTON, DC) Today, Rep. Grace F. Napolitano (D-El Monte) commended the State Water Resources Control Board for authorizing the sale of $1.2 billion in revenue bonds for the Clean Water State Revolving Fund.

"We commend Chairwoman Felicia Marcus and her board's decision, and welcome new funding for water quality and recycling projects, the fastest and most cost effective way to improve water supply in our region," Napolitano said. "These additional grants and loans will greatly assist water agencies inplanning, designing, and building recycling plants and water infrastructure which will directly benefit our entire state. El Niño precipitation may temporarily lift the current historic drought, but we must continue to prioritize water efficiency and recycling projects that will create jobs and prepare our communities for future drought cycles."

The State Water Board authorized the sale of revenue bonds on Tuesday to meet financing demands for water projects and prepare California for increased demand in the coming years. The Clean Water Fund provides low-interest loans for the construction of publicly-owned wastewater treatment facilities, local sewers, sewer interceptors, water recycling facilities, and storm water treatment facilities.

"Water recycling expands and strengthens our state's water portfolio and protects our citizens and businesses from future water restrictions," Napolitano added. "With reduced funding from the federal government these funds will help achieve timely development of water without costly delays and litigation due to other proposed state and federal water projects. This saves our taxpayers money and most importantly, protects their access to a dependable local water supply.";

Napolitano, a long time champion of water recycling projects and a leader on California and national water issues, has introduced

MENTAL HEALTH TREATMENT MUST BE KEY COMPONENT OF HOMELESSNESS STRATEGY

LOS ANGELES COUNTY – Supervisor Michael D. Antonovich said today that any strategy to address the homelessness problem must emphasize mental health services.

"Mental illness continues to be a major factor contributing to the homelessness problem," said Supervisor Antonovich. "Addressing the issue requires strong linkages to treatment opportunities and proactive access to mental health care - especially for those whose illness precludes them from understanding and consenting to treatment."

Los Angeles County is successfully working with community groups, partner agencies, and our cities to establish mental health and public safety programs that target homelessness, including MTA's Psychiatric Emergency Team (PET), initiated by Supervisor Antonovich, which has expanded countywide. These teams of mental health professionals and law enforcement personnel directly engage homeless individuals over time, offering shelter and medical treatment.

Los Angeles County has also fully implemented Laura's Law -- a compassionate, cost-effective program that provides court-ordered, intensive mental health treatment to the homeless, many of whom are incapable of consenting to treatment due to the nature of their disease. It has successfully reintegrated participants back into the community with a 78% reduction in incarcerations and a 77% reduction in hospitalizations. These reductions significantly improved the lives of program participants and cut costs to the community and taxpayers by 40%.

"Housing will have little impact until we effectively address the primary causes of homelessness

Playhouse Artistic Director to Step Down

The Pasadena Playhouse announced Thursday that Artistic Director Sheldon Epps will leave the organization next year at the end of this season. Epps will continue his long affiliation with The Playhouse when he assumes the role of Artistic Director Emeritus officials said.

"I have had the privilege to helm this remarkable theatre for twenty years," said Mr. Epps. "We have given voice to exciting playwrights and we have brought the classics to the stage using vibrant and exciting concepts that made them feel new. Our collaborations with other Los Angeles theatres have provided opportunities for innovative small companies to reach a wider audience on a larger stage. As the theatre approaches its centennial year and begins a search for new executive leadership, it seems an apt moment to announce my intentions for the future. I am honored to be part of creating a legacy that will carry The Playhouse into its next 100 years."

According to a statement, under his leadership, The has earned Playhouse distinction for productions of artistic excellence, critical and box office success, and highly praised for its theatrical diversity. He is responsible for building the audience base and creating outreach and educational programs that are an integral part of the community Epps led a dedicated team of board members and staff through a restructuring that put the theatre back on solid footing financially while continuing to produce with a high level of artistry.

Epps joined The Playhouse in 1997.

Community Meeting Centers on Violence

By Dean Lee

Northwest Pasadena saw another shooting Thursday a party... officers responded to a afternoon, less than 24 hours call of shoots fired and found after Police Chief Philip Sanchez called on the public's help, during a meeting over gun violence, in which he said, in four out of the last six shooting, both the victims and witnesses were uncooperative. All seven shootings occurred in the last three weeks.

"See something, say something, do something, it works," Sanchez said. "It works for burglars, it works for predators, it works for terrorists. That's how you can help me." The meeting at Villa Park, which was standing room only, was hosted jointly by Councilmembers Victor Gordo, Tyron Hampton and John Kennedy.

Gordo said the city needed a fully staffed police department saying the city has 239 officers but needs at least 260. Kennedy said over 50 percent of the city's budget goes to pubic safety.

FOOTHILL UNITY CELEBRATES 35 YEARS: BOB WIGHT RETIRES AFTER 30 YEARS OF COMMUNITY SERVICE

By Joan Schmidt

In 1980, Josephine Anderson founded Foothill Unity Center in a borrowed closet at Immaculate Conception Church, Monrovia; in 1991, it was incorporated as a 501 c(3) non-profit. Since its inception, it has continued to serve qualified low-income families and people in crisis; annually about 10,000 individuals. Foothill Unity Center is the primary provider of food, case management/crisis help and health care resources across eleven San Gabriel Valley cities in LA County with its two help centers in Monrovia and Pasadena.

One of their greatest projects is the Back to School Event. This past August 11, 2015 event was a HUGE success! Hosted at Santa Anita Park, more than 1000 K-12 low income students were provided with all the tools and supplies needed for a great school year! Each pre-registered child received a brand new backpack, school supplies, clothing, shoe card, haircut, manicure and needed vision and dental screenings. (Dental screenings by USC School of Dentistry; vision screenings CHAP Care-California Health Alliance of Pasadena) This awesome event only happened because of a community effort of individuals, businesses and faith based and civic organizations and corporate sponsors.

Bob Wight is a very familiar face throughout our local communities. Besides his tenure at the Foothill Unity Center, Bob worked many years at Century 21-Barnes and Adams office, Monrovia. He and his wife Jan have been an integral part of the Duarte community forever. Jan served on the Chamber many years and her service to the Friends of the Duarte Library is unmatched. Bob has always been there working with Jan on numerous community service projects.

When I spoke to Barbara Rolf at Foothill Unity Center, she told me Bob Wight was their first Board President and how he played such an important role for thirty years in all their service projects.

What is awesome to me is his retirement party. Many parties cost $35-$50.per person. No, Bob's will be at Domenico's Italian Restaurant, with refreshments/Hor d'oeurs. There is NO CHARGE. He asked that you may consider supporting his favorite cause-Foothill Unity Center-Team 35-Bob's Retirement.

What the Center is doing -in conjunction with its 35th anniversary- they are having a great "Team 35 Challenge". They have asked individuals/groups to donate $35 and become a team captain who solicits 34 individuals to become part of the team and donate or raise $35, which would be $1225. I visited http://foothillunitycenter.org and found MANY individuals/groups doing this. A few include "Friends of Bob Bartlett", "Duarte Kiwanis-Reyna Diaz", and "Pet Food Bank.'

Please visit http://foothillunitycenter.org website and consider donating to ANY of the teams. I cannot say enough about this wonderful organization.

Last Saturday, at Santa Anita Park was the 50th Running of the Monrovia Stakes during the 7th Race. Favored was Ageless, ridden by Jockey Julian Leparoux; both had flown in from back East-Keeneland, only to come in 3rd Place.

Winning horse was Prize Exhibit; Winning jockey, Santiago Gonzalez; trained by Jim Cassidy; owners, DP Racing.

On hand to make the presentation was Monrovia Mayor Pro Tem Larry Spicer and his family.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

BE YE KIND TO THE CANINE

Mountain Views-News Saturday, January 9, 2016

judged by the way its animals are treated." [,] Mahatma Gandhi

Over the course of the five years I've been writing this column, I've used quite a bit of it's printed space to share my feelings about how animals should be treated more kindly by the human. Although what I have written has been based on facts as I know them, and while my motive has been pure in hoping to encourage change for the better, I realize that my writing has, at times turned to ranting on a subject that is, for the most part, hard to hear.

This week I decided to focus my article on all of the good things humans have done to help protect animals and enhance their quality of life. Many positive changes have been made through new legislation, volunteerism, philanthropy and donations - all on the part of the human, and all on behalf of the animals. There is much more work to be done to ensure that all animals, both wild and domestic are given a fair shake in life, but we've come a long way.

Here are a few examples of the positive changes that have come about for animals over the past several years. This is a short list, but it gives you an idea of the progress our country has made in terms of bettering our relationship with animals. In 1966, The Animal Welfare Act was signed into law, making it the first in the United States that regulates the treatment of animals in research, exhibition, transport, and by dealers. Other laws, policies and guidelines before or after may include additional species coverage or specifications for animal care, but today all refer back to the Animal Welfare Act as the minimum acceptable standard.

In May of 2006, Ohlone Dog Park in Berkeley, CA became the first known of it's kind in the world. Since then, dog parks have been popping up by the hundreds in numerous cities within the US, and throughout the globe. This proves that all those millions of dog owners truly care about their pets, and want the very best for them. Off-leash play in a social setting with other canines is one of the kindest things you can offer your dog. If you haven't visited our own dog park here in Sierra Madre, you should. It is located behind the Rec. Center pool, next to the tennis courts in Recreation Park. There are also a few other dog parks nearby with fenced areas designated for both small and large dogs to play off leash. Use common sense and go by the rules to ensure a positive experience.

In February, 2012 LA County agreed to allow dogs to accompany their humans for dinner on restaurant patios. Now your four-legged friend can really be a part of the family, by joining you for an evening outing rather than waiting at home anxiously until you arrive. With LA county being the forerunner and followed example, this law carried over to several other counties in California as well. It was amended later to prevent restaurant owners from being cited by the Health Dept., opening even more doors to four-footers. In October of 2012, The LA City Council voted 12-2 in favor of a law that would require pet stores to sell only rescued animals. In addition to reducing euthanizations, the law seeks to put an end to puppy and kitten mills that keep animals in poor conditions and then ship them to pet stores for profit. Pet ownership in the United States, Great Britain and Australia is on the rise! According to a recent census, the number of dog owners in these three countries has grown by several millions from the 1990's

"The greatness of a nation and its moral progress can be to the 2000's and the number of dogs per household has increased as well. We humans are obviously becoming much more willing to forego another toy or trinket, in order to love and care for someone besides ourselves! Pets are great teachers.

In the early 1990's, pet supply stores started showing up all over the place in the US, coast to coast. Nearly every sizable city now boasts at least one PetCo or PetSmart store along with a variety of neat boutique mom-and-pops where you are sure to find anything and everything you may want to pamper your pet. Is this not a true sign of our growing affection for Fido? After all, our money typically follows our heart.

Countless animal rescue organizations have formed over the past few decades. Best Friends is a prime example of kind humans helping animals in need. Their efforts have reduced the number of euthanized pets to a proportionate fraction of what it used to be and numerous other organizations have followed their lead by placing rescued animals and advocating spay and neuter to all pet owners.

Many licensed veterinarians in the United States now offer affordable spay and neuter services to those who are financially strapped. Several non-profits network with veterinarians who share their desire to stop accidental breeding, and are willing to provide such services at their own cost. Do the research to find the right vet for your pet, and discuss your financial status frankly with him/her. You may be surprised at how helpful your vet will be when you tell them your desire is to prevent pet pregnancy.

Last but certainly not least, there is a growing trend in our present society, to adopt and not shop. This relatively new concept that was started by animal rights advocates, was mostly made popular by celebrities who agreed with the philosophy. Now it seems just about every animal lover is on the band wagon. It thrills me to hear people say, "My dog is a rescue from a local animal shelter, and I wouldn't have it any other way." So now, adopting is not only a win-win for the animal, it is also a cool trend that has caught on like wildfire. I think this trend is here to stay, and will continue to grow. I benefit daily, from the mere presence of my little Molly. And, I am blessed with the added benefit of spending time with my clients' pets as well. There is nothing like being greeted at the door by a dog who is elated to see you. No other boss I have had in the past could make me feel so privileged to do my job.

Kudos to all the humans who recognize the value of the animals and show them the respect they deserve. Thank you for selflessly paving the way to a better life for them. May we all try to focus more on the good things being done to make changes for the better, and let's keep up the good work! Love and let live.

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND?

Meet Little Guy, a tiny dog with a huge personality! At less than 5 pounds, this 8 year old Chihuahua mix is definitely one of the smaller dogs at the shelter, but that does not keep him from being noticed. Little Guy was found with a severely injured leg in mid-November, and was brought to the shelter for emergency medical care. The leg was mangled beyond treatment and had to be amputated. Little Guy spent several weeks in our clinic recovering from for adoption. He is ready now to find his forever home.

Little Guy has a big attitude! He doesn't let thru Sunday. his size keep him from trying anything, and is not slowed down by his missing leg. He is easy to harness and loves to go for walks, sniffing and exploring the world, moving around quite easily. Because he only has three legs doing the work of four, he can sometimes get tired and want to take a little break. Little Guy loves to get cuddles and belly rubs, and enjoys being held. At his size, he is the perfect lap dog.

Little Guy has a lot of confidence when he meets other dogs, and doesn't hesitate to set his boundaries and let them know he can take care of himself. While he can enjoy interacting with other dogs, he can also be quite independent and able to entertain himself.

various investment strategies with varying degrees of risk. When you are a number of years away from retiring, you can take more risk and build the nest egg. As you approach retirement, however, money should be moved to more conservative investments that will hold value.

Other employers may offer defined benefit retirement plans. These plans specify a benefit that will be paid when a certain age and/or years of service plateau is reached. These plans are nice in that they relieve you of worrying about specific investments. They do not, however, typically pay a benefit that meets the projected retirement number.

Should You Do More?

Whether you are in a defined contribution plan, a defined benefit plan, or have no employer plan, the key is to start saving. Do not put it off until you are out of debt. Chances are you will never start. Take advantage of whatever tax-deferred saving instruments are available, such as Individual Retirement Accounts. But don't be lulled into thinking that those IRA's are a panacea, because you still have to pay tax on the withdrawals. Finally, do not underestimate how much you might actually need. These days, many parents are still supporting adult children. In addition, as life spans have increased, many retirees find themselves having to care for one or more parents whose own retirement income has become very dated. Health care costs are also volatile. Medicare will not cover all your health expenses, and you never know what your health care issues may be. Consider long-term care insurance to cover some of these gaps.

ACUPUNCTURE FOR TENNIS ELBOW

Cases

One of the most frequent injuries suffered by professional athletes and weekend warriors alike is epicondylitis, an inflammation of the muscles and tendons of the forearm.

More commonly known as tennis elbow, it is caused by repeated twisting of the wrist or frequent rotation of the forearm, and can lead to a weakened grip, elbow pain, and damage to the tendons that connect to the humerus, the bone of the upper arm.

Traditional treatment of tennis elbow consists of therapies such as braces, medications, heat, physical therapy and rest, the majority of which are effective in relieving pain but do very little to prevent the condition from recurring. Research from a pilot study presented at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation in San Franciscol suggests that acupuncture not only relieves the symptoms of tennis elbow, it appears to resolve the condition completely.

In the study, Dr. Peter Dorsher, a medical doctor certified in acupuncture, performed acupuncture on 22 patients with varying degrees of tennis elbow. Dorsher used "rounded" acupuncture needles, which are designed to pierce the skin and enter the muscle with as little damage as possible. All of the patients were treated with French energetic meridian therapy, with needles inserted at local points on the elbow in tight myofascial bands.

Each patient was treated between 2-10 times. After an average of 3.9 treatments, a "maximal response" was achieved, with every patient reporting a disappearance of their symptoms. This response also appeared to last much longer than that usually seen in patients Study Suggests Treatment Is Effective, Even in Difficult using painkillers, braces or other traditional methods. At a mean followup time of 8.5 months after receiving acupuncture, 17 patients (77.3%) experienced a resolution of their symptoms and had returned to full, normal activities; another two patients had returned to normal activities except those that involved heavy lifting in the affected arm.

Perhaps the most interesting aspect of Dorsher's study is that many patients had endured months of pain before turning to acupuncture. Subjects in the study group suffered symptoms an average of eight months; six patients had experienced symptoms for more than two vears.

Furthermore, nearly every patient who participated had previously attempted to cure their tennis elbow through conventional means, with some patients trying multiple therapies without success before trying acupuncture. Of the 22 subjects in the study, 14 had undergone "extensive hand therapy interventions"; 17 had used an elbow brace or splint; seven received corticosteroid injections for pain relief; and one patient had elbow surgery, all without achieving the desired effect, before turning to acupuncture.

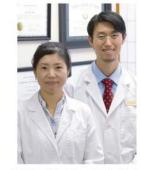

In an interview with Reuters Health, Dorsher said that it was unclear why acupuncture seemed to help patients in the early and latter stages of tennis elbow but added that the needles appeared to immediately loosen the tight muscles around the elbow joint. Acupuncture was found to be so helpful, he noted, that he now performs it as a primary form of treatment.

This is an extremely powerful tool for pain," he said.2 References

REALITY CHECK

The National Institute on Retirement Security states that the funds American workers have set aside for retirement are inadequate to the tune of trillions of dollars. Why? Well as the old adage goes, failing to plan is as good as planning to fail.

One of the first pitfalls in retirement planning is giving up before you ever start. Many people look at projections of what will be needed to retire and conclude it is simply out of reach, so why even try? In conjunction with this defeatist attitude about saving, they may also think Social Security will provide them with a safety net. But the cold hard reality is, Social Security provides nothing more than a meager income at best.

Do You Already Have One?

A lot of employers provide retirement plans, which, together with Social Security, will get you closer to that projected number. Employer-funded programs these days are mostly what are known as defined contribution plans, which means the only certainty is the amount of money that will be contributed by the employer. Employees, normally, also contribute to the plan. Often these A local attorney and father, Marc Garlett is on a are in 401(k) plans, with which most people are familiar.

BEST PRACTICES FOR EMAIL MARKETING

A good email campaign can drive revenue and profit and is an easy way to reach people who are interested in your product or service. Emails help to reinforce your brand, increase awareness and boost repeat business. Here are a few best practices:

- Use an email service provider like Constant Contact, they will make sure you comply with the law and offer mobile friendly templates that are easy to use. They also offer unlimited support.
- Keep your subject line below 50 characters
- Keep key actions above the scroll line
- Make sure your email is mobile friendly
- Keep it simple. Use 3 pictures or less. Single subject emails with one picture, a few words and a compelling call to action tend to produce the best results.
- Make sure your images are clickable

• Focus on relevant content. Constant Contact finds that about 20 lines of text have the highest clickthrough rates.

• Make it easy for your audience to share your emails. Provide social share icons and a forward to a friend button.

• Be consistent. Send an email at least once a month. Be consistent with your colors and language to reinforce your brand.

SAFER AND EASIER TO USE

THE GOOD LIFE HOW TO MAKE YOUR KITCHEN

Dear Savvy Senior,

What tips can you recommend for making a kitchen senior-friendly? My wife, who loves to cook, has had several kitchen-related accidents over the past year, which is why we would like to modify to make it safer and more practical.

Hungry Husband

Dear Hungry,

There are a number of simple modifications and inexpensive add-ons that can make a big difference in making your kitchen more age-friendly. Depending on your wife's needs, here are some tips for each aspect of the kitchen.

Floors: If you have kitchen throw rugs, to reduce tripping or slipping, replace them with non-skid floor mats or consider gel mats, which are cushiony and more comfortable to stand on for long periods. GelPro.com and WellnessMats.com offer a nice selection.

Lights: If the lighting in her kitchen is dim, replace the old overhead fixture with a bright new ceiling light, and add under-cabinet task lighting to brighten up her kitchen countertops.

Cabinets and drawers: To reduce bending or reaching, organize your kitchen cabinets and drawers so that the items you most frequently use are within comfortable reach. You can also make your cabinets and pantry easier to access by installing pullout shelves or lazy susans. And D-shaped pull-handles for the cabinets and drawers are also recommended because they're more comfortable for arthritic hands to grasp than knobs.

Faucet: If you have a twist-handle kitchen faucet, replace it with an ADA compliant single handle faucet. They're easier to use, especially for seniors with arthritis or limited hand strength. There are also kitchen faucets on the market today (like the Delta Touch20 faucet and Moen MotionSense) that will turn themselves on and off by simply touching the base or moving your hand over a motion sensor. And, for safety purposes, set your hot water tank at 120 degrees to prevent possible water burns.

countertop. This makes it safer and easier to reach. And if you're concerned about your wife remembering to turn the stove off, there are automatic stove shutoff devices you can purchase and install to prevent a fire. See cookstop.com, stoveguardintl.com and pioneeringtech.com for some different options.

If you're looking to upgrade some of your appliances too, here are some different senior-friendly features you should look for when shopping.

Refrigerator and freezer: Side-by-side doors work well for seniors because the frequently used items (refrigerated and frozen) can be placed at mid-shelf range for easy access. Pullout adjustable height shelves and a water/ice dispenser on the outside of door are also very convenient.

Stove or cooktop: Look for one with controls in the front so you won't have to reach over hot burners to turn it off, and make sure the controls are easy to see. Flat surface electric or induction burners, or continuous grates on gas stoves are also great for sliding heavy pots and pans from one burner to the next. And ask about automatic shut off burners.

Oven: Self-cleaning ovens are a plus, and consider a side-swing door model. They're easier to get into because you don't have to lean over a hot swing-down door. Also consider a wall-mounted oven, installed at your wife's preferred height to eliminate bending.

Dishwasher: Consider a dishwasher drawer that slides in and out, and is installed on a 6 to 10-inch raised platform. These require less bending to load and unload.

Washer and dryer: Front-load washers and dryers with pedestals that raise the height 10 to 15 inches are also back-savers and easy to access.

burst through the door. "What are you doing?" she asked. Aghast, I sheepishly looked up from the faucet. "Uh, getting water?"

"No, no, no!" she said, shaking her head. "Come on," she motioned toward her office, Use the Arrowhead in there. I could feel water overflowing from my bottle into the sink, and nodded, "Okay, maybe next time." I figured, why waste a perfectly good batch of flavored water? Luckily, some small crisis distracted my boss and I was able to retreat to my office with my substandard "faucet water" ḋrink.

find ducks hanging in the window, but you will find very above average Chinese Food, complete with a full bar, you might find trainer John Sheriffs or Hall of Fame Jockey Laffitt Pincay chowing down on Orange Flavored Chicken or having a Mai Tai at the bar, bartender Kim is always quick with a joke and is the best in the business. I recommend the Won Ton Soup. 3488 E. Foothill Pasadena.

Robin's Wood Fire BBQ has been called by many as the best BBQ this side of Texas, and I agree, the Beef Ribs are meaty and the tri-tip sandwich literally melts in your mouth. Full Bar and open lunch and dinner. 395 N. Rosemead Pasadena (626) 351-8885.

For you steak lovers and I know there are plenty the Derby Restaurant is a must, Choice and Prime steaks are offered at this racing and restaurant Institution. Besides the great steaks and chops take a few minutes to walk around the restaurant and marvel at all the old pictures and a display case located in the front, it hosts many old trophies, boots and ribbons. The Lost Tudor Princess: The Life of Lady Margaret Douglas by Alison Weir Acclaimed historian Alison Weir comes the first biography of Margaret Douglas, the beautiful, cunning niece of Henry VIII of England who used her sharp intelligence and covert power to influence the succession after the death of Elizabeth I.Royal Tudor blood ran in her veins. Her mother was a queen, her father an earl, and she herself was the granddaughter, niece, cousin, and grandmother of monarchs. Lady Margaret Douglas, Countess of Lennox, was an important figure in Tudor England, yet today, while her contemporaries-Anne Boleyn, Mary, Queen of Scots, Elizabeth I-have achieved celebrity status, she is largely forgotten. Margaret's life was steeped in that country, and the result is The Road to Little intrigue, drama, and tragedy—from her auspicious Dribbling. The fantasy creations of the "Star Wars" universe are strikingly similar to real planets in our own Milky Way galaxy. A super-Earth in deep freeze? Think ice-planet Hoth. And that distant world with double sunsets can't help but summon thoughts of sandy Tatooine.

The most recently revealed exoplanet possessing Earth-like properties, Kepler-452b, might make a good stand-in for Coruscant-the high-tech world, seen in several Star Wars films, whose surface is encased in a globe-spanning city. Kepler-452b belongs to a star system 1.5 billion years older than Earth's. That would give an advanced civilization more than a billion-year jump on us. The denizens of Coruscant not only have an entirely engineered planetary surface, but an engineered climate as well. On Kepler-452b, conditions are growing warmer as its star's energy output increases-a symptom of advanced age. If this planet (which is 1.6 times the size of Earth) is truly Earth-like, some climate engineering might be needed there as well.

The planet Mustafar, scene of an epic duel between Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker in "Revenge of the Sith," has a number of exoplanet counterparts. These molten, lava-covered worlds, such as Kepler-10b and Kepler-78b, are rocky planets in Earth's size range whose surfaces could well be perpetual infernos.

The planet OGLE-2005-BLG-390, nicknamed "Hoth," is a cold super-Earth, with a mass five times that of Earth and a surface temperature estimated at minus 364 degrees Fahrenheit. That most likely means no Hoth-style tauntauns to ride, or even formidably fanged abominable snowmen (aka wampas). Astronomers used an extraordinary planetfinding technique known as microlensing to find this world in 2005—one of the early demonstrations of this technique's ability to reveal exoplanets. In microlensing, backlight from a distant star is used to reveal planets around a star closer to us.

Luke Skywalker's home planet, Tatooine, is said to possess a harsh, desert environment, swept by sandstorms as it roasts under the glare of twin suns. Real exoplanets in the thrall of two or more suns likely have even harsher environments. Kepler-16b was the Kepler telescope's first discovery of a planet Tatooine. in a "circumbinary" orbit-circling both stars, as opposed to just one, in a double-star system. Our game lasted nearly an hour, and Robert won. The Dylan-Classical debate continued. And then, all of a sudden, Frank and Paul were standing in the kitchen doorway, shaking hands as Paul had to depart. My brother David hadn't said much the whole night, but he never did. It was late and Paul had to go home and so it was over. A stalemate, we presumed. No clear winner, each side having done their best to promote their own arguments to win over the other. But both Paul and Frank were unbudgeable and they each stuck to their guns.

THE NEW YEAR CALLS FOR A NEW MIRROR

The New Year festivities have died down quite through my mind. Because it is a New Year. I need to have a new engaged my father in the relative value of pop vs. classical music. This was probably around 1964 when Bob Dylan was the king of pop, and seemed to be the messenger of the "secret messages" to the younger generation. All my older brothers could fairly accurately be called Dylan fans, if not Dylan worshippers. We all seemed to regard listening to Dylan as a more meaningful spiritual experience than sitting through Mass at Saint Elizabeth's.

No one remembers how it began, but it was a legendary conversation that lasted for hours. My father's argument was that the music and lyrics of Bob Dylan were of no lasting value and the young people were simply too ignorant to realize it yet. Frank, my father, said that Dylan would be forgotten in a few years. He compared Dylan to Beethoven and Bach, and other classical musicians, and explained that Dylan was not in any way at the level of the classical composers. Paul wholeheartedly disagreed.

Their conversation began in the living room where Frank would sit in his easy reclining chair and watch TV. Paul sat near him on the couch. Everyone in the household only became aware of their conversation when we realized they were still at it after about an hour. As the conversation's volume level would rise from time to time, we could all hear what they were saying: "Of course you can put Dylan in Beethoven's category," said Paul in his deep and sincere voice. "Have you actually ever listened to what he's saying in his songs?

"He just cackles," said Frank, "and you really can't even make out his words most of the time. And I'm not even talking about the words. And it's only important, as you call it, if you take an hour to explain it all to me. I don't need any explanation to know that Bach's music really is good," said Frank as Paul patiently waited his turn in this lively exchange.

"Well, I'm not saying that Dylan and Bach and the other classicals can be compared directly. Obviously, they can't," said Paul, giving some ground to Frank. "But there is obviously something that millions of people are responding to that you aren't seeing - or hearing. Dylan is not just music; he is also the message. So we've got to examine some of the words and see what he's really saying."

This went on, back and forth, quiet and loud, for another hour. They opened up the record player and began playing select songs for the other to listen to.

We prepared the usual Saturday night dinner something like hotdogs and baked beans and salad and some other vegetables. We took a plate into Frank and Paul, and we didn't expect them to come into the kitchen as their debate entered the third hour.

We heard silence and then the lyrics of Dylan. Sad Eyed Lady of the Low lands. Hey Mr. Tambourine meaningful way.

For the rest of us, the conversation about the conversation had just begun.

"Why doesn't he ever have meaningful conversations with us," David asked to no one in particular. "He engaged with Paul when Paul challenged, but shouldn't he take it upon himself to engage us," asked David. No one really cared, but it was clear in the conversation about the conversation that David didn't really care about whose music was best. To David, the conversation was an example of a father that didn't take adequate interest in his own children, but would take extra time and supreme effort in a very engaging discussion - but not with David.

I inwardly agreed with David, but I didn't say anything. In some very primal way, I am sure that I longed to have a father who took an interest in me, who talked to me, who taught me things, who engaged me in his activities for our mutual benefit. I am sure that David had a good point that Frank should do these sorts of things, but I was not bitter about the fact that he did not do so.

The rest of us had probably long ago accepted Frank for what and who he was. To me, Frank was neither good nor bad, right nor wrong - he simply was my father, doing what he did in his patterns of somewhat predictable behavior. But to David, Frank's conversation was like a slap in the face, saying that he can take the time with a friend of the family, but would not take the time with his own children. At least that's how I took David's reaction.

Depending on who you asked during the various conversations about the conversation in the weeks and months that followed, the entire event was amusing, meaningless, interesting, a waste of time, insightful, and/or demonstrated that Frank was capable of in-depth abstract thought and could maintain an intellectual conversation and hold his own for hours.

Though I generally disagreed with Frank's premise, his performance definitely boosted my image of him. And likewise my image of Paul was greatly enlarged. Here was a peer of my brother who could debate with intensity and authority, and try to convince my father of a point of view which I held, but felt totally unable to communicate in any

Her motto is: "A place for everything and everything in its place." She is quite faithful in her New Year's resolutions. For years, she has tried to get me involved in New Year's resolutions and I only halfheartedly get involved. It does not seem to work for me though.

I did get a glimpse of her New Year's resolution and one was to straighten me up. Ha! Good luck with that one, sister. If she has not got me straightened up by now I am not sure it is on the books.

Everything seemed to be going fine until this morning when I got up, went into the bathroom and looked into the mirror. What I saw was most frightening. I was on the verge of calling 911 when I happened to realize who was in that mirror.

I cannot tell you how disturbed I was to discover that I was looking at me and me was looking back. Oh, what a sorrowful sight it was. For the last several months, everybody has been telling me the New Year is upon us and everything is going to be much better than last year. The old is gone, the new is here.

Being the skeptic that I am, I did not buy into it lock, stock and barrel but I did come very close to accepting the "New" associated with the New Year. After all, it does make sense. There should be a time and place where you can start all over and take on a new appreciation of life. I almost bought into it. Almost, but not quite.

Then, this morning I went into the bathroom as usual and looked into the mirror.

What I saw in that mirror was the old face from last year. In fact, do not let this get out, but it did look a twinge older than last year. Just a twinge, mind you. That is when it really hit me. It is not fair. According to what I have been told, the new always casts out the old. The old is behind me and all I had to look forward to is the new.

But the mirror? The mirror told me an altogether different story.

So I began to think about this. The reason my old face is in my mirror may be because my mirror is an old mirror from last year. As I begin are pleasing unto the Lord. ruminating through this very complex situation, I think I came up with a solution.

That's one thing about me. I like to find solutions. I do not always find them, but when I do find a solution, I celebrate. I was on the brink of celebrating when this thought stomped face. I cannot afford a facelift because I have too many chins. I would not know what chin to eliminate. Never been to a plastic surgeon before, so I do not know if they charge per chin or what.

I disregarded the facelift idea and thought about wearing a mask all year. The Lone Ranger got away with it, maybe I could as well.

The more I thought about that, the less enticing it was. It would drive me crazy to have someone next to me always saying "Kemosabe" all day. I don't even know what that means.

Getting back to my solution. I think the New Year calls for a new mirror. I need a new mirror in my bathroom so I can see what my New Year's face looks like.

"A what?" laughed my wife when I ask her where I could purchase such a mirror. I figured if anybody knew where to get such a mirror, it would be her. I just was not prepared for all the hilarity coming from her direction.

"Does this have anything to do with some kind of a New Year's resolution on your part?" She asked. She barely got that out before she broke down into more laughter.

Personally, I did not see what was so funny about all of this.

"If you don't like what you see in your mirror," she said, trying to keep from laughing, "a new mirror will not make any difference at all."

That is what I get for asking her a silly question. My thought is simply this, it doesn't hurt to try. Her thought is simply this, it's just too funny.

I have been backed into a corner now. I cannot get a new mirror because my wife will know what I am doing and laugh herself into hysterics. I thought about breaking the mirror, but she would figure out what I was doing and it would only make her laugh all the more.

I was reminded of what the Bible says, "For if any be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass: For he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was" (James 1:23-24).

It is not outward appearances that are that important, but rather that I do those things that

CHRISTIE, ISIS AND OTHER 2016 PREDICTIONS

At the beginning of a new year, cultures all over the world

traditionally perform peculiar ceremonies meant to wipe the slate clean and start afresh. The Chinese hide knives to ward off danger. In Denmark, old dishes are thrown at front doors to symbolize the collection of new friends. Spanish residents eat 12 grapes, one at each stroke of the clock to promote good fortune. And in the Durst household, we percolate sardonically cynical predictions for the upcoming 12 months.

This is to symbolize the perpetuation of a career predicated on mocking and scoffing and taunting. But with taste. So here are Durstco's predictions for the year 2016. In the spirit of recycling and promoting a zero-waste policy, please cherrypick your favorites and dump the rest into the laps of worthy acquaintances.

- After dropping out of the Presidential race, Chris Christie hits the talk show circuit to publicize his celebrity diet book, but is turned down by everyone except a podcast in Calabasas.

- In an attempt to expand its popularity, ISIS will merge with Alcoholics Anonymous, the American Automobile Association and the American Association of Retired Persons to form ISISAAAAAARP, and then facilitate senior citizens driving soberly to suicide bombings.

Exxon will develop a way to block out the sun and then make a big move into solar energy.

- Disney enters negotiations to purchase Tibetan Buddhism with the aim of starring a rambunctious Little Buddha in his own Saturday morning cartoon.

- At the next GOP debate, Carly Fiorina smiles so hard, all the other participants on the dais recoil at the sound of her enamel cracking. Her face will then freeze like that.

- In Dallas, Texas, a benefit held to establish the Ethan Couch Affluence Support Group raises one dollar.

- After a heckler at the Masters Tournament shouts from the edge of the 12th green, "Give it up Grandpa," Tiger Woods chases him with a putter, trips and falls into Rae's Creek.

Taking his personal quest for wholeness to the next level, Vladimir Putin enters Jungian analysis and releases an award winning series of children's books. He also takes up pipe-smoking.

- Rents in San Francisco climb so high, members of the middle class are forced to inhabit tree houses in Golden Gate Park.

- No matter who wins the Presidency, Bill Clinton actively campaigns to get appointed Ambassador to Sweden.

Air travel will devolve to the point that certain discount tickets require pedaling.

- During a stump speech in Concord, New Hampshire, Donald Trump's hat will fly off and his hair will be wind- whipped into the shape of a sail whisking him airborne into the parking lot of a Montpelier, Vermont public library.

Congress fixes Social Security by raising the retirement age to 83.

New York Senator Chuck Schumer becomes the go-to guy in the Democratic Caucus after it is revealed that Harry Reid died months ago.

- The NFL will lobby the Catholic Church to celebrate mass on Monday mornings in order not to interfere with football ratings.

- Minnesota Department of Game officials call off the hunt for whoever shot the lion-killing dentist, Walter Palmer, with a bow and arrow.

- The Chicago Cubs lose game 7 of the World Series when a lightning bolt strikes Ben Zobrist ten feet from home as he attempts to score the tying run.

epidemic? Why are they so determined to sustain our well-earned reputation as the hey, that's a good idea. most violent nation in the civilized western world? Why are they jerking their knees in remain alive? Of course we know why. It's Obama hatred and gun lobby love.

tiresomely predictable reactions, that Obama is poised to dispatch an army of flying monkeys to swoop into American homes and spirit away the 270,000,000 guns that we apparently hold dear.

But this fever swamp rhetoric is flatly contradicted by reality. Obama is basically Republicans have been urging all along.

For instance, the federal background check system is notoriously understaffed and underfinanced. Under federal law, if the FBI can't complete a check within three days, the buyer gets his gun without the check having been completed. That's what happened last year in Charleston, South Carolina. Remember the white racist terrorist who killed nine people at the historic black church? He got his gun because the understaffed feds didn't obtain his criminal record within the mandated three days.

So Obama is beefing up the backgroundcheck system - directing more money and manpower to weed out the criminals and mentally ill. Plus, he's earmarking an extra $500 million to mental-health services, to better help those who have woes between their ears.

Yet the Republicans don't like any of that. Obama also took action to close loopholes in existing laws - most notably, the one that allows people to buy guns, without any background screening, from private sellers and online sellers. Isn't it logical to tweak existing laws so that everybody gets screened prior to buying bang-bangs? The American public certainly thinks so; according to the latest Quinnipiac poll, 89 percent support buyers.

Why do Republicans The Republicans don't want any of that, either. refuse Requiring shippers to report stolen guns to address America's that makes sense, too. Investing in advanced technology so that kids can't accidentally pull gun triggers - that makes sense, too. And yet, not a single Republican has spoken up to say,

Instead, all we got was the usual pap, plus a lot of whining about Obama's alleged kingly reflexive opposition to President Obama's behavior. They're basically complaining modest attempts to defend our right to that Obama is doing end-runs around the Republican Congress, somehow forgetting that the Republican Congress is invested in doing the gun lobby's business by doing You would think, judging by their nothing. Just last month, in fact, it squashed a bill designed to beef up background checks. Kathleen Parker - the center-right political columnist, no friend of Obama's - says it well on Wednesday: "In fairness to the gun lobby, which may not deserve such charity, one can understand reservations about limiting access to guns. What is less easily understood is the tweaking existing gun laws to make refusal of Republicans to take the reins of any them work better. Which is exactly what given issue and do something constructive rather than invariably waiting to be forced into the ignoble position of 'no.' It is one thing to be in the pocket of the National Rifle Association. It is another to do nothing and then assume a superior posture of purposeful neglect, as though do-nothingness were a policy and smug intransigence a philosophy." Can Obama's executive actions substantially curb our annual gun murder epidemic? No way. We have too many guns in circulation for that to happen. He freely acknowledged that on Tuesday, saying, "We know we can't stop every act of violence, every act of evil in the world. But maybe we could try to stop one act of evil, one act of violence."

There it is - the desire to save at least a few of the lives that would otherwise be lost. Doing something to dent the death toll sure beats

Or to paraphrase the Talmud, "He who saves a single life, saves the world entire."

mama." - John Lennon, lyric from "The White Album"

Years before the phrase "Everything changed after 9/11" was used to justify whatever might seem unlawful, unconstitutional or un-American, it was "Everything changed after Waco and Ruby Ridge".

In case you've forgotten, Ruby Ridge in northern Idaho was where Randy and Vicki Weaver escaped from what they saw as "a corrupted world". They were into the apocalypse, home-schooling, and were really into guns. Randy was also into Aryan Nations, and sold a couple of sawed-off shotguns to ATF informants.

After a year trying to get Weaver to surrender for failing to appear on the shotgun charges, in 1992 a firefight ensued outside their cabin with a US Marshall and the Weavers' 14-year-old son killed. The next day, an FBI sniper firing through a door killed Weaver's wife, Vicki. It took nine more days for Weaver himself, along with his three daughters, to surrender.

The "Waco" incident took place 10 miles east of the city, at the compound of a sect called Branch Davidians, led by 33-year-old David Koresh. Tenets of their faith included the apocalypse and that, as their leader, Koresh was entitled to all the women of the compound, regardless of age. He went on to father children with children as young as 12 and 13 years old.

They were also really into guns. They stockpiled and traded weapons as a major part of their practice, but it was their penchant for converting legal semi-automatics into illegal machine guns that drew the attention of the ATF.

An attempted raid on the compound in 1993 left four ATF agents dead. This brought the FBI and a 51-day standoff. Nineteen children, aged 5 months to 12 years, were allowed to leave the compound, and showed signs of physical and sexual abuse. As Attorney General Janet Reno explained, it was concern this abuse was still happening at the compound that led to the tear gas attack hoping to end to the standoff.

A federal investigation concluded the Davidians then set fire to their own compound and carried out "mercy killings" of those remaining, leaving 76 dead, including several children.

"Waco and Ruby Ridge" is often mentioned by the yahoos still (as of this writing) occupying the visitor's center at a federal bird sanctuary in eastern Oregon. They are also really into guns. "Waco and Ruby Ridge" was cited as motivation by Timothy McVeigh. He was really into guns - as well as gun shows and explosives, which he used to blow up Oklahoma City's Murrah injuring over 600.

can do me harm because the treatment of Dwight Hammond and his son happiness is a warm gun, Steven. They, too, were really into firearms and fire.

> They set the first in 2001, to cover up illegal shooting of deer on federal land. Prosecutors charged they set it fully aware of campers nearby who'd be endangered by the blaze. The second fire on federal land, in 2006, was alleged to have been set as protection against another fire then raging. There was a "burn ban" in effect, however, to protect firefighters fighting that first blaze - whose safety the Hammonds ignored.

> Nevada rancher Cliven Bundy objected to the Hammonds' mandatory prison sentences; arguing it can't be illegal to destroy land owned by our government since it's illegal for our government to own land - or something. In 2014, the Bundy ranch became a gathering spot for nearly a thousand people who were really into their guns. They came to support Bundy in his efforts to stiff taxpayers out of a million bucks in grazing fees he owed from twenty years' grazing on public land (taxpayer-subsidized fees, at that).

> Bundy's sons made the news, too. Later in 2014, Ryan Bundy pulled his daughter out of school because she wasn't permitted to carry a knife. He called school rules "communistic". A warrant was issued for the arrest of Cliven Jr. for probation violation stemming from felony burglary and weapon theft.

> Brother Ammon is now heading the armed occupation of that bird sanctuary visitors' center. He and the Yee-hawdists were apparently emboldened by a lesson taken from the 2014 confrontation at the Bundy ranch; that with enough people who are really into their guns, you can aim them at, and openly threaten, agents of our federal government - and get away with it.

> As for gun laws, the argument is made we need to better enforce those we already have. President Obama issued new guidelines to do that. The law says if you're in the gun business, you have to run background checks on buyers. The president clarified that if you're buying and selling guns at flea markets, gun shows, over the internet you're in the gun business, and have to run those checks. The president said you shouldn't be able to buy a gun as some corporation or trust, just to avoid those background checks. He said if a shipment of guns loses a crate-or-two somewhere along the way, the feds will want to know about it. There will be more hires at the FBI to speed up background checks, and more at the ATF to monitor gun traffic on the internet. Privacy laws will be tweaked to allow better access to mental health records during background checks.

> President Obama said, "This is not a plot to take away everybody's guns." The right and those really into their guns are convinced it is or at least an effort to destroy the Constitution.

I don't think guns should be taken away from Federal Building in 1995, killing 168 and everybody, either - but maybe just from those who are really into them.

When I was a kid my father gave me three rifles and a shotgun.

First he gave me a single-shot .22 rifle. I was about eight.

JOKING

Connors had. I was about 12.

Later, when I was a teenager my father gave me a .243 hunting rifle to hunt deer in Arizona and a 12-gauge shotgun to hunt birds.

He bought all the guns legally. But he gave them to me without first doing a background check to see if I was a criminal.

He didn't even check with my mother to see if I was doing my homework. That was a joke.

But President Obama's use of executive action to make it tougher for lawabiding citizens to privately buy, sell or trade guns is no joke.

At his teary appearance with the survivors and victims of gun violence on Tuesday he said it was time for the country to show "a sense of urgency" to end gun violence.

Obama's executive grandstanding still leaves a lot of unanswered legal questions about who does or doesn't have to get a gun-dealer's license and conduct instant background checks before selling or trading a gun at a gun show or flea market.

But his executive order will not save one American from dying from gun violence this year.

All it will do - if Congress doesn't have the guts to reverse it - is create a new class of criminals and do nothing to stop real criminals from getting guns.

The tears the president shed on behalf of the innocent victims of Sandy Hook, Aurora and Charleston were genuine. We all want to cry when we think of those senseless slaughters.

Yet nothing in the president's executive action would have prevented their deaths, either.

The dead at Sandy Hook, Aurora and Charleston were killed by guns purchased legally long before the time the mentally disturbed young men put them to such evil use.

All the background checks in the world won't do much good if your mother gives you the guns you kill with, as what happened at Sandy Hook.

What Obama was really doing Tuesday was giving a feel-good political speech about gun violence designed to get the Democrat base fired up for the 2016 election.

He and his fellow gun-control nuts are constantly misleading and trying to scare the American people about gun violence and what causes it. Despite the media hype and the political hysteria about spiking murder totals in cities like Baltimore, the annual homicide rate from guns and everything else has been falling in the USA for decades. It's half what it was in 1990.

When the White House and Hillary throw out the claim that "30,000 die from gun violence a year" they are deliberately being deceptive.

That 30,000 number, which the mainstream media never get around to scrutinizing, is padded with about 21,000 gun suicides, which aren't quite the same as being shot down by a madman in a church or a robber in the parking lot.

It's an old argument, but still true -- guns don't kill people, people do. Bad or mentally troubled people.

Want proof guns are not the problem? There reportedly are more than 300 million privately owned guns floating around the USA.

If just 1 percent of those guns were used to kill someone every year, there would be 3 million gun homicides in the United States.

In 2014, according to the FBI, there were 8,124 gun homicides. It's still way too many, and most of them are in cities or states with strict gun laws. But if my calculator is correct, that means 0.00002708 per cent of the guns in America were used in 2014 to kill someone and .99998 percent were not. I don't know how many knives and sharp objects there are in the United States, but in 2014 about 1,561 of them were used to murder someone.

Is an executive action on knife control next on the president's emotional bucket list? Clubs and hammers? Didn't Cain kill Abel with a rock?

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF MARIO AN-THONY LALLI aka MARIO A. LALLI aka MARIO LALLI aka MARIO LALLI SR.

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of MARIO AN-THONY LALLI aka MARIO A. LALLI aka MARIO LALLI aka MARIO LAL-LI SR.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Mario E. Lalli in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES. THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Mario E. Lalli be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court. THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on Feb. 2, 2016 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 5 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012. IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

PODLEY PROPERTIES' EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This Week

TOP PRODUCERS 2010 2011

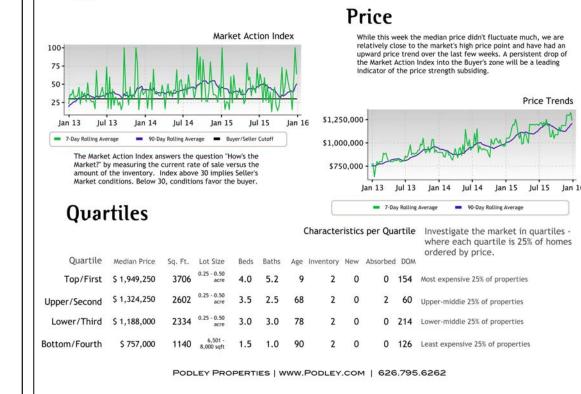

2012 2013 2014

The median list price in SIERRA MADRE, CA this week is $1,243,250.

Inventory has been lightening lately and the Market Action Index has been trending up. Though days-on-market is increasing, these are mildly positive indications for the market.

Supply and Demand

The market has been strong for several consecutive weeks. Reflecting these inventory conditions, with the MAI in the Seller's zone, it is not surprising that prices have recently resumed their climb.

usually marks the beginning of the rainy season, but a storm season could begin as early as October or even sooner. This means that October is a critical month for El Niño Storm Disaster Preparedness!

BASIC STEPS TO TAKE TO BE PREPARED:

MAINTAIN minimum allowable watering practices to keep current vegetation anchored and healthy.

3 CLEAN and keep clean all building roofs, gutters, and downspouts by removing leaves, branches and other debris that may impede water movement.

ANCHOR current dirt/soil surfaces with mulch and screening to prevent soil erosion, mudslides and dramatic land movement.
