FAY ANGUS -NOTED AUTHOR, COMMUNITY ACTIVIST DIES

A familiar voice at Sierra Madre City Council meetings has been silenced. Noted author and community preservationist Fay Angus passed away suddenly on Thursday. According on reports from friends, Fay was about 89 years of age and suffered a stroke in the middle of the night, passing away several hours later at Arcadia Methodist Hospital.

A woman of strong convictions Mrs. Angus was recognized around town for her unique accent, the result of her Australian birth and early childhood in Shanghai, China. She was passionate about preserving the quality of life in Sierra Madre and was absolutely fearless when confronting opposition.

"Angus on Canon", the way she identified herself when speaking at council meetings, lived in Sierra Madre for more than 50 years. A friend to many, stories of her selfless efforts to help young people struggling with drugs and alcohol in the canyons during the '60s abound. At one time she also helped wage an anti-pornography campaign in Pasadena and during the last 20 years she has been an outspoken voice for preservation of the village character of Sierra Madre. Mountain Views News columnist Deanne Davis remembered how Fay had befriended the newlywed Davis family when they moved to town in 1967 on her blog. (You can also find a lovely tribute to Fay by Deanne Davis at http://www.authordeanne.com/414248776). Longtime friend Millie Berkshire met Fay while they were both on the maternity ward at St. Luke's hospital almost 55 years ago. Both women remained close friends ever since, in fact Millie and Fay were to meet for lunch on Friday.

Getting on the wrong side of Mrs. Angus could be quite uncomfortable. When the Mountain Views News was in its infancy, she was not a fan speaking out against the paper whenever possible. However, in 2011, the day after the windstorm, when she ran into the editor at the Post Office delivering papers, Angus had nothing but praise and thanks for the Mountain Views, noting that she had come to depend on it regularly for information.

Charming, even when chastising you, and funny, Fay was the ultimate survivor. At the age of 12 while in Shanghai, her family was interned by the Japanese for 2 ½ years. She wrote of this awful period in her book, "The White Pagoda", which was published in 1978. She also published 10 other books that are available at www.amazon.com.

Fay Angus was preceded in death by her husband John in 2002. She is survived by her daughter Katrelya of Sierra Madre; son, Ian who resides in Colorado with his wife and four children. She will surely be missed. At press time no other information was available.

Ash Wednesday also happened to be a day to celebrate the first anniversary of The Kensington Sierra Madre senior and assisted living facility.

In its first year the elegant center at 245 Sierra Madre Blvd has filled the multi-story residence to nearcapacity with 100 clients.

Joyous residents and staff alike gathered together with members of three Chambers of Commerce — Arcadia, Pasadena and Sierra Madre — to cut the ribbon, with their first official resident taking control of the giant Arcadia Chamber scissors. Staff lined the staircase and, once the ribbon was cut, cheers erupted and the party continued.

While the Kensington might have the stylish appeal of an upscale hotel, the loving care provided by the staff was evident in all the happy faces.

Guests enjoyed a wide array of food, including shrimp cocktail, beef carpaccio on cucumber slices and a cheese platter. A huge sheet cake with The Kensington's signature K was the subject of many a photo, along with an ice sculpture in the bar area. A live band consisting of a piano, bass and tenor saxophone, had guests clapping and dancing.

Director of Community Outreach, Steve Sciurba led the festivities and spoke highly of the support of the city of Sierra Madre, while Julie Lacey, Director of Nursing, praised her staff, who gave her a rock star ovation and presented her with a signed puzzle of a photo of The Kensington itself. Always at their feet, Lacey's therapy dog called Forest made sure everyone was keeping on track and giving him enough tasty

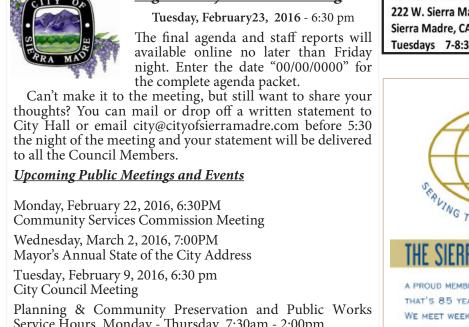

Many representatives of neighboring cities joined in the festivities. Arcadia Chamber CEO Scott Hettrick noted the impressive artwork and art studio, suggesting that they start their own Kensington Collection. He and Arcadia Chamber President-Elect Vicki Knight of Century Rooter Service & Plumbing presented Kensington officials with a certificate of recognition and a new member plaque. John Capoccia, Mayor of Sierra Madre, Pasadena Chamber President Paul Little, and Ed Chen, President of the Sierra Madre Chamber also made presentations.

The Kensington boasts not only a beautiful location near downtown Sierra Madre, but it also has a spacious patio, movie room and an art studio overlooking the bustling downtown area. They also allow family and friends of the residents to come dine with their loved ones for free, a perk shared by few other senior living residences. The Kensington is designed to be home for seniors who are looking for independent living, assisted living and memory care services. The staff provides care beyond what a traditional assisted living community can deliver.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

El Nino! El Nino! Wherefore art thou El Nino!

So here we are in the midst of a heat wave when we were all planning on hunkering down, strategically placing our sandbags, bringing in extra cans of soup just in case we couldn't get out in the downpour, and telling our trees that lots of water was coming soon. There are vague rumors of rain in March but meanwhile, we've all had to go back to watering the disappointed trees and trying to keep the plants alive, using as little water as possible. I'm ashamed to report I haven't been as vigilant lately as I need to be about water in the kitchen, but I've shaped up and will do better. Still taking 20 second showers and tooth brushing with the water off, but rinsing dishes has gotten lax. How 'bout you guys? There was an article in the L.A. Times recently about how folks are tired of being asked to save more and more when they've already done as much as they can. I'm willing to try harder, but I don't want any more trees to die. We need those babies!

Walking Sierra Madre this morning shortly after 6:00 a.m., while it was a balmy 63, we noticed a lot of interesting things. How great the veggie garden at the Gooden School is looking, and how the wistaria on their fence, which has usually leafed out by now still looks like a collection of dead sticks. The wistaria on the central pergola at City Hall has a few blooms, but seeing as how the Wistaria Festival is March 13th, it had all better get it together and start blooming! Speaking of the Wistaria Festival, it's going to be amazing as always, with live music, 100 crafters and food vendors, the car show. You can find out all you need to know at www.sierramadrechamber.com. There are shuttles, too, so you don't have to hike up Baldwin if that's not your cup of herbal tea.

Rum raisin ice cream is back at Mother Moo's and my hiking buddy and fellow town admirer, John, grew somewhat rhapsodic over the root beer float sign in Moo's window. Looks like root beer floats are coming up in our near future. Wonder how it would taste with rum raisin ice cream.

Have you noticed that BJ's Beauty Salon is under new management? Looks like they are going to concentrate on mani-pedis and have some absolutely fabulous pedicure chairs. Take a look!

The wreath in the park commemorating President's Day was beautiful in reds, whites and blues. Nice to see. We looked at each other in some chagrin and commented that we forgot to put our flag out.

There are still pumpkins out in people's yards! Months after Halloween and Thanksgiving have been and gone. Three of those cute little ones are still sitting in a basket at our house, looking like they plan to be part of the décor when October rolls around.

Have you got jade plants? They are in bloom right now and the bees are loving it. Camellias are beautiful all around town and roses are covered with new red leaves. Daffodils are showing their yellow heads and the fig tree has little green buds at the ends of its branches. The deciduous trees are still looking like they're never coming back, but that, too shall pass.

It's Daddy-Daughter Dance season and our two Texas girls, 8-year old Jessie and 5-year old Emily escorted their Daddy to the annual dance at Wally W. Watkins Elementary. We asked for pictures of them with their Daddy, but got confused stories about the line being too long, somebody insisting on standing in the line for a teddy bear, doing the Chicken Dance, the Nae Nae Dance, and something else exciting. Violet and Fay, two of the four little girls next door, escorted their Daddy to the Daddy-Daughter Dance and he proudly wore a boutonniere on each lapel of his jacket as each girl had made one. He, however, had rules for behavior:

- 1. Do not run up the stairs, you might slip in your fancy shoes.
- 2. Do not climb the trees in your pretty dresses.
- 3. You have to leave your shoes on.

Our Texas girls and the next door girls all looked exquisite with hair done up with bows and bands and their best smiles on. An evening out with Daddy is quite something. I remember the Texas girls' mommy, when she went to the Daddy-Daughter Dance at Alverno some years ago. Exact same look of excitement to have the Daddy to herself. And the year when he was unable to attend, her big brother, John, took her and all the other girls thought she had the best looking date ever! I'm sure there are some Daddy-Daughter Dances going on in your life, too. Enjoy every second of them, my friends. Every single second.

JANUARY WATER SAVINGS IMPROVE TO 21%

ended at 21% for the month of January 2016, which improved from the 20% savings achieved in December 2015. The State is using calendar year 2013 as the benchmark for measuring water savings for water agencies throughout California. Compliance with the mandate is determined on a cumulative basis starting with June 1, 2015. Cumulative water savings for the District since the State-mandated reductions began is 29%.

As with other water providers in the State, some local agencies did not meet their State-mandated targets for the month of January. However on a cumulative basis, which accounts for all water savings achieved from June 2015 to December 2015, most agencies are on track in compliance. Below are the numbers for agencies within the FMWD service area:

"During the winter months, it is harder to conserve when there has historically been a drop in irrigation. Taking steps to conserve indoors, such as washing full loads of laundry and dishes will help meet the State-mandated targets," stated FMWD General Manager Nina Jazmadarian.

Two Suspects Arrested For Arson Spree

Police arrested two suspects Thursday in connection to a rash of arson related dumpster fires in a Pasadena alley over a nineteen minute period spanning a corridor four blocks long.

According to investigators, video surveillance from the 400 block of S. Raymond Ave. showed two alleged subjects, Thyler Trotter of Altadena and Nicholas Roether of Los Angeles, with skateboards walk up to dumpsters and introduce an open flame to trash and debris, igniting the contents.

Pasadena Fire and Police personnel first responded to a trashcan fire on the 600 block of S. Raymond Ave at approximately 2:51 a.m. Firefighters then responded to four additional fires involving dumpsters in the same area.

"These two suspects showed no regard for public safety. These fires could have easily spread to adjacent structures. Fortunately fire and police personnel responded quickly and our Investigator was able to make arrests before any further injuries and damage could occur," Pasadena Fire Chief Bertral Washington said.

Trotter and Roether were arrested after a witness recognized them.

DUI/Driver's Checkpoint

Pasadena Police Department Traffic Unit will be conducting DUI/Driver's License Checkpoint Friday night at an undisclosed location within the city limits between the hours of 7:00 p.m. to 3:00 a.m.

"Over the course of the past three years, DUI collisions have claimed 6 lives and resulted in 90 injury crashes harming 154 of our friends and neighbors," said Pasadena Police Chief, Phillip Sanchez. Officers will be looking for signs of alcohol and/or drug impairment with officers checking drivers for proper licensing delaying motorists only momentarily. When possible, specially trained officers will be available to evaluate those suspected of drug-impaired driving, which now accounts for a growing number of impaired driving crashes. Drugs which may impair driving not only include illegal narcotics, but many prescription drugs, marijuana, and even some over-the-counter medications. DUI Checkpoints are placed in locations based on collision statistics and frequency of DUI arrests affording the greatest opportunity for achieving drunk and drugged driving deterrence. Locations are chosen with safety considerations for the officers and the public.

Drivers caught driving impaired can expect the impact of a DUI arrest to include jail time, fines, fees, DUI classes, other expenses that can exceed $10,000 not to mention the embarrassment when friends and family find out.

Funding for this checkpoint is provided to Pasadena Police Department by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety, through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, reminding everyone to 'Report Drunk Driver – Call 9-1-1'.

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND?

To Cherish? Look no further. This 2 year old Chihuahua mix named Cherish came to the shelter as a stray with no identification, and has gone unclaimed. She weighs about 10 pounds, and is just the right size to fit in a lap. She has a short coat of white with tan highlights, very easy to care for with minimal grooming needed. Cherish has lovely big brown eyes that will melt your heart.

Cherish seemed a bit shy and confused when she first arrived in the kennels, unsure of the new people and other dogs that were now part of her daily life. Her kennel mate, Feather, seemed to provide some stability for Cherish, and within a few days, she started to relax and warm up. Although she is still a little timid with new people, she becomes comfortable much more the front of the kennel to say hello when people

Cherish is easy to harness and she walks well on the leash. She has a playful side to her personality, which comes out as she spends more time with other dogs and people. And it doesn't take her long to look for a lap to cuddle in where she can receive some loving attention.

THE JOY OF YOGA

INSPIRATION

Why do we feel great after a yoga class? It's simple. We changed our Prana. Prana is life force energy or our inspiration and enthusiasm. It is often referred to as the Breathe of Life, associated with respiration. Prana is what brings animation to our ideas, thoughts and deeper desires. It's a powerful tool.

Awareness of prana is the first step toward a positive outlook and greater insights into what's happening in our life. For example, where are we spending all of our energy? Are we actually doing the things we love to do? Dowe feel creative and friendly?

Once we are aware of prana, we can assess where we might be losing energy or possibly the need for more. It's often the case when we feel run down and depleted, we are in need prana in some area In love and light, of the body or mind. Whether it be grounding, motivation, or just pure joy and inspiration. Keely Totten

To cultivate your awareness of prana, start with a fundamental breath exercise. Close the eyes. Begin inhaling from the opening of the nostril up the bridge of your nose, directly to the third eye (space between the eyebrows). Envision prana, vital life force energy, riding in on the breath. Exhale back down the bridge of the nose, air leaving the nostrils. Continue breathing that way, collecting prana at the third eye. Envision this collection of prana enlivening the third eye, the place of intuition and wisdom. Settle into an experience of waking up your own inner space.

FOOD AND DRINK

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

My friend, Roger Mendez, says "top shelf" or "third floor" when he wants a good brandname drink when he is at a bar. Reader Bob Carlson might think I have lost my mind, but friends and readers, we are moving to the high rent district today. It took me a few years to figure out (and maybe just in time now) that when you are at a supermarket looking for your favorite wine and frustration sets in, you should search by price - the most expensive wines are on the "top shelf" and the bottom shelf is usually where you'll find lowest prices. You'll find me somewhere in the middle. Please let me, just for this one week, introduce you to the top shelf at your local wine department because that is where I found the Oracle 2011 by Miner. Yes indeed, the technology of blends and business is all a part of the Miner story. Miner is a family-run business in the heart of Napa Valley and was founded by Dave and Emily Miner. Dave's uncle is Robert Miner, co-founder of (you guessed it) Oracle Technology.

As we have learned over the last couple of years, I do believe in "blends", and this Oracle is "top shelf". The grapes are sourced from vineyards in the area, including cabernet from Stage Coach Vineyard in Napa Valley. I am told that Black Bart used to rob the stagecoach that ran from St. Helena to Monticello. If Bart could have gotten his hands on some Oracle wines, he would have appreciated the fruitiness of the first taste. The tannins are very smooth, and like many blends that include petit verdot (regardless of the price) has a touch of boldness and a bit of spice. This blend is perfectly balanced, and I recommend a pairing it with spare ribs, chicken or steak. No BBQ sauce, though, as that will take away some of the natural flavors from your wine. Price is $75 - top shelf indeed, but when it's time to treat yourself, Oracle is a great option.

MAKING LIGHT OF PAIN

Science and clinical experience have shown that low intensity lasers, LEDs (Light Emitting Diodes) and bio-electromagnetic therapy can significantly improve quality of life and alleviate pain even in many chronic conditions.

Consider a few of these case studies as good examples. Interstitial Cystitis - A Case Study

"Karen" was a 56-year-old female diagnosed with interstitial cystitis and fibromyalgia in 1996. Her chief complaints were constant bladder pressure/discomfort with urgency and urinary frequency, often requiring a restroom visit every half hour or less. To address these concerns, laser needle therapy was administered transcutaneously over the bladder. Her pre-treatment pain score of four was reduced to one immediately following laser needle therapy.

She reported significant improvements in bladder comfort overall with less pain, pressure and spasming and increasing freedom from the need to urinate with laser needle treatment. "Karen" is a snowbird, spending part of the year in her Florida home close to our clinic and the balance in Pennsylvania. She was seen for 34 visits between February and June 2010 before leaving for Pennsylvania.

Treating Muscle Weakness and Pain "Fay" was a 68-year-old female with severe neck and shoulder pain whose chief complaints were weakness and muscle wasting, especially in the right arm, hand and fingers and the inability to grip objects or write. Her hands were hot and painful when touched. She said that tentative diagnoses of complex regional pain syndrome and rheumatoid arthritis had been proposed, and she reported that she had rheumatoid arthritis after sharing labs with me in which her erythrocyte sedimentation rate (52) and rheumatoid factor (21.7) were elevated. Laser therapy was administered over the stellate ganglion initially and later with direct contact to the affected arm, hand and fingers as pain eased. She also received acupuncture and bio-electromagnetic therapy

"Fay's" vitamin D level tested low (18), and she began supplementing with 10,000 i.u. of D3 daily. She also began a routine of swimming and water aerobics. She was discharged after 24 visits and credits laser therapy plus exercise with a complete turnaround in her health. Pre-treatment pain scores at her last few visits were 1-2 versus 8-9 at the outset of therapy, and she has regained muscle mass and the use of her hands, even to sew and paint watercolors.

Can we do better when it comes to pain relief?

Pain is the chief reason people visit doctors. As such, delivering the best possible therapy should be among the highest priorities in health care.
Low intensity lasers, LEDs and bio-electromagnetic therapy have been documented to help move the body through inflammation and to heal damaged tissue, regenerating bone, ligament, the lining of blood vessels, muscle, nerve, tendon and more, even improving health as measured by a wide variety of biomarkers.

Chronic pain is the leading cause of disability. Its price tag is enormous. Yet many of these negatives might be avoided if energy-based treatments were implemented as first line therapies. To see what researchers have reported, visit the Laser Research Library and Bio-electromagnetic Research www.HealingLightSeminars.com, and click on any condition or topic of interest. You may be interested to learn what scientists have had to say about the benefits of these therapies in arthritis/rheumatoid arthritis and back pain, conditions reported as the No. 1 and 2 causes of disability.

2016 TAX FILING REQUIREMENTS FOR RETIREES

Dear Savvy Senior,

What is the IRS income tax filing requirements going to be for this tax season? Due to health problems I stopped working early last year, so I'm wondering if I need to file.

Unintended Retiree

Dear Unintended,

There are a number of factors that affect whether or not you need to file a federal income tax return this year including how much you earned last year (in 2015), and the source of that income, as well as your age and filing status.

Here's a rundown of this tax season's IRS filing requirements. For most people, this is pretty straightforward. If your 2015 gross income – which includes all taxable income, not counting your Social Security benefits, unless you are married and filing separately - was below the threshold for your age and filing status, you probably won't have to file. But if it's over, you will.

- · Single: $10,300 ($11,850 if you're 65 or older by Jan. 1, 2016).
- · Married filing jointly: $20,600 ($21,850 if you or your spouse is 65 or older; or $23,100 if you're both
- · Married filing separately: $4,000 at any age.
- · Head of household: $13,250 ($14,800 if age 65 or older).
- · Qualifying widow(er) with dependent child: $16,600 ($17,850 if age 65 or older).

To get a detailed breakdown on federal filing requirements, along with information on taxable and nontaxable income, call the IRS at 800-829-3676 and ask them to mail you a free copy of the 60 and older. Call 800-906-9887 or visit irs.treasury. "Tax Guide for Seniors" (publication 554), or see irs. gov/pub/irs-pdf/p554.pdf.

Special Requirements

There are, however, some other financial situations that will require you to file a tax return, even if your gross income falls below the IRS filing requirement. For example, if you had earnings from self-employment in 2015 of $400 or more, or if you owe any special taxes to the IRS such as alternative minimum tax or IRA tax penalties, you'll probably need to file.

To figure this out, the IRS offers an interactive tax assistant tool on their website that asks a series of questions that will help you determine if you're required to file, or if you should file because you're due a refund.

You can access this tool at irs.gov/filing – click on "Do you need to file a return?" Or, you can get assistance over the phone by calling the İRS helpline at 800-829-1040. You can also get face-to-face help at a Taxpayer Assistance Center. See irs.gov/ localcontacts or call 800-829-1040 to locate a center near you.

Check Your State

Even if you're not required to file a federal tax return this year, don't assume that you're also excused from filing state income taxes. The rules for your state might be very different. Check with your state tax agency before concluding that you're entirely in the clear. For links to state tax agencies see taxadmin.org/state-tax-agencies.

Tax Prep Assistance

If you find that you do need to file a tax return this year, you can get help through the Tax Counseling for the Elderly (or TCE) program. Sponsored by the IRS, TEC provides free tax preparation and counseling to middle and low-income taxpayers, age gov/freetaxprep to locate a service near you.

Also check with AARP, a participant in the TCE program that provides free tax preparation at more than 5,000 sites nationwide. To locate an AARP Tax-Aide site call 888-227-7669 or visit aarp.org/ findtaxhelp. You don't have to be an AARP member to use this service.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior. org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

KATIE Tse.....This and That

THE FORKS AWAKEN! (EPISODE 2)

Last week I shared about the breakfast. fabulous time my parents and I had at "Healthy Taste of L.A.," an annual vegan conference with many of the same doctors and health professionals featured in the film, "Forks Over Knives," (hence the witty play on words "The Forks Awaken"). However, time and print space did not permit me to describe the event in its entirety, which is why I've added Episode 2. To quickly recap, I left you on the edge of your seats in breathless anticipation of Dr. Caldwell Esselstyn, author of bestselling Prevent and Reverse Heart Disease, and Dr. Michael Greger, creator of Nutritionfacts. org, a wonderful free resource to help the average person navigate the sea of medical research regarding nutrition and health. And somewhere in there Dr. Esselstyn's wife, Ann, and daughter, Jane, put on an informative, and hilarious, cooking demonstration! Last week I also neglected to mention the excellent work arrest several years ago at age 52, he decided to use his second chance at life to help others avoid the untimely death which so nearly claimed him. He runs nusci.org, and "Little Green Forks," a service in the Monrovia/ Arcadia/Pasadena area that provides information and free resources for those interested in pursuing a vegan life change.

Dr. Esselstyn presented much of the same message that he delivered in "Forks Over Knives." That is to say, even the worst cardiac cases are often able to be rescued from the jaws of impending death by following a strict oil-free vegan diet. He showed images of coronary scans before and after beginning, not months, but weeks, of a plant-based diet, and the results were astounding! Shriveled, pinched arteries had transformed into wide, healthy ones. Even other medical professionals admit that there's no pill or procedure able to deliver these results! And that's the truly inspiring part of "Healthy Taste of L.A." It's easy to get depressed about the damage meat, dairy, and over-processed foods cause our bodies, and it's true that we shouldn't take these threats lightly. However, it blows your mind to see the body's restorative capabilities when given common, everyday things like sweet potatoes, chard, and blueberries. It's like Dorothy waking up to realize that all she ever needed was no farther than her own back yard! Truly we are fearfully and wonderfully made by God! The word, "miraculous," comes to mind.

Ann and Jane Esselstyn followed with a lively demonstration of sandwiches, salads, dressings, and sautéing mushrooms and onions without oil. This was surprising because typically people always say that you must have oil in order to sauté these vegetables. In Episode One I forgot to mention another surprising thing that Dr. Klaper told us --contrary to popular belief, breakfast is not the most important meal of the day! That is as ingrained in the American mind as the idea that "Milk does a body good," (also not true!). Apparently the saying was originally developed by a bacon company early in the 20th century. Even in public education we still practically tell parents the yearly state standardized testing results are dependant upon the students consuming a hearty I pray, Amen."

The final speaker was Dr. Michael Greger. And it's good that they saved him for last because, despite the useful insights we'd learned from the other speakers, by that time of day we were all a bit tired and cranky. Yes, I'm sure that if Dr. Greger ever decides to leave medicine he will have a promising career in stand up-comedy waiting for him. That man is a riot! Not only did he time the cadence of his presentation to the perfect tempo, but he had a host of new jokes we hadn't heard yet.

Unfortunately, just as I am not as articulate as Dr. Klaper in explaining metabolism, I am not as smooth or funny as Dr. Greger in joking about the relative potassium merit of different foods or the dangers of meat preparation. As it turns out, not only is breakfast not the most important meal of the day, but also bananas are not the best source of potassium! As it turns out, a vanilla cone from McDonald's offers more potassium than a banana. That's not to say --just that you shouldn't turn them if you're in an urgent need of potassium. Dr. Greger also spoke about poultry, particularly chicken, which my Dad lovingly refers to as "fecal fowl" because of the high amount of fecal material present on the birds due to the manner in which they are raised and slaughtered. "Do you know why there's more bacteria on a kitchen sink than in a toilet bowl?" Dr. Greger posed to the audience. "Because people don't rinse chicken in the toilet!" How can you not love his sense of humor!

And so concluded my family's first "Healthy Taste of L.A." We had a great time and learned a lot, but it would be dishonest of me not to provide a qualifying statement about all that we learned regarding health and nutrition. Health is a wonderful thing and we should all strive to live the longest, healthiest life possible. But if we think that this life is all we have to consider, we are deceived. The Bible teaches that we should not fear those who can kill the body, but then have not power to harm us. Instead, we should fear (reverently respect) Him who is able to destroy both the body and the soul. This life is merely a shadow of the one to come. For the Christian who puts his hope in Jesus, he has the promise of eternal life with our Savior. But the Bible is clear about those who reject God's only offer of salvation through His Son. Although it pains us to say that those who don't accept the free gift of salvation through Jesus will be eternally separated from God in hell, that is the Gospel message. If you do not know Jesus today as your Lord and Savior, there is still time and opportunity for you to take advantage of His gift to you! You can pray to ask Jesus into your heart today, and have peace with God forever. In light of eternity, it doesn't matter so much whether or not you follow a vegan diet and live to be 100 years old. What does matter is that you go home to be with Jesus. He wants you to be with Him more than you

*You can pray this prayer if you want Jesus to come into your heart as your Lord and Savior. "Dear God, I know that I am a lost sinner and am in need of forgiveness. Thank You for sending Your Son to pay for my sins. I turn from my sin and accept You as my Lord and Savior. In Jesus' name

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

On the Marquee: Notes from the Sierra Madre Playhouse

THE FIELD TRIP SERIES #3

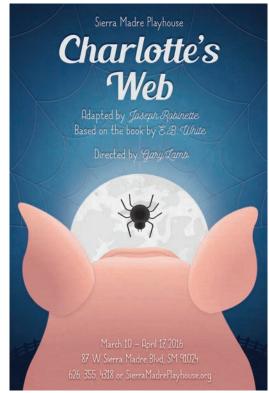

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano

With the closing of Deathtrap we turn our sights to the next show: Charlotte's Web adapted by Joseph Robinette from the beloved story by E.B. White. Charlotte's Web is the third Field Trip Series play we have produced and was made possible this year by a generous donation from the Ruth and Charles Gilb Family Foundation. The Field Trip Series brings students from local schools, both public and private, into the Playhouse to see a show. We already have over 3,500 students and teachers who have purchased tickets. Charlotte's Web will also play Saturday and Sunday matinees for general audiences.

It struck me a few years ago that the Playhouse sits empty for most of the week and I thought it would be great if we could introduce kids to the pleasures of live theater by staging a play that would appeal to their teachers enough to go through all the paperwork involved in arranging a field trip. It was important to me that it be more than "just seeing a play". So I enrolled some really talented arts education professionals to help me craft a complete experience for the kids - which includes a lobby display, a pre-show workshop, a post-show discussion with the actors, and a study guide created for the teachers. Response has been tremendous.

Our first year we produced Battledrum by Doug Cooney, a play about Civil War drummer boys – we enlisted the help of Civil War reenactors and historians to round out the experience. We aimed that show at grades 3 through 8. Last year we produced Einstein is a Dummy by Karen Zacarias and Deborah Wicks LaPuma about a 12 year old Albert Einstein. We targeted that one for grades 5 to 8. This year Charlotte's Web was targeted to grades 1 to 6 – with mostly 2nd and 3rd graders coming. How wonderful to know that for many of those kids Charlotte's Web will be their first professional theater experience! I've already settled on next year's show - A Wrinkle in Time adapted by John Glore from Madeleine L'Engle's beloved story.

For our general audiences we have a series of additional events on Sundays through the run purchase.

of the show: a petting zoo of farm animals, a special tea which we'll do in collaboration with our friends at T'Neer across the street from the Playhouse, a "Bug Lady", an egg hunt on Easter, and a special web building event. Specific days and descriptions of each event can be found on our website SierraMadrePlayhouse.org.

The Field Trip Series is an integral part of our programming at SMP. I'm very proud of what we've built and how it has evolved. It is just one of many ways we are trying to make SMP an integral part of our community.

Tickets are now on sale for Charlotte's Web - it is going to be terrific fun - hope to see you there with (or without!) your kids and grandkids. Please visit our website at SierraMadrePlayhouse. org or call Mary at 626.355.4318 to arrange your

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS: RA RA RIOT - "NEED YOUR LIGHT"

By Sean Kayden

"Need Your Light," the new record from indie-pop vanguards Ra Ra Riot is the band's brightest and most inspired work yet. The once baroque-pop Brooklyn quintet is now utilizing synthesizers more than ever before. This was quite apparent on their 2013 record "Beta Love," a rapid change in direction for a band with such a beloved signature sound. Three years later, the fourth full-length is the allencompassing sound of a band being revitalized by their personal reality. Respectively, "Need Your Light" (Barsuk Records) sees members Wes Miles (vocals), Mathieu Santos (bass), Milo Bonacci (guitar), Rebecca Zeller (violin), and Kenny Bernard (drums) getting back to their unconventional roots without deserting the more piquant soundscapes they surveyed with 2013's "Beta Love." The end result is a record that's celebratory while the band takes their prior experiences in order to skillfully create something that looks toward the future with a hopeful watch. Rostam Batmanglij, formerly of Vampire Weekend, helped produced the brand new record that pushes Ra Ra Riot into new heights with a newfound burst of energy that's simply unquestionable from beginning to end.

The record kicks off with "Water," a very Vampire Weekend-esque track, which comes as no surprise. Miles's falsetto vocals, original as they come by in indie pop, floats on cloud nine. The single is greatly satisfying and melodiously all-around. "Absolutely" follows up and it's an ebullient tune as well. It's as addicting as anything these OG indie-poppers have ever crafted. An exuberant Miles can take mundane situations and add much needed energy to them. He's a wizard of sorts with this skillset. "Foreign Lovers" is a quick two-plus minute gem. It even has time to throw in some violin work into the mix. It's simple and effective, but may be overlooked by some of the more standout tunes Ra Ra Riot has to offer here. Speaking of such, the subsequent eponymous race where both starting and finish lines are really track, "I Need Your Light" is brilliantly luminous. It's just the same thing.

gorgeously put together with various layers that allow it to feel like something quite special. Undoubtedly, it's Ra Ra Riot's finest song on the record.

"Bad Times" is a superlative tune with some of the finest use of snyths in the collection tracks from the band. It has a specific way of elevating you off your seat. Don't be fooled by the title itself, "Bad Times" offers emotional depth combined with an indelible pop sound making you want to go off and have a good time. "Call Me Out" recalls Ra Ra Riot's earlier days. Miles sings with an irrefutable persuasion. He believes in every line he calls out and convinces the listener every time. It's a slightly slower tempo song than the ones before it, but a rather understated tune that is teeming with absolute beauty. Ra Ra Riot doesn't really have any stumbles or shortcomings within the ten masterful tracks. "Suckers" closes out the record and it's purely awesome. I mean, the track radiates with a subtle coolness that gives off the feeling the Ra Ra Riot of 2016 is a brand new beginning for them. The song is as delightful as a cool summer night. One would think Ra Ra Riot is approaching a finish line of sorts with their fourth record. However, I beg to differ. This is a reinvigorated group taking experience and molding that into something deliciously fresh. They're a unit looking ahead, but not too far ahead where they could lose sight on whatever they're trying to achieve. This isn't a race for Ra Ra Riot to reach a point of conclusion, but to exist in an endless

Animals were mummified by the millions in ancient Egypt to provide offerings for the gods and goddesses. Ibis and baboons were sacred to Thoth, raptors to Horus, and cats to the goddess Bastet. Cat mummies were particularly plentiful—so plentiful, in fact, that in the late 19th century, English companies bought them from Egypt for agricultural purposes. By one account, a single company purchased about 180,000 cat mummies weighing 19 tons, which were then pulverized into fertilizer and spread on the fields of England. Mummy hands, feet and heads were frequently displayed around the house, often in glass domes on mantelpieces. (The writer Gustave Flaubert was even known to keep a mummy's foot on his desk.) FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

LEGAL STRATEGIES TO AVOID GUARDIANSHIP

As senior citizens continue to age, the likelihood increases that they will become physically or mentally incapacitated. Hopefully, people in such a situation have family members who step in and help keep their affairs in order. That is not always the case, however. If no one steps in to help, courts may be petitioned to appoint someone-a guardian-to look after that person's very existence. This often happens when a person becomes incapacitated by illness and cannot make decisions.

What Can I Do?

For medical situations, a medical power of attorney - a document that identifies a person of your choosing (your agent) to make decisions for you in the event of your incapacity - should be friend. The key is to make sure it is someone you someone to deal with non-medical issues. This document can be set up to either take effect immediately, or only at such time as you are unable to make your own decisions. The former is known as a "durable" power of attorney, while the latter is a "springing" power of attorney. The durable power of attorney is the more effective of the two in that it requires no consideration of whether a person lacks the capacity to make

Also, consider setting up a trust to administer your assets as you age. Unlike a power of attorney, with a trust, the trustee has sole control of your assets. And there are further legal steps you can take, such as establishing a limited liability corporation or a family limited partnership to manage your assets.

All of these processes will prevent the need for a court to appoint a guardian for you if you become incapable of managing your own affairs. Those of us who are in our senior years should recognize the increasing chance of the need for someone else to make decisions. And those of us who have elderly parents or loved ones should help them think about these issues. The time to plan for potential incapacity is now. Once someone becomes incapacitated, it's simply too

IRS WRAPS UP THE "DIRTY DOZEN" LIST OF TAX SCAMS FOR 2016

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service today wrapped up its annual "Dirty Dozen" list of tax scams with identity theft topping this year's list but with phone scams and phishing schemes also deserving special mention. Taxpayers need to guard against any ploys to steal their personal information, scam them out of money or talk them into engaging in questionable behavior with their taxes.

During the past year, as part of the Security Summit initiative, the IRS partnered with states and the tax industry to enhance coordination and create a more secure system for taxpayers. Participants now regularly share details of fraudulent schemes detected so both industry and government can provide increased protection. Many enhancements are invisible to

"We are working hard to protect taxpayers from identity theft and other scams this filing season," said IRS Commissioner John Koskinen. "Taxto someone over the phone or in an email. We scams -- old and new.

This is the second year the IRS has highlighted its Dirty Dozen list in separate releases over 12 business days. Taxpayers are encouraged to review the list in a special section on IRS.gov and be on the lookout for these scams. Many of these con games peak during filing season as people prepare their tax returns or hire someone to do so.

The IRS this week also renewed a consumer alert for e-mail schemes after seeing an approximate 400 percent surge in phishing and malware incidents so far this tax season. (IR-2016-28)

Perpetrators of illegal scams can face significant penalties and interest and possible criminal prosecution. IRS Criminal Investigation works closely with the Department of Justice to shut down scams and prosecute the criminals behind them. Taxpayers should remember that they are legally responsible for what is on their tax return even if it is prepared by someone else. Be sure the preparer is up to the task. For more see the Choosing a Tax Professional page.

Here is a recap of this year's "Dirty Dozen"

Identity Theft: Taxpayers need to watch out for identity theft especially around tax time. The IRS continues to aggressively pursue the criminals that file fraudulent returns using someone else's Social Security number. Though the agency is making progress on this front, taxpayers still need to be extremely careful and do everything they can to avoid being victimized. (IR-2016-12)

Phone Scams: Phone calls from criminals impersonating IRS agents remain an ongoing threat to taxpayers. The IRS has seen a surge of these phone scams in recent years as scam artists threaten taxpayers with police arrest, deportation and license revocation, among other things. (IR-2016-14)

Phishing: Taxpayers need to be on guard against Frivolous Tax Arguments: Don't use frivolous fake emails or websites looking to steal personal information. The IRS will never send taxpayers an email about a bill or refund out of the blue. Don't click on one claiming to be from the IRS. Be wary of strange emails and websites that may be nothing more than scams to steal personal information. (IR-2016-15)

Return Preparer Fraud: Be on the lookout for unscrupulous return preparers. The vast majority of tax professionals provide honest highquality service. But there are some dishonest preparers who set up shop each filing season to perpetrate refund fraud, identity theft and other scams that hurt taxpayers. Legitimate tax professionals are a vital part of the U.S. tax system.

Offshore Tax Avoidance: The recent string of successful enforcement actions against offshore tax cheats and the financial organizations that help them shows that it's a bad bet to hide money and income offshore. Taxpayers are best served by coming in voluntarily and getting caught up on their tax-filing responsibilities. The IRS offers the Offshore Voluntary Disclosure Program (OVDP) to enable people catch up on their filing and tax obligations. (IR-2016-17)

Inflated Refund Claims: Taxpayers need to be on the lookout for anyone promising inflated refunds. Be wary of anyone who asks taxpayers to sign a blank return, promises a big refund before looking at their records, or charges fees based on a percentage of the refund. Scam artists use flyers, advertisements, phony store fronts and word of mouth via community groups where trust is high to find victims. (IR-2016-18)

Fake Charities: Be on guard against groups masquerading as charitable organizations to attract donations from unsuspecting contributors. Be wary of charities with names similar to familiar payers have rights and should not be frightened or nationally-known organizations. Contribuinto providing personal information or money tors should take a few extra minutes to ensure their hard-earned money goes to legitimate an urge taxpayers to help protect themselves from currently eligible charities. IRS.gov has the tools taxpayers need to check out the status of charitable organizations. (IR-2016-20)

Falsely Padding Deductions on Returns: Taxpayers should avoid the temptation of falsely inflating deductions or expenses on their returns to under pay what they owe or possibly receive larger refunds. Think twice before overstating deductions such as charitable contributions and business expenses or improperly claiming such credits as the Earned Income Tax Credit or Child Tax Credit. (IR-2016-21)

Excessive Claims for Business Credits: Avoid improperly claiming the fuel tax credit, a tax benefit generally not available to most taxpayers. The credit is generally limited to off-high-way business use, including use in farming. Taxpayers should also avoid misuse of the research credit. Improper claims generally involve failures to participate in or substantiate qualified research activities and/or satisfy the requirements related to qualified research expenses. (IR-2016-22)

Falsifying Income to Claim Credits: Don't invent income to erroneously qualify for tax credits, such as the Earned Income Tax Credit. Taxpayers are sometimes talked into doing this by scam artists. Taxpayers are best served by filing the most-accurate return possible because they are legally responsible for what is on their return. This scam can lead to taxpayers facing big bills to pay back taxes, interest and penalties. In some cases, they may even face criminal prosecution. (IR-2016-23)

Abusive Tax Shelters: Don't use abusive tax structures to avoid paying taxes. The IRS is committed to stopping complex tax avoidance schemes and the people who create and sell them. The vast majority of taxpayers pay their fair share, and everyone should be on the lookout for people peddling tax shelters that sound too good to be true. When in doubt, taxpayers should seek an independent opinion regarding complex products they are offered. (IR-2016-25)

tax arguments in an effort to avoid paying tax. Promoters of frivolous schemes encourage taxpayers to make unreasonable and outlandish claims Even though they are wrong and have been repeatedly thrown out of court. While taxpayers have the right to contest their tax liabilities in court, no one has the right to disobey the law or disregard their responsibility to pay taxes. The penalty for filing a frivolous tax return is $5,000. (IR-2016-27)

Additional information about tax scams is available on IRS social media sites, including YouTube http://www.youtube.com/irsvideos and Tumblr http://internalrevenueservice.tumblr.com, where people can search "scam" to find all the scam-related posts.

MAKING WAVES

SURF'S UP IN THE GALAXY: DETECTION OF GRAVITY WAVES. The announcement February 11 of the detection of gravitational waves by the LIGO (Laser Interferometer Gravitational-wave Observatory) team hallmarks the beginning of a new kind of astronomy, according to astronomer Laurance R. Doyle of SETI Institute and Principia College.

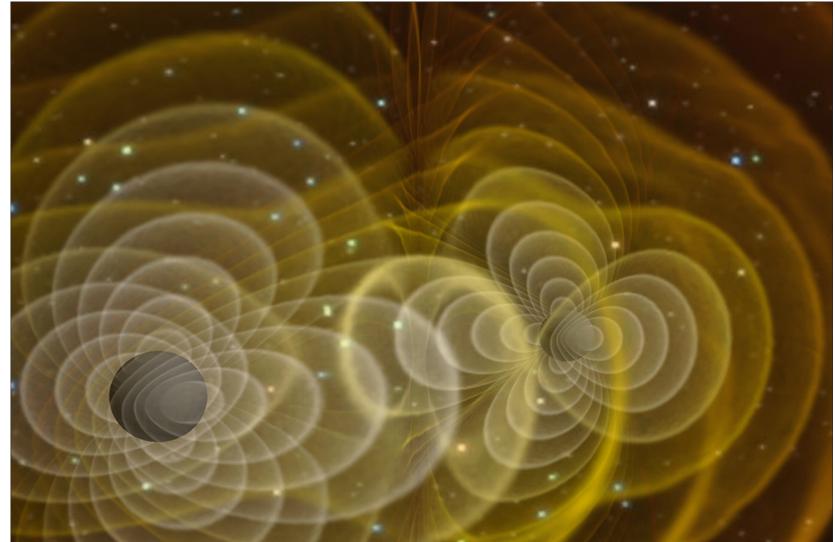

At about the time the first plants appeared on Earth—long before there were any land animals two black holes (former suns) about 30 times the mass of our Sun collided at almost the speed of light, producing enough energy to cause a measureable ripple in the very fabric of spacetime. That wave—if something that is millions of miles long and yet only sub-millimeter in height can be called a "wave"—was headed for Earth, to arrive last September 14 after a 1.3-billion-year trip.

The LIGO observatory involves two laser beam paths that are combined so that any shift along one path will produce a change in the way the other path interacts with it, at the level of the wavelength of laser light. By measuring the change in distance between the two paths, one can tell if minute changes along any one path have occurred. Such a change is what the LIGO Team detected.

"Today, the new observational field of gravitational-wave astronomy has come of age, says Doyle. "It's the day humankind first caught a gravity wave in the fabric of spacetime to surf into the future!"

A NEW KIND OF LIGHT. As the gravitational waves warped space-time within LIGO's gargantuan, twin detectors, the observatory's exquisitely sensitive instruments registered vibrations on the order of thousands of the diameter of a proton. The frequency of these waves that LIGO is designed to catch is actually in the audible range for humans. Accordingly, the signal LIGO received was played on speakers to audiences of eager scientists.

"For this binary black hole system, it made a distinctive, rising 'whoooop!' sound," said Matthew Evans, an assistant professor of physics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). "This detection means that the stars are no longer silent. It's not that we just look up and see anymore, like we always have—we actually can listen to the universe now. It's a whole new sense, and humanity did not have this sense until LIGO was built."

University at Buffalo (UB). "It's like being able to see a new kind of light. Gravity wave telescopes will allow us to observe directly entirely new phenomena that have been inaccessible to us previously."

"We can now study black holes and other violent events in our universe-like mergers of very massive and dense stars—directly," says Dejan Stojkovic, UB associate professor of physics, who dense that it was opaque to light," he says. But

Providing evidence for pre-Columbian European visitors to California

On Halloween Day, 2001, I was conducting a birthday party nature walk for a 10 year old boy and his friends in the Angeles National Forest. During that walkabout, I accidentally discovered an engraved rock which bore a remarkable resemblance to a form of rock writing - ogam - that had died out in Europe by the 5th century. I was intrigued by the possibility that the engraving was an authentic piece of evidence that travelers from afar had been to Southern California hundreds of years ago, and so I researched this by communicating with geologists, archaeologists, linguists, epigraphers, various academics, and local Indians over the next several years. The geologists told me that the engravings were carved approximately 1500 to 2500 years ago. Over time, I was even able to translate the engraving, just by using a standard encyclopedia, and the "Illustrated Gaelic-English Dictionary" by Dwelly. Most, but not all, ogam in western Europe is translated via ancient Gaelic. Of course, the archaeologists told me that all this was impossible, that there had been no visitors from Europe to our local mountains in the pre-Columbian era.

In 2008, I discovered another rock inscribed with what appeared to be ogam at the same site, as well as numerous other rock features that are stereotypical of western European's many ancient ceremonial sites, things such as dolmens, "sacrificial" rocks, standing stones, and more. Many of these other features were not found by me, but my friend and associate Pascal Baudar, who is from Belgium, and who has visited many of the old ceremonial sites of Europe. Baudar explained that if the area I found in the Angeles National Forest was indeed an ancient site of European origin, it should have certain rock features. Once at the site, Baudar pointed out the dolmen which I had not previous noted, the standing stone, and the large flat boulder which he called the "sacrificial rock."

Nyerges next to "young hero" rock.

ANCIENT WRITINGS ON ROCK

Nicole Deweese next to "Byanu" rock

I recorded all my research, step by step, into a paper which I recently finished and published with Amazon's Kindle format. In this illustrated paper, I include commentary from those who support the site as evidence of the presence of ancient Europeans, as well as the commentary of those who strongly disagree. I present both sides so that the reader can decide.

The first large inscribed boulder, the one I found on Halloween Day 2001, was tentatively transliterated to read "Bel, Memory, Young Hero, son of, mother, buried, stone," which would be translated as "To Bel (the god of that era), in the memory of the young hero, son of the mother, laid to rest with this stone." If this interpretation is correct, it suggests that a prominent figure died in the Angeles National Forest no more recently than 1500 years ago, and surviving members of the party inscribed the stone. The second inscribed stone, found in 2008, is more straightforward, reading B-EA-N-EA in ogam, which readily translates as 'Byanu," one of the chief goddesses of the European pre-Christian religion of 2000+ years ago.

The paper on this discovery, "Ancient Writings on Rock," is available from Kindle, and also or as a pdf download at the Store at www. SchoolofSelf-Reliance.com.

Because I seek further clarification on this site and its significance, I will send review copies of the book to scholars in related fields.

Maybe even a better plan would be, each month everybody gets to choose the holiday they want to celebrate. Instead of a holiday every day, have one holiday and whatever you want to celebrate on that day, go to it my man.

What difference does it make what I celebrate?

HATE-WATCHING THE ELECTION

"I love Bernie! I've donated to his campaign! He's great!" my super conservative Beltway establishment Republican friend says. "Feel the Bern!!" He texts me with a snicker during all of the Democratic debates. The night of the Iowa Caucus I retaliated, texting, "Cruz! I'm so happy!!" I knew that'd make him cringe.

So while Republicans are swooning over Bernie, I'm obsessed with the GOP field for the same reason I spent a year getting into Real Housewives of Whatever Awful Place: I loathe all the cast members. They're disgusting, short-sighted narcissists and I just can't look away. In the immortal words of Twitter beat poet Donald Trump: They're all horrible. Total

It boggles the mind to think of all the incompetent, unimaginative, unaccomplished and unintelligent Republicans who decided to sit this one out. One has to praise Michigan Governor Rick Snyder for staying home and merely poisoning his own state instead of the entire country.

Wisconsin is way at the bottom (if not "dead last") in job growth, and yet college dropout and wet cardboard impersonator Scott Walker still put his hat into the ring. This year Politico ranked Louisiana last in basically everything. Still their twangy "stop being the stupid party" exorcist-in-chief Bobby Jindal thought that d be a great launching pad for him to be POTUS.

GOP-gadfly and former Hewlett-Packard CEO Carly Fiorina ruined a major American company, lost to Barbra Boxer by 10 points, was fired by the McCain/Palin campaign for (wait for it) gaffes, yet she somehow got this idea that what the country really wanted in the White House was a Bizarro Hillary. I mean, Texas Governor Rick Perry, Mr. Oops himself, saw this pathetic clump of corporate-ese spewing militia-kissers and mused, "Even I could win this thing this time!"

But what's really fun about this election is witnessing the coal-burning "with us, or against us" Nixon-Reagan-Bush Republican machine break down. Like everyone else in 2000 who saw the Brooks Brothers riot take over the country, I thought this "perception is reality" brand of the Bush-Cheney-Rove holy trinity would come back in full force for Jeb. I just assumed. I mean, "Fool me once, shame on — shame on you. Fool me — you can't get fooled again." Right? But no! Jeb has affluenza, a word someone came up with describing those who are wealthy and yet still pitiful.

Jeb Bush, everyone. Please clap.

Ted Cruz reminds me of the creepy film that develops on the top of mushroom soup. Marco Rubio's credibility is on par with his personal credit score. Sorry, I'm not buying your plans to defeat ISIS when no one would let you finance a Honda.

So out of this compost pile has grown a monosyllabic, monomaniacal outer-borough suehappy mutant man-child named Donald Trump. Every day he comes up with a new human right he'd like to violate: Bombing the hell out of civilians being held by ISIS; shuttering Muslim places of worship; killing the families (women and children) of alleged terrorists; or closing the Internet. In the last debate he got an applause break for the war crimes he promised to commit. The Party of Lincoln has devolved into the party cheering for torturing Trump won 35 percent in New Hampshire, which means 65 percent of GOP primary voters don't want him to be their nominee. But he's still winning! The Republican machine that cut taxes while putting a couple of wars on credit cards, that buckled the economy, that waterboarded innocent people, that sat idle while thousands of Americans died in Hurricane Katrina, that had 9/11 happen on their watch, now can't save themselves and stop Trump?!

This is fantastic!

Then there's the delicious irony that because there are so many candidates still running— Trump will continue winning. So because the entire field is flawed and terrible and incapable of honest self-reflection they're staying in and allowing Trump to sweep. The only way out of this mess is for the field to become selfless, think of the party over their own personal ambitions and drop out, allowing the least horrible candidate who's not named Trump to Trump is a goiter on the neck of the GOP. He's sticking out because the party is sick. And they have no one to blame but themselves. (You know, personal responsibility and all.) Go hate-watch 2016! Go Trump!

'OF COURSE I'M A CHRISTIAN! - CAN'T YOU SEE THE LITTLE FISH THINGY ON MY BUMPER ??!!!'

HOWARD Hays As I See It

"Seriously, this is insane. The GOP is destroying itself tonight, and they have no one to blame but themselves.'

Republican pollster Frank Luntz, on last Saturday's Republican presidential debate

If pollster Luntz was more honest, he might "we have no one to have tweeted instead, blame but ourselves." He was joined by other conservatives who last year saw clear tracks ahead to the White House, but now see a train wreck.

Charles Krauthammer on Fox News described the confrontation as "thermonuclear" and a "cage fight". CNN commentator Amanda Carpenter spoke of "an average voter tuning in to this debate and seeing people scream liar, brawling openly". Columnist Kathleen Parker on "Meet The Press" envisioned voters thinking, 'OK kids, can you just stop fighting?"

But the big news this past week was Republicans, lauding the late Justice Antonin Scalia's devotion to our Constitution while accusing President Obama of ignoring it, now insisting the president forgo his constitutional duty (Article II, Section 2) to appoint "Judges of the supreme Court" - lest that replacement be something other than another Scalia. But it's one of those jobs the president was elected to do - by a 5 million vote margin, last time around.

The singular recollection I have of Justice Scalia goes back to a 2008 "60 Minutes" interview he did with Lesley Stahl. The question was about torture, and the Eighth Amendment ban on "cruel and unusual punishments". Scalia pointed out that if somebody's being tortured to get information, it's not really a "punishment" - so where's the problem? The question was about a practice abhorrent to our national values; a practice then swelling the ranks of our enemies. But for Scalia, it was an opportunity to best Ms. Stahl with a constitutional "gotcha".

Scalia's opinions were predictable though not necessarily consistent. In 1997, he argued requiring local officials to enforce federal gun laws was an infringement on states' rights. Eight years later, he argued states had no rights with their medical marijuana laws to supersede federal drug policy. He argued that the words of our Constitution meant nothing more nor less than what the Founders intended, but also that rights accorded We the People applied to multinational corporations, as well. Article II Section 1 states the president is selected by "a Number of Electors" appointed by "Each State . . . in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct", but in Bush v. Gore Scalia thought the state of Florida was taking too long in getting those electors appointed, so decided the Court should choose our president, instead.

Scalia was "pro-life", arguing lack of an exception for the health of the mother was insufficient grounds to invalidate a "partialbirth" abortion ban. He was also pro-death, supporting capital punishment for those as young as 15 when crimes were committed and also for the mentally retarded (in the latter case, noting there'd been no problem executing those similarly afflicted back in 1791).

In opposing measures to address past gender and racial discrimination, Scalia argued such measures were just a continuation of that gender and racial discrimination they were meant to address. He was adamant in dissents as the Court struck down "anti-sodomy" laws. He argued protecting gays and lesbians from discrimination was instead a granting of "favored status".

In his 2003 dissent to a ruling affirming right to privacy protection for conduct between consenting adults, he warned disallowing "anti-sodomy" laws could open the door to disallowing laws forbidding "bigamy . . . adult incest, prostitution . . . bestiality, and obscenity" He dissented from a 1996 ruling affirming a community's right to prohibit anti-gay discrimination by arguing "moral disapproval of homosexual behavior" was in line with considering "certain conduct reprehensible murder, for example, or polygamy, or cruelty to

In hearing an affirmative action case last year, Justice Scalia suggested there are some schools blacks simply aren't cut out for, that some say "it does not benefit African-Americans to get them into the University of Texas where they do not do well, as opposed to having them go to a less advanced school, a less -- a slower-track school where they do well".

Among those most insistent that President Obama ignore his constitutional responsibility to nominate a successor, hoping to get another Scalia by holding out long enough, is Sen. Ted Cruz (R-TX). He's had his own experience before the Supreme Court as Texas' solicitor general; losing his first case nine-zip arguing Texas be allowed to renege on its agreement to improve healthcare for poor kids. He fared not much better trying to uphold a 16-year prison sentence for a guy who stole a calculator from Wal-Mart. His other big cases involved trying to get people executed and defending Texas GOP-gerrymandered congressional districts.

The reality's sinking in that with the inevitable 4-4 ties from an eight-person bench, the most the Supreme Court could do would be to kick decisions back to lower courts while remaining unable to establish precedent. It's also sinking in that Democratic operatives are already cueing up YouTube videos of President Ronald Reagan urging Senators to do their duty in taking up his nominee Anthony Kennedy to succeed retiring Justice Lewis Powell during the last year of his vn presidency.

Most of all, they're realizing that while President Obama fulfills his responsibility in forwarding a nominee "indisputably qualified. who would serve with honor and integrity on the Court", their refusing to even consider such a nominee would be seen as yet more confirmation that "the GOP is destroying itself".

Already, some Republican Senators are backing off commitments made hours after the announcement of Scalia's death to leave his seat vacant until after the election. But, so far, the Republican presidential candidates are holding firm. As the election nears, more voters will be agreeing with pollster Luntz that "Seriously, this is insane". As for the candidates (and their boosters), "they have no one to blame but themselves.'

PARTY OF REAGAN OR the Republican PARTY OF TRUMP?

The Republican food fight last weekend was a horrible embarrassment for the Republican Party. With their childish attacks on each other, and with Donald Trump's nasty bullying, they made the Party of Lincoln and the Party of Reagan look like the Party of Brats.

Only Ben Carson and John Kasich acted like adults. Kasich was absolutely right when he asked why the Republican Party's 2016 candidates for president were squabbling about arcane pieces of legislation that didn't pass the Trump showed his true liberal colors repeatedly Saturday night. He even recycled old Democrat talking points when he said George Bush was lying about Iraq and lying about weapons of mass destruction.

Yet diehard Trump fans keep telling me he reminds them of my father. That's not just a total insult. It's incredibly stupid.

Do you remember Ronald Reagan insulting his way to the presidency, as Jeb Bush would say? Do you remember Ronald Reagan demeaning, disparaging or bullying the other candidates in a debate or in his campaign speeches? Do you remember him saying nasty things about immigrants groups in America? If that's what you think Ronald Reagan was all about, you're living on a different planet. Planet Trump, I

And no, Ronald Reagan would not vote for Trump in the Čalifornia primary and he'd hope and pray Trump didn't get the nomination in the Republican Party. Anyone who thinks differently is just wrong.

Trump is not a conservative. He is not a Republican.

He's not going to blow himself up and the media can't hurt him. And nothing he says or does in the primaries can hurt him, no matter how crude or

If the GOP doesn't want to go the way of the Whig Party, it's time to stand up and stop Trump now. It's time for the chairman of the Republican National Committee, Reinhold Richard "Reince" Priebus, to get off his laissez-faire butt and make a stand.

Preibus - and any other real Republican he can recruit to back him up -- has to come out and condemn Trump for imposter he is.

Trump doesn't represent our party or its values.

Our party doesn't stand for deporting 11.5 million people from the USA.

Our party doesn't stand for stopping an entire religious group from coming to America. Our party doesn't trash its past president, George W. Bush, by implying he lied about weapons of mass destruction in Iraq and saying 9/11 was his fault.

Our Republican Party is smarter and better than Trump.

Our party can solve the illegal immigration problem without resorting to deportation.

Our party can prevent terrorists from sneaking into the USA without shutting our borders to all Muslims.

Our party knows G.W. Bush is not a liar. We know he was a great president who kept us safe.

The Republican Party used to allow talk radio to define what the party is. Now the RNC is allowing the party to be defined by Trump. The GOP has to find its spine and define itself. Party bigwigs started thinking about winning the general election. They have to rally around the party's basic conservative values and heroes, point to Trump and tell the rest of the country that his crude character, horrible values and dumb Democrat ideas don't represent Republicans.

If it can't stop Trump, it may cost Republicans the Senate as well as the White House - which means forgetting any chance of a conservative filling Antonin Scalia's spot on the Supreme Court. If Trump represents where the GOP has gone to, or if party leaders are willing to accept a fraud like him, then the GOP is no longer the Party of Ronald Reagan. To paraphrase what my father said once about why he left the Democratic Party, if Trump gets the nomination, we conservatives will be saying we didn't leave the Republican
