LEW WATANABE, 83, RENOWNED LANDSCAPE ARCHITECT DIES

Lew Watanabe, beloved 'Goodwill Ambassador' and true friend of the Sierra Madre community, died on Thursday morning after a difficult battle with pancreatic cancer. At the time of this death, his home was in Wildomar with his wife Joyce.

Watanabe was best known for his commitment to change the world by leaving lasting symbols of peace and tranquilty. In a 1991 LA Times article he is quoted as saying, "I went from a landscaper to an artist". His work was described as creating 'little gardens of Eden'.

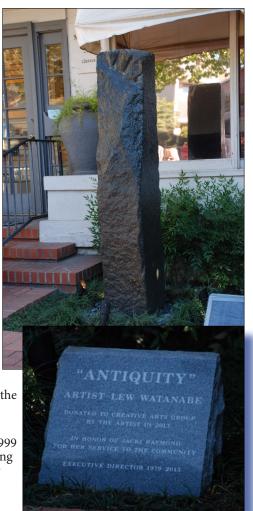

One of his beloved creations is the Goodwill Garden at Sierra Madre School. Several years ago, Mountain Views News contributor, Chris Bertrand wrote of Watanabe's restoration of the garden after it was destroyed by vandals. A plaque created in 1995 reads, "This garden was created in 1931 by grateful parents of Japanese-American students. It was destroyed by vandals during WW II as the caretakers were taken away to internment camps. It lay buried for 50 years. In 1995, it was rediscovered and restored by the efforts of the sixth grade class of 1995 and Lew Watanabe (A true ambassador of goodwill) in hopes of healing the wounds of war. PEACE ON EARTH, GOODWILL TO ALL. (http://mtnviewsnews. com/v04/htm/n15/p11.htm).

In December 2013, he created and donated his work, "Antiquity", a fountain, to Creative Arts Group on North Baldwin. The gift was in honor of the 34 years of service retiring CAG Executive Director Jacki Raymond had given to the community. In 1989 Lew won the sweepstakes award at the LA County Arboretum.

The recipient of numerous books, awards and honors. In 1989 Lew won the sweepstakes award at the LA County Arboretum. In 1996 he was Sierra Madre Citizen of the Year. In 1999 he donated a granite sculpture to the City of Sierra Madre. This sculpture called "the weeping wall" and is located in Memorial Park. In 2010 he was Grand Marshall in the Sierra Madre 4th of July parade. (Partial listing)

AND PHILANTHROPY GRANTS

On April 2 O'Malley Hall at St. Rita Church was turned into a 1920s dance hall when the theme of the Sierra Madre Civic Club's major fundraiser was "All That Jazz". More than two hundred fifty members and friends enjoyed a delicious luncheon, placed silent auction bids, bought tickets for opportunity drawings, and participated in a sometimes hilarious Chinese auction. The luncheon, in addition to selling confetti eggs on the Fourth of July, Civic Club Shoppe sales, our booth at the City's Yard Sale, and Eat Out evenings raised thousands of dollars

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

"It all comes back to the basics. Serve customers the best-tasting food at a good value in a clean, comfortable restaurant, and they'll keep coming back." Dave Thomas

This is so true, friends and neighbors, and we predict that Sierra Fusion (formerly Sierra Brigante) will have Sierra Madreans beating a path back to their door on a fairly constant basis. To begin with, it's beautiful, it's comfortable and the feel is relaxed elegance. Their opening Friday the 13th was packed out and a good friend who was there enjoyed a perfect filet mignon, served on a zucchini and gouda cake. She's still talking about it. And, yes, there is patio dining where one can relax with a plate of Korean style wings, a glass of something adult and yummy and gaze up at our own personal mountains and the jacarandas at their most beautiful. That same good friend, Celia Kalm, and I enjoyed a patio lunch there which involved the Blistered Shishito Peppers with little crispy Chicharon flakes and the Wagyu Kobe Beef sliders garnished with Humboldt Fog cheese and caramelized onions. We split the flourless chocolate cake for dessert and pronounced our sunny patio luncheon...divine!

Sierra Fusion is serving fresh sushi and sashimi under the direction of Executive Sushi Chef, Joseph Ungrue; who, along with his fiancé, Christina Duarte, the Executive Chef, are the owners of this exciting new restaurant. Look for tuna, salmon, octopus, shrimp and halibut sushi and sashimi and observe your choices being prepared by Chef Joseph at the sushi bar. Entrees include Wagyu Kobe Beef Flat Iron Steak and several other steak choices, Kurobuta Pork Chop, Jidori Chicken, Glazed Duck, Diver Scallops served with a sweet potato cake...that's the one I want to try after seeing it served on the patio... saying, "These people are awesome! This place is Ora King Salmon, Pan Seared Sea Bass and a Maine awesome!" Hours for Sierra Fusion are lunch Tues-Lobster served with Orecchiette pasta. If you weren't hungry before, you are now! The wine list includes 13 carefully chosen wines, Saki will be featured, along with a number of Asian craft beers (think Asahi and start in June and you can check with Sierra Fusion for Sapporo) and Sierra Nevada, too.

Jo and Christina have not wasted a minute of their young lives. They are both extremely experienced and have learned the restaurant business from the ground up. Jo's family has been all over the United States, in the hospitality industry and his Dad, Edward Ungrue, Executive Chef at San Gabriel Country Club is also the driving force behind California Crazy Chefs Catering and Slammin' Sliders food trucks.

Wanting to excel in Japanese cuisine and sushi, Jo attended the Sushi institute of America, led by Katsuya Uechi, an innovator who originated traditional Japanese cuisine in a modern setting. Jo met Christina (the love of his life) at San Gabriel Country Club where they both worked. They moved to Las Vegas and worked there for two years; Jo at the Bellagio Hotel at Yellowtail, the Japanese and Korean fusion restaurant and bar, gaining experience working killer 12-14 hour days under some of the best sushi chefs in Las Vegas.

Christina's parents are from Zacatecas, Mexico. Born and raised in Southern California, she attended Le Cordon Bleu in Pasadena and completed her internship at San Gabriel Country Club. While in Las Vegas she helped open up Katsuya at the SLS Hotel then moved on to a position at La Cave Wine and Tapas Bar at Wynn hotel. Working in Las Vegas and experiencing the fast paced kitchens there prepared Jo and Christina to run their own restaurant here in Sierra Madre.

I walked away from my chat with Jo and Christina Fri: 11-3. They close post-lunch then reopen for dinner: Tues-Thurs: 5-9. Fridays: 5-10. Sun: 10-3. Sat: 10 a.m.- 10 p.m. Breakfast and Brunch are planned to weekend hours - 626-355-3030. The address: 120 W. Sierra Madre Blvd.

Town updates: Les Champs Elysees is definitely and sadly gone and Centric Bike is closing. BRADBURY REQUESTS A PROPOSAL FROM MONROVIA

Arcadia-

TO PROVIDE LAW ENFORCEMENT SERVICES Recently, Bradbury requested that Monrovia provide a City Council to discuss the proposal in greater detail on community. As you may be aware, Bradbury has been Los Angeles County Sherriff's Department.

Prior to coordinating the proposal, our staff spent significant time assessing the service level needs for Bradbury. Among other interesting details, the review determined that Bradbury experiences less than 150 calls for service per year. For comparative purposes, Monrovia on handles in excess of 450 calls for service per week.

Based on our assessment, it was clear that Monrovia could take on the provision of law enforcement services for Bradbury with minimal adjustments to our current police department operation. Subsequently, the City developed a police services proposal for Bradbury that includes both a base law enforcement option and a listing of supplemental law enforcement services for Bradbury to consider at an additional cost.

City staff attended a special meeting of the Bradbury entire process unfolds.

HOW TO PICK A MEDICARE ADVANTAGE PLAN

Dear Savvy Senior,

I'm approaching 65 and am interested in a Medicare Advantage plan to cover my health care and medications. What tips can you provide to help me pick a plan?

Medicare Shopper

Dear Shopper,

Medicare Advantage plans have become participants are now enrolled in an Advantage your own pocket. plan. Here are some tips and tools to help you pick a plan that fits your needs.

Advantage plans (also known as Medicare Part C) are government approved health plans sold by private insurance companies that you can choose in place of original Medicare. The vast majority of Advantage plans are managed-care policies such as HMOs or PPOs that require you to get your care within a network of doctors.

If you join an Advantage plan, the plan will provide all of your Part A (hospital insurance) and Part B (medical insurance) coverage. Some plans even offer extra benefits like vision, dental and hearing, and most plans include Part D prescription drug coverage too. You also need to know that the monthly premiums for many Advantage plans are cheaper than if you got original Medicare, plus a separate Part D drug plan and a Medigap policy, but their deductibles and co-pays are usually higher. That makes these plans better suited for healthier retirees.

How to Pick

To help you pick a plan, a good first step is to How to Enroll call the office managers of the doctors you use and find out which Advantage plans they accept, and which ones they recommend. Then go to the Medicare Plan Finder tool at Medicare.gov/ find-a-plan and type in your ZIP code or your personal information to compare health plans with drug coverage in your area.

This tool also provides a five-star rating system that evaluates each plan based on past customer at MedicareNewsWatch.com that lists the best satisfaction and quality of care the plan delivers. When comparing, here are some key points to the copays and coinsurance charged for doctor office visits, hospital stays, visits to specialists, prescription drugs and other medical services. This is important because if you choose an Advantage plan, you're not allowed to purchase increasingly popular among retirees over the past a Medigap policy, which means you'll be 10 years, as more than 30 percent of Medicare responsible for paying these expenses out of Drug coverage: Check the plan's formulary the list of prescription drugs covered – to be sure First, let's start with a quick review. Medicare all the medications you take are covered without excessive co-pays or requirements that you try less expensive drugs first.

Dental, vision and hearing: Some Advantage plans come with dental, vision and hearing benefits, but are often limited. Get the details on what exactly is covered.

Coverage while traveling: Most Advantage plans limit you to using in-network doctors only within a service area or geographic region, so find out what's covered if you need medical care when you're away from home.

Out-of-network coverage: Check to see what's covered if you want to see a specialist in a hospital that is not in a plan's network. You can get a list of doctors and hospitals that take part in a plan on the plan's website.

Retiree benefits: If you have employer-based retiree health coverage, be sure you speak with the benefits manager, because signing up for Medicare Advantage may void your coverage.

Once you've selected a plan you can enroll either on the Medicare.gov website, over the phone at 1-800-MEDICARE, directly with your chosen plan or through an insurance broker.

If you need some help choosing a plan contact your State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP) at Shiptacenter.org. Also see the HealthMetrix Research Cost Share Report Advantage plans based on health status.

DWARF PLANET HAUMEA'S LUNAR SYSTEM SMALLER THAN ANTICIPATED:

Haumea, a dwarf planet on the edge of our solar system, doesn't have the same kind of moons as its well-known cousin Pluto, according to a new study. This is despite original evidence that suggested they both formed in similar giant impacts and adds to the mystery shrouding how these icy bodies formed.

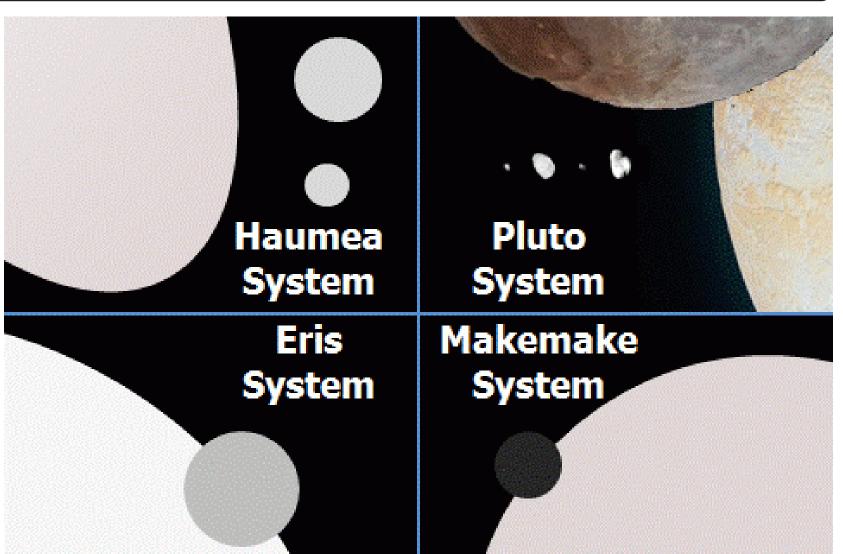

Haumea, named for the Hawaiian goddess of fertility and childbirth, has two known satellites, an unusually high spin rate, and is also the "parent" of a large family of icy bodies in the outer solar system that used to be chunks of its surface, but which now orbit the Sun on their own. These unique features are indicative of an ancient collision and make Haumea one of the most interesting objects in the Kuiper Belt, said Darin Ragozzine, assistant professor of physics and space sciences at Florida Institute of Technology and leader of the study.

Pluto and Haumea are the only outer solar system bodies with more than one moon. Pluto boasts the very large Charon and four tiny moons. The other known Kuiper Belt dwarf planets, Eris and Makemake, have a medium and tiny moon, respectively. Makemake's moon was discovered in April.

But beyond its two known medium-size satellites, Haumea doesn't seem to have small, icy moons similar to Pluto's. "While we've known about Pluto's and Haumea's moons for years, we now know that Haumea does not share tiny moons like Pluto's, increasing our understanding of this intriguing object," says

LEARNING ABOUT MUSHROOMS

Recently, when "Foraging Oregon" book was released, one person criticized that it did not include mushrooms in the book because "mushrooms are part of foraging." Obviously, the person didn't actually read the book, and so he missed my reasons for not including mushrooms in the book. Yes, some mushrooms are easily identified, like chicken of the woods, yet there are many lesser-known related species in the "safe" groups can cause sickness if not processed Mycology was the science that obsessed me the most, before botany, and back in the early '70s, mycologists were few and far between. Besides getting every book on the subject, I also joined the Los Angeles Mycological Association, and spent many weekends in fields and wild areas looking for mushrooms, and learning how to identify them.

Though I've written over a dozen books on wild foods and self-reliance, I've never written a book exclusively on mushrooms. The reason is because there are many specialists out there who've already written some excellent mycology books. I admit, I shared some basics of mycology in my "Testing Your Outdoor Survival Skills" book, and I've used my mushroom quiz for the basis of many lectures.

I still read about experts who ate the wrong mushroom, and died, usually slow BOOKS and painfully.

Consider that there are many more good botanists than mycologists because you can go out any day (more recommend for those of you who choose to pursue the or less) and study the flowering plants and trees, and science of mycology, without losing your life: you can get to know them well. But mushrooms don't last so long. They appear seemingly at random, and Identification Guide," by Desjardin, Wood, and Stevens they disappear. ### MIGRATION SENSATION

Happy Tai by Chris Leclerc

During a walk a few years ago with "Tatertotts", my beloved bloodhound (may God rest her soul), we were enjoying the peaceful ambience of dusk with stars slowly beginning to show their light in the sky - not another soul in sight - when she suddenly engaged in a series of intense bays, taking me very much by surprise. You see, Tater rarely ever bayed or barked during our walks. She was typically too involved with sniffing out subtle scents, keeping her nose trained to the trail in hopes of tracking a furry critter or, dream-of-alldreams, finding a discarded bag of fast-food left-over's thoughtlessly tossed out by a previous passerby.

We were hiking along the short trail where Sycamore Street ends in Sierra Madre, between the ball parks and the city yards. It was a great evening for a walk; the moon was full above the eastern hills and everything seemed calm and peaceful. We were both relishing the solitude of the evening when all of a sudden Tater stopped sniffing the ground, threw her head back and pointed her nose upward sending her huge ears

She let out the loudest baritone bay I think I ever heard from her, shattering the silence and shocking me out of my peaceful state. Her first howl was followed by several more, before her voice slowly faded to a whimper as she became calm again and resumed her trail tracking endeavor. Naturally, I looked up to see what had excited her and I saw a skein of geese flying low, coming in for a landing on the water in one of the settling basins about 100 yards away. They were Canada Geese and there were about 12 in the gander.

As the geese landed one by one on the surface of the water, they made a huge splash. I thought how happy they must be to have found a water hole where they could refresh themselves and rest a bit before continuing their long journey, and how lucky I was to have been in the right place at the right time to see them fly in and land so close. That rare moment with nature inspired me to learn more about the migratory habits of Canada Geese, so I took upon myself to conduct a little layman's research online to share with

. Canada Geese are native to North America and best known for the distinctive honking noises they make as well as the "v" formation they assume while migrating over the continent. The "v" formation is by no means random. It is their instinctual way of utilizing the power of wind and air foil by following behind and slightly to the side of one another to make the most of their stored energy as they travel. Geese are much larger and heavier than most other types of migrating understand the part we play in the big picture, and I birds, requiring a lot more energy for them to fly. By using the "v" formation technique they reserve energy and increase their endurance while traveling.

In the summer months, most Canada Geese reside in the Canadian region of the Arctic Circle, where they nest and raise their new-born goslings in the safety and solitude of the wilderness. Fresh, snow-fed waterways and reservoirs provide them with plenty of water and food resources for the season, as they foster the bonds within their growing family and prepare for the impending multi-mile flight south.

By the time Fall comes around, the temperatures in the Arctic will have dropped dramatically, and the geese will have prepared themselves for the 2500 mile journey that will take them to the Gulf of Mexico, their seasonal destination. There they spend the winter months avoiding the frost of the Arctic north. The flight south can take anywhere from 3 weeks to 2 months, depending on their point of origin and the route they follow.

Male and female geese maintain a monogamous relationship with the same partner throughout their lives and raise their family as an integral unit, caring for their young until they are adults. Research has shown that familial geese will even fly closely together during the migration process, and communicate among themselves using honking calls that are unique to their own family, to keep from being separated along the way. Pretty fascinating, eh?

We have all heard the term "bird brain" used to refer to someone who acted stupidly or used poor judgment. I remember hearing it as a kid, and I assumed that meant birds must be pretty dumb-witted. Of course, later in life I learned the true facts about birds and I realized that couldn't be further from the truth. The next time someone calls you a bird brain, take it as a compliment!

Looking into the life of the migrating goose, I was able to draw a few parallels between their sensational migration and my own personal navigation through life on this earth. Let's face it, life presents some pretty difficult challenges at times, but if we take a lesson from the goose by "flying" in a way that will make use of the momentum created by those flying before us, while allowing our own wind force to help those behind us, and if we support one another as a family unit and communicate clearly with each other as the geese do, I imagine we could handle the challenges of life more in the way the goose handles that 2500 mile flight; with unity, strength and determination.

Observing animal behavior brings me to a higher level of understanding life as a whole. Some may think the most important things in life are to make a lot of money and collect a lot of toys. I feel that there is much more to this life than material gains. I certainly don't claim to know a lot, but one thing I know for sure; I want to be in the right place at the right time to observe more close encounters with nature, such as the one Tater and I had that day with the migrating geese. Those rare moments can help teach us how to live life more fully and how to appreciate and better think that is truly sensational!

#4-Money Management

One of the best skills we can pass along to our children is money management. With a paycheck comes the opportunity to teach our children about income and expenses. Kids need to understand the basic essentials of finance - especially concepts such as budgeting, income, expenses, and credit. Learning these lessons at an early age can help them avoid financial pitfalls later in life. Also, once they are old enough to understand, don't be afraid to talk with them about the estate planning you've set up for them, in case anything happens to you. It's a gift to them to know you love and care for them enough to handle your affairs in advance.

REMEMBERING OUR FALLEN PEACE OFFICERS

By Joan Schmidt

Remembering fallen peace officers occurs at local, state and national ceremonies. Peace Officers Memorial Day is May 15th, and Police Week is the week in which Peace Officers Memorial Day occurs. This tribute began on October 1, 1961 when Congress asked President John F. Kennedy to designate May 15 to honor peace officers, and he quickly signed the bill.

Besides recognizing fallen peace officers as a nation, special tribute has occurred in Sacramento since 1977 with California Peace Officer Memorial Ceremonies. ### THERE'S A NEW PASTOR AT PAZNAZ!

Tara Beth Leach, new Senior Pastor of First Church of the Nazarene of Pasadena, takes the pulpit for the first time this Sunday, May 22nd. She will be meeting a congregation who have been waiting almost a year for a new hand at the PazNaz helm and who are eagerly looking forward to welcoming her.

A graduate of Olivet Nazarene University with a BA in Youth Ministry, Tara Beth has served in full-time ministry in various churches in Upstate New York and Naperville, IL as a Teaching Pastor, Women's Pastor and Youth Pastor. She is a regular contributor for the Missio Alliance Writing Collectives among other publications. She is a published author with a Beacon Hill Press book, Kingdom Culture and we'll be watching for her latest book from InterVarsity Press, Emboldened, due out in

Tara Beth is married to Jeff - the love of her life - and they have two little boys, Caleb and Noah. Tara Beth and her family have chosen Sierra Madre for their new home and are counting the minutes till escrow closes on their house. Walking through Sierra Madre, she and Jeff fell completely in love with our town, as do so many other people who walk our streets for the first time. She wanted to be able to walk to her new church home and she'll easily be able to do that as PazNaz is just a mile away.

Tara Beth has truly been called to the ministry; specifically, to being a "Fisher of Men." First Church will enthusiastically welcome Tara Beth and her family. She is, incidentally, the first female pastor in the long history of this 100+ year old church.

All are welcome to meet Tara Beth and hear her vision for her new church home this Sunday, May 22nd. There will be one service at 10:30 a.m. PazNaz prides itself in being a warm and friendly church and if you haven't visited before, Sunday would be a perfect time to see what they're all about. Complete children's programs are available for all ages and First Church also is delighted to offer In His Image, a ministry dedicated to the spiritual, physical, and emotional needs of God's unique children, adults, and their families. It is designed to provide an environment of acceptance and belonging for all individuals with special needs.

HOMELESS CHILDREN INITIATIVE COLLABORATIVE FORMED

Many people associate homelessness as those we see walking through, and sleeping in our community. While those are typically who we think of, there is a segment of our population that is considered homeless, yet they are not reported in the Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority (LAHSA) count. They are the students in our community. The chronic homeless population is increasing throughout the San Gabriel Valley, the LAHSA count performed on January 26, 2016 in Duarte observed or identified nine individuals deemed homeless.

More shocking is the Los Angeles County's Office of Education's Homeless Education count for Duarte Unified School District. Duarte currently has over 100 students that have self-identified as homeless. The federal standards established by the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act, define a homeless student as between the ages of 0-22, "who lacks a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime residence". This could include living in a park, car, shelter, camping area, doubling up with another family, abandonment, emergency shelter, or a runaway or pushed out child.

When Tina Carey, Chair-Elect for the Duarte Chamber of Commerce, learned of these children in April from Naelh Othman, Student Support Services consultant for DUSD, her first thought was "We have to do something for these kids!" After a few phone calls, a new collaborative was born. Southern California Gas, Duarte and Monrovia Chambers of Commerce, New Life Assembly of God, Duarte Unified School District, DLL Technologies, Duarte Chilled School District, DLL Technologies, Duarte residents, Foothill Unity Center, ChapCare, City of Monrovia Public Service, Monrovia Ministerial Association, and the City of Duarte Public Safety came together at the end of April to kick off the initiative. Duarte Chamber Chair Bob Cruz opened the inaugural meeting at the chamber offices by highlighting that this entity is not meant to reinvent the wheel, or take away from any current homelessness efforts throughout the region, but is a vehicle to connect the resources currently available and have the cities of Duarte and Monrovia working together to help educate the community and assist in removing barriers to educational for those who are in need. The focus is to identify what resources are available to help these families and assist in ensuring that their needs are met. Ms. Naelh Othman has been a champion for this segment of DUSD students for several years. Her role with the district has expanded due to the identification and assistance needed by our students. Starting with a modest goal by the Community Youth Task Force to help, The MIT Closet was started two years ago that provides gently used clothing. Her new endeavor is to create a DUSD Homeless Resource Closet with basic necessities such as school supplies, hygiene kits, and more. Not only does Ms. Othman coordinate the Closet, she works tirelessly with those families in need. "Often these families are going through situational homelessness such as an unexpected job loss, family status changes, medical expenses or simply not able to make ends meet. They are humble in what they are needing. It could be as simple as clothes for school or job interview, or pencils and paper for them to do their school work, or helping fill out a form for aid." She is challenged with trying to identify resources to meet the ever changing needs of the homeless students. "It breaks my heart to not able to provide something as simple as a meal voucher because the resources have dried up. As a community we can come together and remove barriers to our student's education." Her plea is heartfelt and shared by those who have joined the Homeless Children Initiative.

So what are the next steps? We need your assistance. We are looking for residents and businesses that could aid these students. It could be services, school supplies, or meal certificates. We are also looking for resources that are out there and building a database that both Duarte and Monrovia school districts can access that includes current and relevant information. Please contact the Duarte Chamber offices at 626-357-3333 or jim@duartechamber. com if you are interested in joining the collaborative.

On the Marquee: Notes from the Sierra Madre Playhouse

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano

The Glass Menagerie (running through June 19) is getting some of the best reviews we've ever gotten. Just yesterday we were given a "Recommended" by Stage Raw which put the play in their Top Ten and called it "an exemplary new production." Jose Ruiz of Review Plays.com said: "So masterfully structured that is sets the bar to a level that will force other companies planning future presentations to use it as a template for inspiration" Steven Stanley of Stage Scene LA said: "Lebano gives us a Glass Menagerie that engrosses, entertains, and moves us in a way most revivals can only hope for." And, Don Grigware of Broadway World said: "Lebano's vision is what makes this production really cook. It is fresh and ultimately thrilling. Don't miss it."

We've gotten six reviews so far, all of them highlighting the quality of the production, giving special praise to the "dream team of a cast" (Stanley) and to the work of the wonderful design team we assembled. I am thrilled that we are getting noticed. But I'm especially excited by the conversations I've had with patrons - many of whom have seen the show several times before. They comment that this production reveals things they hadn't noticed before and moves them in ways they didn't expect to be moved. That's why I do this. As I've written before, I've long wanted to direct a production of The Glass Menagerie concerts scheduled - June 5 & 19. Please visit our because I had a vision that I wanted to see on the website at SierraMadrePlayhouse.org or call Mary to what I wanted to do. I'm a very lucky man.

I think I've accomplished what I set out to do when I became Artistic Director - raise the bar on the work that SMP does. I hear it all the time - from patrons, from actors, and from the theater community. Now we have to work on the infrastructure of the Playhouse. I'm running out of steam. We just don't have the support to keep going at the pace I've established. Unless we get more help – both in terms of manpower and money, I'm afraid that we won't be able to continue doing the level of work that we've achieved and won't be able to fulfill our promise.

I don't know if anyone reads these columns - I get very little feedback. I'll just say that if you like having the Playhouse in town, if you want to keep it thriving, now is the time to step up and help me. If you have any ideas for funding, or know of people who can donate services, or if you just want to buck me up and keep me going, please let me hear from you. Email me at ArtisticDirector@ SierraMadrePlayhouse.org.

Tickets are now on sale as well for Carney Magic on Friday & Saturday, June 10 & 11 - John Carney is a marvelous magician who will bring his sleight of hand work to SMP. AND we have two Colburn stage. This production is as close as we could come at 626.355.4318 to purchase tickets.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS Night Moves Soar Both Musically and Expressively in LA

By Sean Kayden

Minneapolis based band Night Moves headlined The Echo in Los Angeles on Thursday night, to a packed house. With the band's combination of 70s soft rock and pop-country flair of late 80s and early 90s acts, Night Moves bring a plethora of style, with a great amount of substance to boot. The band consists of primary members John Pelant (vocals) and Mickey Alfano (bass), as well as touring members, Jared Isabella on drums, Wes Statler on keys, and Chuck Murlowski on guitar. Pelant and Alfano came on stage, dressed to the nines in 70s attire, after openers The Molochs and King Shelter performed their sets. Night Moves performed a total of thirteen songs, with the majority being tracks from the band's stellar sophomore endeavor, Pennied Days. Throughout the band's performance, there were many transitions, which were influential and deeply moving. The amalgamation of different genres, crossing over multiple decades has the members of Night Moves connecting to their generation, but also effortlessly evoking the sounds of previous generations, as well. This all accumulated into a night full of moody hooks, warm undertones, and soulful vocals. The more you listen to Night Moves play live, the more you connect with the music, on a variety of levels.

Night Moves kicked off the evening with one of the band's older standout tracks, called "Horses." It's a song enormous in scope, demonstrating permutations of electro-psychedelic-country rock. Clocking in at over fives minutes, it was a solid opener, as the band was able to get things rolling quite nicely. Switches in tempo and tone built into a hazy, ethereal sonic release that elegantly brought the song home. "Only To Live In Your Memories" followed, with soothing reverb, Fleetwood Mac-like tendencies, and contemplative storytelling. Pelant fervently sung, "You want love in your right mind," with a display of tremendous charm and personality. His vocals and reflective lyrics shone throughout. The five piecetouring act performs extremely well together; all members were perfectly in sync and in tune, both musically and with edition bonus EP from Pennied Days - soaring high till the one another. "Border on Border" is another fine example of Night Moves' capabilities. Dreamy, luminous, and often transitional, Night Moves performed like seasoned veterans, which is incredible considering the band has only two albums under its belt. The crowd was excited to hear "County Queen," a favorite from Night Moves' debut album, Colored Emotions. When the band broke into the chorus, the crowd found a deeper connection. People began dancing, swaying their bodies as if they were lifted physically and spiritually. Alfano's sprightly bassline and Wes Statler's effervescent keys provided the track with an illustrious pulse. Night Moves embraced 70s arrangements, yet there was still remnants of a distinguishing innovative,

"Alabama" is reminiscent of Queen, with Pelant wearing many different hats in the vocal arena. His fine falsetto emerges in the chorus. Night Moves constructed wistful, resonating arrangements, capable of conjuring deeper feelings for those in the crowd. By the looks on faces, it appeared everyone was feeling the music. Pelant asked for the venue to dim the lights down for the next one, which would be the title track of the band's first album: "Colored Emotions." Pelant has an affinity toward storytelling that insinuates love, loss, and mending a tired soul. Through this, he made "Colored Emotions" the most intimate song of the night, lighting up the crowd.

Of course, the band performed the single, "Denise, Don't Wanna See You Cry," and excitement grew, as the crowd recognized the chords. The song was played loudly, with amplified conviction. The single is a cutting, genuine vow to right the wrongs of a relationship, with Pelant and Alfano presenting modest yet emotive lyrics. The duo delivered those lyrics with a noticeable longing. The harmonized catchphrase, "Oh Denise, will you please love me tonight," was emotionally piercing. Pelant joked about encores, as he said the band was going to take a "shot or two," before returning for one. He emerged on stage, shirtless, sporting a rawhide jacket, and started to acoustically play "Kind Luck," all alone. The rest of the group eventually returned to the stage, for one more terrific song - from the limited very end. The entire performance was magical, from start to finish, proving Night Moves is worthy of the newfound light shinning down upon the Minnesota band.

FOR RENT: DONALD TRUMP

Donald Trump has upended presidential campaign conventional wisdom yet again. In past years, it was traditional for candidates to wait until after inauguration to break campaign

Trump isn't even waiting until he's the nominee.

Before last week's startling announcement, two of Trump's biggest applause lines were "I'm self-funding my campaign" and "go ahead and kick that demonstrator's a**."

Going into as much detail as he ever goes into, Trump would or lobbyists. I am only working for the people of the U.S.!" And the people — at least those who made it inside the venue and spoke English — loved it! He's not PC and he's building the wall! Trump is his own man. He can't be bought or bribed. Trump's independence gave him credibility. Jeb Bush bragging about his fund-raising explain, "By self-funding my campaign, I am not controlled by my donors, special interests total may have impressed professional politicians, but it told average Americans that he was more promiscuous than the rest of the field.

When people are tired of bought-and-paid for politicians, proclaiming yourself the biggest sellout of all is hardly a vote getter.

Money is the mother's milk of politics and the man who brings his own cow is his own

As long as Trump could get by on the cheap, much like the interior decoration in his casinos, self-funding was okay. He limited his spending to a mere $40 million during the primary because the news media, his private superPAC, helped him dominate primary

Michael Bloomberg — another rich guy, but lacking a personality — had to spend more of his fortune to become mayor of New York than Trump did to win the GOP presidential nomination in a nationwide campaign.

Now Trump has made what Deon Sanders used to call a business decision. He knows his media superPAC will be all Hillary all the time in the fall and it will take real money to replace that free coverage. He's concluded it's too expensive to be un-bought and anti-establishment in the general election. Now he's listing himself on Craigslist under the headline: Anti-Establishment Insurgent for Rent.

This is extraordinary. Trump's absorbing the Republican National Committee's fundraising apparatus and soliciting big-money donations repudiates half of his most effective message to voters. Trump's explanation when asked about the about-face was he could sell a building and finance his campaign, but why bother?

After all, self-funding was only a promise to the people who choose Trump to be their nominee. It's not like he signed a contract. If Trump is questioned regarding this slap-inthe-face to Main Street American's who sent money, attended rallies and voted for him, no doubt his answer will be a variation on "Who are you going to believe? Me or your lying

Even MSNBC, hardly a fan of Trump or the GOP, thinks this turnabout is a huge mistake: "Trump is taking one of the best arguments in support of his candidacy and throwing it out the window...Trump has argued, ad nauseam, that campaign contributions have a corrupting effect on public officials. Politicians can be bought, the argument goes, and Trump knows because he's done the buying." And now it appears Trump is at least for rent.

There are two ways to look at Trump's decision. One, he's not as rich as he claims — possibly explaining why Trump won't release tax returns either — and he doesn't have the money to run a general election campaign. Or two, he believes his own hype. Trump thinks he can do or say almost anything and his base will still support him.

Trump's pump-priming made his candidacy possible. Can you picture him raising a dime from the usual suspects in May of 2015? By self-financing he turned lemons into lemonade and began a movement. Now he's tinkling in the lemonade.

The truth is Trump — the man who listens to the Americans the elites ignore — is just as ready to tune them out as Democrats and Establishment Republicans when he finds it convenient. You might say during the primary Trump self-funded and during the general election he self-destructed.

TRUMP LOVES THE TASTE OF BERNIE'S SOUR GRAPES

Donald Trump could actually win this election, to our everlasting national shame. reason number six: A Democratic party torn asunder.

Tuesday night, after winning Oregon and losing Kentucky, Bernie Sanders told his tragically credulous acolytes: "We have a majority of pledged delegates." The truth, to which he remains allergic, is that under the Democratic rules of proportional delegate allocation, he would have to beat Hillary Clinton by whopping landslides, 35-point margins or more, in each and every remaining primary. That is not going to happen. In reality, he has been been burnt toast for so many weeks that his crust has the consistency of ash.

And yet — destructively so — he still wants his "revolutionaries" to believe. And because they believe, they continue to feed on the delusion that somehow Bernie is being "robbed" by a system that is "rigged," despite the fact that Hillary has won three million more votes than Bernie nationwide. But unless or until Bernie grows up and talks to them as adults, they'll take their delusions to Philadelphia and put their tantrums on national display. And every day that happens is a great day for Trump.

What happened this past weekend at the Nevada Democratic convention gave us a taste of those sour grapes. The gist is that even though Hillary won the February caucus, 53 to 47 percent, Bernie's followers went ballistic because they felt he didn't win enough delegates. (Like, a majority.) They threw chairs, screamed obscenities at Clinton surrogates, and, in numerous texts and cell phone messages, threatened the life of the state party chairwoman.

"Despite their social media frothing and self-righteous screeds, the facts reveal that the Sanders folks disregarded rules, then when shown the truth, attacked organizers and party officials as tools of a conspiracy to defraud the senator of what was never rightfully his in the first place," said Jon Ralston, the smartest political reporter in Nevada. "Instead of acknowledging that they were out-organized [by the Clinton campaign], the Sanders folks have decided to cry conflagration in a crowded building, without regard to what they burn down in the process.'

In a column I wrote And this was a fight over the allegiances a couple months of only four delegates; it didn't matter listed whether Bernie won them, because that's five reasons why a drop in his deficit bucket. Even political commentator Charles Pierce — who's no fan of Hillary — is repulsed by the behavior of the "revolutionaries." He writes that "the Sanders people should know better than to conclude what has been a brilliant and important campaign by turning it into an extended temper tantrum. I voted for Bernie Sanders .... But if anybody thinks that, somehow, he is having the nomination 'stolen' from him, they are idiots."

possibility of going to Philadelphia with a And the idiocy is fed from the top. Bernie seems determined to play it ugly all the way to the convention, and to threaten further displays of wrath on the convention floor.

> Some of us are old enough to remember the last time there was such a spectacle. I happen to remember it well, because it was my first convention as a journalist. The year was 1980, Ted Kennedy took his losing liberal insurgency all the way to the floor, exacerbating the breach with the forces committed to incumbent President Jimmy Carter. The resulting Democratic disunity helped fuel the autumn victory of Ronald Reagan, a guy who Democrats once derided as a joke.

Is that really the way Bernie wants to play it? Is he bent on becoming the next Ralph

Ed Kilgore, a longtime Democratic operative and commentator, wisely says that "the best step Sanders' supporters could take to promote their long-term interests in the Democratic Party would be to get a grip before they wind up helping Donald Trump win the presidency. And Bernie Sanders himself has a responsibility to talk his devoted followers off the ledge.

But Bernie seems averse to taking responsibility. Jon Ralston warns: "If what happens in Vegas happens in Philadelphia, the chances of a unified Democratic party in the general election are virtually nonexistent and the odds of a President Trump suddenly don't look so

That's what I'm saying. Reason number

SO-LONG, FAREWELL, AUF WIEDERSEHEN, GOODNIGHT GOP

been staring at a blank screen for days now because I have no opinion for once in my life. Mike Huckabee just told millions of good Republicans not backing Trump they should leave the party. "You're either on the team, or you're not on the team," he said. Giving 15,933,645 people the boot is a bit edgy I'd say, considering RedState. com reports that of the 26,651,002 votes cast, Trump only received 10,717,357 or 40.2 percent of the votes - even with Democrats' help. I'm sorry I can't oblige him, but it may console him to know I already burned up my GOP membership card, sometime between President Obama's reelection and John Boehner's golf dates with the president. And now there's all those irrational theories flying around that a non-vote for Trump, or a write-in vote puts the woman who really should be donning an orange jumpsuit in the White House. Not so. If Trump does not receive a person's vote, Hillary does not magically receive a vote, unless you are using Common Core math or voting in Florida. Or, the accusations hurled at non-Trump evangelicals, suggesting they'll be the cause for socialism and unchecked debt -- if Trump doesn't win. As if socialism hasn't been creeping through the crevices and debt hasn't been on the rise for years now. Even still, it's the evangelicals' fault. Frankly, blaming Christians and Jews for everything under the sun is getting rather old, considering it's been happening since the days Jesus walked the Earth.

I'm tiring of those who just woke up from their naps to realize there's a problem in America, and then have the audacity to say that this constitutional conservative who leans libertarian is part of "the establishment." Sure. Of course, it matters not that I've been sounding the alarm that the Titanic's been sinking since 2007. They are finally awake, now that the water's flooding their deck. And somehow I'm part of a problem which wouldn't have risen to this level, had they wakened from their slumber, and joined me years back. But that's water under the bridge, now that we are all dog paddling together in uncharted waters to keep ourselves afloat. "Father forgive them, for they know not what they are doing..."

None of this matters anyhow. As I told a group of friends recently, if Constitutional conservatives and believers are feeling a bit misplaced in the GOP, it's okay. We must understand that we live in a post-Christian country that practices post-truth politics, so it's best to get comfortable feeling uncomfortable because it's pretty much downhill from here. We are called to represent truth, conviction and honor in a world that willingly exchanges those things for political power and winning the White House at any cost. We have no reason to be dismayed, so we should look up, as the old song goes, "This world is not our home."

So, knock yourselves out over this election, folks. I don't have the appetite to participate in your food fight, so I'm washing my hands of it all. I'll vote my conscience both locally and nationally come November, and I'll have plenty to write about both sides in the meantime. I'll support, respect and pray for whoever wins. If the GOP didn't nominate the right candidate to beat Hillary or if Democrats don't have a strong enough candidate to beat Trump, that's not the problem of those of us who did not support them in the first place. As Huckabee said, we're not part of the

So, like the old song goes: "So-long, [GOP], farewell, Auf Weidersehen, goodbye... I'm glad to go, I cannot tell a lie..."

Signing off to do more important things, like serving others and sharing the light of the One whose hope still shines brightly -- even in this dark and miserable world. Enjoy your food fights. See you next week.
