On Wednesday at approximately, 1:00 pm, a person dressed in an all-white jumpsuit with a painters-style mask and a black wide-brimmed hat, walked into the Bank Of The West on Sierra Madre Blvd. in Sierra Madre and orchestrated a takeover style robbery. According to Sierra Madre Police Chief and Public Safety Director Larry Gianonne, the suspect pulled out a gun and demanded $100,000 from one of the tellers. He then pepper sprayed the employees.

The Sierra Madre Police Department, the FBI and Los Angeles County Hazmat responded to the event immediately.

At the scene was FBI Agent Laura Eimille who identified the weapon as a semi-auto handgun. The amount of money taken has not been disclosed.

The suspect fled the scene in what witnesses described as a silver colored sedan, driven by another unknown suspect.

This is the first bank robbery in Sierra Madre in many years. One resident remembered an incident where thieves entered what is now Chase Bank through the roof many years ago. Another resident, a retired bank teller now deceased, often recounted being robbed in the same building (before it was Bank of the West), by an armed gunman who was never caught.

There may be a connection between this robbery and a string of robberies in LA County recently. Anyone who has any information is asked to contact the Sierra Madre Police Department 626- 355-1414 immediately. MVNews

By John Bergeron

Two United States War Department provided while marble headstones for two local veterans of the last century's world wars stand here in a family plot at Pioneer Cemetery. One marks the grave of Aubrey C. Young, Sr. who served as a private in the U.S. Army Signal Corps in France during World War I and his son's, 2nd Lieut. Aubrey C. Young, Jr., who copiloted a B-17 over Germany in World War II.

Aubrey, Sr. was assigned to the Third Balloon Company and saw action in the major American-Allied offensives of 1918 – the St. Mihiel Salient and the Meuse-Argonne. The Meuse-Argonne Offensive was the largest in United States military history, involving 1.2 million American soldiers, and brought the war to an end. The battle also cost 26,277 lives, and 95,786 wounded, making it the largest and bloodiest operation of the war for the American Expeditionary Forces and the deadliest in U.S. history.

In 1923 Aubrey, Sr., known as Cy, moved his wife Grace and infant son Aubrey, Jr. from his birth and parent's home in Alliance, NE to here. He became the proprietor Flying Fortress dubbed "The Uncouth Bastard" of Young's Meat Market in town. In 1935, at the age of 36, Bradley age 11, and daughter Margaret age 8.

Four of "The Uncouth Bastard" crew members were taken prisoner and spent the rest of the war in Stalag 17B. ### Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"Hold him over the light, he loves the light! You see how the light shines through him?" "She lives in a world of her own-a world of-little glass ornaments."

The Glass Menagerie Tennessee Williams

Last Sunday, packed house at our very own Sierra Madre Playhouse for The Glass Menagerie. If you haven't bought your tickets yet, you've still got time. The run has been extended through June 19th when The Glass Menagerie will pack up Laura's little glass animals and make way for those angst-ridden kids of The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee.

The Playhouse's Artistic Director, Christian Lebano, directed Glass Menagerie and did a superlative job with this classic drama. The cast he put together: Christian Durso (Tom); Katherine James (Amanda); Andrea Muller (Laura) and Ross Philips (Jim) was superlative. Reading through these folks' bios in the program, we were doubly impressed as they've got some serious acting credits. Of course, it takes more than actors to create a successful show and Christian has put together a team who can, apparently, do just about anything! The technical upgrade to the electrical system made possible by the Charles & Ruth Gilb Family Foundation has given the Playhouse a whole new look as far as lighting and sound is concerned and you can really tell the difference!

The Playhouse these days is such an asset to Sierra Madre...a far cry from the old Bogart Theater days when movies were shown and our youngest daughter, Crissy, hid under the seat during one of the Dr. Phibes movies, starring Vincent Price, as the title character, Dr. Phibes, who blames the medical team that attended to his wife for her death four years prior and sets out to exact vengeance on each one, inspired in his murderous spree by the Ten Plagues of Egypt from the Old Testament. What we, her feckless parents were thinking, bringing this small child to a horror movie, is lost in the foggy past. We probably couldn't get a sitter and all the rest of the kids wanted to go. I was particularly fond of both the Dr. Phibes movies and am proud to report that they both achieved the coveted Rotten Tomatoes award. Good times!

Under Christian Lebano's direction, the Playhouse is getting rave reviews in all sorts of publications and the shows we have seen: Always...Patsy Cline, Deathtrap, and now The Glass Menagerie have been as well done as anything you'd see at the Taper or any of the other theaters around town. Charlotte's Web introduced theater to thousands of kids who attended on school field trips.

Christian has a nifty column here in the Mountain Views News on the Arts & Entertainment page and I invite you to take a look. It's exciting to see what he's got planned for future months like Carney Magic, June 10 & 11, a slight of hand show for all of us who love magic. It wouldn't hurt if you've liked something at the Playhouse to let Christian know about it. A pat on the back never hurts. You can check out the

Playhouse website and even buy tickets at: www. sierramadreplayhouse.org

Assuring each other that our family wasn't nearly as dysfunctional as the one in The Glass Menagerie, we walked across the street to Zugo's Café and enjoyed an excellent Cabernet and variously the Spicy Shrimp, Vegetarian Lasagna and the Salmon Pesto Penne. A guitarist was playing some gentle music just below the animated conversation of lots of people having a good time.

The Mt. Wilson Trail Race is today! Most exciting event all year. Word has it the Trail is in splendid shape and 350 well-trained runners will be tearing up Baldwin and then back down again in about an hour. We love the little kids' race, too. You can watch the race start at 7:30 a.m. and then stick around for the kids at 7:45. Plan on breakfast after the runners get on their way and be there for the winners about the same time you say, "No thanks, that's enough coffee!" Shopping opportunities in Kersting Court, too.

Have a great week and come out to Pioneer Cemetery on Monday, Memorial Day, at 11:00 a.m. to honor our veterans. There will be guest speakers and VFW 3208 will be hosting a sandwich lunch after the ceremony.

'Freedom isn't free. A veteran is someone who, at one point in his life, wrote a blank check made payable to The United States of America for an amount of up to and including his life."

Sierra Madre-Arcadia--Pasadena--Altadena-

DIRECTLY ELECTED MAYOR ADVISORY REVIEW COMMITTEE MEETING UPDATE

Last Monday, May 16, 2016, the Directly Elected Mayor Advisory Review Committee (Committee) met again to discuss next steps in our overall assessment regarding the proposed transition to a rotating Mayor system of governance. As you may recall, the City is working to assess if it makes sense to rotate the position of Mayor amongst City Council members, as opposed to having a Mayor directly elected by the community.

Ultimately, the voters of Monrovia will have to decide if such a change makes sense, and to help assist with analyzing the issue, the City created the Committee, whose members includes Don Hopper, Steve Baker, Karen MacNair, Joanne Montgomery, and Brian Ulm.

Based on the discussion at the meeting, the Committee has asked staff to coordinate a series of outreach meetings with the community to solicit community feedback regarding the proposed change in how we select the Mayor. Staff will be coordinating those meetings, and in the next week or two, we will be publishing an outreach meeting schedule.

In addition, for your reference, attached below is a document which outlines the results of a survey that staff conducted regarding how cities in the SGV select their Mayor. Of particular note, the survey outlined that for those cities with a population of under 100,000 people, 78% of those communities (21 out of 27 cities) do not directly elect their Mayor, and instead, rotate the appointment between members of the City Council.

Moving forward, we will be certain to keep everyone apprised of any updates regarding this process, and as soon as we refine the outreach meeting schedule with the Committee, we will be certain to share with everyone what those meeting dates are!

Sometimes I think my job title should include from Sonoma County. From what I've tasted of their "detective", as in "Peter Dills: Wine Detective". I guess, offerings, I think they do a great job on their cabernets for that matter, most of us who carry a pen could fall in that category. Something that I assume is common knowledge might be unknown to those of you who just have a glass or two of wine now and then.

Think about it - where does your wine come from? There is a simple way to know by looking at the label if the wine is estate grown. Where does the label say it is from? A general rule I go by is that they put on the label is that they put on the label the percentage of that grape. Example: "Estate grown" simply means that 100 % the grapes come from the winery. The winery could own vineyards in two different regions, say Paso Robles and or Lodi. And, what region are the grapes from?

Do they come from a small section of Sonoma or Napa, AVA or it can be pinpointed to Alexander Valley, a region on the edge of Sonoma then it has to be at least 85%?

Many larger wineries produce grapes for themselves and for other wineries in a very common practice called "sourcing". If a winery doesn't have a vineyard of their own can they still be called a winery? Yes and no. I have heard terms such as "virtual", and even though I'd call them more of a marketing company, don't discount their ability to produce great wines, this is how many new wineries make a name for themselves.

1/4 cup buttermilk 2 tablespoons Dijon mustard

2 tablespoons whole-grain mustard

1/2 cup chopped fresh dill

Freshly ground black pepper

1/2 cup chopped celery

1/2 cup chopped red onion

SIMPLE STEPS TO PROTECT YOURSELF FROM MELANOMA SKIN CANCER

Dear Savvy Senior,

Does skin cancer run in families? My 63-yearold brother died of melanoma last year, and I'm wondering about my risks of getting this. What can you tell me?

Younger Sibling

Dear Sibling,

While long-term sun exposure and sunburns are the biggest risk factors for melanoma - the deadliest form of skin cancer - having a sibling or parent with melanoma does indeed increase your risk of getting it two to three times.

Each year, about 75,000 Americans are diagnosed with melanoma, and around 10,000 people will die from it. While anyone can get it, those most often diagnosed are Caucasians, age 50 and older. And those with the highest risk are people with red or blond hair, blue or green eyes, fair skin, freckles, moles, a family history of skin cancer and those who had blistering sunburns in their youth.

Skin Exams

The best way you can guard against melanoma and other skin cancers (basal and squamous cell carcinomas) is to protect yourself from the sun, and if you're over age 50, get a full-body skin exam done and 2 p.m. by a dermatologist every year, especially if you're high risk.

Self-examinations done every month or so is also a smart way to detect early problems. Using mirrors, check the front and backside of your entire body, including the tops and undersides of your arms and hands, between your toes and the soles of your feet, your neck, scalp and buttocks. Be on the lookout for new growths, moles that have changed, or sores that don't heal. Follow the ABCDE rule when examining suspicious moles.

- Asymmetry: One half of a mole doesn't match the other.
- Border: The border is blurred or ragged.
- Color: The mole has uneven colors, often shades of brown, tan or black, with patches of pink, red,
- · Diameter: The lesion is new or at least a quarterinch in diameter.
- · Evolving: The mole is changing in size, shape or places that offer free skin cancer screenings. Check with the American Academy of Dermatology (888-462-3376, aad.org/public/spot-skin-cancer), which offers screenings done by hundreds of volunteer dermatologists across the U.S., and the American Society for Dermatologic Surgery (asds.net/ skincancerscreening.aspx).

Sun Protection

Even though you can't change your skin or family history, there are some proven strategies that can help you protect yourself.

For starters, avoid tanning beds, and when you go outside, slather on broad-spectrum SPF 30, waterresistant sunscreen on both sunny and cloudy days. If you don't like the rub-on lotions, try the continuous spray-on sunscreens which are easier to apply and re-apply and less messy. Also, seek the shade when rays are most intense - between 10 a.m.

You can also protect your skin by wearing a widebrimmed hat, and long sleeves and pants when possible. The best clothing options are tightly-woven fabric that help prevent the sun's rays from reaching your skin, or you can wash-in an invisible shield sun protection into your cloths with SunGuard laundry additive (see sunguardsunprotection.com). You can even buy a variety of lightweight clothing and hats that offer maximum UV protection in their fabric. Coolibar.com and SunPrecautions.com are two sites that offer these products.

Treatments

If melanoma is caught and treated early, it's nearly 100 percent curable. But if it's not, the cancer can advance and spread to other parts of the body, where it becomes hard to treat and can be fatal. Standard treatment for melanoma is surgical removal. In advanced cases however, chemotherapy or radiation may also be used, along with a variety of new drug treatments.

You'd hope that surviving higher education and nine years of work in public schools would instill greater organizational skills me. Nope! I don't think my problem is that I can't categorize things, it's that many things can fit into more than one category. This puts me at a loss as to how I should categorize them. Every so often I feel compelled to devote serious time to organizing my things. However, after half an hour of shuffling through papers, I'm no farther along than I was when I started. Eventually

You've heard of "safe spaces," well, these are more like disaster zones. In my own defense, I wasn't totally at fault because they were already stuffed beyond capacity when I inherited my job. Public school classrooms aren't the sort of places where people pack all their belongings into a tidy little box when they leave. ### MARS AT CLOSEST APPROACH TO EARTH IN LAST TEN YEARS

During May 2016 the Earth and Mars get closer to each other than at any time in the last ten years. The NASA/ESA Hubble Space Telescope has exploited this special configuration to catch a new image of our red neighbor, showing some of its famous surface features. This image supplements previous Hubble observations of Mars and allows astronomers to study large-scale changes on its surface.

On May 22, Mars will be at opposition, the point at which the planet is located directly opposite the Sun in the sky. This means that the Sun, Earth and Mars are all lined up, with Earth sitting in between the Sun and the red planet.

Opposition also marks the planet's closest approach to Earth, so that Mars appears bigger and brighter in the sky than at any other time. This allows astronomers using telescopes in space and on the ground to see more details on the Martian surface. For observers using ground-based instruments the opposing planet is visible throughout the night and is also fully illuminated, making it a great opportunity for detailed studies.

On May 12, the Hubble telescope took advantage of this favorable alignment and turned its gaze towards Mars to take an image of our rusty-hued neighbor, adding it to the collection of previous images. From this distance the telescope could see Martian features as small as 20 miles across.

WATCH MARS LIVE ONLINE ON MEMORIAL DAY. On Monday, May 30th, at 6:00 p.m. PDT, the international astronomy-outreach organization Slooh will share brilliant live views of Mars at closest approach with the public, looking through a telescope at the Canary Island Observatory.

Due to their respective orbits, Mars and Earth are locked in a dance that makes Mars' apparent size and brightness change dramatically over 26-months. Mars' distance from the Earth can vary between between 33.5 million and 249 million miles, meaning that its apparent size varies by sevenfold from Earth's viewpoint. During the live show, Slooh Astronomers viewers on a live tour of the Red Planet, discussing everything from scientific study of the planet to its cultural significance in antiquity through to sci-fi movies, and even the possibility that it may have once harbored life.

"The size of Mars varies more than any other planet, Twitter, or by joining in on the live chat on Slooh.com. 02:00UTC into their right place in your collector's book. Coins have rich intrinsic stories, and learning each clue excites real collectors.

Yes, perhaps some people make money with coins, and that was part of my early interest in coin collecting as a hobby. You aren't collecting the proprietor told me. buttons or bottle caps, but something that has a universally-acknowledged value. At the very least, coins are never worth nothing, and do not fall below their face value.

Like most collectors, I started with pennies, because pennies were cheap and you could buy ones to fill the spaces in your book. You learned real quick which ones were hard to get and rare: 1909SVDB, 1914D, 1931S, and perhaps a few others. Zinc pennies from the war were always interesting, and it reminded you that wars affect the availability of metals.

Coins are great conversation pieces, domestic or foreign. Everyone deals with coins all the time, so everyone is interested in at least a few Buffalo nickels are universally admired, and have long been used to adorn hat

Today, though only 90% silver, they are still highly prized and only go up in value as silver rises.

Some years ago, I operated a farmers market and would get change for the farmers each week at the bank. One farmer would consistently ask me to purchase rolls of half-dollar coins for him. More often than not, the bank didn't have them, even though they are still produced. Because they are not commonly used, most banks simply don't

I asked the farmer why he wanted an "odd" size coin. He told me that the main reason is that people remember him from spending 50 cent pieces because they are not common. He told me that people would often smile seeing them, and somehow that exchange of a half-dollar cemented friendships. He also said that occasionally he still finds silver coins.

Not necessarily collecting, but half-dollar, and didn't know that Hawaii was part learning about them, admiring them, learning their of the U.S. To my amazement, I had to take back the half-dollars and pay with other money.

There was a coffee shop that I used to frequent, and I had begun paying with half-dollars.

After a few days, I came again to the shop and the proprietor asked me, "You were here two nights ago, right?" "Yes," I said, "how did you know?" "Because I found half-dollars in the cash register,"

But another aspect that I found even more interesting is that because half-dollars are not commonly circulated, you occasionally may find silver coins in the rolls you get from the bank. One Christmas, I actually got several Franklin halfs and 1964 Kennedy halfs, which are 90% silver. rolls for 50 cents, and search through them for I assumed that some boy stole his father's coin

If you know the spot price of silver, you can simply do the math to see how much just the silver is worth in, say, a 1966 Kennedy half.

Everyone likes the real silver dollars that were Certainly more than 50 cents. But I'd collected so I sold them all for over 10 times what I paid for them, and paid for the trip. That wasn't a bad investment.

Coins (and paper currency too) tell the history of a country, its politics, its ebb and flow of culture. I once had a Nazi silver coin that I'd purchased at a coin show, but I found its "atmosphere" unpleasant and quickly got rid of it. I am still a bit amazed that Chinese currency retains the face of Mao, who was responsible for the deaths of perhaps 100 million Chinese. But he retains a bit of a mixed reputation among Chinese.

Old Roman coins, ancient Greek coins, and others from the past are fascinating tangible objects that you can hold in your hand as you bring history alive. It's no wonder they have continued to fascinate so many.

Sure, you can say it's only pieces of metal, but they are so much more. They are living pieces of I found that amazing, so I began to try it. When history, bringing the past alive, and giving you great conversation pieces. And, equally important,

IT WAS LIGHTS OUT AT THE OLD PARSONAGE

As long as I can remember, and at my age that does not go back very far, I have always been and nothing was working in the house. an early riser. I do not like to stay in bed any

The next thing out of her mouth was, "Did longer than I have to. So much I want to do you pay the electric bill?" and so little time I need an early start every

I have always used Benjamin Franklin's motto for myself, "Early to bed and early to rise makes one healthy, wealthy and wise." rise maybe has made me healthy, but certainly not wealthy or wise.

This past week an event happened that challenged my "early to rise" regimen.

As usual, I rose early and headed for the kitchen for my cup of coffee. There is no way I can start a day without first indulging in my early morning cup of Joe. Nothing starts the day off better than a hot cup of coffee.

I am not sure who invented coffee, but I sure would like to buy them a cup of coffee and shake their hand. People, who do not really know any better, complain that coffee is bad for your health. Believe me when I say the absence of my coffee is bad for everybody's health around me.

I go to bed early dreaming of that first cup of coffee when I rise.

Stumbling to the kitchen, I stubbed my toe twice walking down the hallway and then tried to turn on the kitchen lights. I am very careful to be quiet so as to not awaken the other resident in the house. She is the sort of person that needs her rest. I am the kind of person that wants her to have all the rest she can get. Therefore, I tried to quietly go to the kitchen and turn on the coffee pot.

When I flipped the light switch, nothing happened. I mumbled to myself that the light bulb probably burnt out. Have you ever noticed that that happens when you need the light the most? How many times does a light bulb go out during the day?

I tried several light switches in the kitchen and the dining room and none worked. "Well," I thought to myself, "I will start the coffee." I fumbled my way to where the coffee pot was and turned the switch on. Nothing happened. I then went to turn on the TV to catch some early news and nothing happened. There was no electricity at all in the house.

My challenge was to make sure the electricity works before my wife got up. I could not let it is no longer available. I do not want that her know that we had no electricity.

Nothing I did restored any kind of electricity in our house.

Then it happened.

My wife came stumbling down the hallway and the first thing out of her mouth was, "Turn the lights on."

I explained to her that there was no electricity

That did occur to me and there was a good probability that I had not paid the electric bill.

Fortunately, I had my cell phone and was able to call the electric company only to find out that the electricity in our neighborhood was Unfortunately, my early to bed and early to out and the restoration in our neighborhood was estimated to be at around 10 o'clock.

How in the world can I survive without my cup of coffee until 10 o'clock in the morning? The whole world is in danger!

I never realized how important electricity was. I just took it for granted, paid the bill every month and just enjoyed the appliances and the lights and most important of all, the coffee pot.

As much as I love my coffee pot, it does not work without the electricity. I had a few words with the coffee pot, but it did not do any good. It wanted electricity and would not work until it had electricity. How legalistic!

Standing around in the darkness of the early morning my wife and I stared at each other, at least I think we were staring at each other, and wondering what in the world we could do. I was so afraid she would come up with a solution. She always does, you know. No matter what I break, she can fix. Now we had this problem before us.

Then she said those terrible anticipated words, "Why don't we go out for breakfast this morning?"

Being married as long as I have been, I realized this was not a question requiring an answer, but rather it was something she wanted us to do. And so, off to the restaurant we went for our early morning coffee.

What I want to know is, will the electric company reimburse me for my early morning breakfast? After all, it is their fault that we had to go out. If I ever miss paying my bill, they always charge me late fees. Turnabout, I believe, is fair play.

I appreciate what David said, "For the LORD God is a sun and shield: the LORD will give grace and glory: no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly" (Psalms 84:11).

Many times, we never miss something until to happen to me concerning God's grace and mercy in my life.

THAT BEACH IS FOR THE BIRDS

Every now and then, we dog lovers are forced to forfeit one of the many privileges we enjoy with our precious pampered pets, for the greater good of the wildlife we share our space with. No better example comes to mind than that which recently occurred at an Orange County off-leash, dog-friendly beach some of us have been known to frequent on the weekends with our furry fourlegged friends.

At the mouth of the Santa Ana river, where Huntington Beach and Newport Beach meet, there is a stretch of sand that has come to double as a seaside play park for those who bark, but how long it will stay that way is currently unknown.

This came as a result of an inherent threat posed by our unwitting canine companions, to two at-risk species of birds that rely on the unique conditions created by the mixture of fresh and salt water at that particular location. Although the location has been unofficially utilized by dog owners as an off-leash beach for some time, county supervisors made it legal by a unanimous vote back in April.

Soon after the beach was voted in as a legal off-leash area, the Sea & Sage Audubon Society out of Irvine, along with the Huntington Beach Wetlands Conservancy collectively wrote letters to the county supervisors asking them to reconsider their decision, in order to protect the site as a nesting place for the endangered California least turn and a winter roosting spot for the threatened western snowy plover.

It is a dog's nature to chase after birds, and with so many birds to be chased and harassed at this particular location, it becomes quite a frenzied game for the playful pups. Unfortunately, however, the birds do not see the fun in the game and have taken it upon themselves to disperse from the safe haven of a habitat they so depend upon. There are limited such areas in Southern California, and to be chased away by dogs at play only serves to put the birds at further risk of

While the two groups advocating protection of the birds acknowledge that dogs have been present at the beach for a good amount of time, they hold fast to their concern that the risks are greater than their desire to allow off-leash activities to continue. Numerous local citizens of Huntington Beach and Newport Beach have come forward to state their strong opinions that the presence of their beloved pets have yet to cause a problem for the birds, therefore they should continue to be allowed to visit the beach in the future.

The Newport Beach city council was expected to meet last week to discuss their stance as to whether the beach should continue to be made available as a sea side dog park and it remains unclear as to when Orange County supervisors will again consider the issue of reversing the

This situation is one of several that have emerged from the up-rise of dog ownership in Southern California. Another example is a constant conflict we deal with right here in our foothill village. Just last year a small dog was attacked and killed by a big wild cat in the canyon. As sad as it was to hear, I couldn't help thinking the tragedy may have been avoided if the owner of the small dog had been more cautious and not allowed their pet to be out alone knowing they live in an area where wildlife can pose dangers to small domestic pets.

In the case of the O.C. dog beach, a similar thought comes to mind for me. Dogs will be dogs, there is no doubt about it. Regardless of how much training or structure they may be exposed to in their domestic settings, they will react with their God-given instincts and behave like a dog.

In this scenario that means taking chase after flitting feathered creatures that will suffer or die as a result of the dog's playful behavior. It is never the fault of the animal involved. Indeed, we humans must be the responsible ones when it comes to a potential confrontation between our pets and the wildlife we live with.

I love dogs, I really do and I certainly want the best for every one of them, but my feeling about the situation in Orange County is that the birds need that beach area where the river meets the sea in order to survive. The dogs enjoy the area as an added pleasurable experience in their lives.

Common sense says we must allow the threatened birds to thrive in the unique environment they require, and if that means we have to sacrifice one of the many privileges we enjoy with our canine companions, then so be it. Love and let live!

DONATE EMPTY PILL BOTTLES TO HELP OTHERS

When we pick up our prescriptions, we take the containers for granted. By contrast, in many countries medicine containers are very difficult to come by. Simply put, qualified medical care is scarce and expensive in impoverished communities.In developing countries, medicines when actually obtainable are often dispensed into hands, pockets, leaves or any other available

Charitable organizations have started collection efforts to help those less fortunate than us. One example is the Malawi Project. The goal of the project was to provide clean, used pill bottles for reuse in Malawi, Africa. The method was simple: Collect your used pill bottles, remove the labels fully, then send them to the project's headquarters in Indianapolis, Indiana. The program ceased operation at the end of 2015, but M25m continues by calling 626.587.3058 or visit www.GarlettLaw. its collection of this typically disposable resource, com for more information.

giving new purpose to something many of us take for granted.

Animal shelters and boarding kennels often also need prescription bottles to facilitate caring for animals. These organizations often lack adequate resources to purchase bottles for medication distribution.

While it may seem inconceivable that something as small as a pill bottle is worth much, its value as a basic medical resource can make a significant difference to people and animals all over the world. This ties into estate planning because I believe estate planning is about much more than simply passing on your money to the next generation. Instead, it's a whole lifestyle shift towards looking at how you can do the most good in the world while you are living and leave the world a better place after you are gone.

And if you are a parent of young children, getting your little one's involved in efforts such as these early in life teaches them what you value and how even small contributions can have a big impact. Passing on your values begins with conscious choices made on a daily basis and estate planning is one of the best ways I know of to consciously plan for a life that truly matters. Think about it.

Will War Ever End?: A Soldier's Vision of Commander Robert W. Copeland addressed the Peace for the 21st Century by Paul K. crew of the destroyer escort USS Samuel B. Roberts on the morning of October 25,

THE PARK PART HOTOLISTS

The Last Stand

JOHN D. HORNESCHER

Once in a great while, a book is written that substantially changes the way people think about a particular subject. Will War Ever End? is such a book. Written as a "manifesto for waging peace" by an active duty captain in the US Army, Will War Ever End?challenges readers to think about peace, war and violence in radically new ways.Are human beings naturally violent?What is hatred?How can love overcome the power of hatred?How does nonviolence overcome the power of violence?How can we prove that unconditional love makes us psychologically healthy and that hatred, just like an illness, occurs when something has gone wrong?How does violence against the natural world relate to violence between human beings?These are all questions that Captain Chappell leads us to consider in a strikingly new way. He demonstrates that human beings are naturally peaceful and that world peace can become more than a cliché. He lays out a practical framework for transforming the way we think about war and violence, enabling us to begin the real work we must do in order to achieve true peace for mankind. The book is a deeply personal story of a soldier's search for human understanding that will lead to universal transformation. Its message is one of hope, offering practical solutions to help us build a better world.We can all make change.

Brothers in Battle, Best of Friends by William Guarnere , Edward Heffron , Robyn Post Tom Hanks introduces the remarkable story of two inseparable friends and soldiers portrayed in the HBO miniseries Band of Brothers.William Guarnere and Edward Babe Heffron were among the first paratroopers of the U.S. Army,members of an elite unit of the 101st Airborne Division called Easy Company. The crack unit was called upon for every high-risk operation of the war, including D-Day, Operation Market Garden in Holland, the Battle of the Bulge, and the capture of Hitler's Eagles Nest in Berchtesgaden. Both men fought side by side until Guarnere lost his leg in the Battle of the Bulge and was sent home. Heffron went on to liberate concentration camps and take Hitler's Eagle's Nest hideout. United by their experience, they reconnected at the wars end and have been best friends ever since. Their story is a tribute to the lasting bond forged between comrades in arms and to all those

HIGH-TECH PROFILING HAS YOUR NUMBER

It's mildly irritating when Facebook tries to nudge me into tagging a photo of my wife's sister as my wife or my son as myself, but there are much more ominous possibilities in the world of facial recognition software.

According to the Washington Post, an Israeli startup company called Faception claims to be able to take one look at a person's face, compare it to a database and deduce a whole slew of character traits, including whether the person is a potential terrorist.

Yes, Shakespeare's Julius Caesar was all "old school" when he observed "Yon Cassius has a lean and hungry look"; but artificial intelligence is bringing snap judgments into the 21st century.

With 80 percent accuracy, Faception's technology can purportedly identify everything from great poker players to extroverts, pedophiles, geniuses, white collar criminals, wimps who won't sue Faception if they get beat up after being misidentified as one of the aforementioned groups, etc.

The main focus of Faception is on homeland security issues; but even there, effectiveness may be short-lived. The terrorists may figure ways around it. I understand ISIS is flooding the market with photos of jihadists on jowl-flapping roller coaster rides and urging its scientists to finalize new real life applications for advanced Wooly Willy technology.

Keenly aware of ethics concerns, a Faception spokesman assures us that the 15 different classifiers used by the company to produce its profiles will never be made available to the general public. I have my doubts. ("The secrets are guarded by a trusted employee – who, um, meets 14 of the 15 classifiers for being a member of WikiLeaks! Darn! Darn! Pay no attention to that massive data dump on the

Imagine the societal upheaval if such information does go public, gets exploited by unregulated copycats and tempts individuals and institutions to abuse it. Suddenly everyone will be muttering "Maybe you CAN judge a book by its cover," "Better safe than sorry" and "Guilty until proven innocent."

Romantic invitations will be rejected, job offers will be rescinded and adoptions will never take place. Even something as simple as a payday loan will be affected. ("Why do you REALLY need this loan? According to analysis of the surveillance camera photos, you probably need to establish a new identity after you mass murder my helpless family. Take your business somewhere else, sir! But please take a complimentary calendar, and a nail file for your 80 percent likelihood of having brittle nails.")

Remember the 1980s Pantene "Don't hate me because I'm beautiful" ad? Soon it could be "Don't hate me because my symmetrical follicles indicate bouts of melancholy."

The medical profession will never be the same, thanks to exchanges like the following:

"The facial swelling from your allergic reaction to bee stings may never fully subside."

"I want a second opinion, doc."

"Okay, and you'll probably win the backgammon tournament while humming a creditable version of 'Bohemian Rhapsody."

I'm all for preventing another 9-11, but there's still something easily skewed and downright creepy about the services offered by Faception.

I'm not sure I even want to live in a world where the inspirational words of Martin Luther King, Jr. have devolved into "I look to a day when people will not be judged by the color of their skin, but by whether their ears hang low and wobble to and fro."

TAKE A WILD GUESS WHICH POLITICAL PARTY IS IMPERILING BABIES

We all know by now that Republicans are well practiced at the art of magical thinking — massive tax cuts balance the budget, humaninduced climate change isn't real, Donald Trump is a normal candidate — but the delusion that tops them all is their apparent belief that the Zika virus will slow its pace and take its cues from the ideological cheapskates on Capitol Hill.

Way back on Feb. 8, President Obama — acting on dire warnings from the National Institutes of Health and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention requested that the Republican Congress pony up nearly $1.9 billion to head off an impending public health emergency. The mosquito-borne Zika virus was nearing American shores and imperiling pregnant women, who, if infected, could give birth to babies with abnormally small heads and severe brain defects. What could be more prudent than to pump sufficient money into preventive mosquito control, vaccine research, and public education?

Sixteen weeks later, the Republican Congress has passed squat. With no end in sight. It simply refuses to spend the money that health experts know is necessary.

I had long assumed that, for all their hostility to governance, Republicans at minimum believed that protecting American families was paramount. (You know, family values.) I now stand corrected. Apparently, even babies are to be sacrificed on their ideological altar.

The Republican House wants to give the NIH and CDC only $622 million — roughly onethird of what Obama requested. That money would come from the funds that were OK'd in 2014 to fight the Ebola outbreak (we're still fighting Ebola, in Africa). The Republican House also says that the $622 million would basically expire in September, and at that point Obama would have to ask for more. Meanwhile, the Republican Senate wants to provide $1.1 billion — roughly half of what Obama requested. It toyed with the idea of financing the Zika fight by taking money out of Obamacare, but it finally passed the bill without doing something that stupid.

No doubt you've spotted the big problem: The Republican House and the Republican Senate are far apart on how many pennies should be pinched, and that stalemate is expected to last well into the summer. That should give the Zika virus more time to infect more people — unless, of course, the virus agrees to abide by the Republican timetable. More than 1,300 cases have already been confirmed; most are pregnant American travelers and citizens of Puerto Rico.

Public health experts can't fathom why Congress is behaving this way. Dr. Peter J. Hotez, at the Baylor College of Medicine, recently said, "I'm very worried, especially for our U.S. Gulf Coast states ... It's like refusing emergency preparedness funds for an approaching hurricane." Even the GOP-dominated National Governors Association pleaded for Congress to act, warning in a statement this month that "the nation is on the threshold of a public health

Best of all, we have Marco Rubio. Freed of the need to pander, the lame duck senator mindful of Zika's threat to Florida — is clanging the alarm.

"Do we (spend) now before it becomes a crisis, or do we wait for it to become a crisis?" Rubio asked "Congress is going to have to explain to the people why it is we sat around and did nothing on something of this magnitude."

And let's not kid ourselves here. The main reason they've been sitting around since February is because the request came from Obama. Saving babies is a lower priority than hating Obama. Two years ago, in the early days of the Ebola crisis, Republicans said that Obama wasn't doing enough to keep the disease away from American shores. Yet today, with Obama doing everything he can to keep Zika away from American shores, Republicans don't like that, either. And if, as expected, the Zika cases mount after the virus hits here, rest assured they'll

But like Rubio, a few rare Republicans prefer to be rational. Earlier this month, House member Vern Buchanan — mindful of the virus threatening his Florida district - announced his support for Obama's money request, and cited medical research which shows that Zika "eats away" at the brain and "destroys the ability to think."

Destroys the ability to think...

Sounds like a Zika mutation has already infected his colleagues.

MAKING SENSE by Michael Reagan

LOOK WHO'S CRYING NOW

After all those months of worrying and complaining about having too many candidates, the GOP finally found its 2016 presidential candidate, for good and bad.

A couple weeks ago I said the Republican Party was in such sad shape it should use Leslie Gore's 1963 hit "It's my party" for its theme song.

The opening line -- It's my party, and I'll cry if I want to -- was a perfect description of how miserable conservative Republicans and the GOP establishment were at the prospect of having Donald Trump as their standard bearer. Now the GOP is suddenly getting its act together and Donald Trump is looking stronger.

He has been picking up more support from the party establishment -- though it'll dry up real fast if he keeps sucker-punching Republican governors like Susana Martinez of New Mexico for no good reason.

Trump's poll numbers against Hillary are up.

He's already giving "Crooked Hillary" the same roughing up he gave his primary opponents. He's exhuming subjects that she, her pretend husband Bill and their liberal media friends thought were buried decades ago in the Yucca Mountain Nuclear Waste Repository.

Already the names of Bill's victims are coming back to haunt us - Jennifer, Paula, Juanita, Kathleen, Monica... Trump will be repeating those names until November, whether Hillary, Big Media or squeamish Republicans like it or not. For the next six months he'll do to Hillary what liberal journalists won't do because they've still in bed with the Clintons after 24 years. He'll be hitting Hillary every day on Benghazi, her emails, her Wall Street speeches, her crooked foundation, her Senate record, her record as secretary of state, Whitewater, Vince Foster, her hairdos, her voice, etc., etc.

With Trump and Hillary's negative poll numbers being as high as they are, we might still see a third party candidate emerge to go after conservative Republicans and the NeverTrump/ Anybody But Hillary voter.

Meanwhile, it's the Democrat Party that's gone to war with itself.

Pacific Ocean. She'll never have time to swim back to the center.

Bernie Sanders isn't giving up in his leftwing crusade to take down Hillary. He's got the money, the troops and the rage to make the Democratic convention an ugly battle scene. America's most lovable socialist is pushing Hillary so far to the left she's about to fall in the Even MSNBC can see Hillary's whole campaign is a fiasco. Apparently, she still hasn't watched the highlight reel of the Republican primary to see how Trump destroyed his attackers like they were monsters in a video game.

She's making the same stupid mistake they did. She's attacking him, which only makes him stronger with his base and lets Trump hit back even harder at her. Hillary's campaign "style," if you can call it that, is so boring and scripted it's like she's teaching a chemistry class or reading for a poorly written part in a movie. Everything she screeches at her pep rallies has been measured, weighed and poll-tested a dozen times until it's clichéd liberal mush. She should let Elizabeth Warren or Larry David read her scripts from now on before half the country slips into a coma. Trump needs to pick a perfect conservative VP candidate to allay the fears of the Paul Ryans in the GOP, offset his lack of experience and bring some grown-up gravitas to his political stand-up routine.

But nothing can save Hillary from herself. My old girlfriend Leslie Gore had a follow-up hit to "It's My Party" that, if adapted slightly, describes where Mrs. Clinton is right now. 'Cause now it's Hillary's turn to cry
