2016 MOUNT WILSON TRAIL RACE - PERFECT WEATHER FOR A RACE UP THE MOUNTAIN TRAIL

Sierra Madre - It was another successful year for the Mount Wilson Trail Race thanks to optimal trail conditions and hardworking teams of volunteers. All 304 participants safely completed the difficult 8.6 mile course—an impressive feat worth a lifetime of bragging rights. Hundreds of spectators stood along the sidelines as the official race starter, Nigel Rini, fired the start gun. At a time of 1:01:35, Adrian Diaz from Duarte, CA finished first in the race. This was the 18 year old's first victory at the Trail Race. First female, Mireya Vargas returned to the podium and ran an outstanding race to win with a time of 1:17:50. Mireya won back to back in 2013 and 2014 Mount Wilson Trail Races.

Families enjoyed the annual Pasta Feed Dinner in Kersting Court the night before the race. Mount Wilson Committee members catered the dinner which included pasta, salad, breadsticks (donated by StoneFire Grill) and delicious Rice Crispies treats (provided by Sierra Madre Civic Club). Attendees there to load up on carbohydrates also had the opportunity to participate in a raffle, purchase souvenirs and check in to the Trail Race and Kids' Fun Run. Partial proceeds from the night benefited Sierra Madre Search and Rescue which provides race day safety support.

Fun was had by all on the day of the race. A high performance road bicycle, donated by CENTRIC Bicycles of Sierra Madre was raffled off on race day. Those not racing enjoyed themselves either by cheering on the sidelines, visiting vendor booths and socializing in the Beer Garden. The annual Kids' Fun Run, sponsored by Sierra Madre Community Foundation, was once again a success with over 200 young participants. Each child participating in the free Kid's Fun run received a Mount Wilson Kids' Fun Run t-shirt and participation ribbon.

The City of Sierra Madre and Mount Wilson Trail Race Committee would like to thank the following sponsors and donors for making the 2016 Mount Wilson Trail Race such a success: Asics, Arcadia Association of Realtors, Britton Chiropractic, CENTRIC Performance Bicycles, The Unexpected Portrait, Trader Joes, Stone-Tapert Employee Benefits, Invictus Running Academy, Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices – Sierra Madre, Bob O'Keefe, Bradford Portraits, Buccaneer Lounge, Casa Del Rey, Dr. White M.D., Dunn Edwards, Faulkner Design, First Wilshire Securities Management, Inc, Golf N Stuff, HealthCare Partners, I-Fruggie, Physiophyx, Dicks Sporting Goods, Corfu, The Ice House, Thorlo, Joe Pacilio – Century 21 Early, Ltd., Leonora Moss, Matt Denny's Ale House, Methodist Hospital (Dr. Ken

WATER PENALTIES SET TO INCREASE

This year's El Niño rains have had a limited impact on our part of the state. Water conservation remains as critical as ever as California enters into its fifth year of drought. Sierra Madre City Council approved a measure in May that would increase the penalty rate assessed on excess water use.

The City of Sierra Madre would like to thank its water-wise customers for doing their part to make every drop count. The latest water billing numbers for May show 75% of Sierra Madre customers met, or outperformed, their water conservation targets. The remaining 25% of customers are of increasing concern for the City, as many of the customers who exceeded their water use target in the month have a repeat history of

The City of Sierra Madre will introduce a new water penalty rate beginning on July 1, 2016. The rate will apply to each billing unit used in excess of a customer's conservation target. The current penalty rate is $5.04/unit. The new rate will increase to $10.72, or two times the Tier 4 rate.

Local Man Arrested for Attempted Murder

Pasadena Police arrested a man for attempted murder after he robbed a North West Pasadena market Wednesday and then shot at the store clerk and three witnesses.

According to police Justin Bryson, a 21-years old, Pasadena resident, entered Chan's Market in the 1200 block of Lincoln Avenue at about 12:49 p.m. with a bandana covering his face and armed with a handgun. Bryson approached the store clerk and demanded cash from the register. The clerk then walked away from the register and began throwing items at the suspect. Bryson fired a single shot from his handgun in the direction of the clerk. As Bryson exited the store, he pointed his handgun at a 47-year old woman from El Cajon. Bryson then fled on foot northbound on Lincoln Avenue. The woman got into her car and followed Bryson. Two other women, both form Pasadena, also pursued Bryson in their vehicle behind the first lady. During the victims' pursuit of the suspect in their vehicles, the Bryson turned around at one point, and possibly fired at least one gunshot at the victims. Bryson escaped in the vicinity of MacDonald Street between Mentone Avenue and Glen Avenue.

Officers said that a containment area was established. Patrol officers, officers from the special enforcement section, and the police helicopter responded to search for the suspect. Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department Bloodhound Units were also deployed during the search. Bryson was located in the 200 block of MacDonald Street where he voluntarily surrendered to officers. El Niño Winter and California Water: What did we see from space?

A panel of experts will discuss how NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) observes many aspects of water on the Earth using cutting edge sensors on satellites and airplanes that include new insights into the Sierra snowpack and groundwater. Can these observations help to improve our understanding of the impacts of El Niño and La Niña on water resources critical to California? The panel will be on hand to describe measurements over the past season in California focused on groundwater and mountain snowpack results and to discuss what these measurements might tell us of the future. El Niño and La Niña refer to changes in the patterns of sea surface temperatures across the Equatorial Pacific Ocean west of Peru. These changes can significantly influence ocean conditions and weather patterns the world over, creating extreme events from floods along the Pacific Coast of the United States to droughts in Southeast Asia

ALISON KALMUS THEATER (AKT) ACADEMY SUMMER WORKSHOPS BEGIN JULY 11

For the first time in eight years, Alison Kalmus Theater (AKT) Academy will be conducting summer workshops for young actors at Sierra Madre Playhouse. Her workshops had previously been conducted at the Playhouse from 2000 to 2008.

This year, sessions will take place from July 11- July 22; July 25-August 5; and August 8- August 19.

Morning workshops will be for children in elementary school grades. The workshop is called Mr. Shakespeare's Poetry Garden and runs from 9a.m. to Noon. What? Shakespeare for young children? Ms. Kalmus explains: "Think about it. Shakespeare's language is beautiful and quite musical. And young children respond to it with enthusiasm. They like the meter, and rhyme. And they love learning new words. At last count, Mr. Shakespeare was credited with inventing over 2,000 new words for the English Language. Any six or seven year old child who can recite a sonnet or a soliloguy from Shakespeare and understand it while reciting is better prepared to excel in the language arts of reading and writing."

include Activities Shakespeare FUN through rehearsal, performance, crafts and study of Shakespeare's world. crafts The workshop culminates in a Friends And Family presentation.

Afternoon workshops, for older youngsters and teens, will focus on The Magic of Musical Theatre. This one runs from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Why musicals? Ms. Kalmus responds, "Musical theater is where the theater thrives today. It's usually a child's first theater attendance experience - what they know and share with each other, family and school, and it's what many of them want to try It's especially important for young singers to develop sound and safe vocal techniques. There is a real danger that children listening favorite recording artists will attempt to sing along, mimicking the adult singer without realizing they could damage their voices permanently. I have sadly witnessed the carelessness and ignorance with which young voices are dangerously pushed."

This workshop includes scene, song and movement study through interpretation of lyric, character

THE NEW MIND DIET MAY HELP PREVENT ALZHEIMER'S

I've heard that there's a new diet that can help prevent Alzheimer's disease. What can you tell me about this? My 80-year-old mother has Alzheimer's and I want to do everything I can to protect myself. Concerned Daughter

Dear Concerned,

It's true! Research has found that a new diet plan called the MIND diet – can have a profound impact on your brain health as you age, and can even lower your odds of getting Alzheimer's disease.

The MIND diet takes two proven diets - the heart-healthy Mediterranean diet and the bloodpressure lowering DASH diet - and zeroes in on the foods in each that specifically affect brain

MIND diet, which stands The for "Mediterranean-DASH Intervention Neurodegenerative Delay," was developed by Martha Clare Morris, a nutritional epidemiologist at Rush University Medical Center, through a study funded by the National Institute on Aging.

The study followed the diets of nearly 1,000 elderly adults, who filled out food questionnaires and underwent repeated neurological testing for an average of 4.5 years.

It found participants whose diets most closely followed the MIND recommendations had brains that functioned as if they were 7.5 years younger, and it lowered their risk of developing Alzheimer's disease by as much as 53 percent. And even those who didn't stick to the diet perfectly but followed it moderately well reduced their risk of Alzheimer's by 35 percent.

The MIND Menu

The MIND diet has 15 dietary components. The emphasis is on eating from 10 brain-healthy food groups, and limiting foods from five unhealthy groups. Here's a rundown of the healthy foods you should work into your diet:

- Green leafy vegetables (like spinach and salad greens): Eat at least one serving per day. Other vegetables: At least one other vegetable a
- Whole grains: Three or more servings a day.

- Nuts: Five one-ounce servings a week.
- Beans: At least three servings a week. - Berries: Two or more servings a week.
- Fish: Once a week.
- Poultry (not fried): Two times a week. - Olive oil: Use it as your primary cooking oil.
- Wine: One glass a day.

And the five unhealthy food groups you should limit include:

- Red meat: Eat fewer than four servings a week. - Butter and margarine: Less than a tablespoon
- daily.
- Cheese: Less than one serving a week. - Pastries and sweets: Less than five servings a

- Fried or fast food: Less than one serving a week.

Other Benefits

One of the best things about the MIND diet is that it's easer to follow than most other diets and you don't have to stick to it perfectly to gain the benefits, which makes it more likely you'll follow it for a long time. And the longer you eat the MIND way, the lower the risk of getting Alzheimer's

Another advantage is that the MIND diet can help you lose some weight too, if you keep your portions in check and are careful about how the

It's also important to understand that even though diet plays a big role, it's only one aspect of Alzheimer's disease. So get regular exercise, if you smoke, quit, and learn how manage your stress to lower your risk even more.

MIND CONTROL SLAVERY AND OTHER POLITICAL PLATFORM GEMS

Well, the California primary is behind us. Although I try to be an informed voter, the volume of political literature can sometimes be overwhelming. I've gotten better at skimming, however, I must say that I'm glad I took some extra time to read through the candidate statements in the official voter information guide, not because they changed the way I voted, but because some of them were hilarious!

The official voter guide starts out with information about voter's rights, and propositions that are on the ballot. It's all somewhat dry until you get to the Senate candidate statements. These are meant to be fairly straightforward. Each candidate has the option to include a photo, statement, contact information, and website. Some candidates have professional pictures and polished (coherent, rammatically correct) statements that include political experience and other relevant credentials. Those are the boring ones. But interspersed among them are little gems that, if you take the time to read them, are often quite funny!

First, there's the pictures. I was surprised that many candidates didn't submit a photo, but more surprised by the photos that the candidates actually did submit! Several of them appeared to be taken in front of a cinder block wall (like a booking photo), others looked like unsmiling mug shots from the smoking gun website. Honestly, I know we're not all photogenic, but if you want people to pick you as a political leader, you should at least put your best face forward.

Next, there's the statements. Some are so brief that I wondered if they realized they were allotted a whole half page in which to express themselves. Although a number of statements were very short, they still managed to fit in grammatical errors or just plain incoherence such as (e.g., "Challenge 10 giant chaos in economy and economy-related sectors." Another reads, "My education & expertise merits this prolific occupation in order to represent California as United Senator."). Either they are opposed to using their spelling and grammar check, or their campaign team is sleeping on the job. Another interesting thing was the amount of information given following each statement. The most professional looking ones had a P.O. box, telephone number, email address, and website. Then there were some with just a P.O. box (one of the candidates with a picture like a mug shot did this). But some went so far as to list their home address and cell phone! And it was one from this last category who was, by far, my favorite -at least in terms of entertainment.

I'm not going to name names because the candidate in question sounds a bit unstable, and I don't want to wind up murdered in the bushes somewhere. Her picture is actually very nice and looks professionally done. It gets weird, however, when you start reading her statement. Here's a snippet from her sprawling narrative (she's not one of the brief ones, not by a long shot!). It reads, "International bankers, a long shot!). It reads, International bankers, multinational corporate leaders, militaries and police must all 100% obey, comply with the Constitution of the US/UN in the Spirit of Truth, Serving All in Peace. Transforming from the Industrial Technology Age to the new 'Energy Technology Era' will saturate US job markets for the next 500 years." markets for the next 500 years."

So far it sounds like it could be the manifesto of a cult or the script from a B movie, but it gets better! "Through my national and international research and political activism, I identified 'mind control slavery' by satellite energy technology weapons and social engineering programs that have been in continual development for the past 50 years and facilitated their 'declassification.' As a result, I came under heavy sanctions that are ongoing." Wow! I had no idea Senate statements read like science fiction novels! I must say, though, at least she's more grammatical than some of

What's more shocking than the things people write is that they may become our leaders if we're not careful! So if you want to vote conscientiously, stay informed. And if you want a good laugh, dig out the voter guide from the recycling bin and read those candidate statements you skipped over before. And watch out for the mind control slavery!

LOOKING

FIFTY YEARS OF MOON DUST: SURVEYOR 1 WAS A PATHFINDER FOR APOLLO

Before humans could take their first steps on the Moon, that mysterious and forbidding surface had to be reconnoitered by robots. In 1961, When President John Kennedy set a goal of landing astronauts on the lunar surface, little was known of that world, beyond what could be gleaned from observations by telescopes.

Was the surface solid enough to support the 33,500-pound Apollo lunar lander? Or was it so deeply covered in dust from billions of years of meteorite impacts, as some theorized, that the lunar module would simply sink out of sight, dooming the astronauts?

A series of U.S. mapping spacecraft called Lunar Orbiters photographed the Moon from orbit in 1966 and 1967. But it would be the Surveyors that would scout that rugged surface for Apollo, and 50 years ago this month, the first of that series of landers touched down successfully. Surveyor 1 landed on the Moon on June 2, 1966.

As JPL's Justin Rennilson, co-principal investigator on the Surveyor television experiment, recalls, "Planning for Apollo required getting really highresolution images showing the details of the lunar surface.. Even something two feet in size could topple a spacecraft."

"We figured the probability of success at around 10 to 15 percent," Rennilson said.

Surveyor had been sent on a direct trajectory—it would not enter lunar orbit before landing, but would hurtle directly towards the surface at 6,000 mph. The thrusters had to fire at precisely the right moment and maintain perfect orientation to communicate with Earth, all the way down.

"I remember sitting there watching the oscilloscope as the spacecraft was coming down," said Rennilson, "all the way to the lunar surface. 'God, the signal is still there and it is still working!' I thought. We were successful and it was just astounding."

The first views of the lunar surface were striking, but not easily acquired. Photography from space was still in its infancy. The camera was advanced for its time, a slow-scan television imager with a zoom lens—the first time such an arrangement had been used in space.

The first sets of panoramic images were created using a then-new technique of taking instantphotography images from a small TV screen and then assembling the photographs into a larger image.

that you could capture images on Polaroid film.

By the end of Surveyor 1's mission six months after it landed on the Moon, 11,240 images had been returned, allowing for the creation of dozens of wide panoramas and allowing the examination of details as Rennilson remembers the process vividly: "We had a small as 0.04 inch (1 millimeter) in diameter. SAVING WATER AND LIVING BETTER

[Nyerges' latest book, "Self-Sufficient Home," which includes a chapter on water-saving methods, will be available everywhere in September. He can be reached at www.ChristopherNyerges.com, or Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA

90041. WTI's water saving class can be seen on-line at www.wtinc.info] Water conservation is good all the time, especially for anyone living here in Los Angeles County. After all, there are far too many of us living here in this wonderful climate which is a coastal desert plain. That's right - we live in a desert! That's why most of our water is imported from hundreds of miles away.

Water conservation makes sense. It's the way we should be living all the time, not just when we're forced to by circumstances.

But the suggestion to just stop watering trees and shrubs and plants and let them die off is not a viable suggestion.

Consider the great mystery of trees and the wonderful things they do. They draw water up to the surface with their deep roots. They constantly transpire, sending water vapour into the surrounding environment. This means it is always cooler around trees and other plants. Due to this effect of transpiration, trees also create little microclimates - they create weather - and even localized wind can be created by the updraft of water vapour from trees. We do NOT want to just let our trees die off for the short-sighted goal of "saving water." That would more rapidly create our environment into

Through water conservation and water-saving efforts, the land so worked can be cooler and be more fruitful from an ecological point of view, even when it is hotter and drier elsewhere.

For example, all household water (minus the toilet) can be easily recycled back into the yard to water the garden, the trees, and even the drought-tolerant plants.

Assuming the lay of your land is somewhat downhill, you can disconnect the washing machine drain pipe, connect a long hose and let the water drain to your yard or garden. (Buy biodegradable soaps). One load of wash and rinse can use 30 plus gallons, depending on your system. All that water can wash your clothes, and feed your yard.

I have always disconnected bath tub lines and let the water drain into the yard. This is simple plumbing which most folks should be able to do in a few hours. Building and Safety takes a dim view of these practices since they don't want people breeding mosquitoes for the entire neighborhood, so give careful thought to how you do this, and make sure your system doesn't become a problem.

Oh, I just remembered: all the officials constantly declare that we should take showers since "showers use less water." Really? Have you ever actually measured the amount of water you use in a shower? How long do you stay in there? If you're disciplined, you could take a water-efficient shower, and let that water flow into the yard. I have actually taken solar showers in the back yard, and the water all went to the grapefruit tree.

But typically, I take baths. I don't fill up the entire tub and then get in. Rather, I turn on the hot water, get in, and add a few small clothes items that I always wash by hand, thus relieving the load on the washing machine. Plus, it is much healthier to sit in the tub a bit and to scrub, rather than to race through the process. When I am done with the bath, I save some water in one-gallon jugs and recycle it by using it to flush the toilet. I let the remaining water drain out into my garden. I am using that water and getting much more out of it, and keeping my landscape alive and thriving and producing water-vapor-filled oxygen.

For dishwater, you can simply take the dish basin out into your yard and empty it on trees, roses, garden, etc. All the little food scraps will actually be a sort of fertilizer for the plants.

Be a part of the solution. Recycle all your water and keep your oxygen-producing plants alive.

I do agree with DWP that a lawn is pointless. Plant succulents, cactus, fruit trees - things that are useful and don't require excessive water. Some good and useful drought-tolerant plants include Peruvian mint, wandering Jew, New Zealand spinach, jade, aloes, prickly pear cactus, and many, many

We can live here in this desert and we can live here well. We just need to adapt to the desert, rather than arrogantly thinking that the desert should adapt to us.

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

course, is that I do not always make confessions. Not world working. that I don't have things to confess, but I am rather slow in owning up to what I am doing and confessing it.

For example. When the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage says, "Who forgot to put the milk back into the refrigerator?" I usually pretend I did not hear her and try avoiding any kind of confession.

After all, why should I confess to something that she knows as true already? I am not sure why she asked such questions; I only can think that she is trying to rub it in or something. I do confess that I do not confess as often as I should.

Not that I don't believe in confessing. I talk about it all the time but when it comes to me, I can always come up with a reasonable explanation of what I did or did not do. My philosophy is simply this; if you can explain your action why confess doing it?

And so, I need to clear my soul and make a good confession.

My wife and I agree on one level. Both of us leaned towards being workaholics. She leans further than I do, I will confess. But I also suffer problems in the workaholic area.

This is one reason why I do not really appreciate holidays for what they really are. Taking a day off does not seem like a very good thing to do, from my perspective. I do not mind working 24/7.

Isn't this the reason God gave us laptop computers? No matter where I go, I can take my work with me. Hallelujah, and pass me another job to do.

On our vacation, the wife spends all her time checking out the thrift stores in the area. Believe me, that is a job in itself. I, on the other side of the vacation, usually stay in the room making conversation with my computer. There is always another article to do, another sermon to write, another chapter in a book to complete. Don't get me wrong here. I'm not complaining, mind you. I love always having something to do. I love the fact that I am able to choose what I am going to be doing. I cannot imagine what it is like having somebody else telling me what to do. Oh yes, that's would be what a husband is all about. Let me just confess my error right

Both my wife and I love the work we are doing and often do not even consider it to be work. We just love what we are doing and we love the fact they were able to do it. But my confession!

It was the last holiday and as usual, I went to my office right after breakfast and began my daily work. For some reason the thought haunted me that this was

I shook off that silly thought and got back to work. I looked at my watch and it was 11 o'clock. One more hour and it would be lunchtime.

One more hour!

Immediately I thought of how much I could accomplish in that one hour and so I set my mind back into the work mode. I looked at my watch again and it was 11:05 AM.

Fifty-five more minutes and it would be lunchtime. Fifty-five more minutes! I am not quite sure what happened at the time but I began thinking some rather strange thoughts. Like, who would care if I quit for an early lunch? It did not take me long to close up shop and head home for an early lunch. When I got there, my wife was rather surprised and told me that lunch was not quite ready yet. I assured her that I was not in a hurry and went into the living room and sat in my favorite easy chair leaning back and took the snooze-position. For the life of me, I can understand what happened. It just felt so good just to set there and do nothing. My wife called me to lunch, we had a very delicious lunch together and my plans were to get back to the office and into work mode. As I got up to leave I happened to glance in the direction of the living room and saw a lonely easy chair longing for someone to set on her.

Well," I thought to myself, "just a few minutes of sitting won't do anybody any harm."

So I went and sat down in the chair. It felt so good. An hour went by. Then I convinced myself, "Why not just spend one more hour in this very comfortable

And so my confession. On the last holiday, I absolutely did nothing. I sat in my chair and before I knew it, it was suppertime.

For my confession. I must confess quite sincerely that it really and truly felt good to do nothing for a

CANINES BRING COMFORT TO THE COURTROOM

In all of my 53 years, I have never fallen victim in recovery. to a violent crime, nor have I been subpoenaed the statistics in America today, I must say I consider myself very fortunate to have escaped most difficult task a person will ever be forced to undertake, to be put on the stand and asked to answer questions posed by perfect strangers in front of a judge and jury, not to mention the perpetrator, while trying to cope with the loss

Few things would come as a true comfort to me, should I ever become the victim of a violent crime. However, one thing that does come to mind is to have a beloved, furry four-footed friend by my side to help me get though the

I am not the only one who recognizes the value of having the unconditional love of a kind and comforting canine to assist victims of violent crimes. Indeed, one particular lady played a major part in initiating the availability of comfort dogs to act as "animal advocates" gained momentum and spread to many states throughout the US.

journalist for Bark Magazine, she relates the several other states followed Stephens' lead by history of how the canine became a courtroom adding a canine comfort unit to their courtroom comforter in the state of Washington back in staff, with amazingly successful results. 2003. It all started when Ellen O'Neill-Stephens, a prosecuting attorney in Seattle had an adult son who was seriously disabled with cerebral Independence (CCI) of Santa Rosa, CA to find a service dog for her son.

At CCI, Stephens found a big yellow Golden Retriever/Lab mix named Jeeter, and a match was made almost immediately with her son. It "give back" to others with Jeeter acting as his and love they deserve. Love and let live! social advocate.

During Stephens' time in training with Jeeter and her son at CCI, she saw other participants getting "facility" dogs (dogs trained to assist caregivers in various institutions), including autistic and otherwise seriously disabled children. Somehow this inspired her to consider the possibility of using facility dogs in legal settings, and because she was the Drug Court prosecutor she thought the dogs would be of great value to kids

As it turned out, Stephens' insight proved to to testify as a witness in a court of law on a have a positive impact on numerous recovering case involving a violent crime. Considering kids. Jeeter became a mascot to many who came through her court. Then one day, a sexually abused boy was waiting in her lobby and being among those who have. It has got to be the immediately bonded with Jeeter who was also happened to be sitting in the lobby at the time. The boy had been asked by the prosecutor to testify against his offender but he was afraid to

> Stephens thought perhaps Jeeter could help facilitate the boy's testimony if the dog would be allowed to accompany him to the stand. The judge allowed the dog to come to court and Stephens requested that everyone sit on the floor during the hearing so the boy could sit and hug Jeeter. Defense counsel, prosecutor, cop everyone sat on the floor, and it worked. The boy told them everything that happened.

After the success Jeeter had with the abused boy, Stephens decided the King County prosecutor's office needed to have a facility dog on staff to work with victims, and went about doing what it took to make it happen. King on victims' behalf and the trend has since County has been using courtroom canines to comfort victims ever since!

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

WHEN IS THE PURCHASE OF LONG-TERM CARE INSURANCE WORTH IT?

Elder Care is emerging as a significant issue for many people as life spans continue to increase. It is nice to know that because of health care advances, we can expect to live longer, but there are no included guarantees on the quality of life in the later years.

Many people eventually face a period in life when they can no longer do for themselves. Daily living tasks such as walking, bathing, cooking, and managing household affairs are beyond their physical and perhaps even mental capabilities. Frequently, that period has not been planned for by the individual or their family members. And sometimes, this period in life comes suddenly, such as when a debilitating fall takes place.

One thing which people and their families should consider before this difficult period hits is the purchase of long-term care insurance. This type of insurance provides coverage for the expense of daily living assistance. It can cover in-home assistance as well as assisted living or nursing home costs. Most people, however, buy it to cover in-home living expenses so as to

Often, an elderly person will suffer intermediate health issues before needing permanent assisted daily living. Health insurance and Medicare cover costs of treatment for injuries and illness and typically pay for some daily living assistance as the person recovers or levels off at a permanent degree of recovery. When that recovery occurs, though, those services no longer pay, and the person is on their own.

A long-term care insurance policy will pick up the ball at this point and, depending on its terms, pay for GarlettLaw.com for more information.

daily living assistance for a period of time or for the life of the policyholder.

This type of insurance can be costly, depending on when it is purchased. The farther away you are from needing its coverage, the more affordable it is. Depending on the person's age and health, companies may not be willing to sell a policy, or the premiums will be high, reflecting the amount of risk it is assuming.

The decision of whether to buy this insurance is a mix of one's personal financial picture, health, family support network, and family history. For example, a healthy person whose parents lived long into life should be thinking about how he will be cared for in old age. Similarly, a person with no close family to rely on would want a safety net in place. In both of these situations, a proactive person might buy the insurance if she can

If the cost of the insurance seems beyond a person's budget, a couple of things can be considered. One is to divert money being saved for retirement to finance the premiums. In a way, the goal is the same—money for retirement years. This approach would require balance between having enough money to fund healthy retirement years and enough to avoid being placed in a nursing home when you need healthcare support.

Another consideration is money being spent on life insurance. Some people carry life insurance early in life to provide for dependents who will survive them, then keep carrying it after that need has passed. The premiums being paid for life insurance could be applied to long-term care insurance, recognizing that the need for insurance still exists, just for a different purpose. A life policy that carries a cash value could be cashed in to pay a lump sum premium for a long-term care policy.

If one buys a long-term policy, caution should be exercised to make sure the coverage pays for what you anticipate needing. Bathing, for example, is one of the first personal activities that an aging person cannot perform; cooking is another. Also, if purchased a number of years before the anticipated need, be sure the policy provides for inflation in the cost of services. And watch out for a waiting period between disability and payments.

The financial impact of living a long life should be a consideration in your estate planning. That's why my firm takes a holistic approach to estate planning-- so we can help you cover all the angles while you live your life to the fullest.

DAVID WHEATLEY - A USEFUL LIFE IN C MAJOR

Usually I'm recommending that everyone stay right here in town, to shop, to dine, to attend theater at our own Sierra Madre Playhouse, but this event is too good not to at least mention. David Wheatley and I have written three musicals together: "Hands!" The Musical; Star of Wonder - A Christmas Musical, and Gallery - The Musical. Plus a number of stand alone songs - some of which are even available as sheet music (Joseph's Love Song – available at Sheet Music Plus). Our musicals have all been produced here, there and everywhere, including the 2014 Hollywood Fringe solicited and his version of the Cheers theme got Festival. David is an exceptional music composer pretty close to classical beauty. and an extremely talented performer.

You may or may not know that the annual Hollywood Fringe Festival is getting underway featuring exciting, eclectic and eccentric favorites...Hogan's Heroes, Green Acres, The entertainment. Original plays, musicals, and standup comedians appearing in tiny theaters off Santa Monica and various other locations in and around Hollywood, but the show you won't want to miss is A Useful Life In C Major featuring pianist and dry, wry standup guy, David Wheatley. A classically trained concert organist, at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are just $10 and he is part of David provides a whimsical, genre-defying the lineup at the Asylum @ McCadden Theatre concert experience. Looking for jazz of the finest kind? David's versions of Lady Madonna and Autumn Leaves will have you in jazz heaven as he improvises and strays just far enough to keep you guessing but his gentle touch never loses the David spent some time in his Texas University days as organist for the Texas Rangers and, apparently, never got his fill of Take Me Out To The Ballgame, inviting the audience to sing along! His three original improvisational pieces were, by turns, somewhat Charles Ives-ish, a sweet look back at memories of the past and a slow jazzblues piece with amazing left hand chops.

Adding a few original compositions, some Bach, Beethoven and Debussy, David pretty much covers music from A to Z. Audience requests were Ending with his Silent Movie Medley, augmented with appropriate facial expressions and his TV Theme Medley of dear forgotten Flintstones...will leave you laughing. Expect just about everything: jazz – country – R & B, good ol' rock 'n roll and it will all be dynamite.

David's Fringe Festival shows will be Saturday, June 11 at 1:00 p.m.; Sunday, June 12 at 8:30 p.m.; Saturday, June 25 at 1:00 p.m. and Sunday, June 26 1157 N. McCadden Place, Los Angeles 90038. For more information and tickets: hollywoodfringe.

Trust me, you'll enjoy yourself and be glad you ventured out to the West Side! Let me repeat that part about Tickets are just $10!

A Self-Made Man: The Political Life of Abraham Lincoln Vol. I 1809 - 1849 by Sidney Blumenthal The first of a multi-volume history of Lincoln as a political genius from his obscure beginnings to his presidency, assassination, and the overthrow of his post-Civil War dreams of Reconstruction. This first volume traces Lincoln from his painful youth, describing himself as "a slave," to his emergence as the man we recognize as Abraham Lincoln.From his youth as a "newsboy," a voracious newspaper reader, Lincoln became a free thinker, reading Tom Paine, as well as Shakespeare and the Bible, and studying Euclid to sharpen his arguments as a lawyer.Lincoln's anti-slavery thinking began in his childhood amidst the Primitive Baptist antislavery dissidents in backwoods Kentucky and Indiana, the roots of his repudiation of Southern Christian pro-slavery theology. Intensely ambitious, he held political aspirations from his earliest years. Obsessed with Stephen Douglas, his political rival, he battled him for decades. Successful as a circuit lawyer, Lincoln built his team of loyalists. Blumenthal reveals how Douglas and Jefferson Davis acting together made possible Lincoln's rise.Blumenthal describes a socially awkward suitor who had a nervous breakdown over his inability to deal with the opposite sex. His marriage to the upper class Mary Todd was crucial to his social aspirations and his political career. Blumenthal portrays Mary as an asset to her husband, a rare woman of her day with strong political opinions. Blumenthal's robust portrayal is based on prodigious research of Lincoln's record and of the period and its main players. It reflects both Lincoln's time and the struggle that consumes our own and in this wise and masterly work, he revisits six battles of the past century and examines the strategies, leadership, preparation, and geopolitical goals of aggressors and defenders to reveal the one trait that links them all: hubris.In Greek tragedy, hubris is excessive human pride that challenges the gods and ultimately leads to total destruction of the offender. From the 1905 Battle of Tsushima in the Russo-Japanese War, to Hitler's 1941 bid to capture Moscow, to MacArthur's disastrous advance in Korea, to the French downfall at Dien Bien Phu, Horne shows how each of these battles was won or lost due to excessive hubris on go to war.

In a sweeping narrative written with his trademark erudition and wit, Horne provides a meticulously detailed analysis of the ground maneuvers employed by the opposing armies in each battle. He also explores the strategic and psychological mindset of the military leaders involved to demonstrate how devastating combinations of human ambition and arrogance led to overreach. Making clear the danger of hubris in warfare, his insights hold resonant lessons for civilian and military leaders navigating today's complex global landscape. A dramatic, colorful, stylishly-written history, Hubris is a much-needed reflection on war from a master of his field.

The Summer Before the War:

A Novel by Helen Simonson "A novel to cure your Downton Abbey withdrawal . . . a delightful story about nontraditional romantic relationships, class snobbery and the everybodyknows-everybody complications of living in a small community."—The Washington Post.The bestselling author of Major Pettigrew's Last Stand returns with a breathtaking novel of love on the eve of World War I that reaches far beyond the small English town in which it is set. East Sussex, 1914. It is the end of England's brief Edwardian summer, and everyone agrees that the weather has never been so beautiful. Hugh Grange, down from his medical studies, is visiting his Aunt Agatha, who lives with her husband in the small, idyllic coastal town of Rye. Agatha's husband works in the Foreign Office, and she is certain he will ensure that the recent saber rattling over the Balkans won't come to anything. And Agatha has more immediate concerns; she has just risked her carefully built reputation by pushing for the appointment of a woman to replace the Latin master.When Beatrice Nash arrives with one trunk and several observer of war and history for more than fifty years large crates of books, it is clear she is significantly more freethinking—and attractive—than anyone believes a Latin teacher should be. For her part, mourning the death of her beloved father, who has left her penniless, Beatrice simply wants to be left alone to pursue her teaching and writing.But just as Beatrice comes alive to the beauty of the Sussex landscape and the colorful characters who populate Rye, the perfect summer is about to end. For despite Agatha's reassurances, the unimaginable is coming. Soon the limits of progress, and the old ways, will be tested as this small Sussex town and its inhabitants

The silver birches' branches and leaves sagged at night; they reached their lowest position a few hours before sunrise, and then perked up again during the wee hours of the morning, the researchers found.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS Still Parade - "Concrete Vision"

By Sean Kayden

Niklas Kramer is a Berlin-based artist who performs under the moniker, Still Parade. He is set to release his track, "Concrete Vision" displays dream guitars with ten-song debut collection known as Concrete Vision. He first hit the scene a few years back with debut single "Actor" and the Fields EP. Both releases were recorded in well-equipped professional studios with seasoned producers. Then, in 2014, his father bought him a tape machine and he began experimenting with particular sounds and recording techniques in his Berlin apartment. He soon discovered he favored what he could accomplish in his small bedroom. How does this translate for his debut? The results speak volumes as Kramer has crafted a dreamy, lax, and gleaming sound with all his beaming synths and drum beats that are linked up to fine exquisite pop melodies. The stunning record is chillwave heaven as it stirs up summer vibes and nostalgia. There's a burst of beauty at every corner as you navigate through the record. Concrete Vision walks a fine line between being an essential poolside album as well as an ethereal bedroom-pop endeavor.

Album: Concrete Vision Label: Lefse Records Release Date: June 10th, 2016

Still Parade starts things off with the spacey, twominute track "Seasons." The lyrics tail off around one minute as we are left a swirling, trance-like gem. The single, "Walk in the Park," explodes beautifully as the follow-up song. With Kramer's whispery vocals and lovely melodies, the atmosphere is a reverie. It's a wondrous, peaceful effort that has the ability to carry you home from wherever you may be. Kramer delicately recites the lines, "Why don't we take a walk in the park/ There's nothing like a walk in the park." It's directed to a love one in the attempts to find solace amidst chaotic times because the concept of a simple stroll through the park is rather divine. The title track, "Concrete Vision," is rich with vibrant synths and well-a warm melody. "Let Go" is a sonorous endeavor with heavenly arrangements. More often than not, listeners will be reflecting upon their own situations and circumstances. Still Parade's debut is cohesive and inventive. The word that comes to mind to describe it is pretty. The soundscapes explored on "7:41" range from shimmering synths to delicate melodies. The track is another perky, sugary-psych effort that is abundantly charming. There really isn't a road Still Parade goes down that isn't worth exploring.

"Morning Light" is a lo-fi, dream-funk, psych-pop exertion that resembles the likes of Unknown Mortal Orchestra. However, Still Parade is creative enough to go beyond carbon copies of other contemporary artists. The work here is serene, relaxed, and wistful. It's definitely one of the stronger tracks despite every track here being particularly great. "True Love" is a lush, painfully gorgeous arranged effort. Clocking it at over 5 minutes, it has the longest running time of the ten tunes. However, there is something undeniably enchanting here. Arguably so, "True Love" easily could be deemed as Still Parade's masterpiece. The closing song here is "Reason." It reminds me of the band Wild Nothing, which of course is a great thing to be reminded of. It's teeming with dream-like beats, gleaming guitars, and Kramer's delicate lilt. In the end, Concrete Vision is immaculate, breathtaking, and elegant. It's consistent and tight, but isn't too constrained. There are some songs that go slightly off the beaten path and others that stay on course, but this isn't a repeat of something else you've heard before. While some sounds are a familiar, nevertheless, the end is result has high marks. Concrete Vision is an ethereality debut record worth getting immersed into because what you get out of it just may surprise you.

....and other truth's that make us uncomfortable. This has been a very strange time in America. It's as though someone above is trying to get our attention, but

WOMEN'S LIVES MATTER, TOO

We've made great progress and yet we keep trying to get on a skateboard backwards and go downhill. We've become so overwhelmed with fear that the future may have a personal vendetta against us that we are too paralyzed to participate rationally in shaping that future. Technology has given us the perfect excuse to no longer think about it at all. And yet, we keep getting signals that could help deliver us from our created conundrum.

Case in point – the treatment of women in America in

This column is called Women's Lives Matter, Too and I am certain that the initial reaction from some readers will be, 'oh no, here we go again' or 'hell yeah we matter. Very few, if you are really honest with yourself, will look at those words and contemplate them. Why? Because we live in a country where too many of us are afraid to acknowledge our shortcomings and face our ugly truths.

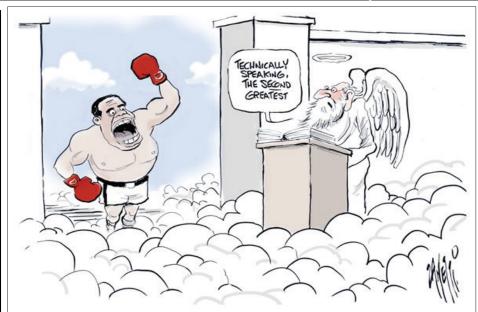

We are not a perfect nation and today, too many lives just don't matter. When some African American's organized and used the term Black Lives Matter it was so unnerving to many non-blacks for no reason. It was and is an expression and in some cases a movement that caught social and mainstream media's attention to the escalating amount of injustices that are still going on in this country unnoticed. The expression doesn't exclude any lives from 'mattering' but the message was/is intended to remind people that African American lives are just as important as anyone else's. No need to argue with me about this, as I have lived every day of my life as an African American in this country and get it. So don't get offended by the term or the activities. If the shoe doesn't fit then the message isn't for you.

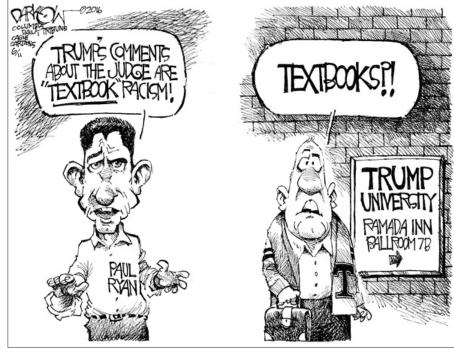

Now, that having been said, please know that Women's Lives Matter Too and to have to remind folks of this really makes my blood boil. One of the most outrageous examples of women's lives being of little importance is the reprehensible 6 month sentence given by Judge Aaron Persky to Brock Turner for the brutal raping on an unconscious woman. Six months. Clearly the Judge put more value on Turner being able to return to his 'life' and ignored the irreparable damage done to the young female victim. It is also a crystal clear reminder that women are still not valued as they should be in this society. There was no justice served, just more proliferation of the unwritten rules that the plight of women still isn't that important, that is, until women start raising hell about it. Earlier this week, Hillary Rodham Clinton became the first woman in America to become the Presidential Nominee of a major political party. Whether she is your choice for the office or not, you should, as an American, be proud that we finally reached that milestone and it should be celebrated by all Americans that a woman is now seeking the highest office in the land. But, instead of honoring that achievement, she has to be subjected to the personal insults of the most openly sexist, foul mouth, disrespectful, insecure public figure in America. That behavior should not be tolerated in a race for public office. But the disrespect for women in politics isn't just limited to Hillary. Remember him calling Rosie O'Donnell a pig? And what about his comments about Carly Fiorina's appearance? Then there's his description of Elizabeth Warren and it goes on and on and on. And, it appears that it's okay because they are 'just women'.

I don't necessarily consider myself a feminist in the sexist definition of the word, but just like I am an African American and have little patience for those who would deprive me of my God given rights, I feel the same way about the way women are treated. Little patience, actually, none. Needless to say, to listen to the juvenile name calling and disrespectful manner in which Secretary Clinton has been treated is an insult to every woman, much less to a woman who has given so much. And unlike racial slurs which you can shrug off if you don't happen to be a member of the race, everyone has a Mother, Sister, Aunt, Daughter, Niece or other female relative. What are we saying to them by allowing such public disrespect? Is there any wonder that violence and disrespect by teen aged boys against girls is on the rise? They learn that being disrespectful is ok. After all, that guy running for office who is so famous does it and no one says a thing. This isn't about opponents running for the same office. This is pure misogyny on display for the whole world to see how we tolerate it.

My question is, when are people, especially men, going to stand up in protest against this? Have you ever seen these kind of non stop, personal insults directed toward male political rivals? Why is it that every single man in America, who by the way was brought into this world by a woman, why is it they have not cried out in protest? Or is it acceptable behavior to them?

During the 2008 campaign when the question was whether Barack Obama or Hillary Clinton would be the Democratic nominee, a dear friend told me, "This country is far more sexist than it is racist", and projected correctly, that Obama would win the nomination. It was a disconcerting truth for me, but it should not have been. Think about it. Black men were given the right to vote in 1870 by the 15th Amendment (the amendment did not apply to any women black or white) . That's 146 years ago. All women, however weren't given the right to vote until June 4, 1920, - 50 years later. It took an additional 50 years and a lot of hell raising by women for this society to begin accepting women as an integral and important part of this society and another 96 years to get a woman to the 'top of the ticket'!

Today, Muhammed Ali was buried and to the person, every speaker spoke of Ali's lifelong mission to have us treat each other with dignity and respect. There were speakers of every faith, every political persuasion, male and female, young and old. Throughout Ali's message of every life being important and the need to respect each other as absolutely necessary for us to live in peace was reiterated. Ali fought to deliver that message for his entire life, including the last 30 years that he was battling Parkinson's disease. He stressed through actions and deeds that all lives mattered.

accurate presidential campaign — who's up who's ascendant and who's a clown look no fur-

Hillary Clinton spent her time making history. Donald Trump spent his time doing damage control.

And Bernie Sanders — history's roadkill, crushed in California and New Jersey did his best impression of Hiroo Onoda, a Japanese soldier who hunkered in the jungle for decades, refusing to accept the reality that World War II had ended.

There's no denying Clinton's achievenominee. Hopefully we're not so jaded or cynical or hateful or just plain weary that we can't open ourselves to the witnessing of history.

A sizeable share of women won't vote for Clinton, but the historic nature of her candidacy should not be underestimated. Every campaign needs a narrative, and Clinton's has a built-in emotional component. As she remarked Tuesday night, 'I really wish my mother could be here... the Democratic party's nominee."

shall I say this charitably... wretched.

For 10 long days, the Republican nominee had splashed in the sewer, damning a federal judge for his Mexican heritage and insisting the judge is unfit to handle a massive case in which Trump is being sued for fraud. The backlash from his own party reached a crescendo Tuesday when Paul Ryan said Trump's attacks were the nothingburgers? "textbook definition" of racism.

Temporarily chastised, Trump surfaced in presidential mode, or at least some facsimile thereof. After ridiculing Clinton for using a Teleprompter, Trump duly read from one (except for the moment when he ad-libbed a toilet joke). The aim was Dick Polman is the national political columnist to demonstrate that he's capable of talking for 30 straight minutes without saying anything racist, sexist, or faintly fascist, and, yes, he cleared that low hurdle. His sole remark about blacks dripped with paternalistic condescension: "We are going to take care of our African Americans.

A narcissistic demagogue who knows nothing about policy is simply who he is. Lots of Republicans and conservatives realize that. Which is why Bill Kristol calls Trump "a roaring jackass" and conservative radio host Hugh Hewitt dismissed Trump's speech by saying, "The plane is still heading toward the mountain."

Or, as nonpartisan analyst Larry Sabato I wish she could see her daughter become said, "This year's GOP is living with both its feet planted on banana peels."

By contrast, Trump's optics were... how The next opportunity for slippage may come early next week, when Trump is promising to deliver a speech about the Clintons - in his words, "all of the things that have taken place with the Clintons." BERNIE'S ARMY OF FREELOADERS

It's time for Bernie Sanders to step down.

His young supporters will be disappointed for the rest of their lives, but it's time for Bernie to join the cast of "Saturday Night Live.

He fought hard and if nothing else he showed the America people how to deliver a speech full of stale socialist ideas with a lot of honesty and pizzazz.

Hillary and Trump are vying to get Bernie's enthusiastic army to enlist on their side.

Trump is hallucinating. Hillary is only dreaming.

When Bernie's army is disbanded, whether it's tomorrow or after the convention, they're not going to change uniforms and join Hillary, Trump or anyone else – unless Jon Stewart decides to run. They're going back to their dorms and parents' basements to play video games or plan their summer vacation in Europe. Most of them signed up for Bernie's children's crusade not because they wanted to put an old socialist in the White House, but because he promised them free Stuff like a free college education and free healthcare and free dry-cleaning

Now that their dream of free grad school is gone, they're no longer interested in politics. Most of Bernie's college kids look to me like they don't understand that there's this concept people used to call "work."

They're in that "Gimme, gimme, gimme" mode — the belief that because you breathe you deserve to be given free stuff that your parents or taxpayers have

It's much worse today, but that attitude of entitlement was just getting started back in the 1960s. I admit as a college dropout I even tried to take advantage of it – until my "old-fashioned" parents set me straight. As I write in my new book, "Lessons My Father Taught Me," after I quit the

"No you're not," they said.

"We paid your bills while you were in college, but you dropped out. Now it's your turn. You need to find a place to live. Get a job. The gravy train is over." I moved in with some friends and got a job on a loading dock, thanks to my sister Maureen. I worked at Asbury Transportation Co. from 5 at night to 1:30 in the morning loading oil well freight onto trucks that went to the fields in Bakersfield.

That's exactly where I was the night my father won the election for Governor of California in 1966.

My parents taught me if you want to go anywhere in life, you're going to need a strong work ethic to get you there. My father was tough, but my mother Jane made him look like Mister Rogers.

When I started my radio talk-show career in the early 1990s, I was driving 262 miles a day roundtrip from L.A. to San Diego. I was not getting paid because we were trying to start a national show. I had two kids and a wife and not enough money.

I called my mother and whined, "Can you help me out?" "I have a suggestion for you," she said before she hung up on me.

"Shut up and keep driving. Nobody died and said you didn't have to pay your dues. You have to pay them like everyone else. That way when you're a success you'll appreciate it. If it's given to you for free, you'll never learn to appreciate it.

So shut up and keep driving." I shut up and keep driving. I finally got the lesson about hard work and that show lasted from 1992 to 2009, when I walked away from talk radio.

It's too bad the kids in college today - Bernie's kids - don't have parents as tough — and smart — as I did.

NOTICE OF AMENDED PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF GUNTER ANTON SCHREINER

Case No. BP167463

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of GUNT-ER ANTON SCHREINER

AN AMENDED PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Leon Kirakosian in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGE-

THE AMENDED PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Leon Kirakosian be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE AMENDED PETITION requests the decedent's will and codi-cils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE AMENDED PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, how-ever, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the amended petition will be held on July 8, 2016 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 67 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court

Applicant: Properties in the City of Sierra Madre, County of Los Angeles, State of California Project Location:

The City of Sierra Madre gives notice, pursuant to State of California law, that the City Council will conduct a public hearing to consider recommending adoption of Ordinance No. 1377, amending Chapter 17.28 ("R-3 Multiple Family Residential Zone") including Section 17.28.060 ("Density"). The purpose of Municipal Code Text Amendment (MCTA-16-02) is to allow densities of approximately thirteen (13) units per acre and establish a maximum allowable floor area. The proposed ordinance is amended to read as follows:

Floor Area Ratio (gross dwelling/lot area).

1. On lots with a gross lot area of less than 10,000 square feet or street frontage of less than 50 feet, the floor area of all above-ground buildings and structures (including garages and other non-habitable areas, but excluding basements and other fully subterranean areas) shall be limited to 55% of the gross lot area.;

2. On lots with a gross lot area of 10,000 square feet or greater and with a street frontage of 50 feet or greater, the floor area of all above-ground building and structures (including garages and other non-habitable areas, but excluding basements and other fully subterranean areas) shall be 5,500 square feet plus 70 percent of gross lot area in excess of 10,000 square feet.

At the meeting on June 2, 2016, the Planning Commission conducted a public hearing and recommended to the City Council adoption of MCTA 16-02 and Ordinance No. 1377.

DATE AND TIME OF HEARING

City of Sierra Madre City Council meeting Thursday, June 28, 2016 (Hearing begins at 6:30 p.m.) PLACE OF HEARING

City of Sierra Madre City Council Chambers 232 W. Sierra Madre Blvd.

All interested persons may attend this meeting and the Planning Commission will hear them with respect thereto.

ENVIRONMENTAL DETERMINATION: The project qualifies for an exemption from the California Environmental Quality Act review pursuant to Title 14, Section 15061(b)(3) of the California Code of Regulations as it can be seen with certainty that there is no possibility the adoption of this Ordinance may have a significant effect on the environment, because it will impose greater limitations on development in the City thereby serving to reduce potential significant adverse environmental impacts.

APPEAL: The decision of the Planning Commission is subject to a 10-day appeal period to the City Council. If in the future anyone wishes to challenge the decision of the Planning Commission in court, one may be limited to raising the issues that were raised or presented in written correspondence delivered to the Planning Commission at, or before, the scheduled public hearing. For further information on this subject, please contact the Development Services Department at (626) 355-7138.
