REMEMBRANCES

SNOOKY (GEORGINA) GREGOR

Submitted by Mary Carney, Sierra Madre Women's Club

egan her next Adventure June 15, 2016 Snooky joined SMWC in 1990 and immediately became part of the "let nothing stand in our way" group of 12 - 15 widows who wanted to enjoy life to the fullest. They became known as the "Golden Girls" and for 23 years they enthusiastically took part in everything the club and our City had to offer, and then some. They enjoyed dressing up - and hats were always worn at Fashion Shows. Snooky was one of the quiet supporters of the activists, always with two hands helping out - in the Thrift Shop, setting up food for teas (13+ years) and other events and always one of the lunch ticket sales crew, as well as a lunch Reservations Caller. She anchored seat #1 at SMWC's "table" at the Rose Float's semi-annual Legendary Bingos; ditto for the Fireman's Breakfast. She helped decorate and set up curb-side chairs for the Pre-Parade Open House, was part of the SMWC Concert in the Parks on Summer evenings and helped dip ice cream for the sodas the years we had a booth there. A Life member, she was also a stalwart at the Wistaria Festival's Info Booth at Memorial Park, and a solid anchor for the Oranges Table at the Mt. Wilson Trail Race. Her thoughtfulness, support and humor have been missed at our meetings, and now will be missed all the time.

Her daughter, Marilyn Simcox, will let us know about future plans; all Snooky's family is out-of-town / state, so it may be a while. Cards may still be sent to The Family of Snooky Gregor, 195 San Gabriel Court, Sierra Madre, CA 91024

WATER PENALTIES SET TO INCREASE

This year's El Niño rains have had a limited impact on our part of the state. Water conservation remains as critical as ever as California enters into its fifth year of drought. Sierra Madre City Council approved a measure in May that would increase the penalty rate assessed on excess water use. The City of Sierra Madre would like to thank its water-wise

The City of Sierra Madre would like to thank its water-wise customers for doing their part to make every drop count. The latest water billing numbers for May show 75% of Sierra Madre customers met, or outperformed, their water conservation targets. The remaining 25% of customers are of increasing concern for the City, as many of the customers who exceeded their water use target in the month have a repeat history of doing so.

The City of Sierra Madre will introduce a new water penalty rate beginning on July 1, 2016. The rate will apply to each billing unit used in excess of a customer's conservation target. The current penalty rate is $5.04/unit. The new rate will increase to $10.72, or two times the Tier 4 rate.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"Friends are quiet angels who lift us to our feet when have trouble remembering how to fly." "Parents start you off in life, but friends get you through it."

August 7th will be National Friendship Day, but somewhere right around now is National Friendship Week. As this week is going to be way too hot for much Walking Sierra Madre, I thought, How about something pleasant to read and think about. Former Sierra Madre resident Dick Witter, who used to be my next door neighbor and made the best Huevos Rancheros and Margaritas we've ever tasted, and who had the bad taste to move to Big Bear, sent me piece written by Andy Rooney. As you'll recall, Andy Rooney, who is now in heaven, was an award-winning journalist and part of CBS' Sunday Night 60 Minutes program for many years. Just about everything Andy Rooney had to say was worth hearing, and remembering, but this piece will make you smile and maybe think a little...

I've learned....

That the best classroom in the world is at the feet of an elderly person. I've learned....

That when you're in love, it shows. I've learned

That just one person saying to me, 'You've made my day!' makes my day.

I've learned.... That having a child fall asleep in your arms is one of the most peaceful feelings in the world.

I've learned.... That being kind is more important than being right.

I've learned.... That you should never say no to a gift from a child.

I've learned.... That I can always pray for someone when I don't have the strength to help him in any other way. I've learned.... That no matter how serious your life requires you to be, everyone needs a friend to act goofy with.

I've learned.... That sometimes all a person needs is a hand to hold and a heart to understand.

I've learned.... That simple walks with my father around the block on summer nights when I was a child did wonders for me as an adult.

I've learned.... That life is like a roll of toilet paper, the closer it gets to the end, the faster it goes. I've learned....

That money doesn't buy class.

I've learned.... That it's those small daily happenings that make life so spectacular. I've learned... That under everyone's hard shell is someone who wants to be appreciated and loved.

That to ignore the facts does not change the facts. I've learned....

That when you plan to get even with someone, you are only letting that person continue to hurt you. I've learned...

That love, not time, heals all wounds. I've learned.... That the easiest way for me to grow as a person is to myself with people smarter than I am.

I've learned....

That everyone you meet deserves to be greeted with a

I've learned....

That no one is perfect until you fall in love with them. I've learned...

That life is tough, but I'm tougher.

I've learned....

That opportunities are never lost; someone will take the ones you miss.

I've learned.... That when you harbor bitterness, happiness will dock elsewhere.

I've learned... That I wish I could have told my Mom that I love her one more time before she passed away.

I've learned... That one should keep his words both soft and tender, tomorrow he may have to eat them.

I've learned.... That a smile is an inexpensive way to improve your

I've learned....

I've learned... That when your newly born grandchild holds your little finger in his little fist, you're hooked for life.

That everyone wants to live on top of the mountain, but all the happiness and growth occurs while you're climbing it.

ALISON KALMUS THEATER (AKT) ACADEMY SUMMER WORKSHOPS BEGIN JULY 11

For the first time in eight years, Alison Kalmus Theater (AKT) Academy will be conducting summer workshops young actors at Sierra Madre Playhouse. Her workshops had previously been conducted at the Playhouse from 2000 to 2008.

This year, sessions will take place from July 11- July 22; July 25-August 5; and August 8- August 19.

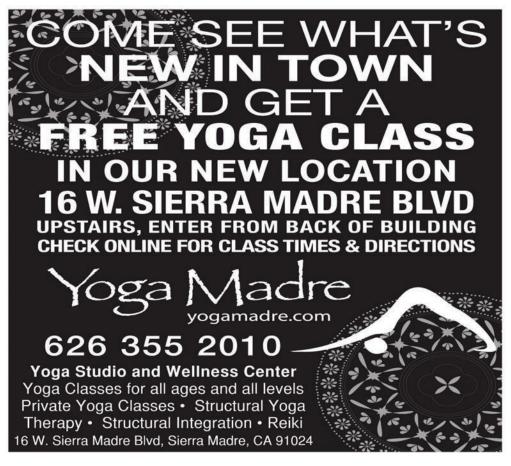

Morning workshops will be for children in elementary school grades. The workshop is called Mr. Shakespeare's Poetry Garden and runs from 9 a.m. to Noon. What? Shakespeare for young children? Ms. Kalmus explains: "Think about it. Shakespeare's language is beautiful and quite musical. And young children respond to it with enthusiasm. They like the meter, and rhyme. And they love learning new words. At last count, Mr. Shakespeare was credited with inventing over 2,000 new words for the English Language. Any six or seven year old child who can recite a sonnet or a soliloquy from Shakespeare and understand it while reciting is better prepared to excel in the language arts of reading and writing."

Activities include making Shakespeare FUN through rehearsal, performance, crafts and study of Shakespeare's world. The workshop culminates in a Friends And Family presentation. Afternoon workshops, for older youngsters and teens, will focus on The Magic of Musical Theatre. This one runs from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Why musicals? Ms. Kalmus responds, "Musical theater is where the theater thrives today. It's usually a child's first theater attendance experience - what they know and share with each other, family and school, and it's what many of them want to try It's especially important for young singers to develop sound and safe vocal techniques. There is a real danger that children listening favorite recording artists will attempt to sing along, mimicking the adult singer without realizing they could damage their voices permanently. I have sadly witnessed the carelessness and ignorance with which young voices are dangerously pushed."

This workshop includes scene, song and movement study through interpretation of lyric, character analysis.

PARKWAY GRILL

I decided to revisit one of the most popular and well-respected restaurants in Pasadena. The Parkway Grill has been awardededc o n g r a g u l a t e d -praised for over twenty-five years. For good reason is it has proven to be very consistent, which has always been a formula for success.

Would Friday's lunch pass the Peter Dills' test? with Colors. Why is The Parkway Grill so owners Gregg and Bob Smith will settle for nothing you a "homer"

Sure, flying successful, I believe review? Nope!!! Paid for my own meal. Both Gregg and Bob were present at the restaurant, a good sign.

.....Seems that I have been here a hundred times, I decided to sit in the bar for lunch I wanted to keep on eye on CNBC in hopes that my stock my actually break even. My server/bartender was Kevin and he gleefully handed me lunch menu. After he rattled off a few weekly specials, I opted to stick with the regular lunch menu. I started with Parkway's Caesar salad ($13), ahhh perfect, Caesar Cardina would be very proud!!! The Romaine was prefect and the croutons were mixed correctly with the dressing. We are off to a very good start. Second up, crab cakes ($19) while not the same as I remember from my days living in Maryland, I good choice nevertheless. My final choice the main course was the Roasted Mary's chicken ($29), cooked perfectly and was a big enough portion to share with my table (bar) mates. All in all two thumbs way up!!! Parkway Grill always is a great choice and today's lunch was no different. Dessert? Forget about it! I'm stuffed.

RESEARCH BOLSTERS CASE FOR A SUBSURFACE OCEAN—AND A HABITAT FOR LIFE—ON PLUTO

When NASA's New Horizons spacecraft buzzed evolution model with new data and infer that by Pluto last year, it revealed tantalizing clues that the dwarf planet might have—or had at one time—a liquid ocean sloshing around under its icy crust. According to a new analysis led by Brown University, such an ocean likely still exists today.

The study, which used a thermal evolution model for Pluto updated with data from New Horizons, found that if Pluto's ocean had frozen into oblivion millions or billions of years ago, it would have caused the entire planet to shrink. But there are no signs of a global contraction to be found on Pluto's surface. On the contrary, New Horizons showed signs that Pluto has been expanding.

Thanks to the incredible data returned by New Horizons, we were able to observe tectonic features on Pluto's surface, update our thermal Pluto most likely has a subsurface ocean today," said Noah Hammond, a graduate student in Brown's Department of Earth, Environmental and Planetary Sciences, and the study's lead author.

The pictures New Horizons sent back from its close encounter with the Kuiper Belt's most famous denizen showed that Pluto was much more than a simple snowball in space. It has an exotic surface made from different types of ices—water, nitrogen, and methane. It has mountains hundreds of meters high and a vast heart-shaped plain. It also has giant tectonic features—sinuous faults hundreds of kilometers long as deep as 4 kilometers. It was those tectonic features that got scientists thinking that a subsurface ocean was a real possibility for extensional tectonic features, which indicate that quickly convert from the normal ice we all know Pluto underwent a period of global expansion," Hammond said. "A subsurface ocean that was slowly freezing over would cause this kind of expansion."

Scientists think that there may have been enough heat-producing radioactive elements within Pluto's rocky core to melt part of the planet's ice shell. Over time in the frigid Kuiper belt, that melted portion would eventually start to refreeze. Ice is less dense than water, so when it freezes, it expands. If Pluto had on ocean that was frozen or in the process of freezing, extensional tectonics on the surface would result, and that's what New Horizons saw.

The thermal evolution model run by Hammond and his colleagues showed that because of the low temperatures and high pressure within Pluto, "What New Horizons showed was that there are an ocean that had completely frozen over would MtnViewsNews.com.

to a different phase called ice II. Ice II has a more compact crystalline structure than standard ice, so an ocean frozen to ice II would occupy a smaller volume and lead to a global contraction on Pluto, rather than an expansion.

Taken together, the new model bolsters the case for a liquid ocean environment—which could even be a habitat for living creatures—in the furthest reaches of the solar system.

"That's amazing to me," Hammond said. "The possibility that you could have vast liquid water ocean habitats so far from the Sun on Pluto—and that the same could also be possible on other Kuiper belt objects as well—is absolutely incredible."

Even 50 years ago, temporary blackouts were not all that disruptive to everyday life. Indeed, to children, they were exciting times when you got to use lanterns and candles at night. Phones still worked, since most phones were simple rotary style.

In my household, we still had hand-cranked coffee grinders, wheat sifters, mixers (for batter), and can-openers. We had very few electric food processing devices, and we got by just fine. We had no electric yard tools then, all manual rakes, brooms, clippers, edgers, lawn-mowers. None of the insane blowers and weed-whackers. All our tools were manual too: hammers, saws, pliers, levels, etc.

Today, you can get an electric model of just about anything, and computer chips are everywhere. The up-and-coming generation knows nothing else, which is perhaps one of our greatest dangers.

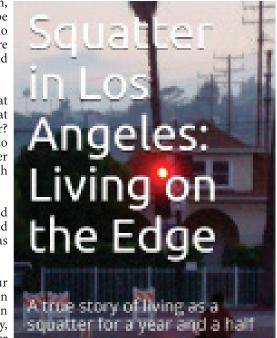

Most folks, even if they grew up in the city, understands that there should be a backup for when the power goes out. But too many young folks know no other way of life but the all-electric driven lifestyle, controlled and powered by the all-powerful, all-seeing I-God (oops, meant I-pod), with all of its minions through it's spider-like Web. There is even the chief high priest of this new world, ready and waiting to answer your every question: Rev. Google!

If the grid goes down, for whatever reason, the world will be a very different place, maybe temporarily, maybe long-term. There really no way to predict what would happen, but there are various ways to prepare ourselves, mentally and physically.

Just walk through your home and look at everything that is controlled by electricity. What would your day be like if there was no power? Some things would be hard, or impossible, to replace without electricity. But many other electrical functions could easily be handled with manual tools, or "old-fashioned" technology.

Lights are easy. My mother always had a good supply of candles, lanterns, and flashlights, and whenever there was a blackout, the house was

You should never be unable to process your meals if the power goes out. Go to any kitchen supply shop and make sure you have manual can openers, juicers, coffee grinders, egg beaters (hey, a fork works fine!), grinders, slicers, etc. Whatever it is you do in your kitchen, you should be able to do without power.

A refrigerator won't work without electricity, so unless you have some solar panels on your roof, you'll want to store plenty of non-refrigerated food. This means pickled, dried, and canned. This is also one of the big pluses in having a backyard and neighborhood garden, as well as backyard chickens. Your food is fresh, and local, and not dependent on transportation systems.

Home heating and cooling is a big topic, and if all houses were built with thicker, more insulated walls, and white heat-reflecting roofs, and big overhangs, etc., much of the cost of heating and cooling would be unnecessary. I spent considerable time discussing this topic in my "Extreme Simplicity" and "Self-Sufficient Home" books, both of which can be reasonably obtained on Amazon.

I spent a year and a half back in the late '70s as a squatter, and practiced a lot of the ecologicalliving methods that are becoming very popular today. We recycled everything, cooked on a wood stove, grew a lot of our food, recycled all household water, and even used (for a part of the time) a compost toilet. Had the grid gone done during that time, it would have been just an inconvenience. I wrote a book about that experience, called "Squatter in Los Angeles," which is available as a Kindle book, or download from the Store at www.Schoolofself-Reliance.com.

Perhaps the biggest challenge for most people in a grid-down world will be that the infrastructure around them will not work, or will change rapidly into something that does work. There will be barter, and things will get very localized. How could you ever prepare for such an eventuality? You should learn pioneer and survival skills, and get to know any of the various groups who practice one or more of the many survival skills. Find them on-line, or at Meetup. And there is no shortage of Youtube videos and books to help you along this learning path.

NOT SMART ENOUGH TO BE AN IDIOT

Throughout my life, I have attempted to utilize my "idiot slice" to my own advantage. So far I have had good progress on this aspect of my life, just ask the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. With a great deal of affection she will often say, "You are one of the best idiots I have ever known."

Isn't love a wonderful thing?

Although I own up to my "idiot slice" many people for some reason, are not able to do that. After all, if everybody has a slice of idiocy, then what's the problem?

This came to me recently when a small incident happened. I do not quite remember what brought this incident to be, it could be anything these days, but the outcome is what got me.

This guy looked at me with the meanest look, shook his fist at me and said, "Are you an idiot or something?"

Normally I take these things as they come and just move on with my life. But for some reason that "idiot slice" in me kicked into high gear. And I responded, "Which one do you think I

He blinked and said, "Wh-utt?"

So I said, "Do you think I'm an 'idiot' or a 'something'?'

"After all," I continued, "there is a vast difference between an 'idiot' and a 'something.' What am I?'

That was last week some time and I think he is still trying to figure out what in the world I was talking about. Some people just aren't smart enough to be a plain old idiot.

I believe there is a little bit of intelligence in every idiot. After all, most idiots are smart enough to get a driver's license. And boy, do they Just yesterday, I was trying to drive across town and I encountered so many idiots driving that I was tempted to run some of them over. Don't those idiot drivers make you furious? I know a few people who are simply nuts, but that is a different story altogether. Being an idiot takes a lot of hard work and practice. Not everybody is smart enough to be an idiot.

I thought was an idiot but he turned out not smart enough to be an idiot. I was driving on at 1-866-552-2543 or e-mail jamessnyder2@att. my side of the road and going the speed limit. He was behind me and wanted to go faster than com.

somewhere hiding inside them. The trick is not you, but I was in front of him and he couldn't get around me.

He honked his horn, hoping, I suppose, that I I was more of an idiot, so I ignored him. One good thing about being an idiot is that you can ignore people who do not quite come up to the status of being an idiot themselves.

Finally, we got to a place where he could pass me. I just assumed he would pass and that would be the last I would see of him. When he got beside me, he began yelling and screaming and I could not understand anything he was saying.

I did figure out that he must have been a very religious man because he was pointing me to heaven. I guess he was encouraging me to go to heaven. I smiled and shook my head, which only made him a little angrier, for some reason. I did notice though, that the finger he was using to point to heaven was not the finger I would have used. I guess it's a matter of confusion. This guy was not smart enough to be an idiot to know which finger you use to point a person to

One thing I have discovered about idiots is they are not confined to race, gender or age. You can find idiots anywhere there are people still breathing. An idiot is an equal opportunity

Being an idiot does have its advantages. For example, when my wife sends me to the store to buy some items for the house and I come back with everything but what's on the list I can say, "I just must be an idiot." And, do not let this get back to her, it always works.

If you know who you are and what you are, you can begin using that information to your advantage. If you know you are an idiot then you can bank on that for the rest of your life.

The difference between an idiot and a fool is simply that an idiot is a little short of knowledge. Solomon understood this when he wrote, "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge: but fools despise wisdom and instruction" (Proverbs 1:7). And, "The way of a fool is right in his own eyes: but he that hearkeneth unto counsel is wise" (Proverbs 12:15).

I suppose I can't help being an idiot, but I certainly don't have to be a fool as Solomon at the ripe ole age of 102! It was a bittersweet time with family and friends that I hadn't seen in many years, and we all shared our memories of times we had with Evelyn who was quite a feisty lady and stayed amazingly healthy up to soon before her passing.

time off for a getaway, but that's typically okay with me as I haven't really had much desire to travel in recent years. However, now that I've had a taste of what it feels like to be somewhere other than in Sierra Madre, I am thinking perhaps it might not be a bad idea to try and plan a quick trip along the coast for a fresh perspective, this summer.

While thinking of this over the weekend, I decided to look into some desirable dogfriendly coastal destinations where my little four-footed girl Molly would be just as welcome as we would be. I got lucky on my first Google search when I found a website with a blog page belonging to a couple who likes to share their stories about life with their two dogs, Sierra caught my eye, as I had rover-friendly road trips in mind. The title is "Doggie Vacation Up the California Coast". It includes snap shots of their trip with creative captions and excellent descriptions of the vacation destinations they visited along the way. I suppose it goes without saying that each of their stop spots were places that openly invite the family dog to tag along and enjoy the fun with their humans.

So with my mind gathering momentum for wanderlust, I began to think some of my readers may also have a desire to partake in some easy going getaway time during the hot months of summer. And so it is that I offer up this list of dog-friendly haunts requiring only a relatively short road trip with 'Rover' in tow. to board a plane. Keep it simple, relax and

SIGNING UP FOR you'll meet at this super dog friendly hotel MEDICARE: IMPORTANT

People who are nearing the age of 65 should begin making plans for the transition from private health care to Medicare. It is not a simple process or one that happens automatically. You have to initiate the enrollment process at a specific time or suffer a monetary penalty.

It is important to understand that applying for Social Security benefits and enrolling in surroundings. It also boasts a very interesting Medicare are two totally different things. Don't confuse your eligible age for Social Security with happiness, the eligible age for Medicare. For Medicare, it is 65; there are no variations based on your date of

Can I Sign Up Whenever I Want?

If you are turning 65 and are not covered under a health insurance plan through your employer or your spouse's, you must enroll in Medicare during an initial enrollment period (IEP) that month span beginning and ending on either side of your 65th birthday. The fourth month of the period is the month in which you turn 65. That is how you establish your window of opportunity.

you have a special enrollment period (SEP). The GarlettLaw.com for more information.

SEP covers any time before the employment ends, and for eight months thereafter. A word of caution here: employers with less than 20 workers may require employees turning 65 to enroll in Medicare and have the employer plan serve only as a backup insurer.

What If I Missed The Deadline?

If you failed to enroll during your initial or special period, you must enroll in a general enrollment period (GEP) which is in effect from January 1 to March 31 of each year. In such a case, you will be charged a penalty of 10 percent of the premiums for each full 12-month period after the end of your IEP and the beginning of the

The good news for some who enroll during a GEP is that they may not have to pay any premiums for Medicare Part A coverage, so there is no penalty to be assessed. If you have contributed Medicare tax while employed for 40 quarters (10 years), you have enough credit to get Part A coverage for free. Part A covers hospital and skilled nursing facility charges. Part B, which covers doctor's services, outpatient services and medical equipment, always comes with a premium, and an enrollment penalty will be assessed as long as you are in the plan.

While the process can be complicated, these are some of the more important facts people need to know about Medicare enrollment. There are still other factors that may apply to individuals, especially anyone who is disabled and receiving Medicare benefits prior to age 65. As such, contacting the Social Security Administration (or if you need more help, contacting us) well before your 65th birthday is the smart thing to

On the Marquee: Notes from the Sierra Madre Playhouse

OFF THE PAGE – THE NEW READING SERIES

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano We have quietly started a new initiative at the Playhouse which is proving very popular. Our new FREE reading series - Off the Page - is a chance for me to hear plays out-loud and in front of an audience to help me judge the merits of including the play in an upcoming season. The series is being coordinated by DJ Harner. You may remember DJ as Rufus' mother and General Cutter in our production of Battledrum. She is a terrific actress (we met doing Romeo & Juliet together – we were the Capulets) and an incredibly organized person. We are now ready to go prime-time with this Series. We've gotten wonderful directors and lined up terrific performers for the series through the end of the year. The readings generally take place at 7pm on the last Monday night of the month (except when that falls on a change-over from one show to the next.) Though the series is free - donations will be gladly accepted to defray costs. I hope you will attend these shows, which always include a discussion of the play afterwards. Come help me choose plays for the Playhouse.

July 25 (Monday @ 7pm) – Eleemosynary by Lee Blessing. Directed by Christian Lebano and starring Katherine James (Amanda in Glass Menagerie), Deb Snyder, and Cristina Gerla (Olive in Spelling Bee). This is a lovely play about family, love, and words!

August 29 (Monday @ 7pm) – Foxfire by Hume Cronyn and Susan Cooper. Directed by Katherine Cortez (who was in the show on Broadway with Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy). A lovely play about our connections to our family, our past, and the land we were born on.

September 26 (Monday @ 7pm) - The Quality of Life by Jane Anderson. Directed by Gary Reed and starring DJ Harner. It explores a myriad of ethical, religious, and moral beliefs, as well as personal rights issues concerning life and death in this completely October 17 (Monday @ 7pm) – From the Mississippi Delta by Dr. Endesha Mae Hollander. Directed by Sherrie Lofton (6 Rms Riv Vu at SMP). A beautiful play following one woman's rise from poverty and oppression to liberation and a doctorate.

November 28 (Monday @ 7pm) - The Immigrant or call Mary at 626.355.4318 to purchase tickets.

by Mark Harelik, Directed by Christopher Cappiello (Sidney in Deathtrap). The story of a young Russianlewish immigrant who immigrates to Texas in 1909. A lovely, touching and very funny play.

Don't those look great. Those plays alone would make for a great season. I hope we'll see you at all of

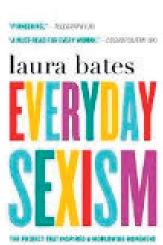

The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee is going to be wonderfully. It is being directed by Robert Marra who did such a lovely job last year with Always...Patsy Cline. This show is not recommended for kids under the age of 16 because of language and one song. Tickets are on sale now and are selling well

It began life as a website where people could share their experiences of daily, normalized sexism, from street harassment to workplace discrimination to sexual assault and rape. The Project became a viral sensation, attracting international press attention from The New York Times to French Glamour, Grazia South Africa, to the Times of India and support from celebrities such as Rose McGowan, Amanda Palmer, Mara Wilson, Ashley Judd, James Corden, Simon Pegg, and many others. The project has now collected over 100,000 testimonies from people around the world and launched new branches in 25 countries worldwide. The project has been credited with helping to spark a new wave of feminism.

Control: Novel by Dexter Palmer The acclaimed author of The Dream of Perpetual Motion returns with a compelling novel about the effects of science and technology on our friendships, our love lives, and our sense of self. Rebecca Wright has reclaimed her life, finding her way out of her grief and depression following a personal tragedy years ago. She spends her days working in customer support for the internet dating site where she first met her husband. But she has a strange, persistent sense that everything around her is somewhat offkilter: she constantly feels as if she has walked into a room and forgotten what she intended to do there; on TV, the President seems to be the wrong person in the wrong place; her dreams are full of disquiet. Meanwhile, her husband's decade-long dedication to his invention, the causality violation device (which he would greatly prefer you not call a "time machine") has effectively stalled his career and made him a laughingstock in the physics community. But he may be closer to success than either of them knows or can imagine.Version possibly Control is about a possible near future, but it's also about the way we live now. It's about smart phones and self-driving cars and what we believe about the people we meet on the Internet. It's about a couple, Rebecca and Philip, who have experienced a tragedy, and about how they help—and fail to help—each other through it. Emotionally powerful and stunningly visionary, Version Control will alter the way you see your future and your present.

Stories of Your Life and Others by Ted Chiang Soon to be a major motion picture starring Amy Adams. Stories of Your Life and Others delivers dual delights of the very, very strange and the heartbreakingly familiar, often presenting characters who must confront sudden change—the inevitable rise of automatons or the appearance of aliens-with some sense of normalcy. With sharp intelligence and humor, Chiang examines what it means to be alive in a world marked by uncertainty, but also by beauty and wonder. An award-winning collection from one of today's most lauded writers, Stories of Your Life and Others is a contemporary classic.

IS BREXIT A HARBINGER OF TRUMPISM? With apologies to financial institutions start pulling out of the climactic song London.

the Farage and his "Leave" campaign self-destructive caught fire with his repeated claim that Brits who voted immigration has made traditional Britain "unrecognizable," and that open borders yesterday to exit European with the EU have turned the "white working class" into "an underclass." (Who Union. Cue the does that sound like?)

> He also sold the voters snake oil, promising that if Britain left the EU, it would free up lots of extra money for the national health program - in American dollars, roughly $500 million a week. But when asked on TV whether he can guarantee that promise, Farage admitted, "No I can't...It was one of the mistakes I think the Leave campaign made."

Yep, that pledge was just pap for the saps, and they bought it.

Into the aftermath of the "Brexit" walks Trump, seeking to take political advantage. (Two weeks ago he had no idea what Brexit was - "Huh?" he asked as he struggled to talk about it) In Scotland Friday morning, after praising the greatness of his golf course, right down to the plumbing, Trump said of the Brits:

"They have declared their independence from the European Union and have voted to reassert control over their own politics, borders and economy. Come November, the American people will have the chance to re-declare their independence. Americans will have a chance to vote for trade, immigration and foreign policies that put our citizens first. They will have the chance to reject today's rule by the global elite, and to embrace real change that delivers a government of, by and for the people. I hope America is watching, it will soon be time to believe in America

There it was, his autumn campaign pitch. To follow our misguided British cousins into the abyss, all we need do is to stay home on election day, to cede the future to the forces of Trumpism.

At the end of "Les Miserables," the people sang "There is a life about to start when tomorrow comes." It's coming soon. How do we want to live it?

The left considers all guns the reprehensible tool of warriors, criminals and primitives, while in most of red state America, the definition of gun control is using two hands and hitting the target.

Then some addled-brained, flippounit actually uses those techniques to take out a bunch of innocent people, and the blowback starts with a debate about how big our guns should be, further restrictions on who can purchase them and whether we need to know the identity and shoe size of the purchasers.

CONGRESS FAILED ON GUNS TWICE IN ONE WEEK

that you see ISIS has told its homegrown followers to C o n g r e s s take advantage of our porous gun laws to completely abdicate responsibility to govern twice in one week.

But, as has so often been remarked this year, we're living in unusual times.

Given the opportunity to recover its colossal gun control fumble, the Republican-led U.S. Senate bobbled the ball yet again on Thursday with a vote on a compromise "no fly/no buy" bill sponsored by Sen. Susan Collins (R-Maine).

Yes, 52 senators managed to vote in favor of Collins' proposal, which was enough to allow further consideration of the proposal. But the bill, which would ban people on terrorism watch lists from buying guns, ended up eight critical votes shy of the 60-vote threshold needed for passage. And if you don't think the bar was set purposefully high - you're fooling yourself.

"It's extremely frustrating there was an opportunity to get things accomplished here," U.S Sen. Pat Toomey (R-Pa.), one of the few sane GOP voices on gun control said this week.

Frustrating is one word for it. Another one that rushes to mind is "ridiculous." And while we're at it, "incompetent" also works.

That the Senate has been unable to get its act together to pass a bill that keeps suspected terrorists from buying guns even as it provides due process for people that end up government watch lists, is one of the great head-scratchers of our time.

That it happened in the wake of a dramatic occupation of the U.S. House floor by Democrats, led by U.S. Rep. John Lewis of Georgia, a civil rights icon, aimed at forcing votes on gun-control, makes it all the more frustrating.

And, yes, the murderous loon who mowed down 49 people at the Pulse nightclub in Orlando would not have been stopped by such a terror-ban. He was investigated and the FBI passed on him.

But the next terrorism-inspired madman (or woman) who might decide to follow his lead could well be stopped with such It requires backbone.

That's not hard to decipher. The Orlando shooter, you'll recall, legally purchased the semi-automatic rifle he used in his deadly spree.

It's not often It's also already well-documented that assemble their own, personal arsenals. And when even the NRA thinks that (with proper due-process protections) that it's a good idea, that's saying something.

Because they hate everything.

"My starting point is two, simple ideas: If a person is so dangerous that we will not allow them to board a plane ... they should not be able to walk into a gun store and buy a firearm," Toomey said.

Toomey knows first-hand how tough it is to get a gun-control bill through the Senate.

In 2013, in response to the Sandy Hook shootings, he joined with Sen. Joe Manchin, D-W.Va., Toomey to offer an ultimately unsuccessful mandatory background check bill.

During the Senate's gun-control votes this week, Manchin tried, and failed, to offer a similar measure.

Toomey, himself, took a run at a middleground bill that imposed a "no fly/no buy" ban, but also provided for an annual review of government watch lists. It failed to garner any support and wasn't among the four proposals the Senate rejected last Toomey's currently locked in the political fight of his life with Democrat Katie McGinty, a former senior aide to Pennsylvania's Democratic governor, Tom Wolf. His is one of five seats Democrats need to flip to retake the Senate in the fall.

She and her surrogates, including former Pennsylvania Gov. Ed Rendell, hammered Toomey for playing politics. But as a candidate, McGinty has it easy. She has no responsibility to govern. That makes posturing easy. But it also accomplishes nothing.

Toomey, meanwhile, wants to work to improve the Collins bill. Whether that's enough to actually flip the Republican no votes on Collins' bill is unclear.

"There are a lot of Republicans who believe we need to address this gap in our security," Toomey said.

But as the past couple of weeks have demonstrated, it's a long walk from belief to putting those beliefs into action. That requires something even tougher to find than 60 votes.

MAKING SENSE by Michael Reagan

HILLARY'S EXPENSIVE JACKET

Hillary Clinton may have been better off wearing the Emperor's New Clothes during her victory speech after the New York primary, rather than what she chose to wear and her aides managed to overlook.

Clinton, who has decried income "inequality" throughout the nation during her campaign, stood before the assembled ---- and carefully screened ---- crowd wearing a $12,495 Giorgio Armani jacket.

What she paid for the coat ---- assuming it wasn't a party favor from her Goldman Sachs speech ---- is just a bit less than the amount the average first time home buyer is required to post as a down payment for his dream home, or as The Washington Free Beacon calculates, "roughly 40 percent of what the average American worker makes in a year."

She's fortunate the price tag wasn't dangling from her outfit like that of Minnie Pearl.

This is beyond tone deaf. It's a combination of obliviousness and hypocrisy on a truly Clintonian scale.

If Hillary was sashaying down the runway at a Paris fashion show, there might be a justification for wearing a jacket that cost 12K, assuming she gave it back after the show. But to own this One Percent Wear is something else entirely. During her speech Hillary proclaimed, "In this campaign, we are setting bold progressive goals backed up by real plans that will improve lives, creating more good jobs that provide dignity and pride in a middle class life, raising wages and reducing inequality, making sure all our kids get a good education."

How does one talk of "inequality" and then wear an outfit where a single piece of the ensemble costs the equivalent of 833 hours of labor ---- about five months ---- at her new $15/hour minimum wage?

Maybe one of those "good jobs that provide dignity" is cleaning her coat with tweezers, Q----tips and the tears of virgins.

No one expects Hillary to campaign in Walmart overalls, although it might provide an arresting visual, but is it too much to ask this tribune of the people to save her Armani for Wall Street speeches and Davos dinners?

She can probably find something flattering and just her size at Ann Taylor, and with the money left over she can splurge and take the entire campaign staff to lunch at her nearest Chipotle.
