THE SIERRA MADRE POLICE DEPARTMENT IS HIRING!

Description:

Under direction of a Police Lieutenant/Captain and/or the Police Chief the Police Officer patrols an assigned area, enforces public safety laws, codes, and regulations and maintains order, prevents, detects and investigates crime, and carries out special assignments in the protection of life and property; and performs other related duties as assigned.

If you are interested in becoming a police officer in our city, read the following description, visit the City of Sierra Madre web site, view instructions and submit an application.

Help Us Find a Cure!

The Sierra Madre Police Department is proud to announce the official launch of the 2016

Pink Patch Project, a collaborative cancer awareness fundraiser in partnership with the

Los Angeles County Police Chief's Association and many other L.A. County Police

Agencies. The goal of this project is to raise funds to further the research, treatment, and care of those who are and have battled cancer. Equally important during this time is to educate the public as much as we can about the early detection and prevention. The collective effort of law enforcement throughout Los Angeles County during this endeavor is expected to yield a tremendous amount of support from many in the communities that we so proudly serve. Between now and through the month of October, participating police agencies will sell their commemorative collectors patches with all profits going to cancer treatment, research and education. In the month of October, uniformed personnel will be able to proudly wear the Pink Sierra Madre Police Patch as a reminder of our dedication and commitment to this project.

The commemorative Pink Sierra Madre Police Patch ($10) and T-Shirts ($15) will be available starting July 1st. Patches & T-shirts can be purchased at the Sierra Madre Police Department, MAIL BOX & POSTAL – 80 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. and at various events throughout the community.

Contact Lt. Cayson at dcayson@cityofsierramadre.com for further details.

Have you stopped by City Hall to see the Art

Exhibition of W. Jack Savage's work? It will Best novel about baseball ever written, say the be hanging till August so you don't have a lot of time. My fellow art enthusiast, John, and I This is such a great idea for community stopped by this week, taking a few extra minutes involvement. When you're sitting out at Beantown to admire the drought resistant gardens, which or Starbucks, having your morning latte, you can are doing so well. We put in our own succulent garden this week with just a few plants to start and some big rocks we found lying about in the about the One Book, One City and feel superior far reaches of our yard. Looks good and the because you know about it and they don't! But ya seven roses they replaced will no longer torture me with their totally uncooperative attitude!

Leaving the gardens behind, we spent a pleasant to be specific. It's Petunia's, owned by Karen Byrne half hour looking at Jack's work which is framed, and staffed by Marsha McBurney. Their grand matted, original acrylic paintings, uniform in size opening was yesterday and I see an exciting future 🏻 at about 10 x13, priced at $65/each. We especially ahead for Petunia's. You'll find some really nice liked "Not For The Weak," a work featuring original art, including the painting shown here vultures perched on a barren tree atop a granite (Marsha on the left and Karen on the right), which is huge and gorgeous, an original oil by Lim Hall, of Paris back in the horse and buggy era, sighting down the Blvd. des Invalides to the Eiffel Tower. The colors are exquisite and it's got to be 8' long by 5' high. Look for the fantastic screen/room divider in front and some Asian art pieces in the back my mother would have swooned over - her whole house was a trip to China and Japan. Petunia's has clothing that is charming, beautiful and would fit most of us. Jewelry – all original pieces, some hair of life opportunities. Go on in there and say hi to ornaments people who have longer hair would just love, along with rhinestone decorated baseball hats keep Sierra Madre on track. mountain with a field behind it of deep orange-red. Hades came to mind. Also really liked "Dancing With That Tall Girl Downtown," which showed two abstract figures, dancing, before a field of yellow, and "Only In My Dreams," showing tiny people on a street scene. Great colors, exciting compositions. Take a look! Mr. Savage has led an interesting life as a broadcaster, actor, educator, author and a prolific artist. We so admire people who can successfully make a difference in a variety Selena and all those nice folks in there working to the back wall.

Got a kid's birthday coming up? Village Pizza on Baldwin next to Beantown is still doing their Karen's goal with Petunia's is to provide a kid's pizza cooking class for birthday parties. It's $16/child with a minimum of ten people. They get what she calls, "good old American stuff," that's hats, aprons, a pizza diploma, a personal pizza with exactly how you feel when you walk in the door, two toppings, a dessert pizza and drinks. Now I peaceful. Karen says she's not a decorator, she ask you...where can you get a great party like that where you don't have to clean, shop, cleanup, deal cabinet in the corner full of those hats. You'll with the kid who's bored, and your own little chef find Henredon wing chairs, a Tiffany-style can teach you how to flip pizza dough. You can call and make your reservation: 626-355-8817. Local Police Fire Depts.to Hold National Night Out

The Pasadena Police and Fire Departments invite the community to meet their local police officers and fire fighters during National Night Out on August 2. National Night Out is an annual communitybuilding campaign promotes policethat community partnerships and neighborhood camaraderie to make their cities an enjoyable and safe place to live, work and Pasadena's kick-off event will begin at 5:00 PM at Washington Park, (700 E. Washington Blvd., Pasadena, CA). Your first responders will then spread out throughout Pasadena joining various neighborhood block parties being held in the city. This national event is an excellent opportunity to form long-term bonds between police, fire and the community. All persons welcome.

For more info call 626-744-4550 or go to ci.pasadena. ca.us/police/ "Community Outreach" for a list of block party locations.

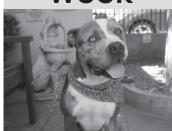

Altadena Sheriff

Altadena Sheriff's Station will be hosting National Night Out on Tuesday August 2nd, from 6:00 pm to 8:00 pm at Farnsworth Park, located at 568 E. Mount Curve Ave.

The various agencies will be setting up booths and equipment in the park on the grass area just north of the baseball field. We have LA Co. Fire, our Special Enforcement Bureau (SWAT), California Highway Patrol, and our various volunteer and neighborhood watch groups in attendance. A Barbecue dinner will be served, along with cotton candy, popcorn, snow cones and a bounce house. A face painter from the LA Co. Parks department will be helping out also. Eaton Canyon Nature Center will have a presentation, plants, and live animals on display.

This event is meant to increase awareness about police ams in Altadena, such as Explorers, radio service, volunteers, Reserve Deputies, neighborhood watch other anti crime efforts.

Pet of the Week

Augustine (A398279) is a fun-loving 7-year-old, neutered male Catahoula/ Pit Bull mix. Augustine has a goofball personality that has endeared him to staff and volunteers. Out on the PHS Mobile Unit, he gets along well with dogs of all sizes, but has a special fondness for Lily (A400517), a 3 year-old-pit

The adoption fee for dogs is $125, which includes the spay or neuter surgery, microchip, and vaccinations. Augustine qualifies for our Seniors for Seniors program, which waives the adoption fee for adopters age 60 and over. The mandatory $20 microchip fee still applies.

New adopters will receive a complimentary healthand-wellness exam from VCA Animal Hospitals, as well as a goody bag filled with information about how to care for your pet.

Call the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA at (626) 792-7151 to ask about A398279, or visit at 361 S. Raymond Ave. in Pasadena. Adoption hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday; and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Pets may not be available for adoption and cannot be held for potential adopters by phone calls or email.

The rover mission will investigate the Martian rocks for evidence of past

NASA, along with scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory, announced last week they are ready to advance with final design and construction of its next Mars rover, currently targeted to launch in summer of 2020 and arrive on the red planet in February 2021.

The Mars 2020 rover will investigate a region of Mars where the ancient environment may have been favorable for microbial life, probing the Martian rocks for evidence of past life. Throughout its investigation, it will collect samples of soil and rock, and cache them on the surface for potential return to Earth by a future mission.

To reduce risk and provide cost savings, the 2020 rover will look much like its six-wheeled, one-ton predecessor, Curiosity, but the entry, descent and landing sequence. The information will with an array of new science

Caltrans to Close Part of I-210 Again

Residents, visitors and businesses in Pasadena are advised that Caltrans will again shut down part of the westbound I-210 Freeway, near Highway 134, between Lake Avenue and Mountain Street, next weekend, beginning at 10 p.m., Friday to 5 a.m., to Monday, August 1.

Motorists are urged to slow down and use caution while driving in the freeway construction area; to be extra alert and to follow all freeway detour signs if you must travel through the area. Motorists should consider seeking alternative routes to avoid this part of I-210 during the closures.

For online map information about Caltrans work projects, go to http://quickmap.dot. ca.gov/. Additional Caltrans info can be found at www. dot.ca.gov/d7 and on dot.ca.gov/d7 and on Twitter https://twitter.com/ CaltransDist7@CaltransDist7.

Free Tours of Tournament House Ends Next Month

Tournament House, the operating headquarters of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, which oversees the annual Rose Parade, is winding down weekly free public tours each Thursday at 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. the tours will end Aug. 25. Reservations are not required except for groups of 10 or more people. Located at 391 S. Orange Grove Blvd., the mansion was once the home of chewing gum magnate William Wrigley Jr. and his wife, Ada. After Ada's death in 1958, the Wrigley family presented the property to the city of Pasadena, with the request that it become the base of operations for the Tournament of Roses Association. The Wrigley family had long enjoyed the Rose Parade as it unfolded just beyond their front yard.

Guided tours allow visitors to see the 21-room, Italian-Renaissance-style mansion designed and built in 1906 by architect G. Lawrence Stimson and his father George W. Stimson, a local builder.

Volunteers Association's Heritage Committee, well-versed in the organization's 128-year history as well as in the details of the house itself, conduct the tours.

The interior of the house features richly paneled rooms, inlaid marble floor and an ornate molded plaster ceilinga design element that made Stimson famous. Displays related to Rose Bowl Games, Rose Queens and Royal Courts, Grand Marshals and Tournament Presidents are part of the décor. Surrounding Tournament House are the Wrigley Gardens, Tournament which feature a 4.5-acre floral display of more than 1,500 varieties of roses, camellias and annuals. The gardens feature the All-America Rose Selections (AARS) awardwinning Tournament of Roses rose developed especially for the Tournament of Roses Centennial.

Groups of 10 or more may call (626) 449-4100 for tour

City Appoints Planning Department Director

City Manager Steve Mermell announced Monday he appointed David Reyes as the new Director of the Planning and Community Development Department. Reyes had been serving as interim director for the past six months. The appointment was made effective July 25.

Reyes will oversee a department of about 80 employees who review planning proposals and develop land-use policies for the City. The department includes the Planning, Building and Safety, Cultural Affairs and Code Compliance divisions; including the City's Permit Center for new and remodel construction, zoning and code enforcement and public art.

Reyes brings nearly 20 years of professional planning experience to the position from the public and private sectors. He joined the City of Pasadena's Planning Department in 2012 and has been the department's Deputy Director Department since 2014 before becoming the department's interim director earlier this year.

BREAKFAST AND BUSINESS AWARDS

The Arcadia Chamber honors members of committed service at July Networking Breakfast

"The goal for today is to have fun," asserted Arcadia Chamber CEO Karen Mac Nair with a certain smile. Considering the gusto of such a promising morning, the nearly 80 attendees gathered at the DoubleTree by Hilton in Monrovia gladly agreed with the aforementioned agenda as they sampled the buffet of golden waffles, chilled fruit, and refreshing juices. The Business Awards and Networking Breakfast (July 21) was held in honor of those members who have contributed their time and talent to the community and Arcadia Chamber of Commerce.

Those dutifully honored were John Villa of Dance Syndicate Entertainment for New Member of the Year, Naomi Briones of Embassy Suites by Hilton Arcadia for Business Person of the Year, John Sun of Budget Blinds San Gabriel for the Chamber Service Award, and Andrew Gregson of Hart, Mieras & Morris for Business of the Year.

Leading into the awarding ceremony, Arcadia Chamber CEO Karen Mac Nair confirmed, "the future is bright with this community" in regards to the honorees. Their illuminating character will continue to impact the community because they are passionate not only in profession, but also with involvement. Chamber President Vicki Knight of Century Rooter Service & Plumbing, Viola Van of Congresswoman Judy Chu's office, Clayton Arick of Senator Hernandez's office, Brian Mejia of Supervisor Antonovich's office, and Mayor of Arcadia Tom Beck each conferred recognition upon the esteemed guests.

John Villa, Dance Syndicate Entertainment, is the chosen New Member of the Year for both his gift of heart and giving time whenever he DJs, making those enjoying his productions feel valued. His dedication has been one of lasting impact, considering that it was his 8th grade graduating class that first witnessed his aptitude of stirring joy with music. John has been the cherished DJ for Chamber events such as mixers and the Installation Dinner due to his ability to connect with the audience and elevate their experience in a simple and profound way.

Naomi Briones, Embassy Suites by Hilton Arcadia, is the Business Person of Year for her position of Director of Sales that allows her to reach into the community with her natural hospitality. From a young age, she has wanted to work in hotels and has since extended her caring nature with participation as a Chamber Ambassador and board member of the Downtown Arcadia Improvement Association. Her positivity and endless encouragement of Chamber undertakings proves that she is not only a professional leader but also a dear friend.

John Sun, Budget Blinds San Gabriel, receives the Chamber Service Award for his unyielding contributions to the Chamber. His dependability as an Ambassador and support of other Chamber members with his consistent attendance and unquestionable lend of hand renders him an example as a volunteer; his van is always the first vehicle on the scene. He even helped set up for the morning festivities.

His work ethic is truly extraordinary and thankless.
Hart, Mieras & Morris is Business of the Year for the company's proactive approach to planning and involvement in the community and Chamber. Andrew Gregson, the Chief Operating Officer, and Gary Morris, Senior Partner, both accepted the award and thanked their team seated at the table before them. Andrew Gregson's reliability and accommodating attitude ensures that Chamber operations and goals are not only met, but succeed since serving his time as President and on the Executive Board.

The next Networking Breakfast will be held at the DoubleTree by Hilton in Monrovia on August 18, 2016. Tickets to the event, which runs from 7:30 a.m. – 9 a.m. are $20 in advance ($25 at the door) and discounted to $15 for Chamber members who pay by the previous Friday ($20 at the door for Chamber members. No additional charge for those with an All Access Pass. Tickets: (626) 447-2159 or in the "Shop" page at www.arcadiacachamber.org, or at the Chamber office, 388 W. Huntington Dr. during regular

10 WAYS SENIORS CAN AVOID IDENTITY THEFT

Dear Savvy Senior,

What can seniors do to protect themselves from identity theft? My brother-in-law, who's 77, recently had his identity stolen and I want to make sure it doesn't happen to me. Worried Relative

Dear Worried,

Great question! Each year around 17 million people fall victim to identity theft, which happens when someone gets access to your Social Security number, bank or credit card account number, or other identifying information and uses it to steal from you. Here are some free steps you can take to reduce your risks.

Guard your personal information: Never give your Social Security number, credit card number, checking or savings account numbers to anyone unless you initiate the contact. Also, do not carry your Social Security card around in your wallet or purse, and don't carry around your Medicare card either unless you're going to the doctor.

Get off mailing lists: Put a stop to preapproved credit-card offers, which is a gold mine for ID thieves. To do this visit optoutprescreen.com or call 888-567-8688 - they will ask for your Social Security number and date of birth. You can stop other junk mail at dmachoice.org, and reduce telemarketing calls at donotcall.gov.

Use strong passwords: To safeguard your personal data on your smartphone or tablet don't at annualcreditreport.com or call 877-322use a password that's easy to hack, like 1234 or 0000. Also, make your computer passwords more than 8 characters long, with uppercase and lowercase letters, numbers, and symbols like # and %, and use different passwords on different accounts. If it's hard to remember them, try a password manager service like dashlane.com, truekey.com or lastpass.

Be wary of unknown emails: Never click on links in emails from strangers, or those that claim to be from the Social Security Administration, IRS or other government agencies, or from your bank, phone or credit card company warning of a "problem." This can result in identity-stealing malware being installed on your computer. To protect your computer from malware, install antivirus software (see avg.com and avast.com for free options) and set up automatic security updates and full weekly scans.

Secure your mail: Empty your home mailbox quickly or buy a locked mailbox to deter thieves. And mail outgoing payments from a U.S. Postal Service mailbox or the post office, not from your more vulnerable home mailbox.

Get safer credit cards: If you don't already have one, get an EMV chip credit card from your credit card provider. They're much more difficult for fraudsters to hack than magnetic strip cards.

Shred unneeded documents: Buy a crosscut paper shredder so you can shred all unneeded records, receipts, statements, preapproved credit offers or other papers you throw out that has your financial or personal information.

Monitor your accounts: Review your monthly bank and credit card statements carefully, and see if your bank or credit card issuer offers free alerts that will warn you of suspicious activity as soon as it's detected. If they do, sign up for them or use eversafe.com, which will do it for you for a small Watch your credit: Check your credit report 8228. You can receive one free report a year from each of the three major credit bureaus (Equifax, Experian and TransUnion), so consider staggering your request so you can get one free copy every four months.

Set up security freezes: If you don't plan to apply for new credit, loans, insurance or utility services, freeze your credit reports so crooks can't open up new accounts in your name. Rules vary by state, but the $5 to $20 fee is waived if you're 65 or older, or show proof of past ID theft. Security freezes are set up at all three credit bureaus at equifax.com, experian.com and transunion.com.

In regard spiders, it's been a good summer. One day early last summer my mom and I were returning from errands when we were met in their driveway by a guy who asked if we were having trouble with brown widows. "Brown widows?" we asked. We'd only heard of black widows. Yes, he explained, a huge wave of brown widows had hit the area and we would soon be engulfed with these eight-legged pests. Luckily for us, his company provided a wide variety of measures to deal with these invaders. He whipped out the different services we could take advantage of with there would literally be no end to it.

his limited time offer. He was a clean cut kid in a company polo shirt, and we listened politely to his spiel. (Now that I'm 33 I call anyone in their 20's a "kid.") "We'll think about it," we lied to him after he finished and gave us a business card. "Gosh, what will people think up next to try to come between us and our cash?" I joked to my mom as soon as he was out of earshot. But I wasn't laughing at all the following week.

My husband and I are often guilty of neglecting our plants, so I decided to cut back a fichus vine that constantly threatens to take over our yard. After a couple hours I had filled a trash barrel with clippings and was feeling very industrious. Then I saw it! The tell-tale red hour glass on the underbelly of a big, dusty black widow that was casually suspended near the top of the trash barrel. Since I had only filled the barrel a few minutes ago, I would've noticed it. How did it get there and build a web so fast? The spider was just sitting there like it was in its right mind, not tucked away in the safety of a crevice, but totally out in the open, as if taunting me. "Nah Nah! Look where I am!" With great trepidation I leaned in for a closer look. What I had first mistaken for dust was actually a different body color than the typical black sheen of a black widow. Was this a black widow? I peered over it again. The hour glass, body shape, and legs looked like a black widow, so I figured that's what it must be. I looked around for something to kill it with.

As I was searching for a suitable weapon, something else caught my eye. A second spider with the characteristic hour glass shape on its underside was sitting in a different part of the opened trash can. Great, now I've got to kill two widows! Wait, here's another! And another! In fact, they weren't just in the trash barrel, but all over the stray clippings on the ground. I cautiously approached the fichus vine and discovered that it was infested with them! Did any fall on me while I was clipping away at it? My skin started to crawl.

I looked for insecticide, but only found a feeble bottle of ant spray. No, this situation called for something more heavy duty. I went to Arnold's and found a big bottle of Spider Killer, "For Black Widows

The brown widows in the trash barrel were my first victims. I probably used more spray than I needed to, but I wanted to make sure those creeps were dead before I put my hands anywhere near that barrel again. The rest of the spiders in the fichus presented more of a problem. I couldn't just go spraying poisonous stuff all over the yard. We have the neighbor's cat who comes over and various other wildlife. I didn't want them dead or sick just because of the spiders. Besides, I had a stinking an iPad and showed us charts and graphs to illustrate suspicion that once I started on the widow war path

Where had these brown widows come from, and how are they different from black widows? It seemed like all the articles I read referenced each other with the same information. They're from Africa. Their first California spotting was in Torrance a number of years ago. Their body starts out with a white pattern that eventually fades into a dusty gray. Their legs look striped at the joints. Their behavior is different from black widows in that they do not limit themselves to undisturbed places (Yeah, tell me about it!). But not to worry. Although brown widows' venom is just as deadly drop for drop as a black widow, they are not able to deliver the full-force punch of the toxin. (I'd rather not find

Wouldn't it be nice if there were some environmentally friendly way to get rid of them? I wondered what ate brown widows. Apparently I wasn't the first person to have this idea, and quickly discovered that many people had entered that same search online. In little time I found myself falling in love with blue mud dauber wasps. These creatures are amazing! They find their widow (black or brown), paralyze it, and air lift it back to their nest where they lay an egg on it that will eventually consume the spider from the inside out. One spider per egg, so they need a lot of widows! There are numerous videos of people discovering used nests stuffed with eaten out spider carcasses. Creepy to find in your home, but if you hate spiders, you'll love these wasps. I saw that other people had the same idea. Many posted questions like, "How can I get mud dauber wasps to come to my yard?" and "Can I order mud dauber

Probably the worst time in our spider saga happened when we discovered countless egg sacks lining the row of bricks along our outdoor planter. Let's see, each egg sack contains hundreds of eggs, and if each baby female spider goes on to make egg sacks of her own... You can see where this is going. I wish I could say that we had a spider apocalypse and wiped them all out for good. Although we haven't seen as many around lately, I know that they'll come back when the conditions are and Brown Recluses" the canister read. I bought two. right. I just hope I have enough Spider Killer.

X MARKS THE SPOT AT THE CENTER OF THE MILKY WAY GALAXY

Two astronomers—with the help of Twitter have uncovered the strongest evidence yet that an enormous X-shaped structure made of stars lies within the central bulge of the Milky Way

Previous computer models, observations of other galaxies, and observations of our own galaxy have suggested that the X-shaped structure existed. But no one had observed it directly; and some astronomers argued that previous research that pointed indirectly to the existence of the X could be explained in other ways.

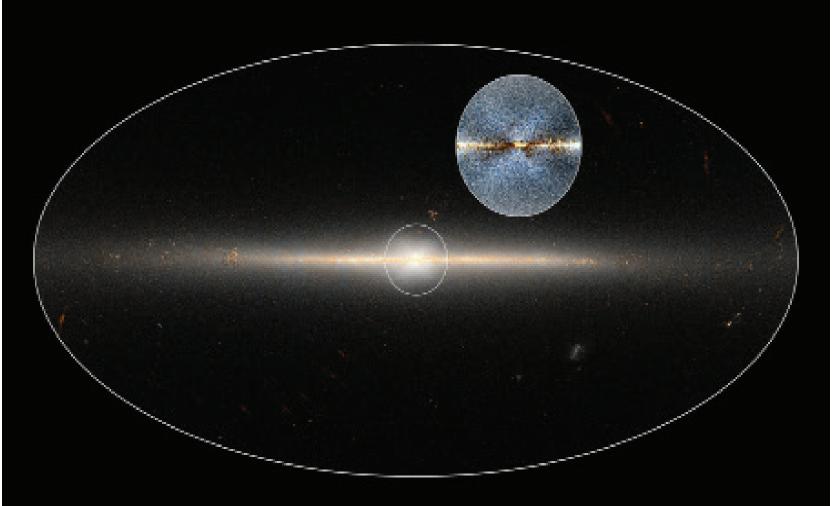

"There was controversy about whether the X-shaped structure existed," says Dustin Lang, a Research Associate at the Dunlap Institute for Astronomy & Astrophysics, University of Toronto, and co-author of the paper describing the discovery. "But our paper gives a good view of the core of our own galaxy. I think it has provided pretty good evidence for the existence of the X-shaped structure."

The results appear in the July issue of the Astronomical Journal. The lead author is Melissa Ness, a postdoctoral researcher at the Max Planck Institute for Astronomy in Heidelberg.

The Milky Way Galaxy is a barred spiral galaxy: a disk-shaped collection of dust, gas and billions of stars, 100,000 light-years in diameter. It is far from a simple disk structure, being comprised of two spiral arms, a bar-shaped feature that runs through its centre, and a central bulge of stars. The central bulge, like other barred galaxy's bulges, resembles a rectangular box or peanut when viewed -- as we view it -- from within the plane of the galaxy. The X-shaped structure is an integral component of the bulge.

Astronomers think the bulge could have formed in two different ways: it may have formed when the Milky Way Galaxy merged with other galaxies; or it may have formed without the help of external influences as an outgrowth of the bar, which itself forms from the evolving galactic disk. Lang and Ness's finding supports the latter model which predicts the box- or peanut-shaped bulge and the Milky Way Galaxy," says Ness. "If we understand galactic X.

This latest, clearest view of the bulge emerged when Lang re-analyzed previously released data 2009. Before ending its initial mission in 2011, WISE surveyed the entire sky in infrared imaging three-quarters of a billion galaxies, stars and asteroids.

"The bulge is a key signature of formation of the the bulge we will understand the key processes that have formed and shaped our galaxy.

"The shape of the bulge tells us about how it has from the Wide-field Infrared Survey Explorer formed. We see the X-shape and boxy morphology that internal formation processes have been the image of the entire sky. ones driving the bulge formation," Ness adds.

experience major merging events since the bulge formed. If it had, interactions with other galaxies would have disrupted its shape.

Lang's analysis was originally intended to aid in his research in mapping the web of galaxies beyond the Milky Way. To help explore the maps he'd developed from the WISE data, he created an MtnViewsNews.com.

"Ness saw the tweet and immediately recognized It is also evidence that our galaxy did not the importance of the X-shaped structure," says Lang. MUGWORT: A VERSATILE AND COMMON HERB WITH MANY SURVIVAL USES

[Nyerges is the author of Guide to Wild Foods and FOR FIRE BUNDLES Useful Plants, How to Survive Anywhere, and other One of the most effective wilderness "punks" is made books. His schedule of outings is available from School of Self-Reliance, P.O. Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041 and can be viewed on-line at www.SchoolofSelf-

Mugwort is an aromatic plant with species found all over the world. It is perhaps one of the few herbs widely steeped in lore and mythology. Mugwort (Artemisia douglasiana and other closely-related species) is a multiple use plant, having been used for food, medicine, fire-starting, dreaming, and more.

I have known people who ate the raw mugwort leaves in salad and added to sandwiches, in much the same way as you'd add a pickle or a piece of lettuce to a sandwich. However, I have always found it too bitter for my taste to eat raw. But once simmered in water and cooked like spinach, its appeal is greatly increased. If you're really hungry and there's nothing else, this will be acceptable.

Southern California Indians gathered the mugwort seeds and ground them into meal to make bread products. And in Japan, the dried and powdered mugwort is often used to flavor and color rice cakes. Still, the food value of mugwort is not its greatest

MEDICINE

As an infused tea, mugwort is used by herbalists to improve the appetite and digestion, and to relieve stomach pains and fevers. The dried herb is commonly sold in Mexican herb shops under the name "estafiate."

An infusion from the dried leaves is applied externally for inflammatory swellings. Bruises are reputed to heal quicker if bathed with a mugwort infusion. As a bath additive, it's used for tired legs and feet. Plus, in the bath water, mugwort gives the bathroom a pleasant aroma!

In areas where poison oak grows, it's a very old custom to mush up the fresh leaves of mugwort and rub the wet poultice over exposed portions of the body before entering poison oak areas in order to prevent the rash. Some western Indians used the fresh leaves externally as a cure for poison oak and wounds.

Before I immunized myself from poison oak, I have used the freshly crushed leaves of mugwort rubbed over newly-developing poison oak rash with good results. Aloe vera is the best treatment for poison oak that I have found, but you don't usually find aloe in the Mugwort gets its name from the English practice of putting a leaf of it in their mugs of beer to improve the flavor. ("Wort" is an Old English word meaning "herb.") This is still practiced in London pubs.

Mugwort is also used by home beer-brewers, such as Pascal Baudar in Southern California. The results depend on the recipe, ranging from a mead-like beer, to a very crisp, light beer.

by gathering the mugwort leaves that have dried and browned on the stalk. Slide your hand along the lower stalk to gather the dried leaves and then roll them into a cigar. By lighting the end of this "cigar" and then wrapping the entire cigar in larger fresh mugwort leaves, you can effectively carry fire over long distances. This was the technique practiced by Southwestern Indian tribes for transporting fire from camp to camp. It can still come to the aid of today's campers where matches are scarce or unavailable. In fact, I have tested dozens of tinders using both natural and man-made materials, and mugwort has consistently proven to be one of the best natural tinders. [Note: Survival Seeds (Box 41-834, L.A., CA 90041) sells bags of mugwort for tinder, for $7 a bag.]

When we teach and practice the art of fire-making with the hand drill, or the bow-and-drill, we nearly always have a good supply of the mugwort leaves on hand. It is the ideal tinder to shape into a birdnest, and to drop your ember into it. By gently blowing on this ember, it slowly gets larger and larger. Dried grass or pine needles are then added around the mugwort, and one continues to blow until it bursts into flame.

DREAMING

Sleeping on "pillows" of dried mugwort leaves is said to induce wild, vivid dreams and visions of the future. To test this, I placed several of the fresh leaves around my pillow. Those nights, I had very colorful dreams, though they were not what I would describe as "lucid" nor did I ever receive visions of the future. Nevertheless, some enterprising folks have begun to sell "dream pillows" which are small pillows stuffed with mugwort leaves.

Folklore from various parts of the world states that a leaf of mugwort in the shoe will enable you to walk all day without leg fatigue.

Nathaniel Schleimer of Pasadena, California, a student of acupressure, pointed out to me that there may be some factual basis for this "folklore." Schleimer told me that there is an acupuncture point on the bottom of the foot which is said to "regulate fatigue." The mugwort leaves which have naturally dried on the plant are collected and used in a therapeutic technique called acupressure. These dried leaves, when rolled into small balls or into a cigar-shaped cylinder, are called "moxa." A Chinese species is said to be the best, but all species can be used in the following fashion, described by J.C. Cerney in his book Acupressure -- Acupuncture Without Needles: "On the outside of the lower leg, below the level of the knee, is the head of the fibula. Just below and slightly in front of the head of the fibula is what the Japanese refer to as sanri or S-36. This is an important vitality-stimulating zone. It's a point where weary Oriental foot travelers applied a burning ball of moxa and with energy restored, traveled on."

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

a carefree moment of complaining about the or no heat. weather. "I can't believe it's so hot today," I "If I remember correctly," my wife said as she obviously, I had an audience.

Have you ever said or did something not realizing somebody was watching you?

Every time I am in a restaurant eating, I endeavor to remember there is an audience and try my very best not to spill the soup on my lap. Although, I must admit that that kind of lap dance always gets a vigorous round of applause from the audience. Don't ask me how I know.

I thought in my own special way of thinking that I was alone only to find out the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage was within earshot of my remarks. I must say she is rather remarkable. Those "earshot moments" are quite extensive. I will not go as far as to say that she can read my mind, although I think she can, but she seems to know what I am thinking even before I go through the effort and labor of thinking. I do not know why I even spend the energy thinking on my own. Even when I do think up a thought of my own and go so far as to express it I am always challenged. The challenge is, do not think that way. The challenger is my wife. Life would be so much easier, not to mention less stressful, if I just would quit thinking my own thoughts. It is when I am thinking my own thoughts that I get into trouble. Life would be so much easier if I allowed someone else to think my thoughts for me. After all, isn't that why men get married? Why women get married still baffles me.

Getting back to my moment of complaining. "I can't believe," I muttered, "it's so hot today." To which, my wife said, "Don't you know it's summer? And don't you know that it's supposed to be hot during the summer?"

I did know that but it did not make the heat any more bearable. Then she said something that rather confused me. I have been confused before. Confusion is a familiar territory to me. But this confusion was different.

stand the heat get out of the kitchen."

What the kitchen had to do with it being hot outside is way beyond my pay scale. There was a brief moment when I almost threw caution to the wind and asked my wife what she meant by from me. that comment. Boy, am I glad I didn't.

I make it a practice to stay as far away from the kitchen as possible, especially when my wife he lives with the Gracious Mistress of the is present. There is something about a kitchen Parsonage. Call him at 1-866-552-2543 or that makes me rather nervous to the point of e-mail jamessnyder2@att.net. His web site is dropping her favorite cup and having it break www.jamessnyderministries.com.

It was just another day and I was indulging all over the floor. I stay out of the kitchen, heat muttered. I thought I was talking to myself but stared at me rather intently, "a few months ago you were complaining about how cold it was.' She was right. It was not but a few months ago, I was complaining that it was so cold outside that I just could not bear it.

'You're going to have to make up your mind." That was a serious admonition from her. For her to tell me to make up my mind sends some very contradictory messages to me. After all, she is forever making up my mind for me. She seems to know exactly what I want at the restaurant and before I can get a word in edgewise or otherwise, she has ordered for me. I'm not complaining. She knows exactly what I want.

"Either," she continued, "it's too hot or it's too cold. Now make up your mind."

I smiled demurely in her direction and nodded in the affirmative. Not wanting to further the conversation I whispered very gently, "Yes, dear." It concluded our tête-à-tête. Later on in the evening, we were watching television. It was the local news and special report of the day had to do with the record heat wave across our country. "It's been a long time," the weatherman said, "since we've seen temperatures this high. Boy, is it hot out there." I glanced in her direction as covertly as possible and noticed she was staring at me, just daring me to say something. There is a time to say something and then sometimes something should not be said at all. I concealed my infectious grin as much as possible knowing that someone was watching me. Under my breath I whispered, "I can't believe it's so hot today." After all, it is summer and it is supposed to be hot. I just believe that everybody has the right to complain about the weather. I also believe that some people have the right not to hear me complain about the weather.

It is a well-noted mark of wisdom to know when to speak and when not to speak.

Solomon in the Old Testament had it right "If," my wife said rather sternly, "you can't when he said, "Even a fool, when he holdeth his peace, is counted wise: and he that shutteth his lips is esteemed a man of understanding" (Proverbs 17:28 KJV).

So, this is summer, but you did not hear it

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

DARN THAT DOGGIE DIABETES DISEASE!

I received a call from one of my clients a couple from high to low risk, in developing diabetes. of years ago. Colleen is one of those people who loves her dog more than most, even. She takes terrier and the Samoyed. her out for a vigorous walk every day, keeps her on a balanced diet, and calls me to keep up the routine when she has to travel for work. I was was calling to give me some not-so-happy news.

"Hannah", her sweet senior shepherd mix, was diagnosed with canine Diabetes Mellitus always associated diabetes with obesity or a lack of exercise. Hannah has a normal energy level for her age, and has had healthy exercise & eating habits all her life. To me she seemed like a very unlikely candidate for the disease.

When I asked Colleen about exactly what prompted her to pay a visit to the veterinarian, noticed Hannah's increased water intake a few weeks ago, but with unusually warm weather the canyon than usual, it seemed natural that Hannah would be so thirsty.

Eventually, when the temps dropped and Hannah continued to swill water, Colleen knew something wasn't quite right. Hannah showed no other symptoms or signs of sickness, but her obvious need to drink was enough to cause concern. Fortunately, the she was diagnosed and treated before her condition vet was able to diagnose the problem and prescribe the proper treatment right away with little delay. I couldn't help feeling frustrated, thinking "Darn that doggie diabetes disease!". It just seems unfair for a responsible, loving & caring pet owner who does all the right things to have their dog be stricken with such a drastic disease.

I looked further into the facts about this serious, yet manageable disease, and I learned that canine DM is nowhere near as selective as I thought it was in choosing it's victims. Much Hannah is doing great! As pet owners, we can like it does for humans, Diabetes Mellitus causes major concerns and complications for the canine, and is not at all limited to drinking habits, and consulting the vet if we overweight or sedentary dogs. It is known to detect anything other than normal thirstiness. attack canines of various activity levels, ages, All the best of health & happiness to you and sizes and breeds and it can even show up in dogs with excellent exercise regiments and healthy diets, such as Hannah.

According to the information I found on this subject, canine DM is caused by a variety of factors. While it is indiscriminant as to which dog it chooses to attack, there are certain breeds known to have a stronger pre-disposition for developing the condition. A 2007 study published in "Journal of Heredity" ranked several popular canine breeds

The top 2 breeds on the risk list were the Cairn

The same study showed that German Shepherds and Golden Retrievers are less susceptible than previously assumed. These happy to hear her voice, but unfortunately she findings came as a surprise to many in the canine community, since traditional preconceptions (including my own) indicate that larger breeds are more at risk due to an (DM). I was surprised to hear that because I've overly healthy appetite, while medium to small breeds tend to respond to the dinner bell with a more picky pallet.

A canine's tendency to succumb to the detriments of diabetes can be associated with previous health complications such as pancreatitis (inflammation of the pancreas), or hyperadrenorcorticism (Cushing's disease). she said Hannah had been camping out at the And if a dog's health has been marginalized by water bowl, drinking like a fiend. She first a condition resulting in problems with insulin production or processing, it is inherently more vulnerable to contracting DM. The jury is still and more road trekking and trail hiking in out for some vets as to the accuracy of the 2007 study findings, but the general consensus is that diabetes can occur in any dog, whether active or sedentary.

The happy side of this otherwise sad saga, is that canine DM is manageable if detected in a timely manner and treated properly. Because Hannah's owner was observant of her increased water intake, deteriorated to a point of no return. Hannah is now receiving daily injections of carefully measured insulin, per doctor's orders. Daily insulin therapy allows her to process glucose that would otherwise overpopulate her blood stream, creating a virtual garden for the growth of infection and risking major damage to her kidneys.

Another course of action taken to get After hearing the news about Hannah, Hannah's system back on course was to put her on a high fiber diet for more expedient excretion of potentially sugar producing food particles in her digestive system. Thankfully, learn from Hannah and Colleen's experience, by paying closer attention to our dog's yourself hot weeks? Cool down through your practice, and meditation! We want to have fun and enjoy all the outdoor activities available during summer, but don't wear yourself out. Here are my top three tips for enjoyment in these warmer months:

1) Get your cardio in, but keep rigorous exercise to a minimum. If you walk or run, do it early and keep the rigorous stretches to a minimum. Swim in cool water when possible. Consider a yoga practice that's gentle or moderately paced. Stay away from practices in rooms that are artificially heated. Too much heat leads to irritation, anger and general unsettled-ness and unsteadiness. Yoga poses to do more of include forward folds, gentle twists and classic inversions, such as shoulderstand. These are generally going to a have a cooling (and rejuvenating) effect.

Are you finding 2) Watch what you eat. Add in cooling foods to your diet. Cucumber, Avocado, Cilantro, Watermelon heated during these are wonderful cooling foods, some with high water content. They can be very re-hydrating. Drinks can be cool, but leave out the ice to maximize digestion. Meals should be light and refreshing. Avoid excess spice and pepper.

> 3) Do keep your self-care practices in place. Make time for your meditation to maintain well-being and emotional balance. Go for massage whenever possible. Check in regularly with how you feel and get adequate rest. Rest, refilling your energy reserve and maintaining a spiritual connection are vital parts of a regular yoga practice.

> Enjoy your practice! And remember to keep yourself cool in advance of excess heat. This is going to give you the energy (and level-headed ness) you need to live, work and play without overheating and burning

Cadbury is a handsome grey and white tabby teen who is about a year old. While he enjoys being petted, he can be initially shy until he meets you. He shines as an entertainer and the way to his heart will be through play. He is a good natured soul that bounces around after toys and in and out of paper bags and boxes. When given the chance, Cadbury shows how clever he is stealing toys from the girls' side housed next to him. He is athletic chasing the red laser dot up

AROUND SAN GABRIEL VALLEY

A WILD WEST EVENT TO HELP YOUTH AND YOUNG ADULTS IN NEED

La Cañada Philanthropists Renée LaBran to receive Celebrating Children Award

(PASADENA, Calif., July 1, 2016)— The popular Autry Museum of the American West will be the site of Hathaway-Sycamores Child and Family Services' 8th annual fundraiser, Celebrating Children. In addition to raising money that will help fund the many crucial mentalhealth and support services provided by Hathaway-Sycamores, guests at the September 17 family friendly event will enjoy exploring the museum after hours, experiencing the rich cultural tapestry of the American West at this private bash!

This year's Celebrating Children starts at 6:00 p.m. and concludes at 10:00 p.m. The public can purchase tickets to the event, which promises to be especially memorable and includes: dinner & drinks, the opportunity to meet some of the young adults from Hathaway-Sycamores' Transitional Independent Living Program, docent guided tours for the kids and families, live auction, museum open for viewing to all, complimentary parking, and special gifts and giveaways.

The centerpiece of Celebrating Children is the presentation of the Hathaway-Sycamores' Celebrating Children Award. Each year, the event honors an individual or family who exemplifies the values of integrity, leadership and commitment to the well-being of children, adults, families, and communities. For more than 114 years, these values have served as the foundation for the compassion and care that each child receives at Hathaway-Sycamores. The 2016 Celebrating Children honoree is Renée LaBran.

Longtime resident of La Cañada, Renée LaBran was introduced to Hathaway-Sycamores with a tour of the agency's El Nido campus in 2003. After touring the residential treatment facility and meeting several boys there, Renée knew she wanted to make a difference, and Hathaway-Sycamores was the place to do it. She has served on Hathaway-Sycamores' Board of Directors ever since, and has held numerous positions along the way, including helming the Board from 2011 to 2013.

Renée brings with her more than 25 years of high-levelfinancial experience. Currently, Renée holds the position of Partner with Rustic Canyon/Fontis Partners, LP, where she is an active venture capital investor focusing on consumer products. Previously, she also held several executive positions with Times Mirror, and presently serves as a Senior Advisor at Idealab, a prominent tech incubator. She is also the Governor's Appointee to the California State Bar Board of Trustees, as a public member, and she co-founded Women Founders Network – an accelerator that connects. women building high-growth businesses with the tools and resources they need to succeed.

Looking back at her Hathaway-Sycamores' tenure, Renée says that the most memorable moments have been hearing directly from children and families who've benefitted from the agency's services. Her words say it all: "When you hear these first-person accounts, you come to truly appreciate what they've gone through. It's especially moving when they talk about the fact that Hathaway-Sycamores has changed their lives. Many of the young people go as far as to say that if it weren't for Hathaway-Sycamores, they would either be on the streets or dead. The work this agency does is absolutely amazing."

Renée shares: "I'm a big fan of all Hathaway-Sycamores' programs, particularly the Transitional Independent Living Program, which will be showcased at this year's Celebrating Children." Hathaway-Sycamores operates one of the most expansive Transitional Independent Living Programs in the Greater Los Angeles area, providing housing, life-skills training, job opportunities, and mental-health services to foster youth who've aged out of the foster-care system.

As Renée observes, "It's hard enough for 18-yearolds to manage living on their own even in the best of circumstances. Why would anyone think that kids who likely have been in multiple foster placements are going to possess the stability and skills to strike out on their own simply because they've turned 18? You can't help but feel good about this innovative program that's addressing a gaping hole in the foster-care system."

Commenting on this year's Celebrating Children honoree, Hathaway-Sycamores' President and CEO Debra Manners said, "Renée LaBran has been dedicated to creating opportunities for brighter futures for the children. teens, young adults and families we serve for over a decade. Her efforts have had a positive impact on so many lives. She is greatly deserving of the Hathaway-Sycamores' Celebrating Children Award."

To purchase Celebrating Children tickets, or to be a corporate sponsor, visit www.celebratingchildrenevent.com or contact Andi Sica at (626) 395-7100 ext. 2516 or e-mail andreasica@hathaway-sycamores.org.

YWCA PASADENA HOSTING "TALKING THE TALK: LOVE IS LOVE" COMMUNITY FORUM ON THE SHOOTING AT PULSE ORLANDO AT ALL SAINTS CHURCH ON JULY 28TH

The YWCA Pasadena-Foothill Valley invites you to attend Talking the Talk: Love is Love, the latest in the community conversation series on July 28th, from 5:30 pm to 7:30 pm. This community forum will be held in All Saints Church's Sweetland Hall, located at 132 N. Euclid Ave, Pasadena, CA 91101.

Mass shootings in this country have become an epidemic. With the shooting at the Pulse Nightclub in Orlando, the world saw how the intersection of homophobia, racism, and gun violence in the US results in tragedy beyond belief. The YWCA wants to give the Pasadena-Foothill Valley community the opportunity to share their concerns, questions, experiences, and solutions to this crisis through this event. The event will be facilitated by Ernst Fenelon Jr., Program Coordinator for the Prison Education Program at Cal Poly Pomona. The event will start at 5:30 pm with panel speakers Tarek Shawky and Aaron Saenz, followed by a question and answer session and community discussion.

Ernst Fenelon, Jr. is the Program Coordinator for the Prison Education Project (PEP) and PEP-Uganda, an innovative "inside and outside" approach which enhances educational experiences of inmates and parolees while equipping them with practical, real-world tools for successful reintegration. Aside from being the facilitator for the YWCA Pasadena "Talking the Talk" series, he is also a facilitator for "Trust Talks." Mr. Fenelon has appeared on Al-Jazeera America and was most recently featured on NPR radio in December 2015. Mr. Fenelon provides a unique perspective to prison education, reintegration and rehabilitation discussions.

 $Tar\bar{e}k\,Shawky\,is\,a\,criminal\,defense\,attorney\,in\,Pasadena.$ He serves on the board of the National Lawyers Guild, the Tiyya Foundation for refugee relief, and he is active with Pasadena Chapters of NAACP, ACLU, YWCA and DayOne youth advocacy nonprofit organizations. Mr. Shawky is outspoken about racial injustice in our legal system and conducts free "Know Your Rights" trainings to educate the public interactions with law enforcement officials.

Aaron Saenz is the current President of the Pasadena Pride Center, the SGV LGBTQ Community Center. He is also the co-founder and current President of San Gabriel Valley Pride, the local annual LGBTQ Pride Festival. Mr. Saenz has been teaching Health Information Management since 2004 with the LAUSD's Division of Adult and Career Education. Aaron has a Masters in Healthcare Administration-Informatics from Saint Joseph's University in Philadelphia, PA and a BS in Technical Communication from New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology in Socorro, NM.

Pasadena Pride Center is a nonprofit organization which envisions an inclusive San Gabriel Valley free of discrimination in all forms where social justice inspires community engagement and equity for all. The Pasadena Pride Center Advocates for culturally competent programs, and services, links the LGBT community to resources, supports LGBT youth and seniors, provide community outreach and education, encourages leadership development and life skills, promotes health and wellness education, and plans safe and life-affirming social activities.

All Saints Episcopal Church is committed to excellence in its many ministries which include its COLORS (antiracism) ministry, its Gun Violence Prevention Task Force, its Immigration Task Force, and LGBTQ at All Saints. It is known throughout the nation as one of Southern California's most politically active and socially liberal churches.

The YWCA Pasadena's Talking the Talk series brings our community together to discuss hot button topics and strive to come up with solutions. These moderated discussions allow individuals to see many different viewpoints on the given issues, find like-minded individuals, and have a safe space to discuss their point of view. We hope that you can join us. Entry is free and open to the public. Please RSVP by phone at 626.296.8433 or by email at info@ywca-pasadena.org.

About the YWCA Pasadena-Foothill Valley: The YWCA acts via a wide range of programs that strive towards the elimination of racism and the empowerment of women and girls in Pasadena and throughout the Foothill Valley. THIRD LOWEST TOTAL WATER DEMANDS SINCE IMPORTED DELIVERIES BEGAN

Total water demands of 12,965 acre-feet in the Foothill Municipal Water District were the third lowest since the District began taking imported water in 1955-56. The following chart shows historic total demands in the

FMWD's history. (An acre-foot is roughly 326,000 gallons enough to cover a football field one foot deep.)

"This drop in demands has occurred despite the doubling of population in the service area since 1956 and is due to local residents' strong response to the Governor's call for conservation," said FMWD Board President Richard Atwater. Last year, as a result of one of the worst droughts in recorded history, the Governor asked for mandatory conservation by consumers. For the month of June 2016, overall water use in the FMWD service area decreased 24% when compared to an average of June 2013 and June 2014. The State has changed its conservation mandate and is using an average of calendar year 2013 and calendar year 2014 as water agencies throughout California. According to new Stress Test findings, FMWD can meet all demands and forgo setting a formal conservation standard. However, a strong conservation ethic continues. Shown below are water-saving performance numbers for agencies within the FMWD

The State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB) instituted a new baseline (average of CY 2013 & CY 2014) effective June 2016.

"To see water demands this low is an achievement for the entire FMWD service area," stated Foothill MWD General Manager Nina Jazmadarian. "While water supply conditions have improved and restrictions relaxed, we must continue conservation as the Californian way of life."

For savings tips, please go to http://bewaterwise.com/. Foothill Municipal Water District provides imported water to Crescenta Valley Water District, La Cañada Irrigation District, Mesa Crest Water Company, Valley Water Company, Lincoln Avenue Water Company, Las Flores Water Company and Rubio Cañon Land & Water Association. Kinneloa Irrigation District, another retail agency, takes no water from Foothill.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

On the Marquee: Notes from the Sierra Madre Playhouse

THE FIVE P'S

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano

A few weeks ago I wrote about the pending lawsuit between Actors Equity Association (AEA) and the Intimate or 99-Seat Theaters in Los Angeles. Since writing that essay, the lawsuit known as Asner (as in Ed Asner of TV fame) v. Actors Equity Association has been served and will wend its way through district court. I am hoping the judge will grant an injunction to forestall the December 14, 2016 date that AEA has issued as the last date that the old plan (which allows actors to volunteer their time and receive a stipend) can be used.

I wrote that no actor has ever been forced to work for no pay at one of the small theaters. Every actor has to make his or her own calculation as to the worth of the experience. It is a very personal decision. I'll share what I call the Five P's with you – these are the five possible reasons for taking ANY work at any theater – not just a small one. I use this as part of my calculus and encourage other actors to think about it this way before they make a decision.

PLAY – is the play one that is on my "list". Is it a play that I want to be a part of because of its message, its theme, its style, or other merits. I have a list that includes plays as diverse as Arden of Feversham, Little Foxes, The Skin of Our Teeth, and Terra Nova. These are plays that are not done very often and I would jump at the opportunity to work on them – pay or no pay.

PEOPLE - are there people involved in the production that I particularly want to work with - a fantastic director with a great vision, an exceptional designer, an actor that I have always admired and from whom I will learn more than I would in any class.

PART – is the part on my "list". Will the chance to play this role ever be offered me again? Will I regret NOT playing this part if I turn it down? There are roles I would pay someone to let me try my hand at. Beautiful, iconic, soul-stretching parts that I dream of playing.

PLACE - is the theater one whose reputation is so great that working there will further my growth as an actor? Or is the location one that would make me happy - as saying yes to a show in Aspen, Colorado made me happy a few years ago.

PAY - does the job pay so well that it doesn't matter what the part is, where it is being done or with

Now, in Intimate theater in Los Angeles it will NEVER be about the pay so two or three of the other reasons have to make up for the commitment of my time, energy, and resources. As Artistic Director at SMP, I strive to make the experience of working at our theater a joyous one so that once you've made your calculus and decided to say yes to the offer, that you never regret it. There are other reasons to say yes beyond those that I listed above, but those are the ones I think about after I've considered whether I have the time, or the energy, or if it works for my family at the time that it is offered. The issue seems cut and dried to me. I'll be following the case closely as it will have a profound impact on the work we

Humans of New York by Brandon Stanton

Based on the blog with more than four million loyal fans, a beautiful, heartfelt, funny, and inspiring collection of photographs and stories capturing the spirit of a cityNow an instant #1 New York Times bestseller, Humans of New York began in the summer of 2010, when photographer Brandon Stanton set out to create a photographic census of New York City. Armed with his camera, he began crisscrossing the city, covering thousands of miles on foot, all in an attempt to capture New Yorkers and their stories. The result of these efforts was a vibrant blog he called "Humans of New York," in which his photos were featured alongside quotes and anecdotes.The blog has steadily grown, now boasting millions of devoted followers. Humans of New York is the book inspired by the blog. With four hundred color photos, including exclusive portraits and allnew stories, Humans of New York is a stunning collection of images that showcases the outsized personalities of New York.Surprising and moving, printed in a beautiful full-color, hardbound edition, Humans of New York is a celebration of individuality and a tribute to the spirit of the city.

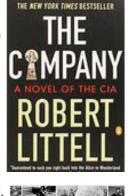

The Wishing Spell (The Land of Stories) by Chris Colfer (Author),

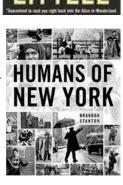

Brandon Dorman (Illustrator) Alex and Conner Bailey's world is about to change, in this fast-paced adventure that uniquely combines our modern day world with the enchanting realm of classic fairy tales. The Land of Stories tells the tale of twins Alex and Conner. Through the mysterious powers of a cherished book of stories, they leave their world behind and find themselves in a foreign land full of wonder and magic where they come face-to-face with the fairy tale characters they grew up reading about. But after a series of encounters with witches, wolves, goblins, and trolls alike, getting back home is going to be harder than they thought.

life the exciting days of early British radio...and one woman who finds her voice while working alongside the brilliant women and men of the BBC. London, 1926. American-raised Maisie Musgrave is thrilled to land job as a secretary at the upstart British Broadcasting Corporation, whose use of radio—still new, strange, and electrifying—is captivating the nation. But the hectic pace, smart young staff, and intimidating bosses only add to Maisie's insecurity. Soon, she is seduced by the work—gaining confidence as she arranges broadcasts by the most famous writers, scientists, and politicians in Britain. She is also caught up in a growing conflict between her two bosses, John Reith, the formidable Director-General of the BBC, and Hilda Matheson, the extraordinary director of the hugely popular Talks programming, who each have very different visions of what radio should be. Under Hilda's tutelage, Maisie discovers her talent, passion, and ambition. But when she unearths a shocking conspiracy, she and Hilda join forces to make their voices heard both on and off the air...and then face the dangerous consequences of telling the truth for a living.

The Company: A Novel of the CIA

by Robert Littell This critically acclaimed blockbuster from internationally renowned novelist Robert Littell seamlessly weaves together history and fiction to create a multigenerational, wickedly nostalgic saga of the CIA-known as "the Company" to insiders. Racing across a landscape spanning the legendary Berlin Base of the '50s, the Soviet invasion of Hungary, the Bay of Pigs, Afghanistan, and the Gorbachev putsch, The Company tells the thrilling story of agents imprisoned in double lives, fighting an amoral, elusive, formidable enemy—and each other—in an internecine battle within the Company itself. A brilliant, stunningly conceived epic thriller, The Company confirms Littell's place among the genre's elite.

All Things Considered By Jeff Brown

THE MOST DANGEROUS ANIMAL (BUG) IN THE WORLD

Mosquitoes are responsible for more human deaths(45 in California in 2015) than any other animal in the world. As vectors of malaria, mosquitoes indirectly cause the deaths of almost one million people each year. Over a dozen species of mosquitoes live in the San Gabriel Valley; nearly all bite people, some during the day, and some are vectors of human and animal diseases such as west nile,dengue,etc.No water, no mosquitoes. In the summer it takes about four to five days for a first stage larva to develop into an adult mosquito. This rapid developmental time makes controlling mosquitoes particularly challenging since their populations can increase exponentially when environmental factors are right. However, mosquitoes cannot develop without water. For this reason it is vital to eliminate any standing water on your property. This is the most effective method of managing mosquitoes in southern California. No water, no mosquitoes. Few probably make it that long, given our tendency to slap them when they land on us. But in the right circumstances, an adult mosquito has quite a long life expectancy (5-6 months), as bugs go. Mosquitoes can detect carbon dioxide from 75 feet away. Carbon dioxide, which humans and other animals produce, is the key signal to mosquitoes that a potential blood meal is near. Be careful and get some repellent.

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

WRITING YOUR LIFE STORY: WHY

How often do you wish you knew more about your family? When we're young, we don't necessarily pay attention to the stories our elders tell us. But later in life, we often become interested in knowing more about who and where we come

We want to learn more about what makes us who we are, and many of us even become interested in genealogy - there are over 2 million subscribers to happiness, ancestry.com . Unfortunately, for most of us, the older generations that were there when we were younger have faded memories or have already passed on.

Enter a great idea by the website FamilySearch which makes recording memories easier than ever for younger generations.

A common strategy is to take large tasks and break them into smaller parts. FamilySearch has taken the task of writing your life story and broken it into 52 separate parts which you can do once a week for a year. When you're finished, you'll have captured the memories your loved ones will value and created a true legacy for your family.

The questions posed on this website will allow you to catalog what's unique about yourself, including the following:

The basics about you, such as your full name, how you got your name, where you were born, and where you grew up;

Information about your immediate and extended family, including memories of your parents and

Important genetic information that could be helpful to your descendants, such as unusual genetic traits and medical conditions that run in your family; Information about family traditions and how you spend your holidays;

Your memories about your schools and your Information that you have learned about yourself and the world, such as your greatest strengths and challenges, as well as your life philosophies; and

Funny stories you remember, such as fads while you were growing up and tales about pets. You can even add pictures. FamilySearch makes it easy to store your life story online, so your family can access it easily. I believe capturing your values, insights, stories and experiences is so important, in fact, that I incorporate a "Legacy Interview" into the estate planning process with my clients. By ensuring you are passing on not just your financial assets, but your whole human wealth as well, you are able to leave a lasting, meaningful legacy for your family.

Dedicated to your family's health, wealth, and

I preached, "buy what you like" and "buyer beware". I always ask for a fresh bottle to be opened when at restaurants that sell the wines by the glass. I have done this for twenty years, and not once did I get attitude from the server.

A few months ago I wrote about storing your wines at home. We can't all afford a true wine cellar. For us casual wines drinkers, all you need is space at the bottom of your closet. There's no need to buy a refrigerator for just wines. If I learned one thing from my father, it was the My recommendation is that you don't chill wines until you are ready to drink them. And, speaking of chill, never ever freeze your glass - making wine too much, but to this day I could not tell you what wine cold will take away from the taste of the wine. Don't believe me? Trust me again from experience. DONALD TRUMP IS A UNIQUE THREAT TO AMERICAN DEMOCRACY

By The Washington Post Editorial Board July 22 at 3:59 PM - Reprinted by permission

DONALD J. TRUMP, until now a Republican problem, this week became a challenge the nation must confront and overcome. The real estate tycoon is uniquely unqualified to serve as president, in experience and temperament. He is mounting a campaign of snarl and sneer, not substance. To the extent he has views, they are wrong in their diagnosis of America's problems and dangerous in their proposed solutions. Mr. Trump's politics of denigration and division could strain the bonds that have held a diverse nation together. His contempt for constitutional norms might reveal the nation's twocentury-old experiment in checks and balances to be more fragile than we knew.

Any one of these characteristics would be disqualifying; together, they make Mr. Trump a peril. We recognize that this is not the usual moment to make such a statement. In an ordinary election year, we would acknowledge the Republican nominee, move on to the Democratic convention and spend the following months, like other voters, evaluating the candidates' performance in debates, on the stump and in position papers. This year we will follow the campaign as always, offering honest views on all the candidates. But we cannot salute the Republican nominee or pretend that we might endorse him this fall. A Trump presidency would be dangerous for the nation and the world.

Why are we so sure? Start with experience. It has been 64 years since a major party nominated anyone for president who did not have electoral experience. That experiment turned out pretty well — but Mr. Trump, to put it mildly, is no Dwight David Eisenhower. Leading the Allied campaign to liberate Europe from the Nazis required strategic and political skills of the first order, and Eisenhower — though he liked to emphasize his common touch as he faced the intellectual Democrat Adlai Stevenson — was shrewd, diligent, humble and thoughtful.

In contrast, there is nothing on Mr. Trump's résumé to suggest he could function successfully in Washington. He was staked in the family business by a well-to-do father and has pursued a career marked by some real estate successes, some failures and repeated episodes of saving his own hide while harming people who trusted him. Given his continuing refusal to release histax returns, breaking with a long bipartisan tradition, it is only reasonable to assume there are aspects of his record even more discreditable than what we know.

The lack of experience might be overcome if Mr. Trump saw it as a handicap worth overcoming. But he displays no curiosity, reads no books and appears to believe he needs no advice. In fact, what makes Mr. Trump so unusual is his combination of extreme neediness and unbridled arrogance. He is desperate for affirmation but contemptuous of other views. He also is contemptuous of fact. Throughout the campaign, he has unspooled one lie after another — that Muslims in New Jersey celebrated after 9/11, that his tax-cut plan would not worsenthe deficit, that he opposed the Iraq War before it started — and when and for weakening alliances. Now they confronted with contrary evidence, he simply repeats the lie. It is impossible to know whether he convinces himself of his own untruths or knows that he is wrong and does not care. It is also difficult to know which trait would be more frightening in a commander in chief.

Given his ignorance, it is perhaps not surprising that Mr. Trump offers no coherence when it comes to policy. In years past, he supported immigration reform, gun control and legal abortion; as candidate, he became a hard-line opponent of all three. Even in the course of the campaign, he has flip-flopped on issues such as whether Muslims should be banned from entering the United States and whether women who have abortions should be punished. Worse than the flip-flops is the absence of any substance in his agenda. Existing trade dealsare 'stupid," but Mr. Trump does not say how they could be improved. The Islamic State must be destroyed, but the candidate offers no strategy for doing so. Eleven million undocumented immigrants must be deported, but Mr. Trump does not tell us how he would accomplish this legally or practically.

What the candidate does offer is a series of prejudices and gut feelings, most of them United States. Immigrants are committing disqualified because of his Mexican crimes and stealing jobs. Muslims hate America. In fact, Japan and South Korea are major contributors to an alliance that has preserved a peace of enormous benefit to Americans. Immigrants commit fewer crimes than nativeborn Americans and take jobs that no one else will. Muslims the primary victims of Islamist terrorism, and Muslim Americans, including thousands who have served in the military, are as patriotic as anyone else. [Fareed Zakaria: America would be Trump's banana republic]

The Trump litany of victimization has resonated with many Americans whose economic prospects have stagnated. They deserve a serious champion, and the challenges of inequality and slow wage growth deserve a serious response. But Mr. Trump has nothing positive to offer, only scapegoats and dark conspiracy theories. He launched his campaign by accusing Mexico of and similar hatefulness has

In a dangerous world, Mr. Trump speaks blithely of abandoning NATO, encouraging more nations to obtain nuclear weapons and cozying up to dictators who in fact wish the United States nothing but harm. For eight years, Republicans have criticized President Obama for "apologizing" for America put forward a candidate who mimics the vilest propaganda of authoritarian adversaries about how terrible the United States is and how unfit it is to lecture others. He has made clear that he would drop allies without a second thought. The consequences to global security could be

Most alarming is Mr. Trump's contempt for the Constitution and the unwritten democratic norms upon which our system depends. He doesn't know what is in the nation's founding document. When asked by a member of Congress about Article I, which enumerates congressional powers, the candidate responded, "I am going to abide by the Constitution whether it's number 1, number 2, number 12, number 9." The charter has seven articles.

Worse, he doesn't seem to care about its limitations on executive power. He has threatenedthat those who criticize him will suffer when he is president. He has vowed to torturesuspected terrorists and bomb their innocent relatives, no matter the illegality of either act. He has vowed to constrict the independent press. He went after a judge whose rulings angered him, exacerbating his contempt for the independence of the judiciary erroneous. Allies are taking advantage of the by insisting that the judge should be surfaced numerous times in the year since. heritage. Mr. Trump has encouraged and celebrated violence at his rallies. The U.S. democratic system is strong and has proved resilient when it has been tested before. We have faith in it. But to elect Mr. Trump would be to knowingly subject it to threat.

Mr. Trump campaigns by insult and denigration, insinuation and wild accusation: Ted Cruz's father was involved in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy; Hillary Clinton may beguilty of murder; Mr. Obama is a traitor who wants Muslims to attack. The Republican Party has moved the lunatic fringe onto center stage, with discourse that renders impossible the kind of substantive debate upon which any civil democracy depends.

Most responsible Republican leaders know all this to be true; that is why Mr. Trump had to rely so heavily on testimonials by relatives and employees during this week's Republican convention. With one exception (Bob Dole), the living Republican presidents and presidential nominees of the past three decades all stayed away. But most current officeholders, even those who declared Mr. Trump to be an unthinkable choice only months ago, have lost the courage to speak out.

The party's failure of judgment leaves the nation's future where it belongs, in the hands of voters. Many Americans do not like either candidate this year . We have criticized the presumptive Democratic nominee, Hillary Clinton, in the past and will do so again when warranted. But we do not believe that she (or the Libertarian and Green party candidates, for that matter) represents a threat to the Constitution. Mr. Trump is a unique and present danger.

DONALD TRUMP'S FACT-FREE MARKETING OF FEAR

CLEVELAND - I knew it would be a long night when Donald Trump launched his acceptance speech with a promise to speak "honestly," telling the crowd, "There there will be no lies. We will honor the American people with the truth, and nothing else." As if. When a con man offers to sell you Arizona land with a view of the ocean, it's best to guard your Trump's inspiration was clearly that canny fearmonger of 1968, Richard Nixon. Trump borrowed heavily from Nixon's "law and order" template - he bellowed, "I am the law and order candidate!" - but, perhaps more importantly (and oh so predictably), he emulated Nixon's well-honed gift for shameless lying. Not that Trump actually needs any help in that department, from anyone.

And by the way, it's a bit rich that a guy with a record of mob ties and a looming trial for his fraudulent university, has the gall to parade himself as the candidate of law and

If credibility still means anything, if we still have any standards, then his portrait of a dark America begs to be challenged. It's hard to know where to begin.

He harangued a lot about "the crime and violence that today afflicts our nation," about the "lawlessness that threatens their communities." What he didn't say - and this is what the FBI stats say - is that violent crime has steadily fallen over the past 25 years, and that crime today is much lower than it was in '68 when Nixon campaigned for law and order.

He was particularly incensed that a "border-crosser" had recently killed a young woman in Nebraska. He assailed the "nearly 180,000 illegal immigrants with criminal records (who) are tonight roaming free to threaten peaceful citizens." What he didn't say - and this is from a Department of Homeland Security Study - is that you have a far greater chance of being killed in this country by a white citizen. Between 2010 and 2014 a grand total of 121 people released from immigration custody were later charged with murder. That's roughly one-thousandth of a percent of all the undocumented immigrants in America.

Another Trumpian scare: Syrian refugees. In his words, "there's no way to screen these refugees in order to find out who they are or where they came from." Truth is, we've had a vetting system since 1980. Multiple federal intelligence and security agencies vet the refugees, and the process for each one typically takes one to two years.

Trump also riled up the crowd with Clinton's supposed legacy of "death, destruction, terrorism, and weakness." In his version of history, Clinton is the reason we have ISIS, because "in 2009, pre-HIllary, ISIS was not even on the map." The truth is that ISIS was birthed in Iraq in 2006 - three years before Clinton became Secretary of State. It was a byproduct of George W. Bush's disastrous American invasion. And even though it's true that ISIS gained steam during the Syrian civil war, Secretary Clinton had pushed at the time - unsuccessfully - for the delivery of arms to rebel forces.

During his speech, the lies and cons took a number of forms. Early in the speech he took a stab at substance, promising to "outline reforms" that would bring America "millions of new jobs and trillions of new wealth." He said, "these reforms...I will outline tonight." But somehow he never got around to the outline. As usual, hewing to the Great Man Theory of History, he simply said, "Nobody knows the system better than me, which is why I alone can fix it" - just like he vowed to erase crime by dint of his Oval Office presence. Someone outside his fawning family cocoon should remind him that there are three branches of government and the separation of powers. Did his speech resonate beyond his credulous fan base? Can he craft an electoral majority with his magical thinking? We'll soon find out. But it appears that he has long prepared to test that proposition. As he boasted nearly 30 years ago in a best-selling book, "I play to people's fantasies....

That's why a little hyperbole never hurts. People want to believe that something is the biggest and the greatest and the most spectacular. I call it truthful hyperbole." I call it something else.

CLEVELAND — U.S. House Speaker Paul Ryan (R-Wisc) wanted to talk about a bunch of stuff during his primetime address at the Republican National Convention.

But Donald Trump wasn't high on that list. He barely mentioned him at all.

Instead, the ever-wonkish Ryan focused on the House GOP's legislative agenda. He hammered home how important "a conservative governing majority" was to its chances and how Republicans needed the win the White House to ensure its success. "There is a reason people in our country are disappointed and restless," he said. "If ideas have done exactly nothing to help. ... It's the latest chapter of an old story: Progressives deliver everything except progress."

opportunity seems like it's been slipping away, that's because it has. And liberal progressive

Ryan's embrace of Trump, with whom he has publicly differed even as he supports him, was reluctant at best. "We Republicans have made a choice," Ryan said, seemingly trying to convince himself that it was a good idea - as much as he was the thousands of delegates crammed onto the floor of the Quicken Loans Arena here. Ryan, at least, was animated.

Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell looked like he was filming a hostage video while undergoing a root canal. To be fair, the disdain was mutual. The Kentucky Republican was booed as he took the stage. But he managed to warm up the crowd with some scathing criticism of Democrat Hillary Clinton. "There is a clear choice before us, and it is not Hillary," McConnell said. "You know what the next four years will look like with Hillary. And you know that if Hillary is president, we will continue to slide, distracted by the scandals that follow the Clintons like flies." The most McConnell could offer for Trump was that, unlike Clinton, at least, he wouldn't veto or disregard the bills that Senate Republicans send to his desk.

The party leaders' continued reticence in the face of the Trump juggernaut is a reminder of the challenges the billionaire could face in dealing with a Congress that mostly acknowledges him as a Republican, but not a conservative fellow traveler. "These guys never saw Trump coming," Phil English, a former Republican Congressman from Erie, Pa., said. "He's not their flavor of Republican and they don't agree on many Still, McConnell's and Ryan's speeches "were good tactics," English said. By focusing on policy and the GOP down-ballot, "it's not putting them on a collision course [with Trump]," he noted. U.S. Rep. Lou Barletta, a Republican from northeastern Pennsylvania and an early Trump supporter, said he thinks Ryan has a "much higher confidence level" in Trump than he did when he first announced his support in early June. Trump's "willingness to work with Paul Ryan gives him a greater confidence level and that will be good," Barletta said. "He knows that if the House sends legislation to Ryan's desk, [Trump] will sign it. If Ryan takes our proposals to Hillary Clinton, it will go from her desk to the wastebasket."

But according to at least two veteran observers, Ryan and McConnell have their eyes on a greater set of concerns than whether Trump is ideologically simpatico to their respective agendas.

"Their most important goal right now is protecting the House and Senate," Kyle C. Kopko, a political science professor at Elizabethtown College said. "They're very aware that the [national] polls have it at an advantage for Clinton or are close." For Ryan, who has one of the biggest GOP advantages in recent memory, that's less of a concern. But for McConnell, it's an animating concern: a swing of just five seats in November could hand control of the Senate back to the Democrats. Among the seats on the line is Toomey's. And to make sure it stays Republican, both need a motivated GOP base. "That was very much their focus - the whole ticket," Terry Madonna, a political science professor and pollster at Franklin & Marshall College, said. "The last thing they want to do And if that means that Ryan and McConnell have to give clearly reluctant support to "The people may have spoken [at the convention], but Ryan and McConnell need to thinking about governing for more than just four years," he said.

But first they have to survive November - which seems very far away, indeed.

Trump, then that's what's going to happen, Kopko added.
