The City of Pasadena dashed the hopes of many, local residents Wednesday on when the Planning Department informed the multinational recreational company, Skyzone, that the site of the old Albertson's Supermarket on Madre Sierra Blvd., in Pasadena was not zoned to accommodate such a facility.

Skyzone is an Indoor Trampoline Park the offers adults and children a variety of activities including Open Jump, Dodgeball, Basketball, etc. They currently operate facilities worldwide. The closest one is in Covina.

The issue is that the current zoning, CL (Commercial Limited) prohibits recreational use. The zoing would have to be changed to Commercial Recreational - Indoor Land Use in order to allow Skyzone to locate there.

Representatives for Skyzone were not available at press time for comment. Whether or not they will seek a zoning change is not known. MVNews

COMMERCIAL BURGLARY ATTEMPT FOILED

One Suspect In Custody- Alleged Accomplice Remains at Large

The tranquility of Kersting Court was interrupted on Friday as Los Angeles County Sheriff Deputies and Officers from the Sierra Madre Police Department cordoned off the area in pursuit of two burglary suspects.

According to Detective Henry Amos and LASD Sgt. Oscar Lopez, two suspects attempted to gain entry to Best Buy Drugs via the roof. The incident occurred between 4:30 - 5 am and the SMPD immediately sent out notices via social media for residents to avoid the area while they search businesses and yards around Kersting Ct., Montecito and Windsor. K-9 officers were used to assisting in the search.

As a result of the quick response, Deputies were able to arrest 30 year old Jeremy Jamar White. Bail is currently set at $20,000 and he is scheduled to appear in court in Pasadena on Tuesday.

According to LA County records, White has been charged with a variety of crimes over the last ten years including domestic violence, vandalism, assault with a deadly weapon, attempted murder and one drug related offense. He served 60 days in 2015 for spousl abuse.

VOLUME 10 NO. 31

Law enforcement believes that the second suspect may in fact be a woman.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side by Deanne Davis

illumination of the soul." Lord Acton

And who exactly is Lord Acton? He was one of the great personalities of the nineteenth century, considered to be one of the most learned Englishmen of his time, described as "the magistrate of history." He made the history of liberty his life's work and was the dude who said, "Power tends to corrupt and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

The plaque pictured here is on the side of a stone pillar in front of the Church of the Ascension on with 10,000 lights each holiday season through the Baldwin. While walking Sierra Madre on a constant basis, my charming and ever cooperative walking companion, John, and I have walked past the Church of the Ascension about a million times. It's our usual place to vote, daughter, Crissy, did Kindergarten there, we've been to several events there but only this week saw this nifty brass plaque. It tells us that Ernest A. Coxhead was the architect, the church was built in 1888 and it is, indeed, an Historical Landmark. There in town, for instance, Lizzie's Trail Inn/Historical are a bunch of these around town, including a house Museum at the foot of the Mt. Wilson Trail, which just down the street from us which was one of the earliest homes in Sierra Madre, predating ours. Our with a still conveniently located in the northwest home, btw, was built in 1916 and we actually met a room. Then there's Charley's Cabin, home of Charles lady who lived here as a young child and told us great stories about hanging her little brother out a second Sierra Madre around 1905 and rented burros to story window and shooting their .22's down in the children visiting Carter's Camp. It's right where basement. Good times! Thinking about historical landmarks, I did a bit of research... thank you, Google... and discovered that Designated Historical Properties, including Pioneer there are over a thousand historical landmarks in Los Angeles County alone. Including the following: #1041 – Site of the Childhood Home of the Beach Boys - It was here that Brian, Dennis and Carl Wilson developed their unique musical skills. Also here during Labor Day weekend 1961 they, along places. Next time you're out Walking Sierra Madre, with cousin, Mike Love, and buddy, Al Jardine, recorded 'Surfin' ". In case you've always wanted to bunch, just ask the Historical Preservation Society! see where those guys grew up, it's at 3701 W. 119th St., Hawthorne. #993 Watts Towers of Simon Rodia - These towers are probably the best known work of folk art sculpture available there... anywhere. Using hand tools and cast off materials An excellent graduation gift, by the way!

"History is not a burden on the memory, but an (glass, shell, pottery pieces and broken tile) Italian immigrant Simon Rodia spent 30 years building a tribute to his adopted country and a monument to the spirit of individuals who make their dreams tangible. If you've never seen these, they're at 1765 E. 107th St., Los Angeles.

> #990 Christmas Tree Lane - We've all been there but did you know this: the 135 Deodar Cedar trees were planted in 1885 by the Woodbury Family, founders of Altadena. First organized by F.C. Nash in 1920, the Mile of Christmas Trees has been strung efforts of volunteers and the Christmas Tree Lane Association. It is the oldest large-scale Christmas lighting spectacle in Southern California. Santa Rosa Ave. both sides of the street from Woodbury Ave. To Altadena Dr. in Altadena. So when you go there this Christmas, you can dazzle all the people in your car with this great trivia!

> We have more great historical landmarks right here was once a provisioning station for the pack mules, Chantry, who came west seeking gold, arrived in Woodland Drive meets Sturtevant in the Canyon. We actually have 48 properties listed as Cemetery, the old North Church of Sierra Madre Congregational Church which was built in 1890, the E. Waldo Ward Ranch and Home, built in 1903, Ascension Church, of course and if you wander around town, you'll see markers in the most unlikely see how many you can spot. ## About The Arcadia Performing Arts Center and Arcadia Performing Arts Foundation

The opening of the Arcadia Performing Arts Center, which anchors the northwest corner of the campus of Arcadia High School, on October 18, 2012, was the realization of a long-standing dream for the citizens of Arcadia to have a major center for arts and culture in the community. This 40,000 square foot, state-of-the-art facility includes a main performance hall with seating for 1,150, a stage that holds 200 musicians, tunable acoustics and professional lighting and sound. In addition, the center boasts an orchestra room with practice rooms and music library, a dance studio with sprung wood floors, a professional stagecraft workshop and a Black Box theater with separate control room and flexible seating that can host 125 guests.

The realization of the Performing Arts Center clearly shows the commitment of the Arcadia community to the arts. With this realization comes the need for another commitment - to the future of the building, arts education and arts programming. The Arcadia Performing Arts Foundation is dedicated to maintaining the Performing Arts Center as a nucleus for the arts, education and engagement where the lives of students and the greater community are enriched.

The Arcadia Performing Arts Foundation has currently set a fundraising goal $10 million that will result in an endowment to provide regular funding for the school district arts programs and the Performing Arts Center. The Arcadia Performing Arts Center provides a first-class venue for the San Gabriel Valley where the public can enjoy major concert and performing arts attractions, and where student talent can be fostered and supported with a venue for their work.

THE GOOD LIFE

ACUPUNCTURE CAN HELP RELIEVE PAIN AND MANY OTHER AILMENTS

Dear Savvy Senior,

Is acupuncture a proven treatment for arthritis pain? I have a lot of back and neck pain and am wondering if it's worth trying. What all can you tell me about acupuncture?

Afraid of Needles

Dear Afraid,

Many well-designed studies over the years - funded by the National Institutes of Health - have found acupuncture to be very effective in easing arthritis pain, and can help with a variety of other ailments too. Here's what you should know.

First used in China more than 2,000 years ago, acupuncture has become increasingly popular in the United States over the past 40 years.

While acupuncture isn't a cure-all treatment, it is a safe, drug-free option for relieving many different types of pain including osteoarthritis, low back pain, neck pain, migraine headaches, fibromyalgia, postoperative pain, tennis elbow, carpel tunnel syndrome, dental pain, menstrual cramps and more. Studies have also shown that it can be helpful in treating asthma, depression, digestive disorders, addictions, menopause symptoms like hot flashes, and nausea caused by chemotherapy or anesthesia.

Exactly how or why acupuncture works is still not fully understood, but it's based on the traditional Eastern theory that vital energy flows through pathways in the body, and when any of these pathways get blocked, pain and illness result. Acupuncture unblocks the pathways to restore health.

However, today most U.S. medical doctors tend to believe that acupuncture works because it stimulates the nerves causing the release of endorphins, which are the body's natural painkiller hormones. It's also shown to increase blood circulation, decrease inflammation and stimulate the immune system.

What to Know

If the thought of getting needles stuck into your body makes you a little uneasy, you'll be happy to know that an acupuncture treatment is nothing like getting a shot. In fact, it's quite relaxing. Here are some additional points you should know:

The needles: They're solid, sterile and disposable (used only once), and as thin as a cat's whisker. The number of needles used for each treatment can vary anywhere from a few, up to a dozen or more. And where the needles are actually stuck depends on the condition being treated, but they are typically inserted about one-quarter to 1-inch deep, and are left in place for about 20 minutes. After placement, the needles are sometimes twirled or manipulated, or stimulated with electricity or heat.

Does it hurt? You may feel a brief, sharp sensation when the needle is inserted, but generally it's not painful. Once the needle is in place, however, you may feel a tingling sensation, numbness, mild pressure or warmth.

Treatments: How many treatments you'll need will depend on the severity of your condition - 12 treatments done weekly or biweekly is very common. It's also important to know that acupuncture can be used in conjunction with other conventional medical treatments, or by itself.

Cost and coverage: The cost per treatment typically runs anywhere from $50 to $100 or more. Unfortunately, most private health plans including Medicare, do not cover acupuncture.

To find an acupuncturist in your area ask your doctor for a referral, or you can do a search online at the National Certification Commission for Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine (nccaom.org) and acufinder.com. Both sites provide a national database of certified and/or licensed practitioners. Or visit the American Academy of Medical Acupuncturists (medicalacupuncture.org), which offers a directory of MDs who are certified to practice acupuncture.

THE WORLD AROUND US

LOOKINS

ANCIENT EYE IN THE SKY

Light from a distant galaxy can be strongly bent by the gravitational influence of a foreground galaxy. That effect is called strong gravitational lensing. Normally a single galaxy is lensed at a time. The same foreground galaxy can-in theory-simultaneously lens multiple background galaxies. Although extremely rare, such a lens system offers a unique opportunity to probe the fundamental physics of galaxies and add to our understanding of cosmology.

One such lens system has recently been discoveredand the discovery was made not in an astronomer's office, but in a classroom. The lens system has been dubbed The Eye of Horus, and this ancient eye in the sky will help us understand the history of the universe.

CLASSROOM RESEARCH PAYS OFF. Subaru Telescope organizes a school for undergraduate students each year. One such session was held in September 2015 at the National Astronomical Observatory of Japan (NAOJ) headquarters in Mitaka, Tokyo.

Subaru is currently undertaking a massive survey to image a large area of the sky at an unprecedented depth with the Hyper Suprime-Cam (HSC) as part of the Subaru Strategic Program. A group of astronomers and young students were analyzing some of that HSC data at the school, when they found this unique lens system. It was a classic case of a serendipitous discovery.

"When I was looking at HSC images with the students, we came across a ring-like galaxy and we immediately recognized it as a strong-lensing signature," said Masayuki Tanaka, lead author of a science paper on the system's discovery. "The discovery would not have been possible without the large survey data to find such a rare object, as well as the deep, high quality images to detect light from distant objects.

Arsha Dezuka, a student who was working on the data, was astonished at the find. "It was my first time to look at the astronomical images taken with Hyper Suprime-Cam and I had no idea what the ring-like galaxy is," she said. "It was a great surprise for me to learn that it is such a rare, unique system!"

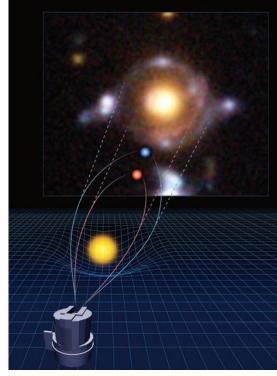

WHAT THEY SAW. A close inspection of the images revealed two distinct arcs/rings of light with different colors. This strongly suggested that two distinct background galaxies were being lensed by the foreground galaxy. The lensing galaxy is 7 billion light-years away. Follow-up spectroscopic observations of the lensed objects using the infrared-sensitive FIRE spectrometer on the Magellan Telescope confirmed that there are two A schematic diagram showing the location of galaxies behind the lens, lying at 9 and 10.5 billion lightyears away paper describing the system. "Not only do they confirm that there are two sources at different distances from us, but the more distant source seems to consist of two distinct clumps, which could indicate an interacting pair of galaxies. Also, one of the multiple images of that source is itself being split into two images, which could be due to a satellite galaxy that is too faint for us to see.'

The distinct features for the system (several bright knots, an arc, a complete Einstein ring) arise from the nice alignment of the central lens galaxy and both sources, creating an eye-like structure. The astronomers dubbed it "Eye of Horus," for the sacred eye of an ancient Egyptian goddess, since the system has an uncanny resemblance to

Don't get me wrong on this issue. It is not that I am bored with this whole business. It is simply the fact that if saying around our home: A bag for everything and you have heard one political campaign speech, you have heard one too many. I once read about a politician making an impressive campaign speech sometime after the Civil War. "Fellow Citizens," he bellowed passionately from his campaign stump, "I have fought against the Indians. I have often had no bed but the battlefield, and no canopy but the sky. I have marched over the frozen ground till blood has marked every step." By the time he finished with his speech everyone was impressed with his illustrious record. One of our first improvements, once we had removed bits of old metal, wood scraps, a tree-pruning service. This man and his logs, and an old shack, was to very heavily mulch the barren yard and the neglected courtyard areas. Mulch consisted of natural materials such as wood chips, leaves, grass clippings - organic matter that can be spread on the ground to hold in moisture. As the to our place instead and dump it in a huge mulch decomposes, it helps to increase the soil's fertility.

Our country sorely misses that "old codger." One common thread in campaign speeches, I have noticed, is each candidate wants to go to Washington and "fight for me."

I want to go on record and say that I am not mad at anyone, really. Honesty compels me to admit that I do not have any charitable thoughts toward the Devil, but that is where I draw the line. In many regards I am a pacifist and I will punch anyone in the nose who says otherwise.

That is the trouble with our country today. Everyone thinks he can solve his problem with violence and looks around for someone to fight. I am violently opposed to violence in any fashion (except my wardrobe which makes a malicious fashion statement). Politicians should set an example and stop fighting.

If these candidates want to fight for me, what I want to know is where were they when I was in the third grade and Ricky Callahan beat me up. I sure could have used a fighting hand back then. As far as I know, all of them looked the other way while I got my nose bloodied and I have not forgotten.

Time has healed my wounds and I cannot think of anyone I am mad at, with the exception, maybe, of politicians who insist on fighting for me. My advice is, don't fight for me, Mr. Candidate.

I do not need a politician to fight for me, but they could do something, if they have a mind to (and try to find one with a mind).

For example, start with bringing me a hot cup of coffee each morning. I have a hard time getting awake without that Java Jolt. My day would be a lot better with this bedside service and I would even His web site is www.jamessnyderministries.com.

everything in the bag. One morning I awoke and found myself in a garbage bag on the back porch. I'm sure it was not intentional.

Each candidate has some solution to balancing the National Budget. Forget about the national debt. I could use some help balancing my checkbook each month.

No matter how often I add those figures, I never get the same result twice. The best I can do is add up the figures at least three times and then take the average.

Those politicians boast of how they will handle International Affairs. As for me, time could be better spent helping me with some neighborhood affairs. I am not too concerned about the dog in Baghdad. The dogs running around my neighborhood have me all hot and bothered. I would be eternally grateful for an amicable solution to this problem.

Once a politician is in office, he spends a lot of time passing House bills. Just come and help me figure out my monthly telephone bill. The telephone companies in our country are destroying a thousand square miles of trees each month just to make the paper to bill us. I have no idea what all those fees are on my monthly statement. One month I decided to call the telephone company to ask about my bill. That was in 1989 and I am still on hold!

This is just my short list, and, given more time, I am sure I could come up with enough little jobs to profitably occupy an entire four year term of office. I have all but given up on politicians. I am sure most of them mean well, but the practical things in life are important to the individual.

When I need practical, personal help, I turn to one place and am never disappointed.

When I feel the stress and burden of daily life, I turn to the Lord Jesus Christ. His cordial invitation is found in Matthew 11:28-30, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is İight."

I can always count on God to fight my battles.

ARE WE LOVING OUR PETS TO DEATH?

I love my dog so much and it makes me very food I feed my pets, while reading an article happy when I know she is happy. I make sure in the waiting room at my vet's office. The she gets lots of loving and attention, daily walks and plenty of play time. I take her to animals versus human beings. It listed "people the vet for check-ups and other visits when food" items such as cookies, cheese, hot dogs, she needs them. It gives me great pleasure to spend time with her and care for her.

I realize my dog is not a child, and I do try to keep it all in perspective, but I have equivalent for a dog eating those particular to admit I am very attached to that cuddly canine critter. She gives me so much in terms of entertainment, fur therapy and relentless love. I just want to give back to her at least as much as she gives to me. I also believe it is my responsibility to be a good steward of God's creatures, particularly the one I adopted into my home and family. In doing that, I made a for the rest of her life.

There is nothing wrong with wanting to please our pets, however I do find myself wondering if it is possible to kill them with kindness by allowing them to eat more than they actually need. For example, we have a cookie jar that sits atop our kitchen counter. The outside of the jar is decorated with a fancy dog bone design. The handle on the lid is even in the shape of a dog bone. That's where we keep all the canine cookies and other tasty treats for Molly to enjoy now and then. The your favorite furry feline. problem is, the times we hand out goodies is more often NOW than THEN! We really have to be careful not to give her too many treats.

Pet obesity in America is on the rise. Did you know that there is actually an organization focused specifically on researching the blight of pet obesity in our country? The Association for Pet Obesity Prevention conducts an annual survey to analyze the percentage of pets considered technically obese in the US, and a recent study showed that 54% of dogs and cats in the US are indeed overweight. How embarrassing is that, with people - much less dogs - starving in other parts of the world?

I'm sure most pet owners are not intentionally trying to fatten up their furry friends, and I understand how tempting it is to feed our darling dogs and kitties when the notion arises, but food is not the only way we can show our love to them. It's time we start to reign it in when it comes to feeding our pets as a means of showing them love. As it our furry four-legged friends. We need to is, it seems we are on the verge of loving them nearly to death.

comes to how obesity effects their health. The live long, happy, healthy lives.

difference is, we humans are the ones in charge of what goes on the plate, and in the bowl. Our pets have to rely on us to do the right thing by making healthy choices for their daily diet and regulating their rations. Remember the old adage, "You are what you eat"? Well this phrase rings true for your pets as much as does for you.

I first realized how important it is to be careful in selecting the quality and quantity of article compared the affect of certain foods on and other foods that (heaven forbid) one might want to share with the pets as leftover scraps after a meal. It showed the caloric items compared to the human. The biological results were mind-boggling and potentially devastating to the health of a dog.

For example, a chocolate chip cookie falls to the floor only to be gobbled up within seconds by your beloved buddy, right? Well, if you had eaten that cookie it would have rendered a somewhat reasonable number of calories that promise to God that I would take care of her could be easily burned by a basically healthy person. But the caloric value and physical affect of a single cookie consumed by a canine becomes the relative equivalent of eating an entire hamburger.

The article also showed the compared caloric value of a one ounce chunk of cheddar cheese, which to the human is not a big deal, but to a dog it becomes equivalent to the caloric value of 1 <sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> hamburgers! For a cat, a single potato chip is equal to half a hamburger, and one cup of whole milk equals three entire burgers for

When we take a close look at these 'fat facts', we begin to realize how important it is to limit the types and amounts of foods we feed our pets. Their little bodies are simply not designed to process the amount of food we are accustomed to consuming. And it wouldn't hurt us to back off a bit on our own binging as well!

The Treat Translator article is meant to encourage us animal lovers to resist feeding our pets poor quality "people food", but it also shows the importance of rationing the quantity of healthy food we give them. Some animals are pretty good about not eating more than they need while others will eat every bit you put out for them. It is up to us to control their daily caloric intake.

We all like to think of ourselves as good pet owners, and for the most part I believe most people are, but let's not forget that food should never be the main means of showing love to focus more on giving them lots of affectionate encouragement, grooming, exercise and play Animals are a lot like humans when it time, and a lot less treats if we want them to one class at a time, one lecture at a time, and one book at a time. By bringing yogic philosophy into everyday life, your yoga practice will actually change who you are. I draw from the vast, greatly influential Sankhya Philosophy.

To live happy and content lives, we want to be in a place mentally and emotionally that's clear, calm, content and intelligent. It's the state of being that we want to move towards --always. This clear, pure state of being is called Sattva, which is one of the gunas (or the mental doshas) derived from Sankhya.

There are things we cannot control and there are things that we can control. To create the life we want, we have to work within the things that are in our control such as diet, thoughts, and actions/ activities. There is a dynamic interaction between all three that shapes how we are in each moment and each day.

Take a look at diet; every food we ingest affects our body and mind. If we choose to eat a great amount toward balance and the life you want to create? of sweets or fatty food, we're going to feel sluggish and out of energy. LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND?

Prim is a 2 year old tabby domestic short hair, and has the perfect calm and proper demeanor to fit her name. When visitors come into Mini Manor, Prim politely meows inviting them to meet her. And once she has the attention she seeks, she loves to be petted and rolls over to have gentle lady-like belly rubs. When she is comfortable with her visitor, Prim enjoys sitting in a staff or volunteer lap for one on one attention. She is an affectionate girl and when you look into her bright green eyes, you'll see a lady just waiting to give and receive love. Prim will come after the laser light and feathery toys to play with people. While she gets along fine with the other cats in her area, she just prefers to watch their antics from a distance. Prim is looking for her forever family where her sweet, calm disposition will be appreciated.

Her adoption fee is $49 from July 29th through August 14th along with all of her other feline cat and kitten friends at the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society. # CALTRANS CLOSES PART OF WESTBOUND I-210 IN PASADENA THIS WEEKEND, JULY 29 - AUGUST 1, 2016

PASADENA, Calif .-- Residents, visitors and businesses in Pasadena are advised that Caltrans will shut down part of the westbound I-210 Freeway, near Highway 134, between Lake Avenue and Mountain Street, for 55 hours this weekend, beginning at 10 p.m., Friday, July 29, until 5 a.m., Monday, August 1, 2016

Roadway pavement work is prompting the closure this weekend and a second weekend as well, according to Caltrans.

The two separate, 55-hour full weekend closures on the I-210 in Pasadena are scheduled to be:

• 10 p.m., Friday, July 29 to 5 a.m., Monday, August 1, 2016

This weekend's closure means the eastbound Highway 134 connector to the westbound I-210 will be closed during this time. The westbound I-210 offramps for Marengo Avenue and Mountain Street will also be closed, as well as the onramp for the I-210 at Walnut Street.

Motorists are urge d to slow down and use caution while driving in the freeway construction area; to be extra alert and to follow all freeway detour signs if you must travel through the area. Motorists should consider seeking alternative routes to avoid this part of I-210 during the closures.

Although the I-210 and related roadways might be closed, Pasadena remains open for business and welcomes everyone to visit, dine and shop here instead of being stuck in freeway traffic!

On the Marquee: Notes from the Sierra MadrePlayhouse

OVATION RECOMMENDED! CONUNDRUM

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano

We got wonderful news this week when we learned that Putnam County Spelling Bee is Ovation Recommended! That means that enough Ovation voters (working theater professionals all) saw the show and scored it highly enough to place within the top 20% of all scores for shows this year. This is our second Ovation Recommended in a row following the citation for The Glass Menagerie.

I loved being able to email the cast, crew, and design team of the show with this great news which is such a testament to their hard work and dedication. Unfortunately, I had to follow that email with another - cancelling the show this Saturday, July 30 and next, August 6 because of incredibly low ticket sales.

I am perplexed. We scheduled this show after being turned down for 3 other shows we wanted to do and deciding against a fourth as being too expensive. I was told by everyone I spoke to about it that this show sold well wherever it played and was an audience favorite. I hired Robert Marra who did such a lovely job on Always...Patsy Cline last year and staffed the show with terrific designers who all came through with great work. We received wonderful reviews (although I'm beginning to doubt the value of reviews), we have gotten a coveted Ovation Recommended from our peers Please visit our website at SierraMadrePlayhouse. (this may boost our sales – but we'll have to see), org or call Mary at 626.355.4318 to purchase tickets.

AND, most importantly, audiences who have seen the show LOVE it (but it is not turning into wordof-mouth sales). There are no sure things in theater but this has me shaking my head.

Everyone has a different theory why this show isn't selling: the political season, Summer, the heat, low name recognition, the perception that it is a kids show - and now the Olympics will be starting. I would chalk it up to another learning experience if it weren't so decimating to our already fragile budget. We just can't afford the loss that we are facing for this show. So in the interest of saving some money, we are cancelling those two performances.

Advertising would probably help, but we just don't have the money. All I can ask is that you, our loyal patrons and friends, come see the show and bring people with you. We run until August 21 and I promise you a good time.

This Sunday we are featuring Suburban Showgirl starring Palmer Davis. It is a delightful one-woman show drawing from her years as a showgirl in Vegas and on Broadway. It is funny and delightful and definitely family-friendly. The show is at 7pm. She will be performing the show again on August 7 at the same time. It really is a blast.

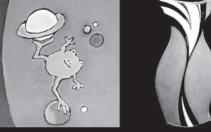

This is your Playhouse. Please let me hear from you.

Rise of the Rocket Girls: The Women Who Propelled Us, from Missiles to the Moon to TA-NEHIS Mars by Nathalia Holt

The riveting true story of the and women who launched America into space.In the 1940s and my 50s, when the newly minted Jet Propulsion Laboratory needed quick-thinking mathematicians to calculate velocities and plot trajectories, they didn't turn to STHE WORLD male graduates. Rather, they recruited an elite group of young women who, with only pencil, paper, and mathematical prowess, or "This is required reading." - Toni Morrison transformed rocket design, helped 🚾 bring about the first American satellites, and made the exploration of the solar system possible. For the first time, this book tells the stories of these women--known as "human computers"--who broke the boundaries of both gender and science. Based on extensive research and interviews with all the living members of the team,

Americans have built an empire on the idea of "race," a falsehood that damages us all but falls most heavily on the bodies of black women and men, bodies exploited through slavery and segregation, and, today, threatened, locked up, and murdered out of all proportion. What is it like to inhabit a black body and find a way to live within it? And how can we all honestly reckon with this fraught history and free ourselves from its burden? This book is Coates's attempt to answer these questions in a letter to his adolescent son. Coates shares with his son and readers, the story of his awakening to the truth about his place in the world through a series of revelatory experiences, from Howard University to Civil War battlefields, from the South Side of Chicago to Paris, from his childhood home to the living rooms of mothers whose children's lives were taken as American plunder. Beautifully woven from personal narrative, reimagined history, and fresh, emotionally charged reportage, Between the World and Me clearly illuminates the past, bracingly confronts our present, and offers a transcendent vision for a way forward.

"The Sierra Madre Playhouse brings you wonderfully produced shows that tell of the American Experience -- from comedies to dramas to musicals both heartfelt and toetapping and plays for youth to inspire a life-long appreciation for theater. Come see how we've grown. You'll be glad you did!'

Mrs. Queen Takes the Train: A Novel by William Kuhn

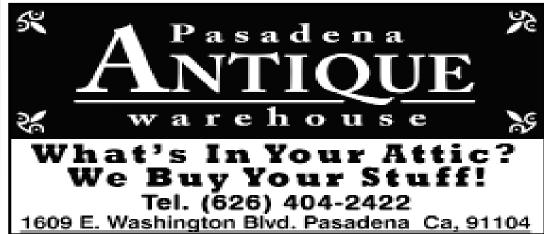

Mrs Queen Takes the Train wittily imagines the kerfuffle that transpires when a bored Queen Elizabeth strolls out of the palace in search of a little fun, leaving behind a desperate team of courtiers who must find the missing Windsor before a national scandal erupts. Reminiscent of Alan Bennett's The Uncommon Reader, this lively, wonderfully inventive romp takes readers into the mind of the grand matriarch of Britain's Royal Family, bringing us an endearing runaway Queen Elizabeth on the town, and leading us behind the Buckingham Palace walls and into the upstairs/ downstairs spaces of England's monarchy.

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

CLEAN BURIALS: NEW MUSHROOM SUIT REMOVES BODY TOXINS

If you have ever wondered about the impact your body will have on the environment when you are gone, you are not alone. Traditional burial and cremation both present significant environmental challenges.

When traditional burial is used, embalming fluid-typically a formaldehyde cocktail-is injected into the body to delay decomposition. While these chemicals achieve the desired effect (preserving the body, particularly for viewing by family and friends), they remain in the body after burial and may seep into the soil.

Cremation, on the other hand, comes with its own set of environmental concerns. The nonprofit Funeral Consumers Alliance of Southern California reports that "an average of 28 gallons of fuel" is used in a typical cremation, releasing 626.587.3058 or visit www.GarlettLaw.com for more "approximately 540 pounds of carbon dioxide."

Recognizing the lack of eco-friendly options, two designers created the Infinity Burial Suit and related products. The handcrafted suit is made from infinity mushrooms - I kid you not - and was designed to quickly decompose body tissue and excretions, as well as industrial toxins. The company which sells the suit suggests that "[t] he cultivation process promotes acceptance of and a personal engagement with death and decomposition."

While it can be difficult to think about death and the decomposition of our bodies, the fact is that we will all die. Once we come to terms with this, we can become proactive in arranging things our way. Accepting death allows us to plan our own funeral/burial and leave a legacy of love for our family after we're gone.

Whether you choose to be buried in a suit made of mushrooms is not the point. The point is that if you face and plan for the reality of death it will actually make your life better now. You will get to decide what's important to you rather than leaving that burden to someone else. You will also experience peace of mind and relief knowing you have taken the steps to make things as easy as possible for those you love most. You see, estate planning is a combined gift of life for yourself and a lifetime gift of love for your family. How great is that?

Dedicated to your family's health, wealth, and happiness,

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Donald Trump,

I just want to thank you for being the spoon that skimmed back all of the surface fat which was sitting on top of a pot of racism, homophobia, sexism, sectarianism, and so many other isms and phobias.

Thank you for exposing your true self and so many others like you who have for decades been hiding behind false smiles of acceptance and inclusion for those who are darker than you, speak different languages than you, have different beliefs than you, have different socioeconomic experiences than you, who have different sexual orientations than you, who wear different clothing than you, who work as hard or harder than you, who arrived in the United States of America differently than you, who are just plan different than you.

Thank you Donald Trump for letting me know that your definition of humane is to build a wall that separates (SEGREGATES) people from each other.

Thank you Donald Trump for letting me know that you are comfortable acting like a child, having temper tantrums, and calling people names. Most of us outgrew that phase of life when we became adults.

The road that the people of this "ALREADY GREAT" Country must travel is long and winding and full of hills and mountains that must be climbed and valleys that must be trekked across. We as a Nation have travelled through horrid times when men and women did unspeakable things to other men and women just because of differences. And there you are... wanting to be president of this "All Ready Great Nation" with your broken GPS wanting to drag us all back to and through those times again when we need to be moving forward.

Being different makes us great. As a Nation we still have so much more that we have to do in order to equalize everyone who lives here and who chooses to come and live here. We are going to make mistakes and take missteps. We are going to royally screw up. We are going to make bad decisions, but we are also going to make things work along the way.

Just about every brick and mortar business has a sign that reads "We Reserve the Right to Refuse Service". Thank you Donald Trump for making me realize that your presidency will make those who are like you feel comfortable enough to change those signs to read "We Reserve the Right to Refuse Service to: MUSLIMS, BLACKS, ASIANS, MEXICANS, WOMEN, LGBTQ, THE DISABLED, SPECIAL NEEDS, and anyone else who is DIFFERENT....need I go on?

Thank you Donald Trump for making it so easy for me to decide that I don't want you as my president. Thank you Donald Trump for helping me to decide that I'm voting for Hillary Clinton in November because this election is personal.

Hillary Clinton's plans for the economy would boost growth and create millions of jobs, according to a new analysis. The super rich would get richer and weaker if Mr. Trump's economic Moody's Analytics estimates that if the everyone else would be worse off, Moody's concludes. Just how bad would it get? The downturn under a President Trump would last her presidency, or 3.2 million more than

The pace of GDP growth would also accelerate to an annual average of 2.7%, from the current forecast of 2.3%.

TRUMP

Unlike their Republican counterparts, Democrats tend not to wallow in the sewer with infantile chants like "Lock Her Up." Instead, they simply whacked Donald Trump with substance throughout their four day convention in Philadelphia.

Take for instance New York congressman Joe Crowley, who assailed Trump for grabbing federal money that was intended to help small businesses crippled by 9/11. Crowley's indictment has the added advantage of being true.

"Where was Donald Trump in the days and months and the years after 9/11? He didn't stand at the pile, he didn't lobby Congress for help, he didn't fight for the first responders," Crowley noted. "Nope, he cashed in, collecting $150,000 in government funds intended to help small businesses recover — even though days after the attack Trump said his properties were not affected."

One goal of the Democratic National Convention was to draw stark character contrasts between Hillary Clinton and Trump. Case in point, their divergent re-actions after the planes leveled the towers.

Clinton, as a newbie senator, worked successfully on health legislation to address the needs of first responders who'd spent weeks breathing toxic PCBs. In '04, the re-sponders staged a ceremony to thank her. Trump, on the other hand, did precisely what Crowley described. He made money off the attack.

This has been well-documented by the New York Daily News, and seconded by two conservative media outlets, Red State and The Weekly Standard. A state grant program was set up to help small businesses recover and rebuild. But because the rules were so loose, Trump and some big corporations jumped in. The state program defined "small business" as 500 employes or less; Trump, in his application, said that his building at 40 Wall Street had 28 employes. Voila, he got $150,000 — even though, as he told German TV shortly after the 9/11, his property "wasn't, fortunately, affected by what happened to the World Trade Center."

Did he break any laws? Nope. Instead, as the conservative Weekly Standard wrote last winter, "through a loophole in the rules, Trump was able to squeeze $150,000 of money from taxpayers.

Is this a character issue? Absolutely. As the Red State site wrote last winter — and it's great to see these conservative outlets in sync with a Democratic congressman we're talking here about a despicable human being:

"This simply goes to Trump's sense of entitlement. If he wants your house for a limousine parking lot, well, he's entitled Support abortion and then expect to be believed when he changes his tune? Entitled. Money for small businesses af-fected by 9/11? Entitled. He took this grant money, and I'm sure he'd tell vou that $150K is chump change .... He didn't need it. But he wanted it.'

And sure enough, Trump does think it's chump change. Two months ago, when The New York Times asked him about it, he described it as "this small amount of money." That's probably news to the median American household, which, according to the Census Bureau, posts an annual tally of $54,000.

Still, the odds are high that compared to the many other faults and failures of the Republican presidential nominee, this episode of "Donald Trump, 9/11 Leech" will look like chump change.

HINCKLEY

A federal judge has ruled that John Hinckley Jr., the mentally disturbed Hinckley Jr., the mentally disturbed forgiven Hinckley. man who tried to assassinate my father Not only that, he 35 years ago, will be set free in about a week.

Many people, including members of my own family, think it's a terrible injustice that Hinckley, now 61, will be allowed to leave the mental hospital and live permanently with his elderly mother in Virginia.

I don't.

Before I explain, I'd like to remind people of what my father said and did in the days following the events of March 30, 1981.

When I walked into his hospital room the next day and saw my wounded father, the first thing he said to me, after "Good morning," was "Michael, if you're ever going to be shot, don't be wearing a new suit."

What? I thought to myself.

"Well, yesterday I was shot."

"I know, father. I know."

"Well, I was wearing a brand new suit I had just picked up the day before. And I'm telling you, if you're going to get shot don't be wearing a new suit.

"When I was on the gurney they cut that suit off me and the last time I saw it it was in shreds in the corner of my hospital room. That's what they do. They cut it off you.'

My father was only half done with his story.

That young man who shot me, John Hinckley Jr., I understand his parents are in the oil biz."

Yes they are, Dad."

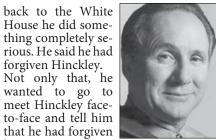

"I understand they live in Denver." 'Yes they do, Dad.

"Do you think they have any money?" "Dad," I said, "they are in the oil business and live in Denver. Of course they have money.<sup>3</sup>

My dad looked at me and said, "Well, do you think they'd buy me a new suit?" Humor was my dad's way of making strangers feel comfortable in his presence. He was the same way with his family.

Before my father was well enough to go

Hinckley's doctors didn't think that was a good idea because Hinckley was too mentally unstable, so it never happened. But it proves, as I always like to say, that my father didn't just recite "The Lord's Prayer," he lived it.

A lot of people can't forgive Hinckley even today.

They were shocked in 1981 when he was found not guilty by reason of insanity and they were angry when they found out he'd become eligible for release some day.

Because of Hinckley, the laws were changed. Today if you shoot at the president you stay in prison for life, no matter how crazy you are.

Over the years all of us in the families hurt by Hinckley have watched the courts and doctors slowly but surely release him through the mental health system.

Hinckley's not a threat to my family or anyone else's. But he's not totally free and never will be.

He may not have bars to look through, but he has his own type of jail. People will be watching him all the time. So will the Secret Service.

At first I was very upset and angry when Hinckley got off on the insanity defense. How could a person shoot the president of the United States and be allowed to ever have any freedom at all?

Fifteen years ago I was still angry. But 15 years later I want to be more like my father and have a forgiving heart, not an angry heart.

So at the same time John Hinckley has been set free, maybe I have been too. Michael Reagan is the son of President Ronald Reagan, a political consultant, and the author of "The New Reagan Revolution" (St. Martin's Press).
