REMEMBRANCES RAE V. ANDERSON JR.

1923 - 2016

"They broke the mold after they made Rae!" "What an inspiration!"

Another of the Greatest Generation has left us. Rae V. Anderson, 51 year resident of Sierra Madre, passed away September 9, 2016. World War II Submariner and Korean War veteran, member and past president of the Search & Rescue Team and daily hiker of the Mt. Wilson Trail for many years, Rae was a naturalist of the finest kind with an encyclopedic knowledge of birds, plants, trees, flora and fauna of every description.

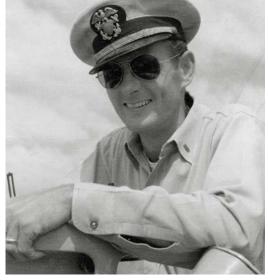

Born May 30, 1923, Rae was a resident of Alhambra and Southern California all his life, except for stretches in the Navy, where he served his Country with pride and excellence. Rae joined the Navy in 1942 at a very young 19 and served on a submarine in the Pacific as a radio-sonar-radar operator and technician. He was part of the commission crew of the SS-402 Sea Fox Balao-class submarine. Rae served 'duration plus six months' exiting active duty in 1946, then went into the Reserves. Rae was on Midway Island when the atomic bombs were dropped on Japan.

Commissioned as a Reserves officer in the Peacetime Navy, Rae was sent back to Japan where he worked with and made friends with the Japanese officers who made up what was called the Japanese Maritime Defense Force after the War, training them on Patrol Frigates, notably, the USS Newport. Rae is pictured here on the bridge of the USS Newport on which he was the Executive Officer during the Korean War. Rae frequently commented that these Japanese officers, the finest surviving officers following WW2 had forgotten more about seamanship than he ever knew!

Rae was part of the shore support team in the shelling of the Inchon invasion and had his share of Korean Service medals. Rae loved the Navy but not so much his time in the Korean conflict.

Rae attended Pasadena JC (now PCC) then went on to graduate from UC Berkeley with a BS in business. He was a long-time employee of Pacific Telephone, seeking employment with a company that would afford him the ability to take care of his family. As a child growing up in the Depression, that stability was something he greatly valued for his family. He retired from Pacific Telephone at age 63 and devoted himself to his real love, pursuit of knowledge in natural history and the natural sciences.

Rae married Geraldine Mary Griest in October, 1942 - just before he entered the Navy. They were blessed with four children: Kenneth Rae, Eric Van, and twins Kurt Scott and Heidi Lucille. Kurt laughingly stressed that he was by far the senior twin, being 13 minutes older than Heidi! Rae and Gerry were the proud grandparents of ten grandchildren and numerous great-grands. Gerry passed away just two months short of their 60th wedding anniversary.

Rae's home, hidden away in the Sierra Madre Canyon, is one of those lovely places where it's just plain peaceful to be. As part of the group celebrating Rae's 93rd birthday, I had occasion to sit out on his back deck with many of his friends and admire the trees and Rae's Koi pond. Ah, the Koi pond...very deep, straight down with an overhang - designed to defeat the miserable raccoons and herons, eventually became a sushi platter for our bears. Over the years, Rae spent a fortune on Koi and at this moment, his least two favorites are still swimming happily and awaiting their next helping of TetraPond Koi Growth Food!

A past president and member, of the Sierra Madre Search & Rescue Team, Rae organized and took part in searches, ran and organized base camps and was heavily involved in the bloodhound training as one of the family dogs, Jinx, was a bloodhound and the Anderson sons quickly became the "bait" in training these search dogs. "You guys go up the trail there and hide!" The process would repeat with the tracking distances increasing, a few feet at a time until the hounds became proficient at finding the right scent and tracking the victim for miles.

At age 75, Rae met Anne Garbarine and they became fast friends and fellow Trail hikers, undertaking a backpack trip into the Sierras and, along with a group of ladies, who called themselves the Rae-ettes, went to Africa in 2008, visiting Uganda to see the gorillas. This arduous two day adventure to be close to gorilla families was a huge thing for Rae and he frequently spoke of the gorillas, even having them as his screen saver. Two of his Rae-ettes took him to Catalina for his 92nd birthday, to show him the place he hadn't seen since the 1940's.

Rae was one of those people who would bend over backward to help a friend and, as a result, had many friends who loved him dearly. He was a frequent dogsitter and did his best to corrupt the best behaved dogs. He was an aviculturist, involved particularly with the spectacularly beautiful Lady Gouldian Finch, and was renowned for his success in keeping and breeding them.

Rae's picture is proudly displayed on our own Veteran's Memorial Wall in Sierra Madre Memorial Park. A memorial will be held at Ascension Church in Sierra Madre at 9:00 AM, Saturday, October 29, 2016.

Investigators initiated the investigation after receiving reports from the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC).

Randall was booked at the LAPD, 77th Street Jail on the aforementioned charge, and was subsequently released on $20,000 bail. Randall was given a Notice to Appear at the Clara Shortridge Foltz Criminal Court Building, Division 30 on October 14, 2016.

CITY LOSES PUBLIC SAFETY AND PUBLIC WORKS DIRECTORS TO RETIREMENT

The City of Sierra Madre announced this week the retirements of Sierra Madre Public Safety Director and SMPD Chief Larry Giannone (left) and Public Works Director Bruce Inman, (below) and Public Safety Director Larry Giannone at the end of the year. This announcement comes on the heels of City Manager Elaine Aguilar's retirement earlier this month.

Inman, the senior of the three, has been employed by the city since 1997. Both Aguilar and Giannone joined the city in 2007.

Mayor Gene Goss noted that the city will begin the process of replacing these individuals as soon as possible. The first priority is anticipated to be a replacement for City Manager Aguilar whose Assistant Elisa Cox left the city for another position a few months ago. The Police Department has Captain Joe Ortiz and Lt. Donna Cayson to fill in until a new chief is named. In addition, Sierra Madre native Chris Cimino has been Inman's 'right hand' for many years.

Giannone began his employment with Sierra Madre in March 2007, as a Captain in the Police Department. He was promoted to Chief of Police in 2012, and then was appointed Public Safety Director in November 2014, overseeing both the Police and Fire Departments. Giannone's public safety career began 44 years ago, as a Police Cadet with the Huntington Beach Police Department.

When Giannone asked about was his service to Sierra Madre, he replied, "In 2007 I joined the Sierra Madre Police Department with one goal in mind -- that was to make it a stronger and more professional police department. As I recently reflected on the Department as a whole, I realized that not only has my goal been but the Police Department is strong and in the been in for many years. The Department will be back to full staffing, providing 24\7 service to the community starting October 30, 2016. I have been involved in the Law Enforcement profession for 44 years; it is now time to pass the torch to my strong management team to continue to move this Department forward and to continue providing the best possible service to the Sierra Madre Community." City Manager Aguilar added, "Larry is truly amazing; not only is he a great Chief, but he also possesses skills and professional insight that extend beyond his public safety background and he is always ready to step in to help with whatever is needed. But most significantly, he is a true example of a tireless, dedicated public servant, public safety professional, and a leader." Giannone last day will be December 10, 2016

When giving notice of his retirement, Bruce Inman stated, "As I prepare to leave Sierra Madre I am

HELP DECORATE SIERRA MADRE FOR HALLOWEEN

Students between the ages of 9-17 are invited to participate in Sierra Madre's spooktacular Halloween Window Painting Contest. Applications and guidelines will be distributed in private schools and can be found coming home with students in PUSD the week of September 6. They can also be picked up at the front desk of City Hall and at the Library where they have been available since the middle of August. Completed applications are due back to City Hall or the Library by 5 pm on Tuesday, October 11.

Teams of up to four students of the same age group can work on a window design. At least one participant must be a Sierra Madre resident. Painting will be done from 2:30-6:00 pm on Friday, October 21, and from 7:30-10:00 AM on Saturday, October 22. Judging will follow and awards by age group will be given at 12:15 on Saturday.

Our local merchants are critical to the success of this event. They support us by allowing us to use their windows for the painting contest, through monetary donations to cover the cost of materials, and through the donation of other items that enhance the experience of the participants. We thank them for their help.

This year's Halloween Window Painting Contest is sponsored and underwritten by the Sierra Madre Civic Club and is free to participants. Specific questions may be directed to Margaret Switzer, event chair, Sierra Madre Civic Club at 626 355-8207. Last year's participation enjoyed a record turnout as 275 children painted 88 windows offered by 65 merchants. This was an increase of 40%. We look forward to your participation in this annual fun, fall activity.

Pasadena City College will join other colleges, schools, and civic institutions around California to take part in the Great California ShakeOut On October 20, at 10:20 a.m.

A key aspect of the ShakeOut is the integration of comprehensive science-based earthquake research and the lessons learned from decades of social science research about why people get prepared. The result is a "teachable moment" on par with having an actual earthquake (often followed by increased interest in getting ready for earthquakes).

Last year, over 43 million people participated in Great ShakeOut Earthquake Drills. The International ShakeOut Day of Action is the third Thursday of October each year.

HOW CLASSROOMS ARE CHANGING TO BETTER TEACH 'STEAM' SUBJECTS

(StatePoint) The U.S. may be short as many as three million high-skilled workers by 2018, according to National Math + Science Initiative predictions. In response, more educators and schools are embracing the idea that today's curriculum must include Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts and Math (STEAM), in order to adequately prepare children for the future.

With this shift comes the need for new educational tools. Here are three big ways that classrooms are changing to keep up with this year's curriculum.

Cohesive Lesson Plans

You may remember shuffling from one class to another during your school days, learning subjects in a siloed style. After you graduated, you probably realized that's not how the real world works. Luckily, schools that are focused on STEAM-related subjects appreciate this fact and, as a result, many teachers today are synthesizing the principles of multiple subjects at once for greater cohesion.

From art projects that incorporate math concepts to science projects that require an artistic hand, students today can expect their teachers to use games, handson learning stations and interactive digital technology to go beyond recitation in order to invent, create and discover.

Projecting the Future

Today's teachers are saying goodbye to the old school projectors you may remember from your own childhood, and with good reason. New projectors are designed to bring lesson plans to life within seconds.

For example, Casio's line of Ultra Short Throw projectors offers teachers the ability to present interactive multimedia content directly from a mobile device, USB stick, laptop or even the internal memory of the machine itself. Plus, no time is lost in getting the lesson set up once the bell rings, as an image can be displayed at full brightness in a matter of seconds.

The icing on the cake is that these new projectors are environmentally-friendly and can be easy on a school's budget, reducing power consumption by up to 40 percent and offering an operating life of the saved money on other STEAMrelated programming needs.

Add it Up

Math class is more important than ever, and students and teachers are gearing up accordingly with up-todate graphing calculators that can enhance understanding of mathematic principles. New calculators, such as the PRIZM fx-CG10 from Casio, are allowing students to create their own graphs over pictures of real-life scenes to better understand the functions from the graphs. Additionally, today's calculators feature color LCD with a full textbook-style display to make classroom learning, as well as homework, easier to digest. To learn more, visit Casio.com.

As the world changes, so does the classroom. New tools are helping educators prepare students for tomorrow and for challenges solvable by better STEAM knowledge.

Here's an oldie-but-goodie problem: I myself got caught in the net. I have preached a hundred times to make sure you look at your receipt when dining out. Last week my friends and I ventured out and about town watching college football at three different Pasadena watering holes. My turn to buy was at the legendary Mijares restaurant. This gem is the oldest restaurant in the San Gabriel Valley. We ordered two rounds of margaritas - their taste was magnificent! Then came time to pay, and my bill was just short of $90! How could that be for just six drinks? I would understand at the Langham or at a beach side resort, but come on. The bartender explained to me that one of my friends, unbeknownst to me, is a regular and always orders Patron. Well, I didn't know that, but okay, I paid the bill, and I hope my loss is your gain. Read the bill, and make sure when you order a house glass of wine or a margarita that you read the fine print.

"Let The Buyer Beware!" You have heard the old adage time and time again, and sometimes a good deal really is too good to be true. Two emails caught my attention this week, so I thought I would share some wine knowledge with you.

There are four things to look for to determine if a wine has turned bad:
- Has the wine changed color?
Does the red wine now have a hint of brown, or has the white wine turned darker?

- Does the wine still have "legs", meaning are there streaks of wine attached to the glass after a good swirl of the wine?
- Does it still smell like wine?
- Is the cork pushing its way out of the bottle? This usually means that the wine has been exposed to the heat or has been mishandled.

If your answer to any of these is "yes", stay away from this wine.

Reader Sally from Whittier tried to find a 2011 vintage of her favorite Pinot Noir. She ended up with a 2006, and said the bottle was a little dusty. When you do find a bargain on a bottle of wine make sure the wine has been stored on its side and is not too dusty, and once the cork is pulled it should be moist.

My own experience for sparkling wine at a restaurant, if you are buying by the glass, is to ask the server/bartender to open a fresh bottle. Sparklers are susceptible to losing their bubbles within a few hours after opening. Most importantly, there should be a "pop" sound when uncorking, and if the cork comes out too early beware.

Happy wine hunting!!

FOREST SERVICE PARTNERS TO HOST PILOT SHUTTLE TO CHANTRY FLAT

The Forest Service in collaboration with a variety of local community partners are using a grant from Car-less California to operate a weekend "pilot" shuttle to Chantry Flat beginning this Saturday, September 24 running through Oct. 9. This pilot project will run for the next three weekends to assess the feasibility and interest for future transportation projects that may be possible by partnering with local communities and organizations.

Three 18 passenger shuttles will transport visitors to and from the "Arcadia" Gold Line Station. Pick up and drop off will be from the adjacent REI parking lot at E. Santa Clara St. The shuttles will run throughout the day to the Chantry Flat picnic area with the first trip of the day beginning at 7:00 a.m. and the last shuttle leaving Chantry at 4:00 p.m. (*Estimated 30 to 45 minutes intervals between the stops.)

This pilot program was created as a small-scale version of what might be possible, in a large urban area, if we work collectively together to connect underserved communities with their public lands. "Our hope is that this pilot will be seen as a positive way to connect visitors to the Forest in a more engaging, convenient and environmentally green way." said Jeffery Vail, Forest Supervisor of the Angeles National Forest - San Gabriel Mountains National Monument.

In honor of National Public Lands Day (NPLD), this pilot program kicks off on Sept. 24 and will run on weekends through Oct. 9 in commemoration of the establishment of the San Gabriel Mountains National Monument in 2014. During the opening weekend, the public is invited to join Forest Service staff, volunteers, REI, National Forest Foundation, the Wilderness Society, and Friends of the Angeles and others for hiking and other environmental education experiences. For example, you can connect with REI who will be conducting camping, hiking, and outdoor cooking demonstrations.

The mission of the U.S. Forest Service, part U.S. Department of Agriculture, is to sustain the health, diversity and productivity of the nation's forests and grasslands to meet the needs of present and future generations. The agency manages 193 million acres of public land, provides assistance to state and private landowners, and maintains the largest forestry research organization in the world. Public lands the Forest Service manages contribute more than $13 billion to the economy each year through visitor spending alone. Those same lands provide 20 percent of the nation's clean water supply, a value estimated at $7.2 billion per year. The agency has either a direct or indirect role in stewardship of about 80 percent of the 850 million forested acres within the U.S., of which 100 million acres are urban forests where most Americans live.

MEAL SERVICE DELIVERY OPTIONS FOR SENIORS WHO DON'T COOK

Dear Savvy Senior

What types of healthy meal delivery options can you recommend for seniors who live at home, but don't cook and don't get out much. Since mom passed away, my dad's diet is terrible and I worry about his health.

Long-Distance Daughter

Dear Long-Distance,

There are various healthy meal service delivery options available to non-cooking seniors who live at home, but what's available to your dad will depend on his location and budget. Here are several to check into.

Senior Meal Programs

A good place to start is to find out if there's a senior home delivery meal program in your dad's area. Meals on Wheels is the largest program that most people are familiar with, but many communities offer senior meal delivery programs sponsored by other organizations that go by different names.

To find services available in your dad's area, visit MealsOnWheelsAmerica.org, which offers a comprehensive directory on their website, or call the area aging agency near your dad. Contact

Most home delivered meal programs across the U.S. deliver hot meals daily or several times Personal Chefs a week, usually around the lunch hour, to seniors over age 60 who have problems preparing meals for themselves, as well as those with disabilities. Weekend meals, usually frozen, may also be available, along with special diets (diabetic, lowsodium, kosher, etc.). Most of these programs typically charge a small fee (usually between $2 and $6) or request a donation, while some may be free to low-income seniors.

Online Meal Delivery

Another option that's a bit more expensive is to purchase your dad's meals online and have them delivered to his home. There are a number of companies that offer this type of service like Magic Kitchen (magickitchen.com), Home Bistro (homebistro.com), Personal Chef To Go (personalcheftogo.com), Good Measure Meals (goodmeasuremeals.com), and many others.

These companies offer a wide variety of tasty show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

meal choices, and will usually post the nutrition information for their meals right on their website. Most companies will also cater to a host of dietary and medical needs, such as low-sodium and lowcarb meals, diabetic meals, gluten-free, dairy-free, and vegetarian options.

Most of the food arrives frozen, but a few companies ship food fresh. Prices generally start at around $10 to $13 per meal, plus shipping, however most companies provide discounts or free shipping when you order meals in bulk.

Grocery Stores and Restaurants

Depending on where your dad lives, he may also be able to get home delivered meals from local grocery stores or restaurants. Some grocery stores offer a selection of pre-cooked meals and foods, including roasted chicken, mashed potatoes, and fresh soups and salads. Contact the grocery stores in your dad's area to inquire about this option. Or the Eldercare Locator at 800-677-1116 to get the check with some of his favorite restaurants to see if they offer home delivery.

Another option for non-cooking seniors with a bigger budget is to hire a personal chef from time to time. A personal chef can provide your dad with a do-it-all service that will help plan his meals, do the grocery shopping and prepare him several weeks worth (or more) of tasty meals in his home, which he can freeze and eat whenever he wants. Or, they can prepare it in their own kitchen and deliver it. Chef's fees range between $200 and $300 plus groceries. He may be able to save money by sharing meals with you or another family member, or a friend or neighbor.

To find a personal chef in your dad's area, check the listings at the American Personal & Private Chef Association (personalchef.com) or the United States Personal Chef Association (hireachef.com).

In this case, silence is what's needed for replenishment and self-reflection.

You're probably thinking – yes, but how do I get there? "When I try to be quiet, all I can hear is the chatter in my head." Yoga and pranayama are great vehicles for preparing to get quiet. The body needs movement and regulation first. In particular, during times of stress - we need the overall physical practice of yoga (asana). INTRODUCING THE DAILY MINOR PLANET: DELIVERING THE LATEST ASTEROID NEWS

Have you ever wondered what piece of cosmic debris is whizzing past the Earth right now? Do you crave up-to-the-minute information about asteroids large and small? Well you're in luck because today you can subscribe to a new service: the Daily Minor Planet.

Developed through a partnership between scientists at the Minor Planet Center and volunteers from the Oracle Corporation, the Daily Minor Planet will deliver reports on the latest asteroid happenings straight to your inbox.

Most people don't realize how common asteroid flybys are," said Matt Holman, director of the Minor Planet Center and astronomer at the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics (CfA). "We want the Daily Minor Planet to educate readers in an entertaining way, so the next time they see a doom-and-gloom asteroid headline, they'll know where to go to find the facts."

The Daily Minor Planet's name cleverly combines the title of the fictional newspaper home of Superman's Clark Kent, the Daily Planet, with the historical name of asteroids, or minor planets. In a nod to the real-life newspaper world, it will be available in two HTML formats: classic and modern.

Almost every day, a known asteroid passes within a few million miles of Earth. On those dates, the Daily Minor Planet will list the flyby asteroid along with the time and distance of its closest approach. On days without a cosmic flyby, the report will feature a newly discovered asteroid. It will also highlight an article from the popular press.

The Daily Minor Planet continues a collaboration that began with Asteroid Explorers, asteroids and their impact and risks to the world. That website's interactive tools allow visitors to investigate questions like "Which asteroids have defense from an impact on Earth." the highest risk of impacting Earth?" and "Which asteroids are easiest to travel to?'

"I want to thank the Oracle volunteer team and the others for their excellent work on the Planet Center, Michael Rudenko (CfA), played Daily Minor Planet and the Asteroid Explorer," said Victoria Friedensen, the Planetary Defense Program Executive for the Asteroid Grand Challenge at the NASA Planetary Defense focused on taking the Minor Planet Center's

THE IMPORTANCE OF ATTITUDE

Joseph Nemeth of Fort Collins, Colorado, made some noteworthy observations in the September 1989 Mensa Bulletin (Mensa is the international high IQ society). He writes, "Occasionally, we need to be reminded how very peculiar and unbalanced our mainstream concept of medicine is. First, we are all mortal and will die regardless of the efforts of any practitioner of any brand of medicine. Second, we forget that no physician has ever healed anyone -- the physician merely stabilizes the body (or mind) in a crisis, allowing the body (or mind) to heal itself. Because we hold the DON'T WORRY, BE HAPPY physician responsible for the healing, we split physicians into two camps -- the real doctors and the quacks -- and identify the former with medical conservatism and the latter with anything else. This leads to comments like 'raising false hopes' -- in spite of the fact that all hopes are false in the long term, while in the short term hope itself may be the most important factor in healing.

'Spontaneous remission is a welldocumented category of healing which baffles physicians. If there are any reproducible factors associated with spontaneous remission, they appear to lie in the areas of faith healing, prayer, laying-on of hands, meditation, and other sources of 'false hope.' Who is going to perform the rigorous studies to test these instances, if not parapsychologists? How many conservative physicians or medical researchers are going to put their reputation and future livelihood on the line by really studying this 'crank medicine=?'

People who are experiencing severe grief need a good friend more than they need pills. A study done by Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York showed that men whose wives had died experience a significant decline in the activity of lymphocytes, white blood cells involved in the body's disease-fighting system. An estimated 700,000 Americans over 50 lose their spouses each year, and about 7,000 deaths a year are attributed to bereavement. Know someone whose spouse has recently died? Call them every day for a week or a month or longer and let them know someone still cares.

THE VALUE OF EMPATHY

system's first line of defense against upper respiratory infections. IgA works by killing many viruses. Psychologist David McClelland and colleagues spent several months studying the responses of Harvard students after McClelland measured a sharp increase in the IgA content of the saliva of the students who had just viewed the films.

McClelland also discovered that the "healers" who cheer up people and make them feel better about themselves invariably raise the IgA level of the patients. This, according to McClelland, is one factor that contributes to the healing that takes place.

MUSIC

A related factor is the inclusion of "uplifting" music in our daily lives. general, music with a regular rhythm and tempo (as opposed to spacey New Age music) is best. We have found Bach's well-tempered clavichord, and Mendelssohn's Spinning Song very integrating to the nervous system.

Occasionally, a student will ask us, "Aren't you worried about getting poison oak?" They may also ask if we're worried about tics, snakes, or any of the other things we could encounter in the outdoors. I respond that, no, I am not worried, since worry is bad for the heart and is known to actually increase the body's cholesterol level, thicken the arteries, and increase the blood pressure. The point wasn't to be flip, since next I tell the students how to deal with poison oak, tics, whatever. The point is to not worry.

Worry, hate, anxiety, fear -- these and other negative emotions are bad for our health. Though this is a vast subject upon which many books have been written, the emotion of hate causes (among other things) excess hydrochloric acid to secrete into the stomach, and the emotion of fear causes (among other things) an excess flow of andrenalin which weakens the kidneys.

Are there viable alternatives to fear, to hate, to worry? Yes, definitely. But you must first CHOOSE to abandon hostility. Try doing two "good" things for every "bad" thing that enters your life. And should you find yourself entertaining destructive thoughts about another person, immediately say to yourself, "regardless whether that thought about soand-so is true, he or she has these outstanding traits" and then remind yourself of those good

We must emphasize that we are not referring to some sort of "positive thinking" where we affirm things to be so which are not so; rather, we're talking about retraining our brain so we don't Immunoglobulin-A (IgA) is our immune continue to allow our own thoughts and emotions to result in our own sickness and disease.

PURSUING A COURSE IN APPLE-FRITTEROLOGY

my cell phone has been ringing out of my shirt Of course, I had never heard of such a thing, but who pocket. It is rather frustrating because I rarely give knows what's out there? my number to anybody. But there it goes, ringing and ringing and ringing.

Usually the calls are for political polls of which I say?" m not the least bit interested. If they want to know "I am not the least bit interested. If they want to know whom I am voting for they are going to have to come up with a little bit of coin for me. Why should I give them information they are going to sell to someone else? We all know politics goes to the highest bidder. The only difference between a pollster and a polecat is... I'm not sure there is any.

Then, there are those called Robo calls. I still do not understand what in the world they are. The phone rings and there is nobody on the other end. I can say "Hello" 100 times and still nobody answers. If I ever find out who this Robo is, I will be tempted to give them a piece of my mind.

Does everybody have my cell phone Most of the time I cannot remember what my number is and I have to look at my phone.

Then I started getting phone calls the other week concerning furthering my education.

"I understand," they always begin which makes me a little suspicious, "that you are interested in furthering your education."

Well, I try to learn something every day if that is what they mean. But it's not what they mean. "From your recent application on the website," they say is if they know exactly what they are talking about, "you have indicated that you are interested in our university." Then they pause to catch their breath

I guess, "What are you interested in pursuing?" The first dozen calls I explained to them that there must be a mistake, I was not on their website and I am not interested in anything that they are

From a practical standpoint, you would think that would settle it. But oh no. These people have a script and they stick to their script.

"So what is the interest of your further education?" It must be the Pennsylvania Dutch in me or something because I can only take this kind of thing for so long. Then, the real me oozes out of my system. Suddenly I had an idea.

It takes a lot for me to get an idea and these calls were pushing me to my limit. And so I came up with a brilliant idea. At least I thought it was brilliant. The next one that called I said, "Yes, I am interested in furthering my education." 'Wonderful," they said reading from their script,

"what area of study are you interested in?" Now I had them eating out of my hand, and I have not washed my hands all day.

"I would like to pursue a course," I said as seriously jamessnyderministries.com.

Recently, and by that I mean within the last month, as I possibly could manage, "in Apple-fritterology."

There was a slight pause on the other end of the phone and finally the person said, "What did you would like to pursue a course in

Apple-fritterology." "Would you mind," the other end of the phone muttered, "spelling that for me?"

"A-p-p-l-e-f-r-i-t-t-e-r-o-l-o-g-y." "I'm not sure we have a class for that. I've never heard of that before." At that point, I knew I have them. "That is what I am interested in and that is what I want to sign up for how can I go about that?"

'Sir," and I could tell this point they were off script, "would you explain to me what that is? I've never heard that before."

"It is the study of Apple fritters and their impact in modern-day psychosomatic society.' Following that, there was a distinctive "click" as the other end of the phone hung up abruptly.

After that telephone conversation, I got to thinking about it. That would be a wonderful course of study. I plan to do some adequate research on the subject of which will consist of eating Apple fritters. I plan to be an Apple-fritterologist.

I am sure I will be the first of its kind and I should be planning and preparing a course of study on this tremendous subject. After all, who wouldn't be interested in such a study?

Since then I have received several other calls asking about my interest in furthering my education. Now, I am reading from my script and confusing the person on the other end of the phone. I cannot wait for the next phone call to come in. I am having a wonderful time. For every phone call that comes in, I eat two Apple fritters.

If I never had received any of these phone calls, I never would have come up with such a wonderful plan. So why should I complain about my cell phone ringing out of my shirt pocket? For every frustrating experience in life, there is a shiny rainbow littered with Apple fritters.

I was reminded what the old preacher said, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest" (Ecclesiastes 9:10).

One of the joys of life when somebody is frustrating you is to return the favor.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

UNITED HOPE FOR ANIMALS

People Uniting, Helping Animals, Creating Hope

I am among the lucky ones in today's population who can say, "I'm over a half century old", and I'm okay with that. It's an age that allows me to blend in easily with people of all generations. I'm happy hanging out with my contemporaries, but I am just as content when I'm with those who happened to be born before

I still have the mental wherewithal to keep up with the young pups (debatable, I know), yet I can totally relate to my elders because I'm nowhere near as young as I used to be! Granted, these conclusions are based on my own perspective, so an on-looker may beg to differ. But if there is one thing I can say with absolute certainty about getting older, it's that age has instilled in me a stronger desire to pursue the things I am most

Ever since I was a kid, I've had an intense sense of compassion for animals, and now as an adult I have an undying desire to share whatever resources I have to make a change for the better on their behalf. One of my most vivid childhood memories is from when I was about 6 years old and my dad took me and my sister to the local animal shelter to pick out a dog. Although I don't remember every detail of that day, I do remember us choosing what most people would have considered to be a "mongrel".

He was a multi-mutated, mixed-up mutt and I thought he was the most beautiful beast I'd ever seen. He was a shepherd sort of mix with chocolate brown eyes and a perpetual puppy-face smile. Being the "baby of seven", I often felt sort of lost in the crowd myself, so I guess I could relate to that poor little fella in some strange way.

After a moment of contemplation, my dad did the paper work and we took the young dog home to be our own. We called him "Rex". About a year later, Rex got out of the back yard gate and ran into the road where he was hit by a car. I was sure my world would come to an end, but miraculously my dad was able to rescue Rex yet again. He picked him up off the street, coddled him in a blanket, brought him inside and set his leg with some wood and masking tape.

For the next few weeks, the family worked together to nurse Rex back to good health and he ultimately gave us many years of happiness. The kind of happiness only a truly grateful dog knows how to give. I believe that childhood experience with Rex being rescued by my dad probably played a big part in my becoming such an avid animal lover as an adult.

So, at the ripe ole age of 53 my passionate pursuit is to be an advocate for the animals. As part of my pursuit, I try to support others who care equally, and are actively involved in practical ways to make a difference for the better. Particularly those who help otherwise-euthanized pets get a second chance at life.

United Hope for Animals (UHA) is a non-profit organization that has wiggled its way into my heart. They are a dedicated group of volunteers whose goal is to place as many shelter pets into loving forever homes as possible.

They recognized a dire need for adoption facilitation assistance at that the Baldwin Park Shelter, and they came to the plate. By providing some very practical pro-bono services that the LA County budget does not provide for, they have become real life hero's for animals in need.

UHA goes about helping save animals' lives at the Baldwin Park Shelter by first holding professional glamour shot sessions during which they take photographs of freshly-bathed adoptable pets. They then post the photos along with a detailed, creatively written description of each pet in promotional listings on-line for potential adopters to view and respond to. When a potential adopter makes contact in response to a listing, UHA sets up a meet and greet to allow the interested party and the animal to get to know each other and determine whether or not they make a good match.

In addition to their "match-making" endeavors, UHA also has other practical programs in place to help enhance the quality of life for the animals at Baldwin Park. For example, they collect donated items such as beds, bowls and blankets for the animals and their qualified volunteers are always willing to take the dogs out for some fresh air and much needed exercise.

UHA's main objective is to find forever homes for as many shelter animals as possible before their time is up, and they've succeeded in doing so time and time again. They have been a "dog-send" for more shelter pets than you can imagine. The dedicated volunteers at UHA are literally walking the walk, not just talking the talk. They are self-appointed stewards on behalf of the animals, and for that they have earned my unremitting respect and gratitude.

For more information about United Hope for Animals, visit their website at: unitedhope4animals. org where you'll have the opportunity to get involved. Whether it be a volunteer opportunity, or a monetary contribution, there is a wide variety of ways to help pave the way to a better future for our furry, fourfooted friends. You can also visit their Facebook page where you'll find listings of animals currently available for adoption. Let's all do our best to help ensure that rescue is the only resolution for animal shelter overpopulation. Love and let live.

KEEP ZIKA OUT: L.A. COUNTY AGENCIES AND HUMANITARIAN ORGANIZATION TO HOST COMMUNITY TRAINING

Today, vector control districts, the Los Angeles County Department of Public Health and Tzu Chi, an international humanitarian organization, announced a community workshop to "Keep Zika Out." The free event will be held on September 24, 2016 from 8 a.m. to noon, at B.O.C.A. (Dharma Seal Temple) at 3027 Del Mar Avenue, Rosemead, CA 91770.

"Keep Zika Out" will train residents and interfaith volunteers to prevent invasive Aedes mosquitoes from breeding in their homes and communities. After the morning workshop, volunteers will hit the streets and educate neighbors in the surrounding area.

To date, no local transmission of Zika virus has been reported in L.A. County. However, the Aedes mosquitoes that have the potential to transmit the virus is present in

"Everyone in L.A. County can help reduce the risk that Zika could spread here by ensuring mosquitoes don't breed around their residences. We encourage residents to drain standing water and toss unused containers in the trash so they don't become places where mosquitoes can breed," said Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, Acting Director for the Acute Communicable Disease Control program of LA County Department of Public Health. "Additionally, during travel to Zika-affected areas, people should avoid mosquito bites by using insect repellent that contains an effective ingredient like DEET, wearing long-sleeved shirts and long pants, and staying in places with screens or air conditioning to keep mosquitos out."

Year-to-date, there has been more than 60 travel-related cases of Zika in L.A. County. In addition, there are more than 50 L.A. County cities and communities with invasive Aedes mosquitoes

"Vector control agencies in LA County cannot do it alone," said Truc Dever, General Manager for the Greater Los Angeles County Vector Control District. "One of the most important and effective ways residents can help us prevent Zika virus from spreading in L.A. is to tip and toss anything that can hold water."

Preventative community outreach about the threat is an important part of the Health Department and vector control district's Zika preparedness plan. The public health agencies' partnership with Tzu Chi strengthens the commitment to prepare Los Angeles County for a potential outbreak.

"Emergency preparedness is one of many ways Tzu Chi is helping residents," said Executive Vice President of Tzu Chi, Debra Boudreaux. "Together, as a community, we can stand together to keep Zika out of our neighborhoods."

CONGRESSWOMEN JUDY CHU AND GRACE NAPOLITANO PARTNER WITH KAISER PERMANENTE FOR ANNUAL DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AWARENESS CAMPAIGN AND COLLECTION DRIVE

By Joan Schmidt

This past Friday I attended the Kick-off Press Conference for the 13th Annual Domestic Violence Collection Drive. Thirteen years ago, Congresswoman Judy Chu (CA-27) saw firsthand domestic violence, her friend, an educator with an abusive husband. During the divorce, the abuser was going to get HALF of the victim's retirement pay. Chu couldn't believe this; hence her Assembly Bill 2018, protecting victims from being forced to share financial assets with abusive spouses. Also Chu penned AB 1288-This prevents perpetrators of abuse to purchase firearms. If they do so, victims are alerted.

Within the last three years, Congresswoman Grace Napolitano (CA-32) has joined with Chu. Rep. Napolitano said, "It is a privilege to continue working with Congresswoman Chu, Kaiser Permanente and so many other local heroes in our fight to end domestic violence. The emotional wounds inflicted by domestic violence are often invisible, so increased mental health awareness is critical to ensure those in need seek health." (All in the 32nd District applaud Napolitano's focus on Veterans and Mental Health issues-especially in our schools.)

Dr. Victor Cheng, Physician In-Charge, Kaiser Permanente, and on-board these twelve years spoke of victims of ALL ages, socio-economic/ ethnic groups. Also attending was Rena Del Haro, Director of Public Affairs, Baldwin Park Kaiser Permanente.

Other speakers included Mavis Hansen, Domestic Violence Awareness And Prevention Chair, and President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Personal Testimony from "Paulette".

The Campaign lasts from October 1-November 1. It will support Domestic Violence Victims from Project Sister family Services and Shepherd's Door. The Collection Locations are:

Summer of the Big Bachi by Naomi Hirahara

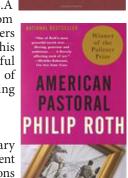

In the foothills of Pasadena, Mas Arai is just another Japanese-American gardener, his lawnmower blades clean and sharp, his truck carefully tuned. But while Mas keeps lawns neatly trimmed, his own life has gone to seed. His wife is dead. And his livelihood is falling into the hands of the men he once hired by the day. For Mas, a life of sin is catching up to him. And now bachi-the spirit of retribution-is .It begins when a stranger comes around, asking questions about a nurseryman who once lived in Hiroshima, a man known as Joji Haneda. By the end of the summer, Joji will be dead and Mas's own life will be in danger. For while Mas was building a life on the edge of the American dream, he has kept powerful secrets: about three friends long ago, about two lives entwined, and about what really happened when the bomb fell on Hiroshima in August 1945.A spellbinding mystery played out from war-torn Japan to the rich tidewaters of L.A.'s multicultural landscape, this stunning debut novel weaves a powerful tale of family, loyalty, and the price of both survival and forgiveness.knocking on his door

Already Awake by Nathan Gill Nathan Gill is a rare voice in contemporary spirituality. Speaking with consistent clarity, he points out that all prescriptions for escape from the drama of separation

Summer of the BIG BACHI instead serve as its reinforcement. Compiled from transcripts of one-toone dialogues and group meetings, the talks featured in Already Awake present the essential message of non-duality in a profound yet straightforward way. Also included by way of an introduction to the main text, is a revised version of Nathan's first book, Clarity.

American Pastoral: American Trilogy by Philip Roth

As the American century draws to an uneasy close, Philip Roth gives us a novel of unqualified greatness that is an elegy for all our century's promises of prosperity, civic order, and domestic bliss. Roth's protagonist is Swede Levov, a legendary athlete at his Newark high school, who grows up in the booming postwar years to marry a former Miss New Jersey, inherit his father's glove factory, and move into a stone house in the idyllic hamlet of Old Rimrock. And then one day in 1968, Swede's beautiful American luck deserts him. For Swede's adored daughter, Merry, has grown from a loving, quick-witted girl into a sullen, fanatical teenager—a teenager capable of an outlandishly savage act of political terrorism. And overnight Swede is wrenched out of the longed-for American pastoral and into the indigenous American berserk. Compulsively readable, propelled by sorrow, rage, and a deep compassion for its characters, this is Roth's masterpiece. Soon to be a major motion picture

A town square often is a physical statement that identifies our core values. Sierra Madre's iconic Kersting Court, as you are all aware, is a central focal gathering point and destination in Sierra Madre. It's where hundreds of school children meet each week for social interaction. What kind of message do you think you as leaders are sending to the community? Will flying a tattered flag become the normal and accepted condition for our next generation?

In a day and age when disrespecting the American flag and our National Anthem seems to be the flavor of the month, I find it bothersome that our city staff and elected officials would tolerate such a disrespectful display.

As an American citizen, a Sierra Madre resident, and a military veteran, I request that the flag be given the honor and respect it deserves by replacing it immediately and disposed of properly per the

HILLARY SUMMONS THE DEAD FOR ADVICE

Journalists in the mass media love to dig up dirt on Republican presidential candidates. Well, I just dug up some dirt on Hillary Clinton.

In Bob Woodward's 1996 book, "The Choice," Woodward reports that Hillary once conducted séances to summon the spirits of Eleanor Roosevelt and Mahatma Gandhi. Through some crack investigative work — I paid a Russian hacker 20 bucks to access Hillary's server — I determined that Hillary is still talking to dead people. Here's a transcript of her most recent séance:

It's tough being a strong, smart woman, Eleanor. What should I do? Hillary: You must pretend to be humble, right Mahatma? Eleanor: Mahatma Ghandi: Yes, humble, and she must change her hair style. Change my hair style again? Hillary: Try the Mary Tyler Moore look from the old Dick Van Dyke show. Mahatma: Eleanor, come back to sleep, dear. FDR: President Roosevelt? Hillary:

Go back to sleep, you old philanderer. And try some zippity doo. President Truman: Hillary, I have some advice for you. President Truman? If you can't take the heat, get out of the kitchen. I couldn't take it and I got out.

Hillary: Lyndon? President Nixon: You were run out, Lyndon! A subject you know well, Dick! Shirley MacLaine: Hello! Hello!

MacLaine, what are you doing here? You're not dead! LBI: There is no death, Lyndon. Shirley: No death to LBJ's commie government programs, anyway! Nixon: President Jefferson: Good God, what have you people done to the country!

President Jefferson? Hillary: It takes a village, my eye! Individuals get things done. Jefferson: President Washington: Jefferson, how's it going, old boy? They've run up $20 trillion in debt, George! You people want to keep it down? Jefferson:

Jimmy Hoffa: Hillary: You're the real Jimmy Hoffa? Hoffa: Does a bear -Shirley: Jimmy! Ghandi: Alberto VO5 also offers some products to make your hair shiny. Ben Franklin:

What did you people do to the Constitution? Hey, Hillary, I've got a bone to pick with you. A Trump supporter. I got so mad when you called me and my friends

Bill Smith: a basket of deplorables that I had a massive coronary and now I'm stuck in your damn séance. Anyone hear from George Burns? Shirley: What happened to limited government! Franklin:

Eleanor, I summoned you and Mahatma for inspiration. Hillary: Eleanor: But you're not getting inspired? No, I'm suffering more abuse than I get from the living. Hillary: Truman: If you can't take the heat...

Ignore them, dear. They've been moaning about FDR's programs for I feel so down lately. I feel so heavy, like someone buried me in Hillary:

Lady, you don't know what you're talking about. Hillary: Eleanor, I need your help. I'm falling in the polls. What do I do? Just as I was a revolutionary First Lady, you, the first major-party Eleanor: female presidential candidate, are a revolutionary. Revolutionaries ruffle feathers, dear. Hillary: But I should be slaughtering Trump. If I'm not careful, I could lose this thing. What can I do to make people like me?

(Silence.) Hillary: Ghandi:

Eleanor left, Hillary. But she said you might try a good conditioner.

NO, YOU'RE NOT GOING TO BE KILLED BY A REFUGEE

You know what the great thing about Skittles is? You can never eat just one. They're just that tasty.

So on behalf of fruit-flavored candy addicts everywhere - not to mention the huddled masses, yearning to breathe free, I plan to enjoy a bag of that childhood favorite just as soon as I finish thanking Donald Trump Jr. for the spectacularly dense thing he said on Twitter on Monday.

In case you missed it (and it's hard to imagine how that happened), here it is: "If I had a bowl of Skittles and I told you just three would kill you, would you take a handful," the scion of the Trump empire mused. "That's our Syrian refugee problem." Then he added, just for good measure, "This image says it all. Let's end the politically correct agenda that doesn't put America first."

There are a number of things wrong with Trump the Younger's assertion - putting aside the fact that, so far as anyone knows, Syrian refugees are neither chewy nor fruit-flavored.

It is mainly that you possibly face a greater risk of choking to death on a Skittle (which is already astronomical) than you do of dying at the hands of a refugee.

According to a report by the Libertarian Cato Institute released last week, your risk of being killed by a refugee is a truly insane 1 in 3.64 billion.

That's billion. With a "buh." By the way, you know who came into the country on tourist visas and killed a bunch of Americans? That would be the 9/11 hijackers, who largely entered the country on tourist and business visas, laid in wait, and then perpetrated catastrophic attacks that claimed nearly 3,000 American lives 15 years ago this month. It is, in fact, much harder for a refugee to gain entrance to the United States than it is someone seeking entrance on a tourist or business visa.

As The Week, and other sources have reported, it actually takes up to two years for a refugee to gain entrance to the United States. And no matter what a Trump (full-sized or bite-sized) tells you, the vetting process is a complicated one.

It's also important to note one really other important thing about refugees: They're fleeing, amid great hardship and at tremendous personal risk, to avoid being killed in a horrible war back home or to escape some other tremendously dangerous situation.

They've bought into the notion of America as a welcoming safe haven. If you want to radicalize them, the best way to make sure that happens is to be as unwelcoming and

Like, say, comparing them to a bag of bite-sized candies.

So before you go off half-cocked, thinking you're going to be killed by a refugee, consider a couple more things.

One, the bombings in New York and New Jersey over the weekend, as awful as they were, were committed by a naturalized American citizen of Afghani descent who was

Yes, the suspect in the Minnesota mall stabbing that left 10 people injured, was a refugee when he was three months old.

Vigilance is important, and yes, if you see something, you should say something. But, again, your odds of being killed in a terrorist attack remain astonishingly low.

The Washington Post crunched the numbers a while back, citing data from a variety of sources including The National Safety Council (2004), the US Census Bureau and the Centers for Disease Control (2003).

They concluded Americans are, among other things, 17,600 times more likely to die from heart disease; nine times more likely to choke to death on their own vomit; 404 times more likely to die in a fall and 13 times more likely to die in a railway accident.

Put another way, your chances of dying like Jimi Hendrix (choking on your own vomit), while suffering from heart disease while falling off a ladder strategically positioned over a railroad track are better than your chances of dying in a terrorist attack -- let alone one perpetrated by a refugee. So have another Skittle.

CROOKED DON'S SLUSH FUND AND THE '16 DOUBLE STANDARD

Yes, folks, it's time for another episode of "Imagine The

Imagine the outcry if Hillary Clinton was outed for taking more than a quarter of a million dollars in other people's money - donations to the Clinton Foundation, donations that were intended to be used for charitable purposes - and spent it instead on herself, in a breach of federal tax laws, in order to settle all kinds of lawsuits filed against her. And to buy several paintings of herself.

Well. We know what would happen. Donald Trump would cite that as fresh evidence of Clinton crookedness, Democrats would double down on what they do best (panic), the pitiable Trump trolls would drag their knuckles on their keyboards, and the cable networks would feature wall-to-wall coverage not seen on the airwaves since that Malaysian plane vanished from radar.

I'm referring, of course, to the latest revelation from David Fahrenthold of The Washington Post, who has been digging deep all year into Trump's charitable work (or lack thereof), and repeatedly exposing the GOP nominee as a fraud. Fahrenthold - a cinch finalist for next year's Pulitzer - is the guy who recently outed Trump for taking money from his Donald J. Trump Foundation and funneling it to Florida Attorney General Pam Bondi (an illegal campaign contribution; nonprofits are barred from such giving), and shortly thereafter Bondi decided not to investigate phony Trump University's bilking of Florida consumers.

Anyway, his new article - which shows us copies of the relevant receipts -— is potentially the most damaging of all (or should be, if facts still matter), because it's so easily summarized in ways that anyone can understand: Trump took other people's money in apparent violation of the law, and spent it on himself.

The Donald J. Trump Foundation is supposed to make contributions to charitable causes. Trump himself hasn't donated a penny to the foundation since 2009; whatever money it has comes from outside donors. But it's clear from the available records that Trump's favorite charitable cause is himself. In 2014 he took $10,000 from the foundation's coffers and spent it on a portrait of himself, just a few years after he took 2$20,000 and spent it on a different portrait of himself. And because he gets sued a lot (big surprise), he has settled a number of these lawsuits by taking money from the foundation. Basically, he has used it as his personal

Using a non-profit charitable foundation to pay off one's personal obligations (or, in the case of the portraits, to indulge one's personal narcissism) is known in the tax laws as "selfdealing," and it's apparently against the law to do it.

During the first debate next Monday, it would be nice if Trump were asked about all this. Why does he presumably believe he did not break the law? Why won't he release his tax returns, as every other nominee has done these last 40 years? Does he fear that the public would discover more instances of self-dealing? And would he not condemn Hillary Clinton if she were found to have engaged in exactly the same behavior? By what right does he get to benefit from the prevailing double standard?

Of course, the odds that he gets asked any of those questions is approximately zero. But perhaps we can content ourselves with Team Trump's hilarious responses to the self-dealing story. Top flack Jason Miller declared, "In typical Washington Post fashion, they've gotten their facts wrong" - without contesting, much less disproving, a single specific fact in the story. Miller also insisted that Trump is "generous" with his money, without once addressing the thrust of the story, which is that Trump hasn't been generous with his own foundation since 2009 and instead pays for lawsuits and portraits and toys (a $12,000 autographed football) with other people's money. But the best part was when Kellyanne

Conway played a shrink on CNN and suggested that Post reporter Fahrenthold "seems a little obsessed with Donald Trump these days." Fahrenthold promptly responded on Twitter. Trump, he pointed out, happens to be "a major party's nominee for president."

And of all the facts, that one is still the most horrific.

MAKING SENSE by Michael Reagan

LET TRUMP BE TRUMP

For months we've been hearing complaints from the pundits that Donald Trump has not given us a clear idea about how he plans to defeat ISIS.

He won't even automatically take the use of nukes off the table. Their complaints remind me of what Ronald Reagan did during the 1980

The pundits did the same thing to my father that they're doing to Trump. They never stopped asking him during the campaign what he was going to do to solve the Iran hostage crisis.

But he did the right thing. He never said anything.

election against Jimmy Carter.

The liberals spent the whole 1980 campaign saying Ronald Reagan was a war monger and he was going to turn Iran into a glass parking lot with nuclear weapons. You never saw a speech when he denied any of their most idiotic concerns because he didn't given one. My father was smarter than the pundits were.

He knew you should never forewarn your adversaries what your plans were. So he never said anything. He just let the liberals scare the Iranians and the world with all the things he might or might not do as president.

Everyone gives my father credit for the hostages going free on the day he was sworn in, and they should. But one reason they went free was because he kept the Iranians guessing.

They never did know whether he'd nuke them until he didn't.

I find it interesting this election year that the right and the left keep asking the same questions of Trump. What will he do to defeat ISIS?

But the real story shouldn't be what Trump might do. It should be what Hillary Clinton won't do. To appease her voters and liberal friends in the media, she's already said she won't use ground troops. I'm sure the monsters who run ISIS were relieved to hear

In the debates on Monday night I hope Trump doesn't make the mistake of coming up with his plan to take care of ISIS.

I want him to come out with that plan after he becomes president. I want it to be a surprise for MSNBC and ISIS.

I want Trump to tell us nothing. It's a no-brainer. When you go out to play an NFL game Sunday, you don't give your game plan to the other team beforehand and then wonder why you keep losing. The left spends too much time wanting to give the game plan to the other team and then they're surprised when we lose.

Another thing I don't want to hear from Trump in the debate on Monday is a whole lot of specific talk about policy.

The 100 million people who are going to watch the most watched debate in world history are going to be looking to see who is the most presidential.

They won't be looking for the best policy wonk. If Trump starts talking about policy, you'll hear millions of TVs turning off. In my father's first debate with Mondale in 1984

> he was absolutely terrible because his advisers filled him with too much policy information. In the second debate, they didn't do that. They let Reagan be Reagan. And he won the second debate

On Monday, Trump needs to show some selfcontrol but most of all he just needs to be Trump.

Hillary can never stop being Hillary. Michael Reagan is the son of President Ronald Reagan, a political consultant, and the author of 'The New Reagan Revolution" (St. Martin's Press).

If he does that he should win the debate because

Editor's Note: Donald Trump is no Ronald Reagan! Not even close!
