PASADENA MAN DIES IN CONFRONTATION WITH POLICE

A Pasadena man died early Friday morning after being tased by police as they tried to subdue, what they said was a, knife-wielding suspect —by afternoon the situation had a crowd of protesters demanding answers.

According to police, officers responded to a domestic disturbance call in the 200 Block of East Orange Grove Blvd., at about 2:20 a.m. and encountered an African American male adult armed with a knife.

At press time, the suspect's name was not given pending an investigation according to a press statement by police. Although, protesters Friday afternoon said the man's name was Reginald Thomas. known in community as J.R.

Police shot Thomas with a Taser after they said he did not comply with officer's orders and attempted to re-enter an occupied apartment at the location.

Witnesses described Thomas as mentally ill and no stranger to police. A small group of residents, including Black Lives Matter activists gathered at the scene, which later grew into a crowd. Many said Thomas called police himself asking for help.

Police said after restraining Thomas, the officers observed him not breathing at which time CPR and life saving measures were implemented. The officers continued CPR until the arrival of Pasadena fire paramedics who continued to render aid. Despite the efforts Thomas died at the scene, they said.

Police also said there were no firearms involved in the situation as early reports has suggested.

Students between the ages of 9-17 are invited to participate in Sierra Madre's spooktacular Halloween Window Painting Contest. Applications and guidelines will be distributed in private schools and can be found coming home with students in PUSD the week of September 6. They can also be picked up at the front desk of City Hall and at the Library where they have been available since the middle of August. Completed applications are due back to City Hall or the Library by 5 pm on Tuesday, October 11.

Teams of up to four students of the same age group can work on a window design. At least one participant must be a Sierra Madre resident. Painting will be done from 2:30-6:00 pm on Friday, October 21, and from 7:30-10:00 AM on Saturday, October 22. Judging will follow and awards by age group will be given at 12:15 on Saturday.

Our local merchants are critical to the success of this event. They support us by allowing us to use their windows for the painting contest, through monetary donations to cover the cost of materials, and through the donation of other items that enhance the experience of the participants. We thank them for their help.

This year's Halloween Window Painting Contest is sponsored and underwritten by the Sierra Madre Civic Club and is free to participants. Specific questions may be directed to Margaret Switzer, event chair, Sierra Madre Civic Club at 626 355-8207. Last year's participation enjoyed a record turnout as 275 children painted 88 windows offered by 65 merchants. This was an increase of 40%. We look forward to your participation in this annual fun, fall activity.

"I'd rather sit alone on a pumpkin and have it all back at the Cheesecake Factory. Personally, I could to myself than be crowded on a velvet cushion." Henry David Thoreau

"Rejoice in October and November! Revel in those delightful months when pumpkins rule the world-prominently displayed everywhere. Overflowing bins of tiny pumpkins, giant pumpkins, white, varicolored, and downright creepy-strange painting, appear overnight in dark vacant lots. Jack-o-Lantern sculpting contests abound and parents, against their better instincts, put sharp knives into the hands of their children. But are pumpkins really the sweet, benign beings we all perceive them to be? Cheerfully awaiting their opportunity to be a pie or a jack-o-lantern?" (Excerpt from Just Desserts: A Fall Fantasy – By Deanne Davis!)

This pictured pumpkin guy has to be the neatest scarecrow I've seen so far and he has his own personal story: "Once upon a time there were 22 pumpkins who lived in a patch and all the day long, the crows pecked at them! These 22 pumpkins decided to make a plan to scare the crows away. One by one they climbed up and sat on each other's heads and with a little help from the hay they created THE ULTIMATE MR. PUMPKY! The crows moved on to the farmer's old clothes. The

If you happen to read Parade which comes out in the Sunday Los Angeles Times, you were astonished, as was I, to read that Americans spent $361 million on pumpkin flavored items from 2014 to 2015. Works for me! I love pumpkin-flavored stuff to the point where I wrote a series of three stories, available on Amazon.com, dealing with pumpkins and the adventures a young woman, Emma Gainsworth, has with them. Personally, I'm delighted when pumpkin stuff appears in stores, My book page: Amazon.com: Deanne Davis i.e., pumpkin coffee creamer, pumpkin yogurt, Blog: www.authordeanne.com pumpkin spice coffee. Vin Scully has called his last game at Dodger Stadium, leaving millions of his fans in tears, fortuitously, the Dodgers won their fourth pumpkins grab our attention the minute we consecutive National League West Division enter our local market. Pumpkin patches, with championship; happiness of the bittersweet kind pony rides, hot apple cider, carving kits, and face was how it all ended last Sunday. Vin Scully delighted Dodger fans for 67 years - remember bringing your transistor radio to the stadium so you could listen to Vin - and what a way to end his career, playing the song he recorded for his wife, Sandi, 25 years ago, "The Wind Beneath My Wings." Needless to say, there wasn't a dry eye in the stadium. He will announce the last 3 Dodgers games this weekend in San Francisco, which you can see on KTLA. We're not serious baseball fans like our Sierra Madre daughter, Leah, and her husband, Chuck, but we are fans of Vin Scully because he is an exceptional person, who has been a tremendous influence on many, simply because he is a good guy who does a great job. Victor Espinoza, our Sierra Madre jockey who rode American Pharoah to win horseracing's Triple Crown last year, came to mind, another good guy who does a great job and spends time and money to benefit the kids at City of Hope. I hope you know some folks who are good people.

About International Walk to School Day

Walk to School Day was established in the United States in 1997 by the Partnership for a Walkable America. Canada and Great Britain already had walk to school programs in place. In 2000, these three countries joined together to create International Walk to School Day.

In May 2006, the National Center for Safe Routes to School was established to assist communities in enabling and encouraging children to safely walk and bike to school.

The National Center for Safe Routes to School serves as the national coordinating agency for Walk to School and Bike to School activities in the United States.

Walk to School Day began as a simple idea - children and parents, school and local officials walking to school together on a designated day. It is an energizing event, reminding everyone of the simple joy of walking to school, the health benefits of regular daily activity, and the need for safe places to walk and bike. Schools focus on health, safety, physical activity and concern for Organizations supporting International Walk to School Day in the United States include America Walks, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the Federal Highway Administration, the Institute of Transportation Engineers, the National Center for Safe Routes to School, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Safe Kids Worldwide, and the Safe Routes to School National Partnership.

First, how did the happy hour first come into our lives? It was an old Navy term - the sailors would get a break from their daily activities and drink beer and fight on the ship. Drinking on the ship was soon outlawed and the "happy" part went away. During Prohibition, adults would meet in speakeasies or friends' homes before going out to dinner. Since it was illegal, alcohol could not be served in restaurants, so friends would say, "let's meet for happy hour". It took some forty years for restaurants and bars to catch on with drinks and food specials, though some states, to this day have banned the term "happy hour".

THE GOOD LIFE

HOW AND WHEN TO APPLY FOR SOCIAL SECURITY RETIREMENT BENEFITS

Dear Savvy Senior,

What is the easiest way to apply for my Social Security retirement benefits, and how far in advance do I need to apply before I start collecting?

Approaching 62

Dear Approaching,

The Social Security Administration offers three different ways you can apply for your retirement and/or spouses benefits, depending on your preference and how much help you need. Here's a rundown of the options, along with a list of information you'll need to apply, and when to fill out the application.

How To Apply?

The easiest and most convenient way to apply for your Social Security benefits is to do it yourself online at SocialSecurity.gov. It takes less than 15 minutes to complete the application, as long as you've gathered all of the required information and documentation (more on that at the bottom of the column).

If, however, you'd rather have a Social Security employee assist with the process, you can also apply by phone at 800-772-1213, or at your local Social Security office. If you apply in person, be sure to call ahead and schedule an appointment to cut your office wait time.

Whichever method you feel most comfortable using, your application will be reviewed and processed as soon as all necessary documentation and information is received. And, the Social Security Administration will notify you if it turns out you could qualify for higher benefits on your spouse's record, or if other family members can receive benefits on your work record.

When To Apply?

While full retirement age is currently 66 (for those born between 1943 and 1954) you can start receiving your Social Security retirement benefits as early as age 62 or as late as age 70, but the longer you wait the larger your monthly check. See ssa. gov/retire/estimator.html to estimate your benefits.

retirement benefits three months before you want your payments to start. So if you want your benefits to begin as soon as you turn 62, you should apply at Senior" book.

61 years and nine months old.

İt's also worth noting that if you start receiving your Social Security retirement benefits before age 65, you will automatically be enrolled in Medicare Part A and Part B, and you'll receive your Medicare card about three months before your 65th birthday. It will include instructions to return it if you have work coverage that qualifies you for late enrollment.

But if you decide to delay your retirement benefits, you'll need to sign up just for Medicare at age 65, which you can also do at SocialSecurity. gov, over the phone at 800-772-1213 or through your local Social Security office.

If you do not sign up, in some circumstances your Medicare coverage may be delayed and cost

Need Information

In order to apply for Social Security benefits, you'll need to be able to document some information about your identity and work history. So before applying, have the following information handy:

- Your Social Security number. Your birth certificate (original or certified).
- Proof of U.S. citizenship or lawful alien status if you were not born in the United States.
- A copy of your U.S. military service papers if you had military service before 1968.
- A copy of your W-2 forms and/or selfemployment tax return for last year.
- Your bank information (including your account number and the bank routing number) you want your benefits direct deposited to.

For a complete checklist of information you'll need to complete your application, see ssa.gov/hlp/ isba/10/isba-checklist.pdf.

HEALTHY LIFESTYLES

THE JOY OF YOGA

THE BEST KEPT SECRET

If I told you that you could parlay 45 minutes into the equivalent of 4 hours of deep sleep, would you be interested? Yoga Nidra is one of the best-kept secrets in Yoga! Well, it's not really a secret. Many yoga practitioners, teachers, and psychologists have been using this ancient practice for many years. Yoga Nidra is commonly called yogic sleep, though it is not sleeping. It is a guided supine practice, lasting anywhere from 20 to 45 minutes, somewhere in-between sleep and full consciousness. The body becomes completely relaxed, while the mind is alert.

There is no physical movement in Yoga Nidra. Yoga Nidra is a profound systematic practice addressing "threefold tension": muscular, emotional, and mental. These tensions accumulate over time or they may be left over from past traumas. This buildup manifests in our lives as unhappiness, pain, or aggression, so releasing these tensions is vital for our health and wellbeing. Yoga Nidra effectively addresses this

To ease muscular tension, the sustained and guided visualization used in the practice lead the body to relax while the mind has "jobs" to do. Emotional tension is more deeply rooted. Over time, tensions build when emotions are repressed and not openly and freely expressed. According to the manual "Yoga Nidra" by Swami Satyananda Saraswati, "It is not possible to relax these tensions through ordinary sleep. A method such as yoga nidra can tranquilize the entire emotional structure of the mind." Relief from mental tension arises as we delve into the subconscious mind. We relax and release tension around past experiences to seek harmony and restore peace in our system.

Yoga Nidra offers another hidden gem in its guidance: sankalpa, or resolve. In each practice, we create a simple, concise, positive statement to repeat and implant mentally within our consciousness. With life-changing possibilities, sankalpa is a very powerful tool in the process.

Although, eventually, you can learn to do Yoga Nidra yourself, to achieve the full benefits of this profound relaxation, seek an experienced teacher who will guide you through this unique practice. It's important to hear the voice of a teacher.

Yoga Madre has a Yoga Nidra workshop on, Sunday, October 30, from 2:00-4:00 P.M. Check our website www. yogamadre.com for details. It's your chance to experience

HUBBLE TELESCOPE SPOTS POSSIBLE WATER PLUMES ERUPTING ON JUPITER'S MOON EUROPA

Astronomers using NASA's Hubble Space Telescope have imaged what may be water vapor plumes erupting off the surface of Jupiter's moon Europa. This finding bolsters other Hubble observations suggesting the icy moon erupts with high-altitude water

The observation increases the possibility that future missions to Europa may be able to sample Europa's ocean without having to drill through miles of ice.

"Europa's ocean is considered to be one of the most promising places that could potentially harbor life in the solar system," said Geoff Yoder, acting associate administrator for NASA's Science Mission Directorate in Washington, D.C. "These plumes, if they do indeed exist, may provide another way to sample Europa's subsurface."

The plumes are estimated to rise about 125 miles before, presumably, raining material back down onto Europa's surface. Europa has a huge global ocean containing twice as much water as Earth's oceans, but it is protected by a layer of extremely cold and hard ice of unknown thickness. The plumes provide a tantalizing opportunity to gather samples originating from under the surface without having to land or drill through the ice.

The team, led by William Sparks of the Space Telescope Science Institute (STScI) in Baltimore, Maryland, observed these finger-like projections while viewing Europa's edge as it passed in front of Jupiter.

The original goal of the team's observing proposal was to determine whether Europa has a thin, extended atmosphere, or exosphere. Using the same observing method that detects atmospheres around planets orbiting other stars, the team also realized if there was water vapor venting from Europa's surface, this observation would be an excellent

The atmosphere of an extrasolar planet blocks some of the starlight that is behind it," Sparks explained. "If there is a thin atmosphere around Europa, it has the potential to block some of the light of Jupiter, and we could see it as a silhouette. And so we were looking for absorption features around the limb of Europa as it transited the smooth

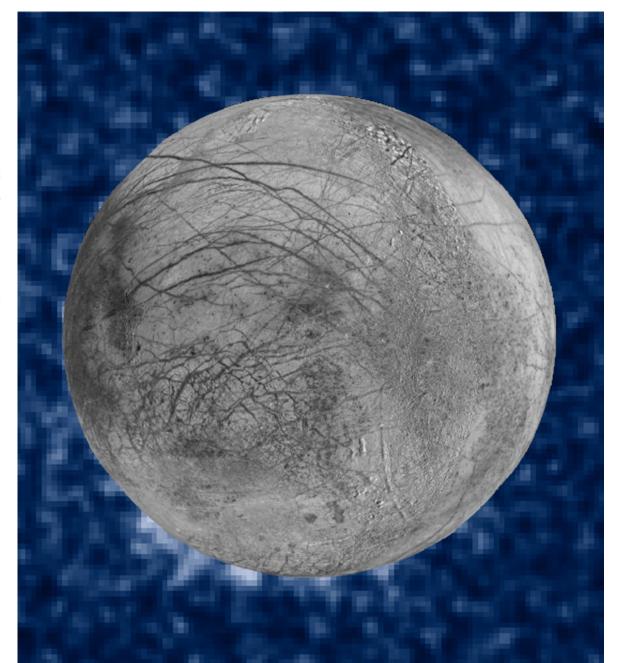

In 10 separate occurrences spanning 15 months, the team observed Europa passing in front of Jupiter. They saw what could be plumes erupting on three of these occasions.

This work provides supporting evidence for water plumes on Europa. In 2012, a team led by Lorenz Roth of Southwest Research Institute in San Antonio, Texas, detected evidence of water vapor erupting from the frigid south polar region of Europa and reaching more than 100 miles into space. Although both teams used Hubble's Space Telescope Imaging Spectrograph (STIS) instrument, each used a totally independent method to arrive at the same conclusion.

"When we calculate in a completely different way the amount of material that would be needed to create these absorption features, it's pretty similar to what Roth and his team found," Sparks said. "The estimates for the mass are similar, the estimates for the height of the plumes are similar. The latitude of two of the plume candidates we see corresponds to their earlier work."

If confirmed, Europa would be the second moon in the solar system known to have water vapor plumes. În 2005, NASA's Cassini orbiter detected jets of water vapor and dust spewing off the surface of Saturn's moon Enceladus.

If you live in a desert or semi-desert region, of the lot. you've probably looked into some of the methods for gardening with less water. If you live in a city, nearly everything comes from afar, and too few of us have considered how to provide for our own food, water, medicine etc. When you learn how necessitates carefully choosing detergents that to provide some of your needs, wherever you're living, you build strength into your family and community.

Look at a map of North America and you'll see that there are many areas where the average rainfall is low – mostly the western and southern states, as well as many other parts of the world. Erratic weather seems to be the rule, and learning how to survive in an area with limited water is a good long-term skill to develop.

So how do you continue to grow and produce food as the ground and heavens seem ever drier? Let's look at the various aspects of droughtresistant gardening.

WATER

Water is the key to life. According to health authorities, only 20% of the world's population has access to potable tap water.

And consider: Of the 333 million cubic miles of water estimated to be on the planet, 97% of that is in the oceans. Two percent is locked in ice. About 0.01% of the water is in lakes and rivers, and the remaining water is more than a mile underground, beyond the reach of conventional well drilling.

One of the biggest uses of water is agriculture, and fortunately, most farmers rely on rain water for about 85% of their water needs. The rest is supplied by wells, dams, aqueducts, etc.

And yes, rain is important, but consider that atany given moment, the amount of rain falling on the earth amounts to about 0.001% of the world's water.

If you're fortunate to live in an area where water is sufficient or abundant, it would still behoove you to learn some methods for doing more with less. Why? Periods of drought are not rare upon the earth, and long periods of severe drought have affected vast swaths of land throughout recorded history. Those who learned to adjust and live with the change, survived. Those who did not, or could not, moved on or died out.

So how do you get more use out of limited water? There are only a few ways to do this:

1) Use your water more than once, and 2) collect rain.

USE YOUR WATER MORE THAN ONCE

When water is limited, you must find ways to do more with less. Here are some examples.

> Don't underestimate the amount of water that can be re-used from the average household. Even with a low-flow toilet (or a composting toilet), there is a lot of water used to wash clothes, take showers and baths, and in the kitchen. An average household in the U.S. uses about 80 gallons daily, give or take some gallons. That's a

> Some of the ancient natives of the Southwest, and of South America, made dams and canals to bring water great distances to their desert homes. We still do this today. Los Angeles County is a classic example of a desert empire that would not exist were it not for the great cement aqueduct that brings water from the north hundreds of miles to the Los Angeles basin. Water is also diverted from the Colorado River to feed the growing demand for water in the Los Angeles basin.

The Gracious Mistress of the Fortunately, when I got to my row of seats I Parsonage warns me all the time that eating was the first one and so I was able to sit near cheese will create bad breath. I know she is right, but cheese is very delicious.

I was boarding an airplane to travel north when the thought struck me that I had eaten a block of cheese before I got to the airport. I was wondering if my breath smelled bad or not. I tried to test it on myself but it never registered with my nose.

I know I have a nose, but my nose does not know when to smell anything. The only thing my nose does for me is sneeze, particularly when I am not prepared. So, I can't smell odor seven days before it is produced!

How she does that I will never know and at my stage in life I am never going to ask her. According to her, bad breath is always bad, which is why they call it "bad breath." My contention is, bad is a relative thing. One person smells one way, another person smells the other way and the twain shall never collide. What is bad for one person may not be bad for another person.

I have a habit of nibbling on cheese. At times, my wife thinks that I am just a mouse. Actually, story. I just love cheese. When I come home the first thing I do is go to the refrigerator, get out a block of cheese, slice it, go sit down and enjoy nibbling on that cheese never concerned about the bad breath it might create.

My wife is very conscious of this and always carries with her a packet of breath mints.

Getting back to my plane ride. As I was It is rather embarrassing to have bad breath, boarding the plane, I remembered I indulged particularly when you are in the company of in my slice of cheese. At first, I was a little very sophisticated people. I have bad breath worried because on the plane you almost sit on the window. One of the things I enjoy in flying is leaning back and resting in the quietness of the atmosphere. However, most of the time I have somebody seated next to me that does not know the meaning of silence.

As I was getting situated in my seat, somebody came and took the seat right next to me. Before they could even sit down and buckle their seatbelt, their mouth started jabbering. If there is anything I do not like it is a mouth that jabbers and jabbers without quitting.

I am quite familiar with the English things the way my wife does. She can smell an language, but I am always perplexed at how somebody can talk without stopping or even pausing for a "period."

Seated next to me was such a person. From the moment he got in, he began talking and for the life of me I could never figure out what he was talking about. He went from one subject to the next subject without even a bridge between

The flight was a 2½-hour flight and I was not sure how in the world I was going to endure such endless chatter all the way. It's not so much that I mind someone else chattering, it's she uses the word "rat," but that is a different the fact that while there chattering they never give me an opportunity to chatter back.

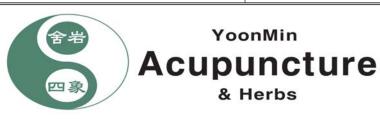

While I was sitting there, an idea came to mind. I don't always have good ideas, but I think this one was pristine in every sense of the word. I began to think of that slice of cheese I had nibbled before boarding the airplane. If my wife is correct, and she usually is, my breath at this time would be dangerously stinky, to use

With a smile on my face, I turned to the chatterbox and just let out very slowly my bad breath in his direction. It must've been bad because all of a sudden, he stopped and he could not breathe. Just to make sure it was working, I sent another hot breath in his direction. His eyes crossed and he set back and looked in the other direction. He had nothing

I do not think Job had this in mind when he wrote, "The spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life"

God's breath is not bad, but it is good to the point of giving me his life to live.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

WILDLIFE WEBCAMS A VOYEUR'S VIRTUAL PARADISE

a voyeur, mainly because I have never felt the urge to spy on people in the privacy of their own space or anywhere else for that matter. However, I must admit that I will allow myself the privilege of nosing in on the interesting intimate activities of wild animals, when given the opportunity.

Being a virtual wildlife voyeur is a relatively recent development for me. It all started a few of years ago, when I found out I could tune in to a variety of live webcam internet broadcasts that show real time streamed footage of birds and other wild animals carrying on with their daily lives, and I have been an avid voyeur ever

My first experience with spying on wildlife someone had posted as a link to my Facebook timeline. The live video was streaming from owl box that a guy in Oceanside had erected in

The stars of this particular "feature film" were a couple of adult barn owls named Sydney and Mel. It showed the two huge love birds nesting and mating at first, then Sydney laying her eggs, the eggs eventually hatching, the hatchlings growing strong enough to fly and ultimately fledging out of the nest, and it all happened right before my very eyes!

It was so amazing to witness those baby owls hatch and grow, then fly away. It was all up close and in person as if I were right there in the nest with them. To me, this is technology at its very best. I learned so much about barn owls from watching that webcam video, and I decided to bookmark the website for easy access in the future. Now I find myself checking in on various wildlife webcams at least once a day to see what's happening with my new feathered and furry four-legged friends.

I frequently enjoy viewing is that of an eagle space.

nest located on Santa Catalina Island. There are actually two eagles' nests on the island that a virtual voyeur can tune in to, and both of them show the enormous, gorgeous adult birds come and go as they do throughout the day, while the baby eagles sit waiting for the treats mom and dad bring home after a hard day of hunting.

Because it is so rare that I ever get to see eagles in the wild, I find this particular webcam to

I have never considered myself to be much of be one of the most fascinating. I try to tune in when I think it might be feeding time, which is typically in the early morning hours before sunrise, or just after the sun goes down. The "treats" those eaglets wait so patiently for are nothing like the kind we humans care to eat, as you might imagine, so viewing at feeding time might not be everyone's cup of tea.

I had hoped to see the little eaglets fledge this year, but unfortunately I missed out because I was too busy to log on. Hopefully I will have the privilege of witnessing the big day with next season's hatchlings. There are several other eagle nest webcams located in various places throughout the world linked to the website as well.

Other live webcams that are posted on via the internet was when I visited a website Sportsman's Paradise Online include a (sportsmansparadiseonline.com) that pristine wild Kestrel nest in Washington state, showing an adult Kestrel laying on an egg soon to become a baby bird, a natural den an hidden camera affixed to the outside of an in Minnesota where you'll see "Lily" the bear coming and going at various times throughout the day, and "Woody" the wood duck nesting in a man-made box waiting patiently for her hatchlings to arrive. The list goes on and on, and I can't seem to get enough of watching those beautiful animals do their thing in the

> If you haven't already had the experience of linking to a wildlife webcam on-line, I highly recommend it. Although, do be warned that you will probably get hooked like I did. It sure beats watching the news and getting depressed or wasting time gaming or chatting it up with a distant friend, or some stranger on a social network website, and by all means it is far more educational.

I don't feel guilty about being the virtual voyeur I have apparently become, rather I feel more connected to the part of this wild world that I may otherwise never be privy to, and I am grateful to modern technology for bringing the beautiful beasts from the great outdoors Another remarkable webcam broadcast that where they live, into my own personal living our exclusive LA County short run of Late Nite Catechism: Barbara Manning. Barbara played the role for over ten years at ACT in Seattle, making it the longest-running show in Seattle history! This show is incredibly interactive - Sister leads the audience through a Catechism class in such a way that Catholics (especially those who remember the Baltimore Catechism) and non-Catholics alike will have a night they will long remember. Having an actress who played the role as many times as Barbara has means that she has zingers for all occasions up the sleeves of her habit!

Marie Rose Award" from the Sisters of The Holy Names for her work in the show. Though wonderfully funny, the show is not a lampoon or a travesty and it has been booked into many a Catholic Diocese over the years.

I can't wait. I've seen three different versions of the show (there are eight) and I've enjoyed them all. Being able to book this show into our season when we had to reschedule Bee-luther-hatchee to January was a lucky coup. I'm hoping that audiences enjoy it as much as I think they will – I'm hoping we can over the next few years. Tickets are selling well Hope to see you soon!

already, and I do hope we'll give Sister a run for her We just learned today who will be our Sister in money with full houses – and we certainly want to keep Sister happy, don't we?! The show will only play 6 performances: October 14, 15 (Friday and Saturday evenings), and 16 at a Sunday matinee; and, Friday, October 21 and two shows on the 22nd.

I'm looking forward to our next free reading next Monday night at 7 p.m. at the Playhouse. We'll read The Quality of Life by Jane Anderson. It will be directed by Gary Reed (he was a past Artistic Director of The Actor's Coop) and will feature four wonderful actors, including D.J. Harner who is helping me curate the series. D.J. was Mother/ General Cutter in our production of Battledrum Barbara was honored with the "Blessed Mother" three years ago. I'm thrilled that she'll be back on our stage.

Our next reading is Foxfire on Monday night, October 17. This one is directed by Karesa McElheny who played Helga in Deathtrap. I'm excited about these readings, these are all plays I'm thinking would be a good fit for a full production. Come and hear them and tell me what you think. As always we do it for you - our SMP family whose support and loyalty mean so much to us and for whom we hope we bring pleasure and joy and moving experiences in the theater. For tickets bring Sister back with other versions of the shows please call Mary in the box office at 626.355.4318.

Jeff's Book Pics By Jeff Brown

Lab Girl by Hope Jahren

A National Best Seller.The book is an illuminating memoir of a woman in science; a moving portrait of a longtime friendship; and a stunningly fresh look at plants that will forever change how you see the natural world. Acclaimed scientist Jahren has built 3 laboratories in which she's studied trees, flowers, seeds, and soil. Lab Girl is a book about work, love, and the mountains that can be moved when those two things come together. It is told through Jahren's remarkable stories: about her childhood in rural Minnesota with an uncompromising mother and a father who encouraged hours of play in his classroom's labs; about how she found a sanctuary in science, and learned to perform lab work done "with both the heart and the hands"; and about the inevitable disappointments, but also the triumphs and exhilarating discoveries, of scientific work.Yet at the core of this book is the story of a relationship Jahren forged with a brilliant, wounded man named Bill, who becomes her lab partner and best friend. Their sometimes rogue adventures in science take them from the Midwest across the United States and back again, over the Atlantic to the ever-light skies of the North Pole and to tropical Hawaii, where she and her lab currently make their home. Jahren's probing look at plants, her astonishing tenacity of spirit, and her acute insights on nature enliven every page of this extraordinary book. Lab Girl opens your eyes to the beautiful, sophisticated mechanisms within every leaf, blade of grass, and flower petal. Here is an eloquent demonstration of what can happen when you find the stamina, passion, and sense of sacrifice needed to make a life out of what you truly love, as you discover along the way the person you were meant to be. Jahren completed her Ph.D. at U.C. Berkeley in 1996.In 1999 she was hired by Johns Hopkins University and went on to become the first woman ever to be

Everyone in the White House knew one truth: If you wanted access to Franklin, you had to get through Missy. She was one of his most trusted advisors, affording her a unique perspective on the president that no one else could claim, and she was deeply admired and respected by Eleanor and the Roosevelt children.With unprecedented access to Missy's family and original source materials, journalist Kathryn Smith tells the captivating and forgotten story of the intelligent, loyal, and clever woman who had a front-row seat to history in the making. The Gatekeeper is a thoughtful, revealing unsung-hero story about a woman ahead of her time, the true weight of her responsibility, and the tumultuous era in which she livedan long overdue tribute to one of the most important female figures in American history.

In 1965, Hilary enrolled at Wellesley College, internat the House Republican Conference, and she her freshman year, she served as president of the Wellesley Young Republicans; she supported the elections of Mayor John Lindsay and of Senator Edward Brooke.She later stepped down from this position, as her views changed regarding the American Civil Rights Movement and the Vietnam War.In a letter to her youth minister at this time, she described herself as "a mind conservative and that advocated radical actions against the political system, she sought to work for change within it.In She became the first student in Wellesley College she was elected president of the Wellesley College Government Association and served through early 1969. In her student government role, she played a role in keeping Wellesley from being embroiled in the student disruptions common to other colleges.A number of her fellow students thought she might some day become the first female President of the United States. FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett generation ages, unfortunately means more cases of happiness, elder abuse than ever before. The mistreatment of our nation's elderly is appalling. There are many different types of elder abuse and neglect, including physical abuse, emotional abuse, financial abuse, and elder neglect. To stop elder abuse we must first understand the totality of the problem. Signs of physical abuse include bruises, broken bones, and scrapes, often resulting from sexual abuse, hitting, pushing, and restraining. Physical abuse also includes dispensing medicine that affects a person's ability or desire A local attorney and father, Marc Garlett is on a mission to function properly. seniors. Emotional abuse includes insults, threats, and screaming. It can also include isolating someone from others, interfering with their access to friends and family members. These behaviors are demeaning and can lead victims to withdraw, become angry, or suffer other types of personality changes.

Financial abuse encompasses taking advantage of, as well as stealing from, seniors. As they age, elders may have a more difficult time keeping track of their own finances. That's why it's so important to designate trusted people in important financial roles. This can be accomplished through naming an agent with powers of attorney.

Elder neglect also involves failing to meet the basic needs of an elderly person. This type of neglect can include not providing medicine or food, or failing to make or attend necessary doctor's appointments or to pay bills. Warning signs to look out for are utilities being turned off, wearing dirty clothing, and the worsening of existing health conditions.

In addition to becoming familiar with the types and signs of elder abuse, you can take affirmative steps to help elders avoid abuse in the first place. Identifying and naming trustworthy people to tend to their affairs if they cannot do so themselves is a good start.
