Foundation (SMCF) will provide valuable funding for several local emergency services, including the Sierra Madre sierramadreemergency.org Community Emergency Response Team and the Sierra Madre Search and Rescue, to help these volunteer organizations acquire and maintain the necessary tools and resources to assist with preparedness.

In total, SMCF approved grants totaling $5,000 at its September board meeting. Other grant recipients were the city's Sierra Vista Park and the Halloween Happenings program.

'We are so excited to be supporting the efforts of these local organizations, who by working together with the City help keep Sierra Madre safe," said Michelle Keith, SMCF Chair. "Through the generous gifts from Sierra Madre residents, local businesses and other caring individuals, combined with the local oversight from our board, SMCF continues to be committed to ensuring Sierra Madre remains a unique community and valued neighborhood. These grants are great example of Invest Local-Support Local."

Listed below are details of the four new grants:

1. Sierra Madre Search & Rescue ($3,500) The grant will be used for cabinetry, including some locked storage to protect expensive equipment, at the Rescue Station to allow the team to maintain and repair radio and electronic equipment. The new funding enables the team to maximize donations by ensuring a longer life of equipment and help the team maintain an improved state of readiness. The Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Team is a group of dedicated volunteers committed to saving lives in the urban interface, such as the mountains, and wilderness. Founded in 1951, the Team is among the elite Search & Rescue teams and has responded to thousands of calls for help in the wilderness and saved countless lives. www. SIERRA MADRE HONORS ITS VOLUNTEERS AT ALVERNO HEIGHTS ACADEMY

By Bill Coburn

On friday at the beautiful Villa del Sol d'Oro on the campus of Alverno Heights Academy, the City paid tribute to its outgoing Commissioners, volunteers, employees and local organizations that contribute to making the City the great place to live that it is. Mayor Gene Goss also recognized outgoing City Manager Elaine Aguilar, Public Safety Director LArry Giannone and Public Works Director Bruce Inman and thanked them for their years of service to the City. Mezzo Soprano Suzanna Guzman was again the Mistress of Ceremonies, and food was provided by

The evening had a baseball theme, in recognition of the City's One Book, One City selection of The Natural, and Guzman took advantage of the theme to lead the crowd in a chorus of "Take Me Out To The Ballgame." Each attendee received a box of Cracker Jacks, there were Baby Ruth candy bars on the tables, and Guzman, who recounted having sung the national anthem at Dodger Stadium to begin the game three times (two wins and a loss), also kept the crowd apprised of the Dodger score throughout the night.

But the real reason everyone was there was to pay tribute to those who contribute to our City. Recognized for their service were:

Outgoing Commissioners Ken Goldstein of the Planning Commission, Darlene Mathieson and

George Siberell of the Community Services Commission, Dorothy Jerneycic, Pat Alcorn and Amy Putnam of the Senior Community Commission, and Glenn Putnam of the Library Board of Trustees. Award winners honored were Erica Whiting, the Community Youth Services Award; Daniel

Rodriguez, Public Service Award; Officers Henry Amos and Ken Berry, Corporal Charles (Chuck) Kamchamnan, Sergeant Edward Delcoure and Sergeant Ruben Enriquez, the Public Safety award; The Spero Foundation, Wistaria Award; and Robert (Rob) Stockly, the George Maurer Lifetime Achievement Award.

While much has been said of the recent re-staffing of the Police Department with a large percentage of new officers, Guzman pointed out that the five officers honored with the Public Safety Award represented 90 years of service to the City between them, ranging from 12 to 24 years each.

Congratulations to the awardees, and thank you for your service to all of the honorees.

DO NOT DISTURB THE BEARS MATING SEASON!

Earlier in the week, Sierra Madre resident Dan Richman was hiking north of Bailey Canyon when stumbled on what has been reported as bears about to engage in their mating ritual. As reported by numerous news sources, including the SMPD and the State Fish and Wildlife officials, Richman was walking on a trail about two miles north of Bailey Canyon Wilderness Park near George's Cabin when a bear appeared ahead of him and stood on its hind legs. Richman said he then turned around to leave and saw a second bear, which attacked.

Department of Fish and Wildlife spokesman Andrew Hughan said in an email that a game warden believed the bears "may have been a mating pair that was interrupted.'

The hiker probably just surprised the bears and they reacted the way an animal with teeth and claws does, attack," Hughan said.

The bear eventually lost interest and walked away. Richman was hospitalized with puncture wounds, deep scratches and bruises. Hughan said it didn't appear Richman did anything to provoke the attack.

Word spread quickly throughout the community would recover from his injuries were then concerned that the bear would be euthanized if found.

Immediately following the incident, Director of Public Safety, Larry Giannone issued the following statement:

"There has been a lot of reaction to the bear attack yesterday which occurred north of Bailey Canyon Park and the misinformation that the Police Department is out to kill the bear. I would like to clarify the circumstances surrounding this incident. The Police Department was involved only to provide safety information to the community and to protect our safety personnel as they traveled the trails to see if there were any other victims. This incident took place several miles north of the City limits up in the jurisdiction of the U.S. Forest Service. Since the attack involved wildlife and occurred within the Federal jurisdiction the Department of Fish and Wildlife were called in to ultimately take charge of the investigation. The Department of Fish and Wildlife are governed by their policies and procedures on how to deal with a wildlife animal that has attacked a human being. The City of Sierra Madre, the Police Department, nor the hief are directing anyone to harm or kill the in the area. We have no say so in how the members of the Fish and Wildlife handle their investigation. Our duty is keep our community members safe and informed of these incidents such as the one yesterday. Thank you for your as reports of people being attacked by local bears is unheard of. Residents, after noting that Richman is for all." At press time, the bear had not been located.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"It's Halloween! It's Halloween! The moon is full and bright. And we shall see what can't be seen on any other night. Skeletons and ghosts and ghouls, grinning goblins fighting duels, werewolves rising from their tombs, witches on their magic brooms. In masks and gowns we haunt the street and knock on doors for trick or treat. Tonight we are the king and pumpkins. Parker creates the body, a structural queen, for oh, tonight, it's Halloween!"

Jack Prelutsky

The giant pumpkins on Alegria have at last been harvested and all that remains are dry, twisted vines. They've been harvested, dear Halloween loving friends, but they are not by any means gone or forgotten. Parker and Heather, those growers of amazing pumpkins, are gearing up for the best Halloween display ever. Oh the sights you'll see when you visit Sierra Madre's Halloween Street! It was my delighted pleasure to visit Parker's Pumpkin Porch and Patch last Saturday, where Halloween is already in the works. A new pirate skeleton, complete with skeleton parrot on his other ghastly, ghouly inhabitants of Parker's Pumpkin Fantasy in just a couple of weeks.

The Parker house, built in 1910, is total Halloween, including orange spider-web fabric on their couch. Pumpkins, bats and spiders spill out from unexpected places, creating a charmingly growing started in 1999 when the store-bought alive and well on Alegria. pumpkins they had carved started to cave in, grow! At their peak year, 35 or 40 giant beauties grew on Parker Acres and this year, a good year, in spite of the deer and the water restrictions, there are pumpkins galore of all shades and sizes. Who knew deer loved pumpkins! But they do. Parker once stepped away from the fenced enclosure where the tender young vines, laden with pumpkin Halloween." blossoms were stretching themselves toward the sun; a marauding deer noticed an opening, slipped in and in seconds ate every single blossom. So discouraged he almost quit the pumpkin business Laughter" is available there... altogether, Parker received so many encouraging notes on the Sierra Madre Facebook page that he Adventures squared his shoulders and keep on cultivating.

New sculptures and structures are coming this year, possibly a carousel. The Snagon - part snake, part dragon - will be back, with a face carved by Heather's brother, Chris, who makes a pilgrimage out from North Carolina every year to carve engineering marvel, employing many of their smaller pumpkins. Look for their 14 Cinderella pumpkins, which are a flat variety, the perfect shape for wheels on racecars and motorcycles. Inspired by a picture in a Martha Stewart magazine, the lamp table was created...so real looking that a couple wandering by commented that it was certainly interesting how these people brought some of their furniture out to augment the pumpkins, not realizing that was all pumpkin they

Big Mac, which is the 100+ pound variety, Atlantic Giants, you'll see them all and, incidentally, all the really big ones have names! Look for the giant spider with fabric covered legs sewn by Heather's sister. It's definitely a family shoulder, still in his box, will be joining all the affair. Heather's mother always made Halloween special and the Parker family is continuing in that tradition, serving gallons of hot apple cider to thirsty trick or treaters. Everything, of course, was inspired by Bud Switzer's hundreds of carved pumpkins in years gone by. Bud's out of the carving business now, but you'll see him Halloween Eve friendly Halloween-y home. The pumpkin looking at all that's going on to keep Halloween

Parker and Heather especially enjoy the night as jack-o-lanterns sadly do. Parker tossed them after Halloween when all the visitors have taken out into the Back 40 and, much to their surprise, their candy home to count and Sierra Madreans these pumpkins put down roots and started to come out to see the amazing work that has been done and chat for a few minutes with Heather and Parker, the delightful Alegria pumpkin growers. Stop by and say hi and keep looking for scarecrows all over town. There are some really nifty ones!

Police, this week also released the names of the officers who responded to the 911 domestic disturbance call early morning Sept. 30. According to police Michael Orosco, Philip Poirier, Raphael Santiago, Aaron Villacana, Thomas Butler and Robert Griffith were involved.

At the time, police said after restraining Thomas, the officers observed him not breathing at which time CPR and life saving measures were used. The Investigation is being led by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Homicide

Man shot by South Pasadena police during standoff

A mother and daughter escaped to safety Sunday morning, after finding a prowler in their home, a situation that led to a standoff and ended with intruder being shot by officers.

According to police, they were called to a home 1300 block of Huntington Drive Sunday shortly before 4:20 a.m. Police found the two women locked in an upstairs bathroom and the suspect ransacking the lower level of the home. Police shot the man after being confronted. He then barricaded himself in a bedroom and police helped the woman escape out the bathroom window.

The suspect was later taken into custody. He was shot in the shoulder.

Pet of the Week

Frank (A405023) is a goofy 1-year-old, neutered male, black and white pit bull mix. Frank absolutely loves people and gets along great with most other dogs. Frank knows his sit command and waits patiently to get leashed up to go for a walk. Our volunteers report he's an excellent loose-leash walker! This happy-go-lucky boy still has some puppy energy and he's looking for an active home full of toys, treats, and cuddles. Frank's adoption fee is $125, which includes the neuter surgery, microchip and up-to-date vaccines.

ARCADIA'S BOND RATING RAISED TO HIGHEST POSSIBLE AAA RATING

ARCADIA, Calif. --- The City of Arcadia has Administrative Services Director Hue Quach. secured the coveted AAA bond rating from Standard & Poor's (S&P) with the outlook for the City as "stable." The rating increase from AA+ to the highest rating of AAA is a reflection of Arcadia's strong economy, budgetary performance and flexibility, and liquidity, but namely strong management, and solid financial practices and responsibility by City leaders.

"Our bond rating increase to an AAA rating, the highest rating possible, is evidence of our exceptional budgetary planning and solid financial management that has always set Arcadia apart from other organizations," said Mayor Tom Beck. "We are looking to the future and making sure we have the resources available for what may come up unexpectedly, but at the same time, we thoughtfully consider how we spend those resources on a daily basis to make Arcadia the best community in which to live and do business."

"Similar to an individual's credit score, a bond rating measures the City's ability to repay its debt. To receive AAA rating from S&P, typically given to the likes of U.S. Treasury Bonds, reflects a view that Arcadia has a very strong economy, improved property wealth, and strong management with good financial policies and practices," said

Bond ratings are a method of evaluating credit risk and the City's ability to meet its financial obligations. The higher rating would allow Arcadia to borrow at lower interest rates which could potential save the City money in future borrowing costs. In the past, the City has issued bonds to finance the Police Department Headquarters in 2001 and the Santa Anita Bridge project in 2012. The bonds are repaid through property taxes.

request, considering that there are hundreds of wineries in California. They say that life is a cabaret; I'd like to add cabernet to the mix. The 2012 Toasted Head is from the Yolo region(great area for Tomatoes), which covers Mendocino to Sonoma and Napa, and this is where R.H. Philips Vineyards calls home. The area has a relatively mild climate with predictable heating and cooling. The 2012 season in Mendocino County turn out to be a very good year - so good that Toasted Head didn't have to source too many of its grapes. I found the taste to be soft, even pleasant, with likeable tannins and hint of spice, and appreciated the cedary notes from the oak aging. The rich fruit and the bear on the label might detour some, but for $10 it's a winner, and if you're a fan of old world reds, you'll like this red. Feel free to put it in a brown paper bag when going to a tasting party - I promise that your friends will enjoy it. No matter the cost of wine if you like it, enjoy it and share with friends. This cab is ready to drink now. It's a perfect BBQ wine. Roast up some sweet peppers or BBQ shrimp, or take it to a drive in movie. Yum !!!

When someone uses the term "old world" with regard to wine, they are referring to wines made in countries that are considered the birthplaces of wine, basically Europe and the Middle East. It's usually a bit lower in alcohol content, in this case at

HIT THE RESET BUTTON

With life's abundance

FUN time are vital to happiness. There comes a moment of saturation -- aka stress -- in living and working. A wise person builds fun and relaxation into their schedule to steer clear of reaching the point of no return and saying, "Ahh...I can't take vital life force energy, changes your perspective of it anymore!" It is hard to get off the hamster wheel, so here are a few tips for hitting the all-important reset button for mind, body, and perspective.

THE GOOD LIFE

HOW MUCH DOES A FUNERAL COST?

How much does an average funeral and body burial cost? I need to make funeral arrangements for my aunt, who's terminally ill, and would like to have a cost idea going in so I can plan and budget appropriately.

The Executor

Dear Executor.

It definitely pays to know what charges to expect when pre-planning a funeral. Most people don't have a clue, and can often be upsold thousands of dollars worth of extra services you may not want or need. Here's a breakdown of what you can expect.

The first thing you need to be aware of is that funeral costs will vary considerably depending on your geographic location, the funeral home you choose and the funeral choices you make. With that said, here's a breakdown of what an average funeral costs, nationwide, according to recent data from the National Funeral Directors Association.

Professional services fee: This is a basic nondeclinable fee that covers the funeral provider's time, expertise and overhead. $2,000

Transfer of the remains: This is for picking up the body and taking it to the funeral home. $310

Embalming and body preparation: Embalming is usually mandatory for open-casket viewing, otherwise it's not required unless the body is going to be transported across state lines. Embalming costs $695. Other body preparations, which includes hairdressing and cosmetics runs $250.

Funeral viewing and ceremony: If the viewing and funeral ceremony is at the funeral home, you'll be charged for use of the chapel and any necessary staff. Costs: $420 for viewing, and $495 for funeral

Metal casket: This is a big money maker for funeral homes, with markups of up to 300 percent over the wholesale price. $2,395. Funeral transportation: Use of hearse and driver

$318 to transport the body to the cemetery. Use of a service car/van $143. Memorial printed package: This includes printed programs and memorial guest book. $155. In addition to these costs, there are a number of other related expenses such as flowers for the funeral ($100 to $600 or more), the clergy honorarium ($200 to $300) and extra copies of the death certificate ($5 to $35 per copy depending on the state).

And, a number of large cemetery costs like the plot or mausoleum fee, the vault or grave liner that's required by most cemeteries, and the opening and closing of the grave, all of which average between $2,000 and $4,000; and the gravestone, which typically costs between $1,000 and $3,000.

All told, the average cost of a total funeral today is around $11,000 or more.

Ways to Save

If you aunt's estate can't afford this, there are ways to save. For starters, you should know that prices can vary significantly by funeral provider, so it's wise to

If you need some help finding an affordable provider, your area funeral consumers alliance program may be able to refer you. See Funerals. org/local-fca or call 802-865-8300 for contact information.

There are also free websites you can turn to, like Parting.com that lets you compare prices, and FuneralDecisions.com that will provide estimates from local funeral homes based on what you want.

When evaluating funeral providers, be sure you get an itemized price list of services and products so you can accurately compare and choose what you want.

But, the most significant way to save on a funeral is to request a "direct burial" or "direct cremation." With these options your aunt would be buried or cremated shortly after death, which skips the embalming and viewing. If she wants a memorial service you can have it at the graveside or at her place of worship without the body. These services usually run between $600 and $2,000, not counting cemetery

PROXIMA CENTAURI: MORE SUN-LIKE THAN WE THOUGHT?

In August, astronomers announced that the nearest star, Proxima Centauri, hosts an Earth-sized planet (called Proxima b) in its habitable zone. At first glance, Proxima Centauri seems nothing like our Sun. It's a small, cool, red dwarf star that's only one-tenth as massive and one-thousandth as luminous as the Sun. However, new research shows that it is Sun-like in one surprising way: It has a regular cycle of starspots.

Starspots (like sunspots) are dark blotches on a star's surface where the temperature is a little cooler than the surrounding area. They are driven by magnetic fields. A star is made of ionized gases called plasma. Magnetic fields can restrict the plasma's flow and create spots. Changes to a star's magnetic field can affect the number and distribution of starspots.

Our Sun experiences an 11-year sunspot activity cycle. At the solar minimum, the Sun is nearly spotfree. At solar maximum, typically more than 100 sunspots cover less than one percent of the Sun's surface.

The new study finds that Proxima Centauri undergoes a similar cycle lasting seven years from peak to peak. However, its cycle is much more dramatic. At least a full one-fifth of the star's surface is covered in spots at once. Also, some of those spots are much bigger relative to the star's size than the spots on

"If intelligent aliens were living on Proxima b, they would have a very dramatic view," says lead author Brad Wargelin of the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics (CfA).

Astronomers were surprised to detect a stellar activity cycle in Proxima Centauri because its interior is expected to be very different from the Sun's. The outer third of the Sun experiences a roiling motion called convection, similar to water boiling in a pot, while the Sun's interior remains relatively still. There is a difference in the speed of rotation between these two regions. Many astronomers think the shear arising from this difference is responsible for generating the Sun's magnetic activity cycle.

In contrast, the interior of a small red dwarf like Proxima Centauri should be convective all the way into the star's core. As a result, it shouldn't experience a regular cycle of activity.

"The existence of a cycle in Proxima Centauri fields are generated as well as we thought we did," says Smithsonian co-author Jeremy Drake.

The study does not address whether Proxima Centauri's activity cycle would affect the potential habitability of the planet Proxima b. Theory suggests that flares or a stellar wind, both of which are driven shows that we don't understand how stars' magnetic by magnetic fields, could scour the planet and strip away any atmosphere. In that case, Proxima b might be like Earth's Moon—located in the habitable zone, but not at all friendly to life.

"Direct observations of Proxima b won't happen for a long time. Until then, our best bet is to study the star and then plug that information into theories about star-planet interactions," says co-author Steve Saar.

The team detected the activity cycle using groundbased observations from the All Sky Automated Survey combined with space-based X-ray measurements by several missions, including Swift, Chandra, and XMM-Newton.

CHRISTOPHER Nyerges GROWING THE "LAZY-MAN'S" GARDEN

Foods," and other books. He year after year.

can be reached at www.SchoolofSelf-Reliance.com.] Are you like me – a lazy gardener? I'm not really lazy-lazy – it's just that there are so many things in life that require our attention. Still, I marvel at my friends who seem to have all day to create beautiful gardens with beautiful rows with wind chimes and special bricks lining the paths and vegetables that should be on the cover of some magazine. I admire such gardens, but I do not spend the time that it takes to create such showplace gardens, where you can invite friends and community to regale in your productivity. Nevertheless, I seem to be the type of person who cannot live without a garden. A garden of some sort, even if all the vegetables are in pots and tubs in a tiny back yard. I insist on all organic, and I love variety. And wherever possible, I like to grow those plants that require the least amount of work for the return. Years ago, when I taught an "Integral Gardening" class at a local junior college, students constantly wanted to know why certain plants did not grow well in their yard. They asked about roses, petunias, lettuce, corn, broccoli, and on and on. In general, when they wanted to know why a particular plant did not grow well, I directed them to the Sunset Gardening book where they could analyze their plant. Or I directed them to the Rodale book which shows pictures of which bugs are eating your plants, and which leaf discolorations indicate which mineral deficiencies, or other problem.

However, I always tried to impress upon the student two basic principles of my lazy man's guide to gardening.

One, wherever you live, look at your yard. Each plot of soil is unique because of the slope of the asparagus produces the young shoots, which you land, the way the sun and wind affect that land, the type of soil, and the types of trees already growing there, such as eucalyptus, for example. Observe what already grows well in your yard. Then, as you begin to plant various herbs and vegetables, you will observe that some do well, and some do not do well. Focus on those which do well. Those that consistently do not grow well in your yard are perhaps not suited for your area.

Second, rather than focus on the specific needs of individual plants, focus always on improving the soil. Quality soil is the basis of good agriculture. Add compost, add earthworms, use mulch, whatever it takes. THE PERENNIAL GARDEN

Over the years, I have encouraged those garden plants that take care of themselves. That means they are hardy, insect-repellant, and mostly perennials.

For those of you who are non-gardeners, an annual plant means you plant it in the spring and it is dead by fall. A perennial means you plant it once and it is like the Eveready bunny-- it just keeps going and going, year after year. I love perennials, especially if it is a plant that I enjoy eating.

When I first began gardening at my parents' home many years ago, I grew Jerusalem artichokes. These are sunflowers which are native to eastern North America. They produce volumes of underground tubers, which are good raw, or cooked like potatoes. Unless you have lots of gophers, most anyone can grow Jerusalem artichokes, also called sunchokes.

Potatoes are easy to grow. I usually take potatoes the from the store which have sprouted, and then plant "Extreme them in a big mulch pile. They grow and grow, and Simplicity: Homesteading in when they die back, you dig into the pile and harvest the City," "How to Survive the big potatoes. You keep the little ones in the Anywhere," "Guide to Wild ground and so the potato patch continues to grow, > Onions are another easy crop which is easy to grow, and they are perennial if you only pinch off the greens and leave the roots for multiplication. In fact, when left in the ground, onion bulb multiply every season, and you can separate them to increase the size of your onion patch. You can eat some of the bulbs when you do this division. A benefit of onions is that they tend to be highly insect-resistant for the garden. Any members of this family can be grown likewise: onions, chives, leeks, etc.

> Swiss chard was one of the first plants I used to grow in my garden. Though not technically a perennial, the plant will readily produce seed and reseed itself if you leave a few plants growing each season. Though the subsequent seasons will produce smaller leaves, you can still create an endless source of the chard leaves.

> One of my favorite experiments in gardening was with New Zealand spinach. I originally dug up a small plant on the fringe of a beach near Malibu, and planted it in the hillside garden. This is a constantly sprawling perennial plant, and over the course of several years, it covered at least a thousand square feet in a succulent, edible groundcover. Unlike regular garden spinach (which is an annual), New Zealand spinach leaves can be harvested yearround, a little here, a little there. It is even tastier than regular spinach, and can be added to salads, soups, sandwiches, stews.

> My aunt and uncle in Ohio introduced me to the asparagus plant, which is a beautiful ferny plant most of the year, producing little red (not-edible) fruits in the fall. In the spring, the rootstock of the cut and eat. And guess what? Once you have a good productive rootstock of asparagus, it will produce shoots for about 50 years! That's a great lazy-man's garden plant.

> This just scratches the surface of the plants to grow in a perennial garden. If you have questions, please write to me c/o this paper.

WHERE HAVE ALL THE CLOWNS GONE?

Nothing quite measures up to a nice hot cup of coffee after a scrumptious supper and if anybody can scrumpturize a supper, it is the Gracious of acceptance, but in the home, it was something Mistress of the Parsonage. Every once in a while inappropriate. she will point out the fact that I am not as skinny as I once was. My response to her is simply this, "It's your fault for being such a wonderful cook."

That stops the conversation; she smiles, sits back and thinks about what I just said. I sit back and smile thinking that I have gotten out of another bit of a pickle.

It is very hard to keep up with the news today because we have such technology that whatever happens anywhere in the universe we have an immediate story about it.

little bit tired of the news these days. My wife and I were shocked this week to see a news report about, of all things, clowns. These clowns, so the reporter went on, were scaring people and committing crimes like robbery.

Really? Then they had some footage of somebody dressed up as a clown, frightening people and threatening to do bodily harm. Now, some places are forbidding clowns to show up. Even during the Halloween season, some stores are not selling clown costumes.

How far have we gone in our culture when clowns are a threat to our culture?

It was not always that way. In high school, for That was a title of deep reverence and pride. To be the class clown meant you were doing things that made other people laugh. You were joking and clowning around and creating a great deal of merriment. With the tension many of our high school teachers created in class, the class clown had an important job of bringing down the tension.

If there were awards for being the class clown, I certainly would have gotten one in high school.

The Gracious Mistress of the They only have awards for scholarship and Parsonage and I were getting athletics. I say nothing is more important in a class ourselves situated in the than the class clown. There should be some kind of

Then when I was growing up, my mother kept telling me to, "Stop clowning around!"

At the time, I really did not understand what she was trying to say. In high school, it was a measure

Although I do respect my mother, I have yet to "stop clowning around."

Now, I have my wife telling me to, "Stop clowning around." I have often wondered if this is not some kind of gene passed on to every woman. There was not just one news story about these fallacious clowns doing all sorts of criminal activity, but it seemed to be as if a trend was developing.

I have a friend of mine who is a professional clown and does all kinds of work with children's I do not know about anybody else, but I am just a and charity activities. You would not find a nicer person in all the world than my good clown friend. I have not talked to him about this new development in clownville, but I am sure he has a good take on it.

The purpose of the clown is to make people laugh. That's all.

Now even a certain fast food chain has given their clown a vacation until some of this nonsense passes over. I think this is stupid.

I believe that if somebody is misusing the clown motif for "naughty activities," the people who are affected the most should justly punish him. And by that, I mean children and people who still are acting like children.

If any of these people dressed in a clown example, I was often referred to as the class clown. outfit should be caught doing something that is unclownish there should be some very dire circumstances administered in an appropriate way. Like a pie in the face.

> At one time, no circus was complete without a whole bunch a clowns keeping the merriment going strong. All of these false clowns should be gathered together and dealt with rather brutishly. After all, if you are going to defame such a sacred character in the American culture, you need to be dealt with very severely. How dare somebody do this sort of thing to an iconic figure of American

> Why is it we have some people who will take something that is very precious to certain people, turn it around and make it a very negative and nasty thing? There should be a law against that sort of thing. Where is the politician that is going to put his or her foot down against this kind of travesty in our society?

> Is nothing sacred anymore in our country? I think the apostle Paul had something like this in mind when he wrote, "Unto the pure all things are pure: but unto them that are defiled and unbelieving is nothing pure; but even their mind and conscience is defiled" (Titus 1:15).

> Why will some people take something that other people get pleasure from and turn it into something negative? Only a corrupt mind would

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

MATTHEW'S WORST BRINGS OUT MANKIND'S BEST

When disaster strikes, it can be devastating for those who fall victim to it's destruction. But more often than not, it is during times when nature reminds us who's the real boss of this planet, that caring people come together and unite to lend a helping hand. The events that unfolded before, during and after last week's hurricane Matthew could not be a better example of human inspiration made manifest by the occurred along the southern Atlantic coast last week, most of which were sure to instill a sense of helplessness for those watching. But, thankfully there were a lot of news casts that also covered the courageous acts of folks who chose to take action rather than sit by helplessly and watch the storm take it's toll.

Among the many individuals and groups involved in performing random acts of kindness during last week's natural disaster were the Washington Humane Society and Washington Animal Rescue League out of D.C. Their good work ensured that many animals would escape the torrents of Matthew before it was too late. They had the foresight to recognize the hurricane was expected to pose an enormous threat to sheltered animals in coastal South Carolina.

Concerned for the welfare of those animals, they gathered their troops of volunteers and partners and immediately lept into action. With little time for planning or preparation, they launched a team effort that succeeded in relocating several animals from local shelters in the D.C. area to temporary safe housing to make room for the animals that would be evacuated from South Carolina's shelters.

It was a simple resolution to a potentially tragic problem, but it was also a pretty major project requiring lots of last-minute time and energy on the part of both groups. The bottom line is they got it done and by doing so, they saved the lives of many shelter animals that would otherwise have been caught in the storm and probably perished. Remarkably, the positive results were doubled when the news hit the public and more adopting families showed interest in the pets that survived hurricane Matthew!

The Washington DC team effort brought great trapped or injured animals in the community. With and let live. limited staff and an overwhelming number of animal emergency calls coming in, they could at least be comforted that the animals being kept at their shelter would not have to Another inspiring story that came out in the news was about a bald eagle that had to be very skillfully and carefully removed from the grille of a vehicle in Jacksonville, Florida. The poor bird had been thrown into the car's front grille by extremely high velocity winds that whipped through the area during the hurricane.

Fortunately, the driver of the vehicle became aware of what had happened and was able to pull over and make a call to get help from some brave local raptor rescue volunteers. As a memoir to the close call that the bald eagle had with an early death, they named him "Matthew", after the storm that nearly took its

There were also several reports of rescued pets and livestock that had been rendered astray when they Countless news headlines captured the details of what either fled out of fear, or were sadly left behind by the owners who had to flee quickly to save their own lives. Hundreds of animals were brought into shelters where they could be kept, at least temporarily until they were identified by their owners and brought back to their own homes, or placed into foster care for later

One very touching story I read on National Geographic.com told of a Facebook post shared by Back to Nature Wildlife Refuge in central Florida's Orange County. The rescue organization reported a major influx of injured wildlife, including numerous infant squirrels, raccoons and various bird species that had been abandoned or orphaned during the torrential storm. The happy side of the story is that the volunteers at hand had the skills to save the lives of those babies and give them a second chance at life!

Hundreds of animals were reported to have been rescued from the streets of the affected areas and brought to shelters in Florida as well as Georgia, North and South Carolina for refuge and tender loving care provided by SPCA & Humane Society staff along with the helping hands of many animal-loving volunteers and the coordination of several rescue groups.

It is amazing how so many people are willing to come together and unite to do what is right when disaster strikes and the going gets tough. A disastrous event, whether natural or man-made can be a devastating experience with a very unhappy outcome.

But it is in the midst of the tragedy that the human spirit can choose to soar and the broken can be bolstered by the encouragement of their fellow man. In this case, those precious animals were blessed to have come into contact with the kind people who cared enough to go out of their way, and for some relief to the staff at the South Carolina shelters by even risk their own lives to save them from the storm. allowing them to focus on evacuating the countless I can't think of a much happier tale than that! OCTOBER IS BREAST CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

Breast cancer tops all cancers for women across the globe with more than 1.7 million new breast cancer cases detected worldwide in 2012 alone. Women who live in developed countries such as the United States, England and Australia experience a higher rate of breast cancer incidences. In October 1985, National Breast Cancer Awareness Month initiated its inaugural health campaign to support research, prevention, diagnosis, treatment and a cure for the disease. Today, widespread international communities join in setting aside every October Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

In the United States, e s t i m a t e d 246,700 women diagnosed are breast with cancer each year and more die. On average, a woman is diagnosed with breast cancer every two minutes nationwide. The lifetime risk for getting breast cancer is one in eight for U.S. women and one in 1,000 for U.S. men. Breast cancer in men is rare but carries a higher mortality rate primarily because men are less likely to seek medical attention for a breast concern or lump.

"In spite of the death rates, almost 3 million breast cancer survivors are currently alive in the United States," said Renee Concialdi, President of Right at Home of Pasadena. "To beat breast cancer, prevention through a healthy lifestyle and early detection are key. Our in-home care agency works predominantly with seniors, and many older women think they are immune from breast cancer, but they are not. Age increases breast cancer rates."

Concialdi notes that the average age for U.S women to develop breast cancer is 61, and rates are highest in women over age 70. The received age for breast cancer among U.S. men is 68. As part of Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Concialdi recommends a review of the following breast cancer risk factors, symptoms and prevention guidelines.

Breast Cancer Common Risk Factors
Certain known risk factors can increase the likelihood of developing breast cancer, including the following:

- Genetic Risk Factors
- Age—Two-thirds of breast cancer develops after age 55.
- Gender—Women are nearly 100 times more likely than men to develop breast cancer.

 Race and ethnicity—White women are at a slightly higher risk than African-American women for developing breast cancer. Breast cancer is more common in African-American women under age 45.
- o Family history—Having a parent, sister or child diagnosed with breast or ovarian cancer increases a person's own risk for breast cancer (the risk is even higher if the relative was diagnosed before age 50).

Personal breast cancer history—A person with cancer in one breast is at higher risk for future breast cancer in another part of the same breast or in the other breast.

o Inherited genes—Roughly 5 to 10 percent of breast cancer is connected to hereditary defects or mutations passed from a parent. The most common of these abnormal genes are BRCA1 and BRCA2.

Menstrual and reproductive history— Starting menstruation before age 12 or going into menopause after age 55 increases breast cancer risk. Never giving birth or having a first child in older age are also risk factors.

O Dense breast tissue—Breasts that have more fibrous and glandular tissue than fatty tissue are considered dense breasts. Women with dense breasts have up to twice the risk for

- Environmental or Lifestyle Risk Factors Physical inactivity—A sedentary
- lifestyle heightens breast cancer risk.

 Excess body weight—Being overweight or obese adds to the likelihood of breast cancer. o Alcohol—Drinking two to five drinks daily increases the possibility of breast cancer by
- o Birth control—Oral and injectable birth control have shown to elevate the risk level for breast cancer. Once oral contraceptive pills are stopped, the risk appears to return to normal
- Combined hormone replacement therapy—The use of both estrogen and progesterone hormones (cont. on page B3)

RANCHO LOS AMIGOS NATIONAL REHABILITATION CENTER AND THE DON KNABE WELLNESS CENTER DEDICATION

By Joan Schmidt

In the City of Downey, there is an exceptional facility-Rancho Los Amigos Rehabilitation Center. For the past several years, Rancho has continued to be the only public facility in the top 15-20 rehab hospitals in the United States. Rancho began in 1888 to treat farm workers who could not afford medical care and also previously served as a facility for mental health and polio patients.

On four different occasions, Rancho Los Amigos retire. Under his watch, Rancho has gone through great transformation to become a magnificent gem in LA County Healthcare System.

How could one man accomplish such a feat? One example is by raising ½ billion dollars for that purpose! And always voting to keep it open at Board meetings!

years ago via Duarte Library and its then-Director Peter Rosenwald who brought several Rancho artists not only to display their work, but give demonstrations like Kenneth Younger and his marbling technique.

Over the past twenty years, I have attended a few of their annual receptions and it was wonderful to see familiar artists like Robert Thome, Ann Ruth, Fernando and Ligia Sturla, Barbara Bain and many others. At the last event I attended, there was a second room of art with children's works-thanks to Supervisor Knabe. He encouraged the youth program and there were paintings of him by the children. It was awesome. They loved him!

Knabe learned of Rancho when his dear friend, a Cerritos City Council Member was seriously injured and admitted to the hospital for his recovery. During his daily visits Knabe realized the incredible impact Rancho had on so many lives-there were arts and sports programs, new technologies and cultural excursions.

This past October 12th, the Don Knabe Wellness Center was officially dedicated. It will include a state of the art gymnasium and therapy pool. (It is very difficult for special needs people to find pools or gyms that they can utilize.)

The Dedication had 600+ attendees and many special speakers. Supervisor Hilda Solis assumed office in 2014 and immediately toured Rancho. She couldn't say enough about how wonderful Rancho was in danger of closing. Its champion has been was and praised Knabe for his role in its growth LA County Supervisor Don Knabe who is soon to and great new programs. Solis had introduced the measure to name the new center, the Don Knabe Wellness Center.

> Robert Thome a Rancho patient, artist, teacher, and mentor could not praise Knabe enough. Thome had also spoken at the Supervisors Meeting to keep Rancho open.

I want my readers to know what Rancho offers I learned of this wonderful facility over twenty and why Knabe has been its champion all these years: Inpatient and Outpatient Services include: Stroke Rehabilitation, Adult Brain Injury, Spinal Cord Injury, Orthopedic Disability, Acute Neurology Unit, and Physical and Developmental Disorders. Specialty Services: Center for Applied Rehab Technology, Day Rehab Center. Don Knabe Pediatric Arts Program, Driver Rehab and Training Program, H.O.M.E., Know Barriers: Peer Mentoring and Life Coaching, Language and College Resource Center, Pathokinesiology Lab, Performing Arts of Rancho, Rancho Works, Enterprises, Recreation Therapy, Transportation, Tyler A. Dykes Center for Robotic Rehab, Wellness Center, Wheelchair Sports Program and World-Renowned Seating Clinic.

Please consider contributions to Scholarships Funds. For example, a $50 donation = 2 Individual Scholarships which are for a 3 month period. THANK YOU!! Please visit www. ranchofoundation.com for further information.

When it's time to BUY OR SELL, I can help you get TOP MARKET VALUE for your property!

Notes from the Sierra MadrePlayhouse

THE SAVAGE BEAST

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano We've heard the expression "Music hath charms to soothe the savage beast." But I would emend it to: "Theater hath charms...." I spent the evening yesterday at SMP preparing for the arrival of Sister and her Late Nite Catechism . We got her room ready, her blackboard cleaned, her pencils sharpened; we hung the religious posters and polished the furniture. No detail is too small Estelle Campbell and Ward Calaway, my partners in managing SMP, and Derek Copenhaver, our Stage Manager, were there last night, as well. And we all were giddy with excitement far beyond the tasks we were engaged in preparing for Late Nite Catechism. I realized that we have ALL been charmed - or infected with a love of making theater. As we reviewed the needs for Sister's class and made preparations, I noticed that we were smiling a lot and all happy to be together in that room.

I've written about how much I love making theater, how much I love our Playhouse, how much joy I get from just being in our theater. I was reminded of it again last night. It is so complicated and rich - a mixture of joy of story-telling, a desire to make people happy, a hope of making a difference and an impact on people, a belief in the power of community and we all felt it last night.

The break in our schedule when we had to postpone Bee-luther-hatchee has meant that coming back to the Playhouse last night was even sweeter because of having been away. I'm so happy - so charmed - we are back to producing wonderful memories for you and for me. I can't wait to see you in the lobby again.

Late Nite is selling well – Sunday is sold-out and we have strong sales on all of the other days. We've placed an ad in this paper and several others - I really ant the show to sell out so I can convince the Board to let me bring it back for a longer run or in a different version. Please come - I promise you, you'll laugh yourselves off your chairs. A reminder that it plays through Saturday night, October 22.

Our next reading is Foxfire on Monday night, October 17. This one is directed by Karesa McElheny who played Helga in Deathtrap. Come and hear them and tell me what you think. I'm excited about these free readings, these are all plays I'm thinking would be a good fit for a full production. At the last reading we had about 40 people. Makes me so glad to be able to share another event with you.

As always we do it for you - our SMP family whose support and loyalty mean so much to us and for whom we hope we bring pleasure and joy and moving coming together to share an experience, and maybe a bit of delight in make-believe. Whatever it is – I know in the box office at 626.355.4318. Hope to see you soon!

She was also a member of the Commission on Security and Cooperation in

Following the September 11 attacks, Clinton sought to obtain funding for the recovery efforts in New York City and security improvements in her state. Working with Senator Charles Schumer, she was instrumental in securing $21 billion in funding for the World Trade Center site's redevelopment. She subsequently took a leading role in investigating the health issues faced by 9/11 first responders. Clinton voted for the USA Patriot Act in October 2001. In 2005, when the act was up for renewal, she expressed concerns with the USA Patriot Act Reauthorization Conference Report regarding civil liberties, before voting in favor of the USA PATRIOT Improvement and Reauthorization Act of 2005.

Clinton strongly supported the 2001 U.S. military action in Afghanistan, saying it was a chance to combat terrorism while improving the lives of Afghan women who suffered under the Taliban government.

After the Iraq War began, Clinton made trips to Iraq and Afghanistan to visit American troops stationed there. Observing that war deployments were draining regular and reserve forces, she co-introduced legislation to increase the size of the regular U.S. Army by 80,000 soldiers to ease the strain. In late 2005, Clinton said that while immediate withdrawal from Iraq would be a mistake, Bush's pledge to stay "until the job lobbied against the closure of several military adequate.

Clinton voted against President Bush's two major tax cut packages, the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 and the Jobs and Growth Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2003.In 2005, Clinton called for the Federal Trade Commission to investigate how hidden sex scenes showed up in the controversial video game Grand Theft Auto: San Andreas. Along with Senators Joe Lieberman and Evan Bayh, she introduced the Family Entertainment Protection Act, intended to protect children from inappropriate content found in video games. In 2004 and 2006, Clinton voted against the Federal Marriage Amendment that sought to prohibit same-sex marriage.

Clinton opposed the Iraq War troop surge of 2007, for both military and domestic political reasons (by the following year, she was privately acknowledging that the surge had been successful) In March of that year, she voted in favor of a war-spending bill that required President Bush to begin withdrawing troops from Iraq by a deadline; it passed almost completely along party lines but was subsequently vetoed by Bush. In May, a compromise war funding bill that removed withdrawal deadlines but tied funding to progress benchmarks for the Iraqi government passed the Senate by a vote of 80-14 and would be signed by Bush; Clinton was one of those who voted against it. Clinton responded to General David Petraeus's September 2007 Report to Congress on the Situation in Iraq by saying, "I think that the reports that you provide to us really require a willing suspension of disbelief." As the financial crisis of 2007-08 reached a peak with the liquidity crisis of September 2008, Clinton supported the proposed bailout of the U.S. financial system, voting in favor of the $700 is done" was also misguided, as it gave Iraqis billion law that created the Troubled Asset Relief an open-ended invitation not to take care of Program, saying that it represented the interests themselves". FROM INDIAN LAKES -'EVERYTHING FEELS BETTER NOW' genre conception of California-based multi-instrumentalist Joey Vannucchi. The moniker is derived from Indian Lakes, California, where Vannucchi started writing and recording songs at the age of 20. Over the course of three full-length albums, Vannucchi has steadily evolved both sonically and wisely. His proclivity for subdued guitars and wistful melodies stick in one's mind like glue. Another remarkable fact about Vannucchi is that not only does he write all of music but also performs every instrument heard on his records. When on tour, he has close friends supporting him as a full fledge band. With the release of his Forth album and second on Triple Crown Records, Everything Feels Better Now is comprised of profoundly layered guitars, emotionally driven monologues, and a moody resonance that will surely touch the listener in an insightful manner. This new outing is a fresh chapter for From Indian Lakes. Similarly I believe he's crossed over to the otherside of creativity and originality. There's something starkly different here, but Vannucchi remains faithful to the appealing sound of his previous records. Hearing the record, Everything Feels Better Now comes off naturally intimate and intensely sprawling over the course of twelve ineffaceable tracks.

From Indian Lakes is the multi-

The introduction to Everything Feels Better Now originates in the form of "Happy Machines. The song is refined, showcasing a whirlwind synth sounds playing constantly in the background of Vannucchi's tender falsetto. The chorus also features the passionately delivered line, "Everything Feels Better Now," which serves as the title of the record as you know. "The Monster" is the first single off the record and it's a tremendous example of Vannucchi's progress as an artist. The catchy chorus, highly propulsive nature of the track, and brooding lyrics accumulate into this perfect little package. With forbidding lyrics such as "I was a normal kid, no one could see/ I had a monster that was growing in me," Vannucchi balances darkness with light as the developed sound overall is much more upbeat than the lyrics may suggest. The subsequent track, "Blank Tapes," draws greatly from atmospheric sounds and reflective lyrics. Ultimately, the rich progressing drums, and a scant bass. Vannucchi positions his voice in an ethereal shell that touches falsetto as the arrangement surges beneath him for a constantly enchanting dreamlike trip.

"Hello" begins with a subtle guitar sound, soft but menacing synths and Vannucchi's soothing vocals. One of the strongest tracks here, "Hello" is chill worthy. Before the halfway point, Vannucchi adds another dreamy layer to the track before going back to that light guitar strum/dark synth combination. In addition, Vannucchi's vocals change ever so slightly numerous times, bringing a new element to the track as it progresses through the stages. "Feel Love" goes full force with beauteous guitars and a completely rich and vibrant tone. As far as being the most intricate song off the record, "American Dreams" takes that worthy spot. It's a song that provides opulent sounds throughout the course of its duration. Gorgeously crafted, captivating from beginning to end, and greatly poignant, "American Dreams" is a masterpiece. With Vannucchi agonizingly reciting the line, "It's starting to my hurt head, this American Dream again," you can feel the pain for not only him, but maybe yourself too. "Nome" is another strong addition to the record. We have further moody propensities at work along with great profundity and echoes of

"Sunlight" shines in many ways regardless of its title. It starts off with a modern day indie rock guitar vibe before it breaks into something much grander. With a chorus such as You're standing in the sunlight, I want to be the dream that you see at night. You're looking for me on the other side, I want to be the one who can save your life," strikingly conveyed above the tantalizing guitar/synth composition, the listener will be significantly moved by such a powerful combination. "Come Back" moves slowly as it hits you directly in the core. 's pondering piece of music that touches upon something from your past and the very thought of it returning to you. The closing minute or so of this one, where it's purely instrumental, takes your peripatetic mind on a contemplative ride through the places and faces of your past. Everything Feels Better Now visits many places within the spectrum of the human spirit. Not only does Vannucchi take a deep, through look inside himself, but convinces the listener to do the same. The record is an examination of past, present, and future and can provide song is a twinkling jam with humming guitars escalating over the inspiration for one to find strength while reflecting upon those three key elements of life. Looking beyond profounder inclinations that may or may not be your thing, Everything Feels Better Now is an exceptional record crossing the paths of multiple musical elements and offering introspective lyrics embracing light when dark is approaching at an alarming

"RETURN OF THE TINGLER" AT THE PLAYHOUSE -TIME MACHINE RIDES AND RODDY ROBOT

In conjunction with Sierra Madre's Halloween festivities which occur on Monday the 31st, The Symbiotic Society will present "Return of the Tingler". This free show is a parody of the 1959 hit film, "The Tingler" starring the legendary Vincent Price. Audience interaction will be featured, along with activities outside the Playhouse. Free shows will run every half hour from 6:30 to 9:30 pm, HALLOWEEN NIGHT ONLY. Returning NIGHT ONLY. Returning from last year will be the TIME MACHINÉ; plus a new attraction, RODDY ROBOT. These vintage attractions are part of our retreat to the 50-60's.

PLAYHOUSE HALLOWEEN PRESENTATION - "Return of the Tingler", is loosely based on the film by William Castle who was famous for low budget B-Movie thrillers. Many films featured gimmicks to attract audiences. Our presentation will offer our own contrivance collection in his honor.

THE TIME MACHINE - It is a full size replica of the time machine featured in the 1960 movie, The Time Machine. The movie is based on the famous H.G.

Wells book of the same name, starring Rod Taylor and Yvette Mimieux. It differs from the original in having fun lights controllable by the rider. Those wishing to return to their younger years can ride the Time Machine before or after the shows.

RODDY ROBOT - He invokes memories of the 50-60's era anthropomorphic robots featured in many sci-fi B-movies. He joins the Time Machine as a great photo opportunity. A professional photographer will take photos

ABOUT THE SYMBIOTIC SOCIETY – this deranged group of volunteer individuals, formerly known as the Zombie Players Association, creates an annual event at the Sierra Madre Playhouse during Halloween. Since the group is primarily senior in nature with signs of dementia, the presentations are nutty and over-the-top. The whole purpose is to provide free fun entertainment, primarily for kids and those wishing to be kids again. The Halloween activity is a drastic switch, maybe its cathartic in nature, from the Society's primary goal of promoting the Human and Tingler alliance. In fact, northeastern TV station WMUR provides a list of several "key indicators that a review is in order":

- significant changes in the value of your estate; changes in your "income level or requirements," such as retirement;
- job changes;
- changes to family situations, such as births, marriages, deaths, and major illnesses;
- changes to business interests;
- significant purchases or payoffs;
- major changes in insurance coverage; and
- the death or major illness of someone named as your executor, trustee, power of attorney, beneficiary, or child's guardian.

Of course, this is not an exhaustive list.

The point is that to ensure your wishes are carried out after death, it's important to update your estate plan as life progresses. Any number of factors may trigger a review. MONEY-MAKING SCHEME TARGETS OLDER PEOPLE AND VETERANS

By Amy Hebert

Consumer Education Specialist, FTC

If you're just getting by, and someone offers you the chance to earn more money through a business opportunity, you might be willing

Unfortunately, those offers often turn out to be just another scam. Today the FTC announced charges against three people and multiple companies behind a telemarketing scheme that targeted older people and veterans, and took millions of dollars from people with promises they would multiply their investment.

Here's how it played out: Doing business under names like "Titan Income," "Wyze Money," "Prime Cash," and "Building Money," "Prime Cash," and "Building Money," telemarketers called people about "opportunity" to participate or invest in e-commerce websites. The callers said people would earn a hefty income sharing in the revenue from the sites. They even said it was "risk-free" and promised a 100% money-back guarantee.

plan as people awaited their first earnings payment at the end of the quarter. During that time, some people who initially paid hundreds of dollars were convinced to pay thousands of dollars more to increase their return. The company even helped people move their now-huge credit card balances to new accounts with temporarily low or zerointerest balance transfers.

But it was all a lie. As soon as it was time for people to get paid, all contact stopped. There were no e-commerce earnings or investments. Anyone trying to get a refund of their investment was out of luck. Many people lost as much as $20,000.

If you're considering putting money into a business opportunity, do some research first. By law, business opportunity promoters must give you certain information before you hand over any money.

Many of the people Building Money called were on the Do Not Call Registry. If a company is ignoring the Registry, there's a good chance For a few months, the scammers made it it's a scam. If you get calls like these, hang up seem like everything was going according to and file a complaint with the FTC.

As with many types of cancer, adjustments in everyday life habits can help lower breast cancer risk. Growing evidence shows that avoiding smoking and limiting alcohol are significant in preventing breast cancer. Controlling weight through a nutritious diet and regular exercise adds a protective effect. The longer a woman breastfeeds, the less likely she'll

Regular mammography screening helps detect breast cancer in an early stage, but not all breast cancers are detected through mammography. The American Cancer Society recommends mammography screening annually after age 40 through age 54. Women age 55 and older can switch to mammograms every other year, but every woman is advised to consult with her physician to determine for breast cancer differ among women, but the most common symptoms are:

Performing monthly breast self-exams can help with earlier detection of a potential problem.

Treatment of Breast Cancer

After breast cancer is diagnosed, the patient's medical team will determine the disease's progression and suggest the most effective treatment options. Seeking a second medical opinion may be beneficial. Standard breast cancer treatment includes surgery, radiation, chemotherapy and hormone therapy. Breast cancer-targeted therapy uses drugs to block specific cancer cells from growing. Depending on the size and location of the tumor and the effect on nearby lymph nodes, a lumpectomy (removal of the tumor) is advised, and in other cases, women choose to have a mastectomy (removal of part or the entire breast). Words have Meaning.....

PRESIDENTIAL PASTIMES Rich Johnson

Anyone else thinking U.S. presidents? Past, present and, future? For some reason I can't get them off my mind. For that matter I can't get them off my computer, television, radio, smart phone. I'm even afraid to get out my Etch-a-Sketch for fear of what I'll see.

What do we really know about our 43 Presidents and odd and assorted presidential candidates? I know President Obama is our 44th president. But he's our 43rd president. How? Well, Grover Cleveland was both our 22nd and 24th president. Let's move on. We know Mr. Trump likes the ladies. And Mrs. Clinton likes to clean...hard drives anyway. What else?

Did you know George Bush was a cheerleader in school? He also now likes to paint. No, not that kind of painting. Fine art. Most of us know Bill Clinton enjoyed playing the saxophone. Tenor sax to be specific. Did you know he also has a passion for crossword puzzles? Andrew Jackson, another southern born president's favorite hobby was carousing which included gambling and horse racing. He also liked to duel of which he participated in about 100. Thomas Jefferson is reported to have been an amateur architect, archeologist, winemaker and chef. Not much written about John Quincy Adams other than him once being caught by a female reporter skinny-dipping in the Potomac.

George Washington enjoyed farming as a hobby. Can you guess what Washington was most successful at farming? Well, by 1799 his company became the biggest whiskey distillery of those times. Teddy Roosevelt was an exercise nut, and an ornithologist, aka bird enthusiast. Calvin Coolidge stated hobby was napping. Two hours every day after lunch, even while he was president. He argued when he was asleep he couldn't initiate any costly federal programs. Rumor has it he also enjoyed riding mechanical norses. Richard Nixon loved to bowl. And we heard he was a great poker player.

Did you know President Ford was a fashion model in the 1940s? Even graced he cover of "Cosmopolitan". His wife Betty was also a model. James Garfield was ambidextrous and it was said he could write in Latin with one hand and Greek with the other hand...at the same time. I thought Presidents could only ambidexterity was speaking out of both sides of their mouths.

Herbert Hoover spoke Mandarin Chinese fluently? So did his wife. When they vanted a private conversation they spoke Chinese to each other.

Here's a biggie. Did you know Martin Van Buren gave us the phrase "OK"? Van Buren was from Kinderhook, New York which was also known as Old Kinderhook. His support groups came to be known as O.K Clubs and the term OK came to mean 'all right".

William Howard Taft was our most corpulent president once getting his 300+ pound body stuck in the White House bathtub. After his presidency not only did he lose 150 pounds, he also managed to become the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and swore in Presidents Coolidge and Hoover to the presidency. Maybe President Obama should consider mirroring the accomplishments of William Howard Taft (I wouldn't recommend gaining 150 pounds though). We're also told President Obama collects "Spiderman" and "Conan the Barbarian" comic books.

Well, as the election closes in, gird up that inner resolve and plan on voting anyway. Not only for the head office but also, and equally as important, the Senators and Congress people. And judges and state measures. I would tell you to vote early and vote often. But since this is not Chicago of the last century you can only vote once.

Last summer, House Speaker Paul Ryan, R-Wisc., Senate Majority Leader Mitch Trump then rejoiced that it was "so nice of all elected Republicans made a Faustian bargain with the orange-haired, bile-spewing behemoth who's now their party's standard-bearer.

It was the ultimate exercise in denial and delusion. And with Trump's candidacy imploding and Clinton opening a wider lead in both national and battleground Ryan and the Republicans now find polls, GOP leaders moved this week to contain the damage as best they could.

On Monday, in the wake of a competent, but far from winning debate performance the Hill. by Trump, Ryan announced that he was overboard.

The revelation of a creepy and lewd 2005 video of Trump bragging about groping women was the apparent breaking point not, of course, all the other vile stuff Trump has said (including several exhortations of violence against Hillary Clinton) since the Speaker threw in with him The worry for Trump - and for Repubearlier this year.

Ryan said he would no longer campaign with or defend Trump (which he wasn't really doing anyway) and he was freeing House Republicans to look after their own campaigns and move to protect the Republicans could well skip the top of GOP's majority.

Cynically, Ryan did not – as other Republicans did - rescind his endorsement. And majorities, they'll have to kiss the White Republican National Chairman Reince Priebus, whose skeletal structure must be made from the same miracle substance And even then, they'll still have to live as the stretchy comic book hero Plastic Man, reiterated his support as well.

Even still the news provoked a Category Five Trumpian Tweetstorm. The seem-Five Trumpian Tweetstorm. The seemingly apoplectic nominee demolished for PennLive/The Patriot-News in Harrisburg, Pa. Follow him on Twitter @ByJohnLMicek

What shackles? But no matter. Republicans now have what some of them privately feared the most: a wounded monster, limping into the final weeks of the that Trump, who won every primary save campaign, with absolutely nothing left to

THE PARTY IS NOW CONTROLLED BY DEPEND CAUCUS

For a guy who's billed as the next great Republican political wizard, he sure makes a lot of rookie mistakes. No, I'm not talking about Donald Trump. I'm talking about Speaker of the House Paul Ryan — the Hamlet of Pennsylva-

Now Ryan is doing the Hokey-Pokey over Trump's just-released video 'How to Impress Women Like the Stars Do." I say now, because this is only the most recent example. Ryan earlier was weathervaning over Trump's Twitter war with the Democrat's angry Arab. Before that it was Trump vs. the ethnic-supremacist judge. Prior to that it may have been the disabled reporter. Somewhere in there we have Carly Fiorina's face. Unless you have a Democrat opposition researcher in the family it's hard to keep track. The only thing that's certain is the joy in the enemy camp as Ryan predictably dances to the mainstream media's tune, and the rest of the Depend Caucus wrings their tiny There're a number of problems with Ryan's performance of the Politically Correct Polka, but let's begin with the fact it makes him look weak. This confirms what conservatives have been saying for months, but going public demonstrates Ryan's fecklessness to the entire nation.

Politically Ryan's weakness is an even bigger mistake for GOP members of the House he's supposed to be leading. Responding to media inquiries regarding Trump's shambolic campaign only serves to nationalize House races, which incumbent House members should certainly avoid. House races should stay local.

Incumbents talk about the pork they've brought home, not the pork-brain at the top of the ticket.

House members, including the Speaker, have no control over presidential candidates. Regularly commenting on the Improv Impresario at the top of the ticket means what happens there also reflects on those members.

It's the equivalent of the Uber passenger in a self-driving car being held responsible for the robot's tickets. Nationalizing a House race is what Now Ryan just wants to defeat Trump challengers do to try and ride the coattails of their presidential candidates and overcome the incumbent's name ID and record within the district.

Ryan's continuing comments on the Trump race puts pressure on all House candidates to answer Trump questions and my friend are correct. from local reporters who take their cues from the networks.

This idiocy won't hurt Ryan — he's in a safe district, otherwise he wouldn't be Speaker — but it damages incumbents in marginal districts and it really handicaps GOP challengers. Instead of signing on for color commentary of

by Michael Shannon

the Trump race, Ryan should have told national reporters from the very beginning that he is focused on increasing the Republican House majority and he doesn't have time to be an advisor for the Trump campaign, too.

The media won't accept that answer, so he'll be pressed. He repeats those questions are a distraction for House members concentrating on (insert message sound bite). Voters will have a chance in November to decide the presidential race and they don't need my help to do

Then Ryan refuses to answer any more questions about Trump.

The media will tire of badgering him and move on to reliable RINO weasels and backstabbers like John Mc-Cain and Lindsay Graham. For proof this technique works we have only to look at Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell. He finally shut up about Trump and the media stopped asking. Ryan's silence regarding the Trump campaign would allow other House members to do likewise. When a local news poodle asks them to comment on the latest Trump communication adventure, all they have to do is say, like Speaker Ryan, I'm concentrating on my own race where (insert political BS). Voters can make their own decision regarding Trump and Hillary in November.

Then they can shut the heck up.

Ryan's failure to adhere to this obvious and sensible strategy calls into question his motives. Is he trying to appeal to GOP contributors that might otherwise stop giving? If so, he can tell them in private what I've written here. Does Ryan want to cozy up to the next administration? There's probably a better chance for good relations with Hillary than with Trump. Or does Ryan want to be the national GOP leader acceptable to the media? He can ask Mitt Romney how that worked out.

A wise friend contends Ryan's diarrhea of the mouth isn't a mistake — it's a fallback plan. Originally, Ryan wanted to block Trump's nomination so the party would turn to him as nominee without subjecting him to a primary campaign.

regardless of the cost to the nation. Gov. Mike Huckabee contents the Republican RINO and consultant complex isn't afraid Trump will lose. They're afraid Trump will win.
