SATURDAY, OCTOBER 29, 2016 HALLOWEEN WINDOW PAINTING CONTEST RESULTS

VOLUME 10 NO. 44

Community News Comes First

As you stroll through downtown Sierra Madre in the next few days, you'll be treated to some very creative Halloween window decorations courtesy of the youthful artists who participated in the Halloween Window Painting Contest sponsored and underwritten by the Sierra Madre Civic Club. Over two hundred painters aged 9-17 formed groups to decorate seventy-four windows. Their artistry and creativity made our two sets of three judges work very hard to determine the contest winners. Participants attend Sierra Madre Elementary School, Gooden School, St Rita School, Sierra Madre Middle School, First Avenue Middle School, Marshall Middle School, Alverno Heights Academy, and Pasadena High

Using cleanliness, creativity, Halloween theme, and use of color as criteria, the judges awarded the following groups winning certificates:

9 - 10 Year Olds - 1st Place: Window 8 Casa Del Rey; Celia Goff and Mahenna Morrisey 2nd Place: Window 4 Beantown

Coffee and Bakery: Jonah Breton and Shane Vandevelde, 3rd Place: Window 17 Sierra Fitness: Emily Parry, Isabella Paz, and Erin Kale. 11 - 12 Year Olds - 1st Place: Window 49 The Kensington: Helena Locatelly, Charlie Hardy, Angelina Cao, Isabella Cao, 2nd Place: Window 61The Kensington: Grace Villalobos, and Fizzy Panza, 3rd Place: Window 56 The Kensington: Julia Pevsner, Emma Hopkins, and Emma Watson.

Isaiah Raya, Owen Vandevelde, and Sean Miller.

13 - 14 Year Olds - 1st Place: Window 67 Pantorium Cleaners: Grace Lim, Isabel Eisenberg, Malia Wilson, 2nd Place: Window 66 Poppy Cake Baking Company: Cassabdra Kuo, Grace Miller, Liv Bjorgum, and Chloe Brandon, 3rd

Place: Window 69 Arnolds Frontier Hardware: Mareli Moreno, Jasmine Keoroghlian, and Sarah Corder. 15 - 17 Year Olds - 1st Place: Window 74 Haynes and Oakley Architects: Melody Wu, Laura Chen, and Vanessa Prata, 2nd Place: Window 72 Haynes and Oakley Architects: Emma Allen and Adriana Tovalin, 3rd Place: Window 73 Haynes and Oakley Architects: Devin Gaughan,

Congratulations to all the winners and our thanks to all the painters for helping us decorate Sierra Madre for Halloween. Committee chair Margaret Switzer, her right-hand woman Pat Krok, and many members from the Sierra Madre Civic Club worked long hours organizing, preparing for, and hosting the contest. We needed community support to make the event successful and we'd like to thank the forty-one merchants who allowed us to use one or more of their windows. A special thanks goes to Beantown Coffee & Bakery, Buccaneer Lounge, Casa Del Rey, Dog Wash America, Foothill Home Care Partners, Goody Bags, Millennium Pension Services, Petunias, Sierra Fusion, Skin Rituals, Subway, and Yogurt & More who also donated money to offset our costs for supplies and window washing. Students from Alverno Heights Academy and Sierra Madre Middle School donated a whole afternoon helping us tape the seventy four window spaces to use and covering brick store fronts and window boxes with newspaper to protect them from drippy paint. Their attitude and helpfulness made a tough job much easier. And, of course, we appreciate the time and thought our two teams of judges put into determining our contest winners. So do enjoy our beautiful, scary, funny, cute, spooky, clever, and unusual window decorations knowing that it indeed does take a village.

REMEMBRANCE BENJIE FREIBERGER

Benjie Freiberger, 57, died peacefully on Wednesday Oct 26th surrounded by his family at his home in Sierra Madre CA after a very sudden and brief battle with cancer.

Ben was born in Encino to Fred and Shirley Freiberger. He attended Denver University and Cal State Northridge. He married the love of his life, Leslie Lindenblatt, in 1990. Benjie was president and CEO of TalentproBDS, A Breakdown Services Company. He created, developed and oversaw the innovative program which is the number one talent representative software application.

Benjie will be remembered as an extremely devoted husband, father, brother, uncle, cousin and friend to many who adored him. He was a respected and prominent member of the Sierra Madre community. He was the founder and coordinator of the The Sierra Madre Golf Tournament to benefit the Sierra Madre Elementary and Middle Schools.

Starting in the mail room at CAA, Ben worked for years as a talent agent and manager, including stints at Harris/Goldberg (Innovative Artists), Catalina Productions, The Harry Gold Agency (Talent Works), and his own company, Freiberger Management.

Ben is survived by his wife Leslie, his three children Jack (20), 12-year old twins Sam & Lindsey, sister Lisa and niece, Lacey.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"The worst thing about Halloween is, of course, But are satisfied with candy. candy corn. Candy corn is the only candy in the history of America that's never been advertised. And there's a reason. All of the candy corn that was ever made was made in 1911. And, since All Hallows Eve at last is here, nobody actually eats that stuff, every year there's a ton of it left over."

Lewis Black

All Hallows Eve at last is here, A deadly.... dreadly night..... When ghouls and ghosts and creepies, And other awful blights, Are free to roam and wander, Anywhere they might. And generate, originate Frightful things all night.

Creating scary terror everywhere they can, And scream inducing, faint-producing, hair-raising, bone-melting, Quivery, shivery.... Ack! What's right there behind me... fright!

They creep out of their crypts and graves, These creatures of the night. They haunt the roads and byways, Run rampant through the park. They hide between the bushes, And everywhere it's dark.

All Hallows Eve at last is here, A deadly.... dreadly night..... When ghouls and ghosts and creepies, And other awful blights, Are free to roam and wander, Anywhere they might.

Up and down the streets of town, They race in search of plunder, These ghouls and ghosts and monsters, About three feet tall or under! They shriek for treats and threaten tricks, These creatures rule the darkness, As long as Mom and Dad are handy.

A deadly....dreadly night.... When ghouls and ghosts and monsters, And other awful sights, Go dancing through the shadows, Into circles of street lights.

Little Screams and Donald Trumps, Harry Potters by the score, Princesses and pirates, Ninja turtles, too, Trick or Treat, trick or treat, give me something good to eat! Or I'll play a trick on you!

The scarecrows were the best ever this year. Pictured is the winner of the Literary Award, "The Natural." Hunt these down all around town, they're incredibly creative! Hope you took time to look at all the art on our downtown windows. Plan to visit the Time Machine, Roddy Robot, and enjoy half an hour sometime between 6:30 and 9:30 at the Sierra Madre Playhouse seeing "The Return of the Tingler," put on by those wild and crazy folks of the Symbiotic Society, featuring creepy audience interaction! Halloween night only and it's FREE! Check out the costume contest and parade and downtown Trick or Treating! Lots to do right here in town.

May all your candy be calorie free and may you only get Snickers, Milky Ways and boxes of Dots! Happy Halloween!

Pasadena Fire Appoints Deputy Chief

Pasadena Fire Chief Bertral Washington recently named Bryan Frieders as Deputy Chief and Fire Marshal of the Fire Prevention Division. Frieders started Monday.

Frieders served as an Operations Division Chief for the Verdugo Cities which covers the cities of San Gabriel, San Marino and South Pasadena. Frieders also held the role of Emergency Manager for the City of San Gabriel. Prior to becoming Division Chief, he worked as a Battalion Chief for the City of San Gabriel; a Captain/Paramedic, supervising 18 Firefighters and 15 Paramedics. He started his career as a Firefighter/ Paramedic in the City of South San Francisco in 1998.

"Bryan has a very wellrounded background covering all aspects of the fire service. He has worked with and developed great relationships with our personnel, and has supported several of our incidents over the years," Fire Chief Bertral Washington said.

I am honored to have been selected to work with some of the best firefighters in the world, and to join a team of fire service professionals that have a strong desire and commitment to provide excellent service to the citizens of Pasadena. I am incredibly grateful and humbled by the outpouring of kindness and support shown by all of the city staff, elected officials, and members of the community who have welcomed me with open arms," Frieders said.

Pet of the Week

Scooby (A406408) is a real sweetheart! This oneyear-old, neutered male, grey and white greyhound mix loves attention. Spend a few minutes petting him and he'll reward you with tons of affection! He adores meeting new people of all ages, impressing them by showing off his sit command. He walks well on a leash and enjoys being out and about. Scooby came to PHS with another dog and has enjoyed the company of some other dogs while out on our Mobile Unit. He would do well as the only dog in his new forever family, but he could also be a good second dog in the right home.

The adoption fee for dogs is $125 and includes spay or neuter surgery, microchip, and vaccinations.

New adopters will receive a complimentary health-andwellness exam from VCA Animal Hospitals, as well as a goody bag filled with information about how to care for your pet.

Call the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA at (626) 792-7151 to ask about A406408, or visit at 361 S. Raymond Ave. in Pasadena. Adoption hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday; and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Pets may not be available for adoption and cannot be held for potential adopters by phone calls or email. Directions and photos of all pets can be found at pasadenahumane.org.

Community Gets First Look at Bikeshare Program

News From Your Community

By Dean Lee

Pasadena

Although the turnout was low for a public workshop on a new Metro bikeshare program set to launch this July, those that were there gave some input on the proposed plan that would bring 400 bikes utilizing 34 docking bike stations concentrated in the down town area.

The bikes would all be available for the public to use, with a 30 minute restriction on time.

Metro Principal Transpiration Cristales-Planner Jenny Cevallos said docking station locations were based on population density. Most of the proposed stations are concentrated along Colorado Blvd. There are no proposed stations in East Pasadena District 4 held by Vice Mayor Gene Masuda and only one in North West Pasadena District 1 held by Councilmember Tyron Hampton. The only District 1 station is on Washington Blvd. west of Lake Ave.

Cevallos said the bikes would be accessible for all riders of all income brackets.

The use of the Metro Tap card was also confusing, in that no money needs to be stored on the Tap card, users are required to sign up online with a credit card and then the Tap card identifies the user. Funds are deducted from the credit card.

Cevallos said a downloadable mobile app from Metro allows a user to track the time the bike is used, location of the docking stations and when the bike is returned. The app cannot be

City staff said the bikes will be available as part of a two-year test program. The costs of the program ranged wildly form a low of $200,000 per year to $700,000 a year, "as a worst case scenario," staff said.

The program, including the docking station locations, has to have city council approval. The issue is set for their Dec. 5

One City, One Story Pick 'The Sympathizer'

The book selection for Pasadena Public Library's 2017 One City, One Story community reading celebration is The Sympathizer by author Viet Thanh Nguyen. Now in its 15th year, One City, One Story is designed to broaden and deepen an appreciation of reading and literature by recommending a compelling book that sparks a community conversation on important issues.

For Your Community

The winner of the 2016 Pulitzer Prize for Fiction, as well as five other awards, The Sympathizer is the breakthrough novel of the year. With the pace and suspense of a thriller and prose that has been compared to Graham Greene and Saul Bellow, The Sympathizer is a sweeping story of love and betrayal. The narrator, a communist double agent, is a "man of two minds," a half-French, half-Vietnamese army captain who arranges to come to America after the Fall of Saigon. While building a new life with other Vietnamese refugees in Los Angeles, he is secretly reporting back to is secretly reporting back to his communist superiors in Vietnam. #### Community Orchestra with Violinist Aubree Oliverson Violinist Aubree Oliverson will again join Pasadena Community Orchestra, On Friday, November 11, at 8:00 p.m., this time in Wieniawski's fiery Violin Concerto No. 2. Under Music Director Bethany Pflueger, the orchestra performs three more works bursting with joy and exuberance: Prokofiev's jaunty Lieutenant Kijé Suite, the flashy Overture to Russlan and Ludmilla by Glinka, and Mozart's great Overture to Cosi Fan Tutte.

Oliverson's career skyrocketed since her Young Artist appearance with PCO. This past summer, she was one of 20 graduating high school students nation-wide (and one of only two musicians) to receive the prestigious "United States Presidential Scholar for the Arts" award, performing at the Kennedy Center. Oliverson also performed - to packed houses and often standing ovations - at the famed Aspen and Innsbrook Music Festivals. In addition, she made her fifth appearance on National Public Radio's From the Top. And in September, she earned first prize in the 2016 Hennings-Fischer Young Artist Competition.

The popular Overture to Russlan and Ludmilla, by the "father of Russian music," Mikhail Glinka, is full of unadulterated nationalistic pride. Filled with wild energy, the Overture's irresistible melodies display a uniquely Russian combination of earthy exuberance and heroic feeling.

One of Prokofiev's most popular works (along with Peter and the Wolf and the Classical Symphony), the Lieutenant Kijé great wit, melodic gifts, and programmatic skills. Audience members will feel the sleigh moving in the lively Troika, and they'll recognize the wry humor in the crisp marches, lush romance and wedding music, and the mournful Kijé "theme" and funeral music.

Mozart's Cosi Fan Tutte is one of the greatest comic operas of all time. The title is usually translated as "Women are like that," and the opera deals (often hilariously) with the vicissitudes of the male/female relationship. Like the opera, the Overture is light-hearted and ebullient, with bright, sparkling sounds and melodies that exude good humor and exuberance. PCO has been bringing fine classical music to the community for 33 years. Admission is free (donations are welcome at the door), and no reservations are needed. First Church of the Nazarene is located at 3700 E. Sierra Madre Blvd., one block west of Michillinda Ave. Parking is free and wheelchair accessible. Immediately following the concert, audience members will have the opportunity to meet the Music Director, soloist and Suite showcases the composer's other musicians at a reception.

TIMES ARTICLE REGARDING STATE AUDITOR IN MONROVIA

Recently, the City was made aware of an article that the LA Times ran which have been satisfied that we are continuing to address the issues that they seemed to indicate that Monrovia was being audited by the State Auditor. The article contained a couple of errors that and we wanted to be sure to share some additional details related to the matter.

You may recall the report in late 2015, that the State Auditor had completed a review of Monrovia and determined that they would not be performing an audit of our organization. We shared those details in the December 8, 2015 City Manager's Update which can be accessed online at: http://www.cityofmonrovia.org/sites/default/files/fileattachments/city_ managers_office/page/976/cm_update_-_december_8_-_public.pdf

As was mentioned, the more recent LA Times article (which can be accessed online at: http://www.latimes.com/local/lanow/la-me-stateauditor-program-20161023-snap-story.html) is not entirely accurate with respect to the State Auditor's involvement here in Monrovia, and to provide some additional background information, it is important to note the following factors:

First and foremost... Monrovia is no longer on the list of cities being audited by the State Auditor.

We were notified on July 1, 2015, by the State Auditor that they intended to perform a review of the City.

That review was completed, and the assessment made by the State Auditor during their close-out letter stipulated the following:

"As a result of our initial assessment, the state auditor concludes that the city of Monrovia is now taking steps to address the risk factors previously described, and as a result, we will not be seeking approval at this time from the Joint Legislative Audit Committee (audit committee) to perform an

Based on that assessment, all that we are required to do at this point in time is send the State Auditor an overview of our continued efforts / progress every few months.

We have sent the State Auditor additional information in February 2016 and April 2016, and additional information will be shared with the State Auditor

Each time we have sent the State Auditor follow-up information, they initially identified as being high risk factors.

When the State Auditor notified the City that we would be assessed in July 2015, at the same time, they also notified six other cities that they were going to be reviewed.

Those six cities that were audited in July 2015 included: Chico, Richmond, Ridgecrest, Monrovia, Hemet, and Maywood

The City's understanding is that of the six cities contacted, Monrovia and Chico were the only ones who were not subjected to any additional audit. Maywood and Hemet were required to undergo a full audit by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee.

Richmond and Ridgecrest were required to undergo some type of partial audit by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee.

The LA Times has recently been running a series of articles on issues in the City of Maywood, which has experienced multiple controversies of late.

As part of their reporting, we assume that the LA Times recently learned that Maywood was one of the six cities that the State Auditor assessed in July 2015, and they are reporting on this matter as though the developments occurred recently.

The LA Times report has also failed to identify that the State Auditor has now audited dozens of communities from throughout California.

In discussions with other city representatives, we are aware of several other communities in the San Gabriel Valley that are undergoing reviews / audits by the State Auditor's Office that were not referenced in the LA Times

The headline of the article ("The state is watching these 6 cities closely for financial fraud") is obviously misleading!

Also, please note that the LA Times article states, "Most of the six cities were ranked poorly in some or all of the categories. But it was Maywood and Hemet that required audits after they failed to address issues raised by the state auditor."

I hope this overview provides some additional background information related to the matter, and if you have any questions, please feel free to let me

DOWNLOAD THE NEW

(Duarte, CA) - Duarte USD is proud to announce the launch of its custom mobile app, an all-in-one information source for parents, students, staff and the community, developed to provide direct access to the district's most sought after information.

This free mobile app, available on Apple and Android devices, gives stakeholders the ability to access information throughout the district in a faster, easier, more up-to-date, and more personal way. Users can follow schools of their choosing and receive only the news, events, notifications, and social media updates that are important to them.

The Duarte USD App also provides secure access for student and parents to see grade and attendance information, allowing them to view academic standings at anytime, from anywhere. From the app, users can customize their own grade and assignment settings, allowing them to be alerted through a push notification if a grade or score drops below that self-selected threshold.

Other app features include sports scores, cafeteria menus, and more. Content can also be received in over 60 different languages.

The Duarte USD app was developed by ParentLink, a company now owned by Blackboard Connect. ParentLink has created mobile apps for K-12 school districts and has partnered with innovative school districts, over the last 20 years, to solve the most difficult communication challenges, with the goal of supporting student success.

APPLICATION DEADLINE EXTENDED

Assemblymember Chris Holden's 2017 Young Legislators Program Leadership Program for High School Seniors in the 41st Assembly District announced the deadline extension for the 2017 Young Legislators Program to November 15 at 5 p.m.

"I'm thrilled to launch the second annual Young Legislators Program for the 41st Assembly District," said Assemblymember Chris Holden. "We've put together a program that will have a lasting impact on participating students and maybe even inspire them to run for office one day."

The Young Legislators Program is a six-month, no-cost program that provides selected students from the 41st Assembly District an opportunity to learn about the legislative process, services provided to constituents by elected leaders, and the relationship between local and state governments. Students will meet at selected sites in the 41st District for the first five sessions, and conclude with a two-day session in Northern California.

Last year's final session involved a tour of the Facebook other-resources/young-legislators-program

Pasadena, CA - Assemblymember Chris Holden (AD - 41) today headquarters in Menlo Park, followed by a panel discussion with members of Facebook's government affairs team. Day two brought the students to the California State Capitol where they toured the building, met Assemblymember Holden and sat in on a Senate Education Committee hearing.

"The Young Legislators Program allowed me to experience state government, make useful connections, and discover new, interesting options for my future," said Darcy Stone, 2016 Young Legislator and now a freshman at the University of California, Berkeley. "It was a wonderful program and was glad to participate."

The 2017 Young Legislators Program is open to high school seniors living in the 41st Assembly District. Applicants must commit to monthly Saturday meetings starting in January 2017 and submit applications by November 15, 2016. Program details and application are available online at http://asmdc.org/members/a41/

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

If you have followed my adventures throughout Southern California you know I love three things: wine, great food, and horse racing. Just a few miles east of my home in Pasadena is my home away from home, the "Great Race Place" Santa Anita Racetrack. Established many years ago by horse breeder Lucky Baldwin, it burned down in 1912, and was resurrected in 1933 Charles Strub and a few friends who re-opened Santa Anita in 1934. Over the years, it has attracted many movie stars and been the background to many Hollywood movies. It's where the Marx Brothers spent a day at the races. Fast forward to present day, Santa Anita will host the Superbowl of horse racing on November 5th and 6th.

The Breeders Cup has planned a few events to lead up to this great day in Santa Anita racing history. Zenyatta, arguably the greatest Santa Anita racehorse of all time, has an event named after her on November 3rd. The event is at a few blocks from the race track on N. First Ave. between Huntington Drive starts at 7 PM, and is free of charge.

On November 5th Pasadena Fan Fest takes place at the Pasadena Civic. The event is of the east. 510 S. Arroyo Pkwy. Pasadena (626) open to the public, with a $45 admission fee. One of my favorite 80's cover bands, the Spazmatics, will be live. The event also includes food trucks, cash bars, and is limited to 1000 attendees. I'll be there!

Nov 2nd An evening with California Chrome is being held at a favorite local restaurant Matt Denny's Alehouse on Huntington Drive. You can talk to owners Perry Martin and Frank Taylor, trainer Art Sherman, and jockey Victor Espinoza.

Tickets are $100 and include hors d'oeuvres\ Breeders Cup is a day-long event and features top

ZUCCHINI PIZZA CASSEROLE RECIPE

Ingredients

4 cups shredded unpeeled zucchini

1/2 teaspoon salt

2 large eggs

1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese

2 cups (8 ounces) shredded part-skim mozzarella cheese, divided

1 cup (4 ounces) shredded cheddar cheese, divided 1 pound ground beef

1/2 cup chopped onion

1 can (15 ounces) Italian tomato sauce 1 medium sweet red pepper, chopped

Directions

Preheat oven to 400°. Place zucchini in colander; sprinkle with salt. Let stand 10 minutes, then squeeze out moisture.

Combine zucchini with eggs, Parmesan and half of mozzarella and cheddar cheeses. Press into a greased 13x9-in. or 3-qt. baking dish. Bake 20 minutes.

Meanwhile, in a large saucepan, cook beef and onion over medium heat, crumbling beef, until meat is no longer pink; drain. Add tomato sauce; spoon over zucchini mixture. Sprinkle with remaining cheeses; add red pepper. Bake until heated through, about 20 minutes longer.

Freeze option: Cool baked casserole; cover and freeze. To use, partially thaw in refrigerator overnight. Remove from refrigerator 30 minutes before baking. Preheat oven to 350°. Unwrap casserole; reheat on a lower oven rack until heated through and a thermometer inserted in center reads 165°. Yield: 8 servings.

According to the 2016 Yoga in America study conducted by Yoga Journal and Yoga Alliance, over 36 million Americans are yoga practitioners. It's finally sinking in that individuals (and the world as a whole) need a holistic approach to health and wellness. On the surface, the physical practice of yoga is a great start. However, it's through the wisdom the deeper teachings of yoga and advanced practices of pranayama and meditation that transformation takes place. By integrating practices for wellness and spiritual health into everyday life, we are able to make an impact on longterm health and happiness.

It's in the foundational teacher training, that the deeper teachings of yoga are introduced. #### HOW TO FIND AND HIRE A GOOD HANDYMAN OR CONTRACTOR

Dear Savvy Senior,

What's the best way to find a good handyman or tradesman to do some work around the house? I've have had some bad luck lately with unprofessional workers who do shoddy work and charge too much. Frustrated Senior

Dear Frustrated,

Hiring a good home repair handyman can be a bit of a crapshoot. How do you find someone who will return your calls, show up on time, do the job right and finish it, all at a fair price? Here are some tips that can help.

Who to Call

While it may seem obvious, whom you call on for help will depend on what you need done. If, for example, you have a small home repair or improvement project that doesn't require a lot of technical expertise, a handyman may be all you need. But if you have a job that involves electricity, plumbing, or heating or cooling systems, you're better off going with a licensed tradesman. Bigger jobs like home renovations or remodeling may require a general contractor.

Whatever type of work you need, the best way to find it is through referrals from people you trust. If your friends or family don't have any recommendations turn to professionals in the field like local hardware or home improvement stores, or even real estate agents.

The Internet can also help. Websites like HomeAdvisor.com can put you in touch with prescreened, customer-rated service professionals in your area for free. Or try AngiesList.com, a membership service that will connect you with contractors and service companies with various types of expertise for free. They provide ratings and reviews of local professionals who've done work for other members in your area, plus details about the type of work they've done, prices, professionalism and timeliness. They also offer an upgraded silver or gold membership for $25 or $100 per year, which offers discounts, a magazine, complaint resolutions and more.

is through a local or national service company show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

like MrHandyman.com, HouseDoctors.com or HandymanConnection.com. You'll probably pay more going through a company than you would with an independent handyman, but service companies typically promise professional workers who are screened, licensed, bonded and insured.

To find local handyman services in your community check your yellow pages or go to any Internet search engine and type in "handyman" plus your city and state.

Once you've located a few candidates, your next step is to get written estimates that list the materials, costs and details of the project. It's a good idea to get at least three estimates from different sources to be sure you're getting a fair deal.

Before hiring someone, check out his or her work history with your state consumer protection agency (go to usa.gov/state-consumer for a list) and the Better Business Bureau (bbb.org/council). You can also search the Web using the company or individual's name and such words as "reviews" and complaints."

You also need to find out if your candidates have an approved contractor or tradesman license. Using an unlicensed worker in a state that requires a license is dangerous - you'll have little legal recourse if the job goes bad. (To see which states license contractors, visit contractors-license.org.) Contractorcheck.com is another good resource for researching local contractors.

Also, ask to see their proof of insurance, which covers any damages they may cause while working on your home, and ask for several references from past jobs and check them.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior. Another option for finding handyman services org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today own. That being said, please indulge me just this once, with an article about the CUTEST pet, my parent's four month old bulbul!

What on earth is a bulbul? I'm glad you asked! A bulblul is a songbird native to Asia, particularly India and the Philippines. A number of years ago call that you can listen to on the Internet. Red Whiskered bulbuls have a crest on the top of their heads which resembles a spike, hence my parents' pet's name "Spike."

Despite his diminutive stature at 27 grams (that's less than one ounce, and yes, they actually managed to weigh him), Spike lives up to all the spunk and defiance his name implies. One of his favorite past times is stealing food. We've come to realize his fascination with our food has nothing to do with taste --it's all about the forbidden aspect of it. Case in point, when we have salads with tomatoes, Spike is all over them. But when my Dad puts the exact same tomato slices in his food bowl, he couldn't care less.

Over time, Spike has become more and more audacious when it comes

We first got Spike back in June around the insanely hot day when the big fire broke out. My parents' neighbor found him and brought him over because he knows my parents are "bird bulbuls were introduced to this area and have people" (which is also code for "nuts."). But after we pried his lips apart and he tried it he lustily chirped for it all the time. One of the problems with keeping wild birds is the transition from baby to adult food, especially is adult food is live. You pretty much have to be retired to care for baby birds or bring them to work with you (Which I've actually done before! The kids at school got a big kick out of it.). Feeding birds live worms can be done, but it's the sort of thing that requires some supervision if you don't want escaped worms crawling around your house. Luckily for us we found dehydrated insects online! They even have a wide variety of dried bugs available for human consumption, which we're not going to try in the near

GOING OUT IN A BLAZE OF GLORY: CASSINI'S GRAND FINALE

With the conclusion of the international Cassini mission orbiting Saturn and its moons set for Sept. 15, 2017, the spacecraft is poised to soon begin a thrilling two-part endgame.

Cassini will enter the first part of this denouement on Nov. 30, 2016, when the spacecraft begins a series of 20 passes just beyond the outer edge of the main rings. These weekly loops around Saturn are called the F ring orbits, and they send the spacecraft high above and below the planet's poles. During these orbits, Cassini will approach to within 4,850 miles of the center of the narrow F ring, with its wispy and everchanging structure.

"During the F ring orbits we expect incredible views of the rings, along with the small moons and other structures embedded in them, as we've never seen them before," said Linda Spilker, Cassini project scientist at JPL. "The last time we got this close to the rings was during arrival at Saturn in 2004, and we saw only their backlit side. Now we have dozens of opportunities to examine their structure at extremely high resolution on both sides."

Cassini's final phase—called the Grand Finale—begins in earnest in April 2017. A close flyby of Saturn's giant moon Titan will reshape the spacecraft's orbit so that, instead of passing outside the rings, it passes through the gap between the rings and the planet. The spacecraft is expected to make 22 plunges through this gap—an unexplored space only about 1,500 miles wide—beginning with its first dive on April 27.

During the Grand Finale, Cassini will make the closest-ever observations of Saturn, mapping the planet's magnetic and gravity fields with exquisite precision and returning ultra-close views of the atmosphere. Scientists reaches of Saturn's atmosphere—both firstalso hope to gain new insights into Saturn's interior structure, the precise length of a Saturn day, and the total mass of the rings—which may finally help settle the question of their age. The spacecraft will also directly analyze dust-sized years since launch. On that day, Cassini will final act is like getting a whole new mission

SAVING WATER AND LIVING BETTER

Water conservation is good all the time, especially for anyone living here in Los Angeles County. After all, there are far too many of us living here in this wonderful climate which is a coastal desert plain. That's right – we live in a desert! That's why most of our water is imported from hundreds of miles away. vation makes sense. It's the way we should be living all the time, not just when we're forced to by circumstances. But the suggestion to just stop watering trees and shrubs and plants and let them die off is not a viable suggestion. Consider the great mystery of trees and the wonderful things they do. They draw water up to the surface with their deep roots. They constantly transpire, sending water vapour into the surrounding environment. This means it is always cooler around trees and other plants. Due to this effect of transpiration, trees also create little microclimates - they create weather - and even localized wind can be created by the updraft of water vapour from trees. We do NOT want to just let our trees die off for the short-sighted goal of "saving water." That would more rapidly create our environment into a barren wasteland.

Through water conservation and water-saving efforts, the land so worked can be cooler and be more fruitful from an ecological point of view, even when it is hotter and drier elsewhere. For example, all household water (minus the toilet) can be easily recycled back into the yard to water the garden, the trees, and even the drought-tolerant plants.

Assuming the lay of your land is somewhat downhill, you can disconnect the washing machine drain pipe, connect a long hose and let the water drain to your yard or garden. (Buy biodegradable soaps). One load of wash and rinse can use 30 plus gallons, depending on your system. All that water can wash your clothes, and feed your yard.

I have always disconnected bath tub lines and let the water drain into the yard. This is simple plumbing which most folks should be able to do in a few hours. Building and Safety takes a dim view of these practices since they don't want people breeding mosquitoes for the entire neighborhood, so give careful thought to how you do this, and make sure your system doesn't become a problem. Oh, I just remembered: all the officials constantly declare that we should take showers since "showers use less water." Really? Have you ever actually measured the amount of water you use in a shower? How long do you stay in there? If you're disciplined, you could take a waterefficient shower, and let that water flow into the yard. I have actually taken solar showers in the back yard, and the water all went to the grapefruit tree. But typically, I take baths. I don't fill up the entire tub and then get in. Rather, I turn on the hot water, get in, and add a few small clothes items that I always wash by hand, thus relieving the load on the washing machine. Plus, it is much healthier to sit in the tub a bit and to scrub, rather than to race through the process. When I am done with the bath, I save some water in one-gallon jugs and recycle it by using it to flush the toilet. I let the remaining water drain out into my garden. I am using that water and getting much more out of it, and keeping my landscape alive and thriving and producing water-vapor-filled oxygen.

For dishwater, you can simply take the dish basin out into your yard and empty it on trees, roses, garden, etc. All the little food scraps will actually be a sort of fertilizer for the plants.

Be a part of the solution. Recycle all your water and keep your oxygen-producing plants alive. I do agree with DWP that a lawn is pointless. Plant succulents, cactus, fruit trees - things that are useful and don't require excessive water. Some good and useful drought-tolerant plants include Peruvian mint, wandering Jew, New Zealand spinach, jade, aloes, prickly pear cactus, and many, many others.

We can live here in this desert and we can live here well. We just need to adapt to the desert, rather than arrogantly thinking that the desert should adapt to us.

[Nyerges' latest book, "Self-Sufficient Home," which includes a chapter on watersaving methods, will be available everywhere in September. He can be reached at www. For the most part, I try to stay calm, cool and collected. computer. Talk about a pain in the neck! Then there are times when I have had enough and I am not going to take it anymore.

When I am rattled about something, it is not small or insignificant. I can swat pesky little bugs all of my life and never get rattled by a bug.

Lately, some things have been developing "in my world," that has me more than a little concern. In fact, it is bordering on the territory of being rattled. Something needs to be done because if I am rattled in this area, look out!

I am not sure, if I am just now noticing it or if it has been here for a while. When I got my cell phone, I was under the impression the only people who would have my cell phone number would be those I gave it to. I am not one to give out my cell phone number to just anybody. If you have my cell phone number, you are in a high-level category of BFFs.

I believe sincerely that the devil has hacked into my cell phone, collected my cell phone number and is selling my number to the most despicable people he owns.

Lately, I have been getting political calls. People trying to interview me concerning the up coming election. They want me to contribute to political polls being evaluated. They want my opinion and they have a whole slew of questions they are going to be asking me.

I know they do not want my opinion because all of these calls are what is called Robo calls. In other words, is not an actual person asking these questions, but rather a machine. If you think for one moment that I am going to carry on a conversation with some machine, you do not have all your wires connected.

How they get my cell phone number, is beyond me. It probably is their close connection with the devil himself.

I have also been getting calls from some company that feels I am in some sort of pain. They call and say I requested on their website this pain solution. Now, what they want to know is it my back pain, or elbow pain, or a knee pain?

I have been so fed up with these calls that I finally said, "I do have a pain in the neck." To which, I got an excited reply as to how they could help my pain in the neck.

You know what's coming. I told them that the pain in my neck was them calling me and if they want to help this pain in the neck go away to stop calling me, for Pete's sake. I just about had it with this. The question I wrestle with is, should I lie to these people calling me? 552-2543, e-mail jamessny. For instance. Somebody called me last week telling jamessnyderministries.com.

I am not one easily rattled. When I am rattled, look out for me they noticed a certain virus on my computer and if I would allow them access to my computer they could fix my

> This was about the 15th time this company called me fering to fix my computer. So, I thought if they are going to waste my time by calling me, maybe I should waste their time by trying to get them to fix my computer.

> "Oh yes," I said as excited as I could sound, "please fix my computer for me."

> Now they wanted me to turn my computer on and so forth and so on. I must confess that at the time I wasn't your my computer I was on my cell phone. They gave me instructions and I obeyed them, or at least

> I told him I was obeying him. "All right," I said, "My computer is on what I do next?" I > will confess to you if you promise not to tell anybody, but I did not have my computer on. Then they gave me instructions that I was to go to a certain website.

"Okay," I said, "I'm there, what do I do now?" They gave me a password I was supposed to use to get access to them so they could get access to my computer. "Have you done it yet?"

Yes, I punched it in and what I do next?"

'Something's wrong," the person at the other end of the bhone said. "You must not have put in the right password. et me give it to you again."

He gave it to me again, which in turn I gave it back to him, again.

This went on for about 20 minutes and the person on the other end of my cell phone was getting very frustrated and borderline anger. I, on the other end of the cell phone, could hardly control my laughter.

By the time he hung up, he was very frustrated and could not understand why it was not working.

After this person hung up on me and I quit laughing, I thought of what David said. "Give them according to their deeds, and according to the wickedness of their endeavours: give them after the work of their hands; render to them their desert" (Psalms 28:4).

Sometimes giving back what you get can bring you to a certain level of joy you did not have before.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

LATIN AMERICA'S FIRST SANCTUARY FOR ELEPHANTS

A couple of years ago, an article I'd written about The Elephant Sanctuary in Hohenwald, Tennessee was featured in this weekly column. It was a real heart-string-tugger about an Asian elephant who'd lost her mate to an untimely death and for a period of time following her loss had become very

The happy ending to that tale was that the elephant was able to find a new forever friend in the form of a kind canine residing alongside the elephants at the sanctuary. It is my understanding that today the previously depressed elephant and the dog are still best buds and are rarely seen, one

I mention that article in this week's column because last week my husband brought to my attention an Associated Press piece he saw printed in the LA Times. The piece was about Elephant Sanctuary Brazil, a new refuge facility cofounded by Scott Blais, the same gentleman who founded the sanctuary in Tennessee.

The Brazilian sanctuary is Latin America's first. Located in rural Mato Grosso, it will provide the most appropriate and picture-perfect setting for elephants (with the exception of having been left alone to roam in their own natural surroundings to start with, of course) to live out the rest of their lives doing what they were intended to do...simply Asian Elephants are familial creatures, meaning they maintain a monogamous partnership with a life-long mate until death do they part. They work together as a team to raise their young, and they share the tasks of foraging and "housekeeping", with their common number one priority being the welfare of the family as a whole. They form bonds much like we do, and they grieve the same, if not more intensely. When an elephant looses their mate, he or she will eventually seek out a new friend, mainly to avoid being alone.

Historically, most of the innate behavioral characteristics of the Asian elephant have gone either unnoticed or totally disregarded and disrespected by those humans in our society who've exploited them for financial gains. This is a very unfortunate fact for the elephant and for the human as well. It is certainly not a fact that makes me proud to be human. However, according to Blais, things are starting to change for

In his own words, Blais states, "Societies around the world are starting to become more aware of the trauma we have caused these animals." And to that I say, "It's about damn time!" I'm not sure who was first to decide it would be a good idea to cage and train an elephant for entertainment or for any other purpose, but I think it is the most cruel thing one could possibly do to such an innocent and wild gentle giant.

But again, on a more positive note, Blais points out that things are getting better. Finally, people are beginning to recognize their own personal responsibilities to act as stewards on behalf of the elephants, and more-and-more folks are getting on board with the quest to make reconciliation for the damage that has been done. "We need to build solutions. It's not enough to simply say they need a different life.", says Blais.

Scott Blais and his wife are among the solution-oriented with regard to righting past wrongs. They've dedicated their lives to rescuing and protecting retired working elephants and providing them with a healing, nurturing, natural roam-free environment in which to live out the remainder of

I imagine the Blais's probably work tirelessly on a regular basis, leaving them exhausted at the end of any given day. But I also have to assume they sleep soundly at night knowing their efforts have made a difference, not only for the elephants but for the greater good of our planet in general.

After years of planning and drawing on his experience as founder and CEO of US-based Global Sanctuary for Elephants, Blais moved to Brazil about two years ago to begin the process of preparing the 2,800 acres of rural undeveloped property as a retirement refuge for overworked, exploited and mistreated captive elephants. So far, two elephants, "Maia" and "Guida" have been transported to the property with many more to join them in the future.

There are an estimated 50 other elephants in South America that are in similar situations to that of Maia and Guida and sanctuary officials hope to eventually bring them all to the refuge where they can reclaim at least some semblance of their natural-born freedom and be kept safe from the hands of those who had the audacity to take that freedom from them.

Few worthwhile things in this life can be bought with money, in my opinion. And what can be purchased should be limited only to things inanimate and replaceable. One thing that most certainly cannot be replaced is the beauty of an age-old wildlife species being left alone to thrive in it's own natural environment.

For countless Asian elephants, this reality will never be. But at least now there is a chance that many of them will have the opportunity to enjoy the remainder of their lives in a place where the shackles are removed and they can, at long

No financial gains will ever compare to the inherent dignity of a free-roaming Asian elephant, and very foolish is the man whose need for monetary gains would cause the pain of God's wondrous creatures. I encourage my fellow humans to take up hobbies and pursuits in life that do not involve the exploitation of animals or the environment. There are so many alternatives. Love and let live.

Cautious Costumes

Most of us can't resist a four-legged vampire, a tail-wagging superhero, or a fluffy princess. In fact, pet parents spend an average of $350 million on pet costumes each Halloween. So, if you and your fur baby's Halloween plans include dressing up for a costume contest, parade, or trick-or-treating, there are a few things to keep in mind. Choose your pet's costume with care; make sure that it fits well and doesn't restrict his breathing, movement, eye sight, barking, or meowing. Be mindful of any dangling pieces of fabric or buttons that can be chewed off and swallowed. Costumes can be stressful for some pets, so no matter how adorable your cat looks dressed up as a pirate or your dog as Darth Vader, if he seems distressed, it's best to avoid the costume.

Stash The Goodies What's Halloween without a bounty of candy? Whether it's a bowl of candy ready for little ghosts and goblins, or the loot brought home from a night of trickor-treating, it should be kept far out of reach of Fido and Fluffy. Chocolate, especially dark or baking chocolate, is dangerous for pets, and Xylitol, an artificial sweetener found in sugar-free candies and most types of gum, can also cause very serious medical problems for your pets. If you think your pet has eaten something toxic, please call us or the ASPCA Poison Control Center at 888-426-4435 immediately.

Prevent Spooked Pets Seeing excited trick-or-treaters dressed up and having fun may be one of your favorite parts of Halloween, but it may also be a scary and stressful time for your pet. To reduce anxiety and prevent your precious pet from fleeing, most pets do best when kept in a separate room, away from the front door while trick-ortreaters are out and about. Remember, the best dressed pets this Halloween are wearing a collar with an I.D. tag and a microchip! Proper identification is the best chance of you becoming reunited with your pet should he become lost.

On the Marquee:

Notes from the Sierra MadrePlayhouse

"GROUCHO" IS THE NOT-SO SECRET WORD

and they would win a prize. Well, if our patrons say Sunday, December 4, 2017 and SMP will get a fabulous prize.

Frank Ferrante (a Sierra Madre native) who has traveled the world with his show An Evening with Groucho - he is in Australia now playing to sold-out houses – has very generously donated a performance to SMP. We are using this wonderful donation of Frank's considerable talents as the centerpiece of a Gala Fundraiser for our Playhouse. For $100 (Center section reserved seating) or $85 (Side seating or rear row Center section) our patrons will have a chance to see Frank's amazing performance AND support the Playhouse. Each ticket will be deductible after the first $30 and will include a champagne reception in our lobby afterwards. Frank will happily sign photos and talk about his love of Groucho. Tickets are on sale now.

The last time he did his show in our area it was at the Pasadena Playhouse last January and he is scheduled to perform at the La Mirada Center for the Performing Arts next March. Ferrante was handpicked by Arthur Marx to carry on his father's legacy. The New York Times described him as "the greatest living interpreter to see you soon!

On his very popular show You Bet Your Life Groucho Marx's material." Morrie Ryskind, coauthor of the classic Animal Crackers and A Night at the Opera, has said that he is "the only actor aside for the only actor as a contract as a contract as a contract as a contract as Frank's generosity follows on the heels of Fritz Coleman's "Groucho" they will get a wonderful experience on two sold-out performances last Sunday of his one-man show Defying Gravity. Fritz also, very generously, donated the entire box office to SMP. This was such a wonderful gesture on his part and will make such a difference to us as we plan our upcoming season. Frank's show could likewise make a huge difference in allowing us to move forward with our ambitious plans for the rest of this season.

We are now reaching out to our supporters and donors to make commitments of support for the next year. You each should be receiving your solicitation letters soon and when you do, I hope you will consider making a generous gift to SMP. I've spoken of some of our

RA RA RIOT – LIVE REVIEW AT THE GREEK THEATRE

Syracuse-born chameleons Ra Ra Riot set the stage on fire on Friday night in Los Angeles, CA as the opening act to Young The Giant. As far as openers go, Ra Ra Riot could have easily been the headliner as their 2016 record, Need Your Light, was their liveliest and most enthused material to date. While the initial carnation of Ra Ra Riot has seen some line-up changes over the course of ten years ago, Wes Miles (vocals), Mathieu Santos (bass), Milo Bonacci (guitar), Rebecca Zeller (violin), and Kenny Bernard (drums) were all in perfect sync on a somewhat warm October night in Los Angeles. It was clearly evident Ra Ra Riot was arguably having the most fun on stage in their entire lifespan. With four albums to work from, all of which are considerably different from one to the next, Ra Ra Riot performed a glorious assortment of tracks, six coming off their latest endeavor. The combination of string based instruments and a heavy amount of synthesized provided a great deal of balance for the band's wonderful and praiseworthy

The band kicked the night off with "Too Too Too Fast," a terrific track off their 2008 debut record, The Rhumb Line. Miles' angelic voice soared over this hidden baroque gem. Given that it's an older track, the song surprisingly resembles the band's present sound. "Binary Mind" was a solid follow-up track. It has a great chorus and an utterly buoyant offering for the enthusiastic LA crowd. While most of the audience might have been there for Young The Giant, they did however let out a spirited cheer for "Too Dramatic," a fan favorite of many years off the sophomore record, The Orchard. The high orchestra endeavor alongside the infectious chorus line, "I don't understand it/" asked for the crowd to stand up and turn on their cellphone two-plus minute gem. The simple, yet effective offering showcases great violin work into the mix of frenzy snyths.

**Caccated with indinfords layers that anowed it to led like something quite distinctive. With the crowd shining down the "light" that was asked by Miles, he returned the favor one of the true highlights of the night. A killer falsetto from Miles boosted the mellifluous track. While it appears off enchanted the audience under their hallucinogenic spell.

musical the band's seemingly less popular record, it still was well received by their keen fans.

"Each Year," another one off The Rhumb Line, turned down the synths and headed back to strings and percussion. The lyrics, a nod to Harper Lee's To Kill A Mockingbird is band's most complex tracks offering an even deeper side to the many talents of Ra Ra Riot. To get things rolling on a high note again, Ra Ra Riot broke into "Dance With Me," splendidly rousing track that had the crowd dancing in no time flat. Unquestionably addicting and beautiful harmonies to share, this foot-tapping endeavor displayed a band having a blast on stage performing together. The subsequent "Absolutely" was an ebullient tune to say the least. A snythpop whirlwind, it's as addicting as anything these original indie-poppers have ever produced. The exuberant Miles takes mundane situations and adds much needed energy to them as he does here with "Absolutely." He even makes a shout out to "Los Angeles" and that of course livened up the crowd even more so with an animated roar. "Boy" came up next, another classic from the camp. The lively jam doesn't feel dated in the slightest bit. Miles' whimsical vocals were clear and chipper over the song's zooming bass and high-energy drums. He once again engaged the crowd to clap their hands in synchronize

"Water," a very Vampire Weekend-esque track, which comes as no surprise since Rostam Batmanglij, formerly of Vampire Weekend, helped produced the brand new record. Miles's falsetto vocals, original as they come by in indie pop, floats on cloud nine here. The single is greatly satisfying and You're too too dramatic," sounded better and crisper than light. Perhaps the finest song off their latest endeavor, this ever. It's definitely a song that hits you hard if you haven't one turned out to be entirely incandescent. It was exquisitely with numerous lavers that allowed it to Eponymous track from their third record, "Beta Love," was in another way. Undoubtedly, Ra Ra Riot left the stage on

Wonders of Spiritual Unfoldment by John Butler

A personal account of searching for spiritual understanding initially outside Christian teaching, this book takes the position that there are as many ways to God as there are paths up a mountain. Interpreting his own spiritual breakthroughs, the author describes them as "windows of realization" and likens them to the sensation of being made whole. The book describes his journey from Eastern mantra-style meditation to the Orthodox "prayer of the heart" and details how a love of nature and a desire to do good played an important part in his spiritual unfoldment.

We expect our judges to be honest and wise. Their integrity and impartiality are the bedrock of the entire judicial system. We trust them to ensure fair trials, to protect the rights of all litigants, to punish those who do wrong, and to oversee the orderly and efficient flow of justice. But what happens when a judge bends the law or takes a bribe? It's rare, but it happens.Lacy Stoltz is an investigator for the Florida Board on Judicial Conduct. She is a lawyer, not a cop, and it is her job to respond to complaints dealing with judicial misconduct. After nine years with the Board, she knows that most problems are caused by incompetence, not corruption. But a corruption case eventually crosses her desk. A previously disbarred lawyer is back in business with a new identity. He now goes by the name Greg Myers, and he claims to know of a Florida judge who has stolen more money than all other crooked judges combined. And not all states, and throughout U.S. history. What's the as an investigator for a tiny cash-strapped source of the ill-gotten gains? It seems the judge police department and finds himself tracking a was secretly involved with the construction of a serial rapist who is one of the most baffling and large casino on Native American land. The Coast dangerous foes he has ever faced.

Mafia financed the casino and is now helping itself to a sizable skim OHN of each month's cash. The judge is getting a cut and looking the other way. It's a sweet deal: Everyone is making money.But now Greg wants to put a stop to it. His only client is a person who knows the truth and wants to blow the whistle and collect millions under Florida law. Greg files a complaint with the Board on Judicial Conduct, and the case is assigned to Lacy Stoltz, who immediately suspects that this one could be dangerous.

The Wrong Side of Goodbye (A Harry Bosch Novel) by Michael Connelly

Harry Bosch is California's newest private investigator. He doesn't advertise, he doesn't have an office, and he's picky about who he works for, but it doesn't matter. His chops from thirty years with the LAPD speak for themselves. Soon one of Southern California's biggest moguls comes calling. The reclusive billionaire is nearing the end of his life and is haunted by one regret. When he was young, he had a relationship with a Mexican girl, his great love. But soon after becoming pregnant, she disappeared. Did she have the baby? And if so, what happened to it?Desperate to know whether he has an heir, the dying magnate hires Bosch, the only person he can trust. With such a vast fortune at stake, Harry realizes that his mission could be risky not only for himself but for the one he's seeking. But as he begins to uncover the haunting story--and finds uncanny links to his own past--he knows he cannot rest until he finds the truth. At the same time, unable to

HILLARY CLINTON AS SENATOR

Just months before 9/11, Hillary Clinton became Health Insurance Program (SCHIP). Hillary a U.S. senator in New York. She served for eight years in the city and was a key architect of the $21 billion federal aid bill that helped rebuild the city after her term started with the worst tragedy New York had ever seen. But perhaps what she is most remembered for is fighting for the health bill that served first responders in the first 48 hours after the attack. Clinton fought the Environmental Protection Agency to admit the air wasn't safe to breathe. That's why Clinton has the support of so many 9/11 first responders. #### "RETURN OF THE TINGLER" AT THE PLAYHOUSE -TIME MACHINE RIDES AND RODDY ROBOT

RETURN OF THE TINGLER SIERRA MADRE PLAYHOUSE – HALLOWEEN

In conjunction with Sierra Madre's Halloween festivities which occur on Monday the 31st, The Symbiotic Society will present "Return of the Tingler". This free show is a parody of the 1959 hit film, "The Tingler" starring the legendary Vincent Price. Audience interaction will be featured, along with activities outside the Playhouse. Free shows will run every half hour from 6:30 to 9:30 pm, HALLOWEEN NIGHT ONLY. Returning from last year will be the TIME MACHINE; plus a new attraction, RODDY ROBÔT. These vintage attractions are part of our retreat to the 50-60's.

THE PLAYHOUSE HALLOWEEN PRESENTATION – "Return of the Tingler", is loosely based on the film by William Castle who was famous for low budget B-Movie thrillers. Many films featured gimmicks to attract audiences. Our presentation will offer our own contrivance collection in his honor.

THE TIME MACHINE – It is a full size replica of the time machine featured in the 1960 movie, The Time Machine. The movie is based on the famous H.G. Wells book of the same name, starring Rod Taylor and Yvette Mimieux. It differs from the original in having fun lights controllable by the rider. Those wishing to return to their younger years can ride the Time Machine before or after the shows.

RODDY ROBOT - He invokes memories of the 50-60's era anthropomorphic robots featured in many sci-fi B-movies. He joins the Time Machine as a great photo opportunity. A professional photographer will take photos free of charge. ABOUT THE SYMBIOTIC SOCIETY - this deranged group of volunteer individuals, formerly known as the Zombie Players Association, creates an annual event at the Sierra Madre Playhouse during Halloween. Since the group is primarily senior in nature with signs of dementia, the presentations are nutty and over-the-top. The whole purpose is to provide free fun entertainment, primarily for kids and those wishing to be

WHAT HAPPENS TO YOUR BUSINESS FACEBOOK PAGE IF YOU DIE?

If you're on Facebook, you may remember that they initiated a "legacy contact" program a few years ago. Legacy contacts allow people with personal Facebook accounts to designate someone to manage their account after they pass away. But Facebook also offers business pages. So what happens to those pages if you pass away? It's an important question because you probably don't want your business page to expire with

Let's start with the basics. How did you initially set up your account? In all likelihood, you simply connected your business page to your personal page. Facebook has a strong preference for connecting business pages to personal pages, even though the two appear as separate on Facebook. But if you don't have a personal account, Facebook allows you to create a free standing business page.

Personal Facebook accounts holders can decide how they want their pages to be handled when they die from among three options: memorialized accounts, legacy contacts, and account deletion.

Memorialized accounts place the word information.

"remembering" next to the person's name on their profile page. This allows friends and family to continue to share memories, and the page remains visible to its audience. A memorialized account may be used alone or maybe combined with a legacy contact.

The legacy contact must be named by the account holder before death. The account holder sets the legacy contact's authority, including things such as dealing with and making posts, reading messages, and responding to friend requests.

The third option is account deletion. Again, this option must be chosen by the account holder before

If, on the other hand, you have created a freestanding business page, you were initially prompted to choose additional account administrators. However, most people do not use this option for two big reasons. First, Facebook does not allow someone with a personal account to create a freestanding business account. And second, freestanding business accounts are much more limited in their customizability.

There are so many things to think about when it comes to passing away that it is easy to become overwhelmed. Even if you have already dealt with your personal estate planning, it's critical - if you are an entrepreneur - to also make provisions for your business. Facebook has become a nearly indispensable tool for small business marketing. Continuing to serve your customers (or notifying them properly in the event of your death) could mean the difference between your company surviving or failing shortly thereafter, as many companies do.

If you have any questions or comments about ensuring your business lives on as part of your legacy after you are gone, please reach out and let me know.

Dedicated to your family's health, wealth, and happiness,

RETIRED TEACHERS' WEEK TO BE CELEBRATED NOVEMBER 6-12, 2016

*CalRTA Members Donate $55 Million Worth of Time to Local Communities*

Newly retired teachers, husband and wife, Randy Tiffany (Glendale schools) and Kerry Tiffany (Durfee School) were welcomed to CalRTA #71 by President Rosemarie Hernandez (L) and Secretary Robin Graney (R) at a reception for new retirees at SGV Airport, El Monte.

The California Retired Teachers' Association also award scholarships to prospective teachers. (CalRTA) has good reason to celebrate Retired Teachers' Week November 6-12. This organization has been going strong for over 86 years! CalRTA was founded in 1929 (CRTA then) through the efforts of Laura Settle, a "little old lady from Pasadena" who demonstrated the power of one by taking action with five or six fellow teachers to organize teacher retirees. Now the state organization numbers over 42,000 members!

of CalRTA never stop caring about California's education and its teachers. They volunteer in the classroom to help the students. They mentor new classroom teachers. According to information from the state CalRTA, this past year CalRTA members contributed more than 2 million hours of volunteer service to schools and communities with only 17 percent of the membership reporting their hours. That number translates to $55 million! Besides that, retired teachers, such as local CalRTA #71 (SGV), donate classroom teacher grants and

Of equal importance is that CalRTA members, like other public employees in California, give back to their communities, to the state, and to the country economically through pension spending. Expenditures stemming from state and local pensions supported more than 375,000 jobs and $10.9 billion in federal, state, and local tax revenues!

Membership in the local California Retired Although retired from teaching, members Teachers' Association #71 (SGV) totals nearly 500 members from Arcadia, Sierra Madre, Monrovia, Duarte, El Monte, Temple City, and other valley cities. CalRTA #71 (SGV) recently welcomed new retirees at a cordial reception at the SGV Airport, El Monte. Membership is open to all retired educators, as well as to any others interested in joining this active group. CalRTA's motto is "Your Partner in Pension Protection."

A LETTER TO MY DAUGHTER REGARDING TRUMP

ohn is an activist, columnist and television commentator. Follow her on Twitter: @sallykohn. The opinions expressed in this commentary are hers.

(CNN)I am so sorry that the world I've brought you into is one in which not only is Donald Trump possible, but possibly the next President of the United States. I had hoped that by this point in history, we would be better than this. Apparently, we're not.

You know some of what Donald Trump has said and done in this campaign. You hear it on the news, kids talk about it at school. "I hate Donald Trump," you said the other day during breakfast. Please don't. Don't hate one sad man with a lot of power and little self-restraint. And don't hate the people who are enthusiastically supporting him. Donald Trump is running a campaign of hate, and hate cannot be solved by hate but by empathy and understanding.

It is important for you to understand what Donald Trump represents. He is a mirror reflecting a dark and dangerous part of our history that, whether we like it or not, is in all of us. So I want you to understand the part we've all played, whether we meant to or not, in giving rise to Donald Trump.

Our nation was born of genocide. Before there was even a glimmer of anything called America, there were millions of native peoples living all across this land. But to make way for our white forebears, the native people were slaughtered. Ever since, the idea of who "we" are as white Americans has been defined in perpetual opposition to some threatening, non-belonging "them." This is not new. It is our national DNA.

But white Americans rationalized the slaughter of native people who they saw as lesser -- as "savages" not quite as human as the colonizers themselves. This same "logic" was applied to rationalize slavery -- that people from Africa were somehow inherently less than the white European Americans and, therefore, it made perfect sense for the one to subjugate and oppress the other. Even after the abolition of slavery, the persistent belief in the inferiority of black Americans led to decades of enforced segregation and violent oppression -- as it still leads to injustice today.

When you look back on this horrid history, it's important you understand that slave holders and segregationists and those who defended inequality did not think they were doing anything uniquely wrong. In fact, for the most part they believed their actions to be just. The same is true of those supporting intolerance and inequality today. Mass injustice doesn't result from a "few bad apples," but from the mass of people willfully supporting

There was a time in our history when sexual assault was not even a concept, let alone a crime. So too, the lynching of black men and women was often ignored or even actively encouraged by our leaders and their laws. There is no doubt that we have made progress since then, but not nearly enough. I remain desperate to protect you from a society that quietly but habitually tells you that as a girl, you're not equal to boys -- that you're more valued for your body than your brains, that you don't deserve the same opportunities let alone the same basic respect. And the truth is, black men and women are still treated vastly differently under our laws and in our communities. As you grow up, it will be easier for you to get into college and get a job and buy a home than it will be for your black friends. That's not because you will have earned it more or deserve it more, but because our society thinks less of people who aren't white. At the same time, you will be less likely to be harassed in stores or stopped by police, let alone shot and killed based on nothing but the suspicion that we unconsciously attach to dark skin. This isn't something for you to feel guilty about. This is something for you to help change.

Still, even in the face of this imperfect history, I was under the illusion that we had all progressed further than it turns out we have. As the arc of our history has bent, however haltingly, toward justice, most Americans grew to actively reject overt sexism and racism and other kinds of discrimination, and at least aspire to fight against the unconscious biases that still haunt our lives.

Despite this, a not insignificant fraction of Americans, even today, see the equal treatment of women and people of color as a bad thing. They believe that if others get more opportunity, they will get less. These Americans see themselves as history's rightful owners of opportunity. When they talk about wanting to 'Make America Great Again," the "better times" they evoke may have seemed better for white Americans, but they were eras of torment and torture for people of color and, often, women as well. Always be wary of anyone who promises a better future by going backwards. The future by definition aspires toward progress.

Our progress as a nation is something you can be proud of. As you grow up, it's important you understand more and more about the dark parts of America's history, but also the bright moments where we moved forward. Once upon a time in our nation, black people were the legal property of white people and only white men could vote. We changed all that. Our history has progressed imperfectly, but make no mistake about it, it has progressed -- and that simple but glorious fact should always give you hope. Do not let those fighting against this progress convince you that they are the only ones who love their country. Fighting to make our nation more inclusive and more just is one of the highest forms of patriotism I can imagine. If you always fight for fairness and justice, you will make me proud and you will make our country proud. You will be a bright light in our nation's stillunfolding story.

All of this may be too hard for you to understand right now. After all, you're only eight years old. But I know you understand the difference between right from wrong. And I know that you know the things Donald Trump has said about Mexicans and veterans and Muslims and women are wrong. More importantly, you know that what he stands for is wrong -- a narrow vision of America that promises opportunity for some through the oppression of others. That "logic" shaped the mistakes of our nation's past. I pray every night it will not shape our future.

You've said that if Donald Trump wins, you want to move to India. I'm afraid to tell you that the current prime minister of India isn't much better than Trump. But more importantly, no matter what happens on Election Day, we will stay and fight for justice. If Trump wins and does the things he has promised, we will not only march in the streets, but we will use our bodies to stop his forces from entering mosques or raiding homes of immigrants. And if Trump does not win, we will still need to fight -- against the strains of intolerance and hate that still course consciously and unconsciously through each of our minds and our entire nation. If Trump is defeated, there is much work to be done to ensure that another Trump does not rise.

On November 8, I will take you with me to vote. And together we will vote to elect Hillary Clinton the first woman president in the 227-year history of the U.S. presidency. And with that choice we will also vote to uplift the best of America's values. With every fiber of our beings, we will continue to vote and speak and write and march and do whatever we can to uphold and uplift justice and inclusion and fairness and kindness and equal opportunity

I cannot promise you that these values will always govern every moment of our nation's future, just as they clearly failed at times in our past. But I can promise you that I will fight for a world and a country that is, at its core, as loving and generous and beautiful as you are. I will fight for the world that you and all children deserve. Electing Hillary Clinton and defeating Donald Trump is just one

OBAMA'S PIVOT TO ASIA HITS A ROADBLOCK IN THE PHILIPPINES

While the mainstream media continues its obsessive reporting on the mud-slinging campaign for the White House, a dramatic development in China last week brought President Obama's "pivot to Asia" to a sudden halt. Philippine president Rodrigo Duterte, while in Beijing, announced his country's "separation" from the United States. He told his Chinese audience, "Your honors, in this venue, I announce my separation from the United States ... both in military, but also economics.

The State Department was stunned and asked for a clarification. The Philippines has been a virtual US protectorate since 1898, when it became U.S. property after the Spanish-American war. Even after gaining independence after World War II it remained a close Cold War ally, hosting U.S. military bases until 1992. Just this spring, as U.S. tensions with China were heating up over a Chinese reclamation project in the South China Sea, the U.S. signed a deal to open five military bases on Philippine territory. The deal was considered of major importance in an increasingly confrontational U.S. approach to the region.

Suddenly it appeared the deal was off. Was the Philippines about to sever diplomatic relations with the United States?

Shortly after making the statement, the Philippine president walked back slightly from what appeared a break with the United States. He did not mean total separation, he said, but rather a desire to loosen his country from the firm grip of U.S. foreign policy. But the point had been made. The Philippines was not happy in its current relationship with Washington.

President Obama's "pivot to Asia" has turned out not to mean improved trade and diplomatic ties with the region, but an aggressive stance toward China over, among other issues, the South China Sea. The U.S. has concluded military agreements with Vietnam and the Philippines, and maintains strong military ties with Japan and South Korea.

The Philippines has been used as a U.S. cat's paw in South China Sea dispute and Duterte's surprise statement signaled that he felt the relationship was too one-sided.

But the tension has been rising and the mood souring for some time. The U.S. State Department has been critical of President Duterte's admittedly brutal crackdown on illegal drugs, which has cost perhaps 2,000 or more lives. In August, Secretary of State John Kerry conveyed the U.S. government's concerns. As elsewhere, such condemnation by the U.S. likely seemed hypocritical to the Philippine president, as the U.S. leads the world in prison population with a large percentage serving long terms for non-violent drug crimes.

Last week a large protest was held in front of the U.S. embassy in Manila in support of the president's move toward a foreign policy independent from Washington. Demonstrators burned American flags and demanded the departure of US troops from their country.

Will U.S.-Philippine relations continue to spiral downward? Or will Washington begin to see that its aggressive foreign policy, in Asia and elsewhere, is beginning to alienate allies? Or perhaps the next US administration will decide that a CIA "regime change" is in order for the independent-minded Philippine president. A U.S. pivot away from confrontation with China would go a long way toward repairing strained relations with the Philippines and beyond. Let's hope that's Washington's

WAIT, WE'RE TALKING ABOUT UTAH?!

Mike Pence hit the stump in Utah on Wednesday. Yes, Utah. The Trumpster fire is so out of control that it has now become necessary to waste precious time shoring up a state that has gone overwhelmingly red in every election since 1968. All because of a guy we'd never heard of two months ago.

Put your hands together for Evan McMullin, who, in addition to becoming the first shaved-head presidential candidate, is a serious threat to deprive the Trump-Pence ticket of six electoral votes that it can ill afford to lose. An ex-CIA counterterrorism officer, ex-House policy aide, and investment banker with a conservative "small government" platform, and a spot on the ballot in 11 states, McMullin is giving his fellow Utah Mormons a potential home on Election Day.

Unlike the spineless Republican leaders in Washington, McMullin is merciless about Trump — and that's a big reason why he's on top in a new Utah poll (at 31 percent; Trump, 27; Hillary Clinton, 24). Stats like that in Utah, on the eve of an election, are unprecedented. Utah's top elected Republicans have all bailed on Trump, essentially signaling to Republican voters that it's OK to back McMullin. Which boosts the odds that he could become the first independent to win a state since segregationist George Wallace scored in the South 48 years ago.

Actually, Trump was in trouble in Utah long before he was outed on tape boasting about sexual assault; long before he was hit with 11 sexual assault accusers. Lest we forget, he lost the state's Republican primary by 55 points. Sixty percent of Utah's voters are Mormon, and they take seriously the church's doctrinal opposition to "any type of unclean or vulgar language and behavior." They're also, on average, highly educated, and we know from crunching the numbers all year that Trump does worst with people who are educated. And as heirs to a persecuted faith, they've long been cool to Trump's attacks on Muslims.

McMullin has no money — reportedly, he had $4,300 in the campaign kitty at September's end — but he does have a message.

"Right now you have a Republican Party that turns away people of different races, turns away people of different religions," he said last Sunday on ABC News, critical of the party's support of Trump. "The vast majority of Republican leaders are putting party ahead of principle and putting party ahead of the interests of their own

McMullin is the kind of conventional conservative who has been sidelined this year. He shares a few Trump priorities — repeal Obamacare, buttress the military - but he's pro-path to citizenship and pro-free trade. He appears to be in sync with Trump on cutting regulations and lowering taxes, but, like many other conservatives, he suspects that Trump is a closet liberal who doesn't believe what he espouses. And he's clearly drawing Utah conservatives who view Trump's repugnant racism and sexism as a deal-breaker.

In the end, McMullin himself may be nothing more than a footnote, but his current warnings about the GOP may prove prescient. As the ashes of defeat are sifted, it's quite conceivable that the white nativist Trumpkin wing and the establishment prooutreach wing could be incompatible.

"It's unlikely that the Republican Party will be able to make the kinds of changes it needs to make after the election. These are generational problems...but the reality is, the conservative movement doesn't have time for that," McMullin said on Sunday. 'If the Republican party can't make the changes, as it wasn't able to do after 2012, the conservative movement will need a new political vehicle ... It may mean a new conservative party."

That GOP crackup could happen regardless of the outcome in Utah. But for now, the state's conservative voters are potentially the point of the spear. Even Trump seems to realize it. At a recent rally he declared "We're leading in North Carolina! (Lie.) We're leading all over the place! (Lie.) Having a tremendous problem in Utah!" Bingo. Even a stopped clock is right twice a day.

PETER Funt 10 THINGS THAT SHOULD

Just a few more weeks and we'll be free of the epic discomfiture that has been the 2016 presidential campaign. Here are ten things we should hope to never hear or see again: 10) "Move the needle." The worn out phrase is employed when commentators tell us that debates, speeches and news developments mean basically nothing. It's punditry's favorite cop out, only used when things don't move the needle.

9) "I take full responsibility." Political-speak for "I will not take responsibility."

8) Paul Begala. Taking over the title of Most Annoying Paid Advocate, previously held by the husband-wife team of James Carville and Mary Matalin, Begala's appearances on CNN underscore why having surrogates share the stage with bonafide news reporters is a terrible idea. And CNN has a raft of such hangers-on including Trump apologists Jeffery Lord and Kayleigh McEnany.

7) "Pivot." It's a useful word on the basketball court and the dance floor. In politics it's time for analysts to pivot to another term.

6) "Hit." Trump gets the blame for promoting the notion that campaigning is a martial art: "When I'm hit I hit back harder." Alas, throughout the '16 campaign, commentators and candidates embraced the expression, tossing politics to the mat.

5) Sean Hannity. No one in media soiled himself as badly with Trump's campaign as the Fox host, who unabashedly gave over his entire nightly show to promoting a single candidate. Sadly, it came at a time when outstanding journalists Megyn Kelly and Chris Wallace were making enormous progress toward removing the stench from the Fox brand.

4) Instant polls. Even after Trump took advantage of online polls that are easily manipulated by campaign staff and supporters, many reputable news organizations continued to conduct them. Legitimate polls have become tedious enough, fake polls are a misleading waste.

3) "Prosecute." Funny, isn't it, how pundits on competing networks latch on to each other's lingo? Even a perfectly reasonable word like prosecute, fine when used in a court of law, quickly becomes overused and grating in the political world. "She didn't really prosecute the case against him on the tax issue." Blah, blah.

2) Old Glory. Trump set some kind of record for the number of American flags squeezed into a single TV shot. Even Michelle Obama gave a stump speech in front of a flag that seemed as huge as the ones that require 100 guys to unfurl on a football field. Patriotism isn't measured by the size or number of flags.

1) Countdown clocks! Nothing, not Trump's sniffling or Clinton's cackling, was as annoying as the cable-TV countdown clocks. And remember, there are only 2.1 million minutes until the 2020 election.
