Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"As we struggle with shopping lists, to do lists and invitations, plus our own unreal expectations for all we expect ourselves to do, it is good to be reminded that there are people in our lives who are worth this aggravation, and people to whom we are worth the same." Donald E. Westlake

It's Tuesday. Time Warner Cable was out all day yesterday, we spent the morning, my ever supportive best friend, John, and I, dealing with all the stuff one Plan Ahead the claim, getting the estimate, crying. And there are twelve days left till Christmas. Ack!

Cranberry-apple bread is in the freezer and two The apple butter, lemon marmalade and strawberry all the folks on John's client list and assorted friends and family in far away places.

Our house looks beautiful. Our carpets have been gloriously cleaned. We have two dinner parties all planned, ready to prepare and enjoy. Most of the shopping is done...a word of gratitude here for Amazon. com. The only shopping I need to do is a trip to Petunia's here in town for some new earrings for my daughters.

Our Huntington Beach son, John, and his wife, Michon, who is one of my dearest family members, posted a video on Facebook of their two little boys, Caleb (3) and Brady (1) admiring their beautifully decorated Christmas tree which is totally surrounded by baby gates. I watched this several times and it made me laugh and quit stressing over all the stuff that isn't done...like Christmas cards. A brief aside: Why do we send Christmas cards? Mainly to find out if everybody we send them to is still alive and married to the same people they were married to last year.

One of my favorite authors, Michelle Griep, publishes a daily blog, Writer Off The Leash, which I enjoy tremendously on a daily basis. Here's what she shared today and it's so good I want to pass it along, with many thanks for this good advice, to all of you dear friends and neighbors.

Five Ways To Slay Holiday Stress

Change Your Perspective

Sometimes all that needs to be slain is your mindset. This season take a good, hard look at all that you're doing and then question everything. You could be stressing yourself out because of expectations and values that aren't really yours. Examine what your core beliefs are and live those out, not some goofy-butt Hallmark Christmas movie ideals.

Who says you need to do it all? Unless you're Martha playwrightdd

Stewart, you don't have to. Choose 1 item to cut from your must-get-done-before-Christmas list and just say no. I'm not talking simply crossing it off your list. I'm saying cut it out and throw it away for good. Maybe you'll decide not to do cards anymore or give up baking 6 different kinds of cookies. Whatever. The point is to stop doing 1 activity.

has to do when someone runs into your car, i.e., filing Obviously you're not going to cut everything from your holiday season. Decide on what you'll keep (remember, you're being proactive by choosing what you will keep and what you won't) then whip kinds of cookie batter will be finished this morning. out your calendar and plan those things into your schedule. If you fail to plan, you plan to fail. Putting preserves are beautiful, labeled and ready to pack up for things off until the last minute causes undue anxiety.

Shop Online

Books make great gifts and are just a click away. So is just about everything you can imagine. You'll avoid the crowds and save time driving to and from the store. Yeah, you might end up paying for shipping but in the long run if it saves you time, it's totally worth it.

This one is the hardest of all because you want to have fun as much as the next guy, right? Or your heart is big and you want to help everyone who has a need. Or you just plain old don't want others to think badly of you. Well, Bucko, in order to lessen your stress you just might need to let someone else stress out in your place by saying no. And if you do, guess what? You'll find that your "yes's" have a whole new meaning.

Life is short. Live intentionally, whether it's Christmas

There now, don't you feel better? Take a breath, or two or three, drive 'round town and enjoy everyone's lights and decorations and remember this old saying: Jesus is the reason for the season! Go to a Christmas concert. Watch one of the Christmas movies on the Hallmark channel. Go out to lunch with somebody nice. Tell someone you love them. Hug a lot of people. Then hug a bunch more! And smile. A lot!

"Christmas! It's almost here! My favorite, favorite time of year!"

Union Station Homeless Services to Feed Hundreds

Due to Health Department regulations, Union Station Homeless Services cannot accept turkey or prepared food donations at the event.

In a show of compassion and holiday spirit, hundreds of volunteers of all ages will gather together on Christmas Day to serve meals and cheer at Union Station Homeless Services' first annual Christmas at the Station.

For the past several years, Union Station has held Christmas dinner in Pasadena's Central Park. This year, however, instead of holding the event in the park, Union Station will begin a new tradition by moving the testivities to their Adult Center on Raymond Avenue, a 56-bed emergency shelter for men and women. Volunteers will help prepare and serve meals--including Christmas ham, macaroni and cheese, corn, green beans, dinner rolls and pie--to all who are hungry at Union Station's Adult Center on Christmas Day.

"Christmas at the Station is another brilliant way in which the community comes together to let our most vulnerable members know that they are valued and cared about," said John Brauer, Union Station's new CEO. "We're blessed to have so many wonderful volunteers, donors and sponsors come together to provide a great meal for individuals and families experiencing homelessness and poverty. Volunteer registration for this event is now closed, but community members are invited to help Union Station collect the ingredients and kitchen supplies needed to prepare a great Christmas meal! The wish list of muchneeded items is available at unionstationhs.org/christmas. Donors may drop off these supplies in the indicated sizes at the Adult Center (412 S. Raymond Ave. in Pasadena).

POLICE DEPARTMENT PUBLIC SAFETY EVENT ATTRACTS 20 PEOPLE, CRIME RATES UP 25% YEAR OVER YEAR

Last Thursday, the Monrovia Police Department held an event to highlight public safety tips for the holiday season. The event was well attended, with 20 members of the community participating in the seminar. At the event, Police Department staff shared that crime rates in Monrovia are up 25% in 2016, when compared against 2015 crime levels. Of particular note, crime rates are up in every community in our region and law enforcement personnel have attributed the situation primarily to a series of State legislative directives, including AB 109, Proposition 47, and Proposition 57. Each of those measures has served to weaken the ability of courts to deter crime, shorten prison sentences for criminals, and allow for the early release incarcerated individuals.

Given these new laws, if current crime trends continue through the end of the year, it is projected that Monrovia will see a 25% increase in total crime. Looking a bit deeper at the numbers, that 25% increase in total crime constitutes an increase from 750 total violent / property crime incidents in 2015, to 937 total violent / property crime incidents in 2016.

In our relatively recent history, Monrovia saw our greatest number crime activities occur in 1995, when we had 1,672 total incidents of violent and property crime. Through the years, the City engaged a number of important initiatives to reduce criminal activity, including implementation of a gang injunction and expansion of our overall Community Activist Policing bureau programs.

Those efforts and initiatives made an impact, as we saw crime trends decrease over time. The chart below illustrates how the crime trends have evolved, and of note, in 2015, we had our lowest recorded rate of criminal activity, when we had only 750 incidents of violent and property crime.

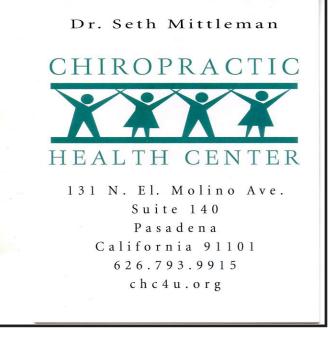

that new State legislation has had on crime rates here locally. In season!

particular, AB 109, Proposition 47, and Proposition 57 will collectively have impacted our law enforcement efforts in the following manner: Early release from prison of tens of thousands of criminals from throughout California, the majority of whom are from LA County Changes in law that have made any shoplifting, theft, forgery, or fraud where the value of the crime does not exceed $950 a misdemeanor The personal use of illegal drugs, such as cocaine, heroin, or methamphetamine, have been reclassified in California as misdemeanors

Given these changes in State law and the associated impacts on crime here locally in Monrovia, staff has been assessing different strategies through which we can address this challenging situation. As these strategies are developed, we would continue to urge that all However, this past year, we have seen the very significant impact residents stay vigilant and take steps, especially during this holiday

ARCADIA UNIFIED NAMED TO COLLEGE BOARD'S PRESTIGIOUS AP® DISTRICT HONOR ROLL

Only 22 School Districts in California Honored

ARCADIA-- The Arcadia Unified School District expand access to AP and also to help students is one of just 22 school districts in California being succeed on the AP Exams," said Trevor Packer, honored by the College Board with placement on the 7th Annual AP® District Honor Roll. To receive this national recognition, the Arcadia Unified School District had to, since 2014, increase the number of students participating in AP courses while also increasing or maintaining the percentage of students earning AP Exam scores of 3 or higher. Reaching these impressive milestones demonstrates that Arcadia Unified is successfully identifying motivated and academically prepared students who are ready for AP courses.

'Three years ago we made a drastic change to our Advanced Placement program at Arcadia High School by allowing all students to enroll in AP and Honors courses," said Arcadia Unified School District Superintendent Dr. David Vannasdall. "This is a great validation of that transition, and we have opened up many more opportunities for success for our students. I'm very proud of the work of our AP teachers and staff, along with the astonishing pass rate of our students."

Arcadia High School has a very robust AP and Honors program which offers students 20 AP courses along with eight Honors courses. Since transitioning to this "open access" format in the 2014-2015 school year, Arcadia High School has seen a significant increase in the number of students who are enrolling in AP and Honors courses, and the pass rate on the AP Exams has also increased. In 2016, 2,266 AP Exams were taken by 1,182 students with a remarkable 83.9%

National data from 2016 show that among African American, Hispanic, and Native American students with a high degree of readiness for AP, only about half are participating. The Arcadia Unified School District is committed to expanding the availability of AP courses among prepared and motivated students of all backgrounds.

"Congratulations to all the teachers and administrators in the Arcadia Unified School District who have worked so tirelessly to both the College Board's head of AP and Instruction. "These teachers and administrators are delivering real opportunity at Arcadia High and classrooms, and students are rising to the challenge."

In 2016, more than 4,000 colleges and universities around the world received AP scores for college credit, advanced placement, or both, and/or consideration in the admission process.

Inclusion on the 7th Annual AP District Honor Roll is based on a review of three years of AP data, from 2014 to 2016, looking across 37 AP Exams, including world language and culture. The following criteria were used.

Districts must:

Increase participation/access to AP by at least 4% in large districts, at least 6 % in medium districts, and at least 11% in small districts;

Increase or maintain the percentage of exams taken by black/African American, Hispanic/ Latino, and American Indian/Alaska Native students who scored 3+ on at least one AP Exam;

Improve or maintain performance levels when comparing the 2016 percentage of students scoring a 3 or higher to the 2014 percentage, unless the district has already attained a performance level at which more than 70% of its AP students earn a 3 or

When these outcomes have been achieved among an AP student population in which 30% or more are underrepresented minority students (black/African American, Hispanic/Latino, and American Indian/Alaska Native) and/or 30% or more are low-income students (students who qualify for free or reduced-price lunch), a symbol has been affixed to the district name to highlight Arcadia Unified is one of only two districts in Los Angeles County, Lynwood Unified School District is the other, to be named to the prestigious AP District Honor Roll. Arcadia Unified was also named to the AP District Honor Roll in 2010.

FOOD AND DRINK

PERFECT HOLIDAY RESTAURANT

Living in the San Gabriel Valley for the past fortyplus years I have seen many restaurants come and go -- some should have left, and others I felt put a real effort into the craft. When I am looking to pair wines with food I head over Pasadena's steak sensation, Del Frisco's started in Louisville Kentucky over twenty years ago by Audrey Lapp. Now based out of Texas, Del Frisco's has built their reputation on a menu that features all prime beef.

What they have here in Pasadena is a great location, an incredible wine list, and a top-notch filet mignon. My assignment was to enjoy a pairing of fine wine with Del Frisco's popular menu, aided by Del Frisco's sommelier. Although not every restaurant has the luxury of having a sommelier, this is a fun way to go through a meal. I started off with the Ahi Tuna Tartare with avocado and a spicy citrus mayo. Ahi tuna tacos have become a popular appetizer in restaurants, and I enjoyed it the wine / Someone said take a poor man, the paired with a Paco & Lalo white wine from Spain, one of the most popular wines from the region of Rias Baixas. I've never been to Spain, but when I go I'll visit this wine region for sure. Next in my adventure came the Kale & Quinoa salad - it was spectacular, and went very well with my taste of Del Friscos Grille 55 S. Lake Ave. Pasadena Flora Springs Chardonnay. My friend John Ebbs teases me about my fascination of crab cakes, to me Del Frisco's has the best crab cakes in the area.

Now is the reason for our review: the steak! I 5 PM KLAA AM 830 and reach me through my had the 8 oz. (you don't need more) filet mignon website peterdills.com with a side of mac and cheese (did I say "truffled"?) If you've heard my radio show, I often talk about steaks and my contention that I can make a great steak at home. This one is as good as it gets, and sommelier Sharra Nagelberg paired it with a wine I reviewed recently, the Decoy Cabernet Sauvignon. But wait! There's more! The night was completed with their Coconut Cream Pie – this was so good we went back the next night and got it to go.

THE GOOD LIFE

HOW TO CREATE A SAFE 'AGING-IN-PLACE' HOME

Dear Savvy Senior,

My husband and I are thinking about making some modifications to our home so we can remain living there for as long as possible. Can you recommend some good resources that can help us with aging in place ideas? Staying Put

Many retirees, like you and your husband, want to for "HomeFit," or call 888-687-2277 and ask them to stay living in their own house for as long as possible. But being able to do so will depend on how easy it is to maneuver your home as you get older. Here are some helpful resources you can turn to, to get an idea of the different types of features and improvements you can make that will make your house safer and more convenient as you grow older.

Home Evaluation

A good first step in making your home more agefriendly is to do an assessment. Go through your house, room-by-room, looking for problem areas like potential tripping or slipping hazards, as well as areas that are hard to access and difficult to maintain. To help with this, there are several organizations that have agingin-place checklists that point out potential problems in each area of the home, along with modification and Rebuild Together, for example, has a two-page "Safe at Home Checklist" that's created in partnership with the Administration on Aging and the American Occupational Therapy Association. Go to AOTA.org and search for "Rebuilding Together Safe at Home

The National Association of Home Builders also has an "Aging-in-Place Remodeling Checklist" that offers more than 100 suggestions to can help homeowners age 50-plus live safely, independently and comfortably. Go to NAHB.org and search for "Aging in Place Remodeling Checklist."

Also check out AARP's excellent resource called the 'HomeFit Guide" that's filled with 28-pages of tips and live in as you age. You can access it at AARP.org – search mail you a free copy. Personalized Advice

If you want more personalized help, consider getting a professional in-home assessment with an occupational

An occupational therapist, or OT can evaluate the challenges and shortcomings of your home for aging in place, recommend design and modification solutions, and introduce you to products and services to help you make improvements.

To find an OT in your area, check with your physician, health insurance provider or local hospital, or seek recommendations from family and friends. Many health insurance providers, including Medicare, will pay for a home assessment by an OT if prescribed by your doctor. However, they will not cover the physical upgrades to the home.

Another option is to contact a builder who's a Certified Aging in Place Specialist (CAPS). CAPS are home remodelers and design-build professionals that are knowledgeable about aging in place home modifications, and can suggest ways to modify or remodel your home that will fit your needs and budget. CAPS are generally paid by the hour or receive a flat fee per visit or project.

To find a CAPS in your area visit the National Association of Home Builders website at NAHB.org/ capsdirectory where you can search by state and city.

FIRST DETECTION OF BORON ON THE SURFACE OF MARS:

Boron has been identified for the first time on the surface of Mars, indicating the potential for long-term habitable groundwater in the ancient past.

"No prior mission to Mars has found boron," said Patrick Gasda, a postdoctoral researcher at Los Alamos National Laboratory. "If the boron that we found in calcium sulfate mineral veins on Mars is similar to what we see on Earth, it would indicate that the groundwater of ancient Mars that formed these veins would have been 32-140 degrees Fahrenheit and neutral-to-alkaline pH." The temperature, pH, and dissolved mineral content of the groundwater could make it habitable.

The boron was identified by the rover's laser-shooting Chemistry and Camera (ChemCam) instrument, which was developed at Los Alamos National Laboratory in conjunction with the French space agency.

Boron is famously associated with arid sites where much water has evaporated away—think of the borax that mule teams once hauled from Death Valley. However, environmental implications of the boron found by Curiosity are still open to debate.

As the rover has progressed uphill, compositions trend toward more clay and more boron. These and other variations can tell us about conditions under which sediments were initially deposited and about how later groundwater moving through the accumulated layers altered and transported ingredients.

Groundwater and chemicals dissolved in it that appeared later on Mars left its effects most clearly in mineral veins that filled cracks in older layered rock. But it also affected the composition of that rock matrix surrounding the veins, and the fluid was in turn affected by the rock.

"There is so much variability in the composition at different elevations, we've hit a jackpot," said John Grotzinger, of Caltech. As the rover gets further uphill, researchers are impressed by the complexity of the lake environments when claybearing sediments were being deposited and also by the complexity of the groundwater interactions after the sediments were buried.

"A sedimentary basin such as this is a favorable for microbes.

chemical reactor," Grotzinger said. "Elements get rearranged. New minerals form and old ones dissolve. Electrons get redistributed. On Earth, these reactions support life."

Whether Martian life has ever existed is still unknown. No compelling evidence for it has been found. When Curiosity landed in Mars' Gale Crater in 2012, the mission's main goal was to determine whether the area ever offered an environment

'TWAS THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS...

Every family has those leave? traditions and days that not divulge any names unless there is enough As I wander aimlessly around the mall, I try to cash present) that are adequately defined by remember why I am there. One of the things April 1.

Christmas Eve clearly defines me.

Christmas Eve means many things to me. For one, it means shopping. Yes, it is true; I do all my Christmas shopping on Christmas Eve. It cuts down on the stress. I know some people who spend weeks shopping and their life is full of stress.

Mistress of the Parsonage begins her Christmas shopping in January and by August, she is in full shopping mode. There should be a law that any present bought before December cannot be considered a Christmas present.

When the children were still at home, I was just as eager as they were on Christmas morning to see what I had bought them for Christmas. They always appreciated the thought that went into their gift. You did not hear this from me, but sometimes my wife was surprised at the gift

There have been times, and again you did not hear it from me, when my wife bought a Christmas present and forgot about it by the time December rolled around. Once, and I will never repeat this, we discovered a cache of Christmas presents in the corner of our garage when we were packing to move. Only Santa really knows how long they were there.

Up to this year, I have successfully eluded such Christmas faux pas. My Christmas Eve starts bright and early in the morning. My first stop is the "Slurp 'N Burp Café" for a big breakfast. After an early breakfast, it is off to the mall for my Christmas Eve ritual of shopping. I only go to the mall once a year.

It is a tradition with me. My philosophy is, the more torturous the shopping experience the more the recipient will appreciate the gift. For me, nothing is more torturous than a visit at the local shopping mall.

Some go to the mall for pleasure and recreation. I go for penitence.

The average mall is so anti-man that every man enters its doors at his own peril. Many insurance companies have a disclosure, in fine print, in their policies to men making all insurance claims invalid when in a shopping mall.

Shopping malls are deliberately designed to frustrate the male equation of the marital state of mind. Let me list a few observations in this regard: Is it just me, or do they move the mall stores around from year to year just to confuse the average man? Why is it, no matter what door I enter the mall it is never there when I want to Once inside the mall it only takes me help define their family. I three hours to acclimate myself to the hostile personally know some families (although I shall environment. By that time, I am hopelessly lost. on my shopping agenda is a Christmas present for my wife. Although I have had over 45 years experience in this, I am no better off then our first Christmas.

In all those years, I have given her everything from jewelry to perfume to bubble bath. At this stage in my life, I do not know what to get her.

Last year I was tempted to wrap myself and put Unlike me in many ways, the Gracious the box under the tree, but I was afraid I would suffocate by Christmas morning. As I wandered from store to store, I could not find anything to buy for her. I could get her a card with money in it but I'm afraid the check would bounce - and then I would.

If I bought her a dress, I would only be putting my life on the line. If the dress I bought were too small, she would be offended to think I thought she was gaining weight. If the dress I bought was too large - well, you know what that would

If I did not get her something, I would look pretty silly come Christmas morning - I mean sillier than usual.

Wandering in and out of store after store brought me no closer to that gift of all gifts that would say, "I think you're terrific."

I was exhausted and about to give up and go home in shameful disgrace. Then, when I was about to give up, there it was. The perfect gift. I could not believe my eyes. I rubbed them in disbelief and loudly exclaimed, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus after all.'

I wept, I laughed, I burped (musta been the soda). Right before my eyes was the perfect gift for my wife. A gift that said, "Honey, you're the greatest." Watching the salesperson carefully wrap my Christmas trophy, I could not help thinking about the real meaning of Christmas. God searched all of heaven to find that one special gift to tell mankind how much He really loved them. Finding nothing better, He settled on that Gift of all gifts, the Lord Jesus Christ.

"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

My Christmas prayer is that this year you will celebrate with me God's gift of eternal life in Jesus Christ.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

sleigh being hauled by a heard of flying reindeer came from? It may sound silly, but my avid affection for animals prompted me to ponder this preposterous concept, so I decided to check into it and see what I this interesting and enlightening account of how those remarkable reindeer found flight into our modern day American Christmas tradition.

The character of Santa Claus is largely based on St. Nicholas of Mayra and Sinterklaas of Dutch lore. Both of those figures traveled via a noble, white steed. However in some Western cultures, particularly America, Santa Claus travels the world on Christmas Eve delivering gifts in a sleigh pulled by flying reindeer.

In 1812, American author Washington Irving refers to St. Nicholas as "...riding over the tops of the trees, in that self-same wagon wherein he brings his yearly presents to children.", in the revised version of A Complete History of New York written under the pseudonym Diedrich Knickerbocker. Yet no mention is made of what propels the wagon. So where did the story of flying reindeer originate?

The first known written account of reindeer in association with the legend of Santa Claus occurred in 1821 when New York printer William Gilley published a sixteen page booklet titled A New Year's Present, to the Little Ones from Five to Twelve Number III: The Children's Friend by an anonymous author. In the booklet, reindeer are introduced into the Santa Claus narrative: "Old Santaclaus with much delight. His reindeer drives this frosty night. O'er chimneytops, and tracks of snow. To bring his yearly gifts to you.'

During a 1922 interview, New York's Troy Sentinel editor Orville L. Holley questioned Mr. Gilley regarding the booklet's author and the topic of reindeer. Though he did not identify the author, Mr. Gilley responded:

"Dear Sir, the idea of Santaclaus was not mine nor was the idea of reindeer. The author of the tale but submitted the piece, with little added information.

However, it should be noted that he did mention the reindeer in a subsequent correspondence. He stated that far in the north near the Arctic lands a series of animals exist, these hooven and antlered animals resemble the reindeer and are feared and honored by those around, as you see he claims to have heard they could fly, from his mother. His mother being an Indian of the area.'

The Night Before Christmas. The poem features Love and let live.

eight flying reindeer pulling Santa's sleigh, and for the first time they are identified by name: "When what to my wondering eyes should appear, but a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer. With a little old driver, so lively and quick, I new in a moment it must be St. Nick.

More rapid than eagles his coursers they came and he whistled and shouted and called them by name; 'Now, Dasher! Now, Dancer! Now, Prancer and Vixen! On, Comet! On, Cupid! On, Dunder and Blixem! To the top of the porch, to

Have you ever wondered where the idea of Santa's the top of the wall! Now, dash away, dash away, dash away all!'

Originally called 'Dunder and Blixem' in the 1823 publication, the names of Santa's 7th and 8th reindeer are now commonly known as 'Donner' and 'Blitzen'. could find out. Thanks to altogether christmas.com for Dunder and Blixem are Dutch words that translate to thunder and lightning. It was after Johnny Marks penned the song Rudolf the Red-Nosed Reindeer in 1949, based on the story by Robert L. May, that 'Donner' and 'Blitzen' became the most popular spellings for the 7th and 8th reindeer names. May's story and Marks' song were both well received and of course, Rudolph is without doubt the most famous reindeer on Santa's

This helps determine the first written accounts of reindeer in conjunction with Santa Claus, but how did reindeer come to be associated with Santa in the first place? Many popular Christmas traditions related to Santa Claus were brought to America by Dutch and German immigrants. As the persona of Santa and celebration of Christmas developed in the west, customs and myths from foreign lands, including those of Scandinavian and European countries were incorporated.

As pagans converted to Christianity during the Middle Ages, winter festivals and traditions, as well as popular pagan beliefs often mingled with Christian celebrations of Christmas. In Norse and Germanic mythology, Thor is the god of Thunder and soars through the sky in a chariot pulled by two magical Thor was highly revered and arguably the most popular of Norse gods in ancient times. Images and stories of Thor soaring the skies in his sleigh pulled by two large horned goats may have influenced the creation of Santa's sleigh and flying antlered reindeer, by those in the west familiar with such mythology.

Reindeer were once viewed as mysterious creatures linked to the northern part of the world, widespread in Scandinavian and Eastern European countries where, during the 18th century, they were domesticated. They were often used in transportation, pulling sleds and sleighs, and are still an important aspect of some indigenous Northern European cultures, particularly to the Sami people (better known as Laplanders to non-Europeans).

So that's the long and short of how reindeer came to be known as the wondrous flying creatures propelling Santa's sleigh. I hope you found this story as interesting In 1823, the Troy Sentinel published the poem, as I did! And with that 'I wish you all a very merry A Visit From St. Nicholas, commonly known as Christmas, and a bountifully blessed holiday season.

Authority reaches the end of 2016, there is much to Looking back, we recognize the achievements of this past year. The successful opening of the Foothill Gold Line segment from Pasadena to Azusa in March, which brought ridership on the light rail system to historic highs. Completion of the Glendora to Montclair segment's Advanced Conceptual Engineering draft documents in September; weeks ahead of the November passage of Los Angeles County's Measure M which ensured its completion.

Looking ahead to next year, the Construction Authority is preparing the 12.3-mile, six-station Glendora to Montclair segment for construction. The agency is on schedule to break ground on the first of two design-build contracts in late-2017. This next segment will be significantly more complicated to build than the previous two and we are currently working closely with each of the six corridor cities, two counties, the California Public Utilities Commission, Metrolink and others to prepare a plan for the construction ahead.

As we ready the next segment, the need for the As the Foothill Gold Line Construction line only grows. Tens of thousands of students, faculty, staff and visitors travel to and from the nearly two dozen universities located within a short walk, bike or bus ride to one of the six future stations. More than one million visitors travel to the County Fairplex each year, located at the future La Verne Station. And more than 50,000 new residents and 15,000 new jobs are projected to move into the corridor by 2024.

The Construction Authority is proud to have completed the first two Foothill Gold Line segments on time and on budget; delivering high quality work that has changed the fabric of the San Gabriel Valley by spurring growth and providing a safe, reliable and environmentally sustainable travel option for the region's residents, workers and students. We now look forward to finishing what we started; and connecting Los Angeles, the San Gabriel Valley and Inland Empire by light rail in the coming years.

DECEMBER: A TIME OF MANY CELEBRATIONS

By Joan Schmidt

December is a month of many celebrations. Christians around the world celebrate the birth of Our Savior Iesus, the Messiah on December 25. December 8 we attended Mass for the Feast of the Immaculate Conception, Patroness of the United States. Because of Adam and Eve's first sin, Catholics believe everyone is born with Original Sin, later removed by Baptism. The only person born without sin is the Blessed Virgin Mary. In 1854; Pope Pius IX proclaimed her, the Immaculate Conception; in 1860, when she appeared to Bernadette at Lourdes, she said, "I am the Immaculate Conception."

It was winter, but Juan found roses and put them in his tilma (cloak). When Juan let his cloak down, the roses dropped to the floor and an image of the Blessed Mother was on the

In 1966, Maulana Karenga created Kwanzaa, the first specifically African American Holiday; its roots are the Swahili phrase matunda ya kwanza "the first fruits of the harvest". This celebration evolved to help African Americans reconnect with their African Cultural and Historical heritage by uniting in meditation and the study of African tradition and Nguzo Saba, the seven principals of African Heritage". The seven principals are Umoja (Unity), Kujichagulia (Self-Determination), Ujima (Collective Work and Responsibility), Ujamaa (Cooperative Economics), Nia Purpose), Kuumba (Creativity), and Imani (Faith).

Kwanzaa's seven days last from December 26-January 1. Homes may feature beautiful African art, displayed on colorful cloth. On a Mkeka (mat), there is a Kinara(candle holder) with Mishumaa(seven candles), mazao (crops), Muhindi

This year, the Jewish eight day festival of lights-Hanukkah, ("to dedicate") begins on December 26. Two thousand years ago, the Maccabees, a small band of Jewish warriors drove a mighty army out of Jerusalem. (Given their size, this was a "miracle") After they took Jerusalem, the Jews rededicated their Temple to God. As they cleared the Temple to purify it, they found a small container of holy oilenough to burn for one day, but lasted eight nights, a second miracle! Today many Jewish households celebrate this beautiful celebration. Each night, two blessings are recited as one candle is lit on the Hanukkiah, a meal follows, including food fried in oil such as latkes (potato pancakes), pontshkes (doughnuts), bimuelas(fritters), cheese and dairy products. After they eat, they may play the dreidel (4 sided spinning top), and a gift or Hanukkah Gelt (money or chocolate) is given.

The Hanukkah candles are lit for "illumination of the house without"-so passersby can see it and be reminded of the miracle.

May this holiday season be a joyful and meaningful one for all my readers as they observe their special traditions and their new year be filled with good tidings.

Notes from the Sierra MadrePlayhouse

SANTA CAME EARLY THIS YEAR!

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano

Santa has already been very good to us this year! We got word this week that the Les and Sheri Biller Foundation will be giving SMP it's largest-ever Foundation grant for our upcoming production of Bee-luther-hatchee - $15,000! The Biller Foundation supports "socially-charged theater" in Washington State and in LA County. We originally submitted a Letter of Intent and then were invited to submit a full application.

Diane Siegel, who we are so lucky works with us, came up with wonderful programming to support the play which deals with cultural appropriation who owns someone's story and who has the right to tell it. The application was long and probing wanting to know about our organization, our staff, the show's budget and our theater's budget. I had help pulling together all of the elements from Diane, Estelle Campbell, our Managing Director, and Louise Calaway, our accountant. I felt very good about what we submitted, and honestly thought we had a shot at being funded. In my dreams I thought that $5,000 would be a reasonable number and that would almost support all of the exciting outreach programs that Diane had designed. That we were funded for three times that amount was so exciting and validating, especially because when the Grant's Manager called to let us know she described how strong our application was and how "timely, ontarget, and important" this play is.

Bee-luther-hatchee has been a passion project for me for several years. To have it supported in this way is so validating. But here is the bow on top of Santa's present - the Biller Foundation only funded four theaters this year: ACT in Seattle (a major regional theater), CTG downtown (that's the Taper), the Geffen Playhouse, AND us! Boy's Life by Robert McCammon In me are the memories of a boy's life, spent in that realm of enchantments. These are the things I want to tell you.... Robert McCammon delivers "a tour de force of storytelling" (BookPage) in his award-winning masterpiece, a novel of Southern boyhood, growing up in the 1960s, that reaches far beyond that evocative landscape to touch readers universally. Boy's Life is a richly imagined, spellbinding portrait of the magical worldview of the young -- and of innocence lost. Zephyr, Alabama, is an idyllic hometown for eleven-year-old Cory Mackenson -a place where monsters swim the river deep and friends are forever. Then, one cold spring morning, Cory and his father witness a car plunge into a lake -- and a desperate rescue attempt brings his father face-to-face with a terrible, haunting vision of death. As Cory struggles to understand his father's pain, his eyes are slowly opened to the forces of good and evil that surround him. From an ancient mystic who can hear the dead and bewitch the living, to a violent clan of moonshiners, Cory must confront the secrets that hide in the shadows of his hometown -- for his father's sanity and his own life hang in the balance. One of my alltime favorite books.

Being Aware of Being Aware by Rupert Spira Everybody is aware, all seven billion of us. We are aware of thoughts, feelings, sensations, and perceptions. All people share the experience of being aware, but relatively few people are aware that they are aware. Most people's lives consist of a flow of thoughts, images, ideas, feelings, sensations, sights, sounds, and so on. Very few people ask, "What is it that knows this flow of thoughts, feelings, and perceptions? With what am I aware of my experience?"The knowing of our being-or rather, awareness's knowing of its own being in us-is our primary experience, our most fundamental and intimate experience. It is in this experience that all the peace, happiness, and love we have ever longed for reside. The happiness we have sought for so long outside of ourselves, in situations, objects, and relationships, turns out to be always present, always available, in the simple knowing of our own being as it is. The knowing of our own being shines in each one of us as the experience "I am" or "I am aware," or simply as the thought "I."

Because this simplest, most obvious, most familiar, and intimate experience is to the mind not a thing, or nothing, it is overlooked or forgotten by the vast majority of humanity. The overlooking of our own being is the root cause of all unhappiness and, therefore, the root cause of our search for happiness. What is the nature of this experience of being aware? The contemplations in this collection will lead readers toward their own experiential understanding of that

WHAT TO SEE, WHAT TO SKIP

seeking something a more adult oriented at A-

the theater, make your way over to the new Jake Gyllenhaal and Amy Adams film, "Nocturnal Animals." The second picture by fashion designerturned-filmmaker Tom Ford, "Nocturnal Animals" all-encompassing narrative that packs a harrowing punch. The focal plot focuses on Susan (Adams), a high-end art dealer stuck in an unhappy second marriage in which her husband (Armie Hammer) is clearly cheating on her. One day, she randomly receives a package from her ex-husband Edward (Gyllenhaal) containing a manuscript called "Nocturnal Animals" — a reference made by Edward when they were married to describe Susan's failure to sleep well.

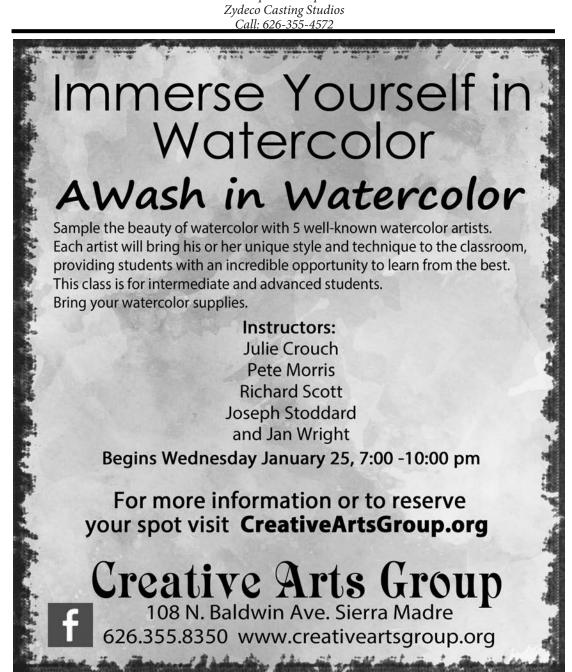

Edward has dedicated the soon to be published novel to Susan. However, this isn't a love story, more of a tragic one indeed. It tells a haunting noir-style anecdote of a man named Tony (also played by Gyllenhaal) who is driving across an isolated Texas highway in the wee hours of the night with his wife and teen daughter when three lowlifes viciously force them off the road. These nasty men kidnap Tony's wife and daughter while deserting him, and as Tony initiates his frantic quest to uncover their whereabouts and pursue justice, Susan finds herself flashing back to the diverged feelings of her tumultuous past with Edward. Susan requests nearly 19 years. When agreed to meet, both Susan's imaginary and actual worlds come to a head-on

"Nocturnal" is masterful in both mood and style and underneath it all there is the beating of a dark the always-intense Michael Shannon ("Take Shelter," Midnight Special") and a terrific performance Both actors are equally great to their better-known when it finally landed in theaters. Grade: C

SKIP: MANCHESTER BY THE SEA "Manchester By The Sea" debuted way back in January at the Sundance Film Festival. It stars Casey Affleck as Lee Chandler, a brooding man working inventively intertwines three storylines into one as a maintenance worker in Boston. When he finds out his older brother suffers a tragedy, he heads back home north of the city to discover he's been named guardian to his 16-year old nephew. With the intensity of losing his only sibling and severe reservations about raising a teenager, Chandler's return to the past re-opens a horrifying tragedy of his very own. Written and directed by Kenneth Lonergan ("You Can Count On Me," "Margaret"), the movie is beautiful composed and sharply acted. However, at nearly two and a half hours long and a dreary protagonist, the film really has no clear direction or destination. The plot line is no better than something episodic television and squanders the talents of supporting characters Michelle Williams and Kyle Chandler.

This movie is being hailed as a masterpiece by most top critics and for the love of God, I can't see why. Sure, its subject matter is heavy as well as showcasing a strong lead performance by Affleck. Still, the dialogue choices in some scenes are baffling, the nephew played by newcomer Lucas Hedges gives a green, if often times, uneven performance. The film is easily 30-40 minutes too long and feels like to meet up with Edward after not seeing him for things are reiterated or shown again to get the point across. Kind of drag through the second half, I never felt connected to these characters or their actions. Maybe I'm in the minority here, but I am utterly confused of all the best picture talk for this one. If you want something depressing, manipulative heart. Along with Adams and Gyllenhaal, you have in trying to convey a certain emotion, and brings little to the table to truly resonate with, then look no further than "Manchester By The Sea," another by Aaron Taylor-Johnson ("Savages," "Kickass"). super hyped up Sundance film that falls utterly flat

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

EXACTLY WHAT IS A POWER OF ATTORNEY?

Power of attorney (POA) is a document that grants a specific person, called an agent, the authority to make important decisions on behalf of another person, who is called the principal.

There are many different types of powers of attorney. The scope of the authority the principal grants to the agent can be very broad in nature, or very specific. The power of attorney document specifies exactly what that authority looks like. For example, you could give someone the power to make decisions about your:

- Finances
- Health care
- Personal property Real estate
- Business
- Personal and family matters
- Lawsuits

Taxes

- Insurances and annuities
- Government benefits

The agent can be granted authority to make just one type of decision, a mix, or all of them; it really boils down to the principal's needs and wishes.

When it comes to powers of attorney, you have several options for granting others decisionmaking authority in your life. But keep in mind the power of attorney does not, by itself, adequately address all situations. For example, while giving power of attorney to someone can be useful for to those who want a specific person to be able to make certain decisions, it isn't a substitute for a living will. If you want to imbue a person with more comprehensive health care authority in the event you are unable to make medical decisions for yourself, consider executing a separate healthcare directive, which includes a living will, to meet that need.

The laws governing power of attorney vary from state to state and situation to situation. There is no "one size fits all" power of attorney document, so don't fall into the trap of thinking a fill in the blank POA is going to properly protect you. Always seek the counsel of a trusted attorney before creating any legal document, to ensure you make informed and empowered decisions, both for yourself and the people you compelled to take notice. There will indeed be investigations and hearings, in both chambers. It appears, for now anyway, that they actually view this unprecedented national security breach as nearly as important as Hillary's private server.

Assuming that Republicans don't try to spin the whole thing into oblivion, assuming that they really intend to demonstrate that they're not being played for saps, and assuming that they do intend to fully probe the relationship between Trump and the ex-KGB thug, here are the big questions they might

1. What did Trump know and when did he know it?

Prior to the election, intelligence briefers told Trump that Russia was interfering in our election, but he rejected the intel, claiming publicly that it might just be some 400-pound hacker somewhere. On what rational basis did he have reason to disbelieve the intelligence warnings? In other words, what did Trump know and why did he choose not to know it?

2. What are the full extent of Trump's financial ties to Russia? As his son Donald Jr. said in 2008, "Russians make up a pretty disproportionate cross-section of a lot of our assets. We see a lot of money pouring in from Russia." But we still don't know the full extent — there have long been suspicions that he owes money to Russian oligarchs — because Trump never provided a full accounting of his business interests. Will the Republicans finally demand that he fork over all his

3. Why was Russia so motivated, via its hail of propaganda, to help get Trump elected? Did Trump start echoing Russia's positions — soften our NATO commitments; soften or end our economic sanctions — because he sincerely believes those positions, or because he has been steered by the Russian apologists in his circle?

4. And what about those apologists?

They include:

Michael Flynn, the incoming national security adviser, a regular contributor to Vladimir Putin's RT propaganda network, and a paid speechmaking attendee at RT's 10th anniversary dinner last

Carter Page, a backstage foreign policy adviser who has business dealings in Russia Paul Manafort, the campaign manager who was jettisoned after he was outed as a paid advisor to a pro-Putin leader in Ukraine Rex Tillerson, the secretary of state nominee, a foe of our anti-Putin sanctions, and winner of a Putin "friendship" award. What's the current full extent of their financial ties to Russia? Will the Republicans subpoena their records? 5. Is there any evidence of pre-election collusion between Trump advisors and Kremlin officials? If not, what's the substance of their post-election communications? Are major shifts in American policy in the works - stuff that's detrimental to American interests? Stuff we don't know about? The latter questions may be the most important of all. Even if Russian's pro-Trump cyberpush wasn't pivotal in getting Trump elected, Russia got the president it wanted. A president who (for all we know) may be financially or otherwise compromised to act in Russia's interests at the expense of ours. As Eric Edelmen and David J. Kramer, two George W. Bush foreign policy officials, warn: "Without U.S. leadership keeping the Europeans united against Putin, Western resolve in the face of Russian aggression will crumble. Before even moving to 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. and gaining the authority to lift U.S. sanctions on Russia, Trump could produce a radical change in policy toward Moscow. Such a change, however, would not make America, the West or the world great again. But it could trigger the unraveling of the alliances and institutional structures that made the U.S. and its European partners great in the past." All told, the pro-Republican columnist Jennifer Rubin said it best yesterday: "You would think it would be obvious that Russian efforts to select America's president through cyber-weaponized revelations may be the most important election story — ever. This is warfare of an entirely different sort, one aimed at the heart of democracy.

Which prompts my biggest question of all:

6. Do congressional Republicans have the fortitude and patriotism to take this probe wherever it leads?

PETER FUNT GIVE TRUMP CREDIT

The nation's newspapers are struggling mightily to find columnists who are willing to write nice things about Donald

That's according to a report in the Washington Post, indicating that the regular stable of conservative punditsfrom George Will to David Brooks--isn't delivering enough pro-Trump op-eds. As it happens, I was just finishing a column praising the president-elect when the Post's story came out.

Even before taking office, Donald Trump is sending a powerful signal to the nearly 63 million Americans who voted for him that he is, indeed, a bold thinker and an agent of change.

For instance, after pledging during the campaign to stop the exodus of companies to Mexico and other countries, Trump quickly saved roughly 800 jobs at a Carrier plant in Indiana. True, the number is lower than Trump first claimed, and granted, as the Indianapolis Star reports, as many as 2,100 Hoosiers are still about to lose their jobs, and yes, keeping Carrier happy will cost Indiana $7 million in tax incentives. But to dwell on such relatively minor concerns misses the larger point.

The president-elect has demonstrated that he can pick up the phone—something Mike Pence says he'll do often—and get action from business chieftains looking for a bribe. The Carrier tax breaks will cost only $8,750 per job saved. Using that formula, every single one of of the nation's full-time jobs could be saved, at least temporarily, for a mere $1.09 trillion.

, Donald Trump heroically vowed to "drain the swamp" in Washington of enlightened leaders with meaningful government experience. What better way to make good on that promise than by selecting Ben Carson, a retired brain surgeon with no experience in government or in housing to be Secretary of Housing and Urban Development?

Trump deserves enormous credit for surrounding himself with individuals who will shun business-as-usual in Washington. Clearly that's why he chose as chief strategist Steve Bannon, a true maverick who favors hate speech of all types including white nationalism, anti-semitism, immigrant-hatred and misogyny.

The president-elect has made clear that he will not become another political hack; rather, he will continue to hone the skills that made him so admired in business. He will actively manage his vast holdings, regardless of whether they conflict with his White House job. He even rebuffed the critics and media elite who urged him to give up his gig as executive producer of NBC's "Celebrity Apprentice."

Americans don't like a candidate who says one thing to woo voters and then flip-flops once elected. Yes, Trump has conceded that the wall on the border with Mexico might be a more modest fence, and true, he's apparently decided against mass deportations, and granted, he admires many of the best features in Obamacare, and, yes, he has recently deduced that climate change might be man's doing, and, of course, he no longer intends to prosecute Hillary Clinton.

But when it comes to things average citizens really care about, Trump is proving to be a man of his word. He said he wouldn't stop tweeting as president, and he hasn't. He vowed to retain his children as top advisers, and he is following through.

Donald Trump is a leader with a vision of how America works. For example, a few days before Thanksgiving his website offered for sale a Christmas ornament in the form of a miniature Make America Great Again hat, brushed with real gold and

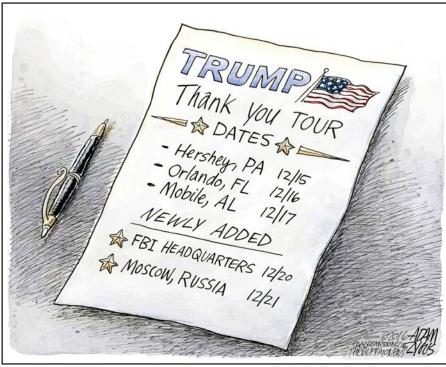

By holding rallies across the nation—even though there is nothing left to campaign for or about—Trump is already cementing his place in history.

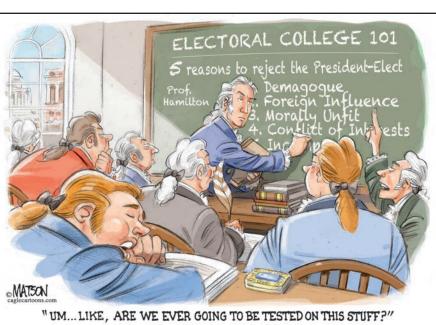

As for the nation's opinion writers, their unwillingness to recognize Donald Trump's impressive accomplishments after such a short period of time reflects poorly on them and not on the true American hero they would seek to defame.

TURN/RIGHT TURN

MAKING SENSE by MICHAEL REAGAN

WHY EVEN HAVE A BORDER?

Why does California even bother to have a border?

Why does the United States of America? In 2013 the governor of our one-party state, Jerry Brown, and the Democrats in Sacramento effectively turned California into a sanctuary state.

They told Washington that if any of the illegal immigrants arrested here had not committed a serious crime they would not be turned over to federal immigration officials for deportation. Now the council of Santa Ana has voted to join more than 30 other California towns that have declared themselves sanctuary cities.

Already L.A, San Francisco, San Diego and Oakland won't cooperate with federal officials or spend any of their resources to look for people who are in the USA

We'll see how tough the politicians running these cities and places like Chicago are when the Trump administration starts cutting off their federal funding. Meanwhile, the state I love continues to be abused by the Progressive Gestapo (PG) in Sacramento that doesn't care who gets hurts by their open-door immigration policies or their terrible regulations and nonstop tax hikes. The working-class Latinos who live here – the legal ones, the American citizens - and the working poor are the ones who'll lose their jobs to the cheaper labor of illegal aliens. The state's "Haves" - the Hollywood elites, Silicon Valley computer engineers and lifetime political hacks -- are not going to lose their jobs to an illegal immigrant It's going to be the "Have Nots" - the gardeners, day laborers and entry-level restaurant workers. They'll be the ones who'll be hurt by the incoming waves of illegal immigrants that California's Progressive Gestapo greets with open arms and treats better than the state's shrinking number of taxpayers.

Illegal immigrants in California already get free health services and schools for their kids. They already can get a driver's license. Now they're talking about letting

In California, there's a whole industry built around supplying fake Social Security cards. You can buy one and get it in an hour. Then you have the paperwork you need to take someone's job away from them.

So watch out, America.

California is where most of our worst ideas about government are incubated and put into practice.

Unless Donald Trump's get-tough policy on illegal immigration turns things around, the Progressive Gestapo might be coming to your state and town next - if it's not already there.

California is a 40-year-old train wreck and it's only getting worse. Major corporations are moving their headquarters to other states. People who own homes and pay taxes are leaving too

A friend of mine who had immigrated to America from communist Czechoslovakia recently gave up on California.

The Golden State was looking more and more to him like the country he escaped from in 1986, so he sold his house and moved to Puerto Rico.

Immigrants from around the planet used to come to America to work hard, get rich and become Americans. Now they come here - often illegally -- and want Americans to assimilate to their cultures and give them free stuff. It's getting so crazy in California, legal immigrants from Mexico are thinking of moving back.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF URSULA CSEN-TERY aka URSULA S. CSENTERY Case No. 16STPB06610

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of URSULA CSENTERY aka URSULA S. CSENTERY

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Marc Csentery in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.
THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Marc Csentery be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on January 13, 2017 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 9 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
